A writer for the Dallas Times Herald last week did a "hatchet job" on the city of Hereford, portraying it as a "little South Africa" and claiming it has "a kind of racism that has pretty well disappeared everywhere else."

The editorial appeared in the Feb. 12 issue of the Times Herald and is full of inaccuracies, half-truths and innuendos. The author is Molly Ivins, who seems to use a few complaints about a drug bust here to launch her tirade about the "completely segregated" community.

As we were attempting to write this column Tuesday, we were kept busy answering phone calls from irate readers who had seen the Dallas article. We also had a number of folks who brought us a copy to make sure we had one.

Another editorial comment appeared in the Feb. 15 issue of the Times Herald, and Ms. Ivins turns most of her attention to DA Roland Saul, his former law partner Jerry Smith, and a few Dimmitt officials. The beginning of this editorial gives you a hint right away about the accuracy of her information:

"Dudley Bayne was the city manager of Hereford until he died two years ago."

Bayne is alive and well and the report of his death is greatly exaggerated, just like much of Ms. Ivins' editorial.

In her first editorial, Ms. Ivins writes: "What is now the heart of the Mexican-American community in Hereford started as a prisoner of war camp... German and Italian prisoners were kept there to do forced labor on the big farms around Hereford, and after the war they were replaced with Mexican-American workers, moved 'em right into the same workhouses."

We're not sure who Ms. Ivins got her information from in Hereford, but they exaggerated that as much as they do some of their racial discrimination claims. The POW camp was located west of Hereford, not where the present San Jose community is situated. We don't think the approximate 6,700 Hispanics in the city limits would agree that several hundred peopled in the San Jose area constitute the "heart" of the Mexican-American community. The heart of the Mexican-American community lies in many areas of the city.

Ms. Ivins writes that the Concerned Citizens of Deaf Smith County couldn't find a place to meet, "because brown people had never used the Hereford Community Center before." Hogwash, it's been used by Hispanics on many occasions. Maybe that group couldn't get it reserved the first time around, but they've used it since. There are a number of places groups—any color—can meet in Hereford. Some require a deposit, but you get it back if you leave it like you found it.

Ms. Ivins writes: "The episode that woke the sleeping giant in Hereford was a drug bust. She's right, in a sense. It awoke everyone. Joe Brown, a Hispanic sheriff who Ms. Ivins never mentions, told the news media that the bust "cut the drug traffic in half." She writes that the convicted people were "given unbelievably long sentences—20 to 70 years" and says virtually all were Hispanic. She fails to mention the 70-year sentence was assessed to one of the 11 Anglos indicted and he was a multiple offender who was on parole.

Another half-truth was an example she gives of an Hispanic woman who washes dishes at the country club. The writer makes it appear the woman gets only $73 for a week's work, but she fails to mention that it's not a 40-hour work week, that she was apparently referring to take-home pay, or the fringe benefits the club provides a worker in that capacity.

Ms. Ivins claims the city clerk won't even show you the lines for the new single-member districts. Officials at city hall emphatically say that no one was ever denied that information.

Hereford is so far in the dark ages, according to this writer, that "there's still a requirement that you have to own property before you file for public office. Anyone should be able to check that out and know it's a

According to Gates testimony

CIA officials avoided knowledge

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's choice to head the CIA, Robert M. Gates, said agency officials avoided learning about diversion of Iran arms sale money to the Nicaraguan Contras to avoid accusations of violating Congress' ban on aid to the rebels.

"We don't have the faintest idea how much the Contras obtained from various sources" during the two-year aid ban that began in 1984, Gates told the Senate Intelligence Committee during his confirmation hearings Tuesday. "We tried to build in a buffer. ... It was best to build as big a buffer as possible."

Gates said agency officials from top to bottom had been instructed to stay far clear of anything dealing with Contra aid.

Gates handled questions, sharp and skeptical at times, from the panel for 5½ hours.

Committee Chairman David Boren, D-Okla., said any vote on whether to confirm the 43-year-old career intelligence analyst to succeed the ailing William J. Casey would be delayed at least until early March, in part to see whether Reagan's commission investigating the Iran-Contra scandal turns up additional information on the CIA's conduct.

Under close questioning on Tuesday, Gates promised to report any illegal or suspicious intelligence activities to Congress but said he had not challenged the Iran-Contra arms deal because there was no evidence of wrongdoing.

"While this was a risky operation, there was no reason to quarrel with it," he said at one point, prompting a quick response from committee vice chairman Sen. Richard Cohen, R-Maine.

