Relief convoy enters besieged camp

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Tens of thousands of hungry Palestinians in a besieged refugee camp received 15 tons of flour and two tons of powdered milk early today under an uneasy truce between warring Shiite Amal militiamen and camp defenders.

A three-truck relief convoy escorted by Syrian and Iranian observers rolled into Beirut's Bourj el-Barajneh camp at 1 a.m., unloaded the food and left an hour later.

Only hours earlier, an Iranian ten-ton truck was killed by gunfire that rang out as a separate U.N. convoy approached within a few yards of camp. Palestinians and Shiites both blamed the other side for the attack.

The gunfire set off a two-hour mortar duel between Palestinian defenders and Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen ringing the sprawling shantytown, police said. When arrangements for today's delivery were worked out, the fighting stopped.

The camp, with 35,000 residents, has been ringed by Amal forces since Nov. 24. There have been reports that many of the camp's inhabitants are malnourished and that some near starvation.

Palestine Liberation Organization officials say camp inhabitants have resorted to eating cats, dogs and rats. Reporters, barred from entering the camp by Amal, have not been able to verify the reports.

But 12-year-old Fadi Shaker, who sneaked out, told journalists: "Almost every man, woman and child has eaten cats or dogs, donkeys or mules. Now there's a shortage of animals."

Today's delivery took place "smoothly without any violence," said a PLO spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The Iranian Embassy identified the "martyred" victim of the earlier attempt as Musa Hammoud, a member of a delegation sent by Iran's revolutionary patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, to help end the fighting.

Hammoud was riding in an ambulance accompanying the two trucks when a bullet struck him in the head, police said.

The ambulance drove through the gunfire into the shell-battered camp on Beirut's southern outskirts. It drove out again shortly before dusk, without evacuating any wounded Palestinians.

'87 Cowgirl HOF honorees named

By DEBE GRAVES
Feature Writer

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center has announced its 1987 honorees. Western Heritage honorees are Patsy Montana of California, Anne Stradling of Arizona and the late Laura Gilpin of Colorado.

Joining previous Cowgirl Honorees are Lucille Richards of Texas, Betty Gayle Cooper-Cockerell of Oklahoma and the late Margie Roberts Hart of Kansas.

Honorees are chosen each year by the Research and Selection Committee headed by Georgia Sparks. Committee members are Wilma Bryan, Nonah Beringer, Barbara Allen, Gladys Setliff and Hazel Young of Lubbock. Women interested in research of the western woman are encouraged to contact the Hall of Fame for placement on this committee.

The annual Induction Luncheon and Rhinestone Roundup have been scheduled to be held June 27. "The Diamond Horseshoe Auction held as a part of the Rhinestone Roundup is the annual benefit for the Hall and provides our operational expenses," explains Margaret Formby, president.

The recent sale of some acreage adjoining the facility enabled the non-profit organization to pay off the $78,000 mortgage incurred when they accepted the use of the former private residence. However, due to insurance and security costs along with other day-to-day operation expenses the Hall relies on funds attained through the annual benefit and through private donations.

"The Hall couldn't exist without the efforts of volunteers," states Formby. "Since its inception, in 1975, 95 percent of all the work and support on the projects and programs comes from volunteers."

Committees for the Roundup are Auction, Food, Invitation and Host and Hostesses. Interested parties should contact the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center at 364-5252.

Zoning ordinance on agenda

A comprehensive zoning ordinance will be considered for adoption when Hereford City Commission holds its second regular meeting of the month Monday in City Hall. The session, open to the public, begins at 7:30 p.m.

Also on the agenda are appointments to the Panhandle-Plains Higher Education Authority, consideration of appointments to the Planning and Zoning Commission, considering resolution to establish three terms (6 years) for appointed boards of the City, adoption of ordinance for abandonment of Juniper Street north of La Plata Drive, and appointment of election judges for April 4th city election.

FRIDAY'S HIGH: 66 SATURDAY A.M. LOW: 41
SUNDAY OUTLOOK: Early Sunday morning low should be in the lower 30s with a 20 percent chance of light snow early in the morning. Cloudy and cooler during Sunday with high in the mid 40s.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says sometimes the folks who mess up the most are those who do nothing.

The young housewife was heard complaining in the grocery store that the eggs were too small. "They are straight from the farm this morning, madam," said the grocer.

"That's the trouble with those farmers," replied the housewife. "They're so anxious to sell their eggs, they take them off the nest too soon."

"What a difference YOU make!" Never, perhaps, has a banquet theme been more appropriate than for Thursday's night Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce banquet. The theme was linked to the keynote address, the presentation of the Citizen of the Year award, and to all present as a challenge to help make the community a better place to live, work and play.

The theme came from a line in the song, "What a Difference You Make in My Life", written by the guest speaker, Dale Van Horn. Those who missed the banquet lost out on hearing a unique speaker with a great inspirational message.

The selection of Gene Brock as "Citizen of the Year" was well received by the audience, who gave him a long, standing ovation. Brock typifies what the award is all about. He is making a real difference in the lives of many people in this community.

The motorist began to check under the hood after his car suddenly stopped on a country road. A large horse walked up to the fence and said quietly, "Better check the gas line."

The frightened motorist ran to a nearby farmhouse and told what had happened. "Was it an old grey horse with a black tail?" asked the farmer.

The surprised motorist replied that it was. "Well, don't pay any attention to him," said the farmer. "He doesn't know a darn thing about cars."

City Election Districts

The map shows the four single member districts now being used for Hereford city commission elections. Places 1 and 3 are up for election on April 4, as well as the mayor's post and two more at-large commission seats, Places 5 and 6. Loran Nixon, incumbent appointee, and Sylvana Juarez have filed for Place 1 and incumbent Tom LeGate has filed for Place 3. Mayor Wes Fisher is seeking reelection, and Paul Hamilton and Paul Abalos have filed for the at-large seats.

Local lovebirds began romances different ways, at different ages

By DEBE GRAVES
Feature Writer

Love blossoms in many ways. For some it comes as an arrow straight from Cupid's bow...for others it grows from long established friendship.

No matter how love enters a relationship most would agree that it takes effort to keep the romance alive.

Bud and Helen Eades have been married 31 years. Both were a little cautious concerning love when they met at a dinner party. Bud recalls, "This woman was a co-worker of Helen's and her husband was my friend. They gave a dinner party just so Helen and I could meet."

Helen remembers Bud was a nice fellow and she was impressed with him. "But," she says, "We didn't just hit it off immediately."

The couple dated one another and others for a year after they met and then concentrated on their relationship for another year before they married.

Helen remembers the then 30-year-old Bud "was so considerate and extremely polite. He was very thoughtful and kind."

Both were divorced and Helen had two children. She recalls, "He liked my children and included them in our plans or helped make arrangements for a sitter."

Bud credits the success of their marriage to the mature, stable love they have nurtured along with common religion, both are Baptists, and goals they share. He says, "She was a sincere person and I felt we needed each other. I think she has been a great mother and a great companion. She was, and still is, a romantic."

Helen agrees that she possesses a romantic nature and asserts that she still finds Bud "very exciting." She also says, "He is someone I can trust and he is very dependable."

Just as Bud and Helen met at a dinner party engineered by mutual friends, Mr. and Mrs. E.V. Carter met over dinner. Friends who gave the birthday dinner at which the couple met claim no conspiracy was made to introduce the pair. The occasion was E.V.'s birthday party and though no sparks ignited between them that evening they did begin an acquaintance which led, a few months later, to marriage at the ages of 89 (E.V.) and 82 (Maude.)

Their youthful attitudes even prompted friends to throw a lingerie shower for Maude.

The couple have been married for almost four years. At 92 and 86 they still enjoy one another's company. Maude recalls giving E.V. quite a chase. "He proposed several times, but I didn't think I wanted to be married. He finally won me over, I tell you he's got it."

The couple enjoyed a large wedding with 300 guests at the Church of the Nazarene where they worship. She wore a floor length dress and he proudly escorted her down the aisle to the sound of 36 children of the church singing.

E.V. sums up their marriage saying, "She is just someone I love and I think a lot of her. I wouldn't take a million dollars for her and I wouldn't give much for another one just like her."

Maude laughs at his gentle humor and adds her own summary, "We had a wonderful courtship, a beautiful wedding and have made a precious home. I wouldn't change a thing."

Love can also sprout in some very unexpected places. For Art Reinauer it began at the dentist's office.

His fiancée, Kim Dondlinger, is employed as a receptionist for Dr. J.W. Barnett. Kim recalls, "Art came in for an initial appointment to see about getting braces, but I didn't pay any attention to him."

As patient coordinator Kim called Art a few days later to see if he was planning to have his wisdom teeth removed and begin orthodontia. Art

Nuke dump opponents set forum here Thursday

A public forum for citizens who are interested in stopping site characterization in Deaf Smith County will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Hereford Community Center.

The purpose of the open discussion will be to offer interested citizens a voice should they have misgivings about site characterization for a high-level nuclear waste dump. Serving as moderator will be Jim Steiert.

There to answer questions will be a state representative as well as local individuals who have studied the question extensively. Persons attending will have the option of organizing as a group to oppose site characterization.

The meeting is being organized by a group of concerned citizens, including Shirley Garrison, Leo Witkowski, Henry and Jo Solomon, John and Judy Kriegshauser, Steve Hysinger, Steve King, Jim and Kerrie Steiert, and Naomi Spann.

For further information about the public meeting or the issue, contact Steve Hysinger or Mr. or Mrs. Steiert.

New statistics show strength in economy

NEW YORK (AP) — A string of key indicators published by the federal government since the beginning of the year points to strength in the country's economy that has surprised observers.

The good news has lessened the chances of the Federal Reserve Board cutting interest rates to stimulate investment and growth, some economists believe.

The economic barometers, notably including the most recent trade figures, the leading indicators on future economic activity, unemployment figures and orders to factories for "big-ticket" items, demonstrate a robustness that exceeded many observers' expectations.

The figures "show that the economy did not fall out of bed on January 1st as some people had feared," said Irwin Kellner, chief economist for Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. in New York. "Most of the numbers are really pointing to much more strength in the economy than people had thought would be the case."

The latest series of statistics released this past week offered few exceptions. The Federal Reserve reported Friday, for example, that production at U.S. factories, mines and utility companies rose a solid 0.4 percent in January, the fourth consecutive monthly increase.

The U.S. central bank said last month's increase stemmed from moderate gains in most sectors of the economy, with the exception of companies producing consumer goods and energy products.

The increase in industrial activity in recent months has encouraged many economists, who believe that U.S. manufacturers are finally beginning to see improvements after being battered for more than two years by stiff foreign competition.

Business sales in December, also published on Friday, shot up 2.9 percent, aided by a boom in car sales, while business inventories fell 0.5 percent, the largest decline in more than three years. The steep fall in inventories is certain to boost hopes for increased production and higher employment as companies work to restock depleted inventories.

The government also reported Friday that wholesale prices, which fell dramatically last year, rebounded in January with a sharp 0.6 percent increase — another indication, not especially welcome, that the economy is heating up. But economists were quick to point out that much of the rise in wholesale inflation was due to big jumps in prices for heating oil and gasoline.

Thursday's figures on retail sales for January showed a record drop of 5.8 percent. The Commerce Department noted, however, that virtually all the decline came from car sales, which plunged a record 22.4 percent from December.

That point was stressed by White House Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, who cited the controlling role of cars in the retail sales numbers and insisted that the record plunge showed no fundamental problem with the economy.

"Virtually all of the economy's vital signs point to a healthy 1987," he asserted.

LD program set Monday

The frustrations some parents have with children who have learning disabilities will be the focus of a meeting Monday, Feb. 16, sponsored by the Hereford special education cooperative and the counselors of the local district. The meeting is at 7:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center.

Gene Ann Grant of Amarillo, a parent of a learning disabled student, will present a program "My Child Has A What?" It will center on characteristics of the LD student and give tips on how to help the child at home. Also, the film "You're Not Listening" will be shown. Time will be provided for questions and answers.

Police report

Hereford police are investigating several thefts which occurred Friday.

From a residence in the 600 block of Ave. K, a wallet and $15 cash is missing. From the 700 block of Stanton, a set of bunk beds and a leather jacket were stolen. A stereo and equalizer was stolen from a parked car in the 1400 block of East Park Ave. A bike was stolen in the 300 block of Douglas, 12 packs of beer were taken from the Allsup's at Park and US. 60 and a purse with diamond rings, old silver coins, a credit card and $40 cash was stolen.

Other reports were of threats and assaults, including a husband who was bitten by his wife in the 200 block of Knight Street.

Hospital board to call election

The Deaf Smith County Hospital District board will call for a director's election during its regular monthly meeting Tuesday at noon in the hospital conference room.

Other agenda items include routine reports, and audit report, an EKG contract, a New Concepts Contract, a report on the trip to Columbus, Ohio, a TDX lab proposal, a report on a meeting with Rep. Larry Combest and an executive session to deal with legal and personnel matters.

LOVE...strikes all ages

responded that he needed someone to baby him through the ordeal and offered Kim the job, which she refused.

The chase was on...Art began making frequent calls to ask Kim for a date...Kim repeatedly turned down his requests. Finally Cupid stepped in, in the form of Dr. Barnett. Kim recalls, "He had taken the office staff out for lunch and suddenly he turned to me and said, 'Kim, you're a fool if you keep on turning down that Reinauer boy.'"

Embarrassed, but secretly encouraged, Kim accepted the next date Art requested. She admits, "I had so much fun I would have been crushed if he hadn't called back."

After four months of dating Art took Kim out for a special evening at Maison Blanc in Amarillo. The couple were served wine from Reinauer's La Escaraboda XIT winery. As the meal progressed Art noticed that Kim, who had been ill, wasn't drinking her wine. She recalls, "He began to insist I try my wine, which is unlike him as he usually doesn't push me. Well, finally, I took a sip and heard a noise in the glass." After another sip Kim noticed the same noise.

Expecting to find a bug or something unpleasant in her glass Kim looked closely and found a diamond engagement ring.

Her reaction was an affirmative answer and tears of joy. She admits, "On our second date something just hit me and I knew this was the man for me but I didn't tell him. I didn't want to scare him off."

Whether love comes at first, or second, sight or takes time to grow it is evident that it touches all ages.

White House ready to take 'lumps'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says it's ready to "take our lumps" in a report set for release in 12 days by an investigatory board probing the Iran arms scandal.

"I think it's going to be a very critical report and a very tough report, and the tougher and the more critical the better," presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Friday.

The board, named by Reagan and headed by former Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is the only investigatory group that has talked with Reagan about his recollections of the affair. It also is the only panel that has reviewed typewritten transcripts of his personal notes.

Other investigations are being conducted by a court-appointed independent counsel and Senate and House committees.

Meanwhile, a senior White House official was quoted today as saying the Tower commission has uncovered "quite serious discrepancies" in the testimony of various administration officials and is expected to issue a report highly critical of White House foreign policy machinery.

The official, quoted but not identified by The New York Times, said there was not quite a cover-up but that the vast documentary record reveals deliberate attempts to conceal and distort facts about the Iran-Contra affair.

Some administration officials "said things they probably knew were not true" and, "Some people in the National Security Council were not anxious to have facts disclosed," the official said, according to the Times.

The president had a very brief exchange with reporters Friday, but his chief spokesman said a decision has been made to continue denying journalists regular opportunities to question him. Reagan has not been exposed to reporters' questions during any of his White House meetings since Dec. 4.

Cattlemen to discuss inventory

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Cattlemen's Association has been invited to meet with Agriculture Department officials to discuss complaints that USDA cattle inventory figures may have contained serious errors.

Association officials on Thursday asked the department to recheck the figures and "provide satisfactory explanations of the report's discrepancies." The complaint was outlined by NCA president Jack Dahl and Cattle-Fax president Gordon Rasmussen in a letter to Ewen Wilson, deputy assistant secretary for economics.

Wilson said he stood by the USDA's cattle inventory figures, which were released on Feb. 4. The report showed the Jan. 1 cattle inventory dropped 3 percent last year to a 25-year low of 102 million head. Many private analysts had predicted a decline of up to 5 percent.

The association's complaint was made known the day after the report was released, and the figures were reviewed by experts in the department's National Agricultural Statistics Service to see if the numbers were within the agency's normal tolerance for error, Wilson said in an interview.

"We couldn't find any evidence that this survey ... was more than average in its sampling error," he said.

Some of the figures, including cattle numbers for Texas, down only 1 percent from a year ago, and Oklahoma, unchanged, sort of "jump out at you," Wilson said. But the figures "are still confirmed, so far," he added.

