The Hereford Brand's annual salute to agriculture will be featured in the upcoming Sunday edition.

The special edition will be published as a tabloid supplement to the regular Sunday Brand, and will feature numerous photos and feature articles on various aspects of local agriculture.

Featured in this year's ag salute will be an interview with three young farmers who offer commentary on what a beginning farmer is up against; a look at how local aerial sprayers and farmers are attempting to cope with "super bugs" in corn, milo and wheat fields; a visit with a noted local conservation farmer who says agriculturalists can save still more water, even with sprinkler irrigation; an examination of how Deaf Smith County fared in the state cattle feeding picture in 1977; and a projection on local crops for the 1978 season. In addition to several other articles on local agriculture.

Complementing featured articles will be a variety of photographs on the vast spectrum of Deaf Smith County agriculture.

Be sure to watch for the annual agriculture salute in Sunday's edition of The Brand.

In Cycle Crash

Dickie Terrell Elliott, 27, of 608 Ave. G, was hospitalized for injuries suffered when he failed to negotiate a curve on a motorcycle Wednesday on Park Drive in Veterans Park.

Police said the accident occurred shortly after 3 p.m. Wednesday. Elliott's motorcycle, according to police, struck a ditch, turned over and slid into a tree.

Elliott was transferred from Deaf Smith General Hospital to a hospital in Amarillo. A report on his condition was unavailable by presstime.

GOP Gubernatorial Candidate Rips Briscoe, Carter, Clements

By PAUL SIMS
Managing Editor

Republican gubernatorial candidate Ray Hutchison of Dallas Wednesday told a small group of Hereford supporters that the overspending of Governor Dolph Briscoe and the mistakes of President Carter have drastically improved his chances of election.

"I would be misleading to say it's going to be easy for a Republican to win. But people realize that the job the Democrats have done in office has been awful.

"State spending is out of control in Texas."

He will win in the May 6 primary and November general election, Hutchison said, "because the people in the state are ready for a change. The Democrats have tried to improve things for 100 years and haven't made it.

"I think Jimmy Carter has done a very good job campaigning for Republicans."

Hutchison said his opponent in the Republican primary, Bill Clements, has borrowed $1.8 million for the campaign. Clements, organizer of a worldwide oil drilling company, has said that he is the only GOP candidate with enough financial backing to beat a Democrat in November.

"A Republican can't stand up and openly say, 'I'm enormously wealthy,' and then borrow money like he's done," Hutchison said.

The candidate listed energy, education, water, tax relief and growth of government as issues he will give priority if elected. He said he opposes a property tax levied at the state level.

"That tax should be repealed. We will have an estimated $1 billion surplus beginning in 1979 and an additional $1 billion in the biennium. We can give tax relief."

"When I was in the legislature, many of us tried to do that, but Governor Briscoe was not interested."

"As governor, I would also call for the repeal of the taxon utility bills and for the repeal of the inheritance tax or the raising of the exemption."

Hutchison, 45, a Dallas bond and finance law expert and former state GOP chairman, told the crowd of 20 supporters at Hereford State Bank. "I know there may not be more than 100 votes cast here in the Republican primary, but it's about time Republicans started giving attention to other Republicans around the state. That's why I'm here today."

Bergland Pushes Insurance Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says that he hopes a new all risk crop insurance bill will clear Congress by July 1 so farmers have protection for major crops by 1980.

Bergland told a news conference Wednesday that he does not see "any serious stumbling block" at this time to congressional passage.

The administration proposal calls for 18 crops to be covered initially and leaves the way open for all other farm products including livestock to be covered within a decade.

It would begin with a basic policy in which the government and farmers split the cost of premiums about evenly.

Bergland said if Congress moves speedily on the proposal called the Farm Production Protection Act, it could be put into effect for 1980 winter crops planted in the fall of 1979.

"If we get put back six months, we will not be able to meet that deadline," Bergland said.

Under the basic plan, a farmer could buy insurance covering about 50 percent of his normal crop production. If he wanted more coverage, including options for 70 percent or 90 percent protection, the farmer would have to pay higher premiums. The bill would replace four existing insurance and disaster aid programs operated by the government to help farmers.

Bergland said the plan would cost the government about $542 million annually, compared with $555 million that the four programs cost now. Crops to be included in the initial stage of the plan are: wheat, cotton, corn, barley, grain sorghum, rice, sugar cane, sunflowers, citrus fruit, dry beans, soybeans, oats, flax, peanuts, tobacco, raisins, sugar beets and rye.

The insurance would be available nationwide. Current coverage offered by the USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corporation is much more limited in terms of benefits and is available only in about half of the nation's counties.

Described as levels A, B, and C, to represent coverages of 50 percent, 70 and 90 percent of a farmer's normal production, the insurance would have an average cost to producers nationally of $2.75 per $100 of coverage, $4.93 and $9.58 respectively, although premiums would vary by crop and area.

Comparable costs under the existing insurance program are $5.70, $7.50 and $11.40 for each $100 of coverage, Bergland said. Farmers would have the option of buying the insurance at county offices of the USDA's Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service or from insurance agents selling federal protection under contract with the department.

"This does not replace the private insurance industry in any way, shape nor form," Bergland said.

Absentee Voting Lighter Than Usual

By The Associated Press
Suppose they held an election and no one voted.

Well, it won't be that bad, but Texas Secretary of State Steve Oaks says there may be fewer Texans voting in the May 6 primary elections than the meager 29 percent turnout for the 1974 primaries.

Speaking at a news conference, Oaks said "Unless there is a terrific turnout in absentee voting, there will be less voting in this primary than the 1974 primary the last statewide primary elections not affected by presidential campaigns."

Most absentee voting reports are "running way below" previous years, Oaks said. The deadline for absentee voting for the Democratic and Republican primaries a week from this Saturday is Tuesday, May 2.

The Deaf Smith County Clerk's office reported this morning that 86 persons had cast absentee ballots for the May 6 Democratic and Republican primaries.

There were 83 ballots cast for the Democratic primary and three votes for the Republican races.

The Democratic primary turnout would be only 1 million to 1.2 million, Oaks predicted, compared to the 1.5 million who voted in 1974. Previous estimates had been around 2 million.

The turnout for the Republican primary, he said, likely would be 100,000 to 150,000, compared to previous estimates of about 200,000. The 1974 turnout was 69,000 with no big contests to attract voters.

Texas now has from 5.2 million to 5.5 million registered voters, according to an estimate by Oaks. The deadline for registering for the May 6 vote was on April 6.

Much of the attention continues to center around the race between Gov. Dolph Briscoe and Attorney General John Hill for the Democratic Party's gubernatorial nomination.

Briscoe told a San Angelo crowd Wednesday that Hill wants the taped interview with the Texas State Teachers Association TSTA kept private because Hill fears he will lose teachers' votes to Briscoe.

The TSTA endorsed Hill after all the candidates held interviews with the organization's political arm. Briscoe wants the tapes made public because he

Lubbock's Sheats . . . from Pulpit to Politics

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — A flamboyant, 37-year-old charismatic preacher says God is changing his ministry from that of a local shepherd to that of a national leader.

God turned Moses and Joseph from shepherds into national leaders and Daniel from a stranger in a foreign land to a prime minister.

And now, says the Rev. Morris Sheats, God is preparing to put Sheats in Washington as a representative for the 19th Congressional District of West Texas.

His decision to run for Congress "is simply God's next step for my life," said Sheats, who is battling State Sen. Kent Hance for the Democratic nomination for the job being vacated by George Mahon.

Sheats' entry into the picture has turned what would have been a humdrum May 6 Democratic primary congressional race into one of Texas' most interesting battles.

When Mahon announced last fall he would retire, his 22nd consecutive term on Capitol Hill, most political observers anticipated a swarm of candidates would throw their hats into the ring to succeed him.

The Republicans promptly labeled the race No. 1 on their "hit list" nationwide, and three GOP aspirants jumped into the fray.

On the Democratic side, Hance — a 35-year-old lawyer who pulled off a stunning victory four years ago over H.J. "Doc" Blanchard in the Texas Senate — decided to seek the 19th congressional seat instead of running for another term in Austin.

That caused other would-be Democratic candidates, unwilling to line up against Hance, to back off. They either stayed on the sideline altogether or filed for Hance's Senate seat instead.

All except for Sheats, who has risen in Lubbock religious circles as his congregation underwent a dramatic change — from a 104-member Assembly of God congregation in 1964 to a 4,000-member non-denominational body that recently built a $1.2 million, 2,100-seat sanctuary and gave $1.4 million in offerings last year.

Sheats announced his candidacy for Congress with press conferences from Sept. 22 to 24 on the courthouse lawns of all 17 counties in the district, something he says has never been done before, in what he says was an effort to show people of the rural areas he cares about them and not just the major cities.

Although Hance has the "establishment" party figures lined up in most counties, Sheats has a highly vocal support in every county. Some voters like the religion that has been put into the campaign; others fiercely oppose it.

Hance has for the most part left the religion issue alone, but he is asked about it throughout the district.

"I tell people they shouldn't vote for somebody because he is a preacher, and they shouldn't vote against somebody because he is a preacher. Then I try to get off the subject," Hance said.

"But it offends me when Sheats' people go door-to-door canvassing and tell people they ought to vote for a Christian. It implies everybody else in the race is not."

The chairman of Hance's steering committee is chairman of the board of deacons at Lubbock's First Baptist Church, he points out, and Hance himself has taught Sunday School at the Church.

Sheats meets the criticism head on.

"There is too much politics in religion and not enough religion in politics," Sheats said. "I believe in separation of church and state, but I don't think that means we can't have godly men exerting a moral influence in Washington."

He said he pledged early in the campaign "that I would not use the pulpit as a campaign tool, and I have not. My conscience is really clear on that point. I discussed my candidacy with the 33-member church council at Trinity Church, and we all agreed that to handle it right there had to be a complete separation," he said.

"I never have used the church facilities. We have completely separate headquarters. The church has complete printing facilities, and we could have done the printing there on everything we've done, but we've refused to do that," Sheats said.

Sheats has made mention in church bulletins about the race. On Jan. 26, he wrote: "I am more sure than ever, after four months of active campaigning, that God is directing my life. People who attended Trinity Church any time in the recent past have found themselves on Sheats' mailing list."

One of the surprised recipients was Mike Higgins, campaign treasurer for Hance. Higgins

Witness's Wife

Accused in Killing

UVALDE, Tex. (AP) — The death of a prosecution witness who testified at last year's widely publicized eagle-hunting trial has been blamed on his estranged wife.

Annie Zimmerman, 41, was in Uvalde County Jail this morning in lieu of $50,000 bond set Wednesday when she was charged with the murder of Real County ranch foreman Alfred Zimmerman.

The woman surrendered to authorities in the office of a San Antonio attorney. Charges were filed after an investigation by Uvalde Texas Ranger Joaquin Jackson, Real County Sheriff John Elliott and state police.

Zimmerman was found early Monday by his son, Cecil, on the floor of the foreman's quarters at the Eagle Ranch in the northwest part of the county. Police said he had been hit by a shotgun blast. Elliott and Jackson had questioned Mrs. Zimmerman at her home in Kerrville Tuesday night. The couple was separated and a divorce action was pending in district court at Leakey.

Jackson said he is convinced the shooting is unrelated to Zimmerman's testimony, which helped convict a Real County commissioner and two other men. All three were found guilty of conspiring to kill the federally-protected eagles last December and received fines ranging from $1,000 to $3,000.

Ehrlichman Freed After 18 Months

SAFFORD, Ariz. (AP) — John Ehrlichman, grinning broadly, walked out of Swift Trail Federal Prison Camp after sunrise today, 18 months after he was imprisoned there for his role in the Watergate affair.

The former domestic affairs adviser to President Richard M. Nixon drove off for an unknown destination in a maroon Chevrolet with Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette reporter Lois Boyles, driven by her son, Lance.

Ehrlichman, 53, dressed in casual slacks, a windbreaker and a baseball cap, was followed by nearly 50 reporters and photographers as he walked from the front door of the minimum-security facility. He posed for pictures, but declined to answer any questions.

Asked how he felt, Ehrlichman said, "Can't you see how I feel?"

Gazette City Editor Vic Thornton said prior to Ehrlichman's release that Mrs. Boyles would be on hand at the prison.