"Of course there was reason to quarrel with it," Cohen said, reminding Gates that during questioning earlier in the day the nominee had said he would have approached the situation far more skeptically than Casey apparently did and ultimately would have recommended against the deal if he had been director at the time.

When panel members asked Gates to go into more detail about his knowledge of the arms shipments or of the diversion of money to the Contras, he said his information was limited, in part because of an informal "division of labor" in which Casey took the lead on Iran and Central America and Gates, as Casey's deputy for the 10 months, oversaw other areas.

But Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said Gates never mentioned such a division of labor during four hours of closed-door testimony last Dec. 4.

Gates told the panel Tuesday that his primary regret about the CIA's handling of the affair was its failure to press President Reagan to lift his ban on disclosure of the initiative to the intelligence committees. He said if the president ever asked him to withhold notification in the future for more than a few days, "I would contemplate resignation."

Court upholds teacher testing

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today ruled that the state literacy exam required for all school teachers and administrators was constitutional.

"Teacher testing is a rational means of achieving the legitimate state objective of ensuring that public school educators meet specified standards of competency," said the unanimous opinion authored by Justice Robert Campbell.

The court issued orders today on two lawsuits challenging the Texas Examination of Current Administrators and Teachers, which was given last year.

Without writing an opinion, the high court let stand an Austin Court of Appeals decision upholding the TECAT against a challenge filed by the Texas State Teachers Association.

Campbell's opinion was issued in overturning State District Judge

Ricardo Garcia's injunction that had prevented the Texas Education Agency from taking teaching licenses from educators who failed or refused to take the TECAT.

That suit was filed in Starr County by Project Principle, a non-profit corporation representing about 350 educators. The group contended the test unfairly infringed on rights of teachers who had been issued teaching certificates that were good for life.

"We hold that a teaching certificate is not a contract," Campbell said in the opinion. "Rather, the certificate is a license, and like all licenses, is subject to such future restrictions as the state may reasonably impose."

The TECAT was given several times. Eventually, 99 percent of the state's 202,000 educators passed the exam, which was mandated as part of the education reforms approved by lawmakers in 1984.

'Star Wars' justified, president says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told both the Soviet Union and Congress that the administration is justified in viewing a 1972 nuclear arms control treaty in a way that permits testing of a "Star Wars" anti-missile system.

Reagan on Tuesday also again asserted that the United States will comply with all superpower treaties, including the 1972 Anti-Ballistic Missile pact which limits the types of defenses each side can build.

In a letter to congressional leaders, the president noted that the United States has complained before about what it says are violations by the Soviets of treaties and said, "these concerns remain." The Soviets deny the violations.

The current dispute involves whether to use a "narrow" or "broad" interpretation of the 1972 pact.

Under the narrow view which has been in effect since the treaty was approved by the Senate, there could be no major tests of the Strategic Defense Initiative, the formal name of Reagan's four-year-old Star Wars program. The broader interpretation would permit a wide range of tests.

While Reagan was reporting to Congress, State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said Soviet negotiators at the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks in Geneva had asked U.S. officials about how the 1972 treaty was viewed.

State sending reps to hearing

The Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office is sending three representatives to Hereford next week for a Department of Energy hearing on site characterization and for work on impact studies.

Steve Frishman, the office director, will be in Hereford for the hearing Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center. His assistants Gary Rasp and Charles Branton will spend the entire week in the city.

Police report

A 35-year-old woman was the only arrest made by Hereford police Tuesday. Her charge was theft of $43.84 in the 500 block of North 25 Mile Ave.

Police filed reports of an assault in the 600 block of Irving, a prowler in the 200 block of Irving, a badge found in the 900 block of Ave. K, and burglary of a motor vehicle in the 1400 block of East Park Avenue.

Eleven citations were issued and one accident investigated.

WDIC holds briefing

The Waste Deposit Impact Committee of Deaf Smith County held a briefing here yesterday in city hall with Steve Frishman, director of the Texas Nuclear Waste Programs Office. Frishman told the WDIC members that the number of workers to be placed here appeared to be nearer 400 than the 300 previously announced.

Frishman also encouraged the local intergovernmental body to start its impact study as soon as possible, and to work in cooperation with the state to determine the socio-economic impacts that could be presented with an influx of people.

Tom LeGate, the city representative on WDIC, said the impact study would be concerned with the effect "an influx of people could have on city services, the school system and other factors." He said the WDIC would have a briefing session with DOE officials next Tuesday at 2 p.m. in city hall.

