

Sarpalius Sponsors Bill To Raise Drinking Age

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two bills that would raise the legal age for consuming alcohol to 19 in an effort to get "alcohol out of the schools" have been approved by the Senate State Affairs Committee and sent to the floor.

If passed into law, the two bills approved Wednesday could drop Texas from a list of eight states that currently allow 18-year-olds to buy and drink alcoholic beverages.

The measures, sponsored by Sens. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, and Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, would ban the purchase or consumption of alcoholic beverages by Texans under age 19.

"The reason for this is to get alcohol out of the schools," Mengden said.

Both measures would allow 18-year-olds to work in bars and places that sell alcohol, but Mengden's also would allow 18-year-olds to own businesses that sell liquor.

The committee approved both bills 7-0 without addressing their differences, but only one may be passed by the full senate.

The bills drew favorable reviews from numerous representatives of educators, civic and religious groups who spoke before the committee. Several high school students testified against the measures.

"Peer pressure is one of the greatest motivators in the 14 to 18 year age group," said Don Apple, president of the Texas Association of School Principals. "Often, high school students under age 18 will prevail upon their older friends to purchase alcoholic beverages for them."

"It is not unusual to see alcohol smuggled into games, concerts and extracurricular activities," he said.

George R. Gustafson, executive director of the Texas Safety Association, said youthful drinking led to "increased juvenile crime, especially rowdiness and vandalism."

George Welch, a high school senior from Lampasas, said the bills were "unfair and unneeded."

Harry G. Porter III, also of Lampasas, called the measures "regressive legislation" that would encourage drinking by creating a "challenge" to get around the law.

Hewitt Brothers Watch Two Local Generations Skate By

By ALLISON RYAN
 Women's Editor

L.C. and E.C. Hewitt have watched children grow-up at their skating rink and both agree it has taken a great deal of patience to be the cheapest babysitters in town.

The Hewitts, twin brothers, have owned and operated the Playhouse Skating Rink here for 22 years and are now entertaining their second generation of skaters.

"We love kids, especially the little ones. It takes a lot of patience, you know, but they're worth it," L.C. said.

"We have watched kids grow-up out here, known they have gotten married and then they bring their kids out here to skate. We appreciate that. I guess their parents have good memories of this place so they bring their kids out here. It's a compliment to us," he continued.

"Some of these kids already know us from what their parents have told them. It helps, too, when their parents tell them to behave themselves when they come in here," L.C. laughed.

The Hewitt brothers were born in 1919 at Roswell, N.M., and in 1934 they moved to Hereford with their parents who began farming in the Wyche area. The men now farm the same area together.

So, why did two farmers decide to operate a roller skating rink?

"Well," L.C. began as he adjusted his cowboy hat, "A man was talking to us about opening one, and then the two of us got to talking about the idea. We talked to some other people in town and then decided to build it," L.C. said.

In 1959, the Hewitts heard about a new chicken house being torn down and decided to buy the building to use as the rink. They bought the walls and constructed a 40 ft. x 80 ft. building, and as time passed they added a 40 ft. x 50 ft. extension.

"At one time we had garage doors at both ends of the building with the floor extending outside. During warmer weather, we could open the doors so the kids could skate outside," L.C. explained.

"But, those kids would have us open the doors in the winter time so they could skate outside. They would work up speed inside and then shoot outside. They said they loved that blast of cold air hitting them," E.C. laughed as he chewed on his cigar.

Since that time, they have enclosed the entire building, and eliminated the garage doors.

Both men taught themselves how to skate and each takes a turn being on the floor each night the rink is open.

"We take turns skating every night, however we don't skate as much as we used to. Whenever we are out there, the little ones grab hold, and we go around the floor. Those little ones, especially the girls, are special. We just love kids," E.C. explained.

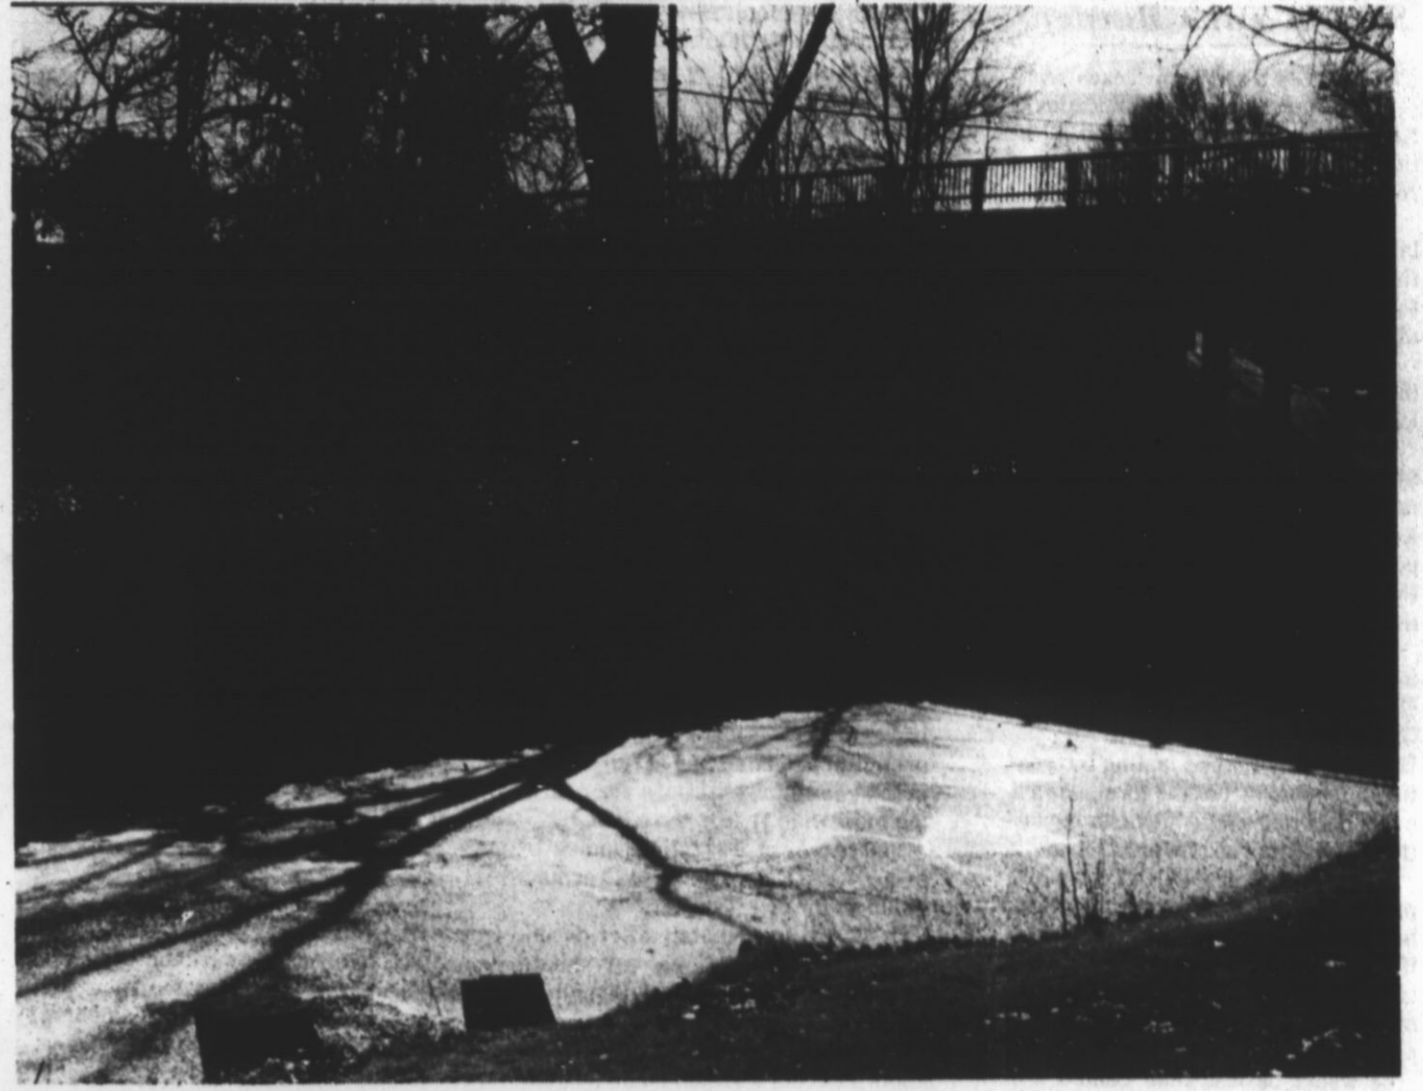

During the years of operating the business, the Hewitts have seen the popularity of skating increase and decrease. They have also seen many fads come and go, the latest being the disco skating.

"Two years ago, the disco skating was very popular. I guess we could have changed things here to add the special lights and sound, but we figured it was just a passing fad. From what we can tell it was just a fad," L.C. said.

"We lost some of our kids when we didn't change, and we lost some when the new place in Canyon opened. Kids are automatically going to go to a new place, but most of the time they come back here," he continued.

The Hewitts explained the business has been good to them, but after years of sacrificing every weekend and limiting their family life they are getting ready to leave the world of skating.

"It's a rewarding job, but we have not had much of a family life. Our kids grew up skating, but we could never take much of a vacation. We have always had to harvest the wheat or work here," E.C. said.

Ice Skating Anyone?

Freezing temperatures and blowing snow powdered the Hereford area this week and left ice on a trickle of water below the South Main bridge over Tierra Blanca Creek. The nation-

Death Toll Climbs to 43

Winter Storm Claims Lives

By TAMARA JONES
 Associated Press Writer

Winter's worst storm was blamed for the crash of a corporate jet in Westchester County, N.Y., that killed seven people, as deadly winds howled across the nation and freezing rains turned snow-covered areas into giant ice slicks today. The storm's death toll climbed to 43.

Tornadoes churned through the South with winds strong enough to lift a 59-year-old North Carolina man from his mobile home, toss him 35 feet through the air head-over-heels and hang him in a Chinaberry tree by his feet. He was not seriously hurt.

Traffic fatalities and weather-related heart attacks claimed lives in several other states.

