TENRAC recommended that the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission authorize special higher prices for natural gas produced from depths of 10,000 to 15,000 feet, instead of just gas found deeper than 15,000 feet.

Chairman C.M. "Mike" Butler of the energy regulatory commission, in turn, brought a message from Washington, and that was that natural gas prices are "just a fact of life and we're going to face them."

State officials have said repeatedly that the federal Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978 favors interstate markets and states that do not produce natural gas at the expense of gas-producing states such as Texas.

Texas produces approximately seven trillion cubic feet of gas a year, or onethird of the nation's supply. Four trillion cubic feet of that amount is consumed within the state and the other three trillion cubic feet is exported.

"Under any circumstances prices are going to go up," said Butler. "Under the existing bill, prices could be higher than under a total deregulation (of prices) bill." Gov. Bill Clements called Texas' intrastate gas supply economic structure in Texas."

Butler said "there is no excuse for discriminating against intrastate systems," but he added that was not the intent of the law passed by Congress.

Clements disagreed, stating, "The National Gas Policy Act accomplished exactly what it was intended to accomplish. We in Texas got took - it's just that simple."

Reagan, Mitterrand Resolve Differences in Unusual Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) - private. Despite a lengthy meeting and some kind words for each other, Presidents Reagan and Francois Mitterrand do not appear to have resolved their differences over U.S. and French policy toward Central America.

Reagan called the Friday session lasting nearly three hours "a very unusual friendto-friend meeting," but he left no doubt that he had expressed displeasure with Mitterrand's Central American policy, particularly a French decision to sell arms to Nicaragua's leftist govern-

"I believe President Mitterrand now has a better understanding of United States policy objectives in that troubled region," Reagan said. "Our discussion on this subject was particularly candid and thorough."

WASHINGTON (AP) -Top Republican senators working in private have drafted a "working paper" they hope will open the way toward a bipartisan revision of President Reagan's redink budget, according to congressional sources. Among the options are higher taxes, reductions in military spending and a two-year freeze in Social Security cost-of-living payments. Those familiar with the series of private meetings during the week insist that the steps designed to reduce the deficit are neither a comprehensive plan nor a proposal that Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. advance as a possible alternative to Reagan's budget. "It's strictly a departure point ... a working document," said one official, who asked not to be quoted by name. Several sources said that generally the paper contains only targets for spending cuts and tax increases and does not include specific changes in programs.

However, Baker and the four other Republicans involved in the private meetings - Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole of Kansas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico; Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon; and Paul Laxalt of Nevada, the president's closest friend in the Senate - are expected to discuss the options they have produced with their Senate GOP colleagues next Tuesday.

In addition, sources said, the same material has already been sent to White House aides. They said Baker and House Republican leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois discussed it Thursday that discussed with senior Democrats next week.

The hope is that the draft can become the beginning of the bipartisan budget that the president and congressional Republicans and Democrats have said they want.

Several sources insisted that the paper is designed only to illustrate a possible approach for reducing the budget deficit to $20 billion by 1985 - far below the $140 billion the Congressional Budget Office estimates under Reagan's program.

Sources said the draft calls: for reducing the deficit only slightly below Reagan's figure for 1983 - $86 billion compared with $91.5 billion.

But the difference is in the years following, with the approach outlined by the five Republicans showing a rapidly declining deficit instead of the escalating one that CBO shows. Reagan's own figures show a deficit of $72 billion in 1985, but Republicans and Democrats alike in Congress

Reagan's budget proposal for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 has drawn fire from Republicans and Democrats who argue that the deficits projected under the president's plan will keep interest rates too high and thwart an economic recovery.

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) - Vice President George Bush says recent criticism of President Ronald Reagan's policies makes him want to gag.

"Every morning I wake up to the news that Ronald Reagan has turned Uncle Sam into Uncle Scrooge, or that he takes pleasure in depriving school children of lunches, that he's setting civil rights back to antebellum standards, that he wants to deprive the elderly of medical care, that he's itching to go to war," Bush said Friday.

Well, I take a deep breath and think of Texas where people don't swallow that stuff without gagging."

Bush was named "Texan of the Year" at the Texas Legislative Conference, then launched a strong defense of Reagan's policies, saying proportionately the current administration is spending more for social programs and less for the military than did Democratic President John F. Kennedy 20 years ago.

"There's been a concerted effort to paint the president as someone who delights in snatching bread from the mouths of hungry children so that a bunch of overfed generals can have more of these fancy, lethal toys to play with," Bush said. "In short, there's been an effort to convince the public that the defense budget represents the most irresponsible profligate bill the American people have been asked to foot.

"These efforts collapse appear ludicrous - when you do something that is not often done, such as checking the facts.

Bush said that only 29 percent Reagan's 1983 budget 46 percent of Kennedy's. Reagan's defense budget amounts to only 6.4 percent of the Gross National Product, compared to 10.1 percent in the 1950s, 8.6 percent in the 1960s, and 9.9 percent during the peacetime years from 1954 to 1962, he said.

Kennedy, regarded as a champion of the poor, spent' about 29 percent of his budget on human resources, while 51 percent of Reagan's 1983 budget is earmarked for human resources, the vice president said. Bush boasted that Reagan

Polish War Games Begin

WARSAW, Poland (AP) -Soviet, East German and Polish troops begin maneuvers in northwestern Poland today in a show of, force apparently aimed at heading off a threatened spring rebellion against the martial law regime.

In an announcement Friday, the official PAP news agency said the "tacticaloperational exercises," codenamed "Friendship '82," would get under way three months to the day after martial law was declared.

PAP said Gen. Eugeniusz Molczyk, the deputy commander-in-chief of Warsaw Pact forces and Poland's deputy defense minister, will direct the war games, the first held here since the Dec. 13 military crackdown.

The brief annoucement gave neither the size nor the exact location of the exercises. Observers said the mock battleground most likely would be in the Baltic province of Szczecin.

The observers said the military muscle flexing was intended to short circuit any notions of a spring uprising against the martial-law regime.

Hints of such a rebellion came in anti-martial law slogans that appeared on walls in the Baltic port city of Gdansk, stronghold of the now-suspended Solidarity union, declaring: "The winter is yours but the spring

"The Panhandle is known to many as the Golden Spread or High Plains of Texas," he said. "But if you look at a map of Texas, the Panhandle is also our state's crown. So it's only natural that Panhandle cities and towns are called the 'Crown Jewels' - and industries of the region are what make these crown Texas' Set In April The "Crown Jewels of Amarillo, noted that a main attraction of the exposition is that "it gives the BCD and Chamber of Commerce a chance to show area businesses how much Amarillo appreciates their vital input into the area economy."

Walsh said, "We have a lot to be thankful for in this region. While other parts of the country are feeling the affects of recession, the Crown of Texas is still shining.

"This exposition gives us the opportunity to thank the industry of our region for the contributions they make, not only to our economy, but to our quality of life in general." In keeping with the theme,

Candidates Registered In 16 Districts Where Filing Was Postponed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - All Texas congressional redistricting challenges have yet to be resolved, but 58 candidates have registered in the 16 districts where the filing deadlined was postponed by a panel of three federal judges.

Texas Republican and Democratic executive committees were to meet today to certify the candidates for the May 1 primaries who met the Friday filing deadline for districts involved in the redistricting controversy.

The deadline for the 11 other congressional districts was Feb. 22.

The Texas Republican Party has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review the redistricting for Dallasarea districts 3, 5, 24 and 26. Party leaders estimated it may be two weeks before the high court decides whether to hear the challenge.

Ten candidates will be running for the new District 25 in Houston and eight, including seven Republicans, will battle for District 3 in Dallas.

Six candidates were registered for new District 27 in South Texas including the last minute entry of Democrat Ruben M. Torres, chairman of the Pardons and Paroles

The original congressional redistricting plan was passed by a special legislative session but voided in 16 districts later by the U.S. Department of Justice.

The department said the new plans for the 16 districts discriminated against minority voters.

A three-judge federal panel in Austin then took over and laid out a congressional redistricting plan for the 1982 elections. It will be up to the 1983 Legislature, under the watchful eye of federal courts, to approve the 27 permanent districts.

There are now 19 Democrats and 5 Republicans in the Texas congressional delegation under the 24-seat plan in effect for the 1980 elections.

Moore was convicted in state court on May 14, 1974, of the Nov. 13, 1973, murder of Martha Jannette Williams during a robbery. She was shot three times with a shotgun.

A three-judge panel said it had to cancel the sentence because of a retroactive ruling by the U.S. Supreme Court which said a prospective juror may not be dismissed because he or she is opposed to capital punishment.

The only permissible standard is when the prospective juror states absolutely and positively that he or she would not vote for the death penalty regardless of the crime.

To recognize the importance of meaningful employment for senior Americans, the U.S. Department of Labor has announced March 14-21 as "Older Worker Week." Texas Farmers Union Green Thumb, a rural senior employment program, is encouraging both public and private employers to join them in honoring older employees during this week.

Green Thumb employs about 1,000 senior Texans in 107 counties. Sponsored by Texas Farmers Union, the program provides part-time work opportunities for people over 55 who are "loaned" to non-profit organizations to provide needed services in rural communities.

