Local Farmland Would be Price for MX

By JIM STEIERT Managing Editor

A 1,900 page draft environmental impact statement, made public by the Air Force some six months behind schedule at a whopping cost of $17 million, reveals that if the controversial MX missile system is deployed in the West Texas-Eastern New Mexico area, local farmers may well pay the highest price for a system the agency acknowledges would be better placed in the Great Basin

Chrysler to Seek Loan Guarantees

WASHINGTON (AP) -Chrysler Corp., furiously fighting to stave off bankruptcy, will request about $400 million in federal loan guarantees as early as Tuesday "if all goes well," its chairman, Lee Iacocca, said

Iaccoca stressed that Chrysler's timetable depends on how the United Auto Workers union responds to a proposed wage freeze through September 1982. A meeting of the UAW's Chrysler Council is set for Monday.

He called the UAW's reaction "very critical" to Chrysler's complex and fastdeveloping survival plan that was formally approved Thursday by its board of directors in New York.

The plan proposes more than $1.5 billion in costcutting steps over the next 20 months - largely through massive wage concessions, supplier price freezes, employee layoffs and more help from banks.

Iacocca said the federal Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board must have "some indication" of the UAW's stance before it can even conditionally approve additional loan guarantees. The Chrysler chairman met Friday with Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who heads the board, to thrash out a timetable for the loan guarantee request.

Iacocca said Chrysler's request will be in the "ballpark" of $400 million, leaving open the possibility it could go slightly higher.

The board must certify that the No. 3 automaker has a reasonable chance of survival without additional propping up after 1983.

So far, Chrysler has drawn $800 million of the $1.5 billion in guarantees authorized by Congress. Two weeks ago, the board warned that further approval depends on successful cost-cutting.

The No. 3 automaker is predicting a $1.7 billion loss in

With all the problems communities are having in providing emergency ambulance service to their citizens, how has Hereford and Deaf Smith County been so fortunate?

.If you read the article about the chamber directors' meeting in Friday's newspaper, you might have figured it out. What it boils down to is that we have governmental units who will work together, and people who take pride in their work, and citizens who will support the Emergency Medical Jim Bullard, hospital administrator, reporting on the first year of the EMS program, told directors that he thought Hereford had the best system in the Panhandle. "The big difference is people. Our taxing units and our people worked out a solution in a spirit of cooperation for the ultimate benefit of the entire community.

Reminds me of a story

During a hike in the woods a troop of Boy Scouts came across an abandoned section of railroad track. Each, in turn, tried walking the rails but eventually lost his balance and Suddenly two of the boys, after considerable whispering, offered to bet that they could both walk the entire length of the track without falling off. Challenged to make good their boast, the two boys jumped up on opposite rails, extended a hand to balance each other, and walked the entire section of track with no difficulty.

There, in a nutshell, is the principle of modern business and community living. The day of the hermit and lone wolf are gone. We do things better, we produce more and we live better by helping each other. The man who lends a helping hand benefits himself at the same time as he helps others.

The reverse is also true. When we don't help each other. when we don't cooperate, the whole system starts to rattle. and shake.

The difference between a good company and a poor one, an effective department and an inefficient one, is often reflected in the cooperation-or lack of it, among the people who work missile project Thursday, complete with deployment area selections and land withdrawal statements,-all which came almost six months behind their designated schedule.

Military spokesmen reiterated the Air Force's preference for a Nevada-Utah site as the statement was released but stated that The West Texas-Eastern New Mexico area remains a "viable alternative" site for the sophisticated shell game arrangement of the MX.

Lt. Col. Bill Verkest, a spokesman for the Air Force who addressed members of the media at Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin Thursday pointed to some of the implications included for West Texas-Eastern New Mexico in the draft statement on deployment of the MX.

Figuring prominently in the statement is the fact that about 6,900 irrigated acres of cropland would be disturbed by construction of the MX system in this region with 6,300 acres eliminated when

Day Care Center Looks To Construction Project

By ALLISON RYAN Women's Editor

This week, Hereford Day Care Center was allowed a long-term lease on 212 acres of city property on 15th Street and Ave. C for the construction of a new center to meet the increasing demand for child care facilities here.

George Warner, chairman of the 12-member board went before city commissioners Monday on behalf of the Day Care Center to make the request

The Center was granted a two-year period for a starting date on construction and commissioners agreed on a minimum lease of $1 per year, subject to the approval of the city attorney.

"Hereford Day Care Center, Inc., is a non-profit corporation which is locally funded as distinguished from centers which are federally funded," Warner explained in an interview last week. The local centers operate on open tuition and the USDA food program.

Presently there are two locations. The Center on Norton Street has been operating for 10 years and has a license to care for a maximum of 85 children.

The second location is at Wesley United Methodist Church which now has the same maximum license.

When the time came where there was a need for care beyond the capability of the first location, Wesley United Methodist Church was generous enough to permit use of part of the physical facility for a second location," Warner said. Both locations, due to the limited amount of land and building space, are impossible to enlarge. Yet, the need for additional care continues.

According to Bettie Dickson, executive director of Hereford Day Care Center, "There is a waiting list at times for additional space for child care. More children can be accepted as other children "In serving to the best of our ability, we recognize the need in the community for additional child care, particularly for infants. In designing and constructing a new facility very adequate attention will be given to completion of organizational and structural facilities to provide infant care considerably beyond our present capability to do so," Warner continued.

"This Hereford Day Care Center, which has operated on a non-profit basis and has served the community in a somewhat quiet yet comfortable and reassuring manner, without emphasis on advertisting our capabilities and functions, is now seeking the support of the entire community to help with contributions of every kind. Contributions that would be appropriate to assist in raising the funds to start constructing the new center. All dona-

Storm Troubling Magnetic Field

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) - The largest magnetic storm since September 1979 caused communications disruptions at high latitudes Friday, according to solar forecasters at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric laboratories here.

"The Canadians report disruptions and some damage to power grids,' said Frank Cowley, duty forecaster at the NOAA center. "This is a highlatitude effect, however, and we don't expect to see that kind of power grid effect down here."

Such disturbances affect higher latitudes because the Earth's own magnetic field curves downward over the north and south poles.

Cowley said that while scientists knew the storm was related to activity on the sun, the source of the disturbance was not identified.

"We haven't observed any flares large enough to produce this kind of effect." he said.

Earthquakes Shake

Central Iran

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Two earthquakes shook central Iran Friday, killing 26 people and damaging a gold dome on a Moslem religious shrine and the tomb of a Moslem saint in the holy city of Qom.

Pars, Iran's official news agency. said the first earthquake, measuring 5.7 on the Richter scale, struck before dawn and was felt in Qom and in 10 other villages in the area as well as in Tehran, 80 miles to the north.

A spokesman at Tehran's security headquarters told The Associated Press in Beirut by telephone the quake occured at 4:47 a.m. local time and was "quite strong."

The most devastating in recent Iranian history occured in September 1978, killing at least 25,000 people according to official Iranian estimates. The quake leveled Iran's eastern city of Tabas, destroyed some 100 nearby villages and towns and was felt over two-thirds of the country.

In November, 1979, a strong earthquake flattened villages in northeastern Iran, killing at least 500

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Fire investigators said Friday an electrical malfunction apparently caused the apartment-house blaze that killed 12 Southeast Asia refugees, including seven members of a Vietnamese family that had arrived one day before.

In addition, the four adults and eight children found dead in a kitchen were trapped because an exit door was bolted and nailed shut, Fire Chief Evan Baker said at a news con-

Baker also said recently installed hallway fire doors at the Avalon Apartments apparently had been propped open, contributing to the spread of the flames through the upper two floors of the three-story building.

"It was a very bad trap," Baker said.

State Medical Examiner Dr. Wallace Graham performed autopsies Friday on the badly charred bodies of the victims. Authorities have said identification of the bodies might be difficult because of their severe burns.

Holiday Mail

Crunch is On

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Christmas rush at the nation's post offices started later than usual this year, but the pace is picking up and the total probably will match last year's 1.9 billion pieces, postal officials said Friday.

The peak so far this holiday season was Monday's 150 million cancellations of stamped mail, spokesman Lou Eberhardt said. That dropped to 140 million on Tuesday and 127 million on Wednesday, he said. More recent figures are unavailable because of the time needed to get daily totals.

10% in Violation

Of New Waste Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) - Government inspections have found about 10 percent of firms checked in violation of new regulations governing the disposal of hazardous chemicals, the Environmental Protection Agency said Friday.

The agency said so far it has levied $7,500 in fines and issued 26 violation notices and 18 compliance orders in its first month of enforcing the new rules.

Those rules are designed for the first time to provide a national roadmap of who is generating, transporting and disposing of 41 million metric tons of chemical wastes annually.

The EPA said its 250 inspectors have checked 383 waste generators and disposal sites so far. The agency said most of the violation notices were issued against storage and disposal sites. The most prevalent infraction was failure to have a security fence around the disposal facility.

Gas Prices Increase 2 Cents

NEW YORK (AP) - Saudi Arabia's 6.7 percent crude oil price increase this week already has made itself felt in the American gasoline supply line. Standard Oil Co. of California and Texaco Inc. say they have raised wholesale gasoline prices as much as 2 cents a gallon.

Socal and Texaco, which announced the price increases on Friday, are two of the largest buyers of crude oil from Saudi Arabia, which supplies 8 percent of American oil needs. Exxon Corp. and Mobil Corp., the other two major buyers, said Friday they had not followed the Socal and Texaco moves.

But company and trade reports said four other major refiners - Gulf Oil, Shell Oil, Phillips Petroleum and Tenneco - also raised wholesale prices 1 to 2 cents a gallon in the past several days. Those increases reportedly reflected general domestic and foreign oil price increases and were not tied to the Saudi action.

The fuel-price increases can be passed on to consumers if dealers choose. The Lundberg Letter, a trade publication, said the average retail price of a gallon of gasoline rose slightly to $1.2139 in November after falling since July.

Texaco gave no reason for its 2-cent increase in wholesale prices of gasoline, diesel fuel and home heating oil and its 1.8-cent-a-gallon rise for gasohol.

But Socal's Chevron U.S.A. division said it was raising gasoline prices as much as 2 cents a gallon in an attempt to make a "partial recovery of the recently announced Saudi Arabian crude oil increase" from $30 to $32 per 42-gallon barrel. The increase, announced at an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil ministers' meeting this week, was retroactive to Nov. 1.

OPEC later decided to allow its prices to rise about 10 percent to as much as $41 per barrel, a move the Energy Department said could cost Americans as much as 7 cents a gallon in higher heating oil and gasoline prices. Saudi Arabia's prices have been below the OPEC ceiling for some time.

Socal said its gasoline prices rose 2 cents a gallon in the East, 1.5 cents in the Midwest and parts of the South, 1 cent in the Rockies, and 0.8 cent on the West

PVT. ISMAEL ORTA

Marine Pvt. Ismael Orta, son of Orencio T. and Irene Orta of P.O. Box 705, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

During the 11-week training cycle, he learned the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

He joined the Marine Corps in August 1979.

