DST Returns

Outdoor enthusiasts rejoice! The return of Daylight Savings Time is just hours away.

The official change to DST will occur at 2 a.m. Sunday, April 26. At that time most of the United States will move the clock forward to 3 a.m., thus losing an hour's sleep as dictated by the Uniform Time Act of 1966, which provides for the extra daylight from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October.

For convenience, most Americans turn the clock forward one hour before retiring for the night Saturday evening. The hour of sleep lost Sunday will be gained back October 25 when Daylight Savings Time goes off.

Several states and territories of the United States do not observe Daylight Savings Time. They include Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the portion of Indiana in the Eastern Time Zone-81 of that state's 92 counties.

Federal law requires all states to make the changeover to DST simultaneously, except those whose legislatures specifically exempt them.

Dr. Milton Adams, chairman of the governmental affairs committee, reported on the MX missile hearing held in Amarillo Monday. Adams, along with ag committeeman Raymond Schlabs, testified at the hearing.

Several other Hereford citizens attended the hearing, including ag committee chairman John Fuston and County Judge Glen Nelson.

Burdett reported that U.S. relations with Mexico and a program on soliciting new industry were highlights of a West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in El Paso. Burdett, vice president Bill Johnson, and executive vicepresident Mike Carr attended the convention.

Division president, reported plans were underway for the Little Miss Pageant as well as the Miss Hereford Pageant. The organization is also making plans for a special July 4th observance in the city. Burdett praised the work of Argen Draper and Garth Thomas, who are heading up plans for Hereford's first Town and Country Jubilee. Work and plans for the event are mushrooming," said Burdett.

Betty Gilbert, Women's

The C of C president also ported on Thursday's Fun Breakfast. Burdett announced the next Fun Breakfast has been set for June 18, and it will serve as a kickoff for the "Crazy Days" retail promotion. People will be urged to wear costumes to the breakfast.

Cleanup Costly

Dumping Woes Plague County

Now that Spring has finally arrived and residents are busy getting their lawns and gardens in shape, the amount of refuse is naturally increasing as dead plants and trees as well as trash are cleaned from area lots.

The local trash dump, located just north of 15th Street on Progressive Road, can handle the increased load of garbage, and is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The dump is closed Sundays and Holidays.

According to Deaf Smith County Precinct One Commissioner Bill Bradly, however, a problem with illegal dumping near the dump has arisen in the recent past.

"We are having a problem with people dumping trash along Progressive Road north of the dump," Bradly said. "This is costing the taxpayers of the county money, and taking my employees away from other jobs."

Bradly said it takes two or three of his precinct's employees "two to three hours" sometimes to clean up the roadway on Mondays. "Since the dump is closed on Sundays, some people are just driving up the road a little and throwing their trash out along the right of way," Bradly said.

Bradly also reported that a slight problem with the dumping of dead animals has arisen. "We are finding a lot of dead animals in the ditches," he reported. "This is really unnecessary since the rendering plants will usually pay someone for the carcasses, providing the animal hasn't been dead too long."

A check with County Judge Glen Nelson's office shows the illegal dumping or littering a Class C Misdemeanor, punishable by a fine up to

Bradly said it comes down to whether or not someone wants to take the chance of being fined or waiting until the dump re-opens Monday. "I'll guarantee you we'll prosecute the persons responsible if and when we catch them," the commissioner

Blue Law Saved By 'Bible Belt Feeling'

By LEE JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) Speaker Bill Clayton says a "Bible Belt" feeling about Sunday is what killed a bill repealing Texas' 1961 "Blue Law." Pressure from automobile dealers and department stores might have had something to do with it, too.

House members voted 82-59 on Thursday to table a bill repealing the law that says stores may not sell 42 categories of merchandise on both Saturdays and Sundays. The items include cars, clothing, appliances, furniture and household goods.

Many House members wore buttons, provided by the automobile dealers' lobby, that said "Preserve Our Right To Rest."

"A lot of people are going to have a lot of explaining to do," grumbled Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Dallas, a sponsor of the bill.

Earlier, he had told the House 69 percent of Texans polled by Texas Monthly said they wanted the Blue Law

Rep. Doyle Willis, D-Fort Worth, another sponsor, called the law "probably the most unpopular law that has ever been on the statutes of Texas."

"Although the law is unpopular, it (the House vote) comes back down to the old Bible Belt question more than anything else. ... It's that Old South, Bible Belt feeling," said Clayton. He said he did not take sides on the bill.

Some legislators' mail ran heavily against repealing the law, but there were questions about how voluntary some of the letter-writing was.

Rep. Froy Salinas, D-Lubbock, said a woman in his district told him her employer, a department store, was pressuring its workers to write letters on their lunch hours.

"These people don't want to compete. ... And they are the same people who are always screaming about free enterprise," said Salinas.

"There was fierce lobbying on both sides," Clayton said. "I had a crew in my office said.

this morning that included representatives of Joske's, Kroger's and Gibson's."

Joske's broke ranks with other major department store chains and lobbied for repeal of the law. Discount houses, which stay open on Sundays but must rope off much of their merchandise, are strong for repeal.

