ASPARAGUS

Larry Malamen helps cash flow with 'new' crop

By KAY PECK
Staff Writer

Larry Malamen was looking for something to tie him over between carrot harvests.

"When you go seven months without a paycheck, it hurts," said Malamen, president of M. W. Carrot, Inc., of Hereford. Malamen and his wife, Sue, own the controlling interest in M.W. Carrot.

The seven-month gap from carrot harvest to carrot harvest helped motivate Malamen to become an area asparagus pioneer. M.W. Carrot is one of only two Texas growers commercially marketing asparagus.

Most of the nation's asparagus is grown on the west coast. Before M. W. Carrot began asparagus production, the "fresh" asparagus found in local grocery stores wasn't fresh out of the field, but had been cold packed and shipped hundreds of miles before being offered to Texas consumers.

"Some people have never had (really) fresh asparagus," Malamen said.

Hereford area residents now have ample opportunity to enjoy "really" fresh asparagus. In addition to its commercial shipping, M. W. Carrot sells the fresh cut vegetable directly to the consumer.

"We welcome that kind of business," Malamen said. The company's cooling shed has become a haven for the connoisseur of asparagus.

"Some people buy 10 to 50 pounds at a time, take it home and freeze it," Malamen said.

The decision to expand into asparagus is a major commitment for any grower. Unlike most crops, a farmer can't plant it for a single year and "just see how it does."

It takes three years from the time a farmer plants asparagus until he's able to pick a crop. M. W. Carrot began planting in 1985 and harvested their first asparagus in 1988.

Although many farmers are looking for all the options they can find, most aren't willing or able to wait out the asparagus' infancy.

"It's kind of like wanting to give birth to a kindergarten-aged child," Malamen said.

M.W. Carrot currently has 70 acres in asparagus and plans include expanding to a total of 100 acres. Since 1985, they have expanded the acreage for that crop 10 to 15 acres each year.

Although M.W. Carrot's asparagus fields are still in their "infancy," preliminary indications are that the local land and climate are well suited to the crop. Asparagus fields should continue to produce for 20 to 25 years from one planting.

It has been something of a learn-as-you-go operation for Malamen, virtually an asparagus experiment. Since asparagus had not been grown in the area commercially, Malamen

Schools plan summer food

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Students attending summer school in the Hereford Independent School District could have free breakfast and lunch, if an application for a federal grant is approved.

The idea of the program, according to assistant superintendent Marc Williamson, is that hungry students have a difficult time concentrating on studies.

The kicker, however, is that the student does not have to be in summer school to take advantage of the free meals, nor does a student have to meet any eligibility requirements. The program would be open to "anyone 18 years of age or under, as well as handicapped persons over 18."

The Hereford school board approved an application for the summer food program at its

Alliance sets seminar Sunday

A talk on "Teen Suicide--The Wrong Answer" will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the First Christian Church in Hereford.

"I know this subject is taboo and I realize how touchy the subject really is in the minds of parents," said Dorman Smith of First Christian Church, who will be directing Sunday's session. "With so many teens taking their own lives, we can no longer ignore it. We must

The talk is open to all youth in the community, and is the first joint project of the new youth ministers alliance in Hereford.

Customer relations seminar Tuesday

"Taking care of the customer" will be the theme of a seminar here Tuesday night for business owners, managers and employees.

Hosted by the retail trade committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, the "Customer Relations" seminar will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday in Hereford Community Center. Cost is $10 a person or a maximum of $50 for all employees of a firm.

The workshop presenter will be

Don Taylor, executive director of the Panhandle Small Business Development Center, which is affiliated with West Texas State University. With more than 20 years experience in customer relations, Taylor also offers assistance in business ownership, management and financial consultation.

Ken McLain, retail trade chairman, said the fast-paced and informative presentation will provide those in attendance with viable and front-line knowledge on how to maximize sales through customer relations.

The workshop topics will include: Identifying your customers, expanding the customer base, first impressions, and six "secrets" to keep the customer coming back. The seminar is important for anyone in business who has contact with customers, according to Taylor.

"Those who don't need to attend," says Taylor, "are businesses who have all the customers they want and all the business volume they need."

Retail Merchants make plans

Members of the Retail Merchants committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce make plans for a customer relations seminar to be held in Hereford on Tuesday. Ken McLain, at the head of the table, is the committee's president.

Connally keeps coming back

HOUSTON (AP) - A year and a half after he was forced to part with most of his personal possessions to pay off creditors, former Texas Gov. John Connally remains unbowed by the financial humiliation.

Connally, Navy secretary in the Kennedy administration and Treasury secretary for President Nixon, filed for bankruptcy protection in July 1987 after his real estate and oil ventures crashed with the downturn in Texas' economy.

To satisfy creditors, Connally and his wife, Nellie, had to sell most of their personal possessions, including artwork, china, furniture, saddles, jewelry and gun collections.

The four-day Houston auction last January "wasn't the proudest moment for us. But we're doing alright. We've started all over again," Connally said recently before a meeting of the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors in Houston.

The Connallys rent a Houston high-rise apartment, a drastic change from their former quarters in the city's exclusive River Oaks neighborhood and homes in Austin and Santa Fe, N.M.

Mrs. Connally said they have been through many ups and downs during their 48-year marriage, "but we have both always been everything to each other. So we have managed to hang in."

Between $3 million and $5 million in cash, raised mostly by the auction, was divided among secured creditors. The sale of a Wilson County ranch also went toward paying secured creditors, according to Connally bankruptcy attorney Mark Browning of Austin.

Another Wilson County ranch is still on the market. Browning said a third Wilson County ranch and one in Val Verde County were seized through foreclosures.

"The amount owed to unsecured creditors is still being determined," Browning said. Several claims, he said, are in dispute.

A federal bankruptcy judge in Austin last May approved the former governor's bankruptcy plan, which formed a liquidation trust to dispose of Connally's assets.

The judge's order freed Connally from any further claims by creditors, who also approved the plan.

In his initial bankruptcy filing, Connally listed debts of $93.3 million and assets of $13 million, including $850 in cash and $12.3 million in real property.

Under the bankruptcy plan, Connally kept his Picoso Ranch near Floresville and 200 of the 3,400 acres surrounding the property south of San Antonio. He was also able to keep $30,000 in personal property.

Connally is able to retain any money earned through personal services since his Chapter 11 filing, including TV ads for a troubled Houston savings and loan, and $24,000 for membership on The Coastal Corp. board of directors.

Connally traces his financial predicament to the real estate partnership he formed with former Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes in 1981 when Connally took mandatory retirement from Houston's Vinson & Elkins law firm.

"I needed to do something. ... I wasn't going to retire because I don't believe in retirement," Connally said. "I believe in changing jobs but never retiring. ... So that was really the thought process that led to getting into the real estate business.

"Obviously, as it turned out, it was a great mistake," he said.

In 1981, oil was selling for $33 a barrel, Texas was booming, neighboring Mexico was spending wildly and money was to be made.

But then everything that could go wrong did. Oil prices plummeted, the Mexican peso was devalued and the partnership often got into a market just as others pulled out.

In the end, the partnership found it had borrowed millions, based largely on the reputations of Connally and Barnes, that it could not repay.

The boom went bust and took Connally, Barnes and many others in tow.

"Sure, it's a mistake in the sense I would be better off if I never had gotten into it, but that's life. You take gambles, and we made a big gamble," Connally continued. "When you make that big a gamble, you can suffer big losses, and that's what happened."

Jim Lindsey, a former Barnes-Connally executive, said the former governor "came through it (bankruptcy) about as well as anyone I've ever heard of. He lost a lot of possessions, but he emerged with his respect intact."

Shortly after the auction, Connally appeared on a University Savings commercial urging Texans to save "because you never know what the future might bring."

The insolvent thrift was placed into conservatorship in February under a regulatory oversight program introduced by President Bush.

Connally, 71, spends most of his time between Floresville and Houston, where he has an office and secretary. In addition to serving as a director on some boards, he is also involved in various business affairs, including international enterprises, Browning said.

"He doesn't volunteer much about his business ventures," said Mickey Herskowitz, a columnist for The Houston Post. "My guess is he'll continue his business relationships with those (he had) before he filed for bankruptcy. I don't know exactly what he's doing, but I do know he'll stay busy."

The former governor also helps teach a class on how government works at the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas-Austin.

He is writing his autobiography - due out next year - with help from Herskowitz.

During the recent National Association of Television Programming Executives Convention here, there was talk of a mini-series based on Connally's life.

Connally, Democratic governor of Texas from 1963 to 1969, later switched to the GOP and made an unsuccessful bid in the 1980 Republican presidential primary.

He is best remembered for being wounded by the gunfire that killed Kennedy in 1963 while the two shared a limousine in a downtown Dallas motorcade.

The cachet of Connally lured many to the auction of the couple's personal effects.

Hub Fossier, a Houston car dealer, purchased one of the first items on the block - a handmade leather saddle bearing the Texas state seal - for $10,500. The saddle was a gift for Fossier son-in-law

Bobby Cox, who runs an 800-acre ranch in Bandera. Cox has yet to take it out on the range.

into his office "so I can look at it all day. I want a restful place for it."

Houston developer Jerry Moore bought the office furniture used by Connally while he was governor for $24,800.

address this subject directly with our youth."

Smith cited statistics showing that teen suicide is the second-highest cause of death among young people. "Some experts say that if all teen suicides were recorded as actual suicides, it would be the No. 1 killer of our youth," Smith said. "A lot of teen suicides are recorded as drug overdoses and accidental shootings, and a lot of automobile accidents are actually suicides."

"I don't see a possible teen suicide as one standing on the ledge of a 20-story building with a gun pointed to their head while they're teetering in the wind."

"Rather, I see a possible teen suicide as a teen experiencing a lot of pressure from life and a lot of problems, a hopeless situation surrounded by a feeling of helplessness. Depression sets in and begins to dominate their mind."

"At this point, the only thing they have heard about suicide is positive. Their music tells them that Hell is not a bad place and if life gets unbearable, just end it. Things will be better only when life is over."

"We can no longer sit quietly by and let our young people have this idea. We must address this subject and tell our kids that suicide is the wrong answer, that someone does care about them and they are loved."

Smith said he plans to discuss the subject "very openly and honestly," including causes, symptoms, results and solutions. Professional and lay counseling will be available at the end of the program.

The alliance will also meet next Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the Nazarene Church to watch Dawson McAllister's Too Young to Die on KAMR-TV.

"We plan to have music prior to the TV show and question-and-answer time after the show," Smith said.

"Parents are welcome at either session, but I urge every teenager in Hereford to hear this program. It is essential that they hear the right answer to their problems."

Eight Hereford churches are currently participating in the alliance, including First Christian Church, Church of the Nazarene, San Jose and St. Anthony's Catholic churches, First Baptist Church, First United Methodist Church, Community Church and Good News Gospel Church.

Millionaire led double life

DALLAS (AP) - As a millionaire wholesaler and retailer, Harold E. "Jack" McCollum had a yen for travel but it wasn't always to manage his far-flung enterprises, according to authorities who claim he headed households in different cities.