Green Thumb state direcfor Diane Parrish says "Older workers value job, security while younger workers tend to change jobs frequently. The fact that older Americans lived through the Great Depression while younger workers grew up in an affluent age perhaps affects the way each sees the need for security. Consequently, there seems to be less job dissatisfaction among older workers."

Only a few years ago, 65 was considered to be the traditional retirement age. Mandatory retirement policies were accepted without question and compiled with automatically by almost everyone. But today, 79 percent of workers age 55-64 and 73 percent of those over 65 say that they prefer at least part-time employment to total retirement according to a National Council on Aging survey.

What is the greatest resource we have in our country? Is it our oil? our coal? or our minerals? It is none of these. The greatest resource we have in this country is the American people. It is the American people working together, who make this country what it is today. It is people who opened up the frontiers, discovered our mineral wealth, and built our industries. The greatest asset that our country has is people; they are what makes a country strong and free. This is why education is so important; education is an investment in the American people. Because of the high educational levels, we have had the managerial skills necessary to run our industries, the technical skills necessary to develop sophisticated products, and the stability in our government necessary for long term economic growth. Education is the foundation upon which the American civilization is built.

The American people today enjoy a rare phenomenon, freedom. The reason that Americans enjoy freedom today is due, in part, to the educational level of the American people. The amount of "capital" we have invested in ourselves, in the form of education, confers in the individual Americans many benefits. The most important benefit is that it gives an individual a chance to use

> By DEBBIE MANKINS Educating For Freedom

Although many Americans believe freedom is one of their basic rights, it is not. Freedom is a privilege. Today more than ever before, the citizens of the United States need an education on their special privilege, freedom.

According to the World Book Dictionary, freedom means not being under another's control; power to do, say, or think as one pleases. In the twentieth century, the citizens of America seem to forget the battle their ancestors fought to obtain not only constitutional rights but also America's independence from England.

Americans can be compared to children who receive candy everyday. They, like the children begin to expect the privilege. During this process, they begin to forget its importance. What would happen if this privilege, Americans' freedom, was taken away? The inhabitants of this country would be devastated. In order to avoid this devastation the citizens.

others may take," but, as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!" Patrick Henry made this statement during the Revolutionary War. During this period, the forefathers of America were waging a desperate battle to obtain independence from England. While this great battle was in the process of being 'fought,' early Americans taught their children about freedom. For several years this type of education was a part of the education for American children. However, for the past decade the citizens of this country are lacking education about their liber-In order to prevent apathy of America's freedom the school systems should incorporate programs which will reinforce American's gratitude. By unstituting a course between six and nine weeks in length concerning freedom, the citizens of America can revive their interest in their liberties. These courses would be mandatory for junior and high school students. Adults would have the opportunity to take these courses in college or night school for college credit. These classes would be extensions to mandatory history classes. By taking these classes, people would learn about their liberties and freedoms. They would have problems challenging their freedom to solve.

Freedom is a privilege many Americans enjoy. While America still possesses this privilege, its citizens should renew their gratitude through education.

Mickey Rooney starred as a former jockey who helps a young English girl (Elizabeth Taylor) and her brother (Jackie Jenkins) train a horse to run the Grand National in the 1945 classic "National Velvet."

In 1978, MGM released a sequel to that film, "International Velvet," which concerns the orphaned niece of the grown-up Velvet, who comes to live with her in England. The niece is at first resent-ful of her aunt. But she blossoms after earning a place on the British Olympic Equestrian team, riding the foal of Velvet's champion horse, Pie.

Question: Can you name the actresses who played Velvet and her niece in "International Velvet?"

O'Neal was her niece. Answer: Nannette Newman was Velvet, Tatum

TEACHER CRISIS

AUSTIN - Two things have made this state and country great. One is our abundant natural resources. The other is the ability of all children to get a quality education, whether their parents could afford it or

The emphasis on natural resources will change in the future. Our big two, oil and gas, will run out someday. This means our education must be better and better to hold the competitive edge we have enjoyed so long. Unfortunately, our system of education is doing the opposite. As it becomes more important, it's getting worse.

The problem is that teachers do not make enough money. In any field, the way to attract the best people, and enough of them, is to offer a competitive salary. Texas hasn't done this.

The average pay for a classroom teacher in this state is somewhere around $14,000. This is probably the lowest pay for a person with a college degree of any profession.

Teachers are getting tired if it, too. Almost half of all teachers in this state with 12 years experience are ready to leave the profession. The average teacher works 13 to 14 hours a week on another job, just to try to make ends meet, according to a recent survey by Sam Houston State University.

Few students are entering teacher training programs, and the test scores of those are have fallen who dramatically in the last few

If that weren't enough, the birthrate on this state is still increasing. Families with young children are moving into Texas in record numbers, further adding to the problem.

During the last session of the Legislature, we passed a bill to require prospective teachers to pass competency tests before they could be certified to teach. This is all well and good, but it won't mean a thing if there are not enough teachers to go around. The way teachers are becoming scarce, there will be few teachers who will be able to pass the test and will be willing to work for such a low salary.

It is very difficult to get people excited about a problem that is more than about, five minutes down the road. This is particularly true in the Legislature. But the Legislature must be made to realize that Texas cannot maintain the healthy economic and social climate it now enjoys unless its citizens have a good education. If you want a better future for your children tomorrow, you must make sure they get a good education today.

We are all interested in the future of our children. Please write to us and tell us what we can do to attract the good teachers our children need. Write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

THE BIG HAND IS OUT OF HAND

What ever happened to wind-em up, shakeem, and look for the big and little hand watches? The age of electronics has hit the watch market with a vegeance. It was bad enough when they took the numbers off the watch face and left us dummies counting the little spaces to figure the time. No one makes a watch that just tells time. A watch is not a watch unless it can tell the time in seven time zones, the barometric pressure in Valdosta Georgia, and the day of the week that November 6, 2057 will fall on. Frankly, I don't want to know all of that stuff. All I want to know is what time it is right now, right here.

I saw a watch the other day that played seven different tunes with the notes marching across a music score on the face. The guy who sells them said they were programmed to play Jingle Bells every hour at Christmas. He also said that his started playing at Christmas and he did not know how to stop it. He finally had to put the thing in a drawer under some clothes so that he could sleep. Hooray for progress.... These marvels should be great status symbols. Somehow, I can't figure out how to work their wonders into a conversation. I seem to think it would sound strange to be in the middle of a conversation about the National Crisis and suddenly blurt out "Would you like to hear my watch play the Eyes of Texas?"

These things are hard on your English. I bought one for my daughter one Christmas. You do not set these watches, you program them. I got to bed that night at 2:30 in the morning, and had to go to three revival meetings to get my religion back!

There is one good thing about the new wonder watches. They give us a whole new era of excuses for being late. No longer do we have to say we were late because our watch stopped. That sounds so mundane. Now, with all the little buttons to push and programs to figure out, we can come up with some gems. How does "Sorry, I'm late, but my watch was in a program of figuring out the next flight of the space shuttle, and I did not know how to get it back into the time-telling mode" sound? Impressive, don't you think?

Long Trials

Editor's Note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca comes up with an odd notion this week.

Dear Editor:

According to an article I read in a newspaper last night, lawyers getting ready to handle the trial of a mass murderer estimated the trial would last about eight months. They said it as though it's routine procedure.

I guess it is. It's nothing these days for a trial to last six weeks, two months, six months or whatever. One civil suit ran thirteen years before everybody got tired and called the thing off.

I got to thinking about this. If it's taking longer and longer to try a criminal and at the same time more and more criminals are being produced, won't that result in longer and longer waits for a man to get tried?

Sav an 18-year-old is charged with stealing a car. He might be middle aged or older before it's tried and found guilty or innocent, depending on what price range lawyer he can hire. A man shouldn't have to go through life with a thing like that hanging over him, so I've figured out a solution.

Some men, say an alumnus of Harvard, when they have a son born, immediately apply for his entrance to that school 18 years hence. This assures that the boy, when he finishes high school, can go right into the college of his father's choice without waiting.

Shouldn't a father be equally concerned about getting his son a speedy trial if he runs afoul of the law? Shouldn't he apply for a time slot on the court docket as soon as the boy is born, to be utilized if the necessity arises? Forethoughtedness is what gives some people an edge over others. Getting a son a speedy trial ought to be as important as getting him into Harvard.

It's something that's worth thinking about, but not for members of Congress need further proof that higher taxes lead only to greater deficits and bigger government, may I suggest that they look in their own backyard-

Washington's fiscal policies represent a revealing microcosm of econimic liberalism in its purest form. As the seat of the national government, it benefits form a massive infusion of federal expenditures-over $25,000 per resident in 1980.