Murder charges filed

Marcos Victor Castillo, 50, of Dimmitt is being in the Castro County Jail on $200,000 bond for two counts of first degree murder. Castillo is held for the Monday night shooting death of Robert Cabrera, 52, of Hereford, and his wife Sally, 46, of Dimmitt.

Charges were filed Tuesday afternoon in Castro County. A grand jury is tentatively set for next Tuesday in the 64th District Court.

The Cabreras were shot Monday night with a small handgun outside Joe's Liquor Store, 605 E. Bedford, in Dimmitt around 8:30 p.m.. Castillo turned himself in to the Castro County Sheriff's department about an hour after the incident.

Theft trial dismissed today

Evidence submitted today in the jury trial of Brenda Tackitt Ward, 26, who is charged with theft over $750 and under $20,000, was rejected by District Judge Wes Guley and the case dismissed. The trial started Tuesday.

District Attorney Roland Saul said that time cards used when Ward worked at Hereford Parts as a bookkeeper had been written on since their original use and was therefore ruled inadmissible. The state had planned to use the time cards to show discrepancy between hours worked and salary paid. Saul said without the timecards, the state has no evidence.

Texas spots vying for collider project

AUSTIN (AP) - Two Texas locations stand a good chance to win the national competition to become home to the multibillion-dollar "supercollider" research project, Gov. Bill Clements says.

The candidates are Dallas-Fort Worth and the area between Austin, Houston and Bryan, Clements said while pledging to do everything possible to lure the project to Texas.

"We're going to leave no stone unturned," said Clements, who put the project at the top of the agenda for his week-long trip to Washington that begins Friday.

Clements, who will attend a National Governors Association meeting in Washington next week, said he wants to talk with everyone from "President Reagan and on down" about putting the huge atom-smashing project in Texas.

"We're going to go all out. We're going to turn every very bit of contacts that we have, every bit of influence that we have, every bit of leverage," Clements told his weekly news conference Tuesday.

"It's going to be a real battle. It's a tremendous plum. We're a state without a federal research center...I'm saying to you as the governor of this state that we are entitled to one."

The superconducting supercollider would be the largest piece of scientific research equipment ever built, officials say. Cost estimates range from $6 billion to $10 billion.

When completed in 1996, the supercollider will be housed in a 52-mile circular tunnel about 10 feet across and several feet underground. Superconducting magnets would focus and guide two beams of subatomic protons in opposite directions through the tunnel. After accelerating to nearly the speed of light, the protons would be allowed to collide head-on.

'Condom mania' not a cure

AUSTIN (AP) - Medical experts, too quick to prescribe condoms as a preventive device against AIDS, may need to add a dose of restraint to sex education, U.S. Education Secretary William Bennett said.

"Condom mania, which is what I see around in some quarters right now, will not save our children," Bennett said Tuesday.

So far, sex education prompted by the increasing threat of acquired immune deficiency syndrome has focused on teaching the use of condoms, Bennett said.

"The threat of AIDS is just one more compelling reason for discouraging sexual activity among children," Bennett told a news conference. "To be fixated on condoms as the answer is a mistake."

Bennett said he and U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop agree that sex education is needed to fight the spread of acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

But that education needs to include lessons in morality and restraint, he said.

"To focus exclusively on (condoms) is like teaching the children that when they are driving drunk they should drive slow," Bennett said. "Condoms often fail. Teen-agers who know about them often fail to use them."

Sanctions against Poland lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan will lift U.S. economic sanctions against Poland in response to reforms undertaken by the East European government and appeals from Polish church and trade union leaders, administration officials say.

The decision was accelerated by a visit to Warsaw late last month by Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead that extended a thaw in U.S. dealings with the once-isolated Communist country.

It followed the release last September of almost all of Poland's political prisoners. Despite the amnesty, however, opposition sources said more than 20 such prisoners were still being held. And Lech Walesa, a leader of Solidarity, had urged the United States to press for restoration of the independent trade union.

The Polish government's suppression of Solidarity and its imposition of martial law had prompted Reagan to impose the sanctions in December 1981. U.S. relations with Warsaw were frozen. The sanctions included the denial of new U.S. trade credits and higher-than-usual tariffs for Polish goods.

Also, Reagan suspended Polish fishing privileges in U.S. waters and landing rights for Polish commercial aircraft. The fishing and commercial aircraft sanctions were lifted on Jan. 19, 1984.

The NATO allies joined in the U.S. sanctions in 1982, suspending official credits for non-food items and negotiations on rescheduling Poland's debt.

Miss Texas wins Miss USA

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - Texas' Michelle Renee Royer was crowned Miss USA 1987, bringing to a happy end a pageant that only hours earlier was embroiled in controversy with the threatened pullout of the longtime host.

