Local elections Saturday

Deaf Smith County voters will go to the polls Saturday to cast ballots in school hospital board elections, but the City of Hereford will not be holding its usual city commission election.

Officials are predicting a tight voter turnout for the Hereford School Board election, since there is no contested race. Only 14 absentee ballots were cast. No absentee votes were recorded for the Deaf Smith County Hospital District election, where four candidates are seeking three seats.

The Walcott School District is drawing much interest in the western part of the county where six candidates are seeking election to the three at-large seats.

The polling place for the Hereford school board election and the hospital board race will be at the Community Center. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Walcott school will be the polling place for that district election.

Except city commission

Three incumbents and one challenger are seeking the three seats on the hospital board. Incumbents Frank Zinser, Margie Ford and John Gilliland are seeking reelection, and Max Maes is the other candidate in that race. The top three vote getters will be elected.

Two seats on the Hereford School Board are up for election and there are only two candidates. Kathy Moore filed for the Place 4 post and Shirley Wilson is the candidate for Place 5. The incumbents did not seek reelection.

The Walcott School District is expecting heavy voting in its school board race Saturday. Six candidates are running for the three at-large posts to be decided by voters in that district.

The candidates include incumbents Ernest Brown and Cecil Blasingame and Dennis Brown, Art

Reinauer, Jim Bob Perrin, and Dan Hall.

A check with County Clerk David Ruland's office revealed that there are 9,843 registered voters in the county. He reported that 1,286 voter registration cards have been returned on residents who have moved or who have changed addresses within the county. They will have until August to contact the clerk's office to get corrected cards, or the voter registration will be cancelled.

The city is awaiting approval from the Justice Department on a new voting district plan which includes some single-member districts. City Manager Darwin McGill said the city hopes to hold the election no later than July, but there has been no indication as to when the plan will receive final approval.

White House wants position on border raid clarified

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The Reagan administration is pressing the government of Honduras to clarify statements by a Honduran official that minimized the dangers of the recent border raid by Nicaraguan troops.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Thursday that the statements by an unidentified senior official of the Honduran government were not true.

The Honduran official, quoted by reporters from the New York Times and the Miami Herald, contended that the United States pressured Honduras to accept emergency U.S.

military aid and exaggerated the numbers of Nicaraguan troops who crossed into the neighboring Central American country.

"Those statements are a surprise to us," said Speakes. "We have asked the government of Honduras for a clarification."

"We note that the government of Honduras initiated at its highest levels the first discussions of this serious threat of impending Nicaraguan attack on Honduras and of a possible Honduran need for emergency U.S. assistance."

Nicaragua has described its cross-border raid as a punitive action against anti-government rebels known as Contras.

The Honduran official whose statements sparked the demand for clarification from the White House said the Nicaraguan raid was similar to many cross-border incursions of Sandinista troops pursuing the U.S.-backed Contras.

The official estimated the Nicaraguan troop strength at about 800 men while the White House has insisted that at least 1,500 Sandinista soldiers violated the Honduran border.

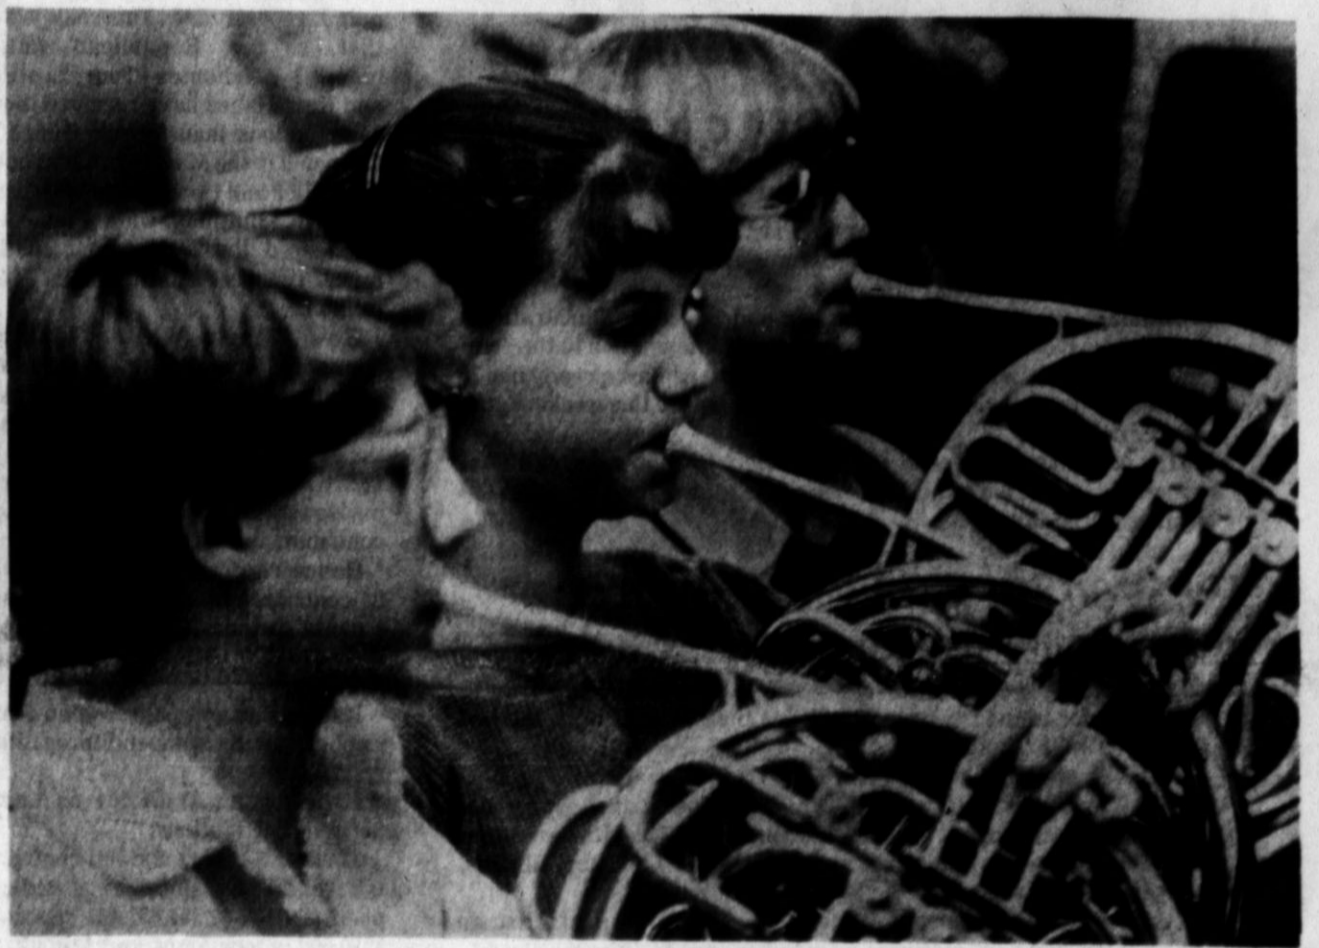

"The U.S. neither exaggerated the extent of the Nicaraguan incursion nor pressured the government of Honduras to request U.S. emergency military assistance," Speakes told reporters.

"Our position continues to be substantiated by the evidence, including statements by the government of Nicaragua," Speakes declared, insisting that the correct number of troops involved in the raid was 1,500 "if not more."

During the briefing for reporters covering the president's vacation at his mountain-top ranch near here, Speakes was interrupted by about 20 protesters who demanded that he "tell the truth" about U.S. policy in Central America.

Chanting "Stop the lies! Stop the lies!" the group paraded into the hotel conference room. Several demonstrators had smeared themselves with a red substance to simulate blood.

Speakes made several attempts to answer the protesters' questions about U.S. policy in the troubled region, but he was shouted down several times. After he asked them to leave, they departed peacefully.

Texas Democrat calls for cooperation on promoting exports

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The United States and Mexico should cooperate to promote exports from "twin-plant" industries to other parts of the world, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said during a visit to Mexico.

"What we are seeking are these kinds of deals that are mutually advantageous," Bentsen said at a news conference at the U.S. Embassy here Thursday. He said the industries in the border zones should concentrate on expanding exports to Europe, Asia and other parts of the developing world.

"I think that we can work together ... to assist in that regard," the senator said.

The "twin plants," also known as "maquiladoras," assemble goods from raw materials or parts brought into Mexico under special duty-free regulations for assembly here. Most of the finished products then are exported, the majority to the United States.

"It is important that the products of the maquiladoras not be sold only in the United States," Bentsen said, adding that he presented his views to President Miguel de la Madrid earlier in the day.

The industries have become one of Mexico's major sources of foreign exchange.

