New material delays report from arms investigators

WASHINGTON (AP) — A board investigating the U.S. sale of arms to Iran interviewed President Reagan for more than two hours and announced it had discovered "new material" requiring a delay on completion of its report, a spokesman says.

Herbert Hetu, spokesman for the board headed by former Texas Republican Sen. John Tower, disclosed the new finding Wednesday, saying there had been "a recent acquisition of new material," but he refused to describe it.

He did say, however, that the extension request did not result from the board's 70-minute second meeting with Reagan on Wednesday, its review of the president's notes or the hospitalization of former National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane, who took an overdose of Valium in what police sources say was a suicide attempt.

The Tower Commission, appointed by Reagan, is one of several panels investigating the sale of arms to Iran and alleged diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan rebels. It had been expected to present its findings next week, but revised that Wednesday to two weeks.

The New York Times reported today that new information received by the commission connects the National Security Council to private efforts for supplying arms to Nicaragua's Contra rebels. The newspaper, however, said it could not be determined whether this was the information referred to by Hetu.

In another report dealing with the Contra arms question, The Boston Globe reported today that Americans involved in supplying arms to the Contras signed secrecy agreements promising the U.S. government they wouldn't reveal secrets learned during their activities.

The agreements, according to the Globe, said each employee has "a continuing individual responsibility to the United States government for the protection of such information" and warned they could be prosecuted for revealing it.

Congress had prohibited government involvement in providing arms to the rebels from October 1984 to October 1986, and the administration has said all arms operations were private.

In other developments: —The Washington Post reported today that Secretary of State George P. Shultz confronted Reagan after learning last Nov. 20 that then-CIA Director William J. Casey planned to misinform the Senate Intelligence Committee the next day about arms sales to Iran.

The Post, quoting sources it did not name, said Shultz's protests to Reagan led to the uncovering by Attorney General Edwin Meese III five days later of the diversion of arms sale funds. The Post said Casey was going to claim U.S. officials thought the Israelis were shipping oil drilling equipment, not missiles, to Iran.

—The speaker of Iran's parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said the United States had made a new attempt "a few days ago" to contact Iranian leaders and even provided a direct telephone number for Reagan, according to Tehran radio. But White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said neither the White House nor the State Department had any indication anyone talked to any Iranian official.

—Fitzwater said Reagan was "very concerned and upset for" McFarlane, his former national security adviser. The spokesman said Reagan telephoned McFarlane's wife, Jonda, on Tuesday, but had not spoken to McFarlane, who remained at Bethesda Naval Hospital in good condition.

—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee announced Wednesday it will take over an investigation begun informally last year into allegations that the Contras have been involved in narcotics trafficking. Committee Chairman Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said Washington attorney Jack A. Blum will join the panel as special counsel to investigate the allegations.

DENNIS NEWTON

Newton files in school race

Dennis Newton, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent, has filed for an at-large seat on the Hereford Schools board of trustees.

He, his wife Patricia and their two sons moved to Hereford in 1983. Newton is active in Lions Club.

Newton filed Wednesday for one of the two at-large seats now held by Bill Townsend and John Fuston. He is the first to file for the school board election which will be April 4. The filing deadline is March 4.

The District 2 seat, now held by Jo Garcia, is also up for election this year.

3 more file for city seats

Three more persons have filed as candidates for Hereford City Commission seats in the upcoming April 4 election.

The city election drew its first contested race yesterday when Sylvana Jaurez, 24, filed as a candidate for Place 1. Loran Nixon is the incumbent but is seeking his first elective term. He was appointed to fill a vacancy last year.

The other new candidates are Paul Hamilton, 35, and Paul Abalos, 50, both seeking at-large seats for Places 5 or 6. These are new places under the expanded single-member district voting system, and the terms will be for one year this time.

Abalos is self employed in the restaurant business; Hamilton is employed with West Texas Rural Telephone, and Juarez is employed at LoMart Discount Center.

Under the new election method, the city commission will have a mayor and six commissioners. Four of the places will have representatives from specific areas of the city, while two places and the mayor's post will be elected on an at-large basis. Mayor Wes Fisher had previously filed for reelection, as well as Tom LeGate, Place 3 commissioner.

Love Notes

A valentine dated 1895 by the sender, above, is one of the oldest of the traditional love cards on display at the Deaf Smith County Museum this month in honor of Valentine's Day which is Saturday. Many of the valentines, below, are so old that the bright red has faded to brown.

Senate group checking legality of nominations

AUSTIN (AP) — Appointees named to state agencies in the waning days of former Gov. Mark White's administration are meeting the same fate that befell those named to jobs as Gov. Bill Clements wrapped up his first term.

The Senate Nominations Committee will vote next Tuesday on seven nominations made by White after he was defeated in the Nov. 4 general election.

However, the committee will be briefed first to determine if White's appointments were made legally.

Six of the nominees appeared before the committee Wednesday but the vote was delayed until after the legal briefing.

After the committee acts, the nominations will go to the full Senate for the required two-thirds confirmation of gubernatorial appointments.

"We don't care to delay this any longer than necessary but we want all members of the committee to have a chance to review the law," said Sen. Chet Edwards, committee chairman.

After White was elected governor in 1982, he recalled a number of nominations made by Clements and made new appointments.

A bill passed during the 1983 Legislature generally said a defeated governor could not make any appointments after the November general election. There is a controversy presently over whether the law applies only to vacancies that occur before Nov. 1 or those vacancies after the election.

Edwards, D-Duncanville, said Clements had not personally asked that the names of the seven appointees be returned, but members of Clements' staff had talked with the committee.

The nominations held up includes Nancy Barnes, wife of former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, and Ronald Luna to the Texas Employment Commission, both made on Dec. 16. Mrs. Barnes was a former TEC member and Luna has served three years on the board.

The other questioned nominations include the reappointment of Jim Sale, Dallas, to the Veterans Land Board; the appointment of Austin Court of Appeals Judge Robert Gamme to the Texas Judicial Council; the appointment of Richard Bischoff, Houston, to the Texas Turnpike

Firemen make 5 calls

Hereford's volunteer firemen filed reports of five calls Wednesday and early Thursday morning.

The first run was to 401 E. First at 8:42 a.m. for a gasoline spill. At 9:16 a.m., there was a truck fire at BJM on East U.S. 60.

At 11:20 a.m. the crew reported to a train-truck accident at the Santa Fe railroad crossing at Lee Street. Steve Brooks, 29, of Sunray, suffered facial cuts when the truck he was driving was hit by a train. Law officers said the crossing lights were flashing when Brooks attempted to cross with a load of corn.

