Missile Hearing Attracts Local Figures

transcribe the proceedings, MANAGING EDITOR Area public officials and interested individuals will get the chance to offer their opinions on the physical impact the placing of the MX Missile system in the Texas-New Mexico area will have Monday when the Air Force holds two Draft Environmental Impact Statement hearings at the Amarillo Civic Center.

The hearings will begin at 1:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. at the civic center in Amarillo, which is located at 400 S. Buchanan. Air Force Colonel Allen Smith, a judge advocate with 26 years of service, will preside over the public hearings. His primary duties will be to maintain order and ensure that comment time-limits are followed. Colonel Smith now serves as the chief of Trial Judiciary Division, Office of the Judge Advocate General, Headquarters, U.S. Air Force,

Washington, D.C. The format and times to be alloted for each of the public hearings is as follows:

Air Force welcome and introduction, approximately five minutes.

Questions and answers on the briefing, approximately one hour. Public comments and statements, approximately and the sessions will be videotaped. All persons wishing to make statements must register at the door prior to the start of the hearings. Elected officials will speak first followed by individuals. Heads of organizations will be given five minutes for comments with individuals allowed three minutes. Written comments will be accepted and entered as part of the record.

Deaf Smith County Judge Glen Nelson will attend the evening hearing, along with several other area citizens, including Dr. Milton Adams and Dr. Richard Sheppard, both members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce's Governmental Affairs Committee.

Frank Ford, of Arrowhead Mills, an outspoken opponent of the MX Missile system as a whole, will attend the afternoon session, and plans to offer comments.

Judge Nelson will present a resolution unanimously approved by the county fathers at their last meeting opposing the placement of the MX system in Deaf Smith County. The commissioner's court will also mail copies of the resolution to various other elected officials.

The county judge said that he will also make oral com-A court reporter will ments at the hearing, direc-

"And, we would like to know what the Air Force's answer to solving the problems of lost revenue would be.'

Judge Nelson will also speak on behalf of the chamber of commerce, which is very concerned about the depletion of area water tables which would be forced by the placing of the missiles in this

"The chamber has asked us to inquire as to what steps the government will take to offset the problems caused if they use in excess of anticipated water needs," he said.

Dr. Adams and chamber executive vice-president Mike Carr appeared at the last county commission meeting, requesting the county to speak on behalf of the chamber. "We suggest a representative of the county request the federal government to import water at its expense to replace water used at a depletion rate in excess of that estimated by the EIS," Dr. Adams said.

Hearings Designed To Allow Input Into 1981 Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) -Agriculture hearings are being held in three West Texas cities this week so farmers will have an input denied them in past farm bills, Rep. Kika de la Garza, the House Agriculture Committee chairman, says

'The Farm Bill has not been finalized yet, but we wanted to arrange something to let the people come in and voice their opinions, on their own home grounds," said de la Garza, who has represented the Rio Grande Valley in Congress since 1968. De la Garza, chairman of the committee only since January, won't be able to attend the hearings at Abilene Monday, at Lubbock Tuesday and at Amarillo Wednesday because he and other con-

"Stenholm and Stangeland are on the Agriculture Committee. Hance was on it last year and now is on the Ways and Means Committee, which is a great place to have him, and Hightower is on the Appropriations Committee and looks after our interests there," de la Garza said.

"They were willing to hold the hearings, and I told them to go ahead and bring back the input from the people."

The Democrat from Mission said the farm bill is "going very well, I think, as far as the subcommittees are concerned. But it looks more and more like it will be much the same as the present law is, with some slight modifications.

Committee doesn't have the full picture yet from the Reagan Administration on items he wants included in the farm bill.

De la Garza was elected vice chairman of the Agriculture Committee in 1979 after Rep. Ray Roberts of McKinney decided against seeking reelection.

The No. 2-ranking Democrat, he moved up to the chair last December when Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington was appointed Democratic Whip, which precludes holding a chairmanship. "It's going good, I assume, but it's awfully time consuming. The administrative part of it is very, very demanging," de la Garza said of his new responsibility.

"And something I hadn't visualized was that all of a sudden I would become a national Rigure. They want to visit you from all over -Idaho, Wyoming, California, Vermont. I try to see them all, but...'

He called it "a tremendous challenge, but we're keeping our head above water."

Subcommittees have been meeting on different parts of the farm program. On April 29, the third day Congress reconvenes after its 2-week Easter break, the full Agriculture Committee will start working toward the markup of a Farm Bill, de la Garza said.

The markup should be completed by May 5, he said, and the committee must report its proposal to the full House by May 15 at the latest.

The biggest change de la Garza has noticed in his life since becoming chairman of the Agriculture Committee is how much earlier he has to

"I still have the same afternoon and evening receptions and meetings that I go to, but I've found farm people have more early meetings. I'm finding myself at 7:30 breakfasts more and more," he said.

He met with a Farm Bureau group for a breakfast at 7:30 a.m. about a week ago at one hotel, then had to attend an 8 a.m. meeting of the Holstein Dairy Association "but it was at a hotel across the street, so that worked out all right."

On another day, a group of FFA kids met with him at 7:30 a.m., some farm editors visited with him at 8 a.m., and some ASC committeemen met with him at 8:30.

"So I had three meetings in one morning. By the time I (See FARM BILL, Page 2A)

Judge Orders Use Of Bilingual Plan

TYLER, Texas (AP) - A federal judge says Texas school officials will have to stop dragging their feet on a court order to implement a bilingual education program in public schools for grades one through 12.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice Friday denied school officials' request for more time to come up with their own plan to expand the bilingual program. Instead, the judge ordered the state to implement a court-authored plan next fall.

The order requires Texas public school districts to extend bilingual education from kindergarten through fifth grade by the start of the 1981-82 school year and extend the program to the 12th grade in phases over the next seven years. Bilingual education is currently offered in the first through third grades.

Texas Attorney General Mark White had asked Justice to reconsider his refusal to allow the Texas Legislature more time to come up with a bilingual education plan.

State officials, who missed a March 9 deadline set by Justice for submitting plans to the court, had intended to wait until after the legislative session ends in June before submitting a proposal.

Justice's ruling requires school district officials to submit a list of their certified bilingual education teachers through the fifth grade by Aug. 1.

They also must submit recruiting and training plans for overcoming bilingual teacher shortages and then inform the court of how they plan to implement next year's bilingual programs, Justice said in his order.

"Language Proficiency Assessment' committees. composed of school principals, bilingual instructors. instruction specialists and classroom teachers, are to be coordinated by Aug. 15.

Good Friday

Recognized

Millions of Christians around the world mourned the Crucifixion of Jesus Christ with processions and quiet devotions on Good Friday.

In Jerusalem, center of Christianity's holiest season, pilgrims thronged 💎 the Via Dolorosa while just miles away the embattled Christians of Zahle, Lebanon, kept to their homes for fear of Syrian sniper-fire. Church bells were silent for the first Good Friday in memory in that city, said to have one of the largest concentrations of Christians in the Middle East.

Pope John Paul II carried a 412-foot wooden cross in a torchlight procession through Rome's ancient ruins to the top of Palatine Hill, past 10,000 faithful standing in a light rain to hear him speak.

Tens of millions of television viewers in 28 countries in Western Europe, North America, South America and Africa watched live broadcasts of the one-hour ceremony.

In the Philippines, seven people had themselves nailed to crosses briefly in penance for their sins. The impalements are not sanctioned by the Roman Catholic Church but drew thousands of spectators, many of whom engaged in flagellation and self-sacrifice.

Streets in San Fernando, 30 miles north of the capital, were splattered with blood as more than 100 barefoot young men slashed their backs with bamboo whips, broken glass and razor blades along a parade route lined with an estimated 25,000 people.

In Paris, thousands filled the Cathedral of Notre Dame for the annual ceremony of the Veneration of the Relics of the Passion - the only day of the year the church shows the relics - thorns from Christ's crown, a piece of the cross and a nail used to crucify Christ.

In Car-Van Crash

DENISON, Texas (AP) - Three persons were killed and eight hurt, one critically, when a car crossed the center median of U.S. 75 south of here Friday night and crashed broadside into a van carrying 11 people, police said.

Denison Police Capt. H.C. Strandlien said the driver of the car, a 20-year-old Denison man, fled the scene on foot, and turned himself in to police about two hours later. He was unhurt, Strandlien said the man is being held pending possible filing of involuntary manslaughter charges. Strandlien said the van rolled over several times, throwing several passengers out. Sam K. Kendrick, 43, of Dallas, was dead at the scene. His son, Marshall Kendrick, 9, died during surgery at Texoma Medical Center, and another van passenger, Carl Amodeo, 14, died after surgery there.

Another passenger, Kevin Kirk, 9, was in critical condition Saturday at the medical center.

Hospitalized in stable condition were: Beverly Kennedy, 25, of Dallas; Troy Campbell 14, and Ben Campbell, 34, both of Grapevine; Shannon Kendrick 5, and Chris Kendrick, 10. Joyce Clark, 55, was reported in stable condition at Medical Plaza in nearby Sherman, and her husband, Billy Joe Clark, 55, was treated there and released.

Young Kidnapper

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - An elderly woman who was abducted by a 15-year-old boy shot to death by police says the youth was "throwing his life away," when he took her hostage and attempted to flee from pursuing officers.

The boy, Eddie Carl Osborne Jr., of Lamar, Colo., was killed Friday morning as he attempted to drive away with the 66-year-old woman he had taken hostage at gunpoint shortly before 7 a.m., police said.

"It's really tragic to think someone that young could be involved in a situation like that," said Jewell Lewis, who suffered cuts caused by flying glass shattering the windows of her car. "He was just throwing his life away.'

Police Lt. Bud Fowler said Osborne, who was visiting his father in Fort Worth, was a suspect in an April 10 robbery of a fast food store in the same section of town he tried to kidnap Mrs. Lewis.

Officer R.K. Wilkinson fired four shots at the teen-ager, with three slugs striking the youth in the neck and chest, police said.

Police Sgt. Sam Hill said the shooting would be routinely investigated by the department's internal affairs division and the case turned over to a Tarrant County grand

The last time state inspectors took a close look at a mobile X-ray van owned by the Dallas Lung Association in 1973 - it was exposing patients to nearly seven times the amount of radiation produced by a conventional hospital chest X-ray, according to records on file with the health department.

The "unusually high" reading is one of the highest on record at the health agency's Division of Occupational Health and Radiation Control, which is responsible for inspecting hospital and mobile X-ray machines in Texas, said James Sands.

Sands supervises the state's radiation inspection program, which, because of manpower shortages, is able a radiation dose of 72 millirems per X-ray when they screened one of the Dallas lung organization's two mobile vans in 1973, Sands said. The second van produced an exposure reading of 30 millirems. slightly below the 44-millirem average for such equipment as calculated last year by a federal research council.

The average exposure dose from a chest X-ray administered on stationary equipment such as that found in a hospital is 10 millirems, said Dr. Alan K. Pierce, chairman of the Texas Thoracic Society, the medical branch of the state lung association. A millirem is a standard unit for measuring radiation.

"I've never had a reading of that type," said Harry Wells, director of the Dallas association's case-finding services. Wells later said the reading may have come from an aging X-ray van that the Dallas group obtained from the North Texas Lung Association in Fort Worth in

"It wasn't in very good shape," he recalled. "We had to overhaul it before we could use it on the road.'

But state records indicate that the reading came from a similar machine that was already in use by the Dallas group when it obtained the van from its Fort Worth affiliate, Sands said.

The unit in question, along with two other mobile vans, is still in use at the Dallas association office. One of the units is stationed at the office, while two others are used to provide mobile TB screening services in a 10-county area surrounding Dallas.

The disclosure of the state inspection results comes in the midst of a flap between the Dallas lung organization and the state and national affiliates of the American Lung Association over the continued use of the mobile vans for tuberculosis screening.

The Texas Lung Association has given the Dallas group until April of 1982 to discontinue the vans' use or face the loss of its charter as an American Lung Association affiliate.

The state group says X-ray screening for TB unnecessarily exposes patients to ionizing radiation and to possible adverse health effects. The Dallas affiliate is the only one of 164 American Lung Association chapters in the United States that routinely uses a mobile X-ray van to screen for tuberculosis, according to the

Roloff Wins Licensing Battle with State

Radio evangelist Lester cluding separation of church Roloff's eight-year losing streak in the courtroom ended Friday when a state district judge ruled Roloff does not have to get state licenses to run three homes for wayward youth.

Roloff, contacted at his Corpus Christi home, said "I'm thankful to God for Judge Charles Mathews. He's the friend of every redblooded American."

"It's a major victory for Rev. Roloff," said Commissioner Marlin Johnston of the Texas Department of Human Resources, which licenses child care institutions.

Mathews' letter to lawyers in the case recited Roloff's long

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - list of legal arguments, inand state.

> In a previous case, Mathews ordered Roloff to get licenses for his homes or shut them down. Roloff closed the homes - temporarily, it turned out. Mathews' letter Friday indicated the difference now is that the homes are under Roloff's church instead of Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises Inc.

"This is entirely a different case," said Mathews.

"In the former case the properties were not those of the church. ... Here we have new parties - especially the church as a primary party and most important, new Issues," he said.

"Based upon the pleadings

... and the law as this court understands the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the state of Texas ... the court concludes that it must deny all the relief sought by the state of Texas in this cause," Mathews said.

Assistant Texas Attorney General David Young had asked Mathews to order Roloff to get the licenses. Young also asked for at least $46,500 in penalties for operating the homes without licenses.

"It ought to have been eight years ago. We haven't changed. We're preaching the same. gospel," Roloff said.

Young said no decision had been made on whether to appeal Mathews' ruling.

Roloff long has argued that making him get a license violates separation of church and state. He closed the homes in 1979 when Mathews ruled in favor of another suit filed by the attorney general's office.

The homes reopened after Roloff reorganized his ministry, placing the homes under his Peoples Baptist Church, instead of under Roloff Evangelistic Enterprises. The judge said a Kansas case relied on by Young was not related to the Roloff case because "no church was a party" in the Kansas case.

The decision has no effect on other youth homes in the state, Mathews wrote.

"The state's power with respect to other institutions will be on another day and in another case, not in this one,"

Johnston predicted the ruling would not affect DHR's relations with other churchrun homes.

"The preponderance of the church-related facilities have supported us and want the license. The major religious groups work well with us. I don't see them pulling out," he said.

Johnston was in charge at the scene in 1979 when Roloff and his Bible-clutching followers refused to obey Mathews' order to get a license. Roloff closed the homes long enough to reorganize.

Representative Says He's Not Alone in His Opinion on Cuts

When the House Budget Com- House, where Gramm said mittee revamped President Reagan's spending request last week, cutting appropriations for defense and allocating more funds for social programs, all but one in what was almost a straight party vote at 17-13.

