

Domestic Science Offers Look at 'Real World'

MRS. R.L. LAYMAN

Domestic Science, referred to as home economics, is being altered to meet the needs of today's society.

Whereas in the 1920's and 30's, the female was taught housekeeping and child care, today's female is learning how to cope with and handle every day problems incurred by her and the opposite sex.

Mrs. R.L. Layman who has been teaching home economics in Hereford for 14 years, states that "many people still think that home economics teaches only the basics in cooking and sewing."

Contrary to popular opinion, today's home economics course teaches both male and female to think for themselves...and be responsible for their own actions.

No other course offered in high school deals in the matter of meeting the needs of the student to better equip them individually says Mrs. Layman.

The home economic course presently offers a home making I and II, Home and Family Living, and Housing and Home Furnishing.

A junior and senior course, according to Mrs. Layman, a third of the enrollment for this year at the high school were males.

Preparing teenagers for adulthood and its responsibilities, students are encouraged to think about their family, to understand what they receive from the family, and to think about and consider themselves as individuals.

"Some of the students really apply what they learn and work at it, then there are others not too realistic about the things we discuss," stated Mrs. Layman.

The course, taught from textbooks, films, and informative discussions with people within the community, deals in marriage, divorce, teenage suicide, self image and living alone.

"I sometimes sound negative about marriage students, but I don't have to tell them the good things in a relationship, they already know those," the Home Ec teacher stated.

According to Mrs. Layman, young people have trouble coping with stress and frustration. In the course, the students discuss these problems and work on correcting their self-image.

"We also do a lot of practical things such as bank statements, writing checks, learning how to fill out a job application, working on a budget based on a job the students could acquire now," she continued.

In addition to the discussion of responsibility, students are encouraged to find a place to live that would fit within their income, all of this on a fictitious basis.

Students are able to challenge their teacher's opinion, which Mrs. Layman encourages.

"I try to challenge them to think, study and clarify what they say, often using my own experiences to get the students thinking," she replied.

Mrs. Layman, along with several other teachers, has averaged 175 students a semester with a total student enrollment of 390 per year.

Classes are kept comfortable and informal, with students often moving into the living room quarters in the home ec section.

A popular course this year has been child development, according to Mrs. Layman.

Problems faced by the teacher include the students not taking classes seriously and the inability to challenge not only their teacher but peers.

"A lot of this comes from immaturity," said Mrs. Layman.

Explaining that television and movies do not give a realistic picture of life, Mrs. Layman states that she often has students who laugh about the course.

"But I have seen a lot of the students grow up during the course and several who were considering marriage have changed their mind."

A growing problem today is teenage pregnancy. Mrs. Layman explains that a nurse speaks to the class briefly about the subject, "but the subject is never advocated," she stressed.

Appealing to students ages 17-18, Mrs. Layman stated that many of the students, both male and female, are wanting to combine a career, home and family.

Through the course they are able to create their own home, and learn to take care of themselves.

"A lot of couples are becoming more involved in raising a family also," added Mrs. Layman.

According to statistics, the ages of 17-24, represent a maturing time for students.

"What many of them want at 17 is not what they want at 24," stated Mrs. Layman.

Presently a discussion is being held on whether to add a consumer education course to the home ec department here.

Mrs. Layman, a 1949 Hereford graduate, was born in Amarillo. She attended Texas Tech University and West Texas State University, receiving her bachelor of science in home economics from the later in 1963.

Following her graduation she taught in Muleshoe, and prior to moving back to Hereford in 1958, Mrs. Layman resided in Tyler.

She is the mother of three children, and is the wife of R.L. Layman who is employed by Brownlow Brothers Construction.

Legal Services Corp. To Seek Private Funds

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Local or private financing might be tapped for low-cost legal services to the poor if President Reagan scraps the Legal Services Corp., says a lawyer with Texas Rural Legal Aid.

"The feeling of the managers in the program is that we want legal services to continue somehow," said Jerry Garcia, manager of the Harlingen legal aid office.

"We could look to non-profit foundations," he said. "Right now it looks very bad in terms of federal funding. It will be a real disaster in terms of providing services for the poor."

Texas Rural Legal Aid, a non-profit corporation, receives $3 million annually from the Legal Services Corp.

All but three of the 12 legal aid offices are in South Texas and five are in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The organization operates a migrant workers project office in Hereford and others offices in Seguin and Kerrville.

There also is a voting rights project in San Antonio.

"That's the kind of thing Mr. Reagan doesn't like. If all we did was sit around and do evictions and divorces he's happy," he said.

The Valley, with an 80 percent Mexican-American population, averages one of the lowest per-capita incomes of any region in the country. The McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area averaged $4,323 in per capita income in the latest figures.

Many clients in legal aid offices are farmworkers or unskilled laborers with routine legal problems of which only 5 percent wind up in court, said Jerry Garcia, manager of the Harlingen office.

"We turn away low priority cases like divorces with no children," he said. "We take almost all 'administrative' cases that involve social security benefits, food stamps, unemployment benefits and housing. Those are survival issues."

A family of four can earn no more than $179 a week to qualify for legal aid services, he said. A single person applying for help can make only $91 a week.

"With that kind of money, they couldn't usually afford a private lawyer and they can't pay us," he said.

Legal aid lawyers can only act in civil cases, where there is no constitutional right to have an attorney present, he said.

At one time, cities and counties supported legal aid to the poor before the Legal Services Corporation, was founded in 1965.

Although the bulk of cases are routine, Texas Rural Legal Aid has earned an activist reputation for its class action lawsuits and involvement in farm labor disputes.

Ready For Hike

18-Cent Postal Rate Goes in Effect Sunday

By ALLISON RYAN
Staff Writer

The new 18 cent postage stamp required for first class letters will go on sale today at the Hereford Post Office with the new rate going into effect Sunday, March 22, at 12:01 a.m.

First class postage is not the only thing increasing in price, however. According to Nolan Grady, postmaster, basically everything dealing with postal service will show a rate increase.

The new stamp will bear a picture of an eagle and the letter B. No amount is shown as the United States Postal Service was not sure as to what the rate would be when the stamps were printed. The stamp can be used for any first class mailing with the exception of international mail.

The last postal increase came in May of 1978 when the rate went to the current 15 cents. Previous increases included May, 1971, when the rate rose from 6 cents to 8 cents. In 1974, it rose to 10 cents and in 1975 it rose to 13 cents.

"We felt we had to have a rate increase due to inflation, overall prices and wages. The biggest slice of the pie in postal expenditures is salaries and benefits. In the postal budget, 84.57 percent goes to salaries," Grady explained.

Also included in the first class postage is the increase to 17 cents per each additional ounce up to 12 ounces. Presorted mail, in keeping with requirements, will receive discounts of 3 and 4 cents.

The postcard will increase from 10 cents to 12 cents Sunday.

"As soon as we get the new stamps they will go out to the clerks. We do have a good supply of 3 and 5 cent stamps. We received 80,000 of the 3 cent stamps and 100,000 of the 5 cent. I would rather be overstocked in stamps than inconvenience people," Grady stated.

Second class postage which involves newspapers and fourth class or parcel post will increase.

Concerning fourth class mailing, under the old rate a five pound package to Dallas would cost $1.92; under the new rate, the same package will cost $2.04, according to Grady.

Other categories affected by the new rate are money order fees, registered mail, certified mail, special delivery, insurance for parcel post and post office box rental.

Money order fees will increase, but the postal service also increased the maximum amount that can be mailed to $500. Rates are 75 cents for any money orders to $25;

Montgomery to Be Ad Sales Manager

Mauri Montgomery, sports editor of The Brand for the past year, has been named as retail ad sales manager, it was announced today by Publisher O.G. Nieman.

Montgomery, 24, will be replacing Bob Nigh in the newspaper's advertising department. Nigh recently was named as managing editor to succeed Jim Steiert, who resigned to accept a position with Texas Farmer-Stockman magazine as High Plains editor.

Montgomery is a graduate of Hereford High School and Texas Tech University. He majored in mass communications at Tech and worked a year at the Avalanche-Journal before coming to Hereford. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Montgomery of Hereford.

Gene Bigham, veteran ad man, has headed up the MAURI MONTGOMERY newspaper's advertising department, since October, 1980. Montgomery joins Pam Melugin and Vicki Hutcheson as other members of the ad staff.

A new sports editor for The Brand will be named as soon as possible, said Nieman.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says the wise man who said that work well done never needs doing again certainly never needed a garden.

Humorist Erma Bombeck, whose column appears in The Brand, says she has been on a constant diet for two decades. "I've lost a total of 789 pounds. By all accounts, I should be hanging from a charm bracelet."

Local sports fans are happy to see Keith Kitchens going to the state basketball tournament with his Shallowater Mustangs. Kitchens, one of the best all-around athletes ever to perform at Hereford High, is the son of Coach and Mrs. Cuby Kitchens.

After playing basketball for the Red Raiders and graduation from Texas Tech, Kitchens went to Shallowater for his first coaching job. His team was only 7-5 early this season, but the Class 2A Mustangs went through district unbeaten and upset fourth-ranked Morton in the region tourney.

Shallowater meets Archer City Friday morning in the first round of the state tourney in Austin. Best wishes to "Double K"!

Congressman Jim Collins of Texas is seeking to cut the fat out of House committee budgets as a first step toward reducing the size of the government.

In a speech recorded in the Congressional Record, Collins claimed that "America has more government than it wants, more regulations than it needs, and more taxes than the people can afford to pay."

Rep. Collins pointed out that the number of committee staff in the House has grown from 817 in 1972 to 1,939 in 1979. The cost of these staff has exploded from $14 million to almost $96 million during this same period — an increase in funding of 686 percent!

"We have known this deficit government spending has caused inflation. To curb government growth, we must get at the cause of spending — committee staffs. These people draft the budget bills and draft the committee funding resolutions. Really, they write regulations to keep their jobs."

"As we begin this session, each House committee meets to establish its own budget request. They should cut down to basics. There are 52 new Republicans in the House and, combined with more support from conservative Democrats, we are going to vote for savings."

Meet Candidates Forum Scheduled

County citizens will have a chance to talk to local political candidates March 26 when the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce hosts "Meet the Candidate" night.

Each candidate running for the Hereford Independent School District board or for the city offices has been invited to participate in the public meeting which will be held at the Hereford Community center at 7:30 p.m.

In addition, Mayor Bartley Dowell will explain the two city charter amendments to

Hance to be Here For Town Meet

U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock will be visiting local cities in his 19th Congressional District Saturday for town hall meetings.

Rep. Hance will be at his home town of Dimmitt at 10 a.m. Saturday where he will visit with constituents in the assembly room of city hall there.

At 1 p.m. Hance will be at the Hereford High School cafeteria for a session in which he will first address constituents on current matters being considered by Congress and will then listen to comments and questions from local residents on various issues.

Hance will conclude his visit to the Magic Triangle area with another meeting at Friona at 3 p.m. at the Friona Community Center.