More than two years after McCollum was slain on the banks of the Navasota River in East Texas, investigators are no closer to solving the crime. But they say the businessman had been married to at least four women at the same time.

Before his 1986 death, McCollum was leading a double life with marriages to Angeline McCollum of Dallas and Marguerite McCollum of Waco, and neither family knew about the other for 29 years, said Leon County Sheriff Royce Wilson.

"You would think, over those years, that there would be some medical problems - maybe the flu or a heart attack - that would cause somebody to suspect something, but there was none," Wilson said. "He just was marrying and getting divorces."

Investigators found evidence that McCollum had been married at least 10 times over a half-century, the sheriff said.

"We finally stopped counting then," said Wilson.

He said the 68-year-old businessman apparently juggled the different marriages by telling his families his enterprises forced him to travel constantly.

Robert McCollum, the businessman's brother and former partner who now runs his own Waco tire company, said he did not want to revive the controversy over the slaying.

"He was a great man, very intelligent, with high standards, outwardly," he said. "But he was a sick man - mentally sick. He had a quirk about him. Outside of that, he was normal."

Wilson said that until recently, investigators were still pursuing leads in the slaying.

"It came to a dead end," he said. "We worked on a little lead about three weeks ago. It's turned out to be nothing so far."

Wilson said Jack McCollum's slaying was unrelated to the June 1988 slayings of four people in Houston and Irving, including former members of a polygamist cult. Those killings prompted police to investigate the late Ervil LeBaron's sect.

"Back when this first happened, we got some information that there could be some connection with this (McCollum slaying) and this cult out of Utah," the sheriff said. "We talked to the district attorney and two or three deputies out there and determined there was not a connection."

"Then, when the LeBaron (sect) surfaced about six or eight months ago, Houston police talked to the same people we had talked to. And it got blown out of proportion. But there is no connection."

McCollum was last seen alive in Dallas shortly after noon on Oct. 16, 1986, when he parked his Lincoln and got into a pickup truck with two men.

About 5 hours later, two passers-by who had stopped at a bridge 18 miles southwest of Centerville on U.S. Highway 79 spotted McCollum lying face down near the river.

By the time sheriff's officers and an ambulance arrived at the Leon County site, McCollum was dead of wounds from .22-caliber and .25-caliber guns. No weapons were ever recovered, said Wilson.

McCollum had no identification when he was found but personal effects were later recovered from his car in Dallas.

The sheriff said he believed financial troubles that began plaguing McCollum and his Waco-based Allied Tire Co. led to his death. In the mid-1980s, his tire stores began to close or be sold.

"I am almost positive that it (the slaying) was business-related," said Wilson. "We have had a suspect since day No. 4, I guess. But we have never been able to prove anything."

After discussions with 12th District Attorney David Barron about the case, Wilson said his office decided not to present the case to a grand jury.

"We talked it over with the DA and we could see no benefit from it," the sheriff said.

Deteriorating health also contributed to McCollum's business woes. Evidence of Alzheimer's disease was revealed by his autopsy, said Wilson.

"He was pretty shrewd. He was doing real well until he got so forgetful at his business," he said. "I talked to people who said he would sometimes go to his car (to drive it) and get in the back seat. He had a lot of problems like that."

Described as a loner, McCollum married Marguerite Wallace in Corsicana in 1935, moved to Huntsville three years later when he acquired a tire company and later decided to move the business to Waco. The couple raised four daughters.

At the last move in 1968, the couple had been married 33 years. But, unknown to Marguerite Mc-Collum, the businessman had also been married for 11 years to Angeline McCollum.

Both families expressed disbelief when the discovery was made after the slaying, Wilson said.

He said McCollum was also divorced in 1979 from Jimmie Fern Bell in Childress and investigators found evidence of his marriages in Lubbock, Texas; Las Vegas; Tennessee; Colorado and other locations.

He also had tire stores in Longview, Dallas, Amarillo and "probably some out of state," Wilson said. "I couldn't get by with it," the sheriff quipped.

MALAMEN

has been drawing on the expertise of experienced growers and on information supplied by the Texas Extension Service.

Before the 1988 harvest, Malamen went to the west coast in order to see an asparagus harvest in progress.

"I went out to California in January of last year just so I could see something ... so we could know what we were doing," Malamen said.

Asparagus is just one facet of M. W. Carrot's vegetable growing operation. The company started growing vegetables in 1980 with purple-topped turnips as their first product. They still grow turnips in addition to carrots, winter squash and, of course, asparagus.

"We're also going to do some experiments with celery," Malamen said.

The company has experimented with broccoli in the past but does not currently have the icing equipment needed to process large quantities.

The companies main focus remains on carrots. Last year, M. W. Carrot handled 1,000 acres of carrots. Much of that crop was grown by other area farmers on contracts.

Part of the appeal for expanding into asparagus was the opportunity to re-use the same cooling equipment which M. W. Carrot already uses for their carrot production. Both crops are sent through a "hydro-cooled" system in which ice water is pumped over the freshly-harvested vegetables.

The asparagus crop helps to cut down on the number of weeks that the expensive hydro-cooling equipment sits idle.

Early success in asparagus production reinforces M.W. Carrot's policy of experimenting with different vegetables.

"There isn't anything we can't grow here, but there's a lot we can't grow right," Malamen said.

He mentioned radishes as an example of a crop not suited to the Hereford area. The weather is too hot in the summer, and the soil is too tight for commercial production of radishes.

Malamen, past president of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, relies on a lifetime of vegetable experience.

"That's all I've ever done is vegetables," he said.

Malamen moved to Hereford in 1977 from Anoka, Minn., where he had been involved in vegetable production. The family operation first established by his father is still in business back in Anoka.

The labels in use by M.W. Carrot, Inc. are very similar to the ones first put into use by his father many decades ago.

"I just Texas-ized it," Malamen said. The straw hat and coveralls worn by the vegetable farmer on the Minnesota label gave way to a Stetson and boots when the Malamen family began production here.

No free lunch

There's no such thing as a free lunch, a wise man once said. Your perception of the stage play may depend on where your seat is located in the audience, another sage said.

An article on Page 1 of today's Brand outlines plans for a summer food service program. It would be paid entirely by federal funds, so the breakfasts and lunches would be free for local students, right?

It depends on your view. Remember that anytime you see the words "federal" or "Uncle Sam", you can substitute the words "you" and "I". Another perception is that the funds "are going to be spent somewhere, so we might as well get our share." And, as long as citizens don't protest federal give-aways, the latter view makes a little sense.

On the one hand, the summer food service program makes some sense to us. We don't want to see any kids go hungry while attending summer school and it's a good service to be able to provide for those students. On the other hand, if the grant is approved, the federal rules open the program to any students, regardless of means, and even those who are not enrolled in summer school.

Maybe I'm wrong, but that seems a little too much for me. I don't mind the feds using my tax dollars to feed hungry kids from disadvantaged homes. But I have a problem with them throwing tax dollars out there to feed all takers. Maybe it's another step in the government's plan to make everybody equal. Or, maybe not many folks are following the rules so they're making the rules easier!

Poverty problem

Blessed are the poor, and the poor you will have with you always. These truths are stated in the Bible and are as evident today as they were those 2000 years ago. Human nature changes very little—regardless of the form of government or the economic system under which we live.

How blessed the poor must consider themselves today, taking into account all the cash and power they generate for others.

A black president of the National Center for Neighborhood Enterprise in Washington, D.C., has gone around the country revealing things about poverty that most Americans do not understand.

Bob Woodson made an appearance in Dallas recently and asked what the folks of Dallas want: citizens or government clients, self-reliant individuals or serfs?

Woodson maintains, with considerable evidence to back him up, that poverty programs do not serve the poor. They serve the bureaucracy that administers the programs for the poor.

This is borne out by the fact that it takes 68 cents of every dollar spent on poverty to support the "industry" that services the poor. Needy people are a market these days. There is good money in poverty, unless of course you happen to be poor, then you see very little of the government money that supposedly goes to the poor.

The poor live in involuntary servitude, chained not to the plow, but to the government welfare line. Despite the billions spent on the War Against Poverty, the poor are still poor.

Woodson says that self-help, motivation and meaningful work that earns real money is the only way to cure poverty and rescue those in poverty.

How to achieve this is the problem. How to overcome the stubborn resistance of an army of bureaucrats whose own jobs depend upon a steady army of poor, and how to motivate the poor toward self reliance—these are the tough questions that may never be solved.

Generous citizens

WASHINGTON--Predictably, President Bush's repeated references to "a thousand points of light" have provoked hoots of derision from his liberal critics. The very notion of applying private sector solutions to social problems is an affront to the political left whose faith in the power of big government is akin to religious zeal.

But in exhorting private groups and individuals to greater efforts on behalf of the needy, President Bush is tapping a wellspring of charity that our government would be hard pressed to duplicate. When it comes to lending a helping hand, ordinary people are much better at it than bureaucratic systems and more generous than government agencies.

A full 75 percent of all American families give an average of $790 per year to charity; 20 million donate 5 percent or more of their income to good works and 23 million invest five hours or more of voluntary labor each week. It adds up. In 1988, ordinary citizens gave $100 billion to charity and about 80 million donated almost 15 billion hours of labor. If you figure that voluntary work is worth $10 per hour, that's another $150 billion, for a total of $250 billion.

Nor is there any reason to believe this outpouring of human kindness is directly related to any tax breaks that may accrue. The American people were profoundly generous long before charitable donations received favorable tax treatment, and their giving has continued to increase despite the 1986 tax reform law which eliminated many charitable incentives. And there was never any tax break for volunteer work.

President Bush's recognition of the generosity of ordinary citizens is appropriate; his exhortations for greater effort are well-timed. Our government is already in the red and faces several new, unexpected expenses, notably those related to the savings and loan crisis and reconstruction of our nuclear weapons plants. We can ill afford any new social welfare programs right now, and there is no way Uncle Sam could even begin to supplant the $250 billion already being donated by private citizens and groups.

But perhaps the most significant factor of all is the efficiency and effectiveness of social services provided by the private sector. The inefficiency and waste that invariably accompanies federal aid programs is notorious. Uncle Sam would have to spend four or five times as much as the private sector to provide the equivalent in aid and assistance. And as for the human impact of direct assistance and support provided by ordinary people out of the goodness of their hearts—well—I don't believe any government agency could ever duplicate that.

The Penultimate Word

THE MOD SQUAD

Moving to Hereford was one of the best things I have ever done. I found the best friends of my life here. I found an island of acceptance in a sea of red neck.

As far as I know I do not have a single enemy in town. I have some folks who do not agree with me and some who do not like me, but they are all nice about it. Hereford allowed me the life style I needed to pursue the development of my present task.

The best gift Hereford has given me came from an unexpected source. When I moved here I was petrified of old age. I did not know how to be around someone who was old, much less how to face the fact that I was going to get there if I was lucky.

When I moved to town I met a group of ladies who called themselves the Mod Squad. They had more fun, were involved in more things and were in general the happiest people in town. I watched and wondered while my fear of old age melted.