Thunderstorms charged out of the Great Lakes on Wednesday after slinging more snow on the frozen Midwest.

Heavy rains pounded New England, Florida and North Carolina.

Texasgulf Inc. of Stamford, Conn. Seven people were killed.

Wisconsin reported a dozen weather-related deaths — most of them elderly people who collapsed while shoveling snow, scraping windshields and, in one case, wading through drifts to a bird feeder.

A 77-year-old woman was killed when her mobile home was flattened and at least four others were injured as 50-mph twisters careened across central and eastern North Carolina, causing millions of dollars in damage, officials said.

Winds were clocked at 82 mph in the Adirondack mountains of New York state.

A 44-mile stretch of Mich. 28 in the Upper Peninsula remained closed from Munising to Marquette as up to a foot of snow whipped across the highway on 35 mph winds, reducing visibility to zero, police said. Parts of the state were buried beneath up to 17 inches of snow.

As the storm swept out of the state, heavy rains combined with below-zero temperatures to glaze highways with a coat of ice.

Temperatures throughout Illinois hovered around zero or below all day Wednesday as the state dug out from a storm that dumped up to a foot of snow in the Chicago metropolitan area and about 6 inches elsewhere.

Public Hearing Set For Hwy. 60 Proposals

AMARILLO — A public meeting to discuss possible proposed improvements of U.S. Highway 60 in the vicinity of Hereford will be held at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, March 5 in the Deaf Smith County courthouse in Hereford.

"The need for the proposed improvements, as well as the suggested alternatives, and the social, economic and environmental impacts of the alternatives will be discussed," according to Jack V. Light, SDHPT Amarillo District Design Engineer.

—In addition to the improvement above between Lawton and U.S. 385, an access road would be considered in the downtown business section of Hereford to serve local traffic and the businesses along the north side of U.S. 60;

Possible improvements are planned for U.S. 60 from Farm to Market Road 2943 southwest to a county road approximately three miles southwest of U.S. Highway 385.

All interested persons are invited to attend the meeting which will be conducted by representatives of the Texas State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (SDHPT).

Light said the alternatives which are being considered include the following:

—"No Build" or no improvements;

—Improvement of existing U.S. 60 between Lawton Avenue and U.S. 385 by the widening from a four-lane roadway with a continuous left-turn lane to a six-lane roadway with a continuous left-turn lane;

—Construction of a four-lane divided highway south of Hereford;

—Construction of a four-lane divided highway north of Hereford.

Light said the exact or final alignment of either the north or south-loop location has not been determined, although the loop corridors are shown on a map that will be displayed at the public meeting.

The Hewitts explained the business has been good to them, but after years of sacrificing every weekend and limiting their family life they are getting ready to leave the world of skating.

"It's a rewarding job, but we have not had much of a family life. Our kids grew up skating, but we could never take much of a vacation. We have always had to harvest the wheat or work here," E.C. said.

Busboy Arrested, Charged With Murders in Hotel Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A 23-year-old busboy who told police he turned in the alarm on the Las Vegas Hilton fire has been booked on eight counts of murder in the blaze, which sent a column of flame roaring up the side of the country's largest hotel.

Homicide detectives said Wednesday night they had arrested Philip Bruce Cline after the room service busboy made "inconsistent statements" about his role in the biggest of the four fires deliberately set in the hotel Tuesday night.

Cline told The San Diego Evening Tribune before his arrest that he tried to put out the fire on the eighth floor with water carried in a trash can. When that failed, Cline said he ran down the hall, knocking on doors to warn guests.

The busboy also was booked on one count of arson. Officials had no explanation immediately for the three other fires.

Formal charges would be filed at an arraignment, which officials said would take place before the end of the week.

Hundreds of people who lined up for hours Wednesday to wait for escorts to their rooms found their doors had been wrenched open during firefighters' room-to-room search for victims.

Inside, walls and furniture were thick with soot. The sooty, waterlogged carpets looked like mud.

Hilton officials estimated the damage at $10 million but said the hotel could be reopened in a week because some 1,900 of the 2,783 rooms were undamaged by the fire. The first-floor casino was unscathed. The other rooms were damaged, mostly by smoke.

But after two hours of questioning Wednesday, Cline was formally arrested and booked in connection with the main fire.

Cooper said there is "probable cause to determine only that he's responsible for the main fire on the eighth floor.... We have no explanation yet for the other fires."

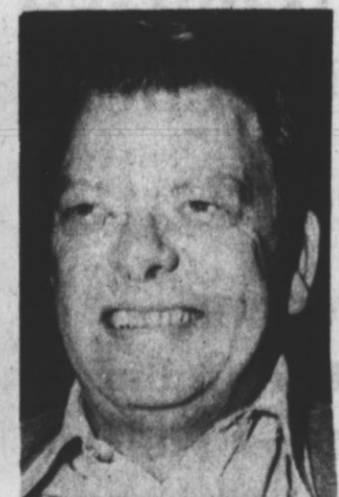

Some Hilton guests, still camped on cots at the nearby Las Vegas Convention Center, cheered Gov. Robert List's statement that a person convicted of arson in a fatal fire could be executed under Nevada law.

Hereford public school students will get a holiday this month, but it may not be as long as some expected.

Oil Rich Nations

Should Take Burdens

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Former ambassador Robert Krueger called upon newly rich oil nations Wednesday to shoulder a larger responsibility for foreign aid.

The former U.S. ambassador-at-large to Mexico said economic woes tied to soaring world oil prices have forced industrialized nations to take a diminished interest in foreign aid.

"It was much easier to think of giving when we could give without any loss to ourselves," said Krueger.

In his speech Wednesday to the 26th Student Conference on National Affairs at Texas A&M University, Krueger suggested the oil wealthy countries should be willing to pick up the slack, especially with their poorer neighbor nations.

He defended the use of foreign aid in his address to 200 students from the United States, Canada, Mexico, Guatemala and Kuwait. He said the United States reaped lasting international goodwill from the foreign aid it expended to rebuild devastated nations following World War II.

Krueger said despite the economic problems at home, Americans might be more willing to support foreign aid if developing countries addressed such problems as population control, unequal distribution of income and political corruption.

"I would be less than candid if I didn't fail to recognize these problems," Krueger said.

Senate Wants Okay

For Deductions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has approved a bill that would wipe out Attorney General Mark White's ruling that Comptroller Bob Bullock can deduct union dues from state employee paychecks.

The measure, approved 7-1 by the State Affairs Committee, goes to the full Senate for debate.

The bill is part of Gov. Bill Clements legislative program.

Fire

The other fires were set in a second-floor uniform linen area, a third-floor service elevator and a ninth-floor firehouse, he said.

Evidence of arson included fire hoses on the ninth floor that were severed and stuffed with a flammable material.

Officials have declined to say exactly how the fire was started.

Hilton Hotel Vice President

Henri Lewin, meanwhile, offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to arsonists.

There had been no prior threats to the hotel, he said. But hotel officials did receive a call during the fire from someone who asked: "Is the fire still on? Have they got you yet?"

The scene of destruction was reminiscent of the aftermath of last November's inferno at the MGM Grand hotel two miles away in which 84 people died. But Parrish said the Hilton blaze was unlike the MGM fire, which was blamed in part on building code violations.

Nor could the Hilton fire be linked with earlier fires on Las Vegas' gaudy neon-lit strip of hotel-casinos, he said.

"We did have a couple of set fires in the past," Parrish said. "To link those with this would be impossible."

Asked about the economic impact of two fatal fires in three months, List said he did not believe tourism would be hurt.

Stuart Meier, a pit boss at Caesar's Palace, agreed.

"It's sad," he said, "but I don't think this will affect this city at all."

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Gov. Lee S. Dreyfus has lost in his attempt to persuade ex-Beatle Paul McCartney to give the state of Wisconsin the rights to the old song "On, Wisconsin."

McCartney's attorney, Lee V. Eastman of New York, told the governor in a letter that the school song is one of several published as an entity, including "Rambling Wreck from Georgia Tech," "Hail Minnesota" and the "Notre Dame Victory March."

"It would be a great disservice for 'On, Wisconsin' to separate it from such songs," Eastman wrote. "I might add parenthetically that one of the heirs of one of the writers called, having read the story in the press, and was indignant at the suggestion that the song be transferred."

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Clothing designer Bill Blass says he still has hopes for the Reagan fashion sense, despite the new president's bumpy start.

"I saw some wild plaid pants going up to Camp David last week," Blass told an audience of Yale University students Tuesday.

"The Reagans have not spent much time on the East Coast and it will take them a little while to get used to the style," he said.

The 59-year-old president of Bill Blass Ltd. said he expects the first family to raise the nation's clothing consciousness.

"The Carters had no interest in or knowledge of fashion. The Reagans, on the other hand, like to have parties and dress up," he said.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Sometimes you have to wear a three-piece suit and ride a busy employer's commuter train to score a job interview.

Oregon Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer, who lives in Eugene and commutes by train to Salem, encountered such a job applicant Tuesday.

While reading a newspaper and drinking coffee, Frohnmayer said, he was approached by a man dressed in a three-piece suit.

"May I have a moment of your time?" the man asked.

"I said, 'Sure,'" said Frohnmayer, who pushed aside his newspaper and coffee cup and invited the man to sit. Frohnmayer said the passenger told him he wanted a job in the Justice Department and gave him a resume.

"At the conclusion of the discussion," Frohnmayer said, "I asked if he had business in Portland or Salem. He said his sole purpose for riding the train was to get an interview with me. It's the sort of initiative that's commendable."

Cost of Loving Is Up, Too

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Be advised young lovers: the cost of courtship may drive you to the poorhouse before you reach the altar.

A New York City economist says the cost of loving is up 419 percent since the early 1950s, while the cost of living has soared 158 percent.

Take a dozen roses: in the past 30 years their cost has jumped from $5 to $48.

A bottle of fine champagne that once cost $12 is now now up to $50, and a marriage license that went for $2 in 1954 would cost a couple $22 today in San Diego.

Raymond DeVoe Jr., a market strategist for Bruns Nordeman Rea & Co., a brokerage house, told The Evening Tribune Friday that he was trying to prove that Consumer Price Index figures are misleading and that "inflation affects different people in different ways."