The Lubbock representative is now in his second term in Congress and has made the town hall meetings standard procedure for gathering grassroots opinion from residents of his district.

Machine Robbed

By Stolen Credit Cards

AMARILLO (AP) — A swindling scheme using stolen credit cards to obtain airline tickets from vending machines has cost Southwest Airlines $28,000, company officials said.

"This has gotten so bad ... we may have to discontinue the use of the automated machines," A.W. Donelson, Southwest Airlines manager in Amarillo, said Wednesday.

Since December, at least five stolen credit cards have been used in the airline's automated ticket sellers in Amarillo, Dallas, Houston, Austin, San Antonio and Corpus Christi, Donelson said.

The tickets apparently would then be re-sold at reduced prices.

Donelson said an Amarillo man was questioned Saturday after his ticket to Houston was confiscated in a routine check.

Bad Luck Rock

Returned to Hawaii

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Nixon Morris scoffed silently at a guide in Hawaii who warned vacationers on a tour bus not to take any rocks from the Mauna Loa volcano where the bus stopped to allow tourists to walk around.

"He said if we took a piece of lava the goddess Pele would put a curse on us. I've never been a superstitious man. Right away I got the idea I had to have a piece of that lava," said Morris, 59.

Today, he's just hoping that mailing the rock back to Hawaii will break the curse and return his life to normal.

"I just got nine days to go before they take this cast off my leg," said Morris, a hardwood dealer who said he had always led a quiet life until he took the black rock home with him two years ago. That's when all the trouble started.

Morris fell off his roof, lightning struck an antenna and ruined several appliances in his house, and his wife got sick with a mysterious infection that left her knee swollen.

Then a burglar broke into their house and Morris fought with the intruder and suffered a broken hip and thigh, the family's cat was sleeping under the hood of Mrs. Morris' car when she started the engine and stripped one side of the pet bald, and Morris' granddaughter fell and broke her arm in two places just last week.

"That was really the last straw," Morris said.

Friday 13th Burglar Gets 20 Years

HOUSTON (AP) — Friday the 13th was a bad day for James Dukes.

Dukes was arrested and charged with burglary of the home of Deputy Police Chief Fred Bankston in a neighborhood where only police officers reside.

An auto theft detective and a burglary detective, two of Bankston's neighbors, responded to a burglary alarm and began a chase that led to the arrest of Dukes and a woman.

During a preliminary hearing on the burglary charge, Dukes entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to 20 years in prison by State District Judge Frank Price.

Bankston said Tuesday he was pleased with two things, including the fact he had subdivided the land around his house and sold lots to other officers.

"And I can hardly believe he pleaded out for 20 years only three days after he was caught," Bankston said.

Bill to Raise Drinking Age Okayed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Ed Emmett wondered aloud how Rep. Henry Allee could sponsor a bill taking away 18-year-olds' drinking rights while pushing other legislation that would let them carry guns in their cars.

Allee's bill raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19 won preliminary House approval on Wednesday, 115-20, and was expected to pass today.

The next step will be Senate action on an amendment added by the House which would make it harder for tavern owners and others who sell alcohol to under-age drinkers to defend themselves in court.

It is against the law to knowingly sell alcoholic beverages to minors, and the amendment would establish a presumption an illegal sale was made knowingly if the seller did not ask for a young person's driver's license or other proof of age.

Sen. Bill Sarpalis, D-Hereford, said he would ask the Senate to accept the amendment, which would send the bill to Gov. Bill Clements for signature into law.

"I have no problem with the amendment and, in fact, feel that it will strengthen the bill and help with its enforcement," Sarpalis said.

Allee said school officials, teachers and PTAs want the drinking age raised because too many teen-agers drink on their lunch hours and return to high school drunk.

White Cane Days Coming

Mayor Bartley Dowell signed a proclamation Wednesday declaring Friday and Saturday, March 20-21 as "White Cane Days" in Hereford. The special event is part of Sight Conservation Week this week, and local and area Lions Club members will be collecting donations at the two local banks Friday and shopping centers Saturday while passing out miniature white canes to those making contributions. Proceeds from the two-day event will go to the Hi-Plains Eye Bank. Observing the signing were Zone Chairman Rocky Lee (1), Lions president Sid Shaw, and eye bank director and local Lion Dyal Garner. (Brand photo)

Senate Budget Writers Make Even Deeper Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Recommending even deeper overall cuts than President Reagan has asked, Senate budget writers are slicing more money from some social programs to make room for restoring export subsidies that benefit big business.

By the time it quit work for the night Wednesday, the Senate Budget Committee had approved more than $35 billion in cuts, a net of about $2.4 billion more than Reagan recommended for the areas covered.

One of the panel's votes was to restore $110 million — a third of Reagan's proposed cut — for the Export-Import Bank. The bank subsidizes exports through loans and loan guarantees to purchasers of American goods, and most of the benefits go to a few large American corporations.

At the recommendation of Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., the panel supported deeper cuts in housing for the poor and community services aid to more than make up the money put back in the Ex-Im Bank budget.

Mrs. Kassebaum denied the move was designed to help companies like Boeing and Cessna, which produce airplanes in her state and sell them abroad with the Ex-Im Bank's help. She said the change is intended "to help workers keep their jobs, not big business."

The action on the Ex-Im Bank was one of few times the committee voted more money than Reagan had recommended as it completed its second day of work on the 1982 federal budget.

Sen. Peter Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman, predicted the panel would complete its spending blueprint today, and aides said it would wind up approving more than the $48.6 billion in cuts the president has recommended.

The committee recommended reductions in social programs ranging from unemployment benefits and Social Security to food stamps and welfare.

While Reagan was generally getting his way in the Senate, he was winning another victory in another committee of Congress. The House Ways and Means Committee gave its initial endorsement to $8.8 billion in spending cuts in social programs it oversees and a $50.4 billion tax cut, nearly identical to the president's request.

The vote in the Democrat-controlled committee was unanimous despite the reservations by some members about specific cutbacks proposed by the administration.

But in the Senate Budget Committee, the majority Republicans sometimes had to overcome Democrat opposition as they voted for abolishing the $3.6 billion public service jobs program, a reduction of more than $1 billion in education programs and a $2 billion cut in some Social Security programs.

The committee also backed Reagan's call to slash food stamp expenditures by nearly $1.5 billion, and it called for reducing the budget for school lunch programs by $1.5 billion.

However, it rejected Reagan's proposal for a 30 percent cut in a program that provides milk for pregnant mothers and infant children, voting to spend $223 million that the president wanted cut. And it voted to restore $653 million Reagan wanted to cut from elementary and secondary education, aid for the handicapped and youth training programs.

Republicans rebuffed attempts by Democrats to restore $500 million for the Urban Development Actions Grants that are popular with many mayors, and the committee overwhelmingly rejected a move by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum to close $3.9 billion in so-called tax loopholes for the oil industry.

Technically, the committee is drafting instructions to the other committees of Congress, which have broad discretion in deciding how to make reductions among programs under their jurisdictions.

State Repudiates Earlier Stipulation of Discrimination

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The State of Texas has changed its mind, does not admit historical discrimination against Mexican-Americans and wishes to withdraw from a school desegregation case, an assistant attorney general said.

"I am about to make the most remarkable statement I have ever made," David H. Young told a three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. He said the state no longer supports stipulations made last year in U.S. District Court at Tyler, Texas, admitting to past racial discrimination.

"Those are stipulations, which we now say should not have been made," said Young.

When an attorney makes a stipulation in a court case, it means he does not dispute the truth of the matter under discussion.

The stipulations were originally filed at a November 1979 hearing in a separate 1971 bilingual education case being heard by the same federal judge, William Wayne Justice. The stipulations said segregation against Mexican-Americans was a historical fact in the state of Texas.

Usually such stipulations apply only to one particular case, but Justice decided they also applied to the Gregory-Portland Independent School District's desegregation case and Young claims the judge used them to fashion a discrimination concept that resulted in a forced busing order for the 3,100-student district.

The school district appealed the busing order, contending its ratio of Mexican-Americans to Anglo students is an accurate reflection of community percentages, not the result of discrimination.

Texas and the Texas Education Agency went into appellate court with the U.S. Justice Department, standing as adversaries to the school district. However, Young's Wednesday repudiation of the state stipulations had the effect of removing Texas from the case.

Fifth Circuit Judge Charles Clark told Young that since he had switched positions it was best that he leave the rest of the argument to the Justice Department lawyer, Joseph Rich.

It was not known if Young's statement would affect the bilingual case. In that case, Justice ruled the state's bilingual education program inadequate and, in January, ordered the state to submit plans for an acceptable program. On Wednesday, in a hearing unrelated to the circuit court hearing, he refused to grant the state additional time to comply.

Rich told the appellate court there was historical evidence of segregation in the Gregory district, before consolidation with the Portland district in 1950. Since the consolidated district has not taken affirmative action to correct the imbalance, that "is indicative of a continuing intent to discriminate," he said.

Rich argued that even without the 16 pages of state stipulations of discrimination, Justice's order stood on firm legal ground.

"The district court found that every action they took formed a pattern that had the effect of maintaining, even exacerbating the situation," he said.

Robert Hall, an attorney for the school district, argued that school officials were not guilty of discrimination and that Justice acted improperly in hearing the case.

Judge Says State Must File Bilingual Education Plan

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White says he is "surprised" that the federal judge threatening to order a bilingual plan for Texas schools refuses to give legislators time to come up with their own proposal.

But the judge said he would not give the state time to look for a "political solution" to the Mexican-American education problem.

U.S. District Judge William

Wayne Justice denied the state's request that his March 9 deadline — which the state missed — be extended to June 15, two weeks after the legislature adjourns.

White said he had not had time to study the ruling, but said he was "surprised that we were not extended more time."

The judge, however, said the delay request was based on the "unsubstantiated hope" that a political solution could be found to the Mexican-American education problem.

Justice ruled in January that the state's current bilingual program is inadequate. He ordered both sides to work out proposals for him to study.

Plaintiffs, including the Justice Department, the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund and the G.I. Forum, submitted their proposals March 10.

Current state law provides bilingual education, when student demand is sufficient, through Grade 3 and makes it optional through Grade 5. Plaintiffs want it extended through the 12th grade.

Wednesday, Justice warned that unless the state submitted a proposal immediately, "the court will be compelled to enter a final judgment without the benefit of their (the state's) plan."

White said the original ruling "seemed a perfect opportunity to let the Legislature respond to the lawsuit and the Legislature has been very receptive in working on the problem. I hope this (Wednesday's) order will not frustrate their efforts."

White said he would have no further comment until he studied the ruling.

Justice wrote that the state was asking "the court to postpone relief for the tens of thousands of Mexican-American children suffering from unconstitutional discrimination while the state's political process wrestled with this pressing problem."

"It is readily apparent that the defendant's motion for delay is premised upon nothing more than unsubstantiated hope that a political solution to the plight of the state's Mexican-American school children will somehow be realized during the next three months," Justice wrote.

