Ceiling on Welfare

Benefits May be Out

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' 10-year-old $80 million ceiling on welfare benefits may be on its way out.

The House has tentatively approved a constitutional amendment that would wipe out the limit. If finally passed by the House and approved by two-thirds of the Senate, the proposal would be on the Nov. 2, 1982 general election ballot.

No one spoke against the amendment, which passed on a 94-34 roll call vote. The six votes needed to send the measure to the Senate are expected to be forthcoming on Monday.

"This doesn't just go to help the ethnic kids. We've got a lot of poor white kids, too," said Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa.

Bill Stewart said, "Because air is our most precious natural resource, it is important that air quality be maintained by limiting the amount of air pollutants. We hope that Texans will use this special week to become more aware of the relationship between energy use and environmental pollution and will think about ways to conserve energy."

That's not a startling relevation in itself, but Marian Goodin was at the age when most women have their families raised and start

The climax to the story is that Mrs. Goodin will graduate from West Texas State University May 16 with a degree in studio art, a major in painting and a minor in jewelry. And, beginning today, she will exhibit about 25 paintings and drawings in the senior art show at Mary Moody Northern Hall on the WTSU campus in Canyon.

But, back to the beginning of the story. Marian says she was not bored, "just looking for a new experience when I started to college." Having served on the decoration committee of the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber for several years (two as chairman), this had kept her involved in Hereford activities.

But that was not all. She had taught Sunday School at First Baptist Church for several years, worked with the art program in the summers for the YMCA, worked with Vacation Bible School, and was Worthy Advisor of Rainbow Giris at one time.

"Thank God for small towns. This gave me an opportunity to be involved. and not get bored but there was still this desire to get a college degree. I like small towns like Hereford. The older I get the more important it gets to know people really care and I think they do in Hereford. What some might consider gossip, I consider a lot of news caring for our friends," she said.

Marian and her husband, Calvin, have three children. They are Gary, who is track coach at Wayland Baptist College; Ginger (Mrs. Joe) Wallace of Hereford; and Brian, who is employed by Griffin & Brand, Inc., of Hereford; and three grandchildren, Clay, Jodi and

When Gary married his wife, Lily, they both had graduated from West Texas State University. Marian was visiting with Lily about her desires to get a degree from college. Lily's enthusiasm rubbed off on her and the two went to WTSU to visit with Darrell Smith in the art department. He encouraged Marian and told her there was a place for her at WTSU, so she enrolled in the fall of

Q. A friend of mine showed me a newspaper article discussing the shortage of pennies at some banks. He said the problem was because the value of copper has gone up enough to make the coins worth more than their face value. Is this true?

A. No. For the copper value of a penny to be worth more than the one-cent face value of the coin, copper prices would have to be higher than $1.50 per pound. In fact, most authorities estimate that when melting, marketing and transportation costs are added the value would have to be from $1.75 to $1.90 per pound before there could be any value in selling pennies for copper content. Your friend was probably partially correct, in that, the temporary upswing in copper prices probably caused some hoarding with caused some hoarding with anticipation that copper could enjoy a spectacular rise like gold and silver. Since then, however, copper prices have slid back to comfortably under the dollar per pound mark and spotty shortages of pennies have all but disappeared.

She said one asked her how smart she was. She said, "just average, I guess." The student told her she was just wondering if they were going to have to worry about the curves of the grades in the class because of her.

Teacher Aid

Teachers have always had to battle for pay increases, and their situation has become tougher with the rapid rise of inflation.

What was considered a teacher surplus a few years ago has turned into a teacher shortage and this very fact is boosting efforts by teachers to win pay hikes from the state legislature.

A survey by the Texas Association of School Personnel Administrators found five primary reasons for the teacher shortages: (1) Low salaries and economic conditions; (2) Fewer education majors graduating and being certifled; (3)Better opportunities for women; (4)-Poor discipline in schools, and (5) Poor public relations and low public opinion about teachers.

While the discipline problem has not been as evident in rural areas, another study showed that it is one of the causes of teacher shortages. The Governor's Advisory Committee on Education found "lack of discipline, disruptive students and red tape "to be as significant as salary problems.

William Bechtol, chairman of the department of education at Southwest Texas State University, said some of his graduates "are scared to interview in Dallas and Houston" because of discipline problems.

It is obvious that teachers need more pay, but they also need a good working environment if they are to teach young people the way Most Americans want them to be taught. Court decisions which diluted the authority of teachers and school officials has something to do with the discipline problems.

It's another example of some bureaucrat in Washington, D.C., telling us how we have to run our local school districts. The problem didn't arise overnight, however, and it won't be solved overnight.

Aid for Cities

A new bill in the state legislature has been introduced by Senator Roy Blake of Nacogdoches which would give some help to the cities of Texas in repairing their streets.

The Blake bill would allocate $75 million from general funds, to be called "A City Street Improvement Fund," and each city in the state would receive money according to how many miles of paved city

Under the formula of $1,225 per mile of city street he first year, Perryton would receive $40,920.