A call was received at 3:24 p.m. in reference to some firewood burning on S. Ave. K and at 12:06 a.m. today, firemen reported to the 200 block of Hickory but found the run to be a false alarm.

Twin plants would boost economy if jobs provided

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Twin plants along the border must prove they provide jobs for U.S. workers or face losing duty exemptions, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

"I don't want just a billboard on our side and a plant on the other side," Bentsen told a hearing Wednesday. "This has to be something that creates jobs."

"That objective must never be lost sight of and the Mexican government must understand that," he said.

Under the twin-plant system, capital intensive goods are produced on the U.S. side of the border and cheap Mexican labor across the border is used to assemble and package the finished products.

Once the twin plants, or maquiladoras, start moving into the interior of Mexico, Bentsen said his fellow legislators will have trouble granting the duty exemptions.

Bentsen's comments came at a Senate Finance Committee field hearing on Reagan administration plans to strip the U.S. Customs Service budget by more than $100 million.

Texas' senior senator said the border is under attack in Washington and its fragile economy stands to suffer the most.

"I was born and reared on this border and I'm telling you, it's under attack," said Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Finance Committee.

Bentsen said the proposed Customs cuts could slow trade between the United States and Mexico and hurt both economies.

Businessmen from the Rio Grande Valley told Bentsen the border can't afford restrictions on commerce and jobs that would occur if Customs' budget is cut according to the Reagan administration proposal.

Reagan's proposed budget would reduce Customs' work force by 2,000. Additionally, $93.7 million would be cut from Customs' drug-fighting budget, and $27 million would be slashed in salaries and expenses.

"While the scope of the Customs Service mission along the border has been growing, they are being asked to do more with less," said R.M. Duffey, chairman and chief executive officer of Texas Commerce Bank-Brownsville.

Duffey said manpower reductions in the Customs Service would slow the movement of goods and people at border crossings, hurting tourism, industry, twin plants and the local economies.

Bentsen said Customs collects $17 for every $1 spent.

"The economic welfare of the entire border area depends on the unimpeded flow of legitimate commercial traffic across the border," Bentsen said.

"That vital flow depends, in turn, on Customs doing its job."

State

Texas prison system is closed again

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The Texas prison system is closed today for the second time in a week and the third time in a month after the inmate population exceeded a state-mandated ceiling.

Prison officials were forced to stop accepting new inmates after some 700 new prisoners were admitted from county jails on Wednesday. The jails had been jammed with inmates because of earlier prison closings.

"I feel sure we'll be closed Friday," Texas Department of Corrections spokesman Charles Brown said. "And I don't know if we'll have any (parole) certificates over the weekend."

Brown said another concern of the crowding crisis was that if the system remained over 95 percent capacity for five consecutive days, state law requires the governor to declare a prison emergency.

Under such an emergency, inmates classified as trustees and some other non-violent inmates would be advanced 30 days "good time" toward their parole.

He estimated, however, that only about 50 inmates would become eligible for release under that provision, and it might be necessary to go to the next step in the process — a 60-day good-time advance — to increase an inmate pool and enable the system to drop below 95 percent of capacity and reopen.

Baptist commission opposes bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Baptist Christian Life Commission is renewing its opposition to a state lottery bill, saying such a game would turn state government into "the big bookie."

Phil Strickland, commission director, said lotteries are highly regressive taxes on people who can't afford it and are an inefficient way for government to raise revenues.

With a lottery, Strickland said Wednesday, "You are committed as a matter of public policy to going out and getting as many people to lose their money as possible. The more folks that go out and lose their money, the better off the state's going to be in terms of taxes."

Although several public opinion polls have indicated substantial popular support among Texans for a lottery, commission official Weston Ware said he believes many people haven't thought through all the ramifications.

"People in Texas might be willing to let people gamble. But if they really think about it, they're not interested in having the state be the big bookie," Ware said.

While some lawmakers have labeled a lottery as a "painless" tax, Strickland said the social costs are enormous.

School found to discriminate

HOUSTON (AP) — The Pasadena Independent School District discriminates against black teacher applicants, a federal court jury has ruled.

The all-woman jury of one black and five whites deliberated less than four hours before delivering the verdict Tuesday in the 19-day trial.

Jurors in U.S. District Judge James DeAnda's court also found that it was the school district's practice to grant preferences to teacher applicants who had previous contact with the district and that such preferences had a disparate impact on black applicants.

Stephen Greenberg, the school's attorney, said the district may appeal the verdict.

The Justice Department's civil rights division sued the district in 1984, when 33 of its 1,440 teachers were black.

Thirty blacks testified they had applied unsuccessfully for teaching positions in the district between 1977 and 1984.

Testimony showed that the district granted favorable treatment to applicants who did their student teaching in the district, were alumni of Pasadena schools, or were referred by district employees.

POW-MIA protestors called 'crazies'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House official says some of the protesters claiming the government is dragging its feet on the POW-MIA issue are "crazies" who are harming U.S. efforts to learn more about missing servicemen in Southeast Asia.

Richard Childress of the National Security Council said Wednesday that protests directed at the administration and the Laotian government have brought complaints from the Laotians.

Childress, who directs Asian affairs, including talks on the POW-MIA issue, for the NSC, said U.S. officials agree the protests are posing difficulties.

"They (the Laotians) told us this kind of activity can inhibit cooperation," Childress said. "It's not helpful to the process. And we agree with them."

Childress also said the government has received word from the Vietnam government that it is interested in continuing technical talks with the United States on the MIA issue, despite a two-month interruption.

He said Vietnamese leadership changes during an internal party congress have not changed its willingness to talk on the issue.

About two dozen people, many of them children of U.S. servicemen shot down or captured as ground soldiers there during the Vietnam War, attempted to deliver more than 1,500 packages of food, medicine and other items last month to the Laotian Embassy in Washington.

They were blocked by police after depositing about 100 packages, which were addressed to men missing in action in that country and included letters from their families.

The activists contend the Reagan administration has not done enough to press the governments of Vietnam and Laos for information about the missing men or to release any who may still be held alive.

Cable channel to show Soviet TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some Americans will get a glimpse of daily Soviet television — news programs, cartoons, rock videos, game shows and more — during a week-long experiment by a U.S. cable channel that begins Sunday.

The Discovery Channel, in an effort "to present an accurate view of state-controlled Soviet TV," will provide 66 hours of Russian television to its 14 million U.S. subscribers, said TDC Chairman John Hendricks.