"I don't know if we'll get a story or not," Thornton said. "She's got this personal involvement. She's very sympathetic toward him."

Ehrlichman is separated from his wife, Jeanne, who lives in Seattle where he formerly practiced law. Mrs. Boyles is reportedly separated from her husband.

John Wayne Released From Boston Hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Actor John Wayne, wearing a wide brimmed hat and saying, "I feel great, wonderful," left Massachusetts General Hospital today amid tight security. He had undergone open-heart surgery three weeks ago.

Wayne, 70, rode in a limousine out of a basement service entrance of the hospital. Guards walked alongside the car.

As the few reporters on hand gathered around his car, Wayne rolled down his window and waved and smiled.

"Wonderful," he said. "I'm okay and Boston is wonderful."

Wayne, wearing a yellow sport shirt open at the collar, was riding in the front passenger seat.

At Logan International Airport, where a private jet waited to take him to California, Wayne told reporters, "I feel great. I couldn't feel better. I feel like a new man, that's all I know. It's a wonderful feeling."

Wayne said he was returning home and feels he has the strength to carry on the life he led before the surgery.

Asked if he planned to continue acting, he said, "Yes. We got a new movie we're working on called, 'Beau John.' It's a helluva a good story."

Delegates of AAM To Establish Office

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Plans to establish a permanent lobbying office in Washington and to continue holding down crop production have been approved by the delegates at the American Agriculture movement conference here.

The delegates, who wound up their session Tuesday, decided the basic priority of the movement will continue to be a 50 percent cutback in crop production, or the most the farmer can handle economically.

In addition, they endorsed continuation of the policy of buying as little as possible. Although they did not endorse the current farm bill, the convention encouraged farmers to participate in the set aside provisions as a way to cut crop production.

They also agreed to begin public relations programs in their home states, including making speeches to schools and various groups, to get their views across.

American Agriculture farmers said they hope their actions will prompt a rise in agricultural prices and bring about more generous government farm programs.

The convention began Monday with about 2,000 delegates, but when it continued for an unscheduled second day only about 150 farmers showed up to vote on resolutions.

Voting

claims Hill promised the teachers raises. Speaking in Beaumont Wednesday, Hill said he has already purchased a "veto" stamp to use in the event any new tax bill ever reaches the governor's office while he's there.

"I've had a little trouble getting through to Governor Briscoe that I would veto any tax bill," the attorney general said.

Rep. Bob Krueger, a Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, told a Houston audience that Texas should be actively involved in developing the final version of President Carter's national urban policy.

"Houston and other Texas cities stand at a crossroads," he said. "We can take the path of the older cities and make their same mistakes or we can blaze a new trail to guarantee solutions to our present problems and eliminate the threat of falling victim to the same problems of the Northeast."

Joe Christie, Krueger's opponent, claimed Wednesday he was ordered off the ARCO plant property in Houston Tuesday after his staff had received country's finances.

When Carter announced Lance's resignation Sept. 21, he told a nationally televised news conference, "Bert Lance is my friend. I know him personally as well as if he was my own brother. I know him without any doubt in my mind to be a good and honorable man."

Carter said then that Lance resigned having proven "his honor and his attended Trinity Church once, some time ago, and put a $5 check in the offering.

Don Kidd, a $1,000 donor to Hance's campaign, has never been to Trinity Church, but he still got Sheats' mailings. Kidd learned later that his sister-in-law had put his name on a prayer list at the church.

Sheats has stayed almost even with Hance in raising campaign funds. Through March 31, according to campaign expense and contribution forms filed with the Federal Election Commission, Hance had received $105,000 in donations and Sheats $98,000 — including a large number of $1,000 gifts, the maximum, from businessmen in Fort Worth and Houston.

Much of Sheats' money apparently was raised through a fervent appeal for funds he made in the same October 1977, letter that likened his role in God's plan with that of Moses, Joseph and Daniel.

He asked persons who had supported his ministry in the past to add an additional monthly gift for his campaign.

"Please continue to support my ministry financially. Let me be specific. Would you prayerfully consider supporting me with daily prayers and a monthly gift to my campaign for Congress? You might be saying, 'Morris, I've supported your "RAP" TV ministry, but now this is a different matter.' Yes, it is!

"But consider what one Joseph did for the people of God. Consider what one Moses did for the people of God. Consider what God can do with Morris Sheats in our nation that desperately need godly men," he wrote.

The major difference in the campaign reports of Sheats and Hance is the expenditures. Hance has spent about $49,000 and still had $56,000 on hand on March 31. That was in keeping with his strategy, in which he was hoping to carry about $50,000 over into the general election battle on the premise that money will be harder to raise in the fall.

Sheats has spent $94,000 almost twice as much as Hance, leaving only about $4,000 in the kitty in his all-or-nothing effort to beat Hance and hope the momentum of such a victory would carry him into the general election against whoever emerges from the three GOP candidates.

Battling for the Republican nomination are George W. Bush, 32, of Midland, whose father is a well-known GOP figure nationally; Jim Reese, 48, former Odessa mayor who got 45.5 percent of the vote in a race two years ago against Mahon; and Joe Hickox, 42, of Lubbock, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel.

Sheats covered the district with an eight-page tabloid that he had inserted in newspapers in every county. He drew a public reprimand from Mahon for including on one page a picture of Sheats and Mahon standing side-by-side in Mahon's office in Washington. It was beside a story praising Mahon for his years in Washington and might have left the inference Sheats had Mahon's support in the race.

To appease the congressman, who made it clear early in the race he would back no candidate, Sheats said he later ordered 20,000 of the tabloids reprinted without the picture and distributed.

Bitsy Hill Received

Bitsy Hill, wife of gubernatorial candidate John Hill, visited Hereford Wednesday to meet with citizens and supporters and discuss her husband's campaign for the highest elective office in the state.

The reception and brief press conference was held in the community room at Hereford State Bank beginning at 10:45 Wednesday morning. Approximately two dozen people visited with Mrs. Hill.

"Taxes are not an issue in this race," emphasized Mrs. Hill in response to a newsman's question about John Hill being pictured as a "liberal spender" by some of his opposition. "John has pledged that he would never sign a state income tax bill should one reach his desk."

How can a gubernatorial candidate's wife be most effective in the campaign? "I don't know how she can be the most effective... I can only tell you what I'm doing, and I hope it turns out to be effective," Mrs. Hill said.

"John is very interested in a grassroots campaign, but there's no way a candidate can cover the state of Texas alone. Along with other members of the family, we're trying to talk to as many people as possible." Another question posed to Mrs. Hill: If your husband is elected, how much influence will you have on his decisions? "As much as I do now," quipped Mrs. Hill. "John and I are very good friends besides being husband and wife. If I should have any input I think I'd be most interested in programs affecting children and in programs having to do with the arts and historical societies."

Mrs. Hill noted the campaign trail was sometimes hectic, "but I'm enjoying the experience. When I first started helping last November, I tried to do it on a part-time basis. I soon found there was too much difficulty in trying to work appearances out in this manner, so I went on a fulltime schedule."

Death To Be Probed by Chief

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Police Chief Wesley Smith said Wednesday his department will conduct an internal investigation to determine whether two officers were justified in fatally shooting a 44-year-old Fort Worth man on crutches Tuesday night as he stood in front of a residence.

They fired 10 shots at Charles R. Martin, 44, hitting him four times.

He was pronounced dead shortly after 8 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Richard Self. An autopsy was ordered, but preliminary indications were he died from a wound near the heart. Martin reportedly was a polio victim.

Detective Lt. Arnold Landgraf said he understood Martin was visiting his sister in San Angelo. Police investigated, he said, after a neighbor called police shortly before 8 p.m. Tuesday and complained that Martin "was shooting up the neighborhood."

Martin, standing on crutches, was armed with a .22-caliber pistol, Landgraf said.

"The police told him to put his gun down, but he didn't. They shot him cold," a neighbor said.

The police chief said his officers told him they advised Martin repeatedly to drop his weapon.

"Rather than complying with the officers' request, the subject fired at the officers and the officers returned fire, wounding the subject," Smith said in a news release to the news media.

Martin was taken to Shannon Hospital, where he was pronounced dead shortly after 8 o'clock by the justice of the peace.

The police chief released few details about the shooting but said his department will be making a routine investigation into the matter. Other agencies will not be involved in the probe, he said.

Policies Include Uninsured Coverage

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Every auto liability policy issued in Texas automatically includes uninsured motorist coverage unless the policyholder rejects it in writing, the 3rd Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday.

The court said oral rejection is not enough, nor is accepting a policy that lacks uninsured motorist protection.

The decision meant Employers Casualty Co. and Southern Farm Bureau Casualty Insurance Co. must pay a total of $15,000 to Cathy Sloan, who was injured in a June 22, 1973, auto accident.

A San Angelo state district court judge also had entered a verdict for Miss Sloan.

Southern insured the car in which she was riding. The policy did not include uninsured motorist coverage, but there was no written rejection from the owner, Howe F. Mayse.

Miss Sloan's family had uninsured motorist coverage, up to $10,000, with Employers.

Mayse had orally rejected uninsured motorist coverage when he took out a fleet policy with Southern in 1972. The policy was renewed, again without the added protection, in 1973.

"To hold that uninsured motorist coverage can be excluded by an oral rejection... would defeat the manifest public policy that uninsured motorist coverage is to be provided in the absence of a clear and specific rejection knowingly entered into by the insured," the court said.

Its decision can be appealed to the Texas Supreme Court.

Robbins Valuable Player

By JOE EDWARDS

Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Hargus "Pig" Robbins is Nashville's most valuable player.

Robbins, a pianist, has joined Ray Charles, Jose Feliciano and Ronnie Milsap in the ranks of blind musical masters.

Robbins, 40, won a Grammy award this year as top country music instrumentalist. In the last two years, he has been selected No. 1 instrumentalist by the Country Music Association and the Academy of Country Music and "most valuable player" and "super picker of the year" by Nashville music groups.

The resourceful Robbins creates with his ears, his mind and his fingers because a childhood accident left him without the musician's precious tool - vision - used to read music, see keys and coordinate with others.

He is a patriarch of a well-paid, highly respected force of studio musicians who have made the Nashville sound a musical signature. He has played on recording sessions for top country music stars such as Loretta Lynn, Conway Twitty, Tammy Wynette, Johnny Rodriguez, George Jones, Charlie Rich, Merle Haggard, Tom T. Hall, Joe Stampley, Milsap and others.

"I don't feel I'm handicapped in my work," the keyboard captain said in an interview at a record company office. "I suppose I've missed being able to drive and do things like check out the women. But just because you're blind doesn't hinder you from playing. My music teacher used to say you shouldn't look at the keys, anyway."

Robbins, who has recorded two albums of his own, said he's been lucky. "A lot of people are more talented than I am. They just have not had the chance to do what I'm doing. I've been in the right place at the right time with the right people and the right songs."

At 3, he lost one eye when he accidentally stuck a knife in it. A year or so later, he went blind in the other eye from what doctors called "sympathetic infection."

He attended the Tennessee School for the Blind in Nashville where he took piano lessons. Within a couple of years after graduating, he was established as a top instrumentalist. He now plays in recording sessions five days a week.

"I like being able to create," he said. "And the money is good. Not too many blind people make the money I do and go and do what I do."

and my own parked car was stolen and methodically stripped and abandoned-I found it very difficult to share our President's indignation over the civil rights of South Africans and Rhodesians.

Absentee Voting Lagging

AUSTIN (AP) - Secretary of State Steve Oaks said Wednesday that absentee voting indicates the voter turnout on May 6 will be lower than the 29 percent turnout in 1974.

"Absentee voting is going on at a snail's pace and if that is any indication the voting on May 6 will be dismal at best," Oaks told a news conference.

Oaks predicted, on the basis of the current pace of absentee voting, there would be a turnout of 1 million to 1.2 million in the Democratic primary, compared with 1.5 million in 1974, the last statewide election not affected by a presidential election.

He said the Republican turnout should be 100,000 to 110,000 compared with 69,000 in 1974.

Oaks said there was no way to predict the turnout in the Raza Unida Party's primary which will be held in about 20 counties.

The deadline for absentee voting is Tuesday, May 2.

Visit there with the taxpayers who have had to lock themselves up to escape the tyranny of the streets.

I don't know who sold our President on the notion that he should be the first American President ever to visit black Africa.