In order to qualify for these state funds, a city would have to spend at least that much of its own money on street maintenance.

Senator Blake calls attention to a problem that has been growing for a long time and that is the fact that city streets are wearing out faster than cities can maintain them.

After all, over 80 per cent of Texas citizens reside in cities. City dwellers buy the most motor vehicles, pay the most motor vehicle sales and use tax, consume the most gasoline and pay the most gasoline tax.

Yet all of this tax money goes into state funds to be used on state highways and farm-to-market roads. City dwellers also pay county taxes, money which goes to repair and maintain county roads but not a dime on city streets. Senate Bill 951 would provide a way for the state government to return tax dollars to cities in order to maintain their streets. Since local citizens have contributed the funds to the Onmibus Tax Clearance Fund in the first place. this tax relief measure seems to make a lot of sense.

City dwellers have been largely ignored by state agencies and especially in the area of street repairs and maintenance. We think Senator Blake has a good idea, one that bears supporting.

Small Business Needs Tax Cuts

BY RICHARD LESHER U.S. Chamber of Commerce

WASHINGTON - I've often

Voice of Business

stated in this column that one of the U.S. Chamber's top priorities is to strengthen small business. Obviously, we have a personal stake in assisting small business, because the overwhelming majority of our members fall into this category. More fundamentally, however, people who have studied our economy understand that small business is the most important source of new jobs. technology and more dynamic growth. Unfortunately, it is also clear that small business is more vulnerable and is being hurt the most by high inflation. taxation, interest rates and

So what's the answer? Aside from reducing the growth of spending and eliminating unnecessary regulation, which virtually everyone but Ted Kennedy and a few of his friends agree must be done, what specific changes in tax policy would be most beneficial to small business? This very question was put to me recently when I testified for the Chamber before the House Small Business Committee. My answer could not have been more direct. Pass the administration's total tax package, which consists of two major proposals: The first, the Accelerated Cost Recovery System (ACRS), would enable businesses to accelerate their depreciation of plant and equipment, and the second would reduce all marginal individual income tax rates by 30 percent over the next three years. Whenever I make this statement, people seem surprised. Indeed, I've come to the conclusion that although the administration has put together a tax package that seems tailor-made for small business, this fact remains one of the best kept secrets in America.

The whole purpose of accelerating the depreciation of plant and equipment is to promote new capital investment, and thereby increase productivity and create new jobs. Still, whenever people talk about accelerated depreciation we are led to believe it will primarily benefit big business. Wrong! We recently took the time to go back and study just who depreciates what. We discovered that in the latest year for which full records are available, 1975, small businesses claimed 40 percent of the total depreciation. In many industries - including agriculture, construction, wholesaling, retailing, real estate, and services - small businesses claimed over 60 percent. Clearly, then, small business will get a substantial share of the benefits from the Administration's ACRS proposal.

But ACRS will help small business in another very important way. The proposal will sweep away the agonizing complexities of the present tax code and replace them with a simple, uniform system understandable to all. This will put small business on a more equal footing with large firms, and it will free them from having to worry about hiring more staff to handle disputes with IRS.

Now consider the small business case for the administration's proposal to reduce marginal tax rates across the board by 30 percent. According to the 1977 IRS Statistics of Income, over 14,700,000 business tax returns were filed by corporations, including Subchapter S corporations filing as individuals, as well as partnerships and sole proprietorships. Of this total only 1,800,000 or less than 12.5 percent, were taxable as corporations. Thus, nearly 90 percent of U.S. businesses taxable in 1977 paid taxes at the steeply graduated personal rates. This represents a tremendous universe of small firms that stand to benefit directly from the proposed personal rate reductions.

And across the board rate reductions would assist small business in at least three other ways. By automatically reducing the maximum tax on capital gains from the present 28 percent, and by eliminating the distinction between earned and unearned income, they would reverse the trend toward tax shelters by promoting new investment and venture depleted course of capital.

Finally, they would do wonders for worker productivity. Today, working people are being taxed at unprecedented rates on extra earned income. The inevitable results of penalizing additional effort are high absenteeism, a refusal to work overtime and a surging underground economy.

Small business has everything to gain from passage of the Reagan tax proposal and a lot to lose if it does not. It's time to make your voices heard in Con-capital. Second, past experience and our own recent surveys strongly suggest they would improve personal savings, our most vital but

It's My Turn

"It took a licking and kept on ticking."

That familiar phrase has been heard by all of us at one time or another. The Timex Watch Company has used it a standard bearer in b television and radio commercials for years, with it John Cameron Swayze touting the virtues of Timex watches that withstood the roughest of tests after being strapped to this and that while a its wearer participated in a variety of activities.

Those watches never stopped, but one owned by a New York City man may be the epitome of the unshakable, unbreakable, timepiece.

