Reluctant teachers take mandatory state exam

In Hereford, 363 persons—some expressing resentment by wearing "Under Protest" stickers—were given the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers (TECAT) on Monday.

The controversial test, mandated by educational reform law H.B. 72, was given to approximately 200,000 educators statewide while students had a holiday.

There were claims that teachers were "treated like prisoners" during the exam and were given permission to go to the restroom only if escorted.

"I didn't think it was difficult," said Adelle Clements, a Hereford high math teacher who finished the test in just under 3 hours. "I thought it was fair. I went slowly, took my time, and did the best I could."

Rosemary Shook, a media specialist at Shirley Intermediate said the test was "more an insult than it was difficult." Many teachers shared her opinion that the test was not an accurate measure of teaching ability. Teachers across the state also complained that the test was unfair because it invalidated lifetime teaching certificates. "I did not feel it was tricky, but I feel like it was a waste of taxpayer money. It was more of a 'literacy' than a 'competency' test," Shook said.

"I thought it was a little bit harder than they led us to believe," said David Fanning, a diagnostician with the local school district. "We took our competency test yesterday. (Gov.) White will take his in November."

Elsewhere in the state, reactions were similar.

"If the Legislature wants to pass a law, it's legal. Even if the majority thinks it's unfair, it's the law," said Jon Heidke, an Esterville, Iowa, native who retired from the military and moved to El Paso 2½ years ago. He was a student-teacher in the fall and started teaching science this semester at Andrews High School.

But to Maxie Parr, a special education teacher at Roosevelt High School in San Antonio, the initiator of that law "better start packing up the governor's palace."

Bull Barn roof repair tops priority list

In outlining priorities on repair and renovations, the Deaf Smith County Commission said Monday that it must first repair the Bull Barn roof so that interior damage will not result.

Second on the list is the courthouse roof repair, then the renovation of the fourth floor of the courthouse.

The commissioners will then examine the budget to determine if there is enough money left to complete the remainder of the county's proposed projects which include the purchase of voting machines, the proposed juvenile detention facility, a computer system and renovations to the county court room.

Commissioner James Voyles said that, with requests coming from throughout the county to either buy new equipment or repair existing equipment, it would be best if the county outlined a plan to meet all the requests. The commissioners said that they are not planning on eliminating any projects, just placing them in order of importance to the county.

Commissioners will further discuss the repair and renovation issues during their next meeting.

In other business the commission:

-Heard a presentation from Lee Washington of W and W Enterprises. Washington demonstrated a unit called "Maxi-Volts" which he said would eliminate electrical surges and spikes from entering the courthouse through power lines. Washington also said that the unit would save on the electrical usage. Commissioners elected to allow Washington to check the electrical system of the courthouse and present them with an estimate on installation. Commissioners will consider the unit at a later meeting.

-Heard from representatives of the Driskill Halfway House of Tulia, a home for drug and alcohol rehabilitation. Robert Hager and Van Barbour requested financial assistance for the facility, although Deaf Smith County does not use the home. The representatives are soliciting funds from throughout the Panhandle. The budget will be examined to see if the county is able to contribute.

-Commissioners granted permission to Jim Marsh to cross a county road with an electrical line.

NASA secrecy tight about discovery of shuttle cabin

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The grim work of identifying the remains of some of Challenger's crew could also help authorities understand the causes of the explosion that destroyed the space shuttle.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has maintained tight secrecy about the search since it announced Sunday that astronaut remains had been found in the broken crew cabin at the bottom of the Atlantic.

The agency has not acknowledged that remains have been recovered, but sources who spoke on condition of anonymity said some bodies or parts of bodies were brought secretly to Fort Canaveral on Saturday night aboard the Navy salvage ship USS Preserver, which came in without running lights.

The sources said the remains were transferred to a hospital at Patrick Air Force Base, 25 miles south of here, and that forensic experts began examining them Monday.

NASA said it would respect family wishes and remain silent until the recovery and identification processes are completed. It was not clear what NASA would do with the remains once they were identified.

Winds that whipped up 8 foot waves prevented Preserver's divers from dropping to the ocean bottom Monday and the ship returned to port in late afternoon without recovering additional material.

The outlook for today is improved, with 2- to 4-foot seas predicted.

Private boats were barred from an area two miles around the search area, and private planes were kept five miles away. Sections of the cabin were found 18 miles northeast of Cape Canaveral at a depth of 100 feet.