With such acute home-front problems unattended, I can only deduce that his political advisors thought that our southern-born President needed further to nail down his image as a friend of blacks. It didn't work.

While in Africa the President blasted the racial policies of South Africa as "evil."

He denounced Rhodesia's new integrated regime as "illegal" and demanded, instead, a new conference within one month to negotiate total black rule for Rhodesia.

But his indignation over those situations left blacks at home unimpressed.

President Vernon Jordan of the Urban League and Sen. Ed Brooke (R-Mass.) and The Rev. Jesse Jackson--all told U.S. News & World Report that many blacks who helped elect Carter would not again.

In South Africa, the government-owned radio publicly reminded President Carter that the very day he was lecturing the rest of the world on morality, he was being hosted by Nigeria's military dictator whose own record includes the grossest violations of human rights.

I don't know what it's going to take, but we must somehow get it through the heads of future candidates that we want a President of the United States to be President of the United States.

As a lighthouse we once led the world by example. But our own light has gone out.

Companies Can Air Views

WASHINGTON (AP) - Corporations have a constitutional right to speak out on all political issues, a sharply divided Supreme Court ruled Wednesday.

Voting 5-4, the justices struck down a Massachusetts law that had barred corporations from spending money to make known views on issues not materially affecting their business.

The court's majority, in a sweeping opinion written by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., said the Constitution's free-speech protections cannot be watered down for corporations.

In a strongly worded dissent, Justice Bryon R. White said the court may have killed the federal Corrupt Practices Act, a law barring corporations from spending money to help political candidates.

"If the corporate identity of the speaker makes no difference, all the court has done is to reserve the formal interment of the Corrupt Practices Act and similar state statutes for another day," White contended.

The dissenters said today's decision "casts considerable doubt" on the constitutionality of laws in 31 states which limit corporate political activity. They did not name the states.

The Massachusetts law barring corporations from spending money to oppose any law not "materially affecting" them was challenged by five corporations, which argued their free speech rights were being violated. The state's Supreme Judicial Court upheld the law.

The controversy arose in 1976 when the corporations wanted to spend money for an advertising campaign in opposition to a proposed graduated state income tax in Massachusetts.

The state has only a flat-rate tax on individual income, and the proposed change was defeated.

The corporations appealing the state court's ruling were the First National Bank of Boston, New England Merchants National Bank, the Gillette Co., Digital Equipment Corp. and the Wyman-Gordon Co.

Joining Powell in the majority were Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Harry A. Blackmun and John Paul Stevens.

Dissenting along with White were justices William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall and William H. Rehnquist.

Hill Blocks Purchase Of Proposed Prison Site

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - Attorney General John Hill Wednesday blocked the $8 million purchase of a 6,740-acre prison site near Edinburg by saying it would violate a provision of the 1978-79 appropriation bill.

Hill said a rider in the bill required any purchase of prison land to be made with funds raised from selling the prison system's Blue Ridge Farm property in Harris County.

He then cited a 1955 law saying any proceeds from sale of the farm could be used only for purchasing other land within 75 miles of Huntsville.

"When the rider and the 1955 statute are construed together as they are required to be, the utilization of the Blue Ridge proceeds is mandated," Hill said.

He said the appropriations bill allowed the use of general tax money for a land purchase only after all the Blue Ridge proceeds are spent.

Hill said this disposed of the issue without his having to decide whether the Hidalgo County site violated an appropriation bill rider that required any new prison to be located in West Texas.

The State Board of Corrections had voted to spend $8 million for the property, with an option to buy another 7,760 acres from the same owners, Big Five Farms, for $6 million.

The approval board for prison land purchases delayed action, however, until Hill's legal opinion could be obtained.

Gough Portrait Damaged

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - A self-portrait by Vincent van Gough was seriously damaged Tuesday by a man who slashed the painting twice before he was overpowered, officials said.

The attack occurred in the Vincent Van Gough state museum.

The 32-year-old slasher, whose identity was withheld, was being interrogated at Amsterdam police headquarters, a museum spokesman said.

In ancient times, Afghanistan was called Aryana, and was known as Khorasan in the Middle Ages. It was not called Afghanistan until about the middle of the 18th century.

Demaret Gets Chance At 'Really Big' Money

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - For the first time in his career, last place looks mighty good to Jimmy Demaret.

The 67-year-old Demaret, three times winner of the Masters, will cash a $20,000 paycheck if he and his partner, Lionel Hebert, finish last in The Legends of Golf beginning Friday.

"Dead last is three times more than I ever won in a tournament," said the feisty Demaret Wednesday. He was the leading money winner in professional golf in 1947 and won the grand total of $27,936.

"I remember Byron Nelson won 11 tournaments in a row and it didn't even total up to $20,000," said Demaret.

Demaret said, "I think it's just fantastic that for once we have a chance to play for that kind of money. I mean $400,000...that's a lot of bread. And $100,000 to the winners-thats something."

The unique 54-hole tournament will be played over the friendly fairways of the Par 70 Onion Creek Golf Course under a two-ball format. In other words, Demaret and Hebert will be matching their best score per hole against the field. The field does not include Ben Hogan, who declined to play, but it has Sam Snead, indeed a legend, who won only $35,000 in 1950, the last year he was the leading money winner.

"And I never hid my money in tomato cans either," said Snead. "All that bull was started by Demaret."

The players, all over 50, will be given their choice of walking or riding electric golf carts in the tournament. Saturday and Sunday rounds will be nationally televised by NBC.

Australian Kel Nagle shot a one-under-par 69 to lead his team to a best-ball 55 in the Pro-Am.

Gene Sarazen shot 73 and, with some help from University of Texas Athletic Director Darrell Royal, came in second with a best-ball 58. Snead and Julius Boros also had groups at 58.

The players scheduled practice rounds today over the short, narrow course, which has lush fairways and a near-perfect putting surface.

Tommy Bolt, Mike Souchak and amateur Dale Morey turned in Wednesday's lowest rounds with four-under Par 66s.

"I imagine 15-under wil win it," said Demaret. "I can see a team being say like 5-under par each day under almost perfect conditions like we had today."

Jockey Ron Turcotte, who is only 5-1, once worked as a lumberjack in his native Canada.

Pope Perfect; Noland Tapped

By BOB NIGH
Sports Editor

Scott Pope, a sophomore at Hereford High School, made local bowling history Wednesday night by rolling 12 consecutive strikes for the first league-sanctioned 300 game since Bowling's Bowl opened here last June.

Pope achieved the feat while bowling on lanes 15 and 16 in the Mens' Major League, where he carries a 208 average as a member of The Unknowns team.

And, while Pope was achieving his perfect game, Jim Noland, bowling next to Pope on lanes 13 and 14, came up just a 10 pin shy of a perfect game. Noland rolled 11 straight strikes before another seemingly perfect shot failed to carry the 10 pin.

Noland bowls with the Shupe Brothers Trucking team in the late Wednesday night league, and carries a 179 average.

Both bowlers showed their

form in the second of a three-game league set. Pope also had games of 234 and 248 for a 782 series, while Noland added scores of 209 and 186 for a 694 series. Each warmed up for their heroics by bowling in the early mens' league Wednesday night. Pope, who carries a 213 average with the Bowling's Bowl team in the Hustlin' Hereford Mens' League, had a 652 series in the early league on games of 216, 233, 203, while Noland rolled a 548 series on games of 177, 170, 201 while bowling with the Farr Better Feeds team.

The high games qualified Pope and Noland for a patch from the American Bowling Congress, and gives them the choice of several awards. They may select from a diamond ring valued at $500, a mantle clock, a wrist watch, a trophy, a diamond lapel pin, or belt buckle with diamond as a memento of their feats.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Left-hander Roger Moret, hospitalized in a psychiatric facility since falling into a "catatonic" trance in the clubhouse April 12, is due to resume workouts today on an outpatient basis with the pitching-starved Texas Rangers.

"Roger will start working out with us tomorrow," Manager Bill Hunter said Wednesday after telling the team about Moret's progress in a meeting before Texas' 3-0 victory over Cleveland.

"It will give the doctor the opportunity to observe his reaction getting back into his normal situation," added Hunter. "Somewhere down the road, we'll determine when and if to activate him."

The 28-year-old reliever hurled four brilliant innings of relief April 10 and gained a save against the New York Yankees.

Herd Begins Quest Of Regional Title

By BOB NIGH
Sports Editor

Lubbock-Twelve Class 4A schools, including District 4-4A champ Hereford, and 16 Class 2A schools were swarming the Meadowbrook Golf Course here today as the Regional Golf Tournaments in those classes began.

In addition to the 28 teams assembled here several individuals whose teams didn't make the district cut are in the field of hopefuls aiming at a state tourney berth.

The Whitefaces, winners of the District 4-4A title by 41 shots over Lubbock Monterey, are joined in the 4A field by the Plainmen, El Paso schools Jefferson, Coronado, Eastwood and Riverside, Amarillo's Tascosa and Amarillo High, and San Angelo Central, Odessa Permian, Corsicana, and Killean.

District 4-4A medalist Kelly Kitchens of Hereford was among the favorites to take the 4A medalist title. "Kitchens is a golfer worth watching," said regional tourney director and Texas Tech University golf coach Danny Mason, "since he had the low score in District 4-4A."

Plainview's Kelly Raper, who finished second to Kitchens to earn a regional spot while his team failed to do so, will contend for the title, along with Abilene Cooper's Mike Orren and Copperas Cove's Edgar Aponte as individuals. Also on hand is District 5-4A champ Marshall Brown of SA Central.

Entered in the 2A division this year are Dalhart, Panhandle, Winters, Stamford, Kermit, Muleshoe, Dimmitt, Slaton, Frenship, Socorro, Alpine, Tulia, Idalou, Olney, Seymour, and Kermit B.

Greg Tedford, a single entrant from Sonora, and Martin Brown, also competing individually from Olton, have been tabbed players to watch in the 2A race by Mason.

Play began this morning at 8:30 a.m. with a shotgun start, with teams allowed a maximum of 4 1/2 hours to play the 18-hole course.

Joining Kitchens for Hereford are Tommy Weaver, James McDowell, James Lyles, and Mike Hill. The Herd is making its first ever regional appearance as a 4A school.

Weaver finished fourth in the district race behind Kitchens, Raper, and Cliff Baggett of Monterey. McDowell placed sixth in the loop for HHS, while Lyles was eighth and Hill finished 10th.

The golfers will play the second round of the 36-hole affair here Friday.

Gary After No. Four

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Luck, said Gary Player, will be an important factor in his quest for a rare fourth consecutive pro golf tour victory.

In addition to having the ability, you also have to be very lucky to win four tournaments in a row, the tough little South African said before teeing off today in the first round of the

HHS JV Baseball Continues

The HHS junior varsity baseball team continued a somewhat sketchy schedule today with a pair of games at Bovina. The two teams will play two five-inning games today before switching sites Friday for a double-header set to begin at 4 p.m. at Whiteface Field.

Hereford is fielding a JV team for the first time this season under the guidance of coach Mickey Miller. Games have been hard to come by according to the coach due to the lack of JV teams in the area.

The varsity baseballers will be on the road Saturday in Lubbock against Coronado before returning to the home diamond for a single game against Levelland next Tuesday and a District 4-4A twinbill against Lubbock High the following Saturday.

$200,000 New Orleans Open. He's had both ability and luck in a series of dramatic comebacks that has brought him the titles in the Masters, Tournament of Champions and Houston Open in his last three starts. He had the ability to shoot closing rounds of 64, 67 and 69. He had the ability to tie the 18-hole record at the Masters and set the 72-hole record at Houston. He had the ability to compile a stroke average of 69.0 in those three starts.

But he also had some luck. While he was performing his last-round heroics, the 54-hole leaders in those tournaments were shooting rounds of 72, 78 and 73.

In all, he made up 17 shots in the three last rounds and now is in position to become only the third man in history and the first in more than a quarter-century to win four consecutive tournaments.

Jack Burke was the last, in 1952. Byron Nelson, who achieved an unlikely string of 11 consecutive victories in 1945, is the only man to win more than four in a row.

"I think you have to be realistic about it," said Player, a 42-year-old globe trotter who counts nine major titles among his 114 worldwide victories.

"You have to be very fortunate to win any tournament in the United States. The competition is so severe, there are so many good players. To win you have to do everything well."