The unidentified man was faced with a mugging and quickly found the safest place he could think of to stash his newly-purchased, watch...he swallowed it.

You guessed it! Despite the trauma of digestive juices, the watch took an eating and kept on beating, to coin a phrase.

What is amazing is that the self-winding watch kept working while in the man's stomach over a five-month span, and was still ticking when surgeons removed it, complete with synthetic band and buckle.

According to Dr. Elliot Duboys, a surgical resident at Mercy Hospital in Rockville, Centre, N.Y., sometime after the mugging, the man was admitted to a hospital for treatment of a psychiatric disorder, and when examining a routine set of X-rays, technicians spotted it.

While apparently feeling no ill effects from his unusual meal, the man steadfastly refused for five months to have the watch removed by surgeons.

The surgery was finally done after the man declared legally incompetent, and his family approved the operation.

The date and time were wrong when the watch was removed, but Dr. Duboys said he didn't know if they had been properly set when it had been swallowed!

But, still, it kept on ticking. John Cameron would have been proud.

The review is be formed by Reagan's Interagency Task Force on Immigration, which scheduled to deliver its report to the president on Monday, Crosland said.

The Carter administration had urged Congress to repeal the 1966 law and pass new legislation that would give the refugees a blanket status of "special entrant," Crosland said. However, he said Congress never acted on that request.

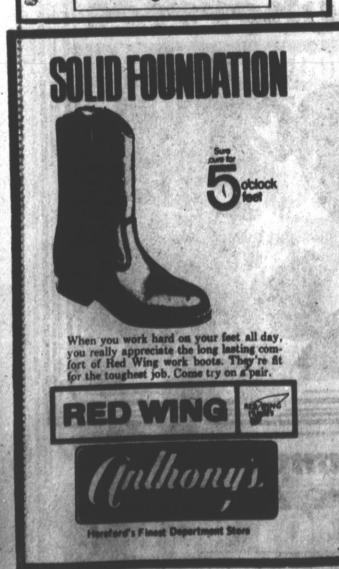

Crosland refused to reveal what action the task force would recommend to the president. He said he expected Reagan to set the status policy by early summer, but added, "I'm not going to put any deadlines on the president."

Ten days after switching from a San Francisco uniform to the rainbow colors of the Astros, he did just that, drilling a two-run double in the ninth inning Friday night to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates

Gilder Leads Houston Open

HOUSTON (AP) — For three years in a row now, Bob Gilder has shot a 84 in the Michelob-Houston Open gol. In 1979 that 7-under-par in 1979 that 7-under-par effort helped him to a third place finish. Last year, he had that number in the last round, again finishing third.

And this time, the no-bogey 64, which included five birdies and an eagle, put the current Canadian Open champion into sole possesion of the lead at the halfway

"It's a good tournament for me. And that's been a good number for me," Gilder said Friday after posting his 132 total, 10 shots under par for two trips over the 7,071 yard Woodlands Country Club

"Now," he said, "If I could just got more than one of those rounds a year..."

And he could need another one if he hopes to take the winner's $63,000 share of the $350,000 purse. Even though the rough has been allowed to grow very, very deep — "as deep as any U.S. Open rough I've seen," Gilder said — the scores are extremely low and there's a tightly-bunched group at the top of the standings, 11 men ee strokes and 18 within four. "If the greens stay as slow and soft as they are, and the weather doesn't turn bad, the (course) record is gone,' said Tom Kite, a single stroke off the lead at 133. He birdied the last two holes for

He needs to win $2,400 in the next couple of weeks to retain his approved playing rights. He took a big step in that direction with a 67 that included birdies on the last three holes.

Hale Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion, topped the group at 134. Irwin, usually one of the game's steadlest players, had an erratic 69 that included seven birdies, six pars and five bogeys.

He was tied with Pat Lindsey, George Burns, Jay Haas and Tommy Valentine. Lindsey matched Gilder's 64 as the best round of the day. Burns closed up with a 65, Haas shot 67 in the hot, muggy weather, and Valentine had a 68.

Ben Crenshaw, with a 70 despite a triple bogey, Jerry Pate and Bobby Wadkins were at 135, only three back with 36 holes to go. Pate and Wadkins each had a 68.

Defending champion Curtis Strange remained in contention at 137 afrer a 70. Also at five under par was Gary McCord, the first round leader, who slipped to a 73. Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino just made the cut for the final two rounds at 142, even par and the cutoff figure. Each had a second

The Texas Rangers went after an American League record Friday night ...and came a away with nothing.

Texas pitchers had hurled four consecutive shutouts, a club record and one short of the AL mark. Instead, the Rangers were given a taste of their own medicine by Kansas City's Larry Gura, who spun a six-hitter in pitching the Royals to a 4-0 record. I just wanted the win," said Texas Manager Don Zimmer.