In Thursday's debate, Willis voiced one of the most common complaints about the law, which was passed to protect department stores from discount house competi-

"You can buy a beer on Sunday but you can't buy a baby diaper."

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, defended the Blue Law as 'pro-family" and said repeal would provide "more profits for those who are greedy."

"Can you imagine what it is going to be like for people who work as retail clerks to have Sunday dinner on Wednesday? ... If we pass this bill, we are destroying one more part of the family unit by preventing people from being together," Uher

Lifting Of Grain Embargo May Be Announced Today

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan, poised to fulfill one of his key cam- wheat in the United States, paign promises, is reported compared with other combargo amid "strong indications" he will do it before the weekend.

A White House source, who asked not to be identified, said Thursday that there was a 90 percent chance the embargo would be lifted. Various reports, quoting administration officials, said it was definite.

Officially, the White House insisted that no decision had been made.

"The president has had this matter under consideration day in and day out. As of this moment, the head man has not made a decision," Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, told a White House briefing Thursday.

He added, however, "I obviously know a great deal more than I want to state," and the White House source said there were "strong indications" the announcement would come today. The most common expectation was that Reagan would wait until the commodity and stock exchanges close for the weekend, to avoid disrupting trading. Speakes described Reagan as eager to end the embargo but said he is studying "what kind of signals we'd be sending" to the Soviets and the rest of the world. The embargo was imposed by former President Carter in January 1980 as retaliation for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Reagan's campaign pledge to lift the ban was thwarted by U.S. fears of a possible Soviet intervention in striketorn Poland, although the president has come under considerable pressure from farm groups.

Published and broadcast reports said the embargo apparently would be phased out gradually, with the Soviets at first allowed to buy U.S. wheat and soybeans but not corn. But Edwin Meese III, the president's counselor. said Thursday, "I don't know how you phase out an em-

Mrs. Daniel Wins

Custody Battle

By SHARON HERBAUGH Associated Press Writer

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) After the longest child custody trial in Texas history, Vickie Daniel was allowed to keep her two youngest children by default - but that was good enough for her.

"I didn't understand what had happened at first," Mrs. Daniel said late Thursday, after jurors voted that neither she nor her sister-inlaw, Jean Daniel Murph, should be awarded custody of the children.

But when a child-custody jury makes that ruling, Texas law provides that custody and all rights automatically go to the natural parent - and once that was explained, Mrs.

Daniel was a happy woman.
"I am elated," she said, amid congratulatory hugs from spectators and relatives in the packed courtroom. "I'm so happy I'm going to go home and hug my children.' Jurors had deliberated almost two hours before deciding not to name a 'managing conservator' for the two young sons Mrs. Daniel bore former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. - a man she is accused of killing. The jury had three options in deciding custody of Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV,

They could have awarded the boys to Mrs. Murph, their aunt; to Mrs. Daniel, their natural mother, or to neither woman - the option they finally chose.

"Say some prayers and take care of those kids," said Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, as he shook his client's hand.

Haynes said the decision bolstered his "unbroken, unbridled faith in the jury system," and was the "most acceptable verdict for Vickie Daniel and the system." Under the "neither" ruling, Murph's attorneys, Andrew Lannie. "I don't foresee an appeal." Mrs. Daniel has been charged with murder in death. Her trial has been set for October. Mrs. Murph filed the custody suit after her brother's death. In the resulting six-week trial, she contended her sister-in-law was an unfit mother. But Haynes portrayed Mrs.

Daniel as a woman victimized by a husband who beat and sodomized her, abused her two children from her first marriage, fondled his own son's genitals, smoked marijuana, drank to excess and had a "weird" relationship with his sister.

New Sailing Vessels

GALVESTON - The Texas A&M University System and its Texas Engineering Experiment Station have annnounced plans to christen two new sailing vessels here Saturday, adding to the research and training capabilities of the "Aggie navy."

Research vessels "Excellence II" and "Quest" are to be formally added to the A&M research fleet in 2 p.m. ceremonies at the Mitchell Campus of Texas A&M University at Galveston on Pelican Island.

The experiment station plans to operate and be a major user of the newly acquired vessels, university officials said.

"Excellence II." a 72-foot steel-hulled vessel, and "Quest," a 48-foot converted yacht, will be used in environmental engineering and oceanographic research, A&M officials said.

The vessels are to work in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve Project being carried out by the experiment station and Texas A&M's Civil Engineering Department.

The new vessels join five others in the Aggie research fleet. In addition to the training ship "Texas Clipper," a converted oceanliner, A&M operates. two mid-size craft, the "Rustler" and "Roamin' Empire." Texas A&M's Oceanography Department has the 38-foot "La Mer" in addition to the 174-foot research ship, the "RV Gyre," which will be involved this summer in attempts to locate the

Anti-Crime Bill Signed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Gov. Bil. Clements signed into law Thursday a bill that would prevent a repeat of former Judge Garth Bates' "shock probation" after spending four months in prison for bribery.

The bill was part of the governor's anti-crime package.

A key provision would increase the number of crimes that would make a defendant ineligible for shock probation, including homicide, rape, robbery, kidnapping and bribery.