"I think they'll find out that I'm not alone," said the lone Democratic dissenter, Rep. Phil Gramm of Texas. "But of course they've known that all along. Thinking I was going to go along when they vote to raise the president's budget by $32 billion was just ridiculous.

He and 43 other conservative Democrats in the House belong to a relatively new coalition known as the Conservative Democratic Forum, which has banded generally behind President Reagan's call for more severe spending cuts.

Gramm says most of the 44 will join with an expected solid Republican vote and overcome the 26-vote Democratic edge in the

"We already have a substantial number of conservative Democrats who have given commitments to support the bipartisan Reagan budget" as opposed to the Democratic alternative offered by Rep. Jim Jones, D-Okla., the Budget Committee chairman, Gramm said in an interview.

Gramm and Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio, the ranking Republican on the Budget Committee, submitted a budget with even more severe cuts than Reagan's, but it was beaten back in committee. That bill, Gramm said, was the result of extended consultation that included conservative Democrats and David Stockman, the president's Gramm, a second-term congressman from College Station, has come under fire for his maverick ways, parof its 18 Democrats voted yes ticularly from the House Democratic leadership, which has urged Democrats to stay with the party line.

"That has never sold with me. When I came to Congress, I swore allegiance to the Constitution, not to the Democratic Party," said the 38-year-old former economics professor at Texas A&M.

"I've come under a little fire as a result, yes, but this is the third year I've been very active in the budget debate. The reason the opposition is so hot is not that I'm doing anything any differently, but their perception that this time the conservatives may win."

Gramm says the budget fight is "one of those things that comes along every two or three terms" when a congressman has to put party considerations aside.

"I believe this is the most important issue of the 97th Congress, and I believe the future of the country depends on this budget. I am not going to let partisan politics stand between me and what's good for the country," he added.

Gramm pointed out that when he ran for Congress in 1978, "I ran on cutting spending and the budget, cutting government regulations and cutting red tape."

He began that battle in 1979, but it was basically a rear guard action, he said. "Now, with a new administration, for the first time I'm in a position to work to make things better, to see some tangible results for the efforts I and a lot of others in Congress have made, many of them conservative Democrats," he added.

Budget Cuts

President Reagan's proposed budget cuts have brought wails of anguish from every special interest group across the country, but the majority of Americans elected Ronald Reagan to get government spending under control.

Most folks agree that his campaign pledge was sound and made sense. And most people agree it's a step in the right direction...as long as the direction isn't toward their favorite government program.

We think it's time President Reagan told all those special interest groups that there's no Santa Claus and get on with his campaign pledge. We all know that billions of dollars could be saved without hurting deserving peo-

The welfare program has proven to be a farce with its liberal guidelines that make it possible for almost everyone to tap that till. Our government should be able to trim the fat without bypassing the really deserving people.

It wasn't too many years ago that an honest day's work brought an honest day's pay. Now, too many citizens - and illegal aliens - have the idea that Uncle Sam is supposed to take care of them.

As long as the budget cuts are equitable and fair, we believe the long-range outcome will greatly benefit our nation.

Guest Editorial Permissiveness

We have been called a permissive society because of the way we have let our children take over homes and schools, but it is becoming quite evident that this permissiveness extends to the criminal element most of all.

After President Reagan was shot as he left the Washington Hilton hotel, we heard the cries of handgun control, better screening of the presidential bystanders, more protection for our chief executive.

Loudest of all are those who think that gun control is the answer to our violent society. They say that if the guns are somehow all gathered up and kept away from everybody, then crime will melt away

How about all those children killed in Atlanta? Not a one of them has died from a gun. They have all evidently been strangled. Should this call for an immediate move to deprive people of their hands?

Guns are often used to kill people, and guns are used to commit other crimes such as burglary and armed robbery. We have to admit that knives are used for the same purpose, maybe even as often as Knives are a favorite tool of rapists, even more so than guns. Yet the anti-knife movement is but a ripple, if that.

weapons used in crimes are just part of the act, of course. The basic cause goes a whole lot deeper than the kind of weapon used.

The main thing wrong is that criminals are getting away with more and more because our permissive society, the majority of Americans, lets them get away with it.

An alien named Sirhan Sirhan shot and killed Senator Robert Kennedy in cold blood, in front of a hundred witnesses. Yet he is living in safety and even some comfort, at taxpayer expense.

Charles Manson, the fellow who engineered one of the most sadistic mass murders in American history. is in prison, but keeps coming up for parole and may get it one of these days when the parole board is convinced that he is over his "mental illness."

We don't have to go that far to find evidence that the majority lets criminals get away with murder, literally. The traveling rapist who was sentenced in Amarillo for the savage murder and rape of a young Amarillo girl and confessed to killing a pregnant Borger housewife, is on the verge of freedom because our courts are bending over backward to let him have every benefit of every technical device known to lawyers.

Another law against owning or using a gun is not the answer. Those who ignore the law against murder, rape and robbery will certainly ignore a simple law against the use of a gun.

The violent society in which we live will not be cleaned up until we citizens get enough courage to enfore law on the lawless in such a way that the punishment will fit the crime. Only when criminals decide the threat of punishment is severe enough will they stop committing crime.

A permissive society will never bring the criminals under control. It will take a lot of toughness, even if it means tampering with some civil rights.

Money-Saving Idea Posed

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek has come up with a money-saving idea, perhaps.

Dear Editor:

A while back I suggested that since science has invented a silicon chip no bigger than your thumbnail that can hold 100,000 bits of information, there's no good reason for teaching a child past the 4th grade. Why try to cram his head full of information for an additional 8 to 12 years, most of which he'll forget anyway, when he can carry around 100,000 facts in a tiny button? Anybody who claims he needs more than 100,000 pieces of information is just showing off. I know politicians who get by on less than a tenth of that

However it appears I left out one additional step. After a kid learns to read and write -- and despite how unfamiliar some schools are with teaching reading and writing most kids do pick up the knack - and is handed one of those information chips, he still needs to know how to spell. But additional schooling won't be necessary. Science has come to the rescue. It has now invented an electrical typewriter that has a built-in tocabulary of 50,000 words that knows how to spell. If you misspell a word that typewriter automatically corrects it. Anybody who needs more than 50,000 words is talking over most people's heads, probably including his own. I know politicians who get by on a few thousand, although when they speak it sounds like 100,000.

So you can now see that if you can teach a kid to read, write and type, you can hand him one of those information chips at about the 4th grade and turn him loose on life. If heloses his chip, send him to the State Legislature where it won't be noticed.

Yours faithfully,

IT'S EASTER AND TIME TO LAUGH

The humor of the Biblical events have been lost down through history. The combination of the events being translated from strange languages and customs and the interpretation of these events by sour pusses leaves not a chuckle to be had.

The events were serious of course. Their meanings were serious and still are. But the events were experienced by real folks. Folks with foibles and eccentricities just like us all

What could be funnier than two men running to the tomb when they had just been told He was not there. One of them was thinking as he ran, "what will I do when I get there? There is no way I am going inside the place." He stopped and peeked in for a look. A man peeking in a tomb looking for God just had to make angels laugh.

And Jesus himself must have giggled. Even after the resurrection He could not resist confronting a declarative statement. One of His followers had said, "I will not believe until I can put my finger in the nail holes." That statement must be the fore runner of our statements like, if you were the last person on earth, I wouldn't touch it with a ten foot pole or, not till a certain place freezes over.

So what did he do? Why He grinned and said, "Put your finger in the nail hole." The disciple stood in slack-jawed amazement and wondered who told Him about the statement.

Humor is also joy. Where could you find more joy than; He got up? He beat death to death. And when they ran to see Him, the first thing He said must have been important. Had He been white with fear and come screaming out of the place there would never again be anything to laugh about...ever. But He came out...smiled and said

That means come on folks, it's Easter and time * to laugh.

The success of the shuttle made us all proud to be Americans again, dispelling the shadow of shame forced upon us by the black cloud of the attempted murder of our country's senior official just a few days earlier.

As four men thanked God they were still alive, one recovering from the devastating effects of having a bullet pierce his brain, the citizens of the United States were pulled together to cheer the re-entry of America into the space business.

News coverage of both these events was unconditional...from the horror and shock amidst the early-hours confusion following the assassination attempt to the brightly contrasting chapter of hope written by Columbia.

The grisly details of a demented man's dream of achieving notoriety by snuffing out the life of an American president were plastered before a disbelieving public, both here and abroad. Only in America is the dirtiest of laundry hung out to wash before a critical and envious world.

But, as if to help a nation whose prestige has continually been dampened in the eyes of a watching world, the shuttle mission acted as a poultice to help heal wounds that have been draining this nation's life blood.

It, too, was a media event as it should have been.

We can thank the founding fathers, men who, in many cases, made the ultimate sacrifice, for assuring this country of some basic, fundamental rights. One of those rights is freedom of the press...the right to know, whether the news is good or bad.

We have the right, and the privilege, to report the horror of innocent men being assaulted by another. But, we also have the right to expound upon the efforts of men contributing to the progress of an ideal.

It's a right worth preserving.

Oilman Finds Fortune in Austin Chalk

DALLAS (AP) — Just as magically as Ray Holifield first drew oil from the enigmatic Austin chalk, the sleepy communities above the fractured limestone have been transformed into a bustling metropolis.

Another Texas oil boom was underway, and Holifield, son of a Missouri sharecropper, was widely acclaimed as the genius behind the prosperity that lessened U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

The Austin chalk, so named because it outcrops near Texas' capital city, had been largely ignored by oilmen because it is somewhat akin to a plastic table top in porosity and permeability. Wells drilled into it came in strong, but the slighest adjustment in equipment or even a shifting wind could cause the wells to invest time and money.

But when Middle East oil first was cut off and demand for domestic oil increased, a few hardy drillers returned to the trend, which runs from Mexico to Florida, to try once again to retrieve its valuable, honey-colored oil.

"Back in the old days, everything was low-priced, so you only went for high volume and high deliverability," said Holifield. "Most of those easy fields have been discovered. So if you want to find much oil and gas today, you've got to go to something that was passed by many, many times before."

In 1975, two oilmen persuaded Holifield, a geologist, to look at a well near Giddings in central Texas that still was spewing after two years — even though it stood smack in the middle of the

Holifield, who had spent most of the early 1970s searching for oil in fractured reservoirs for various Middle Eastern countries, became convinced similar fracture systems trapped oil near faults in the chalk.

He devised a secret method of interpreting seismic data — sound waves that bounced off various layers of rock when dynamite was set off underground — to pinpoint spots whre oil was likely hiding.

Holifield convinced his three major clients to combine his seismic findings with fracing — a process in which large amounts of water and sand are pumped into a well hole to force oil out of fracture systems clogged with drilling mud and natural oebris.

The treasure of the chalk was found.

Using Holifield's secret method, the three companies hit oil with nine of 10 wells they drilled. Seven0of every 10 became commercial producers. And by the end of 1978, the three owned half of the 150 producing wells in the field.

Although Holifield had kept his findings quiet for fear large companies would gobble up all the oil leases in the seven-county field, the wordsoon got out and Giddings was transformed into an oldfashioned oil boom town

By early 1979, the number of operators in the Giddings area had risen from fewer than 30 to more than 100, with oilmen coming from hundreds of miles away to cash in on the boom.

An estimated 7,500 newcomers quadrupled the local population, and lodging became so scarce that people were sleeping in their cars and in tents in the oil fields. One enterprising businessman began converting turned-over oil storage tanks into $24-a-night motel rooms and another built his own trailer park.

Field laborers who showed up for early breakfast at local grills found employers would compete for their services.

Giddings bank deposits grew by $1 million a month, but oilmen were not the only ones getting rich. Some property owners became overnight millionaires.

The boom created a new set of problems for the area, however, as crime kept pace with the rising cost of living. In Lee County, the sheriff's department reported a 100 percent increase in cases of disorderly conduct and simple assault in 1980, and small gangs began to roam the oil fields, stealing equipment and oil.

Locals accused oil companies of knocking down trees, breaking fences, polluting creeks and spoiling deer stands. The pipeline companies, who came in armed with the right of eminent domain and began digging up property, received even more criticism.

And soon, other geologists discovered how to use seismic to locate oil.

The Giddings field — 80-to90-miles long and five-to-10miles wide — has produced more than 30 million barrels of oil and 60 billion cubic feet of gas since Holifield's first wells were drilled. He estimates the field may hold 250 million barrels of oil and a half trillion cubic feet of gas.

But he points out that "trying to predict the reserves in the Austin chalk is almost impossible unless you tell me what the price of oil is going to be."

Holifield says his estimates could rise with the price of oil — or with decontrol of the field's gas prices. The Texas Railroad Commission is scheduled to consider the latter in May.

"The gas reserves could double because the more money you make on gas, the more money you've got to drill," he said.

Holifield said he believes gas producing levels lie beneath the chalk at a depth of 20,000 feet or more. Most rigs don't reach beyond 10,000 feet, however, because of the expense of drilling extremely deep wells.

He said about 85 rigs now are drilling in the sevencounty area of the field, and about 125 rigs are scattered throughout the Austin chalk.

"It's busy down there, but it's not people stepping on top of each other," Holifield said. "The Giddings field may be to its height, unless, say, we were cut off from the Middle East oil and then the price of oil went up and then the drilling activity would increase more."

Besides making hundreds of millions of dollars for his clients, Holifield has grossed $10 million to $12 million himself over the past four years. Even though he now has his own company — Ray Holifield & Associates — he still works 14- and 16-hour days, seven days a week.

In addition to his original clients, he now consults with several other companies drilling in the chalk — a situation he describes as "delicate."

Although his clients continue to acquire acrege through the chalk trend, Holifield says they are deploying most of their assets in other areas of the United States.

Some of his 37 staff members and 12 geologists "spend very little time working on the Austin chalk and are spending great amounts of time working on other projects," Holifield said.

Holifield, who holds a bachelor of science from the University of Missouri and a masters degree from the University of Texas, still visits the chalk almost every weekend, even though his clients are leasing in new areas where their geologist can work his magic.

"We're mainly working primarily with various projects throughout the United States specializing in the lowpermeability, low-porosity type reservoirs," Holifield said. "We are attempting to duplicate what we did in Giddings."

Pilgrims Celebrate 'Holy Saturday'

JERUSALEM (AP) — About 500 pilgrims joined Bishop Giovanni Caldani, the vicar of Nazareth, at the Church of the Holv Sepulchre for the traditional Holy Saturday sunrise Blessing of the Fire, symbolizing the light Christ gave to the world.

Later in the day, worshippers flocked to the church in the heart of Jerusalem's walled Old City for private devotions at the traditional site of Christ's crucifixion and entombment.