The remains of 750 Americans who died in the Mexican War of the 1840s are buried in a cemetery in Mexico City maintained by the American Battle Monuments Commission.

Reagonomics

Worked in New York

New York was sick with the same sickness our nation is suffering.

New York is recovering. Will the same remedies work nationally?

New York, from 1965 to 1975, suffered suffocation by taxation and was exhausted from carrying an overload of nonproducers on welfare.

State and New York City local taxes rose at twice the national rate. State income taxes increased and a further surcharge was added. State and city sales taxes were introduced, and quickly doubled.

Rockefeller was on a spending spree!

New York City was on a spending binge of its own when suddenly, in 1975, the bills came due and credit ran out and the orgy of extravagance ended with a skull-busting hangover.

New York unemployment escalated at two to three times the national rate. New York City and state faced a fiscal crisis.

Gov. Hugh Carey and Mayors Abraham Beame and Ed Koch had the good sense to recognize that taxes were killing their people.

The philosophy of Reagonomics is that — instead of slicing the pie into smaller pieces — you bake a bigger pie.

Carey, Beame and Koch arrived tardily at their appreciation for supply-side economics — but better late than never.

State and city tightened purse strings on spending. Gov. Carey cut state taxes, including the taxes of higher average, is now running ahead of the national average.

For the first time in 15 years, New York is doing better than the rest of the country.

While the state and city have reduced their tax rates, the economy has prospered to where city and state are receiving more total tax revenues, not less.

Thus proving that massive tax cuts can end up enriching the government.

And The Wall Street Journal, which had once recommended bankruptcy for New York City, has apologized. It is now recommending that our nation follow New York's example.

Two Charged Following Chase

Two individuals have been charged with evading arrest after they led Hereford police officers on a 20-minute chase Wednesday afternoon.

Officers were on routine patrol in the northwest part of the city when they saw two people riding dirt bikes that were not authorized for street use. When the officers attempted to stop them, the individuals "ran from the officers."

A deputy from the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Office was called for assistance before the chase ended.

In addition to evading arrest, the 16-year-old and the 18-year-old have been charged with possession of marijuana and several traffic violations.

Dannie Garcia of 120 Ave. B., told police more than $6 worth of gasoline was siphoned from his vehicle Wednesday night when it was parked at Bowling's Bowl, 110 N. 25 Mile Ave. There is a witness who saw the individual taking the gas and police are questioning the suspect.

Albert Mungia, 343 Ave. G., reported his home was vandalized Wednesday night when someone broke the west window of the home. There was no indication of entry.

Police issued 11 traffic citations and answered nine police related calls Wednesday.

I think it will probably be necessary to increase rates again if we want to avoid cutting services. We are here to give a service, but we would have to limit the budget to keep what services we have," Grady said.

When I think about increases and inflation I like to compare it to the price of hamburgers. I can remember in Hereford when hamburgers increased from a nickel to a dime. Now hamburgers are anywhere from $1.25 on up. When hamburgers were a nickel, stamps were 3 cents and now they are only up to 18 cents," he said.

The organization has intervened on the side of undocumented children who recently won the right to a free education in Texas.

"A lot of people say we shouldn't be working for social change," Garcia said. "But sometimes it is better to file a class action lawsuit than to try the same kind of case 50 times."

McAllen, PD
Settle Out
Of Court

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer
BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Minutes before the first witness was to be called, the City of McAllen agreed to an out-of-court settlement of a federal civil rights suit against their police department.

Plaintiffs' lawyer Jim Harrington of the American Civil Liberties Union and attorneys for the city worked Monday afternoon to finalize the tentative agreement before returning to court today.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda told lawyers to be ready today to present the details of the proposed settlement in the five-year-old suit.

"We've agreed in principle to a settlement," Harrington said after learning McAllen city commissioners wanted to negotiate an end to the police brutality case.

Harrington filed suit on behalf of 17 plaintiffs involved in 10 incidents of alleged police misconduct. He charged McAllen Mayor Othal Brand and other officials knew of a pattern of excessive force being used by policemen but did nothing about it.

Twenty-four officers, many of whom worked the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift, were named in the suit. Only ten still work on the force.

McAllen city commissioners met in closed session Monday afternoon and shortly before 2 p.m. talked by phone with City Attorney Ted Calisi.

"We've got an agreement," Calisi said, shaking hands with Harrington outside the courtroom.

The plaintiffs collectively had sought close to a half-million dollars in damages.

A source close to the case said city commissioners first were considering a quarter-million settlement but that figure was not firm.

Attorneys for the city would not comment on the apparent settlement.

Harrington said the settlement would involve changes in the police department training and behavior manual and improvements in the grievance procedure.

Evidence planned for the trial included videotapes made at the police station booking desk, sight of several incidents.

Margie Robles, mother of plaintiff Michael Robles, said she thought McAllen officials probably wanted to negotiate a settlement because of the existence of the tapes.

"We're very happy," she said after hearing of the apparent settlement. "I hope that these incidents don't happen again like they happened to our boys."

She said her son and another plaintiff were involved in one of the booking desk incidents six years ago after being arrested for no reason.

Witnesses subpoenaed for the trial included the mayor, City Manager Calvin Gibson, city commissioners, Police Chief Roy Eckhard, a former chief and several police officers.

Several of the incidents alleged in the current case have been subjects of individual civil suits. Seven of those have been settled out-of-court, three were won by plaintiffs and one was lost.

In addition to the civil suits, the federal grand jury here is investigating the police department.

The grand jury probe was to have begun this week but was postponed until next month when the civil case was expected to be finished.

Lee Memorial

The Robert E. Lee Memorial is a historic residence, Arlington House, on a hilltop above Arlington National Cemetery. It was built by George Washington Parke Custis, grandson of Martha Washington and father of Mary Ann Randolph Custis, who married Lee in the house in 1831. The house was confiscated during the Civil War, but was returned to George Washington Custis Lee, grandson of the builder, who sold it to the government in 1883 for $150,000.

Employers Forced into Housing Field?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Sooner or later the high cost of housing and money may force employers in boom economic areas into large-scale financing of homes for workers, providing a new twist in the housing scene.

Corporate spokesmen generally deery the likelihood, but indications are mounting that they might be forced far more deeply into the housing field than they have been.

Otherwise, some of them may soon be facing the identical situation that caused them over the past decade or so to forsake troubled industrial cities: A lack of good, secure, affordable housing within easy commuting distance.

Heretofore, many blue chip concerns sought to assist transferred employees buy or sell houses, without becoming involved either as long-term lenders or as part-owners. But pressures are mounting.

Companies that fled New York for Fairfield County, Conn., in part to be closer to what they felt were better housing conditions, now find soaring prices are forcing middle managers into hour-long commutes.

Competition for clerical workers has become intense, especially since the local supply, largely suburban housewives returning to the labor market, seems to be exhausted. Real estate agent report many office workers now must commute more than 30 miles from New York.

Much of the pressure comes from soaring housing prices, at least in part a direct result of the inflow of companies. Dadakis & Co., a corporate real estate broker, says Fairfield is now headquarters for 47 companies in the Fortune magazine list of the 1,000 largest.

"Housing has become a disadvantage," he says. "It's affordable for top executives, but not for middle managers." With gas prices rising, he said, transportation has become a serious impediment.

In Palo Alto, Calif., where the lowest priced single-family homes are beyond the reach of many professors, Stanford University has sought to protect its reputation by plunging directly into the market, sharing financing costs with resident professors.

A pilot program, called COIN — for coinvestment — enables newcomers to the staff and faculty to obtain houses they would be unable to buy on their own. In the past 18 months, 58 families have bought homes as partners of the university, with each sharing the financial benefits.

Now, the bagley says, "rising home prices and high interest rates may lead to a major revamping" of the program. Under consideration is what is called the Stanford Shared Appreciation Mortgage, which the university says would permit a family with income of $39,519 to buy a $162,500 home with a down payment of $18,959.

That price, the university says, is equivalent to the least expensive single-family home now available in Palo Alto.

For Refugees

Federal Aid Nearing An End

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Minh fled Vietnam for the United States three years ago, homeless and broke. Next month, along with thousands of other jobless Indochinese refugees, Minh will become part of a multi-million dollar burden for state and local officials.

Effective April 1, a provision of the Refugee Act of 1980 will cut off the 100 percent federal reimbursement for Indochinese refugees who have been in the United States for 36 months. Those here a shorter time will not be affected.

State and local governments will have to bear the costs of the refugees' transition into society.

Nowhere will the cutoff have a greater effect than in California. Between 130,000 and 165,000 of America's 450,000 Indochinese refugees — about 30 percent — live in the state, says a report issued last year by the state Social Services Department. The report estimated 5,000 more refugees arrive each month. Federal officials say some 14,000 refugees arrive in the country monthly.

"If there is not a change ... and the April cutoff remains, we will be in a very difficult fiscal situation," said Marion Woods, director of the California social services department.

Last October, the state Department of Finance estimated that 92,580 Indochinese in the state were receiving cash assistance.

"The federal funding will end for almost 11,000 refugees," Woods said, estimating the number of refugees who have been here three years and thus will transfer from federal to state and local rolls.

"That will mean ... California will have to pick up almost 50 percent of the grant cost," Woods said, pegging the tab at about $24 million for the state fiscal year beginning July 1.

Reps. Dan Lungren, a Long Beach Republican, and George Danielson, a Los Angeles Democrat, have introduced a bill to extend the deadline. The congressmen, and other critics of the federal act, say state and local officials have not had time to prepare for the refugees, partly because control of where the refugees are sent after they enter the country rests with volunteer agencies in New York City.

At the offices of the American Council of Voluntary Agencies in Manhattan, the refugees' destination is decided in what is known as the weekly "auction."

Each refugee's dossier is assigned to one of 11 volunteer agencies working under contract with the federal government. According to their individual policies, the agencies determine where refugees are sent. Representatives say most decisions are based on reuniting families, and because California has the most refugees, the flow tends to continue in that direction.

Minh, for example, arrived in New York City and stayed there for two years.

Rather's First Week's Ratings Not Up To Walter Cronkite's

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When the A.C. Nielsen ratings came in on Dan Rather's first week as anchor of "The CBS Evening News," CBS didn't invite comparisons to their news program's performance the week before, when Walter Cronkite was anchor.

That suggests, of course, that Rather's ratings fell off compared to the numbers Cronkite earned in his final week. And they did.

For the week March 2-9, "The CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite" averaged a 16.6 rating and a 29 percent share of the television audience.

For the week March 9-13, "The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" averaged a 15.1 rating and a 26 percent share of the audience.

Rather lost 9 percent of the audience that tuned to CBS for news during Cronkite's last week. ABC's "World News Tonight" picked up 4 percent and NBC's "Nightly News" added 2 percent.

CBS protests that Cronkite's five-day finale was an anomaly, that viewers tuned in to honor the departing Cronkite. This is certainly true, but it should follow that Rather's first week was also an anomaly, that Rather, too, benefited from viewer curiosity.

