

Living Costs Up

Panhandle food and medical costs rose the least in January, but overall living costs were up four percent, according to a monthly economic survey. Chief culprit in the cost rise was a federal tax boost. Because of the tax increase, February's cost of living figures are not expected to be as dramatic. (Photo by Denise Smith)

Panhandle Living Cost Rises by Four Percent

The cost of living in the Texas Panhandle rose more than four percent in January, primarily because of federal tax boosts, according to the monthly Security Federal Savings Economic Survey.

While all areas of the survey showed some increase over December figures, taxes accounted for the bulk of the 4.19 percent cost-of-living increase. "Since about two-thirds of January's increase was related to federal taxes, we are expecting the February survey to show a somewhat less dramatic cost-of-living rise," said Aubrey Steele, Security Federal Savings president.

With taxes excluded, the rate of increase was 1.4 percent, or 16.8 percent annualized. That figure is well above the 12.6 percent national cost-of-living increase in 1980.

The tax increase recorded in January included a change in the Social Security rate from 6.13 percent to 6.65 percent. Although overall income tax rates remained the same, the new year and a resulting higher annual base income for an average family of four caused the actual income tax expenses to jump more than 11 percent.

Other areas surveyed included:

Transportation, up 4.9 percent due to higher gasoline prices.

Utility costs, increased by 3.12 percent because of a 5.4 percent increase in electric rates. Both gas and water rates were stable in January.

Clothing costs, up by 2.7 percent.

Food and Medical costs, both up by 0.4 percent. In the food category, fresh tomatoes and peanut-based products were up by more than 25 percent. Meat prices were generally stable. Lettuce prices decreased substantially.

The Security Federal Savings Economic Survey is prepared each month using 303 consumer price items. Prices are compiled throughout the Panhandle and are compared to prices of the same items the previous month to determine cost-of-living changes in each category and overall. To determine the overall change, each category is given a weighted value based on U.S. Department of Labor Statistics estimates of how the average family of four spends its income. "We feel it is important that consumers know what areas of expenditure are increasing and at what rates," Steele said. "The information collected in our economic survey is vital to us as we deal with our customers, and vital to the general public as well."

"There are plenty of reports on the national cost-of-living and how it is skyrocketing," Steele said. "But the national averages are not that important to those of us living in the Panhandle. That is why Security Federal Savings decided to sponsor a monthly survey of cost-of-living changes in the area we serve."

Security Federal Savings has hired Leach Research, Inc., a company based in Santa Fe, N.M., to conduct research each month for the economic survey. Leach Research has been involved in similar research projects in Santa Fe and El Paso for several years.

Demos Want Smaller, One-Year Tax Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the Joint Economic Committee, offering the party's first alternative to President Reagan's program, are urging a one-year tax cut just large enough to offset higher Social Security taxes and immediate reductions in interest rates.

The Democrats maintain that a big, three-year, across-the-board tax cut like Reagan wants probably would spark another round of inflation. Republicans on the congressional study panel accused Democrats of turning their backs on new ideas and advocating shopworn policies that got the nation's economy into its present state.

The positions were spelled out Thursday when the committee issued its annual report on the economy. In contrast to 1979 and 1980, when the panel unanimously agreed on a report built around stimulating investment and saving, the committee was so split that the 10 Republicans issued one report and the 10 Democrats another.

The GOP members' prescription for curing inflation and economic stagnation was essentially Reagan's: a reduction in the growth of federal spending, a 30 percent across-the-board cut in individual tax rates, faster tax write-offs for business, less government regulation, and tighter monetary controls for the time being.

As they had last year, the Democrats agreed on business tax cuts, regulatory reform and the principle of holding down spending.

The Democrats also urged: —A smaller tax cut until inflation is controlled. This year's installment would be aimed at offsetting the higher Social Security taxes that went into effect Jan. 1. This would allow a worker to subtract from his or her income taxes 8 percent of the Social Security tax paid this year. Any further tax cut would be delayed.

Sniper Fires On A-J Employees

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two employees of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal were wounded when a sniper opened fire on a home where a party was being held in this West Texas city late Thursday, police said.

Wounded were Bryce Cockerham Jr., 23, and Shannon Kennedy, 19, both employees of the newspaper's advertising department. Cockerham was shot twice in the back and Miss Kennedy was shot in the throat.

Cockerham was listed in serious condition at a Lubbock hospital early today and no condition report was immediately available on Miss Kennedy.

Officers said the two were among 16 persons attending a party at the home of Carl Cannon, the newspaper's advertising director when someone apparently fired two or more shots from a high-powered rifle through a picture window of the home. Officers said they believed the shots were fired from a passing car.

Police said Cockerham was seated on a couch with his back to the window and Miss Kennedy was seated across from him on a love seat at the time the sniper opened fire.

Officers were searching today for a late model luxury automobile sighted in the area of the Cannon home at the time of the shooting, but no arrests had been made by early today.

A police spokesman said no motive has been determined for the shooting, but said it apparently was not connected with earlier sniping incidents at Lubbock. Teddy Glyn Floyd, 36, was arrested and jailed in connection with four earlier sniping incidents at Lubbock.

Cockerham's father, Bryce Cockerham Sr., is advertising director at the Amarillo Globe-News.

Kidney Foundation Dance Saturday

A benefit dance for the National Kidney Foundation of West Texas will be held Saturday night at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

Sponsored by St. Anthony's Women's Organization and the Knights of Columbus, the dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. and continue until 12:30 a.m. Dayton Todd will provide musical entertainment.

Tickets are $10 per couple and are available from Mrs. Tony Urbanczyk at 276-5303 or Mrs. Dale Reinart at 364-6736. A limited amount of tickets will be available at the door.

Proceeds from the dance will go to the foundation which is one of 52 affiliates of the National Kidney Foundation and currently serves a 44-county area.

Donations to the foundation help provide for research and urinalysis screening projects. Hereford public schools will participate in the screening project during the month of April.

Jurors Excused

Prospective jurors for the District Court case scheduled to be tried Monday, March 2, will not be required to be present according to the District Court Clerk.

Armed Robber Strikes

Another armed robber struck a Hereford business last night and escaped with an undetermined amount of cash from Allsup's convenience store on North Highway 385.

A knife-wielding man dressed in blue jeans and a sweatshirt escaped on foot after demanding and receiving all the cash in the register from the clerk on duty at about 1:12 a.m.

Police are still investigating the case and have no suspects.

Burglars broke into two units at the Hereford Mini Storage, 915 W. Park. Police said the renters of the sheds will determine if anything is missing sometime today.

Police officers are also investigating a burglary at Hereford High School that netted burglars money from two vending machines in the north hall of the school.

Police said entry to the building was gained by tearing the door lock completely off the east doors of the building, and apparently the burglars pried the molding off an office door in an attempt to gain entry.

Arturo Rubio, 209 Fuller, told police he was awakened by his dogs about 4:35 a.m. today and discovered a 20 gauge shotgun missing from his pickup. The shotgun was valued at $45.

Police said the front window of TG&Y was shot out by a pellet gun or sling shot last night. Officers discovered the broken window at 1:10 a.m.

Police officers arrested a man for driving while intoxicated (DWI) after the vehicle he was driving was seen weaving from side to side.

Officers issued 7 traffic citations yesterday.

Big Foreign Demand Seen for Texas Corn

Carl King of Dimmitt, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association received 14 on-the-spot orders from international buyers for Texas-produced white and yellow corn for the 1981 crop year while attending the International Food and Agriculture Trade Show in New Orleans last week.

King, who made the trip to New Orleans in hopes of lining up new contracts in the first such venture by the TCGA, was stunned to receive immediate orders for more than 110,000 metric tons of corn.

