EARL W. WILSON DEFEATS W. E. DAMERON; HILL IS VICTOR OVER TROY WOMBLE

A CLEAN CAMPAIGN, WITH NO EXCITEMENT WHATEVER. COMMISSIONER ALLRED IS AGAIN RETURNED TO THE COURT

BIG INTEREST IN GOVERNOR'S RACE

Robertson, Klan Candidate, Far in Lead For First Place on Ticket; Mrs. Miriam Ferguson Apparently Sure of Second Place on Ticket in Coming Runoff

Earl W. Wilson was named as the democratic nominee for county judge over Judge W. E. Dameron at Saturday's primary election by a rather heavy margin. County commissioner J. E. Hill was reelected over Troy Womble by closer figures, and J. C. Allred was also returned as commissioner for precinct four over his opponent, B. J. Mecaskey. There were no other contests in the county.

It was perhaps for this reason that the election was the most quiet and uninteresting held here in years. It was probably the cleanest election on record, also, not a ripple disturbing the surface of good will on all sides.

Supporters of General Barton figured Deaf Smith county would go for the Adjutant General beyond doubt but were surprised when Lynch Davidson nosed him out by a few votes and took the lead.

Lacking local color the deponents are now greatly interested in the outcome for second place in the governor's race. Thursday Mrs. Miriam Ferguson was in second place with a lead of 4393 over Lynch Davidson, although the latter will not concede his defeat. There are some fifteen counties yet to hear from. Judge Felix Robertson, Dallas, continued to increase his lead for first place with a plurality of 46,984 votes.

Totals for the gubernatorial candidates follow:

Robertson 181,808; Ferguson 134,828; L. Davidson 130,433; Whit Davidson 114,376; Barton 27,431; Collins 24,709; Burkett 20,048; Pope 16,507; Dixon 4,058.

Barry Miller of Dallas continued to hold his slight margin over W. C. Edwards of Denton, for leading candidate for the lieutenant governorship.

Totals for the county of Deaf Smith Saturday were:

For United States Senator: Maddox 81, Sheppard 538, Davis 175.

This Sale Will Disperse Champion Lot of Hogs

There never was a time in local history when the farmers had enough good hogs to breed from. Prices the past few years have depressed the industry but recent rises in the market are encouraging. The wise farmers are hanging on to the best blood they can get for foundation stock for the future.

In the Harrison & Turrentine Sale Friday afternoon at the farm west of town the people of this community have a rare opportunity to secure seed stock from the very best there is to buy. It would be a crime to allow these fine blooded animals to leave this community. They are needed here. Here's some of the history back of this sale list:

Queen Sensation, sold at Lubbock on a cold, snowy day, small crowd, for $3,500; and her mate, Sensation Queen, sold in the Alexander, Muchie & Jones Sale for $1,000. Sired by a full brother to the world's Grand Champion.

Sensation Pride—Grand Champion at Canyon and Childress in 1922. Took second place at Dallas State Fair; beaten by Originator of Kansas City; making Pride the best boar in the state. Sired by Sensation Type, the grand champion in Oklahoma City and Dallas in 1921. Type was sired by Great Orion Sensation, the world's grand champion in 1919 and 1921.

E. W. Harrison always buys the best and will fool with nothing else. He has the best elevator in the Plains country; has the best pair of mules in the Panhandle. These hogs are the product of the best top buying for several years. Not a chicken-eating hog in the bunch. Six of the sows in the sale farrowed 52 pigs in one lot and raised 48 of them. He sold two sows to Brumley & Son last week because they were not good mothers. Every tried sow in the sale is a real mother.

Hereford Can Soon Boast of a Completed Five Stand Cotton Gin That Is As Good as Any Gin, Anywhere

Hereford's new cotton gin is rapidly nearing completion. A Continental Gin expert is here erecting the machinery and Messrs. Johnson and Moore state that within another week or so they hope to have the plant in such advanced condition that they can hold an "opening," and invite the farmers and others interested to visit the gin and be shown through and told what it is all about.

Word may be safely passed abroad that Hereford has a gin the equal of anything to be found anywhere. It's simply the last word in cotton gin machinery, a five stand eighty affair, with the very latest boly attachments, cleaning devices, etc., and housed in a building amply large enough to take care of every demand.

The new gin stands proper are on the second floor, the lower floor being used for belts, shafting, etc. There is a double press so that while one bale is being completed another is on the way. The proprietors say that this gin can easily handle 100 bales per day with a day and night shift, and that they will guarantee their plant to get the most out of any cotton that may be brought them this fall.

"Tell them," said Mr. Moore, "that we will be prepared to handle cotton in almost any quantity and will give the best service to be found anywhere. No man can do more than that."

It's worth a long trip to look at the new gin. If you have the chance just say down that way and get an eye opener.

New Dentist Has Decided to Make Hereford Home

A new dentist has thrown in his lot with Hereford and established offices in rooms one and two, Ediston building, over J. O. Newell's. He is Dr. J. P. Lloyd, who comes here from St. Louis. Dr. Lloyd's father lives at Floydada and he has been spending a vacation there recently.

The new citizen has been here several days, and was joined here Thursday by his wife. For the present they are at the Cordova Hotel but have arranged for rooms in the Homer Fox home.

Dr. Lloyd is a young man, modernly equipped, and full of pep and enthusiasm. He has made a lot of friends right off the reel and is busy making more every day. His office is partly furnished and he will be ready for business in a few days as soon as all his furniture arrives.

Local Pen Women Aid in Special Edition of Globe

The Panhandle Pen Women's edition of the Amarillo Globe was dated Tuesday, July 29, and required four sections to accommodate the mass of well-handled, well-written stories from the pens of the various members of the unique organization over the Panhandle. Mrs. R. S. Thompson of Amarillo was Managing Editor for the edition.

The Hereford page carried photographs of Mrs. B. F. Guthrie and Miss Ina Gregg and a picture of the Hereford cotton gin. Mrs. Guthrie contributed an article on the history of the various women's clubs and civic and business activities of the city, and Miss Gregg a story entitled "The Knocker and the Chimney."