Elsewhere, the Oakland A's whipped the New York Yankees 8-6, the Cleveland Indians trounced the Chicago White Sox 10-2, the California Angels downed the Milwaukee Brewers 8-4, the Detroit Tigers trimmed the Seattle Mariners 7-3 and the Minnesota Twins beat the Boston Red Sox 6-1. The Toronto-Baltimore game was rained out.

When the Royals scored in the fourth it broke a string of 39 scoreless innings by Texas pitchers. Amos Otis scored the only run Gura needed. He walked, went to third on a single by John Wathan and scored on a sacrifice fly by Frank White. Kansas City added a run in the fifth when Hal McRae doubled and

Derby Has History Of Controversy

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Derby brings to mind mint julips, a wreath of roses and beautiful horses But it also has a history of

And, as was the case Friday, some Derby victories of sorts are won in the courtroom instead of the

Another legal dispute erupted Friday, the second in 13 years.

Churchill Downs lost this one — withdrawing its objections to two colts running in today's Derby.

But in 1968 the dispute followed the race and the ending was different.

After a lengthy court battle Dancer's Image disqualified as the winner because of the presence of an illegal medication and the purse and trophy were awarded to Calumet Farm's Forward Pass, which had run second.

Peter Fuller, owner of Dancer's Image, claimed he was wronged and has not run another colt in the Derby.

Some of the controversies go back to 1933 when Don Meade, on Brokers Tip, and H. Fisher, riding Head Play, battled with whips as they headed for the finish line. Brokers Tip finis ed first.

The 1957 Derby will be remembered as the one in which jockey Willie Shoemaker, aboard Gallant Man, misjudged the finish line, stood up in the saddle and lost the race to Iron

Fire broke out in the grandstands in 1966 but was quickly extinguished.

In 1967, more than 2,000 National Guardsmen patrolled the track because civil rights groups had threatened to disrupt the Derby to call attention to their cause.

Nothing happened but in 1976 as the nine colts raced thrown from the stands.

The 100th Derby in 1974, won by Cannonade, touched off controversy because 23 colts went to the starting gate. Some critics claimed it was a stampede rather than a race and that the thoroughbreds had trouble in the heavy traffic. Afterward, the track adopted a rule limiting the Derby to the 20 highest money winners.

That rule wasn't tested until Friday when the owner of Flying Nashua went into court and had his colt declared eligible.

While a second court hearing was under way involving Mythical Ruler, the track's attorney announced that it was withdrawing objections to both horses running in the Derby.

There's no telling what Churchill Downs lost in preliminary betting on the Derby Friday. That traditional fixture was scrapped because of confusion.

Basketball Association playoff showdown back to Boston Garden for a deciding eventh game on Sunday.

"The Garden is going to be rocking," promised Celtics rockie Kevin McHale, whose block of an Andrew Toney shot with 14 seconds left helped preserve Boston's victory. "We stuck it out and we didn't quit. I've never been involved in a more joyous occasion."

As they have in each of the last four games of this best-of-seven Eastern Conference final, the 76ers raced out to a big early lead only to see the gritty Celtics claw their way back. Philadelphia led by 17 in the second quarter and 15 early in the third, but Bird scored 11 points as Boston outscored the 76ers 28-14 to climb back to 71-70 late in the third period. After that it was tight all the way. The lead changed hands nine times in the final 7:34, Nate Archibald finally putting the Celtics ahead to stay 96-95 by sinking two free throws with 2:16 left. Lionel Hollins and Darryl Dawkins missed shots for Philadelphia fore Bird hit an 18-footer for a three-point lead. Toney came back with a 21footer to make it 98-97, then brought the raucous, capacity crowd of 18,276 to its feet by stealing the ball from Bird with 30 seconds to play. But when he tried to drive the left side, the 6-foot-10 McHale got a piece of his shot and then smothered 21 points and 10 rebounds.

Archibald, who missed six minutes of the second half after his left foot was stepped on by Dawkins, had 19 points, and Maxwell, who went charging into the stands after a fan during the third quarter, an incident that saw both benches empty before order was restored, scored 17. Dawkins was high man for Philadelphia with 24 points, the second straight productive game for the foul-prone center. It was the Celtics' first victory here since Jan. 20, 1979, ending an 11-game streak. And coming on the heels of Wednesday night's dramatic 111-109 win in Boston, when they scored the last eight points of the game and held Philadelphia scoreless for the final 1:51, it had the Celtics going home aky high. Only three teams have ever come back from 3-1 deficits to win a playoff series — the 1968 Boston Celfics, the 1970 Los Angeles Lakers and the 1979 Washington Bullet Ironically, all three did it the semifinal round, pattern these Celtics a

Ideal Saving for Mother's Day

Ruth Hennessey's True Story:

I knew all the sandwiches and ice cream I was snacking on would catch up with me, and sure enough they did. At 140 pounds (I'm 5'31/2"), I was heading toward a real weight problem when I decided to try Pat Walker's. What I didn't want to do was lose weight too fast. I've seen the sags and wrinkles crash dieters get. So Pat Walker's planned a program just right for me: regular (and surprisingly easy) sessions on the passive exercise unit to keep my figure toned and firm, and counseling about the right and wrong ways to eat. I didn't even have to give up the foods I like, once I learned when I could have them.