"And you can't go on doing everything well indefinitely. Golf won't let you. It's much too humbling a game to allow you go do everything well all the time."

"But it is possible to win four in a row. It is not impossible. But I have to go back to my original statement: you have to be a realist about it. You have to be awfully lucky to win four in a row."

THE HOT DOG VENDOR

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs. He sold very good hot dogs. He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were. He stood on the side of the road and cried: "Buy a hot dog, Mister?" And people bought. He increased his meat and bun orders. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade. He finally got his son home from college to help him out. But then something happened. His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression. The foreign situation is terrible. The domestic situation is worse." Whereupon the father thought, "Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know." So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs. And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight. "You're right, son" the father said to the boy. "We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."

Ford Turns From Hero Into Goat

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer
Dan Ford did just about everything to win the game. Then he did something to lose it.

The hitting star for Minnesota with seven runs batted in, Ford certainly looked like the hero of the night - until the last of the 12th inning.

But he suddenly turned into the goat with a wild throw that allowed the Oakland A's to pull out a 9-8 decision Wednesday night.

With Tom Johnson pitching for the Twins, Mitchell Page - who had tied the game in the ninth with a two-out, two-run homer - opened the Oakland 12th with a single. Page moved to third on a single by Miguel Dilone and came home on a single by Dave Revering.

Seaver Still 0-For-April

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer
Tom Seaver is still 0-for-April.

The former Cy Young Award winner made his fifth start of the season for Cincinnati Wednesday night and was patted for eight hits and five earned runs in four innings as the Los Angeles Dodgers whipped the Reds 14-4.

Seaver had three no-decisions and two losses to show for his 1978 efforts, plus a nice round earned run average of 5.00.

When newsmen tried to ask him about his pitching problems in the clubhouse after the game, Seaver was nowhere to be found.

"He left before the game ended - and he left in a hurry," a team employee said.

Elsewhere in the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos 12-2, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, the Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed the New York Mets 1-0, the San Diego Padres edged the Houston Astros 2-1 and the Atlanta Braves beat the San Francisco Giants 6-1.

Dusty Baker had five hits, three of them doubles, and Bill Russell had four hits to lead Los Angeles' 19-hit barrage. Doug Rau, 3-0, was the winning pitcher.

It was the Dodgers' third win in a row over the Reds after Cincinnati had won the teams' first two meetings.

The Dodgers now lead

Drysdale Disdains Comedy Routines

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer
ABC's got itself another Dandy Don for Monday nights, but this one doesn't plan to be a comedian.

"It's not a comedy out there," says Don Drysdale, newest member of the "Monday Night Baseball" team. "These are people working in a profession. I didn't like to be laughed at when I was playing and I'm certainly not going to laugh at anybody."

"The game dictates what you talk about. If something comes up that's comical, that's fine. You get three people in the booth and somebody's gonna say something. But when you start staging something like that, it just doesn't come off."

Last season ABC, perhaps trying for the chemistry it discovered by using the humorous Don Meredith on "Monday Night Football", used Bob Uecker along with Howard Cosell and Keith Jackson on its baseball package. But this year Uecker has been demoted to the second team and Drysdale, a star pitcher for years with the Dodgers, has taken his place. Drysdale, a star pitcher for years with the Dodgers, has taken his place. Drysdale has called games for the California Angels since 1973 and prior to that broadcast Montreal Expos and Texas Rangers games.

Drysdale says no one at ABC has told him what to say or what not to say. In fact, with three people on hand, it's been easier than doing local games.

"I haven't been given any role, per se," he says. "They mentioned that I would analyze the game and do some play-by-play. The Monday night games have actually been easier. There are always two other people to bounce off of. With the Angels, usually there are two of us but sometimes, for a couple of innings, I'm by myself. That can be difficult at times."

Drysdale says the toughest thing he's had to learn since switching from the field to the booth has been the proper way to do interviews. Often when broadcasters, or for that matter writers, ask questions, they already know the answers. That doesn't mean they are dumb questions. It just means they want the player to talk about a particularly subject, to get some quotes on the matter.

"I always used to get to the point where I felt a ballplayer was gonna look at me and say, 'Hey, you dummy, you know the answer to that as well as I do,'" says Drysdale. "I guess that came from me being on the other end of the question for so long it was hard for me to do the asking."

Drysdale knows his stuff and he's not afraid of a little disagreement in the booth. Last week he and Cosell took differing views of a ball that Cincinnati's George Foster hit during a game with Los Angeles. Cosell said the ball, which fell at the base of the left

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Texans can't afford to pay any more for energy...

More and more of our electric companies have been forced to sign long term contracts with coal suppliers in Wyoming and Montana... Now those states want to levy a 30% excise tax on the coal. Mark White believes you should have someone in state government who makes it their business to see that this doesn't happen. As Attorney General he will go to court in your behalf to stop this and other consumer rip-offs. We need an Attorney General who means business.

Elect Mark White Attorney General. He Means Business.

Big Time Tennis 'Chaotic' Sport

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
Big time tennis has become a "chaotic" sport without discipline or direction and running amok in the hands of greedy players and behind-the-scenes operators, charges a former Wimbledon champion and U.S. Davis Cup ace.

"With the exception of World Team Tennis - and that is hardly against CBS confirms that there was deception," Schroeder said. "Who else contributed to the total pot? In what amount? For what reason? I am affronted, even if he Van Deerlin is not."

Schroeder, a product of Southern California and long-time teammate of Jack Kramer, is manager of Lake Arrowhead Country Club outside Los Angeles and tennis director for California Golf and Tennis Enterprises. His son, John, is one of the Top 60 on the PGA golf tour.

Schroeder said tennis needs a commissioner with the power of baseball's Bowie Kuhn, football's Pete Rozelle or basketball's Larry O'Brien.

The pending FCC action against CBS confirms that there was deception," Schroeder said. "Who else contributed to the total pot? In what amount? For what reason? I am

"The tremendous sums of money now available to the players, coupled with the less than altruistic approach of the promoters, grafters and grafters, and certainly including the television networks, have led to some of the recent events certainly not in tennis' best interests," Schroeder said.

He said he had appealed to California congressmen - particularly Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., chairman of the House subcommittee on communications - for details on money distribution in the series of so-called "winner-take-all" matches involving Jimmy Connors over the last three years.

The Columbia Broadcasting System was sharply reprimand-

Rare Prints to Be On Exhibit Locally

An outstanding collection of 22 original Currier & Ives prints, which has been shown throughout the United States and Canada, will be presented at the Plains Insurance Building beginning May 1.

The exhibit will be open to the public until May 5, during the hours of 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with a special showing Sunday, May 7, 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

My friends say I go on guided tours for the same reason monks inflict pain on themselves by flogging their bodies with chains. Penance.

"Stay together, folks." "Remember your bus number, 1537731." "There are 45,387,326 bricks in this altar and 373 gallons of mortar." "You have 20 minutes to tour the Louvre. That puts us back at the bus by 5:40." "Restrooms to the right and gift shops to the left."

I don't go on tours for penance. I go because I not only enjoy people's reactions to what they are seeing, but it's interesting to me to see how they relate to the phenomenon they're viewing. Once in New Brunswick as we lined up in rain gear to see the great tidal bore in the Bay of Fundy and a small trickle barely moved the water, a man next to me snarled, "I've seen bigger tides when I flush."

Never have I enjoyed a tour more than the San Simeon estate of the late William Randolph Hearst, just south of San Francisco. There are 240,000 acres of land (50 miles along the ocean), and four castles. In 1958, the state of California acquired 120 acres of it, including a couple of castles and his priceless art collection for viewing by the public.

As the bus winds up from the harbor that was created to import his fabulous furnishings and passes through herds of zebra and cattle grazing together, I sensed we would all suffer from an identification crisis.

How do you relate to a man who hired two full-time servants to take care of the fireplaces? Had ice flown in daily for the comfort of his polar bears? Played tennis with Charlie Chaplin? Finally, one woman on the bus broke the silence. "I wouldn't want to come up this road with one too many." From then on, it was Hearst vs. the plat dwellers...Tiffany vs. Tupperware...Roman baths vs. the YMCA. It was as if they had to justify their worth against his.

The guide was fantastic. He kept trying to assure the set faces that this wasn't a museum, it was a man's home. No one bought it. Their comments on seeing 100 rooms in the main castle: "I'd NEVER find Harold to take out the garbage." On the announcement that "guests sometimes stayed a weekend. One even stayed for five years!": "It was probably HIS mother!" When it was learned that "all the rooms were built to accommodate the ceiling which was imported from Europe," a woman remarked, "We had a builder like that once."

It was more affluence than a person could handle. I passed by a room where a woman had hung back to have one last look at the million-dollar tapestry and oriental rugs. She mumbled to herself. "Looks like early attic to me!"

YMCA to Introduce Aerobic Dancing

Aerobic Dance, a unique exercise program involving movement set to music, will be introduced here during a special clinic at 10 a.m. Saturday at Hereford YMCA.

Lisa Jones of San Angelo, one of the first persons to teach aerobic dance in West Texas, will be present to begin the program. Interested individuals are asked to call the YMCA office, 364-6990, and register.

Aerobic dance is a method of exercise matching movement to music. Various types of music are used while an instructor guides the student through several different exercises. The program includes floor exercises, dancing with a partner and relaxation while listening to soft music.

The class is being offered free of charge to "Y" members. Non-members will be asked to pay a $3 fee.

Garage Sale Opens Friday

The public is invited to a garage sale from 8 a.m. - 4 p.m. Friday and from 7 a.m. - 1 p.m. Saturday at Hereford Migrant Center, 110 Vera Cruz St.

Proceeds will benefit local migrant children. A variety of items will be offered with all merchandise priced cheap. A bake sale will be held in conjunction with the garage sale.

Ann Landers Letter for Adopted Child

DEAR ANN: I have finished reading excerpts from a book which presented a glorified (albeit one-sided) view of the adoptee locating his birth parents and "everybody lived happily ever after."

As a birth parent, I have a message to the child I gave up. Please print it.

DEAR CHILD: Don't look for your very search would violate the reasons I gave you up. Your reappearance in my life would only bring back bitter memories of the pain, shame and sorrow inflicted on my family at the time of your birth. You would hurt the people who have made me a part of their life since then. I gave you up to protect my family and to make sure you would be raised by a loving couple. If your adoptive parents have treated you well you have no need to find me. And please don't say you are searching for your roots. Your roots are where you were raised.

They are where you found love in your life and the memories of your childhood. Every day I pray the good Lord will keep you well and happy. I also pray you never reappear in my life. Sign me -- Giving Birth Does Not Make A Parent

DEAR GIVING: You've expressed my point of view far more eloquently than I could have, and I thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sure you are sick and tired of letters about that screwball Sex Test you printed, but I hope you will read one more letter and share it with your readers.

You said anyone who scored more than 12 was not "normal and descent." You are a jerk. I'm a 16-year-old girl who scored 65. Not one person I know scored under 43. I would like to see that girl who came out with a 7. She's got to be some kind of creep.

I can't figure out where you're coming from. You must be living in the middle ages. If my letter appears in print I will eat it. -- Boo To You From Walnut Creek

DEAR WALNUT: Start nibblin', sister. You say you don't know where I'm coming from -- and I'm sure you don't. But I have a fairly good idea where you're coming from -- and where you're heading -- with a score of 65. Best of luck. You're going to need it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For ten months now I have been going with this guy. I thought Earl was Catholic. He never said he was but the way he talked about God and his beliefs. I just took it for granted. I found out I was mistaken when I asked him to come with me to Christmas Mass. It was quite a shock. (He is a Reformed Anglican, which is Protestant.)

I enjoy being with Earl but deep down inside. I'm afraid marriage between us would never work. I could never give up my religion and from the way Earl talks, I don't think he would give up his either.

Everything else is wonderful. I must make a decision soon. Do you have any advice for me? -- Faith-Fully Confused In Bound Brook, N.J.

DEAR FAITH: Mixed marriages CAN work -- if both parties have the understanding and flexibility to make them work. In your situation, however, it appears that neither you nor Earl will yield -- so my advice is the sooner you part company the better. Why prolong the agony?

Dietary supplements of vitamin E are not recommended for healthy persons who are eating a well-balanced diet, points out Mary K. Sweeten, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Texas A&M University System.