No tears are being shed as the Georgians prepare to vacate Washington, D.C., according to syndicated columnist John Pinker-

Apparently there is a minimum of sadness as most of the Carter administration call the moving vans. In fact, Pinkerman says there is outright jubilation in some quarters over the departure of some heads of bureaucracy that used their powers of office in unpopular ways and alienated many people.

One of these is Patricia Harris, who President Carter appointed to be head of the Department of Health and Human Resources. The black lady injected racial issues into her campaign to re-elect Carter in such an abrasive and brutal manner hat most of Washington's black leaders are even glad to see her go.

The writer also pointed out: "Strangely,neither is there any open weeping apparent over the early end of Mrs. Rosalynn Carter's tenure as 'assistant president'." While there is some reasonable compassion felt for the Carters, Rosalynn apparently never won the hearts of Washington as did Lady Bird Johnson, Mamie Eisenhower or even Bess

Ronald Reagan may face some of the same problems encountered by Carter if he makes too many appointments on the basis of paying off political debts, rather than selecting the most competent people.

Moral Majority

Since the election, when a dozen political liberals were ousted from the U.S. Senate, there has been much wailing and gnashing of teeth from these defeated politicians and their followers who are claiming "foul" and pointing a finger at the Moral Majority.

All sort of things are being said about the Moral Majority, a loosely knit group of people led by several preachers who finally got fed up with the direction this country seemed to be heading.

We learn now that "the religious New Right plans to take over the country even if it means inciting civil war, and one of its leaders, television preacher Jerry Falwell is already running for president." Where is this startling bit of information coming

Why, it appears in the January issue of Playboy.

The Playboy article quotes several people, including defeated left wing liberal senator George Mc-Govern of North Dakota. McGovern simply will not admit that North Dakota voters got tired of his liberal views and replaced him. He prefers to lay his defeat upon more sinister reasons such as a New Right which told lies about him and fooled voters into Playboy devotes a lot of space to Jerry Falwell and the Moral Majority. The lead article was written by a fellon named Johnny Greene and his article is accompanied by another scathing attack on the New Right by former Senator McGovern. Greene's story with McGovern's article is sandwiched between an interview with the late Beatle John Lennon and wife Yoko Ono and a nine page picture section on the mostly uncovered January cover girl.

Meanwhile the Rev. Jerry Falwell remains undisturbed by the attack. He says that if he is going to be attacked by somebody, it may as well be Hugh Hefner's Playboy magazine because this is the sort of trash that needs to be disposed of by decent

What has the Moral Majority done that is so awful? Well, the Moral Majority is a pro-family movement in which the standards of decency as taught from the Bible are to be restored to American society.

It is a group that is against state funded abortions. It has incurred the wrath of women libbers by being against the ERA, stating that the amendment will move the U.S. into a unisex nation with power to determine agual rights left almost a statement will be a statement of the statement of the determine equal rights left almost entirely up to the courts. The Moral Majority prefers to rely upon present constitutional guarantees of equal rights.

It is a group that is against pornography, against homosexuals, against the criminal code which now guarantees the criminal all of the rights while denying the rights of his victims.

The Moral Majority is composed of decent, law abiding Americans who are fed up with the way things are going and who got together enough political muscle to make some changes.

If this is considered dangerous, count us on the side of the Jangerous people. We think they are on the state to the side of the Jangerous people.

Representative Gene Snyder of Kentucky recently came up with some very interesting statistics. From 1973 to 1977, there were 339 drug discoveries worldwide. Seventy-four of those drugs were discovered in this country, but all but 18 of them were put to use in other countries before being approved here. Thus, while the U.S. ranks first in discoveries worldwide, thanks to the FDA, we are only ninth in overall speed in putting them to use saving lives.

A typical example: In the 950's, a medical miracle was discovered in the form of a body glue, which, when applied as a fine mist, could stop bleeding from open wounds and glue human tissues together. The process was used extensively in Vietnam where it saved hundreds of lives, and it held great promise as a future cure for internal bleeding, ulcers and trying to gain FDA approval of their body glue. So instead of marketing it as a miraculous medical tool, they are now selling it in discount stores-as a general purpose household glue.

How Fast Do Your Nails Grow?

Now before you start thinking the FDA has just been sitting on its hands all these years, doing nothing to protect the public, let me set the record straight. As it turns out, for the past five years, the agency has been conducting some very intensive research of its own-on nail biting and thumb sucking. So intensive, in fact, that now the FDA has become knowledgeable enough to: alert us that nails normally grow at the rate of 0.1 millimeter daily, and that for those who bite their nails the rate is double; inform us that nail biting occurs in 45 percent of preadolescent children, 25 percent of college students and 10 percent of adults; warn us that nail biting is sometimes a matter of discontent, pressure, or maladjustment, and most often occurs "in a stressful situation," and, finally.

For instance, in controlled experiments, the rats decide how much to work at various pay scales, and take more time off when wages are high. They also make consumption decisions that depend on their income and on commodity prices. All of this is flawless free-market behavior. But when the researchers simulated government meddling, with 'welfare' payments to the rats, their behavior become erratic and inequality of income increased-precisely the opposite of socialist theory. We'll bet this is the first time the socialists have refused to believe findings based on

THE INN KEEPER

I wish preachers wouldn't be so hard on the innkeeper in the Christmas story. So he had no rooms in his motel. What was he supposed to do? Kick out a Dallas fan at the Super Bowl to let in a refugee?

He wasn't the only person in the world to ever be too busy to see a need. We all have reveled in our plenty at Christmas while others were grateful for stables.

I identify with the innkeeper. He is the patron saint of all of us who somehow, manage to miss things. Can you imagine his walking through eternity saying, "He was born in my barn and I missed Him."

I know how that feels. I have missed a few things in my day...

In high school, Mary Lou wanted to go with me. I found out after she was going steady with someone else.

I was in Oklahoma City during the allcollege tournament. A friend suggested that we go see Oklahoma City play. I agreed since I knew a guy who played for them. When we arrived at the gym there was a game starting which preceded the game we had come to see. We decided to go get a cup of coffee while this unimportant game was going on. We sat in a greasy spoon for two hours just killing time.

When we arrived for our game, the stands were buzzing about the team which had just won the preliminary game. The team was the San Francisco Dons with Bill Russell, K.C. Jones & Company.

The greatest college team ever was playing and I was in a greasy spoon killing time, drinking coffee. I don't even like coffee. Such is life..at least life in my version.

At Christmas I stop and express gratitude there there is one thing I did not miss. The one who was born in the innkeeper's barn and I started our thing thirty-eight years ago. This is one thing I got into early. My Christmas is merry because I did not miss him.

Warm fuzzies, Doug Manning

A brother like that

Two small street urchins in tattered clothes had stopped to admire the bright, new, shiny sports car parked at the curb.

While they were standing there, a young man came by and was about to get into the car when the older of the two little boys spoke up.
"Is this your car, mister?" he asked.

The young man nodded. "My brother gave it to me for

The boy looked astounded. "You mean your brother gave it to ya and it didn't cost ya nothin'? Gosh, I wish I He hesitated. The young man knew what the boy was going to wish. He was going to wish he had a brother like that. But the young man was wrong.
"I wish," the boy went on, "that I could be a brother like

Then he looked lovingly and somewhat sadly at the smaller

In that little story is the true spirit of Christmas.

Thank God, we "have a brother like that" who came to earth at Christmas to give us the one gift most worth having - the everlasting gift of God's love, so that forevermore we shall know that "when we plod on leaden feet and sigh for wings and no star shines," above the encircling gloom and around it shines the light of God's love in the face of Christ. And we shall know that love is at the heart of all good things.

But that is only part of the Christmas story. God's great gift was intended to "set all the world to giving."

Our wish for ourselves on Christmas should be that we CAN be a brother like that" to those in our lives who look to us to give them the greatest of all human gifts - a hand to hold and a look that says, "I love you and I think you're wonderful."

As Bobby and his older brother will some day learn, that is worth all the bright, new shiny sports cars in all the world. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Solution Offered For Postal Deficit

(Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County Grass farm has ound something Congressional to approve, maybe.)

Dear Editor,

A Congressman has come up with a plan to overcome the postal system's onebillion-dollar-a-year loss. He said he thought it up while taking a shower. "I do my hest thinking while showering," he said.

If the plan works, right off you can see this is a clear indication that Congressmen ought to take more showers.

I don't know why the post office is supposed to do any better financially than the automobile industry or farmers, but none the less it's losing a little over a billion a year and this Congressman says the way to end this is to sell advertising space on postage stamps.

He says plenty of com-panies would pay 20 cents per stamp to get their advertising message on it, and with the stamps still costing the rest of us 15 cents apiece, you can see the post office would become a business worth buy-

There are those who say big companies wouldn't buy space on a postage stamp. Naturally you wouldn't run grocery specials on a stamp. Some people take so long to answer their mail the prices would be out of date. And eans wouldn't work. The movie star's picture wouldn't show up big enough.

But there are some advertising geniuses in televisionwho'd jump at the chance. You take the guy who thinks a 60-second spot costing $150,000 on TV showing 10 helicopters lowering 10 pickup trucks on to a city parking lot will sell pickups, and he'd jump at the chance to buy space on a postage stamp, maybe on both sides. Promote glue on the back and mouth wash on the front. Install more showers in the Congressional office building and somebody is bound to come up with a bill to sell advertising not only on the stamp but on the entire back of an envelope and perhaps around the edges on the front side. Keep the water at the right temperature and some Congressman might come up with a bill to charge Congressmen postage on the mail

BY FAITH, NOTHING IS IMPOSSIBLE

At the bottom of the mountain they found a great crowd surrounding the other nine disciples, as some Jewish leaders argued with them.

The crowd watched Jesus in awe as He came toward them, and then ran to greet Him.

"What's all the argument about?" He asked.

One of the men in the crowd spoke up and said, "Teacher, I brought my son for You to heal - he can't talk because he is possessed by a demon.

And whenever the demon is in control of him it dashes him to the ground and makes him foam at the mouth and grind his teeth and become rigid. So I begged your disciples to cast out the demon, but they couldn't do it." Jesus said (to His disciples), "Oh, what tiny faith you have; how much longer must I be with you until you believe? How much longer must I be patient with you? Bring the boy to Me."

So they brought the boy, but when he saw Jesus the demon convulsed the child horribly, and he fell to the ground writhing and foaming at the mouth.

"How long has he been this way?" Jesus asked the father.

And he replied, "Since he was very small,

And the demon often makes him fall into the fire or into water to kill him. Oh, have mercy on us and do something if You can."

"If I can?" Jesus asked, "Anything is possible if you have faith."

The father instantly replied, "I do have faith; oh, help me to have more!"

When Jesus saw that the crowd was growing He rebuked the demon. "O demon of deafness and dumbness." He said, "I command you to come out of this child and enter him no more!"