Indeed, Rather's first-week ratings should be higher than his average rating will be after things have settled down a bit.

CBS suggests that instead of comparing Rather's first week to Cronkite's last, a look at the ratings of a year ago are in order. Rather's performance was about the same as Cronkite's ratings yield for the week ending March 10, 1980.

It should be noted again, however, that Rather's debut week figured to attract a lot of viewers tuning in just to see what an $8 million anchorman does. If so, Rather's ratings will decline this week.

Paraphrasing, the three networks' combined share of the evening news-time audience seems to be significantly lower than it was last year. In 1980, the combined network news shows drew an average of 74 percent of the viewers. In the week Rather made his debut, the three networks attracted only 71 percent of the viewers.

That could reflect the fact that last year was a "hot" news year, with the Iran crisis and primaries and all, but it could also simply mean that fewer folks are spending their time with networks. Network prime time shares have dropped also.

Anyway, it will be interesting to see what happens in the lucrative evening news market, especially if ABC and NBC make some changes. It's said that ABC is interested in bringing NBC's Tom Brokaw to "World News Tonight" and that Roger Mudd will step in for John Chancellor if no inroads are made against Rather.

Thrift In These Days Not What It Used To Be

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Few things more clearly demonstrate the tendency of economies to change than when an old maxim, steeped in years, appears to lose its validity. Such as "a penny saved is a penny earned."
Were he alive today, for example, Ben Franklin might be confused too. In his dedication to a conventional definition of thrift, he might lose his money, his reputation and conceivably his good health as well.

Thrift today, that is, isn't what it used to be, as the depositor in a 5½ percent passbook savings account at a so-called thrift institution is learning to his chagrin. Interest earned of 5½ percent, minus taxes, and minus inflation of 12 percent or so, equals eventual poverty.
And, as inflation continues, the old link between thrift and caution is likely to remain strained if not broken.
Ordinarily cautious homeowners, the thrifty kind who once believed a loan was something to be repaid as fast as possible, now covet their mortgages, knowing that a 7 percent loan is like money in the bank.

For those who made such loans, such as the thrift institutions — savings banks and savings and loan associations — such loans pave the road to the poorhouse. What they thought was thrift was waste instead.

Can the country so easily pass off the misfortune of those who did believe there was a future to saving? Can the lost assets of such people, who helped raise capital for investment in the factories that built the economy, be dismissed as the grumbings of cranks?

There is the matter of institutions. Can the thrift industry be allowed to deteriorate as it has? And if savings institutions become passe, who will provide the money for home mortgages? What happens to the economy in general if savings — the rate is once more below 5 percent, lowest of all major industrial nations — becomes insufficient to support needed capital investments.

Some answers already are evident. Growing companies, one answer to improving productivity, find it difficult to raise money at affordable rates. Companies in basic industries forego expansion and improvement. Production efficiency deteriorates.

And as a consequence, prices rise.

Something even more perverse happens: The big bets are placed not on the health of the future economy but on its difficulties, on the hope of continued high interest rates rather than a return to normal, on speculations rather than investments in companies of substance.

The answer, according to some economists, lies in tax incentives to old fashioned thrift, the kind of thrift that involved living within incomes, paying off bills and saving small sums regularly.

All such recommendations, however, depend on something else that seems to be badly lacking: Faith in the future. With so many bets now placed on a continuation of inflation, that faith will be hard to restore.

Michigan Is Telling Migrants To Stay Away

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Public service announcements, soon will be broadcast on radio and television stations in four states, including Texas, warning some migrant workers to stay away from Michigan this year.

Concerned that the poor economy may force many of Michigan's unemployed into the farm labor market, state Department of Social Services officials decided to sponsor the announcements, which warn migrant workers to stay out of the state unless they have a job and a place to live.

Michigan's jobless rate — highest among the nation's 10 most industrialized states — was 14.2 percent in February, up from 11.5 percent the year before, with 604,000 state residents looking for work, the Michigan Employment Security Commission said.

Most of the messages will be broadcast in Texas, Florida and Arkansas, states from which many of Michigan's migrant workers come.

Behind California, Texas and Florida, Michigan is the country's fourth largest user of migrant labor. State officials estimate that 35,000 to 40,000 migrant workers came to Michigan in 1980, causing unemployment or underemployment in many areas.

"In the past, we have had many individuals come with only enough money to get here and with expectations of finding employment," Manuel Gonzalez, DSS director of migrant services, said in a recent meeting at Grand Rapids. "We've had to provide money to get them to other job sites or back home."

State officials fear that the combination of Michigan's dismal economy and cutbacks in social services budgets will mean problems for the traditionally large numbers of migrant workers who come to the state with no pre-arranged job.

"We are asking migrant workers to get confirmation (of a job) before they come," Gonzalez said. State officials also are asking that workers come to the state as close as possible to the date they are scheduled to begin work.

Steve Smith, a DSS field officer, said Kent, Ottawa, Muskegon and Newaygo counties were flooded with migrant workers last year, partly due to a bumper crop of apples.

"It was the busiest year we ever had," Smith said. "If we had any more than last year, we would have people sleeping in the parks."

Smith said the influx of migrant workers into Kent County traditionally increases in years of bad crops in the South, such as this year's situation with Florida's citrus crops. "Work which has previously been available until mid-June in other areas may be completed by the end of March this year," Smith said.

Officials also are concerned with the cuts in social programs that help the workers. Kent County's health care program for migrant workers was discontinued last fall, and legal aid programs soon may be cut by the Reagan administration.

"If that cut goes through, the migrants would have no legal aid this year, and last year we had 1,000 cases," said Ron Kirschenheiter, supervising attorney for the Michigan Migrant Legal Assistance Program.

Prior to 1790, Tennessee was just the western section of North Carolina, then ceded to the federal government.

Avenue Baptist to Host Allen Buchanek Ministry

Allen Buchanek and the musical team, a Daystar will be guest at the Avenue Baptist Church for a week of preaching, teaching and singing beginning Sunday. Sunday services will be held at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday, March 23 through Friday, March 20, services are scheduled for noon and 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend. Buchanek's message includes his experience of being a victim of a refinery explosion in 1962 which changed his life calling him to serve Jesus Christ.

His message, "Saved by Fire," which he has delivered more than 900 times will be included in the Thursday, March 26 service at the church.

Buchanek was converted and called to preach Sept. 9, 1962 under the James Robison's ministry. He married Sharron Gramer July 6, 1963 and they have four children.

A graduate from East Texas Baptist College in 1967, Buchanek has held more than 450 revivals in 18 states and Mexico and Israel.

Paystar is made up of the brother and sister team of Edward and Becky Black who joined the Allen Buchanek Ministry in August of 1980. Miss Black is an accomplished musician who plays the piano and other keyboard instruments and does the vocal arrangements for the team.

Edward Black adds a strong voice to the team's trio and is in charge of the record and book ministry of the association.

Home Decorations Discussed At Xi Epsilon Alpha Meeting

Helen Cavin demonstrated home decorations with folk art at the regular meeting of Xi Epsilon Alpha Tuesday night at the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room.

She explained how to decorate a home with personal projects including needlework and painting.

During the business meeting, it was announced that Founders Day will be held April 30 at the Hereford Country Club and rituals will be held April 23 at the Community Center.

Members voted to sell tickets for the May 17 Chamber Singers concert, "Country Sound." The club decided to help the singing group as a return favor to the group for singing at the Beta Sigma Phi area convention held here. Tickets for the concert are $2 each.

In other business, Toni Jones asked for volunteers to help with the approaching door-to-door campaign for the American Cancer Society.

Next month, the club will present Easter food baskets to two elderly families in Hereford as the group's service project.

After the meeting the group celebrated St. Patrick's Day with a game of bingo. Refreshments colored in the traditional green were served.

The club will meet again April 7 at the First National Bank to elect 1982 officers and to turn in Girl of the Year letters.

Members present at the meeting, Ilajean Brinkman, Lynda Brown, Barbara Burkhalter, Bonnie Decker, Pam Fogo, Nan Gauthreaux, Jean Holbert, Ronna Howell, Toni Jones, Barbara Kendall, Sandy Owsley, Jo Ann Richburg, Mary Sledge, Linda Kay Reed, Jeannie Tucker, Jan Walser and Janey Whitaker.

New Menu Item

Junelle Schilling and Theresa Artho are stuffing sausage into casing in preparation for St. Anthony's Parish's Wild, Wild, West Carnival set for March 29. This sausage is a new item to be added to the menu for the annual event which will be held at the church. Proceeds from the carnival will go to the school to help pay for operating expenses.

Ann Landers City Dweller

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live in a large city. (Please don't say where, if you print my letter.) The neighborhood is not the best, but it's not the worst, either. I would call it middle class.

There was a dog across the street that barked from morning till night. He really drove me crazy. I spoke to the owners twice, and they said they would do their best to keep him quiet, but the situation never improved.

Last week, while waiting for the bus, I met the man who lives next door to me. He asked if I was bothered by the barking dog across the street. I told him yes, plenty, and that I had complained to the owners, but they never did anything. He said, "I'm fed up, too, and one of these days I'm going to take care of it."

Three days later I heard the dog was found dead. Somebody shot him. I have no proof, but I am almost sure the man next door did it. Should I go to the police? I am afraid that if I do, and he finds out I turned him in, he might get me next. I need some advice.—City Dweller Who Feels Guilty ragged and torn flags he had seen. And in Boston, of all places.

I wish you would print a line or two for the benefit of the retailers in this country. Flags should be made more readily available for patriotic Americans who want them. Sears told me if I wanted a flag I would have to order one from the catalog. K-Mart had U.S. flags in the toy department — under the bicycle tires!

Many stores I tried did not carry flags, and some that did priced them out of the reach of working people. No merchant should make more than a modest profit on the sale of a United States flag. If you agree with me, Ann, please print my letter.—I Read You In Pensacola

DEAR PENSACOLA: I do. Here it is.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last night my husband and I had dinner with his brother and sister. The woman told the dirtiest joke I ever heard. I was shocked and didn't laugh. On the way home my husband said I was rude. He claims I embarrassed her and that I should have laughed — regardless. Is he right or wrong?—No Ha Ha

DEAR DWELLER: You have no proof that the man next door shot the dog. It could have been any number of neighbors — or even a would-be burglar, so MYOB.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You printed a letter a while back from a correspondent who was critical of the many

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A close friend gave our child a check for $25 on the event of her first communion. The check bounced. We can't understand it. These people are fairly well-to-do.

My husband says our daughter should write a thank-you note, and we should let the matter drop. I say we should send the check through the bank a second time and, if it bounces again, return it to the giver. It says "insufficient funds" across the top. What do you say?—Memphis Mystic

DEAR M.M.: Send it through again. If it does a double bounce, your daughter should write a thank-you note, and nothing should be said.

What kind of wedding goes with today's new life styles? Does anything go? Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" tells what's right for today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (15 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Dating custom

The custom of dating events B.C. (before Christ) and A.D. (year of Our Lord) was introduced about 525 by Dionysius Exiguus, a Roman abbot and astronomer who set Christ's birth 753 years after the founding of Rome.