Searchers hope to recover from the cabin compartment three magnetic tapes that recorded performance of some of Challenger's systems and could provide evidence on the cause of the explosion 73 seconds after liftoff Jan. 28.

The accident killed New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe; commander Richard Scobee; pilot Michael Smith; and crewmembers Judith Resnick; Ronald McNair; Ellison S. Onizuka; and Gregory Jarvis.

The sources did not know if the remains of all seven had been located.

The pathology examinations were

State sees partial benefit

State Cuts not affecting improvements

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Budget cuts by the Texas Department of Corrections will not affect the department's court order to build new facilities and improve living conditions for inmates, prison board chairman Alfred Hughes said.

"We're not cutting any associated items," Hughes said Monday. "But we've stopped all capital projects, except those that are court-related."

Hughes said the TDC will be able to comply with only half of Gov. Mark White's request for all state agencies to cut their budgets by 13 percent in light of the state's oil-related economic problems.

Items that were eliminated, he said, include a new department administration building and projects like parking lots.

Hughes also said the department would not attempt to renegotiate the federal court agreement in hopes of trimming costs.

"That would be a waste of all our time," he said.

Hughes, speaking during a meeting of the Texas Board of Corrections, said the budget cuts for his department are still undergoing scrutiny and no decisions will be made for a couple of weeks. He said a special board meeting likely will be held to approve the final cuts.

"This is a little different from other agencies," Hughes said. "Much of our funds are not discretionary. We've still got to feed inmates."

Chagra gets 30 year sentence

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Elizabeth Chagra has received a 30-year prison sentence for the second time for plotting to kill a federal judge.

The 32-year-old Mrs. Chagra was convicted of the crime again on Feb. 27 after her original conviction was overturned by an appeals court.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions, who in 1982 ordered Mrs. Chagra to serve a 30-year term, re-issued the sentence Monday.

She will be eligible for parole in 1992, according to federal prosecutors.

"I thought it was a grisly, grisly bit of work on the part of the judge," her attorney Warren Burnett said after the sentencing.

"I was quite disappointed. She's been a splendid prisoner and has been rehabilitated. Both of these factors should have been taken into consideration," he said.

Burnett urged leniency so Mrs. Chagra could tend to her ailing parents.

"You have nothing but the most compelling evidence of her rehabilitation," Burnett told the judge. "We are deceiving ourselves to think that she would be further rehabilitated by further incarceration."

Lubbock not allowed to strip search

LUBBOCK (AP) — The nation's highest court didn't accept Lubbock County's argument that strip searches are necessary for jail safety.

The Supreme Court, without comment, refused Monday to let jail personnel continue conducting strip searches of everyone arrested, including those held in connection with minor offenses.

The county's strip-search policy was challenged by two women, Paulette Stewart and Barbara Wilkerson.

Ms. Stewart was arrested for public intoxication and Ms. Wilkerson was accused of issuing a bad check. A federal jury awarded Ms. Stewart $1 in nominal damages and $17,000 in lawyer fees. Ms. Wilkerson was awarded $15,000 by a federal jury.

A federal judge also ordered Lubbock County officials to discontinue the searches.

Don Stapleton, chief administrator of the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department, said Monday that searches are essential for jail security.

"The purpose of the strip-searches was to keep any kind of weapons or any contraband — dope, money, things like that — from coming into the jail," Stapleton said. "Since the federal court order was handed down that we couldn't strip-search everybody, we've seen an increase especially in the marijuana and small amounts of dope being smuggled into the jail."

National Prostitution charges sparks probe

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The arrest of two Brown University seniors on prostitution charges has sparked an investigation into whether the women are members of a sex-for-money ring involving college students, police say.

One of the 21-year-old seniors at the Ivy League school charged with prostitution said Monday that she and her friend were innocent, and accused police of violating their rights.

Dana E. Smith, of Avon, Conn., and Rebecca R. Kidd, of Orange, Conn., were arrested Thursday, police said. Both were arraigned and released, said Deputy Police Chief Walter Clark. He refused to discuss specifics of the probe.

"All I can say is that there is an investigation of prostitution being conducted," he said. "We haven't linked anybody to this investigation yet."

Great Lakes/Utah face flood hazards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spring flooding could threaten shoreline communities along the upper Great Lakes and spill waters onto the streets of Salt Lake City, the National Weather Service is warning.

