

NASA Scrubs Shuttle Takeoff

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The long-awaited test flight of America's rocket-ship Columbia was scrubbed for at least two days this morning when a computer malfunction occurred as two astronauts waited in the cockpit for their release to fly. It never came; 16 minutes before lift-off, problems began. "We are stopping the clock," space agency spokesman Hugh Harris said at 9:59 a.m. — three hours after the scheduled launch time. "We're sending out a crew to open the hatch of the orbiter and take the astronauts out to their crew quarters," about six miles from the launch pad.

He said the earliest time for launch now is Sunday morning at 6:50 a.m. EST. The postponement had to be a severe disappointment to pilots John Young and Robert Crippen, and to the many other employees of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration who had labored through two years' delay in development of the shuttle. The Columbia was to make America's first manned space flight in six years; the mission called for 36 orbits around the earth in a delta-winged rocketship that is the first designed for re-flyable use in space.

Young and Crippen were within 16 minutes of the planned 6:50 a.m. liftoff when they discovered a fuel cell problem. No sooner was it solved than the computer difficulty cropped up. Launch director George Page announced the postponement when it became apparent that the computer problem could not be corrected today. Today's first delay hit when the astronauts spotted a fuel cell warning light glowing on their cockpit console. No sooner was that problem resolved when the computer snafu was discovered. Crippen reported the software program in a backup computer did not agree with the programs in the four main computers that control the flight of the spaceship.

"The backup computer is not communicating properly with the other four," NASA spokesman Harris reported from the control center. Launch Control Center attempted to delay launch as late as 10:20 a.m. today but computer problem could not be fixed in time. Engineers here and at the Johnson Space Center in Houston sought to resolve the problem, assisted by the astronauts. At one point the memory of the backup computer was dumped and a new software program fed into it. But Crippen reported, "The result is the same." An estimated million viewers had arrived before dawn to see the launch and left disappointed when the computer went on the fritz. A space agency computer expert, patched through to the spacecraft, told the astronauts: "the probability that it will clear up is not really that great. It might be that it will, but we're not overly confident." For good reason. It couldn't be done. Attempts to duplicate the problem in a shuttle simulator in Houston was unsuccessful. While the astronauts sat horizontal in their cockpit, one launch control official told them, "You have to excuse the delay, gentlemen; all the ducks weren't in a straight line." The reply, from commander Young, "That's okay." Two and a half hours after the crew should have been in space, Crippen joked, "I've got this fantastic view out my window. I can watch the pelicans fly up and down the beach." Today's countdown was heading smoothly toward the scheduled 6:50 a.m. launch when Young and Crippen spotted the fuel cell warning light glowing in their cockpit. Then the computer acted up. The computer is a back-up to four primary computers that control the space flight. The crew awoke at 2:05 a.m. today, went into their craft at 4:20 a.m. Thus, if they follow the crew rule, the launch window for today would close at about 10:20 a.m., but it could be extended. "If you guys get to feeling like you're too tired, we sure want to talk about it," a launch official told the astronauts. The Columbia is an all-new, untested spacecraft — the first to be launched without an unmanned test flight.

Congress Begins Recess; Economic Plan Stalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress headed for a two-week recess today, leaving President Reagan's economic package in limbo: rejected for its deficits by a Republican-dominated committee in the Senate and spurned for a Democratic alternative by budget writers in the House. "We'll just let everybody see how they feel in two weeks," a disappointed Senate Budget Committee Chairman Peter V. Domenici, R-N.M., said late Thursday after the panel voted 12-9 to reject an economic blueprint drawn to the administration's specifications. Congress was to begin its Easter recess today and return April 27. The defeat in the Senate committee was a stunning setback for Reagan. Until then, Republicans had stuck with the president as the panel endorsed various parts of the plan. Once the package was put together, however, it fell apart. Three Republicans declared the budget deficits too large and joined nine Democrats who didn't like Reagan's three-year tax cut in rejecting it. Ed Dale, a spokesman for the White House Office of Management and Budget, said, "There is concern about the vote, but it's not ir retrievable. We plan to continue to work with the Senate leadership on this." In the House Budget Committee, meanwhile, majority Democrats pushed their own economic plan, including a one-year tax cut instead of Reagan's three-year package, a balanced budget in 1983 instead of 1984 and more spending on social programs than the administration recommends. The vote was a virtually party-line 17-13 on the $714.5 billion budget for next year with a $25.6 billion deficit. All 12 committee Republicans and Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, voted against it, but Republicans insisted they would have

Solons Divided On Drinking Age Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19 to curb drunkenness in high schools didn't seem complicated, but the House and Senate can't seem to get together on it. Senators rejected the latest attempt at compromise on Thursday, and a third House-Senate conference committee was appointed to try to find the right combination. Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, House sponsor, begged his colleagues to back off on their demand that the bill contain a tough provision forcing sellers of alcoholic beverages to check the identification cards of young customers. "If we have to be flexible on the ID issue, let me have that flexibility," Allee said, suggesting that the question of enforcing the law against selling to minors should be dealt with in a separate bill. "I just want a 19-year-old drinking bill," he added. Senators rejected the latest effort at compromise, 28-1. The House has insisted that grocers, bartenders and liquor store operators be required to verify a person is not a minor before selling him alcohol. When the first conference committee gave a seller an

Polish Premier Demands Suspension Of Strikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski today demanded Poland's Parliament impose an emergency, two-month ban on strikes and threatened to quit if he doesn't get it. "I can work only without the threats of strikes," Jaruzelski said in his first major address since his inaugural plea last February for 90 days of labor peace. "The government asks Parliament to suspend strikes for two months," the premier and defense minister said in the televised speech. "The government counts on the suspension of the right to strike bringing a general calming. "But I must remind you that when I took over as premier, I promised to step down if the government can't fulfill its duties," he said. "This is the moment." Jaruzelski painted a grim picture of Polish problems in the wake of last summer's strike wave that spawned the independent Solidarity labor movement. The government guaranteed workers the right to strike in the agreement that ended the summer rebellion, but that right has yet to be formalized as a law passed by Parliament.

"Strikes too often have political and local motivations. We had some strike preparedness last week without the approval of Solidarity's national coordination commission," Jaruzelski said. "We can't work normally in such conditions." He said he respects forces for calm in the 10-million member union and renewed his offer for a dialogue with the Solidarity leadership, but he claimed some fringe factions are "attempting to snatch power." Jaruzelski had been

President Prepares To Leave Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan spent a restless night and awoke early today to watch the launching of the space shuttle on television, aides said. David Proserpi, an assistant White House press secretary, said that after a "very good, very restful" night, the president awoke at 6:35 a.m. EST. Reagan read newspapers, the White House news summary and other briefing materials while awaiting the shuttle's liftoff, Proserpi said. Doctors and aides said the president, itching to return to the fray over his economic program, "really can't wait to get home" and is preparing to leave the hospital this weekend. Reagan, making steady progress from the bullet that punctured his chest in an assassination attempt March 30, had his "best day yet" Thursday, said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, dean of clinical affairs at George Washington University Hospital. With his temperature normal for more than 36 hours, the president was taken off

Pioneer To 'Break Up House'

Women's Editor
C'Orla Cockrell is 87-years-old. She still drives her own vehicle and is as independent as she was in 1916 when she first moved to Hereford. After 62 years of housekeeping and years of working, Mrs. Cockrell is giving up her home to move to King's Manor, a retirement home in Hereford. With the move comes the difficult decision of what keepsakes will be saved and what will be sold. "I've seen a lot of friends break up housekeeping, and now I know what they went through," Mrs. Cockrell said. Mrs. Cockrell's two daughters, Betty Jo Oldham of Woodward, Okla., and Ann Osburn of Colorado Springs, Colo., are in Hereford to assist in the move.

"It's hard trying to decide what to keep and what to sell in a garage sale. It's just something that has to be done," Mrs. Oldham explained. Many of the keepsakes include wedding presents given to C.P. and C'Orla Cockrell when they married July 10, 1919. Mr. Cockrell died in 1942 and C'Orla never remarried. One keepsake that has been sold is a trunk which dates back to the 1800's that Mr. Cockrell used when he traveled to Calver Summer School at Calver, Ind. The trunk was shipped to Hereford Jan. 18, 1916 from Princeton, Mo., his home town. Cockrell first came to

Bradley's Body To Lie In State Through Monday

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Soldiers stood at rigid attention, civilians watched silently and an Army band played "Nearer My God To Thee" as a military honor guard carried the flag-draped coffin of Gen. Omar N. Bradley into the adobe chapel at nearby Fort Bliss. The last five-star general returned Thursday aboard a presidential jet to the sprawling fort that had become his home. His body will lie in repose at the post chapel through Monday morning. Military leaders and Bradley's second wife, Kitty, who arrived on the plane with the general, attended a brief service. Afterwards soldiers and civilians filed past the closed, flag-draped casket in a quiet tribute to the first chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the last of the nation's great World War II commanders. "For 69 years he wore the colors of an American soldier — with courage, integrity, professionalism and, above all, honor," President Reagan said Thursday. "Even as he rose in rank, humility never left his side. He was the 'GI's general' because he was, always, a GI." Bradley, who was 88, died Wednesday at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital in New York. He will be buried Tuesday at Arlington National Cemetery near Washington, D.C. Retired Gen. Mark W. Clark, the former World War II commander of U.S. forces in North Africa, said in New York that the death of his comrade-at-arms "came as a jolt." "Brad's death has saddened me terribly," said Clark, who was to meet with Bradley Thursday for the first time in 10 years. Clark remembered Bradley as a "quiet, knowledgeable person who inspired confidence and said he "ranks with our greatest commanders of all time." "He was anything but a showboat. His manner was reserved, but people knew when he said something, he knew what he was talking about. He was a leader, first and last," said Clark. Bradley and his wife moved to Fort Bliss in November of 1977 because of the El Paso area's climate. The general of the Army suffered from arthritis and a series of strokes had left him crippled and in a wheelchair during his final years. The easy-going, soft-spoken man became a local celebrity in El Paso and was honored frequently in city ceremonies. The GI general became attached to the soldiers at Fort Bliss and the fort was chosen as the place for much of his post-death ceremonies. His body will be flown to

Mrs. Cockrell, 87, last year's Pioneer of the Year, is leaving her home on Star Street after 62 years of housekeeping. The trunk belonged to her husband, C.P. Cockrell and was shipped to Hereford Jan. 18, 1916.