Vitamin E has not been scientifically proven to have any "miraculous" effects that are being claimed, the specialist reports.

One of the world's oldest effective international agreements, the Rush-Bagot treaty of 1817, limited U.S. and Canadian naval armaments on the Great Lakes.

Rebekahs Congratulated On Association Honors

Congratulations were in order Tuesday evening during the regular meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge #228 in IOOF Temple.

Earning the honors was the Funeral Team which placed second in competition Saturday during the Panhandle Association meeting at Pampa. The team was composed of Helen Sowell, Faye Brownlow, Edna Mathes, Blanche Williamson, Frances Parker and Susie Curtsinger, team captain.

The team earned a point grade of 996 1/2 out of a possible 1,000 points. Mrs. Curtsinger pinned red ribbons on her fellow team members to express her appreciation for their efforts.

Helen Sowell, Panhandle representative, delivered a report on activities at the 75th annual Association meeting, including Hereford's invitation to Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of the Panhandle to meet here in 1979. Also, she announced that Mrs. Curtsinger had been elected vice president of the PNA Rebekahs and will automatically advance to the president's post next year.

Members were reminded of the District #5 meeting Friday night at Dimmitt. State Rebekah Assembly president Betty Reid will be present to deliver her program for the year. Edna Mathes presided at the business session. Members voted unanimously to contribute $25 to the American Heart Association in memory of the late Woodie McDermitt.

Honeymoon Wardrobe To Serve Future Need

COLLEGE STATION - Wedding wardrobes add a special touch when they fit the occasion and the future, says one clothing specialist.

A wedding wardrobe and honeymoon attire, except for the bridal gown, can enhance the overall wardrobe when it is planned with a careful eye toward career, storage and upkeep, advises Beverly Rhoades.

Miss Rhoades is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

WEDDING WARDROBE BALANCES SENTIMENTS, BUDGETS

Her guidelines for the wedding itself start with considering the financial resources of both the bride and groom and their families, the type of wedding they want,

Fifty visits to the sick and 27 greeting cards were reported. Karrol Rettman was hostess to the 17 members present, including Edna Mathes, Mabel Strange, Bessie Lawrence, Ursulae Jacobsen, Lydia Hop-community customs and social status of the families. All of these must balance with future needs, she cautions.

Sentimentality, momentary whims and childhood dreams should not overpower practical considerations if it will mean regrets later when money is needed for other purchases, she says.

While clothing accounts for only about 17-25 percent of wedding costs, careful planning can cut the total cost, even though the wedding gown is still a major expense, averaging about $200, Miss Rhoades adds.

HONEYMOON ATTIRE CAN ENHANCE CURRENT WARDROBE

Honeymoon attire depends partly on the place, season, travel and honeymoon duration, but also consider the current wardrobe and newly married lifestyle, the specialist suggests. Her guidelines include:

- Plan attire to coordinate with the current wardrobe and to serve as part of the basic wardrobe during the first years of marriage.
- Avoid items that can be worn only due to such factors as the honeymoon location.
- Avoid buying so much lingerie or other items that they cannot be worn before they are out of fashion.
- Consider career plans of both partners and clothing needs related to these to avoid extra budget strain later.
- Consider storage space available, since large wardrobes might be impractical in small apartments or houses.
- Consider clothing upkeep, laundry facilities and dry-cleaning funds.

Mobile Home Lots Should Suit Needs

COLLEGE STATION--Look for a mobile home park to suit individual needs and interests as well as accommodate the mobile home, suggests Glenda Moore, a housing and home furnishings specialist.

Find out about facilities within the park-paved streets, parking, paved walks, refuse collection, laundry, she adds.

Miss Moore is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Also, look at the number and sizes of lots of the park. This will give an indication of privacy and the amount of rent to be charged, the specialist continues.

A mobile home should occupy no more than one-third of its lot--the lot should have at least 2,800 square feet to accommodate modern mobile homes and their accessories.

The size will also assure some space between homes, Miss Moore adds.

Leave at least 15 feet of clearance between adjacent mobile homes.

There should be a minimum of 25 feet from any mobile home to the property line abutting a public street or highway. At least 15 feet of space is needed between a mobile home and all other property lines.

Don't forget to look for play grounds or areas for children to play. Specific areas for play will help keep children from playing in the streets, she advises.

Safe Deposit Box Protects Papers

COLLEGE STATION--Some general guidelines can help a family decide where to keep personal and family records and papers, says Dr. Carolyn McKinney, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Consider getting a safe deposit box--annual rental is fairly inexpensive, she suggests.

However, don't use it as a "catchall" for souvenirs and unimportant papers.

As a general guide, keep only those records that cannot be replaced or would be extremely costly or troublesome to replace in the safe deposit box.

This might include items such as:

- birth, death and marriage certificates,
 - deeds and titles to real estate and personal property,
 - citizenship, adoption and veteran's papers,
 - divorce decrees,
 - carbon copy of a will,
 - copy of household inventory,
 - important contracts, and
 - bond and stock certificates.
- Other important papers such as tax receipts, cancelled checks, loan payment books, insurance policies, and family health records are usually easily replaced, the specialist explains.
- So, keep these in a well organized household file. Keep current list of where family papers are located so that they can be easily found, she adds.

Shopping, Cooking for Two Challenge to New Brides

COLLEGE STATION - Eating habits based on variety and the Four Food Groups ensure newlyweds a healthy start that will last throughout life, says a foods and nutrition specialist.

"Newlyweds alone now are responsible for the household food supply. Menus they plan and food choices they make will influence the way they look, feel and work or play," says Mrs. Mary K. Sweeten.

"Choosing a good variety of foods in appropriate amounts will more likely mean a more desirable level of health and energy," she adds.

Mrs. Sweeten is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

According to Mrs. Sweeten, the Four Food Groups are these: milk, fruits-vegetables, breads-cereals, and meat.

DAIRY MILK NEEDS

Many Americans are shoring themselves on milk and its products, such as cheese, ice cream, buttermilk and yogurt, the specialist reports.

Since these are the main source of the important nutrient calcium, most adults need two or more servings of milk daily, she explains.

Whole milk, buttermilk or flavored milk--or other milk products--will supply needed calcium.

For calorie cutters, skim milk or buttermilk made with skim milk is recommended.

DAILY FRUIT-VEGETABLE NEEDS

Skipping fruits and vegetables results in lower-than-normal amounts of Vitamins A and C--two other important nutrients, the specialist says.

Everyday include four or more servings of fruits and vegetables.

Of these servings, make sure at least one is a serving of a Vitamin C item, such as citrus, cabbage, tomatoes or green peppers.

Also, make sure one is a Vitamin A source, such as dark leafy greens or deep yellow vegetables.

For weight watching, leave out extra sugar and fats. For added interest to meals, many frozen vegetables are available, but remember those in rich sauces also add calories.

DAILY BREAD-CEREAL NEEDS

Four or more bread-cereal foods are needed each day to give adults needed B vitamins, iron and carbohydrates.

Servings should include enriched or whole wheat selections.

DAILY MEAT NEEDS

Two servings of meat are needed each day. A serving size is 2 1/2-3 ounces.

Meat provides protein, iron and fat.

For calorie counters, roast, bake, broil or boil meats, and trim off all fat before cooking.

FATS, SWEETS IN MENUS ADD ZEST, CALORIES

Fats and sweets are the miscellaneous food group. While they add zest to menus, they also add calories.

One teaspoon of fat or sugar adds about 50 calories, so try not to add too much zest to meals, the specialist advises.

COUNTY EXTENSION OFFICE CAN PROVIDE FOOD GUIDES

In planning nutritious meals throughout life, remember that all persons need the same nutrients but in varying amounts, Mrs. Sweeten says.

Ask the local County Extension Office for a copy of the Daily Food Guide and other meal-planning and nutrition-related fact sheets, she adds.

Bride's Name Change Involves Red Tape

COLLEGE STATION -- Although some women are choosing to keep their own name after marriage, the great majority are following tradition and adopting their husband's name.

If you decide to change your name, remember to notify those listed below, recommends Claudia Kerbel, consumer information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

*Employer. Notify employers a month in advance, if possible.

*Driver's license. Have the name changed on this within 10 days at a cost of one dollar. To find the office look in the Yellow Pages under Government-State for Department of Public Safety.

*Credit cards. Contact all companies by making a note on the monthly statement from each one, or write a letter to each.

*Charge accounts. Contact all stores with whom you have credit accounts.

*Bank. Sign a new signature card for each savings and checking account.

*Social security. Call the social security administration and ask them to send a form for change of name. To find the phone number of the nearest office look in the Yellow Pages under Government-U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department - Social Security Administration.

*Voter registration certificate. Call or visit the office of the Tax-Assessor-Collector.

*Doctor and dentist.

*Insurance company. Policies should be written in the new name. You may also want to change the beneficiary.

*Organizations you belong to.

*Wills and legal contracts. Be sure the new name appears in your will and those in which you are mentioned.

TO THE VOTERS OF DEAF SMITH COUNTY FROM PAUL ABALOS CANDIDATE FOR THE OFFICE OF JUSTICE OF THE PEACE

The question has been asked of me as to whether I will have the time to devote the required time to the office of Justice of the Peace. I WOULD ask you to check the other elected officials now in office and you will find that they too have outside interests and/or businesses and yet they are able to carry out the duties of their respective offices in an efficient manner. So I am not an exception as a businessman wanting to serve his community. I am totally aware of the functions of the office of the Justice of the Peace. I am qualified to serve with dignity, honor, and fairness to all. Vote for a qualified person for the position of Justice of the Peace of Deaf Smith County on May 8th, 1978. A LOS VOTANTES DEL CONDADO DE DEAF SMITH EN LA CIUDAD DE HEREFORD POR PAUL ABALOS CANDIDATO PARA JUEZ DE PAZ DEL CONDADO

Quiero en las siguientes palabras invitadas que voten por mí para juez de paz el día 6 de Mayo, 1978. Estoy convencido para juez de paz por que creo tengo la capacidad para el puesto de juez. Creo que un juez debe ser justo, honesto y ser un punto de imparcialidad como cualquier otro persona. A mí no me está respaldando ni un grupo de gente. No he solicitado asistencia de dinero para mi campaña. Lo que si he hecho es llamarme a lo que tengo para ganar en propaganda de radio y periódicos para anuncios.

mientras y el chisme que yo quite otro juez que de que corra para juez tambien es una bala de metralla que han fabricado unos dos o tres individuos que lo maltratan como si fueran personas, pero con impunidad, si los mismos que me han platicado de estos hombres se ríen de ellos.

Consumer Confidence Sags Last Month

NEW YORK (AP) - Those surveys of consumer and business expectations appear oddly at variance with the buying mood now appearing in the stock, housing, automotive and other markets.

Consumer confidence in March fell to a two-year low, said the Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan. And financial executives too are said to be less optimistic about the economy.

At the same time, sales of many items rose and money poured into the stock market as suddenly as water from a broken dam, fortunately to be soaked up by stocks that had grown dry as an unused sponge.

The people at the Survey Research Center ordinarily contend that a poor consumer mood almost inevitably is reflected in future sales, but for the time being they are backing off from that position.

People are buying goods, they say, because of fears that future prices will be even higher, a phenomenon that if true means problems for Washington's anti-inflation programs. Anticipatory buying, it has been noted in the past, is both an expression of low confidence in the nation's economic leadership and a self-fulfilling prophecy of more inflation to come.

Executives surveyed in a Conference Board survey also showed less confidence in the ability of the country to restrain inflation. Those questioned look for prices to rise 6.4 percent this year, 6.5 in 1979.

While such increases are far below double-digit range, they represent a marked change from attitudes as recently as last October, when financial executives thought inflation would recede.

Whatever the reasons for the poor mood, it hardly is being reflected in public statements by executives. Executives of the nation's biggest companies are making statements that haven't been heard in a while.

In Denver this week, Frank Cary, chairman of International Business Machines, told annual meeting attendees his company will greatly expand capacity, adding 10,000 manufacturing workers in 1977-78. Thomas Murphy, General Motors chairman, has been talking bullish for many months, and automotive sales, after lagging during the harsh winter, are documenting his faith. And still, the surveys and a good deal of office and plant chatter tend to depict a timid mood at variance with the vigorous reality, as if people have become so used to talking gloom they cannot give it up.