Bentsen, who noted that he was "born and reared on the Mexican border" in Texas' Rio Grande Valley, said the main purpose of his

State jobless rate down

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' unemployment rate edged downward by .3 percent in March to 8.1 percent, but officials of the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics warned today that the state may see higher jobless rates in coming months.

The slight drop followed a huge two-point jump from January to February, as Texas was buffeted by the effects of sharply lower oil prices.

Labor Statistics Regional Commissioner Bryan Richey said that because of sampling variations from month to month, the bureau pays more attention to quarterly figures.

Texas unemployment for the first three months of 1986 averaged 7.6 percent.

The March unemployment rate of 8.1 percent compares with a 6.9 percent figure in March a year ago, Richey said.

"The data shows us quite clearly that the Texas economy is continuing to experience a number of problems," Richey said. He noted that the quarterly average has increased in each period since the first quarter of 1985.

The government figures released today showed fewer Texans were looking for work in March — 646,000 compared with 671,000 in February. Total employment in Texas rose to 7,357,000 from 7,319,000.

Figures for the 12-month period ending in February show a loss of about 40,000 jobs in oil and gas extraction, refining and oilfield machinery and equipment, Richey said.

However, Richey said "a lot of the layoffs that have recently been announced are not reflected in the March data."

Furloughs announced this week probably won't show up until the May jobless figures are compiled, he said.

Richey said the figures followed the pattern set in recent months.

"Those (industries) that are declining — mining and manufacturing — have declined substantially more in this state than they have for the U.S. as a whole," he said.

At the same time, Texas businesses that have grown "have increased significantly less than the same industries nationwide."

Richey said Texas employment during the last year grew by 1.8 percent, compared to nationwide growth of 3.1 percent.

Dismissal motion denied for Taylor

AMARILLO — A dismissal motion has been denied in the case of a Dallas financier indicted here in federal court on charges he defrauded a Hereford savings and loan of millions of dollars.

U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson has denied a motion to dismiss the case of W.W. "Doc" Taylor, 59, who was indicted Jan. 8 in Amarillo along with a former president of Hi-Plains S&L on charges they defrauded the association of $3.7 million through the use of wire transfers.

Taylor had filed a host of pre-trial motions, which included a motion to dismiss the case and a motion to move the trial to the Southern District of Texas in Houston.

Judge Robinson Tuesday denied both those motions but approved several other defense motions. As a result of her orders, prosecutors will have to disclose impeaching information regarding convictions and threats of future prosecution or investigations against the witnesses in the trial by April 11.

The judge also ordered that prosecutors must identify acts of conspiracy, embezzlement or misapplications of funds that are not charged in Taylor's indictment but may be used in evidence in the trial. Deadline for prosecutors to disclose that information is May 9.

James Gentry, former Hereford resident, is accused along with Taylor of taking the money out of Hi-Plains between December 1982 and February 1983.

At least one killed in flood

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Authorities were still unsure early today if others were lost in a flood in the Denison-Sherman area that killed at least one person, washed cars down streams and led to the evacuation of homes in low-lying areas.

An 84-year-old man drowned near his home after creek waters rose rapidly and caught residents off guard, said Capt. T.O. Gilbert of the Sherman Police Department.

The National Weather Service said 5 to 7 inches of rain fell in two hours Thursday night, although there were higher estimates.

Gilbert said there were conflicting reports about a woman missing in one car late Thursday night after waters rose in the Sand Creek and Post Oak Creek in the western part of the city, which is near the Oklahoma line.

"We evacuated a lot of people. A lot of automobiles were lost, a lot of apartments," Gilbert said.

Large sections of Central and North Central Texas were under a tornado watch most of Thursday. Heavy thunderstorm activity was reported along a line from west of Fort Worth to South Central Oklahoma, the weather service said.

Other showers and thunderstorms dotted the Panhandle, Central and South Central, and East Texas.

"It's the worst I've ever seen in my life," said Michael Tarzis of Sherman, an Associated Press staffer who said 11 inches of rain fell in a two-hour span.

Utility lines were cut, cars were under water in parking lots and some people had to be rescued from a creek near his house with the use of a 100-foot electrical cord tied to a tree, Tarzis said.

"There's places that usually don't even get water close to them that are under water now. The water literally rose so fast that you couldn't get out," he said.

Shuttle hearings to wind down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Having endorsed an appeal by astronauts for new safety watchdogs inside NASA, the presidential Challenger commission has much of the data it needs and will soon wind down its public hearings.

"Much of the documentation and the reports from NASA are already in," a source close to the commission investigating the shuttle disaster said Thursday night.

Although the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's task forces have until April 18 to relay their information to the commission, one of the commission's four working groups already has 75 percent of its material and expects the rest before this weekend, the source said.

The commission's charter from President Reagan calls for a final report by June 3, but panel members hope to send their report to the printer in mid-May.

France, Italy made secret deals

LOS ANGELES (AP) — France and Italy made deals with Libya in the 1970s to give terrorists free passage through their countries in exchange for immunity from attacks on their own citizens, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

"The French had a deal with Libya and a deal with the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization)," the Times quoted an unidentified State Department official as saying. "Italy had its own deals. The French used to think that between the PLO and the Libyans, they had it all sewn up."

As a result, "the French would look at a guy, a known terrorist, as he went through their airports and not lift a finger," the official said.

A spokesman for Italy's embassy in Washington, Massimo Baistrocchi, denied that his government had ever entered into such a deal, while an unidentified official at France's embassy told the newspaper he could neither confirm nor deny the report of a deal.

Reagan Administration officials last year discovered the deals, which have since collapsed, the State Department official told the Times. The deals fell apart after Libyan-based terrorists bombed restaurants in Paris and attacked the Rome and Vienna airports last December, he said.

International

Libya accused in plane bombing

JERUSALEM (AP) — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin today accused Libya of encouraging the terrorists who planted a bomb aboard a TWA jet, and blamed European "permissiveness" for allowing terror groups freedom to operate.

Rabin said that "to the best of our knowledge" the attack was carried out by two rebel Palestinian groups: the Syrian-based Abu Mousa faction and the Abu Nidal group, which is believed to be sponsored by Syria and Libya.

Without providing further details, Rabin indicated that Israel believed Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy and perhaps Syria played a role: "there is no doubt in my mind that the attempt to blow up the TWA plane was in a way encouraged by Libya, maybe with another Arab country."

Addressing a group of U.S. fundraisers, he was sharply critical of Europe's failure to support President Reagan's economic boycott of Libya and the recent limited U.S. military action.

"Most of the European countries turned their backs to the United States even on the economic boycott," Rabin said, adding Europe should rein in its own terror groups.

"As long as permissiveness by some European countries vis-a-vis terrorism, as long as some European terrorist organizations will support Arab, Palestinian and Islamic terrorist organizations, Europe will continue to serve as an area from which terrorist acts will be originated," he said.

Woman may have planted bomb

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Police hunted today for a woman suspected of concealing under her plane seat the bomb that later ripped open a TWA jet and killed four Americans. An Egyptian official was quoted as saying she had been searched before boarding in Cairo.

Greek police sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, identified the woman sought in the attack on Wednesday's Trans World Airlines Flight 840 as May Elias Mansur. Earlier, officials had identified the suspect as a man.

The sources said they believe the woman may have concealed plastic explosives in the life preserver under seat 10F during a Cairo-to-Athens flight about eight hours before the Boeing 727, returning to Athens from Rome as Flight 840, was torn by the blast.

In Rome, the Italian news agency ANSA reported that passengers aboard the Cairo-to-Athens flight had told authorities the woman in seat 10F had kept her tray table down throughout the flight, and that investigators believed this was done to conceal her actions.

The TWA jet's pilot later told reporters the crew does not customarily check all life preservers between flights.

visit was to discuss trade issues.

He said he found in a meeting Wednesday night with a group of Mexican industrialists "a dramatic change" from previous attitudes about allowing freer trade in Mexico, modernizing to increase competitive ability in the international marketplace and understanding the need to attract foreign capital to Mexico.

"I was encouraged by that," Bentsen said.

Bentsen said he does not accept Mexican arguments that the United States maintains a protectionist stance toward imports from Mexico.

"There is no major country in the world that is more open to Mexican products than the United States," he said.

"Last year we took 71 percent of the exports of Mexico," he said. "Mexico is the third largest consumer of American products."

Bentsen was scheduled to leave Friday from Mexico City, making a stop in the northern industrial city of Monterrey to speak to the U.S.-Mexico Chamber of Commerce before returning to the United States.

Hance, Loeffler received most

AUSTIN (AP) — Political campaign reports due Thursday show that, so far, Republican gubernatorial candidates Tom Loeffler and Kent Hance have received more contributions than former Gov. Bill Clements in the May 3 primary race.

Loeffler and Hance have each raised about $3 million, while Clements, considered the front-runner in the race, reports raising about $1.2 million.