Charlie Bell Chosen To Lead Lions

Charlie Bell will be the new "Boss Lion" for the Hereford Lions Club next year. Bell, a local insurance agent, was elected president of the local Lions Thursday night at the club's annual election party in the community center. The new Boss Lion will assume his post in July when the Lions hold their installation party. Joining Bell as new officers for the coming year will be Charles Watson, First Vice President; Greg Black, Second Vice President; and Troy Sublett, Third Vice President. Other new officers include secretary Rob Marshall and treasurer Dickie Gerles as well as tail twisters Carey Black and Weldon Knabe; lion tamers Cal Jones and O.K. Neal; and directors Lester Rape and Benny Womble. Robert Mercer and Dyal Garner are holdover directors for the club. Around 150 persons attended the election party Thursday night. Current president Sid Shaw presided at the meeting, with entertainment provided by humorous skits by various campaign managers for the candidates and a stirring vocal performance by Donna Kendall, accompanied by Jan Walsler. The Lions are looking forward to the District 21-1 Convention in Amarillo later this month and the International Convention in Phoenix, Arizona in mid-June.

update friday

Governor's Shock

Probation Bill okayed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill that would prevent a repeat of former Judge Garth Bates' "shock probation" after spending four months in prison for bribery has advanced in the House.

The measure, part of Gov. Bill Clements' anti-crime package, was tentatively approved on voice vote and is expected to receive final passage next week.

Key provisions would: — Require a judge to hold a hearing before granting shock probation so that prosecutors could protest. A judge could deny shock probation, however, without a hearing.

— Increase the number of crimes that would make a defendant ineligible for shock probation. The list now consists only of homicide, robbery and rape. The bill would add kidnapping, sexual abuse, child abuse, jailbreak, providing a deadly weapon to a prisoner and bribery.

— Permit only the original sentencing judge to grant shock probation. Judges would have 180 days instead of the present 120 to make a decision whether to grant shock probation.

Shock probation gives a first offender sentenced to 10 years or less a brief taste of prison life in order to deter him or her from committing future crimes.

Bates, a former district judge from Houston, was sentenced to eight years for accepting a bribe from a defendant. A judge other than the one who sentenced him granted Bates shock probation after he had served four months.

Helicopter Falls

On City Street

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal Aviation Administration officials launched an investigation today into the crash of a helicopter that fell onto a residential street, killing the two Canadian occupants.

Police Lt. Carlos Pinon said no one on the ground was injured in the crash Thursday and said the flames from the helicopter that hit in the middle of the street did not spread to any of the nearby houses.

Pinon said the two-passenger helicopter was flying toward the El Paso International Airport when it began losing altitude.

"Apparently he was looking for an open landing spot, then all of a sudden it just dropped," Pinon said. The helicopter crashed about one-half mile from the airport.

The pilot was declared dead at the scene and a woman passenger was rushed to nearby Eastwood Hospital, where she was pronounced dead, Pinon said.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Al Pospisil identified the victims as Jacques Dagenais and Roxanne Francoeur, both of Montreal, Canada.

Police identified Dagenais as president of the L'Allier Automobile Inc., dealership of Montreal.

District Fire Chief Bob Garmon said five fire units rushed to the scene of the crash and found area residents attempting to extinguish the flames with garden hoses.

Garmon said none of the debris from the crash damaged any of the houses nearby, although a piece of a landing strut was found nearly a block away.

"We're lucky they landed out in the middle of the street," he said.

Houston Attitude

Said 'Beyond Belief'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Houston's "lackadaisical" attitude about a debt the city owes the state is "beyond belief," but withholding the city's sales tax rebate should get some attention, Comptroller Bob Bullock says.

Bullock announced Thursday he won't give Houston $5.5 million in city sales tax collections — nor any other state money the city has coming to it — until a debt from interstate highway traffic fines is paid.

"I don't think this will bankrupt the city, but I think we'll definitely get their attention," he said, adding that an audit showed Houston owed $287,699 from fines collected in the city but not turned over to the state.

"The results of the audit are final and have been for the past nine months," Bullock said. "The city's lackadaisical attitude about this debt has been beyond belief."

He said he notified Houston last month that he planned to withhold its sales tax money, but "the city hasn't even bothered to acknowledge the letter."

The law allows him to withhold payments to persons indebted to the state, he said.

Not counting Houston's money, Texas cities will get $18.3 million in April rebates of the 1 percent city sales tax. Total rebates this calendar year are $180.8 million, up 14 percent from the first four months of 1980.

The state collects the one percent local sales tax for cities that impose it and remits it to them monthly.

District Changes

Being Considered

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Proposed changes in state and congressional legislative districts have drawn mixed reactions from witnesses who testified before a state senate subcommittee.

Jimmie Lyles, executive vice president of the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce, told the redistricting committee Thursday the 14th Congressional District "should remain intact." He said the district, represented by Rep. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, "has served us well."

The 1980 census shows the district has 544,736 people, about 3 percent more than the size the subcommittee would like to see.

In Senate District 20, represented by Sen. Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi, another 48,000 people are needed to bring the district up to size.

Tony Bonilla, national executive director of the League of United Latin American Citizens, told the committee that extra voters could be trimmed from Jim Wells and Brooks Counties.

The two counties are compatible with the rest of the district because they share common interests, Bonilla said.

The subcommittee also heard suggestions on possible changes in the 20th Congressional District and Senate District 17.

The subcommittee, chaired by Sen. Tati Santiesteban of El Paso, has until June 1 to recommend changes in congressional and state legislative districts.

If the subcommittee fails to reach agreement, a special panel of the state's top officials will make the changes brought about by the 1980 census.

Weather

Texas Whooping Cranes Staging Comeback in Oil Industry Area

AUSTWELL, Texas (AP) — The rare and majestic whooping cranes fight their battle against extinction within sight of dozens of barges and offshore drilling platforms in their winter home on the Texas coast.

Their number decimated by man's encroachment on their marshy feeding grounds, the whoopers are staging a comeback in an area vital to man for oil and gas deposits.

Bird and industry co-exist in an unlikely harmony.

"Apparently they're accustomed to the barge and boat traffic. Now if you approached them on land, it's a different thing," said Frank Johnson, manager of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge. The flock of whooping cranes that winters in the refuge includes 72 adults and six juveniles.

Another group of 17 whoopers lives with a flock of sandhill cranes in a survival experiment in New Mexico.

In 1941 and again in 1954, wild whooping cranes numbered only 21. They were the victims of land development, hunting and egg collecting.

The federal government paid less than $500,000 in 1937 for 47,215 acres in Aransas County, 45 miles north of Corpus Christi. The government did not acquire mineral rights to the land but required that part of the oil and gas royalties from the acreage go to the U.S. Treasury until the purchase price was paid back.

Other land was acquired until the refuge included 54,829 acres of marsh, brush and oak thicket on Blackjack Peninsula, named for the plentiful blackjack oaks.

The whoopers range over 10,000 acres of the refuge. Some roost on private land across Aransas Bay from the refuge.

After spending six months of fall, winter and early spring in Texas, the birds wait for a steady south wind and take off with their 7½-foot wingspan for the 2,500-mile trip to the Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada's Northwest Territories.

Whooping cranes mate for life. If one of the pair dies, the one remaining will pick another mate. The cranes generally live in family groups or pairs and stake out a 400-acre territory on the refuge.

One pair of whooping cranes annually returns to an area near the refuge's observation tower.

On a March morning, the pair waded in 6 inches of water searching for clams, blue crabs and other delicacies. They shared the pond with dozens of other water birds — white ibis, egrets, great blue herons, ducks and gulls.

Bird watchers who want a closer look can take a private sightseeing boat for a trip up the Intracoastal Waterway that runs through the refuge.

The whooping cranes are 4 to 5 feet tall, weigh 20 pounds and stand out with their snowy plumage. They have black-tipped wings, black facial feathers and a bare, red crown.

In the marshes and tidal pools of Sundown Bay and surrounding inlets, 28 whooping cranes could be counted on a recent afternoon.

out if a buyer "looked 19," the House rejected that.

The second conference committee drafted tougher language, saying a sale to a minor is done "knowingly" — and, therefore, illegally — if no ID is requested.

Senators said Thursday that was unfair.

"We are not talking about night clubs and taverns, we are talking about neighborhood grocery stores and 7-11s," said Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

"Next time this goes to conference committee we will have to have an amendment that is not real strict but somewhere in the middle," said Sen. Bill Sarpalis, D-Hereford, the Senate sponsor.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said the latest version of the bill would make it practically impossible for a dealer to defend himself.

