'Grain More Valuable for Food'

Deere Spokesman Downplays Alcohol as Fuel

By JIM STEIERT
Managing Editor
AMARILLO — Panhandle area farmers were informed that grain-derived alcohol will never be a real solution to their alternate fuel needs while the importance of retaining scant rainwater on cropland was also stressed during the annual Crop Production and Utilization Symposium held at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center here Thursday. In the keynote address of the symposium William W. Jackson, market planning specialist with Deere & Co. of Moline, Ill., focused on the outlook for farm equipment in the next two decades, commenting on equipment improvements and modifications that can be expected. He centered a portion of his commentary on the possibility of alternate fuels for farm machinery. "There is a lot of interest in alcohol made from grain crops as an alternate fuel," said Jackson.

"The problem with alcohol from grain is that there isn't enough on a national basis. If all the corn, wheat and grain sorghum grown in the U.S. in 1978 were turned into alcohol, the energy in all that would replace only 14 percent of the gasoline energy used in the U.S. that year," he remarked.

"Alcohol is a lousy fuel for a diesel engine. Even though there are ways it can be run through a diesel, every one carries the possibility of reduced engine life or catastrophic failure. The major manufacturers of diesel engines for farm and industrial equipment recommend against alcohol fuel use in diesel engines," Jackson added.

While Jackson pointed out that vegetable oils might offer a slightly better fuel alternative, he did not paint a rosy picture for the use of that product either.

"Vegetable oils, like soybean, sunflower seed, cottonseed and peanut oils, can be run in diesel engines, though there are problems with combustion chamber deposits and crankcase oil thickening. Most of these problems are a result of the viscosity of the vegetable oils. There is a relatively simple process that will reduce the viscosity of the oil enough to reduce these problems. However, the catch is that, again, the vegetable oil supply is too little. The entire 1978 soybean crop, by far the largest oil crop in the U.S. would have produced enough oil to replace only 17 percent of the diesel fuel used that year," Jackson explained.

He predicted that the diesel engine will remain the primary power plant for agricultural machinery.

"A current USDA estimate is that 57 percent of tractors and 41 percent of self-propelled combines are diesel powered today. Those are expected to grow to 88 and 94 percent by 1990. Farmers have switched to diesel engines for good reasons including fewer tune-ups, good lugging ability and better fuel economy. The diesel engine has the highest thermal efficiency of any engine today," said Jackson.

"The trend of getting more power out of the same size engine will continue through turbocharging and intercooling. Other engine forms will be developed in the future, but the diesel will set the standards of performance and efficiency they must attain," he added.

Responding to questioning, Jackson stated that in the future, tractor engines will likely be designed to run on whatever fuel is available.

"As far as alternate fuels, sunflower oil would probably be best, but I don't think many farms would be equipped to develop this fuel," he said.

According to Jackson, future diesel tractors will be required to burn a poorer quality of diesel as refiners attempt to obtain the maximum amount of the fuel from each barrel of crude.

"There is still a terrific amount of inefficiency and room for improvement in engines, and as fuel gets higher priced you will see more and more emphasis on improving this efficiency. Sometimes it isn't necessarily the energy in the fuel but how well you get it fired," stated Jackson.

"The price of both the crops you produce and the fuel you use to do so are bound to go up. You wind up trading one for the other. I think crops will be much more valuable for food than for fuel," Jackson remarked.

Dr. B.A. Stewart,

laboratory director and soil scientist at the USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory at Bushland commented on the importance of getting the maximum mileage from natural rainfall which occurs during the crop growing season.

"We have to use our rainfall a lot more efficiently in the future. An inch of water amounts to 400 extra pounds of sorghum or 2.5 bushels of wheat," said Dr. Stewart.

The Bushland researcher outlined an experiment he has been conducting in which a predetermined amount of irrigation water is added to a field, with the field then allowed to "self adjust" the amount of land irrigated.

Under the system, the amount of land actually irrigated depends on the precipitation received during the season, with the greater the rainfall, the greater the amount of land irrigated.

Under Stewart's system the field is divided into three water management sections with the upper half managed as "fully irrigated."

The next portion of the field is managed as a "tailwater runoff" section using furrow runoff from the fully ir-

Suspect Claims Marijuana Caused Las Vegas Hilton Fire

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Police were searching today for a mysterious man they knew only as "Joe" after Philip B. Cline told them he accidentally touched off the deadly Las Vegas Hilton fire with a marijuana cigarette while engaging in a homosexual act with the man, authorities said.

Cline, 23, a room-service busboy charged with arson and murder in the blaze, made the statement to authorities Thursday, a day after his arrest, police said.

Police said they were "satisfied" Cline set Tuesday's eighth-floor blaze, which along with three smaller fires killed eight people and injured 198.

Authorities "certainly will attempt to locate" his homosexual partner, "if he exists," said Lt. John Conner, chief of the Metropolitan Police Department's homicide division.

Police said Cline had been a busboy at four other Las Vegas Strip hotels since coming here in January 1980. They included the Silverbird, El Cortez, Caesars Palace and the MGM Grand, where a fire Nov. 21 killed 84 people and injured 700.

Officials at the MGM Grand said Cline left work there 20 days after being hired last May.

"There is no indication at this time that he was involved in the MGM fire," said Detective Sgt. Bob Hilliard. "We will investigate anything arson-related to this individual."

Reagan Shooting for 1983 For Balancing Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he still hopes to fulfill a campaign pledge to balance the budget in 1983 even though White House economists are conceding privately it is unlikely the federal deficit can be erased before 1984.

"We're taking a shot at 1983, we hope," Reagan told reporters as he left a private dinner Thursday night. "If we try for '83, we're sure to get it by '84."

Earlier Thursday, in a possible preview of how the administration would explain backing down on Reagan's bullish budget forecast, White House press secretary James S. Brady said the "economy inheritance" from former President Carter was "much worse than anyone thought it would be."

Several sources, who asked not to be identified, said officials now are indicating that 1984 is probably the earliest the budget can be balanced.

One congressional aide briefed by the administration said of a balanced budget in 1983: "I don't think that's realistic at this time."

The administration's latest thinking on wiping out the federal deficit emerged as Reagan continued a series of meetings with Cabinet officials to discuss budget cuts he will propose next week.

The president is expected to propose spending cuts of about $10 billion to $15 billion for the current year and deeper cuts of up to $50 billion for the 1982 fiscal year.

The administration program also is expected to call for 10 percent-a-year personal income tax cuts for the next three years and a business tax cut through increased depreciation allowances.

Indications Thursday that the goal of a balanced 1983 budget was slipping came one day after reports that the administration had lowered its sights on what its economic recovery package could achieve by the end of next year.

Sources said Wednesday the administration is forecasting inflation of slightly more than 8 percent in 1982, up from an earlier estimate of 6.5 percent.

At the same time, the White House was said to be backing off an earlier prediction of 7 percent economic growth in 1982 in favor of a smaller estimate of 4 percent.

In a paid campaign television address last Oct. 24, Reagan reiterated his call for spending and tax cuts and said, "The fact is, this program will give us a balanced budget by 1983, and possibly by 1982."

But sources say the latest forecasts are for a relatively small budget deficit for 1983.

Murray L. Weidenbaum, Reagan's choice to head the White House Council of Economic Advisers, said at the White House it is still his "personal hope" that the administration can produce a balanced budget by 1984.

Tax Board Eyes Personnel Policy

The Deaf Smith County District Tax Appraisal Board approved a plan giving full-time employees of the tax district ten working days vacation per year and six holidays in a Thursday meeting.

Board members also voted to add the vice chairman to the list of those able to sign checks. He joins the chairman of the board, secretary and chief appraiser.

Charlie Bell of Southwestern Life presented a proposed retirement plan to board members who also considered a Texas County Life Plan administered statewide. Hospitalization insurance was also discussed in last night's meeting.

The chief appraiser told tax board members the district had an account balance of $39,601.37 after first quarter payment from the various tax entities.

Board members voted to retain the same officers—Bruce Coleman is chairman of the board; James Gentry is vice chairman; Dan Hall will remain the board's secretary.

Perot Wins Another Round In Ongoing Dispute With Iran

DALLAS (AP) — Texas computer millionaire H. Ross Perot, who hired commando raiders to spring two of his employees from an Iranian prison in 1979, has won another round in his continuing dispute with Iran.

This victory came in a U.S. District Court here as a federal judge granted Perot's request for a temporary injunction, blocking the transfer of $20 million to Iran. Perot's computer company, Electronic Data Systems Corp., was granted that $20 million by Porter in an earlier breach-of-contract suit EDS filed against the government of Iran.

In issuing his ruling, Porter said former President Jimmy Carter acted unconstitutionally when he threw out all court-ordered attachments of frozen Iranian funds in the United States. The request for injunctive relief was the first major challenge to Carter's executive order, issued as part of the U.S.-Iran accords that led to freeing of the 52 U.S. hostages in Iran.

Porter said Carter's action to free the Iranian funds by decree, sweeping aside court orders and lawsuits, was an "unwarranted intrusion" into the judicial branch of government.

EDS attorney Thomas W. Luce III declined to speculate whether the decision would affect other companies suing Iran. "The judge dealt only with EDS issues," said Luce. "He said the president did not have the constitutional right to interfere with EDS' suit against Iran."

The Justice Department, which had argued against the injunction in Porter's courtroom Feb. 3, had no comment on Porter's Thursday decision.