"The Discovery Channel will carry for one week a broad array of Soviet news, prime-time and morning programming, but we will carry no programming that is not typical of regular Soviet television fare — no 'made-for-America' specials," Hendricks told reporters Wednesday.

The Landover, Md.-based channel, launched in June 1985, provides programs about nature, history, science and technology, travel and world cultures. Channel officials said cable operators that do not carry TDC can arrange to take the service for the eight days of the experiment.

All the Russian programs except the news shows will be viewed in the United States at the same time they are broadcast in the Soviet Union, he said. The hour-long Soviet evening news programs will be tape delayed so they may be shown to American viewers after the U.S. evening news programs.

Hospital bond issue explained

A special bond refinancing issue for Deaf Smith General Hospital was explained by Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, when he appeared as guest speaker for the Hereford Lions Club luncheon meeting Wednesday in Hereford Community Center.

Voters will be asked to approve the $1.5 million proposal in a special election Feb. 28 at the Community Center. A unique type of bond financing, made available to health providers, will enable the hospital district to take the action without an increase in taxes, Bullard explained.

The advantage of this type of financing, said Bullard, is that small organizations can benefit from the low-interest funds without incurring the normal expenses of a regular bond issue.

The hospital district will use the funds to refinance debt on renovations and equipment and to set aside reserves for other equipment and repairs.

Bullard pointed out that short-term payments over the past fiscal year were about $339,000. An annual payment on the refinancing proposal would be an estimated $184,000. By increasing the hospital's cash flow, the administrator said the board feels they can maintain the facility without significant increases in charges or taxes.

Lion President Temple Abney announced plans for the club's annual Pancake Supper on March 5 at the Bull Barn. Members are now selling tickets for the benefit supper, which also includes an annual auction sale.

Funds established for local resident

Benevolence funds have been established at Hereford State Bank and First National Bank to defray medical expenses for Cleatus Savage.

This week he was positively diagnosed as having cancer of the pancreas and will begin treatment soon.

'Supercollider' site may be selected next year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department is putting site selection of its $4.4 billion "supercollider" on a fast track, and that could make it difficult for slow-starting states that want to land the giant nuclear physics research project.

Energy Secretary John Herrington, outlining the selection process at a news conference Tuesday, said he plans to make a tentative choice in July 1988 and a final choice in January 1989.

Such a pace "essentially means that no state that hasn't been actively involved has a chance," commented Stephen Pinsky, professor of physics at Ohio State University and co-chairman of his state's Superconducting Super Collider Task Force.

Herrington said six states — Texas, California, Illinois, Utah, Colorado and Washington — have "strong programs" but not necessarily an advantage once actual proposals are being considered. "Illinois is by far and away the front-runner," said Pinsky, because of that state's extensive solicitation effort, including large-scale geological investigations, as well as the presence of Fermilab near Chicago, currently the world's most powerful particle accelerator.

The supercollider will smash beams of protons into each other with a collision energy of 40 trillion electron volts, 20 times what is possible at Fermilab, enabling physicists to test exotic new theories of matter.

Pinsky said he thought Ohio still had a chance, but the state's effort would be "definitely catch up" since it had done little in the past year.

There has been talk that Fermilab's $500 million proton injector, a preliminary accelerator, could be used for the supercollider, thus giving Illinois a further edge. Herrington said he did not think so because two states that he did not name had offered to match that donation with dollars, and scientists are not sure the Fermilab injector would be suitable.

Herrington also said he would not attempt to link the supercollider with a storage depot for spent nuclear reactor fuel, promising the one if a state would accept the other. To do so, he said, would be "bad policy" that would "hurt the integrity of both processes."

With 2,500 permanent jobs, 500 visiting scientists, an annual budget of $270 million, no pollution and the prestige of being a world center of research used by more than 100 U.S. universities alone, the supercollider project is being eagerly sought.

Pledging a fair "absolutely open and above-board" selection process, Herrington said, "I can't think of any" state that has not expressed an interest in landing the accelerator.

Selection criteria listed by DOE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some general selection criteria for the location of the $4.4 billion "supercollider" are already known.

The site will have to meet these requirements, according to a December 1985 publication of the university consortium that will operate the supercollider. Alvin Trivelpiece, head of research for the Energy Department, said the list is still generally valid.

The accelerator will be placed in a tunnel 10 feet in cross-sectional diameter about 20 feet underground extending in a near-circle 19 miles across and about 52 miles around. The entire surface area does not have to be owned by the supercollider as long as the tunnel can be put in place.

However, some land will be necessary for offices and experiment halls. The department has said it expects to be given that land outright.

The list is extracted from "Supercollider R&D: The First Two Years," published by the Universities Research Association of Washington, D.C.

Organizations wishing to receive invitations to submit site proposals

Geology and Tunneling: Long, uniform material, extensively characterized; avoidance of active faults; good soil stability; avoidance of unconsolidated solids with groundwater; data on seismic activity.

Community: Staff needs — housing, educational, cultural facilities; reasonable commuting times; major airport, all-weather roads; adequate industrial-construction resources.

Utilities: Up to 2,000 gallons per minute of water, up to 250 megawatts of electrical power, with separate feeds and fewer than two outages per year.

Man-made disturbances: Avoidance of excessive noise and vibration.

Conservationist sees new third era in agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — A third era of U.S. agriculture may be in the works and a new form of rugged individualism might be one of its ideals, according to a report in the American Land Forum conservation magazine.

Charles E. Little says in his article that Agriculture I lasted through the early part of this century and included the great movement of people westward across the plains and mountains, an agriculture of settlement and subsistence.

"This was the agriculture of those who got on the land first, for whom to succeed was simply to survive," he said.

In Agriculture II, which Little said began in the early 1930s with the Roosevelt administration's Agriculture Adjustment Act and carried on by succeeding programs, government prices supports and other benefits helped boost yields and reduce the number of farms required to feed a nation.

"The subsidies entrained by the AAA, together with the advances in mechanized and chemical agriculture on larger and larger farms, have created a farm economy so financially attenuated that it cannot adjust downward, as it is now necessary, without such dire results that the impacts, like those of the steel industry, reverberate throughout the whole of society," he said.

Little added: "Agriculture II is oversimplified and therefore vulnerable. It lacks the strength of diversity. It has outlived its time and the limits of its resources as surely as did Agriculture I."

The current state of U.S. agriculture, he said, is in as deep an economic depression as any since the Dust Bowl era of the 1930s, a view that was expressed this week during Senate Agriculture Committee field hearings in the Midwest.

