Growers Being Forced To Cut Back

Fuel Paces Spiraling Farm Production Costs

By JIM STEIERT Managing Editor

Fuel cost increases that are coming at virtual weekly intervals are only the latest incentive for production cost cutting in local agriculture and projections for this spring indicate that county farmers will be doing their best to shave those cost figures where possible.

According to John Fuston, Deaf Smith County ASCS executive director, projected meeting in Dimmitt recently, contract prices for some locally-grown commodities "are the best we have ever had before" but by the same token natural gas to fuel irrigation engines will soon be costing three dollars per mcf. here while diesel and gasoline prices have been climbing steadily.

Woman Faces Fraud Charges

The Deaf Smith County district attorney's office is conducting an investigation into apparent multiple cases of welfare fraud in Deaf Smith County.

According to Assistant District Attorney David Martinez, a woman formerly employed with the Department of Human Resources office here faces possible indictment by the 222nd district court grand jury on charges of fraudulent issuing of food

As many as 18 local individuals could be involved in the fraud scheme which, according to Martinez, involved certification of applications for food stamps at an amount were due. The extra stamps were then allegedly sold.

The Department of Human Resources has been conducting an investigation into the matter for the past several months.

Martinez indicated that the matter will be taken up by the grand jury here Feb. 16.

Assistant District Attorncy Jerry Smith reported that a sealed indictment was involved in the matter and stated "it is premature to discuss the particulars of the case at this time. It is a very complicated case involving a multitude of potential defendants. The exact number of individuals involved and the degree of their involvement will depend on how the grand jury views the case. In light of that we will have to wait

There seem to be certain times of the year when out-oftown salesmen hit town with some "bargain" prices on merchandise or services. Now, with a depressed economic situation, some of the firms are really going around the country seeking more sales.

Some of these salesmen are representing reputable companies; some are not. Local businessmen and citizens are advised to investigate any sales pitch before buying.

Many communities formerly required solicitation permits for such business, but legal rulings under the name of civil rights have done away with that attempt at protection.

Newspaper people talk a lot about the first Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, the one that guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press, but some people have different ideas about what this means. In Pennsylvania, a newspaper publisher was taken to court for refusing to print a letter. The writer, one of those who consantly seeks a public forum for his own ideas and personal attacks, charged that he has a constitutional right to express his opinions in his local newspaper. The court held otherwise, stating in so many words that a newspaper has absolute control over what it prints or does not print and that this right extends to the refusal of advertising as well as news copy.

This does not infringe upon the letter writer's right to free speech or freedom of expression. He is free to do it at his own expense, but he should remember postal regulations and the laws of libel.

Over the years, we've had problems with people who don't want a certain story published, or those who bring in articles and demand we print them exactly as presented. The newspaper reserves the right to edit material for length without altering the content, or to accept or reject material.

We like letters from our readers, and we publish the vast majority of them with very little editing. We request that letters be of reasonable length, and that all letters be signed by the writer. It's hard to stand up and be counted without being recognized.

Kenneth Christie of the Summerfield area reported that producing an acre of corn in the Texas High Plains during 1981 will cost the farmer $613.64.

Christie, who worked with the High Plains Farm Bargaining Association's Cost of Production Committee reported that the cost committee considered the projected cost figures to be average and representative of the local corn growing

When compared to production costs from past seasons. Christie's figures lend emphasis to just what kind of production cost increases farmers face.

Corn production costs were listed at an average of $397.59 per acre in 1978, $456.67 in 1979, and $529.55 in 1980.

In his report at the TCGA meeting, Christie commented that the largest cost of production increases will be related to energy and that production of food-quality corn will cost at least 15 percent more than regular commercial corn.

Because there is no doubt that producing a crop in 1981 will cost still more than the highly expensive-to-raise 1980 crop, most local farmers are casting about now and putting the pencil to paper, hoping to come up with some new ways to cut corners.

"I think one of the biggest things we're likely to see in 1981 is that more attention will be focused on an intense management program to try and get black ink at the bottom of the ledger. Whatever that takes will be done,"

Molester Also Convicted Killer

A 31-year-old man who was indicted last week on two counts of indecency with a child by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury is the convicted killer of a Riverside County, Calif. Sheriff's deputy, Hereford law enforcement officials have been informed.

Michael Williams, a resident of Hereford for the past several months, was arrested by city police and county sheriff's officers Tuesday on two counts of indecency with a child.

He was charged with molesting his eight and nine year old daughters while they were visiting him during the Christmas holidays.

A complaint was made to a Kansas police department and transferred to law enforcement authorities here in the matter and Williams, of 1520 Blevins, was indicted by the county grand jury early last week.

Bowlings Bowl, 110 N. 25 Mile Ave., reported the second case of criminal mischief. Two Mexican-American males in their late teens entered the business and went straight to the restroom, police said.

A small boy came out of the restroom and told employees the two had broken a mirror. Employees said the two came out of the restroom staggering as if intoxicated or under the influence of drugs.

Police said the two would not stop when asked. One of the suspects was reportedly wearing a gray jogging suit. Police also investigated

School Board Candidate Roster Swells to Five

Four more individuals have filed as candidates for the Hereford School Board in the upcoming April 4 election.

JERRY WALLS

Anne Ivey, James Self, Jerry Walls and R.C. Hoelscher have joined Tom Simons as candidates for the at-large election.

Self, 36, has been a Hereford resident for 10 years. He was born and raised in Childress and served as a school teacher for 10 years, working in the Tulia, Springlake-Earth and Hereford school systems. He was an instructor and coach on the junior high level here.

Self has been associated with Family Homes Real Estate as a Realtor for four years. He was a member of several professional teaching organizations during his tenure as a school teacher here and is presently a member of the board of directors of the Hereford Day Care Center, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors and a member of the Hereford Toastmasters.

He and his wife, Maureen, are the parents of three children, Nikki, an elementary student, Kirk, a kindergarten student, and Jamie, who is enrolled in the Hereford Day Care Center.

"I think I can relate to the problems of the teachers and think that my experience as a teacher would be an asset. From the perspective of the outside looking in I can also understand some of the problems of the administration now, too. I know a lot of the school people and feel I would have a good working relationship with teachers as well as the administration. Basically, if I could have some positive input that would be of benefit to the schools I would just like to have the opportunity to do that," said Self. Walls has been a Hereford resident for seven years and currently serves as a paramedic with the Deaf Smith General Hospital where he became a part-time employee in August of 1979 and later became a full-time employee in August of 1980.

Walls, 33, taught fifth grade in the Lubbock school system from 1970-1974 and served as a sixth grade teacher at Northwest Elementary for six

He is presently the vice president of the PTO at Northwest Elementary and is a past secretary of the Hereford Volunteer Fire Department.

He and his wife, Rebecca, are the parents of a daughter. Stephanie, 6, and a son, Jerremy, three. Walls indicated that he feels his teaching background would assist him in the role of a school board member. "I'm a candidate for a lot of reasons. From what I've seen in the past four or five years some of the school board and the superintendent ignored the wishes of the people of the district. The pairing plan, for example-people wanted to wait a year to study it and the board didn't. The people were ignored. I think someone who has been there would have better insight into how the teachers and students feel Hoelscher, having been with and think and I feel this is something I can do," said

Mrs. Ivey, 37, has been a Hereford resident for about six months, coming here from Arlington. Her husband, Tom, is chief financial officer for Pitman Industries here.

A businesswoman with some 20 years of experience, Mrs. Ivey has been employed with Bell Helicopter and American Airlines and is also an independent Realtor.

An Arlington resident for 25 years, she was involved in a number of civic organizations and groups for children including Bluebirds and YMCA in Arlington.

She is a member of the National Association of Realtors and was a member of the Women's Club of Arlington, which worked closely with day care centers and retarded children.

Mrs. Ivey and her husband have a 12-year-old daughter, Julie, enrolled in the Hereford school system and are also the parents of four other children.

"The years of experience I have had with children give me something I can contribute. We are delighted with Hereford and I am eager to get involved as much as possible. I would have the time to devote to the job," commented Mrs. Ivey concerning her reason for school board candidacy.

Hoelscher, 38, has been a Hereford resident for over 11 year and is an attorney with Cowsert, Bybee, Line &

He is a member of the Hereford YMCA board of directors and is immediate past president of that group and is also a member of the board of directors of the Hereford Noon Kiwanis Club.

He has served as a board member with the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, Big Brothers-Big Sisters and the Deaf Smith County United Way and is a past president of the Hereford Noon Kiwanis

He and his wife, Diane, are the parents of two children, Curtis, who is a freshman at La Plata Junior High and Alisa, a fifth grader at West Central.

Hoelscher commented on his reasons for running for an at-large position on the school board, stating, "I'm interested in the school system. I feel the schools are primarily here for the benefit of the kids. Parents should have an active input into the schools and have the ability to communicate with administrators. We need more parent input and I feel parents should be encouraged to discuss more things with the administration and the teachers. I feel like I have something to offer and would like to offer it. I'm always interested in improving the present excellent quality of our schools."

Hometown Name

Causes Problems

IRAAN, Texas (AP) - James Owens likes his home town, but he's changing addresses just to avoid any more problems.

Owens, a 27-year-old cowboy from this tiny West Texas town, says it all started when he entered several contests in California last year.