Qualifications for TV Anchorman Include Fine Voice, $100,000 Salary

LOS ANGELES (AP) - To whomever runs ABC or NBC: Now that Harry Reasoner is out as anchor of the evening news and John Chancellor wants to leave anchoring, I'd like to apply for either job.

My qualifications to anchor the news are these: -My mom says I have a fine voice.

-My dad says anchormen make $500,000 a year, but I will only ask for $100,000.25. You can use the other $399,999.75 to cover the news. Or declare a stock dividend.

I know when you anchor at NBC there is worry about what to do with your legs because the Nightly News set shows your legs. I won't have that problem. I'll wear a lap robe.

If ABC is interested, I, as anchor, will deal with those with Barbara Walters. I'll anchor my part of the show from Tahiti, and tell the press we're still good friends.

As regards personal appearances, such as covering Middle East fighting or getting an exclusive interview with Geraldo Rivera, well, we should have no problem with that.

My agent, Everett "Swift" L'Doze, tells me that personal appearances by an anchorman where news is breaking is good public relations, almost as good as getting a TV Guide cover.

However, he says, almost reluctantly, he will be forced to charge a minimum of $29.95 for each personal appearance, the maximum of $50 to be assessed for coverage of World War III.

'Holocaust' Lands Top Spot In Last Week's TV Ratings

NEW YORK (AP) - "Holocaust" swept the top three places in the week's ratings race, A.C. Nielsen Co. figures show, and thrust NBC into first place in the network standings for the first time since November.

In contrast, ABC, which had been first in the standings all but four of the 32 weeks this season, was third behind NBC and CBS for the week ending April 23. It was ABC's first last-place finish since last summer.

NBC suffered disastrous ratings on "King," its miniseries in February on the life of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and had banked on a strong showing by "Holocaust." The network estimated after the miniseries completion that 120 million people had seen all or part of "Holocaust."

The first installment of "Holocaust" was No. 4 in the ratings the week before.

The concluding episode of "Holocaust" was the week's most-watched show, with a rating of 34.9. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 34.9 percent watched at least part of that installment.

NBC last won the ratings race the week ending Nov. 20, with its four-part miniseries that included the feature films "The Godfather" and "The Godfather, Part II." Even though, ABC listed the week's two top shows, "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley."

NBC's rating for the week was 21.2. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 21.2 percent of the homes in the country with television were turned to NBC.

CBS was second at 16.7, followed by ABC at 16.1.

On the Lighter Side

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) - There'll soon be a kitty quota in this Miami suburb which has some of the toughest zoning laws in the state.

The city commission Tuesday passed an ordinance limiting families to four adult cats per residence. The vote was 3-2.

Some Coral Gables residents waggishly questioned the language of the ordinance, which outlaws ownership of more than four "carnivorous quadrupeds belonging to the feline family."

Asked whether three-legged cats would be exempt from the quota, City Attorney John Little said, no, he assumed the ordinance would limit amputee cats as well.

Other ordinances in the city included bans against owning more than four dogs or one chicken, duck, snake or goat, building a treehouse, building a chicken thatched Indian hut, leaving a garage door open overnight, and parking a pickup truck, camper or boat trailer in a driveway overnight.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) - They'll have a pot party at Central Michigan University next month, and the pots are sure to get smashed.

The school is sponsoring an art fair entitled "Everything You Know About Art is Wrong," and as one of the exhibits, participants will be given clay pots to smash as they please.

Artist Steven Crawley, who will provide the pots during the May 1-5 show, says he will try to expose people to art as an activity.

Hill Says Briscoe Harrassed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Attorney General John Hill said Tuesday that Gov. Dolph Briscoe was using "governmental forces to harass the teachers" of Texas.

Hill told a news conference there was no question in his mind that Briscoe was behind efforts of a House subcommittee to get the Texas State Teachers Association's political arm to release tapes made of political conversations with Hill and Briscoe.

"They're doing his political dirty work," Hill said of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee decided Monday to pass the decision on issuing subpoenas for the tapes to the House committees on public education and on administration.

"If they can subpoena the tapes, why can't it be done to any private person to get their records?" Hill commented.

Reps. Jim Nugent and Hamp Atkinson want the public to know - before the May 6 election - what Hill said in his interview with the TSTA's Texas Educators Political Action Committee.

Hill told the news conference he had never asked the political action committee to release the tapes but he had no objections.

"I absolutely never made any promises at any time for a vote," he said.

'Sex Sell' Finds Place on Television

NEW YORK (AP) - Check it out. Beautiful woman with innocent lips. Dollops of moisture clinging to face and bare shoulders. Then she speaks. Through parting, pulsating mouth she tells millions of Americans all about Lip Quencher-a lipstick. Sigh. The message is that sex sells. That's what is behind the proliferation of TV's sexy approach to selling. Sometimes it's obvious sex, but mostly innuendo is the element that successfully peddles everything from ball point pens to razors. That pure and wholesome Breck girl doesn't usually sit still for the sex sell on TV. But no matter, Monday night quarterbacks love it. Especially when they can "flick their Bic" in the tunnel of love. Or "get stroked" before going to work - with the Bic shaver, that is. Or experience "great balls o' comfort" from a shaving cream. Everyone can tell you why the sex sell is used on television, but no one in the industry is sure how long it will last. "That sort of stimulus in advertising only is effective or only gets attention when it shocks," says Burt Manning, vice chairman and chief creative officer at the J. Walter

Thompson ad agency. "It has a certain adolescent taboo built into it. It only works when you're not supposed to talk that way." "It's an attention getter and there are some success cases, which is why it keeps going on," adds Lois Korey, creative director of the Needham, Harper & Steers agency. "It's like the old mule joke: how do you get a mule's attention? First you hit him over the head. Sex does get the audience's attention." Sometimes, however, the sex sell doesn't. French film star Catherine Deneuve couldn't get Lincoln-Mercury Monarchs into the family garage. "Neither men nor women were interested in the Monarch while viewing the commercial," explained Tom Westbrook, who heads the Spokane, Wash.,

group response firm Tell-Back Inc. "When the camera focused on the dashboard of the car and the announcer spoke of the splendid engineering, the response went down. The very next shot had Catherine Deneuve in the back seat. The response zoomed up." But the positive viewer response, he said, was not to the product. It resulted from fantasies of back-seat romance.

Westbrook said, and didn't leave viewers with the idea of buying the car. Before an ad is aired, it must be approved by a network standards department. Last year, CBS refused a Muriel cigar ad featuring model Susan Anton in a slithery gown in a men's locker room. "It was the body language and how they were touching each other that was beyond our speed limit," said Donn O'Brien, CBS' vice president of program practices. Walter M. Schirra Jr., was the only astronaut to fly in the Mercury, Gemini and Apollo space programs. Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee were the only brothers to sign the Declaration of Independence.

Green Conviction Upheld by Court

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) - The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday upheld the public lewdness conviction of former District Attorney Billy Ray Green of Palestine, who was arrested with another man in a peepshow here.

Green was assessed a $400 fine and a 10-day probated jail sentence following a jury trial here.

He was disbarred and removed from office as district attorney of Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties in February by a district judge at Palestine. His lawyers said they would appeal that action.

At Green's public lewdness trial in Austin, a plainclothes policeman who took part in his Jan. 18, 1977, arrest testified he saw Green perform fellatio on a man in a booth at the Mr. Peepers Book Store.

Green denied this and said he had merely bent over to insert a quarter into the peepshow machine when the policemen burst into the viewing room.

Green's appeal said he was denied a fair trial because the judge did not charge the jury to decide whether Green knew he was in a public place and knowingly engaged in a sex deviation.

They cited the public lewdness statute which says a person breaks the law if he or she knowingly engages in one of several listed acts in a public place or with disregard for whether anyone can see.

"We hold that knowingly as used in the statute applies only to the act of deviate sexual intercourse and not to the place where such act was committed," the high court said.

The court noted that the store was open. Green himself testified he looked into other peepshow booths and saw people in them.

"Under all of the evidence the booth was part of a public place," the court said.

Green also contended his arrest was the result of an unconstitutional search, but the court said he and his companion were viewed through a three-to-five-inch gap between the curtain and the edge of the booth.

"We hold that the officers' conduct did not constitute a search. . . We also hold that appellant Green, under the facts of this case waived any expectation of the right to privacy," the court said.

Judges Truman Roberts and W.T. Phillips dissented.

Roberts said the excluded evidence "tended to support"

Green's contention of a conspiracy.

He also said the judge should have charged the jury on whether the peepshow booth - and not the store as a whole - was a public place.

In 1810 there were 366 newspapers in the country.

Young Gymnast Aims at Olympics

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Every day Denise Walker spends at least three hours in the gym — balancing, vaulting, running, stretching and tumbling.

With the single-minded intensity of a champion gymnast, she jumps confidently from the floor onto a 3-foot-high balance beam practicing moves that will draw gasps of admiration from audiences.

Her goal is the 1980 Olympics.

The 17-year-old freshman at the University of New Hampshire sees little of what makes up the life of most of her classmates. Her mornings may belong to the classroom, but her afternoons are filled with balance beams, uneven bars, and the sometimes tedious repetition of exercise.

"I saw my first hockey game this week because I took a day off, but I don't have time to be involved in extra-curricular activities," she said.

Denise's soft voice and slight 5-foot-2, 90-pound frame give an appearance of frailty that is immediately dispelled when she hurls herself from bar to bar on the uneven bars.

Her tentative conversation is punctuated with shy smiles. But her large blue eyes are unwavering, revealing the tenacity that marks her gymnastic performances.

She has devoted most of the past six years to gymnastics. In exchange for missed teenage pleasures she can say she has traveled across the country and competed against some of the top women in the sport.

Her skill on the balance beam, and in particular her ability to perform a front walkover on the width of the beam, is a delight to crowds and earns her almost perfect scores at meets.

She fell just short of qualifying for the U.S. Olympic team in 1976. Now, she only looks to 1980.

"I put together the best performance I possibly could then. Of course I was disappointed, but it wasn't the end of the world," she said.

Her coach says she could be Olympic material even though in 1980 she will be 19, several years over what is considered the prime age for female gymnasts.

"It is a realistic goal as far as she is concerned, if she is willing to make the sacrifices, and the sacrifices are considerable," says Lou Datillo, coach of the UNH women's gymnastic team.

Denise says she follows no special diet to maintain her weight. "I eat what I want until I start gaining weight."

But it is her slight frame and flexibility which allow her to exhibit the grace that characterizes many famous Olympic contenders such as Romania's Nadia Comaneci.

"She can perform almost perfectly on the balance beam with little warm-up. And, even when she is having a bad day and occasionally falls, she just gets right back on the beam with no fear," says Datillo.

The UNH team has won all its meets this year, even though it faced much tougher competition than in the past.

Denise's career in gymnastics began when she was 12 and took a local tumbling course. The course led to a competition, which she won. The competition led to gymnastics camp, which led to a full-time commitment.

At 13, she began attending gymnastics school in New Haven, Conn., as a full-time student. While at the Muriel Grossfeld School, she began participating in national competition.

The concentration and cross-country travel have left her with a poise and apparent sophistication beyond that of her classmates. She feels that the disciplined life of a gymnast has helped her mature.

Professor Practices What He Preaches to Students

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Dewey Chambers told his new colleagues at Tully Knolls School here last fall to "stop that Dr. Chambers stuff" and offer him no special treatment.

Thus began an unusual leave for the University of the Pacific professor as an elementary school teacher.

Chambers, 48, applied for the one-semester faculty development leave to learn if the training he provides as an elementary education professor at the private university here is relevant to elementary teachers today.

"I wanted to do something that would benefit me," Chambers said. "It was a whole refresher course in my field."

Chambers, author of seven books on language and learning, visits the school each year with his college students, telling stories to the youngsters so his students can see their reaction.

"Then toward the end of the year he brings his students over and they tell our students stories," says Principal Maynard Strong.

Chambers, who last taught elementary school 15 years ago, handled just about every subject in every grade from kindergarten through six during his semester at Tully Knolls.

"We conquered Peru in the sixth grade and they loved that," he recalled. "And we got the Pilgrims safely to Plymouth Rock in the fifth grade. That's very exciting stuff if done correctly."

Chambers gave regular teachers the option of staying in the classroom to watch or using the free period for class preparation.

"The majority of them were so intrigued by his methods, they stayed in the classroom," Strong said.