Senators refused, 9-20, to instruct the new conferees to come back with a bill that merely raised the drinking age from 18 to 19, with no ID amendment.

Allee told the House he thought senators would accept an ID provision that "allows judgment on the part of the retailer whether to ask for an ID or not."

Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, said a bill without an ID provision would "be a fraud" and not enforceable.

"No more a fraud than the present law," replied Allee.

enough support from conservative Democrats on the House floor to pass a revised administration package.

Rep. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, ranking Republican on the committee, and Gramm, a conservative Democrat, offered a fresh budget proposal that both said was constructed with the blessing of David A. Stockman, the president's budget director.

Democrats only have a 51-vote majority in the House and significant defections by the 44 members of the Conservative Democratic Forum could give Republicans the upper hand. The substitute drawn up by House Republicans calls for spending $689.2 billion next year with a $38.9 billion deficit. It predicts a modest surplus in 1984, Reagan's target year for balancing the budget.

The Senate panel endorsed Reagan's call for a three-year, 30 percent cut in individual taxes and a host of reductions throughout government, but the committee staff concluded that there still would be a budget deficit of $53.8 billion next year and $44.7 billion in 1984.

Bradley — from page 1

Andrews Air Force Base at Washington Monday morning and will lie in repose the Bethlehem Chapel at the National Cathedral Monday afternoon through Tuesday morning.

The funeral for Bradley will be at 1 p.m. EST Tuesday in Washington, D.C., with graveside ceremonies at 3 p.m. at Arlington National Cemetery.

Simultaneous ceremonies are scheduled at Fort Bliss on Tuesday.

The body arrived in El Paso about 3 p.m. Thursday and the casket was loaded into a hearse by a honor guard from the 3rd Guard special detachment as nearby soldiers stood at rigid attention. The body was taken to an El Paso funeral home. Mrs. Bradley looked more rested Thursday night when she arrived at the funeral home for the procession to the Fort Bliss chapel.

When she arrived on the airplane Thursday afternoon, Maj. Gen. John B. Obinger, commander of Fort Bliss and a close friend of the Bradley's, had said Mrs. Bradley "was pretty shaken up. She was very tired."

Bradley's first wife, Mary Quayle, died in 1965 after 49 years of marriage. The following year he married Kitty Buhler, a screen writer whose television credits included "Dragnet," "The Untouchables," and "My Three Sons."

tions, proper clothing and expenditures required is still pasted on the inside of the trunk.

"We hated to give this up, but a neighbor bought it and will convert it to a coffee table. At least we will know where the trunk is," Mrs. Oldham said.

A quilt made by Mrs. Cockrell's mother, Mrs. L.E. Smith and friends was found in the trunk.

The quilt included the names of May Cunningham, Inez Stambaugh, Allie Elliston, Emma Hawkins and Lillie Smith.

"She will probably keep the quilt. Some of the other things like the wedding gifts will go to our children," Mrs. Osburn said.

"Instead of having everything at one place, they will be with the family in Oklahoma, Colorado and New Mexico," Mrs. Oldham explained.

"The one thing I'm keeping is mama's cane. I don't need it, but I'll keep it just in case," Mrs. Cockrell laughed.

One of the interesting things about the move is one of Mrs. Cockrell's old neighbors, Mrs. Henry Hasting, will be a neighbor at the manor.

"When we had our first house in Hereford at the corner of Third and Lee, Mrs. Hastings was my neighbor for 40 years, separated for 20 years and will now be together again.

Mrs. Cockrell was born in Cleburne and was the seventh of eight children. She taught school near Dimmitt for two years before moving to Hereford.

After moving here in 1916, she taught school for three years and then married.

Mrs. Cockrell never taught again, and in fact, did not work again until her husband died. However, the couple did run a boarding house during the depression years.

She worked for Consumers Co-op as a bookkeeper until she was 65-years-old and retired. Soon after that she decided she wanted to work again and took a job as a bookkeeper working until she was 80-years-old.

Mrs. Oldham said when she turned 80, she decided she had worked long enough and now it was time "to do some living."

She admits the transition from her home on Star street to the manor will take some adjusting. However, just because she is "retiring," she's not giving up her independence.

Delay

Young and Crippen were aware of the risks, but expressed confidence in the shuttle and are eager to make the trip — two years delayed due to technical and financial problems.

The mission was designed to circle the globe 36 times in 2 days plus 6½ hours, gliding Sunday to a dramatic landing on the large Rogers dry lake bed at Edwards Air Force Base in California's Mojave Desert.

Young and Crippen, wearing pumpkin-brown spacesuits, entered Columbia at 4:20 a.m. to check out its systems while the countdown clock headed, second-by-second, to "we have a lift off."

The astronauts' wakeup call was 2:05 a.m. Waiting for them was a good luck message from President Reagan: "You go in the hand of God and draw on the courage of life."

Reagan, still hospitalized from his bullet wounds, called the flight "a feat of American technology and American will. Through you, today, we all feel as giants once again. Once again we feel the surge of pride that comes from knowing we are the first and we are the best."

Communities around the space center buzzed with anticipation as a projected million shuttle watchers jammed beaches and roadways to see history being made as America launches its first men into space in nearly six years.

Congressmen, industry leaders, entertainers, high-level government officials and the families of the astronauts were among thousands invited by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to watch from viewing stands at the Kennedy Space Center.

America's future in space is at stake on this first flight in the $10-billion shuttle project. The 80-ton Columbia is the flagship of a fleet of four or five shuttles that will form the backbone of the U.S. space effort — military, commercial and scientific — for the remainder of this century. Each will be able to make 100 or more roundtrips into orbit.

"We're no longer flying a spacecraft; we're flying a spaceship," Young said in a recent interview. "It's an incredible machine which will revolutionize the way America operates in space." Success on their outing would open the space highway with its limitless promise and potential. Failure would cause incalculable damage, and years to recover.

"The country has got an awful lot riding on our first flight," said Young, commander of Columbia's maiden voyage. "It's critical, and we intend to make it work."

The two astronauts are superbly trained and keenly motivated. Young, 50, has logged 533 hours on four earlier space flights. His last, a walk on the moon, was nine years ago this month. Crippen, 43, is making his first flight after training 15 years as an astronaut.

Reagan

one of two antibiotics he had been receiving as a precaution against infection, and O'Leary said "we're looking to the weekend, Saturday or Sunday," for Reagan to be released.

The White House was being readied for him.

First lady Nancy Reagan had a roof-top solarium freshly bedecked with tulips and refurbished for the president's convalescence.

"Most of all what he misses is seeing the sky and trees and the lawn," said Helene von Damm, the president's personal secretary. "He's an outdoor person who thrives on all that beauty, so it's twice as hard on him."

The 70-year-old Reagan has lost some weight in the hospital, and it showed in a color picture taken Wednesday and released a day later by the White House. The president, dressed in a dark blue bathrobe, looked a little tired and drawn.

"You would, too, at this stage," O'Leary said.

He said a patient who underwent the same experience as Reagan could be expected to lose 8 percent to 10 percent of his body weight.

For Reagan, who normally weighs 184 pounds, that would be 15 to 18 pounds, but O'Leary said, "He's lost significantly less than that." He said he did not know the president's exact weight loss.

Meanwhile, there was bright news about White House press secretary James S. Brady, who was shot through the brain in the assassination attempt.

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes called Brady's recovery "really nothing short of a miracle" and quoted O'Leary as saying he was "extremely optimistic" that Brady eventually will be able to return to White House duties.

Ban

scheduled to speak to Parliament on Monday, but his address was delayed until today. Officials said it was postponed because of the premier's health, but observers saw a connection with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's speech Tuesday to the Czechoslovak Communist Party Congress.

Brezhnev's anxiously awaited comments produced some reassurance that the Soviets are willing to give Polish Communist Party leaders more time to deal with the nation's economic problems and political turbulence.

A Polish government official, asking not to be identified, said Jaruzelski was expected to tell Parliament "he has some more elbow room now for action," an apparent reference to the reduced Soviet threat.

The official predicted Jaruzelski will reaffirm his moderate line and renew his pledge to seek a dialogue with the independent union Solidarity.

Polish Communist Party chief Stanislaw Kania, meeting with party members Thursday in the northern port city of Gdansk, described Poland as "a weakened link in the socialist community." But Kania said Poland's neighbors still expect the party to be strong enough to deal with its problems.

"This was underlined two days ago by Comrade Leonid Brezhnev at the Czechoslovak Party Congress," he said. "This is most important and this one must appreciate highly."

Kania visited the Lenin Shipyards in Gdansk, center of last summer's strikes, and was met by calls for party reform, Warsaw Radio reported.

He was told that some party leaders were "using their power to commit acts which split the party and the nation and permitted a dishonest enriching of one's self," the radio said.

"One should also stop the merry-go-round in high party and government posts," another worker was quoted as saying. "It is inadmissible to shove an inept comrade from one post to another."

Art Competition Begins For Camp Fire Members

Local Camp Fire members will display their arts and crafts for competition during the Spring Art Show which begins today.

The show is in conjunction with the Camp Fire National Art Competition. However the national contest will only include one form of art which is printmaking. Whereas the local competition may include crafts, stitchery, fibers and art.

An open house and tea for the public will be held Sunday at the lodge from 1-3 p.m. for the public to view the exhibits.

Local winners in the printmaking category may enter the national competition to be held in June.

The purpose of the annual competition is to help young people experience a range of art forms, develop skills and find an outlet for personal expression. It also provides a focus for tours of studios, galleries, collections and museums.