With Pat Walker's help, I've trimmed off 21 pounds and a total of 31 inches! Now I weigh 119, and honestly, I've never felt better. Don't you think my 73-year-old figure is in good shape?

Make an appointment now for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. We'll explain how our program works, from the no-muss, no-fuss passive exercise treatments to our belief in your right to privacy. We'll tell you how much you need to lose, how long it will take, and the total cost of your complete figure correction, based on four dollars per thirty-minute treatment.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

It's a myth in this country that anyone can make garbage. I'm not talking about the frozen-quick-serve-packaged-ust-add-water-three minutes-in-the-microwave garbage. I'm talking your made-from scratch-leftover garbage for which American women are famous.

Garbage, if it's made right, takes a full week. Most men don't understand the process. They think you can take a leftover straight from the table, scrape it right from the plate and dump it into the can. That is not the way American garbage is made.

For the purpose of example, let us walk through a week in the life of two tablespoons of leftover peas and a piece of leftover pot roast the size of a coaster.

Day I: The leftover goes from the table to the refrigerator in an elaborate ritual of joy. In an eagerness to display her frugality, the woman transfers the peas and beef to a smaller dish with a haunting chant, "Don't touch this. I'm saving it for vegetable soup." Everyone believes her..or pretends they

Day II: The leftover enjoys a place of prominence in the refrigerator and is seen every time the door opens. A few times it is reexamined, but from the distance comes the familiar chant, "Don't touch it. I'm saving it for vegetable

Day III: The leftover is moved to a less prominent shelf and is occasionally patted and reassured it will be the makings of vegetable soup.

Day IV: A traumatic time in the life of future garbage. It is either tossed prematurely or is shoved to rear of refrigerator on shelf next to a bowl containing three tablespoons of peach

Day V: Traditionally on the fifth day, a leftover is opened, exposed to air and passed around to see if anyone can identify it. If it is recognizable, it is shoved in dark corner and allowed to "ripen" for another day.

Day VI: This is a crucial day in which the peas and beef curdle, turn green, harden and grow fuzz.

Day VII: Excited cries resound through the kitchen as the children dance around the refrigerator chanting, "Is it garbage yet?" Mother removes the leftovers, folds back the foil and pronounces the peas and beef dead! In no other country in the world do women prepare their garbage for burial like they do here. First, they wrap it in newspaper, then put it in a brown bag, then a plastic one and finally put it to rest in the garbage can in the garage.

A time-honored tradition of American women who for years have vowed, "I will bury no garbage before its time."

South Plains Farmers Assured Of No Sudden Gas Costs Jump

of the Plains Irrigation Gas Division here at the Holiday

Charles Schlabs, of Hereford, secretarytreasurer of PIGUA, reported that the gas firms indicated that no sudden, drastic jump in the cost of natural gas for those who use it for irrigation will occur here on the South Plains as it did recently on the North Plains.

"They told us that the price of gas would go up from two to three cents per MCF a month the next two years, and then from three to four cents per month for about four years after that,"

The PIGUA met with Tex president of Pioneer's Energes Division.

Schlabs expressed relief that the gas cost would be a one rather than a dden jump as occurred up north. "We are pretty well eased with the news," he aid. "We realize it is going can I live a lot better with a gradual increase such as this rather than with a big jump." Schlabs added that the news will go a long way to relieve the minds of some South Plains gas users, who had feared that such a drastic jump in gas prices would occur here.

Ag Secretary Returns To $Multimillion Farm

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block is going home to Illinois next week to help plant corn, tend the hogs and "get out of the loony bin for a little bit."

"It's simply a way of keeping his sanity," said Block aide John Ochs, discounting .. any possibili that going back to the farm would be a conflict of interest for the agriculture secretary.

Block, whose family's involve holdings multimillion-dollar operation on 3,000 acres that turns out 6,000 hogs a year, has been telling audiences recently that he is looking forward to the visit so he can help with the spring planting.

But Block says he has to play the role of a hired man and not engage in running the show as he did until a few months ago. He plans to be on the farm May 7-10. Under terms of his ap-

Horse Industry Shows Growth

COLLEGE STATION --Even though horses are not food or fiber, they are a significant part of agriculture and America's horse industry continues to grow.

"The nation's enthusiasm for horses has been building for the past 20 years, gradually at first and now more rapidly," said Ken Holt, director of public affairs for the American Horse Council in Washington, D.C.

Holt opened the 1981 Horse Short Course at Texas A&M University, April 6 and 7, with a discussion on the future of the horse industry. The short course was part of the Texas Animal Agriculture Con-

It's clear that a large segment of American people are committed to breeding, racing, showing and riding horses, Holt said, and owners are taking advantage of the existing potential in each sec-

More than four million Americans own horses and spend an estimated $15 billion annually caring for them.