His home town is pronounced "Ira Ann." but the rodeo announcers in the Golden State took one look at it and usually said something like, "here's a cowboy who's come a long way - he's from Iran."

It was funny at first, said Owens. But the hostage situation in Iran quickly turned the laughter to boos and the whole thing "got old pretty quick."

After the third or fourth encounter with an angry rodeo crowd, Owens decided it would be better if he changed his mailing address to nearby Sheffield - just in case.

Texas Orange Growers Enjoy Good Prices

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - Citrus growers in the Lower Rio Grande Valley are enjoying higher prices for their oranges and grapefruits following freeze damage to Florida's crop last month.

"For this time of year, they're good prices. It's like we would get at the first of the season," said Tom Newell of RioTex Citrus Association, a 500-member grower cooperative.

Newell and others said a farmworkers union citrus strike has had no impact on the harvest.

Citrus prices usually are high at the beginning of the harvest in November and December when quality of the early orange crop is best and demand for gift fruit is highest.

Prices paid to growers and shippers rose when Florida announced an embargo on fruit shipment to protect its production quality, said Jesus Barrera, shipping manager of Frank Lewis Fruit Co. in Alamo.

"It sure will help the growers and ourselves (shippers), too," Barrera

The $70 million Texas citrus industry, third behind Florida and California, is expected to produce 360,000 tons of grapefruit, 149,000 tons of early-maturing oranges and 89,000 tons of Valencia oranges in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Eighty-three percent of production comes from Hidalgo County.

Les Whitlock, general manager of the Texas Valley Citrus Committee, said Friday prices to growers jumped about $10 a ton after Florida's damaging freeze. He said prices are averaging $85 a ton for early oranges and $80 a ton for grapefruit.

Gunmen Surrender

After Jet Hi-Jack

CUCUTA, Colombia (AP) - Two young gunmen who hijacked a Colombian jetliner Friday and threatened to kill the five crewmembers meekly surrendered after a 10-hour siege and were taken away by police.

The hijackers, armed with submachine guns, had allowed the 60 other passengers to leave, and as the last one alighted from the Boeing 727 of Avianca Airlines, 10 jeeps mounted with machine guns and about 300 soldiers moved onto the tarmac around the plane.

Sources at national police headquarters in Bogota, the capital, said the gunmen threatened to kill the pilot, co-pilot, navigator and two stewardesses one at a time if the soldiers did not withdraw and permit the plane to depart.

The government refused their demand that they be flown to Mexico or Panama and at dusk the two emerged with their hands in the air and were taken away in a police car, according to the Caracol radio network reporting from the airport. It said there were no injuries during the day-long standoff.

The red-and-white jet was taken over after leaving Bucaramanga for the short flight to Cucuta near Colombia's northeastern border with Venezuela, according to a Cucuta broadcast interview with Gov. Adolfo Martinez of the state of Norte de Santander.

Garwood May Take Stand To Try to Overturn Conviction

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. troom. (AP) - Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood, who didn't testify during his court-martial on charges of collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam, may take the witness stand in an attempt to overturn his conviction, sources say. The five-officer military jury that convicted Garwood on Thursday after 12 weeks of testimony will hear evidence Monday concerning sentencing. The 34-year-old Marine faces a possible sentence of life in prison for collaborating with the Viet Cong during two of the 14 years he was their captive. Garwood, the only Vietnam prisoner of war to be convicted of collaboration, was also found guilty of assaulting a fellow POW. He was acquitted of a more serious charge, maltreating the prisoner.

Defense lawyers will try to have the jury reconsider the collaboration conviction, sources close to the defense told The Associated Press on Friday. Garwood's attorneys also will seek to persuade the judge to throw out the verdict or, failing that, will press for a lenient sentence, the sources said.

The lawyers want to let Garwood give his side of the story to the jury of five Vietnam veterans, the sources said.

If he is sworn in as a witness, he would be open to cross-examination. Garwood could also appear as an unsworn witness or have a written statement read in Defense attorneys also are reported to be considering a later motion for mistrial, contending the judge, Col. R.E. Switzer, acted "unprofessionally" in discussing the case outside of the cour-

next Friday, he said. *

His defense team argued that torture, deprivations and inhumanities during his long captivity drove Garwood insane and he therefore was incapable of realizing the criminality of his actions.

Garwood, convicted on all five counts of the collaboration charge, was accused of serving as an interpreter, collaborator and interrogator for his captors in North Vietnamese prison camps.

Fellow prisoners of war said Garwood wore the uniform of the communists, acted as an armed guard over American captives and tried to persuade them to "cross over" to the enemy.

Garwood, an Indiana native who dropped out of school in the 10th grade, was 19 when he was captured while driving a jeep south of Da Nang in 1965. He emerged from Vietnam in 1979 after handing a note to a Finnish businessman in Hanoi requesting repatriation to the United States.

In another development, the Labor Department reported the unemployment rate was 7.4 percent in January - unchanged from the month before despite an increase of 410,000 in job-holders. The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said about 7.8 million people were out of work in January, 62,000 more than the month before.

The bureau said 97.7 million people held jobs last month, an increase of more than 400,000. Improvement in the unemployment situation for blacks and adults was offset by worsened figures for teen-agers and Hispanics.

The debt limit was raised with support of 46 Republicans and 27 Democrats in the Senate. Three Republicans and 15

Democrats opposed it. The Democratic votes, however, were slow in coming. Because Republicans made such a big issue of the debt ceiling in last year's elections, most Democrats refused to vote for the bill until the GOP showed broad

"I think a lot more farmers will chisel rather than using the breaking plow and losing moisture by plowing deeply, said Fuston, who indicated that heavy pre-plant irrigations will likely be necessary this fall in order to replenish depleted soil moisture. "Soil moisture conditions are still varied in the county. We have some fair moisture in a few locations, but not a lot. It will probably take a heavy preplant irrigation to bring the soil moisture levels back up unless we get some moisture," he remarked. According to Fuston, good moisture and yields could still go a long way toward an economic recovery in agriculture here despite the alarming increases in production costs.

"If we could get a couple of years of good moisture and good crops, we could really see things turn around here in Hereford," Fuston commented.

Bumpers said spending should be cut when spending legislation is being considered — not when the time comes to borrow to pay for such spending. "It's like a person who orders a $13.95 sirloin and complains to the waiter when he gets the bill,"

On a 52-41 vote, the Senate defeated an attempt by Democrats to increase the debt limit to only $963 billion, enough to last through April 30. The $985 billion asked by Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd noted the higher figure was based on the assumption that Congress would stick to the currentvear budget submitted by the Carter administration. Reagan has vowed to cut that budget, Byrd said, "and before we extend the debt limit beyond May we ought to have details of the economic package the president intends to reveal. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, had a different idea, but didn't push it. Because of programs already approved by Congress, he said, "the debt will go beyond $1 trillion (later this year) despite the efforts of President Reagan and the Congress to slow it." McClure wanted to raise the ceiling above the $1 trillion mark now so the Carter administration would get the blame for breaching that psychological barrier.

Rules for Televised Trials Considered

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - troom. The Texas Supreme Court should be allowed in cour- tee trooms until October, the chairman of a State Bar committee said Friday.

State District Judge Tom was in the 1960s. Cave of Fort Worth, chairman of the Committee on Cameras in the Courtroom, said "at least a straw vote" will be taken among judges in September in Corpus Christi.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision upheld Florida guidelines allowing televised trials in that state. Televisions have been barred in Texas courtrooms since the early 1960s when the Billie Sol Estes case was overturned because of problems caused by the coverage.

The committee - including judges, lawyers and reporters - began its work before the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision. At Friday's session committee members looked at a proposed set of guidelines and an expensive camera system that who will have control over would eliminate the need for whether cameras are allowed cameramen in the cour- into specific trials.

"In the high-publicity cases the judge is as tight as a G-string on a guitar ... without worrying about TV." he said.

The proposed guidelines offered by the Texas Associated Press Broadcasters were taken from guidelines in effect in California. Among the decisions the committee must make before making a recommendation to the Texas Supreme Court is

Letters to the Editor

Elimination of TRLA Seen As Step To Trim Fat From Federal Spending

DEAR EDITOR:

President Reagan has vowed to help reduce federal spending by cutting the fat out of many established government programs. There are many misused "Great Society" programs that can and should be cut and among these is the "Legal Services Corporation" of which the Texas Rural Legal Aid, Inc. is a big part.

The Conservative Caucus, Inc., among others, is promoting a drive to eliminate federal funding for the Legal Services Corporation. To conservative as the polls tell ing, defense, quotas, food stamps, OSHA, and energy. One big reason for liberal victories is the tax-payer funded Legal Services Corporation." Last year the American Taxpayer paid over $300,000,000 in taxes to support an elite corps of several thousand government funded lawyers and several thousand more of their full time assistants. These people do not fall under Civil Service so they are free to become social and political activists. There are about 17,000 people employed by this Federally funded legal services project. Leaders in the program are committed to the implementation of a radical social and political agenda which includes--organization of unions of prison convicts, who seek (and sometimes receive) social security benefits, political rights, etc;---lawsuits by young children to challenge the authority of their parents on matters like access to personal mail, choice of schools, etc.;-expansion of the food stamp program to college students from affluent families and people who have voluntarily decided not to speak gainful employmentand lawsuits promoting racial quotas in education and employment.