Participants are given a chance to meet professional, recognized artists and to consider art-related fields. Displaying of the exhibits helps the young people develop a sense of competence and self-worth by seeing their work exhibited, evaluated, acknowledged and published.

The public is encouraged to attend the show and to be come involved with the art program.

According to a spokesman for the Camp Fire Council, the competition provides an opportunity for children and adults together to explore a range of basic materials, develop an appreciation of artists' creativity and skills and to learn techniques of teaching and sharing.

This year's art show will be divided into five divisions including Blue Birds and Blue Jays, Adventure, Discovery Club, Horizon Club and Adult. The Adult division will not be judged but will be displayed at the open house.

Ann Landers Excellent Advice

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The day I decided to sell my home I read something in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner that put several thousand dollars in my pocket. Please print it so others can profit from the excellent advice.--Hooked On You In Westwood

DEAR HOOKED: Thanks for the clipping. We should also credit the National Assn. of Realtors.

- (1) The front door greets the prospect. Make sure it is fresh, clean and scrubbed-looking. Keep lawn trimmed and the yard free of refuse.
- (2) Faded walls and worn woodwork reduce appeal. Why try to tell a prospect how your home COULD look when you can show him by redecorating? An investment in new kitchen wallpaper is worth the money.
- (3) Open the draperies and curtains and let the prospect see how cheerful your home can be (Dark rooms do not appeal.)
- (4) Fix that faucet! Dripping water discolors sinks and indicates faulty plumbing.

- (5) Repairs can make a big difference. Loose knobs, sticking doors and windows, warped cabinet drawers and other minor flaws detract from the home's value. Have them fixed.
- (6) Display the full value of your property by removing all unnecessary articles. Avoid the cluttered look. It suggests the place is small.
- (7) Keep stairways clear.
- (8) Make closets look bigger. Neat, orderly closets show that the space is ample.
- (9) Bathrooms help sell homes. Check and repair caulking in tubs and showers. Make this room sparkle.

(10) Arrange bedrooms neatly. Remove excess furniture. Use attractive bedspreads and freshly laundered curtains.

- (11) Keep pets out of the way--preferably out of the house.
- (12) Do not force conversation. This is not a social call.
- (13) Let your realtor discuss price, terms, possession and other factors, even if you know the answers.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word to that mother who was concerned because her eight-week-old baby had an unusually big nose? When I saw my son for the first time I cried. His nose was spread all over his face. I felt ashamed of myself because the woman in the next room lost her baby at birth.

Today, at 17, he is the handsomest boy in school. So please tell that mother not to worry. It could happen to her son, too.--Michigan Mother

DEAR MOTHER: Thanks for those words of encouragement. Here's more:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman whose infant son has a very large nose reminded me of when my daughter was born. Her ears were so huge her little brother asked if she was going to fly away. I always put on her bonnet when guests were expected. Well, I needn't have worried. Today she is a top model and a real beauty.--Mexico City Mama

DEAR MAMA: Mazeltov and muchas gracias!

Around the Town

Mr. and Mrs. Gordan Stephens of Amarillo and Merle Mills of Plainview, visited their sister, Marie Stringer over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Owen enjoyed the company of their daughter, Becky Bourland and grandchildren Kyle and Nicole of Lubbock over the weekend. Accompanying her daughter was Mrs. Owen's son-in-law, Aaron, who teaches at Coronado High School in Lubbock. The couple own the Love Shop in South Plains Mall.

Wishes for a speedy recovery go to Ken McLain who underwent open heart surgery recently at St. Anthony's Hospital in Amarillo.

Even though it was an "Income Tax Blues Party," there was a lot of fun and good food enjoyed over the weekend at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Mercer, 245 Douglas.

Tables were laid with brown paper sacks and centered with tumble weeds and daffodils from their yard. Plate favors were pill bottles filled with candy looking pills.

The six couples played bridge following the meal. Prizes were won by Lavon Nieman and Herschel Black.

A cookbook of favorite recipes of First Baptist members is now being compiled. If you have a favorite recipe (s), the church, would like for you to bring it in, or mail it to the church office by May 1. Please type or print it, and include your name! Then on May 12, the church will have a Tasting Bee in the Fellowship Hall at 7 p.m. to sample each other's recipes. Let's make this cookbook one that will become a "favorite" in everyone's kitchen.

AFTERMATH OF A MIRACLE

Soon a crowd came out to see for themselves what had happened and saw the man who had been demon-possessed sitting quietly at Jesus's feet, clothed and sane! And the whole crowd was badly frightened.

Then those who had seen it happen told how the demon-possessed man had been healed.

And everyone begged Jesus to go away and leave them alone (for a deep wave of fear had swept over them). So He returned to the boat and left, crossing back to the other side of the lake.

The man who had been demon-possessed begged to go too, but Jesus said no.

"Go back to your family," He told him, "and tell them what a wonderful thing God has done for you." So he went all through the city telling everyone about Jesus' mighty miracle.

On the other side of the lake the crowds received Him with open arms, for they had been waiting for Him.

Grocery Bills Drop in March

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Grocery bills dropped during March for the second month in a row, according to an Associated Press market-basket survey which showed lower price tags on a wide range of items.

The AP found that the cost of a random list of grocery products, priced at one supermarket in each of 13 cities, dropped by an overall average of 1.3 percent last month, following a 1.5 percent decrease in February.

The only sour note was sounded in the frozen-food department. Orange juice prices, which have been rising since a January freeze in Florida, jumped again in March, increasing in 11 of the cities checked by the AP.

The AP findings are based on a survey of 14 food and non-food items. Prices of all items were checked on March 1, 1973 and have been rechecked on or about the start of every month.

Comparing prices today with those at the start of the year, the AP found that the average marketbasket bill dropped 3.6 percent. In contrast, the average bill rose 1.8 percent in the first quarter of 1980 and 4.1 percent in the first quarter of 1979.

Sugar decreased in more cities — 11 — than any other item during March, the AP survey showed. Sugar prices rose through most of last year because worldwide production was not expected to be large enough to meet the demand. The higher costs, however, dampened that demand and the price trend has been reversed.

March also brought some bargains at the meat counter. All-beef frankfurters and pork chops each declined at the checklist store in five cities and chopped chuck was down in four cities.

Beef prices in particular had been expected to rise sharply this year, due in part to last summer's drought that boosted the price of feed grains. But a larger-than-expected supply of meat coming to market has kept prices down — temporarily at least. A 19-city survey conducted by the National Cattlemen's Association showed the average price of a pound of ground beef in March was $1.49 — four cents less a pound than in January and 10 cents less a pound than in March 1980.

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents. The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list when the package size used in the survey was discontinued.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Death Row Inmate Wants To Stay in Jail

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Death Row inmate who said he preferred death to returning to prison was ordered returned to prison after a state district judge ruled his fate must be determined through a normal appeal process.

Jimmy Loyd Mead, 38, had attempted to waive the state's automatic appeal process of his death sentence, but was turned down Thursday by State District Judge Howard Fender.

Mead is the first inmate to attempt to waive the Texas appeals process, guaranteed by state law to persons sentenced to die by lethal injection.

Fender, who disqualified himself but was reinstated by another judge, told Mead he had no alternative but to return to the maximum-security prison at the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville rather than stay in Tarrant County jail.

Lawyers for Mead accused Fender of judicial misconduct for attending a July 4, 1979, picnic with sequestered jurors while hearing Mead's capital murder trial.

State District Judge Tom

Cave was called in, but he ruled that Fender should be reinstated.

Mead was sentenced to death following his conviction in the capital murder of Crowley police officer James Michael Carpenter, 25.

Carpenter had stopped a stolen pickup containing Mead and another man, both of whom were wanted for kidnapping a man in Fort Worth. Testimony in the trial indicated Mead managed to pull Carpenter's pistol from his holster.

Mead admitted in court to firing the fatal shot, but claimed it was an accident.

Mead, who has spent more than 20 years in Texas prisons, had written Fender asking that the appeal be waived, an act unprecedented under Texas' capital murder statute.

Had the appeal been waived Mead could have become the first Texas inmate executed in 17 years.

Defense lawyers, who said they tried for weeks to persuade Mead to recant his vow, indicated they would oppose the inmate's request by arguing their client has no legal right to waive his ap-

Tax Rebels Refuse to Pay IRS Dues

EDITOR'S NOTE: Hundreds of auto workers in Flint, Mich., recently filed false income tax exemption claims with the Internal Revenue Service in a flirtation with America's tax rebels. In the first of a three-part series, AP Urban Affairs Writer Lee Mitgang examines the rebellion as the April 15 tax deadline nears.

By LEE MITGANG
AP Urban Affairs Writer

His gray hair was neat, his smile warm, his three-piece suit authoritative. When he delivered his homily with sincerity and flashes of humor, his angry gospel rang clear to the small group of disciples gathered in a Times Square church for a Sunday meeting.

"You don't owe income tax!" said the guest speaker, Ed Ellison, who represents a Maryland-based tax protest group called the Free State Constitutionalists.

"Right on!" shouted back a man in the audience, wearing a Revolutionary War style tri-corner hat.

It's a scene being repeated across the country as the April 15 tax deadline nears — at a Holiday Inn in Baltimore on Monday nights, a temple in Queens, N.Y., a smorgasbord restaurant in Garden Grove, Calif., before crowds of 150 or more five nights a week.

These are America's tax rebels — most of them white, politically conservative, middle-class — who are so enraged by inflation and a poor economy, so convinced that the federal government is stripping away precious freedoms, that they risk fines and even prison by refusing to pay part or all of their federal income tax.