Little, an advocate of conservation tillage methods to help save soil and water, noted the experiences of individual farmers in Alabama, Washington, Indiana and Ma yland who have used mechanical inventiveness and perseverance to cope with today's hardships. In farming the land wisely and carefully, they are surviving.

If the first two phases of agriculture were marked by extremes, Little said, perhaps some new form — Agriculture III — may be rising from the old elements.

Little said "some elements of that more ideal future" might include:

—A return to scientific inquiry by farmers themselves, as opposed to reliance on advisers. Farmers should write articles in scholarly journals.

—The rewarding of professionalism in agriculture rather than a reward structure based on acreage, horsepower or chemicals. And there should be a lower capital requirement for entry into farming.

—An improved social status for farming. America has never gone in for a peasantry. The farmer-proprietor is not a haysced, but a middle-class statesman, as they were called in England, a person of culture, learning and community responsibility.

—Ultimately, economic stability and independence, of the kind that can be expected in other professions.

"Dentists, for example, spend a great deal of time getting educated, locating a practice, buying equipment and setting up shop," Little said. "They do this in the expectation of success. Some fail, of course, but they are not supposed to. They do not receive a subsidy for not practicing. In the end, should farming be any different?"

NOMINATIONS

Authority Board; the reappointment of Bettie J. Girling, Austin, to the Home Health Services Advisory Council, and the appointment of Dr. Kenneth Dorris of Erath County to the Texas Animal Health Commission.

Sale told the committee he was appointed to the Land Board in place of Secretary of State Jack Rains, who was the target of a 1983 recall motion by White that failed.

Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, made the motion to delay a committee decision until members of the Texas Legislative Council could brief the committee on the 1983 law.

"It appears that any appointment made after last Nov. 1 comes under the question of whether a lame duck governor can fill vacancies," said Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena.

Other White appointments, all made before Nov. 1, were cleared by the committee for later Senate consideration.

They included Anne Dickson, Dallas, to the Texas Board of Architectural Examiners and Mary Catherine Burke, Houston, to the Battleship Texas Commission.

The committee also approved the reappointment of Jack Kyle of Walker County, by Chief Justice John Hill of the Texas Supreme Court to the State Employees Retirement System Board.

Dan Warrick was given the John Collier Award for his contributions in the field of business and finance, and Gary Phipps was honored with the Good News Award which is presented to the person who makes significant efforts in the general areas of advocacy, public relations and community relations.

The Earnest Thompson Seton Award is designed to recognize distinctive contributions to the council through leadership as an administrative volunteer for four or more years. This award was given to Temple Abney. He has served on the board of directors for four years, as vice president, chairman of supporting membership, and on the finance committee.

The council bestowed honorary membership to Aubyn Hodges who has been involved in Camp Fire for 25 years. Also, the Sponsor of the Year Award was given to Griffin and Brand. Ruth Ann Bennett was the recipient of the Fledgling Award.

During the annual dinner, Nita Lea and Helen Langley were given special recognition for 25-year tenure. The council also honored three outstanding volunteers for leadership: Jackie Flood, Grace Skelton and Judy Baker.

Museum representative speaks to study club

Jo Ann Arasim, who is affiliated with the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum in Canyon, spoke to members of Valeda Study Club Monday in the home of Norma Martin.

Arasim gave a brief history of quilting which she felt goes even further back than is documented. It is traced specifically to the 1600s. She said that somehow during the past 400 years, it has become an American tradition.

During the earlier years, quilts were made out of necessity and early women used any materials they could salvage. Women then began to express artistic abilities by designing patterns and giving them names. The most common design was the "Log Cabin" design which can be rearranged 300 different ways.

The speaker showed several different type quilts including a reverse applique pattern which was quilted in 1809 and is the oldest quilt in Texas. All of the quilts were from the museum.

President Marjorie Lasiter presided over the business meeting with members reciting the club collect. Roll call was answered with everyone's own idea of what their security blanket was.

The minutes were read and approved and the treasurer's report given. There was no old business or new business.

Members were served dip crackers, cheesecake, coffee and tea.

Spring musicale discussed by Dawn Music Club

Mrs. L.W. Tooley served as hostess when members of Dawn Music Club met Tuesday at Dawn Baptist Church.

Mrs. Alfred Smith presided over the business session when the group discussed a spring musicale at 3 p.m. March 1 at the church. The public is invited to attend.

Also, a reminder was made of the State Federated Music Club meeting set for March 11-14 in Lubbock.

The program, "Parade of American Music", began with Mrs. R. E. Curtsinger on the harmonica playing "Home On The Range" and "Turkey in the Straw." Mrs. Carl Wimberley, pianist, accompanied her. A group of recorded western songs, brought by Mrs. Tooley, included "Back In the Saddle Again", "Gene Autry; "Ghost Riders in the Sky," Foy Willing; "Blue Yodel Blues", Ray Whitney; "High Noon", Tex Ritter; and "Cool Water", Sons of the Pioneers.

Mrs. Wimberley played "To A Wild Rose" by McDowell.

The hymn of the month, "Hear Our Prayer, O Lord We Pray" by Mrs. Robert C. Gordon and lyrics by T.J. Gollightly, was sung by members. Others present were Mrs. J.B. Caraway and Mrs. H.V. McCabe.

Demonstration given by Eunice Petersen

Eunice Petersen gave a demonstration as a program when members of Pioneer Study Club met recently for their monthly meeting and luncheon at King's Manor Retirement Home.

Petersen painted a picture using opaque and transparent color. Her creation, entitled "Art A Blazing", was given to Mary Panciera.

President Panciera presided over the business meeting when appreciation was expressed to the King's Manor staff for the use of the facilities and their hospitality.

Petersen led the Pledge of Allegiance and Mabel Heard led the salute to the Texas flag. Also, Gladys Miller gave a short resume of her visit to the White House in Washington, D.C.

Bea Hudson and Lucy Fay Coconougher served as hostesses to Leatrus Clark, C. Fern Ford, Hazel Ford, Heard, Bessie Hill, Miller, Petersen, Panciera and Wilhelmina Wimberley.

Westley Brown Signs With WTSU

Hereford High School football player Westley Brown, seated, signs his letter of intent to play for the Buffaloes at West Texas State University. Brown, recruited to play as an offensive lineman, signed Wednesday during the national football letter of intent day. Watching Westley are his father, Joe Brown, back left; his mother, Annie Brown, back center; and Coach Don Cumpton of the Hereford Whiteface football team. Brown was a team captain during the 1986 season for the Herd, which reached the state class 4A semifinals.

