

Highlights Of Fun Breakfast

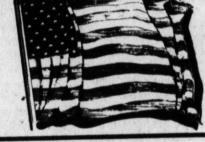

Fun, games and presentation of the Bull Chip award highlighted the Fun Breakfast here this morning at the Community Center. Emcees Doug Manning and Lynton Allred came dressed in business suits, but Cowgiri Hall of Fame officials reminded them it was Western Day by "redressing" the pair. In the middle photo, Manning presents the Bull Chip to Travis Shields for his work with the Hereford Riders Club and the All-Girl Rodeo. One of the games, right, featured a stick-horse race, but the riders are not going two directions. Denise Smith is guiding the "horse" and Dean Herring is riding backwards.

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan, wondering why no one ever tried to shoot him before, says he won't be afraid to leave the White House again but "I have a hunch I'll be more alert" after last month's assassination attempt.

Moderate Energy Prices Events coming up in the Events

WASHINGTON (AP) -The nation's cost of living increased at an annual rate of 7.5 percent in March, bringing inflation below doubledigit levels due mainly to moderating energy prices, the Labor Department reported today.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a 0.6 percent seasonally adjusted rise in the cost of living for the month, substantially below the 1 percent increase registered in February and the lowest one-month increase since July 1980's 0.1 percent.

The bureau said the slowdown in energy prices resulted in the smallest increases in transportation and housing costs in seven months. The Consumer Price Index showed that energy prices continued to rise in March but not by nearly the margin of the previous two months. Fuel oil prices rose 2.7 percent in March, following increases of 7.5 percent in January and 8.5 percent in February, department officials said. Charges for natural gas and electricity rose 0.8 percent, compared with increases of 1 percent and 1.4 percent earlier in the

Brady Undergoes Brain Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) -Surgeons closed a hole in the bullet-pierced brain of White House press secretary James S. Brady early today after a buildup of air had caused potentially dangerous pressure inside his skull. Brady was reported "very stable" through the 54-hour operation and in no danger. The operation, which began late Wednesday and lasted past midnight, was described officially as "non-urgent." It followed the insertion of needles into Brady's brain to drain off air in fluid canals.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, spokesman for George Washington University

Hospital, said the 40-year-old Brady was awake and "wiggling his toes" on his way to the recovery room.

O'Leary added, however, that doctors are "guarded" about the success of the repair, saying that would not be known for a few days.

The air leak and the surgery resulting represented a "setback in terms of the totality of (Brady's) recovery" from the serious head wound he suffered in a March 30 assassination attempt on President Reagan, O'Leary

Flood Warnings Issued in Texas

By The Associated Press

Heavy thunderstorms drenched the Hill Country and portions of South Central Texas early today, prompting the National Weather Service to issue flash flood warnings for several areas.

The heavy thunderstorms also dumped hail ranging from the size of golf balls to baseball-size over areas near Del Rio and some hail was reported in other areas of South Central Texas.

Some of the heaviest rainfall recorded during the night was at Del Rio where 1.38 inches fell during a nine-hour period ending at 5 a.m.

Forecasters said rivers, creaks and streams were already filled with earlier rainfall when heavy rains early today threatened to send them out of their banks.

Rainfall totals of between two to four inches were common over a vast area across the southern half of the state. Heavy rain also fell in North Texas and North Central Texas.

The flash flood warnings also warned of the possible flooding of low level crossings and urged motorists to be careful and be watchful for possible high water on roadways.

Flash flood warnings that expired early today covered several counties, including Real, Uvalde, Bandera and Edwards Counties. Many other counties remained under a flash flood watch throughout the day.

Forecasts called for continued showers and thunderstorms over all

A cease-fire ordered Wednesday evening by Lebanese President Elias Sarkis appeared to be taking hold today in the capital, except for occasional bursts from snipers, as Syrian and Christian tanks and artillery fell

It was the 19th truce ordered by Sarkis since Syrian artillery attacked the Christians in Zahle on April 1.

But police reported continuing exchanges of gunfire between Syrian forces besieging Zahle and Christian Phalange Party defenders on two hills overlooking the city.

Fighting Wednesday in Beirut set fire to scores of buildings on both sides of the Green Line frontier dividing Christian East Beirut from the Moslem West.

At the same time, rival leftist Lebanese Moslem militias fought their own war in several areas of the Moslem sector. Police said five people were killed and 12 wounded as the pro-Iraqi and pro-Iranian militiamen dueled with automatic weapons and rocket grenades. Hundreds have died in such clashes since the Iran-Iraq war started seven months ago

Teacher Competency

Testing Bill Okayed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A bill requiring the coming generation of school teachers to prove their competence before entering classrooms has gained preliminary approval in the Texas House.