Some of the squad is gone, and they died as well as they lived. Some are still making life fun for us all. I found a poem the other day I want to dedicate to this delightful group who touched me. The poem is from England and the author is unknown, but the spirit is straight from Hereford's Mod Squad.

When I am an old lady I shall wear purple

With a red hat, which doesn't go and doesn't suit me.

And I shall spend my pension on brandy and summer gloves,

And satin sandals, and say we have no money for butter

I shall sit down on the pavement when I am tired

And gobble up samples in shops and press alarm bells

And run my stick along the public railings

And make up for the sobriety of my youth

I shall go out in my slippers in the rain

And pick the flowers from other people's gardens

And learn to spit.

But maybe I ought to practice a little now

So people who know me are not too shocked and surprised

When suddenly I am old and start to wear purple.

U.S. Foreign Aid Fails

If every government agency were to follow the example of the Agency for International Development, or AID, the federal budget would be both smaller and more wisely spent.

AID recently published a candid report on the effectiveness of its efforts to alleviate Third World poverty. Its conclusion: After 27 years and tens of billions of dollars, foreign aid has been a failure.

AID channels aid to the governments of recipient countries rather than to the private sector, but intentionally or not, it helps enlarge the former at the expense of the latter - reinforcing state-owned monopolies, high taxes, impenetrable regulations, price controls and other roadblocks that make it a nightmare to do business in much of the Third World.

The purpose of foreign aid should not be to make the donor feel good, but to put the recipient on a path to self-sustaining growth. If AID cannot be reformed to embody that goal, it should be abolished.

PUC Shouldn't Duck in Game of Hardball

If that isn't cynical corporate hardball that the management of GTE is playing with the state's Public Utilities Commission, it certainly does come close.

In February, the PUC voted to lower rates for customers of GTE Southwest Inc. by $59.2 million and to direct the phone company to refund $138 million to customers over the next two years.

... General Telephone Southwest announced it will trim some 1,100 jobs, reduce investments and reconsider other expenses in Texas. In addition, GTE, the parent corporation, is reconsidering plans to relocate the firm's telephone operations division to Las Colinas, between Dallas and Fort Worth.

There was more than pique to all of this. The PUC's rate decision is not final; therefore it is reasonable to assume that GTE is turning up the heat under the commission ...

Whatever the explanation, the PUC should not be stampeded into any precipitate action. Certainly the commission needs to take into account the effects of its actions on the financial well-being of utilities - but just as certainly the PUC has the responsibility to protect the interests of ratepayers. Call this an opportunity to display composure under pressure. The commissioners should make the most of it.

U.S. Chamber Voice of Business

By Dr. Richard L. Leshner, President

U.S. Chamber of Commerce
WASHINGTON -- Four years before he won the Presidency, Ronald Reagan defined a taxpayer as "someone who works for the federal government but doesn't have to take a civil service examination."

If there was one consistent, closely-held thread to President Reagan's political philosophy, it was surely his aversion to excessive taxation. He expounded on that theme relentlessly and it struck a responsive chord among the American people. The result was the longest sustained period of economic growth in our country's history, and an unprecedented popularity rating for the outgoing President.

No sooner had Air Force One lifted off the runway taking former President Reagan and his wife back to California than the wolves were back at the door baying for higher taxes. Already, our new President George Bush is under pressure to renege on his campaign promise and agree to tax increases.

But a recent public opinion poll conducted by the Roper Organization Inc., offers powerful evidence that the anti-tax sentiment so adeptly tapped by Bush's predecessor is still very much a dominant factor in our political life. A full 73 percent of the American public prefers holding down spending growth to raising taxes as the best route to deficit reduction. The poll, commissioned by Citizens for A Sound Economy, indicated that 70 percent of the public fears that if taxes were raised, the government would find new ways to spend the additional money rather than use it to cut the budget deficit.

And you know what? They're right. Since World War II, for every $1 Congress has raised in new taxes, it has hiked spending on average $1.58. And there is absolutely no reason to think the current crop of politicians in Congress would vary from that dismal trend.

The Roper poll found also that the public believes higher taxes would decrease economic growth, hurt our ability to compete with other countries, and reduce savings. Again, the public is right on all counts. Nor is there any reason to question the validity of this survey; in the last three Presidential elections the issue of tax increases has been sharply drawn and every time the voters have made clear their aversion to them.

Congress should interpret this poll as a warning shot across the bow. The last thing this country needs or wants is a tax increase, and any politician who votes for one will have to answer to the voters.

Ethical Standards: It's a Matter of Who, Where You Are

Does Congress hold White House appointees to stricter ethical standards than it imposes on itself? Consider Harry Giugni.

The appointed sergeant-at-arms of the U.S. Senate, Giugni controls a $115 million budget, much of which goes for "perks" for Senate leaders. Unlike officials in the executive branch, he seems to have wide discretion to use his budget for his own pleasures.

During an eight-month period ending last August, Giugni used official funds to help pay for eight round trips between Washington and his native Hawaii. The direct cost to taxpayers was about $9,000.

Giugni claims the purpose of one trip was to help the U.S. Capitol Police learn about security problems in Hawaii. He admits that AT&T subsidized one trip; AT&T hopes to get a new contract from the Senate.

Nobody in the Senate leadership questioned these trips until they became the subject of a story in The Washington Post. Only then did Giugni quickly reimburse the Senate for part of his travel costs.

Giugni says his frequent visits to his home state are important because he is "the first minority sergeant at arms" and thus a role model for Hawaiian youth. It seems to us that young people would learn a more valuable moral lesson if majority leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, were to give his appointee the reward he so richly deserves - a pink slip.

Limit National Guard's Role On Border

The Texas National Guard is playing a role in combating drug smuggling across the Texas-Mexico border ...

According to U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, Guard troops will attempt to infiltrate foot patrols into areas used by the smugglers and amass intelligence for federal authorities coordinating the anti-drug effort.

However, a Guard spokesman, Lt. Col. Ed Komandosky, told a somewhat different story. He said he knew nothing of such plans, adding, "The only money we've been allocated by the Department of Defense for drug interdiction is to run a cooperative program with the Customs Service," under which part-time Guard volunteers are assisting Customs inspectors checking incoming vehicles and shipments at four border points of entry and the Port of Houston.

Certainly the skulking-in-the-shadows scenario has a certain flair to it - but on balance the more limited use of Guard personnel at border checkpoints would appear to make more sense in terms of likely return on effort invested.

The Customs personnel at the border checkpoints are vastly overmatched; bolstering their number with Guard volunteers could make them significantly more effective in their work and could inflict some real damage on the drug traffickers ...

Families and Stress

The first half of every year brings flu and colds, taxes and many Spring activities. Everyday families have many of the same everyday stresses. Ordinary stresses usually provoke similar responses—refusal to talk or listen, more month than money, and children's behavior and misbehavior.

The healthier the family, the more likely it is to handle everyday pressures in a competent and confident manner. Oftentimes, the same stressors will disrupt a less competent family. Family researchers that healthy families recognize that stresses are a means of identifying family strengths. When a family experiences a stress, it is tested as a unit and learns to use its resources and strengths.

A strong family doesn't try to avoid normal stress. Instead, it concentrates on developing ways of dealing with stress. The reward comes from the realization that family stresses can actually lead to family strengths. For instance, when bad report cards or speeding tickets come in, a healthy family will respond with creative techniques, flexible rules and mutual support. All of these strengthen existing resources and tell the family that it is capable of handling an even greater stress.

A vulnerable family is one who cannot dredge up enough resources to cope with a stress. As a result, stress may strain or even fragment the family. It doesn't take a catastrophic stressor to create a devastating situation. A pileup of little things can do it, with each stressor further weakening an already faltering family unit. And there are some families who cope with major stressful events and topple from the petty ones.

The ten top family stresses, according to researchers, are money, children's behavior and discipline, insufficient couple time, lack of shared responsibility in the family, communicating with children, insufficient "me" time, guilt over not accomplishing more, spousal relationship (communication, friendship, sex), insufficient family time and an overscheduled family calendar. Most families are thinking, "Somebody wrote our list!"

Is this kind of family stress inevitable and insurmountable in today's society? Inevitable, yes. Insurmountable, no.

Donation presented

Youngsters at Northwest School sold enough popcorn recently to make a donation of $150 to the Ronald McDonald House, a hospital featuring a home setting for terminally ill children. Sold at 25 cents a bag, the popcorn fundraiser was made possible as Arrowhead Mills donated the popcorn. PTA members presented the funds to the local McDonald's Restaurant, who participates in the Adopt-a-School program with Northwest School. PTA members Sherri Huckins and Olivia Denning make the presentation to McDonald's manager Yolanda Valdez, assistant manager Geneva Campos, as Rosemary Davila, PTA member, looks on, from left.

Contestants reviewed

Several steering committee members and assistants of the Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant watched contestants during a recent modeling session and pointed out problem areas to each girl. Betty Drake, Linda Daniel, Lanette Leasure, and Lacy Driver, from left, were among the committee members present; Drake and Leasure are co-chairmen of this year's pageant. Other committee members and assistants include Judy Barrett, Gayla Sanders, Debra Perry, Danell Culp, Kathy Allison, Kim Buckley, Julia Laing, Kyla McDowell, and advisors Keith Ann Gearn and Donna West, president of the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. The 1989 pageant will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday in the Hereford High School auditorium; admission cost is $2.

Thursday meeting of NCA/PTF set

A meeting of the Nazarene Christian Academy Parent-Teacher Fellowship will be held Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in the Nazarene Church. Presenting the program will be Rebecca Walls, librarian of the Deaf Smith County Library. She will explain the programs and services provided by the library to the community.

Special entertainment will be provided by Bruce Menefee, NCA director of music and a few of the music students.

All parents of NCA students are urged to attend the meeting.

Carmen Brockman signs with UTSA

Brockman to be a Roadrunner

Hereford's Carmen Brockman signed a basketball scholarship Friday with the University of Texas at San Antonio. Donna Brockman, her mother, and HHS Coach Frank Belcher were at her side for the occasion. Carmen is the all-time career scoring leader for the Lady Whitefaces with a record 1,013 points. She joins two brothers--Greg and Lee--in attending college on athletic scholarships.

BY SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher
Carmen Brockman, the Lady Whiteface's all-time career scoring leader, signed a letter of intent Friday morning to attend the University of Texas at San Antonio on a basketball scholarship.

Carmen inked the pact Friday with her mother, Donna, and HHS Coach Frank Belcher by her side. UT-SA coach Bill Macleay personally brought the scholarship papers to Hereford.

The Lady Roadrunners of UT-SA are a Division I independent team. UT-SA was formerly in the Oil Country Athletic Conference, along with WTSU, before that league ceased to exist.

As Mrs. Brockman helped her daughter in signing the papers, Whiteface boss Don Cumpston asked her how many times she'd participated in such an event.

"Three, but it's still exciting," replied Mrs. Brockman. Two sons--Greg and Lee--attended college on football scholarships. Greg graduated from West Point, and Lee is finishing up at the University of Texas after an outstanding grid career with the Longhorns.