Shire Signs Football Letter Of Intent

Todd Shire, front right, the record-setting quarterback of the Hereford Whitefaces during the 1986 season, signs his letter of intent Wednesday to play football at Mid-America Nazarene College. Shire was recruited to play quarterback, on a scholarship, for that college, which is located in Olathe, Kans. Watching him sign his letter of intent are his father, Al Shire, front left; his mother, Martha Shire, back left; and Don Cumpton, head coach of the Hereford High School football team.

Among George Blanda's many football records are the 340 games he played for six different teams.

SWC football recruiting report card

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Jackie Sherrill dramatically increased his shot at a national football championship with the kind of talent the Texas A&M Aggies signed Wednesday.

The Texas A&M coach, who has two consecutive Southwest Conference championships to his credit, signed the offensive linemen and running backs he needed to fuel an awesome machine.

The Scholastic Aptitude Test could be the Aggies' biggest foe.

Randy Simmons of McKinney and Darren Lewis of Dallas Carter, the top running backs in the state, were thrown for losses in their first SAT outings but have another chance this

'Y' high school racquetball league planned

Racquetball leagues for high school students are being organized at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

The leagues will be boys' singles, girls' singles, boys' doubles, and girls' doubles. Singles matches will be played on Tuesdays and doubles matches will be played on Thursdays.

The maximum number of players for each league is 12, and the minimum is eight players. Entry fees are $7 for YMCA members and $14 for non-members of the YMCA.

Signup deadline is Friday, Feb. 20, and the leagues will begin on Feb. 24 and 25. The league competition will go for six weeks, plus a single-elimination tournament.

For more information on the high school racquetball leagues, contact the YMCA at 364-6990.

spring.

If they fail it again, they'll have to sit out a season like wide receiver Percy Waddle did in 1986. For protection, Sherrill signed the No. 3 running back in Texas, Gerald Mitchell of Crane.

The report card:

TEXAS A&M — GRADE A PLUS: The Aggies filled every need. Sherrill will be favored to win the SWC title with this bunch until the mid-1990s. There was such an embarrassment of riches that Sherrill foot-dragged on announcing them to the media, waiting until every other SWC school had gone public. He didn't want to scare off any of his flock with word about the competition. There may not be enough footballs to go around for the backfield talent Sherrill has assembled.

ARKANSAS — GRADE A: Ken Hatfield's best group, diverse and talented. LaPorte blue chip center Dwayne Spann, an awesome run blocker, at 6-6, 270 was the centerpiece from Texas not to mention running back Barry Foster of Duncanville and Sulphur Springs quarterback Fred McGill. Hatfield got the best of the best in Arkansas.

TEXAS — GRADE B: David McWilliams missed out on the second coming of Earl Campbell by losing Simmons to the Aggies. Campbell was even hired as a recruiter but couldn't beat Sherrill. McWilliams rallied, however, with a solid crop that included the state's best wide receiver, Johnny Walker of San Antonio Holmes, and the best linebacker in Mical Padgett of Beaumont Central.

BAYLOR — GRADE B MINUS: Grant Teaff missed on a franchise running back but got some sweet consolation by landing tight end Steve Stusman of Daingerfield and offensive lineman Dwayne Phome of Dallas Carter, rated among the top 14 players in the state. Teaff also got a much needed quarterback in classy Ricky Vestal of Cypress Fairbanks, the best QB to STAY in Texas, not to mention excellent linebacker Santana Dotson of Houston Yates.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN — GRADE C PLUS: Monster Parade All-American linebacker (how's 6-8, 270-pounds sound?) Rob Phenix of Apple Valley, Minnesota (he called the Horned Frogs) capped off a short (13 scholarships) but quality list. QB Charlie Honea of McKinney could be a real sleeper. By the way, Phenix will be given a shot at linebacker, but likely wind up in the defensive line.

TEXAS TECH — GRADE C: Spike Dykes had a good but not great bunch. He helped himself at running back by landing Anthony Lynn of Celina, who had 5,500 career yards. Leaving no potential recruiting stone unturned, Dykes also got a transfer from Southern Methodist and another from Oklahoma.

RICE — GRADE D PLUS: A hustling Jerry Berndt got a group who can pass calculus and also play football.

The Owls are still short of first division SWC players, but are making some talent inroads.

HOUSTON — GRADE D: Not an overwhelming start by new Coach Jack Pardee, but don't underestimate his ability to improve what he's got.

SMU — GRADE F MINUS: A sad situation for the Ponies. They had 15 scholarships but must sweat out an NCAA decision on the death penalty which would abolish football for two years. All the prime recruiting horses have left the barn and the new coach, if there is one, might as well wait until next year.

OUT-OF-STATE — GRADE B: Texas was a happy hunting ground again with Brigham Young getting top quarterback Ty Detmer, Georgia landing running back Brian Cleveland and Oklahoma signing a strong cast of linemen, including blue chipper Stacey Dillard of Clarksville. All in all, though, the raids from outside the SWC weren't as damaging as in previous years.

PRO™ TEXAS
A NEW OPTIONAL CALLING PLAN FROM AT&T

On November 13, 1986 AT&T Communications of The Southwest, Inc. ("AT&T") filed with the Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas to introduce a new intrastate, optional calling plan, PRO Texas. A comparable interstate plan, known as PRO™ America, is currently available to Texas customers.

PRO Texas gives Texas consumers an opportunity to save money on direct dialed in-state long distance calls. Customers who choose this new AT&T plan will receive a 10% discount on all AT&T intrastate direct dialed station calls by paying a monthly charge of $15.00.

The PRO Texas discount applies to calls placed during all rate periods and all days. The discount is in addition to the AT&T intrastate evening discount of 25% and the night/weekend discount of 40%. A one time charge of $6.00 will be billed to initiate the service. However, this charge will be waived during the first 90 days that the offering is available.

PRO Texas will be available to all Message Telephone Service customers in Texas. AT&T estimates that it will generate revenues in the first year of almost $8 million, which is 7% of AT&T's annual revenues for all Texas intrastate service.

The PUC has assigned Docket No. 7194 to this proposed service offering. The proposed effective date for PRO Texas is March 16, 1987. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the PUC as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information also may be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deal.

Most points by Washington this season

Bullets rout Spurs, 133-108

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — After winning seven straight games prior to the All-Star break, the San Antonio Spurs are in danger of returning to early season form.