Miss Royer, 21, from Keller is the third consecutive Miss Texas to take the Miss USA title.

The 5-foot-11 model and substitute teacher broke into tears when her name was announced Tuesday night by master of ceremonies Bob Barker.

"I was totally numb when it got down to the final two," said Miss Royer. "When they announced the runner-up (Miss Florida), I looked right over at my state (pageant) directors, and they were jumping and down. I just began to cry."

She was crowned by Miss USA 1986, Christy Fichtner of Dallas, and was presented flowers by Miss Universe 1986, Barbara Palacios Teyde of Venezuela.

Fighting back tears between smiles, Miss Royer smiled and blew kisses to the audience.

Barker, an animal rights activist, had threatened not to host the show if pageant officials went through with a plan to have the contestants come onto the stage in swimsuits and furs for the nationally televised finals.

Pageant officials said they would clothe the contestants in fake furs, instead, and Barker remained.

Barker, host of the nationally syndicated television game show "The Price Is Right," said pageant officials had "placed me in a position that would be untenable after speaking at various locations around the country telling people not to wear furs." CBS-TV comedy series.

Dow average jumps to new high

NEW YORK (AP) - The Dow Jones industrial average hit a new all-time high, surging by a record $4.14 points as cash-laden institutions and foreign investors rushed to buy U.S. securities.

The average of 30 blue-chip stocks jumped to 2,237.49 on Tuesday, surpassing the previous record of 2,201.49 set Feb. 5.

Tuesday's rise also broke the daily point-gain record of 51.60 set Jan. 22.

The closely watched average now stands more than 340 points above its level when the year began.

Analysts said the surge was supported by big cash holdings of institutions and foreign traders, who were reluctant to put their money into the sagging bond market.

Bond prices continued falling Tuesday, amid investor concerns about prospects for higher interest rates and lower foreign participation due to the dollar's steady decline against other currencies.

Nearly 40 percent of

Chickens infected with salmonella

WASHINGTON (AP) - The problem of salmonella in the nation's poultry supply has grown so rapidly that today nearly four out of every 10 chickens sold to consumers are contaminated, the Agriculture Department says.

Contaminated food can result in salmonellosis, a food poisoning that produces flu-like symptoms within 12 hours to 36 hours after eating. The illness may last two days to seven days. And in some cases it can be deadly.

"We cannot have a risk-free food supply, but, on the other hand, if we can improve it, we should do so," says Donald L. Houston, head of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service, the agency that oversees federal meat and poultry inspection.

false statement. We've got a feeling if someone told Mrs. Ivins the sky was falling, she wouldn't bother to look up before she started reporting it.

Ms. Ivins apparently does not read, either. "The local paper says the Concerned Citizens are racists because they only want to register and elect brown citizens," she writes.

Wrong, again. A Brand editorial referred to the voter registration drive by the Concerned Citizens group and stated: We'd be the first to agree that the community needs more Hispanic citizens involved in community affairs, including representation on governing bodies. We need more in civic clubs, study groups, the chamber of commerce—in all areas of community life."

Our editorial also quoted one of the group's co-chairmen, who told a news reporter that "whenever Anglos see a Hispanic on the ballot, they'd come out in droves to vote, because they don't want us." At the urging of a Concerned Citizen member, we came back in the next issue of the paper to again point out that this was one person's opinion and did not represent the feeling of the entire group. The main point is, however, that Ms. Ivins misrepresented what appeared in The Brand and it is on record.

Ms. Ivins got one thing right in her opinion column. There are some good people in the Concerned Citizens group and they are trying to work with all citizens to make Hereford a better place to live.

They may succeed if writers like Molly Ivins don't distract this community by planting seeds of dissension. Wouldn't it be great if Ms. Ivins and some segments of the Amarillo media would help solve the problems in their own backyards, or at least give some thought to responsible and objective reporting when they go seeking scandalous headlines elsewhere?

The sky is not falling on Hereford, Ms. Ivins. You just forgot to look up and check.

Contaminated food can result in salmonellosis, a food poisoning that produces flu-like symptoms within 12 hours to 36 hours after eating. The illness may last two days to seven days. And in some cases it can be deadly.

"We cannot have a risk-free food supply, but, on the other hand, if we can improve it, we should do so," says Donald L. Houston, head of the department's Food Safety and Inspection Service, the agency that oversees federal meat and poultry inspection.