"This is the year of the lakes, where we have some alarming problems," Michael D. Hudlow, director of the service's Office of Hydrology, said Monday.

"Especially alarming this year are the Great Lakes, where new record high levels are expected to be set," Hudlow said. He said lake levels could be 10 inches higher than last year's record levels by June.

"The potential for flooding and severe property damage and erosion is extremely high for the shoreline of Lakes Erie, Michigan, Huron and Superior," Hudlow told a news conference. The same danger exists for Lake St. Clair, he added, but not Lake Ontario, which benefits from the drainage of the St. Lawrence River.

International French envoys in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A physician seeking the release of French hostages held by Shiite Muslim extremists rushed to Beirut to prevent "further carnage" after kidnappers published photographs they say prove that they killed one captive.

Razah Raad, a French heart specialist who was born in Lebanon, drove from Damascus to Beirut late Monday upon hearing of a statement and photographs issued by Islamic Jihad purportedly showing the body of French hostage Michel Seurat.

He waited in a luxury hotel today to be contacted by the kidnappers in order to begin negotiations for the release of the French hostages.

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Industries related to high tech and service should help partly offset the effects of falling oil prices on the state's economy, a state economist said Monday.

Texas officials have predicted a loss of 25,000 jobs for every $1 per barrel price drop for oil, but Thomas Plaut, senior economist with the state comptroller's revenue estimation division, said that formula takes into account only the slump's negative effect on the state's economy.

With gains in the other industries, only 13,500 jobs should be lost for every dollar decrease, he said.

"The positive effects of lower oil prices are indeed significant, but are not enough to offset the negative effects," he told publishers at the Texas Daily Newspaper Association's annual meeting at the Las Colinas development.

"The Texas economy is a net loser (from falling oil prices) because Texas remains a net energy exporter," said Plaut.

"Everyone knew Texas had to shift its economy," Plaut said. "What's surprising right now is (the slump) has happened so fast and so quickly."

Still, transportation, retail, medical services, public utilities, real estate and the hotel and restaurant businesses, which have "grown tremendously," are providing about 90 percent of the state's new jobs, he said.

With jobs available in both the service and high tech sectors, job losses from the current oil downturn will be much smaller than those experienced in 1982, he said.

But Plaut predicted the state's unemployment rate will hover for two to three years around 7 percent to 7.5 percent, which is above the national level.

The mining industry has been the most adversely affected with 7,000 jobs lost for every $1-per-barrel decline, Plaut said, and losses also will be experienced in construction, banking and insurance.

He said 6,300 state government jobs will be lost for every $1 decrease, along with 1,350 jobs related to oil drilling.

But Texas' losses are the nation's gains, Plaut said.

"Lower oil prices are good for the U.S.," he said. "They're good for energy consumers and I think we're going to have a stronger U.S. economy and a stronger world economy."

To survive the downturn, state officials will have to make spending cuts. But with money already committed to education and the state's highways — and with the state under court order to improve its mental hospitals and its prisons — "most additional money is going to need to come from the revenue side," Plaut said.

With gains in the other industries, only 13,500 jobs should be lost for every dollar decrease, he said.

"The positive effects of lower oil prices are indeed significant, but are not enough to offset the negative effects," he told publishers at the Texas Daily Newspaper Association's annual meeting at the Las Colinas development.

Combest supports satellite

WASHINGTON — Congressman Larry Combest (R-Texas) has announced he is cosponsoring legislation designed to provide television satellite dish owners access to cable programs while still permitting programmers to scramble their signals and charge a reasonable price for their product.

The Rural Satellite Dish Owners Protection Act, H.R. 3989, allows programmers to scramble their signals after meeting four simple requirements. These conditions would provide some basic protection for the home dish owners and ensure continued access to cable programming at a fair price, Combest said.

The legislation would require that: Technical standards for decoders be set to ensure that dish owners would not have to buy different decoders to unscramble different programs.

Scrambling be prohibited until enough decoders have been manufactured to fill orders within 60 days of requests.

Decoders be available at a reasonable price based on manufacturing and distribution costs.

Monthly subscription fees for programming not exceed fees assessed to cable subscribers within the same vicinity.

"Approximately 2 million home satellite dish owners will lose access to their programs this year due to signal scrambling. HBO has already begun scrambling and additional programs have announced plans to begin scrambling in the next few months," said Combest.