The bill would allow judges 180 days instead of the present, 120 days to make a decision whether to grant shock probation. Shock probation gives a first offender sentenced to 10 years or less a brief taste of prison life in order to deter him or her from committing future crimes. Bates, a former Houston district judge, was sentenced to eight years for accepting a bribe from a defendant. A judge other than the one who sentenced him granted Bates/shock probation after he had served four months. The new law would permit only the original sentencing judge to grant shock probation.

Mortgage Can Increase

Debt Every 30 Days

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new type of mortgage, which consumer groups say could push homeowners toward likely foreclosure, will allow lenders to raise borrowers' monthly payments - or increase their total debt - as often as every 30 days.

Government officials say they had to open up loan practices for financially strapped savings and loan associations or else already-tight home-loan money would have dried up almost completely.

But consumer groups say the new type of mortgage could "wreak total havoc" in the housing market.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, by a 3-0 vote Thursday, authorized federally chartered savings and loan associations to offer open-ended, adjustable-loan mortgages. Under such an agreement, a lender could raise a home-buyer's monthly payments, raise the total of the loan or lengthen the life of the loan in tandem with increases in market interest rates.

The lender also could lower mortgage payments.

Market rates, such as the interest on short-term securities, have been highly erratic recently but generally have been moving upward.

GTE Rate Increase

Request Scrutinized

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - General Telephone wants a 23 percent rate increase but the staff of the Public Utility Commission says the company should get hikes of less than a one-half of 1 percent, with none of it coming from most residential customers.

The staff recommendation, announced Thursday, will be presented Monday when a PUC examiner begins. a hearing on GTE's $44.6 million rate increase request.

PUC staff members will argue that GTE should get only $860,951 in increases. The company was penalized $4 million last year for poor service.

Rowland Curry, a PUC eigineer, said GTE still is not meeting all commission service standards, though there has been some improvement.

The GTE rate hike package would increase monthly residential bills in Houston suburbs from the current $11.15 to $14.49. GTE residential service in Dallas suburbs would go to $13.80 from $10.65. The PUC staff recommended no increases for most residential service.

The Texas Municipal League, an intervenor in the case, wants the commission to cut GTE rates by $9.7

Wendy Wade, 15, Mrs. Rucker's daughter, was hospitalized in critical condition Thursday with a gunshot wound to the stomach. Her son, Ryan Wade, 9, was treated for powder burns and released.

Irby said the shootings came after Mrs. Rucker, home on a pass from Presbyterian Hospital where she was being treated as a psychiatric patient, saw her husband off to work Thursday morning, ordered her children to their bedrooms and got a shotgun.

"For some reason, she had decided to shoot her daughter," Irby said. "She already had put her son in his room and told him not to come out."

been selected Texas Mother of the Head Lice Infestation Leads Year. To Nightmare in Texas Town

CHILLICOTHE, Texas (AP) - Pediculus capitis is a tiny, oblong insect whose evolutionary tenacity and public relations rival the cockroach.

So, when pediculus capius - lice - made an uninvited appearance in this small cattle and cotton farming town just south of the Oklahoma-Texas border two months ago, it caused an uproar that divided the community and produced a chemical nightmare that victimized many of the town's schoolchildren.

Officials say the story of Chillicothe is a classic example of what can happen when chemicals are misused and how easy it is to misuse them. It is no less a commentary on small town society, old wives' tales and social stigmas.

A head louse is an insect that lives only two to four days without a human host and whose appearance in Chillicothe prompted some residents of the town to go about their business with plastic bags on their heads, their hair smeared with petroleum jelly.

Three members of the local school board greeted the unwelcome parasite by spraying the town's two public schools with cattle insecticides. Parents washed their children's hair with pesticide-laden shampoos as many as 21 times in a month. The manufacturers recommend their use once a week.

hours inside the grade school. The children now attend school in cramped, makeshift classrooms in three of the town's churches and a Lion's Club building. They joke about the "cooties" and the "cow poisons" that have drawn attention to their flatlands community, where agricultural chemicals have been a part of life for decades One student, Lisa Freeman, 11, said, quite seriously, that the City Council was considering changing the town's name to "Chilli-cootie." But as environmental activists celebrated "Earth Day" across the United States Wednedday, Texas health department officials spent the day poring over the results of tests conducted inside the Chillicothe schools to determine when and whether the buildings might again be safe for occupancy.

Scores of students and half a dozen teachers at the school came down with skin rashes. stomach cramps, nose and eye irritation and nausea when they arrived at the grade school two days after it was sprayed March 27 with a chemical relative of the bann-

Okayed Bill Aids Shrimpers

Senate committee has approved a bill allowing bay shrimpers to catch as many help reduce the tension betshrimp as they want each day, but they must do it by 2 fisherman in Texas bays. p.m.

Resources Committee came after more than two hours of arguments by bay and gulf fishermen who compete for shrimp catches.

Sen. Lindon Williams, D-Houston, said the 2 p.m. deadline would be easier to enforce than the current 300-pound-per-day limit. He said that limit, in effect for more than 20 years, is virtually unenforceable.

'Anybody that's out there after 2 p.m. is in trouble," said Williams. His original bill raised the limit to 1,000 pounds, but he scrapped that in favor of the 2 p.m. deadline.