In essence, the LSC funds a nationwide network of liberal activists who are spending our money to socialize America.

Our community is well aware of what the Texas

Rural Legal Aid (TRLA) has been doing locally. The incidents during the vegetable harvest last summer were the most publicized and the TRLA filed several lawsuits against agricultural producers and shippers based on labor grievances. It is interesting to note that, to the best of my knowledge, all of the suits filed, relative to agricultural labor wages, could have been investigated and settled by the Department of Labor. This harassment, however, is not limited to the agricultural industry. These lawyers are constantly filing senseless and frivolous law suits and are promoting discrimination in our community where Latin is pitted against Anglo to the point where our school children are feeling the pressure. It is ironic that they are using your tax money to sue you. The TRLA leadership readily admits that over 80 percent of the law suits that they file are against government entities. Our tax money is working against us.

Our goal should be to completely eliminate the Federal Legal Services Program and to reject any and all funding for it. There is no way that quote them, "If America is as regulations can be enacted to control the abuses of the us, why do you keep losing, Legal Services Corp., nor can and the liberals keep winn- it be reformed by replacing ing? Especially on issues like the Corporation's Board of taxes, welfare, crime, bus- Directors. The LSC is now operating under emergency funding at the same level ($300 million) as last year. It is my understanding that the President can stop this funding at any point.

If we, as citizens, are to stop this foolishness, it would behoove everyone to write our legislators in Washington demanding that funding be stopped for this program. You should also contact Vice-President George Bush, Senator Orrin Hatch (Chairman of the Senate Labor & Human Resources Committee, which oversees LSC) Attorney General William French Smith and David Stockman (Director of the U.S. Office of Management and Budget).

Let's support our President in his efforts to reduce federal spending and do away with damaging programs. Collectively, we can make something happen.

Sincerely, Wes Fisher 116 Centre Hereford, Texas 79045

Dear Editor:

It has become very clear to me that something must be done to lessen the awful plight that has struck this wonderful country. Yes, we must do something to help the Chrysler Motor Company. Can we afford to let it go broke?

Being a farmer and rancher I decided that what the government has done to save agriculture could apply equally as well to a car com-

For instance, the first thing to do is to get an immediate price support system. Using a rough correlation to agriculture, this would mean that a $6,000 car would be supported at a price of about $3,000, or half of what it is selling for now. Just think of it - Chrysler could sell cars overseas. I mean, even I would buy one at that price.

One of the requirements would be that they would have to produce at 100 percent of capability in order to receive this fantastic support. They could sell overseas but the government would.

handle all sales. And, of course, after Chrysler had produced (in advance) a year's supply of cars, say for the Soviet Union, then the govenment could cancel the sale at any time, leaving a Of course, this would help huge stockpile of cars.

Of course, these extra cars would cause a small problem, so we establish a small car and a large car reserve program. Under this program we loan Chrysler approximately 75 percent of the price support value at a low interest rate (prepaid) and guarantee storage payments to a commercial storage place although we highly recommend which factory storage.

The government will also buy some of these cars in order to support prices. The government-owned cars will be stored, also. In the event that prices rise, then the government will sell the automobiles they own in order to establish a more stable market.

Requiring 100 percent production applies only as long as Chrysler is showing a loss. If by some unforeseen chance they can figure out how to make a profit, then we change the rules and require a 20 percent set-aside of all car producing facilities. These plants must keep a full work force and everything must be done as usual, except no cars can be produced. Set-aside is inspected to make sure that no unwanted Toyotas, Dat-suns or any other noxious cars have grown up on the facilities. Set-aside is measured and inspected to be sure that no automobiles are in fact being produced.

the economy in other ways. A whole new government agency must be established in order to carry out this program. Let's call it the Automobile Small Car Service, or ASCS for short. Actually, it will require more money to staff this department than actually goes to Chrysler.

Under this department we would create a car stamp program in order to get rid of some of these unwanted automobiles. Families of low incomes could buy these stamps at a reduced rate according to their incomes. The stamps would be restricted to the purpose of purchasing new cars, but they could be used to buy anything else,

These same principles have saved the farmer and we are deeply grateful. Surely Chrysler deserves the same kind of help. Maybe even General Motors or Ford could use the same kind of help. Jim Chandler Box 896

How Much Do We Need to Know?

It seemed at first a strange thing for a scientist to say. Lewis Thomas, with degrees from Harvard and Princeton; chancellor of Sloan-Kettering, said, "Of all animals we humans are not necessarily good at anything in particular--except language." I guess I had imagined that you and I are in all ways superior, yet here is a man of science suggesting that, except for our dexterity with language, the other animals might put us in the zoo! Dr. Thomas says, "If men this planet it is only because our species is skilled with language and metaphor."

It subtracts nothing from the theological concept of creation to concede that communication - recording and building on our triumphs and our mistakes - has lifted us from the mud.

Indeed, it refutes the evoluconcept to tionary acknowledge that we are that much different from creatures which had a billion years' head start.

I wonder... Would we casual excel all other creatures on manipulators of words be

IMPOSSIBLE! BUT IT HAPPENED

Zacharias was in the sanctuary when suddenly an angel appeared, standing to the right of the altar of incense! Zacharias was startled and terrified.

But the angel said, "Don't be afraid Zacharias! For I have come to tell you that God has heard your prayer, and your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son! And you are to name him John.

"You will both have great joy and gladness at his birth, and many will rejoice with you. For he will be one of the Lord's great men. He must never touch wine or hard liquor--and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from before his birth! And he will persuade many a Jew to turn to the Lord his God.

"He will be a man of rugged spirit and power like Elijah, the prophet of old; and he will precede the coming of the Messiah, preparing the people for His arrival. He will teach them to love the Lord just as their ancestors did, and to live as godly men."

Zacharias said to the angel, "But this is impossible! I'm an old man now, and my wife is also well along in years."

Then the angel said, "I am Gabriel! I stand in the very presence of God. It was He who sent me to you with this good news! And now, because you haven't believed me, you are to be stricken silent, unable to speak until the child is born. For my words will certainly come true at the proper time."

Meanwhile the crowds outside were waiting for Zacharias to appear and wondered why he was taking so long. When he finally came out, he couldn't speak to them, and they realized from his gestures that he must have seen a vision in the Temple. Luke 1:11-22

Day-Lease Hunts Under Study at Tech

LUBBOCK - Texas Tech University researchers are trying to help South Plains farmers get their ducks in a row for fun and profit.

The fun would go to hunters and the profits to farmers who lease their farmland to the sportsmen.

The profitability of leasing land to bird hunters and the benefits and disadvantages to the farmer are under study by Dr. James W. Graves, agricultural economist at Texas Tech.

"Landowners are hesitant to lease hunting rights without more information about income opportunities and costs," Graves said. "We are trying to compile that information."

"Farmers are concerned about the imposition of handling hunters in the early morning hours. They see potential damage to fences, crops and livestock. Fee-leasing involves dealing with people, which many farmers may prefer not to do," Graves Whitson of Texas A&M.

To arrive at some profitability conclusions, Graves is gathering information concerning costs of farm operations, identifying wildlife resource values and determining the farmer's potential for lease income. He is being assisted in the task by Aditi Angirasa, visiting professor of agricultural economics at Texas Tech, and Robert E.

Potential income varies from farm to farm. Several area civic clubs or chambers of commerce which leased land to hunters for farmers in 1979 reported different arrangements. One in Easter charged $25 per gun for a oneday pheasant hunt, lunch included. Another in Hereford charged $35 per person per day while one in nearby Dimmitt asked $50 per person for all of the pheasant season.

The economic potential to farmers could be substantial because pheasants and waterfowl tend to concentrate around the estimated 25,000 playa lakes on the South Plains.

"Playa lakes are natural depressions caused by wind erosion. Water settles in the playas, thick vegetation can develop around many of them

These places may not be profitable for farming, but are excellent cover for pheasants and waterfowl," Graves said.

Upland game birds include mourning doves, quail and pheasants, whereas waterfowl include ducks and geese, Graves explained.

"The High Plains is a major wintering area in the central part of the United States for waterfowl and the playas and wildlife accumulates. provide resting places. Most upland game birds are permanent residents," Graves junct professor of wildlife management at Texas Tech, is coordinating several studies on game birds.

"Pheasant hunting is a means of recreation for the hunter and a means of generating income for the farmer. It can be a community activity," Stormer said.

Stormer is project leader of the U.S. Forest Service's Great Plains Wildlife Research Laboratory at Texas Tech, a unit of the resources development project is being principally funded by the Forest Services.

Texas Bass Record Threatened

countdown is underway in

The state largemouth bass record which stood for 37 years has fallen twice in the space of 12 months. Chances are it will fall again before the end of March, in the opinion of Texas Parks and Department Wildlife biologists.

At the top of the heap currently is a 14-pound 31/2-ounce bass caught by John Alexander Jr. of Richardson at Echo Lake near Athens on Jan. 10. The previous record was 14 pounds, 11/2 ounces, caught by Jim Kimbell of Pittsburg last spring at the nowfamous Lake Monticello near Mount Pleasant.

The sudden rewriting of the bass records is a result of introductions of the Florida strain of largemouth, which looks like native northern bass but grows faster and can achieve larger sizes.

Fisheries Director Bob Kemp said he doesn't know which lake will produce the next record fish, but he is confident one will appear in the next 30 days.

