Habib Tries to Defuse Syrian-Israeli Crisis

(AP) - U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib flew to Saudi Arabia today in a bid to enlist the support of one of Syria's chief bankrollers in his effort to defuse the Syrian-Israeli missile crisis.

As he arrived, Libya's news agency reported that Libyan strongman Moammar Khadafy said he was prepared to set up antiaircraft missiles in southern Lebanon to put an end to "Israeli aggression."

There was no immediate reaction from Lebanon, Syria or Israel.

Israel Radio said Habib, whose presence in the Middle East is considered a deterrent to a new Israeli-Syrian war, would return to Syria after his first visit to Saudi Arabia.

Irish Police Find Bomb Factories

BELFAST, Northern two beer kegs, along with Ireland (AP) - Police and troops found two gasoline bomb factories and 100 pounds of homemade explosives in a series of dawn raids today in Roman Catholic districts of Belfast and Londonderry, police reported.

The raids followed sporadic rioting sparked by the Friday afternoon funeral of IRA hunger atriker Francis Hughes. No arrests were reported and the bomb factories - apparently used to supply young rioters - were deserted when security forces raided.

Turkish Police Arrest Passport Owner

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) -Turkish police arrested the owner of the passport apparently used by alleged papal assailant Mehmet Ali Agca to enter Italy, police sources reported

They said Faruk Ozgun, whose name Agca used as an alias on entering Italy, was taken into custody late Friday in the central Turkish town of Nevsehir, south of Ankara.

A police official contacted by telephone from Istanbul said an investigation was continuing to find out whether Ozgun had any links with the 23-year-old Agca, who has been charged with shooting Pope John Paul II and two American woman last Wednesday at the Vatican.

The official, who asked anonymity, said details of the investigation would be released through the General Security Department in Ankara.

Islanders on Way to Saipan Today after Volcanic Eruption

HONOLULU (AP) - Fiftythree Pacific islanders whose lives where threatened by a volcanic eruption were safely on their way to Saipan today after being rescued from an ash-darkened beach by Japanese sailors.

The freighter Hoyo Maru arrived at the remote Northern Marianas island of Pagan, a U.S. territory, Friday night EDT. Crewmen found the islanders - 32 of them children - standing on a beach opposite the 1.800-foot Mount Pagan volcano, Coast Guard spokesman Mark Kennedy

Until the crew of the 700-foot freighter spotted them, there had been no contact with the islanders since the eruption was reported by the island's only shortwave radio operator. Mount Pagan belched ash 40,000 feet into the air at 7:15 p.m. EDT Thursday, sending lava streaming toward the only village and covering the island with a heavy cloud.

The residents were believed to have spent the night in caves, but Japanese crewmen told U.S. officials they could not be sure because of the language barrier. They said all were in good condition.

The island's 54th resident, Mayor Daniel Castro, was in Saipan during the eruption. He was aboard a ship speeding to the scene today.

The freighter captain told U.S. officials the islanders were ferried to his ship in launches past a reef encircling the island, part of the U.S. Commonwealth of the Marianas. He said the rescue took place in quiet seas but under clouds darkened by Drifting ash was reported to have come within 70 miles of Guam's Andersen Air Force Base, about 300 miles to the south, and there was a light dusting of the ash reported on Saipan, about 200 miles south. Most of the ash fell into the Pacific Ocean east of the island.

A red lava flow was reported earlier to be moving down the southwestern cone of the volcano toward the village, where there were 11 tin homes and one jeep. It was not known if the flow had reached the village, said Navy Lt. Sandy Stairs, who flew over the island.

"It was like being fogbound," she said. "We couldn't see much of anything."

Another lava flow was seen pouring down the southeastern cone and into the ocean.

A team of scientists from Hawaii was reported traveling to Saipan to study the volcano, but Northern Marianas government officials said it was not clear when it would be safe to visit the island.

The last known eruption of Mount Pagan was in 1925. Another volcano on the island, known only as South Volcano, is believed dormant.

Foreign Ministry officials, evidently concerned that the dispute might be seen as opening a new rift in Japan's relations with the United States, characterized it as a purely "domestic" affair, politically motivated but unrelated to the substance of

The confusion, said a ministry official who asked not to be named, was "inside the government" and "over the manner in which the joint communique was published and the following related developments" after Suzuki's return from the Washington meetings.

Since the prime minister's return a week ago, the Japanese press and leftist members of the Diet, or Parliament, have claimed that the communique's reference to an "alliance" between the United States and Japan indicates that Suzuki agreed, purportedly under U.S. pressure, to an expanded military role for Japan. Teamsters Select Williams As New Interim President

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -Roy Williams, selected by the Teamsters executive board as interim president although he is being investigated by the Justice Department, will be elected to a five-year term at the union's convention next month, a union official says.

"As far as we're concerned, he's the one," said Salvatore "Sammy" Provenzano, a Teamsters vice president who nominated Williams at an executive board meeting Friday.

There will be some opposition from dissidents, but we're all behind him at this stage." Williams, 66, head of the Chicago-based Central Conference of Teamsters, was chosen unanimously during a brief, closed-door meeting of the 20-member board to replace the late Frank Fitzsimmons.