Then the demon screamed terribly and convulsed the boy again and left him; and the boy lay there limp and mctionless, to all appearance dead. A murmur ran through the crowd - "He is dead."

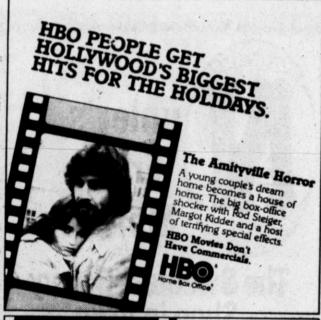

But Jesus took him by the hand and helped him to his feet and he stood up and was all right!

Afterwards, when Jesus was alone in the house with His disciples, they asked Him, "Why couldn't we cast that Jesus replied, "Cases like this require prayer."

Industry Study Tells Future Gas Potentials

HOUSTON (AP) - The timated price tag is in ex-ess of $200 billion but the otential return is literally aundreds of trillions of cubic feet of gas.

An 18-month industry study indicates such a potential for additions to domestic gas reserves may be held by such unconventional sources as coal seams and "tight" reservoirs with geologic characteristics that resist conventional production procedures.

The National Petroleum Council study also included Devonian shale gas and geopressured brines.

The NPC's report, however, says the potential ultimate recovery from tight sands alone is in the range of 192 to 574 trillion cubic feet by the year 2000.

Such a range compares with an estimated 194.9 trillion cubic feet of domestic natural gas reserves at the end of 1979.

While saying unconven-tional gas could be a significant addition to the nation's future gas supply, the executive summary of the NPC five-volume report emphasizes caution.

"The report presents estimates of what could happen under certain assumed technical and economic circumstances and is not intended to represent a forecast of what will occur," the summary states.

The NPC is a federally chartered, privately funded industry group. It was established in 1946 at the suggestion of former President Harry S. Truman and has served as an advisory committee on oil and natural gas matters to the Interior Department and, since 1977, to the Department of Energy. The study of unconventional gas sources was re-quested in 1978 by former energy Secy. James R. Schlesinger who asked that it include the outlook for costs and ultimate recovery and how government policy can improve the outlook.

The NPC says there is increasing recognition among all sectors of the nation's must continue to supply the nation with the majority of its energy requirements over the pear term.

"The long lead time required for conversion from oil or gas to coal and for development of a synthetic fuel industry dictates this," the

In the interim period, the nation must seek a resource that can be developed quick-ly, incrementally, and with as few environmental concerns as possible. One option which could potentially fit these requirements is to explore for, drill, and produce 'unconventional gas'...."

The volume on tight gas reservoirs highlights the report in that the potential nnual production from such sands by the year 2000 is estimated at 10 trillion cubic feet, as opposed to 2 trillion from coal seams, 1 trillion from Devonian shale, and negligible output from geopressured brines.

Annual production from tight gas formations was estimated to have been as high as 800 billion cubic feet by 1978 but the NPC report says that, historically, most of these formations have been uneconomical to produce at prevailing prices because of the low natural flow rates of

The NPC group concentrated on 12 domestic basins known to contain tight gas formations and on which extensive data is available. The resulting detailed appraisals then were extrapolated to the remaining domestic basins outside Alaska.

The study listed several potential constraints to the development of tight gas.

"Market demand at the prices necessary to produce the gas may not be available until the late 1980s," the report said.

"More operators will have to become convinced the production technology is dependable, the gas resources are available, and the economics are favorable before many tight gas plays are begun."

In placing capital needs in excess of $200 billion, the NPC said significant risk and capital requirements are associated with the develop-ment of the unconventional

Such projects will have to compete for available funds with other energy activities, including conventional oil and gas exploration and pro-duction as well as other other emerging technologies (such as) synfuels, shale oil, etc," the report said.

"Gas will also have to compete with other fuels for its share of the market."

Everyday Noises Hurting Society

HOUSTON (AP) - Sirens whine. Trucks rumble and roar. Rock music blares,

These and other loud sounds of modern day life are hurting people both physicially and mentally.

That's the opinion of Dr. T. Walter Carlin, director of the Speech and Hearing Institute at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Houston.

In a recent interview, Dr. Carlin said, "Our society is driving itself nuts with noise."

He said noise pollution is a not only a cause for the loss of hearing but triggers other physicial ailments, stress in marriages, a lack of productivity by workers and "all in all makes our life miserable."

He said a walk through downtown Houston, or any other metropolitian area. proves his point.

There is the roar of traffic and jackhammers pounding away on construction sites and brakes screaming at busy intersections and horns honking.

"Take all of that noise and let it bounce off one building to another building and down to the pavement where you are walking," Carlin said. "There is no wonder you are exhausted after a day of shopping. No wonder you feel as if you can't finish the day on the job. You are beaten down, you are irritable, your mental 000000000000000000

A person is not even safe from noise pollution in his own home, Carlin said, especially when the kitchen is in full operation. 'Turn on the dishwasher. the blender, the electric can opener, and you can be in pain. Then the wife comes in to talk and you can't hear her and she thinks you are not paying attention or giving her the cold-shoulder."

This, he said, can cause marital stress and, Carlin said, "there is enough built-in stress in a marriage without noise contributing.'

If you are watching the Sunday football game, the physician said, and the dishwasher goes on, you turn up the sound, and then the blender begins to whiz, and you turn up the sound, and then you have moved beyond the safe decibel count.

Decibels are used to measure sound pressure and levels of 85-90 can cause hearing damages as well as other health problems.

Youths who walk around with earphones listening to loud music "are crazy. They don't believe it and they don't think about it, but they are damaging their hearing," the doctor said.

Research has shown, he said, that the loss of hearing occurs when tiny ear hair cells are destroyed by excessive noise over a long period of time. Like brain cells, these hair cells do not grow back and the damage is permanent.

Another condition called tinnitus, a constant ringing in the ears, also can be caused by prolonged exposure to loud

Carlin said, "Once this happens, there is no way to correct it. That ringing is there day and night, night and Carlin said he once went to a disco with two friends, both deaf, and "Lwas going to tell them I had to leave because the noise was hurting. They left first because the decible count was so high they felt pain in major organs of their body although they could not

Over the Limit Cases More Numerous During Pheasant Season Opener Here

Pheasant hunters had a lower degree of success on opening day in the Magic Triangle area of Deaf Smith, Castro and Parmer counties this year but game wardens filed a higher number of overthe-bag-limit cases this season compared to last season according to Chuck Cosper, TP&WD game warden stationed in Hereford.

Game regulations stipulate that the head and harvested pheasant must remain attached to the carcass until it reaches its final destination, in order to provide proof of sex of the gamebirds in the bag.

Hunters failing to meet that criteria with their bag here over the weekend had their birds confiscated and were also issued citations.

According to Cosper, some 70 cases were filed by game wardens in the immediate Hereford area during opening weekend with up to threequarters of those cases involving dressed bird violations.

Cosper indicated that he received several reports of illegal hen shooting but only a limited number of hen cases were filed and although he received numerous complaints concerning trespassing, landowners here failed to file charges in the incidents.

A few cases were also made by wardens concerning lack of the proper hunting license. Cosper reported that a high number of "road hunters" were being noted in the area during the early portion of the season but added that their activities are difficult for wardens to monitor, although shooting from public roadways is illegal

"I'd say we've had considerably more hunters here the first week of the season, but the luck wasn't as good as last year on opening weekend. That's probably due to the fact that 1979 was an exceptional year," stated

Cosper and J.D. Gould, game warden from the Oldham County area headquartered at Vega, reported that fewer limits of pheasant were being taken out of the area during the early days of this year's pheasant season.

Trout Releases In Full Swing

AUSTIN -- For Texas thworms, cheese and canned fishermen who never have caught a rainbow trout, now is the time.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's annual winter trout stocking program got into full swing last week with the release of 21,000 of the colorful Park lake near San Angelo. gamefish into the Guadalupe River below Canyon Reservoir Dam.

The most recent releases began Dec. 2 and continued through Dec. 5. Additional releases will be made at regular intervals through the winter months.

Last week's stocking was Last week's stocking was larger than most, with extra 11,000 rainbows purchased from a commercial firm in Missouri augmenting a group of 10,000 Arkansas fish reared in the department's San Marcos hatchery. The Missouri fish are larger than usual, some up to 10 inches long, while most of the Arkansas trout measure about eight in-

The Guadalupe trout fishery, like the three other areas in Texas where a trout fishery is maintained, is operated on a "put and take" basis. The trout do not reproduce in the river, and most of the stocked fish are caught by anglers.

The hatchery trout are not particularly wild, and can be caught on a variety of small lures and natural bait. Earcorn all are productive for Guadalupe rainbows.

The other rainbow fisheries being stocked are the Brazos River just below the Possum Kingdom Reservoir dam, Boykin Springs Lake near Jasper and Foster County

There is no closed season on rainbow trout in Texas, but most of the fish are caught during the winter stocking period. The statewide daily limit is five, with a possession limit of 10.

AUSTIN - Four Houston men celebrated Pearl Harbor Day by shooting up the countryside in Kerr County, but in the end they lost the war. Acting on a tip from a landowner, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department game wardens stopped the quartet as they drove into Mountain Home. A search of the vehicle turned up six white-tailed deer, two exotic axis deer and a turkey hen.

A total of 32 cases were filed against the men in a local Justice of the Peace court. Fines were assessed totaling $6,600 on charges ranging from discharging a firearm from a public road to taking deer and turkey illegally.

biologists in the field report fairly stable wild turkey populations in Texas despite dry weather during the spring and summer which limited nesting success.

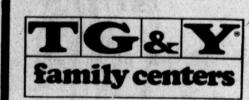

Good hatches from the two previous years fortunately provided enough adult birds to maintain the turkey crop through the dry summer. With continued rainfall through the winter and early spring an outstanding hatch could be possible this spring, upland game program leader for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The outstanding acorn crop this fall across most of the state which helped put whitetailed deer in good body condition also benefited the turkey population. "The turkeys have pretty good food and cover right now, and there should be plenty of birds for the 1981 spring gobbler season set for April 18 through May 3, 1981," Wilson said. This year a spring gobbler season will be offered in 72 counties, compared to 62 counties last spring. The spring season limit statewide is one gobbler per hunter.

Dry weather during the spring reduced the hen-poult count to an average of only six poults per 100 hens in the counties surveyed by biologists, Wilson pointed out. This was well below production of the two previous springs, he said.

NO WATER & FEW GEESE

UMBARGER- A recent aerial goose survey of the Texas Panhandle has given indications of the lack of playa lake water and geese according to a U.S. Fish and Wildlife spokesman.

'We flew most of the traditional wintering geese areas from the Pampa area west along the Canadian river and south through the Dimmitt-Friona region and our total goose count was 30,000 birds," said Larry Wynn, Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Rufuge manager.