Williams' bill would allow shrimpers to start working the bays 30 minutes before

Bay shrimpers like the bill. Gulf shrimpers oppose it, saying it would be just as hard to enforce as the present law and would let bay shrimpers catch more than their fair share.

Fishermen who work the bays catch young shrimp before they migrate into open waters.

"You might as well legalize bank robbing for the same half day," said gulf shrimper penalty Wilson and Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said is insufficient. Truan suggested the bill go to subcommittee for environmental impact studies, but Williams got enough votes to send it to the Senate. "It's a conservation bill. It's going to save the shrimp. There are going to be more shrimp out there," Williams argued Jim Evans, a Freeport gulf shrimper, said the bill gives bay shrimpers "a license to steal. They'll shrimp all day long and you can believe that. The bill needed six votes to get out of committee. It was 5-2 when Chairman Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso, was asked how he was voting.

"Let me see the vote," he said, taking a look at the tally sheet. He cast the sixth "yes" vote that sent the bill to the Senate.

ed herbicide DDT.

Chillicothe's grade school and nearby high school were closed indefinitely March 31. Despite being scrubbed down several times with soap and water, alcohol and ammonia by town volunteers, the grade school still smells of chemical solvents - "like cow poison," said Miss Freeman, a fifth-grader. Marie Haynes, a classroom aide at the school, suffered nose bleeds and developed ulcers around her mouth after she spent several hours in the building.

She worries now about whether the insecticides may produce lasting adverse health effects among her four

The school board members were "pressured" by parents and teachers to do something about Chillicothe's head lice problem, said the town's superintendant of schools, Monte Pannell.

"The parents overreacted and the school board overreacted," he said.

Health officials believe the head lice that had infested the children of Chillicothe were already dead when school board chairman and cattle rancher Silas Boone and two other board members sprayed the schools with Lindane and Toxaphene, two widely used insecticides approved for use only on sheep and cattle and only in nonenclosed areas.

The label on the insecticide container warns against using the chemicals where humans might come in contact with them.

"It's not approved for use inside a building, not even a chicken coop," said Dr. Phillip Zbylot, a physician with the Texas Health Department. Boone has declined to comment, but Pannell said the board members and the school custodian who sprayed the chemicals didn't read the label warning published by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"They've been using these chemicals on their cattle for years without problems," Pannell said. 'We just weren't aware of the fine print on the label until after the spraying was over." Also sprayed were four of the school district's six school buses. For the past three weeks, parents have had to drive their children up to 30 miles a day to and from the makeshift church schools, he

Dr. Roy Fisher, an osteopath who serves as the town's volunteer health officer, had warned the board that spraying was unnecessary.

"For one thing, the louse can't live without a human host. Spraying the school lockers and baseboards wasn't going to kill any lice." he said.

The school board members "acted on impulse" and purchased the insecticides at a local hardware store after scores of parents and teachers showed up at a board meeting to demand action, Pannell said.

Now, teachers aide Marie Havnes said, some of the same parents are complaining about inconveniences posed by the school closings.

She said the pressures brought to bear by the parents cannot excuse the actions of the board, however.

"These are school board members who are entrusted with the safety of our children," she said. "All they had to do was read the label and all of this wouldn't have happened."

Chillicothe officials won't know when or whether they'll be able to reopen their schools until after further test results are in, Pannell said. Zbylot said preliminary test results indicate that the repeated scrubbings at the grade school may have rid the structure of all but a slight residue of the chemicals. Quite frankly, I doubt whether they'll ever be able to completely eliminate the chemicals," he said.

If there is a lesson to be learned from the poisoning of Chillicothe's schools, Zbylot said, it is that people tend to take their immediate environment for granted.

"We've become too accustomed to making the environment work for us, without paying attention to vnat we may be and to ourselves." Zbylot said he will recommend a new volume for the the grade school library, where some of the highest pesticide concentrations were found. The book he has in mind is Rachel Scott's "Silent Spring" - the saga of man's destruction of his environment through chemical pollu-

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor: On May 2-3, American Legion Post 192 is hosting the spring convention of the 18th District. Legionaires and auxiliary members are working hard to make this an outstanding meeting, one of which our city can be justly proud.

The National Convention of the Legion will be held in Hawaii later this year. Since most of us cannot go there, we are bringing a sample of the island's music, food, and atmosphere with a luau. Preceeding the luau will be a flag disposal ceremony in which unserviceable flags, those faded and worn by use in a worthy cause, are inhonorable rites. This ceremony will be held by the flag pole at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, May 2. To eligible veterans, this is spected and retired with your opportunity to become associated with an active Legion post; to enjoy the fellowship of other veterans, to foster and perpetuate 100 per cent Americanism, to make your months of active service time really mean something.

Registration will be $10 per person for all activities Saturday and Sunday. Sunday only will be $3 per person.

See y'all May 2nd.