The various business interests of the city were well represented in the advertising on the Hereford page.

Lights Play Out; Hits Wire Fence; Throat Badly Cut

Jack Wilson, who has been working for Tom Galloway in the western portion of this county, was almost decapitated Monday night when he ran his car into a wire fence while traveling without lights.

Wilson was enroute to a neighbors with a companion when his lights went out. He turned and started for home, got off the road and hit the fence. The three lower strands parted but the top wire caught him under the chin and dragged him from the car. Terrible wounds were inflicted in his left ear and throat, the tear extending around half way on the right side of his neck. A merciful Providence spared his jugular vein and windpipe.

He was brought to Hereford and taken to the sanitarium, where Dr. LeGrand and Dr. Hicks dressed his wounds and at last reports he was expected to recover. His companion was bruised but otherwise unharmed. Mr. Wilson is about forty six years of age and has a wife and three children. He formerly worked for Geo. L. Muse, banker.

Mr. and Mrs. Womack Return Home Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Womack returned Wednesday evening from a motor trip to Fort Worth, Cross Plains and other Texas points. Mrs. John Womack and son, John Lee, Jr., and Misses Alice and Ary Fay Womack, who have been visiting in Crawford, Texas, returned with the party.

COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION TO BE ENTERTAINED BY PEOPLE OF HEREFORD

ALL-DAY PROGRAM OF DUETS, QUARTETTES, AND ENSEMBLE SINGING, BEGINNING AT 10 O'CLOCK IN FORENOON

CHURCHES ARE ASKED TO LEND AID

Better Community Spirit and Feeling Will Be Engendered Through Closer Social Intercourse. Barbecued Meat and Bread May Be Provided By Committee

A real, old-fashioned Hereford picnic was decided upon by the business men at the Cordova Hotel last Monday. The date selected was the second Sunday in August, and the reason for that date was the fact that the County Singing Convention is scheduled to be held on the east side of the courthouse lawn on that day.

A special committee on arrangements was appointed by Chairman Homer Wilkinson, as follows: E. B. Black, chairman, A. M. Jones and W. E. Dameron. This committee is empowered to decide what is necessary and to have charge of arrangements.

It has been felt that for some time that a community picnic was about due, but this date was selected after Judge Dameron and G. A. F. Parker had made earnest appeals at the luncheon for support in properly entertaining the coming singing convention. Judge Dameron stated that at the recent convention at Progressive he and Mr. Parker had asked for this meeting and received it after being warned that some of the country people felt that if they came to Hereford they would not be noticed and the Hereford people would eat their dinner at home instead of mingling with the visitors.

The business men present expressed themselves as being determined to disprove any such idea as this, and it was unanimously resolved to put on a real picnic on August 10 and to show

Panhandle Lumber Co. Lets Contract For a Bungalow

Another splendid "sign of the times" is the announcement this week of the Panhandle Lumber Company that they have given a contract to Buckner, Lambert & Carter for the erection of a modern bungalow on the lot just north of the B. Frank Bule home, which this company also built.

The new house will be plastered inside with full basement. It will be offered for sale when completed.

Hereford is always in need of houses and the policy of this enterprising concern is one that ought to be appreciated by the public at large.

the singing convention that Hereford is delighted to have them. The churches are to be asked to hold no morning services on that date but to join in with the convention at the morning hour instead and to bring baskets and eat with the visitors at noon on the courthouse lawn. The special committee in charge may decide to have barbecued meat, bread, etc., in addition to the baskets, but this will be announced definitely later.

The complete program for the singing convention August 10 is shown in another part of this paper.

The diners Monday were treated to several bursts of rare eloquence. Dr. Overton read a flowery resolution protesting against the present prices for watermelons and asking that the price be reduced to one cent per pound. The Doctor said copies of the resolution had been forwarded to the candidates for governor, the president, Coolidge, Dawes, and others, and he read some of the replies, as follows:

Lynch Davidson: "More people would buy them if they were shipped in wooden boxes. Regards to Rockwell."

Joe Burkett: "Use Eastland county oil."

Felix Robinson: "Wrap them in a sheet, with two eye holes for ventilation."

T. Davidson: "Yours for more watermelons—T. Watermelon Davidson."

V. A. Collins: "Plant the golf grounds in watermelons. It is an economic mistake to support so many useless citizens."

W. E. Pope: "Expect to get the biggest vote in Deaf Smith county—Geo. L. Muse."

Mrs. Miriam Ferguson: "Jim says if I'm elected he will veto any water legislation. He cut one melon and has been having Hall Columbia ever since."

Geo. W. Dixon: "Never heard of Deaf Smith county!"

General Barton: "Will use National Guard and Texas Rangers to protect interests of West Texas in general and Deaf Smith county in particular. Will name Uncle John Estes to look after interests in West Texas."

President Coolidge: "Have referred entire matter to Campbell Bascomb Slomp."

Dawes: "Hell and Maria!"

But the real surprise of the luncheon, however, was furnished when Edwin Ramey of Castro county arose to the occasion when called upon for a speech and literally outshone even the eloquent Dr. Overton for the time with heights to which his discourse led his hearers. Mr. Ramey has been visiting Hereford for many years, but even his closest admirers were startled by his command of the English language Monday. He concluded by inviting Hereford people to a railroad meeting at Dimmitt next Saturday night, and by stating that a first class gin would be built at Dimmitt this year. "The only way for that gin to be built this year," said the speaker, "is for Uncle Sam's money to lose its purchasing power."

J. Ray, former Hereford editor and present Amarillo capitalist, delivered a neat address, recalling Hereford of twenty one years ago and predicting good things for the future.

T. S. Benton of Brackettville, Texas, said briefly that his home town was 600 miles south of Hereford, only thirty miles from an international bridge, on a splendid highway, that was probably one of the world's heaviest traffic arteries just now!

It was a dandy good meeting, well attended, and full of pep. Next Monday the luncheon will be spread at the City Cafe.

He took my arm and opened the door, we sat down on the back seat of his beautiful car. Instantly he produced a flash, and from the pocket of the car a bottle and two glasses. "See what a thoughtful little boy I am," said Ted. "Ginger Ale for the ladies."