Gov. Mark White, leading Democrat candidate, submitted reports on four campaign committees showing $1,689,593 in contributions since Jan. 1 and expenditures of $2,214,256, but there was no comparison with previously reported contributions and expenses.

Hance reported raising $1,547,015 in contributions since Jan. 1. That amount includes $1,060,000 in loans, with $900,000 used to repay earlier loans.

Hance, former congressman from Lubbock, said his expenditures totaled $1,534,599.

Hance listed $1,076,504 as unexpended contributions. Loeffler's report showed contributions of $889,830 since Jan. 1 and expenditures of $1,194,652. He reported $250,000 in new loans and $260,000 in repayment of earlier loans.

Loeffler said his campaign had $438,558 available in unspent contributions.

Clements' campaign office reported he has raised $889,213 since Jan. 1, including $298,905 in loans.

Clements reported spending $922,344, leaving $146,568 in unexpended contributions.

White's report for the Gov. Mark White Committee showed $1,661,148 in contributions since Jan. 1 and expenditures of $879,800.

White's report for the Texas Committee showed contributions of $1,593 and expenditures of $1,215,965.

The Citizens for Mark White Committee showed $19,994 in contributions and $12,923 in expenses.

Women for White had $6,858 in contributions and $5,574 expenditures.

City finding ways to save money, but still improve

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Hereford City Manager Darwin McGill told the Hereford Lions Club recently that the city will be operating on a lower budget this fiscal year than they did last year, but in the matter of an election he could only estimate when it could be held.

McGill also said that the city will be forced this year to do some needed renovations to the streets and the incinerator on North Progressive. Also planned for the upcoming year will be the purchase of six new police cars, a new water well for the city and a traffic system for the intersection of U.S. 385 and 15th Street.

McGill added that the city has had the opportunity to save itself thousands of dollars by using the volunteer fire department instead of hiring a full time crew. City employees have also saved the city's funds by doing needed repair work themselves with existing equipment, rather than using outside sources, McGill said.

McGill has been serving as Hereford's city manager for a little over a year. He came to Hereford from Lewisville where he was a city manager there for eight years. Before moving to Lewisville, McGill was city manager for the city of Irving.

McGill told the Lions that the proposed Valley View plant could be started as early as May 1. Valley View is a Dallas based company which plans to build a manure-fired electrical generating plant near Hereford. McGill said that Valley View officials recently have been showing a great deal of interest in the Hereford area.

McGill also stated that the city has issued fewer building permits in the first four months of 1986 than they did in 1985, but the businesses that have been recently opened were issued permits in 1985. McGill said that he sees a solid growth pattern for Hereford. "It is encouraging to see new construction and businesses being opened," McGill said.

He closed by saying that the city has no way of pinpointing a date for the next city elections. Due to a recent lawsuit filed against the city, officials were forced to redistrict the voting lines. McGill said that the city may see an election as late as July. The election was first slated for April 5, but was delayed due to a class action suit against the city which called for a redistricting plan to include single member district representation instead of the at-large system. The plaintiffs claimed the current system discriminated against Hispanics.

The plan has been approved in U.S. District Court and passed on to the Justice Department for review.

Man has 'write stuff'

COMANCHE, Texas (AP) — Ollie Gandy has "the write stuff."

On the walls of his saw sharpening shop are about 4,000 pens and pencils he has collected over more than 50 years.

"I started saving them because I thought I'd give them to some kid," Gandy says. "No kid wanted them."

On one portion of the wall are 1,600 pens with no two alike. He has spelled out his name with pens. He has made a map of the state with pens. He has fashioned a star with pens. He has a row of pens around the room.

Still, he has more pens than he knows what to do with.

"I'll come up with something, perhaps I'll put another row under the ones on the wall."

At last count, he had 3,023 nailed up on the walls of his shop. He estimates he has 4,000 altogether.

His most unusual pen looks like a hypodermic needle, he says. Another one looks like a fork until the cap is taken off.

Others look like a nail, a bolt and nut, a small hammer and a tube of medicine. One is a combination pen and cigarette lighter, and a bent pen requests "Get me to a chiropractor."

The oldest pieces in his collection are pencils from about 1930. He also has several pens and staffs, which had to be dipped in inkwells to write.

His favorites are pens given to him by friends.

"When someone gives me a pen, I can't help but feel partial to it," he says. "People go to so much trouble to get it for me."

Gandy, 73, started the saw sharpening shop in 1982. The business is more of a hobby for him, he says. Some days will be busy, some won't, and during hunting season, he closes about noon.

He was born in Comanche County, and with the exception of two or three years in California, has lived here all his life.

Sesquicentennial artwork to be phone book cover

Southwestern Bell Telephone will begin distributing its 1986 Hereford directories today but the real news is the colorful Sesquicentennial cover.

The artwork selected for all Texas directories covers this year is Arlington artist Bill Hall's work, "Texas Retrospect 1836-1986." The art is an oil wash montage which captures the spirit of 150 years of rich Texas history.

It was selected as the cover art from more than 500 paintings entered in Southwestern Bell Telephone's Sesquicentennial Directory Cover Contest.

The painting, which will appear on the covers of nine million Southwestern Bell Telephone directories to be distributed throughout Texas in 1986, features illustrations of people, places and events that helped shape the 150-year history of Texas, including:

Sam Houston, hero of the Battle of San Jacinto and second president of the Texas Republic; Lyndon B. Johnson, 36th U.S. President; the Alamo, "The Shrine of Texas Liberty"; Lone Star, the Texas state flag; Kicking Bird, the Kiowa Indian who attempted to bring peace between the white man and the Indian; Henry O. Flipper, a Texas resident who was the first black to graduate from West Point; and Spindletop, the gusher near Beaumont that shot up in January 1901 marking the beginning of the modern petroleum industry.

Inside the directory this year are 44 white pages and 91 Yellow Pages including more than 7,000 listings.

"More than 6,268 directories will be distributed to customers from April 4, 1986 until April 11, 1986," said Gary Stevens, Manager-Community Relations for Southwestern Bell Telephone. "If your friend across town gets a directory before you receive yours, please be patient since all directories are not delivered the same day."

Emergency telephone numbers have been placed on the inside front cover of the new directory. In the "Customer Guide" at the front of the directory customers will find information on how to do business with Southwestern Bell Telephone.

The directory contains listings for Hereford.

LATTER-DAY SAINTS

Sessions of the General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints will be shown via satellite broadcast Saturday and Sunday at the Hereford chapel on Country Club Drive.

The world conference, originating from Salt Lake City, Utah, has four general sessions—11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. each day. The church's conferences are held the first weekends of April and October each year.

This weekend's conference will be presided over by the First Presidency of the church—President Ezra Taft Benson, and his counselors, President Gordon B. Hickley and President Thomas S. Monson.

Benson is conducting a general conference for the first time since he became church president in November, after the death of Spencer W. Kimball, who had served as church president since 1973.

President Pat Parker of the Hereford Branch of the church said visitors are welcome to watch the broadcasts of the conference.

FIRST UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

The four Sunday evenings in April will be devoted to studies on prayer, with classes for various age groups, in First United Methodist Church. The overall subject is Teach Me To Pray.

Anyone interested is invited to attend a class, from 6 to 7 p.m. Sunday and at the same time on the three following Sundays.

This is a new study series prepared by the United Methodist Church. Texts will be available for each age group. Classes for youth and children will include activities leading to an understanding and appreciation of personal prayer life.

Donna Ruland chairs the Education Work Area in First UMC, which is sponsoring the study. Corky Lockmiller will teach the adults.

Leaders for youth classes will be the youth fellowship counselors, Vicky and Dan Higgins, Rene and Mike Leavitt, Judy and Roger Williams, Sandra Fairweather and Mike Fields. Helen Langley and Elaine Calkins will teach elementary classes, Jeanine Avery the nursery age group.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

This Sunday, Elder Mark Henslee of the Presbyterian Church of Dimmitt will bring the sermon for the regular morning worship service. Henslee will be entering the Master of Divinity program at Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary this fall.

The senior high youth fellowship will not meet this Sunday because the seniors will be returning from a Christian growth seminar in Dallas.

The junior highs are going to the WTSU activities center Sunday evening. Any junior high student interested in going needs to contact Marc or Camille Williamson by 4 p.m. Sunday.

The deacons will meet at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the small fellowship hall.

The adult fellowship will sponsor a "Road Rally" at 6 p.m. Saturday beginning at the church. See Lynn Gowdy for details.

WESTGATE RECEIVES SUPERIOR RATING

"No licensure violations were written on this visit" is a direct quote from the report issued by the Texas Department of Health resulting from its March 18, 1986 inspection of Westgate Nursing Home, 400 Ranger Drive, Hereford, Texas. "Yesterday on patient rounds, we found all the patients to be receiving excellent care" was a statement made by Mary Latham, R.N., a surveyor with the Texas Department of Health.