DEAR NO: He's wrong. People who don't like dirty jokes shouldn't have to pretend that they do. The best way to discourage repeats is to be a poor audience. I'm with you, Babe.

Ms. Brumley, Olson Join College Clubs

Barbara Brumley and Richard Olson both pledged with social clubs during spring rush at McMurry College at Abilene.

Ms. Brumley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Brumley, pledged with Theta Chi Lambda.

Olson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Olson, pledged with I.H.R. Ten clubs at the school pledged 110 students after two weeks of active pledging parties and smokers.

McMurry is a four-year liberal arts college jointly owned by the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Conferences of the United Methodist Church.

Bippus Homemakers To Attend Meeting

Plans were made for members of the Bippus Extension Homemakers to attend the District I Texas Extension Homemakers Association meeting in Amarillo.

The club discussed the convention when they met recently at the home of Mariellen Homfeld. The Amarillo meeting will be held April 2.

In other business the club talked about providing curtains for the Bippus Community House but no final plans were made.

Members answered the roll call by naming a favorite convenience food which coordinated with the program about cooking mixers provided by Louise Walker, Deaf Smith County Extension agent.

Mrs. Walker told the members how to save money by making mixes rather than buying them at a store.

Members attending the meeting were Flora Homfeld, Kate Bradley, Mariellen Homfeld, Louise Walker and Louise Hall.

Judge Morgan Speaks To LAE Club

Judge Sam Morgan was introduced Tuesday afternoon to members of La Afflatus Estudio Club by Opal Elliston, prior to speaking to the club on wills.

Judge Morgan emphasized the need to have a will made. He told of two types of wills, one being typed, signed and signed by two witnesses. The other being a holographic will which is written in one's own handwriting and signed. "This type is legal," stressed Judge Morgan, "but has many pitfalls."

The judge recommended having wills written with the help of a lawyer.

LAE convened in the home of Aileen Montgomery with Lucile Hughes conducting roll call. Members answered with quotations and quips.

Refreshments were served during the social hour by hostesses Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Hughes.

Others present were Pet Ott, Allyne Johnson, Madeline Bell, Tresha Hale, Irene Markham, Della Stagner, Mary Williamson, Alberta Higgins, and Lydia Hopson.

Cooking Hints Given At Westway Meeting

Helpful hints, recipes and cost comparisons of cooking mixes were presented at the Westway Extension Homemakers meeting Tuesday at the Hereford Community Center.

Louise Walker, Deaf Smith County Agent, presented the program to the members explaining the benefits of homemade cooking recipes.

Several announcements were made during the meeting including the District I Texas Extension Homemakers Association April 2 at Amarillo, Deaf Smith County Extension Homemakers Council March 23 at the county library Heritage Room and the Joy Gibson cooking school sponsored by the Pioneer Natural Gas.

The club will meet again April 21 at the home of Nancy Nixon, 1209 Grand at 7:30 p.m.

Members present at the meeting were Debbie Keyes, Joan Bookout, Leta Kaul, Grace Covington, Sherry Harder, Carolyn Evers, Nancy Nixon, Billie Landrum and a guest, J.J. Bookout.

Once Multi-Millionaire in Texas Guest Speaker at Meeting Saturday

The Hereford Texas Chapter of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International invites men of all occupations, ladies, and teenagers among the community to attend a special meeting with guest speaker E.Z. Jones.

The meeting is scheduled for Saturday, March 21, at the Hereford High School Cafeteria. A buffet supper, costing $3.65 per person, will begin at 7 p.m. The meeting will begin at 7:45 p.m.

Jones, a once multi-millionaire in true Texas standard, came from chopping cotton in Oklahoma to building apartments, office buildings, and shopping centers in Houston. By 1973, Jones was wealthy and famous. In addition to being owner of vast real estate holdings, he was owner and vice-president of the Houston Aeros Hockey Club and first franchisee and president of the Houston World Team Tennis "The E.Z. Riders."

Jones credit at the banks were unlimited, but his credit with God was zero. Then the books were balanced. Within days, Jones lost everything - his wife, his family, and his money.

Moreover, he was deeply in debt. At this point in life, Jones learned that when you've lost everything in the world, you can still find God. He accepted Jesus Christ and found true wealth. Now Jones is again prospering. He has been placed in a successful real estate development business in Houston.

The public is encouraged to attend this meeting to hear the testimony of how God has used Jones.

The Chapter of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship also invites men within the community to attend a prayer breakfast on the Sunday before the chapter's meeting, the 3rd Saturday. The breakfast will be at 7 a.m. at Dickie's Restaurant.

President of the chapter is Jonny Cloud.

The 1980's--Decade of Changes

(Editor's Note: The following is the second of a series of essays written by Hereford High School seniors in conjunction with a Masonic Lodge sponsored contest, "Americanism." The winner of the contest to be announced at a later date will receive a $50 savings bond.)

AMERICANISM - THE 1980'S
By Eric Alenador
HHS Senior

America faces a new decade: the 1980's. What is in store for us in the years ahead? Recent times have seen decades of change: change toward the radical, change toward the hostile, change toward the amoral. The 80's will also be a decade of change, but we as Americans determine what kind of alteration. We can either continue in the path we are on, with the only deviation being one for the worse, or we can experience positive change as we return to the Godly principles on which our nation was founded: the rights of the citizens, coupled with their responsibilities to the State and to their fellow citizens.

The rights of all Americans can be summed up in one word: freedom. In our Constitution, we are guaranteed freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and freedom of assembly. We are also guaranteed the right to bear arms, the right to a speedy trial, and protection from cruel and unusual punishments and unreasonable searches and seizures. Our nation was founded, settled, and fought for, because men thirsted for these basic freedoms which we so often take for granted.

As we take for granted our freedoms, we tend to forget that we also have responsibilities that accompany them. As Daniel Webster stated, "God grants liberty only to those who love it, and are always ready to guard and defend it." It is our responsibility to actively "guard and defend" liberty.

We can do so by taking part in the political process, by voting, by obeying the laws, by praying for our leaders, and by being willing to make personal sacrifices for the good of the nation as a whole. We can also protect liberty by not abusing our rights, or exercising them at the expense of others. Responsible action on our part will protect the freedom we love, and preserve it for the generations to come.

We can defend our freedom by responsible action, the cornerstone of Americanism. If we realize and act upon this fact, the 80's will be characterized not by a continuation of past mistakes and selfishness, but by a step in a better direction, a more Godly direction. The choice is ours: a choice for the 80's.

Church Conducts Gospel Meetings

Church of Christ, located at 317 Ave. I, has been conducting Gospel meetings this week and will continue with the meetings through Sunday.

The meetings are beginning at 8 p.m. each evening with Evangelist J. Henderson.

Henderson is a 1966 graduate of Hereford High School.

Sunday, the meeting will begin at 10:30 a.m. with another meeting at 6 p.m.

The Church of Christ was formerly located at Miles and Grace Street.

Frio Baptist Church Sets Spring Revival

Frio Baptist Church will have their Spring revival beginning Sunday, March 22 and continuing through Sunday, March 29. Services will be each day at 11 a.m. and each evening at 7:30 p.m.

A noon meal will be served each day following the services in order that those working may come to services, eat, and return to work.

The evening services will be preceded by choir practice and a prayer meeting at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Billy Hudnall, pastor of Anderson Mill Baptist Church in Austin, will preach at the services. Rev. Hudnall has pastored for 25 years, holding pastorates in Groveton, Bryan, Rotan, and Mt. Pleasant.

Mrs. Aldridge Honored At Country Club Dinner

Melba Aldridge was honored at a dinner Tuesday night at the Hereford Country Club hosted by members of Alpha Alpha Preceptor.

Mrs. Aldridge of Dimmitt has been absent from the club for more than a year due to illness.

Other long-time members at the dinner were Nita Jennings of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. an Ollene Williams of Amarillo.

Local members present were Lilly Shipman, Sharon Cramer, Vida Grady, Mary Jean Gore and Earline Schneider.

Stephens presently serves as Music and Education Director of Calvary Baptist Church in Beaumont. He has served in Austin, Corpus Christi, Odessa, Big Spring, Granbury, Dallas, and Waco.

Stephens has also been in church work for 25 years. He is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin and Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth. He is a man of wide and varied experiences and has a baritone voice.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

A few months ago, I suggested that television ease up a little on sex in Texas and give the other 49 states a chance to be unscrupulous and immoral. So far, no one has taken the bait. "J.R." and the Ewing clan have made sex the biggest group sport since water volleyball. They've also succeeded in setting a style that the entire country is trying to emulate.

To be perfectly honest, I've had it with the Western look. If I never see another fanny in a pair of tight jeans it will be too soon for me. If I never see another chase between a pick-up truck and a sports car, it'll be just fine. If I never see a man in a ten-gallon hat arguing about his inheritance, I can live.

He is a graduate of Hardin Simmons University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He is also Group Chaplain of the 111th Support Group of the Texas National Guard and holds the rank of Major.

Rev. Hudnall is married and has two children.

Music leader for the services will be Jim Stephens.

The musical instruments will be played by Mrs. Nelda Rodgers and Mrs. Darlene Richardson. A nursery will be available for the services.

Frio Baptist Church is located seven miles south of Hereford on farm market road 1055. Frio is a Southern Baptist Church with a full program of Bible preaching, teaching, training, Brotherhood for men, Missionary study and work for women, youth and children's organizations, and a growing music ministry.

Rev. Gene Tone serves as pastor. Everyone is invited to attend these services, according to Rev. Tone.

Monday-Friday 8:30 to 5 p.m.

I'm not exaggerating when I talk about the impact Texas has had on the country. In one week alone, I received booklets and ads that offered: Western pillows, boots with matching bags, a doormat that says, "Hi Y'all," hornshaped beer steins, a stuffed Clydesdale for the wall, a tie clasp in the shape of a Conestoga Wagon, a bolo tie, a belt made out of diamond-back rattlesnake hide, and a game called "Go to Texas" with the objective being to be the richest player.

There's also a silver boot match-holder, packets of Texas chili with enamelware to serve it in, belt buckles, a pound of Texas leather to carry around because it looks and smells great, an oil cap with J.R.'s official emblem on it, an eight-inch ceramic armadillo filled with jalapeno lollipops, barbed-wire swizzle sticks and napkin holders and (get ready) for $25 you can buy a square foot of J.R.'s ranch, Southfork. (You can bet if J.R.'s letting it go, it died.)

I don't deny Texas is easy to fall in love with...the warmth of its people, the outgoing honesty, the extremes and the laid-back lifestyle, but let's not get limited by our imagination. What's the Midwest city you think of when you think of sin? Cleveland!

Try this plot on for size. An envelope baron is buying up all the stationery manufacturers in the Midwest to create a monopoly and bring corporations to their knees. He has a wife who winters in Akron and a mistress in Chargin Falls. He is trying to marry his only daughter off to a glue magnate and is upset because his only son wants to clerk in a maternity shop. One night the Cuyahoga River catches fire and one of his envelopes is seen on the banks, near the crime.