However, Justice Department lawyers have said they believe the EDS case unique among 388 pending lawsuits by American firms or individuals seeking compensation from Iran since a judgment already had been given before the Iranian accords were reached.

At issue in that suit was EDS' claim that Iran had defaulted on a contract to computerize its national health, welfare and social security records.

On May 9, 1980, Porter found that Iran was guilty of breach of contract and owed EDS $20 million. The judgment was upheld by two appeals courts and the government of Iran has now appeal the amount of the judgment to the 5th U.S. Circuit of Appeals.

In Thursday's 32-page opinion, dealing with the EDS challenge to Carter's decree, Porter said Carter acted unconstitutionally in voiding all court-ordered attachments on U.S.-held Iranian assets.

The hostage accords Carter approved shortly before he left office Jan. 20 called for the transfer of all frozen Iranian assets to the Federal Reserve Bank in New York. The funds would then be transferred within nine months to a security account for settlement of U.S. companies' legal claims against Iran.

Carter's executive order "raises serious constitutional issues with regard to the power of the Executive Branch to nullify or negate the constitutional and statutory authority ... of courts with regard to pending cases," Porter said.

In addition to the question of Carter's authority to issue such an order, Porter said there is doubt about the legality of the document itself since, at the time the order was validated, "Jimmy Carter was no longer president of the United States and accordingly that the order is without legal effect."

The executive order provided that it was not to take effect until the hostages had safely departed from Iran, but that did not occur until after Ronald Reagan had been sworn into office, and the executive order has never been signed by Reagan, Porter said.

"I cannot ignore these principles, and neither may the executive. Neither can I acquiesce in an unwarranted intrusion into the powers of the judicial branch by Congress or the executive," said the judge.

A $20 million, interest-bearing certificate of deposit is being held at Marine Midland Bank in New York to satisfy the EDS judgment from Iran.

In 1979, Perot hired retired Army Col. Arthur "Bull" Simon to lead a commando-style raid into Iran to free two EDS computer engineers who had been arrested on charges of official misconduct in connection with the computer contract.

Simon's raid succeeded after Iranian revolutionaries, paid by Perot, incited a riot and stormed Tehran's Gasre prison on Feb. 11, the day the Ayatollah Khomeini's supporters took control of the government.

The injunction issued Thursday marked at least the second time this month that a judge had issued an order barring the government from transferring Iranian funds.

U.S. District Judge H. Lee Sarokin issued a temporary restraining order in Newark, N.J., on Feb. 2 preventing the Treasury Department from transferring $500,000 from a Trenton, N.J., bank. Behring International Inc. of Houston said Iran had agreed in federal court to pay the money and that it should not be transferred.

President's Programs Given Two Years

NEW YORK (AP) — If President Reagan manages to cut the size of government, as promised, it won't happen without cries from critics that he is insensitive to the needs of people. It is inevitable.

Amid the howling, therefore, how long are "the people" likely to stand behind their President?

Two years, at least, says Richard Leshner, President of the Chamber of Commerce and an outspoken exponent of the "let's rebuild America" theme, a theme he chose, as the title of his recent book.

Two years is Leshner's minimum estimate, based on the unlikely chance Reagan will make almost no progress toward his goals of cutting taxes, spending and regulations. But if he succeeds as Leshner expects him to, then the support, Leshner says, "will be indefinite."

Unlike analysts who claim the recent election shouldn't be interpreted as a mandate for Reagan's fiscal conservatism, Leshner insists it is just that. And, he says, when the tax and other cuts are in place the President probably may generate even greater support.

It is inconceivable that Reagan won't show early progress, he says, and he claims that some of that progress (See CUTS, Page 2-A)

Migrant Committee Will Meet

There will be a regular monthly meeting of the Hereford ISD Title I-Title II Migrant Parent Advisory Committee on Tuesday, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m. in the art room at the Community Center.

All district members and interested parents are urged to attend this meeting.

Transportation can be made available by contacting Corinne Briones, Director of the Parental Involvement office, 364-4541. Baby sitters will also be provided.

KKK Plans

Protest Rally

SANTA FE, Texas (AP). — Members of the Ku Klux Klan have received official permission for a Saturday protest rally in this coastal fishing town. Klansmen say their demonstration will be to protest fishing by Vietnamese refugees who have settled in the Galveston Bay area.

The KKK received a permit for the rally after paying $300. Police Chief Byron Lamb said the permit will allow as many as 500 people to attend a fish fry, followed by speeches and the burning of a cross and a small boat. The rally is scheduled for a field on private property.

Joe Vickery of the Galveston County Health District said representatives of the Klan told him they expected about 250 to attend the rally. Lamb said the group had complied with all provisions of a new city ordinance passed in anticipation the Klan would seek authority to hold the rally. A Klan official showed him a $300,000 liability insurance policy, he said.

Santa Fe is a small community in Galveston County on Texas 6, about five miles east of Alvin and about 15 miles from Seabrook.

2 Men Convicted

Of Tornado Aid Fraud

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A local attorney and a former government official were convicted on fraud and bribery charges in connection with applications for low-interest disaster loans following the killer tornadoes that struck here in April 1979.

Attorney Sam Moreau and former Small Business Administration of-cial Bob Perry were found guilty Thursday after 14 hours of jury deliberations in U.S. District Court. The trial lasted nine days.

Prosecutors said Moreau made false statements in applying for loans to replace his household furnishings and office equipment following the April 10 tornadoes. Further, they said he did not use the SBA loan money to buy the property he said was destroyed.

Perry was convicted of improperly aiding Moreau in making the false statements and of influencing the SBA to approve the loans.

Moreau was found innocent on a charge that he made false statements to secure loans to replace cattle on a ranch he owned near Vernon. Perry was acquitted on a charge he improperly influenced the loan application in that instance.

Valley Growers

Spared from Freeze

By The Associated Press

Citrus growers along the Rio Grande Valley of Texas heaved a sigh of relief after checking their crops and finding that temperatures did not get cold enough to cause crop damage.

Temperatures did get cold Thursday, following the passage of a major cold front, but the valley crops were spared from heavy losses, which would have meant hefty price hikes nationwide.

Most of Texas shivered in the teens Wednesday and Thursday nights because of that cold front and government forecasters had predicted below-freezing weather in the valley, also.

But "the Lord was with us," state Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said, adding that a survey showed no damage to crops.

A hard freeze probably would have killed $35 million worth of fruit and vegetable crops, doubling the price consumers pay for the products, according to a spokesman for a growers' organization.

"There was no problem whatsoever," said Mike Wallace of Texas Citrus Mutual. "The silver lining came through again."

NCOs Sing to Only

Five-Star General

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Five-star General Omar N. Bradley, known as the "GI's general" during World War II, was honored on his 88th birthday by 240 senior enlisted men who sang to him and gave him a standing ovation.

Bradley, confined to a wheelchair because of arthritis, had a twinkle in his eye as the NCOs sang "Happy Birthday" to the military leader known for his concern for the welfare of his troops.

Thursday's birthday salute was part of opening ceremonies for a leadership school for non-commissioned officers. Bradley waved twice in gratitude for the tribute as he sat in the aisle of an auditorium along the front row.

Afterward, he listened to a speech given by a lower-ranking officer, four-star Gen. John W. Vessey, vice chief of staff of the Army. Vessey greeted Bradley in the lobby of Hinman Hall as Bradley's aides wheeled him inside.

A private birthday party will be held in Bradley's honor Saturday night at this Army post where he has lived with his wife, Kitty, since 1977.

Bradley's arrival at the auditorium was delayed by about half an hour. Military sources who asked that their names not be used said Bradley was at home waiting on a birthday call from President Reagan and would depart for the NCO academy only after he had received it.

Bradley, who became the nation's only living five-star general 12 years ago when Dwight D. Eisenhower died, does not answer questions from the press, and it was not known if the call from the president was received.

Weather

By The Associated Press

West Texas: Partly cloudy with warm afternoons and cool nights through early next week. Only minor day to day temperature changes with highs in the 60s north to the upper 70s southwest and lows will range in the 30s north to the 40s south.

rigated section while the bottom portion of the field is managed as a "dryland" section that uses any runoff from the other two sections.

A crop such as grain sorghum is planted in the system with the top third of the field seeded at a six pound per acre rate, the midsection seeded at three pounds per acre and the lower end seeded at 1.5 pounds per acre.

Furrow dams are placed every 10 feet throughout the field with every other row irrigated and water is allowed to advance as far as it will down the furrows. Furrow dams on the lower end of the field stop any rainfall runoff.

According to Stewart, a predetermined amount of water is added by irrigating five times at 14-day intervals, and sets are made on a 12 or 24 hour basis requiring only minimal labor and management.

"With the rapid depletion of ground water supplies and the soaring costs of pumping, we must once again realize that our primary source of water in the area is rainfall. Irrigation must be considered as a supplemental source of water," said Stewart, concerning his experiments.

"In the past, too many people considered irrigation as the primary source of water and paid little attention to trying to maximize the efficient use of rainfall in irrigation systems. We must focus future attention to fully utilizing our rainfall—in both dryland and irrigated systems. At the same time, we must look at the economic implications of such systems. To be successful, limited irrigation systems must be practical and profitable, as well as being efficient users of limited water resources," said Stewart.

Additional details on predictions for future trends in farm machinery as well as details on other presentations at the crop symposium will be featured in the farm section of Sunday's Brand.

Fire

Meanwhile, assistant Sheriff Larry Ketzenberger told lawmakers in Carson City that investigators were studying a number of recent blazes on the Las Vegas Strip to see if they were linked to the Hilton blaze.