Westgate Nursing Home has been in operation since 1964. Westgate is a part of King's Manor, a retirement home sponsored by the Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Church. Since the grading system was implemented by the Texas Health Department, Westgate Nursing Home has consistently received notice that it is a "Superior Facility". As required by the State Health Department, this notice is posted in our front lobby.

Our home has both Medicaid and private pay residents. We accept short stay and long term residents. Rooms are available at this time and visitors are always welcome.

County setting real estate foreclosure record

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of real estate foreclosures so far this year has surpassed last year's record-setting record by 74 percent, with single-family residences making up the bulk of foreclosures, newly released figures indicate.

"We're also running at a record pace on the posting of property to be foreclosed on the lenders or sellers," said Ralph Murdock, who compiles figures based on auctions of foreclosed property held the first Tuesday of every month in Houston.

"Total postings for the four monthly auctions held so far this year are up 61 percent from 7,780 in 1985 to 12,524 in 1986," he said Wednesday. "And total postings for the full year increased by 68 percent from 17,936 in 1984 to a new high of 30,109 in 1985."

The latest statistics, released by Murdock, a real estate researcher who operates Foreclosure Listing Service, shows that foreclosures for the period from early January through April are up 74 percent from 4,108 in 1985 to 7,158 in 1986.

The 1985 foreclosure total hit a new high, jumping 84 percent from 9,023 in 1984 to 16,571 in 1985.

Officials at Mainland Savings posted Houston real estate valued at more than $106 million for foreclosure this month.

Single-family houses account for 85 percent of the foreclosures completed in Houston, but apartment and office buildings, shopping centers, hotels, warehouses and other commercial properties also are included, Murdock said.

"The May auction is likely to set a new record for the total number of completed foreclosures," Murdock predicted. "The trustees in charge of the foreclosures say the postings are probably going to reach a new high this month."

Trustees noted that the foreclosures are due primarily to a sagging economy and other problems caused by the slump in the oil business.

Pat O'Connor, owner of O'Connor & Associates, a Houston brokerage and research agency, said a study shows that many commercial and residential properties are being auctioned for as little as a third or fourth of the amount due the lenders and sellers.

"Institutional investors and some foreign investors are finding bargain prices on repossessed investment and income property in Houston," he said. "They think the city is going to come back. And almost nobody thinks the city is down and out for good."

WHITNEY WORKS TO TRAVEL

FLINT, Mich. (AP) — "Representing America, 1900-1940," an exhibition of 39 paintings from the collection of the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York has been organized for the Flint Institute of Arts.

It will be on view April 27-June 15. The exhibition spans the first four decades of the 20th century with the earliest representations by Arthur B. Davies, Marsden Hartley, Robert Henri, and Everett Shinn; the most recent by Thomas Hart Benton, Philip Evergood and Bradley Walker Tomlin.

ARTS GRANTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Operamusical Theater Program of the National Endowment for the Arts recently announced a total of $5,952,880 was awarded in 172 grants to support opera and musical theater throughout the country during the current performance season.

Frank Hodson, endowment chairman, said, "The strength and vitality of the field of music theater in America, from opera to the most experimental forms of musical theater, is amply demonstrated by the diversity and distinctive high quality of the programs and projects funded by these grants."

10 years after his death

Howard Hughes still an enigma

HOUSTON (AP) — Ten years after his death, billionaire Howard Hughes still attracts the attention he so desperately tried to avoid in life.

A few regulars frequent the Houston cemetery site where Hughes is buried next to his parents, and curious visitors still seek directions to it, a Glenwood Cemetery caretaker said.

Relatives have refurbished the once humble gravesite, erecting an elegant concrete wall graced with six black trumpets. Flowers, including a paper cup filled with daisies and red carnations, rest on the simple marker.

A decade ago Saturday, a private jet carrying Hughes' 94-pound body flew from his Mexican seaside hideaway to Houston, where he was born. The Hollywood playboy-turned-recluse died that day of kidney failure at age 70.

Hughes, known for his exploits as a filmmaker, pilot and financial wizard, was buried two days later in a brief Episcopal ceremony. He left a legacy of money, adventure and glamorous women, but apparently no will.

The case of Hughes' millions fell to Houston Probate Judge Pat Gregory, who said more than 500 people have claimed to be related to Hughes and entitled to his money.

A worldwide search failed to produce a legitimate will, and in November 1981, Gregory declared an aunt and 21 cousins heirs to the Hughes fortune, estimated to be worth up to $2 billion when he died.

"We still get our regular complement of people who purport to be related to Mr. Hughes or an heir," Gregory said.

"I even met Howard Hughes himself," he said, explaining that a young, black man came to his office saying he was Hughes.

One woman who says she is a queen living in Alabama often writes to the judge, making claims to Hughes' money. She even sent Gregory an Easter card.

Although Gregory never met Hughes, he said he grew to know the man during court proceedings.

"As in many contested cases, you learn more about the person in death than others did in life," he said. "He was a total enigmatic person in my opinion."

Gregory said after hearing all the testimony, claims and odd bits of information regarding Hughes, he wasn't surprised Hughes did not leave a will.

"He was a procrastinator. That was one of his inconsistencies," the judge said.

Although litigation designating the heirs is complete, Gregory said he would not be surprised to see a motion filed concerning expediting the distribution of the estate.

William R. Lummis of Las Vegas, Nev., was named an heir and administrator of the Hughes estate. Neither he nor an attorney who works on distributing the fortune could be reached for comment this

Berkeley students vow to rebuild shanties

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Anti-apartheid protesters whose confrontation with police led to 91 arrests and nearly 30 injuries called for a student strike and vowed to rebuild their demolished shantytown.

"Violence was about as bad as anything that happened in the 60s," Chancellor Ira Michael Heyman said after demonstrators and police clashed on the University of California campus Thursday.

Police moved in during pre-dawn hours, tearing down shanties, arresting dozens of demonstrators and loading them onto buses heading for Alameda County's Santa Rita jail, said university spokesman Ray Colvig.

Hundreds of other protesters surrounded the buses, preventing them from moving, officials said.

Anti-apartheid emotions "have been building up for a long time" on campus, said senior Sheryl Denker, 21, of Los Angeles, predicting that the demonstrations would continue.

"They tear the shanties down, we build them up again — it's a never-ending circle. If they just let (the shantytown) sit there, they wouldn't have more and more people getting angry and showing up here every day."

Fighting broke out when police in riot gear cleared a path through the crowd and demonstrators hurled bottles, rocks and eggs and blocked the buses by hurling trash cans, setting up makeshift barricades and sitting in the way.

Police tore down shanties under a temporary restraining order obtained by the university a day earlier. The order maintained that the cardboard and plywood structures were fire hazards and blocked access to buildings.

Model anti-crime program launched

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas crime rate went up 9 percent last year, and Gov. Mark White responded by announcing a model anti-crime program with an emphasis on help from local officials and citizens.

Pilot projects will be started in Longview and Victoria, White told a news conference Thursday.

The announcement came following a report from Department of Public Safety Director James Adams that the crime rate in Texas soared by 9 percent. Major crimes such as robbery and murder were up by 11.6 percent.

Adams said the largest increase was in the number of rapes, up 14 percent over 1984. The smallest increase was in murders, up only 1.6 percent.

Arlington led all major cities with an increase in serious crime of 32.8 percent. Of the state's 19 largest cities, Lubbock was the only one to report a decrease in crime, -3.7 percent.

White said non-violent property crime continue to account for more than .90 percent of all reported crimes. During 1985, about $1.25 billion worth of property was stolen in Texas and police recovered $500 million in stolen goods.

White said that although the 1985 figures were disturbing, but actually lower than violent crime rates in 1982.

"What this tells us is that we cannot afford to continue to react to the crime problem," White said. "We need to get ahead of the crime cycle and focus our efforts and dollars on prevention and thereby seek to mitigate the high economic and human costs associated with crime."

Under the new anti-crime program there will be Citizen Crime Prevention Commissions appointed by a city's mayor to develop and coordinate a comprehensive citywide crime prevention plan. There would be Zone Crime Prevention Committees to work with local police departments.

"This is not an expensive program to implement," White said. "Actual out-of-pocket expenses will be small and will come largely from contributions from local businesses and individuals."

POLLY'S POINTERS Tips on freezing tasty avocados

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I have an abundance of avocados and they are nice and large this year. I am eating them every day, but I wonder if I can freeze some of them for later use. — DORIS

DEAR DORIS — Avocados may be frozen. Peel and pit them, then mash or puree them. Since avocados darken easily, you'll need to add some anti-discoloration agent. Blend in a tablespoon of lemon juice or one-half teaspoon citric acid, plus a dash of salt to each two mashed avocados before packing the puree in airtight freezer containers and sealing them. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Save foil quarter-pound margarine wrappers to wrap potatoes in for baking. Also use these to rub the cake pan before dusting the pan with flour. — A.E.C.