I'm telling you. Give it a chance and in three months the whole country will be talking with a Cleveland accent and wearing loafers.

Graduating Nursing Students To Be Pinned Friday Evening

Fifteen students of the Amarillo College-Hereford Branch Vocational Nursing Program, being the sixth class for Hereford, will be pinned at 7 p.m. Friday in the Heritage Room of the County Library.

Speaker for the ceremony will be Mrs. Loretta Kind-father, C.E.T.A. Coordinator for Deaf Smith County who has with each class made it possible to supply financial aid for several students.

Sue Ann Hicks, chairman of Vocational Nursing at Amarillo College will emcee the special occasion.

Those graduating from the program will qualify to take the State Board Examination scheduled for April 14. Those who pass the test will be certified as Licensed Vocational Nurses.

Those who have completed the program in Hereford are Marsha Ankeney, Terri Blackwell, Mary Ann Cantu, Rosi Casarez, Linda Cook, Sylvia Garcia, Jackie Hall, Sharon Johnson, Lisa Kearns, Marie McQueary, Hilda Rodriguez, Charlene Seale, Bertha Sears, Virginia Sims, and Carla Tatavevich.

VFW Auxiliary Hosts District President

Hazel Cumby, VFW auxiliary District president, attended the Hereford chapter meeting held Tuesday evening at Post Club House No. 4818.

Mrs. Cumby of Happy spoke briefly to those members attending the regular meeting.

A called meeting will be held in Plainview April 4 beginning at 4 p.m. A meal and a dance at Post Home No. 5399 will be included.

Marie Childs, state president, will speak at the meeting. All members of the Hereford Auxiliary are planning to attend.

In other business, members voted to have the election of officers at the next meeting.

'Upset City' Resumes

By The Associated Press

Upset City, alias the NCAA basketball tournament, resumes tonight with Virginia, North Carolina and Notre Dame putting their Top Ten rankings on the line and Louisiana State, Indiana and Utah hoping to take advantage of friendly surroundings. The East and West Regionals tip off tonight with the Midwest and Midwest coming up Friday night. The regional championships to determine the Final Four will be played Saturday and Sunday.

The fifth-ranked Virginia Cavaliers will get things rolling against No. 15 Tennessee in the opener of a doubleheader at the Omni in Atlanta. And All-American Ralph Sampson, their 7-foot-4 star, put things in perspective for all the remaining games, as well as most of those already played.

"It will be a battle," he said. "It will be a war."

The 48-team skirmish already has claimed 10 members of The Associated Press Top Twenty among its victims, including top-rated DePaul, runnerup Oregon State and third-ranked Arizona State.

In the Atlanta nightcap, seventh-ranked Notre Dame meets No. 16 Brigham Young. Meanwhile, the University of Utah, ranked 14th, will be at home in Salt Lake City against sixth-ranked North Carolina. In the second game, No. 19 Illinois faces Kansas State.

NCAA Tourney Battles Set

Friday night starts with a twinbill at Bloomington, Ind., where the Cinderella Hawks of St. Joseph's (Pa.) meet Boston College and the hometown Indiana Hoosiers tackle upstart Alabama-Birmingham.

At the New Orleans Superdome, little more than an hour down the road from Baton Rouge, fourth-ranked LSU faces No. 20 Arkansas after intrastate rivals Kansas and Wichita State meet for the first time in 25 years.

All four teams in the East have ailing players. Lee Raker, Virginia's third leading scorer, is not expected to start, although he will be available. And Tennessee's Steve Ray developed colitis last month and has been slow to recover.

Orlando Woolridge, one of Notre Dame's key performers, is still slowed by a charley horse and hasn't practiced all week. And BYU's Danny Ainge, the regional's top scorer with a 25-point average, has been bothered by a back ailment. Coach Frank Arnold says his star is 90-95 percent effective.

Utah will have the homecourt advantage but the home uniform disadvantage against North Carolina. That's because the Utes are seeded third in the regional and the Tar Heels are second.

"We may be wearing our home uniforms against Utah, but I can tell you who will have whatever homecourt advantage there is to be had," says Carolina Coach Dean Smith.

The game will match two imposing front lines. North Carolina goes with 6-6 Al Wood, 6-9 James Worthy and 6-9 Sam Perkins while Utah counters with 6-7 Danny Vranes, 6-7 Karl Bankowski and 6-10 Tom Chambers.

Kansas State relies heavily on 6-6 guard Rolando Blackman, whose last-gasp shot eliminated Oregon State. Illinois' strength is in the front court in forwards Eddie Johnson and Mark Smith.

Alabama-Birmingham's Gene Bartow is trying to become the first coach to take three different schools to the Final Four. He did it previously with UCLA and Memphis State.

"We're playing as well as we have all year," he said. "It's going to be tough going into Bloomington to play Indiana. But who knows? At this time of year anything can happen."

The other contest matches a pair of scrappy teams in Boston College and St. Joseph's that have been overshadowed — but not outplayed — by bigger-name teams in the tourney.

Wichita State is hurting for its clash with Kansas since playmaker Tony Martin suffered a ruptured disc in his back in the Shockers' victory over Iowa and 6-11 Ozell Jones has been declared ineligible because of an error in his high school transcript.

LSU is bent on revenge against Arkansas, a team it lost to 86-76 in the Great Alaska Shootout way back at the start of the season.

That was the Tigers' only blemish until a two-point loss to Kentucky in the regular-season windup.

Ethan Martin, LSU's 5-10 guard, will have the task of stopping miracle worker U.S. Reed, whose 49-foot desperation heave at the buzzer enabled Arkansas to oust defending champion Louisville.

James Mays Aims for NCAA Outdoor Qualifying Time

Fresh from the second All-America finish in his career, James Mays will take aim on the NCAA outdoor 800-meter qualifying time this weekend in Austin.

Mays and three other Red Raiders have received special permission to run in the University of Texas triangular Saturday, even though Texas Tech is not one of the official participants.

"We are going to Austin solely for the purpose of trying to qualify for the NCAAs," said coach Corky Oglesby. "Mays and Owen Hamilton of Texas should hook up in a great 800 meters."

Joining Mays will be Edwin Newsome in the 400 meters, Greg Rolle in the 400-meter hurdles and Thomas Selmon in the long jump.

Mays is coming off a spectacular third-place finish in last weekend's 880-yard run at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships in Detroit. Mays were closed in 1:54.74 in the finals, beating Richard Ouma of Farleigh-Dickerson in a photo finish. Ouma was a fourth-place finisher in last summer's Moscow Olympics.

"James ran exceptionally well, even though his time was not good," Oglesby said. "It was a very small, slow track."

Even though he ran the prelims and finals on Friday, he came back the next day after a long flight to win the 800 meters in the Fort Worth Recreational in a time of 1:49.85. He is unbeaten in three starts at the 800-meter distance this spring outdoors.

This weekend's activity will be a warmup for the Texas Tech Invitational March 28. The Red Raiders will host West Texas State, Abilene Christian, Wayland, Eastern New Mexico, Angelo State and LCC.

Syracuse Takes On Big 10 Michigan

Syracuse, snubbed by the NCAA tournament selection committee despite winning the Big East Conference tourney on its home floor, hopes to continue its string of postseason successes at the Carrier Dome tonight when it takes on Michigan in a quarterfinal game of the National Invitation Tournament.

Michigan is one of three Big Ten teams still alive after the first two rounds of the NIT, which winds up in New York's Madison Square Garden March 23 and 25.

Minnesota, beaten by Virginia in the NIT final a year ago, plays host to West Virginia in tonight's other game, while Purdue will be host to Duke on Friday. In Friday's other quarterfinal, South Alabama will play at Tulsa.

Michigan, 19-10, is led by Mike McGee, a 6-foot-5 senior forward who is averaging 24 points per game and is the Big Ten's all-time leading scorer.

Syracuse's biggest weapon may be the homecourt advantage, since more than 20,000 are expected for tonight's game. The Orangemen, 15-11 in the regular season, have already won five postseason games at the Carrier Dome — three in the Big East tournament and two in the NIT. On the season Syracuse is 16-3 at home, 4-8 away.

West Virginia Coach Gale Catlett, whose team won its first two NIT games at home, expects it to be tougher when the Mountaineers take to the road to face Minnesota.

Atlanta Hawks Stun Winning Celtics

By The Associated Press

It should have been Boston's night. Instead it became Boston's nightmare.

The Celtics had won 28 straight games at Boston Garden, and when the Atlanta Hawks came to town they Celtics 108-97 Wednesday night behind 38 points by All-Star guard Eddie Johnson.

The Philadelphia 76ers took full advantage of Boston's defeat, climbing back into first place by one-half game with a 107-95 decision over the home-court advantage in every postseason series.

In other NBA games, the Phoenix Suns defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 126-114, the Golden State Warriors nipped the Houston Rockets 118-117, the New York Knicks 14-point advantage.

Any combination of three Suns victories or Laker defeats will give Phoenix its first division title since joining the NBA 13 years ago.

Warriors 118, Rockets 117
Bernard King's short jumper with four seconds remaining gave Golden State a crucial victory over Houston in a game in which the lead changed hands five times in the final 1:12. Calvin Murphy, who scored 16 of his 34 points in the final period, had put Houston ahead by one with a long jumper with 12 seconds left before King hit his game-winner to finish with 32 points.

The Warriors lead Kansas City by one-half game and Houston by 1½ games in the scramble for the final two Western Conference playoff spots.

Knicks 116, Bucks 103
New York saw a 16-point lead dwindle to three in the third period before bouncing back to beat the Bucks for its fourth consecutive victory. Guard Michael Ray Richardson led the Knicks with 28 points, 12 of them in the fourth quarter.

Jazz 120, Mavericks 113
Adrian Dantley, the NBA's leading scorer with a 31.2 average, riddled Dallas for 48 points to power the Jazz over the Mavericks. Dantley got 15 of his points in the final period to help Utah take control of what had been a close game.

Erving scored 10 of his points in the fourth quarter to keep Philadelphia in front. Indiana closed to 87-85 with 5:48 to play, but baskets by Erving, Lionel Hollins and Bobby Jones enabled the 76ers to pull away.

The 76ers shot 52 percent from the field to 36 percent by Indiana.

Suns 126, Lakers 114
Phoenix stretched its Pacific Division lead over Los Angeles to 4½ games by beating the Lakers behind 23 points apiece by Walter Davis, Len Robinson and Dennis Johnson. The Suns pulled away by shooting 65 percent from the field in the third period and outscoring Los Angeles 34-24 to open a

Fishermen Score Big Win in Plans For Choke Canyon Reservoir Site

AUSTIN - The clearing plan compromise agreement announced by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission for Choke Canyon Reservoir should give South Texas area fishermen cause for some jubilation.

Under the compromise, the Parks and Wildlife Department will take over eventual management of all recreation, fishery and wildlife resources of the 38,000-acre tract which includes a yet-to-be-impounded 26,000-acre reservoir.