In the last four years, 2,781 Americans have gone to jail for tax fraud — and the IRS describes 539 of them as tax protesters. The IRS says it has no idea how much tax the government loses because of protesters.

And the problem is growing, says the IRS. Spokesman Tony Bombardiere says in 1980 the government received 13,390 protest returns, up from 8,784 the year before and 5,694 in 1978.

"They are a stubborn bunch," says Vincent Walker of the Manhattan district office of the IRS. They don't consider themselves lawbreakers, and many insist the IRS has no right to exist, much less to tax.

"The American people," says James Wickstrom of Tigerton, Wis., a member of a group called Sheriff's Posse Comitatus which claims chapters in 40 states, "finally are finding out that the graduated income tax is destroying them. They've had enough of this communist IRS."

In Maryland, there's the Free State Constitutionalists and the Committee of Correspondence. There's the Thomas Jefferson Equal Tax Society in Virginia, the Golden Mean Society in Montana, the Tax Patriots in Sumter, S.C., the Committee for the Restoration of the Constitution in New York and Americans for Constitutional Taxation in Frederica, Del., among others.

On March 28, some 300 protesters led by the Americans for Constitutional Rights recalled a 1773 anti-tax demonstration — the Boston Tea Party — and dumped tax forms in the Boston harbor.

Walker, of the Manhattan IRS office, says "all indications are that the numbers are continuing up."

In February, a Michigan anti-tax group, We The People ACT, encouraged 3,500 auto workers in Flint to declare dozens of exemptions to halt tax withholding by their employers in the largest tax protest in memory. Most backed down under IRS pressure, and the agency recently announced a crackdown on that form of protest.

Anti-tax movement activists estimate that there are 30 or 40 active tax protest groups scattered around the country, with total active membership anywhere from 50,000 to 250,000.

Most of the groups have a few hundred members, but at least two — Your Heritage Protection Association in Los Angeles, and the Alaska Patriots in Action — claim close to 20,000 members each.

Nevertheless, Carr Ferguson, until Jan. 20 the assistant U.S. attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's tax division, calls the tax protest movement "a major, probably the major, challenge to the (Internal Revenue) Service today."

"I think it's manageable — because the number (of protesters) is not yet big — by using the traditional civil and criminal sanctions. But you have to realize that the tax system is one of self-assessment. If the tax movement erodes taxpayer morale, this could have a ripple effect."

Donald Alexander, IRS commissioner from 1973 to 1977, says, "The IRS is being stretched to the limit. It would be difficult for it to cope without making public examples of some of the protesters."

Still, Alexander and others say, Americans remain highly compliant with tax rules. IRS figures show that the government receives about 93 million returns — one for every 2.5 people in the United States.

U.S. Navy Uses Walter Mitty Approach in Recruiting Pilots

DALLAS (AP) — The young man in Tampa said he couldn't envision being a waiter for the rest of his life. The Florida bank clerk thought he might be more comfortable moving at 600 mph than anchored behind the adding machine that had been the tool of his trade for four years.

The Navy, short on combat pilots but long on the romance of flying, agreed with both of them.

After watching a dozen screaming jets cross paths above them, then talking to the men who fly the sleek machines, the waiter and the bank clerk couldn't resist. Within a few weeks, both were well on their way to being admitted to flight school.

Both are members of a new target group in Navy recruiting: college graduates who are less than happy with their lots in life. From bank clerks to accountants, from school teachers to moonlighting cab drivers, the Navy brass think there's a high-flying Walter Mitty in nearly everyone.

Earlier this year in Atlanta and Tampa, the Navy staged spectacular demonstrations of its air power for more than 600 prospective flight school candidates.

"Right now I'm a waiter," Chip Toland told recruiters in Tampa. "But that's not quite the job I'm looking for."

Robert Medsger, the bank clerk, attended the Florida demonstration to "look into another (job) opportunity."

Navy recruiters say the two will be in for a rugged ordeal if they're accepted into flight school. The Navy prides itself on the rigid structure and physical demands of its pilot training programs.

Friday it will be Dallas' turn. Navy officials say the southwestern aviation hub and financial center was chosen for the third and final "Naval Aviation Career Day" in part because of a large number of furloughed commercial airline pilots who live in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex.

But organizers of the two-day event Friday and Saturday at the Naval Air Station in Grand Prairie also expect several hundred prospective pilots who are more accustomed to swivel office chairs than cockpits.

The Navy has few basic requirements for the program. Applicants must be under 29 and in good physical condition, hold a four-year degree from an accredited college or university, and have good vision.

Pilot candidates are required to have 20/20 or better vision without the use of corrective lenses. Candidates who need glasses or contact lenses to achieve 20/20 vision are still eligible for admission as prospective naval flight officers.

"It's not really open to the general public," said Navy recruiter Lt. George W. Farrar. "We're looking for people who want to fly as Navy aviators."

The Navy and Air Force traditionally have not been hardpressed for candidates for aviator programs. The promise of one day becoming a commercial airline pilot has lured recruits to the Navy's Pensacola, Fla. flight school for years, said Lt. Cmdr. Sam Vickers.

But with the commercial airline industry in a tailspin and the Navy 1,500 pilots short of its authorized strength, other incentives are beginning to work in the Navy's favor.

Although the starting pay for a Navy ensign is only about $15,000 a year, a Navy pilot with four years' experience can expect to make $26,000 or more, Vickers said.

"That's a lot better increase than you could expect if you entered a training program at a major corporation. And $15,000-a-year is about where you'd start."

Vickers obtained a degree in marketing from North Texas State University 10 years ago and joined the Navy because he couldn't find a job in accounting that interested him.

"There are still a lot of people out there who want to learn how to fly," he said. "Statistically, we've always found the Dallas-Fort Worth area a good place to find them."

The Navy has always sought candidates for its flight school, but never before with the showmanship that has accompanied its aviation career day program.

More than a dozen different Navy aircraft from as far away as Norfolk, Va., will fly in to the Dallas station on Friday. Vice Admiral G.E.R. Kinnear II, the commander of the Navy's Atlantic Air Forces whose idea it was to use live flight demonstrations as a recruiting aid, also will be present.

Airplanes and helicopters from Norfolk, Pensacola, Fla. and the Naval Air Station at Corpus Christi will make a low pass over the prospective new recruits, swoop down for a touch and go landing, then come in for a final touchdown.

Navy recruiters hope all the hoopla will persuade a few desk-bound white collar workers to trade their brief cases in for an ensign's emblem.

"I can just picture it," said Farrar optimistically, "hundreds of them daydreaming in their offices..."

Lawmaker Wants Papers To Open Editorial Pages

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Newspapers often print critical columns, editorials, and political endorsements around election time, and one legislator says he's tired of it.

"Federal Communications Commission regulations say a person who's been subjected to radio or TV editorials has the right to respond, but this doesn't apply to newspapers," Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, told the House State Affairs Committee late Monday. His bill would change that.

The measure would force newspaper editors to print rebuttals of their columns or editorials, or go to prison.

It would also allow a political candidate to respond if a newspaper praised his opponent in an endorsement, Garcia said.

A University of Texas law professor says the bill is "in-escapably unconstitutional."

David Anderson, a specialist in mass communications law, said the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously struck down a similar law passed in Florida.

"It was ringing," he said of the decision. "It's about the only 9-0 1st Amendment decision the court has made recently."

Anderson said the argument that newspapers should be subject to regulations similar to the FCC rules was "squarely made ... and squarely rejected."

Garcia said he had not heard of the case, Miami Herald Publishing Co. vs. Tornillo, but that he would read it.

He told the committee that sending recalcitrant editors to prison was not too severe. The bill makes refusal to print a response submitted within four days a felony punishable by two to 10 years in prison and a fine to $5,000.

"When I think of how some people have had their political careers destroyed... I sometimes feel even the death penalty isn't too strong," he said.

"I don't care what kind of penalty they have in there. They can make it a capital offense if they want to, because the unconstitutionality is inescapable," Anderson responded.

Garcia's bill provides that a person is entitled to respond to an editorial or column that "discredits" his "ability, reputation or character."

The rebuttal must be of equal length and printed in the same place as the offending article.

Garcia presented no witnesses in favor of his bill, saying only that he would "trust the memory of each and every person (on the committee) who's been the subject of an editorial."

No one testified against the bill, but a member of the committee, Rep. Anita Hill, R-Garland, said she was trained in journalism and the bill troubled her.

"A newspaper's editorials are the voice of the publisher," she said. "Often the newspaper is the conscience of a community. I worry this might restrict that conscience."

The measure was sent to a subcommittee.

Death Row Inmate Wants To Stay in Jail

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A Death Row inmate who said he preferred death to returning to prison was ordered returned to prison after a state district judge ruled his fate must be determined through a normal appeal process.

Jimmy Loyd Mead, 38, had attempted to waive the state's automatic appeal process of his death sentence, but was turned down Thursday by State District Judge Howard Fender.

Mead is the first inmate to attempt to waive the Texas appeals process, guaranteed by state law to persons sentenced to die by lethal injection.

Fender, who disqualified himself but was reinstated by another judge, told Mead he had no alternative but to return to the maximum-security prison at the Texas Department of Corrections in Huntsville rather than stay in Tarrant County jail.

Lawyers for Mead accused Fender of judicial misconduct for attending a July 4, 1979, picnic with sequestered jurors while hearing Mead's capital murder trial.

State District Judge Tom

Cave was called in, but he ruled that Fender should be reinstated.

Mead was sentenced to death following his conviction in the capital murder of Crowley police officer James Michael Carpenter, 25.