DEAR POLLY — Don't fill your hard-to-clean pots and casseroles with water, hoping for a good soaking and easy cleaning, for example, to soak away baked-on foods. Instead rinse them well, then turn them upside down on a flat counter or drainboard, as airtight as possible. Later they'll be easy to wash. The "magic" goes on while you are eating your dinner.

My pet peeve: Restaurant cleanup help using the same cloth to wipe the tables and the seats. Seems most unsanitary to me. — JOSEPHINE

DEAR POLLY — I use the larger pill bottles my medication comes in to hold buttons, snaps, thread, bobbin and other supplies that match the material I'm using on a specific pattern. It sure saves time to have all these items together when I'm ready to start a project. If I must stop for some reason, everything stays together. — HELEN

DEAR POLLY — I have a lipstick plant that I have had for quite some time and it has never bloomed. I would like to know why. — BETTY

DEAR BETTY — I can't give you a definitive answer as to why your plant hasn't flowered, but I can recommend the optimum conditions to promote flowering.

The lipstick plant (aeschynanthus) to use its official title) needs high humidity and warm temperatures to thrive. The soil should be kept moist and the plant should be misted regularly. Nighttime temperatures should be in the range of 60 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit.

However, to encourage bud formation (necessary to flowering obviously), it helps to keep the plant slightly cooler and drier in wintertime. Keep your plant well watered and warm throughout the coming summer. Then, next winter, keep it at a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees and reduce water slightly (but don't let the plant dry out entirely!).

This should encourage the formation of dark-colored pods, looking somewhat like empty lipstick tubes, which will later support bright red flowers. When the pods have formed, it's time to return the plant to warm temperatures and high humidity to bring out the flowers.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Hints for Healthy Houseplants," which has care directions for a number of other houseplants that are easy to grow. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — So many people don't know which side of handmade crocheted doilies is the right side. When I give these as gifts, I put a dot of colored nail polish in the middle on the wrong side and pin a note to the doily that this is the wrong side. The appearance of a doily can be different on the right and wrong sides. — ANN

DIEGO RIVERA EXHIBITION

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — To mark the 100th anniversary of the birth of Mexican artist Diego Rivera (1886-1957), the Philadelphia Museum of Art will host the exhibition "Diego Rivera: A Retrospective" June 1-Aug. 10.

The museum says, "The most significant paintings and works on paper from each period of the artist's career have been assembled for the first comprehensive survey of his work to be held in this country since 1931."

Rivera was a leader of the Mexican mural renaissance of the 1920s and 1930s.

In medical world

Student film fights sexism

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fade in. Several female medical students sit in class and pass around a picture of a nude male, much to the embarrassment of two men in the room. Suddenly, one woman decides to tack the centerfold on the blackboard.

"Hey, not bad," says the female professor when she comes in and sees the beefcake shot. "I think I'll take this home and make a slide for my next lecture."

Fade out. The skit is one of five in "Turning Around: Sexism in Medicine," a movie that shows sexism with a smile by depicting men in medical school as victims of chauvinism rather than women.

"Humor is the best way to reach people," said Dr. Maureen Longworth, who made the film when she was a medical student at the University of California-San Francisco.

"I think it's really ineffective to change anything as insidious as sexism by attacking people. By allowing people to laugh at themselves, it strikes home in a much more powerful way," she said.

Longworth, 35, is a second-year resident in family practice at San Francisco General Hospital. She made the 18-minute color film in 1984.

"Turning Around" has since been used by several organizations and schools to point out sexist behavior. At UCSF, it is required viewing for the clinical faculty, she said.

Longworth's fellow medical students performed and filmed the skits at a cost of about $1,000, donated by UCSF and a few pharmaceutical companies.

Every skit is based on an actual incident. In other highlights, a male lecturer is jeered and ignored and a medical school applicant is asked by a female interviewer whether he plans to marry and how he could be a good father as a doctor.

Women are encouraged to become surgeons, while men are told to take up the piano because of their "beautiful hands." A woman doctor orders a complete checkup for a woman with a headache, while a man with a severe head injury is prescribed Valium for "hysteria."

"What we are socialized with is a lack of respect for women," which is transferred to female patients, Longworth said. "Men patients are treated much more seriously than women patients."

Longworth has been involved in women's issues for several years. While in medical school, she helped found the San Francisco Women's Medical Student Association and the Women in Medicine Retreat.

According to the American Medical Association, there were 9,786 women in medical school in 1975

— 18 percent of the total. For the 1984-85 school year, the number jumped to 21,287 women — about 32 percent.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

NEW YORK (AP) — What's in a name?

Enough, it's said, for some fish dealers here to be misnaming species to make them more alluring to buyers. An example would be pollack being sold as blue snapper and mullet sold under the name of fresh bass.

A fish market officer here says it is best to "shop for freshness and not for the name of the fish."

Tijuana, in Mexico, 16 miles south of San Diego, is the foreign city most visited by Americans.

Hire professional photographer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm writing in defense of "Friendship Kaput," the man who refused to videotape his friend's wedding. He used good judgment.

Very few amateur photographers are qualified to photograph weddings. Most (with good reason) are afraid to try. This letter is not intended as a put-down to the brave ones who will risk it. They have my respect. But they also have my sympathy.

I am an amateur photographer who is occasionally asked to photograph a wedding. After a couple of embarrassing disasters, I now staunchly refuse, as an act of friendship.

Strange how a young couple or their parents will spend $1,000 for professionally arranged flowers, $300 for a professionally decorated cake, and $800 for a professionally made gown. The morning after the ceremony the flowers have wilted, the cake is eaten, and the gown is hung in a dark closet. Yet, to save a few dollars, people will ask an amateur to produce something that will last forever and be one of their most cherished possessions.

When my wife and I were married we were on an extremely tight budget. To this day, my biggest regret is that we didn't borrow the money to hire a first-rate photographer to capture forever those wonderful, unforgettable moments.

In my opinion, 10 percent of the total cost of a wedding is not too much to pay a competent, professional photographer. I wish we had had the good sense to do it.—TOPEKA READER

DEAR TOP: Did I ever hear from professional photographers! You'd better believe they all said the same thing, but you said it best.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your humble apology for your ignorance of blue milk put me in mind of the parody of Gelett Burgess' famous "Purple Cow." The original quatrain is:

I never saw a purple cow.
I never hope to see one.
But I can tell you this right now—
I'd rather see than be one.

The parody:

I never saw a purple cow;
I never hope to see one.
But judging by the milk we get,
There certainly must be one!—G.D. McEWEN

DEAR G.D.: Thanks for my laugh for the day.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've asked several informed (I thought) and sophisticated people this question and nobody seems to know the answer. Can you tell me the proper way to address a letter to a widow?—WISH TO GET IT STRAIGHT IN WILLOWDALE

DEAR WISH: The widow of John Smith should be addressed, after his death, the same way as during his lifetime—Mrs. John Smith. A good way to remember this is to keep in mind that your beloved husband may have passed away but his name is yours forever.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teenagers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

In unpaved town

Mud is surest sign of spring

LYME, N.H. (AP) — For the last seven decades, Harold Wing has watched the spring sun melt the frost and turn the dirt roads in his town into stagnant rivers of chocolate pudding.

"I remember one year I was standing right here when I saw what I thought was a man walking down the road," Wing said last week, leaning against his pickup truck on the muddy edge of Franklin Hill Road.

"I drove up to him and he was up to his waist in mud. I said, 'Pretty muddy ain't it?' He said 'Not really, considering I'm riding horseback.'"

Mud makes for good humor this time of year in Lyme, a town with 70 miles of road, 58 of them dirt. It's New Hampshire's most unpaved community.

Each spring, as the sun sends out its warming rays, the dirt roads transform into basins of tire-sucking goop — thick as a McDonald's shake and slick as grease.

It grabs cars' tires and slips them into waiting trenches. Then you're trapped.

It's a lucrative time for towing companies, a busy season for Lyme's four-member road crew. And for a few weeks, until the sun dries up the whole mess, there's nothing to do but grin and bear it.

"It's so bad that from here to the paved road is a 20-minute drive and that's only about a mile and a half," said Curt Vinson outside his garage.

"With my Blazer, I push (the mud) with the differential. It's that deep."

For the past five years, Larry Laitres has plowed his way through the spring mud of Lyme delivering United Parcel Service packages.

"If it looks too deep, forget it. You don't take a chance this time of year," he said. "Sure, you get stuck. When you do, you sit and wait for the wrecker from Lebanon.