But, he noted, approximately 112 million spectators viewed equestrian sports in 1980 - more than football, baseball or any other big league sports attraction. Racing alone attracted over 75 million spectators to 185 race tracks.

Holt believes it will be the horse industry's business in the future to keep the public interested.

"It's going to take aggressive marketing and continued support to keep the horse business alive and growing," he said.

Horse industry people will

When painting . . . excellent, When painting ... excellent, longer-lasting results come with QUALITY paint and tools. To figure the amount of paint needed, add the length of the room to the width, multiply by 2 and multiply again by the height. Subtract 15 for each window, and 20 for each window and 20 for each average door. Tools needed include a stepladder, newspaper or rags to clean the brushes and rollers and drop cloths to cover floors and furniture and a plastic bucket. A roll of masking tape for edging and a razor blade in a holder plus a straight-edged ruler for window touch-ups will make the job easier. Rollers are great for covering a large expanse of wall. Roller covers are chosen according to the type surface to be painted. A variety of brushes make the job easier. A wide brush is good for corners and door panels where the roller can't reach. Sash brushes (narrow with slated bristle tips) are best for edging and window trim. Be here next week for the final stroke.

business interesting to others, he said.

"It's a simple law of economics, you have to make the product appealing to buyers," he pointed out. "Corporations are now thinking of horses as moneymaking vehicles and we in the horse business must encourage them. We can do this by making them feel that their money is well spent."

The horse industry, like all others, has its share of problems, he announced.

There needs to be more communication between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and horse groups. High energy and labor costs also affect the industry, he explained.

Holt believes that in spite of the problems facing the horse world, the future looks bright for the industry.

"How the industry responds to the problems that face it will determine whether showing and racing are healthy and viable businesses in 1980," Holt said.

The report also showed he had an annual income of between $172,709 and $291,396, which included his salary of $40,800 as Illinois state agriculture director. Block's salary now is $69,630.

Block said that during his tenure as secretary he would collect an income from his farming partnership at a fixed rate of return of 8 percent on "the value of my existing financial investment in the partnership, but in no event shall my return exceed amounts distributed to me in prior years." No dollar amount was reported.

Block said he believed the financial arrangement and the promise not to be involved in running his family's business "will avoid not only the occurrence of any actual conflict of interest, but even the possible appearance of any conflict" while in government.

Ochs said he did not think returning to Illinois to help plant corn could be construed as a violation of the federal conflict of interest laws.

"He simply goes back and drives a tractor," Ochs said. "He does not look at books or make any management decisions. He goes back simply to visit his folks and try to get out of the loony bin for a little bit."

Food For Thought Gerald McCathern

Jim Kramer, Kansas wheat farmer and graduate economist, was the first to bring to my attention the tremendous disparity in the price of gold, oil, corn and

It was during the first year of the farmers protests in Washington, 1978, when he (Kramer) testified before the House Agriculture Committee. At the time of his testimony, the price of gold, was $177.00 an ounce, having risen after gold prices were allowed to "seek their own level" from the controlled $35.00 per - ounce level. This was an increase of five hundred and five percent in only a few short years.

Jim pointed out to the committee that world oil prices had remained fairly constant at $2.50 per barrel during the time that gold was pegged at $35.00 per ounce. However, when gold prices jumped by 505 percent, world oil producers were quick to realize that a barrel of oil no longer had it's original purchasing power in terms of gold. This was one of the major reasons for the organizing of O.P.E.C. and the principal reason that the price of oil was raised to $12.62 per barrel, or five hundred and five percent of

Partial Grain Embargo Lift by U.S. Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) -Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., says he is hopeful there is truth in "persistent reports" President Reagan is about ready to lift the partial embargo on U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union.

Our economy began to suffer tremendously duringthat period of time because, as Jim pointed out in his testimony, we refused to allow our largest foreign trade commodity, U.S. grains, to retain their parity level in relation to gold and oil. Wheat and corn prices, during $35.00 per ounce gold and $2.50 per barrel oil, had averaged $1.25 and $1.05 per bushel respectively. Had the price of wheat and com risen proportionately (505 percent), wheat should have been $6.31 per bushel and corn $5.30 per bushel in 1978! (Very close to honest parity computations by U.S.D.A. in 1978). Instead, they were only $2.50 and $2.10 respectively.

To put it more simply, 28 bushels of wheat could be exchanged for one ounce of gold or two bushels of wheat could be exchanged for one barrel of oil before O.P.E.C. In 1978, that exchange rate had changed to where it required 70 bushels of wheat to exchange for one ounce of gold or five bushels of wheat for one barrel of oil. It is easy to see why we were having such a tremendous deficit in our balance of payments and why inflation had reached double digit levels.