Carmen scored 1,013 points in her career as a Lady Whiteface. She averaged 11.9 points a game and pulled down an average of 7.6 rebounds per outing. She was named as an honorable mention player on the 1-4A All-District team.

Carmen hit 48.7 percent of her shots from the field as an HHS center, and she connected on 55.9 percent of her free throws. She led the team in every statistical category this year except for assists and steals. Carmen totalled 379 points her senior year and had a 13-point average. The team had a 12-17 won-lost record this season and was 6-10 in district action.

HMGA buys new trees for golf course

Pitman Municipal Golf Course should be more attractive and provide a better challenge for golfers in a couple of years, thanks to the purchase of 75 new trees by the Hereford Men's Golf Association.

The association bought 75 hybrid elms and hybrid "cottonless" cottonwoods for the municipal course. The city contributed the labor to plant the trees, according to Ron Weishaar, association president.

Golf Pro Mike Horton selected the appropriate places for the new trees, with an eye to putting a premium on shots in the fairway. "I hope the cold weather didn't affect the trees," said Horton. "If we can keep them going for 30 days, maybe most of them will live."

Grijalva sizzles to lead 1-4A golf

Naomi Grijalva shot a 74 to take the lead in the race for medalist honors after three rounds in District 1-4A on Friday at Southwest Golf course in Amarillo.

Grijalva has a three-round total of 263, 12 strokes ahead of Becky Smith of Levelland and 16 shots better than third-place Kellie Reed of Borger.

The Hereford girls are in third place, with a team score of 1174. That's 12 shots behind Borger and six shots in back of Pampa. The Hereford girls shot a 357 on Friday to lead the field.

The Hereford boys fired a total score of 323 on Friday, also at Southwest. Scott Simons paced Hereford with a 77, while Todd Schroeder fired a 79.

Hereford has a three-round total of 1040 and is in sixth place overall. The final district round was scheduled for Saturday for boys and girls and Pampa Country Club.

Here are the scores for Hereford golfers in Friday's play:

GIRLS
Team totals: 1. Borger, 362-1162; 2. Pampa, 371-1168; 3. Hereford, 357-1174; 4. Levelland, 390-1198; 5. Pampa B, 392-1202; 6. Borger B, 396-1253; 7. Dumas, 443-1432.

Hereford: Naomi Grijalva 74; Melissa Grijalva 90; Krystal Sims 94; Brenda Allen 99; Lori Lacy 114; Paula Britten 97 (singles).

BOYS
Team totals: 1. Pampa, 307-947; 2. Borger, 311-970; 3. Levelland 308-995; 4. Pampa B, 317-1004; 5. Dumas, 338-1030; 6. Hereford, 323-1040; 7. Randall, 317-1048; 9. Frenship, 326-1068; 10. Hereford B, 345-1079; 11. Frenship B, 354-1158.

Hereford A: Scott Simons 77; Todd Schroeder 79; Jason Walterscheid 83; Max Mungla 84; Keith Kelso 85.

Hereford B: Anthony Gale 83; Robert Jones 86; Kevin Kelso 87; Mikel Walser 89; David McCarter 89.

Astros, Scott hold on

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

It isn't often a pitcher can get away with a "batting-practice fastball" against Eddie Murray in a bases-loaded situation. Actually, that's all Houston's Mike Scott had left after failing to throw a strike in 11 straight pitches.

"I'm sure I have been that wild before, but never in that situation - the eighth inning with a one-run lead," said Scott, who retired the dangerous Murray on a ground ball and went on to a 3-2 victory Friday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Until that point, Scott had given up a single to Mike Davis and consecutive walks to Kirk Gibson and Mike Marshall. Murray, who had hit a two-run homer earlier, was up next and Scott went to a 3-0 count on him.

"Even though he (Scott) didn't have command at the time, we wanted to stay with what we were trying to do all along," Houston catcher Alan Ashby said. "He came back and made two great pitches on Murray after going 3-0. The last one was just a perfect pitch, because Murray wanted to hit something hard, and he threw him an off-speed sinking fastball."

The defeat was the fourth straight defeat for Los Angeles, marking the Dodgers' longest losing streak since 1987. They never lost more than three in a row at any time last season en route to winning the World Series.

In other NL games Friday night, it was Chicago 6, Philadelphia 4; Montreal 7, Pittsburgh 6; New York 9, St. Louis 4; San Diego 6, Cincinnati 5, and San Francisco 7, Atlanta 5.

Leach doubles in 8th as Rangers win eighth

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Texas Rangers have a new look on the field and a new place in the standings.

The Rangers, the busiest team in the off-season, are off to their fastest start ever after beating the Detroit Tigers 4-2 Friday night for their sixth straight victory.

Rick Leach, one of club's less-heralded acquisitions, hit a two-run, pinch-single in the eighth inning that helped Texas improve to 8-1. That's the best record in the major leagues.

Jamie Moyer, 2-0, was the winner. He was obtained with Rafael Palmeiro during December in a nine-player trade with the Chicago Cubs.

"It started in spring training," Moyer said. "Early on, we got off to a slow start. But as spring training went on, guys got their swings down, pitchers found their groove, and we began playing better."

In other games, New York beat Minnesota 8-5, Boston defeated Baltimore 7-4, Milwaukee downed Cleveland 8-4, Toronto stopped Kansas City 3-0, Oakland topped Chicago 7-4 and Seattle beat California 9-5.

Burden weighing on Bob Knepper

HOUSTON (AP) - The burden of being an honest man is beginning to weigh heavily on Bob Knepper. Ask him about women umpires and he'll give you his honest opinion that it's not in God's plan. Ask him why the Astros don't draw and he'll honestly suggest it could be because the team has an absentee owner in John McMullen, who lives in New Jersey.

"I'm not a guy who just gives pat answers," Knepper says.

The season is only 2 weeks old and already the Houston Astros' most misunderstood player is in the eye of another controversy for his remarks about McMullen.

It has been suggested that Knepper should keep his comments to himself and concentrate on pitching.

Last week he almost did. "I came real close to not talking to anyone," Knepper said. "I always try to be honest but I expect to be treated honestly."

"This latest experience was such a blatant abuse of me, I wondered if it was worth the frustration to comment at all.

"It got Dr. McMullen upset and (General Manager) Bill Wood upset. You start wondering if it serves any purpose to say anything."

Knepper is an honest man with strong religious convictions. He's family-oriented, devoted to his wife and children. If he says he's been misinterpreted, you tend to believe him.

But being misunderstood has been a career-long affliction.

Knepper has been taking heat for his opinions since his first full year in the major leagues with the San Francisco Giants in 1978.

"I just don't have an hour to think out each question and figure out how to say something so it can't possibly be misinterpreted," Knepper said.

Knepper became a focal point of women's rights groups last season when he declared that women should have no authority over men and therefore should not be umpires.

He was nominated for Neanderthal of the Year by the Houston chapter of National Organization of Women, invited to crawl back under a rock by another organization and picketed by women's groups.

Knepper said he was only giving his interpretation of Bible scripture, but he was vilified nonetheless.

Knepper dislikes female reporters being in the Astros locker room and has argued with veteran sportscaster Anita Martini on the subject.

Yet when Martini underwent surgery this week, Knepper was among the well-wishers who visited her.

Knepper showed remarkable resilience last season, finishing with a 14-5 record and 3.14 ERA.

He won a career best six straight victories to open the season when the female umpire controversy was at its greatest.

Now he's growing weary of the latest cycle of conflict.

Knepper explained later he wasn't being critical of McMullen, just talking about the difficulty of being an outsider in a business situation.

Knepper said he was an outsider in the cattle business in Oregon and compared his plight to McMullen.

But Knepper didn't make the comparison during his original taped interview.

Knepper was the object of misunderstanding in 1978 when he became a born-again Christian.

As a member of the San Francisco Giants, Knepper was part of a religiously oriented group of players called the God Squad.

Knepper got a reputation as being too passive on the field for refusing to throw inside.

Now he's at the crossroads again in Houston. Stung by criticism last year, he wouldn't automatically negate a trade.

"I feel I was unfairly treated because of statements I made about my beliefs," Knepper said. "Last year was hard for my wife to see her husband get some cheap shots taken in the media."

"For that reason, this year, I'm not saying definitely I won't approve a trade. This year, I'd listen."

Naismith's grandson not big basketball fan

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) - There is not a basketball net on the garage of the grandson of the man who invented the game.

Nor was there, in the home of James and Beverly Naismith, what you'd call fever-pitch excitement in the sport.

Oh, sure, James - whose grandfather, Dr. James Naismith, thought up the game in 1891 as a way for people to keep in shape through the long Massachusetts winters - watches occasionally.

The Naismiths' three basketball-playing children - Anne, Robert and Jim - are all grown and gone from the Naismith home. Another daughter, Margaret, 17, is a senior at Calallen High School, but doesn't play basketball.

"People hear my name and say, 'Did you ever hear of that Naismith guy that invented basketball?' and I say, 'That was my granddad' and they say, 'Oh, come on!'"

He shook his head. "It wasn't talked about a lot when I was little - I was in grade school before I realized there was history in the family."

Back in 1891, Naismith's grandfather, a physical education instructor at a YMCA college in Springfield, Mass., and a player of everything from lacrosse to football, needed a game that could be played by the folks in a gymnasium with hard wood floors and harder brick walls.

"He was 30 years old when he invented the game, and he didn't play," Naismith said. "He was just trying to come up with a game that would be good for physical fitness. He thought of using a big ball that was too large to hide - like a soccer ball - which is big enough that you'd have to use both hands."

"And the business of being able to run with the ball was because he didn't want people to be knocked down - that kinda hurts when you're on a wooden floor. And the reasoning for the goal was if you made the goal horizontal, the force you used wouldn't be as important as accuracy. He was just analytical about it."

Naismith said he thinks his grandfather would be pleased with the way the game has evolved.

"I think he'd be fascinated with the grace with which the game is played," Naismith said. "But you know, he never got a dime out of inventing basketball - he didn't patent it or anything. He felt taking any money would take away from the integrity of the game. Back in 1936, the year they made basketball an Olympic sport, he was a university professor with five kids, and he couldn't afford to go. So some of his friends got donations and he got to go."

The family was invited to the opening of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame. They've gone back several times since, and have been able to meet guys like Magic Johnson.

S&L crisis may benefit credit unions

By CYNTHIA PUCKETT Globe-Times Business Writer

Credit unions may be profiting from the savings and loan crisis through rising membership and share deposits, said Terry Young, a spokesman for Texas Credit Union League.

"S&Ls are reporting a pretty large decline in deposits. I think what's going to happen is credit unions are going to get S&L money," Young said.

"No one has a tracking method yet to see where all those dollars from savings and loans are going, but there are not that many options."

A credit union is a not-for-profit financial institution typically formed by employees of a company, a labor union, or a religious group and operated as a cooperative. Credit unions may offer a full range of financial services and pay higher rates on deposits and charge lower rates on loans than commercial banks.