The site is near the city of Three Rivers, halfway between San Antonio and Corpus Christi.

The City of Corpus Christi will develop parklands around the reservoir to department specifications before turning the site over to the department. The dam is being constructed by the federal Water and Power Resources Service (WPRS), which originally had planned to clear approximately 7,700 acres of prime timber and brushland from the lake bottom.

City and WPRS officials had cited safety liability as a reason for clearing the reservoir. This problem was resolved when the department accepted responsibility for management of the recreational aspects of reservoir, since the state's liability is limited by the Texas Tort Claims Act.

The compromise reduced the acreage to be cleared from about 7,700 to 4,000 acres. The 3,700 acres saved from clearing included brush and timber areas which are expected to be some of the lake's prime sport of fish habitat, especially for largemouth bass. Reduction of the area to be cleared also saved an estimated $400,000, according to federal estimates.

Bob Bounds, the department's inland fisheries coordinator, said the areas saved from the bulldozer may be even more significant than they appear on the map. "All three major areas contain portions of the Frio River

CHOKE CANYON RESERVOIR

- 1 AREAS OF NO CLEARING (INTERIM AGREEMENT)
- 2 AREAS SAVED FROM CLEARING (FINAL AGREEMENT)
- 3 AREA OF SELECTIVE CLEARING channel, with large timber, brush and elevation variances. These are the elements that produce good fishing." "The original clearing plan would have removed 70 percent of the lake's available fish habitat," Bounds said, "including virtually all the approximately 2,200 acres of prime timber."

He added that even in the 500 acres of river channel timber which must be cleared for boat lanes the plan now calls for selected trees to be cut, chained and left to provide cover for fish. "Even some brush removed in the clearing operations will be stacked along points which will be inundated when the reservoir fills, so there is hope for some good fishing even in the cleared areas," Bounds said.

Bounds pinpointed some areas in the "saved" portion which should have excellent fish habitat. "The large area west of Callihan Point and just north of Mason Point is about 400 to 500 acres of land that could be best described as a jungle," he said. "It has dense stands of cottonwood, live oak, mesquite, elm and hackberry, along with plenty of underbrush and grapevines."

He said a large boat lane had to be carved out adjacent to Callihan Point because of a park and boat ramps planned there. However, a narrow band for north of the point will offer about 200 acres of good fish habitat centered around the bends of the Frio River channel.

Another 200-acre section on the northeast side around Opossum Hollow will have some outstanding fish habitat which would have been lost, Bounds said.

"It will be a long while before the fishery develops, since the lake probably won't reach conservation elevation for a few years, but the important thing is that the habitat which can keep the lake productive for many years has largely been saved," Bounds said.

Bounds noted that there are a number of small ponds in the lake bed which will be utilized as brood areas for Florida-strain largemouth bass and perhaps other species. The ponds will be treated with the chemical rotenone to remove undesirable fish, then restocked with game fish to give the lake a running start when impounded.

The Frio River already had good populations of native fish which also will help get the fishery moving. One of the earlier fisheries on the new lake may be white bass, which are present in the Frio River, and which should reproduce rapidly enough to provide good fishing soon after impoundment, Bounds added.

Deer Season Poor in 1980

AUSTIN - The white-tailed deer harvest slipped to a nine-year low in the 1980-81 hunting season, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The estimated harvest of 260,400 deer was 20 percent below the previous year's total. Hunter numbers also declined to 506,800, down approximately six percent from 1979-80.

Glenn Boydston, technical program coordinator, said the 1980-81 figures indicate the downward trend observed since 1972-73 is continuing.

"The relatively good year hunters had in 1979-80 broke the trend somewhat, as 326,000 deer were taken," Boydston said. "However, it appears that despite that one good year the decline is continuing." He said highly favorable weather conditions caused the unusually good deer production and harvest in 1979-80.

Other factors contributing to the harvest include: more liberalized antlerless permit issuance rates in the Edwards Plateau, South Texas and Post Oak Savannah Ecological areas; poor range conditions, especially in South Texas and the Edwards Plateau, causing deer to forage more, thereby increasing their vulnerability to the gun; the doubling of antlerless permits in the Pineywoods due to the deer population increase; and hunter numbers up by almost four percent over 1978-79.

The good weather conditions reversed themselves early in 1980, with a severe drought causing low reproduction, poor antler development and in some counties, die-offs. Autumn rains came in time to fatten deer, but too late to recoup the earlier losses.

Other factors were rainy and cold weather on the opening weekend when traditionally a large portion of the total harvest occurs, and an unusually good acorn crop. The availability of acorns caused the deer to move around less, and negated the effects of deer feeders stocked with corn.

Dry weather also may have had some effect on a severe decline in harvest of mule deer, Boydston said. The total kill was 4,800, compared to the normal harvest of approximately 7,500. Part of the decline could be attributed to a 15 percent decline in hunter participation, with an estimated 15,700 hunting in 1980-81.

Although fewer hunted for white-tailed deer in 1980-81, hunter-days increased four percent from 1979-80.

The most severe declines in the whitetail harvest were seen in the important Edwards Plateau and South Texas ecological regions. The ecological regions, the kill and the percent decline are: Pineywoods, 26,500 (10 percent); Cross Timbers, 18,300 (15 percent); South Texas, 50,800 (23 percent); and Edwards Plateau, 120,500 (27 percent). The Post Oak Savannah region posted a nine percent increase in harvest, at 29,500 animals.

The sex ratio of the harvest, 73 percent bucks and 27 percent antlerless, changed little from the previous year. Success ratio declined from 50 percent in 1979-80 to 44 percent the past season.

Wild turkey harvest figures also declined from the previous year, but biologists point out that 1979-80 was an outstanding year for turkey populations so there was little surprise. Hunters took 26,900 turkeys statewide, compared to 38,400 in 1979-80.

The javelina harvest was down about seven percent from the previous year.

Blue Catfish Record is Set

AUSTIN - A 78-pound blue catfish caught on a trotline Jan. 14 at Lake Livingston has been certified as a new state record by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The fish, which was 54 inches long and 36 inches in girth, was caught on a line set by Doyle Chaney and G.C. Dousay, both of Livingston.

The former record fish was a 70-pounder caught by trotline at Marsh Lake near Big Hill Bayou in 1965.

Park Site Acquired At Lake Houston

AUSTIN - A 4,706-acre tract of land on the north shoreline of Lake Houston in Harris and Montgomery Counties has been approved for purchase as a state park.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission in a meeting in Austin March 5 approved a contract with Champion Realty Corp. of Houston, a subsidiary of Champion International Corp., to purchase the land.

The wooded site, located only about 30 miles north of downtown Houston, includes approximately nine miles of water frontage on Lake Houston, the East Fork at the San Jacinto River and Caney and Peach Creeks. It is located in Harris and Montgomery Counties, including a portion within the Houston city limits.

The land was purchased for $2,900 per acre from funds dedicated to park acquisition by the Texas Local Park, Recreation and Open Space Fund. The fund is financed by taxes on the sale of cigarettes in Texas, and was enacted by the Texas Legislature specifically for acquisition of parklands in urban areas.

The commission commended Harris County Judge Jon Lindsay, Houston Mayor Jim McConn, the Parks People, Inc. organization and officials of Champion Realty Corp. for their efforts in the acquisition project.

John Clarson, president of Champion Realty Corp., said "We are pleased that this prime land, managed by Champion for more than 30 years, will be enjoyed by all Texans. Our company has endeavored to maintain and improve the natural beauty of the site, which offers abundant recreational opportunities."

He noted that Texas continues to experience significant population growth, especially around major cities. "Because of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's decision, this property will provide many people opportunities to enjoy its recreational and aesthetic qualities."

The Lake Houston site, combined with the Hale

Ranch park site already under development south of Houston, will provide Houston residents almost 10,000 acres of new parklands within 30 miles of downtown when opened. The Hale Ranch site is expected to be open by early spring 1982.

Access to the Lake Houston site is by Ranch Roads 1960 to 1485 from the east, and from U.S. Highway 59 to Ranch Road 1485 from the west.

Parks officials said the site has been used for timber production for approximately 30 years, but only trees larger than 12 inches in trunk diameter were selectively harvested. The area is heavily wooded with medium to large pine, oak, magnolia, cypress and a variety of other species.

In addition to the lake and river frontage, the site also contains numerous oxbow lakes, one of which covers about 10 acres and is lined with tall cypress trees.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am female, 18, and have a problem that really worries me. I would appreciate your advice. For the past three months my doctor has prescribed Valium for me. I do have emotional problems that I cannot handle directly myself. I'm 50 pounds overweight and the Valium does help to control my emotional problems. I am afraid I am becoming totally dependent upon Valium. I don't want to run into more problems in the future. I am a very nervous and hyper person. I also take nose drops every hour or my nose stuffs up. I can't breathe except through my mouth. For the past two years I have taken Excedrin every day. I wake up every morning with a headache. The headaches aren't bad, they are just there. DEAR READER - So you are nervous and tend to have anxiety. It is true that tranquilizers such as Valium may give relief from these conditions. But you can't and don't want to go through life on tranquilizers. Your nose problems and your headaches may also be related to your anxiety. I would suggest that you ask your doctor to refer you to a mental health clinic or a psychiatrist for some help. If you can work through your emotional tensions, perhaps you won't need to rely on medications and may well be able to enjoy life a great deal more. You might try just using nose drops in one side of your nose for a while. That will enable the other side to recover from chemical reactions to nose drops. After one side has recovered so you will have one open normal side, you can stop using them entirely. That method helps many people who get hooked on nose drops. DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like some information about autopsies. I thought an autopsy always showed the cause of death. Recently a friend of mine died suddenly. She was not sick and was not under a doctor's care. The death certificate read, "probable virus." This was based on the fact she had had a cold about a week before she died. Now people tell me that it is not unusual for a young person to die suddenly and no cause is found. DEAR READER - There are causes of death that cannot be seen by visual examination, even with the use of a microscope. To cite one example, if your heart suddenly stopped or beat in such an irregular fashion as to fail to pump blood, you would be dead in minutes. But the heart stoppage or irregularity isn't visible by a post mortem examination since all hearts

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am female, 18, and have a problem that really worries me. I would appreciate your advice. For the past three months my doctor has prescribed Valium for me. I do have emotional problems that I cannot handle directly myself. I'm 50 pounds overweight and the Valium does help to control my emotional problems. I am afraid I am becoming totally dependent upon Valium. I don't want to run into more problems in the future. I am a very nervous and hyper person. I also take nose drops every hour or my nose stuffs up. I can't breathe except through my mouth. For the past two years I have taken Excedrin every day. I wake up every morning with a headache. The headaches aren't bad, they are just there. DEAR READER - So you are nervous and tend to have anxiety. It is true that tranquilizers such as Valium may give relief from these conditions. But you can't and don't want to go through life on tranquilizers. Your nose problems and your headaches may also be related to your anxiety. I would suggest that you ask your doctor to refer you to a mental health clinic or a psychiatrist for some help. If you can work through your emotional tensions, perhaps you won't need to rely on medications and may well be able to enjoy life a great deal more. You might try just using nose drops in one side of your nose for a while. That will enable the other side to recover from chemical reactions to nose drops. After one side has recovered so you will have one open normal side, you can stop using them entirely. That method helps many people who get hooked on nose drops. DEAR DR. LAMB - I would like some information about autopsies. I thought an autopsy always showed the cause of death. Recently a friend of mine died suddenly. She was not sick and was not under a doctor's care. The death certificate read, "probable virus." This was based on the fact she had had a cold about a week before she died. Now people tell me that it is not unusual for a young person to die suddenly and no cause is found. DEAR READER - There are causes of death that cannot be seen by visual examination, even with the use of a microscope. To cite one example, if your heart suddenly stopped or beat in such an irregular fashion as to fail to pump blood, you would be dead in minutes. But the heart stoppage or irregularity isn't visible by a post mortem examination since all hearts

Jammed Ports Holding Up Coal Movement

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Pennsylvania coal operators, eager to take advantage of burgeoning overseas demand, are struggling just to move coal out of the state because of ports so jammed that ships sit for weeks waiting to be loaded.