Cline began work at the Hilton five days before the fire, Conner said.

Cline "indicated" he had been on the eighth floor (of the hotel)...and was engaged in a homosexual act when the draperies were set on fire next to the elevator," Conner said.

"He says it was lit by a marijuana cigarette," Conner said.

The blaze rocketed up the elevator shaft, roared out of eighth-floor windows and climbed the outside of the east tower to the roof of the 30-story hotel.

Cline identified his partner only as "Joe" and maintained he knew no more about him, Conner said. Police "don't know who he is...or if there is a 'Joe,'" Conner said.

They were engaged in sex on a bench near the elevators under a bay window — an area people frequently passed, Cline allegedly told police. "We hope someone saw them," Conner said.

Police have not commented on a possible motive for arson.

Police said Cline had not been ruled out as a suspect in three smaller fires that erupted on other floors of the hotel. But they also are looking for additional suspects, according to the Las Vegas Review Journal.

Cline was a ninth-grade dropout with a troubled past — truancy, psychiatric treatment and "losing his jobs and stuff like that," according to his father Robert, a retired Air Force master sergeant in Sunnyside, Calif.

Cline first was questioned at the scene of the fire and released, but detectives later decided "the story he was telling could not possibly be true," Conner said.

He claimed to be picking up dirty trays and glasses when he spotted flames and tried to douse them.

"But when we checked later — after the fire — the trays and glasses were still in the hallways," Conner said.

After Cline "failed miserably" on a lie detector test Wednesday, he "then admitted that he had set the fire," Conner said.

Justice of the Peace Earle White ordered Cline held without bail at a one-minute hearing Thursday that Cline watched by closed circuit television from jail.

Within the next seven days, he will be arraigned on one count of first-degree arson and eight counts of murder, White said.

Cline was not represented by a lawyer at the time of his confession, nor had he asked for legal counsel, but Conner said, "I think we'll be able to use it in court."

It doesn't disturb Leshner. It is, he says, what the people want. And, yes, he added, it is consistent with the Chamber's vision of returning to basic American principles. Defense, he said, is such a principle.

"But anyone who would call her, patronizingly, a little old lady has encountered neither her energy nor her wit.

Cuts

even now is beginning to show in the decline of interest rates, a direction he expects to continue.

"And there absolutely will be a tax cut," he said. "A deep personal cut and a cut in business taxes," as well as reductions in the marriage penalty, capital gains and taxes on interest, dividends and royalties.

Soon, Leshner believes, there will be evidence of huge spending cuts. He predicts that "both the energy and education departments will be dismantled," and that many regulations will be tamed or eliminated.

"Our candidate is OSHA," he said, referring to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, considered by some businessmen to be an agency of harassment rather than one dedicated to remedying abuses.

Leshner is convinced voters will support such a program as it evolves, and he believes they will remain with the President as he reviews and strips government from energy issues, develops foreign trade and builds the country's military strength.

Hispanics Applaud Turnout; Worried about Conservatism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hispanic leaders, meeting with President Reagan for the first time since his election, applauded the new Republican administration's turnout but many left the Thursday meeting with their worries about the government's conservative turn intact.

"I regret that we do not have a compelling message of hope and inspiration for our community after this meeting," Ruben Bonilla, president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said.

The Corpus Christi, Texas, lawyer, said, however, that the lunch was "unprecedented" because of the number of administration heavyweights who turned out for a meeting with Hispanic social activists.

Reagan's White House lunch for the leaders of 20 Hispanic organizations included Vice President George Bush and White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, both Texans, as well as top advisers Edwin Meese, Edwin Gray and Elizabeth Dole.

A pre-lunch briefing included a meeting with Education Secretary Terrel Bell, who recently touched off Hispanic protests by announcing that proposed federal bilingual education regulations would be withdrawn.

Bonilla said communications and briefings by the White House would not be enough to soothe the Hispanic community.

"We must have impact into policy formulation," he said. "Deepen the trenches, is all I can say, because we can expect less support from the government not only in funding but also in the protection of civil liberties."

Other Hispanic leaders were more optimistic about the promise of continued communication with the Republican administration, despite worries about specific programs and proposed budget cuts.

"I think it went well," Raul Yzaguirre, president of the National Council of La Raza, told reporters.

The San Juan, Texas, native said Reagan told the group that five Hispanics would be appointed soon to sub-Cabinet positions and more would follow.

There have not been any top Hispanic appointments in the Reagan administration so far.

Reports have circulated that the first Hispanic appointments would be as directors of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Small Business Administration.

Vilma Martinez of San Francisco, president of the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund, said Reagan spoke about his record as California governor of appointing more Hispanics than any previous officeholder.

Reagan said he would like to match that record as president, Ms. Martinez told reporters.

"I would have to say I was very delighted that this meeting took place," she said.

The San Antonio native said the high caliber of the administration officials attending the luncheon represented "a very good beginning" for Hispanic access.

Ms. Martinez said the conversation with the president included such topics as civil rights and the Voting Rights Act, coming up for renewal next year; bilingual education; and proposed budget cuts and their impact on the poor.

Other Texans at the meeting included Jose Cano, chairman of the American GI Forum and Pedro Ruiz, director of Operation SER. Both are from Dallas.

'No Strikes' Pledged Except as Last Resort

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Independent labor leaders pledged to call no strikes except as a last resort as Poland's new premier promised a "broad dialogue" with the unions, announced a 10-point plan to strengthen the economy and purged the government.

The leaders of Solidarity, the nationwide labor federation, made their no-strike pledge in a communique issued after a meeting in the Baltic port of Gdansk. But a spokesman said it was not in response to Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski's speech before Parliament Thursday calling for a 90-day moratorium on strikes.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said he had not heard the premier's speech, but reiterated, "We don't want strikes." He also said the union was forming an 11-member national committee to take "complex, unpopular decisions" in the coming week but did not elaborate.

Jaruzelski, a four-star general who is also defense minister, asked the Poles to "put their confidence in the government" and said his program was aimed at improving food supplies, housing and health services; strengthening price controls, and increasing farm production and aid to the old and infirm.

He said there would be a "broad dialogue" with labor in the coming months and that the Roman Catholic Church would have a greater role in solving Poland's crisis.

He named six new Cabinet ministers and two new vice premiers in the sixth purge of government leaders since the strike wave last summer that resulted in legalization of trade unions independent of Communist Party control for the first time in the Soviet bloc.

The ministries affected were agriculture, education, industry, forestry, health and heavy machinery. The two new vice premiers are Andrzej Jedynek, one of the government negotiators who helped end last summer's strikes, and Mieczyslaw Rakowski, editor of the liberal weekly Polityka and an opponent of hard-line government policies.

They replaced Stanislaw Kowalczyk and Aleksander Kopec. Kowalczyk was one of the last remaining officials appointed by Edward Gierek, the party chief purged in September for not anticipating the labor crisis. The reason for Kopec's ouster was unclear. He negotiated strike-ending agreements with miners last September that gave them a shorter work day and weekends off.

Jaruzelski, who replaced Jozef Pinski as premier Wednesday, said in his nationally televised speech to Parliament: "I am calling on all trade unions with an appeal. Let us stop all strikes. I am asking you for three months of honest work, 90 days of calm, to put some order in our economy."

"Forces of evil have been attempting to penetrate Solidarity and lead it toward false positions, anarchy and derailment of socialism," he continued. This, he said, could lead to "conflict and...the most terrible thing, a fratricidal war." He warned that the government "has the constitutional right" to defend the socialist system and enough power to do it.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — We who live in this part of the state have a lot to be thankful for. We have a strong economy, with mineral and agricultural wealth. We have some of the best and friendliest people in the world.

But one of the problems we seem to have had is representation. Washington is a long way away for a large part of the country, so we have no monopoly on that Capitol. Austin seems a long way away for us, too—probably farther away from us than for any other Texans.

Very few people can afford the time, trouble and money it would take for them to go to Austin during the legislative session. Most of the time such an inconvenience would be too high a price to pay for representative government. That is why we have set up a mobile office; we intend to bring state government to you.

What we will do is send a van converted to a mobile office with our representative to every town in the 31st Senatorial District. Manning the mobile office will be Henry Honea. Henry has lived in our district all his life and is concerned about the problems we face.

The mobile office will visit every major town in the entire 26-county district at least once a month and will visit every town in the district at least once every two months.

The main purpose of the mobile office is to bring state government to you. The mobile office will have literature from various state agencies, and it will give you the opportunity to express your opinions and ideas, and to register complaints regarding issues affecting state government.

We already have worked up a complete schedule of the mobile office through May. This schedule will be posted at your County Courthouse, Post Office and other prominent places.

We really want to hear from you, and we are working to serve you. That's what the mobile office is all about. We cannot make your home any closer to Austin, but we can bring Austin a little closer to your home.

Stars and stripes

The present U.S. flag originated in a resolution of the Marine Committee of the Second Continental Congress adopted June 14, 1777, at Philadelphia. It called for a flag of 13 alternating red and white stripes with a union of 13 stars on a blue field. There is no record, however, of the designation of a designer. Despite repeated request, Gen. George Washington did not receive flags for his forces until 1783, after the Revolutionary War was over.

Long distance

The first known system for delivering water to cities was built by the Phoenicians. The Greeks copied the system of digging tunnels to bring water to their cities, and the Romans developed it with aqueducts 50 to 100 feet high that brought water to Rome from more than 60 miles away.