"I propped my silver-slipped feet on the little seat of the car and sighed contentedly. "That's some dress, Sallie," said Ted; "but I'd..."

Phew! — SOME choice offered Democrats in the general election! Hold your nose an dtake your pick.

It is alleged that the country folks of Deaf Smith county think if they come to Hereford for a picnic the town folks will eat at home and not pay attention to the visitors.

There is probably some truth in this. It's just the way of the world, year in and year out. There is something going on in town nearly all the time and the town folks sometimes get careless about such things. There is no intent to be discourteous, however. It's merely a bad habit that is quickly corrected when attention is called to it, as a rule. Country people notice such lapses more quickly because they do not have the opportunities for mixing with their fellow men that town folks do.

On Sunday, August 10 the County Singing Convention will meet on the east side of the courthouse in Hereford. Here's Hereford's grand opportunity to show the folks from the country that they ARE friendly, and sociable, and appreciate their visitors.

Remember that date—August 10—and bring your basket and your hospitality.

FLOW EARLY AND STOP EVAPORATION

Whether in Canada where the growing season is short; in Nebraska where high winds and bright sunshine cause rapid evaporation; or in almost any other section—you can raise bigger crops if you plow early and deep.

This fact has been proven in hundreds of government and other official tests. For example, tests made by the Central Experiment Farm, Ottawa, Canada, show that a delay of one week in seeding wheat resulted in a 20 per cent decrease; of four weeks, 58 per cent decrease. The decrease in barley for the same periods were respectively 24, 28, 40 and 48 per cent.

Tests made in various agricultural colleges, over periods ranging from five to eleven years, showing an average of five or more bushels of wheat per acre, where plowing was done in July instead of September. On an eighty-acre field this would mean 4,400 more bushels of wheat in eleven years. At average prices, this additional yield alone goes a long way in paying for a good farm.

Investigation shows that evaporation, not lack of rainfall, is the destructive

Maybe Neither Coolidge, Davis, nor LaFollette!

Written Specially for Hereford Brand
By Edward Percy Howard
Thru Autocaster Service

Fancy a conservative newspaper publishing on its first page a story to the effect that neither Coolidge nor Davis nor La Follette will be elected President of the United States in November. At first glance such a statement might seem outside the realm of possibility, but the political situation is complex and the election machinery such that it does not require much imagination to foresee the possibility, if not the probability, of such a situation.

enemy that cuts down crop yields. The average rainfall is 330 inches, while only 10 inches is required to raise a fifty-bushel crop of corn. Rainfall in two different sections of the country may be practically the same, yet, due to high winds and almost continuous sunshine, one section has from 25 to 50 per cent greater evaporation. This means that frequently insufficient moisture remains to germinate seed sown in September.—The Oilpull Magazine.

VICTORY FOR THE COUNTRY PRESS

The first meeting of the new Democratic National Committee under the guidance of Lem Shafer, who has succeeded Cordell Hull as head of the organization, demonstrates clearly that the Democratic party has seen the last of the two-thirds rule and also the end of the unit rule. More than a substantial majority of the members of the committee, one way and another, have expressed themselves as unalterably opposed to the system which made the New York convention the most notable deadlock in the history of American politics.

The decision to abrogate the two-thirds rule and the unit rule is a marked victory for the country press, which months before the National Convention met in Madison Square Garden generally pointed out what was likely to happen unless these "checks and balances" were done away with and the delegates permitted to express themselves unhampered by the fetters of unsound political machinery.

Two or three times in New York there were indications that the fight for the abolition of the two-thirds rule would be carried vigorously to the floor, but the line-up was such that while McCadoo would have been pleased to see the two-thirds rule abrogated and the unit rule maintained, the Smith followers were just as anxious to see the unit rule set aside and the two-thirds rule maintained.

It is now pretty well recognized that the welfare of the party rises superior to the aspirations of candidates. Before the next Democratic National Convention is called the party will have shaken off the shackles of this un-American procedure. For renaissance of freedom the thanks of the country are due to the country newspapers. United the country newspapers form a commanding force that cannot be ignored.

Almost anything may happen in November.

There are 531 votes in the Electoral College. The electoral college is composed of electors to the number of Senators and Representatives to which the state is entitled. For example, New York State has two Senators and 43 Representatives. Therefore, New York has forty-five votes in the electoral college. The total membership of the electoral college equals the total membership of the Senate and House—531. In voting it will be remembered that the people vote for the electors of their states, these names appearing on the ballot, and not those of Coolidge or Davis or LaFollette.

The Constitution provides that a majority of these 531 electoral votes, or 266, is necessary to the choice of a President. The person having the greatest number of votes, of course, wins when there are only two candidates in the field, but with three the complexities begin.

Here is the constitutional clause:

"The person having the greatest number of votes (in the Electoral College) for President shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of electors appointed; and if no person having such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers, not exceeding three, on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately by ballot, the President."

Election of a President

Now let us turn to the situation. If the candidate receiving merely the largest number of electoral votes could be chosen, then the entry of LaFollette into the field would be unimportant, according to unbiased and astute political judges. But this is not the case and there are many political observers who regard it as highly unlikely that a majority of the electoral vote will be won by any of the candidates.

The second Monday following January the electors in each state chosen at the November election meet in their respective state capitals and declare for their candidates. The votes will then be sent by messenger to the president of the Senate in Washington. They will be counted on the second Wednesday in February before the joint session of the House and Senate.

Then the result will be announced. If no candidate has a majority—two hundred and sixty-six votes—then the House of Representatives must immediately convene for the purpose of choosing a President. The choice being limited to the three highest candidates, would mean that the House would have only the option of choosing one, either Davis, Coolidge or LaFollette.

How House Votes

voting by individuals in the House. Moreover, each state has only one vote. Rhode Island's vote equals that of New York. The vote of each state is determined by a majority of the Congressional Representatives in that state. This point grasped let it be remembered that the "bloc" in several delegations hold the balance of power. Thus the LaFollette-Wheeler candidacy becomes somewhat to be reckoned with.