"Lake Echo is a pretty good candidate, since it was stocked with Florida bass in 1972, a year earlier than Monticello. However, Monticello is producing a tremendous number of big bss and could easily break the 15-pound barrier this spring."

Kemp also believes Calaveras Lake on the outskirts of San Antonio is in the running for the new record. It hasn't vielded as many 12-pound-plus fish as Echo or Monticello, but a 13-pounder was caught there last spring by Austinite John Godfrey.

Lake Monticello's story has become familiar to trophy bass fishermen nationwide, and so far in1981 it is ahead of its 1980 pace. John Schultz, who owns the Kountry Korner Store near the lake, is an unofficial weightmaster of big bass coming from Monticello.

Schultz told the department that as of Jan. 22, a total of 51 bass over seven pounds were weighed during that month at his store. The largest was 11 pounds, 14 ounces. "Last year in January we weighed only 36 over seven pounds for the entire month, so we are obviously setting a better pace," Schultz said. He said five of the 51 bass exceeded 11 pounds. "We also saw a lot of good fish during December." Schulz added, "with 33 over seven pounds, and the biggest one was 11 pounds, six ounces." Not all trophy bass caught at Mon-store, making the lake's production even more remarkable, in Kemp's view.

Schultz said the big fish are being caught at various times of the day and night, and most are being taken on 11-inch plastic worms in dark

While Lake Echo currently ticello are weighed at the is in the limelight with Alexander's recent catch, it may tip the scales in the should be pointed out that the 175-acre lake is privately owned and fishing is allowed only for landowners and their guests.

Kemp speculated that the larger size of Lake Monticello, and the much larger numbers of fishermen there public reservoir's favor for producing the next record fish. "Wherever they come from, it appears that state record bass will be a more frequent occurrence in the next few years than they were in the past 37," said Kemp.

Caprock Aoudad Hunt Successful

AUSTIN - The first-ever public hunt for aoudad (Barbara) sheep at Caprock Canyons State Park in Briscoe County was successful, with 43 hunters taking 20 aoudads.

The 43 hunters were selected by drawing from 835 applicants. The hunts were held Jan. 3-17 to help control numbers of the aoudad sheep which compete for forage with the native mule deer herd in the park.

The largest aoudad taken weighed 175 pounds and had 23-inch-long horns. The bag limit was one aoudad of either sex per hunter. Both sexes of aoudads have large, curved horns and make im-

Hunting was allowed on 3,350 acres of the 13,655-acre park, located near Quitaque.

Aoudad sheep are natives of North Africa but they have been stocked successfully in many areas of Texas, especially in the Palo Duro Canyon region of the Texas Panhandle.

At the age of 4,600 years, a bristlecone pine in California rates as the world's oldest tree, says Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine.

Although most birds nest in healthy, green trees, many prefer to nest in trees that are dead or dying, says the National Wildlife Federation. There are about 85 species of these "cavity nesters" among the approximately 800 bird species in the U.S. By eating insects they play an important role in the forest as pest control agents.

Wasps, bees, hornets and other winged insects cause more fatalities in the United States than any other of nature's creatures, including SEEDLINGS AVAILABLE LUBBOCK - Landowners planning to put out trees for shelterbelts, windbreaks, or wildlife cover can still get seedlings from the Texas Forest Service in Lubbock.

'We still have over 21,000 trees available at the West Texas Nursery and persons wanting hardwoods such as honeylocust, mulberry, native-plum, and Russian olive should get an application filled out and returned to the Texas Forest Service as quickly as possible," said Denise Word, nursery specialist.

"We also have over 2,500 redcedar conifers for sale which are good for yearwildlife cover," Word con-

The hardwoods are priced at $20 per 100 trees and must be ordered in multiples of 50 or more of any one species. The hardwood seedlings will be shipped starting in mid-February and are of the bareroot stock.

The redcedar seedlings are priced at $1.00 each and must be ordered in lots of at least 30 trees or more. Due to the fragile styrofoam containers, the redcedars cannot be shipped and the orders must be picked up at locations listed on the back of the application

These seedlings can be ordered by getting an application form from the West Texas Nursery, Texas Forest Service, Rt. 3 box 216, Lubbock, Tx. 79401 or call 806-746-5801.

For those of you already on the list of persons to receive these seedlings, the forestry personnel suggests you pick out an area for the trees before you get them in the mail or pick them up. Weed control and water are probably the two most important ingredients for a successful tree planting in West Texas.

Areas you might want to consider are the edges of cultivated fields for wind protection; homestead wind- q breaks on the south, north and west of buildings; rows of trees in corners, near playa lakes or near feedlots for o livestock protection.

You can also enhance the wildlife habitat on your property by planting tree shelterbelts near cultivated land for all species of game? such as quail, dove, pheasant and deer. Some of the highest populations of wildlife in the West Texas region are in or round wind protection and near trees in shelterbelts planted in the 1930's or around old homesteads

Place your order now for tree seedlings and plan to improve the value of your property while enhancing the wildlife populations on your

CRANE HUNT SUCCESSFUL

The final crane hunt held on Jan. 31 near Mound Lake and Rick lake in Lynn and Terry counties has been listed as successful by one of the contest promoters.

A total of 30 birds were bagged by fifteen hunters during the one-day contest. The two biggest birds weighed nine pounds and eight and one-half pounds respectively and took the top honors. A few of the successful hunters bagged their limit of three cranes during the hunt.

There were crane hunters from Wolforth, Abernathy, Woodrow and Lubbock participating in the hunt. Most of the birds were bagged while the hunters were pass shooting

Stripers May be Doing In Sand Bass In Many Impoundments in State

By JIM STEIERT Outdoors Editor

AUSTIN - Federal agencies and directives remain a familiar nemesis to fisheries work while the striped bass, a powerful fighter, may actually be doing in the more numerous sand bass in many state lakes, Bob Kemp, Texas Parks & Wildlife Dept. fisheries director, told some of the state's top outdoor journalists during the 23rd annual meeting of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association at the Chariot Inn here Jan. 24.

Kemp touched on wide areas of concern to the fisheries division of the TP&WD, and pernaps no mentary drew the attention of the gathering of outdoor journalists as did the mention of the demise of the sand bass fishery in some Texas lakes, as well as other comments on bass fishing and regulations.

The fisheries program leader also offered comments on the traditional largemouth bass fishery in Texas.

"We had two state record bass in 1980. Echo Lake is now producing more bass over 12 pounds than Lake Monticello. Echo was stocked with Florida bass because the native Texas largemouths were not available and evidently, this has paid off," said Kemp.

He pointed out that a new state record smallmouth bass of 5 lb. 12 oz. was taken from Town Lake in Austin during 1980 and that the smallmouth bass fishery is continuing to progress in Texas. "The smallmouth bass will be the backbone of the bass fishery in the western part of the state within a few years," Kemp predicted.

According to Kemp, his department is still attempting to get a grip on workable bag limits for bass in the state.

"We're doing a lot of bass limit research to find what we think is right for Texas. On Fayette County Power Lake and Nacogdoches Lake we're conducting experiments with a "slot limit" under which you can keep any fish up to 12 Future of Redfish in Doubt

In the experimental lakes we're seeing a stockpiling of bass just under the 16-inch legal size that must be thrown back. The slot limit is being well accepted," he stated. According to Kemp, sporty Florida bass, which grow at a rapid pace, may be stocked at Toledo Bend Reservoir sometime this year.

Kemp related that the TP&WD is looking at the prospect of adding vegetation to some of the state's older lakes to enhance their bassholding potential.

"Amistad is now one of the best fishing lakes. We began stocking there at the same time weed growth began and it has been a real success. Adding vegetation bears further study, although we must be careful about introducing vegetation," said Kemp.

The TP&WD fisheries official was questioned about the status of exotic fish species which had been under study for the state, such as the colorful and sporty peacock bass and the Nile "Orginally the prediction was for numerous nuclear power plants in Texas and we were looking for an alternate species for the heated power plant water, such as the peacock bass, which requires minimum water

HHS Girls Fall Prey to Monterey Free-Throws

By MAURI MONTGOMERY .essentially ruined the Brand Sports Editor

LUBBOCK-Hereford girls' basketball coach Larry Sowers cried foul here Friday night.

The reason why? The state's No.1 ranked Lubbock Monterey Plainswomen were charged with only six while his squad endured a total of 37- fouls that is.

And despite the Whitefaces' dominance over the Plainswomen from the field (hitting 35 to MHS's 23), the constant MHS freebies from the charity line eventually crippled Hereford in the two teams' second meeting on the year 75-70.

'We played our hearts out tonight - one hell of a ball game, but we couldn't get a break from the officials. We can play with anybody, but we can't play five against seven," said Sowers following the losing ordeal which

Whiteface hopes for a second-half title and district contention.

'We played just the way we wanted offensively," he said, "but we couldn't compete with all the fouls they were giving us. I'm not saying they cheated, but I can hardly believe it was quite as onesided at the free-throw line."

Hereford, needing a win over the Plainswomen desperately following Monterey's narrow 54-49 victory in the first-half (a win that came en route to MHS's

Issel scored 37 points, including two clutch free throws with 12 seconds left, to lead the Nuggets to a 120-116 victory over the Jazz Friday night. That stole the spotlight from Dantley, who scored a career-high 55 points, the most by any National Basketball Association player this

"We did a defensive job on Dantley even though he got 55 points," contended Moe. "He didn't score at all when we went from 10 down to 13 up."