"Credit unions are not like banks and savings and loan associations, which lend money to earn a profit," Young said. "We don't do that."

Credit union earnings are given back to members in the form of loans or lower loan interest rates, he said.

In Texas, credit unions are regulated and insured by one of two entities: the National Credit Union Administration or the Texas State Office of Credit Union Regulation.

Of the 1,023 credit unions in Texas, 16 are in Potter County.

County credit unions are currently no credit unions in Randall County.

Membership in Potter County credit unions rose 7 percent from 1986 to 1987 and rose an additional 2 percent from 1987 to 1988, with a total membership of 57,969 at the end of 1988.

Statewide membership rose to more than 4 million for the first time in 1988, with a year-end membership total of 4,075 million.

Nationwide, credit union membership in credit unions rose 4.25 percent from 1986 to 1987, and rose about 6.5 percent from 1987 to 1988, with a total membership of 60,000,000 at the end of 1988.

Credit unions were founded in the United States 80 years ago to provide small loans to the average working person. The principle was based on European cooperative banks, in which people with a common interest pooled their money to help each other during times of need.

What is believed to be America's oldest credit union, the American Postal Credit Union, was founded in 1931 and is still going strong, according to its chairman of the board, E.L. Baker.

Members can get loans, investment loans and new car loans at interest rates lower than those of banks or savings and loan associations. Baker said the members often would not get elsewhere, he said.

"We're a pretty close-knit group," Baker said of the credit union's 1,600 plus members.

Twenty-five percent of Texas credit unions offer loan services exclusively, Young said.

Many offer share draft services, which are similar to checking accounts, with no fees attached and low or no minimum balances required, he said.

"That's the beauty of the credit union," Baker said, explaining that a few years ago when S&Ls were paying a higher rate of interest, members of the American Postal Credit Union kept their deposits in the credit union out of loyalty.

Four honored at '89 SCS banquet

Four awards were presented Wednesday night during the annual awards banquet of Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District. The event was held at the Hereford Country Club.

Carl Kleuskens, chairman of the TBSWCD board of directors, gave the invocation to open the banquet. Directors and their spouses and Soil Conservation Service employees and spouses attended the event as did honorees Jerry Roberts, Kenneth Walker, and Loretta Urbanczyk. Ted Peabody III also attended the banquet with his parents.

Jerry Roberts was chosen the 1988 Deaf Smith County Resident Conservation Farmer of the Year based on his efforts in "leaving the land in better shape than when I got it." Raised in a small town in Terry County, he graduated from Meadow High School in 1951 and studied engineering at Texas Tech University. He married "Willie" Green and the family moved to Muleshoe.

In 1966, Roberts moved his family to their present farm located 27 miles northwest of Hereford, wishing to farm grain instead of cotton. At that time he became a cooperater with the Tierra Blanca SWCD and developed a conservation plan for his farm.

He uses a rotation of irrigated wheat, sorghum, and sugarbeets on his 1,311 acre farm. In addition to building three grassed waterways, Roberts was one of the first farmers to put his highly erodible land into the Conservation Reserve Program.

Roberts is also interested in wildlife habitat management, as pheasants, ducks, and geese.

The Roberts have two sons and two grandsons. They attend the First Baptist Church in Hereford where he is a deacon and the Adult Sunday School supervisor. He is a member of the Simms Men's Club where he is the secretary/treasurer and has served in the past as president. He is also a member of Gideons and on the board of directors of the Rural Electric Cooperative. He is a past member of the FmHA board and has worked for several years with the United Way. In 1983, he was honored as the Deaf Smith Agriculture Man of the Year.

Kenneth Walker was selected the 1988 TBSWCD Wildlife Conservationist based on his efforts to restore the depleted wildlife habitat and his support of the district and its goals.

Born in Electra, Walker moved to Umbarger in 1946 to work in the potato harvest, then decided to reside in Amarillo. He established a construction business in Amarillo and has been actively involved with agriculture for many years.

He purchased the ranch and other adjoining land in Deaf Smith County in 1975 and has been actively applying conservation measures to increase the land's productivity and aesthetic value. Currently, there are approximately 1,500 acres of cropland, 1,600 acres of land enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program, and 3,500 acres in native short grass rangeland.

When Walker acquired the land, surface water was scarce, brush for cover and browse non-existent, and the bird population was severely depleted. He planted 1,600 acres back to native grass utilizing some introduced taller species for addition cover. This CRP land is bordered by cropland in most instances to provide some border effect and utilization of the field crops for food. Haygrazer, wheat, and milo are the primary crops grown.

Two lakes were constructed, natural lakes were modified by deepening, and some man-made waterings were installed on Walker's land. The lakes have been stocked with game fish and provide excellent feeding and resting areas for migratory birds as duck and geese.

Approximately 800 trees were planted as windbreaks. Walker has raised quail and pheasants and hopes to release other species as they are available. However, Walker does not allow commercial hunting, restricting hunting to family members at the present time.

Loretta Urbanczyk was cited as the TBSWCD Conservation Homemaker for 1988 based on her homemaking skills. Raised on a farm north of Hereford, she is the daughter of Kathryn Strafuss and the late Lawrence Strafuss. She graduated from Hereford High School and, in 1957, married A.J. "Tony" Urbanczyk.

The Urbanczyks are the parents of five sons and one daughter, all of whom are involved in agriculture. Mrs. Urbanczyk works with her husband on the farm as "his go-fer". She runs numerous errands as picking up parts and supplies, relaying messages, and helping move farm equipment.

Urbanczyk is known for her prolific garden. Each summer she, her daughter, and daughters-in-law can and freeze large quantities of vegetables; she is a blue ribbon winner for her canned goods at the Amarillo Tri-State Fair.

An accomplished seamstress and decorator, Urbanczyk also supports her children in such organizations as FFA and 4-H. Except for one year, the Urbanczyks have had a child in FFA since 1974. She has also served as 4-H Parent Leaders' treasurer for the past three years.

Members of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, the family were Catholic Youth Organization leaders for three years. She helped the CYO renovate the chapel at Deaf Smith General Hospital. She is a member of St. Anthony's Women's Organization, Christian Mothers, and serves on the bereavement committee.

The Urbanczyks have been cooperaters with the Tierra Blanca SWCD since 1973, working with the SCS in developing and carrying out a conservation plan on their farm.

Another award recognized Ted Peabody III as the District and School Poster Contest winner. He is the 11-year-old son of Ted and Darlis Peabody and is a fifth grader at West Central School.

Following the dinner and awards presentation, a conservation film was shown. TBSWCD directors then assembled for a brief business meeting and included Kleuskens, Carl Strafuss, Bill Walden, and Clint Homfeld; Nick Yosten was not present.

SCS employees present with their spouses were Bob Perry, Pat Reily, Arlen Redelsperger, and Toddie Flippo.

Family Room and Master Bedroom Equally Sized

ARCH-TOP WINDOWS BRIGHTEN A FORMAL PLAN

© By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.

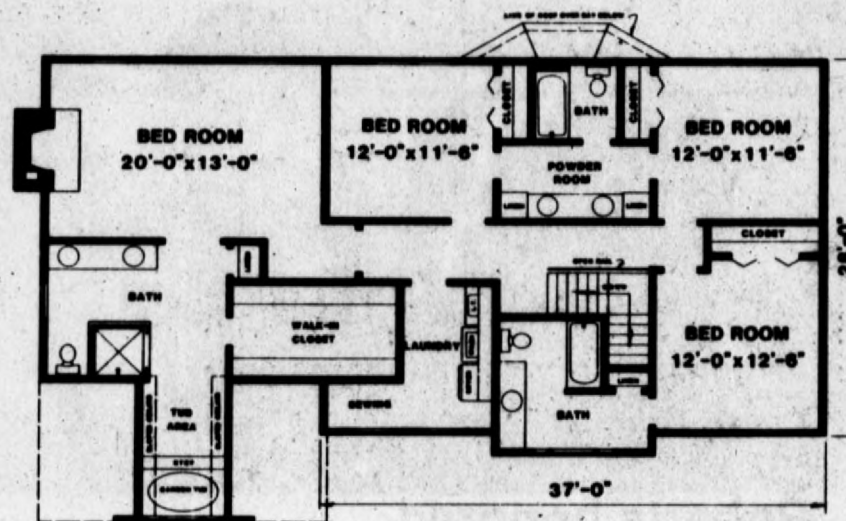

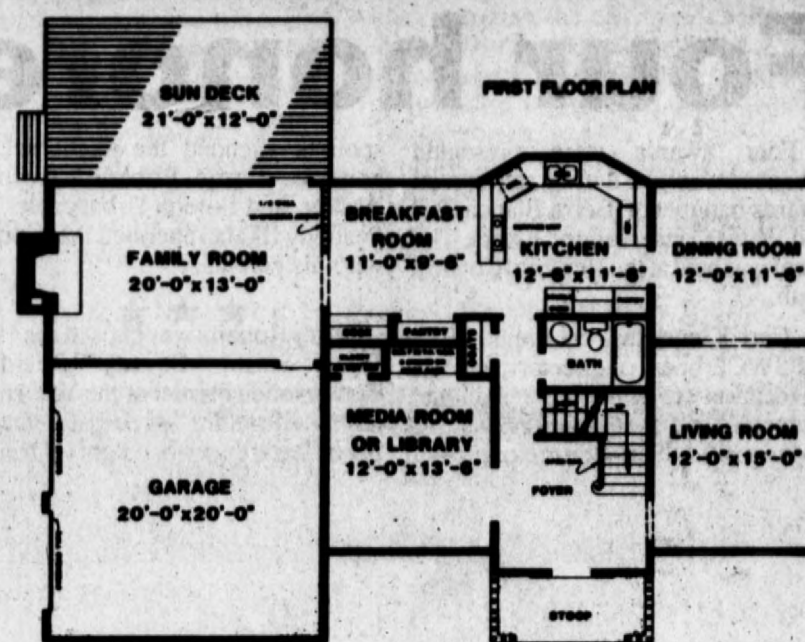

A wide foyer offers imposing access to most areas of the first floor. There is a formal living room, formal dining room, media room or library and a functional out of the ordinary kitchen, breakfast and family room. The kitchen is shown with a three sided area for the sink and cabinets and also includes the surface unit with good pass through space to the breakfast room. Bonus pantries are shown as well as a desk. A central full tub bath serves the first floor.

A prodigious family room is nestled behind the garage affording greater family privacy and the sun deck, breakfast room and garage are accessible from here. There are four large bedrooms upstairs, all including immediate access to a full bath. An unusual feature is the large laundry room located central on the second floor. The master bath is shown with a full garden tub, separate shower, private commode space and large vanity. The walk-in closet will accommodate the largest wardrobe for both Mr. and

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

Mrs. The first floor fireplace expands to another fireplace opening for the master bedroom.

The exterior style is enriched by corner quoins, arch top multi-light windows, hip and gable roof design and a stoop with railing. This is a computer plan. Some changes may be made from the plan stored in the CADD memory at less cost to you. Direct inquiries

The plan is number 2933. It includes 2,979 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

Here's the answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.— There is a water stain on the gypsum board ceiling in one of our rooms. We want to repaint it. How can we prevent the stain from showing through the new paint?