In addition, the Conrail system that has gradually been winning over many mine operators, who suffered for years with erratic, inefficient rail service, is under threat of losing its federal dollars.

The dilemma faced by one company, Barnes & Tucker Coal based in Valley Forge, illustrates the current problems in moving coal.

A new mine Barnes & Tucker is developing to produce coal for Korea is located between rail lines operated by Conrail and the Chessie System. But the transportation decision the company must make is not based on rail service, which is equally good, said vice president Edwin Sheriff.

Instead the company will compare port facilities in Philadelphia, served by Conrail, and Baltimore, served by Chessie.

"The pier situation is such that we have to take a hard look at the best place to send it. The congestion at the piers this last year, and particularly since the cold weather came, has been terrific," Sheriff said.

The clogged ports are caused in part because of the demand for U.S. coal from developing nations and those in Europe, where Poland's labor troubles have cut the amount of coal it can supply.

"There are European coal buyers crawling all over the United States. If we can find a way to get it out of the country, that's a potential market for U.S. coal," said Alan Walker, president of Bradford Coal Co. in Bigler, Pa.

Charles Potter, chairman of the board of Rochester & Pittsburgh Coal Co., the state's largest producer, said R&P is afraid it will lose some contracts because of demurrage fees — the price paid for ships to sit in port, waiting to be loaded.

"We have had to ship coal to Hampton Roads, Va., because Philadelphia and Baltimore couldn't handle it. There's not enough dump capacity. The ports aren't big enough," said Potter.

"Ships are waiting six weeks to get in here (Philadelphia)," Carl Reed, a spokesman for the Delaware River Port Authority of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, acknowledged.

Reed said annual coal exports from Philadelphia, steady at 1 million tons since 1975, tripled last year to 3 million tons. The port ranks fourth in coal exports, tied with New Orleans behind Norfolk, Va., Baltimore and Mobile, Ala.

The state has recently committed itself to financing a $22.6 million renovation of Pier 124 in Philadelphia, but U.S. Sen. John Heinz said the project, while helpful, "barely puts us in the ball game."

"While we are improving the port of Philadelphia from 2.5 (million) to 10 million tons, Hampton Roads is increasing its capacity from 25 (million) to 75 million tons a year," he said in a recent speech to the Keystone Bituminous Coal Association.

Heinz said another Philadelphia pier — Port Richmond, which has a capacity of 30 million tons of coal a year — is endangered because its owner, Conrail, wants to sell off parts to settle short-term cash problems.

"It's at great risk," Heinz said. "If we lose that, I do not know how we uncork the bottleneck in the port of Philadelphia."

Conrail Vice President Warren Barber said Conrail would work with anyone interested in developing Port Richmond. One possible investor is the Port Authority, whose spokesman, Reed, said results of an inhouse study to see if rehabilitation of the pier would be worthwhile are due later this month. He said the facility was abandoned five years ago and has been "badly vandalized."

Some coal operators are worried that, once port renovation takes off, Conrail won't be able to handle the resulting traffic. But Barber dismissed those fears: "The base part of the railroad is there today. We've invested in anticipation of this growth in the coal industry."

Nevertheless, President Reagan has called for track abandonment, layoffs, changes in union work rules and more local subsidies to make Conrail self-sufficient. He also wants to cut off federal aid after 1982.

THAT'S A GOOD QUESTION!

Here are some of the story-illustrations Jesus used in His sermons: "What good is it for one blind man to lead another? He will fall into a ditch and pull the other down with him."

"How can a student know more than his teacher? But if he works hard, he may learn as much."

"And why quibble about the speck in someone else's eye—his little fault—when a board is in your own?"

"How can you think of saying to him, 'Brother, let me help you get rid of that speck in your eye,' when you can't see past the board in yours? Hypocrite! First get rid of the board, and then perhaps you can see well enough to deal with his speck!"

"A tree from good stock doesn't produce scrub fruit nor do trees from poor stock produce choice fruit. A tree is identified by the kind of fruit it produces. Figs never grow on thorns, or grapes on bramble bushes!"

"A good man produces good deeds from a good heart. And an evil man produces evil deeds from his hidden wickedness. Whatever is in the heart overflows into speech."

"So why do you call Me 'Lord' when you won't obey Me?"

"But all those who come and listen and obey Me are like a man who builds a house on a strong foundation laid upon the underlying rock. When the floodwaters rise and break against the house, it stands firm, for it is strongly built."

"But those who listen and don't obey are like a man who builds a house without a foundation. When the floods sweep down against that house, it crumbles into a heap of ruins."

Psychologist Need Not Reveal Sex Encounters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Psychologist John Abell of Austin cannot be compelled to disclose names of female patients with whom he had sex or other intimate contact, the Texas Supreme Court ruled today.

The court's 5-4 decision releases Abell from the threat of going to jail.

Justice Franklin Spears wrote in a dissenting opinion that the court majority was allowing a psychotherapist to inflict mental harm while "it cloaks him with the protection of the privilege to conceal his own wrongs."

Abell is the defendant in a suit filed by two former patients who claim he had sexual intercourse with them, causing subsequent emotional distress. Their lawyers asked him to disclose in writing the names of other patients with whom he had had any kind of sexual contact, including intercourse, kissing, touching, hugging or fondling.

When Abell refused to answer the questions, the women's attorneys obtained a court order requiring him to answer. He refused, was held in contempt and appealed to the Supreme Court.

The court majority said a law passed by the Legislature in 1979 excuses Abell from answering the questions, even though they originally were asked in 1978.

The law grants confidentiality to communication between professionals who treat mental conditions and their patients as well as to their case records.

"It is apparent that a primary purpose of this statute is to protect a patient-client against an invasion of privacy. The need for such purpose is demonstrated by the facts in this case," the court majority said.

Answers to the questions, the court said, "could prove highly embarrassing or perhaps even destructive of existing family relationships for women who were patient-clients of Abell at any time after 1972."

Though the district court order provided for Abell's written answers to be kept by the judge in a sealed envelope, attorneys for the women also would get copies and would be free to subpoena other female ex-patients as witnesses, the court said.

"This obviously would publicly identify such client-patients of Abell and destroy their statutory privilege of confidentiality and the right to privacy," the majority opinion said.

Spears' dissent, joined by three other justices, said the 1979 law did not grant privilege to contacts that occurred outside the professional relationship.

"It certainly was not intended to include extramarital sexual affairs between the professional and patient-client," Spears said.

LOWV Rates 96th Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The League of Women Voters has ventured into the political rating game with a list that may raise more qualms than assurances for those who scored well. Half the senators given perfect marks by the League lost their jobs last fall.

However, only three of the 46 House members given perfect scores by the League lost re-election bids. Two others sought higher office and lost.

The first of what the League says will be its annual Political Accountability Ratings was released Tuesday.

It gave zeroes to one senator and nine representatives who disagreed with the organization's views on every issue checked during the 96th Congress. Although four of these have since retired, none was defeated at the polls.

Although the League is a non-partisan organization, all but one of the senators and one of the House members voting with the League on all the test issues were Democrats.

The League's ratings were based on whether a House or Senate member voted for or against the League position, or otherwise took a public stand, on each issue.

A second pair of ratings assigned negative scores for issues on which members did not vote or otherwise take a public stand. In some cases this produced a lower score. For example, Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., who did not run for re-election so he could run for president, was the only House Republican to get a perfect score. But Anderson got only a 30 percent score when the 38 issues he passed up were counted against him.

The League based its ratings on support of fair housing legislation, the food stamps program, civil rights measures, extension of Revenue Sharing, international development banks, authorization for foreign economic development assistance, the superfund for cleanup of hazardous waste, the Energy Mobilization Board, state rights in nuclear waste disposal, agricultural land protection, federal housing subsidies, cuts in water projects and support of strip mining regulation.

Among the senators given scores of 100 on the League scale, John Durkin, D-N.H., George McGovern, D-S.D., and Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., were targeted by right wing political action groups and were defeated by their Republican opponents in the Nov. 4 elections.

Other senators with 100 percent scores were Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and John Chafee, R-R.I.

The lone Senator voting against the League on every question was Milton Young, R-N.D., now retired.

House members scoring zeroes were Bob Stump, D-Ariz., Norman Shumway, R-Calif., Philip Crane, R-Ill., Richard Ichord, D-Mo., retired, Robert McEwen, R-N.Y., Ray Roberts, D-Texas., retired, Charles Stenholm, D-Tex., William Thomas, R-Calif., and David Satterfield, D-Va., retired.

Those who sided with the League on every vote checked and lost elections last year were Frank Thompson, D-N.J., who was convicted in an Abscam case, Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., and Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio.

Democrat Elizabeth Holtzman of New York, who also was given a perfect score by the League, gave up a House seat to run for the Senate and lost.

Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., Sidney Yates, D-Ill., Paul Simon, D-Ill., Parren Mitchell, D-Md., Robert Drinan, D-Mass., retired, James Shannon, D-Mass., Gerry Studds, D-Mass., Howard

Wolpe, D-Mich., Dale Kildee, D-Mich., David Bonior, D-Mich., Bruce Vento, D-Minn., Martin Sabo, D-Minn., William Clay, D-Mo.

Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., Theodore Weiss, D-N.Y., Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., John Seiberling, D-Ohio, Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, Les AuCoin, D-Ore., Robert Edgar, D-Pa., William Moorhead, D-Pa., retired, Michael Lowry, D-Wash., Les Aspin, D-Wis., and Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis.

Although the ratings dealt with 10 general issues, the specific measures in the House and Senate sometimes differed when a particular measure did not come up in both houses.

"The League takes political action to achieve legislative goals, although we support neither political parties nor candidates," said Ruth J. Hinerfeld, League president. "To lobby effectively, we need a clear measure of where each member of Congress stands on issues we consider critical."