Through interpreters, King had to convince prospective buyers from Greece, China, Japan, Africa, South America and a number of other countries that he was at the session merely as an ambassador on behalf of Texas corn. He did put prospective customers in touch with grain dealers equipped to export the yellow and white grain, however.

According to King, a number of international buyers at the New Orleans trade show voiced intentions to send trade teams to the Panhandle area later this year to open negotiations for purchase of white and yellow corn produced in this region.

The TCGA booth at the trade show registered more visitors than any of the other 150 booths at the show, according to King.

While many booths featured exotic food items, King commented, "It turned out buyers weren't as interested in the delicacies as they were in corn. They saw corn samples we had in plastic bags and it looked good to them. They had never seen white and yellow corn packaged in the manner we had it and it really looked good to them."

King, a corn farmer himself in Castro County, reported that he received indications of a ready market in lands including Colombia, Costa Rica, Kenya, Japan, Canada, Sweden and other countries.

Grower and processor got together to promote Texas corn during the trade show, according to King when representatives of Frito-Lay, Inc., a major buyer of food grade corn in this area and the TCGA exchanged promotional materials.

Frito officials borrowed bags of white corn to explain to trade show visitors the raw product from which corn chips and other products are manufactured.

The TCGA borrowed bags of Frito-Lay corn products to explain the same process to prospects.

Gil Moody of the Texas Department of Agriculture coordinated Texas exhibits at the international show.

"We contacted buyers from at least a hundred foreign countries. They know where the Panhandle is now and where the Texas corn growing region is located," King remarked.

The TCGA promotes Texas corn on behalf of producers in Castro and Deaf Smith Counties, as well as a number of other counties in the Panhandle-South Plains region.

Group Opposes Split Basing

BEAVER, Utah (AP) — A resolution opposing split basing of the MX missile system has been approved by the Four-County MX Policy Board, which said the proposed plan would give Utah nuclear missiles, but without compensating economic benefits.

In passing the resolution Wednesday night, the regional group made clear its desire to have all 200 missiles in the proposed MX system based in Utah and Nevada, not spread to other states.

The policy board consists of elected officials from Iron, Beaver, Millard and Juab counties, areas the Air Force has said it favors placing some of the missiles.

One of the options being considered by the Air Force is to split basing of the missiles, placing part of them in Utah and Nevada and the others in western Texas or eastern New Mexico.

The policy board expressed concern that while split basing would keep some missiles in Utah, the area would receive none of the long-term economic impacts of an MX supply base.

With split basing, the huge operating bases would likely be located at Coyote Springs Valley, Nev., and Clovis Air Force Base in New Mexico.

In another matter, Alex Mansour, regional director of the state Department of Transportation briefed the board on a study he is preparing on area roads and the MX.

Mansour said he feels major improvements would be necessary on every road in the MX-impacted area except Interstate 15 to handle traffic produced by the missile system.

"While on the surface, they (the roads) look adequate, they are really lacking in structural strength. If we get a lot of trucks on these roads, we'll be in trouble," he said.

Mansour estimated that 60 percent of the county roads in the four counties would be affected by the MX. The UDOT official said his department feels a study of county roads in the region is necessary.

A similar study, including a detailed photographic inventory, already has been conducted on state highways.

"This inventory will enable us to keep track of damage done to local roads by MX activities, and the obligation the Department of Defense has to local governments for road funding," Mansour said.

Child Stricken

Wish Meningitis

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 15-month-old girl was listed in satisfactory condition in the intensive care unit of a local hospital suffering from the meningococcal form of meningitis, a spokesman at Santa Rosa Children's Hospital said.

Jack Finger, public information officer at the hospital, said the unidentified San Antonio child was admitted to the hospital Monday and that meningococcus was confirmed as the cause of her illness on Tuesday.

"Doctors here have a pretty good feeling about her prognosis," Finger said, "but they concede it's a very, very serious type like that has been going around in Houston."

Finger said the patient was "responding well to antibiotics."

It was third meningitis case this year at Santa Rosa, Finger said, but the two previous cases, in a 4-year-old boy and 14-month-old boy, were of the less serious "H-Flu" strain.

Four Year A&M Med

School Recommended

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A national medical education team has recommended that Texas A&M University's College of Medicine be accredited for four full years.

The team report will ask for full accreditation from the Liaison Committee on Medical Education, the national body authorized to approve such programs.

The LCME, which draws membership from both the American Medical Association and the Association of American Medical Colleges, is expected to take action on the recommendation in the near future, Dr.

Tax

Reagan's proposal would yield $114 of tax relief this year for a typical $20,000 family of four with $4,600 of itemized deductions. The Democratic proposal would be worth $106 to that family.

While 59 percent of the Reagan tax cut would go to taxpayers with incomes above $30,000 a year, the Democratic plan would give just over 40 percent of its benefits to that group.

That the Federal Reserve Board let the money supply grow at least as much as in 1980, when the board's money-tightening efforts helped push some interest rates to record levels.

"We've got to get interest rates down now," said Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., the committee chairman. He agreed growth in the money supply should be kept austere over the long run to prevent a resurgence of inflation.

The Republicans called for immediate tightening of the money supply. A loosening might buy a few months of lower interest rates, they said, but "we would pay for this by living for years in a higher-interest-rate environment."

The GOP plan is built on the assumption that tax cuts and less government regulation will stimulate savings and investment and bring such economic growth that the tax cuts will pay for themselves and not feed inflation.

Reuss told a news conference those predictions are preposterous and "based on sheer ozone."

It is doubtful spending cuts can be made quickly and deeply enough to offset the stimulus the tax reduction and higher defense spending would bring, Reuss said.

"I would hate to see the Republicans making the same mistakes that we Democrats made...in 1967 and 1968 when we refused to choose between guns (the Vietnam war) and butter (social programs)," Reuss said. The only difference, he added, is that under Reagan's proposals, "the butter would go to the rich."

In other developments Thursday:

Reagan's economic advisers said they are committed to hold spending in fiscal 1982 to $695.5 billion, even though that means $3 billion, to $6 billion in cuts above the $41.4 billion already announced by the president.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said a proposal to raise the federal gasoline tax from four to six cents a gallon has been ruled out by the president.

Regan indicated the administration may not push for "indexing" taxpayers' brackets so inflation does not automatically kick them into higher tax brackets. He said the president proposed that when the common assumption was that inflation would continue at present high rates for years to come. But Regan said the administration plans to chop inflation substantially in the next few years, "hence the need for indexing may not be there in the post-1984 period."

Immigration Report Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top-level commission's report calling for a crackdown on illegal immigration has come under immediate attack from Hispanic activists and civil libertarians.

The study, to be delivered today to President Reagan and to Congress, says the United States has definite limits on its ability to absorb large numbers of immigrants and refugees.

A coalition of public interest groups held a news conference before the report's release to offer alternatives to the Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy's proposals for tighter enforcement.

One Mexican-American leader accused the commission of coming up with a tighter enforcement plan that resembles militarization.

After two years of hearings, research and analysis, the commission has failed to produce a sound strategy for the humane and realistic enforcement of immigration policy," Vilma Martinez, president of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said in a statement.

She rejected as costly, ineffective and possibly discriminatory the commission's key recommendations for employer sanctions and some form of worker identification as ways to control illegal immigration.

Under the plan, employer sanctions would be imposed on those who knowingly hired undocumented workers.

The commission also voted to recommend that a more secure form of identification for workers be required — a counterfeit-proof social security card was one suggestion — but it was not more specific.

A third cornerstone of the commission's plan is better enforcement, including hefty budget increases for the Border Patrol.