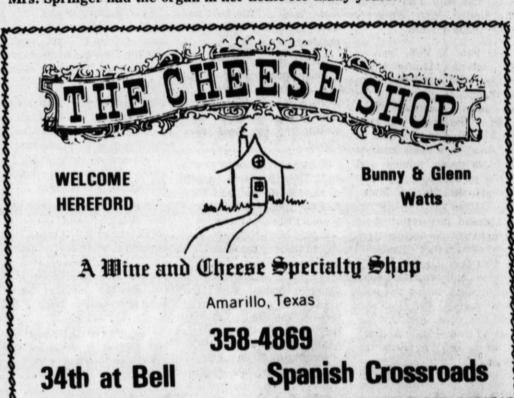

Easter celebrations conclude Sunday with a Mass of the Resurrection led by the Latin Patriarch of Jerusalem, Monsignor Giacomo Giuseppe Beltritti.

Officials estimated about 20,000 pilgrims marched up the Via Dolorosa, many shouldering heavy wooden crosses, on Good Friday.

Many lingered at a patch of paving stones discovered last year during urban renewal work in Jerusalem's Street of Sorrow. Archaeologists believe the stones date back to Christ's time, but it was not known if he walked them, because scholars disagree on the route he took to Calvary.

An estimated 100,000 tourists have flocked to Holy Land for the spring holidays, including thousands of Jews celebrating Passover.

The eight-day Passover holiday begins tonight with a traditional Seder dinner recounting the story of the Israelite Exodus from Egypt. Observant Jews abstain from eating bread or other leavened foods to remember the 40 hard years of wandering in the desert.

Residents Want Rio Grande City to be a City

"We felt we didn't do our homework last time," said Ruben Saenz, high school principal.

Saenz is collecting 50 signatures needed to call for a June election on the issue.

A bit of history helps explain the controversy. The area around this community and its sister city of Ciudad Camargo in Mexico first was settled in the 1750s as Spain parceled out land grants.

Henry Clay Davis moved

and Mexico.

The town quickly became a strategic trading and military post at a time when steamboats plied the river and the U.S. Army established Fort Ringgold here.

Prominent families controlled the land and its people through the early 20th Century and vestiges of their influence remain.

One of the few times the factions united was last year in a determined and successful fight against state plans to build a prison in Starr County. In addition to legendary political battles, the county has been chronicled by numerous writers and law en-

"We're only able to cover Rio Grande City now," he said. The only other town of any size in the county is Roma, which is incorporated.

The major objections to a city government are taxes and politicians.

Some ask if the community has a large enough tax base to support city services. Recent figures show Starr County with a per capita income of $2,960, the lowest in the na-

"We don't want the old machine to move in," said one county official who asked not to be named.

Pope, whose father was mayor of the old city, echoes the anxiety over who would run the town.

"I want to find out if the business community is going to organize and if the elected officials will cooperate with us. I think we need a city but not until we get out of all these political factions," he

"I have not made a decision myself," said County Judge Blas Chapa.

Incorporation supporters have a tough task ahead of convincing the populace, said Estella Contreras, who opposed the proposal in 1978 but has changed her mind.

"It failed because people that wanted it didn't explain it. The town is growing faster than ever. We have to incorporate one day or another. We can't keep relying on the county," said Mrs. Contreras, a well-known resident whose family settled here on a Spanish land grant 11 generations ago.

R.C. Salinas, junior high principal, led the incorporation forces three years ago.

"There are still some opponents in the community, mostly narrow-minded people afraid of taxation without looking to the benefits," he said. "If we fail, we'll keep coming back and coming

PATOKA, Ind. (AP) -Coal miner John Hull kissed his wife Karen goodbye early one February morning in 1978, put on his jacket, paused for a moment and came back and kissed her again.

Today, three years later, Karen Hull remembers that extra kiss. Hull, a member of the United Mine Workers. never made it home.

On Feb. 3, 1978, midway through a 111-day UMW strike, Hull was killed in an exchange of gunfire at the non-union Bowersock Mine. Men at the scene told Mrs. Hull her husband was shot as he stood on a knoll between the non-union miners and UMW pickets who had been trying to shut the mine down.

A grand jury returned no indictments. No one was ever charged with Hull's slaying.

"I've been on that hillside with him a thousand times in my dreams during the past three years," Mrs. Hull, 34, said this week. And now the current United Mine Workers strike is bringing back the the rural Patoka home Hull built in 1975, his snub-nosed, blue-eyed widow talked about the curly-haired miner who loved his family, his friends and his union.

Theirs was a high school romance between a shy country girl of 14 and a handsome 16-year-old who "drove too fast, drank a little beer and liked too many girls," she

But his good looks and good humor captivated her, and in the summer after her sophomore year, the summer Hull graduated from high school, the two teen-agers

She was pregnant by year's end. They found an apartment, son Robbie was born and his young father took a job in a Princeton factory.

It was Mrs. Hull who persuaded her husband to become a miner. By 1968, they had a second child, a daughter named Maxi, and needed the higher pay and benefits the mines offered. Hull went to work in an AMAX mine in Oakland City.

Their early married years

Hull provided well and worked hard, but having played hard and married young, he couldn't seem to settle down. He spent more time with his friends than with his family. And his allegiance to his union made him miss too many birthdays and anniver-

Pasted together with love and patience, their fragile bond held. "I told John I had one dream in life," she said. "I wanted a home, and I wanted him to settle down and act like he loved me."

In 1975, Hull set to work on the house - and himself. When we built that home, he decided it was time to grow up," Mrs. Hull said. From then on, his pickup truck rattled into the driveway after work every day.

Late on Feb. 2, 1978, Hull had a call from a fellow miner. He hung up the phone, dgun and put it in his truck.

His wife asked about the gun. "I said, 'If you go out in the morning, and they see you with a gun or your friends with guns, somebody's bound to get hurt." Hull told her he probably wouldn't even take the gun out of his truck.

After Hull kissed her goodbye, she went back to bed. But she awoke feeling nervous, and when two of his friends drove up, she knew something was wrong. By the time she reached the doctor who confirmed the news, the story of her husband's shooting death was already on local radio stations.

Friends drove Hull's truck home. When Mrs. Hull and her son looked inside, they found his gun, still loaded, under the seat. He had never taken it out.

For weeks, "I screamed and I cried," his wife said. "I guess I just went crazy. But I found that you can't stay crazy. You either have to get better or worse.'

Time helped, she said, as did writing him letters, tales on lined notebook paper of love, grief and bitterness.

She was bitter, she said, when she learned Hull's mine had closed and realized he had known all along, even as he walked the picket lines, that he would soon have been out of a job. "Now I realize you weren't fighting for your job," she wrote. "It was the union. Well, was it worth it?" Other letters told of loneliness and fear. "I miss you so much. ... Everything is so awful. ... If I could just feel secure again for one day ...'

Mrs. Hull spent two years secluded in her house, the house she would have lost if miners hadn't set up a trust fund. Hull had worked in the mines just three months short of the 10 years required for a UMW widow to receive pension benefits.

This year, she is getting out more. Robbie and Maxi are 16 and 14, and she's taking a real estate course at Vincennes University. She is also dating

a man - a coal miner - and though she still cries, "it's a good cry now," and most days, she's able to stop. But the UMW is on strike again, and it's bringing back the memories. Hull would be 36 now. This summer, they would have been married 18 years. With the children getting older, the Hulls would finally have time alone together. Cooking dinner would be a celebration instead of a chore, Mrs. Hull said, and the fighting would all be behind them.

Most of all, she said, "I'd be happy. If I could just see him laugh one more time ....'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -Texans who borrow money whether from a pillar-of-thecommunity bank or a street corner lender - probably would pay higher interest rates under a bill approved by the Senate.

The Senate climaxed seven hours of debate Wednesday night by passing a proposal that would raise the interest rate ceiling on most loans, including credit card purchases, to 24 percent.

Home mortages would be excluded.

The vote to return the amended bill to the House was 24-4, with Sen. Ray Farabee not voting.

The ceiling would go to 28 percent on business loans of $250,000 or more. Farm loans were exempted from the higher commercial rate in an apparent attempt to attract the vote of rural senators.

"We're not sticking it to anybody except those who borrow money to make a purchase," said Sen. Betty Andujar, R-Fort Worth.

"We're not sticking it anybody," responded the bill sponsor, Sen. Grant Jones. "We are raising the maximum rate a person has to pay if he feels he must borrow money. ... Any ceiling is counter-productive."

The bill establishes a ceiling that would be tied to the six-month U.S. Treasury bill rate. When the rate is as low as 9 percent, the ceiling would be 18 percent. But when the T-bill rate is higher - as it is now - the ceiling would be twice the T-bill rate, up to a limit of 24 percent on personal loans.

Of 15 proposed amendments, only one that Jones opposed cleared the Senate and that one survived by a single vote. It would enable the holder of a charge or credit card such as VISA or Mastercard to pay off his balance in the first billing cycle without also having to pay interest from the date of purchase.

Jones, D-Abilene, accepted an amendment to prohibit a lender from discriminating on the basis of sex, race, color, religion or national origin.

The Senate, however, rejected Sen. Carl Parker's "a deal's a deal" amendment which would prohibit a store or financial institution from charging a new and higher interest rate on a charge account or credit card balance compiled when a lower rate was in effect.

Parker, D-Port Arthur, said Jones' bill reminded him of a childhood neighbor "who had the only basketball in town. The only way we could

'Ordinary Kid' Turns Bullfighter Once a Week

By STEVE BREWER

Associated Press Writer EL PASO, Texas (AP) -It's like Superman and his telephone booth.

During the week, 18-yearold David Renk is a skinny high school senior and trainer for the school football team a self-described "ordinary kid" who dresses in cowboy shirts and jeans like most Texas youth.

But once a week, he gets his red cape, a bespangled suit and a black hat and becomes a bullfighter.

April 19, Renk will become the United States' only fullfledged matador in a ceremony at the bullring in Juarez, Mexico.

He will be the first American to be a matador since the 1960s and, he says, the youngest American to ever reach the rank of matador.

Renk, who lives in a suburb near Houston, has killed more than 50 bulls since he was 14. He's been testing bulls since he was 12. And he's been around bullrings all his life.

Renk doesn't look like the classic bullfighter of films and Ernest Hemingway novels. He has blond hair and blue eyes. He's 6-foot-1 and weighs 138 pounds.

"Monday through Saturday, I'm an ordinary kid," Renk said. "But I'm totally changed on Sunday. On Sunday, I'm a bullfighter and I've got a job to do."

Renk saw his first bullfight before he was old enough to remember it. His father, Fred Renk, fought as a "novillero" when his son was

In the following years, he traveled all over Mexico, fighting in areas near Mexico City, in Acapulco and in most of the cities along the Texas

Now, Renk's father has created the David Renk Corp., and has sold 10 percent to a stockholder.

"I've never even seen my office yet." the younger Renk joked. "I guess it's the park at 7 in the morning and the bullrings on the weekends."

Renk runs in a park every morning to keep his legs in shape and spends hours working with his cape to practice control and grace.

The practice and the travel to Mexico detract from Renk's studies at Cy-Fair High School, but he is determined to make a career of bullfighting as well as finish school. Renk often speaks at Houston area schools, where he encounters students who challenge the brutality of bullfighting: "There's always at least one person who likes to argue," he said. "They say it's cruel, brutal and inhumane. I say, 'You're 100 percent correct.' That usually shuts them up." Renk blames American attitudes toward bullfighting on border town bullrings that cater to the tourist trade.

"Americans go to the bullfights and don't know anything about it," he said. "Or, people will go to see a real bullfight, and they see a Mickey Mouse thing. The

Renk says putting on a good show is the most important facet of bullfighting - next to staying alive. "I get a kind of nervousness before the fight," he said, adding that he's seldom really scared. "Once I get out there, I'm applying my knowledge and working the animal." Renk has never been gored, but he's been tossed by bulls several times.

His closest call was once in Juarez, one of the rare times when he tasted fear.

"He was a fluke animal," Renk said. "He must have weighed 1,000 pounds and his head looked me straight in the eye. He almost spoke my language and knew my name. He was out to get me.

"He tossed me and I rolled over, got up and killed him with one sword," he said, smiling. "They gave me an

'Mrs. Blackwell's Heart of Texas Cookbook' Kitchen Depression Days Recorded

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) - Few modern cooks would return to the days of backyard hogkillings, wringing chicken necks or rending lard.

But for the curious and those who remember such once-routine, rural activities of the Depression, author Louise Blackwell Dillow has recorded them for posterity.

Her "Mrs. Blackwell's Heart of Texas Cookbook" recalls days of growing up on a farm near Corsicana when the only store-bought things were flour, salt, sugar, coffee

"My whole memory of my mother is her preparing food. She did that all day long," said the retired child welfare worker who was born fifth of nine children.

Published by Corona Publishing Co. of San Antonio, the book's first printing of 6,000 copies is being marketed only in Texas.

The project started strictly as a way to preserve family sicana, Mrs. Dillow drove around to see the numerous homes she had lived in when her father was a tenant farmer. Hardly anything remained. She and her sisters began reminiscing about their mother's well spread table and soon regretted that few family recipes were written

She took it from there, collaborating with an older sister, Deenie B. Carver, on the cookbook which combines anecdotes of growing up with recipes from a country kit-

"I don't expect people to try everything," Mrs. Dillow said during an interview on her beachfront condominium.

"Lye soap is one of the 'good ol' days' products that I've never had a hankering to go back to," she writes.

In a section on chicken, she adds, "The gizzard was a coveted piece of chicken in the Blackwell family until someone told us that eating gizzards would make a girl's

Francisco Javier Mendez, convicted of murder and voluntary manslaughter, will be eligible for parole in less than two years in the double slaying, said assistant District Attorney Steve Hilbig. "Is that what life is worth in Bexar County?" Hilbig asked.

"I just call them like I see them," responded State District Judge Preston Dial when asked about the criticism.

Dial this week sentenced Mendez, 23, to 10 years in prison on a murder conviction in the killing of his 57-year-old stepfather, Carlos Garcia. Garcia was shot in the head as he lay in his bed on Sept. 19, 1980. Dial also sentenced Mendez to five years imprisonment on a voluntary manslaughter conviction in the death of Mendez' 15-year-old wife, Sylvia, who was several weeks pregnant. Dial ordered the two sentences served concurrently because Mendez was tried on both charges at the same time.

Mrs. Mendez had been shot twice in the head and "Frankie Loves Sylvia" was ererererererererer

"I'm just dismayed," Hilbig said. "His stepfather was sleeping in his bed. Mendez went in and executed the old man. He shot him from a distance of six inches.

"He claimed his stepfather had verbally abused him, but this time he never gave him a chance to say a word."

The jury heard testimony that the defendant's wife threatened to leave Mendez, whom she married when she was 13 years old.

"People complain about what the district attorney's office does," Hilbig said. 'Maybe they should also complain about what the judges sometimes do.

The Blackwell family boasted seven girls and two boys.