Teenager Arrested On DWI Charges

Police officers arrested a 16-year-old boy for driving while intoxicated (DWI) and jailed him Thursday night.

Officers also looked into a disturbance call at Sugarland Mall, but no charges were filed in the case.

Taylor Petroleum, East Highway 60, reported the theft of $8 in gas. Police officers do know the license number of the 1974 Ford car and are investigating the case.

Mary Cervantez, 405 McKinley, reported a burglary and criminal mischief to police about 9:45 p.m. The complaint is under investigation by police at this time.

Larry Granado, South Highway 385, told police someone stole about $100 in assorted tools from the back of his pickup while it was parked at Taylor & Sons Grocery last night about 7:30.

Officers investigated an accident at East Highway 60 and Dairy Road at 6:20 p.m. A vehicle pulled onto the highway from Dairy Road and failed to yield the right-of-way to a second vehicle. No injuries resulted from the accident.

Police issued 8 traffic citations yesterday.

Yard Fire Reported

Firemen answered a call to 339 Ave. G at 7 p.m. Thursday to extinguish the backyard of that home.

The city fire marshal said grass and trash were on fire when firemen arrived and guessed that the fire may have been started by careless use of matches.

Ann Landers

Setting Record Straight

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are writing about your statement, "Until recently, women have had a big advantage in the divorce courts but the pendulum has begun to swing in the other direction." Where did you get your facts? Ours come from the U.S. Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census (Divorce, Child Custody and Child Support, June 1979). They show women NEVER had the advantage.

More than 90 percent of single-parent families are maintained by a woman. This means that in the vast majority of divorces the woman is left with total responsibility for the physical care of the children—whose father is absent. Should the financial responsibility be hers as well?

More than three-fourths of the 4.9 million mothers who are divorced, separated, remarried or never married do not receive child support. Either support was not ordered, or the fathers ignore the court order.

Three-fifths of the women who do receive support get less than $125 a month. More than two-thirds of women receiving child support have fulltime jobs.

The large majority of divorced men who complain about being taken to the cleaners don't want to accept the responsibility of supporting their children. Please set the record straight.—Nina Rothchild, Council on the Economic Status of Women (St. Paul, Minn.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You did a very thorough job of it. Thank you.

My reference to the advantage that women had in bygone days was relevant to custody. A father rarely won custody of his children unless he could prove his wife was an alcoholic, a hooker or insane. This has changed drastically. If the judge decides the father is the better "mother," he can obtain custody with very little trouble.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What are the guidelines for a second marriage? We are the parents of the groom. The first wedding was a lavish church affair. We gave the

Small Talk

By SUE COLEMAN

This is it, Friday the 13th that we warned you about last week. It can be a double unlucky, or lucky, day as you take it.

If you consider it unlucky, maybe it would be best just to spend the whole day in bed and not take chances. Come to think of it, that might be a good way to spend a whole day anyhow. Very relaxing.

Garden Beautiful Club members are planning more tree planting this spring on Deaf Smith General Hospital grounds, I notice, and that's a project that has had my approval ever since the club began it, ten years ago or more.

The club is going about it the way that seems to me should be taken in any beautification project in a West Texas town.

The club is planting trees to replace those taken out because they are dying—a fate that is overtaking so many of our Chinese elm trees because of age.

When Garden Beautiful Club started work on the hospital grounds nearly all the trees on the west lawn, which had been set there when the hospital was new some half-century ago, were dead or dying.

They were removed, but the club didn't just let the space remain bare. Trees set then are now large enough to make a beauty spot in that part of town, and give welcome shade in summer.

They are not all of one variety, so they won't all die off at once, as the elms did. And they have more the look of a natural grove of trees—something that isn't natural to the High Plains, but as beautiful here as in forested country.

When I went to the Community Concert's program Monday night it was with a feeling that you couldn't expect much from a trio composed of saxophone, cello and piano—sounds like an odd combination.

But it was one of the best in several years for Community Concerts, and Harvey Pittel's sax fitted in perfectly in trips composed for a different instrument—like a flute, violin or recorder. Since a saxophone is a relatively new instrument, the classic composers didn't put it in their works.

Pittel shared the spotlight with the other two virtuosos in the trio, giving solo spots to Paul Suits on the piano and Eric Bartlett on the cello. Either of those young men is a soloist that I'd like to hear in concert.

Some high school band members of a decade ago may remember Pittel, who told the audience he served as clinician in band clinics at West Texas State then. He also confided that he is a Texan now, living at Austin where he is professor of saxophone in the UTA music department.

His informal comments included explanations of the four different saxes he played, some small and straight, the alto sax curved because, he said, it would be too long if it were straightened out.

He made fine music on them all, from works of Beethoven to Toots Camarata's jazz pieces.

Bippus Extension Club Plans February Events

February activities were discussed when members of the Bippus Extension Club met at the home of Flora Homfeld Wednesday.

The club will have a Valentine party today at the Bippus Community House at 5:30 p.m.

The Extension Homemakers' Appreciation luncheon Feb. 23, was also discussed. It was decided at the meeting that Flora Homfeld will attend the slow cooker demonstration Feb. 26 at Hereford. Kate Bradley presented a program about citizenship and members worked on the club project of making curtains for the dining room of the community house.

Those present at the meeting were Lou Hall, Mariellen Homfeld, Kate Bradley, Juanita Perrin, Margaret Hall and Flora Homfeld.

The club will meet again March 12 at the home of Mariellen Homfeld.

Drug Trade Flourishes in Alaska

By PAUL JENKINS
Associated Press Writer
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Frustrated drug agents on America's last frontier say they are being buried one cellophane bag at a time. Alaska has a drug problem growing along with its population.

And state and law enforcement officials say Alaska is ill-equipped to fight the increase of cocaine, marijuana and illicit prescription drugs.

"There's absolutely no doubt about it. We're losing the war here," said one officer. "With the manpower and money we have, we don't have a chance. It's all we can do to keep up with the paperwork."

Drugs are found everywhere in this state, whose image is more wilderness and fresh air than snorting and shooting up. Agents say the drug trade, which began to flourish during construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline when workers had huge paychecks to spend, is not confined to the rough-and-tumble bars where signs warn prostitutes to ply their trade elsewhere. They say cocaine, marijuana and harder drugs also surface in fashionable city neighborhoods and in the bush villages of Alaska's remote interior.

But Alaska has few full-time narcotics agents. No statewide agency deals specifically with drug enforcement. Only two dogs in Alaska are trained to sniff out drugs.

Complicating the enforcement problem is the fact that Alaska's 400,000 residents are scattered over 586,000 square miles.

Police say they have confiscated more drugs than ever before, but there is no central accounting of the amount of drugs confiscated. Other records hint at the scope of the problem, though.

In the first six months of 1980, Fairbanks police confiscated 14.4 ounces of cocaine. In November, they seized 20 ounces from a single dealer. In a six-week period in Anchorage late last year, agents seized 75 ounces.

"I sometimes wonder if it's because we're doing a better job," said one agent, asking not to be identified. "But I really believe there are just more drugs out there."

An 18-month-old survey by the Alaska Peace Officers Association indicates there were fewer than 1,300 sworn police officers in the state.

"And that includes park rangers, environmental protection people and fish and game officers," said Ernie Beauchamp, a member of the APOA board of directors. "Only a very small percentage of those officers are working in drugs."

Those few officers depend for help on the "metro units" of the Alaska State Troopers, who run the closest thing the state has to a centralized drug enforcement office. They field six full-time drug agents, and two work part-time at Anchorage. Units are combinations of troopers, local officers and agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

In 1972, the first year of the metro concept, units in Fairbanks and Anchorage ran on a budget of $350,000. For fiscal 1981, the state allocated $805,000 for those two units and a third on the Kenai Peninsula.

To make a comparison, that is substantially less than the $1 million allotted the 23-member special investigations unit in Portland, Ore., for fiscal 1981. Yet Portland is a city of 370,000 spread over only 93 square miles. And 17 of the 23 special officers there devote their time to drug enforcement.

"It's a drop in the bucket," Michael Daugherty, president of the Alaska Association of Chiefs of Police, said of the drug-fighting budget. "It's not enough to deal with the problem on a statewide basis."

Prosecutors add that the few officers working drugs are often mystified at what one called the "hodgepodge" of state drug laws.

"These are old drug laws," said Rhonda Butterfield, an assistant in the attorney general's Office of Special Investigations. "Some date from the '60s and some from the '70s. They were adopted piecemeal to deal with specific drugs. The drug laws now are inconsistent."

There is, for example, no "intent to distribute" provision in narcotics possession laws, so officers who arrest a suspect with 20 pounds of cocaine can charge him only with the lesser offense of possession, she said.

Sentencing also seems inconsistent. An adult who delivers LSD to a minor commits a felony carrying a punishment of up to life in prison. But delivery of heroin or cocaine to a minor, also a felony, rates only a 10- to 30-year term.

For the past three years, stringent new drug laws have surfaced and sunk in the 60-member Legislature. Gov. Jay Hammond tried to steer a bill through the Legislature last year. It failed in a political squabble over who would get credit.

Hammond plans to try again this year with a law, authored by Ms. Butterfield, which would break drugs into classifications. Alcohol abuse would be the least serious offense while heroin would be classified as the most dangerous drug, with its use receiving the harshest penalties.

Some of the state's drug agents doubt even new laws will change things, and they blame public apathy.

"The average person doesn't see an individual walking down the street with straws up his nose, or a heroin addict with a needle sticking in it," said one Anchorage officer. "They just don't want to hear about it."