"A vast majority of home dish owners in the 19th District are willing to pay a fair and equitable price for the programs they receive. Rural dish owners, however, should not be forced to buy several different decoders to unscramble all of the programs they receive. Likewise, a sufficient number of decoders must be available at reasonable prices before signal scrambling begins," Combest stated.

not only for examination, but also could help determine whether the astronauts were burned to death, poisoned by fumes, died from sudden loss of cabin pressure, were killed by flying debris or by impact with the water, or drowned.

Determining the exact cause of death might be difficult because the bodies have been in the water nearly six weeks and may have been the victims of sea scavengers.

TEACHERS

In Houston, Linda Savell said the test was so simple that she resented having to take it.

"After graduating from college and taking all those tests, why go back and take an eighth-grade test?" said Ms. Savell, who teaches at Worthington High School.

"It was so easy," said Joanne Stemple, a second-grade teacher in the Houston independent school district. "If they (other teachers) can't pass it, they shouldn't be teaching. I can read and write, and that's what it tested."

Lisa Graham, a fourth grade elementary schoolteacher in San Antonio, found it a little more difficult.

"It's tough if that isn't your line of work, and I'm not no English teacher," she said.

Lorene Patneau, an English teacher in El Paso for 11 years, said it was not a hard test, "but it's not a baby test, either."

Officials say they expect about 10,000 teachers to fail the test.

"I don't mind anybody checking to see if I'm doing my job, but after 11 years, they should have found a cheaper way of doing it."

She said she didn't know any teachers who wouldn't be able to pass the test.

"It was a waste of time," said Barbara Doctoroff, a diagnostician at Travis Junior High in Conroe. "I think it was simple, but I don't think we should have had to take it in the first place."

Suzy Walker, a first grade teacher at Lamar Elementary School in The Woodlands near Houston, said: "I'm surprised the taxpayers themselves aren't asking for more accountability on the money (expense of the test). There's a system already in place for getting rid of incompetent teachers."

Chula Vista Elementary School Assistant Principal Betty Martin, leaving the test site at Driscoll Junior High School in Corpus Christi, smiled.

"I thought it went very well," she said. "I didn't find any surprises on it. Anyone with a good grounding in English should do well. But I'm glad it's over."

Vidal Trevino, Laredo Independent School District Superintendent, also was relieved, but not confident.

"I feel much better now," Trevino said. "That doesn't mean that I passed, but the pressure is off and I'm not going to get the results for another six weeks so I'm not going to worry about it."

Tornadoes, high winds kill 5

The National Guard patrolled Covington, Ky., today under a state of emergency declared after at least 20 tornadoes sliced through three states, killing five people and injuring dozens of others.

Some of the tornadoes that struck in Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky, spinning off winds up to 90 mph, also left Cincinnati's airport — across the Ohio River in Erlanger, Ky. — a shambles, with up to 50 planes damaged, officials said.

"It's a complete disaster," said San Juan Romero, an air traffic manager at the airport. "A bomb could not have done the damage this has done."

Across the three states, the storms and tornadoes tore roofs from buildings, sent mobile homes flying and ripped into the city of Covington, also across the Ohio River from Cincinnati.

Two men died in Indiana, one of them when a barn collapsed on him after he had sought refuge inside. There were two deaths in Ohio when twisters flattened houses. A man using a chain to hold down a barn roof in western Kentucky died when it blew off, dragging him 78 feet, said County Coroner John Muster.

In Johnson County, south of Indianapolis, a roof at a day care center caved in on 130 pre-schoolers, but only three suffered injuries, all of them minor, said Rhea Furry, the center's director.

Cincinnati airport spokesman Ted Bushelman said six people suffered minor injuries when the control tower windows blew out.

"There are also 30 to 50 airplanes damaged beyond repair," Bushelman said. Most of the damaged airplanes were small Cessnas, Pipers and a few Lear jets. The airport was closed to flights for two hours while debris was cleared.

In Covington, officials declared an emergency and warned non-residents to keep out after high winds knocked out power to most of the city and ripped the roofs from dozens of buildings. About 50 National Guard troops were sent there, said Gordon Nichols of the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services.

"At about 20 minutes till 5, we heard this really strong wind. The next thing, it sounded like a bomb went off," said John Carey, who was working in his advertising agency near downtown Covington.

"We saw the wind coming down the street and toppling trees, and we heard glass shattering and debris landing," Carey said.

Police cordoned off large sections of the city. Nichols said no estimate of damage could be made until today when disaster crews begin inspection.