To illustrate this, he compiled a cost-of-loving index, comparing dating costs today with what he had to spend in the early 1950s in New York City.

Beginning with the cost of a first date over Cokes, DeVoe created a statistical representation of courtship based on 87 items, ending with the diamond engagement ring and honeymoon.

Well Capped

After Six Hours

DEL RIO, Texas (AP) — About 10,000 natural gas customers in this area were without heat for about six hours because of a burst pipeline, company officials said.

A 40-foot section of the 10-inch pipeline was replaced and pressure was restored by 6 p.m., said Bolero Energy Corp. Mike Long.

"We're in good shape," Long said after the repair.

Utility officials in both cities asked businesses, schools and residents to lower their thermostats and Long said that action averted a complete gas shutdown during repairs.

Long said a fire started when the pipe burst but was quickly extinguished.

The temperature dropped to a record low 22 degrees early Wednesday and barely climbed above freezing during the day.

Program Shifts Expected At Budget Cutting Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's lengthening budget hit list doesn't mean all the programs he wants Congress to cut are going to go away. He has long argued they should go away from Washington — while acknowledging somebody is going to have to pay the bills.

And somebody means taxpayers.

That assumption was built into Reagan's original program for curbing federal spending, the $90 billion plan he advanced nearly five years ago. The idea then was to turn responsibility — and revenues — for essential government programs over to levels of government closer to the voters and so, presumably, more attentive to their will.

Reagan said then, as now, that the federal government had failed to do the job efficiently and effectively. "Indeed, it has created more problems in welfare, education, housing, food stamps, Medicaid, community and regional development and revenue sharing, to name a few," Reagan said in Chicago on Sept. 25, 1975.

Defending that plan in the campaign, Reagan said he wasn't suggesting such programs be scrapped to save money. "What I proposed was a systematic transfer of both responsibilities and resources for these programs to state and local government," he said.

Now many of the same programs are on the budget-cutting agenda Reagan will recommend to Congress next Wednesday. Presumably, the philosophy is intact along with the target list.

He envisions some outright cuts, but in most cases, the administration is seeking reduction in federal spending programs that surely will have to be picked up elsewhere.

"Budget cuts can sound as if we are going to reduce government spending to a lower level than was spent the year before," Reagan said in his economic report to the nation. "This is not the case. The budgets will increase as our population increases and each year we see spending to match that growth."

He was talking about the federal budget, but the rule is as true for state and local governments as for Washington.

So far, the president has not discussed the shift of revenue sources he suggested in that early campaign plan. He is recommending 10 percent federal income tax cuts in each of the next three years, but not with the idea of having it taxed away at other levels of government.

But city hall or the statehouse is going to need money if Congress agrees to cut back federally financed programs.

It might be possible, for example, to prune education spending to offset part of the impact if the proposed cuts make it through Congress. But the pressure is in the other direction, for higher school budgets. And if there is to be less available from Washington, there would have to be more money available from property taxes or other state and local levies to make up the difference.

Reagan Administration Predicts 8% Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, retreating from an early, rosier prediction, is forecasting inflation of slightly more than 8 percent in 1982 and little change in unemployment over the next two years as its economic recovery program takes hold, sources say.

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, also said Wednesday the president's economic forecast would concede the possibility of a "technical recession" this year — a slight dip in economic growth for at least two consecutive quarters.

In sharp contrast to an earlier prediction, the administration will forecast economic growth in 1982 of only 1 percent to 2 percent, sources said.

Sources said the administration would predict growth of a robust 5 percent and more moderate inflation of about 6.25 percent in 1983.

The earlier prediction of more rapid economic growth — as high as 7 percent next year — and inflation falling dramatically to 6.5 percent was hit by critics as implausible.

One source said the administration expects a slight increase in unemployment this year and a small drop in 1982, leaving the jobless rate at the end of 1982 about the same as last month's 7.4 percent rate.

Meanwhile, in a report greeted by analysts as encouraging news, the government reported sales by U.S. retailers improved in January for the seventh straight month.

The 2 percent increase in seasonally adjusted retail sales over December's performance "is stronger than most economists had been expecting," said David Ernst, a vice president of Evans Economics Inc. in Washington.

Calling the Commerce Department report "a very positive piece of news for the economy," Ernst said it seemed to indicate that "high interest rates have not done as much damage to the consumer as had been expected."

The administration's official economic forecasts are due to be made public next week to coincide with President Reagan's address to a joint session of Congress Feb. 18, but officials already have briefed a few key congressional aides.

Sources said the inflation forecast breaks down this way: about 11 percent in 1981, compared with 12.4 percent last year; about 8.25 percent in 1982; 6.25 percent in 1983 and 5.5 percent in 1984.

Those figures contrast with the earlier report that foresaw about 6.5 percent inflation next year, about 4.5 percent in 1983 and 3 percent in 1984.

Medical Frontier; Prevention

There are "fads" in the practice of medical science, also.

After generations of preoccupation with the healing arts, doctors are re-focusing their attention on "prevention."

At a recent international symposium on "The Frontiers of Medicine," 28 physicians and scientists from around the world compared their experiences.

A mission doctor from East Africa, 32 years in his hospital there, had never observed a case of appendicitis.

Why not? In East Africa there is no diabetes. Why?

On one South Pacific island there was no diabetes until the people discovered phosphates, got rich and began importing food from Australia and New Zealand.

Nor more than 35 percent of the island's population over the age of 15 has diabetes.

Dr. Denis Burkitt from St. Thomas Hospital, London, is an acknowledged expert in geographical medicine.

He is convinced that as surely as the islanders altered their susceptibility to disease by altering their lifestyle, that we—by altering our lifestyle—can contribute to the prevention of many crippling and lethal diseases.

"Thirty years' study of the relationship of disease to geography has led me to the inescapable conclusion that many diseases are fundamentally the result of how we live."

The theory is not new, of course. But there is no consensus on a specific prescription for prevention of disease.

Some researchers have recently "jumped to the conclusion" that stress causes most of civilization's health problems and that the remedy requires relief from stress.

Nutritionists tend to blame diet.

Eventually, it's likely both will be proved right, but Dr. Burkitt — like American Dr. David Rubin — suspects the one single, controllable culprit doing the most damage to the most people is "lack of fiber in the diet."

With these simple changes in our diets — plus the elimination of fried foods — Dr. Burkitt believes we can "prevent many common diseases."

To the fascinated observer.

Letter to the Editor

President R. Reagan White House Washington, D.C. Dear Sir:

All the tax reductions ever enacted somehow largely miss the largest group of tax payers in America - the middle class!

Why don't the working people of America have the right to depreciate the vehicles they must have to get to work and back?

Can you imagine what an announcement of this nature would do to the auto industries in one week? Let Americans save their own auto industries.

No Mickey Mouse stuff; that you use the vehicle for recreation. Any one who works 5 full days a week in today's pressure cooker deserves a week end trip and earned vacations if he can afford it. Just a straight uncomplicated depreciation like other people get who have the privilege of depreciating their vehicles.

This should apply to: (1) American made only and (2) Persons gainfully employed full time for at least ten consecutive months of the current year. Any government subsidy received in the current year would disqualify a person. Also, this should be a direct deduct, right after personal exemptions.

Pioneer Study Club Hosts 'Guest Day'

Pioneer Study Club gathered Tuesday afternoon for a luncheon at the Hereford Country Club for guest day and to honor their District Board and District President, Mrs. Vesper Smith of Higgins, Texas.

Due to weather conditions, Mrs. Smith was unable to attend, so a program was presented by Molly Ritter, a resident of King's Manor Methodist Home.

Mrs. Ritter, having recently returned from the Holy Lands, gave a presentation concerning her trip. Mrs. Ritter informed the members that she left Hereford Jan. 12 returning 12 days later, having spent nine days in the Holy Lands and three days in Egypt.

This she stated was "a dream of mine for many years."

Included in her informative program was a picture of Jerusalem. She stressed that arriving in the middle of winter the country looked a sandy color.

While in Jerusalem she visited the building site where Solomon's temple was first built. The site now holds a Moslem temple.

"This was the only place we had to take our shoes off to enter," stated Mrs. Ritter adding that, "the carpet was beautiful and well worn, showing the amount of people having visited there."

After crossing the Kedron Valley, other points of interest included the Garden of Gethsemane and the Church of the Upper Room which she stated as "more than I imagined it to be."

The path where Christ walked while carrying the cross, and Golgotha...where Christ was crucified, along with a view of the tomb were among other outstanding sites seen by Mrs. Ritter.

Prior to concluding her program, Mrs. Ritter said, "the Holy Land was very small originally, about five acres. It is now 15 acres."

During the business session, a report was given by Mrs. Delmar Sigle, Mrs. O.G. Hill, and Mrs. Ray Johnson concerning the club history committee.

Hostesses for this luncheon were Mmes. Ted Panciera, W.C. Hromas and Herman Ford.

The next scheduled meeting will be a guided tour of the library, Hall of Fame and Museum. Members will meet in the Heritage Room of the Library at 12 noon for a sack luncheon.

Those present included Mmes. G. Almanza, Guy Walsler, George De Lozier, O.G. Hill, Ted Panciera, Herman Ford, C.B. Emerick, Homer Rudd, C.B. Emerick, son, Delmar Sigle, W.C. Hromas, and guest Mrs. Molly Ritter, Denise Smith and Mrs. Clayton Sanders, president of Summerfield Study Club.

At Wits End

Aaaachoo!

What do you mean where did I get this cold? It should be obvious to everyone where I got it. Watching television.

Night after night I sat in front of the tube while one sickle after another peered out at me through red eyes (cleared up only by eyedrops), runny nose (dammed up only by the miracle of an antihistamine), fevered lips (brought down by an aspirin containing extra strength) and irritating coughs...I don't want to talk about it.

For awhile, I felt pretty good. Then one night, a tall blonde with a stuffed-up nose was trying to breathe through a balloon, and my husband said, "Can you do that?"

"Why would I want to blow up a balloon with my nose?" "I didn't mean that. I just thought that for the last couple of days you've sounded like your head is stopped up."