YOU SHALL BE A WAY MAKER

John's father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Spirit and gave this prophecy:

"Praise the Lord, the God of Israel, for He has come to visit His people and redeem them.

"He is sending us a Mighty Savior from the royal line of His servant David, just as He promised through His holy prophets long ago—Someone to save us from our enemies, from all who hate us.

"He has been merciful to our ancestors, yes, to Abraham himself, by remembering His sacred promise to him, and by granting us the privilege of serving God fearlessly, freed from our enemies, and by making us holy and acceptable, ready to stand in His presence forever.

"And you, my little son, shall be called the prophet of the glorious God, for you will prepare the way for the Messiah.

"You will tell His people how to find salvation through forgiveness of their sins.

"All this will be because the mercy of our God is very tender, and heaven's dawn is about to break upon us, to give light to those who sit in darkness and death's shadow, and to guide us to the path of peace."

The little boy greatly loved God and when he grew up he lived out in the lonely wilderness until he began his public ministry to Israel.

Sex Symbol's Birth Certificate Found

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eighteen years after Marilyn Monroe's death, the widely held belief that the blonde sex symbol was born illegitimate has been disproved by authorities who found copies of her birth certificate at the home of a dead man they believe was her father.

Martin Edward Mortensen, 85, collapsed at the wheel of his automobile Tuesday in downtown Riverside and died of an apparent heart attack, a Riverside county coroner's investigator said.

Miss Monroe's mother has been in mental institutions since 1953, and early studie biographies reported that her father was dead. Some biographers reported she was born illegitimate.

But Mortensen, who worked as a gas company serviceman for 50 years before retiring in 1965, had told co-workers and his physician he was the late film star's father, giving details of his marriage to her mother that contradict the biographical accounts.

At the modest apartment where Mortensen lived alone in Mira Loma, about 60 miles east of Los Angeles, Ford said he found copies of Miss Monroe's birth certificate as well as marriage and divorce papers for Mortensen and Gladys Baker, Miss Monroe's mother.

The birth certificate states Marilyn Monroe was born Norma Jean Mortensen on June 1, 1926, in Los Angeles. Her father is listed as Edward Mortensen, address unknown, age 29.

The marriage certificate is dated Oct. 11, 1924; the final Los Angeles Superior Court divorce Aug. 15, 1928.

Also found at the apartment were several books about Miss Monroe as well as Mortensen's own birth certificate and his parents' marriage certificate. Ford said he is convinced all the documents are authentic.

Details of her childhood were always cloudy, and a publicist said Miss Monroe wanted the studio biographies to say her father had died.

"It was made up because Marilyn wanted it that way," said Jeff Fore, the film publicist who wrote Miss Monroe's first studio biography for 20th Century-Fox. "She told me her father was dead."

Fore said he later heard that her father had abandoned her mother, and was under the impression that Miss Monroe was illegitimate.

"That's what we all thought," he said. "It's in several books."

Miss Monroe had said her father's name was Mortensen, but "the feeling was it was a name plucked out of the air," Zolotow said.

But Mortensen told gas company counselor Thomas Burns a different story about his marriage and his daughter's birth.

"They were separated when she was born," Burns said. "Marilyn's mother left him and he didn't know she was pregnant at the time. He said she was quite a wild gal, a lot like Marilyn was — a pretty gal, but kind of wild."

Burns said Mortensen didn't really know about his daughter until she was 7 and county welfare authorities subpoenaed him.

Mortensen also disputed stories that he had repudiated Miss Monroe when she tried to reach him as an adult, Burns said.

"He told me she told him she didn't want to have anything to do with him when she became a movie star. He said, 'I never bothered her.'"

Lone Volunteer Fireman Faces A City's $1 Million Lawsuit

FRISCO, Texas (AP) — Mike Dodson isn't happy about battling a $1 million lawsuit without an attorney, but says he'll do it because city officials "did the wrong thing" when they disbanded the town's volunteer fire department.

"What I want to fight for is a name and a reputation," he said of the $1,050,000 civil suit filed against him by Frisco city officials in a 2-year dispute over the Frisco Volunteer Fire Department.

Dodson's troubles began when what he calls "small town politics" prompted the city council to pass an ordinance disbanding the 65-year-old department and creating another volunteer department that is controlled by the city.

"They (the council) can't disband what they didn't create," argues Gordon. "That ordinance was passed in closed session ... they wouldn't talk about it."

He said when the firefighters ignored the ordinance, the city filed suit against 11 members of the 24-man department.

"The only people who were named in the suit were the people who signed up to speak against the ordinance at a city council meeting," Dodson said.

The city then obtained a court order to operate the new volunteer department and use the old department's equipment until the suit was settled.

Sheriff's deputies from Collin and Denton Counties — the small city stretches across the two county lines — appeared the day after the order was issued and confiscated at least five trucks and a van Gordon insists were owned by the firefighters.

Records show the equipment was bought from donations and charity events, he said.

Last fall, 10 of the 11 firefighters named in the suit agreed to an out of court settlement which said, according to Dodson, that both sides would relinquish any claims to the equipment and the city would continue to use it.

Dodson refused to sign and Frisco city attorney Richard Abernathy advised him that the city intended to pursue the suit.

Dodson said his attorney, Mike Griffin, bailed out last month because "he couldn't go against the city."

Dodson said he got a letter Jan. 13 telling him he had to appear in court the 15th. Representing himself, he got a continuance and has been searching for an attorney ever since.

"I've talked to four or five of them," he said. "All of them want money up front or say the case is too complicated."

Dodson says he's not sure what he will do Feb. 19 when his case is due to open in Denton district court.

In the meantime, he says he will contact the district attorney in Denton County and ask him to request a ruling on the legality of the ordinance from the state Attorney General's office.

"I'm the only one (of the 11 firefighters) left," he said. "I think if I can get the attorney general to make a ruling, I think I've got them beat."

Thorny Prices to Hit Would-Be Valentines

DALLAS (AP) — Faces of the romance-minded may turn rose-red this Valentine's season when they learn a dozen of the largest, long-stemmed beauties now cost as much as $75.

"Roses are just like gasoline," said Al Cooper, manager of Carren's Flowers in Dallas. "They've been going up almost daily for the past month."

Prices for a dozen large roses vary from $50 to $75, while smaller roses with shorter stems sell for $35 to $50 a dozen.

Hofmann, owner of The Flower Affair.

"All the growers in California, where we get most of our roses, deplete what they've got for the parade and have to force-grow new flowers in six weeks for the Valentine's Day demand," she said.

"And when they had that freeze down in Florida, our prices (from wholesalers dealing in Florida roses) jumped three times and there was nothing we could do about it."

Jim Parks, owner of J.B. Parks Wholesale Florist, Inc., said his costs have risen because the growers "had a little problem" with the rising cost of natural gas needed to heat greenhouses.

Whatever the reason for the price hikes, florists report no shortage of buyers.

"Roses are the No. 1 seller at Valentine's," Cooper said. "Most people are paying the price, I guess because they think roses make a great impression."

Women Lawmakers Protest Gatherings

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When Garland officials set up a business luncheon with their legislators, they had no idea one lawmaker wouldn't get past the door.

The incident resulted in Wednesday's adoption of a House resolution that state representatives would "refuse to attend any functions in public or private places that deny access to any member of the House."

Rep. Anita Hill, R-Garland, and the other 10 women state representatives sponsored the resolution and stood together at the front of the House when it was presented.

"I'd better inform you that the resolution is for the male House members to judge a beauty contest from among these," Speaker Bill Clayton joked as the women gathered.

Mrs. Hill was turned away from the Citadel Club in the Driskill Hotel here on Monday. Garland city officials had set up a luncheon there to discuss legislative issues with her and Reps. Lee Jackson, R-Dallas, and Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas.

She said the Garland officials were "embarrassed" and did not know ahead of time that the Citadel was an all-male club that does not admit women.

"I tried to talk them into going ahead and having their meeting and just talking with me later but they wouldn't hear of it," Mrs. Hill said.

The group adjourned to the Driskill dining room downstairs from the Citadel.

The House resolution asserts that no state representative "when attending meetings or functions should be denied entrance to any public or private place that other members are permitted to enter."

Rep. Bennie Bock II, D-New Braunfels, suggested the resolution might "violate the Texas Equal Rights Amendment because no male member is listed as a sponsor."

The incident involving Mrs. Hill was reminiscent of one in the late 1960s when a private club refused to allow Rep. Curtis Graves of Houston to enter because he was black.

One of the first newspaper-women was Madam Doubilet de Persan (1677-1771). She was a widow living in Paris and never left her apartment for 40 years. However, she held daily parties at which each guest was required to give her a tidbit of news. She then produced a handwritten newspaper — each issue of which was a collection of news for months.

What Can They Play For? Style!

HOW COULD A basketball team continue to compete for a goal that no longer existed — keep playing if for no other reason than there was nothing else to do until the season was over?

That was basically the essence of the situation facing the Hereford girls' varsity basketball team after it slipped to the league's chosen children, the Monterey Plainswomen, a week ago.

Mauri Montgomery

As the loop's sole unbeaten heavy weight and first-half champ, Monterey was the team to knock off in last week's opening of chapter two. Any team hoping for more than mediocrity (honorable mention or a second-half tie) had to go unmolested in the second round of district play. It wasn't a pretty thought.