Mrs. Dillow went off to Mary Hardin Baylor College in Belton for a bachelor's degree, attended the University of Chicago and earned a master's degree from Howard University in Washington. She worked in child welfare departments across Texas, married and reared three children in the Washington, D.C., area where her husband worked for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. They retired to this South Texas resort where he died less than a year ago.

Security Federal has $2 million for home improvement loans.

FIRST THE BAD NEWS...

Sorry fellas, but we've got $2 million for home improvement loans at our five offices. This means you can add a room, pour a patio, repair a roof, carpet the house, wallpaper a kitchen, paint the halls, replace a cabinet, or anything else your wife might think about doing.

... NOW THE GOOD NEWS.

Every dollar you put into your house with a home improvement loan will probably add even more value than you borrow. With homes appreciating like they do, a home improvement loan from Security Federal could be the best investment you'll make. That may not cure a sore back from painting, but it sure helps.

Come in and see us about a home improvement loan!

Aliens—Threat or Help to Local Industry?

EL PASO, Texas (AP) -Every morning, thousands of Mexicans in the border city of Juarez cross the Rio Grande River and go to jobs and controversy in El Paso.

Some see the Mexican workers as a threat. To immigration officials, the workers are more statistics and more headaches. Others status. That number see the workers as a boon to local industry and part of a larger economic picture involving the two cities. "There are people who feel

just as strongly one way as McGehee, head immigration inspector in El Paso. "It's definitely controversial." Controversial or not, it's big business.

More than 7,000 Juarez residents come to their jobs legally and could live in the United States if they chose because of their immigration represents more than 5 percent of the total workforce of El Paso.

many Mexicans work illegally in El Paso every day by the other," said Henry V. crossing the bridges on

It's been estimated that as

72-hour "shopping passes." The result is often confusion and difficulty in stopping the flow of illegal workers while allowing legal ones to pass, McGehee said.

The legal workers carry green cards that show them to be "permanent resident aliens" in the United States a status between alien and "Most people who are permanent resident aliens do just that - they live over permanently," McGehee said. "It's developed into where it's lawful for a person to be a permanent resident alien even though he lives in a foreign country and commutes to work on this side. "It's not statutory, but it's been condoned for so long that it would take a change in the law to stop it," he said.

Many of the commuters do so because their families still are in Mexico or for economic reasons, he said.

"The reason a lot of these people are commuting is because they can't bring their people (relatives) over legally," said Al Velarde Jr., head of the United States Catholic Conference's immigration assistance office in El Paso.

Velarde currently is lobbying against an Immigration and Naturalization Service regulation that has slowed the process that allowed resident aliens to bring their families into this country.

Prior to 1977, commuters had preference when trying to get immigration papers for family members. The preference system was changed to a quota system in 1977, a move Velarde said

"immediately backed the whole process up seven years or more.'

But McGehee defended the policy. "If we let them all immigrate, we wouldn't be able to absorb that many people," he said. "The cities on the border are scared about how they would absorb these peo-

McGehee said economic difficulty is the other main reason so many people commute rather than move to the United States.

here, "they have to prove that they could come up to meet federal anti-poverty guidelines," he said. "That's awfully difficult for a lot of these people to come up to. So, there's a lot of split families." Despite the prevailing economic problems, McGehee said not all of the commuters have menial or low-paying jobs. INS records show that more than 2,800 commuters work in El Paso industries, especially the booming apparel industry.

Another 1,542 work in building and construction; 1,323 work in sales and service and 867 are in agriculture. Domestic work, once the major job market for commuters, now accounts for only 558 of the legal commuters. Mark T. Miles, general manager of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, said the commuters and large population of Mexican-Americans in El Paso has helped attract labor-intensive industries to the city.

But some labor officials argue that the commuters result in lower wages for El Pasoans because they will work for less.

"It's always been a problem," said Ray Brown, business manager of the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union local. "But in the last few years, it has been a more severe problem.

"They'll do construction work for $3 an hour," Brown said. "We just can't compete with them. Earlier, they had confined themselves to the little jobs, but they're getting contracts at Fort Bliss or at schools and county and city

"They pay no (local) taxes, but they reap the benefits,"

he said. Although he admits "there are some Mexican-Americans who feel the same way," Raphael Ruiz of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union said most of the members of his local have no quarrel with the commuters. He said the local is 98 percent Mexican-American.

"That river there doesn't make a difference," he said. "These people are our brothers and sisters."

"As far as they are concerned," Miles said, "it's one community. It may be two cities, but it's one communi-

Miles said the single community concept is true on the economic level as well. "The two economies are pretty much one in their total effect," he said. "If anything happens to reduce the income in one, it's going to affect the whole thing.

"Saying the commuters are a problem just doesn't make sense," he added. "It's like seven inches of rainfall a year is a problem, but what are you going to do about it? It's characteristic of the area.'

A federal grand jury has issued subpoenas for the welfare rolls for 1978-80 in the eight counties in an effort to identify any federal or state workers receiving welfare beneits illegally through the Food Stamp or Aid to Families with Dependent Childrejn programs, according to FBI Agent Albert R. Robinson who is heading the investigation. The Texas Department of Human Resources was ordered to give the records to the grand jury by May 5.

Subpoenas also were issued for civilian employee payroll records at Kelly Air Force Base, the San Antonio FBI office and the U.S. Attorney's office to be delivered to the grand jury by June 2.

Robinson said the in-federal officials said. About $92 million is paid out in welfare benefits each year in the eight affected counties, state officials said, including about $74.8 million in food stamps and $17.5 million in AFDC funds.

The eight counties have 9,494 state employees and 34,639 federal workers, personnel officials reported.

As of January, 147,920 people were on the food stamp rolls and 43,425 were receiving aid through the AFDC program.

Hereford Wins 6 Events at Canyon

Hereford won six events in the Whiteface track team's best performance of the season, but Clovis used team depth to edge the Herd for the team title at the Canyon Track Meet Friday.

Clovis racked up 155 points in the meet and Hereford had 145. Plainview was a distant third at 11412; Canyon had 571/2, and Pampa recorded 38 points.

Capturing first-places for the Herd cinder team were Norman Brown in the 400 meters (49.77), Harold Terry in the 200 meters (22.01), Wayne High in the 110 high hurdles (15.48), Felix Soliz in the 800 meters (1:57.62), and Armando Rodriguez in the Hereford's sprint relay team of Jeff Coupe, Harold Terry, Rudy Hernandez and Norman Brown also took a first place. The foursome toured the 400 meters in 43 seconds flat.

The Whiteface 1600 meter relay team came within a half step of winning the blue ribbon. Brown ran a sizzling 48 flat anchor lap, but he started about 22 yards behind Ray Harris of Clovis. Others on the Hereford team were Ball, Soliz, and Hernandez.

Clovis took the mile relay with a time of 3:23.9 and Hereford was clocked at 3:24. Clovis finished 1-2-3 in the pole vault and 1-3-5 in the 3200 advantage over Hereford.

Alfred Ball was second in the 300 meter intermediate hurdles, and High took third in that event. Ball was fourth in the high hurdles behind High's first-place effort.

Nieves Rodriguez took a second place in the shot put with a heave of 48-5. Erasmo Gonzales was fifth in the discus with a throw of 133-1.

Terry took a third place in the long jump with an effort of 21-434, and Grady Brown was fourth in the high jump when he cleared six foot. George Arroyos grabbed another second-place for Hereford in the 3200 meter run. His time was 10:34.46. meter run to post the team Fernando Carasco took sixth in the same race.

Soliz had another impressive win the 800 meters, and Hereford's Chris Carter finished sixth in the event. Soliz has been beaten only once this year.

Terry took a third place in the 200 meters with a time of 11.49, and Jeff Coupe was sixth at 11.4. Couple was also sixth in the 200 meters with a time of 23.14.

Carasco and Arroyos finished fifth and sixth, respectively, in the 1600 meters.

Track coach Lester Kirkland was very pleased with his team's performance at the meet. "It was our best showing of the year, and the most points a Hereford team has scored in several years."

Kirkland was impressed with Terry's effort at the meet. Terry ran his best time of the year in winning the 200 meters, and also took points in the long jump, 100 meters, and as a member of the sprint relay team.

HOUSTON (AP) - It's almost as if the prodigal son has returned home.

David Clyde, who set out from Houston Westchester High School with a solid-gold fastball in 1973 to seek fame and fortune with the Texas Rangers, has been signed by the Houston Astros and will report Tuesday to their Class AA affiliate at Columbus, Ga. It means a full-circle route for Clyde's star-crossed baseball career that has spanned the heights and depths in eight years.

Twenty days after his graduation from high school, Clyde dazzled a victory- a trade to Cleveland in 1978; a

By SPEEDY NIEMAN

Grant Teaff, head football coach at Baylor University and one of the country's most popular banquet speakers, will be featured when the Whiteface Booster Club holds its annual All-Sports Banquet here Monday night.

The banquet, honoring all high school athletes, will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Bull Barn. Presentation of special awards will be another highlight of the Josserand, president of the booster club.

Teff, who has been the Bears' mentor since 1972, did what many people said could not be down when he took the Baylor football program from the depths of depression to the position it holds today one of the most respected in the nation. Baylor football had a 3-28 won-lost record in the three years before Teaff arrived on the Waco campus. And worse than the on-field record was the negative attitude that perfor each booster club vaded the team, school and member and each program its supporters. The man from advertiser. These can be Snyder took on a task that picked up at either Hereford was called hopeless, and the

the same at Baylor since.

In his very first season, Teaff received the Southwest Conference Coach of the Year honors. Two years later, his Bear produced what was called the "Miracle on the Brazos" when it won the SWC championship, the school's first in 50 years. The Bears went on to win the Cotton Bowl for the First time ever, and Teaff not only won the SWC Coach of the Year honor but was named the National Coach of the Year, too. The 1979 Bears were another Teaff success story. A team that was picked near the bottom of the SWC race finished the year with an 8-4 record, including an impressive Peach Bowl victory over Clemson. Teaff was named Co-Coach of the Year in the conference.

The story of the 1980 team is well documented. The Bears went 10-1 for the season and 8-0 in the SWC. Overall, Baylor broke 28 school records that year-a season when the team was picked to finish sixth or seventh in the league. Again, Teaff was Coach of the Year.

In the 1979-80 seasons, Teaff's teams compiled an 18-5 record, one of the best in the nation. He is Baylor's second winningest coach at 51-48-3 (behind Morley Jennings' 83-60-6 in a 15-year mark). With his nine seasons,

Teaff has coached in the SWC assistant coach and longer than any other active recruiting coordinator at

An outstanding athlete at Snyder High School, Teaff played two years of junior college football at San Angelo and later was All-Texas Conference linebacker at McMurry College. He was a team captain at all three by taking over the Baylor levels.

Teaff began his coaching career as an assistant at Lubbock High. He then moved to McMurry as the nation's youngest head coach. When the school dropped football scholarships, Teaff stayed three more seasons to coach players he recruited.

In 1966, Teaff was hired as

Texas Tech University. Teaff's next move was to Angelo State as the head coach, where he led the Rams to a 19-11 mark in three years, including a 7-3 record in 1971.

Then Teaff accepted the biggest challenge of his life grid reins. In addition to surrounding himself with top assistants, Teaff has the knack for recruiting and developing some of the best players in the country.

His coaching philosophy places emphasis on personal development of the individual. Teaff strongly believes that motivational skills help players become better, and that this has been instrumental in the promotion of four of his aides over the years to jobs as head coaches. These include Bill Yung at West Texas State, Dal Shealy at Richmond, Ron Harm at Texas A&M, and Pat Culpepper at Norther Illinois.

Teaff is recognized as one of the top football clinic speakers in the nation. He's active in the Fellowship of Christian athletes, having een elected as a national trustee several years ago.

Grant and his wife, Donell, a former Texas Tech cheerleader, have three daughters-Tammy 23, Tracy 21 and Layne 16.

Louis Eulogized As Champion Of Champions in Las Vegas Ceremony

By PATRICK ARNOLD Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -In the huge pavilion of glittering Caesars Palace, in the company of the rich and the famous, nearly 3,000 people cheered in tribute to the memory of Joe Louis, the man with the modest manner and mighty punch.

'Let's hear it for the cham-Jackson said Friday at the close of his eulogy for the black former heavyweight boxing champion. "Let's hear it for the champ."

The crowd in the sports pavilion rose and erupted into applause for Louis, who died Sunday at 66 and will be buried Tuesday at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia.

Jackson, a civil rights pion," the Rev. Jesse leader, eulogized Louis as "the blacks' treasure and the world's champion," an

"God sent Joe from the black race to represent the human race," Jackson said. Prior to the service several hundred people viewed the open coffin, sitting on a bier in a boxing ring and flanked by an honor guard from nearby Nellis Air Force Base. On Thursday more than 10,000 people filed past during the day-long public viewing, according to mortuary officials.

Jackson shared the services with Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr., who sang "Here's to the Winner," his voice breaking at one point. Davis closed with a quiet,

"God bless you, Joe." Sinatra called Louis the "champion of champions who introduced grace and dignity to the sporting square with the ropes around it.

"He never boasted in victory nor wept in defeat," said Sinatra. "He apologized not. He knew too well that life had 15 rounds and none of us can win them all.'

Sinatra, World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, fight pro-

"I'm very sad and grieved," Ali said before the service. "But still you know in the back of your mind we all go out this way.

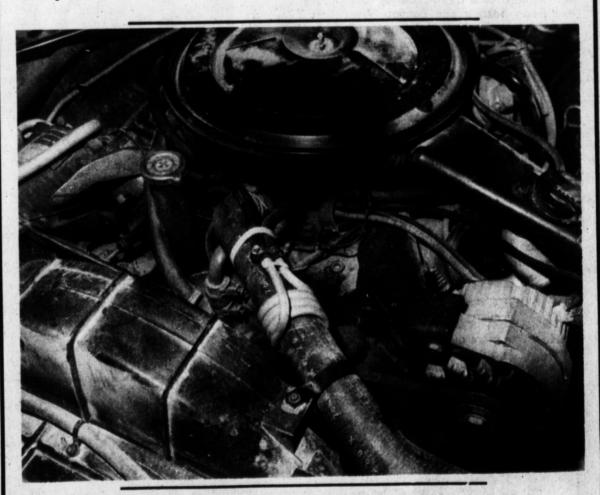

Louis' professional career spanned 17 years and 71 fights. He won 68 of them. He won the heavyweight crown in 1937 and held it for 12 years, longer than anyone else. He defended the title a record 25 times. President Reagan waived regulations that would have prevented Louis' burial at the national cemetery. Although a veteran - he was an Army sergeant and spent the war fighting exhibition bouts for the troops - Louis would not have qualified under regulations imposed in recent years to limit the number of burials at Arlington.