Laurence Fuchs, the commission's executive director, told reporters Thursday that it reports take about a 10 percent increase in the patrol's budget to put the recommendations into effect, even without an employer sanction program.

"Enforcement is not inexpensive," he said.

The report recommends that a general amnesty program for undocumented workers already in the country should go into effect once the enforcement programs are operating.

Fuchs estimated that 1 to 4 million illegal aliens would be granted permanent resident status under the program.

The select commission was established after former President Jimmy Carter's immigration program failed to move through Congress.

New subcommittee hearings on immigration and refugee policy may start as early as the spring in the House and the Senate, but prospects for the passage of the select commission's recommendations are uncertain.

Fuchs said the commission took a balanced approach, opening the door to increased legal immigration but coming down hard on the illegal variety.

"Let's not continue to wink at illegal immigration into the United States," he said.

Fuchs contended that even though many correctly argue undocumented workers are valuable to the U.S. economy, the public perception that too many aliens are entering the country can contribute to social and racial tensions.

It also leads to a permanent, poverty-stricken class reluctant to seek legal protection, he said.

In a study for the commission, Census Bureau demographers estimated there are between 3.5 million and 6 million illegal aliens in the United States.

The recommendations, approved in open meetings last December and January, call for the ceiling on legal immigration in the main category to be raised from 270,000 to 350,000 annually.

An additional group of 100,000 immigrants would be allowed in during each of the plan's first five years to dissolve the backlog of families waiting to be reunited.

Fuchs estimated that following all the recommendations for immigrants and refugees would bring in 732,000 people during the first year.

By contrast, 808,000 legal immigrants and refugees came into the United States during the 1980 fiscal year that included the massive influx of Cuban refugees.

Fuchs conceded that the recommendations do not offer a concrete or immediate way to stop a human flood like the one that came from Cuba last year but he portrayed it as a one-shot event.

He said his personal view was that immigration currently is out of control.

The Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, commission chairman, said illegal immigration has a few serious adverse effects, including some job competition and reduced wages.

"In addition, widespread illegality erodes confidence in the law generally, and immigration law specifically, while being unfair to those who seek to immigrate legally," Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame, wrote.

7-Year-Old Murder Charge Dismissed

HOUSTON (AP) — Mark Hamilton had to wait seven years to be arrested on a murder indictment but it only took a month to have his record cleared.

Hamilton is the westside yardman indicted in July 1973 for the death of his wife but was not arrested until sheriff's deputies came to his house, woke him up and threw him in jail Jan. 29.

On Thursday, state court judge Patricia Lykos threw out the indictment, saying authorities failed to show they had made a reasonable effort to arrest Hamilton.

"I'm thankful to God it is all over," said Hamilton, 61. "I'm going back to work. I have too many people depending on me."

Hamilton said he went to the sheriff's office in June 1973 to report he had killed his wife in self-defense, and was then told his case would be referred directly to a grand jury.

Detectives drove him to the home of a daughter where he has lived ever since, he said, and the first time he was aware he had been indicted was when he was arrested.

After the arrest, residents of two affluent neighborhoods where Hamilton has been tending lawns hired attorney Robert Schultz to defend him.

A state prosecutor, Charles Rosenthal Jr., was among the witnesses testifying Hamilton was his gardener whom he had known since 1962.

Ned Morris, the prosecutor handling the Thursday docket, told Lykos, "I don't believe we can conscientiously say there has been due justice in trying to arrest this man."

Police Say Lubbock Sniper Saw Love Notes in Car Plates

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A sniper who opened fire on Lubbock motorists apparently picked his targets because of messages from a lost love he saw in the license plates of his victims' cars, police said.

A woman and her son were wounded in one of the four separate sniping incidents and an unemployed Vietnam veteran has been charged with four counts of attempted murder.

Teddy Glyn Floyd, 36, was arrested in a restaurant parking lot after a district attorney's investigator spotted a pickup police said they believed had been used in the sniper attacks.

He was arraigned on the attempted murder charges, a charge of aggravated assault and a count of carrying a concealed weapon.

Peace Justice L.J. Blalock set bond at $100,000 on each attempted murder charge, $25,000 on the aggravated assault charge and $5,000 on the concealed weapon charge.

Police said Thursday they believe the sniper attacks, which occurred over a two-week period, may have been triggered by Floyd's rejection a woman he met at Tarrant County Junior College four years ago.

And investigators speculated that the targets may have been chosen because of the messages Floyd perceived in the license plates.

"I saw a face staring at me and the license plate was unbearable," one investigator quoted Floyd as saying.

Floyd, with a history of mental problems, told officers he began to suspect in the fall of 1976 that he was being followed — often for months at a time, police said.

Police speculated — it was that fear that prompted Floyd to purchase a .223 caliber rifle earlier this month in Lubbock.

Police spokesman Bill Morgan said arresting officers found a .22 "mini-14" rifle and a .22-caliber pistol in Floyd's pickup.

Morgan said tests had shown that bullets fired from the rifle were used in at least one of the shooting incidents.

The sniping incidents began Feb. 12 when 4-year-old Cory Menton and his mother, Vanessa, were injured by a bullet that struck their car as they were traveling through Lubbock.

Morgan said Mrs. Menton was struck in the back of the neck and the boy was hit in the head.

Both have been discharged from the hospital, but Morgan said doctors believe the boy could lose the sight in one eye.

Two other cars were shot at and struck Tuesday and Wednesday, but the drivers escaped injury, Morgan said.

Police said one of the drivers was a 23-year-old woman who may have reminded the alleged gunman of the woman who rejected him.

Another suspected sniping incident took place Wednesday afternoon, but neither the driver nor the car was hit.

Pope Gets Rousing Welcome in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A beaming, rosy-cheeked Pope John Paul II forgot the exhaustion of a 12-day Asian tour long enough to kiss babies and drive a dog sled — behind a husky named Satan — in a 4½-hour stopover in the land of the midnight sun.

Roughly one-tenth of Alaska's population turned out in near-freezing temperatures Thursday to cheer the pontiff during a whirlwind trip from airport to cathedral to Delaney Park and back to the airport again.

There were greetings from dignitaries, secular and ecclesiastic. Between stops, Eskimos performed traditional songs, dances and a blanket toss. Costumed Polish-Americans waved hundreds of red and white balloons and a sign that read, "Sto Lat," or "long life."

Skydivers formed an airborne cross above an outdoor altar. And apartment dwellers draped a hand-painted banner on their balcony reading "Howdy JPII. Welcome to Anchorage."

The visit ended with the 60-year-old pontiff taking the reins of a dogsled pulled by nine huskies for a 30-second ride to the steps of his plane. His passenger during the ride along the snowless runway apron was 76-year-old Norman Vaughan, a veteran dog musher who accompanied Adm. Richard Byrd on his Antarctic expedition in 1928-29.

"This was great," said the pope with a broad grin before boarding a Japan Air Lines DC-8 for a 9½-hour flight to Rome.

When John Paul first stepped from his plane into the 30-degree air, welcoming Eskimos draped him in a traditional knee-length parka lined and trimmed with hare and wolverine fur.

The first papal visit in Alaska's history began with airport greetings from 500 people, including Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, as President Reagan's representative. Cardinals John Cody of Chicago, John Krol of Philadelphia and Humberto Medeiros of Boston represented America's Catholic leadership.

As the pope's motorcade headed for downtown Anchorage, the only dissident voices were from groups of feminists, waving placards that read "Jesus was a feminist" and "Sexism is a sin—repent."

At Holy Family Cathedral in downtown Anchorage, John Paul held an ecumenical prayer service with Alaska's clergy and visited with 125 handicapped people, many of them elderly and confined to wheelchairs.