At the next commercial break, a woman wrapped in a blanket who looked like she was living only for her residuals coughed and said, "My cold capsule lasts for eight hours instead of two."

I said aloud, "Sweetie, it doesn't matter. Your capsule is going to outlive you by two hours."

When I went to bed, I felt a little flushed, but nothing serious. The next night, I counted eight people on commercials who wheezed, sniffed, hacked, snuffled, gargled, moaned and gasped, and still looked better than I did. I wanted to reach over and turn them off or change the channel, but I was afraid to get too close to any of them.

Instead, I crouched on the other side of the room and tried to figure out where they find all these sick people. I've seen one actress on three different cold commercials. It's the biggest thing that has happened to her in her entire career. I never saw her on anything when she was well.

Imagine answering an ad for a "consumptive, feverish actress with a stopped-up nasal passage and shallow breathing" and having to wait in an office of 3,000 unemployed flu victims who are applying for the same job.

I feel lousy as I sit in front of the TV set in my bathrobe. It's like Tom Sawyer watching his own funeral. Last night I was watching a commercial about a man in bed who was coughing so hard he couldn't talk. His wife said she'd get him a cough depressant. At that moment our screen went black. It was probably a power failure, but frankly, I'm worried.

Guilt Relief

DEAR ANN: My six-year-old daughter is a chronic misbehavior and a whiner. She won't mind and is no pleasure to have around. I'm not writing to ask what to do about her or even to ask why she is like this. I already know. I learned last night in my parent-child relationships class.

When the teacher told us that many mothers don't really like their children, I felt very relieved. I never liked Stephanie, but I couldn't admit it to anyone because I felt too guilty.

The teacher told us that these children are almost always problem babies at birth. They are often premature, colicky or sickly. It makes sense that a baby who has kept her mother from getting enough sleep night after night (in Stephanie's case it was about three-and-one-half years) is bound to be resentful.

Stephanie was always the sick kid—the pain in the neck. She picked-up the message early—it was "I'm trouble." Naturally, she grew to fit her label, our instructor's words rang so true it brought tears to my eyes.

I had been subconsciously blaming Stephanie for her sicknesses and problems. I didn't like her because she made life difficult for me. I know now what I have to do to correct the situation, and I started this morning. I will continue to work hard at it until Stephanie feels she is an equal family member.

So, you see, Ann, it is not advice I am seeking, I'm giving it today. I hope I have helped some other mothers to understand. Just sign me—Turning Over A New Leaf

DEAR NEW LEAF: I'm sure many mothers saw themselves in your letter. You will never know how many tons of guilt you have lifted. Bless you. And now I wish you had told us more about that class. We could use more of this kind of help and it would be wonderful if we knew where to get it.

DEAR ANN: Do not judge apparent transvestites too quickly, as did the friendly lady in the office when she saw the bra straps underneath her male co-worker's shirt.

Several years back a few of the guys in the country club locker room were astonished to see big, husky Mike strip down and disclose a pair of dainty, feminine panties. "Why, Mike," I said, "this comes as quite a surprise. Just how long have you been wearing ladies' underwear?" "Well," he replied, "ever since my wife found them in the glove compartment."—Ben From Sawnee, Kan.

DEAR BEN: When I first heard that one (back in 1960) it was a girdle. But it's still funny and worth telling again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is for the grandmother with the red-headed grandchild. She was embarrassed because no one on either side of the family had red hair. People kept asking, "How come?"

The same thing happened to me. I found myself going into detail about an aunt on my husband's side and my grandmother's sister who came from Ireland. The longer I talked, the more smirks I noticed. Finally I decided to stop being a damn-fool. I didn't owe anybody any explanations. From then on I replied, without batting an eye, "It must have been the milkman!" Then THEY did the squirming.—Rita From Beckly, W. Va.

DEAR RITA: Good for you. You sound like my kind of woman!

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious—lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

COMMENTARY

Don Graff

Briefly noted

We have long known that we are what we eat. Now it appears that we may also act according to what we eat.

Dr. Kenneth Moyer, who specializes in the physiology of aggression, has, according to a wire report, been looking into the relationship between allergic reactions and behavior and believes he's on to something.

The evidence suggests that individuals who become angry, irritable or aggressive for no apparent good reason may actually be experiencing the mood change for a very good reason. It is their allergic reaction to something they have eaten or possibly breathed.

If allergies can cause external rashes and welts on the skin, he says, it is reasonable to suppose similar internal effects. If these occurred in parts of the brain governing anger and aggression, the result could be anti-social behavior.

Suggested causes are numerous, including sugar, chocolate, milk, food coloring, onions and pollutants in the air.

So the next time you get into an argument at dinner, don't blame it on the topic under discussion. It could well be the scalloped potatoes, or the cheesecake, or her perfume, or his aftershave or...

Coffee, tea or venom?

Which brings to mind another recent news item. Those smiles that are apparently grafted onto airline attendants aren't to be taken at face value. According to research by the Aviation Safety Institute, as reported in the Wall Street Journal, they could be camouflaging severe cases of the miseries.

And because the attendant may be feeling miserable inwardly, the real message in the smile beamed at a passenger may not be good will but hostility. The reasons are varied and not fully understood in all cases. Part of it is the natural stress and fatigue that result from working on tight schedules in confined quarters.

Particular routes and typical passenger characteristics also seem to be factors. Hyperactive Southwesterners can be especially trying on attendants' nerves, likewise over-demanding Northeasterners.

Although food is also touched on in a negative sense — attendants have a tendency not to eat enough on flights — it might have been worth the researchers' effort to have gone into this aspect of the problem more thoroughly. It may be a question of not too little but too much, and Carnegie-Mellon's Dr. Moyer may have the answer.

Allergic reaction. Overexposure to those in-flight prepackaged meals could bring out the savage in anyone.

The heel as hero

This last item does not involve food, but you might say it comes down essentially to a matter of taste.

Madame Tussaud's Waxworks in London has released the results of its latest annual poll on its customers' preferences. The Ayatollah Khomeini is out as the first among the worst in the "hate and fear" category, and an old nonfavorite — Adolf Hitler — is back on top.

That's no particular surprise, but the runners-up may provide a mild one. British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher edged out deposed Ugandan dictator Idi Amin for third place.

Among heroes and heroines, the surprise comes at the bottom end of the top five, where Queen Elizabeth II has been knocked right out of the listing. Her replacement: J.R. Ewing, the heel of TV's "Dallas."

Which has to say something about the taste of the times in public and private character.

DAR Announces American History Essay Winners

Los Ciboleros Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution recently sponsored an American History Essay contest with 200 students participating from Hereford, Friona, Lazbuddie and Dimmitt.

Grades 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th participated in the essay contest with the theme being "A Military Leader of the Battle of Yorktown."

"The purpose of the essay contest was to stress the historical background and interest children in the history of our country," according to Leta Kaul, American History committee chairman.

Winners of the annual essay contest were Julie Allison, West Central School, fifth grade, first place; Denise Detten, St. Anthony's School, sixth grade, first place; Andrea Jorde, La Plata Junior High school, 8th grade, first place; Keith Anderson, St. Anthony's School, sixth grade, second place; and Misty Stokes, West Central School, fifth grade, second place.

The essays, judged by members of DAR, were graded on the way they were written, neatness, writing content, number of words used, following directions, style of top page, creativity, and how well the student applied to the subject.

First place winners received a bronze medal and second places were presented certificates of award.

All first award winners will be able to compete on state level, and possibly in national.

In conjunction with the American History Essay contest, members of the Los Ciboleros Chapter of DAR recently requested Mayor Bartle Dowell to sign a proclamation declaring the month of February 1981 as American History Month urging all citizens to fly the American flag and pay special attention to subjects having to do with the American Heritage during this month.

American History month was first proclaimed in 1952 by the Governor of Kentucky and authorized in 1956. This year marks the 20th anniversary of the siege of Yorktown, the deciding battle of the American Revolution.

Below follows first place winner Julie Allison's essay. First place and second place essays will be published throughout the month of February in conjunction with American History Month.

"THE BATTLE OF YORKTOWN"
By Julie Allison
December 18, 1777

Dear Jean,
The days are cold and dreary now. I long to be with you. We are on a ration of food. I am thinner than ever. We are at our winter camp in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. Our cabins are neat and clean, but cold as ice. I must go now. I will write you again.

Dear Jean,
We won two battles. Then we lost three more battles. General Washington is furious because there was a man who became a traitor. He wanted money. So he went to the British camp, and told our plans.

So far we have lost two thousand five hundred soldiers because of the battles and the cold. Others have died because of hunger or disease. The wounded soldiers need bandages badly. We hope we are safe for a while. So many towns and states have been lost. Some soldiers are giving up hope. I must go, but I will write you again.

Dear Jean,
Nothing much to do, but to help the sick and wounded soldiers. Most of the soldiers are getting well. Some are sad, others mad. It is terrible. The days are warm, nights are cool. I keep thinking the war will be over soon, but then we lose a state or a town. I will write you again.

Major General
Marquis de Lafayette

September 13, 1781

Dear Jean,
We are two miles west of Yorktown. The battle that will end it all is coming. Hopefully we will reach Yorktown in a week or two. British soldiers are everywhere. My letters are growing shorter by the day.

Dear Jean,
We are at Yorktown. I am writing this during my rest period. It lasts five minutes. The soldiers and the leaders take turns in doing this procession. The battle is nearing an end. Cornwallis' army is outnumbered. We are driving the British back very, very far. Hours ago Cornwallis and his army flew a white flag, later he surrendered. Now the British and Americans are working out terms for surrender. The British decided to march out with their colors cased. I will be home soon.

Hereford Student Cast In McMurry Production

Tim Ruland, 18, of Hereford has been cast in McMurry's upcoming production of Clifford Odet's, The Flowering Peach. Ruland will be playing the lead role of Japeth, son of Noah. The play itself is a retelling of the famous Biblical journey to Ararat.

The central theme of the story is one of conflict between Noah and the family. Especially young Japeth. Noah must convince them all that he has had an all inspiring dream for telling the end of the world. As young Japeth grows into manhood, he finds it hard if not impossible to work and serve such a brutal God.