Wilson said the department's statistical reporting programs need the support of the industry but that all users must have confidence that the methods are correct.

The association's representatives will be invited to go over the inventory numbers and procedures with USDA officials, he said.

Dahl and Rasmussen said in their letter that some of the figures in USDA's Jan. 1 inventory suggest that cattle herd liquidation has ended and that herd expansion is now under way. But other USDA data, including slaughter figures, contradict an expansion in the nation's cattle herd.

"Our arguments are not with the numbers themselves but with the illogical trends indicated in the report," they said.

Documentation developed by Cattle-Fax, a market analysis service associated with the NCA, was cited in support of the claim.

There was near-record cow-slaughter in 1986 but USDA's report showed that beef cow herd expansion was under way, Dahl and Rasmussen said. The cattlemen also questioned the report's figures on the calf crop and the number of feeder cattle and calves as of Jan. 1.

BB/BS Appreciation Week to be observed here Feb. 15-21

February 15-21 is National Big Brothers/Big Sisters Appreciation Week and Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford, Inc. will be saluting volunteers and supporters during this special time.

Activities during this week-long celebration are directed toward recruiting new volunteers so that adult friendship can be brought to the nine children now on the continually growing agency waiting list.

Annually, the BB/BS Appreciation observance is celebrated by special events held in each of the 465+ BB/BS agencies serving more than 100,000 children nationwide. In Hereford, this week is recognized and proclaimed BBS Appreciation Week by Mayor Wes Fisher. Today local churches have been asked to share a short message about our program with their respective congregations. To complete the week, volunteers are having a "Salad Supper" at the Community Center Friday night.

According to Alva Lee Peeler, Executive Director, "Our volunteers are a continuing source of pride, year round, and we welcome this special opportunity to thank them publicly. Their dedication and friendship enrich the lives of many of Hereford's children, from single-parent homes. These devoted adults give freely of their time and love and have a positive impact on the children, their families and entire community."

Nationally, it is estimated that 12 million youngsters are growing up in a one-parent household and that number is quickly increasing. With numbers on the rise each year, there will be an increased demand for BB/BS's services.

Big Brothers and Big Sisters are matched with their young friends on the basis of common interest and personalities. Volunteers spend 2-3 hours a week with the youngsters for at least a year.

"Many matches continue their friendship for many years," says Alva Lee. "And most volunteers report the rewards more than equal their contribution to a child's happiness and advancement." For more information, call Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford, Inc. at 364-6171.

(Editor's Note: Watch The Brand this week for feature stories on some of the special matches made by Hereford Big Brothers-Big Sisters.

Fox has nice manners for hot TV star

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael J. Fox was a no-show for an interview. Sore throat, it was explained.

A handwritten note arrived by express mail with the explanation: "It was a hellish week — a complicated episode of 'Family Ties' and a full publicity load for 'Light of Day.' I honestly felt upon waking up that a busy morning's workload would seriously compromise my performance that afternoon-evening on the show."

Nice manners for a 25-year-old who is a hot ticket both in television and films.

What makes Michael J. Fox hot is "Family Ties," consistently the No. 2 rated TV series behind its time-mate "The Cosby Show." He's also hot because of his performance in "Back to the Future," the No. 1 box-office draw of 1985.

Fox soon stars in two new films, "Light of Day" with Gena Rowlands and rock star Joan Jett, and "The Secret of My Success" with Sally Field and Michael Caine.

In "Light of Day," which is being released by TriStar this month, Fox plays a Cleveland factory worker with ambitions for rock stardom. He is caught in the middle of the warfare between his strong-willed mother (Rowlands) and his free-living sister (Jett). His role is a few light-years removed from Alex P. Keaton of "Family Ties."

Fox grew up in Vancouver, B.C., where he worked as an actor in theater, radio and television. His life took a sudden turn when he was cast in a ABC-TV movie filming in Vancouver, "Letters From Frank."

The "irresponsibly optimistic" Fox dropped out of school and came to Hollywood with his family's blessing. At first his luck was good: a Disney movie, the Alex Haley series, "Palmerstown, USA," shots on "Family" and "Lou Grant."

"Then the bottom fell out," he said. "I'd spent all my money. The power that is said, 'If you want to live in an adult world, you have to start being an adult.' It was almost Scarlett O'Hara-ish — 'When I get out of this, as God is my witness, I'll never go hungry again.'"

He won't. "Family Ties" is making him millions, and his film fee probably ranges from $1 million to $2 million.

Will he stay with "Family Ties"?

"Definitely. I've done two seasons since 'Back to the Future,' which is two more seasons than some people thought I would do. I just love the show, I love the people, I love Gary Goldberg, who hired me in the first place when a lot of people told him not to. He gave me the freedom to do 'Back to the Future' and 'Teen Wolf' and a lot of other outside things."

Candor belated

Gov. Bill Clements' secret plan to finance state government is, guess what?, more money. When Clements was campaigning for election last year, he said repeatedly that he opposed new taxes. But (last week) he outlined a state budget to the Legislature that includes $2.9 billion in additional tax revenue.

The governor abandoned political rhetoric in the face of fiscal reality. The state, after all, is deeply in the red. But if his proposals are adopted, the bottom line is that Texans will pay more taxes.

The non-confrontational tone of the Republican governor's speech to the Democrat-controlled legislature was welcome and prudent. But his candor on fiscal matters was belated.

Houston Post

Close loopholes

Although the Texas Open Meetings Act was conceived as a means to ensure that governments operate in the sunshine, it has long since been shown to have too many loopholes, through which assorted governmental bodies have eagerly leaped in order to escape public scrutiny.

This year, the Legislature should pass and Gov. Bill Clements should sign the reforms necessary to make it harder for officials to escape oversight by their ultimate bosses, the voters...

Some say the Open Meetings Act is mostly a press issue, but the Open Meetings Act is really designed to protect members of the public, of which the press is but one part, by making sure those who are supposed to represent them, from city halls to the highest reaches of state government, do so in the open...

Austin American-Statesman

Hill has plan

In 1982, some 23 incumbent Republican judges were swept from office in Texas because they had the misfortune to be Republicans in a year when a lot of Texas voters pulled the Democratic Party lever. Two years later, 16 incumbent Democratic judges lost their jobs when partisan fortunes shifted and a lot of Texans voted the straight GOP ticket.

That's why judicial reform is so important. Texans can't afford to continue allowing judges to be elected and rejected on the basis of blind luck, partisan fortunes or mere whim.

The question facing Texas lawmakers is whether any of the proposed alternatives to popular election promises better results. The answer is yes, John Hill's so-called 'Texas Plan,' promises higher quality nominees while retaining the public's right to remove any judge from the bench...

Writers discuss education, nuclear waste controversy

Dear editor:

Money is once again the big issue facing Texas legislators. In a state desperate for economic recovery, the battle for funds is hotter than ever and education once again is in the position of trying to defend itself from the legislative budget ax.

Even though education managed to get through last summer's special session relatively unscathed, the possibility of cuts, as well as a raid on the Permanent School Funds—what should be the sacred corpus of public school monies—is still very real. Another proposal made just recently would divert scheduled contributions from the state to the Teacher Retirement System to funding for prisons. What kind of message are we sending regarding our state's priorities when the public servants responsible for educating our children are neglected to support the prison population instead?

For the past few years, there has been much talk and activity aimed toward educational reform. But that reform was late in starting and still has a long way to go before we see measurable results. There is also need for fine tuning of the reform effort and a focus on areas which were neglected earlier.

One of the positive aspects of H.B. 72 was its emphasis on early childhood education through such programs as limits on class size, full-day kindergarten, and pre-kindergarten programs. Virtually every study done indicates that the early grades are critical to a child's success in the future, and to retreat on funding for these programs would be a major step backwards in efforts to improve the quality of education.

The public, as well as lawmakers, have to be reminded constantly that efforts to improve schools have just started and have not ended. What occurred this year and last year is only a down payment on a long-term process. We can't lower our expectations for school reform and neither should we lower our commitment to it.

The fate of Texas education will be determined by actions lawmakers take during this 70th Session. Failure to provide adequate funds for elementary and secondary education along with increased compensation for teachers, who ultimately hold the key to making reform work, will mean more than a slowdown in school improvement. It could mean the beginning of the end of a courageous effort to provide children with the improved educational programs and services they need to achieve their full academic potential. We would fail not only them but also ourselves. We have no greater responsibility than the population of our children for productive lives.

Educational reforms will probably survive through this school year but on a tenuous thread, depending on financial support received from the state. The funding of education by lawmakers will, in turn, depend in large part on the support the public is willing to commit to our education system. We need your help.

The future of education reform depends on adequate funding. Public education must remain at the front of the class of legislative and funding issues during this critical session.

Dear sir:

After living in Hereford 38 years, we left there because I have heart trouble and we thought a lower altitude might be beneficial and it has been. I was 78 at the time and I am 90 now. We are not in a rest home yet, and are deeply interested in NOT having the area contaminated by feds.

I got stirred up by the news that the government has begun again to explode gigantic bombs under the Nevada desert and I'd like to know why the authorities in Washington don't send all their nuclear waste out there. That testing area must be as full of holes as a prairie dog town—every one of them big enough to contain a whole freight train. So why

Bootleg Philosopher

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Johnsongrass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek sees a problem for Federal judges this week.

000

Dear editor:

As I understand it, Federal judges, in this 200th anniversary year of the U.S. Constitution, have a problem that'll tax their minds.

Under a strange arrangement whereby Congressmen can get a raise if they just sit tight and let it happen, it has happened.

Midnight Feb. 6 passed without Congress taking a vote on the matter. The 30-day deadline for taking a vote passed and the raise automatically went into effect, bringing a Congressman's salary up from $77,400 to $89,500 a year.

Next day Congress looked around and listened hard and decided such a maneuver cast long shadows on re-election prospects. It voted to rescind the raise.

However, some legal experts contend you can't do that. Once not voted on, it can't be un-voted on. Or something like that. The matter, they say, will have to be settled in the Federal courts.

But here's the judicial problem: along with Congressmen, Federal judges were given a hefty raise in that strange scheme.

This leaves the judges with a knotty problem. Do they over-rule their own salary raises? It's something to tax the judicial mind.

A judge could wear out his copy of the Constitution trying to find a paragraph that says take the raise.

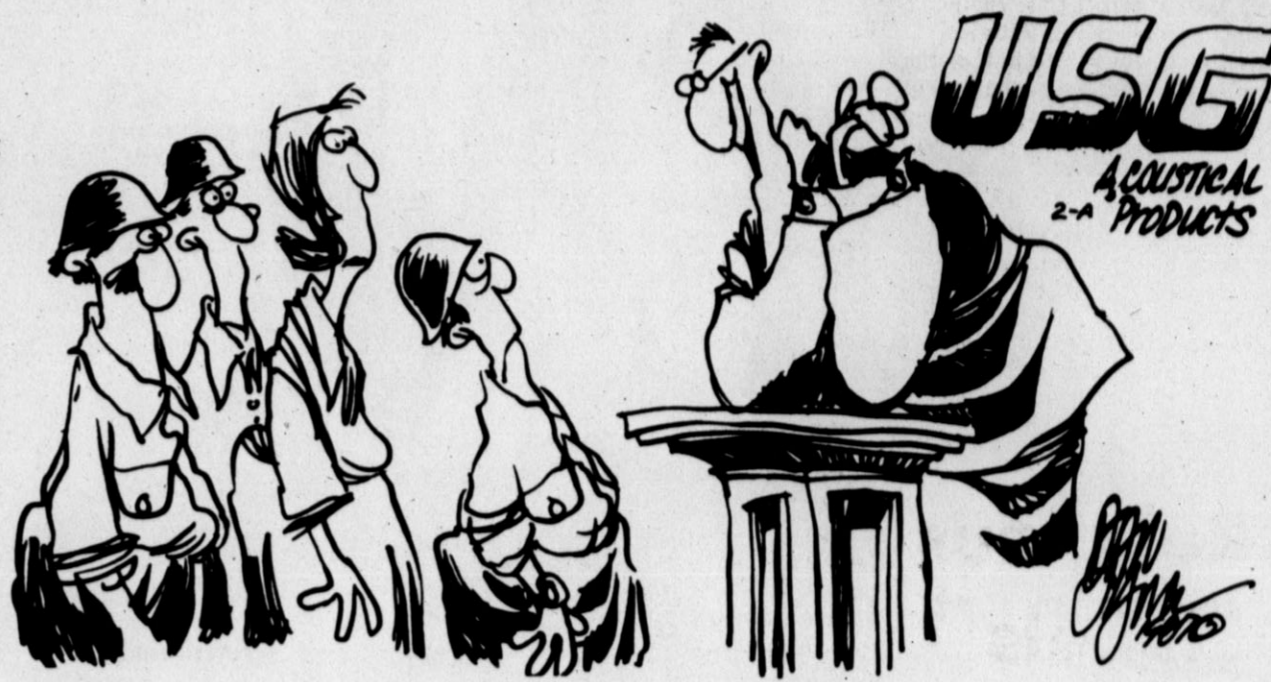

Meanwhile, the raise is in effect and Federal judges are getting bigger checks each month and apparently will continue to until the matter is settled in court. The courts are mighty crowded these days and it may take a long time to reach a decision.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

The Penultimate Word

Somehow, this article seemed to fit this week. It is a reprint from March, 1983.

WHEN ALL THE CANARIES LAND

I was following a small truck across a city on my way to speak. I was late as usual, and was getting more and more angry at the truck. The road was too narrow to pass and the truck was slow. To make matters even worse, everytime the truck stopped at a stop sign or a traffic light the driver would jump out and beat the sides of the truck with a two by four.

This strange behavior became so intriguing to me I forgot how late I was. I had to know why the guy was beating on the sides of the truck with a two by four. When the truck stopped for the next light I got out and asked him. He said, "Well, I am hauling two tons of canaries and I only have a one ton truck. I have to keep at least one ton of them flying or they will overload my truck."

Being a foolosopher I had to contemplate on how the canaries symbolized life. We all have two tons of problems and one ton truck. The secret to life may be keeping about one ton of our problems up in the air while we deal with the ones that have landed. Sometimes all of the canaries land at the same time and we are overloaded.

The trick is keeping one ton in the air. We can never get all of them flying, but if we can keep enough of them up there we can at least function.

So how do we keep em flying?

Humor helps. It is hard for all of the canaries to land while we are laughing. The louder the laugh the more canaries we scare. Look for the funny in life. Run from the somber. Serious folks let all of their canaries land and then borrow someone elses.

Sing. Canaries hate to hear humans sing. The human voice in song drives them to flight. Sometimes singing can keep two tons of them in the air.

When all else fails, sometimes we must beat on the sides of the truck with verbal two by fours. We all know the words to use. Bang on the truck.

When they all land, say: "All of my canaries landed". Then laugh while folks try to figure that one out.

These cover-ups and twisting of facts do not impress me, and it has been going on for years! I pray you people in our City Council, Chamber of Commerce, and etc., will listen soon. It's still not too late to tell the DOE, "NO! WE DO NOT WANT TO TAKE THIS RISK. WE DO NOT WANT THE DUMP OR ANYTHING TO DO WITH IT!" Please muster up the courage to change your minds. Gramm commended

The responsibility Texas employers must shoulder under terms of the new immigration reform law will be made easier as the Social Security Administration this month begins a pilot program to allow employers to determine whether job applicants are illegal aliens.

Texas' Sen. Phil Gramm gets credit for suggesting a Social Security number verification system and a new tamper-proof card.

Employers who use the system will receive a written record of the verification as evidence they complied with the law by making an effort to determine whether new employees have legal status.

The plan is a step in the right direction and should be welcomed by Texas and the nation's employers.

West Texas store keeps roots in past

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — At the old-fashioned Henderson-Collins Drug Store, patrons don't have computer profiles of their medical histories.

It doesn't really matter that the store hasn't kept up with the beat of modern drug stores, though — they don't sell prescription drugs any more.

And that makes for "a slower pace," co-owner Pearl Collins says.

Rather, it has become a meeting and lunch place for some of Odessa's faithful.

"We have people come in that we can almost tell time by," Mrs. Collins says. "It's a gathering place for a lot of people. They come in and hash over politics and sports."

Mrs. Collins and her husband, Jack, have owned the store on Grant Avenue since 1950. Collins retired five years ago after suffering a stroke, but he "still enjoys coming down and being here," Mrs. Collins says.

The Collinses bought William T. Henderson's share of the store in 1957 and sold the pharmacy in 1969.

The Collinses became partners with Henderson in 1931 at his store, which he owned from 1921 until 1949, when it burned.