"You are very near to us, very near to me in Christ," he told them.

Outside the cathedral, like a politician on the hustings, he headed to the waiting crowds for close-up greetings, from handshakes to hugs.

Later, 40,000 to 50,000 people — more than the total number of Catholics in the state — jammed downtown Delaney Park for a 90-minute outdoor Mass.

"Here native Alaskans — Eskimos, Aleuts and Indians — join people from all parts of the United States to form one ecclesial community," the pope said in his homily.

Russia Pledges Support of Cuba

MOSCOW (AP) — Presidents Leonid I. Brezhnev and Fidel Castro met in Moscow today, and the official Tass news agency said "in present conditions, when the U.S. imperialists have launched another anti-Cuban campaign, the U.S.S.R., as before, is siding with socialist Cuba."

cooperation" and other questions concerning "the situation in the world." The meeting took place as the 26th Soviet Communist Party Congress began its fourth day.

The U.S. State Department has accused the Soviet Union of engineering a plan under which Cuba and other Soviet allies are supplying anti-government guerrillas in El Salvador with up to 200 tons of American arms and other materiel captured in Vietnam and Ethiopia.

Chrysler Ready For More Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chrysler Corp. is on the verge of winning final federal backing for another $400 million in loans to stave off bankruptcy after reportedly running up more losses last year than any American corporation in history.

Treasury Department officials said approval of the federal supports was expected today from the three-man Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board.

Final approval follows six weeks of tough negotiations in which the struggling No. 3 automaker gained financial concessions from the company's workers, suppliers and creditors. The bankers, who held out the longest, agreed only this week to write off millions of dollars in loans.

Company officials have said the last major problem in winning the guarantees was overcome when board members unofficially approved a revised agreement between Chrysler and more than 100 creditors to which the company owes more than $1.1 billion.

Published reports indicated a key part of the agreement called for payment of about $68 million of that debt within 30 days. Several New York banks reportedly demanded quick payment of at least that much out of fear the company would soon go under — even with the new cash infusion — and the banks would end up with nothing.

Meanwhile, Chrysler officials were expected to announce later today that the company lost $1.77 billion last year, a record for any U.S. corporation. Losses totaled $299 million in the fourth quarter, but company officials said the loan guarantees and improving sales will make 1981 a much better year.

Chrysler already has received $800 million of the $1.5 billion in loan guarantees authorized by Congress in December 1979. Company officials have said they will not seek the other $300 million.

An earlier version of the latest agreement, tentatively approved by the loan board last month, called for Chrysler to pay off $500 million of its debt at 30 cents on the dollar over a year's time, beginning later this spring. The quick $68 million payment called for in the new version will count against that payment.

The rest of the debt is to be converted to Chrysler preferred stock.

The lenders' willingness to write off a large portion of Chrysler's debt is an important part of the overall plan. Congressional rules covering the arrangement say that before board members approve the federal guarantees — which could eventually come out of taxpayers' pockets — they must conclude that the company can someday stand on its own and not be driven into bankruptcy by creditors.

Harrington Cancer Center Names Pair of Directors

Don Rowe, President of the Panhandle Area Cancer Council, parent body of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo, announced the appointment of the two men who will be charged with the operation of the new center: James B. King, operations director, and Dr. Phillip Periman, medical director.

"Both men are respected professionals and both are highly qualified for the positions to which they have been appointed," said Rowe.

King, an Amarillo native, said, "I'm looking forward to the opening of the Harrington Cancer Center. It will mean better health care for everyone. The people of the Panhandle can take great pride in what they have created."

The search for qualified persons to handle these two positions was carried nationwide by the Panhandle Area Cancer Council committees responsible for their selection.

Don Rowe said, "That both of these highly qualified individuals are from the Panhandle area speaks well for the quality of leadership currently available. None of our search committees turned up any candidates who were better qualified or more highly motivated."

The Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center is expected to be fully operational by mid-July of this year. Grand opening ceremonies for the center are scheduled for September of 1981, under the direction of Mrs. T.B. Pickens, Jr., with a scientific symposium conducted in connection therewith.

Help for Marriages

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is for parents everywhere. The reason so many young couples are getting divorced these days is because they don't have any time together to have fun. Our marriage of six years is over, and I can lay it right on the doorstep of my husband's parents and mine. They gave us a car, clothes and gifts of food—steak, chops, etc. What we really needed was a baby-sitter for one weekend a month so we could go fishing or camping—alone. It was the only interest we had in common. We couldn't afford to hire a sitter because it would have put us over budget. Three weeks ago my husband got so fed up with the kids he walked out. To this day he hasn't even called to see how they are. If we had some vacations alone this never would have happened. I hope parents everywhere will read my letter and ask themselves how much they are helping their children's marriage—Too Late For Us

My wife has a good executive position with a large firm. We have two teenagers. Our combined income makes it possible to enjoy all the necessities of life and some of the luxuries. The problem is this: Six years ago, my wife underwent radical surgery for the removal of a breast. Since the operation she has had a complete personality change. She used to be very warm and affectionate, but now she is belligerent, hostile and disagreeable. She hollers at me and the children constantly and uses a lot of profanity—which she never did before. Our sex life was once very good, but now she resents being touched, even accidentally. A colleague has had the same experience with his wife, who also had a radical mastectomy. I would greatly appreciate a response to this letter. I'm hoping you will point me in some direction, so life may be a little easier for me and the children.—The "Old Prof" In Eugene, Ore.

DEAR PROF: Very few women can sail through a mastectomy with no psychological problems. Most are not so fortunate. I hope you will talk to your wife's doctor about the trouble you are having at home. He has heard this story before and should be able to recommend a competent therapist. The suggestion that she seek counseling should come from him—not you. Good luck to the whole family.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 15-year-old son wants to shave. No problem? Well, actually there is. The boy has nothing to shave. He is blond and there's just a little peach fuzz on his chin. Nothing more.

I say there's nothing wrong with letting him shave if he wants to. My wife says he will only cut himself. What do you say?—Long On Arguing In Short Hills

DEAR LONG AND SHORT: I say let him shave. If he cuts himself a few times he won't think it's so much fun.

March Mental Retardation Awareness Month

Persons with mental retardation are those who develop at a below average rate and experience unusual difficulty in learning, social adjustment and economic productivity. An estimated three percent of the population of the United States - or more than six million people - are believed to be mentally retarded. This population includes approximately 474 persons in Hereford.

Mentally retarded persons are found among every race, religion and nationality; every educational, social and economic background. One out of every ten Americans has a direct involvement with the problem by virtue of having a mentally retarded person in his or her family. Mental retardation should not be confused with mental illness or emotional disturbance, although a retarded person may - like anyone else - become emotionally disturbed. Mentally retarded people simply have a learning problem; they learn more slowly than others. Mental retardation can be caused by any condition that hinders or interferes with development before birth, during birth or during early childhood. Many causes have already been identified, although these account for only about a fourth of all identified cases of mental retardation.

Increasingly, people are realizing that mentally retarded persons, and persons with other handicaps have the same rights as anyone else...especially the right to live as normal a life as possible. March will be observed as Mental Retardation Month to help acquaint the general public with the presence and needs of mentally retarded persons and their families within their constituency, neighborhood or community. Retarded persons often need a guiding hand in shopping, in cleaning house, in cooking or in making wise choices, particularly in purchasing items. Parents of retarded children would appreciate having a person to call on to babysit if they need to shop or have an appointment or need some free time to themselves. The opportunity for service to mentally retarded persons and their families are endless if people will learn more about mental retardation and become sensitive to the presence of these people in their midst. Let them know you care. Programs and services for mentally retarded children of the Texas Panhandle are available in the public schools and through various towns where satellite centers of the Amarillo State center for Human Development are located. Day programs sponsored by the Amarillo State Center are located in Borger, Childress, Dumas, Hereford, Pampa, Perryton, Tulla and Wellington. Citizens in other towns can contact the Amarillo office for services.