"The biggest concentrations of geese were southwest, west and northwest of Hereford where most of the water is located," Wynn continued.

Normally, the Panhandle holds nearly 100,000 geese during the winter and Wynn said that the weather and water conditions could be keeping the geese north in Oklahoma and Colorado.

The survey crew also counted 300,000 ducks in the same region west of Hereford during the same flight last week. This drop in the total Panhandle duck population can also be attributed to the lack of water.

The annual mid-winter waterfowl survey will be conducted in January and the wildlife personnel will get another chance to count the total bird populations at that

SUNFLOWER SEEDS LUBBOCK - What wild birds like to eat and what you put out for them could be the difference in whether you have birds on your property or not according to a recent Urban Wildlife Research Program report.

White proso millet and black oil-type sunflower seeds (type grown here) are the best all-around feed to put out for the majority of the wild birds in your back yard.

The small, oil-type sunflower seeds were found to be more attractive to most bird species than the larger black striped or gray striped sunflower seeds that are usually available in commercial bird feed.

Milo, wheat, oats, cracked corn, and rice are common ingredients in commercial mixes and they are rarely eaten if the millet and small sunflower seeds are present.

Old Christmas Trees Make Angling Reefs

season is a good time to do something to improve fishing

Many of the Christmas trees annually discarded by Texans after the holidays can be bound together and transformed into fish attractor reefs for lakes lacking in natural fish cover.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Charls Inman of Tyler has assisted with reef-building projects for the past several winters, and he feels the cover and food provided by the submerged trees is a definite benefit to fishing.

Inman said the trees usually are fairly easy to obtain. Two years ago we were able to use 800 trees a local dealer was unable to sell," Inman said. He said only nonsprayed trees free of tinsel and other decorative matter should be used.

The most difficult problem is finding enough weight to get the trees permanently anchored to the bottom," he said. "We have used buckets filled with concrete, or large pieces of scrap concrete curbing. It takes more weight than you might think to sink three or four trees.

A few months after the trees are placed, small fish and other organisms begin using them for protection, and a food chain is created. The larger game fish eventually follow, seeking the cover and food created by the reefs.

Inman said the trees should be dropped in at least eight feet of water, preferably in submerged creek channels or near points where some fish habitat already exists.

"It would be a good idea also for anyone planning to sink fish reefs to check with the controlling authority of the lake for permission," Inman added. He said some water supply or power plant reservoirs may have regulations against such structures.

Reefs constructed of old automobile tires also are effectie fish attractors, and many fishing clubs have organized to bind and place them in scores of lakes across the state. For information and advice on tire reefs, call Kirby Gholson, the department's fish attractor program leader in San Antonio, (512) 349-2174.

Pelicans Make SomeProgress

pairs of endangered brown pelicans nested along the Texas coast this year, producing 76 young birds.

David Blankinship of the National Audubon Society at Rockport said the adult birds nested at three coastal sites this summer, including one which had not been used since the 1950s.

"We found 22 nesting pairs at the Robert Porter Allen Memorial Sanctuary in San Antonio Bay," said Blankinship, "and another 25 to 30 pairs nested on Pelican

Island in Corpus Christi Bay. "A single pair of adult pelicans nested within the San Bernard Refuge on the upper Texas coast-a site not frequented by nesting brown pelicans for the past 30 years and produced two young."

The 76 young pelicans hatched this year compares to 47 in 1979 and 37 in 1978.

Before Hurricane Allen hit during the summer," said Blankinship, "there were approximately 400 brown pelicans on the Texas coast. We lost some birds in the hurricane but it won't be until next year after we count breeding adults that we can determine the losses."

Brown pelicans have been on the Federal Endangered Species List since 1971. Populations collapsed in the 1950s after persistent hydrocarbons such as DDT in the environment caused the birds' egg shells to become thin and reduced the number of successful nestings. Louisiana's population of brown pelicans became ex-

These new and interesting findings are based on 179,000 observations of feeding habits of birds. Additional observations are being conducted across the United States and it is expected that birdfood preferences will be similar to the one above.

TUNE-UP FISHING

GEAR LUBBOCK - Even though the crappie are biting at Lake Thomas and the stripers are hitting at Amistad, there are days when the West Texas weather will keep you indoors. This period is an excellent time to check, replace and repair your fishing gear.

The number one item to be checked is the line on your reel. If the line is old or frayed, it should be replaced with new line. Before you buy new line, determine what type of fishing you will be doing. For instance, it is better to use light light in the fourto-eight pound test for small fish and only use the heavier line for big fish in heavy

When you have the old line removed, clean the grease and dirt from the reel. Check for worn parts and get the correct part number and name from your reel parts list that came with your reel. If your local outdoors dealer does not have the part, try local fishing repair shops or order the part from the reel manufacturer.

The first thing that usually happens to a fishing rod is loose or broken line guides. These can be rewound or replaced by you or a rod repairman.

If your rod is a two-or-three piece outfit, check the connection fittings. Dirt, old oil and wear will tend to make the rod pieces hard to insert or pull apart. Clean the surfaces and if wear is excessive, use a fine emery cloth to smooth and round the edges. Continued pressure on a tight fitting will eventually cause the rod to pull from the fitting requiring a new glue

Check your lure and hooks for broken, bent or lost points. Replace them with new hooks or sharpen the old hooks. If you replace with new hooks, check them for sharpness, too.

When you have completed your repair-cleaning job, you will be ready for that next nice day to try your luck at fishing in the local lake

Currently only four public marshes in Jefferson County require the use of nontoxic steel instead of lead shot shells. They are Sea Rim State Park, J.D. Murphree Wildlife Management Area, and the Sea Rim and McFaddin Marsh National Wildlife

Hereford Girls Topple Perryton Cagers

By MAURI MONTGOMERY

Brand Sports Editor There wasn't anything very meek about a 14-1 mark in the season's ups-and-downs column, so why did varsity girls' eage coach Larry Sowers use timid to describe his unit's most recent 47-36 success over the Perryton Rangers here Friday night?

One might say that he was trying to convince himself that the Whitefaces 13th straight victory wasn't all that convincing - it was a double standard he tossed around between the interruptions of his team's recurring

"We're playing like we're afraid we might just lose a ball game instead of playing like we're sure we're going to win," said Sowers. We still don't truly believe or have the confidence of knowing we're capable of going out and really kicking some of these teams around."

We've been playing timid the last three or four ball games and it's showing up more and more each week in our play."

And maybe, just maybe, his argument was convincing enough in this instance, for his team had been outscored in two quarters by a margin outmanuvered briefly in the second quarter.

Perryton's senior post Ruth Ogden (an All-District performer a year ago) hit a 15-foot shot from the baseline to cut Hereford's lead to 9-4 in opening second quarter play and followed that with a inside layup to maintain the

and-one situation following Teresa Liles' misdirected block attempt, and then answered those two points with a stolen pass and uncontested layup to give Hereford a 17-13 advantage going into intermission.

"Our timidness really showed up in the second quarter," said Sowers. "We sort of stood around and watched when someone threw up a shot - we weren't pursuing rebounds like we are cabable of doing and we didn't get the opportunity to put the ball up very much as a result. We're not all that big, but we're big enough that we should be wrestling under the boards more than we were."

But HHS's second quarter layoff disappeared - having seemingly never existed as the cage crew reprimanded the Rangerettes with a 16-4 melee in the third.

Cathly Lane hit three 30-footers from the corner baseline, Harkins hit a tally of four and Mays and Amy Schumacher each hit 2 points apiece only to be echoed by one Perryton field goal and both ends of a free-throw situation.

And even though Perryton came back to out deliver the Whitefaces in the final quarter 19-16, the damage had already been done. Perryton had just slipped to a 5-6 overall mark in season play. "I'm happy about the win, but gosh, we've got to learn to relax." Sowers said. "We're 14-1 now, and the girls ought to realize we're pretty good by now. We're still making a lot of mistakes because we're unsure of ourselves."

Sowers' argument was convincing only to a certain degree - the Whitefaces girls' basketball team had just clinched its 13 straight timid vic-The Whitefaces are

Senior post and second-team All-District selection Louise Mays (34) battles for a rebound with Perryton's All-District pick Ruth Ogden as teammate Cathy Lane (24) looks on during Friday night's clash between the two cage clubs. Mays and Lane were two of the three most prominent HHS players in action on the boards as they dropped in respective totals of 14 and 11 points to help the Whitefaces overcome Perryton 47-36. Associated Press Writer The Pittsburg Pirates were wearing black Friday night, but it wasn't because the team and their fans were in mourning.

Quite the contrary, they were celebrating a victory in the Class 3A Texas schoolboy football title game. Pittsburg beat Van Vleck, 13-2, for the championship.

Top-ranked Pilot Point and Tidehaven battled to a 0-0 tie and settled for a cochampionship in Class 2A.

The final game of the Texas schoolboy football season was to be played today when Port Arthur Jefferson and Odessa Permian tangled for the Class 5A crown at Texas Stadium in Irving.

Pittsburg coach James Rust says the mostly black uniforms are a good luck charm for the team.

"We wore black starting three years ago and we've been a winning team since then. We were unscored on wearing black until Friday night," Rust said. "We wore gold in the playoffs last year and we lost to Van, 7-6.

"The kids are kind of superstitious," Rust added. Rust will lose 22 seniors

Pittsburg ended the season with a perfect 15-0 record. Van Vleck was 12-2-1.

Rangers Thwart Clinging Whitefaces

By MAURI MONTGOMERY Brand Sports Editor

It didn't take a Rhodes Scholar to figure out the underlying diversity between the Hereford Whitefaces and Perryton Rangers - even at first glance there was an obvious contrast in Perryton's 9-0 season slate as compared to Hereford's 3-10 going into Friday night's clash.

But the team records seemed to make little difference once the two teams finally quartered off against one another - there was a more NOT TOO subtle difference in height that eventually left the Whiteface's bouyed to their 11th straight loss on the year

"Man its awful hard to compete with a team that has so much of a size advantage over you," said a beleagured Dan Giliuson who seemed more at qualm with himself than with anyone else after the contest. "Our kids played a good ball game, but we just have to play about perfect in order to stay in the game with a big team like Perryton has - we have to do that to make up for our lack of size."

"We didn't have a perfect game - we made some mistakes at the wrong times like loosing passes that should have been easy in most respects plus some missed free-throws. But like I said these guys played their hearts out. We're just going to have to figure out a way we can get the better of bigger teams somehow," he said.

The Rangers, listing all but three of its 12-man roster as at-or-over the 6-0 range, ironically were only able to outscore the gutsy Whitefaces with reasonable success during the opening period of the conflict.

At that starting point, the Perryton wall came into play as post men Mark Buck (6-2 tree who had 16 points as the second leading scorer) and Russell Osborne (6-6 who led all other scorers with 19 total points) clicked off back-toback shots to complement a three-point play by All-District guard Jeff Greenway with less than two minutes gone in the first quarter.