The Henderson Drug Store building — owned by Henderson from 1906 to 1921 — currently is being refurbished. It is not connected with the Collinses' business.

But the store still has an old-fashioned style soda fountain and carries over-the-counter medications, cosmetics and gifts. Antique products no longer for sale are placed above the newer items.

Mrs. Collins runs the business with the help of cook Glenda Burcham, an employee for the last six years. "The customers can wait on themselves if they want. But we try to give service like an old-style store," Mrs. Collins says.

Oliver Rushing, a customer for 17 years, says he likes the store because "it's convenient and a nice place to eat lunch."

Customer Joe Knapf says the store's atmosphere, service and people are the things that have brought him back through the last 30 years. "They also carry a brand of perfume for my wife that I can't find anywhere else," he says.

Barbara Bunnell says she likes the friendly surroundings. "You go in and out of a new store and they don't even know you."

But time changes all. For example, Larry Stringer, manager of Nelson Pharmacy, says other drug stores "don't have the soda fountain now. The biggest change is we're now computerized with patient files."

Stringer also noted that there were about 2,000 more drugs on the market today. "There's less compounding in medicine and we have to make less capsules and tablets."

Back at the drug store that doesn't sell drugs, the five children and 12 grandchildren of the Collinses have helped through the years, Mrs. Collins says. "They all grew up in the store."

Granddaughter Amy Collins, 11, says she helps make drinks in the summer, but "mostly I just like walking around looking at everything."

Mrs. Collins says she enjoys waiting on people the most and will keep working "as long as my health lets me."

Religious labels difficult

NEW YORK (AP) — Shortly before last fall's general elections, a plea went out to United Methodist communications offices around the country for information on religious affiliations of elected U.S. Congress members and governors.

"As soon as possible," urged Robert Lear, news director of the denomination's Washington, D.C. office. But in the months since then, he's received only five responses, specifying the religion of only a dozen legislators.

The information "is hard to find out," he says. "It's usually a gap that requires some effort to fill. You have to dig for it. It's a gray area of non-information."

News stories about candidates, detailing almost everything else — habits, background and hobbies — generally omit any mention of religious connections, as is often the case in official biographies.

Silence about it has become a wide pattern in a time styled as an age of information, except for the presidency or in rare cases of preacher-politicians such as Baptists Pat Robertson or Jesse Jackson.

Even telephone inquiries at offices of lawmakers or Cabinet members about their religious affiliations frequently elicit a "don't know" from secretaries or press officers until they themselves probe into it.

"People are entitled to the information," says Lear, 59, former newspaperman and long-time church communications officer. "I would hope they wouldn't misuse it, but they're entitled to have it."

He emphasizes that "candidates should not be judged simply on the strength of whether they're Methodists, Presbyterians, Jews or Roman Catholics, but it's important to know whether they have religious commitments."

"Religious and moral principles are prime grounds for action in the public arena."

The simplest way to indicate these principles is by affiliations, Lear said.

"These days, about the only ones who are popularly known as religious are the so-called born-again group," he said, even though many other public officials have religious convictions just as strong or more so.

Despite the dearth of information, Lear has pursued his research with help of other organizations and records, determining that 77 Methodists now are in Congress.

An interfaith organization, Americans United for Separation of Church and State, also has issued findings on affiliations of the entire 535-member House and Senate, the largest blocs being Roman Catholics, United Methodists, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and Baptists.

But the information doesn't come easily, and sometimes is outdated even when it is recorded, Lear said in a telephone interview. "In our times, politicians change affiliations frequently, like anybody else."

For example, he said, House Speaker Jim Wright of Texas still is identified as a Presbyterian in biographical sketches in the Congressional Directory, but he has been a Methodist for 15 years.

Information in this area "is an inexact science," Lear said.

He said that while specific affiliation is not the essential point, "it's an interesting footnote" to a biographical record, and should be reported.

2.0 grade point average, 700 SAT score

New NCAA rules affect recruiting

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Before signing college scholarship agreements last week, Texas schoolboy football players were judged on their 40-yard dash times and rushing and passing statistics.

Now they must measure up to 2.0 and 700.

Rules passed by the NCAA last year require entering freshmen to post at least a 2.0 grade point average and score 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or forfeit one year of eligibility.

The state's two top running backs, McKinney's Randy Simmons and Dallas Carter's Darren Lewis, signed with the Texas Aggies but have not made the 700 minimum SAT score.

The Aggies signed Columbus blue chip receiver Percy Waddle last season although Waddle did not score high enough on his SAT. Waddle lost his freshman season at A&M but is expected to play next fall.

A&M Coach Jackie Sherrill said the SAT scores of Simmons and Lewis didn't change the Aggies recruiting strategy.

"I can tell if a young man is going to be able to make it," Sherrill said. Sherrill said he judged an athlete's progress from junior high through high school to determine if he could make the adjustment to college.

"I can look at a kid and evaluate where he's going to be in four years," Sherrill said.

Sherrill and other college coaches are willing to take a risk with top blue chip prospects.

But the academic standards mean some players of slightly less than blue chip status will be denied a chance to play.

"There are a lot of really good players that weren't recruited this year," Houston Coach Jack Pardee said. "There are still some players on hold, people waiting to see if they get their core curriculum up or make the 700 SAT."

Is the 700 minimum too severe?

Dallas Carter Coach Freddie James says yes.

"I think they put the SAT out of reach for some athletes, and it's unfair," James said. "Some of them just aren't prepared to take the test."

Lewis scored a 470 on his SAT but James sees no problems ahead.

"He's got two more chances to take it and I think he'll pass it."

If Lewis is eligible and unhurt, he'll be a starter, James said.

"He can start for any school in the country," James said. "He'd have been a starter there last year."

Simmons has a 670 SAT score and is within reach of the 700 mark if he retakes the exam.

Port Arthur Lincoln Coach Joe Washington has seen the evolution of recruiting under the new guidelines.

"It's obvious, and it's not by choice," Washington said. "They've (recruiters) got to do it. Once they check a player's grades, if he can't qualify, they drop him like a hot potato."

Rice's academic standards are far above the rest of the SWC so Rice Coach Jerry Berndt doesn't feel threatened by a 700 SAT score.

But Berndt doesn't think scoring below 700 ends a player's chance to play college football.

"There are a number that won't be able to get in but I think it'll help the junior college system," Berndt said. "Maybe that's where they should be. There's less pressure and they have a chance to adjust."

Berndt has recruited at Penn State and Rice, schools with high academic standards, for years but he sees a need for leniency.

"I think the rule will be adjusted," he said. "I have to be concerned when (Grambling Coach) Eddie Robinson says half of his team would be ineligible."

"There has to be leeway at some levels."

Pardee would like to see adjustments in the rules.

"I think there's room for improvement," Pardee said. "I think college life helps players."

"Penn State has a high graduation rate but they don't have all engineers," Pardee said. "We have a wide diversity of programs at Houston."

"Athletes can benefit from the college experience within their own skills range."

After leaving worst team in NBA

Maxwell happy with Rockets

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Cedric Maxwell thought he had been sent to basketball heaven when he was traded to the Houston Rockets from the Los Angeles Clippers.

"LA was more conducive to my lifestyle but basketball-wise, it's much better here," Maxwell said.

He wasn't even concerned about learning the Rockets offense.

"It doesn't take a genius to fit into this offense," Maxwell explained. "You get the ball. You pass it to Ralph (Sampson) or you pass it to Akeem (Olajuwon)."

"Then you go stand in the corner and watch what happens."

Maxwell's play selection was cut in half Feb. 3 when Sampson was lost for at least six weeks with a knee injury.

But it has not slowed the personable 6-foot-8 forward, who is expected to help fill the gaps left by Sampson.

"He's got the leadership qualities and the personality that we need right now," said Jim Petersen, who moved into Sampson's starting position.

The Clippers parted with Maxwell for Houston's 1987 first round choice and a second or third round pick in 1989.

Maxwell went from a team with the worst record in the NBA to a team that battled Boston for the NBA title last season.

The Rockets had been seeking help at guard when they obtained Maxwell but the loss of Sampson made it a prophetic decision by Coach Bill Fitch and General Manager Ray Patterson.

"If we play to the fullest of our abilities, we'll be in the running for some kind of title," Maxwell said. "When you lose a guy like Ralph, everyone has to band together and play harder and do things they aren't accustomed to doing."

"You can't replace the big fellow."

The all-time home run king, Hank Aaron, connected for only 13 homers in his rookie season at Milwaukee in 1954.

Walter Alston, who managed the Dodgers both in Brooklyn and Los Angeles for 23 seasons, had one time at bat as a major league player. He struck out.

Hall of Famer Luke Appling played 20 seasons for the Chicago White Sox, mostly at shortstop. But he also saw service at first base, second and third.

Pete and me just have to do more." Maxwell also likes the rest of the Rockets lineup.

"Rodney (McCray) is the best athlete I've ever been around," Maxwell said. "We have the best center in the league. That's not taking anything away from Kareem (Abdul Jabbar) but it's a plus for Akeem."

"We've got some great players here. It's just a matter of getting us put together right. Last year, you could just see the chemistry of this team at work."

"That's what we've got to get back now."

Maxwell scored only four points in Tuesday night's 115-92 victory over San Antonio, but Spurs Coach Bob Weiss recognized Maxwell's value.

"He's another thinker on the court," Weiss said. "You want a guy like that with you in the playoffs. He adds leadership at crunch time."

That's when a guy like that makes a difference."

Maxwell was a member of two Boston Celtic championship teams in 1981 and 1984.

He was the most valuable player in the 1981 championship series against the Rockets. The Celtics traded him to the Clippers in 1985 for Bill Walton.

Maxwell was reunited with Fitch, who tutored Maxwell from 1980 through 1983 before coming to the Rockets.

"I think we had a love-hate relationship," Maxwell said of Fitch. "We had quite a few disagreements but I've always liked Bill and I think he liked me."

Fitch has changed since the two were together in Boston, Maxwell said.

"He was more stormy then," Maxwell said. "Now he has a lot more human qualities."

Daytona 500 is Sunday

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The best possible scenario for pole-sitter Bill Elliott would be an uneventful Sunday drive to Victory Circle in the Daytona 500.

Elliott, who has the pole for the third year in a row off a track-record qualifying speed of 210.364 mph, says he may not be able to do it. But it won't be for lack of effort.

"I don't like these group sessions," Elliott said when asked if he would

Texas Little League sets

summer camp

The Texas Little League Baseball headquarters in Waco will hold its 15th annual summer camp, with the first of three two-week sessions beginning on June 21.

The camp will be held at the Baylor University campus. Applicants will be accepted for all three sessions on a first-come, first-serve basis until the sessions are full.

The training techniques to be taught include using batting cages, using pitching machines.

Boys ages nine to 15 may sign up for the camp. Membership in Little League Baseball is not required.

For more information on the baseball camp, call (817) 756-1816, or write to: Little League Baseball, 1612 South University Parks Drive, Waco, TX, 76706, for brochures and application forms.

prefer to break the draft or pace himself and ride in it.

Elliott's principal concern as he seeks to join Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough and Bobby Allison as the only drivers ever to win stock car racing's biggest prize more than once, is fellow Ford driver Ken Schrader.

"He proved he can run up there," Elliott said of Schrader, who beat him by just four inches in one of two 125-mile qualifying races on Thursday.

But Schrader, who credited his victory to not changing tires and getting out of the pits first during has last caution period, isn't so sure.

"I never raced with him, so I don't know if I can pass him or not," Schrader said.

In Thursday's race, Elliott came from far back to lose a photo finish. He might have won had they circled the 2.5-mile Daytona International Speedway track one more time.

For his part, Schrader will try to go with Elliott, hoping to repeat their 1-2 breakaway from the field.

Defending Winston Cup champion Dale Earnhardt, who led the 500 last year before running out of gas and placing 14th behind winner Geoff Bodine, says Schrader's victory was no fluke.

"He's a good driver and that's a good car," said Earnhardt, who will start 13th in a Chevrolet. "It isn't just Elliott we have to beat."

"That's a compliment, but I think all we've proved is that we're one of about 15 cars with a real chance to win," said Schrader, who starts third behind Elliott and Ford driver Davey Allison, the first rookie to start from the front row in this race.

Former race winner Benny Parsons will lead the GM challenge, starting his Chevrolet from the fourth position. Darrell Waltrip will start fifth, also in a Chevy.

Two-time winner Bobby Allison starts next in a Buick, four positions behind his son, Davey. Former winner Buddy Baker goes seventh in an Oldsmobile, followed by Bodine in a Chevrolet.

Rick Wilson and Sterling Marlin round out the top 10, both in Oldsmobiles.

Seven time-winner Petty starts 11th in a Pontiac, nine positions ahead of his son, Kyle. Yarborough, who has won the race three times, starts 29th in an Oldsmobile.

Also in an Olds will be former winner A.J. Foyt, a four-time Indianapolis 500 champion. Foyt, who crashed his car and sustained a slight shoulder injury Thursday, starts last in the 42-car field in a backup car.

The race is scheduled to start at 12:15 p.m. EST and will be televised live by CBS.

Basketball mentor Gene Iba

Baylor coach is intense sports figure

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

WACO, Texas (AP) — Gene Iba may be one of the most intense sports figures around, and that includes Tom Landry, Ted Williams, Ben Hogan, A.J. Foyt, Don Haskins and Randy White.

Prowling the Baylor bench area with a Napoleonic distaste for losing, this pint-sized battler challenges his basketball team to squeeze out every drop of talent and leave it on the floor in the game at hand.

His laser glare misses nothing. Is that a two-three zone the Texas Christian Horned Frogs are playing?

He instructs an assistant to flash the word "flood" from a cue card, reminding his team to load up on a weak area of the defense.

An official calls a charge against one of his players. Iba is on him like a fox terrier, barking his displeasure in a sharp staccato of words as the hapless referee runs by on his way downcourt.

In one instance this year, Iba actually ran out onto the floor, drawing an automatic technical foul but certainly getting his point across.

"Makeup call," Iba snapped another time when he thought an official was balancing out a favorable call for the Bears.

How intense is Iba?

On his way to the airport after a coaches' golf tournament in the Rio Grande Valley, Iba, who was then at Houston Baptist, never said a word to the reporter and driver who were the sole occupants on the mini-bus with him.

He wasn't being rude. He was just concentrating on something very, very hard — probably some new zone press a colleague had told him about.

Don Haskins, the basketball coaching legend at the University of Texas at El Paso, once had Iba as an assistant.

"He was a good one, like all of 'em in the Iba family," Haskins recalled.

"But you could see he was going to be special."

Haskins laughed. "Any coach who could take all-white (high school) teams and beat all-black teams in St. Louis had to have something on the ball."

"Baylor has hired a guy who will never do anything wrong or embarrass the school. He'll always get the best out of talent because he is simply one of the best. And, yes, he is intense."

Iba, 45, is from the "First Family of College Basketball."

His father Clarence was a former head coach at Tulsa.

Cousin Moe was a former head coach at Nebraska and is now at Drake.

Uncle Hank was a former head coach at Oklahoma State and the United States Olympic team.

Yell "coach" at a family reunion and four heads turn.

The younger Iba took over a Houston Baptist program which had three scholarship players in 1977. He built the Huskies into a respected Trans America Athletic Conference champion that appeared in the 1984 NCAA playoffs.

Iba came to Baylor, which was promptly put on NCAA probation and finished with an 11-16 record and a 3-13 Southwest Conference ledger.

This year Iba has taken two good players, Michael Williams and Darryl Middleton, and blended them with some castoffs into a respectable unit battling for second place.

The Bears snapped Texas Christian's 14-game winning streak and knocked the Horned Frogs from 15th to 18th in The Associated Press national rankings.

Iba, the disciplinarian, works hard and his players respect him for it. He has them believing they can win.

Now he has to recruit to find more talented players who can move the Bears to a higher level.

Iba has his critics. He doesn't let his players talk to the media after a loss and called some fans "stupid" in a magazine article. He later apologized.

"The true test for Iba will come after two or three recruiting years when he gets his own players into the program."

Baylor is also making some strong moves toward constructing a special events center which would be more attractive to recruits than the Heart O' Texas Coliseum eyesore.

The jury is still out on the Iba era at Baylor.

But the early reviews are impressive.

Rhoden ready to play with Yankees in 1987 season

By Murray Olderman

Rick Rhoden was relaxing last November on the sands of Dorado Beach in Puerto Rico, visiting old teammate Tim Foli, when his agent called him.

"You've been traded to the Yankees," said Tony Attanasio.