Anyone familiar with the line up in the House last year can see how likely it is that neither Davis nor Coolidge would be able to obtain a majority vote in the House in February. A deadlock is quite on the cards—a repetition of the Democratic National Convention, perhaps, until March 4, 1925. At that time the new House comes into being, but THE NEW HOUSE HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH THE CHOICE OF A PRESIDENT.

In the event of a deadlock until the disintegration of the present House the duty would pass to the Senate, and here it must be remembered that THE SENATE VOTES ONLY FOR VICE-PRESIDENT. If the country stands without a President, then that office, being vacant, must be filled by the man chosen as Vice-President by the Senate.

At this point we read another elimination. The Senate is limited to vote for the two highest candidates. So the likelihood is the choice would lie between General Dawes and Governor Bryan.

Different in Senate

Now we come to the Senate vote. The Senate does not vote by states like the House. The Senators vote as individuals, and a majority vote decides. The Senate membership being 96, 49 votes would elect a Vice-President, who would immediately succeed to the Presidency, just as Coolidge succeeded

Sallie's Temptations

(Copyright 1924—By Gladys Baker)

INTRODUCING SALLIE

Sallie is a modern, pretty young creature, with all the emotions and desires you yourself had when you were at that glorious age that lies somewhere between sixteen and twenty-five.

Again, she is your own daughter, or the daughter of your very best friend. In other words, there is some one dear to you with the same warmth of sentiment, the same eternal struggle between "right and wrong," and underneath it all, that innate desire to "do right" that God creates in all our little girls—that prompting spirit called conscience to be tenderly nurtured and made strong by clean thoughts and actions or left to grow lax and imperfect as a weed.

Sallie is everywhere. The eyes of the world are upon the ultimate outcome of her moral code. Is she going to weaken her creed of right and wrong and stretch her philosophy of life to that of girls who have a "good" time?

In this day of cigarettes, cocktails and corsets parked at the dance, your little girl is just where Sallie is. She must decide for herself. Your protecting arms cannot reach out to her when problems arise. Do not be too smug and self-satisfied about your daughter being "different" from the rest of her crowd. They are all Sallies at heart. Perhaps Sallie's own experience, put down truthfully from the pages of her own life, will help your Sallie to pause before she rushes headlong into the catatonia that yawns to-day for every young girl.

ASTRONOMY

YES—AND TED BILLINGS

"Let's get out of here, Sallie," said Ted Billings, as he cut in on a dance. The orchestra was playing a divine fox-trot and the saxophone was laughing like a big, fat man.

"Duck out the side door before that bird breaks on us; he's been rushing you all evening," I nodded my head.

We danced hurriedly and, with a purpose the width of the ballroom, and out through the door, still keeping time to the music as we crossed the porch. Here and there in the shadows couples were grouped in pairs and they called out gaily to us as we passed.

Ted piloted me by the arm to his car, which was parked quite a distance from the club at the edge of the golf course. "I always stop here," he announced; "a good place to take a nip, and besides, it's nice and cozy to be away from the rest of the gang. Isn't it, old dear?" He squeezed my arm and opening the door, we sat down on the back seat of his beautiful closed car.

Instantly he produced a flask and from the pocket of the car a bottle and two glasses. "See, what a thoughtful little boy I am," said Ted; "cold ginger-ale for the ladies."

I propped my silver-slipped feet on the little seat of the car and sighed contentedly.

The moon sailed full and clear followed by a cortege of little clouds that were puffs of dusk-blend chiffon from the trousseau of a bride. A soft breeze played in the palms; it even reached up to the little clouds and scurried them faster and faster across the sky. "Snap out of it," interrupted Ted, passing me a tall glass. "That's fine Scotch, Sallie. Came off an English fessal that just heaved into port."

It WAS good. Then, too, I knew the faint glow of assurance and well being that I had begun to look forward to and enjoy.

"That's some dress, Sallie," Ted said, "but I'd hate like the duc for you to sneeze. He tested the narrow strap of brilliants that held it on. His fingers against my flesh were warm."

"You've got the 'skin they love to touch' all right, Sallie," said Ted. "It's like rose petals and velvet and all those things."

"Same old line," I laughingly replied.

"Line, nothing," he put his arm around me. "You know perfectly well you go to my head. Maybe it's that darn perfume you use. What is it, Sallie? Blue-hour? Well, there's nothing blue about this one for us, is it, Beautiful?" He held me just a bit closer and every now and then we heard strains of music borne to us on the breeze. They were playing my favorite waltz. It was comfy to be way off from the crowd. I let my head rest against his arm. I liked Ted. He did everything with such an air, and although his reputation was a little off, it didn't make much difference. He went everywhere and the Billings had more money than anybody in town.

Ted began to hum. "She laid more eggs than any hen on the farm. Another little drink won't do us any harm."

"Well, how 'bout it? Say when," he continued, pouring a second drink from the flask.

"Bottoms up," directed Ted, and both glasses went up together and down, empty, at the same time.

"You're a good sport, Sallie," announced Ted. "Give me a drag." He took my cigarette and lit another from it for I enjoy one after a drink more than any other time.

"I say, Sallie, did you ever see the lady in the moon?" Ted must have had a few drinks earlier for he was talking rather slowly—more slowly than before.

"No, I never did. Show it to me. Won't you?" I begged.

"Will I? Can a duck swim? However, you'll have to do everything I say." He looked at me. "Are you game?"

"Right-o; go ahead." We faced the moon. It was so lovely and seemed to be getting prettier every minute.

"Now, Sallie," Ted commenced, "you are the lady and I'm the man. You mustn't move." He tilted my face up toward the moon and continued, "She's on the right hand side and that cloudy spot is her hair. She's old fashioned, Sallie, or she'd have it bobbed."

His hand still cupped my chin. I giggled. We WERE having a good time.

"Pay attention now, Sallie; this is a serious affair," admonished Ted. "Now you see her profile, you've made out her hair, there's her nose and mouth; remember, now, Sallie, the man's on the other side—and their lips meet—"

He kissed me.

"Sallie" came a soft feminine voice. I looked quickly to the side of the car. Anne Coddington was standing there. No telling how long she had been an onlooker. I had rather it had been any one but Anne.