The Senate-passed measure advanced Wednesday on a voice vote and was set for final action today.

Administrators who have clamored for the legislation got a surprise, however, on Wednesday when the House added an amendment requiring competency testing for them, too.

Rep. Mary Polk, D-El Paso, proposed the change, and Rep. Wayne Peveto, D-Orange, sponsor of the bill, said, "Her amendment is so logical I've got to accept it."

The bill directs the State Board of Education to require college students to pass "a competency examination of basic skills" before entering teacher training programs. After graduation, a person could be certified as a teacher only after passing a "comprehensive examination" prescribed by the board.

The board also would have authority to issue various levels of teaching certificates, based on education, experience, competency and special duties.

The Good Name of Hinckley

Manhattan myopia was never more conspicuous than when some TV network executives frantically deleted the name "Hinckley" from pretaped episodes of 'Greatest American Hero."

Immediately following the shooting of the president they renamed their hero "Mister H" and vowed that in future tapings they will give him an

I hate to buy things that don't show. Okay, so I admit it. I'm a snob, but you can't get respect out of a root canal or new underwear.

You could fork out a couple of big bills and have a septic tank so clean you could cook in it, but does anyone care? Plant a few geraniums in the side yard by the garbage can and people go crazy. My whole house is flash and show. You walk into it and the first thing that hits you is the immaculate order of things. All the drawers are closed. There is a feeling of neatness. You know without asking that the people who live here have clean fingernails and pay their paper boy on time with cash.

Behind a closed door under the sink is a cookie sheet born the year "The Wizard of Oz" was shown for the first time. Inside the bottom drawer are dish towels so dingy that if a child played with them, you'd make him put them down because you "don't know where they've been."

In the "catch-all" drawer is a pair of reading glasses made whole by a paper clip connecting the stem to the frame. Outside is a 45-foot garden hose with a torn-sheet tournquet every three or four feet that puts the leaks in traction.

If something doesn't show, we don't fix it, paint it, empty it, clean it, cover it, deodorize it, polish it, alter it, bleach it, wax it, or recognize it in public.

Maybe if there were more of an incentive, we'd pay attention to non-visibles. Perhaps a sign by the front door that reads, "This house has just had a termite inspection and has been declared clean." Or, "The pad under this crummy carpet is waffled for comfort with little air pockets and it's the top of the line."

I learned a long time ago not to waste my time on things that could not be seen. I never sewed up a pocket in a winter coat, never hemmed a slip that you could turn over at the waistband, never bought a water heater until the basement flooded, never replaced the tiles behind the stove, never threw away the scissors with half the tip broken off.

All you people out there who paint the inside of closets -and you all know who you are - listen to me. It's like having your light burn out in the refrigerator. Who knows when the

Why UPS can't pick up this packade in Texas deliver it in Texas. And what we're trying to do about it.

Every day, people in Texas ask us to deliver packages for them to other places in Texas. Unfortunately, we have to refuse. The reason is, UPS does not have intrastate operating authority in Texas*

We can carry a parcel from Texas, to any address in the continental United States—except to another address in Texas.

To change that we've been requesting intrastate authority in Texas for some years.

WHAT UPS OFFERS

You might ask, why change anything? Can't people use other carriers for their Texas parcels, like US Parcel Post? Of course they can.

But thousands of locations in Texas do not now have prompt dependable, door-to-door parcel service—the kind UPS is known for

We pick up and deliver at any address in Texas, every business day, if that's what's We provide proof-of-delivery, automatic loss or damage protection up to $100 per package. and many other services. And we do it economically: as little as $1.13 for a one-pound package going up to 150 miles.

COD service is also available.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

For thousands of Texans, not being able to use UPS for Texas parcels is a serious problem. A hardware wholesaler in Dallas, for example, can't supply a store in Longview, Texas, as promptly or economically as a competitive wholesaler in Shreveport, Louisiana, can.

The Tony Lama Boot Company in El Paso spends extra time and money trucking parcels into New Mexico. UPS is then permitted to take them back into Texas for distribution.

WE'D LIKE YOUR HELP

The Texas Legislature is now discussing a bill which would clarify the authority of the Texas Railroad Commission (the agency that regulates transportation matters) to consider requests such as ours to provide service to and from all points in Texas.

We think this bill would be a step forward. and we'd like to see it pass. If you agree with us, a note to your Senator and Representative in the Texas Legislature could be very helpful.

In addition, when gloom hits, many people feel like it's their fault or it's repayment for some wrong done, Ms. Taylor says.