Did Rhoden order a pina colada or suitable refreshment to celebrate the occasion?

Uh, uh.

When you've been pitching in the major leagues for the better part of 13 years, you accept a change of scenery coolly and professionally.

Mind you, Rhoden had been toiling in the nether regions of Pittsburgh for the last eight years, during the last three of which the Pirates were securely fastened to last place in the National League East.

And for at least the last two seasons, he had been clamoring to be traded to a city where his efforts would be more appreciated.

To go from the purgatory of Pittsburgh to the excitement of the Big Apple might sound heavenly — but Rhoden, with his seniority, had the right to veto the six-player trade.

So, he used his leverage as a 15-game winner last year (for a team that won only 64 games) to get a one-year extension on his existing contract (with a healthy raise of some $325,000 for 1988); and performance bonuses that could put him in the million-dollar range this year.

Pittsburgh, Rhoden admits, offered a discouraging milieu for a big (6-foot-3) right-hander, who brought one of the few semblances of class to the roster.

"It's tough," Rhoden says, "knowing that even before you go into a season that you don't have a chance to win. It's hard getting mentally ready to pitch under those circumstances."

"With the Yankees, three of the best players in baseball will be behind me. Dave Winfield, Don Mattingly, Rickey Henderson — we didn't even have one of those with the Pirates."

But New York, with the constant brouhaha stirred up by owner George Steinbrenner, will be more of a zoo than Pittsburgh.

"I've played long enough that New York doesn't bother me," Rhoden shrugs. "Early in my career, I wouldn't have wanted to play there. I was exposed to the same kind of media attention in Los Angeles."

And as for Steinbrenner: "He owns the team; he can do whatever he wants." Even changing leagues — Rhoden has been a career National Leaguer since he was brought up by the Dodgers as a 21-year-old late in 1974 — doesn't bother him. "The ball's the same size," he scoffs. "It might take some time to get used to the parks."

Yankee manager Lou Piniella already has staked out a working territory for the guy who figures to be his right-hand ace.

Last year, Rhoden had a respectable earned run average of 2.84 to go with his 15-12 won-loss record, and he pitched more than 253 innings — 51 more than the Yankees' top man last year, Dennis Rasmussen.

Rhoden has been one of baseball's premier pitchers for three of the last four years, slumping only in 1985 when, bothered by tendonitis in his elbow, he dropped to 10-15. Otherwise, he has been a winner on a loser.

The chance to be a winner on a winner is appealing.

The only possible drawback is that Rhoden no longer gets a chance to swing a bat, in the league of the designated hitter.

He wasn't an automatic out as a batter. He topped all National League pitchers at the plate last year with a 278 average; he has won the Silver Slugger Award for the last three years; and he carries a 240 lifetime batting average into limbo.

Of course, a World Series appearance, more likely in New York than Pittsburgh, would put him at the bat rack again.

North Korean demands for Olympics called impossible

By LARRY SIDONS
AP Sports Writer

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — North Korean demands to host more sports in the 1988 Olympics are impossible to meet, the head of the International Olympic Committee says.

"We cannot offer more," IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch said at a news conference Friday.

Samaranch, however, said that it was important to keep the North Koreans at the bargaining table, adding that they would be isolated should they attempt to lead a Communist-bloc boycott of the Games in Seoul.

"No. My answer is no," Samaranch said when asked if a boycott was possible. "We have the assurances of many European socialist countries that they will come to the Seoul Games."

"These assurances come from very high in the government, the highest levels."

He said that Olympic officials of East Germany have announced plans to visit Seoul in coming weeks, and noted that Cuba had been awarded the Pan American Games for 1991. Both countries joined the Soviet-led boycott of the Los Angeles Olympics in 1984.

"It is easy to link participation in the Pan Am Games with participation in the Seoul Games," Samaranch said.

The IOC has offered to move the table tennis and archery tournaments, some preliminary soccer matches and a cycling road race from Seoul to Pyongyang. The South Koreans have agreed to that plan.

On Thursday, the North Koreans accepted the proposal "in principle," then quickly said they wanted five or six more sports. If their demands are ignored, the North Koreans have said, they will lead an East-bloc boycott of the Games.

Samaranch said the IOC had made "a serious offer. We hope that offer will go beyond acceptance in principle and will be fully accepted."

A fourth set of meetings among the IOC and the two Koreas, to be called later this year, could make small changes in the plan, he said. But he ruled out adding a large number of sports.

As long as Pyongyang is willing to talk, however, Samaranch said the IOC will listen.

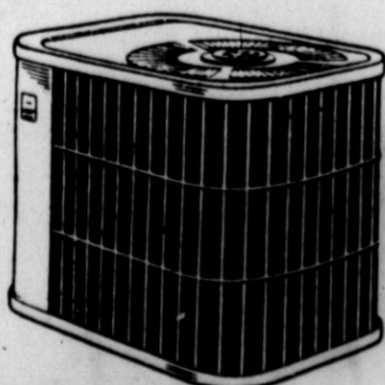

Samaranch spoke as a four-day session of the IOC's executive board neared a close. Later, he formally issued invitations to the committee's 166 member nations to attend the Winter Games at Calgary, which start a year from Friday.

The local organizing committees of the summer and winter Games used to issue such invitations. But the IOC has taken over that operation this year as part of its effort to reduce boycott possibilities.

Samaranch also said that two new national Olympic committees, Samoa and the Grenadines, had been granted IOC membership, and that the framing of future Olympic cities now will be done either five or seven years in advance, not six as was the case when the 1992 Games were awarded last October.

East Texans compile cookbook

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Elizabeth Dunn and Laurie Strickland-Hayes of the University of Texas at Tyler set out to make children's foreign language tapes and books together, but when that seemed like too big a project, they collaborated on a collection of East Texas recipes Ms. Dunn calls "a labor of love."

Their cookbook, "Southern Seasons — an authentic guide to East Texas cooking," sprouted when Mrs. Hays was attempting to make some creamed corn.

Her grandmother and mother would "just do it," she told Ms. Dunn. They decided perhaps she wasn't the only one who might want some traditional dishes written down and preserved.

"These are foods we always took for granted yet loved them and ate them," Ms. Dunn said.

A native of Nacogdoches, Ms. Dunn is an American Literature professor at UT-Tyler and has had aspirations to write and publish works. She said that cooking is a hobby.

Mrs. Hays was born in Golden, is an English major at UT-Tyler and hopes to go on to law school. She grew up in the kitchen with her family's involvement in the restaurant business.

Researching the book last summer, the women looked at other cookbooks and talked to many people at the university and around East Texas.

Along with the recipes, the book explains the origins of the dishes.

Early Texas cooks were influenced by many factors, Ms. Dunn said, such as a limited amount of flour available before the 1900s, the availability of only basic spices, and later the introduction of electricity.

"What they ate came from how they lived," she said. Working in the fields and on the farm were common lifestyles.

The categorization of the book — breakfast, weekdays, Sunday dinner and special occasions — also derived from family lifestyle.

"Breakfast was important because they began their day early and much of what they ate was affected by the seasons," she said.

"An orange could be a Christmas present or maybe some nuts. Their one and only trip into town might have been at Christmas."

Canning also was commonplace but only with such items as pickles and preserves that would naturally preserve with sugar and salt, Ms. Dunn said.

"The pattern of eating grew up out of necessity. Dried vegetables were used during the winter because the seasons determined what was edible," she said.

Research wasn't the only part of the project, the two discovered after they had begun. Business was a major factor and to keep more local control they did much of it themselves.

"We did a lot of the leg work and learned about business and taxes. We had our down days, but we were persistent and kept plugging on."

The book has been distributed to cooking-related stores, supermarkets and bookstores in East Texas.

"When perfect strangers come up to you and hug your neck you know you're doing the right thing," Ms. Dunn said.

People who lived through those old times can relate to the stories and their children can appreciate the struggles of their families, Ms. Dunn said.

The book is dedicated to Emma Davis Dunn, Ms. Dunn's grandmother, and Aline Lankford Strickland, Mrs. Hays' mother.

Ms. Dunn said she spent some time on the East Coast studying and returned to East Texas with a new appreciation of its local flavor.

"I don't see East Texas the same. I have so much respect and admiration for these people."

Although it's not a first priority, Ms. Dunn said they will make a minimal profit probably after the second or third printings.

"My best dreams were like this. We just didn't want to be a recipe book. It's a contribution of a lot of different people."

Artist Rebecca Wallis designed the front cover and the typesetting and printing was done in East Texas to make it "an extended family project."

But the idea of making the foreign language tapes and books has not yet been forgotten, Ms. Dunn said. They may begin that project this next summer.

Here are some recipes taken from "Southern Seasons."

TEA CAKES

½ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
Cream the butter and sugar. Beat in the eggs, one at a time, then add the vanilla. Sift the flour, baking powder and soda together. Work the wet and dry mixtures together thoroughly with your hands. If the dough is not stiff enough, add a little more flour.

Form the dough into two rolls. Chill them one hour, then slice into ½-inch slices and place on ungreased baking sheet. Or take the dough by spoonfuls and roll into balls and place on baking sheet. Bake in 350-degree oven for 10-12 minutes until done.

FRIED HAM WITH RED-EYE GRAVY

Ham slices
1 cup of coffee
Get as many slices of ham as you need to feed your people and fry them in a heavy skillet until they're brown on both sides. Remove the ham to a platter.

Add the cup of coffee to the hot ham drippings. Stir and allow to boil until the gravy turns red. Pour the red-eye gravy over the ham.

POKE SALAD

Pokeweed, leaves only
Water to cover the poke leaves
3 to 4 pieces of bacon
Salt and black pepper to taste

Wash the poke leaves thoroughly two to three times. Place them in a pot with water to cover, and boil until tender. Drain. Cover with water and boil a second time. It is important not to eat the poke leaves after only one cooking.

Meanwhile, fry the bacon in a skillet until brown, and break into small pieces. Add the cooked poke leaves to the bacon and drippings and heat, adding salt and pepper to taste.

Some people prefer to cook the poke and then scramble eggs in with it.

HOT WATER CORNBREAD PONES

1 cup cornmeal
Salt to taste
Boiling water
Shortening for frying

Put a cup of cornmeal in a bowl and season with salt. Then pour enough boiling water into the meal to make a stiff paste. Pones may be either fried or baked.

Fried: With wet hands, shape the dough into 3-inch long and ¼-inch thick oval pones. Drop them into hot shortening ½-inch deep in a skillet. You also can just drop the mixture by spoonfuls into the hot fat. Remove the pones from the shortening when good and brown. Drain.

Baked: With wet hands, make oval pones about 4 inches long and ½-inch thick and put them in a hot iron skillet with a little melted shortening in the bottom of it. Slip the skillet into a very hot oven, about 475 degrees, and bake until good and brown.

Baked or fried, serve hot water pones with lots of good butter.

MISS LONG'S PEAR RELISH

12 large pears peeled and cut into pieces and ground

6 red bell peppers seeded and chopped

6 green bell peppers seeded and chopped

6 large onions chopped

2 cups sugar

1 cup vinegar

2 tablespoons salt

Mix all the ingredients together in a big pot and cook them until the mixture is thick, for about 1 hour.

Stir frequently. Ladle the relish into hot, sterilized pint jars, cover and process in a boiling bath for 15 minutes.

BUTTER ROLLS

1½ cups sifted flour

½ teaspoon salt

½ cup shortening or butter
Sift the flour and salt together. Add the shortening or butter and blend to a crumbly stage. Add enough ice water to make a stiff dough. Make the dough into five balls.

Roll each ball of dough into a circle the size of a saucer, dot with butter and sprinkle ½ c. sugar over each circle. Roll each circle of dough up as you would a jelly roll. Place side by side in a square baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until brown. Remove the rolls from the oven and pour over them a mixture of:

1 pint sweet milk

¼ teaspoon nutmeg

1 teaspoon vanilla

Put the rolls back into the oven for 5 additional minutes. Serve warm.

Newspaper Bible

Then Jesus called to the crowd to come and hear. "All of you listen," He said, "and try to understand."

Your souls aren't harmed by what you eat, but by what you think and say!"

Then He went into a house to get away from the crowds, and His disciples asked Him what He meant by the statement He had just made.

"Don't you understand either?" He asked. "Can't you see that what you eat won't harm your soul?"

For food doesn't come in contact with your heart, but only passes through the digestive system." (By saying this He showed that every kind of food is kosher.)

And then He added, "It is the thought-life that pollutes. For from within, out of men's hearts, come evil thoughts of lust, theft, murder, adultery, Wanting what belongs to others, wickedness, deceit, lewdness, envy, slander, pride, and all other folly.

All these vile things come from within; they are what pollute you and make you unfit for God."

Mild weather good for land preparation

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Unusually mild winter weather is allowing farmers to move ahead with land preparation, and that means spring planting can't be far behind.

Field work is widespread across the state although wet conditions are still hampering some operations, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

In South Texas, farmers will start planting corn and sorghum as soon as fields dry from recent rains. Planting also will start soon in the Coastal Bend and in Southwest Texas.

Some farmers in the plains are still trying to complete cotton harvesting operations. About 15 percent of the crop remains to be harvested in the Rolling Plains, while only 2 to 3 percent of the crop is still out in the South Plains, the state's major cotton growing region, Carpenter noted.

Farmers in West Central Texas abandoned some of their cotton due to continuously wet fields.

Some small grain crops — wheat and oats — also are suffering from too much moisture, Carpenter said.

Through Feb. 27

CRP sign-up open at ASCS

COLLEGE STATION — Farmers interested in putting cropland in the government's Conservation Reserve Program will get another opportunity to do so during the Feb. 9-27 sign-up period.

Three sign-up periods were held during 1986, and almost nine million acres of highly erodible cropland across the nation were committed to the program, points out Dr. Bill Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Last year Texas farmers put more than a million acres in the program, which is aimed at curbing soil erosion while at the same time improving water quality and wildlife habitats," Harris explains.

Land accepted into the CRP must be kept out of production for 10 years and prescribed conservation practices must be followed, he points out. This includes planting the land to grass or trees to prevent wind and water erosion, with costs shared by the government.

Landowners must submit a bid on eligible land to their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office during the sign-up period. Land eligibility is determined by the Soil Conservation Service. If the bid is accepted, landowners will be paid that price annually over the 10-year period provided they follow the prescribed conservation plan. The average acceptable bid in Texas was just under $30 an acre during the last sign-up period.

"Essentially, program provisions are the same as last year although there has been a slight revision in land eligibility classifications," says Harris. "That may allow additional land to qualify for the program, so landowners need to check with their local SCS office."

Also, a maximum of 25 percent of any cropland in a county can be put in the CRP unless a special exemption is obtained, notes the specialist.

Because several new phases of the CRP are being enacted this year, including sodbuster, swampbuster and conservation compliance, interest in the CRP should increase, contends Harris. Details on the total program are available at any local ASCS office.

delays. Some melon plantings in the Valley were damaged by heavy rains, Carpenter said.

The mild weather is causing fruit trees to bud and to start blooming, and many growers are concerned about potential freeze damage. Also, some varieties of fruit trees have not had enough chilling hours to set a crop, Carpenter noted.

Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions:

PANHANDLE: A little cotton still remains to be harvested in southeastern counties. Wheat growth is improving due to the mild weather and good soil moisture, and grazing cattle are making good gains. Ranchers are continuing to feed range cattle.

SOUTH PLAINS: Cotton farmers still have 2 to 3 percent of their crop to harvest. Many farmers are busy with land preparations due to the mild, open weather. Wheat is making good progress and is offering some grazing for livestock.

ROLLING PLAINS: Rains the past week again halted cotton harvesting and topdressing of small grains. About 15 percent of the cotton crop still remains to be harvested, with yields and quality declining. Wheat grazing has improved with the warmer weather and good moisture conditions. Some vegetable growers are getting land ready to plant; a few onion plants have been set out.

A national campaign may help save lives. ROPS is asking farmers to install Roll Over Protective Structures and to use safety belts. Each year, many farmers die or suffer severe injuries from tractor rollovers. Large tractors used in tilling, planting and harvesting, along with smaller tractors used in mowing, etc., are both involved in these accidents. A ROLS is a steel frame which fits the tractor cab. The ROLS prevents a tractor from completely rolling over and protects the operator who is wearing a seat belt. Additional safety precautions would ask the farmer to follow these practices when operating a tractor. Avoid embankments, ditches and steep slopes. Engage the clutch slowly. Slow down when turning, crossing hills or approaching rough, slick or muddy surfaces, tall weeds or any visually limited area. Hitch heavy loads to the drawbar. When using a loader, carry the bucket as low as possible. Do not overload. Keep the PTO shield in place. Before unclogging or adjusting equipment, turn off the PTO and tractor. Operate the tractor with wheel tread set as wide as possible. When finished, park, set the brakes and remove the key.