District officials have eagerly followed their brethren on Capitol Hill in the march toward bigger government. Local taxes have sdyrocketed 185 percent since 1970. The per capita local tax burden in Washington of $1,475 is the third highest in the nation (behind Alaska and New York). Yet, the operating budget just signed by Mayor Marion Barry still contains a six percent deficit. The Mayor's proposed solution was predictable: Raise compensation coverage. In taxes again. When you examine some of the District's spending habits, it is easy to see why the capital is caught in this tax and spend, spend and tax syndrome. Seven hundred sixty-three of every 10,000 residents are employed by the local government, the second highest ratio in the nation. When President Reagan's first round of budget cuts sought to remove students and striking workers from the welfare and food stamp rolls, the Mayor and City Council quickly voted $2.5 million in District funds to make sure these poor souls would still receive benifits. Washington's And firefighters, already among the best paid in the country, Longshoremen's Act to cover Washington's entire private sector. As a result, employers' costs and employees' coverage are the third highest in the nation. A District worker can receive up to $497 a week in benifits, 200 percent of the national average weekly wage. As for the effect on the local economy, here is just one example: The Greater Washington Board of Trade reports that workers' compensation costs during the construction of a median price house in Washington are almost $4,000 higher than in neighboring Maryland or Virginia. (To the city's credit, a new law taking effect in July should reduce tain a veto power over local laws budget appropriations and revenue measures. As such, Washington offers a. compelling case not only for tax cuts, but for President Reagan's new federalism proposals as well. Heaven help us if Congress is allowed to meddle in the fiscal matters of the states to the degree that it does in those of the District! I am not presenting this example to berate a particular local government, but to illustrate a lesson that apparently needs teaching on both sides of the aisle of Congress. The only plausible way to reduce spending and deficits is to reduce the flow of revenues. Legislatures at all levels of government have demonstrated that additional tax dollars are not used to reduce the deficit, but only provide elected officials with new opportunities to spend, spend, spend and brag, brag, brag, to their constituents.

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - A Border Patrol official being sued by a group of Mexican-Americans for alleged rights violations says he is not worried about the lawsuit.

"That's what we've got the attorney general's office for," said Jack Richardson. "We'll just let them go at it."

Richardson, 52, who was meeting with his superiors Friday in Dallas, said they had not criticized him in connection with the lawsuit and, in fact, had given him commendations for the get-tough policy he instituted.

The 30-year Border Patrol veteran is the chief agent in Del Rio, but served for the past nine weeks as acting chief agent in El Paso while the search continued for a permanent chief.

During his stay in the city, he began intensified raids on the Rio Grande credited with stopping illegal entry of some 20,000 aliens, undercover work that broke three alien smuggling rings and raids on businesses believed to employ illegal aliens.

Raids on several El Paso taverns Jan. 30 led to a lawsuit being filed Thursday in U.S. District Court by the El Paso Legal Assistance Society on behalf of four Mexican-Americans who said their constitutional rights were violated by the raiding post to return to Del Rio.

The filing of the lawsuit against Richardson, Immigration and Naturalization Service officials and city police came one day after Richardson left the El Paso

"It looks like I got out of town just before the marches began," he said. "They were threatening to do something like this earlier."

Richardson and other Border Patrol officials declined comment on the merits of the lawsuit, saying any comment could jeopardize the government's case in the litigation.

The lawsuit was filed for Pascual Mendoza, Roberto Luna, Jesus Hernandez Luna and Felix Castaneda, all of El Paso. Their attorneys ask the court to declare the lawsuit a class action on behalf of all Mexican-Americans in the judicial district.

In the lawsuit, the plaintiffs' encounters with the raiding officers are detailed. The attorneys contend that singling out Mexican-Americans to question about proof of citizenship is a violation of the Fourth Amendment to the Constitution, which guarantees equal protection under the law.

The lawsuit seeks a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction to keep the Border Patrol from continuing the raids and, after a trial, a declaratory judgment saying that the agents violated the Constitution. It also seeks unspecified damages and attorneys' fees.

Richardson said he was not surprised by the lawsuit because some segments of the Mexican-American community had complained about the crackdown procedures while he was still in El Paso.

"They've got years to complain, but I've only got minutes to decide whether I'm right (during a raid)," he

Meanwhile, Richardson's successor as acting chief, deputy chief Dale Cozart, said he hopes to continue the intensity of the crackdown, although he wouldn't say whether there would be more raids on bars and businesses.

Sixty three years later, The American Legion continues to unite more than 2.6 million men and women under that common bond of service. The spirit and dedication of its founders lives on in the commitment to America that four generations of veterans still honor.

But the bank's monthly analysis adds: "Recent brightening in the outlook should by no means occasion unbounded optimism. Recovery seems destined to proceed at a slow pace as compared with the early stages of a normal recovery."

Morgan Guaranty projects the inflation-adjusted gross national product will rise at an annual rate of about 3 percent in the initial quarters of the coming expansion, compared with a usual recovery pace of 5 percent to 6 percent. Among the bright spots in the economy this past week was a Labor Department report that wholesale prices, as measured by the Producer Price Index, fell at an annual rate of 1.7 percent in February.

It was the first decline since February 1976, and a sign of the severity of the recession.

Spotting Market Bottom Dey To Investments

NEW YORK (AP) - If you chance upon a security analyst peering into the murky waters of the stock market these days, the odds are good he's looking for a bottom.

Whether the bottom being sought is in the market itself. or in general economic conditions, the idea is to find the perfect moment to grab the telephone or the checkbook and start buying stocks.

Anyone who spots the precise low point holds an important key to investing profits in the recovery that presumably will follow. But finding that point is a tricky task until it has passed far enough into history to show up on the stock charts.

By then, the participants in this game are reduced to what in bridge is called "postmorterms," - observations phrases like "I should have" or "If only."

Still, there is always enough money at stake to draw a lot of takers for bottom-fishing expeditions. A few months back, it was widely thought that a turn in interest rates might signal the turning point.

But it hasn't worked out that way so far. "The bond market (where prices move inversely with rates) has risen sharply based largely upon the recognition that the economy, and hence, credit demand will be weaker, longer than previously expected," said Hugh Johnson, analyst at First Albany Corp.

"The stock market has declined for the same reason. The gold market (by its recent declines) is signaling that these two markets are that usually begin with right. Hence our long-term outlook remains unchanged; positive for bonds and negative for equities.'

Now analysts are looking for signals in the market's behavior itself. For instance, they say, there could be a classic "washout" on heavy volume that would drain off the last of the major selling pressure.

Or a bottom could begin to take shape if investors began to shrug off bad news developments as they broke. This might serve as an indication that, in Wall Street parlance, "all the bad news is already in the market."

A climax of some sorts appeared to be in the works last Monday, when the Dow Jones industrial average dropped below 800 for the first time in almost two years.

Sheriff Versus Newspaper-Nobody Wins

By STEVE BREWER Associated Press Writer

PECOS, Texas (AP) Sometimes, investigative reporting results in scandal, public outcry and discredit of. public officials.

Other times, the sequence of events builds to an anticlimax, no matter how solid the evidence is.

That's the case in Pecos, where the local newspaper caught Reeves County Sheriff Raul Florez using county jail inmates to paint his home. Most of the 12,855 residents of the city quietly watched the events - there was no outcry.

A county grand jury reviewed the case and ruled that the sheriff had not intentionally broken the law.

'I'm disappointed that nothing was done because it was so blatant," said Pecos Enterprise publisher Ray Stafford. "It's like a speed limit. You're either going more than 55 mph or you're not. The law doesn't give you any leeway."

It all began in October when Stafford and a newspaper employee drove to Florez's home and found two county inmates painting the porch. Stafford photographed the inmates and the sheriff, ... who greeted him and invited him in to chat about the pain-

Texas law says county jail inmates can be worked on projects deemed public works as long as they are paid $15 a day, either in actual pay or in time deducted from their sentence. However, there is no provision that allows the inmates to be used for private work.

Stafford took the photos of Florez and the inmates to District Attorney Mike Wade, but Wade said any offense that may have been committed would have been a misdemeanor and should be handled by County Attorney Paul Hanneman. Hanneman pondered the evidence for two months and then turned it back over to Wade, saying misconduct by county officials was in the district attorney's bailiwick.

Finally, Stafford published the photos and articles outlining what the sheriff had said and done.

Florez said he asked to go before the grand jury to clear himself after the articles were published Jan. 28.

"I called the district attorney and told him I need to go before the grand jury," Florez said. "The district attorney said, 'With what?' I said, 'What they've got in the ... newspaper. I want the ... thing cleared up.'

After hearing an hour of testimony from Florez, the grand jury issued the following ruling Feb. 12:

'The Grand Jury has considered the allegations of official misconduct against Sheriff Raul Florez. The Grand Jury has determined that no offense was intencommitted. tionally However, all public officials and private citizens are to note that prisoners cannot be used for any projects but those determined as public works by the Commissioners it was that serious," Bryan said. "If we thought it was bad, I guess we would have indicted him."

While he never denied the inmates painted his home, Florez said he believed it was legal to work the inmates on private projects because of a May 1981 change in the state law. The law was changed to raise the daily pay to $15, but still does not allow the private Florez also said the inmates were paid at least $15 a day for their labors, but he did't keep records of the payments.

He said there was a tradition of using county inmates for private jobs in Reeves County and he thought the changes in the law allowed him to continue it.

This Message is Directed to Those of You Who Have Never Used a Travel Agent

There are some excellent reasons why you should use a travel agency. Following are some of them.

1. Their service is free. Their commission is paid by the supplier of the service, i.e. airlines, cruise companies, hotels, car rental firms, tour operators, etc.