Louis came to Las Vegas in 1963 and beginning in 1971 worked as a casino host at Caesars. He suffered a stroke and underwent heart surgery in 1977 and although confined to a wheelchair and unable to work after that, became a sort of goodwill ambassador and attended most of the frequent title fights at the Strip

Gas Expander

The use of the Gas Expander will provide a fuel system for internal combustion engines by creating a means for preheating and expanding the gasoline to a predetermined temperature -- before delivering the fuel to the carburator.

This will provide a highly combustible fuel mixture which is more readily ignited when delivered into the combustion chambers of the engine, therefore the efficiency and performance or the engine is greatly improved with a resultant savings in fuel.

In February of 1981 when the temperature got to 7 degrees below zero, our heater was turned completely off. The fireplace with a heatolator kept the house at 68 degrees.

Alton Hartley 510 Sycamore Hereford, Texas

In winters before Full Home Insulation Co. reinsulated my mobile home, the heater ran all of the time and still couldn't warm it. Now in winter, it is very comfortable and with the heater cut off at least 60 percent of the time.

Denise Kelley 713 13th St. Hereford, Texas

...and, read what the NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC'S Special report on energy has to say about the need for proper insulation..

The Princeton group estimates that a commercial house-doctor visit and quick-fix would cost from $200 to $400. Even such a summary treatment should lower heating bills by 15 to 20 percent, Dutt estimates.

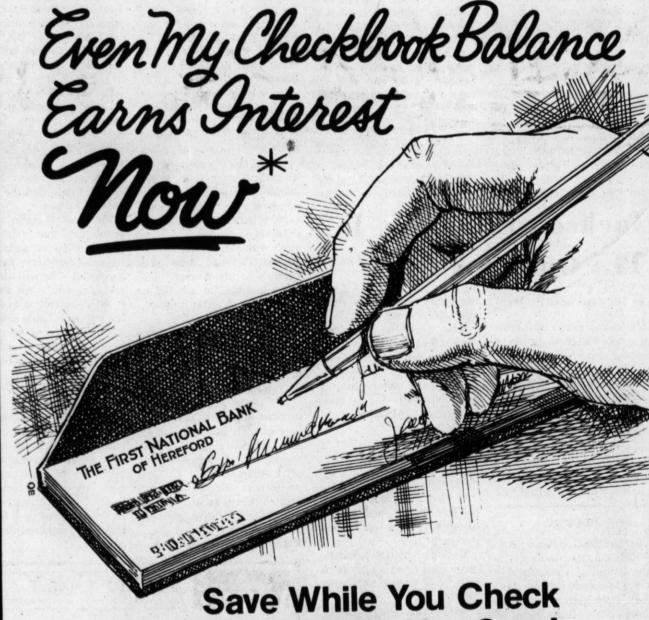

A full-fledged retrofit by a contractor would run from $1,500 to $3,000, but could save half a home's yearly heating costs. This investment, they say, would give a much better return than the interest paid on savings accounts."

'80-81 Seniors Plan Graduating Events

Hereford High School seniors have made plans in honor of their graduation May 28. The senior banquet is scheduled for May 9 at the Hereford Country Club. After the banquet a formal prom for seniors and their dates will be held at the Hereford Community Center sponsored by the senior parents.

'Old West" is the theme for both events. They plan to have games, prizes, contests and the band, "Home Cooking" from Clovis, N.M. will provide both rock and country music.

The senior class picnic is to be held at Wonderland Park in Amarillo May 21. If bad weather should occur, the picnic will be moved to the West Texas State University Activity Center. A barbecue meal will be catered.

The costs of the senior banquet and picnic is covered by the senior class funds. Tickets for the prom and a party following graduation exercises will be sold in advance at HHS. The all-night party after graduation will be held in a barn with breakfast served the next morning.

Baccalaureate services have been set for May 24. Seniors voted for maroon and silver as their colors, "Free Bird" as their son and "My life is God's gift to me; What I make of it is my gift to God," is the motto for the seniors of

Cattle Associations Praise CowBelles

Officers of the Texas and Things in Beef'-to the super-Southwestern Cattle Raisers Cattle Feeders recently praised the overall work of CowBell chapters.

"The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association has enjoyed a close working relationship with the CowBelles for many years. You ladies not only grace the Cattle Industry with your presence at all our functions, but you have contributed to the well-being of Cattlemen with your untiring efforts to promote beef," John Cargile, association president, said.

"From classrooms, where the lesson is on 'The Good market, where consumers Association and the Texas are treated to a taste of beefthe influences of the Texas CowBelles is evident," R.L. Bliss, president of the Texas Cattle Feeders, said.

Hereford CowBelles, Roberta Caviness. "Peaches" Reinauer and Betty Rudder, recently attended a meeting of TSCRA in Fort Worth.

From Ryan's Corner

By Allison Ryan

How do you say goodbye to a town that has become "your" town in such a short time. As of Funny, at times it seems I've always lived here. Maybe I ought to back up and explain why I'm writing a goodbye column. You see, this country girl is going to the city-Houston. Those city folks down there seem to think I can fill the job of public relations director. I guess they've heard how friendly us country folk are.

Saturday I have been in Hereford eight months.

The other day I was driving down Park Avenue and remembered the first time I drove down that street back in July when I was here for an interview with Speedy. After he gave me the job, I wandered around the town, which seemed like a

Anyway, in no time, I was living here and becoming part of the city and part of the Brand

Speedy and Lavon wondered what they were going to do with a soc editor who wore tennis shoes. Delight and Atha spent time keeping names and faces straight for me. Jim had nightmares about my procrastination and spelling. Mauri was delighted (?) to find someone he could sweet talk into doing sports play-by-play.
Pam and Janey had to learn a "foreign" language to set my copy. Darla had to learn to read my mind about what stories went in what paper. Gene and Bob just kinda sat in the corner and wondered. Doris is still trying to teach me how to punch a time card. And Denise-she has had to keep me organized as well as to teach me how to be a lady.

I feel like I've just gotten an Academy Award and have to thank everybody. That is a difficult job, because that leads to a long list. For instance, the sheriff's office leads to the police office which leads to the hospital which leads to the hospital board which leads to the school board which leads to the teachers which leads to the students which leads to their mothers which leads to the organizations which is where I started in writing after moving here.

Well to say thank you to those people wouldn't be enough. The people at the library deserve a medal for all the times I called to ask such questions as what do the Irish call an old story teller.

Then, I would have to thank people like the Texaco man who kept the ol' Pacer running, the shoe shop man who kept the feet running and the people who mentioned Marfa to keep the spirit running.

Then, there were those who encouraged my work such as Sam Nunnally who once circled the 38 "I's" written in one column (he'll fall over when he sees this one) and then sent the next one back, which only had one "I" in it, saying "atta

Maybe it would be better not to single anyone out and use the line of thanking Mom and Dad who made this all possible.

Or, maybe it would be better to say thank you to all those whom I never knew-the ones who invited me into their home everytime they picked up a copy of the paper.

A wise man said the other day that Hereford is a good place to live when your're trying to get your life back together because people care. Well, Hereford, you did care and I've grown because of it.

Sure, there have been plenty of times I wanted to scream and did, and wanted to strangle every person in this town, but didn't.

It's been real, and it's been fun and, you know, it's been real fun. I wish I had a great punch line to end this with, because laughter is what turns the world. But, for now, I'll leave my corner in Hereford.

Don't worry I'll be back. I've given notice that when I become famous I'm coming back to Hereford so ya'll can give me a Hereford Bull to put on my desk. Until then, I'll just keep you folks in my heart, 'cause I can't forget you.

Along the Frio Springer Family Visits Hereford

Sparkman, J.E. Warrick, MRS. OWEN ANDREWS

The Springer children of J.E. and Esther, have all been here for burial of their mother, last Sunday. They grew up here among Springer kin and Nafzger kin from area. Also, Springer kin from Plainview and Kress were among those coming for the services. Esther married Earl Springer in 1937. She was a R.N. and Head Nurse in the Hereford hospital at that time. She moved into the Springer home, a mile and half from Frio School and became wife, homemaker and mother to the three older Springer children, whose mother, Lillian Fulkerson Springer had died in 1935. They were active in school and community activities and she was instrumental in organizing Frio H.D. Club, which had its organizational meeting in her home in 1938. She was its first president. Sue and Twyla were born while they lived on the farm, and they sold out to the J.E. Warricks in 1941 and moved to Hereford. Her activities were so many and varied that few will ever know how much her life counted, but she will be sorely missed. Earl Springer died in April, 1974. The children are Gwendolyn (Mrs. Paul) Wallace, of Kent, Ohio, Leta Dene (Mrs. Clyde) Swatzell, of Jacksonville, Fla., Franklin Springer, of Buena Vista, Colo., Sue (Mrs. Frank) Barbian, of Ashland, Ky. and Twyla (Mrs. Clare) Skov, of Ft. Wayne, Ind. There are 18 grandchildren.

Frio Homemakers Club met Tuesday at the Black Heritage House. "Easter Parade" was the theme of the meeting, where members wore clothing they had made or bought for the Spring season. Mrs. Jimmy McMillon and Mrs. John Paetzold were hostesses. Each lady discussed clothing choices as each modeled. Mrs. E.F. Vogler displayed a hand embroidered and hand quilted large sized quilt, which she has made during the past few weeks. Birds and flowers make up the embroidery decoration. Those attending include Mesdames Eugene Baldwin, Frank Robbins, Jerry Richardson, Clark Andrews, T.L.

Steering Committee Sets Miss Hereford Pageant

Preparing for Party

The Miss Hereford Steering Committee has announced the date of the Miss Hereford Pageant for Saturday, Aug. 15. The pageant will be held in the high school auditorium. Several changes have been made for this years pageant so the steering committee has planned a coke party for interested girls and their mothers, Sunday, April 26 in the First National Bank Community Room. Details and entry forms will be available during the coke party and all definite deadlines will be announced. Above Shirley Wilson (left) works with Mrs. Gearn, director of the pageant, on pageant preparations.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Someone did a survey on singles and found out they don't "swing" as much as marrieds.

Is that supposed to give me something to live for? Besides, I don't for a minute buy it. You think I'm naive?
I've seen all those Jill Clayburgh movies where she's breaking away and starting all over again. That girl never has to do so much as carry her own matches. She goes into a bar, takes out a cigarette and is illuminated like a shrine.

She gets propositioned as she jogs and she can't eat a solitary meal without the phone ringing off the hook. As someone who had to write a check to get to the prom, I'm im-weeks ago, I was waiting for a plane when I heard a woman talking about her late husband. She said the house is so quiet. There is no one to talk to ... no one to fix things .. no one whose presence you feel as you sleep...no one at the table to share your food or your day and no one who moves or makes you

She had just described my husband watching the bowl games on New Year's Day.

I don't care what the survey says. I find myself living vicariously through Jill Clayburgh as she fights off unwanted suitors and struggles to find out who she really is. I've done a lot of thinking about it and the "swinging single" lifestyle is not the downer they want us to believe. I base this on an observation I made on what time marrieds get into their night clothes in the evening.

In the early years of marraige, you were out so late a bathrobe was something you hung on the bathroom door. Five or six years of marriage and eventually you both appeared in your jammies and scuffies around 10 or 11 when you were sure no one was going to drop by unexpectedly. After 30 years of marriage, my husband and I are out of confining waistbands right after dinner, sitting around in pajamas and robes in front of the TV set so that when we fall asleep we don't have to risk waking up by getting dressed for

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing

Chicago, Ill .- A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of one of the smallest Beltone aids of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

True, all hearing problems are not alike . . . and some cannot be helped by a hearing aid. But audiologists report that many can. So, send for this free model now, and wear it in the privacy of your own home. It is not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free. The actual aid weighs less than a fourth of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.,

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 92185 Beltone Electronics, 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

The Miss Hereford Steering Committee has announced that date of the Miss Hereford Pageant, Saturday, Aug. 15, a week prior to the Town and Country Jubilee.

The pageant will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. This year, according to the steering committee, no Miss Teen Hereford will be held. All girls who are sophomores, juniors and seniors during the school year 1980-81 are eligible for the Miss Hereford.

Directing this years pageant will be Keith Ann Gearn. A coke party has been. scheduled for the girls interested in the pageant for Sunday, April 26 in the First National Bank Community Room. Times are 2 p.m. for sophomores, 3 p.m. for juniors and 4 p.m. for seniors.

All interested girls and their mothers are urged to attend so to learn changes made in this years pageant. Details for the pageant and entry forms will be available during the coke party.

All definite deadlines will be announced then also.

Members of the steering committee include Donna Jones, Janice Faulkner, Carolyn Hays, Betty Lady, Betty Gilbert and Shirley

4-H'ers Present Program To North Hereford Club

North Hereford Extension Homemakers Club, at the special request of the club, welcomed Kandi Sparkman and Andrea Wall, who returned for the third consecutive year to give a program on 4-H

The girls stressed the importance of exercise and demonstrated several exercises to start with one minute rest between them for a total of five minutes. They stated that the time should be gradually increased for best Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. John Reid. Peg Hoff, president, opened the meeting with the TEHA prayer given in unison. Lilah Grubb read an Easter poem for the opening exercise.

Biographies head the list of new books available this week at the Deaf Smith County Library. TRUE BRITT by Britt Ekland is the story of one of the most stunning personalities of our time. She was born Britt-Marie Eklund and catapulted into the limelight of international fame when the world discovered a major new talent in the form of this Swedish blonde bombshell. At twenty-one Britt married actor Peter Sellers, which again thrust her into the public eye. After their divorce, Britt has celebrities of the film and pop star, Rod Stewart, received a storm of publicity on both sides of the Atlantic. Britt tells her story with compelling honesty and candor, giving us a unique and tantalizing insight into the real woman behind the myths and legends.

MARVIN by Donald Sec incisively traces Lee Marvin's twenty-year stampede to the "overnight success" of his Oscar-winning performance in CAT BALLOU, and shows how, on the way, he redefined the meaning of menace in movies. Sec gives us Lee Marvin, acting, drinking, and fighting his way to stardom, and finally achieving the simple life he had always secretly yearned to possess.

Marvin the actor is definitely a bully. On the screen, Lee Marvin terrorizes widows, taunts cripples, shoots, and maimes. But, as Hollywood was slowly to discover, he is also a gloriously funny actor, a supreme professional, praised by every director who has had the guts to work with him. MARVIN by Sec is the story of Hollywood's return to honesty and of the metamorphosis of a hell-raiser into a

Ann Landers Foolish Groupies

Freedom.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will print my letter as a warning to all the foolish groupies out there who go crazy over "celebrities."

My kid sister was very quiet socially, but she worshipped a big-name punk rock star. When she learned he was to appear in Chicago, she drew her savings out of the bank and decided to stay in a hotel for the entire week and attend every performance.

After the first show she vent backstage and pretended to be a long-time friend. She looked so innocent that the stage-door man bought her story and escorted her to the guy's dressing room.