A note from Helen Eades, president of the Friends of Deaf Smith County Library, is a reminder that this is the time for enrollment in the Friends. Anybody who wants to lend a little support to our very good library may become a member. The fee for an individual is only $2, for a family or organization $5, for a business $10 and for life membership $100. Contributions may be as big as you wish.

Around town lately I've noticed the Sheriff's lady, Joan McPherson, in a smart tailored suit with a print blouse in rust color...Louise Walker greeting Vesta Mae Nunley at the Extension Service office open house Tuesday morning and they discovered their dresses were both teal blue, not quite matching in shade, in the same general style but not quite alike...Gerald Millard, the Hereford native who comes over every week as representative from the area Social Security office, starting across the street from the courthouse at that awkward moment when the "Don't Walk" sign flashes just as you step off the curb...he didn't walk, he jogged.

A grandson of Mary Frances and Robert Lemons and Mrs. J.T. Boynton of Hereford, seventh grader Jay T. Boynton of Norman, Okla. is inspiring brags from the grandparents for a recent scholastic accomplishment. The 12-year-old was chosen as one of a dozen boys from his class to take the Duke University entrance exams given to boys through high school age. He turned out in the top 40 percent of boys his age group over the nation, scoring highest in math tests. His parents are Kay and J.W. Boynton, who grew up in Hereford, and he has a just-older sister, Stephanie, who takes her share of honors at school. She is in the ninth grade, going into high school with a 4-point grade average.

By this time of year there are photos in the Brand nearly every day of Hereford students who have won some sort of contest involving a school subject. It must be almost impossible for a person to get through school these days without being a winner. It's a far cry from the time when you had to be a crack athlete or a brain who could be valedictorian, in order to get any recognition. Maybe there's so much recognition now that it doesn't mean anything anymore. Whether or not, it's nice that a student can win in some field that he's best fitted for - solo playing or science project, carpentry or cosmetology, slide rule or speech making, or the team efforts like basketball, marching band or choral singing. So congratulations to the winners, and the runners-up and those placing. They've all accomplished something worthwhile.

Zinser to be Presented In Senior Piano Recital

Phillip Zinser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zinser, Jr., of Route 5, Hereford, will be presented in his Senior Piano Recital this Sunday, March 1 at 8 p.m. in the Mary Moody Northern Recital Hall at West Texas State University. Zinser, 21, will perform the following pieces: Prelude and Fugue in E flat major, "WIZ II," by Bach; Sonata in F major, "K. 332," by Mozart; Etude-Tableau in D minor, O.P. 39 No. 8, by Rachmaninoff; and "Faschingsschwank aus Wien, O.P. 26," by Schumann. A senior music major at WT, Zinser is presently studying under Stanley Potter. A member of Phi Mu Alpha Sinthonia Fraternity, Zinser graduated from Hereford High School in 1977 as Valedictorian. He has received several honors for his piano performances in the past. All interested people are invited to attend Zinser's piano recital Sunday.

'Texas' Auditions Slated for Sunday

Auditions for the "Texas" show will be held Sunday at the Mary Moody Northern Hall on the West Texas State Campus from 15 p.m. for actors and singers and from 4-5 p.m. for dancers. Those attending the audition must be at least 18-years-old. The first rehearsal is set for May 24 with the season ending Aug. 22.

St. Thomas Church to Host The Right Reverend Hulse

St. Thomas Church will host the Right Reverend Sam Byron Hulse, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Northwest Texas, Saturday and Sunday. Bishop Hulse will preside at the Holy Eucharist Sunday morning, which will include two baptisms, eight confirmations, one reception from another communion of the Catholic church and a wedding. The Holy Eucharist will be followed by a parish luncheon and a reception in honor of Bishop Hulse and all those involved in the sacraments. Those to be baptized are Brandi and Brian Brookhart, children of Mr. and Mrs. Brady Brookhart; to be confirmed as members of the Anglican communion are Mel Ruth Aikin, Bill and Phyllis Floyd, Tom Ivey, Randy Metz, Julie Mickelson, Jerry Smith, and Laura Smith; to be received from another communion is Rose Mary Morgan; and to be married are Jerry Don Whitaker and Jena Rawley Secrest. Bishop Hulse's office is in Lubbock, from which he administers a diocese which covers 80 counties including the panhandle and an area bounded by Midland, San Angelo, Abilene and Vernon. According to Rev. Charles Threewit, Vicar of St. Thomas, the public is invited to attend the celebration of the Holy Eucharist, which will begin at 1) a.m. Sunday.

Dance Slated Saturday

The Kidney Foundation of West Texas will host a dance Saturday night to raise money for the foundation. The dance will be at the Knights of Columbus Hall from 8:30 - 12:30 a.m. with Dayton Todd providing musical entertainment. Tickets for the dance are $10 per couple and are available from Mrs. Tony Urbanczyk at 276-5303 or Mrs. Dale Reinart at 364-6736. First National Nursery will provide flowers and plants for the dance as decoration.

Following the dance the plants and flowers will be for sale, with proceeds going to the Kidney Foundation. Above, Loretta Urbanczyk, chairman of the dance and president of St. Anthony's Women's Organization visits with Mike McCathern, manager of First National Nursery concerning the plants and flowers. In addition to the plants, some pottery will be for sale.

DO YOU WANT TO CATCH A LOT OF FISH?

One day as Jesus was preaching on the shore of Lake Gennesaret, great crowds pressed in on Him to listen to the Word of God. He noticed two empty boats standing at the water's edge while the fishermen washed their nets. Stepping into one of the boats, Jesus asked Simon, its owner, to push out a little into the water, so that He could sit in the boat and speak to the crowds from there. When He had finished speaking, He said to Simon, "Now go out where it is deeper and let down your nets and you will catch a lot of fish!" "Sir," Simon replied, "we worked hard all last night and didn't catch a thing. But if you say so, we'll try again." And this time their nets were so full that they began to tear! A shout for help brought their partners in the other boat and soon both boats were filled with fish and on the verge of sinking. When Simon realized what had happened, he fell to his knees before Jesus and said, "Oh, sir, please leave us--I'm too much of a sinner for You to have around." For he was awestruck by the size of their catch, as were the others with him, and his partners too--James and John, the sons of Zebedee. Jesus replied, "Don't worry! From now on you'll be fishing for the souls of men!" And as soon as they landed, they left everything and went with Him. Luke 5:1-11

Lighter Side

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) -- Des Moines is having trouble with its "hick town" image, and the situation wasn't helped when two tractors broke the ribbon at the opening of a shiny new hotel and a cow and a pig ate the key. When the 33-story Marriott Hotel opened downtown, politicians spoke, businessmen beamed and, in keeping with a Marriott tradition of doing something special with keys to new hotels, a cow and a pig ate a ceremonial key made of corn. The event received wide publicity, but some accounts noted that a recent study commissioned by the local Chamber of Commerce found that Des Moines should shed its image as a "hick town." "Way to go boys, you've done it again," said one letter to a local newspaper. "Next time you bristle because of some disparaging remark made about we Midwesterners, close your eyes, count to 10 and visualize two tractors breaking a ribbon, and a cow and a pig ceremoniously eating a key in the lobby of Des Moines' newest, most prestigious hotel," said another letter-writer. But then came the reaction. "Comon, Des Moines, why are you ashamed of two tractors which cost thousands of dollars? And what's wrong with a champion steer and a prize-winning hog?" asked one reader. With a hint of sarcasm, one letter-writer reminded readers of a battle that city and county authorities have been fighting against a string of massage parlors. She suggested that "a chorus line" of massage girls "might have better portrayed our image." "Better tacky than hicky -- right folks?"