2. Travel Agents are travel counselors, not reservation agents. They have an expertise you don't get out of a computer. You will find they have a familiarity with most parts of the world and can make your vacation the pleasure it was

3. If you want to know about cruises, they have descriptive brochures showing deck plans, stateroom layouts, sailing dates and fares for all cruise lines. Also, they have personally been on a great many of them, as well as having firsthand reports from clients.

4. Choosing the proper tour operator for the land portion of your trip calls for an intimacy with the travel market that only a professional travel counselor can provide.

5. There has been a tremendous proliferation of airfares due to the gradual deregulation of the airlines by the CAB. It really takes a professional to sort them all out so that you travel at the lowest fare to which you are entitled.

6. Travel Agents are professionals whose knowledge is firsthand. They have been to many of the places you might want to go, or else they have reference books and literature that will aid your decision. Travel Agents are constantly updating their knowledge through seminars and familiarization trips. Where else can you get professional advice at no charge?

The points covered are available from any ATC/IATA appointed travel agency. We're one of them, so if you think it's time you used a travel agency, HEREFORD TRAVEL CENTER is a good place to start.

'Lesser Known' Candidates Speak Out

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Welder Don Beagle wants to ail all lawyers who hold elected office. Publisher Ray Mayo says Mexican-Americans don't seem to understand the U.S. Constitution and politics north of the border.

appliance Former salesman David Young says 'lawyers and business tycoons" are too powerful.

Fired insurance agent Lowell "Duke" Embs says $2 bills are twice as good as $1 bills.

Beagle, Mayo, Young and Embs want to be governor of Texas. They are, in Young's words, "the lesser known" candidates.

"Basically," said Dwayne Holman, campaign director for Mark White, a major Democratic candidate for governor, "they are ignored." However, Holman says a tight race among White, Bob Armstrong and Buddy Temple - the three leading Democratic candidates could make the minor candidates' efforts crucial.

"I'm sure the minor candidates will get 3 to 4 percent of the vote. If the race is real close it could make a difference as to who gets in the runoff," said Holman.

Young, Mayo and Beagle paid the $1,500 needed to get on the Democratic ticket. Embs paid his way into the GOP race. Their expectations vary. Some see themselves as sure winners. Others are un-

"It's not necessarily unsuccessful if I don't win," said Young, 37. "Just like the Alamo wasn't unsuccessful even though everyone got killed."

Beagle and Mayo previously have run for governor and president. Beagle, 60, got 14,791 votes in the 1978 Democratic gubernatorial primary. The Nederland man was angered into a political career after a nasty 1975 custody battle for his son.

Will Don Beagle be the next governor of Texas? No, even Beagle admits that, but he predicts, "I will win the next one. I guarantee that."

"I'm a dangerous character. I have helped take the payday away from the lawyers," he said.

In 1978, 20,249 Texans thought Mayo was the best Democrat for governor. His name identification is not high. A campaign official for one of the major candidates said, "Mayo? Isn't that onethird of a BLT sandwich?"

The 63-year-old publisher of The Snowbird magazine in San Juan says Mexican-Americans misunderstand the government and politics of the United States.

'They use group power to advance their special interests. This group power is placing individual freedoms and rights in a secondary position," he said.

Mayo ignored the recent Mexican-American Democrats convention in Brownsville.

"I don't care if I get them. I don't want them. They don't know anything about our Constitution. They are working under the assumption they are in Mexico where they group up and shoot down the rest. That isn't the way we work in this country. We have a constitution," he said.

Is Ray Mayo the next governor of Texas?

"I think I have a very strong chance," he said. "I'm going to prove it. My policies and platform are good. This thing has gotten big. But hell, I've run before and I haven't

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) Powerful San Antonio Churchill and quick Galveston Ball meet for the state class 5A boys high school basketball title today in a rematch of an early-season game won by Churchill.

Churchill moved into the finals by crushing Pampa 76-56 Friday. Ball needed a late rush to put away North Mesquite 55-48.

Herd's New Uniforms' Debut Delayed Friday

The Hereford Whitefaces were all set to show off brand new uniforms Friday in a semifinal matchup against Palo Duro in the annual Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Baseball Tournament, but coach David Ashby and crew lost a battle with davlight. Hereford was scheduled to play the Dons at 4 p.m. Friday, but three games in which a total of 61 runs were scored, including two extrainning games which burned up all the daylight.

"We just didn't have time to play and finish our game," Ashby said around 5 p.m. Friday. "We'll play them (PD) at 9 Saturday, and do away with the seventh place game."

Results in the consolation format tourney Friday had Dumas smashing Levelland 14-2 and Plainview squeezing by Pampa 18-10 in loser's bracket games, and Canyon nipping Borger 8-7 in the other semifinals matchup.

Dumas' Demons broke up a close game with five runs in the fifth inning and six more in the sixth frame to rout the Lobos, who lost to Hereford 7-4 Thursday.

The Plainview - Pampa game proved to be the daylight burner as the Bulldogs scored a pair of runs in the top of the seventh to know the contest at 10-10 and send it into extra innings.

Plainview exploded to gain the win in the top of the eighth with eight runs, however.

Canyon gained a spot in the finals on the basis of a 4-run fourth inning. The Eagles and Borger fought to a 3-3 standstill after three innings, but the Bulldogs tallied three times in the top of the fourth only to see the Eagles rally to take a 7-6 lead in the bottom of the frame.

Pistons' Tripucka Hits Career High 49 Points

By JIM O'CONNELL ssociated Press Writer

Kelly Tripucka was hot. He knew it, his teammates knew it and the Golden State Warriors knew it - boy, did they Tripucka, the Pistons' rookie forward, scored a career-high 49 points as Detroit registered a 121-117 National Basketball Association victory over the Warriors Friday night.

The former Notre Dame star made 19 of 28 field goal attempts and was successful on 11 of 16 at the foul line as he established a new standard for points in a quarter by a Piston, 20 in the second, breaking George Lee's 1971 record of 17, and fell just five points short of the Dave Bing's single-game Detroit effort of 54 in 1971.

In other NBA games Friday night, Boston edged New Jersey 113-109, Washington beat Indiana 110-105 Portland downed San Antonio 112-108, Seattle handed Milwaukee their fifth straight loss 112-110, Denver crushed Houston 130-115 and Chicago defeated Los Angeles 111-105.

"I felt hot in the first half and I knew things were going right," Tripucka said of his 28-point first half. "You have to give Isiah (Thomas) and Ronnie (Lee) a lot of credit because they knew I was hot so they kept getting me the

The Detroit guards, Thomas, who had 18 points of his own, and Lee, know a good thing when they see it, and Tripucka was able to just keep on shooting. But Pistons Coach Scotty Robertson was a little bit wary.

"Kelly had a great first half, but we didn't get the ball to him as much in the second half." said Robertson. "I didn't want to concentrate on isolating him because we've been hurt by that before this season."

The Pistons weren't burnt this time because another former Notre Damer, Bill Laimbeer, showed he could score. The big center, known more for his rebounding than his scoring prowess, racked up 11 third-quarter points and the Pistons were able to take an 89-80 lead.

World Free and Bernard King combined for nine points as the Warriors ran off 11 straight at the end of the third quarter to take a 90-89 lead entering the final quarter.

The lead seesawed before the Pistons went ahead to stay, 102-100, on an Edgar Jones basket with seven minutes remaining. Golden State trailed 111-109 with three minutes left, but three foul shots by Tripucka and a basket by Laimbeer, who finished with 20, staked Detroit to a 116-109 lead with one minute left. Golden State's King hit three baskets sandwiched around a Tripucka basket and Joe Hassett hit a three-pointer with 13 seconds left to make it 199-117. But two foul shots by Thomas iced the victory. Celtics 113, Nets 109

Cedric Maxwell's three-point play with less than two minutes to play lifted the Celtics to their 10th straight victory and disappointed the largest crowd in Nets' history.

Maxwell's play came with 1:18 remaining after Ray Williams had tied the score 103-103 11 seconds before. The Nets had a chance to tie the game with 18 seconds left and trailing 110-107, but a threepoint attempt by Albert King was short and was rebounded by the Celtics.

Robert Parish led Boston with 31 points, while Maxwell had 22. Ray Williams led the Nets with 31.

Bullets 110, Pacers 105

Jeff Ruland sank four free throws in the final 86 seconds as the Bullets overcame a 20-point second-half deficit. The Bullets took a 98-90 lead, ripping off a 10-point string with Don Collins scoring six of the points. Indiana managed to pull to within one twice but Ruland's free throws held the Pacers at bay.

Spencer Haywood led Washington with 26 points, while Johnny Davis led the Pacers, losers of three straight, with 23.

Blazers 112, Spurs 108

Jim Paxson scored seven points and Kelvin Ransey six in a 13-0 fourth-quarter Portland spurt that wiped out a 98-93 San Antonio lead.

San Antonio, which has lost six of its last eight, was held scoreless for 3:10 while Paxson and Ransey did their damage. Ransey led Portland with 23, while Mike Mitchell topped the Spurs with 26.

Sonics 112, Bucks 110 Gus Williams scored 30 points, including a 20-footer basket at the buzzer, to lead Seattle past Milwaukee.