Discontent stirs any household, she adds.

When one person in a home is moody or gloomy, impatience abounds, quarrels break out, an aura of unrest prevails, children become unmanageable and family members seem to slip into malancholia.

HELP WANTED

The Lord now chose 70 other disciples and sent them on ahead in pairs to all the towns and villages He planned to visit later.

These were His instructions to them: "Plead with the Lord of harvest to send out more laborers to help you, for the harvest is so plentiful and the workers so few. Go now, and remember that I am sending you out as lambs among wolves. Don't take any money with you, or a beggar's bag, or even an extra pair of shoes. And don't waste time along the way.

"Whenever you enter a home, give it your blessing. And if it is worthy of the blessing, the blessing will stand; if not, the blessing will return

"When you enter a village, don't shift around from home to home, but stay in one place, eating and drinking without question whatever is set before you. And don't hesitate to accept hospitality, for the workman is worthy of his wages!

"If a town welcomes you, follow these two rules; (1) Eat whatever is set before you. (2) Heal the sick; and as you heal them, say, 'The Kingdom of God is very near you now.

"But if a town refuses you, go out into its streets and say. 'We wipe the dust of your town from our feet as a public announcement of your doom. Never forget how close you were to the Kingdom of God!' Even wicked Sodom will be better off than such a cify on the Judgment Day." Luke 19:1-12

Remembering When 'Tampa Red'

CHICAGO (AP) - With the sun shining warm overhead, they put Tampa Red in the ground without so much as a head stone to mark the spot.

His age was anywhere from 73 to 81 when a heart attack felled him a month ago, and the sparsely attended services seemed a cruel and obscure way for one of the greatest legends of the "blues" to meet his maker.

But it's likely Red wouldn't have minded - time had passed his music by once and he was in no mood for a revival when the opportunity

"The only harm I ever did was to myself. But other than that, I have no regrets. I met a lot of good people," he told an interviewer several years ago. "I ain't gonna tell nobody that I haven't did good in the music business."

His career began spectacularly during the era of "race" music with a 78 rpm disc entitled, "It's Tight Like That" and ended quietly almost 30 years ago.

Sadly, both he and his music might have endured. But in the early 1950s, disheartened by the deaths of his wife, Frances, and his pianist, Big Maceo Merriweather, Red laid down his guitar and starting telling his troubles to a bottle.

At the same time, the hardedged, amplified blues from Memphis and the Mississippi

Delta were fast overtaking the music of men like Tampa Red. While many of his finest blues survived, it was through the more modern interpretation of musicians like B.B. King, Elmore James and Little Walter. His drinking problem had faded by the late 1950s, but so had most of his money and almost all of his desire to play. He left a hospital frail and somewhat senile and lived for several years with an old friend on the South Side, the two subsisting on meager government checks and what little money dripped in from Tampa's royalties.

When the blues enjoyed a revival during the mid-1960s at college campuses and small clubs across the nation, Tampa was nowhere to be found.

"When I came back from the road, it took me three or four years to find him, and when I did, he was a total Davis, a pianist who'd devotees, smoking cigarette recorded with Tampa and was his informal caretaker for the last 10 years.

"Oh, he could still play and his voice was good and strong. He had the same power, but it just seemed like he'd lost all interest after Frances passed," Davis said. "He never did do much good after that."

The end found Tampa in a nursing home, forgotten by wreck," said Blind John all but a few friends and after hand-rolled cigarette. It wasn't always like that.

Composed and performed in 1928 by Tampa and "Georgia Tom" Dorsey (who later made his mark writing gospel music for Mahalia Jackson), "It's Tight Like That" was the first in a string of commercial hits that would make the "Guitar Wizard" the most prolific blues artist of his time.

COMMENTARY

Don Graff Foreign phonies

If you can tear your attention away from autos, steel and electronics for a minute, there's yet another long-established domestic industry that has reason to be worried about foreign Counterfeiting.

The makers of foreign phony money are now responsible for 20 percent of all counterfeit bills going into circulation in the United States by the reckoning of experts who know this field best — the Secret Service. In addition to the protection of presidents, the Treasury Department agency is charged with responsibility for policing the purity of the American money

That job is, however, becoming tougher because of the increasingly serious import problem that the Secret Service is increasingly serious import problem that the foreign plants where the unable to attack at its source - the foreign plants where the presses are turning out the look-alike greenbacks.

These are located in a number of countries, but by far the most prolific producer is Colombia, so much so that the Secret Service has sought authorization for an official presence

Colombian-printed notes accounted for about a million of the $5.5 million in foreign counterfeits that got into the country last year. Much more — $60.8 million in face value — was confiscated abroad by local authorities, which is good news in its way but somewhat less so when you consider what it says about the magnitude of the foreign operations.