I wondered what Ted would say. He laughed indifferently and climbed out of the car. I could have died.

None of Candidates May Be in President's Seat

Harding as soon as the vacancy occurred.

In the present Senate there are 43 Democrats, 51 Republicans and two Farmer Laborites. These figures would appear to ensure the election of Dawes, provided there is no change in the character of the Senate as a result of the November elections, and provided always that La Follette would not switch a number of Republican Senators from the Coolidge-Dawes ticket and procure votes for Bryan. The margin is narrow, and La Follette might easily be the deciding factor.

One need only go back to 1916 to see how delicate is the present situation. In that year the electoral college stood 277 for Wilson and 254 for Hughes. A third party candidate controlling, for example, the 13 electoral votes of California, would have thrown the election into the House. How many electoral votes La Follette will control as a result of the coming election is something for political writers to figure on. It may be something for the two dominant parties to consider seriously.

La Follette supporters are claiming he will carry between eight and sixteen states. If he carries only Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, such result would likely prevent either Coolidge or Davis from winning the necessary majority of 260 electoral votes necessary to elect the President. Even the electoral vote of any one state might prevent a majority.

Parmer-Haislip Nuptials a Very Pretty Ceremony

An outstanding event of the social season and one of the most beautiful home weddings in Hereford for many years was that of Miss Pauline Haislip and Mr. Buford Parmer, solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hawkins on last Thursday evening.

The decorating and home arrangements were under the supervision of Mesdames Homer Wilkinson, H. H. Hawkins, W. S. Williams and A. C. Thompson. The home was made very attractive with ferns, plants, cut flowers, candle sticks and decorations in color scheme of white, rose and green.

Preceding the ceremony, which took place at 9:00 o'clock, Mrs. Trussell of Ft. Worth, sang the nuptial favorite, "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Dessie Mae Steele, piano and Miss Maurine Beyer, violin.

The first of the wedding party to be received by the large number of guests assembled were the ribbon bearers, all dressed in dainty white, in the persons of little Misses Helen Ann and Jean Snyder, Virginia Earle Reed and Frances Borden. They carried the ribbon through the rooms and held them in place, to form the way for the wedding train.

First, came the Junior Maids-of-Honor, Misses Mary Wilkinson and Gwendolyn Spradley, carrying bouquets of sweet peas. Miss Wilkinson wore a lovely frock of rose tulle and Miss Spradley one of blue satin with silver lace trimmings. They were followed by the Maid-of-Honor, Miss Nell Parmer, in a charming dress of peach georgette, carrying a bouquet of fern and sweet peas. Then came the matrons-of-honor, Mrs. D. H. Cornell, wearing an exquisite gown of beaded green georgette with gold lace trimming and a bouquet of sweet peas and fern.

The little flower girl, Evelyn Williams, scattered the rose petals before the bride, who entered, on the arm of her brother-in-law, Mr. D. H. Cornell, who gave her away at the altar. They were met under the artistic wedding bower by the groom and best-man, Mr. Richard Dixon, and Dr. W. P. Garvin, who, using the words of the beautiful ring ceremony completed the service. The wedding ring was borne to the altar on a white-satin pillow, carried by Master Dene Dunlap, junior member of the wedding party, and beautifully attired in an all white suit.

Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played by Misses Steele and Beyer and modulated into "The Flower Song," continuing softly through the ceremony.

After the vows were spoken the guests were invited into the dining room to cut the wedding cake, which rested on the center dining table, surrounded by sweet peas and candle sticks with rose candles and rose tulle bows.

Refreshments of angel food and green and white brick cream were served to the guests by Misses Kathleen Hawkins, Eloise Pitman, Mary McDonald and Hazel O'Brien of Amarillo.

The bride has been a member of the Hereford High School faculty for the past three years. Her former home was in Commerce, Texas, where she attended and finished both the city High School and State Normal College. She has been a most capable and popular instructor and because of her genial manner and charming personality, has made herself countless friends in this vicinity. For the occasion, the bride wore a lovely creation of pussy-willow tulle, in the new "Atmosphere" hue, silver brocaded slippers and hair ornament to match. Her bouquet was of white rose heads.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Parmer, has spent the greater part of his life in this community. He is a member of one of Hereford's oldest and most highly esteemed families. After graduating from the Hereford High School in 1915, he entered Clarendon College and completed the Junior College course. The following year he went to Southern Methodist University in Dallas, upon finishing this year he entered Eastman's Business College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and completed the course in Book-Keeping and Accounting. He is now captain of Co. E, 142nd Division of the Texas National Guards, with whom he has recently been to Galveston. Mr. Parmer is one of Hereford's most representative young men and because of his unusual intellectual pursuits and attainments is thoroughly prepared to take his place amongst the best best citizens.

After a two weeks' car-trip through E. Texas, including visits to Commerce, Paris, Dallas and Ft. Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Parmer will be at home with Mrs. G. F. Pierce on East 6th Street.

The entire community extends to the happy pair good wishes for continued joy and great blessings throughout their wedded life.

CAMERON, N. M.

A very heavy rain fell the last of the week which made wheat hauling to Clovis and Hereford very difficult. It did not reach the Wheatland district, and thus did not affect the freighting to San Jon.

Many from here are making trips to the plumb thickets these days. Some of those who went recently are: the families of C. T. Gann, J. E. Burnett, Jim Patterson, Geo. Pullman, Rev. J. D. S. Lee, and Ethel Ring and Miss Underwood.

F. B. Scott and family spent the week end at Bushland with relatives.

Clyde Isler made a trip to Amarillo for repairs for his combine Friday night.

Park Hammons had a public sale last week. He has purchased a new Ford truck and is freighting wheat to market.

Lonnie Johnson is recovering from a sick spell.

Harry Frost was representing the Watkins Products in our community the last of the week.

J. A. Goodson and family of Wellington, Texas came in last week. He is freighting wheat with his Traffic truck.

Joelle Crecellus is visiting this week with Mrs. J. C. Cherry at Canyon, Texas.

Cleveland Johnson bought a new truck at Hereford last week.