A.— Seal it with a 50-50 combination of shellac and denatured alcohol. Use clear shellac. However, before you begin the job, be sure whatever caused the stain will not give a repeat performance. The sealer will keep in the stain only if the mark is dormant. A new leak and you'll have new trouble.

Q.— I have a marble coffee table with several large stains. I have tried several things and cannot remove them. I hope you can help. I didn't know marble stained that way.

A.— The secret of polishing marble is to buff the surface with abrasive materials of successively finer grit sizes. The polishing usually will remove the stains. But it takes extensive effort and considerable time to achieve results. Your best bet is to go to a dealer who sells marble and buy a polishing compound or whatever poultice he recommends, being sure to get some kind of brochure or pamphlet that gives detailed instructions. Marble most certainly does stain, as you found out.

Q.— I have read a chapter in a booklet telling how to repair what is called a compression faucet. How do I know whether my faucet is that type?

A.— In a compression faucet, a threaded spindle is turned and the washer at the end of the lower end is pressed against a valve seat. This shuts off the supply of water. Modern faucets do not use washers. If your faucet has one, it is of the compression-type. Despite the big inroads into the market of washerless faucets, the majority of houses in the country still have compression faucets simply because they are old.

Q.— Soon I will be using plywood in an exterior project. It is important that the paint job be extra smooth. Which kind of plywood should I get?

A.— Not all lumber yards have it, but it can be ordered. It is a type of plywood called MDO.

Parent support group topic of club program

The former residence of Dr. Jim Herbertson was the site of the La Madre Mia Study Club meeting Thursday evening. Club members and guests were greeted by Micki Baulch, who, with her husband resides at the home.

Serving as hostesses were Judy Williams and Mrs. Baulch's mother, Gladys Merritt, club president.

Bonnie Borden presented a program on behalf of a parent support group in Hereford. The group assists parents who have "special needs children." She explained that some of the children are handicapped, some have learning disabilities, etc.

Borden said these children are not considered "normal" and parents hold the success of their children's future in many cases. "They need a positive parent," she stressed, "and this is what this group is striving to help parents become. Some parents just don't know what to do with a behavior problem of their child and this support group is designed to listen and help."

The support group was initiated 15 months ago. Sometimes as many as 20 people attend, at other sessions there may be only two present.

If anyone knows of a parent who has a child with special needs, please encourage them to call Borden at 364-2751, where she is secretary at Northwest Elementary School, 364-8471, or (806) 655-1935 in Canyon.

During a brief business session, Merritt read a note of thanks from Speedy Nieman, a letter from Big Brothers/Big Sisters Organization and some information on the scholarship to be presented to a Hereford High School graduating senior.

BB/BS asked for $25 to help pay for an unbudgeted expense that has arisen and the club voted to make the donation.

There was also a letter from the Hereford Volunteer Board read telling of its need for more volunteers. It assists the Department of Human Services.

The next club meeting will be an election party at the Hereford State Bank with Ruth Black, Judy Williams, Sharon Hodges and Joyce Allred serving as hostesses. Installation will be May 11 at The Barn House.

Tricia Sims, chairman of the scholarship committee, announced that forms are available at HHS for seniors to apply for this year's scholarship. The annual awards assembly is set May 18.

Marlene Watson led the club in a game and then refreshments of picnics and drinks were served.

Recognized as special guests were Debbie Bentley, Janie Young, Borden and her daughter, Andrea Borden.

Members attending included Carolyn Baxter, Black, Merle Clark, Mary Herring, Hodges, Betty Lady, Beverley Lambert, Barbara Manning, Merritt, Lavon Nieman, Bettye Owen, Nancy Paetzold, Susan Robbins, Lucy Rogers, Sims, Mysedia Smith, Georgia Sparks, Debbie Tardy, Betty Taylor, Watson, Mary Beth White, Williams and Maurine Self.

Private Donald W. Rieves Jr., son of Don and Alice Rieves of 232 Ave. B., recently participated in Exercise Desert Legion at Fort Bliss, Texas.

The Stinger missile crewmember assigned to Battery C, 5th Battalion, 62nd Air Defense Artillery, 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, Fort Bliss, provided air defense support to armor and infantry task forces during the major gunnery and maneuver evaluation conducted by the 194th Separate Armored Brigade from Fort Knox, Ky.

He is a 1987 graduate of Hereford High School.

The Fort Bliss air defense artillery unit employed the Vulcan air defense gun and the Stinger missile system during the exercise.

"As a result of the exercise, we learned how to employ our air defense systems to defend maneuver task forces on the modern battlefield," he said.

The largest painting now in existence is probably The Battle of Gettysburg, completed in 1883, after two and a half years of work, by Paul Philip Teaux

Club's first meeting held

Members of Nouvelle Ami Study Club met for their first official meeting Thursday evening in the home of Nicolynn Cook. Charlotte Collier served as co-hostess.

Guest speaker, Sandra Roberts, daughter of noted author, Doug Manning, read an excerpt from her father's book, "The Quite Winner".

The meeting was opened with roll call and each member was asked to tell about her family. Also, a card of thanks was shared with members from Kim Wilcox on the death of her grandmother.

President Missy Wilcox conducted the business session.

Yearbooks were distributed and Wilcox discussed the constitution, by-laws and committees. Upcoming social events were also reviewed.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved by secretary, Laurie Paetzold, and secret pals were exchanged.

The next regular meeting was set for May 11 in the home of Charlotte Collier.

Those present included Collier, Cook, Susan DeLoe, Emily Knight, Jodi Meyer, Mary Ann O'Rear, Paetzold, Karon Pettiet, Jan Reeve, Roberts, Elena Solis and Wilcox.

Names in the News

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Singer Ben E. King says the revival of his 1960 hit "Stand By Me" has brought new life to his career.

"You look to that one thing to keep you alive, like a motion picture actor looks for the one film that will make them live forever," said King, who is here for a two-week engagement at the Atlantis

Casino Hotel. "I don't think I'll ever drop to a very low point again in my career."

The song was revived in the 1986 Rob Reiner film "Stand By Me," about a group of friends on a journey to find a dead boy's body.

An elephant's trunk has about forty thousand muscles.

ORDER FOR TRUSTEE ELECTION HEREFORD INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

THE STATE OF TEXAS COUNTY OF DEAF SMITH

(1) The Board of Trustees of the Hereford Independent School District in Deaf Smith County, Texas, being convened in a regular meeting of the Board in Hereford, Texas, on this the 18th day of March, 1989, with the following members present: John Fuston, Kathy Moore, Steve Conaway, Shirley Wilson, Raymond Schlabs, Sylvia Flores, and Dennis Newton; with the following members being absent: none,

there came on to be considered the matter of providing for election of trustees to be held on the 6th day of May, 1989, and on the motion of trustee Steve Conaway and seconded by trustee Sylvia Flores duly put and carried with all voting "aye" and none voting "nay", it is ordered that an election be held in this school district on the 6th day of May, 1989, between the hours of 7:00 p.m. for the election of two trustees to serve three year terms on the Board of Trustees as follows:

Single members district IV on the Board of Trustees of the Hereford Independent School District to succeed Kathy Moore whose term is expiring.

Single member district V on the Board of Trustees of the Hereford Independent School District to succeed Shirley Wilson whose term is expiring.

(2) The Hereford Independent School District shall constitute one voting precinct for the purpose of holding the trustee election, and the place of the election shall be the Community Center, 100 Avenue C, Hereford, Texas. The presiding judge over the election shall be Jerry Jackson, and she shall select clerks to assist her in holding the election.

(3) Voting in the election shall be by paper ballots. No candidate for any position who has not filed his or her name at least thirty (30) days prior to the date of the election, the date being midnight, March 22, 1989, shall have his or her name printed on the ballot. Such person shall designate in the written notice and request to have his or her name placed on the official ballot for the single member district which shall be elected by majority vote. A person who does not file such notice and request within this time shall not be entitled to have his or her name printed on the official ballot to be used at the election. The order in which the name appear for the single member district IV and single member district V position shall be determined by lot; that is, a number representing the name of each of the candidates shall be placed on a slip of paper, and such slip shall be drawn from a receptacle after they have been mixed, and the names shall then be printed on the ballot in which their numbers are drawn. No person shall be elected as trustee unless he or she is a qualified voter and a resident of the Hereford Independent School District. No person shall be elected to the position of single member district IV or single member district V trustee unless he or she resides within the boundaries of the single member district at the time of filing for the position.

(4) The candidate for single member district IV receiving a majority of the votes cast for all candidates for the position shall be declared elected. If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast for single member district IV, then the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall run against each other for the position. The run-off election shall be held on Saturday, the 27th day of May, 1989, between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. Absentee voting for the run-off election shall be conducted as set out in Section 6 except that absentee voting shall take place between May 8, 1989, and May 19, 1989, with the polls to be open the same hours as during the regular election.

(5) The candidate for single member district V receiving a majority of the votes cast for all candidates for the position shall be declared elected. If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast for single member district V, then the two candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall run against each other for the position. The run-off election shall be held on Saturday, the 27 day of May, 1989, between 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. Absentee voting for the run-off election shall be conducted as set out in Section 6 except that absentee voting shall take place between May 8, 1989, and May 19, 1989, with the polls to be open the same hours as during the regular election.

(6) Absentee voting shall be conducted by David Ruland, who is hereby appointed clerk for absentee voting in the election. The place of the absentee voting will be the Deaf Smith County Clerk's Office, Deaf Smith County Courthouse, Hereford, Texas. Requests for ballots by mail should be directed in writing to the absentee voting clerk, David Ruland, Deaf Smith County Courthouse, Hereford, Texas, 79045. Absentee voting by personal appearance will begin on the 17th day of April, 1989, and continue through the 2nd day of May, 1989, from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. on each day which is not a Saturday, Sunday or official state holiday. This order shall constitute the election order for the call of the election described. The Superintendent of Schools shall post at each of three (3) public places in this District a notice of the election, stating in substance the contents of this election order and the time and place fixed for the election. The Superintendent shall also cause a notice of the election to be published in at least one newspaper not more than thirty nor less than ten days prior to the election. The Superintendent of Schools shall supply to the clerk for absentee voting all necessary ballots, ballot boxes, poll lists, stub box, tally sheets and other election supplies necessary for holding the election; and shall likewise make provision on the day of the election for the supplies to the polling places for the election judge and his clerk to conduct the election. All election materials including notice of election, ballots, instruction cards, affidavits, and other forms which the voter may be requested to sign, and all absentee voting materials, shall be printed in both English and Spanish, or Spanish translations thereof shall be made available in the circumstances permitted and in the manner required by law. The Board of Trustees shall canvass the returns of the election on the 9th day of May, 1989. Said election shall be held in accordance with the Texas Education Code except as modified by the Texas Education Code.

Adopted and entered in the minutes of the Board on this the 18th day of March, 1989.