But look at what has happened since 1978. Today it requires 140 bushels of wheat to exchange for one ounce of gold, and ten bushels of wheat to exchange for o one barrel of oil! In only three years the price of grain on the foreign exchange has lost 50 percent of its pur-

Dependable weed control in corn with Banvel herbicide

Whenever pigweed and other problem broadleaf weeds appear, ask for Banvels* herbicide.

Banvel gives effective, economical broadleaf weed control in nearly every stage of the corn growing cycle. Banvel tackles your toughest broadleaf weed problems: pigweed...smartweed... cocklebur...and many more.

Pre-emergence or early post; Banvel, applied at rates up to one pint immediately after planting or until corn is five inches tall provides effective control of many tough annual broadleaf weeds.

Post: Or apply Banvel at the 1/2 pint rate anytime after weeds appear but before

For most effective, economical control, apply Banvel early! Applying Banvel when weeds are small - less than 3 inches tall stops the weeds when they are most easily controlled and also lessens chances of damaging sensitive crops nearby.

Ask for the herbicide strong enough to control the tough to control broadleaf weeds-Banvel herbicide.

Cool Tests Indicate Low Vigor in Cotton Seed

LUBBOCK - Results of Cool Germination Tests performed this year have been indicating lower vigor than isual in cotton seed, to the dismay and confusion of farmers preparing to plant.

The outcome, says a cotton agronomist with the Texas gricultural Extension Serice, is that the Cool Test isn't erving its intended purpose and the method needs to be e-evaluated.

The test was designed to provide an indication of seed vigor to help producers decide if their seed is suitable for planting early in the temperatures for germination and emergence are minimal, or if planting should be delayed until more optimal conditions develop, said Dr. James R. Supak, the Extension agronomist.

"The test is more rigorous than the Standard Germination test," Supak said. Seed are subjected to a continuous, relatively cool environment and resulting seedlings must grow to a specified length within a specified time to be counted, he explained.

'Generally, if well developed, cleaned and delinted seed show a standard germination percentage of 80 to 95, the percentage of seedlings passing the requirements of the Cool Test should be 40 to 50. Cool Test germination percentages below 30 generally indicate a vigor problem and suggest the seed should not be used until planting conditions are near optimum," the agronomist noted.

But, things aren't working out that way this year. The staffs at seed testing laboratories in this area are reporting that over threefourths of the seed lots subjected to the Cool Test had standard germination percentage 80 or above but less than one-fourth of these had a Cool Test germination percentage over 30. In fact, the Cool Test percentage values for these seed lots were generally less than 10, Supak reported.

Does this mean that most of the cotton planting seed produced in 1981 has a vigor problem? Not necessarily, according to the people who do the testing, Supak said. "Most feel the problem is associated more with the Cool Test criteria than with the quality of the seed. They have observed that most seed lots with good standard germination (80 percent or better) would have tested acceptably had the seed been allowed to remain in the germinator at least one more day before being counted, or if the growth criteria could have been relaxed slightly."

Apparently many of the seed lots tested so far this year were somewhat slow about initiating growth, Supak said. "This may be the result of a form of dormancy. Once growth began, it appears to be normal and vigorous but not rapid enough to meet the test criteria.

"The bottom line appears to be that the Cool Test is not serving its intended purpose and the method needs to be re-evaluated. Other techni-

Aging Test and Tetrazolium in mind that seed from a well Test can be used to evaluate seed vigor. Unfortunately, most seed analysts lack experience with these tests and are hesitant to use them to estimate seed vigor.

"Hopefully, a reliable vigor test will be developed in the near future that we can use in helping make that difficult decision about when to start planting," Supak said.

In the meantime, growers will have to rely on their judgment and experience in assessing potential seed perques such as the Accelerated formance, he stressed. "Bear matured (high micronaire) crop are usually well developed and of good quality. If the standard germination is high (80 percent or better) and there is no problem with free fatty acids then the seed should make good strong planting seed," Supak said. Most delinting plant operators have many years experience with cottonseed, the Extension agronomist said. As a rule, they evaluate and test most of the seed they process. Their observations helpful in assessing the overall quality of a given lot of seed, he stressed. "Above all, don't make any hasty decisions to discard a load of seed because it made a poor showing in the Cool Test," Supak urged. "If you remain uncertain about your seed, visit with your delinter, seed analyst, Texas Department of Agriculture representative, County Extension Agent, or give us a call at the Texas A&M Research and Extension Center in Lubbock."

iron content."

The plants were grown without irrigation because no previous study on the effects of natural water supplies on the peas' amino acid composition had been done, Harden said.

"On dry lands, we wanted to see if the peas could grow well with a lack of water. They should get enough water, but will not get as much as the plant might be able to use."

The peas were studied at various stages of growth to find the changes in their amino acids, nitrogen and minerals. Mineral studies were also done on the root, stem, leaves, seed and pod.

Digestibility studies using laboratory white rats are also planned.

Different food preparation methods such as microwave cooking and boiling will be the final phases of study for the two-year project which ends this spring.