Ranger Ricky Herring (6-4 forward) capped that scoring performance with another bucket on a fast-break layup to give Perryton a 9-2 lead with 6:40 remaining in the first quarter. The only HHS score had been provided by post Don Delozier after he took a rebound inside to notch the score at 2-2 earlier. Then and only then was Hereford finally permitted to calibrate its first offensive movement of the evening - a movement that was hampered by resounding

Junior forward Alan Wartes, Hereford's leading point booster with 16 points, nailed a 25-foot shot from the baseline corner to narrow HHS's deficit to 94 before Dolozier capitalized on both ends of a one-and-one situation for a 9-6 ball game.

In the ensuing minutes came the Whitefaces pefected two-part play (exit HHS scoring, enter HHS turnovers and cue return of opponent's sizeable lead).

In that sequence, Hereford missed three layups and lost the ball three times to misdirected passes en route to Perryton's returning scoring rally.

With 3:50 remaining in the period, Perryton's Buck sent a 20-foot jumper to its mark to lengthen PHS's advantage to 11-6 and then coupled once more with teammate Osborne with consecutive buckets to bring the Rangers to a 15-7 upperhand.

Hereford answered the rally with Alan Wartes' completion of the tail end shot at the charity line before PHS's Ricky Herring pushed the score to 17-10 at the quarter's close with a 30-foot satellite.

But the Whitefaces rebounded off the deficit in the second quarter and eventually slid to within four points 19-15 (its closest move to the Rangers in the contest with the exception of a two-point 34-32 clash early in third period play) of Perryton after Norman Hill canned a threepoint play off a layup and foul administered by PHS's Herring, and Chris Schumacher netted a bucket from 15 feet

From that point on, their were no clear favorites in the duel. Both missed scoring opportunities and both answered each other with Hereford came within twopoints of outscoring Perryton in the second quarter as both teams ended that affair 15-14 in the scoring bracket. The third and final periods were deadlocked in 10-10, 22-22

Sugar Ray Wants Fight With Hearns

NEW YORK (AP) - Sugar Ray Leonard wants to fight unbeaten Thomas Hearns for the universal welterweight title if Hearns, in the opinion of Leonard's attorney, can gain the reputation needed to attract the kind of money the two fighters would want.

But Hearns' manager says his fighter already has that kind of reputation and that Leonard-Hearns will be the "most talked about sporting event of 1981.

Meanwhile, Leonard might open 1981 with a bid for the junior middleweight championship, and Hearns hopes to close 1981 by winning the title of that division, which has a 155-pound weight limit, eight pounds more than the welterweight limit.

welterweight class, and the big money fight would seem to between the division's two champions - Leonard and Hearns.

Leonard was in Los Angeles Friday night for a live interview on ABC-TV following the rerun of the fight in New Orleans last Nov. 25 in which Leonard regained the World Boxing Council welterweight title when Roberto Duran quit in the eighth round. Duran participated in the interview from Miami.

Meanwhile, Hearns was in his hometown of Detroit awaiting his Feb. 23 fight in Madison Square Garden against Wilfred Benitez.

76ers Beat New Jersey

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia 76ers earned themselves a holiday vacation. Thanks to the National Basketball Association schedule maker, they'll get it.

The Sixers raised their remarkable record to 32-4, the best in the league, with a 122-107 triumph over the New Jersey Nets Friday night. Rookie guard Andrew Toney hit six baskets in the third quarter as the 76ers won their ninth straight and upped their percentage to .889, well ahead of the NBA mark of .841 set by the Los Angeles Lakers in

From Ryan's Corner

By Allison Ryan

Christmas has always been syonymous to family to me. When I think of the word Christmas, a picture of a family leaving the Christmas Eve service and waking the next day to gather around the tree to open presents forms in my mind. I think of things like servicemen flying home for the holidays, students packing suitcases for college and families loading up the car to drive to mom's for turkey dinner.

This Christmas will be a little different for me so I thought I would write a little different-

Dear Mom and Dad.

I won't be home for Christmas this year. The demand of a daily paper keeps everyone busy especially this time of year with reports of parties and special services and the pictures of trees and decorations. Of course, the news never stops so we don't either except for Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

The family will probably seem small this year with Patrick in California, Kevin in Lubbock, Kathleen in Alpine and me in Hereford. But, Martha and Michael will be there to open a special present on Christmas Eve before going to church, and I'm sure they will be up early to open presents on Christmas Day.

I think this is the first year I haven't been around to at least drop-in on Christmas. When I had that thought I began to think of some of the special Christmases we have shared.

Remember when we lived in Pecos and it was just the four oldest kids around at Christmas time. Ya'll bought a small tree to stand on the table and the kids decorated it. You two stood off to the side and smiled and watched as we created our work of art.

Then, when we moved to Marfa and Martha was just a baby we watched in amazement as she ripped open present after present more interested in the paper than the gift. I remember one Christmas when Kevin, Kathleen and I talked Martha into opening presents before Christmas. We sure had a hard time trying to re-wrap the presents before ya'll got home. Remember, her red Christmas dress?

When Michael was a baby we had to put the tree in the den, so he wouldn't tear the ornaments off the tree. Remember how he would sit and stare at that tree? How about the time he got that new red tricycle and woke up early in the morning just long enough to ride it through the house before going back to bed for a few more hours of sleep. I can still here the squeak of the wheels.

Even though we got older, Christmas remained the same, I think because you two made it that way. The same traditions were practiced every year. Even when Kevin and I were in high school, we were the first ones up to wake everyone else. One year, we went to Martha's and Michael's rooms whispering that Santa Clause had made it to our house and the kids and better get up. We figured if they woke ya'll up, you would be a bit more excited about waking at 6 a.m. Then came the time, when the older kids put Martha and Michael to bed and we stayed up to help you cook the turkey, Mom, and help Dad put the bigger presents under the tree. We even helped fill the stockings.

But, the magic remained the next morning as we all, just like every year, woke up early. Mom, you kissed each one of us and put the coffee on to perk and mixed up the orange juice while we all waited for Dad to wake up. Then, Dad, you came in and kissed each one of us, patted us on the back and said Merry Christmas. You had a few sips of coffee, took your place in the corner chair and called out the name on each package.

Then, there was the same lines of "Oh, mamma it's so pretty," "It's just what I wanted," "Daddy, look what I got" and "Wow, I can't believe it."

And in between all that, ya'll were telling us

from Mother

our thank you notes. Then, Dad, you started gathering up the bows as fast as Mom could get them thrown away. After that the house was full of new toys run-to be sure and save the cards so we could write ning and the living room became a stage for the style show of new clothes. The television was flipped on for the parades and football games.

Of course, the great feast of food followed and then the rest of the day seemed to be one of turkey, naps, visiting with friends to compare gifts, eating turkey sandwiches and reading the Sunday paper.

No, Mom and Dad, we all won't be home for Christmas but ya'll gave us a gift of beautiful memories through the years to keep us together as a big, loving family for a long

Books Focus On Handicapped Children

By DIANNE PIERSON County Librarian

Some five million families in this country live with a seriously disabled child. The library will have several new selections on handicapped and disabled children available this week on the new book shelf.

CUSHLA AND HER BOOKS by Dorothy Butler is the story of the part played by books in the early development of a severely handicapped child. From the first, it was clear that all was not well with Cushla. She had a kidney deformity and breathing difficulties and she hardly slept.

At three months, she was well behind the normal baby in most aspects of her development. Throughout this period of worry, her parents kept a constant watch on the fractions, ailing baby. Filling in the long hours during the day and night necessitated some ingenuity.

They first introduced Cushla to books when she was four months old. The baby was a totally captive audience, and reading a text gave her mother something constructive to do. When she was tested at thirty-five weeks, Cushla's language level was only three weeks behind that of the normal child, though in other areas she was greatly retarded.

In the next months, Cushla's interest in books increased. She began to recognize her favorite words and pictures. For the first time, she was able to respond to the world around her. When she was tested at three years, eight months, her intelligence was assessed as well above average; she was a happy personality, well liked by other children and able to join in many of their games. Her parents' patience, acceptance and love had borne fruit.

The influence of books had been crucial. CUSHLA AND HER BOOKS is a moving book of Cushla, the laughing, mischievous child, whose idea of complete happiness will always be a cuddle and a

ONE CHILD, By Torey L. Hayden, is a teacher's struggle to save a gifted and troubled child. When Sheila. at age six, injures an even smaller child, she is remanded by the courts to a state hospital. Awaiting a vacancy there, she is enrolled in Torey Hayden's class of retarded and handicapped preadolescents. Over the months, Torey and others come to that makes it hard to comrealize that this nearly autistic child is in fact exceptionally gifted-one with an IQ of a genius.

It becomes apparent to them that placement in any sort of institution setting would be grossly inappropriate to the child's particular case. Torey and her friends fight in the courts, successfully, to have the ruling reversed and the child is kept in the family setting. ONE CHILD is a book that will make you cry and laugh at the differing perceptions of teacher, genius child, and her less fortunate peers as life swirls around them.

A DIFFERENCE IN THE FAMILY is written by Helen Featherstone, a professional educator and herself the mother of a seriously handicapped child. This book deals with such questions as, "How does the family cope with the constant fear, the bitter anger, the sense of guilt and personal inadequacy, and the terrible loneliness municate even with wellmeaning friends and relatives?" and "What happens to 'normal' brothers and sisters? From the time when a parent first suspects there is something wrong, through the often heartbreaking search for medical advice and help, to the final acceptance, emotional as well as practical, of disability, A DIFFERENCE IN THE FAMILY helps us to empathize, and therefore, to understand the conflicts a disabled child.

Other new books available this week at the library are THE RING, by Danielle Steel, ANSWER AS A MAN. by Taylor Caldwell. AMERICAN DREAMS: LOST AND FOUND, by Studs Terkel, and COSMOS, by Carl

OTHER LIBRARY EVENTS:

The library will close at 1 p.m. on Dec. 24, and will be closed Dec. 25 - 27 for the Christmas holidays. The library staff wants to wish everyone a very MERRY family experiences with a CHRISTMAS!

Void

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Newlyweds are so naive.

They deal with all the trivial stuff at the altar-like hanging in there through the big money, poverty, sickness, health and death.

What they should be dealing with is the stuff of which marriages either make it or fail. Whose house do we go to for Christmas dinner? Your parents' or mine?

We were lucky. My parents were very understanding. They said, "We don't care whose house you go to for Christmas dinner. We love you and we just want you to be happy. If it isn't our house, we'll be dead by New Year's."

My husband's parents were equally understanding. They said, "If you aren't here for Christmas, it's perfectly all right. We'll just assume you hated the end tables and the lamps we bought you for a wedding present and you never want to see us again."

When I was married, I weighed 113 pounds. On my first wedding anniversary, I checked in at 132.

"What's the matter with you?" asked my husband. "I didn't know you were an inflatable."

"Don't be cute," I said. "You'd put on weight too if you were eating for four."