The star liked her looks and invited her to his hotel for the night. The next day she moved in with him and met the other flakes in the group. They smoked dope, sniffed cocaine and Lord knows what else. Before the act left Chicago my sister had spent every dime on dope, engaged in sex with the star and was gang-raped by four other musicians. She said the rape was a shock to her because she was sure they were all

DEAR HEARTSICK: Here it is. But I wonder if it would have made any impression if your sister had seen a letter like it a year ago. Most people think, "Things like that happen to others, not me."

I hope your sister gets some therapy. She's been through a great deal and needs more than a comforting assist from her family.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have just traveled 50 miles and wasted another day looking for a pair of shoes that fit. I am 21 years old and wear a (they are in terrible shape) because I cannot find a decent style in my size.

The Natural Way To Lose Weight!

Sybil Ferguson, Founder

You can lose 17 to 25 pounds in just 6 weeks!

In just 10 years, Diet Center has grown to over 1,000 locations, all across the United States and Canada. We've grown this big, this fast, for one basic reason. . . the Diet Center Program works!

"I went to Diet Center because I wanted to lose weight, but didn't want to use shots or drugs, or sign a contract."

'I chose Diet Center because I couldn't lose weight alone, but didn't like the group therapy approach other programs use."

'We went to Diet Center because we needed to learn how to keep weight off, once we'd lost it."

When you decide to lose weight, CALL DIET CENTER!

Diet Center's program is totally natural and based on sound nutrition. You'll get private daily support from a counselor who cares and understands. She knows what it takes to lose weight because she's done it herself! At Diet Center, men, women and children lose weight quickly and safely on a program specifically tailored to their individual needs. And, what's more important, they learn to keep that weight off through a comprehensive education and behavior modification program.

I Remember Easter When. . .

By LOUISE WALKER County Extension Agent I REMEMBER EASTER

WHEN.... Happy Easter! Remember the real meaning-the resurrection of our Lord-a new Spring is my favorite time of the year. I love watching everything turn green and come to life. Easter is one of the reasons spring is so great. As a child, Easter meant a new dress. Money was short at my house. With my birthday being April 10th, it seems the new suit of clothes served as a birthday present and an Easter outfit. I had only one Easter basket. I kept it and used it year after year. We did not live in a disposable

The saddest Easter I've ever had was seventeen years ago. It was the last Easter Mother lived. She died in early May. At Easter, it was evident cancer was limiting her remaining days. I can still see her dressed in her Easter finery that day seventeen years ago. Oh she was beautiful. She was, my Mother One of the happiest Easters was the Sunday I lay in the hospital. I had given birth to my first child on the Friday night before. To make it even more exciting, he came eleven minutes before my birthday. He was planned to arrive on my birthday. Not really but it would have been nice. It seems Stuart couldn't wait that long.

Stuart, my first born, had seen two Easters before his school play and prepare a first birthday. That's a happening caused only by the calendar.

The prettiest Easter I ever saw was six years ago. My children, all dressed in dotted swiss, lace (Sis) and little tailored suits (boys) were the most beautiful things I had ever seen then or have seen since. They were a beautiful age-Sis-10 months, Bryan - 2 years, and Stuart - 4 years. I got perfect professional pictures to capture their beauty. But I can still see them in precise detail at that memorable time without a photograph.

Then there are the Easters where the children sat on the table as we colored Easter eggs. Half the eggs were cracked during the dying process. And Sissy was so cute hunting Easter eggs. As she bent to pick up an egg, up goes the dress and all you see is rows and rows of ruffles on lace on panties. A beautiful scene

Then there was my first Easter with no children-last year. It seems the children were out of school the week prior to Easter. Their Daddy flew them to Arkansas on the weekend before Easter and flew back to get them on Easter Sunday. Grandmother and Grandpa got to enjoy them last Easter.

This Easter we all plan to go to the 'Land of Opportunity" (Arkansas) for Easter. Mother's main goals are to make a "Rhinestone Cowgirl" suit for Allison for a

Wheat Production May Decrease Next 2 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) -Highly tentative projections by the Agriculture Department point to relatively small increases in the use of wheat over the next two years.

The projections were made Wednesday as part of the government's standby mechanism in case Congress fails to pass new farm legislation this year.

According to the figures, department experts think the United States will need a 1982 wheat crop of about 2.46 billion bushels to meet all requirements in 1982-83.

By comparison, the department's latest estimates for the 1980-81 wheat marketing year running through May 31 point to total wheat use of about 2.37 billion bushels.

No official forecast of 1981-82 wheat use has been released by the department.

The projected figures for 1982-83, which involve next year's harvest, were required in case Congress does not amend or replace the wheat pertion of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, which expires this year.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block was required to proclaim by April 15 wheat marketing quotas for the 1982 crop since farmers will plant their winter wheat crop this tall for harvest next year. If Congress does not act in time, wheat farmers will vote in a referendum to be held no later than Aug. 1 on whether to approve quotas on their 1982 crop. If approved by at least two-thirds of those voting, the quotas would limit the amount of wheat a producer could sell without paying a penalty.

In 1977, as Congress deliberated the current farm bill, a similar situation arose and a 1978 national wheat marketing quota was announced. But Congress passed special legislation to postpone the referendum and then enacted the present Food and Agriculture Act which suspended marketing quotas through the 1981 crop.

The 1982 marketing quota was announced by Block at about 2.46 billion bushels. That included projections in 1982-83 for 615 million bushels for domestic food use, 106 million bushes for seed, 125 million bushels for feed, 1.62 billion bushels for exports.

Comparatively, the department's most recent estimates of wheat use in 1980-81, include 605 million bushels for domestic food, 110 million for seed and about 1.53 billion for

Block's Grain Reserve Plan Part of Reagan's Farm Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) -Agriculture Secretary John R. Block has put into effect a grain reserve plan that is part of the Reagan administration farm bill pending in Congress.

The action, announced Thursday, gives farmers with corn in the reserve an indefinite amount of time to repay price-support loans they received on their grain.

Block said in a meeting with reporters that the reason for eliminating the due date on the loans was "to launch our market-oriented administration farm program considerations ministratively," instead of waiting for Congress to act on a new farm bill.

Farmers have about 790 million bushels of corn in the reserve. Loans made to farmers when they put the grain in the program - at the going rate of $2.40 a bushel were scheduled to come due May 15 under a formula specifying a "call" of the loans as market prices increased.

The call price is $3.15 to $3.26 a bushel, depending on when the grain was put in the program. Market prices rose above those levels three months ago, triggering the loan repayment mechanism. After the corn loans were called in, mandatory loan repayment was to be no later than April 15. However, Block authorized a 30-day extension until May 15 but ordered a jump in the loan interest rate to 15.25 percent from the previous rate of 11.5 percent beginning on April 15.

The Reagan administration's farm bill recently sent to Congress includes a similar plan for the grain reserve - the elimination of the call price mechanism.

Block said the objective of his action on the current grain reserve "is to take the lid off the market and allow it to work ... let it tell farmers to raise more corn this year."

As it was, the call price served as a lid on the market by requiring farmers to repay the loans and, if they chose, to sell the grain on the cash market. That would add to the available supply and automatically dampen price

Block said this was one of the principles of the administration's farm bill sent to Congress.

"I felt it was an excellent opportunity to put into practice, administratively, what we would like to see as part of the legislative package," he

Responding to questions, Block said he believes "you'll be surprised at how many (farmers) will take advantage" of the indefinite extension of the corn reserve program, which he also said would be applied to wheat if market prices rise enough to trigger calling in the loans.

But Block said his plan does not mean farmers will keep grain in the reserve much longer. He estimated that by mid-August, 90 percent of the 790 million bushels of corn now in the program would be removed.

Soybean, Corn Prices Showing Weakness

WASHINGTON (AP) -Prices of soybeans and corn continue to show some weakness this spring, partly because of a slowdown in exports over the past four or Agriculture Department.

Also, a new supply and demand report said Friday, grain production estimates for? the Southern hemisphere - notably in Argentina and South Africa - are slightly higher than they were a month ago.

"Recent lower-thanexpected prices have resulted in slightly reduced estimates of season average prices for corn and soybeans," the report said. "Both are expected to benefit from tightening supplies relative to use in coming months."

The report repeated figures from a servey last month that showed farmers intend to boost 1981 crop plantings by nearly 2.5 percent over last year, mostly reflecting a five months, says the sharp increase in wheat

> "Topsoil moisture improved in most areas during March, aiding early season growth," the report said. "Subsoil supplies, however, are still short in many areas, and 1981 crop potential depends critically on timely rainfall during the planting and growing season."

The report said corn prices at the farm are expected to average $3.15 to $3.30 a bushel nationally over the entire marketing year that began last Oct. 1, compared to $2.52 a bushel in 1979-80.

Block also said his action "has absolutely no relationship" to recurrent reports that President Reagan soon may lift the partial embargo of U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union.

Farm Team Gets Two More Names

WASHINGTON (AP) -Two more top jobs have been officially filled at the Agriculture Department, gradually bringing the Reagan administration's farm team up to authorized strength.

Seeley G. Lodwick, 60, was sworn in Friday as undersecretary agriculture for international affairs and commodity programs, a job generally recognized as the No. 3 post in the Agriculture Department.

Lodwick, who will earn $55,387 annually in his new job, was state administrator for Sen. Roger W. Jepsen, R-Iowa, and in last year's presidential campaign he directed the farm and food division for the Reagan-Bush Committee.

William Gene Lesher, 35, was sworn in as assistant secretary for economics. The position has an annual salary of $52,750. A native of Logansport, Ind., he had been chief economist for the Senate Agriculture Commit-

The two officials join Agriculture Secretary John R. Block - who administered the oaths of office - and Deputy Secretary Richard E. Lyng, the No. 2 official, and Assistant Secretary C. W. McMillan, who oversees marketing and transportation services.

But some senior posts are still vacant, including that of undersecretary for rural development, at least two more assistant secretaries and a few heads of agencies. Nominees to these posts will have to go through the Senate confirmation process.

Bees Contribute To Cucurbit Crop

COLLEGE STATION --Honeybees have a king-size job in Texas -- that of pollinating the $50 million crop of cucurbits. Cucurbits include watermelons. cucumbers, cantaloupes, pumpkins, squash and gourds.

Some 79,000 acres of cucurbits are grown annually in Texas in every county, either commercially or in backyard gardens, says Tom Longbrake, horticulturist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"The cucurbit family absolutely depends on insect help to transfer pollen from male to female flowers," points out Longbrake. Only female flowers can produce fruit, but to do so each female flower must receive pollen from a male flower. Offce transferred, the pollen fertilizes the immature seed, causing it to be fertile and grow. Unfertilized fruit abort when viable pollen is not transferred

Most cucurbit flowers are open for only one day. Since honeybees account for about 85 percent of all flower pollination, the importance of this insect to the cucurbit family is vital," emphasizes Longbrake.

One strong hive of honeybees is required to pollinate the closer row- Monday.

spacing of cucumbers. squash and cantaloupe. Pumpkin and watermelon may get by with a strong hive per four or five acres. Each open female flower may require five to ten visits by bees for adequate pollination. Therefore, skimping on the number of bees available to pollinate can affect petential

"An experienced beeman will be able to advise a grower on the number and placement of hives for an adequate fruitset," suggests the horticulturist. "Unlike some other plant types. cucurbits receive little help from the wind. Because of sticky pollen, they must rely on insects for adequate pollination.'

So, bees are a key partner of cucurbit farmers.

Food For Thought

Gerald McCathern

By GERALD McCATHERN My good friend, Marvin Meek, national chairman of the American Agriculture Movement, testified recently at the Senate Agriculture Committee hearings. His remarks deserve to be read by every American. In part, he said-

"I am not happy to appear before you today. I wish it weren't necessary, but it is. As you will notice, we will be saying the same things here today, which we have been saying for the last three years.

"The main difference today is that we have 104,000 fewer farmers than last year when I appeared before this committee, and 416,000 fewer farmers than in 1978. How many more thousands must we lose before we see a change in agriculture policy.

"These 400,000 farmers are now on the job market increasing unemployment and compounding urban problems. When we get down to two farmers producing all the food in the U.S. someone will say, 'One has to go because the other is more efficient.'

"This year alone we stand to lose between 20 and 30 percent of the food producers of this nation if solutions to the agriculture problems are not found. Will Congress wait until there is a food shortage to react and start trying to find solutions?

"I tell you today that the purchasing power of agriculture has been destroyed! Our debt load has more than doubled in the last four years, causing our equity and our collateral to disappear. Today most farmers are not even good financial risks for FmHA loans, the bank of last resort, and consequently thousands of farmers have been refused financing for this coming year. "We want an American solution for American citizens. We want to put Americans back to work and improve national productivity. We are concerned about some of Mr. Stockman's cuts. Why do we not see similar that are direct federal plywood.

"If the real behind the scenes facts were known, the administration is continuing the embargo until it can determine the size of this year's crops. We are severely short of grain, and the embargo allows our government to curtail shipments without enacting 90 percent loan rates as required by Section 1002 of the 1977 Food and Agriculture Act. During 1980, Russia doubled their imports of grain and experienced no distress slaughter of animals. ### World's Grain Crops Plentiful This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) -Although still far from being harvested, the world's grain crops appear headed for bumper yields this year, says the Agriculture Department.

"Given the favorable progress of winter grains, generally good planting conditions for spring grains and increases in grain area in exporting countries, world grain production will likely reach a new record in 1981," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said Monday.

"Barring poor weather in the major producing countries, production will exceed utilization and result in some recovery in world (reserve) stocks in the 1981-82 season, particularly for wheat."

However, the monthly report cautioned that poor weather could result in a further depletion of already-low stockpiles of grain and "possibly force some reduction" in the amount of grain fed to livestock, particularly in the United States.

Other factors will include global economic conditions and the status of U.S. grain sales to the Soviet Union, which have been sharply curbed since Jan. 4, 1980, in response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

The report said conditions for wheat and other winter grains in the Soviet Union and China "have continued to be favorable" and that those crops in Eastern Europe "appear to be progressing well" despite some flooding last month in parts of Yugoslavia, Romania and Hungary.

However, severe drought has been affecting the Iberian Peninsula, northern Italy and Morocco for the past several months, the report said.

SG HYBRIDS

SG-Y850R MID-LATE

GREENBUG TOLERANT HYBRID GRAIN SORGHUM•

High yields, stress tolerances, standability and green bug tolerance make this hybrid very much in demand. This hybrid has been on the market for several years and its popularity has increased tremendously during that time. It is still one of the best hybrids for this area. The release of this hybrid is the culmination of several years of sorghum breeding, field trials, green house and caged evaluation. Now the end result -- a better hybrid for our customers.

SG-860 MID-LATE

GREENBUG TOLERANT HYBRID GRAIN SORGHUM.

This is one of the most promising hybrids we have observed. Excellent standability, large heads, and top levels of greenbug tolerance make this an allaround great hybrid. A strong competitor when growing conditions are tough, and a real yield winner when conditions are good - this hybrid will make a lot of new friends. For the best in yield and field, try SG 860.