The National Academy of Sciences plans to issue a report soon on the health-risk aspects of federal poultry inspection. In 1985, the NAS came down severely on USDA's inspection programs for not taking advantage of advanced technologies that could detect modern health risks, including salmonella and chemical residues.

Salmonella is a general name for some 2,000 closely related bacteria that develop in conducive surroundings, including the intestinal tracts of people and animals. Chickens and their fecal matter are prime salmonella sources.

In plants where sanitation rules are not enforced rigidly, the contamination rate can soar. Salmonella on or inside the slaughtered birds then moves into the consumer's kitchen, where it can be passed back and forth among chicken pieces or to other foods during preparation.

But salmonella also can be killed by heat during proper cooking, Houston said in a recent interview, and thorough washing of the hands after handling uncooked meat also can help prevent contamination.

That's why Houston says consumer education is an important part of holding down the spread of salmonella and other microbiological threats to human health.

"Eighty-five percent of the food poisoning cases are avoidable," he said.

Houston is hoping that the new NAS report will give his agency some powerful ammunition to seek legislative changes in the way poultry is inspected. For example, Houston and some others have maintained for years that there is no need to visually check every single bird that moves along the line at a slaughtering plant.

Spot-checking could do as well, he says, and that would allow USDA to use more of its resources to track down salmonella and the other unseen contaminants that are increasingly found in the poultry supply.

But the idea of modifying the traditional bird-by-bird inspection method — a visual process mainly focused on broken wings, bruises and other blemishes on naked chicken carcasses — does not set well with some consumer groups.

"We feel this would be backing down on existing consumer protection," says Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice, a private, non-profit consumer advocacy group. "We would not be supportive of less-than-continuous inspection."

Asked in an interview about claims that USDA could pay more attention to microbial problems in plants if inspectors did not have to check every single bird, Ms. Haas said she didn't think such a trade-off was necessary.

According to the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, 56,657 cases of salmonella food poisoning were reported in 1985, compared with 23,174 cases in 1976.

Figures for 1986 were not yet available.

Salmonella contamination of pork has turned up in about 12 percent of the products sampled, while beef contamination has been around 5 percent, Houston said.

Organized labor re-asserting self

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) - Organized labor, recharged by its success in the 1986 election, has revived proposals to raise the minimum wage, require advance notice of layoffs and rescind scheduled tax cuts for the wealthy.

"We have seen in recent years the erosion of a broad middle class that produced goods and services and could afford to buy them — an economy benefiting only a few and providing less and less for the rest," AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said Tuesday at the organization's annual winter meeting.

Just a day earlier, the 12.8-million-member labor federation won assurances from House and Senate Democratic leaders that Congress by summer will pass trade legislation to reduce record imports blamed for the loss of 2.5 million U.S. jobs. President Reagan opposes such measures as protectionist.

Labor Secretary and former GOP National Chairman William E. Brock met privately with the labor leaders here Tuesday in an effort to find some common ground in the wake of Democrats regaining control of the Senate last November after six years.

"They have a right to that," Brock told reporters when asked if unions are now flexing their muscle. "They had a big success in the elections last year."

But he added he is confident that Reagan can muster the 34 Senate votes needed to sustain a veto of the protectionist trade legislation wanted by unions.

"There's no way any one group can force its will on the rest of the country; it just doesn't work that way," Brock said before returning to Washington to help Reagan unveil a competitiveness initiative aimed at stalling AFL-CIO-backed trade bills.

The labor federation's 35-member executive council on Tuesday called for raising the minimum wage through "appropriate steps" to $4.61 per hour. The council also said it will lobby for automatically raising the minimum wage annually to keep it at roughly half the national average for all workers, currently $8.85 per hour.

The minimum wage, paid to 7.4 million workers according to latest government statistics, has been frozen at $3.35 per hour the past six years. During that time prices have risen an average 27 percent.

The labor leaders also declared that they will push for laws requiring employers to give workers advance notice before plant closings and mass layoffs.

"We've responded by explaining the broad interpretation and why we believe it is fully justified," Redman said.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev said in a speech Monday that any U.S. effort to undermine the 1972 treaty would violate the spirit of a broad agreement to stop the arms race which Gorbachev said he and Reagan agreed upon during their November 1985 summit meeting.

The Soviet leader said talk in the United States about a new, broader interpretation "scorns the pledge" made at the Geneva meeting. He called for an international treaty specifically banning deployment of weapons in space.

Some Star Wars supporters within the administration, chiefly Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, are pushing for an early decision to deploy an SDI system. But others oppose the move.

Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee on Tuesday that the Pentagon was drawing up a list of SDI experiments which could go ahead if that broader interpretation of the ABM treaty is put into effect. The list of experiments will be sent to the White House in the next few weeks, he said.

Weinberger said he did not know when a decision might be made or announced on whether to go ahead with the tests or to put the broad interpretation into effect.

But Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told reporters later, "I believe it is likely to be months, not weeks as some of the implications have appeared lately. I don't know that anything is going to come soon."

Nunn asserted again that Reagan will cause a "constitutional confrontation" if the president changes how the United States views the treaty.

The Senate voted 93-2 approval Tuesday of a resolution expressing "full support" for Reagan's efforts to reach an arms control pact with the Soviets.

ROBERT CABRERA and SALLY CABRERA Feb. 16, 1987

Robert Cabrera, 52, of Hereford and Sally Cabrera, 46, of Dimmitt were fatally wounded about 8:30 p.m. Monday in Dimmitt.

Funeral services for both victims are pending with Foskey-Fleming Funeral Home in Dimmitt.

Mrs. Cabrera had been a Dimmitt resident since 1979 when she moved there from Sunray. She was married to Robert Cabrera in 1958 in Dimmitt and was a housewife.

Kevin Hansen and Bobby Baker each scored 21 points, and Rodney McCracken added 15 points, to power the Hereford High School varsity boys' basketball team to a 75-56 victory over Levelland Tuesday night in Levelland.

The victory gives Hereford a 6-9 District 1-4A record and an 11-18 overall record with one game remaining in the 1986-87 season. Hereford plays at Borger Friday at 8:30 p.m.

In Tuesday night's junior varsity game, Hereford suffered a 47-45 loss in overtime to Levelland. The HHS junior varsity, which has a 17-9 record, plays at Borger 6:45 p.m.

Friday. The Whiteface varsity trailed Levelland at halftime, 34-31, but outscored the Lobos 44-22 in the second half. Kevin Hansen scored 15 of his 21 points in the second half.

In the third quarter, Hereford outscored Levelland 15-2.

"The varsity played real good. The second half was their best half all season," Hereford Coach Mike Fields said.

"Kevin's been playing real well for us the last month. Last night was his and Marcus Brown's best games of the season.

Levelland went to a man-to-man defense, and Marcus penetrated.

Baker and McCracken dominated the boards," Fields said.

Baker led the Herd in rebounding with 10, Hansen grabbed seven rebounds, and McCracken had six rebounds.

Marcus Brown had five assists, Hansen four assists, and Baker three assists for the Whitefaces, whose team total was 15 assists.

Baker also led Hereford in steals with six. McCracken had four steals and Hansen had three steals.

Hereford made 27 of 51 shots from the field for 53 percent.

In the junior varsity game, Hereford's Stuart Mitts hit a shot with less than 10 seconds left to tie the game at 43-43 and sent the contest into overtime.

Hereford scored first in the overtime period, for a 45-43 lead, but failed to score the rest of the way, and Levelland scored its 47-45 win.

Four Hereford players each scored six points — Brad Smith, Ross Torres, Stuart Mitts, and Chad Clements. John Streun scored five points.

San Antonio defeats Denver, 131-126

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio might want to take all of its games into overtime.

The Spurs made it a perfect 2-0 for extra periods this season with a 131-126 victory over the Denver Nuggets in NBA action Tuesday night.

"Whew — and spell that with four w's at the end. This was a big win for us, seeing as we have Dallas and Boston coming up," Spurs Coach Bob Weiss said after the squeaker.

"It was also important for us to beat Denver and keep them within reach for our playoff drive," Weiss added.

The victory improved San Antonio to 19-33 and ended a losing streak at four games. The Nuggets fell to 23-29.

The two teams were tied in the overtime until Alvin Robertson stole a Bill Hanzlik pass aimed for Darrell Walker, a former teammate of Robertson's at the University of Arkansas, and drove for a slam dunk, putting the Spurs up, 126-124, with 49 seconds left.

"Anticipation was the key to my steal in the overtime," Robertson said. "I kind of figured their rotation and knew where Walker was headed. I slammed it because I just wanted to finish that play off hard. "I think we won this game because we executed better in the overtime. It felt good to win it," Robertson added.

Walker, guarded loosely by Walter Berry, drove and pulled up and missed a jumper, but with 20 seconds left, Mike Evans fouled Johnny Dawkins. Dawkins buried both free throws to give San Antonio a four-point lead.

Hanzlik drew the Nuggets back to within two, but Denver was forced to foul and Dawkins sank one of two to put the Spurs up by three with 12 seconds left.