"Yesterday an American Messenger truck got stuck behind the hardware store," he said, grinning. "Another car had taken up the pavement so she (the driver) thought she would go around.

"She sank up to about here," he said, pointing to the top of a rear wheel rim. "All four tires. They had to pop her out with a chain."

Postal Clerk Martha Smith said "If you live on these roads you drive a 4-wheel drive. Those of us who don't live on them, know enough to keep off."

Road Agent Allie Pike says Lyme has had plenty of mud this year, though the worst has passed.

Two weeks ago, "We had two or three roads that were really bad, a couple of them were pretty near impassible," he said.

During mud season, Pike is a busy man in this town of 1,741 people.

In the early morning when the roads are still frozen fudge brown, Pike scrapes off the rough spots with his grader. Later, when it's warmer, he and his four-man crew fill holes with gravel and repair washed-out sections.

Robert Lee says he knows the road crew can't be everywhere at once so he does a little road maintenance himself. Lee's 20-year-old daughter Becky says it's hardly work for her father.

"He's constantly taking his bulldozer out," she said. "He likes to play with the road."

The secret to mud driving is straddling the ruts, said Lee.

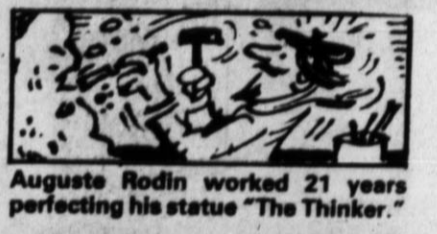

"If you meet a car coming the other way, you are a dead duck."

FRIENDLY BORDER

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — The longest undefended border between any two nations in the world is the one shared by the United States and Canada.

It's approximately 5,000 miles long, and U.S. citizens and Canadians crossing the border require neither a passport nor a visa, according to the editors of the Rand McNally "Road Atlas."

In certain places the friendly border is even regarded with a touch of whimsy. One example: a pool table straddles the border in a hotel bar located in Dundee, Quebec, and Fort Covington, N.Y., guaranteeing that every game becomes an international event.

Fork

According to The World Almanac Book of Inventions, precursors of the modern fork, dating from the sixth to the third millennium B.C., have been discovered in Turkey. The fork then appears to have vanished. It reappeared in the 14th century, when it was considered a luxury item. Forks came into general use in the 18th century, along with plates and glasses.

TAXES

TAXES noun a compulsory payment for the support of government.

Benjamin Franklin is credited with saying "In this world nothing is certain but death and taxes."

While we all must pay some taxes, now there's a way to pay less. It's with an Individual Retirement Account. This allows you an opportunity to place $2,000 a year ($4,000 if both you and your spouse work, $2,250 if only one of a married couple works) into a special account that is free of federal income taxes. Even the interest you earn isn't taxable.

Don't pay more taxes than you need to pay. Come to the First National Bank of Hereford and open your I.R.A.

A tax and/or interest penalty may apply for early withdrawal of your I.R.A.

win, lose & DREW

One loss in last five years

Foster is No. 1 U.S. hurdler

By Murray Olderman

LOS ANGELES (NEA) — In his last five years of hurdle racing—which means since arch rival Renaldo Nehemiah opted for professional football—Greg Foster has lost only one race under the sun.

That lone outdoor defeat came, however, at the most inopportune time.

It was on Aug. 6, 1984, in the Los Angeles Coliseum.

As Foster knelt in his blocks to prepare for the finals of the 110-meter hurdles in the XXIIIrd Olympiad, he had a premonition:

"I didn't feel good in the 'semi' race (which he won earlier that day in 13.24 seconds, equaling the Olympic record). And I wasn't comfortable for the start (of the final event). I should have raised my hand and stood up, but I didn't. That cost me the race. I messed up my start."

The gold medal winner was U.S. teammate Roger Kingdom, in 13.2 seconds. That left Greg Foster in second place, by three one-hundredths of a second, with the consolation of a silver medal.

And a new resolve for his track career.

At the age of 27 — when most men who specialize in the milli-second world of sprints and hurdles are out shopping for another direction in life — Foster is still running.

In the early fall of 1988, in Seoul, South Korea, Foster will try again for that elusive Olympic gold medal — to cap a full decade of competition at the top international level.

"I still have the desire to go out and train every day," says Foster. "The training has gotten much easier in recent years. I know hurdles better than anyone else, and I have the best hurdling coach in the world in Bob Kersee (who is nominally the women's track and field coach at UCLA)."

Kersee says, "Greg's biggest asset is his determination to be the best, and his knowledge of hurdling in terms of mechanics. It's amazing he's still on top in terms of what he's been through personally."

A year ago, Foster's mother and four family members died in an automobile accident.

Foster has just completed another strenuous indoor season, climaxed by victory in the 60-meter hurdles at the Los Angeles Times indoor games. During the season, he lost only one race and false-started in another. After a brief respite, he'll be soaring over outdoor tracks, starting in April and going through September.

Foster is undeniably still the best hurdler in the world.

He was frustrated for years by Nehemiah, who still holds the world's record for the 110-meter event.

"I know I can break the world records," says Foster. "I know I can break them by a lot, which I did in the 50-yard hurdles, by .54 of a second."

"I'm confident now. I feel I can get behind and come back and win. I feel like I did when I was 19. No matter how far behind I got, I would always come up and catch them. I'm catching them sooner now — instead of the sixth or seventh hurdle, I'm catching them at the third or fourth."

Foster is an impressive looking athlete, with a sculpted 6-foot-2 body. Actually, the 190-pounder is almost too big for a hurdler. According to Kersee, he overcomes the handicap of size with flexibility, strength and foot speed.

There was a time early in Foster's track tenure when the specter of Nehemiah, to whom he generally finished second, freaked him out; it left him a shade neurotic and a trifle surly about lack of recognition.

Foster, too, was approached about playing professional football. "What they offered and what I wanted was nowhere near," he says. In the world of track, which is supposed to be an amateur sport, he has cleared over $100,000 annually for the last three years.

He says the best is still to come.

"I don't feel I'll ever reach my potential," Foster says. "If I run 6.72 (seconds for 60 meters), I'd come back the next day and try to run 6.62. I've heard Walter Payton say too many people put limits on themselves. I think I can go as fast as I want to go." Still, Foster is aware of his athletic mortality. He lives with Florence Griffith, who won an Olympic silver medal in the 200-meter dash. And he's diversifying his economic base with a McDonald's hamburger franchise.

"This year," Foster says, "we'll sit down and figure out what we're going to do. I don't have much time left as an athlete. When I start losing more than three races a year, I'll quit."

He says, "I like to win and train to win. If I'm at my best, I can't lose, unless I make a mistake." And Greg Foster intends to remain at his best through the XXIVth Olympiad in Seoul.

Cowboys use computerized system in 2-day mini-camp

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys, long noted for their complex, computerized system, used the "diagnostic power test" during their two-day mini-camp that kicked off their off-season conditioning program.

And it had players talking. Not only did the players run 50 yards while attached to a cable with strong resistance, but they also wore heart-rate monitors, masks to measure oxygen consumption and carbon dioxide release and had electrodes on their legs to determine where they were applying pressure as they ran.

Afterward, they walked on a treadmill for 10 minutes, had samples of their blood taken and were tested to see how fast they were breaking down lactic acid.

BASEBALL
 PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberoth announced he has reduced the suspension to Oakland Athletics pitcher Joaquin Andujar. Andujar who was scheduled to begin the baseball season under a 10-day suspension, had the penalty reduced to five days.

The right-hander, acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals in a December trade, had appealed the suspension he drew for his outburst in the final game of the 1985 World Series. He charged off the mound and screamed at plate umpire Don Denkinger, protesting calls on pitches, and was ejected from the game, which St. Louis lost 11-0.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL
 NEW YORK (AP) — Forward Walter Berry of St. John's was named Eastern Basketball Magazine's player of the year for the 1985-86 season.

Berry beat out a group of players that also included Johnny Dawkins of Duke, Len Bias of Maryland and David Robinson of Navy. The 6-foot-8 junior forward from St. John's averaged 23 points and 11.1 rebounds per game last season.

"We have nothing available in the sports world today that shows either mathematically or visually how a human delivers power," said Larry Brown of Mechano-Physics in California. "While many athletes spend the same hours training, only some develop high cardioaerobic (heart and lung) capabilities. We've tried to pin down why some do and some don't."

Dallas conditioning coach Bob Ward called it "the most powerful study that's ever been done in sports."

Players called it something else. "I don't know what to think of it," said defensive tackle Don Smerek. "In my six years, I've seen us do a lot of weird things — jumping up and down on boxes. I can see where the resistance is good for building stamina but as far as the pulse, the oxygen content, the lactic acid and all the other stuff, I can't see that being helpful."