What Chambers found after three months was that UOP is providing relevant education to budding teachers. But he does plan some revision and changes in emphasis for his students.

"I think I have to talk to my student teachers about greater organization of the classroom and the overuse of mass media," he said.

There's an imported beer and even champagne for the beverage and homemade cheesecake for dessert.

Heaping that on top of the already high costs of medical care might lead one to think that a stay in El Dorado would be prohibitively expensive. But it is not the case, hospital officials say.

A semi-private room goes for $94 a day at the facility. Tucson General Hospital charges $102 a day for such a room, while the lowest in town is $89 at Tucson Medical Center.

For Gourmets Hospital Is Just What Doctor Ordered

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A cheese blintz, clams casino, coquilles St. Jacques, quiche Lorraine, blanquette of veal, asparagus salad. You don't have to be sick to eat that kind of food, but it helps.

Just make sure your ailment gets you into El Dorado Medical Center.

The 160-bed hospital in a fairly affluent area on the east side of Tucson offers those items and more on its menu for patients. It's one way of attracting patients to the new private facility, says Administrator Roger Snapp.

"Because of our location in a fairly affluent city, we decided we could do it a little bit better, that the trade would support it," he says. "We're in a competitive situation here and we're firm believers in free enterprise."

"If a hospital is 95 percent occupied, why do they need to put filet mignon on the menu?" Snapp asks. "We're new. I have zero occupancy. I have to do a little better."

Offering quality food also stems from a company philosophy that "there's no need to have menus the way they've been," he says. It seems to be an effort to make some part of a hospital stay pleasant and to push away the bad reputation many hospitals have for food.

Health officials say that offering quality food can be advantageous from a standpoint of health. They say good food encourages patients to continue eating, getting the nutrition they need.

Nutritional encouragement at El Dorado comes in the form of a menu including cheese blintzes for breakfast and a luncheon menu listing five appetizers, seven salads, six cold entrees and 11 hot entrees, including stuffed cabbage and seafood crepes. Patients can select from Cornish hen with wild rice and mushrooms, blanquette of veal, beef tenderloin steak and cheese enchiladas among others.

He says the "do your own thing" philosophy is creeping into the classroom and results in an atmosphere of disorganization.

"Children need to know what to do," he said. "Learning doesn't happen in chaos, it happens in a well-organized cosmos."

Chambers says he found overuse of mass media or "educational hardware."

Chambers also found that gifted children are being ignored.

"If a child is poor or has a learning problem, there are lots of programs available. But if he's smart, that's too bad," he said.

But, contrary to popular belief, Chambers said he found heavy emphasis on the basics, "almost to the exclusion of other ideas," because of teachers' concern with good test scores by their pupils.

"That's what has given rise to all the hardware that's come in," he said.

All that is needed for education to take place is a good teacher and a group of children, he said.

"After all, Socrates taught under a tree."

She May Not Be Famous But Her Portrait's Seen Often

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—It was the sun shining on her auburn hair and red sunbonnet that caught the eye of Leroy Payne that April day in 1915.

Payne, a Sun-Maid Raisin Co. executive, saw Lorraine Collett and knew she was the image he wanted for his product.

The result was the picture of a smiling girl wearing a bonnet and holding a basket of raisins, with the sun at her back. It became familiar to millions of Americans and gave Miss Collett a second identity, as the "Sun-Maid Girl."

The auburn hair of Lorraine Collett Petersen, now in her 70s, has grayed, her face has aged and she walks with a cane. But she remembers the day more than 60 years when it all began.

She recalls sitting for three hours a day for almost a month while her portrait was painted. The first effort was rejected because Payne wanted the sun in the background, Miss Collett's hair hanging over her shoulder and her head tilting to one side.

Her association with the raisin industry had begun with a summer job at a Fresno packing plant in 1914, while she was in high school.

The next year, she and two other girls were asked to work in the raisin booth at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco.

In April she returned home to participate in the first Raisin Day Parade. It was while she was drying her hair in the sun on the day of the parade that Payne got the idea for the Sun-Maid symbol.

She was paid $16 a week for working at the fair but says she got nothing to pose for the portrait.

Most people visiting the exposition failed to realize she was the girl on the raisin boxes. A few Fresnoans did recognize her because "my dad had told them," she says.

Workers at the fair were aware of the connection, however, and "the guys from the orchestra said they wanted to dance with the Sun-Maid girl."

When the exposition closed, she studied nursing and continued to work for Sun-Maid, appearing in Raisin Day Parades for a couple of years. Later, she did some modeling, appeared in a few movies and operated a convalescent home for many years.

It wasn't until 1964 that Mrs. Petersen heard from Sun-Maid again. The cooperative invited her to take part in the dedication of a new processing plant at nearby Kingsburg.

Ten years later, Sun-Maid

President Frank Light presented Mrs. Petersen with a bronze replica of the Sun-Maid emblem.

In return, the "Sun-Maid Girl" turned over to the company the original portrait she had kept since 1915.

That day, the company paid her $1,000.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Blood pressure medicine

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm 73 and have a medical examination every two years. Last year my blood pressure was 200 over 100 so my doctor gave me Aldomet. Later on I found it was a disqualifying medication and the Federal Air Surgeon didn't approve of my pilot's license.

I had to find another doctor and he switched me to Hydrochlorothiazide, 50 mg, one pill every morning with a glass of orange juice. Now my blood pressure is 130 over 80, heart rate 72, no abnormal sound, no murmur, no abnormality in size, lungs appeared normal. And I did a nine minute test on the treadmill. The Federal Aviation Agency gave me back my license and I'm flying again as a Sunday pilot. My doctor retired and I want to know how long must I take my pill.

DEAR READER—Sounds like you have done very well. It is impossible to know, but your pressure may have been temporarily up on your first examination. Aldomet is an effective medicine in many instances, but if you can get by with a diuretic and orange juice, as you have, that is better. Just keep your weight down, avoid salt and drink your orange juice. It won't hurt you to continue your medicine. That lower blood pressure can help to protect your arteries from disease for some time. Don't stop it without permission from a doctor familiar with your case.

You must get another doctor, however. Everyone should have a family doctor and the best time to get the right one is when you have time to look for one—not when you have an emergency in the middle of the night. Meanwhile, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I've never seen anything about carpal tunnel surgery in your column. I must have this type of surgery on both hands. Any information you can give will be appreciated.

DEAR READER—The problem is usually manifested by pain, tingling and numbness in the hand, particularly of the thumb, index and middle finger. Aching pain may also be referred to the forearm. There are lots of causes for such symptoms; one must not conclude just because they have these symptoms it is a carpal tunnel syndrome. A careful examination is necessary to establish what is really going on.

The carpal tunnel is at the base of the hand-wrist area. Look at your wrist and feel these tendons at the front of it. There are eight tendons there that must pass through a narrow space at the base of the hand to enable you to bend your fingers or make a fist. The back of the space is bounded by wrist bones and the front is laced over with tendons and tough fibrous material.

Because the space is small to begin with, anything that encroaches on the space may cause pressure on the tendons and particularly the nerves passing through the area. This can be simple swelling.

If the problem is not temporary, such as swelling from fluid that can be controlled, or if there is evidence of damage to the nerve, it is often necessary to relieve the pressure. The surgeon frees the fibrous tissue and opens the constricted area to release the pressure. That is the operation you are likely to have. Of course if there were a mass or abnormal bone growth, that might be removed and allow you more movement.

Drive Started To Save Manatees

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—They're reclusive and sometimes described as ugly—mystery animals famous in sea lore. But the Florida manatee is also tottering on the brink of extinction.

The manatee, which a century ago barely survived an onslaught from hunters, is now pitted against 450,000 Florida pleasure-boat owners.

It's a battle the lumbering, docile mammal is losing, say concerned naturalists who have started a campaign to save what is one of the nation's most endangered species.

Naturalists were shocked into action last year following an unusually cold winter when more than 60 of the animals died in a two-month period. That was out of a total population scientists estimate at 800 to 1,000.

The past winter has not been as hard on the animal, but for the last several years manatees have been battered by an ever-growing boat population in the state.

The problem is that manatees, also known as sea cows, aren't easily seen in the water, although they grow to as long as 10 feet and weigh as much as 2,000 pounds. They swim submerged, their nostrils breaking water only for three-second intervals.

During the cold months of December through February, the manatee, which usually ranges out into the Atlantic and Gulf, is driven into the state's shallow shoreline seeking warmth and food in rivers, natural springs and power plant discharge areas.

It is during this time that the manatee is most susceptible to being hit by speeding boats, which come on the submerged animals so quickly they don't have time to get out of the way.

"It's almost impossible to find an adult manatee which doesn't bear scars from boat propellers," says Blair Irvine, a federal wildlife biologist. "We see animals with gosh-awful scars, some with as many as six different old wounds."

Irvine is head of a two-man U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service research team which has been studying the manatee for three years. Part of that effort has included autopsies performed on manatees to determine the cause of death. The studies show that half of the deaths where a cause can be found result from collisions with motor boats.

That information spurred state and federal authorities to start a campaign late last year to alert boat owners. They've distributed 2,000 bumper stickers showing a sad-eyed manatee with the slogan "Boaters your props just kill me." They also put up 30 signs around manatee feeding areas warning boaters to be alert.

But many naturalists complain that those efforts fall far short of what is needed to save the animals. They say speed limits must be enforced in areas where manatees congregate during the winter. But a bill to accomplish that has died the last two years in the Florida Legislature under determined opposition from the boating lobby.

However, state Sen. Lori Wilson, the bill's sponsor, said she hoped major lobbying would see the measure passed in 1978.

"Man is the manatee's only natural enemy. I can't believe that people would sit by and see this animal become extinct," she said.

Fear of X-Rays Eased for Kids

BOSTON (AP)—Keeping children at ease during an X-ray examination is sometimes difficult but at Children's Hospital Medical Center here the trick is turned with brief, illustrated explanations.

Elizabeth A. Haas and Donald J. Solomon, of the center's radiology department, devised easily understood descriptions of where the X-ray examination will occur, who will be involved and, step by step, exactly what will be happening. Each explanation is printed on brightly colored paper containing simple drawings.

Although designed for 8- to 13-year-olds, the material is sent to all patients between 3 and 14.

"The relaxed, informal tone of the explanations comes through to the child regardless of whether he reads it himself or has it read to him by an adult," Miss Haas said. Technologists query the child before the examination to see if it has been read and then answer any questions.

Results of the technique are characterized as "positive" in allaying fears of children. Besides informing the children and their parents, the technique shows the youngsters that they are recognized as individuals by a hospital staff concerned with their questions and anxieties, Miss Haas said.

WHAT PRICE LOVE?
DETROIT (AP)—A private suburban collector paid $3,400 for a peek into the love life of author Ernest Hemingway.

Hemingway specified in his will that his private letters were not to be published, but a 1944 love letter from the author of "The Old Man and The Sea" went on the auction block for the benefit of the Detroit Public Library during a rare book auction sponsored by friends of the library.

The author's four-page letter was handwritten by flashlight on the night of July 31, 1944, to his future wife, Mary, while he was a war correspondent for Collier's in northern France.

T-shirts need help

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY—Do you know how to remove deodorant stains from T-shirts? I have tried several things but nothing has worked. Please help me. —MRS.M.B.

DEAR MRS.M.B.—A U.S. Department of Agriculture bulletin suggests sponging with detergent and warm water and then rinsing. If stain is not removed use a chlorine or sodium perborate bleach or hydrogen peroxide. We are presuming your shirts are white and cotton. Bleaches are sold under various trade names at the grocery store and the 3 percent hydrogen peroxide used for bleaching is sold in drug stores. Rinse very carefully and do not leave on too long. —POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I save all my faded plastic place mats and then use them on our outdoor picnic table in the summer. This saves laundering tablecloths and they do not blow away in the wind. —MRS.C.M.

DEAR POLLY—I really use the buttonhole attachment on my sewing machine but used to find it impossible to slip material under the plate that holds the fabric without damaging it. Now I mark the buttonhole and then place waxed paper over the spot. The fabric slips with no damage to it and the markings can be seen through the paper. When removing the material I slip in a piece of cardboard such as comes under seam tape and the material comes out in good shape. —M.G.A.