During the duration of the play Japeth grows further and further away from family and God. In the end Father and son come together in compromise. The ark gets built, the rains come, and in somewhat humorous fashion the story of The Flowering Peach is told.

The play has been in rehearsal for three weeks under the direction of Dr. Marion Castleberry. It will be presented on February the 19th-21st and the 26th-28th, on location in Amy Graves Ryan Theatre, Abilene, Texas.

Showtimes each night will start at 8 p.m. All Hereford residents are invited to attend the McMurry play.

Tickets will be available at the door, or can be purchased in advance from the McMurry Theatre department. Cost is $1.50 for students, $2 for adults.

Local Happenings Within The Camp Fire Council

By SUSAN OWENS
From time to time I get so caught up in trying to convey the purposes and message of Camp Fire that I forget to inform Hereford what is happening within our local council. A great deal is happening and you should know about it.

February is one of our busiest months. Each year the girls in Camp Fire from the 8th grade through the 12th grade serve the Chamber of Commerce Banquet. When the tea has no ice or the coffee is too cold, they are the ones who hear about it. Did you notice our new service costumes the girls were wearing last Thursday evening? Good. Camp Fire is serving Hereford!

The month of February has been designated as Mother-Daughter month. The girls in each Camp Fire group are being encouraged to show special appreciation to our mothers, individually or as a group. Many of our mothers are former Camp Fire girls, and we give you a very warm "thanks" for keeping Camp Fire a Family Affair.

On February the fourteenth of each year, our Camp Fire Council participates in a national project called "Salute to Hospitalized Veterans." This project is in cooperation with the National Veterans Administration. Each year Camp Fire groups from the Hereford Council make special Valentines or gather books or toiletries and items for grooming to be distributed on Valentine's Day to the Veteran's Hospital in Amarillo. Last year, from the Hereford Council alone, the Hospitalized Veterans in Amarillo received 276 Valentines, 26 decks of cards, 5 sets of dominoes, 154 tray favors, 10 pocket combs, 300 magazines, 55 paper back books and several hard back books. Camp Fire is working!

This is also the time of year that the entire council has its annual business meeting and dinner. Members, leaders, staff, and directors come together to reflect on the past year and to set goals and make plans for the new year. Ten new board members are elected at this time. The dinner is good, the fellowship is good, and the friendships and achievements of the council are rewarding.

One of the aspects of Camp Fire is our response program which is developed by leaders, volunteers, and staff members dealing with various subjects and projects. They are designed for individual growth and the self-expression of each Camp Fire member. These are extra-curricular projects and programs done outside group meetings.

On Saturday, February 14, the Hereford Council is presenting a self-reliance program to youngsters from the first through third grades called "I Can Do It." It is directed to the child who may find himself at home, alone, and in an emergency situation. The program will begin at 10:00 a.m. and continue until 4:00 p.m. Registration for this project has been closed, but depending on the success of the program, it will be presented again at a later day. Those attending will be taught what to do in case of fire or natural disasters, how to prepare a simple meal, and simple first aid instructions. The various subjects will be presented by local citizens of Hereford considered expert in each field. We are most excited about this special mini-venture.

Please don't forget about our magazine sales. It ends February 19. We are desperately trying to rebuild our total program in Camp Fire.

We are busy, we are growing; we are sharing. Come join us at the lodge and become an active part of it.

Mayor Proclaims Month

Mayor Bartley Dowell recently signed a proclamation declaring the month of February 1981 as American History Month urging all citizens to fly the American flag and pay special attention to subjects having to do with the American Heritage during this month. Witnessing the signing of the proclamation were left of the mayor, Janice Carr, Los Ciboleros Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution History committee member and Leta Kaul, chairman of that committee.

County Agent Presents Stress Program to Club

Lone Star Study Club convened Tuesday evening in the home of Mrs. S.S. Williams, 322 Centre with Mrs. Jim Bookout as co-hostess. A program was presented by Louise Walker, County Extension Agent.

Mrs. Walker spoke on the Texas Extension Service on health and safety. She suggested that the club members answer their roll call with "how we cope with stress individually when we are under stress." Members followed Mrs.

Walker suggestion and reported that "answers were varied and interesting."

Mrs. Walker then explained how stress was intense emotions, providing ways with which one could overcome them, emphasizing relaxation was the main way. Mrs. Walker stated, "if we could tense a muscle then we can also relax the muscle," having members do a few exercises to show how one would relax a muscle.

Following the exercises Mrs. Walker played an exercise tape which gave detail instructions on how to relax and what to do to these muscles, and all the parts the muscle control, then releasing it and relaxing.

These exercises started from the top of the head on to facial exercises and to all parts of the body extending to the tip of the toes.

Prior to concluding her program, Mrs. Walker gave each member a booklet entitled "Stress," published by Blue Cross with contributions by 16 doctors; and a pamphlet "Stress and Your Health," by Metropolitan Insurance Company.

Refreshments were served to Mildred Elliott, Hilda Havens, and Mmes. L.N. Cox, Arthur Dettmann, V.E. Dodson, J.J. Durham, H.E. Henslee, Frank H. Morgan, F.O. Naylor, Dale Tinnin, J.C. Williams, M.H. Wiseman, C. Baker, and the ones before mentioned.

The next scheduled meeting will be in the home of Mrs. C. Baker Womble, 409 Star, March 10 with Mrs. M.H. Wiseman as co-hostess.

Bluebirds Will Attend Self-Reliance Program

Applications for the Saturday self-reliance program were collected when the Backyard Bluebirds met recently at the Camp Fire Lodge.

The program, "I Can Do It," is designed to help a child become a more self-directed individual who is capable of making the right decision. The course will be presented from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. at the Camp Fire Lodge.

In other business, the club discussed the magazine renewals and new subscriptions sponsored by Reader's Digest as a fund drive for the Bluebirds. Deadline for returning the subscriptions and money was set for Feb. 18. Patches will be awarded for the sale of two subscriptions, a patch and a stuffed dog for five subscriptions and a patch, stuffed dog and a craft handbook for seven or more subscriptions.

Valentines were made from colored paper, doilies and foil as a craft activity. These were taken home as a surprise Valentine.

Refreshments were served by Emily Shaddle, Holly Andrews and Brooke Seives.

The club will meet again Feb. 19.

To prevent loss of vitamins in fresh vegetables, use a sharp blade when trimming, cutting or shredding. Loss of vitamins A and C occur when vegetable tissues are bruised, says Mary K. Sweeten, a foods and nutrition specialist.

Also, losses occur when fresh vegetables are held too long before serving.

Mrs. Sweeten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The Newspaper BIBLE

IT'S A BOY! AND HIS NAME IS J-O-H-N!

Mary stayed with Elizabeth about three months and then went back to her own home.

By now Elizabeth's waiting was over, for the time had come for the baby to be born--and it was a boy. The word spread quickly to the neighbors and relatives of how kind the Lord had been to her, and everyone rejoiced.

When the baby was eight days old, all the relatives and friends came for the circumcision ceremony. They all assumed the baby's name would be Zacharias, after his father.

But Elizabeth said, "No! He must be named John!" "What?" they exclaimed. "There is no one in all your family by that name."

So they asked the baby's father, talking to him by gestures.

He motioned for a piece of paper and to everyone's surprise wrote, "His name is JOHN!"

Instantly Zacharias could speak again, and he began praising God.

Wonder fell upon the whole neighborhood, and the news of what had happened spread through the Judean hills.

And everyone who heard about it thought long thoughts and asked, "I wonder what this child will turn out to be? For the hand of the Lord is surely upon him in some special way."

'Freedom from Smoking' New Program

To help smokers quit on their own, the American Lung Association of Texas is joining lung associations nationwide in launching the new self-help program, FREEDOM FROM SMOKING.

"Developed after four years of Christmas Seal supported research and testing, the program provides a nuts-and-bolts approach to kicking the habit in 20 days," said Mrs. Jewel Smith, member of the lung association's Top of Texas Area Advisory Council and resident of Hereford.

"The unique aspect of the program is a maintenance manual, which helps smokers quit for good," she says.

"Tensions and events that cause backsliding in new nonsmokers are anticipated. Counter-strategies for coping without cigarettes are spelled out."

Attractively illustrated with bright colors and photographs, the manuals have an upbeat emphasis to encourage ongoing interest. Quitting smoking need not be grim; it's a life enhancing process that can be satisfying and fun, explain the manuals. Ways to change and improve eating habits, reduce stress, assert feelings and savor life more are all highlighted as elements of a healthier lifestyle that's available to anyone who really wants it.

The annual health costs of cigarette smoking to the overall economy have reached $27 billion, according to the American Lung Association of Texas. Of this amount $5 to $8 billion is in health care expenses; the rest is the cost of lost productivity, wages and absenteeism caused by smoking-related illness. Some studies show that smokers are absent from work because of illness 33-45 percent more than nonsmokers.

The cost in terms of physical suffering and the emotional distress it creates is incalculable, says the association.

"Since more than 90 percent of smokers who quit do it on their own without attending cessation clinics, a self-help approach is by far preferred by most people," says Smith.

Most smokers quit by trying again and again, according to the lung association. They are in effect practicing quitting. Smokers who have tried before - several or even many times - are the best candidates for success at quitting.

"If the questions for smokers are when and how to quit," says Smith, "then the answers are easy. The when is now and the how is the FREEDOM FROM SMOKING program."

When ordering the FREEDOM FROM SMOKING materials, a contribution of $5 to the lung association is requested to cover printing and handling costs. Contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 North Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin, Texas 78752 or call 512-458-2206.

Effective Word In Family Life

COLLEGE STATION -- "No" has a special place in people-to-people communications, for those who know how to use the word effectively, says a family life education specialist, Dorothy Taylor.

"The 'terrible' two-year-old often gets credit for saying 'no, no, no.' But all ages - children and adults - use the word frequently, and oftentimes out of habit," the specialist notes.

"No" need not be a harsh word, but it should be definite, clear and firmly based on the conviction that you mean it," Ms. Taylor says.

"In dealing with young children, especially, it must appear to be unchangeable," she adds.

Ms. Taylor is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"No" reinforces limits, the specialist says.