"It'll have to be mandatory for me to be involved again."

Running back Tony Dorsett said he didn't "know what the purpose was" for the test.

"No one is going to have to drag a guy on his back for 50 yards," he said. "I'm surprised that no one pulled a muscle or blew out a knee when you combine running on a hard surface with that test."

"But I don't understand a lot of the things we do as far as the mini-camp goes. Every year, it's something that we can't relate to. One year we had medicine balls and were throwing them over our heads to see how many yards we could throw them. I guess it's just something to keep us active."

"No matter how scientific football becomes and how much data you feed into a computer, it still boils down to Xs and Os," Dorsett said. "In my 10 years, Dallas has always looked for some athletes with a certain IQ for some intellectual advantage. I think we've cut ourselves short because guys that don't perform on our competency tests have gone to play extremely well, Pro Bowl level, for other teams."

The mini-camp ending Wednesday, players will continue working out on their own for the next three months before the rookies' July reporting date at Thousand Oaks.

Dr. Jim Stray-Gundersen, who helped administer the power test, said the veterans would be tested again in 14 weeks before their training camp departure.

"I felt like pulling a plow with 100 pounds on it," said fullback Timmy Newsome. "It's all in the interest of science, I guess."

Even though they are ready to clinch division title

Rockets not contemplating on playoffs

By The Associated Press
The Houston Rockets are refusing to contemplate the upcoming NBA playoffs even though they are within one game of clinching a Midwest Division title.

A 136-110 victory Thursday night over the injury-riddled San Antonio Spurs coupled with the Denver Rockets loss in Dallas gave the 43-29 Rockets a four-game lead in the division. Only five games remain in the season.

Houston forward Ralph Sampson said his team is refusing to think of playoff glory.

"We are not thinking about the playoffs at all," he said. "We have five games left to play, and the division title is all we are thinking about."

Elsewhere, Dallas edged Denver 115-114, Milwaukee defeated Cleveland 114-93, Chicago got past Indiana 109-108, Washington beat New Jersey 120-106, and the Los Angeles Lakers routed Sacramento 135-105.

Sampson said he was pleased with his 12-point, five-rebound effort in only his second game after being sidelined for three games with a back injury.

"I'm feeling pretty good right now, but I have a few muscles that are still sore," the forward said. "I hit a few shots tonight, which is encouraging to me."

"Ralph looked a little better on his comeback from his injury," said Houston coach Bill Fitch. "That was encouraging."

Fitch admitted the Spurs were hampered by the sidelining of injured starters Artis Gilmore and Steve Johnson.

This season, illnesses and injuries have benched Spurs players 169 times.

"The Spurs are really hurting, but they are still dangerous with Mitchell in the lineup," said Fitch.

Mike Mitchell scored 33 points, including 25 in the first half.

Although the 33-46 Spurs have lost 29 of their last 23 games, players have maintained good attitudes, said San Antonio Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

"Our guys still have a good attitude, even with all of these losses mounting up. They are trying, and I thought we came out ready to play tonight."

But Spurs guard Alvin Robertson, who was limited to seven points, said his team was over-matched in Thursday's game.

"We are just not playing well," Robertson said. "We get paid very well to play basketball, so we just have to keep battling. Houston is a very tough team, and they were just too much for us tonight."

Mavericks 115, Nuggets 114

Derek Harper would have settled for a foul with time running out and his Dallas Mavericks trailing the Denver Nuggets by two points.

Instead, Harper stripped the ball cleanly from Denver's Lafayette Lever and fed it to Rolando Blackman for a three-point play in a 115-114 Dallas victory Thursday night in an NBA game.

"Lever had the ball down by his side and I was able to get a hand on it," said Harper, who finished with 15 points and seven assists. "I saw Ro at the free throw line and got him the ball."

Blackman's basket with four seconds left tied the score at 114. On the shot, Denver's Alex English fouled Blackman, who hit the winning free throw moments later.

"I got the ball and headed straight for the basket," said Blackman, who led Dallas with 25 points. "English was on my back but I was able to put the ball in the hole."

The win pulled Dallas within 1½ games of the Nuggets for second place in the Midwest Division and third place in the Western Conference playoff standings. It was Dallas' eighth win in 11 games, but came in spite of coach Dick Motta.

Motta railed at officials Billy Oakes and Mike Mathis so viciously during a timeout that both officials called a technical on him, which sent Motta to the locker room with three minutes to play. The two technical free throws by English put Denver ahead 110-108.

"I'm glad they pulled me off the hook tonight," Motta said.

The Nuggets, who were led by English's 28 points, continue to suffer on the road. The loss was their fifth consecutive away from home and dropped them to 44-33.

"It seems like we find ways to lose on the road," said Denver coach Doug Moe, whose teams has won only 11 of 38 road games. "In the last seconds, I told Lever to hold the ball so we wouldn't throw it away. I should have just let him take it up the floor and the game would have been over."

Dallas, 42-34, is eight games over .500 for the first time this season.

Mark Aguirre added 19 points and James Donaldson had 21 rebounds as Dallas split the season series with Denver at three games apiece.

Bucks 114, Cavaliers 93

While a couple of NBA playoff races are heating up, the Milwaukee Bucks are coasting toward postseason action by giving some of their key performers a breather.

Coach Don Nelson called Thursday night's 114-93 romp over the Cleveland Cavaliers "a perfect game for this team heading into the playoffs. We accomplished a goal that we are striving for, which is to play our bench and rest our starters."

Charles Davis scored 21 points and fellow reserve Alton Lister added 20 as Milwaukee took control in the fourth quarter, outscoring Cleveland 29-9 to take a 110-87 lead.

Roy Hinson scored 21 points and John Bagley added 18 for the Cavaliers, whose lead over Chicago in the race for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth was sliced to 1½ games when the Bulls nipped Indiana 109-108. Washington climbed within one-half game of New Jersey for sixth place in the East by downing the Nets 120-108.

Lister, Davis and Kenny Fields, another substitute, keyed Milwaukee's fourth-quarter rally.

"Our bench really did the job tonight," Nelson said. "I thought our starters were very sluggish when they came out in the second half, and as a result I went to the bench early. The bench deserved to play tonight because they played better the second half."

Bulls 109, Pacers 108

Michael Jordan scored 26 points and John Paxson hit a six-footer for the winning points with nine seconds left. Chicago trailed most of the game and was behind 96-86 with 9:09 left before Jordan, who had 15 points in the final quarter, tied the game 102-102 with a layup at the 3:15 mark. Indiana's Wayman Tisdale scored a game-high 30 points.

Bullets 120, Nets 108

Gus Williams scored 16 of his game-high 33 points in the first quarter as Washington raced to an 18-point lead. Cliff Robinson had 14 of his 30 points in the first period as the Bullets moved within one-half game of the Nets in the race for the sixth playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Buck Williams led New Jersey with 20 points.

Lakers 135, Kings 105

Byron Scott scored 24 points and James Worthy added 22 as Los Angeles beat the Kings for the 30th time in a row at the Inglewood Forum. The Lakers led 37-35 in the second period before they ran off a 21-8 spurt over the next six minutes to open a 58-43 lead with 3:10 left in the first half. Sacramento never got closer than 12 points the rest of the way.

What is next for USC's Cheryl Miller?

By Murray Olderman
LOS ANGELES (NEA) — At the age of 22, Cheryl Miller is faced with the realization that she may never play another season of organized basketball.

There is no future in her sport for the University of Southern California forward who is the greatest women's college basketball player of all time.

The other great women basketball players of modern vintage were faced with the same dilemma after college — how to prolong their playing careers.

Ann Meyers was actually drafted by an NBA team and reported for camp but quickly opted for sports-casting. Ann Lieberman performed in the women's pro basketball league until it folded. Lynette Woodard, Cheryl's favorite player and Olympic teammate, joined the Harlem Globetrotters this year.

"I wouldn't do what Lynette's done," says Cheryl. "That's for her."

"I know what I can do on the court. I'd like to see what I can do off it."

Cheryl is beginning to savor the star treatment.

And to sense there is life after basketball.

She has been to the "Dynasty" cast party, where John Forsythe ("an incredible man") said, in greeting, "Oh, Cheryl, you're having a great season."

Gushes Cheryl: "For him to know me — and Diahann Carroll, too — I was in seventh heaven."

She was also invited to a celebrity tennis tournament and met her idols, Julius Erving and Wilma Rudolph.

Ed Hookstratten, a Beverly Hills lawyer who is the agent for some of the top sportscasters in the country, is interested in representing Cheryl. "She's very articulate," he says, "and very good on her feet. She has a future in broadcasting."

Aaron Spelling, a leading television producer, has recommended an acting coach.