Officials said high winds damaged at least 300 homes in Lexington, Ky.

The tornadoes and winds were spawned by a cold front that rapidly moved across the Ohio Valley and met warm, moist air, said Pete Reynolds at the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo.

Cocaine kills in time

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the article about the woman who succeeded in getting her husband to get counseling for his cocaine problem. I have another story that your readers should see.

About a year ago, cocaine became the "in" drug for members of our social set. A few of my friends started snorting just to try it out. They liked it and pretty soon all they cared about was another fix.

I was afraid to try it but when I did I liked the rush it gave me. Coke can make someone who never says a word come out of his shell. I came out of mine for about 20 minutes. Then paranoia took over and I slipped off into a corner so I wouldn't have to say a word to anybody.

I got so jittery I couldn't sit still for a minute. In the morning I woke up with my jaws aching because I ground my teeth all night. I also felt drained and had a stomach ache that wouldn't quit. I kept asking myself why in the world I would take $200 from my bank account to wake up sick and have nothing to show for it.

A friend of mine who was 20 years old mainlined coke until his veins were shot. He couldn't pay his rent, lost his wife and family and stole from his friends. No one knew how deep he was into it until he killed himself.

Please print this letter to let people know this is not advice from their parents. (That stuff goes in one ear and out the other.) This is a warning from a friend.—STILL MOURNING IN NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR NORFOLK: Thousand of others are mourning, too. Cocaine is now the drug of choice among the middle-class as well as the affluent. It kills the soul and the spirit and then it destroys the victims who thought they'd try it for kicks. Thanks for yet another story from someone who was there.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You weren't very sympathetic to the woman who complained that her husband never talked to her. Maybe I can open your eyes a little.

My husband was "a good man." He didn't drink or gamble or run around. He never abused me physically but the mental cruelty was more than I could take. I finally divorced him. What did he do? Nothing. He simply refused to talk to me.

There was never so much as a "Hi" when he came home or a "Bye" when he left. He never gave me a compliment or even an insult. If I asked, "What would you like for supper?" He wouldn't answer.

I begged him to talk to me. No response. I tried silence, hoping he'd open up. He never did. I know now that men who don't talk are sick in some strange way. They are wife abusers. There are no broken bones or bloodied noses, just a broken heart and shattered self-respect.

I'm free of him now but I still don't understand what was wrong with this man. Do you have the answer?—SHARON R., BOYNTON BEACH, FLA.

DEAR SHARON: Your husband is a classic example of the passive/aggressive personality. These abusive types punish by doing and saying absolutely nothing. They've learned that the silent treatment can be extremely painful and their victims can't lay a glove on them. Their standard defense is, "I didn't do (or say) a thing!"

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious, lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11996, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Treats are rich and filling

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a good recipe for granola bars? — CAROLYN

DEAR CAROLYN — The following recipe for "Granola Squares" is a good, basic granola bar — crunchy and delicious. The recipe is from "Whole Grain Baking" by Diane Scesny Greene (The Crossing Press; 1984).

In a 9-by-12-inch pan, mix one and one-half cups rolled oats, one-half cup miller's bran, one-half cup raw hulled sunflower seeds, one-half cup chopped raw almonds, one-half cup unsweetened dried shredded coconut and two tablespoons raw unshelled sesame seeds. Bake at 325 degrees for 20 minutes.

Add one-half cup raw wheat germ and bake an additional 10 minutes. Place the toasted mixture in a large bowl. Heat one-half cup honey and three tablespoons butter to a rolling boil. Reduce heat and boil gently for 5 minutes. Pour honey and butter mixture over toasted ingredients and stir until well coated. Firmly press coated mixture into a lightly buttered 8-inch-square baking pan. Let mixture cool to room temperature, then cut into 16 squares. Cover with plastic wrap or foil or wrap squares individually before storing in the refrigerator.

These make a great snack or a nutritious dessert. They're not especially low in calories, but they're packed with vitamins, protein, complex carbohydrates and minerals and they're high in fiber. Enjoy with a good conscience! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I find that white freezer wrap makes a good surface for rolling out dough. The paper is wide so you have plenty of working room. The paper can be used more than once if it is wiped clean after use.

You can use less flour when rolling dough out, since the dough doesn't stick to the paper as it does to a countertop. — OLGA

Three Herd players selected

All-district team announced

Three Hereford Whiteface basketball players received honorable mention honors on the all-District 3-5A boys' basketball team.