Seminars on prevention of teen suicide planned here

Suicide is now the second leading cause of death among American teenagers. Unfortunately, Hereford and Deaf Smith County have not been exempt from such tragedies. In partial response the Hereford Independent School District and the Hereford Counselors Association are co-sponsoring a series of seminars on the prevention of teen suicide.

The seminars will begin at noon Thursday, April 20, in the library of the Stanton Special Programs Center. Mike Whitecotton, Director of Student Assistance Programs and a counselor for the Charter Plains Hospital in Lubbock, will lead each of the seminars.

From noon to 1 p.m. Thursday, Whitecotton will meet with the Hereford Counselors Association for a brown bag lunch and a general discussion of teen suicide. All counselors, ministers and local social workers are welcome at this session. From 1:30-3:30 p.m., counselors from the elementary, junior high and senior high schools will meet for a special session.

For 10 years, Whitecotton has been involved in child and adolescent counseling, including work with teenagers who have behavioral and eating disorders. His responsibilities at the Charter Plains Hospital include residential and outpatient counseling, family counseling and counseling persons with substance abuse problems. He also advises school districts in developing programs for helping troubled teenagers.

A specialist in child and adolescent counseling, Whitecotton has often worked with suicidal teenagers. On Thursday he will speak on the identification of suicidal teens and ways that counselors, teachers and others can intervene to help prevent suicide. Due to an alarming increase in suicide attempts by elementary school children, one seminar will include a discussion of childhood depression and its relation to suicide.

Wigwagging is a method of signaling with one flag. The three motions used represent a dot, a dash and the end of a word or paragraph.

STOOPING AND BACK PAIN

There may be many occasions in the course of the year when you need to stoop or bend over to perform a task. Weeding your garden is one example. Shoveling is another. Unless your body is accustomed to vigorous exercise every day, constant stooping for short periods of time may throw your spine out of alignment. This may cause aches and pains because of the pressure on nerves, tissue, and bone.

Suppose you're a very busy person and when you finally get to weeding your garden, it's long and heavy work. It may take you hours to finish the job. There are other things to do, so you work harder and faster than normal, putting unusual strain on back and muscles. When you finish, you go back into the house and flop into a chair, exhausted. You expect some aches and pains when you've had a long, physical workout. But if they persist and cause increasing discomfort, back pains, and troubled sleep, you may need treatment to bring the relief you need to feel tip-top again.

Donation made to ACS

Don Graham, president of the First National Bank, makes a donation to the American Cancer Society during its annual business drive which concludes Friday, April 21. Accepting the contribution is Patsy Sparkman, board member serving on the Deaf Smith County Unit of the ACS. Thousands of lives are saved each year due to the generosity of the public that supports the ACS. Residents will also be given the opportunity to donate during the local "Walk A Block" campaign set for Sunday, April 23.

Ask questions before making contributions, advises ACS

Board members serving on the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society have been finalizing plans for the Society's annual business drive which begins Monday and concludes Friday, April 21.

According to the drive co-chairmen, Jim Arney and Richard Ottesen, business people will be contacted and offered a $10 cancer bill in exchange for a $10 donation to the ACS. On the back of each ACS bill, it is explained what percentage of the donated dollar goes for cancer research, professional education, fellowships and scholarships, public education, service, program development and administration. Some of the contributions also go to the annual "Walk A Block" campaign set for Sunday, April 23. On this day, volunteers will be going house-to-house distributing cancer information packets and to accept donations.

Many local residents who want to be certain that the money they donate to cancer research is used in the most effective way should be aware of look-alike cancer organizations.

Amy Gilliland, president of the DSC Unit of the ACS, said, "When you contribute to a charity, it makes good sense to find out exactly where your money is going and how it will be spent. Contributors have the right to know if their donations are being spent in an efficient way."

The term look-alike is used because some organizations may include words such as, "national", "society", "institute", "research" or "foundation" in their names in an attempt to be mistaken for organizations like the American Cancer Society or the National Cancer Institute. Look-alikes may actually spend an overwhelming proportion of the donations they receive on their fund-raising and administrative expenses. ACS relies primarily on volunteer-run fund-raising.

Gilliland emphasized that there are many reputable organizations that sponsor legitimate cancer research and offer services to cancer patients. "We do not want to discourage people from contributing to other organizations but would just like them to take note of how their funds are being distributed," she added.

ACS urges all donors to ask questions before writing a check to a charity. The American Cancer Society and the National Charitable Information Bureau (NCIB), a charity-rating agency located in New York, have both developed a set of guidelines for donors to follow:

-Check to see if the organization's fund-raising efforts are cost-effective. The NCIB stipulates that a charity should not spend any more than 30 percent of one dollar on fund-raising.

-Check to see if the organization produces an annual report. This report may be helpful to inform the contributor how much money the organization spends on research, fund-raising and other expenditures.

-Find out what are the organization's administrative costs. The NCIB recommends that these costs should not exceed 15 percent of the budget.

-Learn if the group has a solid management and an identifiable board of members. It's important that the board consists of several medical and scientific professionals.

ACS can be identified by its copyrighted Sword of Hope symbol. The Society works with approximately 2.3 million volunteers nationwide. According to Gilliland, ACS and other highly respected charitable organizations rely on the generosity of the public in order to continue their work. "If the public knows exactly where its charitable dollars are going, and contributes wisely, we'll all benefit," she said.

Beta Sigma Phi Sorority to celebrate Founder's Day

On Tuesday, the three local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will celebrate their Founder's Day as will 12,500 chapters of 250,000 members throughout the world this month.

Alpha Iota Mu, Xi Epsilon Alpha, and Alpha Alpha Preceptor chapter members will gather at K-Bob's Steakhouse at 7 p.m. Tuesday for the annual observance. Each chapter president will review the special events of the year. Announcement of Girl of the Year from each chapter will also be featured.

"Pave It With Stars" has been the theme of the sorority for the past year and it will be featured in the Founder's Day motif.

The sorority began back during the Great Depression when Walter W. Ross thought that young women needed more in their lives than work, responsibility, and hardship. Believing that a social and cultural outlet was needed, Ross brought together seven young women in Abilene, Kans. on April 30, 1931, to form such an organization. As a result Beta Sigma Phi chapters throughout the world remember the late Mr. Ross during April Founder's Day activities.

Throughout the 58 years of their history, members have not only grown through programs of cultural studies and social events, but have also donated over $3 million directly to local charities through two million work hours. The International Endowment Fund has donated over $2 million to health research groups, to homes for underprivileged children, and other causes. Through Beta Sigma Phi's International Loan and Scholarship Funds, members and their families receive assistance.

Abundant Life

OUR MUTUAL INTEREST
By Bob Wear

We like to think that we are independent, and, in some ways we are independent, in some things; however, it is always obvious that we have many mutual interests, and there are many ways in which we actually need each other. It seems unbelievable that there could be so much strife, division, disunity and hostility among people. In some instances, it is almost as if some kind of madness has taken possession of people. There is alienation where there could be friendship; fighting where there could be peace; wanton destruction where there could be building; resentment where there could be appreciation; and weakness where there could be strength. All of us are affected, to some degree.

In the recognition of our mutual interest, and the admission of our need for each other, we do not give up our essential independence; but there will be a blending that will make us collectively and individually stronger. It is thus that we can make the maximum contribution to the common good. In our social order, much of our time, energy, talent and effort are misused and misdirected in strife and confusion.

"How beautifully it is ordered that as many thousands work for one, so must each individual bring his labor to make the whole.--The highest is not to despise the lowest, nor the lowest to envy the highest; each must live in all and by all.--So God has ordered, that men, being in need of each other, should learn to love each other, and to bear each other's burdens."--G.A. Sala

It is not possible for us to withdraw from our fellowmen, and live a life completely apart from them.

Of course, there can be and should be some independence, but complete and absolute independence is impossible. "There is a destiny that makes us all brothers; none goes his way alone. All that we send into the lives of others comes back into our own."--Markham.

Our mutual interest must be recognized and dealt with, because there is a very real sense in which we stand or fall together.

Between the Covers

By JANA MORGAN
CARY GRANT: THE LONELY HEART by Charles Higham shows us a Cary Grant behind his glamorous facade. He was a man with classic good looks, surrounded by the rich and famous, adored by beautiful women, and possessed of a multi-million-dollar fortune. He lived a life the world envied.

But beyond his glamorous facade was a lonely, tormented, unstable man who fought agonizing problems, often with the aid of drugs. This book draws on more than 150 interviews with friends such as Katharine Hepburn and George Burns; ex-wives such as Barbara Hutton, Betsy Drake and Dyan Cannon.

In an unprecedented interview, Grant's first wife, Virginia Cherrill, reveals the details of her ill-fated marriage to a man who was an alcoholic, brutal, and suicidal. But at the same time he showed a dual personality with women, Cary Grant led another, hidden life as the lover of Randolph Scott and Howard Hughes.

The authors detail Grant's work with such directors as Alfred Hitchcock and Howard Hawks and his never before-discussed undercover activities for British Intelligence during WWII, which won him the Kings Medal.

Peter Maas, the author of such major nonfiction works as Serpico and The Valachi Papers. Now, in his new novel, Father and Son, Maas has written his most powerful and moving work to date.

The story revolves around Michael McGuire, a successful New York executive, a widower who has found in his only son Jamie, all the reason he needs to go on living and working.

McGuire has no attachment to his Irish ancestral homeland and little interest in what is happening "over there," until his son is drawn by a romantic impulse, into an IRA gun-running, McGuire is propelled into the tangled violent, harsh reality of a war that involves both IRA sympathizers and foes in the U.S. Government, the British secret service and the highest level of the IRA leadership: a war in which he learns there is no such thing as an innocent bystander or the rules of the Geneva Convention, a war that will shatter the lives of father and son.

Peter Maas expertly weaves a complicated totally satisfying story, ranging from the offices of M15 in London to the inner councils of the IRA and to the network of Irish-American supporters whose money and co-operation help make the struggle possible, never once letting the reader forget that in the middle of all the plotting, counterplotting, and killing, one father is searching for the truth about his son.

From father and son, we go to father and daughter in First Father, First Daughter: A Memoir by Maureen Reagan.

Maureen Reagan creates an affectionate, lively and intimate dual portrait of Ronald Reagan, with all the revealing details of their intertwined lives and careers.

In this loving memoir, Maureen recalls "life with father" from her childhood to today, including many never-before-published anecdotes and family adventures. She reminisces about growing up with famous parents in Hollywood and relates the heartbreak of their divorce. She recalls the happy times they shared at the ranch, on holidays and in the White House. She also chronicles the hard times, being sent to boarding school at a young age, her problems with her brother Michael and her new siblings and her complex relationship with her stepmother, Nancy.

Politics has proved to be a shared passion for father and daughter, providing the basis for their current relationship. Maureen traces the President's political ascent from the presidency of Screen Actors Guild to governorship of California, and she openly discusses life at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave.

Maureen has been privy to Ronald Reagan's private administrations and discusses the assassination attempt, Nancy's career, Iran-Contra as well as Don Regan, Mike Deaver, Oliver North, John Poindexter, Mikhail Gorbachev and George Bush. Maureen has been witness, confidante, and active participant during these eight presidential years and she creates a loving and endearing portrait of a very special father and his daughter.