The operators, both foreign and domestic, like everyone else these days are having to adjust to inflation. Given their way of making money, it's easy — just raise the face value of bills. Largely for that reason, the take in counterfeit money during 1980 had a face value 20 percent above that of the

The long-established favorite phony — the $20 bill — was down by 5 percent while $100 notes were up 69 percent.

That is not necessarily all bad from the Secret Service point of view. A counterfeiter managing to pass $100 gets away with a much larger profit than in the case of a $20. But the beauty of a $20 for counterfeiting purposes has always been its familiarity — so many handled so frequently that few people bother to scrutinize them for authenticity.

Benjamin Franklin's portrait, on the other hand, isn't seen by most of us all that often. Which means it is more likely to prompt a second look, thereby increasing the chances of Stanley Sporkin, head of the enforcement division of the Securities and Exchange Commission, will be general counsel of the CIA.

Going from a job where he fought for corporate disclosure to one that has helped guard the nation's secrets, Sporkin was praised Tuesday by acting SEC Chairman Philip A. Loomis Jr. for contributions to government, investors and the capital markets "beyond calculation" since he took over in 1974.

However, "no single statute or combination will cover all foreseeable commercial applications of genetic engineering," the report from the Office of Technology Assessment, two years in preparation, said Tuesday.

That would be prohibited by the antislavery provisions of the Constitution, she said. But she acknowledged that such protection might not be so clear in the unlikely event someone created useful subhuman lifeforms.

Sub-Cabinet Positions Help with Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) - It may not have been designed this way, but the Reagan administration's delay in filling sub-Cabinet positions means that there are fewer officials dissent from the president's proposed budget

The time it has taken to fill the dozens of assistant secretary jobs in government departments has become a cause celebre in Washington. That's the way it always is about 100 days into a new administration.

This year, White House officials are blaming the delay on the extensive security and conflict-of-interest checks required by new laws, as well as the amount of time Senate committees are spending on their reviews of the nominees. But there is little indication that they are troubled by the delays.

After all, said presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, assistant secretaries have traditionally become part of the alliance that fights cuts in spending for specific pro-

"That's one of the reasons why it's better to have an empty office than one filled with a holdover, and when you do fill the office, it will be with someone who is absolutely committed to the goals and objectives of this president," Meese said in an interview shortly after the Reagan administration took

"I don't think the administration has been crippled," he said.

One Carter administration holdover, a Democrat who criticized White House political operations in the past four years, speaks approvingly now about what he sees as a more political orientation that can mean more White House control over the departments.

One White House official, asking anonymity, said the appointments process is running at the same speed as in previous administrations. But having said that, he added: "If you are as slow as we are, you have a lag" in getting a program under way.

New Oil Drilling Rig Announced Because the rig is highly mobile, more money and

After its apparent success with the Action Rig, TAGCO Industries of Hereford is preparing to release its second drilling rig, the Citation Electro Rig A 131-500. The company which has operated in the area for 11 years, turned its attention to the oil industry about two years ago releasing the first drilling rig in October of 1980.

'We started working in the oil field about two years ago because of the high demand," Tim Gearn, co-owner of the business.

The demand seems to be increasing as the company is presently building four more diesel electric rigs.

The Citation has a $4.2 million price tag. Because of the advanced technology, a drilling company will be able to save several hundred thousand dollars in fuel and moving cost alone according to the industries figures.

"The diesel electric power is unique in rigs of this size. The operation is similar to that of a locomotive converting diesel to electricity. It will save a company about $400 a day compared to the conventional rigs," Tim continued.

There are also fewer mechanical parts and is more portable than a conventional time is saved. In most drilling operations, a minimum of five to seven days is required to disassemble and reassemble a rig in a new location. This rig can be moved or "rigged-up or down" usually in one or two days.

The substructure which is what the mast or derrick rests on is called a T-sub and provides for a larger working

The substructure is disassembled in two parts and requires to trucks to move it. A conventional rig would require four trucks the owners explained.

"We are the only ones building electric rigs which will drill about 12,000 feet. As far as I know we are the only ones in the world building this type," Tim explained.

When comparing the new rig to a conventional mechanical rig, during a three year period, the Citation and other Silcone Controlled Rectifier rigs have the possibility of saving $1.6

Red-Hot Oakland Wins Again

In the Oakland A's bullpen, they play a waiting game. "We sit out there cheering and yelling, trying to keep sharp so we're ready when they need us," Jeff Jones says of the little-used A's relief corps. For a change, though, an Oakland starter didn't complete a game Wednesday and Jones was thrown into the breach to save a 2-1 victory over the Minnesota Twins, the 14th in 15 games for the red-hot A's.