"In setting limits, though, you have to know what the limits are before you can enforce them.

"On the other hand, being over-permissive (without limits or having total freedom) and never saying 'no' is confusing to others - they don't know where you stand. As a result, the 'never-say-no' person lacks authority and respect," Ms. Taylor explains.

Saying "no" need not threaten friendships, love relations or parental authority, the specialist assures. Yet this doesn't mean to over-use the word, either. Nagging, negative attitudes about everything or using "no" just to be "different" is misusing the word "no" she adds.

Actually, "no" is guidepost signaling that some other outlet is more appropriate at that given time. The negative, "no," is positive when it's used for guidance in limit-setting, safety or for correcting inappropriate behavior, the specialist says.

"No" is appropriate to use with all ages and all levels of relationships, Ms. Taylor adds, but never say "no!" unless you mean it.

Wofford Signs With WTSU

Bert Wofford, a 6-5 224 lb. offensive tackle for the Hereford Whitefaces, signs a Missouri Valley Conference letter of intent with West Texas State University Wednesday as his parents Dale and Mae Wofford of 122 E. 15th look on. As a 4-5A All-District tackle and All-South Plains selection, Wofford accepted a full four-year scholarship from WTSU (to be renewable each year) following other recruiting offers from the University of Texas at Arlington, University of New Mexico, University of Texas at El Paso and Eastern New Mexico. Another HHS standout, tackle John Josserand, also signed a letter of intent to play for West Texas on the national collegiate grid signing day Wednesday.

Houston Defense Stays Tough
Rockets Rout Spurs

Defense is making the difference for the Houston Rockets.

Wednesday night it was San Antonio's turn to learn that lesson as Houston shut down the Spurs 108-89. It was the sixth time in the last eight National Basketball Association games that the Rockets have held their opponents under 100 points, and Houston has posted a 6-2 record in that stretch.

"I think it's a part of us now to play great defense," said Houston Coach Del Harris. "At halftime we realized they were shooting 60 percent and we felt with an extra step and a little extra pain we could slow that down."

The Rockets almost slowed it to a halt. San Antonio, which led 56-53 at intermission, managed just 13 points in the third quarter. The Rockets went ahead to stay with a 20-4 spurt at the start of the second half and pulled away to win easily.

Bill Willoughby scored nine of his 15 points for Houston in the third quarter, when the Rockets outscored the Spurs 29-13. But he, too, said the difference was defense.

"Anybody can score," said Willoughby, "but that doesn't do any good unless you are playing defense — and we did tonight."

In other games, the Philadelphia 76ers edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 122-120 in overtime, the Boston Celtics beat the Los Angeles Lakers 105-91, the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Indiana Pacers 107-101, the New Jersey Nets trimmed the Chicago Bulls 135-133 in overtime, the Kansas City Kings topped the Utah Jazz 99-87 and the Phoenix Suns beat the Dallas Mavericks 119-97.

In the best efforts during their defensive surge, the Rockets have held Atlanta to 81 points and Dallas to a mere 68. And Wednesday night they permitted the Midwest Division-leading Spurs to shoot just 33 percent from the field in the second half, outscoring them 55-33.

Besides the tight defense, the Rockets have also become more patient on offense, a strategy that was not lost on Spurs Coach Stan Albeck.

"There's no question their defense is much better but their utilization of the clock is helping them too," he said.

"They're taking 18 to 20 seconds before shooting and the combination of those two factors is making a big difference."

Golfers Finish 11th

The Hereford varsity golf team opened its season link play with an 11th place finish out of a 28 team field in the Roswell Tournament Tuesday.

Tony Flores drove in a total of 158 to lead the HHS crew to a 327-339 — 666 tally in the tourney which qualified him as the No. 8 medalist out of a 140 competitor field.

Frankie Garcia added up a total of 166 to trail Flores while Derek Dirks capped a score of 167, Michael Craig hit a 176 and Greg Robinson compiled a tally of 175 over the course of competition.

The Hereford link squad is scheduled to travel to Odessa Friday before competing in the Lubbock Tournament next week.

Crucial Call Helps Cavaliers Beat Wolfpack

Associated Press
Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus...and according to North Carolina State Coach

Jim Valvano, he could easily pass for Charles Watkins, an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball official.

What got Valvano all steamed up was a crucial call by Watkins with 2:14 to play Wednesday night that helped the top-ranked, unbeaten Virginia Cavaliers take the lead and go on to defeat N.C. State 51-46 on the losers' court.

With the Wolfpack clinging to a 42-41 lead, Virginia's Jeff Jones tied up State's Derek Whittenburg in the backcourt. Valvano screamed for a foul but Watkins called a jump ball.

Virginia won the tap and Lee Raker's layup put the Cavaliers on top to stay. Jeff Lamp's driving layup gave them some breathing room as they extended the nation's longest winning streak to 26 games, 21 this season.

"You can't tell me that was a jump ball," Valvano snoated. "It looked to me like they were trying to foul. We were up and time was running down. Was it a questionable call? You tell me."

"We could have had a three-point lead, but we turned up with a jump ball. It happened right in front of me. I can't imagine that not being a foul. I don't mind losing a game if the opposition makes a super play, a steal or a tough shot. You can live with that. But a couple of unbelievable calls turned the game around."

Virginia Coach Terry Holland almost agreed with Valvano's assessment of the game-turning call.

"We told our kids to just go after the basketball and if we got a foul, fine," he said. "We were going to have to foul eventually, anyway."

In another key ACC contest just down the road in Chapel Hill, seventh-ranked Wake Forest swamped No. 10 North Carolina 84-68. Three other members of The Associated Press Top Twenty, all from the Southeastern Conference, were in action and all were winners — fourth-ranked Louisiana State trimmed Alabama 70-57, No. 9 Tennessee edged Florida 53-52 and No. 11 Kentucky downed Mississippi 62-55.

Virginia wrapped up its victory over N.C. State when Raker hit two free throws with 13 seconds left and 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson, who led the Cavaliers with 17 points, made two more with one second remaining. Virginia committed 16 turnovers but the Wolfpack sealed its own fate by shooting only 39 percent.

Mike Helms scored 20 points, one of five Wake Forest players in double figures as the Deacons handed North Carolina a second straight home-court loss for the first time since 1973. Wake Forest raced to an early 20-4 lead and was never seriously threatened.

The lead was 43-22 at halftime and it grew to 62-32 midway through the second half. Besides Helms, Jay Johnstone scored 17 points.

SMU Under Investigation from NCAA

DALLAS (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association is conducting an investigation of the Southern Methodist University football program, according to college president Dr. Donald Shields.

The Dallas Times Herald said today the NCAA notified SMU officials last fall of certain alleged violations and the school is conducting an its own investigation.

Shields would not reveal the type of violations alleged, but issued a brief statement to The Times Herald.

"The NCAA has been in contact with the university and has raised some questions which are concerned with possible rules violations in the conduct of SMU's football program," Shields said.

"As is appropriate under these circumstances, the university administration has been conducting a comprehensive fact-finding analysis regarding these questions and will respond to the NCAA when this analysis has been completed," the statement concluded.

Shields would not discuss particulars of the investigation and declined to say whether it involved possible recruiting violations.

Head football coach Ron Meyer was out of town on a recruiting trip Wednesday and was not available for comment.

The Mustangs finished regular season play 8-3, good enough for a second place tie with Houston in the Southwest Conference and a trip to the Holiday Bowl. The Mustangs lost to Brigham Young, 46-45, in the closing seconds.

SMU Athletic Director Russ Potts was to hold a news conference today to announce his departure to become vice president for marketing for the Chicago White Sox baseball team.

Potts says his departure has nothing to do with the NCAA investigation.

"Under no circumstances was this (Potts' departure) connected to the investigation," an unidentified source told The Times Herald.

Potts would not comment on the reported investigation, saying it would be up to the school president to make any comment.

The NCAA will not discuss pending investigation.

"As usual our stance is that we can neither confirm nor deny an investigation," said NCAA investigator Hale McMinamon.

When the NCAA investigates a school for possible violations, there are several stages of the investigation. The first comes when the NCAA notifies the school president of possible violations.

The second step comes when the NCAA sends an investigator to the school. The NCAA then completes the investigation and sends "an official letter of inquiry" to the school president.

The school is then asked to conduct its own investigation which can last three months or extensions can be granted.

The Times Herald says the SMU investigation has reached the stage where the school is conducting its own investigation.

When SMU responds to the letter of inquiry, the matter would then go before the NCAA committee on infractions which will decide if any rules have been violated.

Wilson then cashed yet another bluechip when he signed 6-4, 240-pound Greg Porter of Humble, one of the fastest linemen in the state. Porter has run a 4.6 over 40-yards.

The national signing day is next Wednesday and only the Aggies and Baylor released their full roster of SWC signings to the media.

However, Southern Methodist couldn't hide the fact it had signed linebacker Gary Spann of Dallas South Oak Cliff after a battle with Texas Christian and Texas Tech. Spann was a member of the Dallas Times Herald bluechip list.

Also, Andrews' Van Percy, an excellent running back, became a Mustang.

The lone holdout from the blue chip list as chosen by the SWC's coaches was defensive back Lawrence Hardin of West Orange-Stark who will decide on national signing day between Texas, Southern Cal and Oklahoma.

Houston did well. Besides signing Franklin, Coach Bill Yeoman nailed bluechip linebacker Greg Turner of Pittsburg.

Oklahoma, as usual, made its presence felt, signing bluechip defensive back Keith Stanberry of Mount Pleasant to a Big Eight Conference letter.

Arkansas signed quarterback Mark Calcagni of Youngstown, Ohio.

Teachers Say They Need Group Insurance

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Teachers have told a House committee that most of them must meet the high cost of medical insurance out of their small paychecks or just do without it. The House Insurance Committee took testimony on Tuesday on bills that would up group insurance for teachers and other school district employees.

Organizations of educators said they want group insurance but disagreed over the details.

Committee members are expected to piece together a bill from the various ideas received.

Only about 60 of Texas' 1,035 school districts make group insurance available to their teachers and other employees.

Judy Koehl, a middle school teacher from Queen City, said she takes home $770 a month while her husband's $710 — also for teaching school — is reduced by $80 for health insurance premiums.