The Nuggets trailed 65-55 at halftime but outscored Utah 38-24 in the third period to go ahead to stay.

Utah Coach Tom Nissalke said, "The performance by Dantley was the greatest I've ever seen." The 6-foot-5 forward, the NBA's leading scorer with a 31.4 average, hit on 24 of 36 field goal attempts and seven of eight free throw tries to surpass his previous career high of 51 points and the NBA season-high of 52 set by Indiana's Billy Knight.

Denver led 113-101 with 4:37 to play but Utah rallied with a 13-1 spurt, Jeff Judkins capping it with a three-point goal with 13 seconds left that pulled the Jazz within two at 116-114. But Issel, who grabbed a game-high 16 rebounds, was fouled one second later and made two free throws to

Second Thoughts

By Cheri Ward

Last week's decontrol of gasoline and oil prices provoked a six to eight cent jump in the price of gasoline in Hereford.

President Reagan speeded up decontrol of gas and oil prices to stimulate production and exploration of petroleum reserves, to reduce oil imports and to encourage conservation.

The decontrol process, began a year and a half ago, has done all this and more.

Production and exploration levels were at their highest during 1980; oil imports have been partially reduced, and further reduction to the tune of 1 million barrels per day is expected by this year's end; all evidence points to increased conservation efforts.

One of the greatest forces behind conservation is the dollar impact of an eight cent per gallon price hike within a week.

Many economists predict gasoline will be up to $1.55 a gallon before summer's end, and many companies and businesses relying upon fuelslurping trucks and planes to transport goods will have to raise the prices of these goods even

The cost for a tank of gasoline has doubled in two years.

The price per barrel of oil from OPEC nations, America's largest volume importer, has more than doubled in that time.

Unfortunately, the price of America's exported goods has not increased proportionately. United States officials sell products at below their cost and provide loans at extremely low interest rates to many foreign countries interested in buying high-quality, low-cost U.S. goods. American farmers are disgruntled with the failure of the Reagan administration to lift the grain embargo, and the head of the American Agriculture Movement has predicted crippled grain markets until a decision is made.

Some have proposed selling grain to the Russians but selling the grain at prices that would gouge Russian pocketbooks.

This is logical thinking-without U.S. grain, Russian farms cannot produce enough food to feed the thousands of troops stationed at the borders of China and Poland.

If the Russian government had to pay double or even triple for food and technological products, they would have less money to spend on preparing for war and propaganda.

With all the complaints about America and higher prices, inflation and governmental red tape, people tend to forget that America has a moderate to low rate of inflation if compared world wide.

Gasoline in Europe has been over the $2 and $3 per gallon mark for five years, and many Europeans do not own cars.

As much as this hurts my emaciated pocketbook, decontrol is a good idea. Independence from foreign sources is necessary to continue the free association of trade and to encourage a return to a more equal footing for the United States in world markets.

The lines were made by clearing the stony surface of the plain perhaps a thousand years ago, hundreds of years before the Inca Empire was established. They stretch like shallow pathways for miles.

Instead, Miss Reicke believes the lines are part of a giant, agricultural calendar, linked with celestial movements, which helped ancient people time the planting and irrigation of their crops.

She suspects the builders were water worshippers, unlike the Incas who later worshipped the sun.

She said several lines point to the sun's location at the winter solstice on Dec. 22. The date coincides with the rains which bring water from the mountains to irrigate the desert.

The animals, she says, could be renditions of the constellations whose periodic appearance coincide with the arrival of water.

"That would be the most reasonable explanation of the existence of such large figures of such perfect execution: They were made for the gods," she said.

Such an astronomical clock would be welcome in Nazca. where it rains only half an hour every two years.

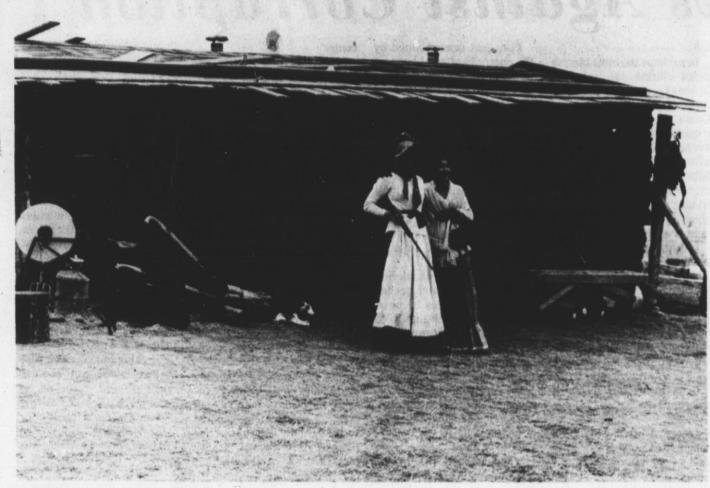

Miss Reicke said she had spent years just to determine the unit of measurement used to construct the lines - a length of 1.60 to 1.70 meters, then about the height of a

Miss Reicke dismissed the theory put forward by some that the plain was used for huge religious ceremonies: "Religion is for the masses and the masses never set foot on the plain."

The scientist said she would someday train someone to follow in her footsteps, "not now - in the future, yes."

"They must be people with good marks in mathematics. They shouldn't be literary geniuses," she said. "Quiet people, without vices, who don't drink or smoke, nor talk about other things. Absolute dedication."

She could have been describing herself.

Horn of the Cable Television Information Center evaluated their proposals in Washington, the six contenders devised other ways to try to influence the council.

Charles Sammons, the 82-year-old founder of the hometown company, revealed at a council meeting and in $150,000 worth of newspaper ads that he had willed 51 percent of his company to five Dallas charities.

Cox Cable threw an expensive cocktail party for representatives of Dallas' performing arts groups, and the Black Chamber of Commerce got into the act by charging contenders $650 each to present their spiels at a Juneteenth celebration. Vista Cablevision launched a letter-writing campaign ask-the enormity of what happened. This is the Super Bowl of all cable franchising and we won," declared Warner Amex President Gus Hauser.

But this game went into overtime. Within a week, a pair of Sammons supporters submitted a 2,500-signature petition that will force a local referendum to decide the franchise. The vote is expected in April, as is an advertising blitz of amazing proportions.

Most cities now considering cable franchises have heeded Dallas' experiences by passing ordinances designed to regulate the companies' behavior.

But they are finding cable to be an ever-changing game. Some companies now are taking rented citizens a step farther and are trying to rent institutions, such as the University of Miami and a Springfield, Mass., community

Mayor Martin Butler of

Park Ridge, III., says cable suitors have offered officials of the Chicago suburb expense-paid trips around the country to view other cable installations.

The money spent on politicking eventually will be paid for by subscribers, industry analysts warn.

"A company that gives away a percentage of its business is going to want to make the pre-determined profit it would have made" if it had kept 100 percent of the stock, says David Korte of the Cable Television Information Center.

Some local groups have tried to help control the companies by asking for minority ownership, but most have found the price prohibitive.

Direct negotiation appears to be the only alternative to bidding. Phil Brown, assistant director of the Dallas says Houston's cable morass provides the best case against that method.

"You'll have people promising the moon," he said. "I don't see any way out of accusations of unfairness and possible wrongdoing." Horn says cities must develop well-defined policies or "risk litigation and tend to create an environment where unethical or even illegal influence can be exerted by cable companies, city officials or influential citizens."

The potential for illegality even has gotten the attention of Assistant Attorney General Philip B. Heymann.

"A cable television license for a good-sized city is worth millions and millions of dollars and they are simply allocated to one competitor or another. That's a situation you have to worry about," he

'Time Machines' in West Texas Expose the Past

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the mountains in remote west Texas are four "time dormitory during the day; machines." They tell us of the universe millions of years ago, before the first human walked on earth.

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer

FORT DAVIS, Texas (AP) -Tom Barnes frequently stays up all night long in an unheated room looking back in time millions, even billions of years. He wears a coat and gloves, he works weekends and holidays, he sometimes skips meals because he is so busy. Yet he feels he has one of the best jobs in the world.

He is an astronomer and assistant director of the McDonald Observatory near here. Because of mindboggling distances in space and the limited speed of light, he says the observatory's four telescopes act like time machines.

"The farther out in space you look, the farther back in time you go, because it takes so long for the light from distant galaxies to reach Earth," explained Barnes, 36.

For instance, he said it takes light from the Andromeda Galaxy two million years to reach Earth, so when we look at it in the night sky, we see what it looked like two million years ago - when man was still in the process of evolving from apes. Barnes lives in Austin and helps run this University of Texas-owned observatory from there. But he leaves his wife and two young sons and flies to this mountainous West Texas outpost about once a month, spending usually at least a week peering into deep space for hours at a time.

He says the work is "routine" - charting, computing distances, measuring brightness, and analyzing elements of stars in galaxies so distant that even if man could fly through space at the speed of light it would take him millions or billions of years to reach them.

"Anybody who does astronomy for a living has to feel the awe," Barnes said. "You look at the stars all night long, night after night, and you can't help but think, 'Who's looking back?'"

Barnes said the possibilities of other forms of life in the universe "abound."