Carpenter had stopped a stolen pickup containing Mead and another man, both of whom were wanted for kidnapping a man in Fort Worth. Testimony in the trial indicated Mead managed to pull Carpenter's pistol from his holster.

Mead admitted in court to firing the fatal shot, but claimed it was an accident.

Mead, who has spent more than 20 years in Texas prisons, had written Fender asking that the appeal be waived, an act unprecedented under Texas' capital murder statute.

Had the appeal been waived Mead could have become the first Texas inmate executed in 17 years.

Defense lawyers, who said they tried for weeks to persuade Mead to recant his vow, indicated they would oppose the inmate's request by arguing their client has no legal right to waive his appeal under conflict-of-interest provisions of the death penalty statute.

Although attorneys on all sides agreed to give Mead the right to waive his appeal, they said it was unclear whether the waiver would be overridden by other provisions of the statute that call for an automatic appellate court review of the conviction and the sentence.

"I feel like there is a reasonable expectation that it (the sentence) would be reversed," said defense attorney Jeff Kearney, adding several errors were made during the trial.

While legal maneuvering was under way in the courtroom Thursday, Mead's sister, Jo Ann Wooten, and the mother of the slain policeman engaged in a shouting match outside after the mother, Ethelene Carpenter of Crowley, called Mead a "dog."

When she heard of Mead's request Wednesday, Mrs. Carpenter said: "How soon? I'll pull the switch."

"I never had hate in my heart before, but I have it now," she said.

Accupuncture A Seasick Remedy?

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — The common cold, the hangover, dandruff and seasickness all have this in common: a sure cure is just around the corner, so just hang on there.

Now that the tarpaulins at last are being removed from sailing sloops and ketches in boatyards along the Connecticut shore, and weekend sailors are aloft in the rigging, I am happy to learn that a Manhattan doctor and sometime sailor has turned to acupuncture for a seasick remedy.

According to a recent science story in the Times, Dr. Daniel Shu Jen Choy, an internist at the Lenox Hill Hospital who sails a 40-foot sloop named Dragon (which oddly enough was Vietnamese slang for mal de mer when I was in Saigon), has devised an elastic anti-seasick strap to be worn above the wrist.

In the center of the two-thirds-of-an-inch-wide strap is a rounded plastic button that is pressed against the skin to exert constant pressure on an acupuncture point known as the nei-kuan. The pressure point is located in the center of the forearm three finger widths above the wrist between the two flex tendons.

Choy, who sometimes loses his breakfast while sailing on Long Island Sound, says the strap has proved 70 percent effective in preventing seasickness.

I'm willing to give it a try. Having tried just about everything else from hot bouillon (recommended on British ships) to warm beer and stale soda crackers (usually all that's available in the larder of people I sail with), I'm willing to try anything, even acupuncture.

As a matter of fact, I once had a root canal done by a Chinese dentist in Saigon who used acupuncture instead of Novocaine. He inserted a couple of long needles behind my right ear, on the outside of my jaw, somewhere on the back of my neck and jiggled them back and forth while chatting amiably about the horses running the next day at the old Phu To race track. He was an intrepid horse player and a first rate acupuncturist, but a lousy dentist. Didn't hurt a bit, but he left half the root behind.

Acupuncture, for those of us who go down to the sea in ships but spend most of our time hanging over the rail, might be the lifeline we have been looking for all these years. It certainly beats mustard pickles, which were Ernest Hemingway's favorite seasickness remedy. Papa, like a good many other noted sailors, had trouble keeping his meals down when a breeze came up.

Lord Nelson suffered terribly from seasickness all his life and was in particularly queasy form at Trafalgar. Champion sailors like Ted Turner and Dennis O'Connor have had their moments with "epigastric awareness," as the lady is called euphemistically. Four out of 10 astronauts, including John Glenn, have suffered from motion sickness during space flights.

House Advances Compromise Bill

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — House members have tentatively approved a bill giving manufacturers new opportunities to win product liability suits while offering accident victims a better chance of collecting money for their injuries.

A final vote, which would send the bill to the Senate, was expected today.

Product liability insurance rates have been an issue in three sessions of the Legislature, and Rep. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said his bill was the best chance ever to lay it to rest.

McFarland called the bill a "very carefully orchestrated compromise of competing interests."

Speaker Bill Clayton supported the compromise, and the bill was clearly "greased" for passage.

Manufacturers contend product liability rates are high because courts have made it too easy for injured consumers to win lawsuits over defective products.

Key provisions of the bill would:

— Allow accident victims, including people hurt in car wrecks, to collect money damages even though they were as much as 75 percent to blame for their own injuries. Current law bars recovery if they are 51 percent to blame.

— Establish a "state of the art" defense in product liability cases. A product would not be considered defective or unreasonably dangerous if curing a defect was not possible with the knowledge available at the time it was made.

— Deny an injured person money damages if a product had exceeded both its warranty and its "useful safe life" at the time of an accident.

Insurance companies did not join the compromise, and defense lawyers who represent insurance companies and their policyholders in liability suits opposed it.

Trial lawyers, who get a sizeable percentage of what their clients win in accident suits, endorsed the compromise.

Rep. Kae Patrick, R-San Antonio, asked McFarland if it was fair to allow somebody to collect at least partial damages even though 75 percent to blame for an accident.

McFarland said it was fair because every victim or defendant would pay his fair share, based on fault. A victim who was 75 percent at fault would be paid for only 25 percent of his damages.

"If you are trimming your hedge with your rotary mower and drop it on your foot, you are going to have problems with comparative fault," he said.

The lone attempt to change the bill — which McFarland said had to be left unchanged or wreck the compromise — was made by Rep. Lynn Nabers, D-Brownwood.

Nabers' amendment would have exempted hydraulic or mechanical metal-working presses over 25 years old from the bill's coverage. He said such machinery often is bought second-hand and altered by the new owners.

The amendment was tabled, 112-33.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — News of the attempted assassination of President Ronald Reagan rocked the State Capitol last week as senators and state representatives prepared to hear jointly an address by fellow Texan and Vice President George Bush.

Bush was aboard Air Force Two and almost to Austin when he received news of the armed assault. His scheduled appearance at the Capitol probably sharpened the impact of the misguided event on Texas lawmakers. Security officers were noticed increasing protection measures for Bush, even as filtering news reports on office radios began to create a ghoully aura on the afternoon.

While aides stood nervously by, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Bill Clayton went outside together to the north steps of the Capitol to await Bush's arrival. Governor Bill Clements met Bush at the airport, and spoke briefly with him while the Vice President's plane was refueled for an immediate flight back to Washington, D.C.

A short time later the Legislature met in joint session, and offered prayers for the recovery of the President.

That same day and all through the week, as legislators vented their emotions, many emphasized the need for tougher anti-crime measures.

The most surprising emotional statement came perhaps from moderate Republican Rep. Bill Blythe of Houston, who said he thought an assassin should be hanged "within 30 days." Blythe is an independent, reform-minded legislator, a well-respected voice of reason and compromise.

The gun control issue was also reborn, and a big surprise in this area was a comment from Clayton that he would have no objections to a ban on "Saturday Night Specials," the cheap handguns readily available at pawn shops. President Reagan apparently was shot with such a pistol bought at a pawn shop in Dallas.

For Clayton, such a stand is an act of courage. The Speaker represents a Panhandle district, where farmers and ranchers need guns for predator control and protection... and are adamantly opposed to any form of gun control.

Clayton, a farmer himself, understands the need for rifles, and his constituents and other Texans may listen to his comment on cheap handguns.

Carter Visits Texas Amid the hubbub of last week's disruptions, former President Jimmy Carter quietly visited Texas, touring the LBJ Library in Austin and the LBJ Ranch near Johnson City.

Carter reportedly consulted with Lady Bird Johnson about a presidential library in Georgia.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale also recently slipped quietly into Texas to meet with Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple and some two dozen conservative Democrats. Mondale apparently wanted to meet with Texas business leaders during a relaxing weekend to discuss a future presidential bid.

Waste Bill Signed Governor Bill Clements last week signed into law a bill regulating storage and disposal of low-level nuclear waste. Clements has indicated the measure will help Texas in a crisis in radioactive waste disposal.

The Senate voted to increase pensions for most retired teachers, from 2 to 21 percent to meet cost of living hikes. The bill went to the House where little opposition is foreseen.

Senators also voted to improve public disclosure laws for contributions from political action committees (PACS). The measure would require PACS to disclose the occupation or employer of each contributor on the list. Violators could be jailed for a year and fined. The bill was sent to the House.

New Prison Stalled

The $35 million prison construction program, ordered by a federal judge, stalled in the Legislature because of a work-furlough plan for prisoners.

The House and Senate have passed different versions and a conference committee cannot reach a compromise. Senators want an amendment to spend $250,000 for a work-furlough program to let 2,500 inmates live and work at home. Representatives want to drop the amendment, and Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, said he didn't see much chance of a solution being worked out.

His statement immediately brought a charge of irresponsibility from Wichita Falls Sen. Ray Farabee. The dispute threatens to scrub the construction bill which both sides view as necessary to relieve prison overcrowding.

Redfish Bill

Some of the hottest battles in the Legislature revolve around issues that affect very few Texans, and this session has seen ardent debate over whether to outlaw commercial fishing of redfish and speckled trout.

Sports fishermen claim the commercial fishermen are catching the fish right out of existence, and the commercial netters say they need the market to make even a small profit.

Last week the sports fishermen won a battle when a House committee approved the bill taking redfish and speckled trout off the commercial market.