The Spurs were dismantled for a second time since the break — this one a 133-108 rout Wednesday night at the hands of the Washington Bullets. The night before, the Houston Rockets blasted San Antonio 115-92.

"We just haven't been the same team we were before the break," Spurs coach Bob Weiss said. "We're not crisp."

The Bullets came out steaming and ironed the Spurs with their highest point production of the year.

Moses Malone bulled in for his usual layups and tip-ins and plunked down a short, soft jumper to pace the rampage with 32 points. He also hauled down 12 rebounds as the Bullets controlled the offensive boards.

Jeff Malone scored 24 points, nailing improbable jumpers and firing them in from heavy traffic.

The Spurs were nearly knocked out in the first quarter when they went down by 16 points, but they slid under and got back to within 10 at the half, 67-57.

They skirted more disaster in the third period and battled back to within seven, 89-82, with two minutes left in the period.

That was their last hurrah.

Terry Catledge (15 points, nine rebounds) hit a nine-foot jumper and then drove in for a layup and was fouled.

He missed the foul shot, but Moses Malone controlled the rebound and tipped it back in to put the Bullets back up by 13.

"Our breakdown was on the offensive boards tonight. They made a lot of tough shots on us and Moses got the ball way too deep," Weiss said.

"Everyone we put in really did the job tonight," Bullets coach Kevin Loughery said. "We were very good against a good basketball team."

Washington's Jeff Malone added the "team was well-rested and came out very aggressive. Although San Antonio has lost two in a row, they had been playing very well."

The win raised the Bullets to 25-22. The Spurs dropped to 18-31.

"Well, we've got a couple of days to work and we've got to use them to get our timing back," Spurs center Artis Gilmore said. "We are not a great team to start with, but we got something going for awhile, we had a very nice rhythm. We need to get that back."

San Antonio guard Jon Sundvold echoed the sentiment, noting "we cannot let the last few weeks go for naught."

Other NBA action
What's happened to the home court advantage in the NBA?

There were five games Wednesday night and the home teams, which had won only 176 of 538 games, lost each time. Among the winners were Atlanta and Detroit, which remained one-half game apart in the torrid Central Division race, thanks to outstanding performances by Dominique Wilkins of the Hawks and Bill Laimbeer of the Pistons.

Wilkins scored 35 points and grabbed 13 rebounds in Atlanta's 109-82 rout of the hapless Los Angeles Clippers. Meanwhile, Laimbeer scored nine of his 30 points in overtime as Detroit beat Philadelphia 123-113.

The top performance, however, was turned in by Indiana rookie Chuck Person, who scored a career-high 42 points, including six 3-point goals in as many attempts, as the Pacers beat the Phoenix Suns 121-105.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee trounced New York 127-104.

Pistons 123, 76ers 113

In addition to his 30 points, Laimbeer grabbed 20 rebounds. Isiah Thomas added 29 points for the Pistons while Philadelphia's Maurice Cheeks scored 31. Philadelphia led 106-101, but Detroit tied it 107-107 with 35 seconds remaining on a tip-in by Laimbeer.

In the overtime, Laimbeer scored on an 18-footer, Thomas connected from three-point range and Laimbeer swished another 18-footer to make it 114-107 with 2:26 left.

"I'm an outside shooter. I'll take those shots any time," said the 6-foot-10 Laimbeer, who shot 14 of 19 from the floor.

Pacers 121, Suns 105

Person, whose previous best was 34 points, had 21 by halftime and added 12 more in a pivotal third period. John Long's jumper put the Pacers ahead to stay 61-59 in the third quarter. A short time later, Person's 3-point goal made it 67-63.

Steve Stipanovich, who finished with 22 points and 11 rebounds, made a layup and a three-point play as the Pacers extended the lead to 74-65. Person swished another 3-pointer plus a jumper to put the Pacers up 86-71 entering the final period.

The victory was the Pacers' eighth on the road this season, their most in the last six years. Walter Davis paced Phoenix with 23 points.

Bucks 127, Knicks 104

Jack Sikma and John Lucas established season highs with 28 and 27 points, respectively, and keyed a 22-4 third-period streak. New York's Patrick Ewing scored 11 of his 29 points during a 13-5 spurt that gave the Knicks a 79-73 lead.

But Ewing was called for his fourth personal foul 14 seconds later and sat out the rest of the third quarter while the Bucks turned the game around with a 17-0 run that gave them a 90-79 lead.

Ways with Wine
by David Hutchins

THE SECOND TIME AROUND
Immediately after the crushing of the grapes, all wines, both red and white, go through a violent or tumultuous fermentation. During this fermentation, the grapes' sugars are converted to alcohol by the action of yeasts. A second, less-violent fermentation called malolactic fermentation is caused by naturally-occurring bacteria. This fermentation will happen naturally in most wines unless it is deliberately cut out. Coming directly after the first fermentation, the second converts malic acid to milder lactic acid. Its effect on red wine is usually to smooth it and advance its maturation. While almost all red wines undergo malolactic fermentation, very few whites do. This is because malic acid gives whites a greater sensation of live acidity to the tongue, giving whites their fresh fruit flavor.

Everyone at THE STORE loves to talk about wine so feel free to ask us any questions you may have. Keep in mind that every season of the year it's always nice to sit with family and friends and toast to good health or happy times. For quality and service that will please you we are here at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802. Open Mon.-Sat. 10-9, see our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

Wine jargon often shortens the phrase malolactic fermentation to simple "malo."

Genetic tests used in aborting fetuses of 'wrong' sex

NEW YORK (AP) — A small minority of pregnant women use prenatal tests to determine the gender of their fetus, then have an abortion if the fetus is not the sex they wanted, officials say.

A 36-year-old woman who already had two sons underwent such a test and opted to have an abortion after finding out her fetus was male, said Marie Barr, coordinator of the prenatal diagnosis clinic at Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia.

Health care professionals say such abortions are rare. They also discourage the use of the tests, intended to uncover serious genetic defects, as unethical when used to ascertain the sex of the child.

A woman in her 30s or 40s who already has three sons may want to continue an unwanted pregnancy only if she knows the fetus is a girl, Dr. Laird Jackson, director of the medical genetics division at Jefferson, said in a recent interview.

The tests are generally performed if a woman has a family history of genetic disease or is 35 or older, because maternal age increases the risk of genetic defects in the fetus. The sex of the fetus is routinely reported.

The standard test, amniocentesis, is performed when the fetus is about 16 weeks old. A newer test not yet in wide use, chorionic villus sampling or CVS, can be performed as early as nine weeks, allowing the option of an earlier abortion.