BUT COULD SUCH a precedent be set? Wasn't there a clause some where in the 4-5A league rules that prohibited such an uprising? Sower's HHS Sorority didn't think so even though it attempted mutiny unsuccessfully earlier in the first round — Hereford's plea for district parity, destiny, justice, had gone awry in that particular contest after Monterey cinched the win (54-49) with four last ditch charity shots. Yet following an almost identical loss (75-70) last Friday to the Lubbock team, the Whitefaces were forced to stuff destiny into the closet for another year.

THE HEREFORD BRAND SPORTS

WAS THERE ANYTHING left to play for? Head coach Larry Sowers, admittedly disappointed with his team's ruined league chances, thought so as the Hereford club prepared to meet Lubbock Coronado tonight in Lubbock at 6 p.m. "These kids are good basketball players and we've played some good basketball. It's just a matter of finishing the season out with style now," he said.

"Coronado is in about the same boat we're in going into this game. Neither one us are going any where in respect to the district's outcome because Monterey has just about got the whole thing sewed up. Now we'll be playing just to see who wants to win the remaining games the worst," he said.

THINGS COULD BE simpler. Hereford, now 1-1 in the second-half and coming off its second straight road loss 56-30 to the Canyon Eagles, will meet Coronado (1-2) with two of the top players going at less than 100 percent.

Terri Harkins, one of the squad's leading scorers from her forward position, had been absent from school with the flu and guard Amy Schumacher was still recovering from an ankle injury received in the Whiteface's tilt with Monterey.

Senior forward, Deannette Vigil was also out with the flu this week, and a fourth member, Stephanie Foster, isn't expected to see any of the club's remaining contests due to a shoulder separation combined with a more recent sprained ankle.

"WE'VE JUST GOT to regroup somehow before we play them (the Mustangs). Didn't play to well against the last time and considering we've got so many people sick, it appears we're going to have our work cut out for us this time too," Sowers noted.

Hereford overuled a 25-25 halftime tie in order to eventually clinch a 56-47 victory over Lubbock in the two squad's last meeting — a game Sowers termed as a "We weren't ready to play" ball game following its conclusion.

"We finally stretched the win out in the final minutes of the game, but their big girls hurt us on the boards. We'll have to stop them this time if we're going to expect to win," he added.

THE TWO BIG girls Sowers was referring to come in Coronado's two starting posts Pattie McFerren (6-0) and Lubbock's second leading scorer with an average of nine points a game) plus 5-9 LeAnn Wade who is currently averaging 12.1 points per outing as CHS's leading scoring thrust.

"They (McFerren and Wade) are as big as anybody we've played against this year and they'll drum you if you let them. We've just got to control them on the inside and hope that our shooting opens up more than it did when we played them earlier," he said.

'Sexy Legs' Spark Controversy

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — An LPGA magazine highlighting Jan Stephenson's sexy legs has become the talk of the women's golf circuit in the wake of complaints by another tour member of "quasi-pornography."

with 27 victories in Ladies Professional Golf Association tournaments, wrote a commentary for The Miami Herald complaining about the association's overuse of sex appeal in promoting the tour. She particularly cited this year's issue of Fairway, a magazine produced for the sponsors of tour events to sell at their tournaments. The magazine's annual fashion feature this year, titled "The Mystique of Winchester Mystery Mansion," included pictures of scantily clad players.

Stephenson, who caused a stir a few years ago when she appeared on the cover of Sport Magazine with a shirt tied around her waist and the top button undone, reclines on a bed in the Fairway photo feature in a white shorty skirt.

"The obvious question becomes," Blalock wrote in The Herald, "is our organization so unaware of the real glamor and appeal staring it in the face that it must resort to such trash?"

Blalock's major contention was that while sex appeal helped the LPGA draw badly needed attention a decade ago, the tour should by now be able to stand on the athletic ability and personalities of its players.

Blalock's criticisms took many of the players and LPGA officials by surprise. She has avoided the media since, and LPGA officials were unable to contact her Thursday when she skipped a pro-am tournament and didn't show up for practice before the first round of today's S&H Tournament here.

Stephenson told The Tampa Tribune: "When I was getting ready to pose, I thought to myself, 'I don't know if I should do this.' But it was a fashion spread, and I've been in the past fashion stories."

Daytona Race Drivers Critical Of Passing Manuever in Trials

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There has been considerable speculation this week that Sunday's Daytona 500 stock car race will be a battle between Bobby Allison and Darrell Waltrip.

Neither driver did anything to dispel that notion Thursday as each won one of the Uno Twin 125-mile qualifying races at Daytona International Speedway.

Allison dominated the first race in his controversial Pontiac LeMans, while Waltrip was roundly criticized for his tactics in driving his Buick Regal past Benny Parsons' Ford Thunderbird in the last 200 yards of the second race.

That set up a showdown between the fastest qualifiers for the $780,000 race, each of whom has won two of the first four competitive events of the young NASCAR Grand National season.

Allison piloted a car the other drivers say is too fast to catch, and Waltrip was accused of nearly causing an accident in his quest for victory.

"Darrell done some of the stupidist things today I've ever seen in racing," said six-time Daytona 500 winner Richard Petty. "It's a good thing Benny has enough sense to back off and let him (Waltrip) go ahead with something like that."

Petty, who finished fourth in the second race, was in perfect position to see Waltrip go to the apron and squeeze leader Parsons up the track as they raced around the Speedway's trioval for the final time. Waltrip won the 50-lap event by less than a car length.

"If he wants to win races that bad," Petty said, "I'll back off and let him win them...he ain't going out there and endangering my life like that."

Waltrip, who averaged 152.905 mph to collect $12,000 in prize money, would not respond to Petty's remarks. Earlier, he said air currents from his passing car helped push Parsons to the right after the latter had moved left to block his path.

Parsons, however, did not agree.

"I took the inside lane away from him, but he went down there anyway," said Parsons. "He was going to crash 12 cars, and before I'd let that happen I just turned right and let him go."

Parsons said he would "run on the apron if it is necessary to win" Sunday.

There was little controversy over the running of the first race. Allison, despite three accident-caused caution flags which slowed the field for 13 laps, averaged 151.210 mph.

TENNIS OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Second-seeded Andrea Jaeger blasted her way into the third round of the $125,000 Avon Tennis Championships of California with a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Sweden's Nina Bohm.

In other matches, Beth Norton beat Pam Teeguarden 7-5, 6-3; Sue Barker of Great Britain topped Sandy Collins

4-6, 7-5, 6-4; Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia defeated Leslie Allen 6-4, 6-1; and Virginia Wade of Great Britain eliminated Claudia Kohde of West Germany 6-2, 6-3.

BOWLING FLORISSANT, Mo. (AP) — Mark Roth won his first six matches of the fourth round to hold the lead in the $110,000

Rolands Open on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Roth, with a 6,008 total, holds a 67-pin first-place margin over Paul Moser.

Tom Baker is third with 5,928 and Cliff McNealy is fourth with 5,917. Fred Jaskie averaged 259 for his last four matches to jump from 22nd place to fifth with a 5,897 total.

HHS Cagers Face Coronado

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

There was a recurring problem varsity boys' basketball coach Dan Gillison tried to come to grips with from week to week in he and his squad's search for a victory.

Try as he might, he couldn't get rid of it. The problem was part of his life - it followed him like his shadow.

The spectre in this instance was his team's severe shortcomings in height as compared to the other league opponents' overabundance in that category.

And this week, this day would be no different as his now 3-24 Whitefaces prepared to meet the 12-16 Lubbock Coronado Mustangs in Lubbock tonight at 7:30.

"It's really the same old story," he said. "Coronado is a team that tries to wear you down physically with their height, and that's fairly easy for them to do with a basically 6-0 plus lineup."

"Personally, I think they are one of the best teams in the district, but they haven't shown it yet. Cody Love (6-2 forward) hurt us worst the last time we played them. He and Mark Sobosle (6-6 post) and Robbie Gardner (5-11 guard) all did what they wanted to do against us. They take what they can outside and if there isn't a shot then they work it inside," he noted.

Those three CHS players, although not the sole scoring inputs for Lubbock, helped Coronado slide past a 13-15 late second quarter tilt to a 31-16 bombing over Hereford before intermission in the two team's first round meeting.

"We were playing good ball up to that point," Gillison said, "but then we lost our composure with about two minutes left in the second quarter. And that's been one of our primary problems this year - crucial mental let-downs that resulted in giving teams too big of an edge. We outscored them for the most part in the second half - it was just that one big letdown."

"You just can't do that against good teams and expect to win. Hopefully we'll get that out of our system soon. We need to win a couple of games before the district tournament starts if for no other reason than confidence's sake," he said.

"That's really the only reason for winning in the second half. You can go 0-8 in the second round and still have a shot at the crown in the tournament. But on the other hand, you're chances are narrowed if you haven't won any games. A team that goes into the tournament winless has to win all of its games or it's out," he added.

The Whitefaces will take a first-round 0-4 district record into tonight's opening second round tilt with Coronado, and then will meet Plainview here Tuesday before playing Lubbock there February 20, Monterey here February 24. The squad will then conclude season play in the District Tournament March 4-6.

La Plata Cage Teams Win

The La Plata 7th and 8th grade girls' basketball teams capped wins over Clovis Gattis in Clovis Thursday to highlight competition between the two junior highs in nearing completion of cage play. The Maverick 9th grade squad lost its decision to Gattis by a tally of 41-39.

La Plata's Paula Mason dropped in a total of 13 points to lead the 9th grade Mavericks in scoring while Vanessa Sims and Renee Hubbard added six apiece in the losing cause.

The loss slipped the 9th grade crew to a 6-4 slate in district play and to 11-9 in overall standings.