Soil fertility meeting scheduled for Feb. 19

LUBBOCK — The interaction of soils, water and nutrients which will help farmers and ranchers maximize production of crops and grasses will be detailed during a soil fertility conference Feb. 19 at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

The program, beginning at 8:30 a.m. is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences and the USDA Soil Conservation Service. The center is on FM 1294, just east of I-27 at the Shallowater exit.

After a welcome by A. Wayne Wyatt, water district manager, Mike Risinger will outline the role of the water district in soil fertility testing. Risinger is a soil scientist with SCS.

Water use efficiency and soil fertility will be discussed by Dr. Charles Wendt, professor of soil physics with the Experiment Station. Soil fertility management will be the topic of Dr. Art Onken, professor of soil chemistry at the Experiment Station.

Dr. Dan Krieg, crop physiologist at Tech, will discuss water and nutrient requirements in cotton and grain crops. Dr. Michael Hickey, Extension soil chemist in charge of the Texas A&M University soil testing laboratory at Lubbock, will explain the tests and analyses it provides.

Following lunch, Dr. Don Ethridge, agricultural economist at Tech, will present an economic approach to soil management.

The program will conclude with a panel of farmers presenting their perspectives. Panelists will be Monty Hensen, Brownfield; Kelly Thomas, Woodrow; Greg Methvin, Levelland; Eddie Teeter, Lockney, and Pual Kitchens, Slaton.

for research

Adult, youth volunteers to collect during Heart Walk today

Volunteers of the local American Heart Association chapter will be knocking on doors today asking for donations which will help advance medical research to prevent and treat heart disease.

Members of the Hereford High School Key Club and the Keywanettes will be among the adult volunteers working this afternoon.

Last year's drive received $5,505.88.

Alby and Nila Cockrell, this year's Valentine King and Queen at Kings Manor, heartily support today's fund drive. Alby had open heart surgery in 1977 and expanded his life for years. He also served as the Seymour, Texas, chapter president.

Key Club members Darren Printz and Walter Brockman watch a practice call by Keywanette Trina Morgan at the home of Heart Association worker Rosie Wall.

Heart Walk workers Marilyn Culpepper, Lanette Leasure, and Jeff Brown charted a city map this week to route volunteers today.

MRS. JOHN EDWIN MEYER
...nee Jodi Beth Austin

Austin, Meyer wedding vows exchanged

Jodi Beth Austin of Amarillo became the bride of John Edwin Meyer of Hereford during an evening wedding ceremony Saturday at St. Hycianths Church in Amarillo. Monsignor of St. Josephs Church in Amarillo officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Austin, Jr. of Amarillo and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Meyer of Route 4, Hereford.

In depicting a Valentine's theme, the church altar was decorated by heart-shaped candelabra holding 17 tapers and forming a heart accented with fresh greenery, myrtle, lemon, medium emerald, baby's breath, spider mums, carnations, wax flowers, gladioli and a large white satin bow with streamers. Also, accenting the altar was a large formal arrangement of white gladioli, carnations, spider mums, greenery and baby's breath.

The church was further enhanced by two seven-branch candelabra trimmed with greenery and there were 10 pew arrangements tied with large satin bows. Two pews were decorated with aisle brass candelabra accented by garland of greenery, bows with long streamers all of which were set-off by hurricane globes protecting the candles.

A wedding invitation was placed on the unity candle which was flanked by two tapers. The unity stand was decorated by greenery and fresh flowers.

Accenting the alcove areas along the side of the church were two fresh greenery arrangements surrounding hurricane globes with tapers and trimmed by baby's breath and satin bows with long streamers.

D'Ann Woods of Amarillo was maid of honor and the groom's brother, Bob Meyer of Hereford, was best man.

Bridesmaids included Kim Norris and Sheri Goudly, both of Amarillo; and the groom's sisters, Paula Meyer of Lubbock and Donna Goodwin of Pampa.

Groomsmen were the bride's brother, Wes Austin of Amarillo; Steve Artho of Canyon, Brent Walterscheid of Perryton and Brian Urbanczyk of Hereford.

Guests were escorted by the bride's cousin, Chris Reed of Amarillo; the groom's brother-in-law, Jeff Goodwin of Pampa; and Kenneth Waters of Canyon.

The bride's cousins, Yve Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Adams of Harvey, La., and Jamey Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Reed of Amarillo, served as flower girls. The groom's nephew, Jacob Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Goodwin of Pampa, was ring bearer.

Lighting candles were Chris Reed and Jeff Goodwin.

Cathy Steele vocalized "You're A Gift", "The Wedding Song", "I Have Loved You" and "You're An Inspiration" accompanied by Betty Keller.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional gown of white organza. The bodice was overlaid with chantilly lace which was enhanced by a Queen Anne neckline and an open circle back. Crystal pleated organza trimmed the cuffs on the sheer Bishop sleeves and lace appliques decorated the skirt. A large pleated border trimmed the skirt and the semi-cathedral-length train.

To complete her ensemble, the bride wore a two-tier fingertip-length veil attached to a floral headpiece adorned with pearl sprays and shiny organza leaves.

She carried a silk free-style bouquet arranged with red roses, white roses, ginger blossoms, and tiny flocked baby's breath with each stem individually wrapped in satin. The loosely arranged bouquet encircled by white netting, was accented with white satin ribbon and streamers.

Her jewelry included pearl earrings given to her by the groom and a pearl necklace borrowed from her cousin.

Bridal attendants were attired in emerald satin dresses designed with long draped skirts and dropped waistlines marked by bows on the left sides. They were also fashioned with sweetheart necklines. Each carried free-style bouquets of roses, ginger blossoms, white baby's breath, greenery tied with satin ribbon and accented with red tulle. In their hair, they wore a headpiece of red roses, pearl sprays, tulle, greenery and baby's breath.

The flower girls each carried a white lace basket decorated with silk roses, ginger blossoms, baby's breath and greenery across the handle and marked with a red satin ribbon and red tulle. The baskets were filled with silk petals. They wore crescent-shaped headpieces of red roses, pearl sprays, red netting, satin ribbons and streamers.

The bride's mothers wore white rose bud corsages, one accented with green and the other with red. Grandmothers were presented with white silk rose bud corsages.

The bride's cousin, Amy Reed of Amarillo, invited guests to register at the reception held in Independence Hall in Amarillo.

The bride's cake was served by Amy Reed and the groom's cake was served by the bride's cousin, Debbie Reed of Amarillo. Punch was poured by Yvette Adams of Harvey, La. and coffee was served by Candy Lewis of Amarillo.

The bride's table was covered with a long white chiffon cloth draped at the corners and middle and accented with red and white netting and pearls.

The bride's cake, which was decorated with fresh flowers between the tiers and around the base, was topped by an exquisite heirloom porcelain cake ornament detailed in ruffled lace, bridal flowers, sequins and pearls. Tiny battery operated lights were incorporated into the cake's top. Also, arranged on the bride's table were silver serving pieces and silver candelabra holding red tapers.

A white floor-length cloth covered the groom's round table which was topped with a red cap trimmed in red lace. The table was centered with fresh flowers accented with dried flowers surrounding small stacks of hay. It was also decorated by the groom's cake and candelabra with white candles and red napkins.

The food tables, which were covered with white floor-length cloths accented with red and white, were appointed with silver serving pieces. Refreshments included a variety of vegetables, dips, assorted sliced cheese balls, crackers, finger sandwiches, cucumber, cheese and chicken. Individual tables were decorated with votive candle holders with cut-out hearts and fresh flowers encircling the candles.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Cozumel, Mexico, the bride threw a

A sponged finish is probably the easiest painted treatment to begin learning with, since your walls do not have to be perfectly smooth. This can even be done on the lightly textured surface that many of our walls in this part of the country have. Put on your base coat, and allow to dry thoroughly. Then using a sea sponge dipped into greatly thinned glaze, and wrung out to eliminate drips and runs, simply pounce the glaze onto the walls, leaving small blank areas. Allow to dry and pounce on a second glaze in a different shade or color, filling those blank spaces, overlapping. Be free in your use of the glazes; timidity will not achieve the look you want. After the glazes are thoroughly dry, one or two coats of satin varathane seal it and give a beautiful, durable, almost leather-looking wall treatment.

Brown, Serrano exchange vows

Wedding vows were recited by Jo Ann Brown and Louis Andrew Serrano IV during a mid-afternoon ceremony Saturday in St. Anthony's Catholic Church officiated by Father Joe Egan of the church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Brown Jr. of 206 Ironwood and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Serrano III of San Diego, Calif.

The church altar was decorated by two winding candelabra and a floral arrangement of white roses and stephanotis. Four different arrangements, sprinkled in pearls, were placed across the front of the church.

Beth Frye served as maid of honor and Mark Gibbons was best man.

Bridesmaids included Sandra Fairweather, Vickie Paetzold, and the groom's sister, Laurie Serrano. Groomsman included the bride's brother, Westley Brown; the groom's brother, Danny Serrano; and Ron King.

Flower girl was Rachel Serrano, daughter of Laurie Serrano, and ring bearer was Cory Marsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Marsh. Candles were lit by Ashley Hardt and Shayne Fellhauer.

Principal wedding selections were sung by Rudy and Deana Ramirez.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a romantic styled white wedding gown of crystal organza, satin, English net and Venise lace. It was designed with a high lace collar featuring a lace cameo and a sweetheart bodice of beaded lace medallions which was gathered to a basque waistline. The long fitted satin sleeves were adorned by lace insets and featured organza ruffles at the shoulders.

The satin sheath skirt was trimmed with lace medallions and cameos and the back waistline of peplum wire was hemmed with crystal organza. The fly-away chapel-length train was made of organza and was enhanced by lace medallions and bordered in satin.

The chapel-length veil was sprinkled with pearls and was attached to a lace covered pill box cap and a front headband of delicate silk flowers and sprays of seed pearls.

She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses and stephanotis, sprinkled with pearls, and accented with pearl hearts.

Her only jewelry were pearl earrings.

The bridesmaid wore a red long matte taffeta gown fashioned with long slender sleeves, coming to bridal points at the cuffs, ruffled pouf shoulders, sweetheart neckline and fitted bodice which dipped to a point at the front and back. There was a ruffled peplum around the hips and the full skirt gathered softly at the waist.

Cynthia Lightsey invited guests to register at the reception held at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Shanna Avery and Lisa Walsh, both of Amarillo, served cake, and punch and coffee were poured by Carol Estes. Other members of the houseparty included Christine, Kellie, Lisa and Denise Chavarria, all cousins of the bride.

The three-tiered columnade wedding cake which featured six large heart-shaped cakes at the base, was topped with cupids. The front table was covered with a white cloth and decorated with a Valentine motif. Red punch was also served.

Leaving for a wedding trip, the bride wore a winter white jumpsuit with a red belt, red pumps and pearl earrings. The couple will make their home at 138 Ranger.

The bride, a 1983 graduate of Hereford High School, attended West Texas State University and is currently teaching third grade at St. Anthony's School.

The groom graduated from Clairemont High School in San Diego, Calif. in 1983. He attended Mesa Junior College for two years and then attended WTSU on a football scholarship. He is currently a senior criminal justice major at WT.

Out-of-town wedding guests included the groom's parents; his sisters, Laurie Serrano, Kim Mesa and Lisa Faro, all of San Diego, Calif.; his brother, Danny Serrano of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. Ron King and Mark Gibbons, all of San Diego; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Brown Sr. of San Antonio; and Mr. and Mrs. Cruz Chavarria and Mr. and Mrs. John Chavarria, all of Dallas.

PKU women need to know risks

Every so often, automakers issue a recall notice for one of their products, usually because new technology has uncovered a previously hidden problem. Women who have phenylketonuria (PKU) might consider this article their recall notice.

Discovered in 1934, PKU is a genetic disease that, left untreated, causes brain damage in infants and young children. It is a rare, inherited disease in which the body cannot break down a component of protein called phenylalanine. PKU affects one person in 14,000.

In the past, almost all PKU women of childbearing age were mentally retarded and had few children. But, because doctors have been successful in overcoming the effects of PKU through a special diet, PKU females have developed normally in the last 25 years, leading to a potential new problem—pregnancy in women with PKU who are not in dietary control.

Only recently discovered, these problems occur when high levels of phenylalanine cross the placenta to the fetus, causing damage like retardation, microcephaly (abnormally small head), low birthweight and spontaneous abortion. The higher the level of phenylalanine in the mother's bloodstream, the worse the condition of the baby. In the past, most doctors felt PKU children could discard the special diet, so PKU females are approaching their childbearing years with high levels of phenylalanine in their bloodstream.

Bobbie Rouse, M.D., Associate Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Texas Medical Branch (UTMB) at Galveston, is concerned that the new generation of PKU females, having led relatively normal lives, will make a decision about having children unaware of the risks.

UTMB is one of five clinical centers across the U.S. and Canada involved in a seven-year research project to study the effects of maternal PKU on pregnancy outcome. The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development is funding the study. At UTMB, Dr. Rouse is heading the effort of the southeast region to educate PKU women about resuming the special low-phenylalanine diet before getting pregnant in order to provide a better chance of having a healthy baby. Once a woman is pregnant, it may be too late to prevent the problems.

To educate the women, clinic teams all over the U.S. and Canada must find them. Those who were taken off the diet as children might not know they have PKU or even remember being on the diet. Once located, the teams can advise couples about the risks and layout the options from which they can choose.

A woman who suspects she has PKU should contact the State Health Department for the name of the identified PKU center in her state. If treated as a child, she should contact the center where she originally received treatment or call Dr. Rouse at (409)761-2355 for the name of the nearest center.

The irony of PKU is that the very medical advances that enabled PKU girls to grow into healthy women also uncovered maternal PKU, which now threatens to become a major cause of new cases of mental retardation.

McCathern places third

Janet McCathern took third place in the recent TSTI Annual Interior Design Student Competition. All fabric designs are on display at the Amarillo Art Center through Feb. 27.

She received $50 for third place. A resident of Hereford, McCathern is the daughter of W.T. Higgins of Wildorado. She is a graduate of Hereford High School.

The Panhandle Chapter of the American Society of Interior

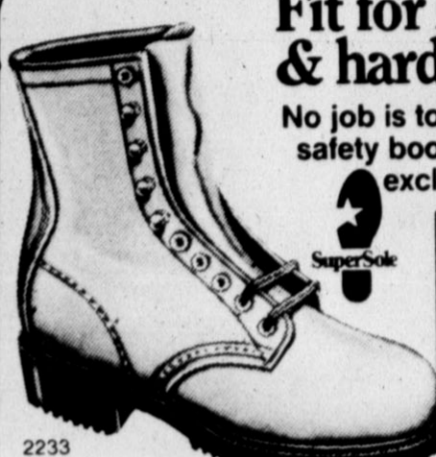

Designers co-sponsored the event and provided the prize money. Texas State Technical Institute's interior design technology also co-sponsored the competition.

BECKIE FRY

Sorority chapters present sweethearts

Sweethearts for local Beta Sigma Phi chapters were to be honored during the organization's annual Valentine Ball on Saturday evening.

Representing Alpha Iota Mu for the 1986-87 sorority year is Beckie Fry. Fry joined the chapter in October of 1983 and has served as chairman of the scrapbook committee, a City Council alternate and representative and is now the vice-president and chairs the membership committee. She holds a Bachelor's degree in vocational home economics from East Texas State University and is currently involved in baking and catering for the public. She is married to Stan Fry Jr. the couple have three daughters; six-year-old Emily, three-year-old Katherine and 17 month-old Rebecca. The family are members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church where Fry is active in the women's organization and co-editor of the church newsletter.

Xi Epsilon Alpha Exemplar chapter selected Connie Matthews as their chapter sweetheart. Matthews has been a member of Beta Sigma Phi since she joined Alpha Iota Mu chapter in 1979. She served that chapter as vice-president, extension officer, chairman of the membership committee and as sweetheart and girl of the year.

Matthews progressed to Xi Epsilon Alpha chapter in 1984. She currently holds the office of vice-president and membership chairman. She is also serving a two year term as Advisor for Alpha Iota Mu. Matthews is a 1972 Hereford High School graduate. She is employed by Stagner-Orsborn Buick-Pontiac-GMC, Inc. She enjoys building and collecting scale miniatures, photography and reading.