Yours truly, Robert N. Lohr

'Messenger' to Perform

"Messenger" from Portales, N.M., is to present a musical program at the First Church of the Nazarene this Sunday morning at 10:30 a.m. The group will present a full program the same day at the First United Methodist Church of Hartley at 5 p.m. "Messenger" featuring Alan Wofford, son of Dale and Mae Wofford, 325 Douglas, and brother of Raymond and Bert Wofford, is a nondenominational group of young people dedicated to sharing their love for God thru song music and skits. Members of the group are standing, left to right, Gary Miller, Brian Jones, Mark Zwilling, director, and Alan Wofford. Seated, left to right, are Becky Lindsey, Bonnie Wood and Sally Weaver.

She is a career person and earns $30,000 a year. There are two children, 11 and 14.

Two months after the divorce, the company he worked for closed down. He was unemployed for two years. It is difficult for a 58-year-old man to obtain employment. A year and a half ago his company reopened, and they called him back to work. We were just getting on our feet when his ex hit us with a lawsuit for back child support for the two years he was unemployed. Guess what? She got it! (He makes $12,000 less a year than she does!)

DEAR ROOKED: I have received hundreds of letters from second wives with this same complaint. While I'm sure many husbands have been treated unfairly, the courts tend to be more sympathetic to the dumped wife who was left with the kids.

You don't say if you are employed or what your salary might be. Nor do you tell me if you had a previous marriage and are perhaps receiving child support for children from that marriage. Courts take all this into consideration.

On the face of it, your husband seems to have a legitimate complaint. I am assuming you are "The Other Woman," in which case this is known as the high cost of leaving.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have a problem with our eldest son. He feels that just because his father was hostile to him when he was growing up, he has the right to treat his father the same way now that he is grown and no longer afraid. My husband is not well. I try my best to keep the peace, but my efforts don't count for much. This son has a college degree. We hoped he wouldn't come back to the farm because his bad disposition

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) -They call themselves "Fools for Christ," these white-faced mimes who tack on bulbous noses and play-act the Christian Gospel as buffoons in knitted caps and baggy trousers Presbyterian clowns, Methodist clowns, Roman Catholic clowns - the groups are appearing in churches across the country. As did mimes of ancient and medieval times, they play the part of "holy interrupters," illustrating theology through their craft.

"Putting on the white face, you have the understanding that you're going to give to people. To me, that's what Jesus did," said Steve Lindsay, who plays a sad-faced Saul at St. George's Episcopal Church in the heart of the Philadelphia Main

"People will accept things from a clown that they won't from a straight person," added Anna Waid, another troupe member.

On a Sunday morning in St. George's ornate sanctuary, the clown troupeper forms a sermon with Lindsay, as Saul, doing his silent best to breathe murderous threats against the Lord's disciples.

A clown in a purple jumpsuit, portraying an old Christian named Ananias, enters to convert Saul to the teachings of Jesus.

After an imaginary horse ride to Damascus, Saul is saved. To the delight and applause of the congregation, a half-uozen children in greasepaint rush to embrace the new-found Christian, and spread colorful streamers and paper hearts as they return to their seats.

"We're kind of fools for Christ," said Beverly McKendrick, the rector's wife who teaches nursery school when she isn't dressed in baggy overalls and flicking a red featherduster.

The clowns find justification for their ministry through St. Paul's exhortation to the Corinthians to become "fools for Christ's because God has sake" "made foolish the wisdom of the world." St. George's became interested in clowning after a troupe visited the parish in September.

"They got some training in mime, drama, expression, makeup. Then they began performing. People have reacted very well," said the Rev. James McKendrick, the St. George's clowns recently attended a Pennsylvania Episcopal Diocese seminar to help seekers from other parishes to - as one clown put it - "find their 'clown selves.' We all have one."

As an aid to worship, clowning is gaining in popularity. There are an estimated 3,000 clown ministry groups in the United States.

Mrs. McKendrick said not everyone would approve of clowning around in church. "We would not be accepted at all the worship services in this church," she said.

At St. George's, the clowns perform at a less traditional early family service.

Virginia Bracken, 63, is one who attends. She likes the clowns, she said, because they remind her that "each of us is acceptable to the Lord. no matter who we are, or what we are."

NEW YORK (AP) - The United Methodist Church's world division has adopted guidelines that in cases of kidnapping of overseas personnel "no ransom will be authorized.' Such a reponse would place "in jeopardy all personnel and programs of the church," the guidelines say. The guidelines, subject to review by legal counsel and approval of overseas missionaries, are similar to those recently adopted by the Southern Baptist Foreign Missions Board.

The church positions came in the wake of the recent kidnapping and subsequent killing in Colombia of an American linguist of the Wycliff Bible translators. The Methodist guidelines say the world division would work jointly with local leaders in any country concerned in "seeking a solution to the problem" and would "rely on local leadership to determine the motives" of any kidnappers and to suggest alternative solutions to paying ransom. The world division would notify families of hostages, "requesting their cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) Bob Eckhardt sat in the living room of his townhouse only a couple of blocks east of the nation's capitol and talked with a reporter about the life of a lawmaker that he has left behind.

The liberal Democrat's 14 years as a U.S. representative from Houston ended a few months ago after a Republican attorney, Jack Fields of Humble, edged him in a heated campaign that saw Texas oil interests line up against the 67-year-old Eckhardt.

But although his congressman days are over, Eckhardt still has strong opinions about politics and the way things are headed now.