Dainna Dever and Kellie Numeyer netted respective tallies of 18 and nine points to push La Plata's 8th grade club to a 36-30 win over Gattis.

The victory pushed the Maverick's district mark to 8-2 and boosted the squad's overall slate to 13-7.

In the 7th grade conflict, Maverick shooter Shannon Owsley capped 14 total points as La Plata's leading scorer and was followed by Becky Curtiss' eight points and Natalie Sims' five as the Mavericks cruised to a 32-23 victory over Gattis.

The win evened La Plata's district record to 2-2 and advanced the club's season mark to 7-11.

All three La Plata teams will finish out season play with competition against Clovis Yucca here Monday beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Spurs Win Squeaker

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Everyone in HemisFair Arena, including the Atlanta Hawks, was expecting the San Antonio Spurs to go to James Silas for the winning shot.

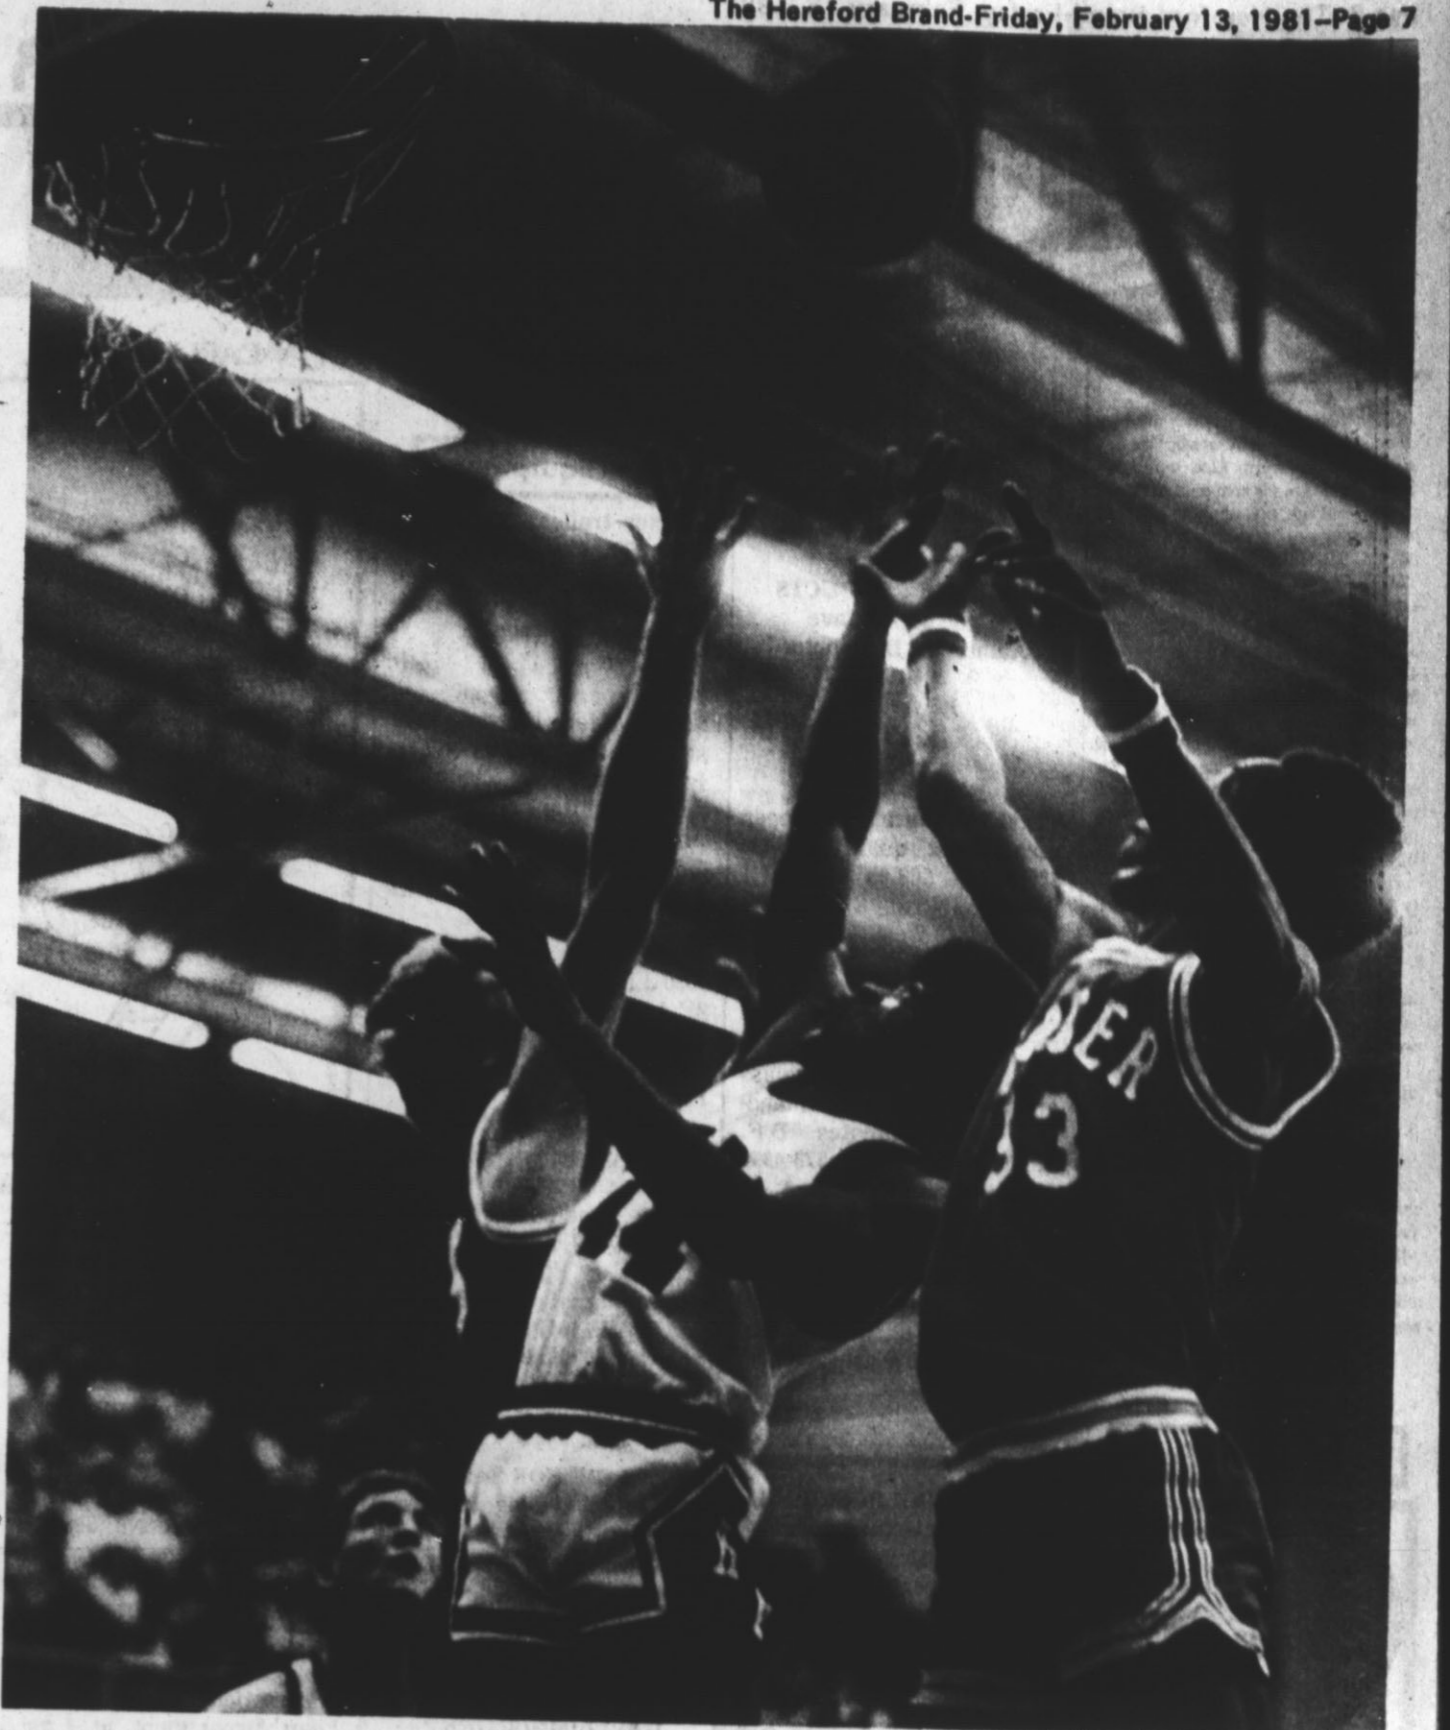

Two Hawks jumped in Silas' face at the critical moment, but with seven seconds left he connected on a 15-footer anyway and the Spurs won a 110-109 squeaker that kept alive a 16-game homecourt victory streak.

"The key shot of the game was Silas," said Hawks guard John Drew, one of two defenders unable to stop the Spurs' captain. "We were all over him and he still put it in. We played a great game tonight. What made the difference was Silas' last shot."

Referees Ed Middleton and Bruce Alexander were not bashful with their whistles throughout most of the physical encounter, sending players to the line for 84 foul shots. Atlanta hit 12 straight during one stretch of the third quarter to keep within striking distance.