She urged a system of regional group insurance programs that would take into account the varying costs of medical care across Texas — "I don't want to be penalized by someone living in another part of the state, such as Houston."

Whether the state helps pay teachers' premiums will be a major issue. A $50-a-month contribution for all school employees and retired teachers would add an estimated $360 million to 1982-83 spending.

Rep. Hamp Atkinson, D-New Boston, chairman of the House Education Committee, said some teachers don't want the state to contribute toward group insurance premiums.

He said as many as 50 to 60 percent of all teachers already are covered by a spouse's policy and "are saying, 'If you have money for insurance, just put it into salaries.'"

The committee approved a bill in 1979 that required state contributions in an amount to be determined each session by the Legislature. It also would have compelled all school districts either to provide a statewide plan to provide an equivalent group insurance program for their teachers. That bill died without final House action.

The Texas State Teachers Association favors that plan.

"Rising insurance rates have made it prohibitive for many, if not most, Texas educators to purchase individual coverage out of salaries which rank Texas teachers third in the nation," said TSTA President Dora Scott of Houston. She said an advantage of a statewide program, as opposed to many local plans, would be that "broad-based participation should help provide for a lower rate."

The Texas Association of School Boards endorsed a bill by Rep. Bill Haley, D-Center, a former teacher. Haley's bill would pump money into group insurance programs set up separately in each district without state controls.

"TASB firmly believes that a group insurance program should allow the local district to design the program and select the carrier," said Jerry Edwards, associate director of the school board organization.

The Texas Classroom Teachers Association favors a bill by Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Salado, that creates seven regional group programs, each with its own insurer.

Texas Roundup Snares Thousands of Aliens

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Illegal aliens working on farms, ranches, construction sites and elsewhere in Texas have been captured and bused back across the Rio Grande by the thousands in the past three weeks, a roundup spurred by the lifting of census restrictions.

The restrictions, which prohibited the Border Patrol from raiding private businesses, were imposed last spring in hopes of getting a better census count, but officers in the field complained they were kept in effect several months after the count was completed.

The ban was lifted Jan. 15 and "we had our second highest January in history" said Richard Staley of El Paso, chief of a Border Patrol district that includes most of southern New Mexico and West Texas as far east as Van Horn.

"January is usually one of our slower months — there is usually very little 'harvest,'" he said. But last month he said his 385 officers apprehended 12,080 undocumented workers and returned most of them to Mexico.

Other Border Patrol officers from here to the lower Rio Grande Valley and as far north as Dallas reported the same trend. Even though the ban extended through the first half of January, agents working in the Valley caught twice as many illegal aliens last month as they had in December, said Jim Kerr, a Border Patrol supervisor based in the McAllen headquarters.

"We could drive down farm roads and look out either side and see illegals working in the fields," before the restrictions were lifted, he said. "Hell, they were waving at us as we went by."

Not any more. "One day, working just three hours in Odessa, our officers pulled 84 aliens out of (oilfield) pipe (supply) yards up there," said Johnny Williams, chief pilot with the Border Patrol sector headquarters in Marfa.

In Dallas, regional chief William Chambers said "as of last week we have arrested 510 in the Dallas-Fort Worth area alone." Most of them have since been bused back to the border, where illegal aliens are released to walk across the bridges back into Mexico.

Immigration officials say those bused back to the border "volunteer" to return — as opposed to the few who elect to stay and wait — in jail — for a deportation hearing. Charles Elmore, a Border Patrol intelligence officer based in Marfa, said there is rarely any hostility between the illegal aliens and the officers who arrest them.

"They joke and laugh on their way back to be processed. There is no deep-seated hatred there. It's not that we don't like these people," he said. "I don't blame them for trying to come up here and better themselves."

"But the United States just can't solve the whole world's evils."

Chambers said the restrictions were more painful for his region, which includes North Texas and Oklahoma, and other interior checkpoints where raiding private businesses is the main source of illegal aliens.

"In El Paso for instance they could work along the river" during the ban, he said.

But Staley said it was just as frustrating for his men stationed across from Juarez, the largest Mexican city on the U.S. border. "We had a de facto temporary worker program" he complained.

Aliens and patrolmen alike agree that crossing the border illegally is not difficult. One of the favorite crossing points in the El Paso area is within a few yards of the largest customs checkpoint on the U.S.-Mexico border. In fact, many illegal aliens consider crossing the border so easy that they leave the United States and go home for Christmas.

"That's one reason December is such a slow month for us," said Elmore. "They are going back to Mexico for the holidays. Then they come back sometime in January."

Staley said if he had "enough men" he could reduce the flow by 80 percent. But Chambers said the first thing the United States should do to decrease the migration is to make it a crime to hire illegal aliens.

"It is obvious that this was deliberately overlooked," he said. "There are penalties for inducing aliens to enter, penalties for bringing them in for harboring and concealing them — but no penalties for employment."

The latest raids have drawn criticism from Mexican-American activists who argue that they disrupt families, infringe on the rights of Hispanic citizens, and yet still do not stop the northward migration of Mexicans into the United States.

By The Associated Press. HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Jim McConn says some Houston property owners may be facing tax increases as high as 2,000 percent.

McConn wants the state Legislature to help soften the blow.

In a Monday speech before major land developers, McConn said the city is lobbying for a legislative bill that would grant tax exemptions to homeowners whose property has not been appraised for years and who can expect very "startling" revaluations.

He said details of the bill have not been worked out but said it could, for example, exempt the first $50,000 of a new valuation from city taxes.

Uniform and up-to-date property values are an objective of countywide tax appraisal districts established by the last Legislature. The districts are scheduled to become effective by 1982.

HOUSTON (AP) — A number of fathers have volunteered to help monitor the campus at a southwest Houston high school where two students have been abducted and raped.

Dr. Sarah Steelman, Westbury High assistant principal, said the offers are being coordinated along with other efforts to strengthen security in the area.

Principal Ken Gupton said security patrols in the area of the 2,000-student campus have been strengthened, that faculty members now patrol the school parking lot, and that faculty members are monitoring halls for strangers.

A rape prevention seminar attended by parents also was told about 75 to 100 male students have volunteered to escort women to their cars and classes.

The recent incidents involved the abduction of a 16-year-old girl from the parking lot and an attack on another as she was walking home from school.

DALLAS (AP) — The FBI said Tuesday its agents had recovered $1 million in negotiable U.S. Treasury bonds stolen from the Scor Reinsurance Co. in April 1979. Special Agent in Charge James Decker said a 21-year-old former company mail clerk, Brian Sisneros, was arrested Jan. 14 on a charge of interstate transportation of stolen property. Sisneros, who pleaded guilty Monday, admitted stealing the bonds from the Dallas company where he had been employed until July 1979.

Bonds having a face value of $480,000 were recovered Jan. 14 at Northpark National Bank in Dallas, Decker said, and the remaining $520,000 were recovered Friday by Dallas FBI agents in a sheep pasture near Tinnie, N.M., about 45 miles from Roswell.

Sisneros had made arrangements with an attorney to assist him in the cashing of the interest coupons attached to the bonds, he said.

The bank had checked with the Treasury Department to determine if the bonds might be stolen. The Treasury Department, alerted in 1979 of the theft, notified the FBI.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rufus Spaulding is selling tickets to concerts at the Armadillo World Headquarters for $1 each, even though the storied local concert hall is being torn down.

Spaulding, a building demolisher from Wimberley, found 100,000 unused tickets in a "mystery room" in back of a skating rink adjacent to the Armadillo. The rink and the Armadillo are coming down to make room for a hotel complex.

The demolisher said Tuesday he "saved the tickets from the hungry jaws of a bulldozer." Spaulding put ads in local papers in an effort to sell the tickets.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—One month after opening day of the new Legislature, bill action is rapid in the Senate and practically nil in the House... all because of a new tactic not seen at the Capitol since the 1930s.

The House has prevented itself from voting on any bills (other than emergency bills designated by the Governor) by refusing to lift a Constitutional provision which previous Legislatures lifted as a matter of tradition.

It is a confusing and complex strategy which has left many lawmakers and on-lookers scratching their heads.

Four-Fifths Rule
The Texas Constitution provides that the first 30 days of the session shall be devoted to the introduction of bills and the next 30 days devoted to committee hearings. Except for the governor's emergency bills, the Legislature is constitutionally prohibited from voting on any bill during the first 60 days of the session.

The kicker is this: the Constitution allows either house to override the above provisions by "an affirmative vote of four-fifths of its membership."

In every Legislature since the '30s, the members have mustered the necessary 120 "ayes" to allow them to begin voting immediately... but not this time.

Reform-Minded Session?
This session a small group of Democrats and Republicans banded together on the second day of the session to keep the Constitutional provision intact. The press immediately tagged the group "The Terrible Termites," after a lobbyist complained they were gnawing away at Speaker Bill Clayton's power.

Since only 31 members are needed to keep up the strategy, it is most likely that the House will not fall into its regular rhythm until after the first 60 days. Reminiscent of the old "Dirty Thirty" days, a dissident minority is, at least for now, controlling House action.

Ramifications of the strategy are many, and probably includes some twists which the Termites did not foresee.

Clayton Stalled
The primary intent was to stall House Speaker Clayton, who in his previous three terms as favor-wielder has steered his gavel legislation to early passage by the laying the appointment of committee chairman for three weeks, Clayton had played on desire for those political plums to muster votes for his issues. This session Clayton named committee chairmen a week earlier than previous sessions, but his issues are still pending.

And that's all he's getting for now. However, when the 60-day deadline rolls around, Clayton will be back in control of bill action in the House... and friend and foe alike will concede that the Speaker's knowledge of procedure is probably as vast as any legislator who has ever served in that chamber.

Clements Rolls On
The man who is taking advantage of the Termites ploy is wily Bill Clements, the governor who wants to turn Texas government farther to the right.

By simply declaring a bill "an emergency," Clements can authorize any bill for early consideration in the House. Until the 60-day deadline, Clements is the first gatekeeper for House bill action and it has enhanced his position. Legislators seeking immediate action on their pet projects must curry favor from the Governor, who is hardly known as a soft touch. While it is not absolute or permanent, this special leverage for Clements is definitely to his advantage.