One reason Fields was able to beat him in the 8th congressional district of northeast Harris County, Eckhardt says, was because people were terribly disappointed with the Carter administra-

"We had an amateur for a president, and we've got an even worse amateur now," Eckhardt said.

The president has got people behind him who are trying an experiment with the American people that isn't going to work. My opponent (Fields) was a clone of the same type of at least 20 people running for Congress last year," Eckhardt said.

"They claim all this program of New Deal was a myth. That government really can't solve the needs of people. That all we've got to do to bring back prosperity is to get the government off our backs, and that we should get back to the rich getting richer so some of it can trickle down to the poor people. That's all this supply-side economics really amounts to."

Now that he's out of office, Eckhardt has been acting as a consultant for a few groups on legislative matters, lobbying on the Hill with congressmen he used to serve Reagan. alongside. He's also spoken to a few university classes. nic scholar S. Hos-

He shoved aside some pages he'd been writing on.

"Right now, I'm writing a Baylor Law Review article about the history of solidwaste disposal legislation. We probably did the pioneer work for it in the Oversight and Investigations Subcommittee I chaired for the Commerce Committee,' Eckhardt said.

Sen. Ted Kennedy and Rep. Morris Udall are hosting a 'Toast to Bob Eckhardt" beer and wine reception on April 30, with those who attend paying $10 and $50 a head. That is not, he said, a sign he's getting back into

Before coming to Congress, Eckhardt served in the Texas House of Representatives for eight years and feels he served his Harris County district

"I was involved in several important pieces of legislation, but the most important was the Open Beaches bill, protecting beaches from the water line to the vegetation line for public use," he said.

"People were buying up Galveston Island beaches and blocking it off, assuming they had it for their exclusive use, beaches that had been used for decades.'

In the Texas House, he said, "I was elected from all of Harris County with a deskmate who was as conservative as I am liberal. Both of us won election several times and I think it was because both of us were respected for our integrity."

Eckhardt suggested that elections "are more or less bought or sold" nowadays with many of them decided not on a candidate's true stance but on the one the people are persuaded through mass media that is his

'When you're faced with a barrage of 30-second TV commercials on everything, in the worst unglamorous way, it's hard to combat all that,"

Although the oil companies supported his opponents with campaign money, what hurt him the most, he said, were false allegations about his position on gun control, abortions and school busing.

Eckhardt said that although he never lined up behind gun control advocates, his thinking has shifted since the assassination attempt on President

"I think all reasonable people are rethinking how they feel, because pistols are used to kill people with. I don't know of very many people who use pistols to hunt with," he said, suggesting he'd now favor some type of ban on the sale of hand guns

He still wears a bow tie and rides a bicycle everywhere he goes - maintaining the image he's had since coming to Washington in 1967.

Real Property Ownership: A President's Perspective

"Real estate cannot be lost or stolen, nor can it be carried away. Purchased with common sense and managed with reasonable care, it is about the safest investment in the world." Franklin Delano Roosevelt, 32nd President

The land itself will always endure. But will we always be able to say the same for our rights to own it and the benefits it bestows?

These rights are already being eroded. High taxes often make home ownership too expensive. Rent control protects some tenants, but can also speed deterioration of existing housing and discourage new construction.

If the erosion continues. real estate may not remain one of our safest investments, no matter how sensibly we select it, how carefully we manage it, or how valuable it becomes.

To perpetuate and celebrate the American right to own real property, the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS* is observing Private Property Week. It's a time to emphasize our individual liberties and remind ourselves to protect them.

Let's all participate in Private Property Week and preserve the freedom we now enjoy.

'Sun Belt Council' Fighting for Money

army of 90 House members from Texas and 16 other states have joined under the banner of the "Sun Belt Council" to fight for their share of federal money.

"Until now we have resisted in splitting Congress along regional lines, but our Yankee colleagues have forced this confrontation upon us," said Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, who has been elected chairman of the Wilson was promoted for the job by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, the dean of the 24-member Texas delegation.

In coming months, council members promise to fight as a unit for public works projects, job programs and various federal grants when they are distributed in committees and legislative floor amendments.

The Sun Belt Council was formed to battle a successful lobbying effort by 213 representatives from 18 Northeast and Midwest states who formed such a coalition because they felt too much was going to the South and Southwest.

"Their organization has done a good snow job. They've 'determined' that the pending budget cuts will fall much more heavily on the Snow Belt than on the Sun Belt. At the very least, we want to counter their misinformation," Wilson said.

Leaders of the Northeast-Midwest coalition, surprised by the sudden rhetorical shelling, say they are puzzled

'Southern congressmen and senators have had a very good buddy system that's been operating since the Civil War out of necessity," said Thomas Cochran, executive director of the Northeast-Midwest Institute, the research arm of the northern coalition

"The victories of the Northeast-Midwest coalition haven't shifted the flow of funds more than a small amount," he said.

Former Alabama Rep. John Buchanan has been tabbed to act as staff director of the council. He agreed that southern congressmen have historically wielded power on defense-related committees, but said their influence is waning.

"The Northeast-Midwest coalition is a well-organized, well-funded entity that was facing a vacuum," Buchanan

"The idea of our council isn't so much to promote the interests of our region as it is to provide fair national legislation that doesn't ignore the people in older industrial cities or the poor young black child in rural America, either," Buchanan said.