Mesdames Moore and Murray and families made a trip to House Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Jim Darden arrived at the home of Mrs. Darden's sister, Mrs. Dunn, the last of the week. They came from their home at Gilmer, Texas. They made the trip in a wagon and were four weeks on the road.

Miss Hazel Young is visiting our homes, making up a Lee's order.

Conley Gann of Amarillo is here attending to his harvesting.

Several are through harvesting their wheat, but not all are done yet. Lee Watkins and Roy Chapman estimate they will each have 15,000 bushels of wheat; Clyde Isler and Frost Bros. each about 10,000 bushels; J. Z. Isler has about 4,000 bushels.

Miss Luia Lobban has been spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Dallas Johnson, but on account of her father being quite sick at Clovis she returned home Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Lobban have two late daughters-in-law, their sons Leo and Loy having married recently. Leo is working in the Santa Fe shops at Clovis. Loy has rented Mrs. M. A. Johnson's farm here.

There is to be a B. Y. P. U. training school begin at New Hope Sunday.

Rev. R. L. Lewis and several noted Baptists are expected to be present and dinner on the ground.

Frank Davis and family spent Saturday night at the Charlie Gann home.

Mr. Howell and family returned a few weeks ago from Fort Worth and are harvesting their wheat crop. They are stopping with Clyde Isler.

Roy Chapman freighted two loads of wheat to Frijona and started to San Jon with the third one one day last week but turned his truck over on the caprock. There was no serious damage only spilling all the wheat.

Mrs. M. F. Johnson left Sunday to return to her old home in Tennessee. Her nephew, Walter Haynes, came up from Bard and she returned with him to take the train from there.

J. Z. Isler took two loads of wheat to Hereford last week and brought back a load of coal each trip.

A HAPPY REUNION

On Wednesday, July 23, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hughes received a very pleasant surprise, when Mrs. Hughes' aged parents, one brother and his wife, three sisters and their husbands and families stepped in on them.

They spent only a few days, but each day was enjoyed to the fullest extent. Thursday they visited some of the irrigation wells, which were perfect wonders to them. Friday the older members went fishing and ate their supper on the creek, while the younger ones motored to Amarillo.

Saturday the older ones visited relatives and old friends, while the others motored to Clovis, New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Northern are pioneers of this state. Mr. Northern was born and raised in Macon, Georgia. He came to Texas about 1879. He married Miss Janie Merrell of Irene, Hill county, Texas, on January 31, 1883. To this union ten children were born. The children are all living and are all married except one son. All of them live near the old home except Mrs. Hughes. Mr. Northern has traveled all over the state and over quite a bit of the United States in his younger days. In expressing his opinion of this country he said, "This is a beautiful place, you have a delightful climate and with your irrigation wells. I believe this to be the coming country."

Those present were: Mr and Mrs. A. P. Northern (father and mother of Mrs. Hughes), Mr. and Mrs. Carl Northern of Irene, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hance and two children of Coolege, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Osborne and son, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Johnson and three children of Hubbard, and James Northern of Coolege.

These few days were very happily spent and all hated to part, but, nevertheless all had to go.

On Monday at six o'clock a. m. the tender good-byes were said and God be with you till we meet again. Then they started on their long journey home.

W. G. Ross Passes Away Sunday Evening, July 27

W. G. Ross, aged 76, died at his residence here last Sunday afternoon, after suffering for twenty two months from a complication of diseases, and his body was laid to rest in the city cemetery Monday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

In the passing of W. G. Ross, Hereford loses one of her real pioneers. He came here in 1861, when there were few people and very little town. He was quite a local celebrity and famed for his gigantic physical strength in his younger days.

Funeral services were conducted by the Rev. J. B. Sharp from the Presbyterian church Monday morning. He is survived by his wife, one brother, J. D. Ross, of Eldorado, Okla., and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Swartz of Seattle, Wash. Out-of-town attendants at the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Davidson and family of Clovis, Mrs. Cobb, a niece, of Estelline, Texas, and J. D. Ross, a brother, of Eldorado, Okla.

W. G. Ross was born in Gallatin county, Ky., June 8, 1848, but moved to Clay county, Mo. During the war he lived on the line between the north and south. His father was obliged to leave home on account of jealousy of the people there, and was killed, where and when they knew not. The boys twelve and thirteen years, were left with the family to care for. Their home burned and after the war they moved back to Kentucky. He was a mate on a steambot from Evansville, Ind., to Cincinnati, Ohio, one year till his mothers health obliged him to remain at home. His mother died in 1869.

In 1872 he moved to Texas near Henrietta. After about a year he took a pony and went to Ft. Griffin and hired to a buffalo hunter. He worked one season then engaged in the business for himself. In 1878 he killed 2750 buffaloes himself near Buffalo Gap. After the buffaloes were gone he went in to hog ranching about two years, then came to Donley county. He had some experiences with the Indians and was an expert horse breaker. In 1885 he went to Fry county and took up some land in the strip known as vacant or "no man's land" and then with his brother, J. D. Ross, now of Eldorado, Okla., engaged in the freighting business for two years. He was married to Miss Lora Lovelace in 1886. To them was born two children. One died in infancy, while the other lived to be a few months old. He then lost his wife and moved to Clarendon and met Miss Nannie Billingsly and was married to her September 24, 1888. On November 17, 1901, he moved to near Hereford on the ranch that he bought, now known as the Bridges ranch, then moved to Hereford, and lived here until his death.

A. Herbert and Homer Fox established new golfing records for the local course last Sunday when the former parred the course with a 33 for nine holes, while Mr. Fox was only one stroke behind. Sank Ramey won the driving contest with a distance of well over 200 yards. Two teams were chosen, five pairs on the side, and a tie resulted, with five wins each.

Rev. W. R. Hill, Th. M., Teacher
This class of men of affairs studies the Bible with the avowed conviction that it is God's message to this and all generations. We believe it is inherent from "old to old," and ought to be the guiding principle of the men of Hereford. Any man 25 years old and over in this vicinity is welcome as a member or visitor.

Visit with us if you are a stranger or visitor, and share with our members in all the benefits. You are welcome!