The Bucks dropped their. fifth straight despite a career-high 35 points by Mickey Johnson.

Williams took an inbounds pass at midcourt with nine seconds left and drove from the left side to the right of the key, where he put up his winng basket over Quinn

The Monterey Plainsmen raced to the team title, but Dunbar's Michael Thompson stole the spotlight at the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Invitational Track Meet Friday with a record-setting performance in the discus.

Monterey took team laurels with 117 points with titles in five events and a pair of seconds to outdistance the field. Coronado was second with 82 points, while Palo Duro was third with 741/2. Clovis (66), Dunbar (62), Hereford (52), Amarillo High (23), Pampa and Roswell (18), and Dumas (13) rounded out the field.

Thompson battled buffeting crosswinds to heave the disc 174-1, shattering the old meet record by five feet. The old mark of 169-0 was set in 1969 by Gene Auddell of Canyon.

Highlights in the meet for the host Whitefaces included a second in the high jump by Grady Brown, who cleared place finishes by hurdler Wayne High, and a fourth place in the pole vault by Craig Jones (11-6). High took the bronze medal in the 110 hurdles with a time of 15.14. and matched that effort with a 41.1 in the 300 IH. Hereford also got points in the 300 IH from Alfred Ball, and Ronnie Terry, who finished fourth and fifth in the event respectively. Armando Rodriguez placed fourth in the 3200 meter run for the Herd (10:47.54), with the HHS 400 meter relay team placing fifth (44.95) and the 1600 meter relay squad fourth with a time of 3:31.5.

Erasmo Gonzales gave the Herd a point with a sixth place toss in the discus (152-5).

The girls division of the meet was run Saturday. Palo Duro won the junior varsity division team title with 118 points, far ahead of runner-up Dunbar (82) and Coronado (82). Hereford's JV finished 9th with nine points, while Stanton had 16 points for seventh, and La Plata had 11 points for eighth place.

Chattanooga, 27-3 and champions of the Southern Conference, jumped out to a 20-point lead by holding North Carolina State scoreless from the field for 11 minutes of the second half, then held on for a 58-51 triumph. The Moccasins, who scored their final

"I would have to think that with a field of 32 teams remaining, that there is something going from Tennessee. And it just so happens that I did mention that to our team prior to our taking the floor."

The game was tied 14 times, but the Volunteers survived because of Michael Brooks' foul shoooting. Brooks, an 85 percent shooter from the free throw line, hit six clutch shots in the final

"We are the state university and all the other universities (Memphis State gives the state four entries among the final 32) are representing their particular institutions well," said Devoe. "This might be the first time ever that we've had this many Tennessee teams in the field

"It seems to be a Tennessee year," said North Carolina State Coach Jin, Valvano.

"We tried to play them man-to-man, and we knew we had to play them tight," said Tennessee-Chattanooga Coach Murray Arnold. "We were conscious of their size and blocked out on the boards."

St. Joe's, which beat topranked DePaul in a subregional last year, won't pull off any more upsets. The Hawks were surprised themselves by ECAC North champion Northeastern, which got 24 points from Perry Moss and a pair of decisive free throws from Eric Jefferson.

"The win proves we belong in the East," Moss said. "Northeastern (23-6) is not a household name, but hopeful-

St. John's Billy Goodwin put in 21 points and Chris Mullin added 19 as the Redmen, 21-8, moved on to a Sunday meeting with No.13 Alabama. That matchup worried Redmen Coach Lou Carnesecta.

"I haven't seen Alabama since the last NIT." Carnesecca said. "The film I'll show the players tomorrow is outdated. I think they've got three guys from last year."

Kansas State's Les Craft scored 21 points and Randy Reed added 15 for the Wildcats, 22-7, who play 12thranked Arkansas Sunday.

Craft was a perfect 11-for-11 from the free-throw line as K-State staved comfortably in front after leading 31-25 at the half.

Cal-Irvine Leads Round

SPORTS

The Hereford Brand-Sunday, March 14, 1982-Page 15A

By JIM O'CONNELL Associated Press Writer

Cal-Irvine leads the advance to the second round of the National Invitation Tournament despite a loss - a very, big loss.

The Anteaters did defeat San Diego State 70-69 Friday night, but a two-inch deep cut on the shooting hand of All-American Kevin Magee kept him out of the game's final 17 minutes and will most probably keep him out of the rest of the tournament.

Magee injured the hand attempting to block a dunk by the Aztecs' Michael Cage. The 6-foot-6 forward had scored 19 points in the first half and the Anteaters will now have to continue in the NIT without one of the nation's premier scorers and rebounders.

"When the play was over and I saw the cut, I knew I was in trouble," Magee said of the gash that needed nine stitches. "I had the same kind of injury in high school and I was out three weeks. I knew I wouldn't be back tonight."

Three weeks might not seem like a long time to recuperate, but the finals of the NIT are scheduled for New York on March 24. That's just 11 days from now. More importantly, Cal-Irvine must now travel to Oklahoma to face the 20-10 Sooners on Monday night.

Will Magee attempt to play?

"I would recommend that he does not play," said San Diego State's team physician Dr.Lee Brown, who treated Magee. "The guy has a great future ahead of him."

a statement filled with hope. People have criticized us all year for being a one-man team, but we're not, and we

Friday, Maryland beat Richmond 66-50, Syracuse coasted past St. Peter's 84-75, Virginia Tech wore down Fordham 69-58, Mississippi held off Clemson 53-49 and Tulane surprised Louisiana State 83-72.

Cal-Irvine, 23-6, needed two free throws from Rainer Wulf to secure the victory. Wulf rebounded the missed free throw of teammate Bob Thornton, who had made his first, and was fouled. He sank the free throws for a 70-66 Anteater lead. Don Plummer, who led San Diego State with 19 points, scored with 52 seconds left to make it 70-69, but his 12-footer at the buzzer was short.

Randy Whieldon picked up Magee's scoring slack and finished with 18 points, second only to Magee's 20. Fine, but what kind of Carlos Clark scored 25 points and the Rebels used some clutch foul shooting down the stretch to beat Clemson.

Mississippi, 18-11, needed two free throws each from Michael Partridge and Sean Touhy in the final minute to preserve the win.

Clemson, 14-14, was led Horace Wyatt's 14 points.

I can walk into a roomful of people and with 90 percent accuracy point out those who have been cheerleaders. I can tell without being told that Dyan Cannon was a cheerleader. She's a laugher. Parris Afton Bonds To Speak To Women

Featured speaker at the Tuesday meeting of the Panhandle Pen Women will be Parris Afton Bonds, a prolific writer of romance novels, the latest of which, "Deep Purple," is scheduled for release in May by Fawcett Columbine Books.

Ms. Bonds, who could pass for one of her own glamorous heroines, visited Amarillo in October for the Book Fair held in connection with the Book and Author dinner sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

She will "tell all" about plotting, getting ideas, setting up chapters, creating. captivating characters and choosing names for them, contacting the publishers, selling the book, what it feels like to be a successful author and whatever else the audience wants to ask about in a question session.

M.E. Moses Co.

New marketing techniques for romances, and their increasing popularity in all segments of the socioeconomic scale, have led to unprecedented competition among previously staid publishing houses for their share of the burgeoning demand for this genre of novel. Periodicals as diverse as "Business Week" and "Southwest Secretary" have noted the phenomenon.

Last year the first meeting of the Romance Writers of America in Houston attracted about 500 writers, some of whom are famous outside of this field. They'll meet again this June in California. "Southwest Secretary" noted, "If an aspiring writer ever had a chance of being discovered, it's by writing romance." Variations on the traditional "formulas" are being introduced, from

Ann Landers Watch Cruel 'Truthfulness'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have heard the phrase "Honesty is the best policy" so often that people assume it is true. It sounds virtuous and has a ring of truth to it, but two sorry experiences over the weekend have convinced me otherwise.

Twice I was asked to give my honest opinion. I did (like a fool) and made one enemy for life, and the second person left me with such a chill I suddenly thought I was at the North Pole.

I hope you will stop promoting high-sounding phrases such as "Honesty is the best policy," because I have learned that it is much smarter to lie and stay out of

When people ask, "What do you think?" they don't really want to hear the truth - they are merely fishing for compliments. If what you think is not laudatory, you're as good as dead. - Truth Is Trouble In Savannah

DEAR TROUBLE: I find it interesting that you didn't provide a single detail of the incidents that brought forth your sterling quality and landed you in trouble. Some people make cruel and destructive remarks under the guise of being "truthful" and wonder why the one who has been savaged reacts in a negative way.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am past 60 now, which makes me an old lady according to teenagers' standards today, but I have some advice for young girls who want to listen. It was something I learned from my father - and passed on to my daughter and granddaughter.

When a boy asks you to go all the way to prove that you love him, tell the young man that he will have to speak to your father about it because your father is responsible for you as long as you live under My granddaughter (age 15)

answer to her 16-year-old boyfriend. She said the look of astonishment on his face was something else. She burst into laughter - so did he, and he will probably know better than to mention the subject again. Pass it on, Ann, if you think it has any value. -Golden Laughter In Goshenn,

DEAR GOSH: Funny or not, it's a darned good derailer. Thanks for cutting us in on it. Nothing succeeds like success.