The battle on this issue will now shift to a Senate Committee this week, where lobbyists for the commercial fishermen are expected to concentrate their efforts.

The 1979 Legislature passed a law saying no state agency could require embalming unless necessary to protect the public health. Bernstein issued a statement saying it was unnecessary, and Attorney General Mark White said a 1953 embalming rule

Battle Over-Bitterness Lingers

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — A $60 million hotel and convention complex called Charleston Center now appears certain to be built on a vacant block in a declining downtown commercial district of this landmark colonial city.

What also appears certain is that the bitterness caused by four years of debate over the project will linger.

"We're terribly upset over the rape of Charleston," said a furious Elizabeth Hamilton, whose mother — the late Elizabeth O'Neill Verner — painted watercolors celebrating the charming old Charleston that Mrs. Hamilton believes is about to be trampled.

The site of the planned complex is several blocks north of the restored neighborhood most tourists associate with historic Charleston. Nevertheless, the city's Preservation Society and other groups have fought the project since it first was conceived in 1977.

Their arguments have grown familiar in the years of rancorous public hearings, anguished letters, political maneuvering and court pleadings that have marked the controversy.

The center will destroy dozens of historic structures, they say, and dwarf those left behind. It will cause traffic jams, spawn neon pollution and crime and ruin the quality of life in adjacent residential areas.

Henry Cauthen, executive director of the Preservation Society, argues that residents will leave or be forced out, and the social fabric that has preserved downtown Charleston as a living remnant of the nation's colonial past will disintegrate.

"They'll kill the goose that lays the golden eggs," Cauthen says.

But Mayor Joseph Riley Jr. and others who support the project insist the goose already is dying of decay and neglect.

They point to the crumbling shells of unused buildings near the site as proof that blight is the real enemy.

"The central business district must become fiscally strong again, or we're going to lose it altogether," Riley says.

Riley professes bewilderment at the vehemence of the opposition, but Parker Hudson thinks he understands it. Hudson is the commercial real estate agent who helped Washington developer Theodore Gould arrange the purchase of the main site and some adjacent parcels.

He believes opposition to the center is rooted less in the center itself than in deep hostility toward tourism in general in neighborhoods invaded by roving visitors and horse-drawn tour buggies.

Riley has tried, without success, to win opponents to his side by changing the center's design. He points to some old structures that are being included in the project and to several nearby private restorations being planned because the center is coming.

Other backers note that placing the 431-room hotel within walking distance of the historic areas will be far easier on traffic patterns than would building it farther away and forcing visitors to drive down the peninsula.

These arguments haven't persuaded opponents. But they have been good enough to stave off opponents' legal challenges to $7 million in federal grants sought by the city.

The preservationists' last appeal was turned aside in December, and the Preservation Society and two other neighborhood groups that took part in the court struggle declared themselves defeated.

Riley says construction will begin June 1, even though details of design and financing still are incomplete.

"We have a lot of work to do between now and then," the mayor says. "But now we're in the position of working hard on something we know is going to happen."

Cauthen and other individual preservationists, however, aren't quite ready to give up.

"There's some more chapters to be written on this project," he says.

Cauthen clings to two hopes: that developer Gould will fail to meet his June 1 deadline, which might jeopardize the federal grants, or that the grants might become victims of the Reagan administration's budget cutting.

But Riley says the grants are safeguarded by contracts between the city and federal governments, and Cauthen's recent lobbying in Washington was a waste of time.

"It's going to happen," Riley says of the project. "It's right and feasible, and it's going to happen."

It will happen to the great regret of people such as Mrs. Hamilton, who lives with her husband above the quaint old gallery where her mother's work is on display.

"There's a sense of order in life here," she says. "We don't care if we're poor or not. We have a society. We don't mind sharing it. But by George, we don't want to be pushed out of it and have this made just like any other place."

could not be enforced.

The Texas Funeral Directors Association then had a bill drawn requiring embalming or refrigeration, and Sen. Grant Jones, D-Abilene, introduced it.

Johnnie B. Rogers, lobbyist for the funeral directors, said Doggett's persistent opposition to required embalming may have been what caused Bernstein to issue his statement.

"I personally think you have the State Board of Health so intimidated on this issue that they wouldn't touch it with a 20-foot pole," Rogers told Doggett.

"That's the greatest compliment you ever gave me," Doggett replied.

Rogers and Fort Worth mortician Jim Lucas said 99 percent of the families arranging funerals prefer embalming and the traditional open-coffin funeral.

Carol Barger, southwest regional director of Consumers Union, said undertakers want embalming because the open-coffin funeral that it permits is more profitable.

"This committee must make it clear to the funeral industry once and for all that the legislative process will not be used to take advantage of bereaved consumers," she said.

Rogers said that was not the aim at all and that "we will fight all day for their (consumers') right to bury their dead any way they want to."

Murcer Grand Slams NY to Win

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a baseball fairy tale acted out in front of 55,123 fans — the largest opening day crowd in the 58-year history of Yankee Stadium — and Bobby Murcer turned out to be Cinderella.

Hanging onto his roster spot by the narrowest of threads, Murcer responded to a standing ovation from the record stadium crowd Thursday by walloping a pinch-hit, grand slam homer in the New York Yankees 10-3 rout of the Texas Rangers.

The fans are aware of Murcer's shaky status with the club. He will be 35 next month and there are a glut of outfielders already on the roster. So, they saluted the veteran with a roar for old times sake when he came up to bat in the seventh.

"The anticipation started when I got to the batting circle," Murcer said. "They cared that I was here. I didn't expect that. It was pretty hair-raising. It sent some chills through my body."

The count went to 3-2 — just like in the fairy tales — and Murcer connected for the sixth grand slam of his career and fourth as a Yankee. The roar of the fans was a factor, he said.

"Fan reaction plays a big part for a player, I think. It built me up a little extra. When you have their support you give it that little extra. It really got me going. It showed me the people are behind me all the way. It was very gratifying at this time."

In other American League openers, Oakland downed Minnesota 5-1, Detroit walloped Toronto 6-2 and California downed Seattle 6-2.

Murcer has been on the trading block all spring, but the Yankees have had no takers. With Reggie Jackson on the disabled list, there still was roster room for him, but whether there will be space when Jackson returns a week from today is questionable. Manager Gene Michael wouldn't say whether the slam saved Murcer's job, but it certainly didn't hurt his chances.

Until Murcer connected, the Yankees were hanging onto a 5-3 lead, built on a three-run homer by Bucky Dent and a two-run double by Rick Cerone. Don Zimmer, new manager of the Rangers, remembered another three-run shot by Dent — the one that beat Zimmer and the Boston Red Sox in the 1978 pennant playoff.

"Tell Bucky Dent I've got to eat too," said Zimmer. "He keeps beating me with three-run homers. I'll go to Japan, and he'll probably hit a three-run homer off me there, too."

A's 5, Twins 1
Mike Norris, ace of the Oakland staff, tossed a six-hitter to get the A's season off to a winning start before another record opening-day crowd, 42,658 at Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, Minn.

Norris, who posted a 22-9 record last year, no-hit the Twins until Mickey Hatcher beat out an infield single in the fifth inning. Norris walked four and struck out three.

Tony Armas drove in the first run off Twins lefty Jerry Koosman in the fourth, and Armas scored later on a double by Jeff Newman. Mike Heath and Armas also homered for Oakland.

Richie Hebner's three-run homer off reliever Mike Willis snapped a 2-2 tie in the seventh inning and powered Detroit over Toronto. Lou Whitaker led off the rally with a double off Joey McLaughlin, and Willis walked Steve Kemp to set the table for Hebner.

Jack Morris tossed a five-hitter, walking five and striking out three.

Toronto led 1-0 and 2-1, but Detroit tied it up for the final time in the eighth on a triple by Al Cowens and Mick Kelleher's sacrifice fly. Opening day drew 51,452 spectators at Tiger Stadium.

Angels 6, Mariners 2
Brian Downing hit a grand slam homer in the first inning, and Dan Ford homered in the eighth to pace California to an easy victory over Seattle.

Geoff Zahn pitched seven innings for the Angels, giving up four hits, including Jeff Burroughs' two-run homer.

California loaded the bases with two out in the first on a single by Fred Lynn and walks to Don Baylor and Ford from Glenn Abbott. Downing chose a 3-2 Abbott delivery for his first career grand slam.

The game drew 33,317 to Seattle's Kingdome, well below the capacity of 59,438.

Two openers are scheduled for today — Kansas City at Baltimore and Chicago White Sox at Boston.

In their 24 years in Los Angeles, the Dodgers never had started a rookie pitcher on opening day — until, that is, a chubby 20-year-old named Fernando Valenzuela strode to the mound.

Valenzuela, a left-hander from Sonora, Mexico, still hasn't learned to speak English, but he had no trouble understanding Houston's batters. He tossed a five-hit shutout and led Dodgers to a 2-0 victory Thursday over the Astros, last season's nemesis.

Valenzuela, the youngest player in the major leagues, was pressed into service when Jerry Reuss pulled a muscle in his calf on Wednesday. He now has pitched 262-3 major league innings without yielding an earned run since being called up by the Dodgers last Sept. 10.

"He pitched like a man with 10 years' experience," said former Dodgers pitcher Don Sutton, now with the Astros.

Valenzuela said through an interpreter that he didn't expect to extend his string of scoreless innings much farther. "I'm not superman," he said. He did add later, though, that he felt no trepidation in filling the historic role.

"When I go to the mound, I don't know what it is to be afraid," Valenzuela said.