Rock, Hard Place
The second gatekeeper is still Clayton, but the Termites have put him between a rock and a hard place. If they persist in their stalling action, Clayton is weakened in his dealing with Clements. Yet the Termites are unlikely to give up their ploy unless Clayton deals over certain concessions to them, not his wont.

Clayton is a conservative Democrat, and despite the recent Briab woes, he is given good odds to continue his political career. A courageous, intelligent man, Clayton may well stand now at the cross-roads of his political life.

He is the epitome of the conservative Democrat in Texas, which may be a dying breed if the state continues to polarize politically. As the Republicans and moderate-liberal Democrats grow in strength, Clayton's middle ground may be eroding from under him. If he is to run for higher office, Clayton could conceivably switch political parties beginning this session with concessions to the Republicans

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Get rid of excess fat

DEAR DR. LAMB — When my husband and I had our yearly physicals a few months ago we found out that my husband's cholesterol and blood sugar are elevated a little.

All we were told was that he should cut back on sugar and saturated fats. He has lost about 10 pounds since then. Will the weight loss help lower the cholesterol and blood sugar? I would appreciate any information you can give me or any diet suggestions.

DEAR DR. LAMB — In many people a significant loss of excess body fat will help to lower both elevated cholesterol levels and blood sugar levels. It will help in some cases to lower elevated blood pressure. The one thing almost all authorities agree on, regarding diet, is that if a person has excess body fat it is important to eliminate it.

There has been a lot of discussion this past year about whether a diet was important in preventing heart disease. The recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences have been widely misunderstood, in my opinion. There appears to be no real disagreement about what should be done if there are abnormal findings, as apparently was true in your husband's case. The argument is about whether everyone needs to go on special diets. As every practicing physician knows, the only statistic that is important is the statistic of the patient being treated, which is another way of saying, "Individualize, don't generalize." Your husband should do whatever is necessary to correct his abnormal biochemistry. If losing 10 pounds is enough to normalize his values, that is wonderful. If it is not, he may need to lose more body fat and may need to make other modifications in both exercise and diet.

It is important for everyone to know what their cholesterol levels and other measurements are. It is that individual basis which applies to you that really determines what needs to be done. How you personally, not a group, respond to a program determines what program you should follow.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A while back, I was hospitalized for severe chills and high fever. After many blood tests, X-rays, etc., it was diagnosed as bacteremia. I was told that this was the result of excessive bleeding of my gums while having my teeth cleaned a few days previously. I was advised to take antibiotics before and after any future dental work.

Would you explain bacteremia to me? Do you think it is necessary for me to take antibiotics in the future? It is almost time for me to have my teeth cleaned again.

DEAR DR. LAMB — With that history you should definitely take antibiotics whenever your teeth are cleaned or when you have other dental work or operations. Ask your doctor if you have any other medical problem. Bacteremia refers to bacteria in the blood stream. Ordinarily when we get some bacteria in the circulation the defense mechanisms kill them. But if a person has a diseased heart valve or some congenital heart defects the bacteria implant and set up an infection.

I do not know if you have an underlying problem or not but you should find out. If you do, the infection can cause further damage to the heart valve. Otherwise you probably do not have any residual damage.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Please tell me what vitamins I can use to gain weight. I weigh 111 pounds but I would like to weigh more. I gain then lose. I just can't keep it. I was 120 pounds but I lost a lot. I eat vegetables every day and drink half and half milk.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Vitamins do not contain any significant or usable calories. They help your enzyme system break down your food into carbon dioxide and water to release energy. So if you are getting a normal amount of vitamins, as you should from a balanced diet, taking additional vitamins will not enable or cause you to gain weight. Weight loss is not always innocuous. It can be from medical problems such as an overactive thyroid. Better see your doctor.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read your column about low blood sugar and it sounded like my symptoms. I'm 20 years old and for the past 12 years when I eat or drink anything sweet in the morning I break out in a sweat, get nauseated, turn pale and have pains in my arm. I'm drained of all energy. I have to lie down for a couple of hours.

Last summer I worked at a camp for the handicapped and drank apple juice for breakfast. I had to ask the other counselors to care for my kids and it was 1 p.m. before I could take over.

Could you tell me if insulin is a limited budget and can't afford a useless trip to a doctor if all he is going to say is "grit your teeth and bear it."

DEAR READER — Your story sounds like hypoglycemia but you can't make a diagnosis on the story alone. It upsets many people to be told this but the symptoms of low blood sugar attacks can also be caused by other things — including anxiety. Both anxiety and low blood sugar states cause the body to release adrenaline. The adrenaline causes the sweating, the shaking and the fast heart beat. To help sort the problem out, a doctor must measure the blood sugar (glucose) level at the time the symptoms occur. Obviously, if a person has these symptoms and the blood sugar is normal or even high, the symptoms are not being caused by low blood sugar.

Insulin is not used for low blood sugar. The problem is caused by too much insulin or an improper release of insulin at the wrong time. The treatment depends entirely on what causes low blood sugar when it is found to be present. In some cases, diet is the main thing. If it is caused by a rare tumor of the pancreas, then removal of the tumor is the right treatment. But first things first, start with getting a proper diagnosis.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the name for the slight head tremor? What is the cause of it and what can be done for it? A friend has this problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB — It is just called a tremor. There are all kinds of tremors and they involve almost any part of the body. The head can shake from a familial tremor. Even though it is inherited, it may be brought out by emotion. Or a person may have a simple tremor involving the head, or any of a variety of diseases of the nervous system that can cause head shaking.

The head may nod in response to damage of the aortic valve in the heart, a condition called De Musset's sign. The forceful pulsation each time the heart ejects blood up the neck arteries causes it.

All of which should tell you that the best way to find out what is causing a tremor of the head is to have an examination. How it is treated depends entirely on what is causing it. Obviously, head nodding from a bad heart valve is treated a lot differently from familial tremor activated by emotional reactions.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Meringue miracles

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Try as I will, I can never make a nice meringue to go on a pie. I beat it with a fork, add the sugar slowly and still it will not stand in peaks. I use granulated sugar, but maybe I should use powdered sugar? Can you help me?

Also, I have trouble getting gelatin to come out of a mold cleanly, even though I rinse the mold before pouring it in. I put the mold in warm water for a minute or so when I take it out of the refrigerator, but it seldom comes out perfect.

I am wondering if I can buy a book with your hints and, if so, where can I buy it? — JEAN

DEAR JEAN — Thanks for the first part of your letter that is not printed here, where you say the column is getting more popular all the time. The one book of Pointers is now out of print, but perhaps there will be another some day.

As to your meringue problem. Mine would never have peaks if I beat it with a fork, as I would never keep at it long enough. If you have an electric mixer, use it. Even a hand beater will be a big help. Beat the egg whites until frothy before starting to slowly add the granulated sugar (about four tablespoons to three egg whites). Try adding just a tiny pinch of cream of tartar. When putting the meringue on the pie, use a spatula to bring it all the way to the edges of the crust and then to make peaks and swirls on top.

I also thinly coat the inside of a mold with mayonnaise, so a gelatin mold comes out easily and perfectly. If you prefer, a clear vegetable salad oil could be used instead. Just a bit of loosening at the top edges and there is no need to put it in warm water. Good luck! — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I buy birthday and anniversary cards several months in advance, immediately address them and put the mailing date in the corner that will be covered with the stamp. These are banded together in the correct order for mailing, and each weekend I take out those to be mailed the following week, add a personal note and stamp. There is no more forgetting. This also works well for paying bills. — EDNA

Putting Price On Housework

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A new study confirms what many married women have claimed — and complained about — for years: They don't get enough help from their husbands with the housework.

The study, by two Cornell University researchers, shows that the value of everyday chores like cooking, cleaning and mending adds up to over $10,000 a year for a family of four. And the researchers say that women do most of the work — even if they have outside jobs.

"While one social convention — that against mothers working — has broken down, another social convention — one that labels most household tasks 'women's work' — leaves her with a disproportionate share of the household tasks," said William H. Gauger and Kathryn Walker. Gauger and Ms. Walker studied the amount of time spent by different members of the family on housework and calculated what it was worth. The study was based on a random sample of almost 1,400 families and on 1979 wage rates for a variety of jobs.

"What is most clearly seen," the two concluded, is that the wife — contributes the giant share of household work, both in time and dollars... This is true whether or not she is employed."

The study showed that "in no type of family did the average time contributed by husband, teenager or younger child go over three hours a day. On the other hand, in no instance did the wife's average time drop below four hours a day."

Gauger and Ms. Walker also concluded that the amount of time devoted to household chores has not changed substantially in recent years. One type of work has simply been replaced by another. "Many labor-saving devices ... lighten the work load, but they require time for service, maintenance and repair," Gauger and Ms. Walker said.

Gauger and Ms. Walker said that wives who work outside the home generally spend about two hours less a day on household chores than their non-working counterparts. But the researchers said that, in general, the figures "do not show that husbands increase their work contribution if their wives are employed."

Gauger and Ms. Walker found that in a family of four with two children, the youngest of whom was between 12 and 17, a non-employed wife contributed $10,000 worth of household work a year. Her husband contributed $2,200 worth and each teen-ager contributed $1,100. The total value of contributions was $14,400.

In a similar family where the wife held an outside job, she contributed only $6,300 worth of household work a year — almost 40 percent less than her non-employed counterpart. The contributions of her husband and children, however, were about the same as in the family where the wife worked.

The Cornell study, "The Dollar Value of Household Work," includes charts and worksheets to help families figure out their own housework patterns. Copies, at $1 each, including postage, are available from: Cornell Distribution Center — AP, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, N.Y., 14850. Ask for publication IB60.

The C.S.A.

Forty-two delegates from South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Florida met at Montgomery, Ala., on Feb. 4, 1861, to establish the Confederate States of America. The convention adopted a provisional constitution and elected Jefferson Davis of Mississippi as president and Alexander H. Stephens of Georgia as vice president. A permanent constitution was adopted March 11. On July 20, the seat of government was moved to Richmond, Va., where it remained throughout the Civil War.