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) -- A 20-foot-long creature with a serpentine head, scaly skin and a reputation for elusiveness might seem capable of taking care of itself. But this week a committee of the Vermont Legislature will be holding a public hearing on a resolution to protect "Champ," the Lake Champlain monster. Rep. Millie Small drafted the resolution at the request of Joseph Zarzynski, a Wilton, N.Y., junior high school teacher who has been an avid Champ-chaser for years. "Even if we're not sure the monster exists, we should make sure no one harms him," the Quechee Republican said. Zarzynski says he wants Vermont, New York and eventually Congress to pass resolutions protecting Champ, and he ultimately wants Champ protected under the federal Endangered Species Act. "It could take years," he said. "But I'm a Walter Mitty type, and I can just see the whole thing working out." In order to qualify for federal protection, a creature must have a scientific name, so the resolution christens the monster Belua Aquatica Champlainiensis, or the huge animal of Lake Champlain. The town of Port Henry, N.Y., has already passed a resolution protecting Champ in its waters.

Reagan Wants Synthetic Fuel Program Slashed

WASHINGTON (AP) -- What a difference a year makes. Twelve months ago Congress and the executive branch were pushing hard for a bill that President Jimmy Carter proclaimed proudly would "dwarf the combined programs that led us to the moon and built our interstate highway system." Now President Reagan is trying to scale the program back so it won't dwarf much of anything. The subject of this tug of war is the effort to make synthetic "liquid" and "gaseous" fuels from America's abundant supplies of coal and shale oil. The relatively old technology, which powered Hitler's tanks during World War II, got new life back in the summer of 1979 when U.S. energy vulnerability was brought home to millions of Americans sitting in gasoline lines. Faced with constituent demands to do something, Carter and Congress came up with what Americans love -- a multibillion-dollar government crash program complete with goals. The idea was to have the United States, which now produces no synthetic fuels commercially, set up a network of demonstration projects and subsidized plants which by 1987 would be making the equivalent of 500,000 barrels of oil daily from synfuels, and 2 million barrels by 1992. The 1992 goal would represent one-third of current oil imports. These goals would be accomplished by using some modern technologies which are refinements of processes available in this country as long ago as 1817. In that year the city of Baltimore built a plant which converted coal into synthetic gas to be used for lighting. Other Eastern cities followed suit with their own "gas-house gangs" running plants until the 1940s, when cheap oil and natural gas made them obsolete. German scientists in World War II developed a process to turn coal to liquid fuel by adding hydrogen under extreme pressure and heat. U.S. scientists have been working to refine these processes. Another promising synfuel lies buried in Western rock deposits known as oil shale, which can be converted into liquid fuel. Industry is confident the new technologies will work and prove competitive in the marketplace. But bankers are still hesitant to lend the large amounts of money needed -- about $2 billion per plant. To get over that hurdle, Congress last year created the Synthetic Fuels Corp., giving it $20 billion initially and promising another $68 billion in four years to provide government backing for bank loans. The Reagan administration, however, wants to scale back current efforts and entirely drop any $68 billion second phase. Just how successful Reagan will be in trimming a program that has enjoyed large support in Congress is another matter. Reagan is already lowering his sights. Budget director David Stockman's initial recommendation to cut the corporation's current budget by about a third was dropped after 34 House members sent a letter warning the president not to mess with a program that enjoys "substantial majorities in Congress." Reagan decided not to touch the $17.5 billion the corporation has to distribute in the form of government subsidies such as loan guarantees. His aides reasoned that taxpayers should be out very little in this program, since the corporation will pay only if such projects go bankrupt or oil prices don't rise fast enough to make the products competitive. But even Reagan's "hit list" of demonstration projects won't get through Congress without a fight. Two plants to convert coal into liquid fuel in Morgantown, W.Va., and Newman, Ky., enjoy the backing of people like Democratic Sens. Robert Byrd and Wendell Ford. But Reagan can expect help. Senate Energy Committee Chairman John McClure, R-Idaho, says Carter's synfuels effort has become the government's biggest "pork-barrel program" -- worse even than spending for water projects. "Not every congressional district can have a dam, but they can all have an energy project of some sort," McClure says. Indeed, the Carter administration did its best to make sure as many congressmen as possible had a stake in the synfuels sweepstakes and in six months handed out $500 million in design funds for 179 projects in 47 states. Reagan can also expect support from environmental groups, which tried in vain last year to block the program because of concerns the plants would do serious harm. The first King James version of the Bible, ordered by King James I in 1604, was originally published in 1611.

Track Team Readies for Opening Meet

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

Last April, the Hereford girls' track team had become the ordinary cinder club of the district 4-5A field - ordinarily a force to be contended and reckoned with.

They were the 3:00-6:00 p.m. sprinters, throwers, jumpers and creatures of habit who had grasped the league title for the second straight year, and who had been two-year understudies at the Region I Qualifier's Meet.

And even now, a year later and a season ago, little has changed. But for a handful (three) graduating veterans, the club is still composed of those same (Catch me if you can - if you're waiting on me you're walking backwards) creatures of habit.

For a moment, forget that 24 of this year's crop were the ones who could have given the FTD Florist's little gold flyer a run for his money during the 1980-81 campaign. Banish the thought that the 24 count has since been padded to 38 potential (We'd move our tails for another possible district championship).

Instead, wonder why coach Martha Emerson has scratched and shuffled over her roster with the intensity of a woman organizing a grocery list as her team prepared to hit its season warm-up meet with Pampa's Top of Texas Relays Saturday - and why she couldn't decide whether or not a particular ingredient would be best utilized if split two or three separate ways.

"I think we're essentially going to have more depth this year than we've ever had in the past, but some of our meets will be so grueling that even that depth will be stretched out," Emerson said.

"Several of the meets we run in this year will be requiring preliminaries to be run in almost all the sprinting events, and after you run two or three of those (providing you're running in one or two events) it's just about all you can do," she added.

Among that respective list of the 38-member crew (composed of seven seniors, 15 juniors and 16 sophomores) are virtually the same 440, 880 and mile relay squads.

Basically, only one speedster will be missed in that sprint relay lineup - Darlene Sanders. Her graduation also left absences in 100- and 220-meter runs (she placed 1st in district in the 100-meter run and capped second in the 220).

The four returning veterans to those relay squads, which took 2nd place finishes in both the 440 and 880 sprint relay events before capping 1st in the mile relay include; Louise Mays, Lyndy Walterscheid, Deborah Rogers and Lori Albracht.

"Darlene's graduation definitely hurt us in the mile relay and 220-meter run, but hopefully we can utilize some of the other sprinters we've got in order to fill the gaps she left," Emerson said.

The HHS mentor cited Lindy Walterscheid as being the prime candidate for taking over duties in the 220-meter run since she had already followed Sanders in that event with a 2nd place district finish. Walterscheid claimed that high finish after logging a time of 26.1 (one-tenth of a second behind Sanders) before netting 1st in the 100-meters with a new meet record of 12.5.

"Lindy will help us in the 220 because she was already doing well there to begin with, and I think Michelle Osborn can give us added depth in both the quarter-mile and mile relays. She (Osborne) runs a the quarter in 60 seconds and that's not too bad," she said. "I'm also looking for DeDe Dobbins to take up some slack in both the quarter and half-mile relays."