After Hanzlik missed a 3-pointer, Larry Krystkowiak added a slam with three seconds left to put Denver down and out.

The Spurs had a chance to win the game in regulation, but Robertson missed on a jumper at the end. San Antonio had built a 12-point lead in the third quarter but lost it and were down by five in the waning moments of the fourth before they drove to the tie.

Robertson led the Spurs with 23. Dawkins had 21, including five in overtime, and Berry had 20. Denver was led by Alex English with 41 and Lafayette Lever with 28.

DePaul's Meyer is AP coach of year

NEW YORK (AP) — DePaul's Joey Meyer, successor to a winning tradition begun by his father, was the top vote-getter in nominations for The Associated Press Coach of the Year in college basketball.

In the balloting announced today, Meyer collected 316 points to 308 for Tom Davis of Iowa and 296 for John Chaney of Temple.

Poll members were asked to vote for five nominees, and the top 10 vote-getters will be placed on a ballot that will decide the coach of the year. Nominees received 10 points for a first-place vote, 8 for second, 6 for third, 4 for fourth and 2 for fifth.

The 37-year-old Meyer, whose baby face belies his age as well as his 17 years of coaching experience, was named on 46 ballots cast by members of the AP's college poll board. He collected 12 first-place votes and 308 points.

Davis also got 12 first-place nods from among the 44 votes on which he was listed. Chaney was named on 43 ballots, with 11 firsts.

Last year's winner was Eddie Sutton, who guided Kentucky to a 32-4 record in his first year as coach.

Meyer, in his third year and coming off an 18-13 season, has the Blue Demons ranked fourth nationally with a 23-1 record. It is DePaul's best record at this juncture since 1982, when Meyer's father, Ray, coached DePaul to 26 victories in first 27 games.

Davis, in his first year at Iowa after a stint at Boston College, has paced the seventh-ranked Hawkeyes to a 22-3 record. Chaney, whose teams have won at least 25 games in each of the last four seasons, has the Owls at 25-2 and No. 5.

The other seven nominees were Jerry Tarkanian of top-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, 268 points; Paul Evans of No. 8 Pittsburgh, 167 points; Bob Knight of No. 2 Indiana, 96 points; Gene Keady of No. 6 Purdue, 92 points; Cliff Ellis of No. 10 Clemson, 75 points; Rick Pitino of No. 19 Providence; and Dean Smith of No. 3 North Carolina, 74.

Antihistamines have variety of uses

Although antihistamines do not make headlines as miracle drugs, they have played a major role in medicine for the past 35 years, says the Texas Medical Association.

Antihistamines' importance stems from their effectiveness in dealing with a variety of medical problems including hay fever, motion sickness, and itching.

As their name suggests, antihistamines fight histamine, a chemical substance found in nearly all body tissue. When released, histamine causes some uncomfortable reactions.

It contracts smooth muscles such as those of the windpipe and the stomach. At the same time, histamine relaxes other muscles including those of tiny blood vessels.

The result is a redness particularly in the face and upper body, called the "flushing area."

Histamine also causes swelling particularly where many small blood vessels are located, such as inside the nose. The third main reaction is itching and pain caused by histamine's effect on sensory nerve endings.

Release of histamine from tissues can be triggered by an allergy, physical trauma, heat or radiation injury severe enough to damage cells, and reactions to certain drugs, foods, and dyes. Snake and insect venoms also stimulate histamine release.

Antihistamines are most useful in relieving the sneezing, runny nose, nasal congestion, and watery eyes that accompany hay fever. They also can prevent the queasy stomach and dizziness that come with motion sickness. In addition, antihistamines can relieve the swelling and itching that often accompany allergic reactions to drugs such as penicillin or to foods and food coloring.

Antihistamines' tendency to cause drowsiness makes them useful as ingredients in sedatives. Drowsiness, in fact, is their main problem in common usage. Fortunately, not all antihistamines cause the same degree of sedation.

Here are some suggestions for using antihistamines safely: (1) If a prescribed anti-histamine makes you too drowsy, ask your doctor if another drug or a different dosage would work. (2) Avoid driving autos or operating machinery. (3) Don't drink alcoholic beverages or take depressant drugs such as tranquilizers. (4) When using over-the-counter antihistamines, don't take two products containing them at the same time. (5) If you have asthma, glaucoma, or prostate problems, check with your doctor before taking over-the-counter antihistamines.

And the winner in the fifth race...an ostrich. Though the 400-pound bird can't fly, it can outrun many racehorses.