However, back on Earth, while looking at remote galaxies and contemplating such thoughts, "it does get cold in there. It got down to 23 degrees last night." The telescopes must be kept in large, open-air rooms to prevent air turbulence from distorting the images.

"You have to have a real enthusiasm for what you're doing to put up with these working conditions," he said while sipping coffee in the observatory's dormitory, located a few feet from the world's 12th largest telescope. Its reflective concave mirror is 107 inches in diameter.

If you've ever experienced a pilot light failure on your gas water heater, you know it's no easy job to relight. First of all, it's all but inaccessible, especially for fingers holding a kitchen match. Secondly, there is the small matter of holding the mall matter of holding the puot button in - for what seems like hours, until the safety sensor becomes hot enough to keep the pilot burning. Next time, don't reach for a match. Reach for a small propane torch. The curved burner tube of the torch will reach easily back to where the blue flame should be. A torch will also stay lighted much longer than a kitchen matach and the flame is hot enough to reduce the warm-up time of the safety sensor.

Astronomers sleep, eat and play pool or ping-pong in the and work all night. Time on each telescope is considered precious — every telescope is used every clear night of the year, "including Christmas," said Barnes.

Members of the public are allowed to look through the large telescope only on the last Wednesday of each month.

"You have to make reservations, and we're booked up through April," said Becky McKee, who runs the visitors' center at the bottom of Mount Locke, in the shadow of the white, domed buildings housing the telescopes. She said 30,000 to 50,000 tourists visit annually.

Only 100 people a month are allowed to look through the telescope, and when they do, all except those who know what to expect are usually disappointed at what they see a few dots of light here and there (distant stars) and two red crosshairs.

"It takes an expert to appreciate it, really," Mrs. McKee said.

Barnes said for spectacular sights, the nighttime sky seen with the naked eye from the observatory grounds is hard to beat. The telescopes were built in the Davis Mountains at the highest point on the Texas highway system, 6,800 feet above sea level, and Barnes said it is one of the best places in the nation to star gaze. "We have a minimum of chemical pollution and 'light pollution," he said. Barnes said Fort Davis has an ordinance limiting outdoor

Barnes does not sit at the telescope and wander around the universe ad lib. Before each night, he charts out a series of objects he wants to see and gives the list to a technician, who in turn aims the telescope at the objects one at a time until dawn.

Some objects in outer space are believed to be as far away as 15 billion light years meaning the light that is now reaching Earth shows us what the object looked like 10 billion years before the birth of our own five-billion-year-

Barnes said the "time warp" is one thing scientists use to try to figure out the origin of the universe.

"As you look deeper and deeper into space, you get closer to the beginning of the universe," Barnes said.

He said because the galaxies in the universe are believed to be expanding at astronomical speeds, like a hand grenade exploding, and because nothing can go faster than the speed of light, no one could ever reach the "edge" of the universe.

"There is no a physical edge

coming to a wall," Barnes said. As you look farther and farther out, "You see galaxies that are younger and younger, until eventually, you'll run out of galaxies."

We haven't "run out" of galaxies yet - there are billions and billions of them out there - but Barnes says it's only because of the limits of man's telescopes.

He and other observatory offunding for a proposed $40 to the universe. It's not like million, 300-inch telescope at McDonald. It would be the largest telescope in the world, and Barnes said it would be the largest that can be built using present-day technology. It would not take man beyond the "edge" of the universe, but "it would collect about 10" times as much light" as the observatory's 107-inch telescope, Barnes said. "That means we could study objects. in space that are 10 times as ficials are trying to obtain faint" as what astronomers now see at McDonald.

In building a wardrobe, women must first consider their life-style and budget. An attractive wardrobe can be put together for between $300 and $500.

Four-piece suits offering a blazer, skirt, pant and blouse are a sensible buy for the career-oriented woman. From these basic pieces, they can add a variety of blouses including the ruffle look, bow-tie blouse and a laid-back collar blouse.

According to Kathy Poland, owner of Women's World Boutique, a woman needs at least six blouses of different styles in her closet for variation.

Hats, very popular on the market this year, can make that complete look for the career-oriented woman whether it be a fedora or wide-brim hat.

And, of course, card shops have a double supply of the love-filled cards with the frilly envelopes so those who don't send flowers can always send a card.

The day of amour would not be complete without the heart-shaped boxes filled with chocolate candy sitting on the store shelve just waiting to be given to somebody's sweetheart.

Valentine's Day is really a neat kind of day. People seem to lose all inhibition about showing affection towards another person.

Even little school kids get into the act. Every year, mothers or fathers dash to the store to buy the economy pack of 150 tiny valentines with white envelopes so their child can sign a card for each classmate and a special one for the teacher.

Also included is the shoe box decorated with red construction paper and doilies with an opening cut into the top to be filled with Valentines.

What is great about Valentine's Day is a person can send flowers to that dreamboat they have drooled over for months rationalizing the act with the excuse of it being Valentine's Day.

What is even better is one can eat a huge box of chocolate candy and not feel guilty, because eating the chocolate is all in the name of love. After all, if you didn't eat the candy, you would hurt the sender's feelings, right?

It is almost a sure bet that card designers love Valentine's Day because they can really let loose with ides of love. The more love and gush filled in

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

At my age, there are few things that excite me anymore. Laundry that smells fresh doesn't do it. Neither does unclogging my nasal passages or checking out the men's underwear ads at Ward's.

But when I read about a tour of Swiss chocolate factories scheduled to leave New York March 21 and return on March 29, I became quite dizzy and had to lie down.

You are either a chocolate disciple or you're not. If you are, you are shameless in your lust for chocolate. When a stranger unwraps a candy bar and throws the wrapper in a trash can, you will snatch the paper, bury your face in it and lick like something wild until there is nothing left.

You will forget your station at parties and run an unwashed finger around the bottom of the cake plate to get to the excess

You will lie to your children and tell them you washed the pan you made the fudge in which in fact you have hidden it in the oven to eat later.

Worse, you will pilfer bits of chocolate that you have no intention of sharing with anyone. (On a vacation once, I hid a piece of chocolate in the lining of my purse and when the kids saw me chewing on it, I told them it was a laxative.)

You are basically quite disgusting.

As far as I can see, the chocolate tour is a real breakthrough in travel. I have felt for a long time that people have had it with fat angels on cathedral ceilings and statues white from pigeon droppings.

It's not too crazy to assume that soon there will be pubcrawling tours of Ireland, wine-tasting tours of France, and pasta tours of Italy. (Be still, my beating heart!)

But the Cadillac of tours is bound to be that select, elite group of pacesetters-the chocolate lovers. That rare breed of connoisseurs who leave New York each year as a "single occupancy" and end up nine days later as "doubles." Those gutsy tourists who can finally come out of the closet where they've been eating cupcakes behind the storage bags and go public. Those fun-loving pilgrims who will bring elastic waistbands back into style. Who save their money all year to make the pilgrimage to Our Lady of Bad Skin.

And those who, when someone asks, "How did you find the Alps?" will answer, "It needs more sugar."

Q. I want to determine personal net worth. How do I go about it?

A. Personal net worth is the dollar value that remains after subtracting your total liabilities from your total assets. Figure your assets first. List the amount of cash you have at home and in checking accounts. Record savings accounts and the value of any US savings bonds. Include cash values of life insurance policies and pension or profit-sharing plans (today's value). List separately current market values of other things you own: a home, other real estate, stocks, cars, boats, business interests, personal belongings, appliances, jewelry and household furnishings. The total equals your assets. For liabilities, list all the debts you have, including current bills and tax liabilities as well as bank notes and installment debts. Subtract the total amount of liabilities from the total amount of assets. The result is your personal net worth.

Medical mysteries head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. THE HEALER by Leonard Levitt is a true story of medicine and murder. On June 18, 1975, Dr. Charles Friedgood injected his wife, Sophie, with a massive and fatal dose of Demerol and signed the death certificate himself, listing the cause of death as a stroke.

He persuaded one of his daughters to hide the evidence. Then, with hundreds of thousands of dollars in jewelry and securities he had looted from his dead wife's safe-deposit boxes, he boarded a plane to Copenhagen, where he planned to join his Danish mistress.

What he hadn't reckoned on was the memory of one smalltown police chief and the tenacity of one ambitious detective. Because of them Friedgood's plane was stopped on the runway and a month later he was indicted for murder

THE HEALER is not only a story of Sophie Friedgood's murder - of the motives behind it, the family conflicts surrounding it, the investigation that followed - but it is also the story of Charles Friedgood's entire career which was littered with evidence of deception and worse. Leonard Levitt has woven the questions and the evidence into an enthralling narrative of avarice, bitterness, ambition, and deception, in which truth is literally stranger than fiction. FINAL TREATMENT by Matthew Lifflander is a fascinating medical mystery story. Dr. Lifflander was involved in the Dr. X story from the beginning. One day in 1966 a physician at Riverdell Hospital who was a close friend of Lifflander's came to Show" him and said, "Matt, someone is killing my patients." Lifflander's investigation lead to the trial of Dr. Mario Jascalevich in 1978.

The trial of Dr. X was one of the most bizarre, sensational, and bitterly contested multiple murder cases ever tried in the United States, which ended in the acquittal of Dr. Jascalevich. He was accused of deliberately administering fatal doses of curare to patients in a suburban New Jersey hospital in 1966. FINAL TREATMENT if the most comprehensive source of information of the Dr. X case.