DEAR POLLY—To make the job of driving nails into hard wood or plaster easier, bore a hole in the end of your hammer handle and fill it with paraffin—a melted candle will do. Lubricate the nail by pushing the tip into the paraffin. Refill as this reservoir gets low. If this is not convenient good results may be had by inserting the nail in a bar of soap. —MRS.R.J.S.

DEAR POLLY—To keep a hair-do in place I use a piece of nylon net (6 inches wide and long enough to fit around my head) and then clip it in place with hair clips. Air gets through to the head so this is nice for summer use. —LETHA

DEAR READERS—Recently this column printed a Pointer from Gladys suggesting the use of gasoline and corn meal for cleaning a stuffed animal that could not be washed. The Fire Marshal of Kent, Wash. answered with a letter, too long to be published in its entirety, warning of the danger of using gasoline as a cleaning agent. This column contained a warning "to handle gasoline carefully and away from cigarettes, pilot lights, children, etc." but he would like that comment changed to "Do not handle gasoline period." Thank you, Mr. H.O.O. —POLLY

High Plains Water District Donates Booklet to Schools

The Board of Directors of the High Plains Undergruond Water Conservation District authorized the printing of an educational booklet entitled Chief Running Water's Story of High Plains Water at their March 1978, Board meeting. The booklet has been printed and is currently being distributed to elementary schools throughout the District.

The booklet illustrates basic information concerning the Texas High Plains water supply. It illustrates the origin of the water supply and also many of the ways we use our underground water (city, farm and industry). It takes children through a normal day's activities and shows them just how much water they really use each day. It also illustrates many different ways that water can be conserved.

The distribution of this comic book begins an educational program recently adopted by the board aimed at school children in the area. The first phase of the program is designed, through the use of the educational booklet, to reach children in elementary grades four through six.

Through the use of Chief Running Water's Story, teachers in area schools will have a new educational tool to aid them in presenting a basic knowledge of water conservation to their students.

In the comic book, Chief Running Water and his horse, Thunderhead, take two present day school children on a ride back in time to the dawn of history where the story begins. The book explains how the Ogallala got its water and retains it in its subsurface "sponge" area.

Irrigation history is touched on and is covered from the early settlers' efforts, through the "dust-bowl" years and on up to today with its conservation practices. Such farm practices as contour plowing, bench-leveling, stubble mulching and using cotton burrs to help soil soak up and hold more water are briefly discussed.

The book introduces the students to the hydrologic cycle and brings information about city dwellers' use of water into the story by means of average gallons used for various activities.

The main thrust of the book is at the conservation practices needed to insure that we will continue to have water for agricultural, business, industrial and recreational uses in the future.

During the month of April members of the District staff delivered copies of Chief Running Water's Story of High Plains Water to 25 schools in the District's service area.

Schools requesting copies of the booklet which have been delivered include: Amherst, Anton, Bledsoe, Crosbyton, Dimmitt, Friona, Hale Center, Hereford, Lazbuddie, Lubbock State School, Morton, New Deal, Olton, Petersburg, Plainview, Ralls, River Road Independent School District in Amarillo, Roosevelt, Slaton, Spade, Sudan, Sundown, Tahoka, Whiteface, and Whitarral. All of these schools have indicated that these booklets will be used in classes before the end of the current school term.

These books are being distributed free of charge to those school districts within the Water District's boundaries. Other school districts or individuals wishing to receive copies of Chief Running Water's Story of High Plains Water are asked to contact the District office at 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405; so that arrangements for such distribution can be made.

ICA Head Encouraged By Beef Import Cut Proposal

AUSTIN — T. Cunningham, president of the Independent Cattlemen's Association, says his association is encouraged by U.S. Senate Finance Committee's recent passage of a beef import reduction proposal by a 13-1 margin.

"We can see our four years of work finally beginning to pay off," Cunningham said. "However, although this move is encouraging, we must realize that it is just a first step. The bill still must pass on the floor of the Senate."

Cunningham said that the bill accomplishes three things:

1. It reverses the present formula, allowing beef imports to decrease when domestic production is high. The present formula causes domestic markets to be swamped with foreign meat at a time when domestic production increases.

2. The legislation includes all processed meats in the quota system. At the present time, the law includes only boned, chilled meat.

3. Presidential authority to suspend quotas would be reduced unless a national emergency is at hand as defined by the National Emergency Act.

The biggest fight that remains, according to Cunningham, is to have live cattle included in the quotas.

Although U.S. Sen. Lloyd Benson of Texas has assured the cattlemen's association that there will be attempts from the Senate floor to include live cattle, the National Cattlemen's Association is against that move. The NCA has refused to accept or support any legislation that includes live cattle.

There has been no time table set as to when the measure will reach the Senate floor.

Cattle Picture Has Strong, Weak Points

COLLEGE STATION—The current beef cattle picture looks bright as prices have generally been strong. But how long will it last?

"There are a number of factors at work that will have a direct bearing on the cattle market for the rest of 1978," points out Dr. Ed Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Cattlemen need to keep these in mind as they plan ahead."

What will help keep the strength in beef cattle prices? Uvacek lists these factors:

--Per capita disposable income are rising rapidly, boosting the demand for beef.

--Cow and non-fed cattle slaughter is down sharply even though fed cattle production is up.

--Much less pork is available this year than earlier expected. Pork supplies will probably be up only about 1 percent for the year.

--Lamb and mutton production is down sharply and should be 11 percent below the 1977 level.

--Improved feedlot profits are boosting the demand for feeder cattle.

--Feeder cattle and calves available for feedlots are down 9 percent this year.

--The breeding herd is much smaller, so this year's calf crop should be smaller.

On the other hand, factors that could cause some weakening in cattle prices are these:

--Seasonal increases in pork supplies are still coming.

--Current retail beef prices are at record highs.

--Recent $50-plus prices for fed beef have not yet been reflected at the retail level.

--Further reduced cow slaughter should cause a scarcity of manufacturing beef, pushing hamburger prices up sharply.

--Broiler and turkey production is expected to increase substantially in the next few months.

Soil Stewardship Week Emphasizes Preservation

COLLEGE STATION — Without question land is a limited natural resource. The same can be said for good farmland. Yet some five million acres of rural land are lost to non-agricultural use each year in the United States, about a million acres of this being "prime" farmland.

"The indiscriminate use of farmland for non-agricultural purposes is of concern to many people and is being given special attention during this year's observance of Soil Stewardship Week, April 30-May 7," points out Dr. B.L. Harris, soils and water use specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The Extension Service is cooperating in the observance with the National Association of Conservation Districts and Soil and Water Conservation Districts throughout the state.

Theme of the weeklong observance is "Compelling Ventures" and is designed to instill in all Americans the need to venture forth to take care of the valuable land, water and other natural resources God has put on the earth.

Along with the issue of preserving farmland, Soil Stewardship Week is also designed to stress the importance of controlling water pollution caused by run-off from unprotected farms, ranches, roadsides and construction sites.

"America's good farmland is one of our greatest gifts, yet much of it is used indiscriminately each year for housing developments, highways, shopping centers and the like," says Harris.

"Our challenge is to make wiser, better and more responsible use of the land our Creator has given us. We must respond to God's call to be responsible stewards of this bountiful land. Our bountiful supplies of food and fiber depend on the conservation, wise and proper management of our soil and water resources."

Many special programs and church services are being planned to call attention to the responsibility of all people for the protection and proper care of the Lord's earth, adds the Extension specialist.

Bergland Plans Foreign Visits

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland will visit six countries in 20 days during his trade talks next month in Europe and the Soviet Union.

His schedule calls for him to leave Washington on May 6, arriving in Russia the next day. He leaves there May 16 for about 48 hours each in Norway, Poland, Hungary and Romania.

The High Plains Undergruond Water Conservation District No. 1 will hold its regular monthly Board of Directors meeting May 1 at the offices of the Water District at 2930 Avenue Q in Lubbock.

The meeting, which is being held on May 1 because of the District's By-laws, will begin at 10:00 a.m. in the Directors conference room. In the public session the Directors will consider the application by Lonnie Smith for two exceptions to the District's well spacing regulations in Lamb County; the Board will consider the validation of a well in Farmer County owned by Thomas Lwellen; the Directors will review the work load of the District's county secretaries with a view toward possible salary adjustments for them, and the Board will consider acceptance of a contract for an exhibit at the High Plains Agribusiness Exposition to be held August 25-27. Other routine business is also scheduled to be discussed.

The Board will also hold an executive session to discuss personnel matters relating to the Water District.

Poet Likes Quiet Life In Woods

ROME, Ohio (AP) — With pen or brush in hand, 52-year-old John Yariash has returned to what he loved best as a boy — the woods.
 Poet and painter, electrician and remodeler, musician, collector and antique dealer, Yariash characterizes himself as a man who enjoys meeting and dealing with people.
 It was about 12 years ago that he bought this cross-farm in the southwest corner of Ashtabula County to get away from the bustle of Cleveland.
 He wrote his first poem when he was 11 — or, rather, his first song lyrics. Yariash plays guitar and banjo and writes music as well. He played with two bands while serving as an electrician aboard an aircraft carrier during World War II. Later he played with a Cleveland band for seven years.
 And it was while working in Cleveland, though in a different job, that he began the collecting that led to his current activities in antiques.
 His job at the time, he recalls, was with "a German lady (whose) house was full of stuff, and one day I commented on a salt and pepper shaker set."
 "She said, 'Why don't you just take it home with you?' I found out that they were cut glass, and folks just don't go around giving away cut glass. So I told her that I would swap her some work for some more items, and there I was with the collector's bug."
 When he bought his farm, he converted a barn into a showroom. Later he bought what had been a grocery store, and that became his shop.
 Yariash writes verse to order for those who want something a bit different for a special occasion, and he often presents a poem along with his bill for a remodeling job — to soften the impact, he says.
 He also paints and draws, his pictures often centering on the birds he watches through field glasses. He also buys them food.
 "Being out here on the farm so close to nature has helped me appreciate the many wonderful things that we have as humans that are beautiful, and they are free," Yariash says.
 "My only enjoyment as a kid was the woods," he recalls. "There was nothing else to do, so I collected ferns and leaves and watched birds. We often just don't take the time to look at them."
 "Someone once said that you really don't know a rose until you have painted one," Yariash adds. "That sure is the truth."

Farm Has Big 'Crop' of Edsels

EDSEL PATCH—Della and Phil on their Willamette Valley farm near Spangler lean on one of the cars from Albany, Ore. the late 1950s that they have collected

ALBANY, Ore. (AP) — Ford's Edsel didn't make much of a hit with the motoring public of the late '50s — but Phil Spangler has gathered quite a crop of them on his Willamette Valley farm.
 Spangler — who grows wheat, mint, corn and ryegrass on most of the rest — began in 1965 to collect the flamboyant and luxurious cars marketed by Ford Motor Co. in 1958-60. The cars, in various states of repair and disrepair, sprawl over two of his 3,000 acres.
 He and his wife Della have about 80 vehicles in the Edsel patch behind the barn. He also has a sprinkling of 1958 and 1959 Mercuries and other Ford models that have parts interchangeable with the Edsel.
 The cars, named for Edsel

Ford, were introduced with a great hullabaloo, but sales never matched expectations and the company, after losing much money, dropped the whole idea.
 The Edsels, sporting a curious vertical grille, were different from other cars of that era, but Spangler says they are anything but ugly.
 "The Edsel was one of the nicest-looking cars ever made," he said, looking at some of the cars contending with rust, weeds and wild blackberry vines that snake through windows.
 Among their crop of Edsels is one with a push-button transmission selector in the middle of the steering column. Another has a speedometer in which the needle remains stationary while the numbers revolve inside a bulbous dashboard housing. The cars, typical of the late '50s, are copiously trimmed with chrome, and some have three-tone paint jobs.

 The Spanglers bought their first Edsel, a 1958 model, from a neighbor for $325 in 1962. The Edsel also was their first passenger car. Before that they had only pickup trucks.
 Then in 1965, they began hitting the Edsel market in earnest.
 "...It doesn't cost very much to collect them. And besides, we have enough parts to keep the other cars running," Spangler said.

He and his wife have five driveable Edsels. He figures he could restore about 20 of the remainder. The rest can be cannibalized for parts.
 Phil and Della continue to comb classified sections for more Edsels to add to their collection. Occasionally they find one.

Over 100,000 patent applications are filed each year.