Ann Landers From a smoker

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know your views on cigarette smoking but I hope you will show some compassion and print this letter. We smokers are a voiceless group. The anti-smoking forces are becoming more cruel and less tolerant every day.

I have been a two-to-three pack-a-day smoker for 25 years (I started at age 15). I do not enjoy smoking; in fact, I loathe it. I hate the way I smell, the way I cough and I am ashamed of my weakness.

The statistics (350,000 deaths a year) scare me because I believe I will be among them one day. But God knows I have tried to stop. Two years ago I went to a hypnotist. It didn't work. I tried acupuncture. That failed. I spent 10 days in a clinic in Utah. Three weeks later I was smoking again. I have sent away for every gimmick advertised in magazines and newspapers. I even bought a pacifier to suck on as a substitute when the craving hit me. It did nothing but make me feel stupid. The simple truth is that I am as addicted as a heroin junkie.

I am sure there are millions of others like me, Ann. Will you please publish this letter and if there is a solution to the problem that I have overlooked, for heaven's sake, tell me.—Burning in Hell

DEAR BURNING: You say you are a member of a "voiceless group." Not exactly. The tobacco lobby is powerful, rich and determined to hook half a million new smokers every year. Their ad campaigns are aimed at teenagers. And, would you believe, in the face of all the damning evidence the tobacco companies still insist the link between tobacco and lung cancer is unproven.

I feel sorry for you and the others who are hooked. Try one more thing—a mental health professional. Perhaps if you learn why you are so self-destructive you can get a handle on your addiction and emerge victorious. Give it a try. Good lucky.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick and tired of reading letters from women who have been complaining that there is a shortage of men. Of course there is, if they insist on a guy who looks like Tom Selleck, drives a Ferrari and has piles of money to spend.

I am in my early 20s, 6 feet tall, weigh 185 pounds, don't know how to dance but I can fix anything that breaks, I am a bit shy, sensitive, completely trustworthy and would like to meet someone who would appreciate being treated well. I want a loving relationship with a wife who cares about home and family.

Am I living in the wrong century?—Out of Sync in Chicago

DEAR OUT OF SYNC: Too bad I have a policy against putting readers in touch with one another but if I printed your address there would be such a stampede you'd have to call the police.

The women tell me that the real problem is the men they meet want a female who looks like Loni Anderson, cooks like Julia Child and has the I.Q. of a houseplant.

I decided a long time ago that I am going to let all you people who are looking find each other.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from "Prisoner of Manliness in Meridian" urging real men to express affection among themselves was excellent advice, but real men don't read advice columns.—Nat

DEAR NAT: Where did you get such a goofy idea? You sound like a real man to me.

Ann Landers' booklet, "Sex and the Teenager," explains every aspect of sexual behavior—where to draw the line, how to say no, the various methods of contraception, the dangers of VD, the symptoms and where to get help. For a copy, send $2 and a 10¢ self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Abundant Life

IN DUE TIME

By Bob Wear
 GIVEN ENOUGH TIME, most of us can accomplish what needs to be done; so far as our personal responsibilities and opportunities are concerned. In many instances, however, we are not willing to be as patient as we should be. This does not mean that there is any justification for carelessness, or lethargy, or procrastination.

THERE IS MUCH of the disposition to do everything 'right now', and this is understandable but not very realistic. Eagerness to get things done is commendable, but it becomes a serious problem unless it is managed wisely. We must learn to let good judgment and common sense prevail. Now and then, of course, there may be an urgency that must be highly respected and dealt with in the very best way we can; but this condition cannot be the whole of one's life.

IN DUE TIME, we can accomplish the things that we are capable of doing; and different people will move along at different speeds. Many of us are inclined to do too many things at the same time, to want to get everything done, 'all at once'. Some folk do seem to be unusually well-equipped for a limited amount of such activity, but most of us cannot function effectively in this way. When we try to do two things at once, we do nothing well, as well as we should, or we slight some things that are too important to slight. Either way, we are losers.

IF WE PERSIST in trying to do too many things, 'all at once', we create an unwholesome life climate for ourselves. There will be discouragement, frustration, nervousness and other consequences destructive of our well-being. There will be a growing sense of failure that may eventually overwhelm us.

IN THE THINGS we do, there is a relative importance we must highly regard; because some things are more important than others. Therefore, we must try to keep first things in first place. A sensible priority arrangement is far superior to the misconceived view that sends us off in 'all directions' at the same time.

According to one of civilization's earliest medical records, licorice was recommended as a tonic for aging men worried about their virility. Religious manuscripts from ancient cultures indicate that the Brahman caste of India applied licorice as a skin-nourishing agent.