CASEBOOK OF ADOLF HITLER by Leonard L. Heston covers the illnesses of Adolf Hitler and their likely historical consequences. Professor Heston and his wife have researched Hitler's medical history in every available source. These researchers confirm the immense quantities of various drugs which Hitler had administered to him, some of them on a daily basis, and they also show that during the last three years the Fuhrer was intermittently incapacitated by organic brain disease which affected his behavior. THE MEDICAL CASEBOOK OF ADOLF HITLER is a fascinating and historically important book which is easily understandable to a lay reader.

Other books available this week are CAUSE OF DEATH, the story of Forensic Science by Frank Smyth and THE TRIAL OF THE FOX by Lawrence Taylor, which is the story of a perfect

Flu: More Than Bad Case of Sniffles

By LOUISE WALKER County Extension Agent

Influenza, or "the flu," can mean more than a bad case of the sniffles for the aged and chronically ill. Here are answers to some frequently asked questions about flu.

WHAT FLU . IS QUESTION: Just what is influenza, or the flu?

ANSWER: Influenza is an acute respiratory illness. Symptoms include fever, coughing, sore throat, a runny nose, and general aches. Most patients recover completely within a week.

the high-risk group.

FLU VACCINE QUESTION: What type of influenza vaccine is being offered this year?

ANSWER: According to the Texas Department of Health the vaccine recommended for the 1980-81 winter is a trivalent preparation offering protection against B-Singapore-79 and two other strains, A-Brazil-78 and A-Bangkok-79.

Persons 28 years of age and older will require only one dose of the new vaccine.

The Texas Department of Health is making flu vaccine available for high-risk groups through the department's regional public health clinics, local health departments, private physicians, and nursing and convalescent centers. About 80,000 doses will be available free to high-risk individuals.

Because of the lack of exposure to previous strains, people under 28 who did not receive at least one dose of the 1978-79 or 1979-80 trivalent vaccine will require two doses of the new vaccine.

FLU TYPES QUESTION: What are the different types of influenza?

ANSWER: Three types of influenza virus that, have been identified are called types A,B and C. Research has shown that influenza A and B viruses change their genetic make-up slightly each year. The annual changes are known as 'drifts."

As a virus changes or "drifts," immunity created by previous infection or vaccines becomes less effective. In the past, influenza-A viruses have caused a major outbreak about every 10

On the other hand, influenza caused by type B viruses have had widespread occurrences, but the disease is generally milder:

Type C viruses never have been associated with a large epidemic.

DEAR ANN LANDERS:

Last year at the age of 40 I had a hysterectomy. I felt fine after a few weeks and my life went back to normaluntil I began to read all those terrible magazine articles. Reports keep coming out that women who have had a great many sexual partners are especially vulnerable to cervical cancer. I was just sick when I read it for the first time. Now I am reading it more and more. This has made me feel ashamed when, actually, I have nothing to be ashamed of. I was married at 19, and my husband is the only sex partner I ever had.

China Will Likely Continue Imports

WASHINGTON (AP) -Although China's 1981 grain harvest may show some improvement from last year, the Agriculture Department says there are indications China will "maintain a high level of grain imports over the next few years.'

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wednesday that weather conditions for this year's harvest of winter wheat - which was planted last fall - have "thus far been more favorable than the poor conditions" for the 1980 crop.

Meanwhile, the agency said, China has put together a "string of long-term bilateral agreements" with foreign suppliers - including one with the United States which suggest record grain imports over the next few open the way for increased grain consumption, even at a time when production has turned more toward cash crops," the report said.

"Imports, therefore, may receive increasing emphasis, at least in the near future. One constraint, however, is the availbility of foreign exchange.

"Foodgrain imports (mainly wheat) are likely to remain a top priority in terms of foreign exchange allocation, but high coarse grain prices (mainly corn) could force feed imports to increase more slowly."

Nevertheless, the report said, there is a potential for larger feed grain imports in the future "if China's longterm intentions to raise dietary standards by developing a more sophisticated animal feeding industry receive a higher priority than leaders are attempting to they do at present."

Attention Farmers!

This compared with net earnings of $1.8 million, or 82 cents per share, on revenues of $93 million for the first half of the prior fiscal year.

Company cattle had operating profits of $683,000, three times greater than in the prior year's first half. Higher cattle prices, primarily in the first quarter, helped boost profits considerably.

Animal health supplies achieved an 18 pecent gain in operating profits and totaled $497,000. Increased sales of higher profit margin items assisted in this gain.

Grain had operating profits of $319,000, up 60 percent. The sale of grain to outside customers was primarily responsible. Operating profits from meat processing amounted to $402,000, a decline of 36 percent due to increases in raw ingredient costs and expenses incurred for a new distribution system.

For the second quarter ended December 31, 1980, net nearings were $552,000, or 25 cents per share, on revenues of $51 million compared with net earnings of $751,000 or 34 cents per share, on revenues of $51 million in the second quarter of fiscal 1980.

The performances of commercial feeds, animal health supplies, company cattle and grain showed improvement over the same three months of the prior year.

However, meat processing registered a small operating loss of about $14,000 and company cattle had a loss of $217,000, which was still less thanthe $331,000 deficit in the comparable quarter of last

"A decline in both the price and numbers of company cattle marketed and start up costs for our new distribution system for meat processing were the primary reasons for the losses in those two industry segments," said Ron Davenport, president.

At the end of the second quarter the company was serving approximately 750 Wendy's restaurants with hamburger meat, cheese and other dairy items.

Custom feeding had good operating profits of $954,000, but were down 17 percent when compared to a very outstanding operating profit of $1.1 million in the second quarter of last year. We cannot help but be impressed by the attitude of President Ronald Reagan in his first few days in office.

In my own opinion the man is genuinely trying to come to grips with the myriad of problems that have created a logiam for this country.

A decision on the Russian grain embargo is still on hold, yet we still have hope that Mr. Reagan will realize that his only alternative is to lift the embargo-if he is to retain vital credibili-

In our opinion, a Reagan administration decision during the past week to withdraw requirements for bilingual education through the whole 12 years of public schooling is a good early step toward eliminating one item of frivolous waste in this country.

Bilingual education is an excellent tool for helping youngsters get a start in the educational system of this country when they are new to the land and the language.

It is folly to think that a student should be administered bilingual education throughout the entire 12-year tenure in the school system, however...What is the point of education in the land that is to be the child's home if the youngster does not learn the native language of that land?

This Reagan administration move has drawn some criticism and the critics are already lining up to lambast Mr. Reagan on many other issues, essentially before he even gets started.

The matter that is sure to set off the greatest rhubarb is budget cutting...Americans in all walks of life are going to feel the squeeze on this one and there will be a lot of howling.

We are going to have to stand ready to give up some things, however, if we are to get this country back on an even keel financially, and that seems to be what America's voters cst their ballots for.

There is an excess of non-essential fat in our budget because so many of us have come to believe that "uncle" should be the omni-present benefactor to all people.

I hope that we can remember that the idea of a government was not to be our ever-present provider, as the status quo seems to be.

Jefferson said that the government which governs least governs best. Since we have seemed to want Uncle to tell us what to spend and where to spend it in recent years, plus providing the green stuff to do it with, I'd say we haven't been getting much government for our green-

Ag Department Projecting Improvement in Sugar Market

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new analysis by the Agriculture Department says retail sugar prices "may ease" a bit this winter but probably will start creeping higher again later in the year, depending on the world supply and demand situation.

Rising interest rates last fall helped cool the demand for raw sugar, resulting in a decline in prices the past couple of months.

The department's outlook board said Thursday that "retail sugar prices in calendar 1981 will likely average above" the 1980 average of 42.7 cents a pound, compared to 24.9 cents in 1979. However, the report did not say how much prices may rise above last year's level.

World crop prospects for raw sugar in 1980-81 "continue near" the 87.1 million metric tons forecast two mon ths ago, the report said. However, world consumption estimates have declined slightly since then.

A metric ton is about 2,205

"World sugar consumption has been influenced by the growth of the corn sweetener industry in Canada, Japan and other developed countries in addition to the United States," it said.

The world price of raw sugar under the International Sugar Agreement averaged 28.8 cents a pound in calendar 1980, triple the 1979 average of 9.66 cents a pound, the report said.

In January, the raw sugar price averaged 27.8 cents a pound. Although that was up sharply from about 17.2 cents a year earlier, it was down from last November's average of 37.8 cents a pound. And by early February, the turn upward in the first half of 1981. Increasingly, prices will depend on prospects for the 1981-82 world sugar crop and changes in consumption and inventory patterns. The report said "early information" suggests world sugar acreage for 1981-82 "may not be much larger" than for the current year.

Dr. B.A. Stewart, USDA research director at Bushland, will discuss a new system of furrow irrigation. The final session will be moderated by Dr. Ed Runge, recently-appointed head of the soil and crop sciences department at Texas A&M University.

Research with greenbug biotype E that attacks greenbug-resistant sorghum will be discussed by Dr. K.B. Porter. The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station small grain breeder found the new biotype last spring while evaluating wheat lines for greenbug resistance.

Dr. Dave Hutcheson, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station animal nutritionist, will discuss his experiments on grazing wheat. He will be followed by Dr. Runge describing highlights of research in the soil and crop sciences department at Texas A&M University.