Wealthy Families Portrayed

By DIANNE PIERSON Librarian

"North and South," currently number one on the New York Times Bestseller List, by John Jakes heads the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. "North and South" is the compelling, panoramic novel of two wealthy families during twenty turbulent years that culminate in the shattering Civil War.

There are the Mains, Carolina plantation owners, who are proudly defending an aristocratic way of life and the Hazards, Pennsylvania industrialists, descended from and English fugitive. and now caught up in the exciting world of invention and commerce. When their two sons meet as West Point cadets and become fast friends, the lives of these families are irrevocably join-

Readers will cherish and treasure this fresh, contemporary view of the United States and will be reminded of their rich heritage and the opportunities and responsibilities still before them.

Other new books available this week include "Verdict On The Shroud," by Kenneth E. Stevenson and Gary R. Habermas, "The Day The MGM Grand Hotel Burned" by Deirdre Coakley, "Holy Blood, Holy Grail" by Baigent, Leigh, and Lincoln, and "Blue Smoke & Mirrors" by Jack W.Germond.

Organized after World War I, The American Legion's activities run the full spectrum of human experiences: from children to the elderly - from World War I veterans and their dependents and survivors, to Vietnam veterans and their dependents or survivors.

From March 15 to 17, 1919, veterans of the American Expeditionary Force met in Paris, France, to organize honorably discharged veterans and to give them an outlet for continuing service intime of pease - as they had served in time of war.

Born of war, the American Legion is dedicated to peace. And, although chartered by the Congress of the United States, the organization is not military and is not a part of government at any level. It is a totally volunteer organization of nearly three million World War I, World War II. Korean and Vietnam veterans. "We are dedicated to protecting the nation's program of veterans benefits," comments Lohr. "We feel a deep sense of responsibility to our former comrades in arms, to insure that the programs provided for them by our government are adequate, meaningful, and in keeping with the times in which we live."

"We are dedicated to the cause of peace through preparedness," Lohr continues. We advocate an adequate system of national security as the best deterrent to war, and base our position on the fact that, throughout history, weak nations have been destroyed because of attack from without, or decay from within. Physical and moral strength are the basis

Why would a group of Americans meet in Paris to organize a group concerned with humanitarian goals? The horror of combat was behind them. The world was at peace. But, having seen the terrible destruction of war, they wanted to organize to continue serving in peace.

Their most urgent cause was to assist their wounded comrades who were returning home with little hope in their rehabilitation and readjustment to civilian life, and to help provide for the families of those who had made the supreme sacrifice.

That was the priority of The American Legion in 1919. It is the priority of The American Legion today, 63 years later. Not only are there elderly survivors of World War I, and their dependents, who need continuing, compassionate care from a greateful nation, but today there are veterans of three more wars, and their dependents and survivors, who need the kind of assistance the founders of The American Legion fought for more than six decades

The American Legion today remains in the forefront of those who insist that America's program of veterans benefits remains modern and meaningful, in terms of today's economy, technology, and the changingneeds of veterans.

One only need look at the many accomplishments of The American Legion to know what a vibrant and viable force it is. Some of these accomplishments are:

The establishment of the Veterans Administration with its hospital - medical care program for veterans. Aid to the sick and handicapped.

Programs for the protection and well-being of the nation's children.

Advanced education and training for America's war veterans under the Legionsponsored and supported G.I. Bill of Rights.

Those are just a few.

While these programs remain among its top priorities, The American Legion's primary concern is still its rehabilitation program. It is aimed at those who served in wartime and their dependents and beneficiaries, wherever they might reside, without cost or obligation on their part. It includes physical, mental, vocational and economical rehabilitation.

As The American Legion grew into America's foremost veterans organization, teamwork played a major role in the success of the rehabilitation program. This program has provided a service unequaled by any other organization in this nation.

Through the rehabilitation program, The American Legion provides services at both the national and department levels. Such services are as close to the veteran as his nearest Legion post. And it is all free!

The Legion is also proud that this program is the pattern the government followed in setting up the Social Security system. The Legion's program of assistance to the families and children of veterans was the forerunner of the concept of Aid to Dependent Children.

The American Legion is in step with national and international issues. It has always supported a strong system of national security and forthright dealings with other nations to deter war. But nevertheless, three new generations of veterans have joined The American Legion. They do so in the hope that they, perhaps, would be the last to experience war.

The reality of life and perversity of man has not yet permitted that dream to come true. And, as long as there are veterans to serve, there will be an American Legion ready and willing to help them.

We have made it the public policy of this nation to provide veterans with the best possible rehabilitation services, and to grant the disabled, or widows and orphans, compensation and pension benefits sufficient to meet their needs," says Lohr.

Today, three wars and 63 years later, The American-Legion continues to pursue the same goals for American veterans as its founders did in 1919. "We will continue to do the good job because our nation's millions of veterans need us," concluded Lohr.

demonstrates it can be a good neighbor, Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo's proposal of a U.S.-Cuba rapprochement would fail.

Lopez Portillo said such a U.S.-Cuba reconciliation would ease tensions throughout the Caribbean and ease tensions in El Salvador and Nicaragua.

"Our own view is that Cuba has not demonstrated that it would be a good neighbor. As Cuba's closest neighbor, we have had the experience that perhaps no other country in the Caribbean has had, of Cuban involvement in the domestic affairs of Jamaica, of Cuba using the last (Jamaican) government as a promotional platform to advance its political system in the Caribbean, of Cuba's subversion in Jamaica," the Harvard-educated prime minister said.

Unless Cuba manifestly demonstrates that, there would be little purpose - in President Reagan or anyone else - trying to make a good neighbor of Cuba, and a mere approach for rapprochement would not have meaning."

Cotton Dust Not Linked To Disease

MEMPHIS- A study just released by the National Academy of Sciences reports that there is not enough scientific evidence to link chronic lung disease to cotton dust exposure.

The conclusion was reached by a committee of 12 doctors and scientists headed by Dr. Jerome Kleinerman of Mt. Sinai Medical Center, New York, after an extensive review of medical data and other information.

The study, specially funded in the fiscal 1979 agricultural appropriations bill, stated: "The presumed relationship between acute and chronic disease and the latter's specific relationship to cotton dust remain unresolved."

In layman's terms, according to Dr. Phillip Wakelyn of the National Cotton Council, this means the study panel could not find enough evident to conclude that a worker who experiences temporary shortness of breath and chest tightness when exposed to cotton dust will suffer chronic lung impairment if he or she continues to be exposed to it.

The Council environmental and safety technology manager pointed out, hewever, that the current cotton dust standard is based on this assumption.

Council President Ed Breihan of Lubbock, Texas, said the Academy's findings also support the position which the cotton industry has taken form the outset of

"While our industry has been concerned about the workers - even though few in numbers - who seem to be affected by cotton dust in some operations and is providing protection for them," he said, we have maintained all along that the adverse health effects of cotton dust exposure have been exaggerated and this led to the extremely severe and costly dust standard that was issued."

SOUTHWEST: Spring planting is making rapid progress following recent rains. Corn and grain sorghum planting is active in southern counties. Spinach and carrots are being harvested in the Winter Garden and a lot of onions are being replanted. Grazing is still sparse so ranchers continue to provide supplemental feed for livestock.

The Soviet Union has been told it can buy up to 23 million tons of wheat and corn in 1981-82 under terms of a longterm agreement which expires Sept. 30.

That would be an increase of 1 million tons from recent estimates, the report said. In 1980-81, the Soviet Union imported 34.8 million tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

The report noted that Moscow still has not announced officially its 1981 grain production estimate. Therefore, it said, the department is sticking with its earlier estimate of 175 million metric tons for last year's Soviet grain crop.

For three years in a row, beginning in 1979, the Soviet Union's harvests have been far short of the planned targets, forcing it to turn to the world market for grain to make up the difference.

The report said the 1982 Soviet winter grain crop planted last fall "has come through the winter without any apparent major pro-

Farmers Swing Into Planting

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas farmers are getting into the swing of spring planting at a rapid pace, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Planting of corn, grain sorghum and cotton is active in South Texas and the Coastal Bend, and corn and grain sorghum planting is increasing in Central Texas, he said in his weekly report on Texas agricultural activity.

Soil temperatures continue to warm up despite last weekend's cold front, and 4-inch averages (in degrees Fahrenheit) as reported by the Agricultural Weather Service are: Austin 54, Beaumont 58, Beeville 58, College Station 56, Corpus Christi 67, Eagle Lake 54, Dilley 64, Lavon Dam (near Dallas) 50, Longview 58, Lufkin 52, San Angelo 55, Stephenville 56, Uvalde 60, Waco 46, and Weslaco 63. The Extension Service recommends a 50-degree soil temperature for planting corn, 55 for grain sorghum and 65 for cotton. Planting of early-season vegetables such as onions, potatos and English peas continues over Texas as spring gardening activities increased. Some early peach trees are starting to bloom in East Texas, Pfannstiel said.