"We have to see if the different methods have different effect on the fiber content of the peas," Harden

Harden said studies so far show the peas have a high potential for production in semi-arid regions and in subhumid tropics.

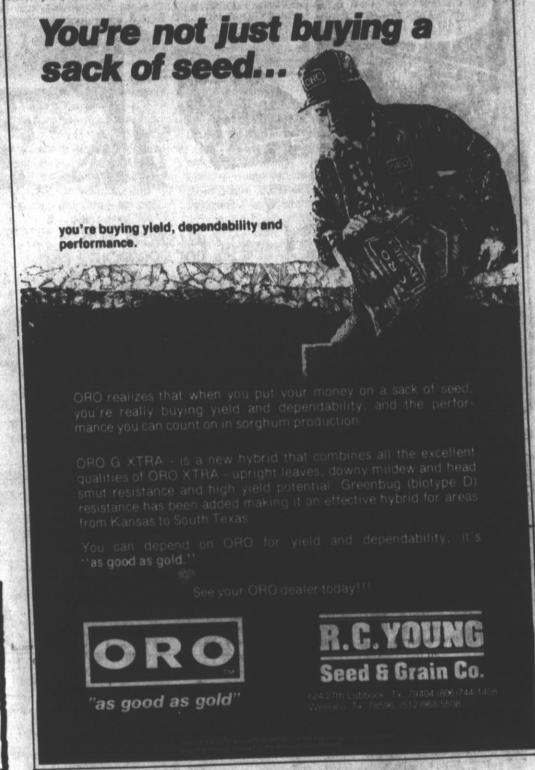

"Since high rainfall and relative humidity cause harvesting, drying and storage problems, the cowpea might be an alternative crop of economic value for the West Texas farmer." she said.

Honeysuckle Rose', 'Smokeys' To be Aired

"Honeysuckle Rose" (PG) Willie Nelson, country music's "Entertainer of the Year" for two years running, makes his first starring role appearance in this lusty country western love story. Along with Slim Pickens and loving wife, Dyan Cannon, he reenacts his story of the not-yettamous musician touring the outlands of Texas. He loves the open road, but when he falls for Slim's daughter, the road gets rougher.

Coming in June on THE MOVIE CHANNEL

"The Idolmaker" (PG) Ray Sharkey captures all the frustrations, rage and the drive it takes to succeed in the pop music business. He takes two unformed teenagers and turns them into teen idols in his own image.

"Roadie" (PG) Rock star Meat Loaf, in his first shot at film stardom, is a "roadie," jack-of-alltrades and companion to rock musicians on the road. He's following his true love, Kaki Hunter. Great concert footage of music stars including Blondie, Alice Cooper, Deborah Harry, Roy Orbison, Kaki Hunter and Meat Loaf.

The credits for "Atlantic City" list the movie as an Inter-national Cinema Corporation (I.C.C.) production. With a director from France, a screenwriter from the USA, and a producer from Canada, the group certainly qualifies for international status. The irony is that it took an international group to make a story about a seashore resort in New Jersey.

But Atlantic City is not just another sandy city. It has a history which mirrors America, reflecting the country's highs and lows with its own rise and fall. It is no wonder filmmakers would want to concentrate on such a city, but the real irony is that this international group has created such a remarkably observant and highly entertaining movie on a city that is as genuine a piece of Americana as one of the hot dogs sold along its Board-

Serious Spokesman For

We're talking serious craze here - a No. 1 album and half-a-dozen Top 10 singles.
So what's all the shouting about? Music, yes - there's an undeniable appeal to the catchy tunes and tribal rhythms pounded out by Ant and Marco Pirroni on guitar, bassist Kevin Mooney, and drummers Terry Lee Miall and Merrick. Not to mention Ant's lead vocals - halfsung, half-squawked and punctuated by frequent whoops and yelps.

But what really sets the band apart is Ant's almost fanatical determination not to be lumped in with umpteen other post-punk rock bands. It's no accident that selfpromoting references to "antmusic" and "ant people" pepper the lyrics of many of the songs on the band's first U.S. LP, "Kings of the Wild Frontiers." "We decided to risk pretentiousness to avoid being classified by anybody else,' said the 26-year-old Ant, who Records looked quite attractive without his stage makeup during an interview at Epic's Century City offices. "If there's going to be any classifications done in our work, we'll do it."

Ant - a London native and onetime graphic arts studen who changed his name legal ly six years ago — got the Ants together four years age and worked briefly under former Sex Pistols im, presario Malcolm McLaren. A not overwhelmingly successfully debut album, "Dirk Wears White Sox," was released in 1979. Most of the band left about a year ago, but Ant began writing with Pirron

Although paintings of the American West have a tendency at times to fall into patterns, Vickers' work has a character all its own, from his masterfully restrained use of color to his exciting choices of narrative material. More than that, every detail has been so thoroughly researched that there is no doubt of authenticity.