Dr. Steve Winter, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station sugarbeet researcher, will complete the program by discussing agricultural research in Australia.

The symposium is sponsored by the USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory at Bushland, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, and Panhandle Economic Program.

Cuts Seen In Dairy Supports

WASHINGTON (AP) Agriculture Secretary John. R. Block says budget cutters will be looking at a wide range of Agriculture Department programs, including dairy price supports.

But Block told a news conference Wednesday that no decisions have been made on precisely where and how much to trim the department's budget.

However, the dairy price supports, food stamps and other food programs and operations of the Farmers Home Administration and Rural Electrification Administration are among the areas getting a close look, he said.

Asked about the dairy price-support program, Block said he could not be specific about the "kind of change" but added that 'we'll be talking" to dairy in-

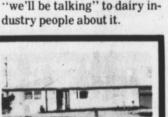

in the YEC report stated "reduction of farm numbers and increasing coordination among industry sectors (vertical integration in a corporate structure) are consistant with the basic policy of

We should realize that much of their recommendations has been pursued by government policy resulting in a continued decline in family farm numbers during the 1970's by as much as 2000 farmers per week! There are now less than 2.5 million farmers left, and a majority of those are on the verge of total bankruptcy. ### Sagging Farm Income Reported

WASHINGTON (AP) -Many farmers are encountering sagging profits this winter and may wind up with less net income in 1981 than government experts had been predicting.

"Commodity prices have been under pressure in recent weeks from favorable crop prospects in some Southern Hemisphere countries, larger-than-expected meat supplies, and high interest rates," a preliminary report by the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Also, it showed farmers' net income in 1980 at about $23 billion, a drop of more than 25 percent from $31 billion in 1979. Two months ago, a similar report estimated last year's net farm income in a range of $23 billion to $25 billion.

There was no 1981 farm income forecast beyond midyear in the latest report. In December, officials said farm income this year could rebound sharply this year, "perhaps regaining all the loss of 1980."

For all of 1981, the previous reports - including one last November — said net farm income might rise to between $27 billion and $32 billion. The latest report said farmers in the first three months are expected to have an annual rate of net income of $22 billion to $24 billion. Two months ago the first quarter's forecast was for an annual rate of $24 billion to $26 billion. The forecast for the second quarter, April-June, was unchanged at $26 billion to $28

An annual rate, in this case, means that if farm income during a three-month period held steady over the entire 12 months, that would be farmers' net income for the calendar year.

The annual rate does not indicate farmers' actual net income in a three-month period, but does give an idea on their general financial condition.

Livestock and poultry prices at the producer level "are currently being held down by large' meat supplies," resulting in losses for hog and cattle producers, the report said.

"Beef output is greater than a year ago as short forage supplies and high production costs are forcing a large number of nonfed cattle (those that have not been fed grain-based rations) to slaughter," it said. Retail food prices still are expected to climb 10 percent to 15 percent, on average, above last year. That forecast was made by the department last fall.

Crop supplies in the United States are down by more than percent from year-ago levels because of last summer's drought,

Jim Allison is Honored By Wheat Organization

The Texas Wheat Producers Board & Producers Association in joint session for quarterly policy meetings presented a surprise honor to their executive assistant for the past three years who resigned to accept a position with a local bank.

An engraved plaque enscribed "Presented to Jim Allison for Outstanding Contribution to Texas Agriculture as Executive Assistant, Texas Wheat Producers Board & Producers Association, 1978-1981" was jointly presented by Leo Witkowski, Hereford, chairman of the Producers Board and Wiley Tabor, Quanah, president of the Producers Association. Jim's wife, Cynthia, was presented a floral corsage for her support of her husbands efforts.

Bill Nelson, executive vice president of the wheat organizations eulogized Allison for his support of membership expansion, hosting foreign trade teams and especially for leading several state wheat organization's combined efforts in removal of dark hard and vitrus (DHV) discounts from federal grain standards.

Theme of Agriculture Yearbook is Changed

WASHINGTON (AP) -One of the earliest decisions made by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block after the Reagan administration took office Jan. 20 was to change the subject of the 1981 agriculture yearbook.

In fact, Block passed the word to change the yearbook before he was sworn in as secretary Jan. 23.

The memo outlining the change was dated Jan. 22 and signed by Claude W. Gifford, who was designated "acting assistant secretary" for governmenal and public affairs during the final days of the transition.

Gifford said he had "just received word" from one of Block's aides that "Secretary Block has selected 'Will There Be Enough Food?' as the working title and theme" for the yearbook.

"The purpose will be to show the role of agriculture as it affects such things as national life, the economy, energy, the balance of payments, productivity, national health, food prices, living space, future food supplies and mode of living, world development, building peaceful relations in the world, and other aspects," the memo said.

Although the yearbook does not rank among the more important functions of the Agriculture Department - at least not on a par with price supports or food stamps the rapidity of Block's decision appears to reflect a couple of his basic philosophies.

For example, Block has said he intends to be an outspoken advocate of farmers whenever and wherever he can. Also, he is a strong advocate of expanded farm exports as a way to future prosperity for American producers The yearbook thus could become an important public relations vehicle for both of those views and, in the case of expanded exports, help calm any fears among consumer groups that Americans will wind up paying a lot more for groceries.

Key officials in the Carter administration had opted for doing this year's volume on "Land" and stress its importance in much the same way Block wants to address the question of whether there will be enough food.

Gifford's memorandum, which was circulated widely in the department's agencies, made no mention of the previous, tentative yearbook subject for 1981.

"We will need to think about the best approach to writing this book," he said in the memo. "It is primarily a 'reading' book, rather than a 'how to do it' book whose subject makes you want to take the book home to learn how to do something."

Instead, Gifford said, the new yearbook will require "some good writing to make it sparkle" and "some very pointed issues that affect people's livelihoods" so they will want to read it.

"The issues, dilemmas and questions must be approached realistically from the reader's viewpoint so that it isn't a 'public relations for agriculture' book which says 'aren't we wonderful!," he said. "The book should continually answer the reader's question: 'Why should I care?""

> Reports from district Extension directors showed these conditions.

> PANHANDLE: Wheat needs rain. Fertilizer and herbicides are being applied to land in preparation for spring planting. Most range cattle remain in good condition, with feeding active.

SOUTH PLAINS: Both irrigated and dryland wheat is doing well enough to provide grazing, but moisture is short in some areas. Farmers are preparing for spring planting, and may soon start preplant irrigation. Feeding of range cattle continues. Some ginning of cotton modules is still under way.

ROLLING PLAINS: Small grains are making limited growth due to dry conditions and greenbugs. Cattle grazing wheat are making excellent gains, but there have been some problems with wheat poisoning where grazing has not been supplemented with dry feed. NORTHEAST: moisture remains short and winter pastures. Greenbugs and mites are increasing in hay supplies getting short.

FAR WEST: Most of the area has adequate moisture, boosting range grasses and poisonous plants, which have killed some horses and cattle in Pecos County and in other areas. Some livestock feeding continues. Calving is in progress. Cotton harvest is about complete, and carrot harvesting is active in Reeves and Loving counties.

WEST CENTRAL: Most of the area has good moisture, with small grains making excellent growth. Greenbugs and rust disease are increasing in some fields. Only a few fields of cotton remain to be harvested, with yields and quality extremely low. Livestock feeding remains heavy despite improved grazing. Lambing has started.

CENTRAL: Soil moisture remains critically short and many stock ponds low. Spring land preparation continues but farmers are concerned about dry conditions. Wheat is making limited growth, with lack of moisture, greenbugs and winter grain mites all causing problems. Cattle feeding continues.

EAST: Recent rains have helped small grains and winter pastures, but more moisture is needed. Land preparation for cropland continues, with some early vegetables being planted. Heavy hay feeding has kept most cattle in good condition but has depleted hay supinues in most areas SOUTH CENTRAL: Soil moisture is still short and stock water is low in many areas. Rains at mid-week should give some boost to small grains and winter pastures. Cattle are in fair shape, with feeding active. Pecan trees are being sprayed with dormant oil to protect against scale insects.

SOUTHWEST: Forage conditions have improved greatly due to recent moisture. However, livestock feeding continues. Harvesting of cabbage, spinach and carrots continues in full swing. However, the cabbage market has dropped sharply and some farmers are thinking about plowing the crop under. Farmers are applying preplant irrigations to get cropland ready for planting.

COASTAL BEND: Wheat, oats and flax are making good growth due to adequate moisture. Greenbugs are in a few wheat fields. Livestock generally have good grazing although supplemental feeding continues. Most fields are ready to plant although recent rains have caused some delays in final land preparations.

cut down on things I do eat. I ed — which can be dangerous. with me anymore because I'm DEAR READER - You should have professional help while you are trying to lose as is no underlying medical problem that is a factor. I presume that has been done. There are diseases that affect metabolism and cause severe obesity Then you will need to be on a diet that does not cause you to lose too much salt and water, or your body chemistry will become seriously affect-

Even so, I would like you to check to see how fast you lose on it. If you are losing more than two pounds a week, add a few calories of fresh fruits or vegetables to avoid losing too fast. And check in with your doctor as you progress. Many diet pills do cause problems. In general, I think it is best to follow a sensible diet and exercise program and lose weight gradually but safely and permanently.