We have a commodious room all our own, and is used for nothing else except the meeting place of this men's class. You will not be embarrassed if you have not read the lesson for the day. The lesson for Sunday is, Winning Others to Christ.

"Received the big, nice bundle of Brands this afternoon when I came off watch; also the Dallas paper. I sure appreciated them and its mighty nice to be mentioned so deservedly in the Hereford paper. Haven't read all of the Brands yet; just looked over them. At sea a fellow isn't off watch long

Phillips Makes A College Farm Show a Profit!

While in Hereford last week, Prof. Frank Phillips of the Teachers College at Canyon stated that he expected to see remarkable development in dairy farming in Deaf Smith county within the next few years. Mr. Phillips has made the school farm at Canyon do something that no other school farm in the state has done; namely, pay expenses. He has done this by means of dairy cattle. The labor for the farm is furnished by students who wish to work their way through the agricultural division of the college. In speaking about this Mr. Phillips said:

"Since last September the farm has kept four boys in school and has paid most of the expenses of one girl, and made a profit of over eight hundred dollars, besides paying the expenses of running the department. The departmental expense includes shop equipment for forty students and chess equipment for seventy five. The boys work at the barn, milk and feed the cows and do all work connected with the college farm; while the girl keeps books and does other office work. Such returns have been made possible from sales of milk and cream from nine registered and high grade cows. It is going to make summer dairying profitable in West Texas. With the irrigation fields of alfalfa and sudan, I see no reason why more good dairy cows should not be found around Hereford."

Mr. Phillips states that he keeps hogs and chickens in connection with his dairy, and sells from three to four hundred dollars worth of hogs and eggs per year. It is his ambition to build the chicken project up to where it will keep two to four boys in school from exp. sales.

Concerning cotton, Mr. Phillips said: "I am interested in the kind of seed which the farmers have been planting. I spent last Monday at the Experiment Station at Lubbock going over their seed plants. I found there a new kind of cotton which is being developed to meet West Texas conditions. It is said to be ten days earlier than the Burnett seed, the seed that has made Dumas cotton growing profitable. If I were growing cotton, I would certainly try to secure some of these seed. There will be a limited supply for the next few years; however, one could afford to have his own seed plant and grow seed for his own farm."

Mr. Phillips thinks that if we do not have a seed which will produce profitable yields at the present time, that we may expect the experiment stations to produce such a seed in the near future.

To The People of Deaf Smith County
Those friends who so loyally supported me during the campaign and election I want to thank from a heart of gratitude and appreciation. I will never forget your loyalty and friendship—you will always have a warm place in my heart.
Those of you my friends, and I hope I may claim all as my friends, who supported my opponent I have nothing but the kindest feeling. You supported a good man who made a clean, fair race and I congratulate him on the splendid victory; I am for him and shall cheerfully lend him every assistance as my successor.
This community needs co-operation not division; fellowship not partisanship; friendship not enmity; magnanimity not jealousy. Let's get behind all our officers, those who are holding over as well as those who will shortly be the new ones, and give them our support; work together in order that our community may be a better place in which to live.
Sincerely,

enough to read everything he would like to. Had a good laugh on old Pop Burton, one of my shipmates. He gets the home town paper from Oklahoma and The Brands are about twice as large as his. A fellow this afternoon asked me: 'What paper is this?' I told him it was a paper of a big city in Texas, and when he saw it was a Hereford paper he started telling me: 'You're crazy; there are a lot of cities in Texas bigger than this place. There's El Paso; why even Long Beach is bigger than this place, I'll bet.' 'Well,' I says, 'maybe so, but Hereford occupies a bigger place in my heart than any city you can mention.' Now of course that is getting sentimental, but 'gee, it's nice to have a home town to get papers from, and to me a man without a home town is like the man without a country.'

spent in the public schools in Hereford. He was converted and joined the Methodist church when he was fifteen years old, and at eighteen he entered college in Austin, where he spent 2 years. At the age of twenty five he married Miss Ethel Robinson and to them there were borned two children, Herbert and Ruth. His wife died in Hereford in 1914.
To know Lish (as he was called) was to love him. His sunny countenance and cheerful disposition would lighten up the path of life for all who were fortunate enough to come his way. He was a loving husband and father, a dutiful son and a kind brother. He is survived by his father, mother and four brothers, Joe, Tom, Jim and Albert, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his going.
His remains were accompanied from Dallas by his mother and brother, Jim, his brother Tom meeting the train at Amarillo with the bears. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Bratton, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Carter, joined them in Amarillo, coming with them to Hereford. Mrs. Ellen Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Tate met the train when it reached Hereford.
Funeral services were held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 27. He was buried in the Hereford cemetery.
Why do we miss you so, Lish dear. Since you have gone away; And why are the days so dark and drear, Since you have gone to stay. For we know our loving Father Has a place prepared over there, And we are passing thru this earth of ours To a country bright and fair. So we are trusting in our Heavenly Father And the sun gives a more beautiful ray. For we know our Lord's work is perfect And will change our night to day.

Most of us are quitters. We start out well, but most of us soon tire in what we undertake. This characteristic develops early in life. It is much in evidence with students of the University of Texas with whom I come in contact, and, for that matter, with young people everywhere. They start to school with their minds made up to use their time to the best of their advantage; in a short time they begin to weaken in their determination, and by the end of their first term they are sent home solely because they lack interest in their studies. They are just quitters, plain quitters, who lack the energy to work at a thing till they succeed.

Once the piking habit is formed, it is hard to shake it off. It soon develops into an "oh-what's-the-use, attitude toward everything in life that requires effort. The school loafer in most cases will loaf along through life whenever he gets the chance. Procrastination so on becomes habitual. It is always easier to follow the lines of least resistance, to drift from one day into another. It takes effort to go against the current, and when effort fails not only does progress stop, but the advance already made is soon lost, and more strength is required for another trial.