YOUR EYES

COLOR BLINDNESS

Very few people are totally color blind. More likely: a genetically inherent color deficiency exists that makes it hard to recognize certain shades.

One out of every 12 males have color deficiencies, while only one out of 200 women see color inaccurately. Both eyes are almost always affected and there is no cure.

The commonest color problem is seeing the primary colors, red, blue and green, in incorrect proportions, so that pastel shades are almost impossible to identify. Even bright color recognition suffers during times of stress or fatigue.

Some color deficient persons cannot see all three primary colors. Typical of color blindness is difficulty in telling red from green, and orange from purple.

Some work is now being done with filters and tinted contact lenses to help color deficient persons tell colors apart, even if they cannot see "true colors."

Students place in competition

Crystal Kelley, Juan Hernandez and Jaime De La Cerda were chosen first, second and third place winners, respectively, in the final competition of the Shirley Intermediate School's creative writing essay contest held March 22-April 6. The event was under the sponsorship of Modern Woodmen of America, a fraternal insurance society.

Judges for the contest on the topic, "A Life Experience", were Dr. Steve McElroy, pastor of First United Methodist Church; Bill Shore; and Bettie Dickson, administrator of Hereford Day Care Center.

The three sixth grade students are instructed by Sharon Cummings and Brenda Campbell.

Jim Lamberson, Modern Woodmen's representative, will present the students with trophies in honor of their achievements during the school's awards ceremony set in May. The students' names will be engraved on the Shirley trophy which provides space for the school's creative writing essay contest winners for five years.

All children who participated in the contest received ribbons.

Aggie Muster April 21

Former student's of Texas A&M University and their families and friends will gather in Amarillo on April 21 for the annual Texas Aggie Muster.

Every year since 1883, Aggies have mustered together to pay respect to fellow Texas A&M students and graduates who have died in the past year.

During wars, Aggies mustered in foxholes, on the battlefield, aboard ships, in airplanes and in hospitals. In World War II, a Muster was held on Corregidor Island shortly before the Japanese captured it in 1942.

This year's Panhandle ceremony will begin with a social hour at 6:15 p.m. and a dinner at 7 p.m. in Tascosa Country Club. Dr. Lee Phillips, senior lecturer in the Department of Industrial Engineering at Texas A&M will speak.

Reservations for the evening may be made by calling John Kuker at 353-9994. All former students, their families and friends are invited.

Scholarships available for graduate seminar

West Texas State University has received a grant from the American Enterprise Forum for Economic Understanding that will provide scholarships to approximately 35 individuals attending a special graduate seminar.

The six-hour graduate program involves two courses, Problems in American National Government (POSC 5511-01) and Comparative Political and Social Systems (POSC 5545-01).

The program is designed primarily for social studies teachers and will be offered in the afternoons of the first summer session. Although enrollment in both classes is encouraged, students may elect to attend only one of the courses and may still qualify for funding.

Scholarships, waiving tuition, selected fees, books and in some cases University housing, will be awarded to accepted and qualified students.

To apply for a scholarship, interested participants should send an application and a college transcript by May 15 to Dr. Roy E. Thoman, Department of History and Political Science, West Texas State University, P.O. Box 725, Canyon, Texas 79016.

For more information or to secure an application form, contact Thoman at 806-656-2432.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know you care about our veterans because you asked your readers to remember them on Valentine's Day and more than a million and a half people responded. Please be their friend again.

Did you know that supplies are so short in many VA hospitals that the nurses are scrounging the little souvenir bars of soap and shampoo bottles from hotels to bring to VA patients?

In one VA hospital in the South, the nurses were so frustrated by the refusal of the prosthetics department to supply wheelchair cushions that they raised $25, bought a large foam mattress, borrowed an electric knife and cut the foam to make wheelchair cushions for their patients.

Another VA nurse reported that in her hospital it was impossible to give diabetic patients proper care because they did not have insulin syringes. This could be life-threatening.

At a congressional hearing last September, VA officials said they faced a $600 million to $1 billion shortfall in their budget for medical care. Yet we seem to have billions of dollars for the Defense Department.

Does any of this make sense to you, Ann?--E.A., Oakland, Calif.

DEAR OAK: No, and it hasn't for quite some time. I urge my readers to remember that the wheel that squeaks get the oil. In this case, the oil is a letter to your congressman and senators asking them to support an increase in the budget for our veterans. They risked their lives for us. This is the least we can do for them.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am engaged to marry a wonderful guy who is 28. I am 27. "Tom" has a good job and loves his work. Everything is peaches and cream except for one thing. He has been smoking a joint or two of marijuana every day for years.

I have told him that I think he should stop smoking pot, or at least cut down a little, but he says there is nothing wrong with it, that pot is harmless, and he sees no reason to deprive himself of the pleasure and relaxation he gets from it.

Ann, when he smokes, he gets spacey and lazy and doesn't want to do anything but listen to music and stare at the wall. Sometimes he gets silly and giggles over nothing, which is very upsetting to me.

Will you please tell me if marijuana is harmless as he insists? I need to know what you think because my views don't carry much weight with Tom and yours might. Thanks for your help.--Palm Beach, Fla.

DEAR P.B.: We now know a great deal more about marijuana than we did in the '60s, when it became popular.

One or two joints every day is a lot of pot. It is not harmless as Tom seems to think. It destroys initiative, clouds judgment and distorts vision. Like drunkenness, it can lead to car accidents.

We now know that pot smokers damage their lungs the way cigarette smokers do. Pot is also illegal.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read with interest the letter from the woman who had a 40-year affair with a married man. She was his secretary. They went on "business trips" and did a great deal of sneaking around. She now realizes that he never had any intention of marrying her.

Women who have affairs with married men should be aware that a married man is not an available man. Never mind the fun and games and wishful thinking. This world is full of women who are hoping to snag a man any way they can. If he is married, they hope to pry him loose. They listen and pounce on any weakness. "Poor me..." or "Poor you..." or whatever works. Nobody ever had a secret affair in any office. Anyone who thinks otherwise is a fool. I don't feel sorry for the secretary who wrote. That bimbo deserved what she got.--Oakland Reader

DEAR OAK: You've written a letter that millions of wives will love. However, I would plead for just a little more compassion.

Displaying geraniums

Approximately 1,200 plants including geraniums have been ordered by members of L'Allegra Study Club for its 12th Annual Plant Sale to begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, April 29, at Sugarland Mall. Proceeds from the event have always benefited the community. In the past, the money has been used to assist Deaf Smith General Hospital, the YMCA, and the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center. Donations have also benefited individuals as well as providing scholarships for Hereford High School students. This year's proceeds will be given to the Outreach Program of the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center. Displaying some of the geraniums are club members (from left), Kim Reinauer, Hilda Perales, Shelly Moss and Poppy Head.

"Change of Plate" set

A nutritional meeting is scheduled Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

"A Change of Plate" will be the program featured by local dietician Charlotte Clark. The program will focus on how to reduce fat and calories when choosing and using meat.

Assisting Clark will be Charmayne Klett of Texas CattleWomen.

The public is invited to attend.

Salting is one of the oldest methods of preserving food.

Poster winner

Isnacio Garcia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Garcia, created the winning poster in the first grade division of the Tierra Blanca Soil and Water Conservation District Contest. He received a blue ribbon and plaque for his efforts.

Third session of 'A Change of Heart' set

A "Change of Heart" workshop will meet Monday in the SPS Reddy Room for the third session of a four-week course of focusing on nutrition and health.

This week's session will present fiber facts, soluble and insoluble fiber and modifying menu's to obtain fiber. Sugar and sodium content of foods will also be examined with recipe modification hints presented. Exercise lifestyle will focus on measuring heart rate, warm up and cool down and flexibility exercises will be emphasized.

Identical sessions of the free workshop will be presented at 9:30 a.m. and again at 7 p.m. at the SPS Company Reddy Room. Instructor is County Extension Agent, Beverly Harder, and materials are extension related and are also from the American Heart Association.

If you wish to attend this weeks session and have not registered previously please call the Extension Office at 364-3573 on Monday morning.

The hearing capacity of the average person starts to decline around age 20.

Parenting program Thursday

Few concrete answers exist to the problem of parent and child conflicts. Concerns among professionals working with families in conflict has intensified. Ways to assist families has been a target of recent discussions among a group of people working with families in Deaf Smith County.

Jerri Ray, Kerr County Extension Agent for Home Economics, will present an innovative program initiated in Kerrville. This presentation will be held Thursday, April 20, at 5:15 p.m. at the Community Center Banquet Room. Her program utilizes materials based on support materials from the American Guidance Service entitled "Systematic Training for Effective Parenting of Teens." Mrs. Ray will be available after the presentation to informally visit with those desiring more information on the program in Kerr County. Those interested in hearing her presentation are invited to attend. For more information or details please contact Beverly Harder, County Extension Agent, at 364-3573.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

SOUTHERN BATTLE

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) - The southernmost land battle of the Civil War, a minor one, took place here in 1865. Fort Myers was a federal army outpost, activated in 1864 to break up cattle drives supplying Confederate troops. The following year two Confederate companies of horsemen from Tampa Bay attempted a surprise attack on the fort on Feb. 20. Defended by 250 men, the fort returned Confederate cannon fire accurately, "compelling the enemy to move his battery three times," according to reports. Skirmishing followed, but at nightfall the Southern troops pulled back and retreated northward.

Nominations solicited for Pioneer Woman

The sixty-first Pioneer Round-Up, scheduled for Saturday, May 20, will for the 30th year, honor a pioneer woman of this area.

Deadline for nominations for the "Pioneer Woman of the Plains" has been set for May 10, according to Dorothy Morton, chairman of the Program Committee. The Plainview Business and Professional Women's Club is the sponsoring organization of the Pioneer Round-Up.

Entry blanks for the "Pioneer Women of the Plains" have been mailed to civic clubs, women's clubs and organizations in Plainview and surrounding areas. Individuals may also submit names to be considered for this honor. All entries must be signed by the organization or individual who is submitting the letter of nomination and must state whether or not she would be able to attend the Round-Up, if selected. The nominee must have been a pioneer resident of the High Plains and be at least 80 years of age. Of most importance, this woman should be one of the early settlers to make her home on the Plains and have a true "pioneer" spirit. A short biography of the nominee must be submitted, including her outstanding contributions to the home, church, community and general welfare of her fellowman.

A panel of judges will select the winner based on information submitted. The number of times a person is nominated will have no effect on the selection of the honoree. All entries must be postmarked no later than May 10. Entry blanks and additional information may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Morton, 293-8841 or 293-2258.

Hodge guest artist for April

The feature artist for April at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center is Marion Hodge of Earth.

Hodge has worked primarily with oils and pen and inks. Her pen and inks depict various aspects of western life including horses, riders, ropers and a variety of rodeo scenes.

The public is invited to view the artwork from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 515 Ave. B.

The artist is a nominee of the Hall of Fame.