"Four!" he gasped.

"That's right. Your parents and mine."

Most people don't realize it but this little bit of married-life drama was the basis for most of our TV game shows.

The idea for the game of "Concentration" was originated by a couple in Waterloo, Iowa, who decided to go to his mother's for Christmas. That meant her mother got to select three holidays from her "win" column. She chose Thanksgiving, Easter and Mother's Day.

"Jeopardy" was a spinoff of a game played by a couple in Austin, Tex. The wife was given three seconds to name which in-law she was to spend Valentine's Day with, guessed wrong, and was cut out of the will.

The first couple to ask, "Guess who's NOT coming to dinner?" was the basis for "Face the Music." And the first couple to say they were sick of playing musical in-laws and preferred to stay at home for the holidays gave birth to "To Tell the Truth."

The problem is still making game-show history. Last week. I heard of a daughter who called her mother to see what time she wanted her husband and their seven children to arrive for Christmas. Her mother said she thought "his' mother was stuck with them this year.

And that's how "Family Feud" was born.

Children Will Present Xmas Program Tonight

Children in the Immanuel Lutheran Church will present a program, "Christ is the heart of Christmas," to the community and congregation tonight at 7 p.m. at the church, located at Park and Ave. B.

"This program is to help the community return to the meaning of this season; which is celebrating the birth of Jesus Christ, whom many recognize as God and Savior. We will include a Christmas tree, to be planted later, as part of the program," Ed Brown, pastor, said.

After the program, there Hereford area.

will be a reception for new members of the congregation. According to Brown the group is one of the largest to join the church in many years.

New members completed a 16-week course, "God is for you," and a new series is scheduled to begin in January.

Following the reception, the Immanuel Youth Fellowship and several adults will participate in a hayride and will sing Christmas carols in the Hereford area.

By LOUISE WALKER County Extension Agent

What are your expectations for your children's future?

Perhaps they're dreams that your children will "do better" than you did - these are traditional dreams that most parents share.

At the same time, if you're feeling disillusioned because those dreams may seem harder and harder to achieve, remember that many other parents also share your disillusionment.

PARENTS 'ALL IN THE

SAME BOAT' There are reasons for these feelings-and there is a way to cope with them, so this may be an important time to understand why today's parents are almost "all in the same boat" and what they can do about it.

WORLD SQUELCHES

DREAMS In short, the changing world economic and political situation is playing havoc with most parents' dreams of a better life for their children, so parents' only hope is to "fight back" with "coping power."

For centuries, families in the United States have had the hope - and expectation that their children would "do better" than they did in life.

That is, they hoped their children would have a higher level of living or would be a few "rungs" higher on the socio-economic "ladder" than their parents were.

Today, however, many parents are beginning to realize that the assurance of upward mobility on the socioeconomic ladder can no longer be passed on from generation to generation.

Of course, the hope and desire of parents for this traditional dream coming true is still prevalent among many families, but the chances of it really happening are getting smaller every

As children find it more and more difficult to obtain employment and to maintain their current level of living, parents and children alike are experiencing disillusionment.

UNDERSTAND THE DREAM

To cope with today's situation, it's necessary to understand the dream, first.

When people suffer disillusionment, it's because they feel they haven't met their own expectations of themselves, or they "fell short of their dream."

It hardly ever seems possible to re-think the dream and even change it a bit. especially when it is such an important dream as one concerning their own children's future.

But all those factors are at work here.

As one would expect, on looking at this situation realistically, many parents live out their own dreams through their children. Whether or not these dreams and expectations are said aloud to the children, or not, they are still there and the children "sense" the expectations. Most children wish to please their parents, so they strive to meet parental expectations.

Of course, the traditional expectation that most parents have had - and often instilled in their children, is that the children should "do better" -- socially, economically, politically, or whatever -- than their parents.

And, naturally, when the children "do better," parents expect to enjoy the satisfaction of watching their children receive the rewards of "doing better."

But it seems as though everything has changed. Some people say that even the "ground rules" of life have changed.

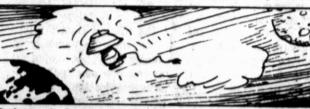

GROUND RULES' DIFFERENT

In fact, many people feel that the "ground rules" of life are different.

Local Music Students Included In University Research Program

CANYON - More than 80 students enrolled in the La Plata Junior High beginning band program are being tested with other Texas students as part of a research program with West Texas State University music department.

Dr. Harry Haines, pro-fessor and head of the WTSU music department of the School of Fine Arts, has received a $3,765 Organized Research Grant for the 1980-81 academic year to fund his research project. The project is titled "Teaching Rhythmic Reading in Texas Public School Beginning Wind Instrument Classes: A Comparison of Traditional Rehearsal Procedure and the Breath Rhythmic Impulse Serving the needs of people one at a time.

Students in six Texas contraction school districts have been involved in pretests since the research began in September and will participate in posttests before research is completed near May of 1981.

According to Randy Vaughn, Hereford High School Band Director, 80 to 90 students were tested at the La Plata Junior High in September.

"The students were tested by Breath Impulse and are now being taught from the book written by Dr. Haines. The students will again be tested in May, and I think we will see a difference in their performance," Vaughn explained.

"Also, the test will show where our teaching methods are weak and where they are strong," Vaughn said. More than 750 school children will be tested during the research. Other schools involved include Amarillo, Canyon, Pampa, San Antonio and Houston.

The Breath Impulse System of teaching was developed in the Norman, Okla., public schools in the 1950s by James A. Middleton and William C. Robinson.

In a paper presented to the 1975 Music Educators National Conference for the North Central and Southwest regions at Omaha, Neb., Haines explained the system, referred to as BRIM.

"The breath impulse idea can be easily comprehended when compared to the physical action of imitating a panting dog.' Essentially, it is just a sudden thrust of air emitted from the lungs by diaphragm."

Haines expects to prove that students taught the breath impulse method will be able to "respond with greater accuracy to the rhythmic element of music," be able to verbalize the rhythm through a counting system and exhibit superior sight-reading skills.

A pretest of the student participant group has been completed, said Haines.

Used in the pretest and post-test, explained Haines, is the Shader Rhythm Tap-Master which consists of a cassette tape recorder, head phones and a pre-recorded tape of music with varying rhythmic meter and tempo.

As they attempt to tap a telegraph key to the music, students are electronically scored.

The post-test for music sight-reading will be administered using the Watkins-Farnum Performance Scale which Haines said is the only published and standardized test of music sight-reading available for wind instruments.

Classes involved in taking the post-test will be compared at different schools during the spring semester.

The method Haines refers to as the "body-measuring mechanism" of counting musical note and rhythm patterns enables the student to solve his or her own rhythmic problems enhancing sightreading ability and developing "mature musicianship," said Haines.

The traditional rehearsal procedure involves verbal and oral counting of notes without noticeable involvement of the body.

Haines estimates that each child may complete the tests in 15 minutes. Blake Frere, a WTSU graduate student in music education from Seabrook, is assisting with the project by administering the tests.

Haines will use the data collected through the research project to document the use of BRIM which also is the subject of "Division of Beat-Band Method," a book he has co-authored with J.R. McEntyre, supervisor of music for the Ector County schools in Odessa.

"People are basically skeptical about new pedagogy," said Haines.

Dr. Gary Guyot, WTSU associate professor of psychology, will assist Haines in analyzing research data near the completion of the project.

Haines, who joined the WTSU music department in 1977, received a bachelor's degree in music from Oklahoma City University and a master's and doctorate in education from the University of Oklahoma.

He has written several articles and papers on the breath impulse teaching technique and is the coauthor of "The ASBDA (American School Band Directors Association) Curriculum Guide," published in cludes Hereford students. Dr. Harry Haines, head of the West Texas State University music department, is conducting the research. COLLEGE STATION --When adult children move back home, set up clear "ground rules" to make the transition easier, advises a family resource management specialist, Nancy Granovsky.

"Even written lists or minicontracts can go a long way in helping families adjust to these household changes," she says.

Economic pressures are the force behind many households doubling up, the specialist explains.

Three age groups seem most likely to make a move. Young adults or teenagers. 40-45-year-old singles (many of whom are recently divorced or legally separated) and Mrs. Granovsky is with the those 70 years or older. Rising rents and utility maintenance are blamed for this trend. Many young adults feel the economic pinch as they try to

Sugar Prices Expected to Rise Further in 1981

WASHINGTON -- The 1980-81 world sugar crop is now estimated at around 87 million metric tons (raw value). While this is almost 3 percent larger than 1979-80's 84.6 million tons, it will still fall short of global sugar consumption estimated at around 90 million. Thus, world sugar stocks are expected to fall about 3 million tons to around 21 million.

following a drop of more than 5 million in 1979-80. The stocks - to - consumption ratio for 1980-81 is estimated at 23 percent - the lowest since 1973-74 - implying continued upward pressure on sugar

Sugar prices are sharply higher this season. The world price exceeded 40 cents a pound (88 cents a kilogram) in early November, before sliding back to about 30 cents (66 cents a kg.) in early December. However, continued tightening of the world supply-demand balance can be expected to strengthen prices over the next several months. Prices could ease later in 1981, depending on prospects for 1981-82 world output and on how consumption responds to high sugar

U.S. raw sugar prices which closely follow world prices. averaged 42 cents a pound (92 cents a kg.) in October before declining to about 39 cents (86 cents a kg.) in November. Next year, even if 1981-82 world production and consumption come into approximate balance, the domestic raw price is still likely to average near 40 cents a pound (88 cents a kg.)

compared with about 32 cents (70 cents a kg.) for calendar 1980. However, if 1981-82 prospects indicate a further decline in world stocks, the U.S. raw sugar price would likely average near 50 cents a pound ($1.10 a kg.) This year, retail prices for refined sugar in the United States are likely to average 37 to 38 cents a pound (83 cents a kg.), up 50 percent from 1979. In 1981. retail prices may increase further, the extent depending on what happens to world and domestic raw sugar prices.

U.S. production of cane and beet sugar in crop year

1980-81 is expected to total nearly 5.7 million short tons (raw value; excluding Puerto Rico; equal to 5.2 million metric tons - MMT), up around 2 percent from 1979-80. The 1980-82 sugarbeet crop of nearly 23 million tons (20.8 MMT) is expected to produce about 3 million tons of sugar (raw value; 2.7 MMT) is up 4 percent from 1979-80. The 1980-81 sugarcane crop of 27.8 million tons (25.2 MMT) is up nearly 5 percent from last year; however, because of harvesting difficulties in Hawaii, it may yield only 2.7 million tons (2.4 MMT) of cane sugar - about the same as last season. The U.S. sugar industry does not now have the capacity to produce much more than 6 million short tons (5 MMT), and soonly moderate output increases can be expected to 1981-82 despite currently high sugarbeet and sugarcane prices. U.S. deliveries to domestic sugar users (including Hawaii) in calendar 1980 are expected to total around 10.4 million short tons (raw value; 9.4 MMT), down 3 percent from 1979. This implies that per capita consumption of refined sugar in 1980 will be around 87 pounds (39 kg.), down 4 percent from 1979. Sugar deliveries and per capita consumption are ex-

1981. The drop in deliveries is associated with continued increases in use of high fructose corn sirup (HFCS) plus indications of some consumer industrial-user resistance to the higher sugar prices.