'I guess it's been determined that the bullpen won't be used that often," said Jones. "But when we are, we want to contribute."

Both Jones and Craig Minetto came on in the ninth inning and saved the game for starter Brian Kingman. Jones retired the last two Twins batters to earn the A's first save of the season.

"It couldn't have come too soon," said Manager Billy Martin of the relief help. "We looked dog-eared out there today. A day and a half of rest will do us all some good."

Last year, the A's put together a major-league-high 94 complete games. Before Wednesday, they had recorded 12 route-going jobs in 14 starts. In other American League

Home Ownership: A President's Perspective

"The ownership of a home, the feeling of independence that comes with the possession of a bit of the earth are among the most powerful incentives to high civic interest and usefulness."

Calvin Coolidge, 30th President

For more than 200 years, the right to private ownership of real estate has been the powerful incentive that allowed the pioneers to expand west and settle this country.

Today, however, some state and local governments are limiting growth with restrictive zoning laws, unrealistic building codes, etc. They prevent people from exercising the right to buy homes in these areas.

To call attention to this right, to celebrate and preserve it, the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS® is currently observing Private Property Week. We invite you to join us -the 65% of American adults who already own their homes and the others who hope to.

If we all participate, we'll not only protect our private property rights, we'll also protect our free enterprise system and our political freedom, too. And after all aren't these what America is all about?

DEAR DR. LAMB - My daughter is 16 years old. She has never had sex or been involved with pills. She has had her period since she was 14, but all of a sudden it stopped. She hasn't had it for three months. We took her to a gynecologist and she was examined for cysts or tumors or pregnancy. All results were negative. Now he wants her back in a month if her period does not come. My daughter refuses to have any more examinations. Will her periods begin again anyway? What kind of treatment would the doctor give her? I don't want her to get involved with pills as I understand most pills are cancerous. I have raised her to keep away from all kinds of pills and drugs.

DEAR READER — There are many reasons for a young woman to stop having menstrual periods. It is common for a girl to be irregular at the beginning of sexual maturity. Starting and then stopping is not unusual. You were correct in having an examination. Sometimes a hormone imbalance will cause this. Depending upon the nature of the imbalance, the doctor may want to prescribe some hormones. If he did prescribe medicines you could be fairly certain they would be some form of hormones to stimulate the onset of menstruation or to help to

DEAR DR. LAMB - A

of cancerous testicles. I real-hormones?

I can't say if she needs them. She may not. Many young girls stop menstruating or delay the onset because they are too thin. We see that in women athletes and in ballet dancers who have very scant fat deposits.

Crash diets and unwise fad diets are a frequent problem in young girls these days. I hope you have encouraged your daughter to learn to eat properly and not to have a misconception about the need to be thin. It may be stylish to be thin, but too thin is unhealthy and it can affect a girl's normal functions.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have dark circles under my eyes. I understand this results from being thin skinned. Is there any way besides makeup to eliminate this problem? I am about 10 pounds underweight. I wish I could get rid of this problem for good.

DEAR READER - I get this question rather often. It always makes me wonder. Many women use eyeshadow for makeup, but others are upset if nature gave them a little natural eyeshadow. Dark circles can be covered with makeup, which is fine if a woman wishes to use it, but I also get this complaint from

DEAR POLLY - Our County Extension Service suggests using mineral oil on a cutting board, instead of the cooking oil a reader suggested.

I cut out your columns and put them in scrapbooks to give as gifts at bridal showers. - ISABELLE DEAR POLLY - I always had trouble threading a needle with yarn until I began using the following method: From the stiff cover of a magazine I cut strips three-fourths of an inch long and twice as wide as the eye of the needle is long. I then fold the pieces of paper in half and lay the end of the yarn between a piece of the folded paper. The paper with the yarn will slide through the eye of the needle. I always use a magazine cover because it is slicker than the inside pages. I cut ten or more pieces at one time, put in a small pill bottle and keep with my needlework. — EVELYN

DEAR POLLY — I save the hot, soapy and lightly bleached water as it comes out of my washing machine, after washing white sheets or towels that are not really too dirty. This makes excellent scrub water for the bathroom and kitchen. -

DEAR POLLY - I have a fine remedy for stopping ants from coming in windows and doors next to the floor. Squeeze a lemon and put the juice where they come in, and find they will not cross the line of juice. — MINNIE