In Thursday's other NL openers, Montreal edged Pittsburgh 6-5, the New York Mets blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0 and San Diego whipped San Francisco 4-1.

Joe Niekro, who pitched Houston to a 7-1 victory over Los Angeles in a one-game playoff for the National League West title last season, was the victim this time. Niekro worked seven innings, yielding a run in the fourth on Ron Cey's sacrifice fly and another in the sixth on a double by Pedro Guerrero, who also had two singles.

Valenzuela struck out five Astros and walked two, using a wicked screwball that left Houston's right-handed hitters gawking.

"He would throw that screwball on a 3-2 pitch, and that is unusual," said Astros center fielder Cesar Cedeno. "But we will come to expect it."

A crowd of 50,511 pleasantly surprised spectators packed Dodger Stadium and cheered Valenzuela all the way. "It's nice to have a big cheer going for you," the pitcher said.

Ladies' Tennis Tournament Set

The annual Hereford Ladies Tennis Tournament has been scheduled for May 2-3, it was announced this week by tournament chairman Kylene Gentry.

The tournament is sponsored by the Women's Division of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce. Entries are now being accepted at the chamber office, and the deadline is April 29.

Shooting Range

Open Sunday

The Hereford Gun Club has announced that the shooting range east of the city airport will be open for practice shooting this Sunday.

The range will be available to shooters from 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Each person is permitted to enter up to two events, but must compete in her own age division. The events include singles and doubles in three divisions—6th grade and junior high, high school to 23 years of age, and 24 years and over (A and B classes). Entry fee is $5 per event.

Awards will be given to the champion, runner-up and consolation winner in each division. Double elimination will be played in complete brackets and round-robin play will be used in incomplete brackets. Each division must have at least four entrants.

The tourney will begin at 8 a.m. on Saturday, May 2. Finals will be held Sunday beginning at 2 p.m. on the high school courts. Entry forms are available at the chamber office, high school and the junior high schools.

Homecourt Not Lucky Spot In This Year's NBA Playoffs

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The homecourt has been anything but an advantage in the National Basketball Association playoffs, with visiting teams winning 11 of the 18 games played so far.

That's a striking contrast to the regular season, when 62 percent of the games were won by the home teams. And that's why the coaches of the playoff teams aren't worried about hitting the road, or over-confident about playing at home.

So the coaches are more concerned with tempo than location when the four best-of-seven conference semifinals resume tonight. In the East, Boston is at Chicago and Philadelphia at Milwaukee, while in the West, Kansas City is at Phoenix and San Antonio at Houston. Boston holds a 2-0 lead while the other three series are tied 1-1.

Chicago tried to slow the tempo in its first two games at Boston, but the Celtics' running game foiled that plan. So Bulls Coach Jerry Sloan is going to try a change in tactics tonight.

"We played those first two games like they were half-court games," said Sloan. "We didn't push it up the floor fast enough, and as a consequence, a lot of our ballplayers never got into the flow."

Sloan is hopeful that by picking up the pace, the Bulls will be able to put more pressure on the Celtics and disrupt their attack. But Boston's game is running, so any speedup by Chicago will be a calculated risk — but one the Bulls feel they have to take.

Milwaukee and Philadelphia both ran in their opener, won by the 76ers 125-122, but the Bucks came back to take the second game 109-99.

The Kansas City Kings are still riding high following an 88-83 shocker at Phoenix Wednesday night. That upset came even though the Kings were without their two outstanding guards, Phil Ford and Otis Birdsong, and had been beaten by 22 points in the series opener.

Birdsong, who severely sprained an ankle Tuesday night, is out for the remainder of this series. Ford, who has been sidelined with blurred vision since suffering an eye injury Feb. 22, is a day-to-day proposition. "We won't know about Phil until gametime," said Fitzsimmons, who insists he will not let Ford suit up until his vision is perfectly cleared.

Without Ford, the Kings will go with a backcourt of 6-foot-6 Ernie Grunfeld and 6-7 Scott Wedman, who is normally their small forward. Their game plan will be the same as Wednesday's — slow down the tempo, keep the Suns from running and pound the boards. Phoenix's fast break never got started and the Suns shot just 37 percent from the field.

Houston, which upset defending champion Los Angeles in the mini-series, will try to slow down the tempo against San Antonio.

The Rockets were successful with that strategy in the opener, winning 107-98, but the Spurs got their fastbreak going in the second game and won 125-113 to even the series.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Avoiding travel maladies

DEAR DR. LAMB - We are planning a trip to Mexico and Central America and wonder how we can avoid getting sick. Almost everyone seems to get diarrhea and sometimes other digestive problems when they travel south of the border. Is this from the food and water or something else? We don't want our vacation spoiled by being ill. What suggestions do you have?

DEAR READER - Yes, most of the problems are from organisms in food and water. In recent years it has been pretty well established that the most frequent offender is a strain of E. coli, the organism that lives in our colon and usually does not cause us any trouble. The strain associated with attacks of diarrhea is slightly different even though it looks the same under the microscope. This difference was not appreciated for years and that is why the real cause went unrecognized.

Talk to your doctor before you go. There is an antibiotic (doxycycline) which can be prescribed to prevent or treat E. coli diarrhea but it may increase your chances of getting a salmonella infection. Let your doctor advise you about this for your individual case.

In addition to E. coli infections and salmonella infections there are a host of other organisms that can cause intestinal infections, including ameba which can survive water that is treated with chlorine. There is no rule that will totally protect you but drinking bottled water or beverages and avoiding salads and raw foods may help.

A large portion of poultry and other meats you buy are contaminated with bacteria. The only way you can really protect yourself is with proper cooking and care of foods in the kitchen.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a friend who has high blood pressure. The doctor told her he couldn't give her medication for it because she had been on birth control pills. She isn't now. Could she have a stroke?

DEAR READER - Of course. Anyone can have a stroke and the chances are increased with high blood pressure. So I surely don't want to say she couldn't have a stroke.

Now, her risk (chance) of having a stroke depends upon how high her pressure really is, and if it is persistently high or just when she is excited.

Also, you or your friend may have misunderstood her doctor. Birth control pills sometimes cause high blood pressure and when it is high one of the first steps is to stop the pill. That often cures the problem. If not, then the high blood pressure is treated just as it is for a person who never took the pill.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Is there any way I can get H3 (procaine) treatments for my husband? He is in a nursing home. Why should this medication be withheld from him? He is senile and has organic brain damage. Sometimes he is able to talk to me and other times he has impaired speech. H3 has been tried in other countries with great success.

DEAR READER - That depends upon what you mean by great success. You are referring to Gerovital, which was a mystery drug supposed to do all sorts of wonderful things. Well, it is the same thing your dentist injects around your teeth to prevent pain. Ana Aslan of Bucharest popularized it at the end of World War II. It has been claimed to cure everything from baldness to impotence, with wrinkles thrown in - the usual approach we had when traveling medical shows marketed snake oil.

Aslan's subjects did show improvement, but because they exercised, ate right and someone took an interest in them. Gerovital is being studied in this country and it is used as an antidepressant. It has not been proved to have any anti-aging properties.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Lace slips look dingy

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I do hope someone has a solution for my problem. The more I wash two of my slips that have lace on them, the grayer and dingier the lace seems to get. I am really ashamed to wear them, as they look dirty. Bleach does not help, and I think it weakens the lace. Any suggestions? - GENE

DEAR GENE - If the lace on your slips is cotton, try mixing a little cream of tartar in water and soak the slips in that. Then launder as usual. If slips and lace are white, you might resort to using color remover. Follow directions on the package. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - My Pet Peeve is to have a pair of panties that fit perfectly but have no tag or mark of identification, so you can't remember what brand you bought. - VIRGINIA

DEAR POLLY - When clothes are no longer usable and are to be thrown away or used for rags, do save the buttons and zippers. They may come in handy sooner than you think. Always cut the metal zippers off old jeans, as they are often hard to buy, since most are plastic. - MRS. R.S.

DEAR POLLY - I use baby mineral oil to remove tar from rugs and other flooring. Spill a little oil on the spot and wipe away the excess with a dry paper towel. Repeat once or twice if necessary. Use warm, soapy water and a soft brush to remove remaining tar and oil. Air dry or blot with a dry cloth and then blow dry with your hair dryer. For other flooring, apply oil on spot of tar and wipe away with dry paper towel or cloth. Also try using this oil on your hands to remove enamel paint. - VESTA

DEAR POLLY - To make a quick and easy hot pack, I heat a dampened towel in my microwave oven for just a few seconds. Test for hotness before applying, as it will be hotter in the center. - MARGARET

DEAR POLLY - I use a wire coat hanger to eliminate static cling. I just run the hanger over the two surfaces that cling. Coats seem to create static cling, so I use the hanger before hanging a coat in the closet. This is especially handy if one has this problem after arriving at work. - JANET

FAITH TEACHES US THE LAWS OF RETRIBUTION

One of the most commonly held fallacies is the notion that we can "get away with something". This false premise is strengthened by the sight of those around us who have apparently succeeded in doing so: while at the same time it would appear that others are being punished out of all proportion to any wrong they may have done. However, you are destined to learn that in the long run you will receive whatever reward or punishment you deserve, according to the way you have conducted your life. And that choice is yours, as is the Church you should go to in order to learn how this divine merit system works.

"Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."
— Galatians 6:7

We ought to do our neighbor all the good we can. If you do good, good will be done back to you; but if you do evil, the same will be measured back to you again.
— Pilpay (Circa 326 B.C.)