AD Quietly Cancels Natural Disaster Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Agriculture Department earlier this week quietly canceled an emergency program that helps farmers buy feed for livestock when drought, flood or other natural disasters reduce their

No public announcement was made through regular department public information channels. However, a formal notice describing the program's demise was published on March 9 in the Federal Register, effective immediately.

According to the official notice, the order was signed March 2 by Deputy Secretary Richard E. Lyng. Applications will be taken through April 8 but assistance will not be paid to farmers for any feed bought after March 9, it

The program has been operated by the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

"With the urgent need to reduce the federal budget, it has been determined that the emergency feed program should be terminated," the notice said.

But the notice added that since the program is "discretionary" on the part of the secretary of agriculture it could be implemented again if the situation warrants.

Clarence Domire of the agency's emergency operations and livestock programs division said Thursday that payments to hard-pressed livestock producers since the fiscal year began last Oct. 1 through January totaled $5.7 million to buy 211.1 million pounds of feed.

During the 1980-81 year, however, drought reduced feed supplies over wide areas of the nation and resulted in payments totaling $328.5 million for 11.6 billion pounds of feed, Domire said.

That compared with only $23.4 million and 1.25 billion pounds of feed in the 1979-80 fiscal year, he said.

Under the program, eligible farmers and ranchers can be reimbursed for up to 50 percent of the cost of buying additional feed purchased for their livestock.

Although the cancellation was put into effect under ar "interim rule" provisior which allows such orders without the regular period for comments, officials said public comments would be accepted through May 10.

Those can be sent to: Direc tor, Emergency Operations and Livestock Programs Division, ASCS, USDA, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C.

Crop Stock Reports Cut By Budget

Dozens of crop and livestock reports - some of them mainstays at the Agriculture Department for many years have fallen victim to administration budget snippers.

William E. Kibler, administrator of the department's Statistical Reporting

Service, said Wednesday the changes were necessary to keep within budget levels for the fiscal year that started Oct. 1.

"We believe we will be able to redirect available resources toward maintainseries judged to be the most important in monitoring changes in the agricultural sector," he said.

Kibler said the changes followed an extensive review in which "we explored all, possible avenues" to minimize the impact of the cuts on agriculture.

Among 26 reports killed vas a monthly report on catfish production; and annual reports on honey, maple svrup, mink and trout.

Some of the most important cuts involved reports that were not killed outright but reduced in scope.

For example, the July crop report which has included the first official USDA estimate of the year for corn production will no longer include that estimate. The first corn production estimate, therefore, will be in the August report.

The July report also will omit production figures for planted wheat, which will appear for the first time in the August report.

Another pruning involves the quarterly cattle-on-feed report. It was reduced from inventory figures for 23 states to 13 states.

The 10 states eliminated from the quarterly cattle report are: Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Equipment Dealer Looking For Recovery

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Dozens of shiny yellow tractors, backhoes and Bulldozers sit on sales lots lining the main expressway through town, like a "Miracle Mile" of heavy equipment operations.

These days, though, it is the equipment dealers who are hoping for a miracle at the Mexican border.

They look for a sign from across the Rio Grande that sales will recover from a devastating slump inflicted by the recent Mexican peso devaluation.

Many operators say they rely 100 percent on Mexican customers buying machinery for government-sponsored land clearing, road and public improvement projects.

But pesos now buy half as much as they did before Feb. 17 and customers have almost disappeared.

"Eighty percent of our projected sales were canceled," said Rudy Rene Cano, president of Imports and Exports of Matamoros, Inc. "We used to sell 60 machines a month. Now we're lucky to have five a week."

Cano opened his lot two years ago as the U.S. base of his other operations in the Mexican cities of Matamoros, San Luis Potosi, Ciudad Victoria and Mexico City. On Feb. 17, Mexico's central bank ran critically low on reserves and announced it would let the peso float to a new value on world markets instead of supporting it at a certain level.

Many equipment dealers cleared away mesquite and cactus, threw up a chain-link fence and began selling equipment in the last five years to cash in on the lucrative market. Mexican buyers abounded as the government used some of its oil revenues to finance capital improvements.

Contractors rushed to this border city and others in South Texas. Machinery either was unavailable in Mexico or cost more there when purchased through a

By devaluing the peso, Mexican officials said they were trying to stop the flow of funds into the United States. Heavy equipment purchases by Mexican citizens amounted to millions of dollars annually.

Equipment dealers and buyers felt a double whammy this year. Before the peso's decline, the Mexican government raised import tariffs on machinery.

Instead of assessing a straight 10 percent duty on the purchase price, the tax now is based on an item's weight. Dealers who could once fudge about the purchase price on import papers to help their clients cannot do that anymore.

A 16-ton used backhoe selling for $35,000 formerly would be charged approximately $5,000 in import tariffs and "handling fees" - the universally known but rarely acknowledged bribes to officials.

Now a tax of $16,000 would be levied on the same piece of equipment.

"I send equipment to Campeche, Guanajuato, Vera Cruz, northern Tamaulipas, all over," he said. "Some is used on government contract jobs, some is sold directly to campesinos (farmers).

He has not sold anything since December and wonders how long he can last.

Not all equipment salesmen depend heavily on trade to Mexico.

Brothers David and George McGuire have had a trucktractor sales and service operation for eight years on the expressway frontage road. They deal mainly with local-clients instead of through a "compadre" system of contacts in Mexico.

"I've seen them (other operations) come and go. There was hardly any around here before two years ago," David McGuire said. "It's been good going to Mexico but we haven't had much of that. I guess we should feel good about that now."

The business slowdown will mean more smuggling of stolen equipment into Mexico, a state investigator predicted.

"I really anticipate we're going to have a slight increase in theft," said Ed Sanders, who investigates motor vehicle thefts for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"I'm sure they'll start smuggling the parts, too," said Sanders, who works out of McAllen.

Farmers Vow Cutbacks On 11.2 Million Acres

WASHINGTON (AP) -Farmers have signed up so far to reduce 1982 crop plantings on about 11.2 million acres, says the Agriculture Department.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Wednesday the 'base acreage" enrolled in the programs included, approximately: feed grains, 5.2 million acres; wheat, 4.5 million; cotton, about 1 million; and rice, 500,000.

Those figures represent the basic acreages of those crops on farms signed up for the programs. Under those, farmers must reduce 1982 crops from their base acreages to qualify for federal price supports, target price benefits and the farmer-owned grain reserve.

The acreage cutbacks for 1982 include a 15 percent reduction for wheat, cotton and rice, and a 10 percent reduction for feed grains corn, sorghum, oats and barley.

Signup in the programs began Feb. 16 and continues through April 16. The figures released Wednesday were for signups through March 4.

Oiling Eggs Saves Energy

COLLEGE STATION - Oiling shell eggs can be an effective, energy-saving alternative to refrigeration. especially for short storage periods.

This finding is based on a farm trial comparing refrigeration and oiling of eggs to preserve interior egg quality, reports Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University

Eggs were either not oiled, normally oiled or intensely oiled (oiled twice with a commercial aerosol spray) in the study conducted under hot summer conditions. Some eggs refrigerated immediately after lay, some were held at room temperature, others were held at outside temperature (98 degrees F. daytime and 73 degrees F. nighttime) for a day and then refrigerated, and some were held at outside temperature continuously for seven days.

Legislators Trying To Help Law

JACK KEEVER

Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In 1963 when the Legislature enacted the state's first condominium law, hardly anyone in Texas knew what a condominium was - or cared.

Now the Texas "condo" boom is on, and legislators are trying to help the law catch up.

Two years ago, 7 percent of all the new "houses" built in Austin were condos. Last year it was 25 percent, and this year it is expected to go even higher.

Housing economists say this is typical in large Texas metropolitan areas, and they think the condo craze will spread to smaller cities as

Consider this statistic from the Texas Real Estate Institute at Texas A&M University: By the year 2000, over half of Texas' homeowners will be living in condos.

"I think to a degree it has a faddish appeal," said Martin Cude of Dallas, one of a few Texas lawyers specializing in condominium law. "The main reason for the popularity of condos, however, is ease best of two worlds." Condos can be high-rises, townhouses or separate dwellings in which unit owners share maintenance costs that range from $55 to $80 in what Cude calls "standard vanilla" condos to even higher monthly assessments in more expensive condos. "Horror stories" from Florida, where Cude says developers took advantage of buyers, resulted in a proposed Uniform Condominium Act. The act, among other things, was designed to protect renters whose apartments were converted to condos. Often the renters could not affored to buy the unit and

In 1981 a 43-page condominium bill cleared the House late in the session. Larry Niemann, an Austin lawyer representing the Texas Apartment Association, said, "That particular version was the final product of a hundred or more people from nearly every trade association or group affected by the condominium statutes."

The bill, however, was killed in the Senate Economic Development Committee on May 29, three days before the session ended.

"It was a monster bill," said a Senate aide assigned to follow its progress. "It took me three days to read it twice. The realtors took no position but said, 'We want to read this.' I talked to other aides after the bill was defeated, and they said, 'My boss didn't feel comfortable voting for it."

Now, the House Subcommittee on Condominiums and Housing Laws is starting over, with the 1981 proposal as the starting point, and the the Apartment Association also said the present law offers no consumer protection

The proposed law would require developers to provide buyers with a statement listing information about the condominium, such as a projected budget for the first year and possible additional costs and whether any more units are planned.