The Herd players are 5-10 senior Rodney Torres, 6-4 junior Bobby Baker, and 6-3 sophomore Rodney McCracken.

The all-district team was announced by head coaches in the district after Amarillo High School won the state championship Saturday night.

Torres led the Whitefaces in assists with an average of 3.3 per game, and also led Hereford in steal with 3.0 per game.

The senior guard was second on the team in scoring, field goal percentage, free throw percentage, and fifth in rebounding. His statistics were 13.1 points per game, 46.3 percent shooting from the field, 65.5 percent shooting from the free throw line, and 3.3 rebounds per game.

Baker, a junior at the post position, led the Whitefaces in scoring, field goal and free throw percentages, and rebounding.

Baker scored 13.7 points a game, hit 47.1 percent of his field goal attempts and 75.6 percent of his free throw attempts, and grabbed 6.2 rebounds per contest. He also averaged 2.5 steals per game.

Sophomore forward McCracken was one of three sophomores listed among the all-district selections. He was third on the Herd team in scoring with an average of 6.7 points, and third in rebounding with an average of 5.5 per game.

McCracken's other stats included 35.7 percent shooting from the field, 55.4 percent shooting from the free throw line, 1.7 steals per game and 1.2 assists per game.

A Plainview player, Andrew Jackson, was voted most valuable player in the district. Coach Allen Simpson of Amarillo High was named coach of the year.

Amarillo High had two first-team selections—Sherman Ray and Sammy Simpson. Other first-team choices were Russell Nichols of Tascosa, Andrew Blair of Caprock, Toby Christian of Lubbock High, and Alvin Morrill of Lubbock Coronado.

The newcomer of the year honors went to David Sapper of Tascosa, a

The 1985-86 all-District 3-5A team is as follows:

Movie looks at the early years

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Now that you've had nearly eight years to get acquainted with those tumultuous Texas tycoons on "Dallas," creator David Jacobs will take you back to how it all began.

Back when Jock Ewing and Digger Barnes were struggling oil wildcaters and courting the same girl, Eleanor "Miss Ellie" Southworth. Back when a guy with a dusty old pickup, a sixth sense for finding oil or a scheme for getting leases could become a millionaire overnight.

Jacobs tells of the early days in a rowdy adventure story that's a departure from the soap opera format of the hit CBS series. "Dallas: The Early Years" will be broadcast Sunday night.

"Before I created 'Dallas' I had a history about how Jock and Miss Ellie and Digger met," he said. "So when the idea of doing a film came up I wanted to do something in the past, but I was probably the only one. They had a writer who went through a lot of stuff, but when he suggested a 'pre-quel' I said if anybody does one it'll be me."

CBS agreed to the movie three years ago, but Jacobs got sidetracked for a while when he created the series "Berenger's" and was occupied by other matters.

The movie, which spans the decades from 1930 through the 1950s, stars David Grant as Digger, Dale Midkiff as Jock, Molly Hagen as Miss Ellie, David Wilson as Jason Ewing and Hoyt Axton as Miss Ellie's father, Aaron Southworth. Kevin Wixted plays J.R. as a youth.

In the popular "Dallas" series, the late Jim Davis played Jock, Barbara Bel Geddes and the late Donna Reed have played Miss Ellie, and David Wayne and Keenan Wynn played Digger.

"I knew the story of Jock and Miss Ellie and Digger and their triangle, and how Digger always resented Jock," Jacobs said. "What I didn't have was a story. I had relationships. I quite deliberately came up with a new story."

Jacobs, who had been to Texas only once before creating the series, visited the state for the movie. "Texas is one of the few places in this country you can go and feel the difference," he said. "I loved it in Fort Worth, where we did some of the filming. I sampled every chili place in town."

Jacobs actually came up with "Knots Landing" first, but while CBS liked the idea it wanted something richer, sexier and more sensational. That's when he came up with "Dallas," and later when "Knots Landing" came on the two were tied together by making Ted Shackelford's character a Ewing.

"The movie has lots of action," he said. "That's one of the things I wanted to persuade CBS to do, although it goes against the rules. I knew we had to go for the 'Dallas' audience, but it's really a man's action-adventure movie. It's about two wildcaters.

"The secret of success in the oil business is acquiring leases. Jock had a way of getting leases and Digger had a sixth sense for oil. Everyone knows Digger is a down-and-out drunkard, but in this story he's a strong character. It's his picture more than anyone else's."