Of 2,500 women who have had CVS tests at Jefferson during the past three years, Jackson said about 10 had abortions because of the sex of the fetus.

Some women who had intended to use the test for sex selection had a change of heart when the gender of the fetus was revealed, he said.

The clinic discourages testing for sex selection, but Jackson said a woman old enough to qualify for testing cannot be refused, whatever her stated motives.

Four of about 320 CVS cases in two years at the Baylor College of Medicine turned out to be for sex selection, as were two or three of 2,000 to 3,000 amniocentesis cases in the last three years, said genetic counselor Karen Copeland.

"They didn't reveal it to us, they slipped through" after qualifying for a medical reason, Copeland said. Sex selection is "not a good use of limited (testing) resources," she said.

At Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center in Chicago, perhaps one in 1,000 women tested with CVS later choose abortion because of the fetal sex, said genetic counselor Beth Fine.

Sex selection also occurs in perhaps one in 1,000 cases at the University of California in San Francisco, said Dr. Mitchell Golbus, director of its reproductive genetic unit.

Ann Landers

Physical abuse unnecessary

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a teenage girl who just started high school this fall. My family are strict Christians and would like to send me to a church school but they can't afford it.

A few days ago I got into an argument with my mother. She gave me a sound strapping before I left for school. When my gym teacher saw the red marks on my legs and bottom she called me aside and asked what happened. I told her about the argument and explained that I had gotten what I deserved for not honoring my mother as the Bible tells us we must. She said, "You have been badly beaten. I will help you file child abuse charges against your parents." I was shocked.

My parents are very strict, but I love them because they care enough about me to see to it that I honor God's laws. I would never think of complaining to the authorities. My mother did what the Bible says she must do to raise God-fearing children.

So please, Ann, let people know that God and parents raise children, not governments. - Punished, Not Abused in Stockton, Calif.

DEAR STOCKTON: I agree that discipline is important, but I find it sad that your parents think they are obeying God's laws when they use a strap on a child.

Worse yet, you feel it is perfectly OK and are, in fact, attempting to defend them.

I say it is not OK. You are old enough to reason with and that should be the approach. Hitting and strapping destroys a person's self-esteem and hatches a variety of other problems. Physical abuse also produces wife-beaters, women who think it's OK to be beaten, and child abusers.

While I understand your unwillingness to press charges against your parents, I hope you will rebel against future beatings. There IS a better way and it's time your parents found it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was born in South Dakota and will always have a soft spot in my heart for that wonderful state. Imagine how I felt when I heard the TV commercial for a toothpaste that compared the ugly black stains on a person's teeth with "The Black Hills of South Dakota."

I immediately telephoned the president of the network to complain. He was not available. I then tried to reach the vice president of the network. He was also "not available." Next I called Tom Brokaw because I knew he would be as outraged as I was. Brokaw couldn't speak to me, but his secretary came on the phone. She said, "Well, the Black Hills ARE black, aren't they?" I didn't think that was much of an answer.

Please tell me how you feel about such a commercial and advise me on how to get it off the air. Thank you - Loyal To S.D.

DEAR LOYAL: I have not seen the commercial and don't know anyone who has. I didn't, however, call Larry Pressler, the senior senator from South Dakota. He said he had not seen it but such a commercial would be offensive to South Dakotans. He also said it is not factually correct because the hills are actually not hills, they are mountains. Also, they are not black, they are dark green.

If the commercial has not been yanked by the time this letter appears, I can assure you it won't last much longer.

What's the story on pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, downers, speed? Can you handle them if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Cook-off introduces barbecue category

Call all backyard cooks. The debate has raged for years—"Where in the U.S. is the best place to enjoy the backyard barbecue?"

The debate need rage no longer, the answer is at hand. The best barbecue recipes in the land will be determined at the 1987 National Beef Cook-Off in Sun Valley, Idaho, when contestants representing all 50 states compete in the all-new "Barbecue Category" of the National Beef Cook-Off.

The barbecue Category, like the Cook-Off's regular "indoor" contest, is open to anyone 18 years or older who has a non-professional food status. Anyone who has owned one or more head of beef or dairy cattle (or who lives in a household where any person has owned cattle) in the 12 months preceding Sept. 20, 1987, is ineligible. Deadline for entry is April 1, 1987.

All recipes must contain a minimum of one pound, and no more than five pounds of beef. Each serving must contain at least three ounces of cooked beef. Meat used must be exclusively beef and all barbecue recipes are required to be cooked over Kingsford Charcoal on Weber Grills. The recipe must be specific, with no use of brand names, and must state the number of servings, cooking time and approximately preparation time. The combined cooking and preparation time is not to exceed four hours.

Contestants should send their best beef barbecue recipe utilizing any cut of beef, except organ meats, to Barbecue Category, National Beef Cook-Off, 444 N. Michigan Ave.,

Chicago, IL 60611. Each recipe should include a name, address, phone number and a brief statement about the recipe's origin.

Winners of seven regional contests nationwide will prepare their recipes at the National Beef Cook-Off, Sept. 20-22, 1987, in Sun Valley where they will compete for the following prize money: first place, $2,500; second place, $1,500; third place, $750.

Judging criteria for the Barbecue Category will be based on the following point structure; taste, 40 points; ease of preparation and practicality, 30 points; originality, 20 points; appearance, 10 points.

First game

Students at the International YMCA training school in Springfield, Mass., played the first official basketball game on Jan. 10, 1892. It was invented by Dr. James Naismith to provide indoor exercise between football and baseball seasons. Naismith used a peach basket in the gym, and the players had to use ladders to retrieve the ball after successful shots.

School-based health clinics controversial

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Lisa was 15 years old and worried she was pregnant when she approached a nurse practitioner at her school's health clinic.

A pregnancy test proved negative, but before Lisa left the clinic, she and the nurse discussed the repercussions and responsibilities that accompany sexual activity.

Lisa heard reasons why she shouldn't engage in sexual intercourse — from the risks of contracting a sexually transmitted disease or getting pregnant to the intense emotional pain she would feel if her boyfriend broke up with her.

They also talked about the importance of sexuality in everyone's life, and about ways other than sexual intercourse to show affection and love.

When Lisa made it clear she would continue having sex, the nurse told her the only trustworthy way to avoid many of the problems associated with sexual intercourse at a young age is to use some method of birth control.

They discussed various contraceptives, and Lisa promised she would visit a doctor's office or a clinic and begin using some form of birth control.