Rep. Robert Edgar, D-Pa., chairman of the northern coalition, said he is drafting a letter inviting Wilson to sit down and discuss the issues that separate the two sides.

"I don't feel threatened by the new group at all. It raises

Wilson said his group hopes to counter "outrageous propaganda and statistics" generated by the coalition and institute in their weekly news releases and published

"They blame all the problems of their area on the formula for federal grants, which is pretty absurd," said Wilson, a second-year congressman and member of the House Appropriations Com-

Other states besides Texas represented in the new Sun Belt Council are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Florida, Kentucky, Utah and Colorado.

Wilson is still seeking members from other states, including California. The coalition is operating with a first-year budget of aboout $100,000.

The Northeast-Midwest coalition has a budget of about $100,000 and a staff of five. The Northeast-Midwest Institute has a staff of 20 persons and a budget of more than $400,000.

'Bard' Offers Crash Course

NEW YORK (AP) - Kym Vanderbilt is accustomed to getting A's. She is used to hearing praise for her writing from teachers at Lincoln

High School. So, does the 17-year-old Miss Vanderbilt think she needs a three-week crash course on the finer points of exposition, the mechanics of thinking clearly, the nuts and bolts of the English language?

"God, yes," Miss Vanderbilt said emphatically.

On Aug. 15, Miss Vanderbilt may be among the 200 freshmen reporting for just such a course at Bard College, a small, liberal arts school located at Annandaleon-Hudson. She is an applicant and is still awaiting word on whether she has been accepted by the college.

For the three weeks before the start of fall classes, Bard freshmen will work in small groups, nine hours a day, six days a week, to improve their

There will be one teacher for every 10 students, and each student will be required to write something every day, generally on literature. In the final week, they will write on the subject of justice. Three times a week, students will have to submit typed papers in "perfect" form, free of any errors. To help them, the "Syntax and Grammar Crisis Center" will dispense advice in the even-

Students pay nothing for the summer program; a group of private donors is picking up the tab for their schooling and room and board. They will get no grades, but all freshmen are required to take part. 'The program really came about after years of frustration on our part," said Leon Botstein, Bard's 34-year-old president.

Bard professors are not alone in their frustration. College educators nationwide complain that incoming students lack basic skills.

At Bard, most students score in the upper 500s in the College Board tests, compared with the national average of 423. Even so, Bard administrators offer these quotes from applicants' writings:

-"Depending on Russian foreign aid, Greek rebels were faced with tsarist failing materialize."

-"The summer camp I attended has to be credited for a majority of the person I am today.

"As the beginning of my senior year in school grew near, I decided to make the ultimate most of what was to be offered to me.'

Botstein said he believes poor instruction on the level of junior high and high school is only part of the problem. Many students seem to suffer from "a fear of using the language wrong," he said.

There's a lot of fear before, at the last possible moment. They wing it, tell everybody they winged it and then, when the grade comes in, they tell everybody they didn't try," he said.

Botstein is wagering that by giving students a firm grounding in the use of language, Bard will increase their self-confidence and allow intelligent students to display their intelligence.

'The students are very studious. They work, they underline, etc., but they don't have the self-confidence to say, not that they care about something, but that in caring about something they actually may have something to say," he said.

Botstein recently outlined his plans to 50 high school teachers, guidance counselors and students who have applied to attend Bard.

"Do you like it?" he asked. The answer: "Yes."

"I feel that I personally need this because I'm not able to formalize ideas in the papers I write," said Adam Distenfeld, 18, a student at Brooklyn Friends School. He papers are written the night blamed the "educational Tom Seaver of the Cincinnati Reds had it - but lost it. Then the Reds had it again, but not without a struggle.

"Every time we come to Houston it doesn't matter the score, they always make it close," said Cincinnati first baseman Dan Driessen after a 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Houston Astros Thursday

The multi-directional game was first going Seaver's way. Cincinnati's star righthander was working on a nohitter for 61-3 innings and held a commanding 4-0 lead going into the eighth.

Then the roof caved in for Seaver at the Astrodome, as Houston scored four runs to tie the game at 4-4. But the Reds finally pulled it out in the 10th on Driessen's RBI

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Wife invaliding herself

DEAR DR. LAMB wife is 70 and she retired two years ago. Since then she has acquired the habit of lying in bed most of the day reading. I'd say she spends an average of 20 hours a day in bed. We went to the zoo yesterday but we couldn't enjoy it. She can't walk a half block without sitting down. There actually doesn't seem to be anything wrong with her. I've tried to get her out of bed, tried to get her to exercise more or go to a doctor but I might as well talk to the moon.

Do you have a booklet on this subject? I hate to see my wife turn herself into an invalid long before her time.

DEAR READER - She will be an invalid if she insists on staying in bed all the time. Since you mentioned the moon, let me say that I studied the probable effects of space flight and being on the moon with my colleagues by putting healthy young men to bed rest. It causes enormous changes. It does affect the circulatory system, including the resting heart rate. It slows down bone marrow activity in forming blood cells and allows the body to lose excess amounts of water.