But still there'll be trauma in the severing of an athletic career.

"When something's been 16 years of your life," reflects Cheryl, "and you stop doing it, you're going to miss it."

"But I'm going on to bigger and better things hopefully."

"I'd like to do some acting, some broadcasting, some modeling, commercials, endorsements."

And if "push came to shove," she notes, she could always pl y a little basketball for money overseas, in Japan or Europe.

"That's a small option," she adds.

A brief resume is in order: After four years as an All-American at USC, she holds the record for every individual category except assists and free throw percentage. She scored 45 points in one game. She was the first woman ever to slam dunk in competition.

As a high school senior, Cheryl was on the U.S. national team that played in the Soviet Union. She is 6 feet, 2 inches (with her basketball shoes on) of flowing grace and aggressive drive.

But the real world is upon her, and she feels there is nothing more to accomplish in the arena.

"I really do," she says frankly. "You could always win another (Olympic) gold medal. I was a finalist for the Sullivan Award (as the nation's top amateur athlete) this year — that's an accomplishment in itself. As far as awards per se, I've achieved as much as I possibly can."

Cheryl is now interested in financial stability and doing more than window shopping. She was on a scholarship at USC. "But it's been tough financially," she says. "You're paying $230 for rent. And I'm a daddy's girl, always calling home. My phone bill is between $80 and $100 a month."

Home is Riverside, Calif., 60 miles to the east, in a tightly knit Baptist family with a proclivity for athletics.

An older brother, Darrell, is a catcher for the California Angels. ("Darrell's generous," says Cheryl. "He'll slip me $100 or so.") A younger brother, Reggie, has completed his junior year as the star of the UCLA basketball team.

"I'll be the first in the family," Cheryl says proudly, "to get my degree." She'll graduate on time with her class in May.

"A lot of people don't realize I'm a student. I carry 16 to 18 hours (of classes). It's work."

Her courses this semester include classical mythology, sociology, sports law and journalism, for which she kept a diary of her final year of basketball.

It'll end on a question mark.

"When I was a senior in high school," says Cheryl, the most widely recruited women's player ever, "my biggest decision was what college to attend. Now my biggest decision is what agent, what lawyer."

Gramm defends deficit reduction bill

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said the deficit reduction bill he co-authored, known as Gramm-Rudman, will be "two magic words" used as an excuse for all governmental shortcomings for the next five years.

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said his bill is being used as the scapegoat for all bureaucratic breakdowns by agency heads who say they cannot do better because of budget cuts brought on by his bill, which forces Congress to balance the budget.

The bill will be "two magic words" that will be given as the excuse for all failures by government agencies, he said.

Critics of the bill are taking the approach that "all the money government spends comes from heaven," Gramm said Thursday at a North Dallas Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"Did you ever stop to think about what is happening to all this money that is slashed, cut and denied? It's not lost."

"Three months before Gramm-Rudman ever went into effect it was being blamed for every bad thing that happened," he said.

The deficit reduction bill went into effect this year, setting deficit reduction goals for Congress. If Congress is unable to meet the goals, automatic across-the-board cuts go into effect. The constitutionality of the bill has been questioned because it takes budget-making authority out of the hands of elected officials and a ruling is pending from the U.S.

Supreme Court.

Gramm said when Congress begins talking about the budget next week, the bill will force the first "real" debate since 1981 as the decision is made whether to balance the budget by cutting spending or raising taxes.

After his speech, Gramm, R-College Station, reaffirmed his opposition to a proposed import oil fee, saying it sounds good as a proposal but is unworkable. He said it would work against Texas interests because it would hurt the export market for crude oil byproducts such as polyester and petrochemicals.

He said he believes oil prices will stabilize, but said he does not know what the ultimate outcome of the market will be.

One effect the shaky oil and agriculture economy has had in Texas is undermining some loans made by Texas banks. Gramm said some changes he worked on with other financial regulatory agencies have been implemented.

The changes include allowing lending institutions to restructure loans and reclassify them, based on the restructure agreement instead of having to declare them non-performing loans.

On the Wednesday terrorist bombing of a TWA airplane in Athens, Greece, that killed four Americans, Gramm said, the U.S. will ultimately have to adopt a national policy that governments which support or harbor terrorists are responsible for what they do.

DR. GOTT Effects of spinal tap

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Seven years ago I had a spinal tap and haven't felt well since. I get a pressure across my back and down my rib cage, and a general feeling of inflammation and not feeling well. Could you tell me about this procedure?

DEAR READER — A spinal tap or lumbar puncture is a relatively safe method by which a physician can withdraw small quantities of spinal fluid for analysis. The technique is useful in diagnosing meningitis (infection of the sac covering brain and spinal cord) and bleeding into the spinal fluid (from stroke or injury).

When performing a spinal tap, the doctor ordinarily numbs a small button of skin over the lower spine, introduces a slender hollow needle, guides it between the vertebral bones, penetrates the disc, passes into the space surrounding the spinal nerves and extracts some of the fluid for examination. The test must be done using strict antibacterial methods, like those used in surgery. Although, when properly performed, the test is essentially painless and harmless, some patients will experience headache after the tap. This usually is eased by a few hours of bed rest. To my knowledge, back and rib pressure seven years after a lumbar puncture probably bear no relation to the test itself.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Two years ago I was involved in an auto accident and was slightly injured, but have fully recovered. My passenger, who was wearing a seatbelt, got whiplash and still wears a surgical collar. Does whiplash last that long? She says I could be collecting like she is and not have to work. She goes to parties and, after she has had a few drinks, takes the collar off. I do hope you can enlighten me on the extent of this kind of injury.

DEAR READER — Whiplash is more a legal than a medical term. During an auto accident, the patient's head can be violently shaken in a to-and-fro manner. This sudden action can put excessive stress on the neck's supporting structures. A type of sprain can result. Like other joints in the body, a sprained neck can produce long-lasting pain and stiffness. However, the symptoms usually become much less severe as time progresses.

Apparently, your passenger continues to have neck pain that is probably muscular, because alcohol relieves it. I wonder if her pain would be more bearable if she no longer were experiencing secondary gain from the accident — "collecting," as you put it, presumably from an insurance company. If she were truly handicapped, I doubt that "a few drinks" would temporarily solve the problem. Perhaps more effective therapy could be directed toward the area above the neck, between the ears.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For the past four or five years, starting in December and continuing until about March, I felt slightly nauseated, with headaches, weakness and shortness of breath. Do you think I should have my furnace checked out?

DEAR READER — I don't know — but it certainly couldn't hurt. While you are at it, also check the muffler on your car. Fumes from burning oil and gasoline can cause the symptoms you describe.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband died, without any warning, of myocardial infarction. What is this?

DEAR READER — When a blood clot lodges in a coronary artery, a portion of the heart muscle is deprived of oxygen and dies. This heart attack is called a myocardial (heart muscle) infarction (death of tissue). If the affected muscle encompasses part of the conduction system (electrical wiring) of the heart, the periodic electrical discharges that power the heart muscle may be blocked, stopped or otherwise disrupted. Sudden death may ensue. Death without warning from a myocardial infarction is almost always caused by a sudden drop in heart-muscle oxygen.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have been in the hospital several times over the last four or five years, and every time I get a urinary tract infection within 24 hours. My doctor and I experimented and found that the problem was caused by the soaps used in the hospital, all of which kill body odor. Now I take my own soap and have no more problems. Shouldn't hospitals use non-allergenic soap?

DEAR READER — Because some people appear to react to deodorant soaps, many hospitals have changed over and are using the hypoallergenic varieties. Thank you for sharing your experience; perhaps your comments will help other readers.

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY
maybe a procto isn't exactly a pleasure
...but it's a good thing it's around. With this examination, your doctor can detect cancer of the colon and rectum...early, when it's most curable. And this form of cancer is the most common internal cancer, in both men and women. The procto exam takes only a few minutes. And maybe it's not a pleasure. But hearing your physician say, "Everything's normal," sure is! Cancer of the colon strikes men and women in almost equal numbers. Over 49,000 die of it annually. But, says the American Cancer Society, almost 3 out of 4 patients might be saved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment. Key to early diagnosis is proctosigmoidoscopy for people over 40. The "procto" can detect cancer before there are any symptoms. 192-2c

Traffic deaths decline
AUSTIN - Traffic deaths in Texas declined by 5.9 percent in 1985 compared to 1984, according to DPS Director Colonel Jim Adams.
Adams said 3,682 persons died in traffic accidents across the state in 1985, compared to 3,913 deaths the year before. The 1985 death toll is the lowest since 1976, he said.

Five years ago, the rate was 3.9 deaths per 100 million miles; in 1985, the rate was 2.5 deaths per 100 million miles, the lowest death rate ever recorded in Texas, Adams said.