Barbara Burkhalter is the chapter sweetheart of Alpha Alpha Preceptor chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. Burkhalter joined sorority in 1972 and is currently treasurer and year-book chairman. She has been on all committees and held most of the offices in her years as a member. She is a graduate of West Texas State University with degrees in Art Education and English. Burkhalter holds an All-levels teaching certificate and has elementary counseling credentials. She teaches at First Baptist Church Kindergarten. She and her husband, Johnnie, have two sons; twelve-year-old Tim and Scott who is ten years old. The family are members of First Christian Church.

Introducing a Totally New Television System Sound So Real, It's Like Being There

Zenith presents a bold new line of Color Television with Sound by Bose. A sound with amazingly deep, rich bass. A sound with startlingly crisp, clear highs and mid-ranges. A sound you'd expect to hear only from an audio component system. This spectacular new sound, combined with Zenith's all new Digital System 3 TV gives an audio-video experience that you have to see and hear to believe.

- ▲ Bose-developed Waveguide speaker system produces deep, rich bass from a small enclosure.
- ▲ Conventional tweeter and mid-range speakers are combined into two specially-designed, front-firing Twiddlers™.
- ▲ Dynamic Equalization Circuit automatically balances the relative volume of the bass with mid-range and high frequencies.
- ▲ Play CDs or other audio components through the TV sound system. Use the Audio Only switch to turn off the video.
- ▲ Three Amplifier Sound System
- ▲ Built-in World System Teletext Decoding
- ▲ 27" diagonal screen size
- ▲ Computer Space Command 7200 Remote Control
- ▲ MTS Stereo Decoder
- ▲ Chromacolor Contrast Picture Tube for superior color and resolution

'Amerika' came at right time for depressed farm town

TECUMSEH, Neb. (AP) — A year ago, this farm town scraped bottom when its only bank closed.

The crisis of Feb. 7, 1986, was brief. The Johnson County Bank was federally insured, and it soon reopened under new ownership.

There was nothing unique about a bank failure — 138 federally insured banks failed last year. But it does explain something about the town's enthusiasm and affection for "Amerika," the television extravaganza that chose Tecumseh as its main locale.

"Amerika," a drama about life in America under Soviet rule, begins a seven-day, 14½-hour run on ABC Sunday night. It concludes Feb. 22.

"I think the morale boost was as great as the money boost," said Eloise Bartels, secretary-treasurer of the local Chamber of Commerce and the mayor's wife.

For her carpenter husband, Lavern, "Amerika" meant work.

For the members of the chamber, whose shops were boarded up and festooned with weeds for the filming, ABC left each with a fresh paint job and built a handsome gazebo on the courthouse lawn.

"They left the town much better than when they came in," said Mrs. Bartels.

"It was the best thing that could have happened to our town," said Sue Cooper, who is blind and sort of a newcomer, arriving eight years ago. "It brought income and jobs — a job for me, which I hadn't been able to find since moving here."

Ms. Cooper worked two days as an extra with help from Amber, her itchy, amiable golden retriever.

The U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles in 1919 by a vote of 55-39.

The Ford Motor Co. announced in 1959 it was halting production of the Edsel.

Nearly 500 people died in 1984 in a firestorm set off by a series of explosions at a petroleum storage plant on the edge of Mexico City.

"It gave Tecumseh something new to talk about," she said. "I think it revived some people."

There's not much to Tecumseh, founded in 1856. It has 1,900 residents, a seven-page telephone directory, and a downtown on the four streets around the courthouse, an ornate red-and-white structure built in 1889 that is the town's only excuse to print postcards.

Hundreds of people worked as extras, marching in parades, standing in crowds, running from tanks, posing as exiled dissidents at a "squalor camp" outside town.

They rubbed elbows with Kris Kristofferson, Robert Urich and Mariel Hemingway. They waited a lot, worked a little and thought about what it would be like to live in a conquered country.

"I tell you, when the helicopters flew over the parade, tears came to my eyes," said Su Goracke, who talked about her role as an exile over coffee at Helen's Cafe, the town's daytime social center.

"They just scared you, and those men drove by you with guns," she said. "When you're dressed like we were dressed, it could have been happening."

Tecumseh residents sometimes are defensive about "Amerika," which has been criticized as anti-Soviet, or even as anti-American because it depicts a country that had no will to resist.

"I don't think anyone is trying to slam our nation, to say we wouldn't defend ourselves," said Ms. Goracke, who had seen the first four hours of "Amerika" at a January preview in Lincoln.

"Ever since I've been to the premiere, I've thought about it more. It won't be put aside."

"Don't take for granted what you've got," said her companion, Jody Gregory. "Things we used to take for granted we can't anymore."

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was born in 1925 in Brookline, Mass.

Twenty-four Nazi leaders were put on trial in 1945 before an international war crimes tribunal at Nuremberg, Germany.

Design of home may have impact on patient

Attention to furniture arrangements and upholstery patterns can produce safer and less confusing environments for Alzheimer's disease patients.

Texas Tech University Professors Joann L. Shroyer and Georgina M. Anderson of the Department of Merchandising, Environmental Design and Consumer Economics and J. Thomas Hutton of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center Department of Medical and Surgical Neurology have examined how interior designs can be modified to meet the physical and social needs of Alzheimer's patients.

"Individuals suffering from Alzheimer's disease experience memory loss, disorientation, deteriorating ability to perform normal physical activities, a decrease in ability to remember details, impairment in judgment and difficulty in verbal expression," Shroyer said.

"The design of home and institutional environments may have an impact on the functioning and well-being of Alzheimer's patients."

Shroyer, Hutton and Anderson have contributed one of nine articles dealing with Alzheimer's disease in the January issue of Texas Medicine. This is only the second time the state medical journal has concentrated on a single topic.

One of the major problems of Alzheimer's disease and other dementing illnesses is that patients forget how to perform routine tasks and may become unable to identify common objects. Shroyer said they may become confused by complex patterns and designs and develop increased sensitivity to glare, sharp color contrasts and changing light conditions.

Because of these visual limitations, Shroyer suggests that large patterns or solid colors in upholstery and textiles be used for maximum visibility.

"Small designs such as geometric patterns can produce blurred vision and eye fatigue," she said. "The use of larger patterns allows an Alzheimer's victim to see objects more clearly and reduces the probability that he or she will bump into or fall over furniture."

To encourage social integration, interior designs should be selected and arranged to assist the patient in ease of movement from one area to another. Shroyer said paths between furniture groups should be easily maneuverable and clear of obstacles such as low hassocks, footstools or tables.

Sofas and chairs should have wooden or metal arms large enough to permit easy gripping while sitting or rising. The wooden or metal arms also allows the individual to identify the arm of the sofa or chair by touch. The center section of long sofas are often wasted spaces because the patient cannot reach the sofa's arms, she said.

As the aging population of the U.S. increases, the number of people with Alzheimer's and other dementing illness will increase. Shroyer and her coauthors said more emphasis must be directed at the specific needs of this growing group.

"Although human beings have a great propensity to adapt to less than ideal conditions," Shroyer said.

Extension club fulfills needs

By DEBE GRAVES
Feature Writer

Home, Family and Community have been the focus of the North Hereford Extension Club for 56 years. Since its inception, in 1931, with 18 charter members the club, like all Extension Clubs, has sought to better the lives of its members through education and fellowship.

Home Demonstration organizations are the largest group of club women in the world. There are 22,000 members in Texas and the Panhandle district, consisting of 19 counties, claims 1881 members. Extension Homemakers Clubs, are an educational extension of Texas Agricultural Extension Service and rely to some extent on the County Extension agent for programs, etcetera. However the North Hereford group continued meeting even through the depression years when there was no county agent.

Originally started to assist young homemakers and farm wives, club meetings provided much needed social ties mixed in with all of the gardening, canning and sewing projects.

Peg Hoff states, "I learned to use a pressure cooker at club meetings and then canned 1,000 jars of vegetables from my garden." Hoff is the senior member of the current group with 41 years to her credit. She has served as president of her club four separate times.

"Years ago we used to work more with crafts," she recalls, "Once we made beaten silver trays and copper pictures. We also ordered the materials and made kid leather gloves."

Meetings are still held in member's homes and, though arts and crafts are not as popular a program topic as they once were, members still take advantage of program topics to learn more about the world.

Recent topics have included: money management, clothing made from sheets, horticulture, fertilizer and insecticides and, each September, the county agent teaches new crafts suitable for Christmas giving.

Members answer roll call at the monthly meetings by responding to a question such as, "The name of my first sweetheart," "My car license number is..." or "The most foolish purchase I have made is..." Perhaps The Greatest Lesson These Ladies Learn From Their Membership Is That Of Lasting Friendship.

President Edith Higgins observes, "Club means so much to me. My husband supports me in this because he knows how much I enjoy it. He especially looks forward to the Thanksgiving supper we members give for our families. Everyone in club is friendly and we stick together."

Naomi Brisendine agrees that friendships she has made through the club are dear to her and adds, "The friends I have met, the places I have learned... Well, my life just wouldn't have been nearly as interesting without Extension club."

Martha Lueb considers the many projects the club sponsors very important, "We have Girlstown and the Satellite Center as projects and, of course, we continue to sponsor 4-H," she says.

The North Hereford Extension Club meets on the first Thursday of each month. Anyone interested in joining the group is welcome to attend and is encouraged to contact one of the members or the County Extension Agent for more information.

Theatre presentation set Feb. 26

West Texas State University's Student Activities Council will present Burdette Parks in a dinner theatre presentation of "Frankly B. Franklin" Thursday, Feb. 26, at 6:30 p.m. in the University's East Dining Hall.

"Frankly, B. Franklin" is billed as a show about, by and for Benjamin Franklin and America. Actor Burdette Parks portrays a man who was able to enjoy life through great adversity and make lasting contributions against all odds.

Franklin founded America's first subscription library, invented the Franklin stove, organized the first volunteer fire company, invented a bifocals, was the oldest signator of the Declaration of Independence, identified and charted the Gulf Stream - and of course we all know about his exploits with kites and keys and electricity.

He also published gems like these in "Poor Richard's Almanac": "Nothing is certain but death and taxes. Fish and visitors stink in three days. Three may keep a secret if two are dead. The worst wheel makes the most noise. He that lies down with dogs will rise up with fleas."

LEGENDARY HUMORIST

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — Legendary humorist Will Rogers was born in 1879 in what was then Colagah, Indian Territory (now Oklahoma).

In the 1920s and 1930s, he became a roving ambassador of homespun humor, acting as a spokesman for rural America and the common folk everywhere.

After his death in a plane crash in 1935, residents of Oklahoma founded the Will Rogers Museum as a tribute to him.

Franklin's spicely wit enlivened his publications and scandalized succeeding generations, some of his earlier observations only coming to light within the last few years.

In "Frankly, B. Franklin," Parks exposes the bawdy wit and down-home wisdom of this man whose enemies were few and whose friends, both men and women, were legion.

Burdette Parks is an actor, director, playwright, and technical theatre and makeup consultant. The 42-year-old North Dakota native has managed and directed at the Fort Sam Houston Playhouse and the San Antonio Melodrama Theatre. He has toured nationally with "Frankly, B. Franklin" since 1982, receiving critical acclaim.

Tickets for the Feb. 26 performance at WTSU are $6.50 ($4 for WT students with meal cards). Tickets may be purchased at the information desk in the Henson Activities Center or reserved by calling 656-2296.

The United States has about 16,500 magazines, more than any other country.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Marshmallow made non-sticky

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — When I tried to make marshmallow eggs last year, I couldn't get the marshmallows out of the molds. How can I keep the marshmallow mixture from sticking to the mold? I dusted it with cornstarch as my recipe suggested, but it was still a gooey mess. — LIZ

DEAR LIZ — Marshmallow is gooey and sticky to work with, and dusting with cornstarch does help minimize the sticking. However, I've found a better method.

Try spraying the molds with a non-stick cooking spray before dusting the molds heavily with cornstarch. This will enable you to get a thicker coating of cornstarch, and the marshmallows should be much easier to remove from the molds.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Handmade Chocolates," which features a recipe for homemade marshmallows, including directions for dipping them in melted, tempered chocolate. This newsletter also offers recipes for dark, milk and white chocolate and peanut-butter truffles, chocolate-covered caramels, cashew-caramel clusters and complete directions for tempering chocolate for candy-dipping. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I have come up with a way to mend tube socks with holes in the toes easily and quickly. I cut the end (with the hole) of the sock off and simply stitch the cut toe up on my machine. The sock is a little shorter, but this procedure does not really hurt it. — ALYCE

DEAR POLLY — After purchasing four pairs of name-brand jeans and two pairs of not-so-famous jeans, my son suggested that we mark the less expensive work jeans with a "W" on the left pocket, using a permanent marker. After laundering, the jeans can be sorted easily as to work and dress jeans. After all, blue jeans are blue, and in a closet they all look alike — expensive or not.

P.S. My son gets the money if our Pointer is used. It's not often a 20-year-old thinks about laundry! — R.K.

DEAR POLLY — I read of a test to tell whether a ceramic or plastic dish is safe for a microwave oven or not. Do you know what this test is? — A.R.

DEAR A.R. — The test is quite simple. First, make sure there are no metal parts or metallic decorations on the dish. Then, put the empty dish in the microwave oven along with a glass measuring cup of water (never put an empty dish without any liquid or food into the oven). Heat on "full power" for one minute. If after one minute, the empty dish is cool, the dish is microwave-safe. If the dish is slightly warm, it can be used for short-term cooking. If the dish is hot and the water is still cool, do not use the dish in the microwave. A hot empty dish means that the utensil is absorbing microwaves instead of permitting them to pass through, as they should for safe microwave cooking. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I have a pair of flat-heeled plastic boots I use to soak my feet instead of a pan or bucket. It takes a very small amount of water this way. Baking soda deodorizes, so I add a bit of that. — ELEANOR

DEAR POLLY — When I was building our new home, I used a sizable notebook to draw diagrams of each room showing the exact location of wall studs and ceiling joists. ## Scholarship pageant scheduled March 28

The 1987 Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant is being sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. The pageant is slated for Saturday, March 28, at 7 p.m. in the Hereford High School auditorium.

Pageant entrants are required to be unmarried girls from ages 16-20. All interested girls are invited to compete in this annual event with entry forms available at the Chamber of Commerce office or from any of the participating merchants.

The pageant theme this year will be "Miami Vice," with activities to include a "Don Johnson Look-Alike Contest" in order to secure an escort for the contestants on pageant night, and to participate in the opening festivities.

This year's pageant offers a host of prizes comparable to last year's pageant. A total of over $2,000 will be given away in the form of scholarships and wardrobe to the top three contestants. Contestants will compete in the interview, talent, and evening gown categories.

Miss Hereford 1987 will receive a choice of three scholarships from West Texas State University, South Plains Junior College, or Clarendon Junior College.

Along with the scholarship from the college of her choice, Miss Hereford 1987 will receive a $600 wardrobe from Betty's Shoes, Little's, EtCetera, Pants Cage, Penney's, The Vogue and Anthony's.

First runner-up will receive a $400 wardrobe scholarship, and second runner-up will receive a $200 wardrobe from the above-mentioned local merchants.

All contestants will receive a Miss Hereford Survival Kit with local merchants donating various useful items to the girls for pageant week activities.

The winner of Miss Congeniality and the talent winner will be given prizes from the Chamber of Commerce Women's Division.

Also, the Miss Hereford Steering Committee will present each contestant with a set of sterling silver bracelets.

Planning Scholarship Pageant

Members of the Miss Hereford steering committee are making plans for the 1987 Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant set for 7 p.m. March 28 in the Hereford High School auditorium. The event is open to all unmarried girls from ages 16-20. A total of $2,000 will be given away in the form of scholarships and wardrobe to the top three contestants. Entry forms are available at the

Most sleep problems not really insomnia

The harder you try to sleep, the harder it is to fall asleep.

While most people experience difficulty falling asleep due to some outside stress, Chairperson Gustavo C. Roman of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center (TTUHSC) Department of Medical and Surgical Neurology, said those temporary problems are not insomnia.

"Most sleep problems are reflections of normal daily life," Dr. Roman said. "Insomnia is only considered to be present when a person cannot go to sleep for three to four hours after turning the lights out every night for a month," Roman said.

Roman said many people find that when they have trouble falling asleep, a glass of wine or a cocktail will relax them so they fall asleep faster. But he warns that can be a dangerous cure.

"Eventually, greater quantities of alcohol are needed to be able to sleep," Roman said. "When that happens, the sleep pattern is broken. The person does not move into REM (rapid eye movement) sleep, which is the deepest sleep stage where dreaming occurs. As a result, the person is less rested in the morning. It can become a vicious cycle."