In conjunction with those moves and supplements, the HHS mentor also plans to give back-up relief to the 880-meter run. Colleen Keating capped a 3rd place finish in district (just over six seconds out of a regional qualifying 2nd place behind Carolyn Lugo of Lubbock Monterey) last year in that event and, says Emerson, will be given support by sprinter Louise Mays this year.

Whirlpools, Bandages Cap't Cure Emotional Problems of Athletes

The Associated Press
Athletes are loved for their dies, not their minds. Bandages, medicine and whirlpools mend physical injuries. But emotional problems — the ones associated with job pressure, celebrity and lifestyle — are more difficult to pinpoint and treat. Some teams and leagues are trying.

In the North American Soccer League, fines paid by the players for various infractions go into a career counseling program. The National Football League, major league baseball and the National Basketball Association provide confidential contacts in rehabilitation centers for athletes seeking help for alcohol and drug problems.

Some individual teams are seeking help for their athletes, with the realization that a contented player often is a better performer. Some offer counseling for emotional problems. A few are making available programs to prepare athletes for life after sports.

The players' associations in some sports are providing counseling and going after the leagues to do more.

Garry Fleisher, executive director of the NBA Players Association, said: "We're all learning. We're seriously considering something jointly with the league on a counseling program."

Fleisher said it's possible such programs might become a collective bargaining issue.

The policy of the major leagues is still largely discretionary where drugs and alcohol are concerned. Quite simply, they tell their employees not to use drugs.

The NFL and NBA have elaborate inventory procedures to make sure that team physicians and trainers don't get carried away in dispensing drugs. They all hope to prevent a recurrence of the 1973 scandal in which Dr. Arnold Mandell was found to be overprescribing pep pills for some of the San Diego Chargers.

Baseball's Los Angeles Dodgers were the first team to initiate a company-wide alcohol rehabilitation program.

Dr. Kenneth Greenspan, director of the center for stress-related disorders at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, says it is crucial in counseling to play down hero worship.

"That's the last thing they need. That's often part of the problem to begin with. Athletes compete in a very intense, high-pressure, exposed market. They're so idolized that they begin to think that none of the rules pertain to them, that they're bigger than life."

Eventually, a big source of anxiety for athletes off the field can be concern about what they will do after their sports careers. Many have left sports with no plans for their futures.

"You'd be amazed how many wives have called me because they were concerned that their elite ex-athletes could do nothing more than sit in front of a TV sucking a beer for 16 hours," said Dr. Bruce Ogilvie, a prominent consultant to several teams. "They had become paralyzed."

Here the impetus is from the unions. But again the players are expressing limited interest.

"It's a difficult task to get a 23 or 24-year-old to understand it's all going to end in a couple of years," said Fleisher.

The NBA union has an agreement with the Educational Advisory Service in Philadelphia for education and career counseling. "It's important because the average lifespan in the NBA is 3.9 years, so you're then talking about 26-year-olds looking for jobs who aren't properly prepared," said Fleisher.

The NFL's Management Council co-sponsored a career-counseling program with the football union in 1978, but pulled out two years later. "It wasn't a lot of money, but there was only 5 percent participation," said Rusty Martin, a spokesman for the Management Council. "The clubs just felt the money would be better spent at the club level."

In hockey, the Philadelphia Flyers work with EAS and have a model career-guidance program. Since September, the Flyers have sent half their players to the service. "They're the first team to pick up the tab to provide career counseling, even for the guys who've been traded," said Dr. James Johnston of EAS.

Watson Leads Bay Hill

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Tom Watson fired a 7-under-par 64 and assumed two-stroke command in the first round of the $300,000 Bay Hill Classic.

Rod Nuckolls was second with 66. Hubert Green and Mark O'Meara had 67s.

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) — Marlene Floyd fired a 3-under-par 70 to tie Sandra Palmer for the opening round lead in the $150,000 Olympia Gold Classic.

Sally Little was a stroke off the lead with a 71. HONG KONG (AP) — Tom Sieckman shot a 4-under par 67 to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $120,000 Cathay Pacific Open.

Track Team Readies

"I think that will give us more depth in that race, which is what we're trying to do this year — trying to place in all the categories. We'll be concentrating on getting more places rather than just a 1st place finish in certain events," she said. "The basic reason behind that is to try and obtain the most points we can in each of the meets."

Four other events the Hereford track crew will be trying to augment in its attack this year are the 100-meter hurdles (no one from Hereford placed in that competition in district) and each of the respective field events — discus, shot-put, high jump and triple jump.

Sophomore Angela White, (hit a height of 5-4 in junior high district high jump competition a year ago, which broke the existing 5-1 high school record) is expected to help veteran Teresa Schilling who placed 3rd in district last year (Schilling also netted 3rd in the triple jump).

White, also a junior high standout hurdler, will add strength to the HHS crew in the 100-meter hurdles.

"We'll be much stronger in the weight events such as the discus and shot-put this year and we need those points — we didn't get very many last year," noted Emerson of the field competition in which Hereford only took 14 points out of five possible events.

"We'll have April Melugin, Teresa Simons who transferred from Amarillo, returning senior Teresa High and junior Maria Carroen so we ought to get a boost with them," she said.

In the long distance events (the mile and newly acquired two-mile run), Hereford will be paced by district finishers Linda Sermino, Beatrice Moreno and Patricia Salazar who took 4th-6th places in the district's mile competition last year. Sophomore Laura Kosub, after running a faster mile than any of Hereford's veterans as a junior high trackster, will also be helping the marathon runners.

Two-mile harriers Kellie Howell and Olga Alaniz (also making up Hereford's successful cross-country squad in the fall) are expected to provide the balast of the attack in that facet of competition while Beatrice Moreno may double from her spot in the mile if possible.

Yet Emerson still rumaged, shuffled and worried over her grocery list.

"I think we'll have, in most respects, a lot more depth than we've ever had," she said. "But after looking at what each of the teams have lost in addition to what they've got coming back, I would have to give the nod to Plainview for the district title this year."

"They lost very few to graduation and they have quite a good crop of girls coming back. They will be the team to beat this year. We've just got to spread our attack out better. We need to take a greater range of points over the whole of our meets and I think we can considering the lineup we've got this year," she said.

Indiana Defeats Ohio State

By ALEX SACHARE

AP Sports Writer

Indiana's offense had slowed to a halt — but fortunately for Coach Bobby Knight's Hoosiers, their opponent, Ohio State, wasn't going anywhere, either.

"At 41-37, either team could have gotten control — and neither team did," said Knight, after watching both clubs struggle through a scoreless four-minute stretch of the second half Thursday night.

Two minutes after that dry spell ended it was the 16th-ranked Hoosiers, led by unheralded reserve guard Jim Thomas, who took control with a 17-6 burst to lock up a 74-58 Big Ten college basketball victory that kept the Hoosiers one game behind front-running Iowa in the Big Ten race.

The eighth-ranked Iowa Hawkeyes had their problems with Michigan but managed to pull out a 69-66 triumph over the Wolverines. Iowa Coach Lute Olsen said he thought his team showed the effects of looking ahead.

Illinois, ranked 14th, which had been tied for second in Big Ten race with Indiana, fell two games off the pace by dropping a 76-59 decision at Minnesota.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 5 Arizona State whipped Stanford 79-54, No. 6 Notre Dame breezed past St. Francis, Pa., 87-71, No. 7 Utah trounced Colorado State 73-50, Wyoming upset No. 15 Brigham Young 86-84 and No. 19 Wichita State beat Bradley 70-57.