SG 141

A big rugged, hearty hybrid corn that is capable of tremendous yields, excellent standability and fast dry down which makes it your best hybrid.

SG 2325 - SG 2451

Two excellent white-corn hybrids.

SG 696

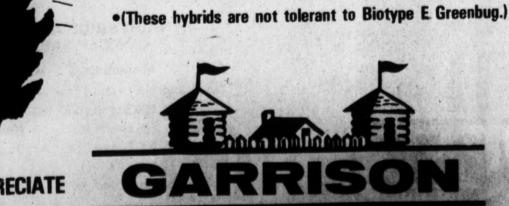

MID-SEASON GREENBUG TOLERANT HYBRID SORGHUM. This is high yielding hetero-yellow endosperm hybrid with medium maturity and high levels of greenbug tolerance. Good stalk strength, standability, MDMV tolerance, and high test weights make this an outstanding hybrid.

SG 688

MID-EARLY GREENBUG TOLERANT HYBRID SORGHUM.

This yellow endosperm hybrid offers great greenbug tolerance and improved yield levels in a medium-early maturity which blooms in 50-52 days and matures in 97-100 days, which makes it a consistent champion where the growing season is short or the moisture is limited. It has a good tolerance to MDMV, anthracnose and greenbugs.

Grain Dust Has Potential for Energy Source

WASHINGTON (AP) -Grain dust, often blamed for lethal explosions at grain elevators, has some potential study.

But not enough is known to and then to export elevators.

The more grain kernels are handled, broken and literally worn down, the more dust acas an energy source, as cumulates. And it can create livestock feed or as a compost economic problems as well as for home gardeners, says a being an environmental new Agriculture Department pollutant and a potential explosive hazard.

"The flour milling industry make general recommenda- has long collected dust and tions about the disposal of disposed of it by integrating it grain dust, which develops as into bran or other millfeed corn, wheat and other grains created in milling," the are moved from farms to report said. "However, country elevators and from disposing of large quantities there to terminal markets of grain dust by the grainhandling industry is a different situation.

"Collected grain dust cannot legally be dumped at sanitary landfills. Open-air burning is generally prohibited. Spreading dust on cropland poses weed and insect problems."

The report, issued Monday by the department's Economics and Statistics Service, was written by L.D. Schnake, who is stationed at the U.S. Grain Marketing Research Laboratory in Manhattan, Kan.

"Grain dust may be sold as a byproduct of a grainhandling operation but it may generate only limited revenue," the report said.

When the dust is collected and returned to the grain in the marketing pipeline, it brings the same price as the grain itself. Thus, many operators who collect dust "return as much dust to the grain as possible," it said.

One estimate is that up to 2.6 percent of the weight of grain is dust. But the number of elevators - other than exand retain grain dust is unknown, the report said.

"Some engineers believe that at least 50 percent of dust in grain at export elevators is generated at the port by highspeed handling facilities," it

"About 1.5 million tons of grain dust may have been transported to U.S. port elevators in 1980, the likely equivalent of more than 53 million bushels of corn, if, in port elevators - that collect fact, 2.6 percent of the weight of grain is dust and port facilities should generate at least 50 percent of the dust." the report said.

> Grain dust as a fuel for burning is inferior to coal, which provides 1.71 times as much energy per pound as a pound of corn dust, the report said.

> By the time processing charges to turn the dust into pellets and transportation costs are considered, the dust would require a subsidy of nearly $14 a ton for it to be competitive with coal, it said.

'Grain dust, high in organic matter, makes a good composted product for use in greenhouses and by gardeners," the report said. But, again, there are questions about it being price competitive.

Composted products sold for about $4 per 100 pounds in the Midwest last year, indicating that grain dust might have a retail value of $80 a ton.

"However, most of the retail value is accounted for by wholesaler and retailer margins, transportation and processing, leaving a small proportion, if any, of the value allocated to the basic product," the report said.

Although some studies have been published on the use of dust in feed, many manufacturers and feeders "are hesitant to discuss their use of grain dust in rations."

Meanwhile, the report said, federal environmental regulations regarding grain dust are putting a financial burden on elevators and may force many to close.

'At least one-third of today's country elevator operators may not be able to afford the estimated $500,000 required to meet Clean Air Act requirementss now prescribed for terminal elevators," it said. "Costs to facilities handling 750,000 bushels annually could increase an estimated 9.1 cents per bushel."

IRR to Discuss Ranchers' Problems

A general theme "Nutrition: The Key of Production to Profit" has been incorporated into the livestock, range and wildlife sessions. Land managers will learn key factors involved in integrating the production of quality range lands, their harvest of quality animals and progressive product marketing.

Proceedings of the conference will be provided each participant for future reference and use. Workshops will be held to assist ranchers with actual application of the information obtained in concurrent ses-

Lake Houston's Popularity Growing

AUSTIN - Lake Houston is like the homely girl next door who is suddenly 26 and

This 12,000-acre reservoir nestled on the northeast corner of the sprawling Houston metro area may be headed for increased attention. Its suitors likely will include Houston - area fishermen whose wallets have been depleted by junkets to distant fishing lakes.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists who periodically check its fish populations believe Lake Houston is a better fishing hole than its reputation sug-

Granted, the shallow and slightly murky lake is not a largemouth bass hot spot since it lacks the type of cover required to support them. But it ranges from good to outstanding in production of blue, flathead and channel catfish and the highly popular crappie (often called white perch in Southeast Texas).

Also, biologist Charles Menn of Houston points out that a newcomer to the lake is doing well and may have a real impact on Lake Houston's future. Stripedwhite bass hybrids have been stocked on two occasions, and anglers already have caught individuals hybrids weighing five to six pounds, Menn said.

"Hybrid stripers are a good open-water predator fish, and they seem to be doing real well in Lake Houston," Menn said. "The lake has good populations of both threadfin and gizzard shad for the hybrids to eat."

Menn said additional stock- striper records were native ings of hybrid stripers are

'Atlantic City'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - The Despite the new building, it new film "Atlantic City" still has an enormous ghetto displays the underside of that with thousands of people livreviving New Jersey resort, and it's a world that actress Susan Sarandon has visited.

She grew up in Edison, N.J., an hour's drive distant, but before the movie she had never seen Atlantic City, old or new - "I was the oldest of nine children and we went camping for our vacations." But she got an intimate view of Atlantic City last year when Louis Malle directed scenes on the boardwalk, in the casinos and the back alleys. "It saddened me," said the actress. "I like a thing with a past; I'm a romantic, I guess. The transfusion of new hotels and casinos means tearing down the lovely old buildings, and the lost to the past hurt

"While we were there, a whole block was being leveled. We worked one day in a lovely old house and the next day it was destroyed. I suppose this is an example of future shock. That doesn't mean I have to like it."

Miss Sarandon plays a drifter who hopes that taking blackjack dealer lessons will lead to a new life. Her nogood husband. Robert Joy, turns up with a stolen cache of cocaine, gets himself killed. A small-time, over-thehill hood, Burt Lancaster, young woman get chased by the mob.

"They teach you to watch both ends of the blackjack table," she said, "because one player might be increasing his bet while another one will be distracting you."

The film company was allowed only one day's shooting inside the Resorts International casino, and the production day lasted 16 hours while gambling continued. Miss Sarandon observed, "The bulk of the players were people gambling to pay their electric bills. They were not bonus players or high rollers, not at all.

"The degree of concentrasells the coke, and he and the tion amazed me. I was yelling and screaming as they dragged me through the casino, and nobody looked up. John Travolta could have walked through naked and no one would have noticed.'

Candid Charly McClain

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) says - Petite Charly McClain says she has endured sexual harassment to build a country music career that was capped by her recent No. 1 hit, "Who's Cheatin' Who?"

"The music business is just like the movie business and its casting couch," says Miss McClain, 25, who lives with her parents in Memphis.

Although she has become one of the rising stars of country music, she says her unwillingness to give sexual favors hurt her career. "It as early as I could have," she

"I've had to slap big men here in Nashville in the face," she says. "Ninety-eight percent of them will try to take advantage of you.'

Nevertheless, "Who's Cheatin' Who" joined her earlier songs "That's What You Do to Me" and "Men" as singles which reached the Top 10 of the country music charts. The sixth album of her five-year recording career, "Surround Me With Love," has just been releas-

Last year, she was chosen the most promising female vocalist in country music by readers of the Music City News, a Nashville music publication.

Jo Walker, executive director of the Country Music Association, the industry's trade organization, says of Miss McClain's commentary on the business, "The CMA has no statement because we are not aware that this sort of thing is occurring."

The CMA does have a code of ehtics, but it does not deal specifically with sexual harassment.

Mary Ann McCready, director of artist development in Nashville for CBS Records, one of the industry's giant offers a similar observation. "We are pleased to say this has never been a problem in our company," she

The latest "new" "SNL" was meant to remind us of the old "SNL," the one that made us laugh and marvel at its daring efforts. But this new "SNL" resembled nothing so much as a dear, palsied old pet painfully trying to please with tricks long lost to it.

The faithful were willing to believe, and their belief was sustained at first when Chevy Chase appeared for the patented SNL "cold opening." Chevy ventured into his old dressing room, now supposedly a storage room filled with mementos of happier Saturday nights long gone - Conehead getups and the like. And who did Chevy find in the ash can? Old friend Mr. Bill, whose silly putty being was soon enough ripped asunder in a spectacular

Mayor Bartley Dowell Wednesday inked a proclamation making April 19-26 as Private Property Week in Hereford. The Hereford Board of Realtors is celebrating the event here, and Private Property Week Chairman Lloyd Sharp joined board president James Self in observing Mayor Dowell sign the proclamation.

Affordable Housing Decreases; Home-Buyers Turn to Condos

Just twenty years ago, most Americans had to run to a dictionary to define the word, condominium. Now people say, "condo." What happened to change that? Mostly the answer lies in the fact that the availability of affordable housing for many first-time homebuyers was decreasing. Especially in the under $40,000 class.

Realtors are agreed that dwellings do, and they often don't require many of the tainties of growing inflationary rates, and uncertain interest rates, the condo comes off as a wise investment.

Of course, the singles market has made a big difference in the number of condominiums being sold. Surveys made in 1980 showed that in the Washington, D.C. area, at least, almost seven of every ten condos were sold to single persons. Women, in particular, are doing a lot of the condo buying that is being done. The buyers are from 25 to 44 years old mostly.

Condominium construction is increasing across the country, and, at the same time apartment conversions (into condominiums) enjoys ing. Some controversy has apartment conversions are the direct result of the availability of households willing to buy the converted units, a recent study that the US Housing and Urban Development Department was asked to do by a Congressional committee revealed that the number of 355,000 converted units counted in the period between 1970-79 stood for only 0.44 percent of the total housing inventory and only 1.31 percent of the rental inventory in the coun- nice as the one they left, and

Private Property Week Near; Public Urged to Observe Rights

With the advent of Private Property Week, fast approaching April 19 through 25, the Hereford Board of Realtors says it's a good idea to look at how our private property rights came about.

One of the most important rights available to all Americans is the right to own property. The American Revolution took place in part because certain acts of the British parliament were infringing on the property rights of the colonists. Many of our own private property rights evolved from English common law, which was patterned after ancient Roman law. They have stood the test of time and of courts, and were strongly supported by the American colonists.

Real estate ownership rights were well established by the time George Washington became our first president. Washington said that lands are of permanent value; that there is scarcely a possibility of their falling in price, but almost a moral certainty of their rising ex-on the rights of others.

This is not always the case today, according to the Hereford Board. When our country was founded, it became the first nation in history that guaranteed its people by law the right to buy and sell land freely, without expensive government interference. Today, our private property rights are gradually being eroded. Growth restrictions, for example, have caused property to fall in value in some areas.

President Warren G. Harding said, "...I am always glad to endorse effective efforts to encourage home ownership. Nothing better could happen to the United States than a very notable inthe power to tax, in many cases have made homes unaffordable, the Board said.

President Calvin Coolidge said, "The ownership of a home, the feeling of independence that comes with the possession of a bit of the ### Realtors Question crease in the ownership of homes." Unfortunately, government rights, such as

"Although this area's Realtors have generally supported President Reagan's administration and goals for cutting the national budget growth rate, some National Association of Realtors' leaders are beginning to question some parts of the President's plans as 'inflationary' as far as housing isconcerned," James Self, president of the Hereford Board of Realtors said here this week. "We are seeing that Dr.

Jack Carlson of Chicago, NAR's executive vice president and chief economist, is concerned that the tax reductions would over-stimulate consumer spending and could exceed federal spending cuts; causing higher federal deficits and thus fire up inflationary expectations. Dr. Carlson has been called on; frequently to testify in Congressional committee: meetings. We think we have to look at the big picture.

"It may be, as Dr. Carlson said recently, that 'we endorse slowing the growth of spending, taxing, regulating and money supply, but we see weaknesses in the proposed tax reductions, which might cause new troubles. You see, there is no direct stimulation to savings being offered for the benefit of industry and housing. We think the likely savings would be inadequate to meet the needs of invest ment and actually might crease the inflation fires.

Self said that NAR is saying "that the program as propesed might even cause 125,006 fewer homes to be built and prevent 350,000 families from upgrading their housing. NAR leadership recommends that 'Congress should the slower spending and the relief together so the federal deficit will trend down each

"Naturally, Realtors would like to see all their clients in the homes of their dreams if that was possible, but, you see, the economy being what it is, many singles and young marrieds who otherwise might not be able to own property, have been able to buy a condo. Ownership of a condominium is a good, sound step toward the home closer to their fantasies.

awareness conducted by Realtors," said McMahan.

The TAR president, past president of the Greater Dallas Board of Realtors and a longtime advocate for higher levels of education for everyone working in the real estate profession, is very interested in promoting the concept of the free TAR Homebuyer Seminars. Boards have been especially sessions during Private Property Week, which this year falls on April 19-25.

McMahan, in summarizing TAR's community service projects said that "it's a good feeling to know that Realtors, by holding Neighborhood Watch and Home Crime Prevention seminars have been able to cut down on the crime rate that is often noted in newspaper headlines.

"While the Handicapped Awareness program is being introduced, many MAB committees will continue with a diversity of crime prevention programs, as well as scheduling talks by law enforcement officials and in leading Acting on local needs, other boards conduct Worthy Citizen events, give thousands of dollars in scholarships to graduating high school seniors, conduct citywide blood drives. organize tennis tournaments for youngsters not usually able to afford the tennis train-programs. "Increasingly Realtors have become involved in the development of careervocational education programs. They participate actively in high school career days, dispensing advice along with brochures detailing the many speciaities that can be pursued in the real estate field. Looking at the accomplishments of the board community service goals, I sometimes wonder when the participants have time to pursue their own professional challenges. For example, this year, during Private Property Week, boards across the state will be holding high school essay contests on the values found in protecting our private property rights.