Insomnia is one of the many disorders Roman and his colleagues see at the TTUHSC Center for Sleep Disorders. Roman, who is director for the center, said about 50 million men, women and children in the U.S. suffer from some form of sleep disorder. The center, the first in West Texas, was developed to diagnosis and treat the frustrating and sometimes fatal sleep disorders.

One of the most common problems seen at the Center for Sleep Disorders is sleep apnea, a disorder that in its extreme can be life threatening.

"Sleep apnea occurs when the breathing passages become blocked causing a stoppage of breathing for from 10 to 90 seconds," Roman said. "These apneas can occur hundreds of times a night. When breathing stops, the concentration of oxygen in the blood drops forcing blood pressure up. This can cause unusual heat rhythms and even sudden death."

Snoring is the major symptom of sleep apnea, Roman said. Often, instead of being aware there is a breathing-pattern problem in a partner, spouses have been driven to sleeping elsewhere by the heavy snoring and may not be aware there is actually a stoppage of breathing.

Besides the physical problems, Roman said sleep apnea, which most often strikes men over age 45, affects the sleep pattern causing people to spend more sleep time in the less restful early cycles of sleep.

"Apnea victims spend their nights in the first two stages of sleep," Roman said. "They do not progress into delta sleep (the third and fourth stages) or finally into the REM stage which is the most restful stage of sleep."

Roman said many children suffer from sleep disorders known as night terrors. These night terrors are not normal nightmares because they happen during Delta sleep when dreams, including nightmares, do not occur.

"With night terrors, children wake up in a panic," he said. "They are usually a reflection of environmental stress caused by a parental divorce or other traumatic change in the child's life."

Sleep walking is another major sleep disorder that Roman warns can be dangerous.

"The theory that a sleep walker won't get hurt is wrong and dangerous," Roman said. "A sleep walker can get into serious trouble if there are stairs or plate glass doors around."

Roman also said a change in a work shift or changing time zones can cause sleep problems.

"Anytime one changes his sleeping patterns from day to night or faces a major shift in time zones, sleep problems are a possibility," Roman said. "It can take one week or more for people to get their inner clocks adjusted to a different job cycle or to different time zone. There is evidence that a number of accidents can be blamed on jet lag or job shift changes because when there must be a change in sleep cycles, the body may not be fully awake when it needs to be."

Roman said many sleep problems are reflections of the stresses that occur in daily life. In cases where the stress cannot be easily removed, people should concentrate on building good sleep habits.

"Because the harder one tries to go to sleep the harder it is to get to sleep, people should develop a sleep routine that will help them set their inner clock for bed time," he said.

"Drinking a glass of warm milk really is helpful. It contains the amino acid tryptophan that is one of the body's messengers that tells the brain to go to sleep."

Roman said appointments at the Center for Sleep Disorders can be made through a family physician or through the Sleep Hotline at (806)743-2020. Patients at the sleep clinic are carefully interviewed about past medical history. They often spend one to two nights in the home-like private rooms of the center for polysomnograms, or sleep recordings. The tests and medical history will be reviewed by the appropriate expert from a team of specialists including neurologists, cardiologists, pulmonologists, psychiatrists, neuropediatricians, urologists, gastroenterologists, ear-nose-throat specialists, oral surgeons and experts in the physiology of sleep.

MR. AND MRS. TIM BURK
...married Saturday

Couple weds Saturday

An evening wedding service was read on Valentine's Day, joining Kimberly Thogmartin of Canyon and Tim Burk of Amarillo.

The service was read at the bridegroom's residence with David Rindlisbacher, a member of the Amarillo Stake presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, as officiant.

The bride is the daughter of Gene and Shirley Anderson of Hereford and Bill and Stella Rogers of Jacksboro, Texas. She is employed as news editor for The Canyon News.

Employed as parts manager for Century Aircraft of Amarillo, the bridegroom is the son of Jeff Burk of Amarillo and John and Polly Dunn of Bushland.

The newlyweds will reside north of Canyon with their five children, following a wedding trip to the Ozark Mountains in Arkansas.

Coplen, Ladies Sextet perform at meeting

The Ladies Sextet of First Baptist Church and Archie Coplen performed for members of Hereford Music Study Club when the group met Monday evening in Kinsey Parlor.

The sextet consisted of Susan Shaw, Robbi Ames, Denise Teel, Ginger Wallace, Terri Laing and Jan Walsler. They were accompanied by Linda Gilbert. Their musical selections included "I Will Glory in the Cross", "Never Be", "Children of the Harvest", "Shine Down", "Amazing Grace" and "To God Be the Glory."

Coplen, who serves as music director of FBC, was accompanied by Jan Walsler on the piano and Cindy Rogers on the flute. He sang "Oh, What a Beautiful City", "At the River", "There's a Crown For Me",

"Wondrous Love", "Dear Lord, Remember Me" and "O Glorious Love".

During the business meeting, it was announced that the Texas Federation of Music Clubs Convention will be held March 11-14 at the Day's Inn Convention Center in Lubbock.

Also, members discussed the Junior Music Festival slated March 7 in First Baptist Church. The next meeting was planned at 2 p.m. March 8 which has been designated as Student Musicians Day in Deaf Smith County Library.

Serving as hostesses were Evelyn Hacker, Jan Walsler and Cheryl Betzen.

Chronic exercise program beneficial

Almost everyone can find a physical activity that will provide the benefits of a chronic exercise program and make them feel better.

Claire Kispert, a physical therapy professor in the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center School of Allied Health, said the key is finding the right form of exercise.

"For some people the right kind of exercise is just walking," said Dr. Kispert. "They have to take into consideration what they like to do and their personal goals for exercising."

She said when individuals find activities they enjoy doing, they have made progress toward overcoming one of the major obstacles to an exercise program—non-compliance.

"Exercising is a very individual thing," she said. "People have different priorities and different motivations. If you enjoy doing something and you feel the benefits you had hoped for, then your chances of sticking with it are going to be much greater than if you really don't enjoy the activity."

For most adults, the major goal of an exercise program is cardiovascular fitness, she said. Aerobic exercises such as aerobic dance, stationary and outdoor cycling, swimming, walking and running promote fitness by increasing the cardiovascular system's ability to deliver oxygen to active muscles.

The risk of developing coronary artery disease is lowered by a regular aerobic exercise program, Kispert said. The benefit is related to the role of exercise in keeping body weight and blood pressure within normal ranges and in altering blood cholesterol.

Kispert said that to gain the benefits of exercise individuals need to exercise at around 75-80 percent of their maximal heart rate or their heart rate when they exercise as hard as they can.

"You can only last at your maximal level for three or four minutes," she said. "Many people feel they have to go out and run at their maximal level. You don't have and, in fact, that can be dangerous. Too strenuous exercise can get you in trouble and exercise that is not strenuous enough won't provide the benefits."

The long-term benefits of aerobic exercise are that the submaximal heart rate decreases and the maximal aerobic capacity increases. The end result is that the cardiovascular system can pump more blood and oxygen while putting less stress on itself, she said.

"Physical therapists can come up with individualized exercise prescriptions which address specific problems and areas of focus," Kispert said. "Some people need to keep in mind medical problems, such as kidney disease or diabetes and others want to exercise to lose weight. The exercise program would be different for each situation."

She said people who know very little about exercise should probably consult a health care professional before starting an exercise program. People over 40 who are just beginning to exercise and those with health problems or a family history of health problems should also take a stress test, such as running on a treadmill, to determine their maximal heart rate and how hard they should exercise.

"Sedentary people who just go out and start exercising can run into some problems," she said. "Everyone should start gradually and that's more important the older you are."

For starters, individuals should exercise 20-30 minutes three times weekly for four to six weeks. If no problems develop, they can increase to 45 minutes four or five times a week and continue to build until they get as much exercise as they want.

Financial aid hotline available Feb. 21-22

The second annual Financial Aid Awareness Week, sponsored by the Texas Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators (TASFAA), is scheduled for this week.

A featured event this year will be a toll-free Financial Aid Hotline which will be available the weekend of Feb. 21-22. The hotline (1-800-253-8989) will be active from 10 a.m. through 6 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday (21st and 22nd).

Financial aid officers from throughout the state will be on hand to provide information regarding the financial aid programs which are available and to answer questions concerning the application process. Bilingual assistance will also be available.

Many students do not plan for education or training beyond high school because they are unaware of resources available to them. Adults may not seek career advancement or career change because they lack financial resources for further training or education. TASFAA wants to make people aware of the financial aid programs which are available to assist them in obtaining their career goals.

Students and parents are encouraged to contact their high school guidance counselor, the financial aid office at the school of their choice, or the TASFAA Financial Aid Hotline for general information or for assistance with specific questions relating to the application process.

Marco Polo brought the noodle to the Western world from China in the late 13th century. However, chow mein, stir-fried noodles, did not reach the shores of America until the 19th century. The popular Oriental dish was introduced here by Chinese laborers building the transcontinental railroad.

Gray hair will become more popular as more women pour their rinses down the drain and let their true colors show, predicts Health magazine.

The beard area of adult men contains from 6,000 to 25,000 coarse hair fibers or whiskers. These hairs grow at different rates but average approximately one-half millimeter every 24 hours.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 37 years old and was amazed when my doctor told me I have a dangerously high cholesterol level. It is 289. He said it should be under 200.

What is cholesterol? We hear a lot of talk about it but nobody bothers to explain anything. I am not overweight and I try to eat sensibly. My doctor seems to think a low-fat diet will solve my problem. He says if it doesn't he will put me on medication.

I am upset because I had no idea I was not in the best of health. I'll bet you have millions of readers who are in the same fix and don't even know it. Please answer my questions and put my mind at ease.—H.G. in Washington, D.C.

DEAR H.G.: Cholesterol is a fatty, wax-like substance that circulates in the blood. Our bodies manufacture all we need to build cells and make hormones. When we get too much cholesterol by eating certain foods, our arteries may become clogged. This interferes with the flow of blood to the heart or brain and may cause a stroke or heart attack.

High cholesterol levels are dangerous and often there are no symptoms. I hope everyone who reads this will send for a free booklet on the subject. Write to Citizens for Public Action on Cholesterol, P.O. Box 1288, Medina, OH 44258.

This booklet could save your life, or that of someone dear to you. I cannot think of anything you will do today that is more important than taking advantage of this offer.

Latin America's principal source of foreign exchange to keep current on its debt has been derived from a trade surplus generated by a sharp reduction in imports from the industrial countries, according to a report of the Inter-American Development Bank.

President Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address in 1863 as he dedicated a national cemetery at the site of the Civil War battlefield in Pennsylvania.

The United States and Britain signed the Jay Treaty in 1794 to resolve some of the issues left over from the Revolutionary War.

James Garfield, the 20th president of the United States, was born in Orange, Ohio, in 1831.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Once again my marriage barely survived another visit of my stepchildren. Please help me understand a situation that seems to be a national epidemic. In a society where second marriages are commonplace, how does a second wife escape being "the wicked stepmother"?

I am not included in any decisions regarding the arrival of his kids, their departure or how long they will stay. Two years ago I was informed (after the arrangements were made) that his eldest son was coming to live with us while he attended college.

When I get to the breaking point and insist that we discuss a problem I am having with one of his children, his response is, "Yours aren't perfect."

During the 10 years we have been together, our most serious disagreements have revolved around his children.

If you know of a solution, please pass it on. I am stumped.—The Wicked Stepmother in N.Y.

DEAR STEP: Women who marry men with children should expect problems. If the woman also has children she faces double jeopardy.

I strongly recommend joint counseling. This affords both parties an opportunity to air their grievances. They must agree in advance to abide by the decision of an impartial observer. In the absence of an arbitrator, you can expect continual controversy, growing hostility and, possibly, another divorce.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's a short reply to "A Florida Reader": Old folks talk about the past, because they have no future. Young folks speak of the future, because they have no past.—Old & Boring in L.A.

DEAR O.&B.: Beautifully said.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

CAY ZETZSCHE, TRACE TAYLOR

Couple to wed

Georgia Cay Zetzsche and Trace Doyle Taylor, both of Hereford, plan to exchange wedding vows April 18 in Temple Baptist Church.

The bride-elect is the daughter of George and Frances Zetzsche of Route 2 and the prospective bridegroom is the son of Verl and Sandra Taylor of Rossville, Ga.

Miss Zetzsche graduated from Hereford High School and Texas Tech University. She is currently a teacher at Aikman Elementary School.

Taylor, a graduate of Christian Heritage School in El Paso, is presently employed with N.A.P.A. Auto Parts.

The African elephant has the largest ears of the animal kingdom. They may grow as large as four feet across.

Wedding vows spoken on Valentine's Day

Wedding vows were spoken Saturday afternoon in First church of the Nazarene by Jeanne Lomas and Shane Landers, both of Hereford. Valentine's Day ceremony was officiated by the Rev. Bob Huffaker of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Carnahan of Hereford and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Landers, also of Hereford.

Amy Horton served as maid of honor and best man was John Slentz.

The bride's daughter, Laura Lomas, served as bridesmaid as did the groom's daughters, Angela and Amanda Landers.

Groomsmen were the bride's sons, Jeremy and Kasey Lomas.

Janette Carnahan sang "To Me", "He Has Chosen You For Me" and "The Wedding Prayer" accompanied by Evelyn Hacker.

JoAnn and Janette Carnahan served cake at the reception held in the church fellowship hall. Elizabeth Landers invited guests to register.

The couple will make their home in Hereford following a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast.

Red Cross Update

Congratulations to the 5th and 6th graders at St. Anthony's School. The classes have completed a basic CPR class. They have worked on one rescuer procedure for choking, rescue breathing and one rescuer CPR for adults, children and infants. Nadine Berend has helped with all of the classes this all week. Extra special thanks to Nadine and all of the other people that helped do the classes.

The Board of Directors will meet Tuesday at noon at the Red Cross office.

The Disaster Committee will meet Tuesday Feb. 24, 7:30 p.m. at the Red Cross office. The local disaster preparedness plan will be updated. The office telephone number is 364-3761 if any further information is needed.

Congratulations to Scout Troop No. 50 led by Gary Billingsley. The troop has been working on First Aid and will continue to work on both the Scout Merit Badge for First Aid and the Red Cross First Aid Certificate. A First Aid class will begin at the Senior Citizens Center Thursday. The class will begin at 1:30 p.m. and finish at 5 p.m. The class will be completed Thursday, Feb. 26, at the Senior Citizens Center.

The Deaf Smith County Chapter of the American Red Cross is a United Way Agency.

NOTICE OF BOND ELECTION
THE STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF DEAF SMITH
TO THE RESIDENT,
QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF
THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY
HOSPITAL DISTRICT:
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that an election will be held in the District on February 28, 1987, pursuant to and in accordance with the Order Calling An Election, adopted by the Board of Directors of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District and attached hereto and made a part hereof for all intents and purposes.
IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto signed my name officially and affixed hereto the seal of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District this 30 day of January, 1987.
DEAF SMITH COUNTY HOSPITAL DISTRICT
By Charles Threewit
President

ORDER NO. 101
AN ORDER CALLING A BOND ELECTION TO BE HELD WITHIN THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY HOSPITAL DISTRICT, MAKING PROVISIONS FOR THE CONDUCT OF THE ELECTION AND OTHER PROVISIONS INCIDENT AND RELATED TO THE PURPOSES AND SUBJECT OF THIS ORDER
WHEREAS, the Deaf Smith County Hospital District (the "District") is authorized by Acts 1971, 62nd Legislature, p. 663, ch. 59 (the "Act") to issue bonds for the purpose of refunding outstanding indebtedness it has issued or assumed and for the purpose of improving and equipping buildings for hospital purposes; and

WHEREAS, the District has outstanding indebtedness it wishes to refund; and

WHEREAS, the District desires to acquire certain new equipment to be used by the District for hospital purposes; and

WHEREAS, the District is further authorized by article 717k, Section 2(a) Texas. Rev. Civ. Stat. Ann. (Vernon Supp. 1987) to issue refunding bonds in combination with new bonds; and

WHEREAS, the Board of Directors considers it in the best interest of the District at this time to refund certain outstanding indebtedness and acquire certain new equipment to be used by the District for hospital purposes; and

WHEREAS, it is provided in the Act that bonds of the District shall not be issued by the District until authorized by a majority of the qualified voters of the District;

BE IT ORDERED BY THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY HOSPITAL DISTRICT:

1. That an election (the "Election") shall be held in and throughout the Deaf Smith County Hospital District, the boundaries of which are coterminous with the boundaries of Deaf Smith County, Texas, on the 28th day of February, 1987, which is a date not less than 15 nor more than 90 days from the date of this Order, at which election the following proposition shall be submitted:

"Shall the Board of Directors of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District be authorized to issue bonds of the District, in one or more series of issues, in the aggregate principal amount of $1,500,000, with the bonds of each series or issue to mature serially or otherwise within not to exceed 40 years from their date of issuance, and to bear interest at a variable rate not in excess of the maximum rate permitted by law, and to be sold at such price or prices as shall be determined within the discretion of the Board of Directors at the time of issuance, for the purpose of refunding certain outstanding indebtedness of the District and for the purpose of improving and equipping buildings to be used by the District for hospital purposes, and to provide for the payment of the principal of and interest on the bonds out of the tax authorized by Article IX, Section 9 of the Texas Constitution, and by Acts 1971, 62nd Legislature, p. 663, chapter 59, by levying and collecting annual taxes upon all taxable property located within the District in an amount sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds when due and to provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the bonds as they mature?"