Thomas, who is not related to Indiana's better-known guard, Isiah Thomas, scored seven of his nine points in a 4½-minute span during which Indiana stretched its lead from 43-41 to 60-47 with 5:46 to go.

Iowa, which led by 10 with 11:40 to play, saw Michigan rally to pull within one on two occasions. But Kevin Boyle scored a basket with 1:10 to play and Vince Brookjns and Kenny Arnold sank two free throws apiece in the final 36 seconds to keep the Hawkeyes on top. Brookjns led Iowa with 21 points, 17 in the second half. Mike McGee topped Michigan with 29 points, 25 after halftime.

YMCA Champions

Sports Briefs

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Unseeded Fritz Buehning pulled the second major upset of the $200,000 U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championships, defeating No. 4 seed Brian Teacher 7-5, 6-3 in the third round.

In other matches, No. 6 Yannick Noah of France scored a 6-2, 6-4 triumph over Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid; third-seeded Harold Solomon, advanced with a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Andrew Patterson of South Africa; No. 2 Gene Mayer downed No. 14 Mel Purcell 6-4, 6-2, and No. 5 Roscoe Tanner defeated Tim Wilkison 6-2, 6-3.

Also, Trey Waltke lost 6-4, 6-4 to Tom Gullikson, while Terry Moor moved into quarterfinals with a 6-2, 3-6, 6-3 win over Jeff Borowiak. The 15th seed, Peter Fleming, advanced when No. 7 Elliot Teltscher retired with a back injury.

DOES THIS CONFUSE ANYONE?

It's very simple. It's explaining how the crop residues - or raw manure applied to your field for that matter - largely escapes to the air - EVAPORATES! Now in compost the humus is concentrated. The humus gives your soil structure - meaning less tillage needed and better water efficiency. And did you know the value of the N&P in our compost gives you free humus. Get the facts.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Aiming for energy

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm 18 years old and play a lot of tournament tennis. I just love it. Tennis is my whole life. I want to do everything I can to improve my game. I know a really tough match takes a lot of energy. So what should I eat before competition? What foods will give me the most energy when I need it? Should I eat a high-protein meal to increase my energy? How long before playing should I eat?

DEAR READER - There are lots of different opinions about food and athletics but there are some basic facts that you can follow. First, remember that if your food is not digested it cannot get into your bloodstream. And if it is not absorbed into your circulation, it will NOT provide any energy for you.

Food is not absorbed from your stomach. Alcohol is, but that is because it passes directly into cells, and it is not what you need for energy or ability in athletic competition - particularly competition that requires skill.

To get any energy from food eaten before you play, it must be emptied from the stomach. That means a fatty meal of steak or other high-fat protein foods won't help.

They may still be in your stomach after your match is over. Solids are not absorbed either but must first be liquified in your stomach before they can be emptied. The bottom line is that any solids you eat a couple of hours before a game may not help much.

Stay on a good balanced diet as a regular habit. Sweet liquids are most likely to be emptied by your stomach and absorbed quickly. A glass of orange juice is a good example. Fats slow the stomach's emptying.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am concerned about our 15-year-old son. His chest has a sunken look. There appears to be a large gap between the ribs which tends to make his chest suck in. I can't describe it any better. He has always been rather shy about appearing without a shirt.

Is this anything to be concerned about? Can anything be done for him at this late date? The pediatrician who examines him never said anything about this.

DEAR READER - You are probably describing what we call pectus excavatum or funnel chest. There are several variations of this, but the breastbone (sternum) appears pushed in. This may be most pronounced at the lower end of the sternum.

In most cases there is no known reason for this variation and it seldom causes any problem physiologically. It can be disturbing psychologically.

In extreme cases it can restrict the movement of the rib cage and affect breathing or compress the heart. When there is such an extreme variation the deformity can be relieved by surgery. And when psychological reactions warrant it, surgery may improve the cosmetic problems.

Your doctor probably thought it was not affecting your son's health and chose not to make you or him unduly conscious about the variation.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 70 and take Etrafon, Hydrodiuril, Lanoxin and Slow K pills. My mind is slipping fast and my memory is nil. For a long time I've hated living in my house, I have no interest in doing any housework and I don't like to go to bed at night. When I do, I hate to get up. I can't go on living like this as I have no happy feelings.

Should I go to a psychiatrist or would it be good to have electric shock treatments? I have three sons but I don't tell them how I feel as I am ashamed of myself.

DEAR READER - Yes, you should see your doctor about this as you may want you to consult a psychiatrist. Some people might think that you are simply having memory changes associated with age but that may not be the case. One of the common causes of changes that resemble senility is depression. Evidently your doctor thinks you may have some depression of mood or he would not be giving you Etrafon.

Depression is one of many causes for loss of memory. It can usually be helped with the right combination of medicines. And electric convulsive

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer
Sticky glue spots

DEAR POLLY - My son put a cartoon picture on my refrigerator. When I removed the picture, the glue remained and has yellowed, so it looks terrible. Any ideas for removing it would be greatly appreciated.

M.H.
DEAR M.H. - Try lighter fluid, rubbing alcohol or laundry spot remover. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I think I have the best idea for Kathy, who wants to rid her place of mice. I used to work in a shop where the mice would come out and beg for something to eat! Some of the mice even tried to climb our legs. I always drank a carbonated soft drink with lunch, so I put a small amount of it in a saucer and put this out every day until there was not a mouse to be seen. Mice cannot belch and when they drink this they became bloated and died. - E.G.P.

DEAR E.G.P. - I have heard of this before, but have never tried it. It is certainly a simple and safe method. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - To make a makeshift hanger for paper towels in the basement, garage or in the car when going on a picnic. I use one of those wire coat hangers that has a cardboard core to hang slacks or pants on. Unfasten one end, put the core through a roll of paper towels, re-lock the end of the hanger and then fasten the hook over a nail.

When dressing in a hurry and the underarms are wet to the touch because deodorant has not completely dried, just dust with a powder puff that has a bit of talcum on it.

Also, I have an answer for G.W., who has a problem with hanger marks on sweaters and blouses. I iron for other people and when there is a chance of such a problem, I fold a sheet of tissue paper in half, lay the hanger with the hook up on the two edges, and then fold the paper over the straight bottom of the hanger and back up over the curved top. This gives four layers of tissue over the wire. If it is not creased, it will keep the clothes in shape even without bulges at the tops of the sleeves. - D.D.

DEAR POLLY - I am answering the reader whose braided rugs curl and will not stay flat. I have worked with many such rugs. I never sell the braids together, but lace them with a big knot in my carpet warp hidden under the braids.

A friend made me a "lacer" to use for this. It is a piece of metal about three inches long and a half-inch wide, has an eyelet in one end (to thread) and a rounded tip at the other end. If they rip, I patch them by lacing the threads together. If I do not have carpet warp, I use fishing line or strong twine. While lacing two braids together, be sure they just meet and are not too tight, as they will curl and not lay flat. I use damp newspapers and sweep them with a broom into a regular dustpan. - ROSIE

FAITH TEACHES US THE MEANING OF REAL WEALTH

From the great love of money, the evil that springs
Is the same kind of trouble that avarice brings,
With the habit of wanting material things
That we usually cannot afford.
When we shorten our lives with all work and no play,
Then our taxes increase while the years fade away,
And the loss of our health is a high price to pay
For excessive financial reward.
If you'll go to the Church of whatever your creed,
There's a lesson you'll learn on the evils of greed;
For the only true riches that you'll ever need
Will be found in the love of the Lord!

— Gloria Nowak

"Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy."
— I Timothy 6:17

Heaven does not choose its elect from among the great and wealthy.
— William M. Thackeray