"Winners will be recognized on the board level, the state level and at the national level. The grand champion winner nationally will win a trip to Washington, D.C., along with a parent or guardian and the runners up will be given certificates and savings bonds."

Marijuana Helps Only Some Cancer Patients

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - Some 100 cancer patients in New Mexico, most of them terminally ill, have smoked marijuana over the past two years to ease their chemotherapy-caused nausea and vomiting. Doctors still don't know why it works - or why it fails with other patients.

"I see the drug as being useful, but not a panacea," said Dr. Dan Dansak, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of New Mexico. "There are still a number of patients who don't respond too well to it and we don't know why.

"More work certainly needs to be done to see why people respond and why they do not - we still need something for those who do not respond."

On Jan. 16, 1979, New Mexico became the first state to begin giving cancer patients marijuana or its active ingredelta-9dient. tetrahydrocannabinol or THC, to combat the side effects of chemotherapy. Dansak is one of three members of a review board, composed of a psychiatrist, a cancer specialist and an ophthalmologist, that reviews applications of cancer patients to receive marijuana. The Legislature had been urged to adopt the marijuana program by a 28-year-old cancer patient from Albuquerque, Lynn Pierson. On Feb. 21, 1978, then-Gov. Jerry Apodaca signed into law the Controlled Substances Therapeutic Research Act. The state received approval from the Food and Drug Administration Dec. 1, 1978, for use of marijuana by cancer patients.

Pierson died in August 1978. Seven months later, Gov. Bruce King repealed the 1978 law and established a permanent program - the Lynn Therapeutic Pierson Research Program.

Since then, Louisiana, Illinois, Florida and Washington state have They might be a little more started similar programs and at least a dozen other states have enacted laws modeled after the New Mexico statute, Dansak said.

Dr. Edward Deaux of the New Mexico Department of Health and Environment said that among the New Mexico patients, the marijuana in cigarette form seems to work better than the THC in capsule form.

"The inhaled version works better than the oral version," Deaux said. "It could be the absorption is different. It could be the drug gets into the blood faster through smoke. It could be that different drugs used in chemotherapy react differently."

The eight patients currently in the program declined to discuss their experiences for reasons of privacy, Dansak said.

"They have concerns about neighbors and how the neighbors will receive them, concerns about ... how churches and relatives will receive them," he said.

The marijuana used in the New Mexico program is grown at the University of Mississippi and distributed by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. It comes prerolled in tins of about 300 cigarettes each, with each cigarette containing 141/2 to 15 milligrams of THC.

Group Insurance Bill For Teachers Approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A group insurance bill for school teachers, which one legislator said would "subsidize" insurance companies, has gained tentative House approval.

IRS Expects More 'Protest' Returns in '81

By LEE MITGANG

AP Urban Affairs Writer The Internal Revenue Service says it received more than 13.000 "protest" tax returns in 1980, and it expects even more this year. An unknown number of others don't file at all - as their own kind of silent protest.

What tactics do these tax rebels use to try to penetrate the legal armor of the IRS? Do they ever get away with

Here, in question-andanswer form, is what usually happens when the IRS does battle with a tax protester:

Q. Are tax protesters right when they say filing returns violates the Fifth Amendment guarantee against selfincrimination?

A. The federal courts have repeatedly said no. Appeals courts have said there is no Fifth Amendment privilege allowing you to refuse to file an income tax return.

Q. Some argue that the Constitution, as framed nearly 200 years ago by the Founding Fathers, expressly forbade a direct tax on individuals. Is that true?

A. That has not been true since 1913, when the 16th Amendment cleared the way for a direct federal income tax on individuals. The amendment said such a tax could be levied "without apportionment among the several states, and without regard to any census or enumeration."

The courts have since consistently held that the federal government has the right to collect an income tax.

Q. What happens to protesters who still refuse to file income tax at all on the belief the tax is unconstitutional?

Q. What about protesters who take numerous additional exemptions on W-4 forms so that no tax is withheld?

A. Since March 1980, all employers were required to send all W-4 forms claiming 10 or more exemptions to the I!. IRS inv5stigators then give them an "eyeball exam."

If the number of exemptions seems excessive compared with the previous year's return, the IRS will send a registered letter to the taxpayer asking for an explanation.

On a recent weekend, a 60-officer task force descended on the 12 blocks between La Brea and Gower and arrested 80 people for anything from drug offenses to traffic violations.

But even such visible displays of authority could not prevent the first gangrelated murder since cruising stepped up on the boulevard about three months ago. Eric Lucero, 16, was standing on the famed Walk of Stars with several friends on March 29, when he was killed by a single bullet fired from a passing car, reportedly full of rival gang members.

Cruising has been a fixture of Southern California life for three decades. Since the 1950s, young people have paraded their cars down Van Nuys Boulevard on Wednesday and sometimes Friday nights, with an occasional break when winter rains interfered.

Back in the early days the era that inspired "American Graffiti" - many of the drivers belonged to car clubs sanctioned by the police.

They would meet, handle club business, cruise the boulevard and then leave. They had a purpose," recalled Sgt. Charlie Hill, officer in charge of the Valley Division's Motor Task Force 'Over the years, the car clubs dwindled down to nothing and then it was just kids showing off cars. We ended up with a lot of skateboarders, rollerskaters and just generally young adults that had nowhere else to go. ... You had traffic on about a two-mile stretch that was completely bumper to bumper."

At the same time, Whittier Boulevard had become so notorious a hangout for street gangs that it too inspired a film, "Boulevard Nights."

For a few years police tried to discourage traffic by such methods as banning U-turns. But this winter, unusually balmy weather brought out vast numbers of cruising teens just as the police, faced with budget restrictions and a

The youth told a reporter he was 16, a member of the Rebels gang and that he had been shot twice several months ago. "I don't like to fight, but sometimes you have to," he said, adding that he comes to Hollywood because 'there's no place else to go."

Hollywood Division Capt Jerry Feinberg said he thinks cruising on the boulevard has so far been more of a nuisance than any real threat to safety. But he admitted that the Lucero killing may have been related to cruising in that gang members "were up here driving along the

Some officers say they would like to shut down the boulevard, feeling they would be backed by local merchants and residents.

But Feinberg and Los Angeles Councilwoman Peggy Stevenson, a longtime Hollywood resident whose 13th district encompasses the community, say closure is not under consideration.

He noted that the undergraduate tuition increase would amount to $480 over four years, "less than one-half of one month's salary for an average graduate. That is not much to ask of them to participate in the fine educational system we have in our state."

Davis said tuition covers only 4.1 percent of the cost of a college education, with taxes picking up the rest.

In an agreement with the Justice Department, the state promised to take steps to increase minority enrollment at public universities.

There was no testimony other than that of the sponsors - in favor of the bills. Ray Valdez, a student at

"I KNOW PLENTY of people think I'm pretty strange," says J.N. "Turkey" Kearn, who has donated more than $1 million worth of land to the Missouri Conservation Department. "But I made what I made on my own and, by God, I swore I'd give it away on my own if I had

Man Gives Away $1 Million in Land

GREEN RIDGE, Mo. (NEA) When J.N. "Turkey" Kearn signed his 1,436 acres west of here over to the State Conservation Department back in 1976, some of his neighbors thought he was crazy.

Well, he's got another news flash for them.

"I've gone and given 'em another 40 acres," the 80year-old Kearn cackles as he ambles into the front room of his west-central Missouri farm home, slides around a bulky wood-burning stove and spits into a rusty pan heaped with wood ashes, orange peels and egg shells.
"I'd been trying to buy that piece for the longest time, but never had the chance - not till the owner died and his wife didn't want to worry with it," he says. Of course, Kearn won't be worrying much about the property, either. Conservation Department employees will be responsible for tending it, mending it and maybe renting

Indeed, about the only thing left for him to do with the land is just to love it. But when your heart is as big as your old homestead, even that's a full-time effort.

Kearn still screens every person wanting to hunt on the land ("so's to make sure there's no skalawags trompin' 'round"), occasionally cruises around the property in his pickup (" jes' to check up on things") and cares for the 20 or so Hereford cattle on the

But in winter he more than likely can be found in the front room of his 73-year-old family home that is every bit as old and cluttered as the earliest memories he mulls over in his mind.

"Yeah, I know plenty of people think I'm pretty strange," he says between pulls on a hand-carved hickory pipe. "But I made what I made on my own and, by God, I swore I'd give it away on my own if I had mind to, which I

Kearn's bachelor domicile hasn't changed much in recent years. The bed springs on his front porch are as rusty as ever, and the shelves in the creaking old safe his folks started housekeeping with continues to sag with pots and pans of a lifetime.

The stove in his front room still puts out a pungent odor that fills the place.

Kearn's grandfather in 1847. An employee of the Conservation Department now lives in the home that Kearn built. Thirteen ponds, each with a muskrat island, now necklace the property. A 2-mile hiking path, blazed by local Boy Scouts, winds through the wilderness and open prairie.

A gravel parking lot opened up this fall. Many trees have on this place all my life, and here they start planting more trees," Kearn says with a teasing twinkle in his eyes as he stares toward the horizon. "But they've done a dandy job, they really have. They're shaping this place up just like I'd hoped they would."

The trees, he explains, will eventually bear food for wildlife, and the new grass will be welcomed by the coveys of prairie chicken on the place.

"No, these boys don't miss a trick," Kearn sighs while tamping down another pipeful of tobacco. "Why even when they rent out land to farm, they don't harvest their share of the crop. They just leave that mile or whatever standing for the deer and other ani-mals to nibble on."

Kearn once defended his unprecedented land donation by saying he "didn't want to see somebody else buy up

(the) place and put a herd of tractors on it and just plow it under." Now he is more convinced than ever that he made the right decision.

"My graddaddy, Edward C.; are going to live on," he points Now, says Kearn, he is fac-ing the "hardest job I've ever had — just sitting around waiting to die."

"I'm 80 now and I'm going through it. Things get awful tiresome anymore, it seems," he says softly after again moistening the mound of tobacco-stained scraps in the pan at his feet.

"I'm glad I got things set-tled when I did and the ways I did 'cause I've seen wills that didn't amount to a damn. But I've seen only one deed ever

"No one's going to trick around with my plans for this land after I'm gone. That's a real comfort to me.

Over the past few years our husband, father and grandfather Bob Fotheringham has suffered a number of illnesses which contributed to his passing away April 10, 1981. During this time our many friends have showered us with acts of kindness. We have tried to thank everyone personally - but in times like these - there are always oversights. We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their help, rememberances and prayers. They will always be treasured. God Bless and keep you. Johnnie Fotheringham Grace Killough Faye and Cristy Killough 14-205-1p

Diseased gallbladder DEAR DR. LAMB -Recently I had some tests in a hospital and learned that I have gallstones. Before I went into the hospital I had nausea, some pain in the area of the gallbladder and a lot of gas. The doctor told me that I would have to have my

because the gallbladder is My question is this, how can you tell that a gallbladder is diseased from an X-ray? Why can some people have the stones removed or dissolved and keep their gallbladder? If I feel better on a fat-free diet, do I really need the surgery? I have had major surgery before and am not very thrilled about going through it

gallbladder removed, even if the stones were dissolved,

DEAR READER - Some doctors believe that the very presence of stones in gallbladder means you have gallbladder disease. The stones are formed because of an abnormal reaction to cholesterol or bile pigments. You can have two types of stones, pigmented stones or choles-terol stones. The latter may be dissolved in some cases. This procedure is still under study to determine when it is useful and when it is better to

Also, the gallbladder should be seen on X-rays when it fills with bile containing a dye used for the test. If the X-ray operate. shows that the gallbladder has not filled, one possible cause is from scarring and fibrosis from previous inflammations of the gallbladder.

One of the important considerations is the general health of the patient. An older person with other medical problems who is not having any symptoms from a gallstone may do well to avoid surgery. A younger person might avoid future problems by having it. You could ask forconsultation with another doctor before agreeing to surgery.

DEAR DR. LAMB - How can grandparents endure a lively beautiful granddaughter who I am positive is hyperactive? She was very, small when she was born and required special treatments Her mother did drink and smoke during the pregnancy as she didn't realize that this could have any effect on the pregnancy. It breaks my heart to hear her threaten to punish the little girl when I know my granddaughter needs help to enable her to be more respon-

DEAR READER - First let me agree that cigarette caffeine in coffee, are harm ful to pregnancies. That is especially true if they are used in large quantities.

But babies born to mothers who have been very careful-can still become hyperactive Why don't you forget about the alcohol and cigarettes and just talk to your daughter along the lines of the value of having a check-up to see if the little girl is all right now, in view of her small size when she was born. As a grand parent you do have some responsibilities and some rights. Perhaps if your daugh ter sees this column she may realize that her child has a problem which she may not have recognized.

POLLY'S POINTERS Polly Cramer - Wrinkles in curtains

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY - I washed some nylon curtains, put them in the dryer and forgot to reduce the heat, so they are full of wrinkles. I cannot get these wrinkles out and hope I can get some help. — E.M.D.

DEAR E.M.D. — Perhaps the following letter from a reader will help solve your problem. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY - When I leave clothes in the dryer too long and they come out wrinkled, I always run them back through the wash cycle with a little softener, then remove AT ONCE when dry. This works very well with polyester pants and shirts. - ANNIE DEAR POLLY - I was interested in Mildred's way of get ting rid of ants with tobacco. I use tobacco as fertilizer on my house plants, and it also serves as an insect repellent. I have beautiful, rich, green plants all year round, and that is my secret. We do not use tobacco ourselves, so we buy the king. that comes in a tin can, just for our plants. - HAZEL DEAR POLLY - I have used so many of the hints from this column, but one I particularly like is for wrapping a single banana in aluminum foil before putting in the refrigerator keeps the bananas edible for a longer period of time. I would like to share some things I have found helpful: Wrap celery and lettuce in paper toweling before putting in a plastic bag and freshness lasts longer. To make a paper towel holder, take a wire coat hanger that has a cardboard roll at the bottom, remove the cardboard and insert the roll of towels. Hang where it is handy near a work

There are just two of us here, both retired, and this really bench or when on a picnic.

When making a gelatin dessert that contains fruit cocktail, I first remove the bright red cherries and save them to go on the topping used before serving. This looks pretty and saves the cost of buying a bottle of cherries. - RUTH DEAR POLLY — When sewing a narrow belt or straps, they can be turned easily if you use a craft needle or any large, blunt needle. With the point first, push it into the open end of the belt until the eye of the needle is covered. Stitch by head through the eye and the metarial to factor. Push needle hand through the eye and the material to fasten. Push needle through and turn the belt as you go along. — A.F.

DEAR POLLY — When I send a sympathy card to a friendor relative after there has been a death, I always send the clipping from the paper, and have been thanked so often for that extra obituary. - J.S.