Some people call it bed my face, arms, stomach and disease. There is an optimal chest. In fact, I have to shave level of activity for almost everyone. No one should be in bed unless there is a definite medical indication for it like a body cast or a state of shock. She will need to gradually increase her physical activity. Ask her to sit up to read. That will help. Also encourage her to walk some every day with you and gradually increase the distance. She can walk and stop and walk. If she is not feeling well, she really should see a doctor. It is not normal to be able to walk only a half

DEAR DR. LAMB - About five years ago my gynecolo-gist gave me several series of testosterone shots. I had lost all desire for sex and this was to help this condition. Well, it certainly did, and I am now enjoying a new active sex life, at 56, with my husband. We were almost ready to separate on account of my lack of interest Because I lived quite a distance from my doctor, he finally gave me a prescription so I could administer shots to myself. The effectiveness began to wear off so I increased the dose. The side effects are a little deeper voice and a quite abundant growth of hair, especially on

DEAR LULA - There are many opnions as to what works and what doesn't. I have heard of using epsom salts, but have never tried them. The fumes from fresh cedar are said to be a deterrent to moths, but the stor-

DEAR READER - First, your letter points out that hormones can be an important factor in a person's sex drive. Elderly women with terminal cancer of the breast treated with testosterone have developed exceptional sex drives. If you take too much male hormones you will develop male secondary sexual conditions, which explains your deeper voice and hair. There can be other complications and you certainly should not continue to take testosterone without checking back with your doctor.

DEAR DR. LAMB - 1 think it was in your column that I read that some fish were high in fat and others were not. That caused me to think about which fish I should be eating to limit my calories to lose weight. Is it better to eat fish if you want to lose weight than to eat beef, pork or chicken? If some fish are high in fat, why are they always called low-calo-rie foods? Which fish are best to eat to lose weight?

DEAR READER — Yes, I have mentioned that. First, let me point out that fish are about 80 percent water. That means most fish are fairly low in calories. Lean round steak is about 70 percent water and if you are eating fat meats, there is less water. plus more calories because of the fat.

Flounder, cod, haddock, red and gray snapper, red fish and pike are all low-calorie foods. So is brook trout but not rainbow trout (by comparison) Rainbow trout contains half of its calories as fat while only 18 percent of the calories in brook trout are from fat.

It is difficult to compare fish to beef because it depends on whether you are talking about beef cuts with fat as compared to fat or lean fish. But, one ounce of separable lean round steak is 38.5 calories and the same weight of raw Atlantic salmon is 62 calories, while an ounce of flounder (raw) is only 21 calories. Pork tends to contain more fat than lean beef and has more calories.

ference which piece and whether it has the skin included or not. Light meat without the skin (raw, edible part) contains 28.8 calories per ounce (for fryers). But dark meat with the skin contains 37.7, calories per ounce.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 63-year-old woman. I've been healthy most of my life until this past year when I had a kidney infection. It made my back hurt terribly. My doctor also did a Pap test and the report says I have a marked deficiency of estrogen. For the past few nights I have had terrible leg cramps. Could this be from the estrogen deficiency? I have been reading a vitamin book and am wondering if B-6 would help my backaches and leg cramps. I'm enclosing a list of the vitamins and minerals I take. I eat a well-balanced diet but I stay away from milk because it is so constipating for me 1 have no bowel problems if I don't drink milk DEAR READER - Don't expect much from the B-6. You are getting enough from the vitamin supplement you are already taking. There are many causes for leg cramps and anyone with such a complaint should have a medical examination. However, one of the many causes is not getting enough calcium. And since you don't use milk that could be important. Most of those all-purpose daily vitamin preparations with some calcium don't begin to provide the daily calcium requirements. Yours certainly doesn't.

POLLY'S NOTE — Do not add the white vinegar to the soaking solution - only to the rinse water after the other DEAR POLLY - Small hangers for children's clothes can be made at home by removing th cardboard tube from the bottom of standard wire slack-hangers and then bending in the wire ends to fit. These hangers have the added advantage of providing a non-slip way to hang clothes with straps, like bib overalls, as the straps can be hung over the bent bottom DEAR POLLY - I am answering the reader who has black spots on her hardwood floor. I have used a procedure that I once read in a book, with marvelous results. It said to put about three tablespoons of oxalic acid crystals in a cup of hot water and stir. Brush the mixture on the black spots. If they are caused by water, they will disappear. Repeat if necessary. Wipe the surface with a damp cloth and let dry. Do be very careful with oxalic acid crystals in your home, as they are POISON. Such crystals are bought at the drug store. — DORIS. CATTLE FUTURES

he citizens of a free country never take their freedoms for granted, but have wisely provided a specific list of them in the set of rules by which they are governed. These freedoms include among other things the right of peaceable assembly, to speak and write whatever they see fit, and one of the most basic rights of all: to worship God in any manner they choose; a privilege consistent with the theory that freedom itself is man's God-given birthright. Be ever prepared to defend your your freedom against anyone who would take it away from you, and avail yourself of one of its principal blessings by attending the Church of your choice every week on the Sabbath. And thank God for your right to do so, wherever you are.

"Whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein...this man shall be blessed in his deed." -James 1:25