Lisa's case is a composite illustration of one of many problems dealt with at the three school-based clinics in Albuquerque.

Birth control counseling is not the main focus of the clinics — "you don't go in getting a Band Aid for a cut and go out thinking about having sex," one high school senior said. But it's the cases like Lisa's that have led to criticism of the clinics by people who contend students should not receive pregnancy tests or advice about contraceptives at school.

"I do not believe schools should be addressing that," said Daureen Dolce, executive director of the New Mexico chapter of Right to Life. "That's already provided in communities that are funded with state tax dollars. I feel the students have the alternatives to go elsewhere in the community — as long as their parents also share in the responsibility of it."

None of the three clinics — based at Albuquerque High, Rio Grande High and Cibola High — dispense contraceptives, and all of them stress the importance of sexual abstinence, said Jerry Anderson, director of health and community resources at Albuquerque Public Schools.

Dr. William Blair, the state Department of Education's consultant for health education and physical education, said that to his knowledge there are no other such school-based health clinics in the state.

Statistics show that each year, an average of 2,560 New Mexico girls between the ages of 10 and 17 become pregnant, resulting in 1,671 births and 557 abortions, with the remaining being stillbirths and miscarriages.

"The clinics do a lot of counseling to try to get the point across to young men and young women that the decision to have sex carries with it some responsibility and some consequences," Anderson said.

"Ideally, sex education should occur in the home. The facts are, however, every year we have a larger number of pregnant, adolescent females who are unwed and are still school age," Anderson said. "The numbers indicate something isn't happening or if it is happening in the homes, something's wrong. One of our concerns is does the student understand birth control because adolescent pregnancy is a major problem."

Maude Rathgeber of Alamogordo, state chairwoman of the Eagle Forum of New Mexico, said the number of teen pregnancies are inflated and therefore should not be used to gain support for birth control counseling at school. She said the statistics do not take into account that some of the young women are no longer in school or are married.

The Eagle Forum, a national conservative organization that opposes the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion, and calls itself pro-family, opposes school clinics doing birth control counseling, said Mrs. Rathgeber. She testified against the clinics before the Legislative Education Study Committee in December.

Anderson said he's received several calls from people concerned about the clinics, but they've been outweighed by calls of support.

"My experience is that people who call to complain are not parents of students at those three schools," Anderson said. "All of the negative comments have come from groups outside the APS system."

Robert Benon, a nurse practitioner who spends about 1½ days each week at the Rio Grande High School clinic, said the clinic counsels abstinence and does not encourage abortions.

"The criticism I've heard most is that we encourage sexual activity or condone it implicitly," Benon said. "Whenever we see someone sexually active we ask why they're sexually active and tell them the risks involved and encourage them to postpone the activity. Just because they've been sexually active doesn't mean they have to continue."

The three clinics are operated by outside agencies — the Albuquerque

Family Health Center at Rio Grande, the University of New Mexico School of Medicine's family health practice division at Albuquerque High and the state Health and Environment's health services division at Cibola.

The clinics treat a wide range of adolescent health care needs, from headaches, cuts and sore throats to more serious concerns such as eating disorders, drug abuse and adolescent sexuality, Anderson said.

During the 1985-86 school year, students visited the three clinics a total of 1,357 times. Twenty-seven percent of the visits had something to do with sexuality, Anderson said.

"The fact that 27 percent are sexually related is a realistic picture of where adolescents' heads are at," he said. "It also means 73 percent of what the clinics do have nothing to do with sexuality."

Mrs. Rathgeber contends that "if 27 percent of the students are seeking contraceptive or sexual advice, that's a very large number because for every one person coming in there's another wanting that service."

Sonya Pichardo, a senior at Rio Grande, said students do not view the clinic as a place to go for birth control advice.

"They think of it as a place to go for injuries," she said. "A lot of kids go there for physicals because they can't afford to go otherwise."

Anderson agrees. "For many students at these schools, these clinics provide their only access to medical services," he said. "Opponents ignore the high percentage of indigents in this state."

George Bello, Albuquerque High principal, said he's received no complaints from people who oppose the clinic.

"The main focus is the health need of the student," Bello said. "The major reason that we started the clinic is that we were finding a number of students coming in with strep infections and we didn't want the rest of the students being infected. Many were not seeing a doctor. They'd stay at home and ride the thing out."

Department report shows Texas education slipping

AUSTIN (AP) — A U.S. Department of Education report indicating the Texas educational system still lags behind those of most other states didn't surprise Education Commissioner William Kirby.

"Am I upset with what it says? I've been upset for a long time, especially with an increase in our dropout rate," Kirby said. "We've got to continue to work with our teachers and parents. The solution is not to expect less of our students, but expect more."

Despite a sharp increase in average teacher salaries, Texas' rankings fell among the 50 states and the District of Columbia on the number of students graduating from high school on time. The state also lags in the rate of increase of Scholastic Aptitude Test scores.

Kirby noted that Texas ranked 34th in the nation in the amount of the money spent per child in 1985. The most recent report placed the state in 37th place.

"Now is the time to watch more closely how legislators will respond to education in a financial crisis," Kirby said. "To have a first-class production we can't cut back on our resources."

Jim Butler, executive director of the Texas State Teachers Association, criticized the report, saying that comparing test scores in Texas with those in other states is "like comparing apples with oranges" because Texas students come from a wide variety of cultures.

The state ranked 43rd in the nation in high school graduation rates, determined by tracking how many ninth graders graduate over the usual four-year period. In 1985, 63.2 percent of the students graduated on time.

In 1982, when the Department of Education began its annual national "report card" on education, Texas' graduation rate ranking was 43rd, with 63.6 percent graduating.

Graduation rates in 32 other states also fell, but education officials said the more important figure was the one that showed the trend over the past four years. In that category, 35 states increased while Texas declined.

Texas SAT scores have increased over the past four years, but its nine-point increase lags behind the national average increase of 13 points. In 1986, Texas students earned an average of 877 points out of a possible 1,600 on the college entrance exam, slipping one point from 1985's mark.

The national average was 906, putting Texas 17th of the 22 states that use the SAT to measure student performance.

"It's clear that Texas is taking a number of steps that will take you in the right direction," said Deputy Undersecretary Bruce M. Carnes. "They're not the wrong steps, they're the right steps."

The state showed substantial improvement in the area of teacher salaries. The report showed that in 1986, the average for teacher salaries in Texas was $25,160 — $153 below the national average. In 1982, the average salary for a Texas teacher was $17,582, compared with $19,274 for the rest of the country.