The statement would disclose any title defects, financing available to the buyer and include a copy of any written warranties.

'This is the most important consumer protection provision (in the bill)," said Cude. "It more or less tells the consumer what he is buying."

The bill would require that the information be given to the buyer five days before he signs a contract, or as an alternative, the buyer could cancel the contract within five days after he receives the information. Buyers could collect $500 plus "other relief" from developers who fail to provide the informa-

Buyer deposits would go into a special escrow account to prevent developers from using the money to help finance construction.

In cases where buildings are converted to condominiums, tenants would have to be given at least 60-days notice to vacate.

One Dallas bank officer recommended the creation of a State Condominium Agency to register larger condos - a proposal also included in the Uniform Condominium Act and to make sure that the condos had adequate in-

"That's terrible," said Cude. "I'm vehemently opposed to it. California has such an agency, and it takes 12 months or longer just to get preliminary state approval. Can you imagine what that does to financial planning? And the costs are passed on to the buyer."

Repe Steve Wolens, D-Dallas, chairman of the condominium subcommittee,

Asked about "horror stories" mentioned before his subcommittee - without names or places - Wolens said, "I don't know. I asked them (the witnesses), and they didn't say and presented no written material."

"As far as I know there are no horror stories in Texas, at least any that have reached court at the appeals level," said Cude.

The state proposal, in fact, would prohibit local governments from banning or declaring moratoriums on

"The Legislature is anticipating problems rather than waiting for them to happen, as well as offering remedies to current problems not available under law," said Wolens.

On the Texas side of Texarkana, police are police. cross the line in Arkansas, police are police and firefighters.

Texarkana, Ark., has a Public Safety Department and that means an officer can start the day arresting a bank robber and end it fighting a house fire.

The change began in 1976 and wasn't an immediate hit with the officers. Now?

"I doubt we could ever change back to the old traditional type," assistant director Bobby Mixon said in a recent telephone interview. "Of course, you know you can't satisfy everybody."

He said the city may be one of the only ones in Arkansas to have dual roles for its officers. The Legislature approved a bill in 1979 granting cities with a population between 21,000 and 24,000 the authority to form public safety departments.

Sen. Wayne Dowd, D-Texarkana, said in a telephone interview that the city felt it needed the legislation as a precaution. It spells out the duties of the officers, the authority of the civil service commission and participation in pension funds.

The main purpose of the change was to give the 21,459 residents more protection, Mixon said. Instead of three police cars cruising the streets, there are usually seven or eight and sometimes Packed away in the trunk of each car are a firefighter's essentials. An officer who answers a fire call presses a button to open the trunk and grabs the equipment.

Assistant Director Clinton McCormack, in charge of the fire division, said the equipment includes a dry powder extinguisher, a water extinguisher, hip boots, a coat and helmet.

The city has 37 traditional firefighters to complement the public safety officers. Mc-

"There are still a lot of women out there who don't like coming out of the closet and owning up to what has happened to them," said Mary Lou Buchman of the Eastern Montana Spouse Abuse Program, located in the farming community of Glasgow. It's one of 15 projects in the state that receives money from the marriage license fee. The marriage license surcharge, which started at $9 in 1979 and rose to $14 last July, will pay about $100,000 of the $115,500 a year that the Legislature has appropriated for the program. Montana is one of 15 states to finance such programs through marriage license surcharges.

The money goes to local projects in the form of grants ranging from $500 for sparsely populated Madison County to $18,375 for Mercy Home in Great Falls, the state's second-largest city. Most grants go to programs already dealing with family problems, such as Missoula's Women's Place and Helena's Friendship Center.

Joan - not her real name - had never heard of the Friendship Center until the night she fled her home almost two years ago. Her husband had been beating her for four years, but she left that night after realizing that, as he held her against the dishwasher and punched her, she was contemplating using a butcher knife that lay nearby. She smashed through the locked screen door and fled to

Lassiter said economics played a big part in the city's decision. "We started looking for a better way to do it," he said. "Now we have one person doing two jobs."

Lassiter said people sometimes criticize the concept, but he brushes those off. Mixon said Texarkana

A lawsuit was filed by the Local 502 of the International Association of Fire Fighters shortly after the program was instituted. It challenged the ordinance creating the department. Mixon said the lawsuit was dropped.

Mixon said there were several volunteers for the model program in 1976. By the second phase, the department had all the volunteers it needed.

"It took me about six months to accept the job of director of public safety," Butler said. "One of the things that struck me was not a trained fireman," he said. Once he realized that he wouldn't have to fight fires and would only supervise the programs, it was easier to accept than retirement.

Officer Dave Long, 37, who has been with the department five years, said some of the older police officers resented having to fight fires. Some firefighters also were upset with the arrangement, but McCormack said they are getting accustomed to the program. Lt. Larry Arnold said the relationship between firefighers and police wasn't as good as it should be. "We didn't know each other ... how each other worked. We became friends," he said.

"I think the program has pretty much proved itself," Long said. "We respect each other as to what we are doing."

School Nurse Role Goes Beyond Band Aid

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -Adults over 30 probably remember the school nurse as the lady who measured their height and weight, bandaged skinned knees and provided a place to lie down when they had a headache. No more.

At Martin Luther King High School in the Germantown section of Philadelphia, Constance Badger and Elaine Sellers are among a new breed of the nation's 30,000 school nurses who are not content with a Band-Aid approach to health and learn-

"We look at more than just the physical health stuff," says Ms. Badger. "You look at peer relationships, family relationships, school adjustment, career plans - more of the total person."

An example occurred recently when a teacher referred a 16-year-old girl to Ms. Badger after the child missed three weeks of school. The teen-ager was given a physical and asked for a family health history.

It turned out the girl was missing school because her family was sick. In visits to the home, Ms. Badger found a mother too weak from hunger to leave. The nurse arranged for food stamps and helped the family shop for groceries.

"Given the same situation 15 years ago, I'd still have tried to help," Ms. Badger says. "But now I have the complete assessment of the child's problems."

The days of just jotting down the results of eye and ear examinations began to end in the 1970s as school nurses pressed for added professional challenges and new laws and changes in the American family simultaneously placed new responsibilities on public schools.

As more mothers took jobs, schools - and their nurses were left to care for children with chronic illnesses, says Judith Igoe, director of the University of Colorado's School Health Program.

At Martin Luther King High, for example, Ms. Badger and Mrs. Sellers treat 150 youngsters with chronic ailments including epilepsy, sickle cell anemia or mental retardation.

A weakening economy has also placed new burdens on school nurses, says Ms. Igoe. As more and more families feel they can only afford emergency care for their children, they leave routine encouraged to ask questions of the doctor, not to treat him as God," says Mrs. Sellers.

Two federal laws have also added to the workload.

In another major change, a 1975 federal law entitled handicapped children to a public education. The Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J., estimates the law added 2 million such children to the nation's public school rolls.

A short distance from Martin Luther King High is the Joseph E. Hill School for the handicapped, where nurse Peggy McNally and others care for 120 children, some with IQs in the 30s.

A recent afternoon, for instance, found Mrs. McNally crouched on the floor, coaxing a 7-year-old blind girl named Lydia to swallow apple sauce containing her antiseizure medicine. Lydia has cerebral palsy, so swallowing is difficult. Mrs. McNally must knead the girl's cheeks to get the medicine down.

While the severely handicapped are a special case, there are many students with handicaps that are directly related to learning. Dyslexia, for example, is a nerve disorder that makes it difficult for children to read.

In the past, says Ms. Igoe such children might have been frequent visitors to her office and considered gool offs. "Now we feel definite that he needs to be checked. A common finding: poor self-

A similar worry led Mrs. Sellers and Ms. Badger to begin offering classes for obese girls. The students are taught about nutrition and examine their eating habits. They're encouraged to get involved in school activities.

A measure of the effectiveness of the new school nurse is that there have been few layoffs this year, even as 55,000 teachers nationwide have lost their jobs.

"Whereas ten years ago the school nurse was an appendage, she is now involved in curriculum development, involved in drug abuse and alcoholism," says David Morrison, a former teacher in San Diego public schools and former principal of schools in Louisville, Ky., and Keane,

"The school nurse has come a long way from someone you'd see once in a while to someone critical to program planning."

Cut Deductable, Decrease Premium

Associated Press Writer

Consumers who are willing to take some risks can cut the cost of their insurance by increasing the value of their deductibles.

A deductible is the amount you agree to pay in the event of damage to your home or automobile. If you have a $100 deductible, for example, you pay the first $100 worth of damage.

A bigger deductible usually can save you at least 10 percent in annual premiums. Here's an example:

The Insurance Information Institute, a trade association, says a typical homeowner in a Midwestern city would pay $263 a year for a standard, $80,000 homeowners policy with a $100 deductible.

The same policy with a deductible of $250 would cost only $237 - a savings of $26 or just about 10 percent. Increase the deductible to $500 and the premium drops by an additional $26.

Similar deductibles - and savings - are available on automobile policies.

People who itemize deductions on their federal income tax return generally can deduct any uninsured casualty loss of more than $100. The tax savings helps offset in-