U.S. sugar imports in calendar 1980 may total around 4.6 million short tons (raw value; 4.2 MMT), down a tenth from last year. In 1981, imports could increase nearly 10 percent, in part because of an estimated nearly 20 percent drop in U.S. stocks in 1980. With beginning stocks of around 3.0 million tons (2.7 MMT), slightly higher 1981 production, and slightly lower 1981 domestic use and exports, U.S. imports are estimated at 5.0 million tons (4.5 MMT). U.S. exports of sugar in 1980 are expected to reach at least 500,000 short tons (454,000 MMT), compared with only 18,000 (16,000 MMT) in 1979. Title 19 U.S. Code 1313 permits the "drawback", or refund, of duties and fees paid by U.S. imports of raw sugar when an equivalent amount of sugar is reexported. Sizable exports through October 1980 went to Peru, Mexico, Algeria, Egypt. Chile, Syria, and several other countries. Over 85 percent was refined sugar. The U.S. corn wet - million grind is expected to total around 500 million bushels (12.7 MMT) in 1981, moderately above the 1980 level: Corn sweetenes shipments for food use may total over 5 million tons (dry basis; 4.5 MMT) in calendar 1981, representing about a third of total caloric sweetener use. HFCS shipments could total around 2.5 million tons (dry basis; 2.3 MMT) neat year, up nearly 20 percent from 1980. Shipments of glucose corn sirup for food use will likely increase slightly from 1980's 2.05 million tons (dry basis; 1.9 MMT)

high in 1981, dextrose shipments for food use may reach 450,000 tons (dry basis; 408,000 MMT) - up nearly 6 percent from 1980. Corn sweetener prices rose sharply in 1980. They are expected to continue high in 1981, averaging above the 1980 level because of continued growth in use, high sugar prices, further rises in input costs, higher corn prices, and limited processing capacity.

Early prospects point to a record world cocoa crop of 1.63 million metric tons, up slightly from last year's high. World grindinas are forecast to be well below production levels, indicating another buildup in global stocks for the fourth straight season. Reflecting the increased supplies, cocoa bean prices fell to 97 cents a pound ($2.14 a kg.) in November - 30 percent below the January level.

U.S. Honey production in 1980 may total between 200 and 210 million pounds (91,000 to 95,000 metric tons), down about 15 percent from 1979 largely because of hot, dry weather this summer in the major producing States. With the world crop likely to fall short of consumption and with high sugar prices buttressing those for honey, prices are expected to remain

Legumes Gain In Popularity

Pasture growers throughout Texas are getting more and more interested in legumes each year-for some good higher quality forage than grass, says Dr. J.N. Pratt forage specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. This means that cattle on legume pastures have higher conception rates and higher weaning weights than cattle on grass pastures and wintered on grass hay. This results in more beef produced per cow and per acre.

Legumes also lengthen the grazing season, points out Pratt. Although planted in the fall, legumes can provide an additional six to eight weeks of high quality forage in late winter and early spring when good grazing is at a premium. Another plus for legumes is that they improve soil fertility and physical condition. Under good management, legumes can provide nitrogen for early season grass growth

In addition to providing high quality grazing, legumes can be harvested for top quality hay when excess First of all, legumes offer growth occurs in spring and early summer.

> Several legumes are adapted to various regions of Texas, notes Pratt. Vetch is a long-time favorite. It is adapted to many soil climatic conditions but lacks the volume of growth which other legumes can provide. Hubam and Madrid sweetclover are adapted to calcarious soils, generally west of Interstate 35. Yuchi arrowleaf clover is a new legume adapted to much of East and Central Texas. Subterranean clover is gaining in popularity and is adapted to bermudagrass pastures which are grazed closely.

Pasture producers interested in more information on how legumes perform in a certain area should contact their county Extension agent, suggests Pratt.

Houston Stock Show Scholarship Fund Gets $800,000 Endowment

estock Show and Rodeo has announced a donation of $800,000 to its endowed scholarship program and named the lineup of stars to appear at the 1981 Show, February 27 through March

"This endowment contribution we are announcing today quals the largest donation to education in our Show's history," said Show President Allen H. Carruth. "With the interest from the endowment, agricultural scholarship assistance will be provided to many deserving students who do not already benefit from our renown annual scholarship program."

Carruth noted that this is the third consecutive year that endowment gifts have been made. "Our total endoment now totals $1.95 million and is divided among twelve Texas universities. Coupled with our annual scholarship program, which now serves more than 390 students at a commitment of $2.1 million, the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo continues to be the largest supporter of agricultural scholarships in the world."

Carruth added that these one-time gifts are totally dependent on the success of each year's Show. "We are fortunate that the rodeo continues to be tops in family entertainment and merits the Crystal Gayle returns for both matinee and evening performances. One of the most beautiful and talented of all singers, Crystal Gayle will be singing the hit songs that have made her the favorite of both country and pop music fans, "Don't It Make My Brown Eyes Blue," "When I Dream," and "Take It Easy." Starring at the evening performance Monday night, March 2, is The Charlie Daniels Band. This is the hottest group in country music today, with their new song, "America," and their Song of the Year, "The Devil Went Down to Georgia." Their special brand of down-home, good-time music is sure to please rodeo fans.

Appearing at the Tuesday evening, March 3, performance are The Oak Ridge Boys, who set the Astrodome on fire in their last appearance here in 1979. They've only gotten better in the last two years, adding hit after hit to their list of top songs - "Heart of Mine," "Sail Away" and "Leavin' Louisiana in the Broad

Thursday evening, March 5, marks the return of Larry Gatlin and The Gatlin Brothers Band. This group was such a hit last year that fans demanded to have them back. Native Texas, the Gatlin Brothers are taking the music world by storm with their string of consecutive hit songs - "We're Number One," "All The Gold in California," "I Wish You Were Someone I Love."

Dolly Parton takes over the Astrodome for three big performances, the evening performance on Friday, March 6, and the matinee and evening performances on Saturday, March 7. She is undoubtedly the hottest star in the music and film industries today. One of the true superstars of country music, Dolly Parton has taken over the pop charts and is destined for movie stardom with the

WACO - Gaining insight in- Farmers Union who will gather in Dallas January

The 320 delegates to the 77th annual convention will be equally concerned, however, with the internal members of the Texas question of choosing a successor to TFU President Jay Naman of Waco who, after leading the organization for nineteen years, has stated he will not be a candidate for reelection.

With two announced candidates actively campaigning for the top post, combined with the usual surge of interest that preceeds a national farm program debate, Texas Farmers Union officials predict heavy turnout for the January convention.

Dr. Ronald Knutson, a policy economist from Texas A&M who was tapped by the Reagan agricultural transition team to serve as a chief adviser, will likely encounter some "demanding questions" when he addresses the TFU meet, according to Butler.

"All of the anger and frustration of farmers over the Carter Administration's disappointing farm policies have translated into a restless impatience in the farm sector," Butler commented. "There's a great expectancy that Reagan will bring about significant change, and there'll be a big uproar if he turns the USDA over to white-collar agribusinessmen and big-dollar commodity tradesmen."

Wheat Market Development Programs Considered

AMARILLO - U.S. Wheat Associates, the Texas and U.S. producers foreign market development held its annual winter directors meeting in Texas December 14-17, according to Leo Witkowski, Chairman of the Texas Wheat Producers Board. The session was held in Houston at the Marriott-Brookhollow, where the Texas Board will act as host organization to the national group and invited farm organization, grain industry and government officials.

"The principal objective of the session, according to Bill Nelson, Executive Vice President of the host organization and responsible for the meeting arrangements," was to develop action programs that might lead to achieving a level of exports necessary for the wheat producer to have markets commencerate with his ability to produce and to receive a price equal to his cost of production plus a fair earned profit." Larry Montgomery,

Washington, D.C., President of U.S. Wheat Associates, in-

Food For Thought

By GERALD McCATHERN Bernard Baruch, noted 'park-bench financier' of the 1920's, was commissioned by a farm group to study the economic situation then existing in agriculture and to report his analysis of why agriculture seemed to always be in economic trouble.

Mr. Baruch's observation was this, "Farming is uneconomic and inefficient because the farmer can't adjust his production to meet market conditions the way a factory can, and the farmer is always at the mercy of nature. Agriculture's problems are compounded by its organization, or rather its lack of organization. The individual farmer cannot compete with the disposing end of agriculture, and every sale the farmer makes is a forced sale; he has to take whatever is offered."

A profound unbiased statement by a self-made businessman and multi- The number of cattle being millionaire who has never farmed a day in his life. Those within the government who are responsible for making policy which affects agriculture would do well to study that statement by Mr. Baruch before making decisions in trying to solve the many varied problems which exist within the production end of agriculture.

Mr. Baruch recognized that the industry of agriculture has unique problems which do not exist in other industries, not the least of which is its lack of organization in disposing of its finished product. Specifically, agriculture is composed of nearly three million producers (sellers) and only a handful of buyers, resulting in a buyers market. Because each producer is an individualist, unable or refusing to cooperate with his fellow producers in a marketing organization, buyers are able to control the pricir. g mechanism of his pro-

In this day of computers and sophisticated communications technology, it is fairly easy and accurate to estimate anticipated demand twelve months in advance. However, it is impossible to estimate production accurately because of the whims of nature. If nature cooperates and a bumper crop is produced, the excess supply invariably destroys the price. If drouth, early freeze, or floods adversely affects production, the price may be better, but with less production the farmer still suffers. As Mr. Baruch observed, the production end of agriculture cannot be turned on and off, once a crop is committed by planting the seed, the end result is left up to nature. Whereas, factories can be speeded up or slowed down, or even in some instances, completly stopped if it appears that production is going to exceed demand.

"Every sale is a forced sale! He has to take whatever is offered!" It has been estimated that over 80 percent of production expenses in agriculture are borrowed funds. As we have stated before, notes are written due and payable immediately following harvest. Consequently, no matter what the price, farmers are forced to sell in order to meet their financial obligations. The purpose of the government loan program is to help farmers with this problem, however, the loan level has been established at levels below production costs, making it virtually impossible for farmers to use.

As the next legislative session begins, and new farm legislation is considered, answers to these problems must be found if agriculture is to take its rightful place in helping to solve our nation's economic problems.