In other NBA action Thursday night, it was New York 122, Cleveland 111 and Seattle 112, Portland 109.

LEAPING -- Wayne High battles on the offensive board.

Hollywood Blames Cocaine Habit for Failure

DALLAS (AP) - Thomas Henderson's failure to make it in professional football was due, in large part, to a $1,000-a-day cocaine habit which he is now trying to cure in an out-of-state hospital, the Dallas Times Herald reported in a copyright story today.

"Drugs have been a major contribution to my downfall," the former Dallas Cowboys linebacker told the newspaper after checking into the hospital's drug rehabilitation program under an assumed name.

Henderson, who gave himself the nickname "Hollywood" during his rookie year with the Cowboys, told Times Herald staff writer Frank Luksa he had been using narcotics in one form or another for the past 14 years, and since 1975 had begun to use a half-ounce of cocaine a day.

"I found myself past the point of doing drugs. Drugs were doing me," he told the newspaper. A Dallas narcotics officer contacted by the newspaper said buying that much cocaine on the streets here would cost about $1,250 a day and Henderson acknowledged his habit was costing a staggering amount of money.

"Drugs almost forced me into bankruptcy," he said.

In the past 15 months, Henderson was kicked off the Cowboys, waived by the San Francisco 49ers and rejected by the Houston Oilers who failed to offer him a new contract.

His marriage has broken up, he was a defendant in two lawsuits and his north Dallas home, now vacant, is for sale, Henderson said.

"Drugs just got me. When a person realizes he has a problem - well, it's like if your arm stinks. You offend yourself first. I was doing it but I hated myself. I was beginning to be two people - the straight Thomas and the high Hollywood."

He told the newspaper he decided to seek professional help last month, the Monday after Super Bowl XV, and called Charles Jackson, assistant director of security for the National Football League.

That led to arrangements for his hospital commitment 10 days ago, and he could spend his 28th birthday - March 1 - still in the facility, he said.

"I decided whatever the cost or risk I would put myself in a drug rehabilitation program," he said. "I'm trying to be bigger than this."

"I'd like to ask people to pray for me. I need their prayers. I'm in a bad way but I'm hanging in there."

Henderson said his drug use tripled after Cowboy coach Tom Landry kicked him off the team because he was not contributing and was a disruptive influence.

"The fact is I didn't like myself after I got fired by Dallas," Henderson told the newspaper. "The strongest effect (dismissal from) the Cowboys had on me was to triple my drug usage."

"Drugs became my downfall. I lost friends, family and career. After I was fired from Dallas I intensified to free-basing coke (mixing cocaine with ether). I graduated from snorting (sniffing cocaine up the nose).

Henderson's dismissal from the Cowboys was not drug-related, team officials said, but Henderson said he is convinced drugs brought about his departure from the 49ers and the Oilers.

He said San Francisco coach Bill Walsh waived him because he suspected the drug problem.

"I think Walsh did know. Somebody started playing Kojak and he began to look at me all the time."

Then, in Houston, Henderson got into a fight with teammate Mike Stensrud.

"I was coming down from drugs and he called me a 'dog.' I told him not to again, he did and I hit him."

Luksa asked if the fight would have occurred had Henderson not been using drugs.

"Absolutely not," Henderson replied. "The guy is 6-7, 310 pounds. I'd been scared. I must have been loaded."

Under NFL rules, Henderson is a free agent eligible to sign with any team except Dallas, Houston or San Francisco, but said he had not decided whether he would try to play football in the fall.

"It'll be a struggle for me. I won't give up. I think I can play. I would like to play straight one year," he said. "Either my career is over, or it's just beginning."

Owens' Wave, Wink Motivate Senior Olympic Spokesman

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

It was just a wink and a smile, gone in a flash, but it was enough to motivate and help mold a man.

Harrison Dillard remembers it as if it were yesterday. He was a tyke of 13 then. He and a gang of kids from his neighborhood played hooky from school in order to witness the city of Cleveland's parade for Jesse Owens, America's Olympic hero returning from his gold medal sweep in Hitler's 1936 Nazi Olympics.

"We had three heroes," Dillard said. "Jesse Owens, Joe Louis and Henry Armstrong. Jesse was special. He came from Cleveland. He played on the same streets and went to the same schools we did."

"There he was riding on the seat back of a big black limousine, waving and smiling. Then he came past us, so close we could almost touch him. He looked us right in the eye, smiled and said, 'Hello, kids, how you doing?' Then he winked. I felt that wink was for me."

"I rushed home and found my mother in the kitchen. 'Guess what?' I yelled. 'I saw Jesse Owens. I'm going to be just like him."

The teen-age Harrison had no idea at the time how near his prophesy would be fulfilled.

The immortal Owens, winner of four Olympic golds at Berlin and architect of records that endured for years, died of lung cancer last March at age 66. Dillard was there to retrieve the torch.

Now 57, an official of the Cleveland Board of Education, a balding, graying man with a fatherly demeanor, Dillard has become the senior statesman and spokesman of former Olympic athletes.

Only this week he was named advisor in an $800,000 to $1 million subsidized program to promote indoor track and field during the next four years. The U.S. championships are scheduled in Madison Square Garden Feb. 27.

The program is sponsored by one of the oil giants, Mobil. It is in tune with the new U.S. policy of luring huge corporations into the Olympic efforts on the thesis: "America doesn't send its athletes to the Olympics, Americans do."

The first year's prize money will be $50,000, funneled into the clubs rather than to the individual athletes, thus preserving at least the appearance of amateurism.

"Amateurism" is an archaic word when used in context with big money spectator sports, a category under which the Olympics and other big meets fall. Some persist on walking a tight, hypocritical rope in facing this issue. Not Harrison Dillard.

"I think amateurism must be redefined in our modern society," insists the former Baldwin-Wallace sprinter who won two gold medals at London in 1948 and two more at Helsinki in 1952.

He agrees with Owens that the Olympics should not be stripped of its pageantry and nationalism - "otherwise, you might as well hold it in a backyard" - but says the Games should be cleansed of politics.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Could be a migraine

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am an overweight 27-year-old woman. For the past several years I have been having very painful headaches. Sometimes I take up to five aspirins but they don't help any. To get the pain stopped I have to push on the sides of my head. Sometimes I get double vision, too. It lasts only a couple of minutes. The double vision never comes when I have the headaches. Also I see silver spots in front of my eyes. They sometimes last up to an hour or so. What can be causing these problems? Could it be nerves?

DEAR READER - Headaches are one of the most common complaints. People sometimes have difficulty deciding whether to see a doctor because of headaches. Anyone who has persistent headaches or a particularly severe headache should seek medical attention. A headache is a symptom. While it is true it may be a complication of a cold or just nervous tension, it can be a symptom of an important disease.

I don't mean to frighten you but double vision and headaches could mean an enlarged artery in the brain or a tumor. This is probably not true in your case but your doctor will want to sort out your history. Your story sounds more like you have migraine headaches, but the sequence of your symptoms is important in making a decision.

A common sequence in migraines is the onset of constriction of the arteries to the brain first. This interferes with circulation to the brain and causes spots before the eyes and even double vision. Then the constricted arteries relax and dilate. The dilation stretches nerve fibers in the artery wall and the pain begins.

Stressful events do bring on migraine headaches. In addition to modifying your life style to avoid headaches, there are a number of medicines that often control them.

DEAR DR. LAMB - A year ago I had a nose bleed. It poured out. I stopped it. A month later I had my finger in my nose and it started. I couldn't stop it and went to emergency. They put cocaine up my nose and packed it. It coagulates fast. Then three weeks ago I had one again. I put pressure on my nose and it stopped. It pours down my throat. The doctor in the emergency room said it was a pumper. This means an artery. Can an artery break open? If it were an artery, could I control the bleeding with pressure? I don't have high blood pressure. If this happens again should I have it cauterized?

DEAR READER - Since you were able to stop it with pressure on your nose that suggests the bleeding point is in the tip of the nose. There is a nest of small vessels there including small arteries. Pressure will often stop bleeding there.

I would like for you to go see an ear, nose and throat (ENT) specialist. Sometimes an artery in the back of the nose can crack open and cause bleeding. Nose bleeds can be more serious than most people believe, particularly in adults.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Can a woman's body suffer from the cessation of the injection of sperm following the death of her husband, especially when that injection has been frequent? If so, is there medication that can assist in providing the nourishment that possibly came from the sperm?

DEAR READER - No. A woman derives no nourishment benefits from sperm cells. There have been some research studies that have suggested that semen contains some chemicals that protect against infection or improve body defenses. If you should have an infection, of course, it can be treated. The nourishment that is lost is emotional nourishment and that can be quite important to a person's emotional health.

Wrong roles

Female roles on the English stage were always taken by boys until the Restoration. In 1662 Charles II issued a license granting women the privilege of acting upon the stage. The first actress to perform in public was Margaret Hughes, playing Desdemona in "Othello" at a theater in Clare Market, London, on Dec. 8, 1660.

FAITH WILL PROVIDE YOU WITH STRENGTH

For some time, we have been regaled with dire predictions of recession, depression and other ominous terms that depict a general worsening of our economic situation; all of which must cause many of us to wonder if our own source of life's basic needs might soon be in jeopardy. The fancy words would indeed appear to forecast a grim future when translated into terms of next week's groceries or next month's rent. Throughout history, in time of trouble man has always turned to religion as a last resort, even when it should have been his first. There is no better time than now to go to your Church and pray to God for His ever-present help and guidance.

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you."

— Matthew 6:33