"Dallas' viewers know him as a loser, but I made him the luckiest man in the world. He wins at cards but he gives it all to a hooker. He buys a car for cash and wrecks it after he forgets to get insurance. He's lucky and very self-destructive. I had a lot of fun with him."

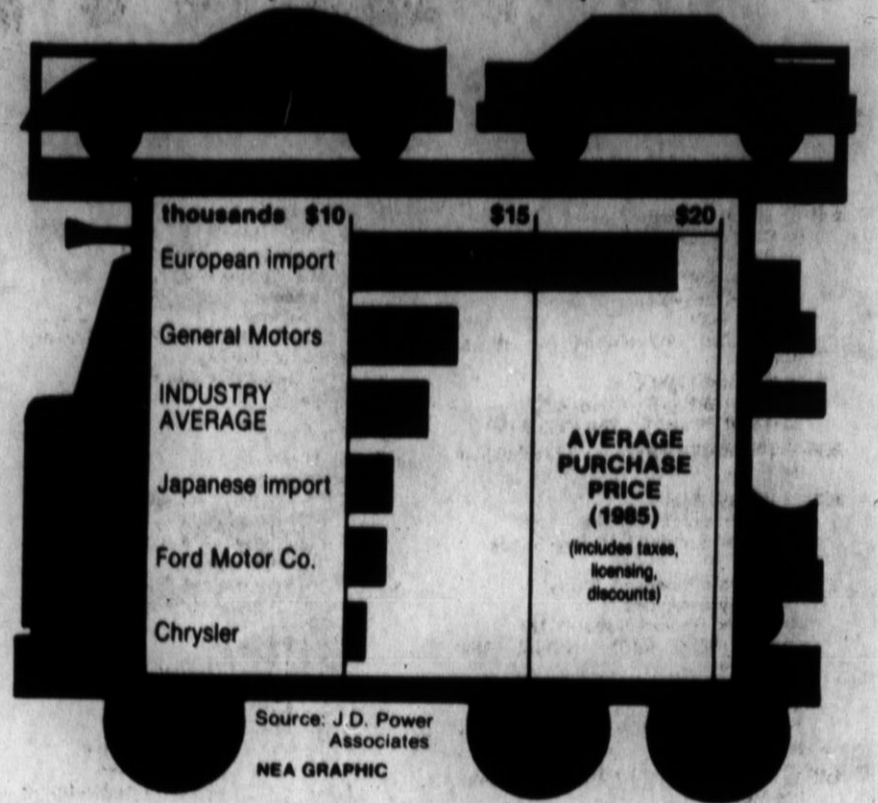

Jacobs doesn't agree with a recent statement by Bud Grant, president of CBS Entertainment, that the serial is a dying form on television. But he is worried that the networks can make it a self-fulfilling prophecy.

"I think the other networks have killed the serial," he said. "They insisted on making them serials from the beginning. That's a lot to ask of an audience. With 'Dallas' and 'Knots Landing' we started with stories that ended each week but kept the problem open. What made 'Dallas' different from most television shows is that the adversaries were in place.

"I think the serial, although I prefer to call them sagas, are the form best suited for television. Shows like 'Dallas,' 'Dynasty,' 'Falcon Crest.' They have an epic quality that lends itself to television."

Imports aren't cheapest

Japanese imports were once cheaper than U.S.-made autos — but their prices rose when import restrictions began. Now the cost difference in the U.S. market has disappeared.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HERE begins the wonderful story of Jesus the Messiah, the Son of God.

In the book written by the prophet Isaiah, God announced that He would send His Son to earth, and that a special messenger would arrive first to prepare the world for His coming.

"This messenger will live out in the barren wilderness," Isaiah said, "and will proclaim that everyone must straighten out his life to be ready for the Lord's arrival."

This messenger was John the Baptist. He lived in the wilderness and taught that all should be baptized as a public announcement of their decision to turn their backs on sin, so that God could forgive them.

People from Jerusalem and from all over Judea traveled out into the Judean wastelands to see and hear John, and when they confessed their sins he baptized them in the Jordan River.

His clothes were woven from camel's hair and he wore a leather belt; locusts and wild honey were his food.

Here is a sample of his preaching: "Someone is coming soon who is far greater than I am, so much greater that I am not even worthy to be His slave."

I baptize you with water but He will baptize you with God's Holy Spirit!"