2. That the Election shall be held throughout the Deaf Smith County Hospital District in the regular election precinct of the District as heretofore approved and adopted by the Board. The polling place within such precinct shall be the Hereford Community Center, located at 100 Avenue C, Hereford, Texas. On the date of the Election the polling place shall be open from 7:00 o'clock a.m. to 7:00 o'clock p.m.

3. The Board hereby appoints Cecil Boyer as Presiding Judge and Lupe Cerda as Alternate Presiding Judge to be responsible for the management and conduct of the Election at the polling place designated above. The Presiding Judge shall appoint not less than one nor more than six qualified election clerks to serve and assist in the conduct of the Election, provided that if the Presiding Judge designated by the Board actually serves as expected, the alternate Presiding Judge shall be one of the clerks.

4. The voting at and on the date of the Election shall be by paper ballot, preparation of which shall conform to the Texas Election Code, as amended, so as to permit the legally qualified voters of the District to vote "FOR" or "AGAINST" the aforesaid proposition, which proposition shall be summarized on the official election ballot in substantially the following language:

PROPOSITION
THE ISSUANCE OF $1,500,000 HOSPITAL BONDS TO REFUND OUTSTANDING INDEBTEDNESS, AND TO EQUIP THE HOSPITAL SYSTEM OF THE DEAF SMITH COUNTY HOSPITAL DISTRICT

5. Phillis Morrison is appointed clerk for absentee voting and is authorized to appoint two deputies to assist her in her duties. The absentee voting for the election authorized hereby shall be held at the Deaf Smith General Hospital Administrator's Office, located at 801 East Third, Hereford, Texas, which is within the boundaries of the District. The place of absentee voting shall remain open for at least eight hours on each day for absentee voting which is not a Saturday, Sunday or official state holiday, beginning the 20th day and continuing through the 4th day preceding the date of the Election. The place of absentee voting shall remain open between the hours of 8:00 o'clock a.m. and 5:00 o'clock p.m. on each day of absentee voting. The above-described location for absentee voting is also the absentee voting clerk's mailing address to which ballot application and ballots voted by mail shall be sent.

6. Phillis Morrison is appointed the agent of the Board for the purpose of maintaining an office open for election duties, which office shall be open no fewer than three hours per day during regular office hours, on regular business days beginning three days from the date of this Order and continuing until no less than 40 days after the date of the Election.

7. All resident qualified voters of the Deaf Smith County Hospital District shall be permitted to vote at the Election. In addition, the election materials enumerated in the Texas Election Code, as amended, shall be printed in both English and Spanish for use at the polling places and for absentee voting for the Election.

8. The President or Vice President are hereby authorized to provide such other notices and carry out such other duties as required by the Texas Election Code for the conducting of the Election.

9. Notice of the Election shall be given by posting a notice containing a substantial copy of this Order in both English and Spanish at three public places within Deaf Smith County, Texas and also at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse not less than 21 days prior to the date upon which such election is to be held, and by publication of such notice (consisting of this Order) on the same day in each of two successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation within Deaf Smith County, the date of the first publication to be not less than 14 days prior to the date set for the election hereby authorized.

PASSED, APPROVED AND EFFECTIVE, this 30th day of January 1987.

Charles R. Threewit
President

Judge orders demolition of public housing

DALLAS (AP) — Row by row by row, the brick apartments spread across the landscape, a concentration of hundreds of public housing units found so deplorable that a federal judge agreed they should be demolished.

In the West Dallas projects, life in ways resembles that of many communities. Teen-agers toss basketballs on neighborhood courts. Children ride tricycles, and mothers stroll with baby carriages.

But nearby stands the stack of a lead smelter that pumped toxic fumes into the air for a generation. A man combs through a project trash bin. Grown men, an unusual number for midday, sit or stand about in small groups.

Three miles away across the Trinity River bottoms, the glass towers of downtown Dallas rise like a gleaming Oz, a symbol of unattainable wealth.

Hundreds of the two-story row apartments in West Dallas are vacant, their windows boarded.

On Jan. 9, U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer approved a lawsuit settlement calling for the demolition of as many as 2,600 of the 3,500 housing units, which cover about one square mile in what officials say is one of the largest clusters of public housing in the nation.

"We should all be ashamed of the very existence of that project," Buchmeyer said.

The settlement of the 1985 housing discrimination suit gives tenants the option of moving to other parts of the city in programs operated by the Dallas Housing Authority. It also provides for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release $8 million for renovation of 900 units in West Dallas.

Many tenants, however, disapprove of the agreement. They want to remain among neighbors in the only community they have known for years. And it is unlikely they will find rents comparable to the $90-a-month average in West Dallas.

"We like where we are and we don't want to move," said Tillie Baylor, a resident of George Loving Place. "It's very disgusting to know that you've got to move. You've got to move and you've got no place to go."

Mattie Nash was the only member of the five-member housing authority board who voted against the settlement. She believes it makes no sense to tear down dwellings while some people have no place to live.

"With 4,000 people living on the streets of this city, I'm just sad that it worked out this way," she said.

Ms. Baylor said she discovered she was a plaintiff in a class-action lawsuit just three months ago. Then the settlement was announced.

"I rented me a bullhorn and I've been going around telling people not to move," Ms. Baylor said. "As long as we stay we have a chance."

All of the 1,500-unit George Loving Place is slated for demolition. Portions of Edgar Ward Place and Elmer Scott Place nearby also will be razed over the next few years, said Jack D. Herrington, director of the housing authority.

Some of the units that will remain already have new block and stucco facades and new red or green shingled roofs.

Ms. Baylor and others believe the rest of the projects can be renovated. They would like to see programs in which tenants can rent to buy, or manage the apartments themselves.

"Usually, most of the money goes toward administration," said the Rev. Kenneth Hogg, president of a tenants' association. "Half of them (units) there now are liveable."

Housing authority board member Bill Farrell said the condition of the projects stems from the approach of some local congressmen 20 years ago.

Comments needed on standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public comments are being sought on proposed revisions in federal grain standards, says the Agriculture Department.

Officials said Thursday a new grading system has been proposed, involving a grade representing optimal condition for each type of grain. The grain then would be graded numerically, based on its deviation from the optimal grade.

For grain to be designated optimal, it could not contain more than one-half of 1 percent foreign material or damaged kernels. The proposal is aimed at improving grain quality.

Comments can be sent by April 13 to Lewis Lebakken Jr., Information Resources Staff, USDA-FGIS, Room 1661-S, Washington, D.C. 20250. Or call 202-382-1738.

IRAs still popular, but exclude home investment

NEW YORK (AP) — Individual Retirement Accounts retain some of the features that made them popular vehicles for building retirement income. But they still exclude what could be the best of all investments for retirement: the house.

Millions of Americans have financed retirement from the equity buildup in homes in which they lived and raised families. Not only has the house been their biggest investment, it has been by far their most successful one as well.

But while individuals can open an IRA account for stocks, bonds, mutual funds, savings accounts and the like, they face penalties if they remove that money to invest in the house in which they live.

It matters not that the house might build retirement income faster. Or that housing provides a social good. Or that the goal of IRAs is to relieve pressure on the Social Security system, which such a housing investment is likely to do. But the issue could come to a head this year, following proposals made in both houses of Congress that would allow money in existing tax-free IRAs to be withdrawn without penalty if used in the first-time purchase of a home.

As matters stand, withdrawal of funds before age 59½ results in harsh penalties. Thus, money might remain locked in an inferior investment — and one that cannot offer the additional benefit of an immediate roof over one's head.

Many families already have enough funds in their IRAs to provide at least a partial down payment on a house, but they cannot tap that equity without being assessed a 10 percent penalty for early withdrawal.

That penalty is based in logic, because contributors to IRAs are excused from paying taxes on the income they earn in order to assure the money will be allowed to grow, tax free, until they are nearing retirement age.

Until this year, they were allowed to deduct from their taxable income the amount contributed. For individuals, that amount was $2,000; for working couples, $4,000; and for one-income couples, $2,250.

While that deduction has been removed, whatever income is earned by the IRA investment, including new contributions, is still allowed to grow tax-free, so long as it isn't removed before age 59½.

The Tax Act of 1986 imposed some other restrictions — particularly for high-income individuals who already are covered by an employer pension plan — but IRAs seem to be retaining at least some of their popularity.

Critics contend, however, that while logic might dictate penalties in order to prevent any impairment of the retirement goal, it is illogical to rule out what might be the best of all retirement-plan investments. That is, the house.

The legislation recently introduced — by Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Calif., and Donald Riegle Jr., D-Mich. — would end penalties for first-time homebuyers who withdraw IRA funds.

Does it have a chance? Yes, a chance, but similar legislation was proposed twice before without much action. And the real estate lobby, which succeeded in getting preferential treatment on other matters, hasn't been able to make its impact felt.

time, break down the concentration by race.

The settlement forces HUD to provide needed funds. And the housing authority board will gain from selling the land where the projects are located.

Eventually, Herrington said, the units that are demolished will be matched one-for-one. Considering the units that are now uninhabited, he said, there will be a net gain of acceptable housing for the needy in about five years.

But Tillie Baylor thinks it is all unnecessary.

"We feel like we can clean our own area up and run it," she said.

Catholics join order for Episcopal

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — A group of women of Holy Family Catholic Church here have formed the first Roman Catholic chapter of a nationwide Episcopal Church order for lay women.

The 100-year-old Order of the Daughters of the King, dedicated to prayer, service and evangelism, has about 600 chapters across the country. It chartered the new Roman Catholic chapter with installation of 13 women.

Episcopal Bishop Don Wimberly termed the action "an encouraging ecumenical statement."

By BEVERLY HARDER
HOW MUCH NUTRITION
DOES YOUR FOOD DOLLAR BUY?

Have you looked at your grocery receipt lately? There's a lot to be learned by studying it carefully.

For example, how much food did you get for your "grocery bill? Cross out the amounts spent on cleaning and laundry supplies, toiletries, paper goods, personal care items and special items like videotape rentals, plants or housewares. Add up the cost of the remaining food items and you have your actual food bill.

Then look at how much nutrition you're getting for your food money. List the price of each food item on your receipt in one of the following categories: meat, poultry and fish; fruits and vegetables; cereals, breads and pasta; dairy products; convenience foods that don't fit in any other category; and snack foods and beverages. Then figure a total for each food category.

In general, money spent on foods that fit in the first four groups is buying nutrients. Convenience foods may also be nutritious, but are relatively high in cost because you are paying for their time saving features. The money spent on snack foods and beverages buys lots of calories, but little in the way of nutrition.

Are you getting enough nutritional food for your grocery costs? You'll have to be the judge of that. If you want some basis for comparison, take out your calculator and divide your total for each food category by your total grocery cost. This will tell you what percent of your grocery spending went to food in each category.

U.S. Department of Agriculture researchers suggest that a nutritious diet can be achieved by spending 28 percent of grocery dollars on meat and protein foods, 23 percent on fruits and vegetables; 20 percent on breads and cereals; 17 percent on dairy products and 7 percent on fats, sweets and beverages.

How does your grocery spending measure up? Can you improve both nutrition and your budget by more careful planning of your food dollar?

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion handicap or national origin.

Today's junk may be tomorrow's wealth

NEW YORK (AP) — Don't throw out that empty bottle of Paul Newman's Own Salad Dressing. Hold onto your "Iacocca for President" campaign button. Stash away your child's E.T. lunchbox.

One day, they may all be collector's items. So says Charles J. Jordan, the author of "What to Save From the '80s: A Guide for Collectors" (Fawcett Columbine, $6.95).

"Collecting for tomorrow is 75 percent collecting know-how, 25 percent crystal ball," says Jordan, also the consulting editor to the House of Collectibles, a publisher of collectibles price guides.

"The nice thing about collecting is that we have a track record. We can look back and see what the components are that make past items so valuable and then we can turn the magnifying glass on today's merchandise and find parallels."

However, Jordan said, chance is always a factor in predicting the future.

Items derive value because of their nostalgic worth and their limited production. Adults collect things from their past as a way to "time travel" and recapture their youth.

"Today's kids are going to be turning up looking for the items of their childhood, just as we look for items from the '50s and '60s," he said.

Things that may have a future are all around us. Collecting ephemera — printed material designed to be thrown out — is an inexpensive way to start, he advises.

Preserving throwaway items tied to an event or a fad may prove even more valuable than just a random collection. The key to collecting is to learn how to pick the treasures from the trash, Jordan said.

Thousands of so-called "collectibles" were produced for the centennial celebration of the Statue of Liberty last summer. But rather than saving mass marketed souvenirs, he suggests trying to get items associated with the actual celebration, such as official programs or publicity material not available to the general public.

Or look for the offbeat. With the thousands of Cabbage Patch dolls produced over the past few years, only the original signed versions are likely to command big bucks as future collectibles, he said. More unusual items to save would be the spinoffs: copies of the Cabbage Patch Kids magazine; bedsheets; stickers; and the cardboard boxes of Cabbage Patch cereal.

Jordan anticipates the plethora of collectibles spawned by such events as the golden anniversary of the completion of the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco in May 1987; the 200th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as the first president of the United States in April 1989; and in December 1991, the 50th anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

Week of Young Child to be observed at museum

Preschoolers will fill the Museum's halls during the 8th Annual Week of the Young Child, to be held Tuesday through Saturday, Feb. 17-21. This year's event offers museum experiences for three-, four-, and five-year olds, according to coordinator Suzanne Hewitt-Knorpp. Saturday's events will be open to older children.

The week begins with "Cowboys," on the 17th. "Children will take part in branding activities and a kid rodeo, see a cowboy presentation, and listen to a singing cowboy," she said.

Wednesday, the 18th, is "Bonz" day, when there will be a dinosaur "bonz" dig, a tour of dinosaur hall, and a "Hatch a Dinosaur" activity.

Thursday is "Pioneers" day. Pioneer Village comes to life with role players in homes and stores, children will attend a one-room school and take part in a quilting activity.

Friday, the 20th, is "Indians" day. Children will visit in a tipi, watch a dancing Indian, and participate in an Indian craft.

The cost each day is 25 cents per child, and activities will take place hourly from 9 a.m. to 12 noon and from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Advance reservations are required, and a ratio of one adult accompanying each five children is also required, said Hewitt-Knorpp.

A special Saturday program, called "Activity Day," is an added attraction this year, she said. All four subjects—Cowboys, Indians, Bonz, and Pioneers—will be offered on one day, and the Adobe Walls Dancers, from Borger, will perform Indian dances.

A variety of demonstrations and activities are planned and will run continuously on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The age level has been raised to eight years old, for this day only, said Hewitt-Knorpp. Cost of the Saturday program will be $1 per child, but no reservations are necessary for this particular day, she added.

Saturday's fun will include a cowboy interpretation and crafts demonstrations; tipi visits, face painting, and Indian dances; butter-making and washing-ironing demonstrations and role players; a dinosaur bones dig and a tour of dinosaur hall.

The activities associated with Week of the Young Child are organized and carried out by members of the Museum Auxiliary, and Hewitt-Knorpp. Chairmen for this year's events are, for Cowboys Day: Carolyn Sherrad, of Canyon, Gwen Hicks, of Canyon, and Pam Bibb, of Amarillo; for Indians Day: Kim Young, of Amarillo, Lori Williams, of Amarillo, and Cathy Guseman of Hereford; for Bonz Day: Claudia Russell, of Amarillo, Nancy White, of Amarillo, and Jan Hodges of Amarillo; and for Pioneers Day: Joy Fassauer, of Amarillo.