WASHINGTON (AP) fed for the slaughter market on Dec. 1 in seven major beef states totaled 7.96 million head, 4 percent fewer than a year ago.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - Do you or any of the readers know what one can do to soften leather? - AN IDAHO READER DEAR READER — A commercial leather dressing may be purchased to use for keeping leather soft and pliable. Follow directions given on the package. A high-grade petroleum jelly is sometimes recommended. Rub it in with a soft cloth. Another suggestion is a mixture of half castor oil and half neat's foot oil applied with a soft cloth and rubbed in gently. Some leathers will change somewhat in color so try in an inconspicuous spot first. Remember leather should be kept away from heat to keep it soft. —

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is with greeting card companies for not meeting a great need for cards with messages that are appropriate for those with terminal illnesses. The phrases "Good As New", "Perfect Health" etc. are not fitting when both the sender and the receiver know this will not happen. — MRS.

DEAR POLLY - When planning a shower for someone buy a package of "Thank You" cards and at the shower pass the envelopes out - one to each guest. Ask the guests to address the envelopes to themselves so the honored guest will have everyone's correct address as well as a time saver when writing notes. Also, one of these addressed envelopes may be drawn for the door

DEAR POLLY - I think I have a good system for baking cookies and not having any burned ones. Most recipes say the baking time is from 8 to 10 minutes. I set my timer for 4 or 5 minutes and put a cookie sheet on the bottom shelf of the oven. When the timer rings I put that cookie sheet on the top shelf and put another one on the bottom. When that five minutes ends and the timer goes off the sheet on the top shelf is removed, the one on the bottom moved to the top and another one put on the bottom. -

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was a phappy to see your column manic depressions. I was back in our home. I felt like a so happy to see your column on manic depressions. I was hospitalized for nine weeks due to manic depression. I was very fortunate that my children realized I needed professional help or I might have ended my life or had it ended for me. I was put on lithium and luckily I didn't have too many side effects. The doctors took me off lithium eight months ago and I have been doing fine and was released from thera-py two months ago. I wish everyone knew there is such great help available. When I was initially in a deep depression the doctors put me on Elavil and it brought me out of that.

I had many family prob-lems with an alcoholic husband whom I worshipped and we raised six sons. Much of dirty dishrag tossed aside after having been used to the maximum. So I got busy, went back to work and got a place and soon had my two youngest children back. As a result of my treatment, as I got better I never had any more headaches. I stopped having the arthritis pains in my back I used to suf-fer from. I used to have severe stomach pains when I was upset and colitis but all that has disappeared. Even my fingernails zrew longer. And I sleep soundly with no dreams. Novelty Items Also Important in Farm Exports

WASHINGTON (AP) - No one can predict with a straight face that sales of queen bees to Mexico or rab-bit skins to Taiwan will some day overshadow wheat, corn and soybeans at the top of the huge U.S. farm export list.

But those items - and many others even more exotic - are important to American producers and others who share in the huge world market where U.S. agricultural products

Farm exports are expected to rise to about $48.5 billion in the year that began Oct. 1, up 20 percent from $40.5 billion in 1978-80 and, for the 12th consecutive year, another

Grain and grain products, and oilseeds, mostly soybeans, and their products are expected to account for about $36.4 billion or 75 percent of this year's total export value.

In terms of quantity, those products - grains and oilseeds - will total around 136.9 million metric tons, more than 80 percent of the projected record of 170.5 million metric tons that will be exported in 1980-81.

But U.S. export growth, while based on the big grain and oilseed crops, also includes cotton, rice, tobacco, sunflowers, fruit, vegetables and many other crops.

And when it comes to being even more specific - such as an inquiry recently from Mexico asking about buying queen bees — the Agriculture Department regularly publishes scores of trade leads or tips from prospective foreign buyers.

In some cases, the information published by the Export Trade Services Division of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service includes outright offers to buy certain

On Monday, as an example, the agency's regular report noted that Egypt wants to buy frozen beef at the rate of 5,000 metric tons a month - a metric ton is about 2,205 pounds - and specified that it must have been slaughtered "according to Islamic rites."

Another item said a buyer in Australia wants 400 bags -50 pounds each - of uncooked pistachio nuts. And another in England is interested in beef. pigs feet, edible oils, rice and sugar on behalf of some of its clients in the Middle East and West Africa.

In Sweden, a buyer is interested in getting "canned or otherwise ready-packaged but not frozen" Mexican-style food and corn flour.

Looking at other recent 'export briefs" published by the agency, a firm in New Zealand "wants health food items, including nuts, edible seeds, dried fruit, rice (and) wheat gluten" and plans to establish "a chain of bulk health food outlets shortly in New Zealand." And a buyer in England asked quotations on - living "mealworms, specimens intended for bird food" with deliveries every two weeks or monthly.

Soybean Association Announces Competition

ST. LOUIS -- Soybean grower members of the American Soybean Association (ASA) can earn an expense paid trip to Mexico by participating in the 1981 ASA-Mobay Membership Contest. The contest, recognizing top membership recruiters, is sponsored by Mohay Chemical Corp., makers of Sencor. Winners will participate in an expense paid market development study mission to Mexico where they will visit major ASA market development projects. "The contest runs from October 1, 1980 through May 31, 1981," says B.B. Spratling Jr., a soybean producer from Roba, Alabama, and ASA vice president of membership. Eleven (11) expense paid trips for two to Mexico will be awarded to contest winners and spouses to spend five days in Mexico. The market development study mission will leave St. Louis. Missouri, at the conclusion of the 1981 ASA National Convention on August 4 and will return to St. Louis August 8.

The expense paid trip will be awarded to the top soybean grower volunteer salesman and spouse from each of the ten ASA field service regions. In addition, one trip will be awarded to a new member and spouse selected by drawing from names of all new members joining from the ten regions during the contest period.

Bergland said this year's poor weather and reduced crop made it unnecessary to have acreage restraints next Bergland said the program acreage may be revised later, however.

Also, he said, the target price for 1981 cotton will be announced next spring, when production cost figures are available on this year's crop. But it is likely to be between 68.5 cents and 75.5 cents a pound, compared to 58.4 cents for 1980 cotton.

The target price is a bookkeeping figure used to compute government payments to farmers when those are made during years of depressed market prices.

In School Lunch Programs WASHINGTON (AP) - If a new test by the Agriculture Department is favorable, millions of school children could be munching on government-donated hamburgers made partly from soybeans in another year or

The soyburgers will be included in an experiment in three northeastern states later this winter to see if the high costs of beef can be reduced in the USDA's school lunch program.

Officials said the ground beef, with soy extender added, will be distributed to an unspecified number of school cafeterias in Vermont, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania.

Assistant Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the department will begin buying frozen ground beef mixed with soy protein next month "to test the product's acceptability for use" in the government's school lunch program.

"If ground beef with soy added is acceptable for school lunches, it could lead to substantial savings for the program," she said.

A spokesman for the National Cattlemen's Association said producers prefer allbeef products in government purchases but that in these times of high prices, some might go along with the move if it saves some money. No estimate of saving was available, however, Linda Greider, a spokeswoman for the department's Food Safety and Quality Service, said people closest to the program 'absolutely refused" to discuss price details.

One reason for the refusal is that the agency buys food for donation under a bidding system and does not want to tip its hand on the kind of prices that it has in mind.

Ms. Greider said, however, that the Defense Department reportedly has been able to save around 20 cents a pound by buying ground meat with soy added. The material also is called "textured vegetable protein," or TVP.

Although department officials have talked about using TVP as a meat extender in the school lunch program, Ms. Greider said the threestate test will be the first time the soy product actually has been used.

The Agriculture Department most recently has been paying close to $1.30 a pound for wholesale quantities of ground beef destined for school lunch programs as hamburgers, meat loaves and other dishes.

Under the plan, the meatsoy product would contain 80 percent ground beef - required by law to come from U.S. cattle - and 20 percent soy protein.

A total of 115,500 pounds of the product will be bought initially. Each of the three states will get 38,500 pounds for use in the schools selected

Frank Arney of the National Cattlemen's Association's headquarters in Denver, Colo., said in a telephone interview, "Naturally, we'd much rather have them serve allbeef than have them serve

But, he added, if soy mixed with hamburger saves money, "that's kind of difficult to argue against as a taxpayer."

Arney added, "There are some of our own people, very frankly, who feel that

..(with) mixing in a little TVP with it, soy protein is cheaper.'

At least, he said, the product "keeps people accustomed to eating beef" and not some outright substitute such as pork or poultry. The latter, incidentally, also are bought by the USDA for donation to schools.

Arney said he thinks TVP 'still has some problems as far as taste is concerned."

"I would question whether the kids are going to accept it," he said.

Future Looks Bright For Broiler Producers

WASHINGTON (AP) -When it comes to keeping an eye on what the other fellow is doing, probably no part of agriculture takes a back seat to the poultry industry.

It is vital for producers to understand what is going on with grain supplies and prices, competing items such as pork and beef, and how the consumer economy is doing.

The Agriculture Deparment's latest "Poultry and Egg Situation" report, issued Tuesday, illustrates the tremendous overlap of interests that all farmers have in today's complex world of economics, production and

For openers, the report sets the scene by recounting what department economists have been saying for some time: Total red meat supplies mainly beef and pork - probably will be smaller in 1981 than they were in 1980. Most of the decline will be in pork output. And that will mean higher prices as the supply shrinks. And grain and soybean production was down this year because of bad weather. That will mean higher production costs for livestock and poultry producers.

Even so, the future looks fairly bright for broiler producers, according to the report.

"Broiler production in 1981 will be up from 1980's record output because producers made profits in the third quarter of this year and prospects appear mostly favorable for 1981," it said. "Continued contraction of pork supplies and growth in consumer incomes are expected to contribute to broiler prices averaging higher than this year. However, costs will be much higher in 1981."

In all, the report said broiler output could increase by 6 percent over 1980.

"With further declines in red meat production and with strengthening consumer incomes, profits should return in the second half of 1981," it

Egg production, however, may decline somewhat from 1980, the report said.

"The laying flock in early 1981 will be relatively older year and may push total 1981 output to near this year's level, the report added. "Prices (of eggs) will likely the first half by reduced pro-than in early 1980 and so the rate of lay may not increase as much, and the impact of rising feed costs may not be reduced by rising productivi-

But egg production is expected to pick up later next duction and in the second half by strong prices of competing high-protein foods," it said. Turkey production is expected to increase again in 1981, probably by about 6 percent from this year's record

Russian Harvest Estimate Same

WASHINGTON (AP) -The latest Agriculture Department estimate of the Soviet Union's 1980 grain harvest is 185 million metric tons, unchanged from last month.

Poor weather has once again shriveled Soviet grain production. This year's estimated output would be 21.3 percent below Moscow's plan target for 1980 and not much more than 1979's reduced harvest of 179.2 million metric tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and, for example, is equal to 36 7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

"Although Soviet officials have not published a preliminary figure for total 1980 grain output, press reports from the USSR's three major grain-producing regions suggest a crop that will not be significantly higher than last year's drought-ravaged harvest,"

Looking at global harvests, the department said total world grain output in 1980-81 is estimated at about 1.53 billion metric tons, up slightly from prospects a month officials said Wednesday.