One often wonders why some fail in business while others with less capital, fewer friends, and poorer opportunities, succeed. The failures are usually quitters. They start out well with plenty of money, many acquaintances and bright prospects, but when reverses come or business gets dull, they stop and take a rest. I once knew a prosperous merchant with a good trade who found his business up against a serious drought that considerably diminished trade. He decided to begin to cut own expenses by cutting off his advertising. He saved some $30.00 a month in that way, but his business fell away to almost nothing. A young fellow, almost a stranger in the town, doubled his advertising as the drought became worse, and was so on doing twice as much business as any other store in the town. The old merchant had to close his store after two years of unprofitable business, but the chap who wouldn't quit is now the leading merchant of that town.

seems to enjoy them. Will Smith and Robert Hamilton went to Hereford Monday. Cooper Woodburn spent Sunday in Dimmitt. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Williams and family have just returned from Plainview. Mr. and Mrs. Ham Lambert and children were shopping in Hereford on Monday. Messrs. Jim and George Bagwell ate dinner Sunday with Ham Lambert. IN MEMORY OF LITTLE WESLEY HARRISON "Cast thy burden upon the Lord and He will sustain thee," for "The Lord is our refuge, a very present help in the time of trouble." He has promised: "As thy days may demand, so shall thy strength be," for "My grace is sufficient for thee." How grateful we should be for these eternal truths! Into all our lives there comes sometime, conditions which we must meet—our Gethsemane—and we find our own strength fails us. Then how blessed are we, if we can turn in faith, to a Higher Power, for some surcease from sorrow the human heart must have, and there are only two other resources; that absolute, dispassionate—in some form or other—else the heart turns in upon itself and we become rebellious, embittered, hardened. We are never the same after we have passed thru a great sorrow or testing of any kind. With the overwhelming shock that came when we first knew of little Wesley's tragic going, there seemed to be only the darkness of an unbearable anguish. But God is good, and there came a ray of light and the Voice that stilled the storm upon the Sea of Galilee, spoke to our broken hearts and said: "Fear thou not; for I am with thee; Be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; Yea I will help thee; Yea I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness." I have loved thee with an everlasting love. It is a remarkable fact and one that can not escape the notice of one who loves the Bible, that God makes so little effort to convince us of His power and wisdom. He has left it to "The heavens to declare His glory and the firmament to show forth His handiwork," and marvelously have they done so, all down the ages, thru the revelations of science. "Day unto day has uttered speech of Him, and night unto night hath revealed knowledge of Him." But far more marvelously has He, himself, declared and manifested His transcendent love for us, culminating in the supreme gift of His son, not only that we might have life and have it more abundantly but He, our blessed Savior, was "A man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." "Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows." "O love Divine, all love excelling;" we grieve. There is that unconquerable and well-nigh unendurable longing to see him again, even once more, to hear his voice; to hold close his little tender pulsating form. We do not, we cannot understand; we should not want to. With all our weakness, and lack of wisdom, we need, in this world of great temptations, disappointments and sorrows,—we need one to whom we can go—such an one as Isaiah describes: "For as the heavens are higher than the earth so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts." Little Wesley did not understand, yet he knew enough theology to save the world. A few days before he went to his heavenly home he said: "Mother, I love God," and he did, and he believed that God loved him, and that is the best of theology and the highest of wisdom. He was an attractive child, with his bonny blue eyes and brown hair and his appealing smile that revealed his innate gentleness and sweetness. Wesley loved his Sunday school and was never willingly absent, and here, as in the day school, his quiet, affectionate disposition, his faithfulness, his readiness to do anything asked of him had deeply endeared him to both his teachers and classmates. His devotion to his grandmother was beautiful. He was her "Little Stand-by." Those exquisite carnations we placed upon his breast were not whiter than his pure soul, nor their fragrance sweeter than are the memories of him. He was a bright child, so proud of his excellent grades and eager for the coming term. Oh such wonderful lessons as he will learn at the feet of the Great Teacher. It is hard to give him up but let us turn to the God he loved, for "The Eternal God is our refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms." THE PASSING DAY (Continued from Page 6.) Some farmers are quitters. When the sun gets hot and the ground gets so dry that weeds will not grow, they quit working their crops. They reason that as weeds are not growing and rains do not bake the soil there is no need to keep the plows and hoes going. Farming requires intelligent action just as much as it is needed in business. The worse the crop prospects look the greater, usually, is the need for hard work and intelligent effort. Whatever one is doing should get his best efforts all the time and especially when the outlook is most discouraging. When the smoke of this political campaign has cleared away, as it will soon clear, we will be left wondering why so many people allow themselves to get so excited. It is good politics for candidates to arouse the people to a high pitch of political fervor, for otherwise many of them would go through a campaign unnoticed, but it is largely a wasteful pastime for the average citizen. He seems to enjoy it, though, and it is a harmless sport, no serious objection can be offered. It enables voters to let out a large amount of pent-up enthusiasm in a way that does little or no harm. Most of the large towns in Texas are growing. Many new and improved homes are being built in them. Except along a few well-constructed highways not many new country homes have been built in this state in the last few years. The most noticeable improvement in country districts recently has been in the school buildings, largely as a result of consolidating school districts. The ideal condition is where farm improvements keep steady pace with those in the towns and cities. Improved machinery and quick transportation over country roads are taking many people out of the country, because so many are not needed to do the farm work. Those who are left in the country should seem to be doing well enough to build better homes and to live more comfortably.

Retail Merchants Convention to be Held in Canyon

Canyon, July 22—Retail merchants of Herford are expected to attend in force the convention to be held here August 5, at which the advisability of going into permanent organization will be taken up, following a day devoted to discussions of the problems of the retailer, and addresses by noted speakers.

One of the speakers will be Homer D. Wade, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Fort Worth, who has been asked to speak on "Advertising the Panhandle-Plains Co-operatively."

Talks on retail credit, accounting, cost-finding, and the general business outlook will be made by authoritative speakers from the principal cities of Texas. Following this, the merchants will consider the question of annual meetings, and of the next convention city.

A feature of the gathering will be the fact that each retailer will be the guest of a local merchant in the same line of business. A trip to the Palo Duro Canyon is being planned, and is expected to include a picnic supper in the great gorge.

The convention arrangements are being made through the local Chamber of Commerce, as a move to solidify the Panhandle-Plains territory, and to promote the common interests of this section.