The Teamsters union, some 2 million members strong, calls itself the largest union in the world."

"I am deeply saddened by the death of my friend of some 40 years," Williams said in a statement, "and I am greatly honored that the general executive board has chosen me to lead this great international union into the upcoming convention."

About 2,000 delegates representing the union membership will gather here beginning June 1 to officially choose a president. The union's constitution required the executive board to meet within 10 days of Fitzsimmons' death May 6 to select an interim president.

"Although I am a candidate for election to the office of general president by the delegates," Williams said, "I intend to devote all my time and energy to assure that the convention will be open and fair, that the delegates will be free to vote the preference of the Teamsters they repre-

The Washington Post reported Monday and the New York Times said again today that a Justice Department decision is expected soon on whether to seek an indictment against Williams. The Post said a Chicago grand jury was looking into possible criminal violations in pension-fund activities and an allegation that Williams attempted to use illegal influence in opposing a congressional trucking deregulation bill.

The Kansas City (Mo.) Times reported that Williams was the subject of three investigations, a lengthy probe of Las Vegas casinos, the pension fund investigation and a joint Justice-Labor department inquiry into union ac-

Q. While visiting a friend and his wife on a trip this summer it was mentioned they each had safe deposit boxes. Isn't this a waste of money?

A. No. It's becoming a fairly common practice for both the man and wife to have individual safe deposit boxes. The primary motivation for the separate boxes comes from recommendations by estate planning counselors who realize that laws in safe deposit box to be immediately sealed of someone who dies. Although this may create only a week or so of inconvenience, it often prevents the surviving spouse from getting documents that may be needed at once. It can be more convenient to keep your will and insurance information in your spouse's safe deposit box and her's in a box in your name.

Banks Compete with Money Market

Nursing Homes

Nursing homes generally share a common media problem with other types of services industries: When they do their jobs well, it doesn't make the headlines.

With that in mind, we saulte and commend the fine personnel and residents of King's Manor and Westgate here in Hereford. This past week was declared Texas Nursing Home Week, and we extend belated congratulations. Nursing homes deliver faithful round-the-clock care to some 100,000 residents every day in Texas alone. Like airlines, who carry thousands of passengers safely and on schedule each day, they are doing what they are supposed to do.

This is not considered "news" unless there is a shocking incident or tragic accident. Persons in the nursing home profession often complain that the news media never say anything "good" about nursing homes. The rare and isolated instances of neglect or abuse do command a great deal of media attention.

There is plenty of good news about nursing homes, and we welcome this opportunity to join Gov. Bill Clements in commending them. A special salute, of course, goes to the folks at King's Manor and Westgate, who have an enviable record and reputation.

Self Reliance

One of life's most serious moments may occur when a person realizes for the first time that he no longer will be supported by others and must rely upon his own resources.

This is true of states and cities which have been receiving a lot of money from the federal govern-

Just as an individual may find it more enjoyable to spend money than to earn it, public officials generally find it more pleasant to spread around federal funds than to levy taxes to bring in money.

As the Reagan administration continues with its plans to cut down on federal spending, the howls of anguish are great from those who are being stripped of their grants and subsidies.

The artists and the musicians who depend upon various federal programs are crying that our culture is threatened and that barbarism will surely result unless these funds are restored.

Teachers imply that education may falter and fail. Labor unions argue that budget cutting will penalize working people. City officials, especially in larger cities, cry that without federal funds they cannot hire disadvantaged workers and that they cannot repair streets and sewer systems. There are a number of church organizations that are sending up a cry of anguish because many social programs are being weaned and they join in the clamor of protest that this is a blow to the poor people. Over the past several decades this country has slipped further and further into the socialist notion of wealth redistribution. Our tax laws are designed to take from the rich and give to the poor, and we have found that more and more taxpayers are called rich and being milked to pay for more and more who have found the delights of being poor.

If we can somehow shift away from the socialist principle of redistribution of wealth, our nation will become stronger because individuals and local governments will be more responsible if they are operating on their own.

We have long observed that tax dollars tend to buy more in goods and services when collected and spent locally.

When those who spend the tax money and collect the tax money live next door and are under close scrutiny from their fellow taxpayers, the end result is much more likely to be a careful spending of tax money than when this money is extracted and sent in large quantity to faceless bureaucrats who decide

WAYS TO SHORTEN YOUR LIFE

What is this big deal about health all of a sudden? Every day something else causes cancer. The newspapers barely have enough space for the national disasters with all of the articles they print about what is going to kill us. Who needs it? None of us are going to get out of here alive anyhow.

I saw an article by an Italian research professor named Luigi Gonnelo of the Polytechnic University of Turin. Luigi says lifestyles will come nearer to shortening our lives than disease. He listed some things to do in order to shorten a life. Sorta like suicide on the installment plan. To shorten a life:

Don't get married. Men who don't get married cut 10 years off their lives. Women, 41/2 years.

Smoke cigarettes. More than 20 a day cuts one year and 4 months off your life. Gain weight. 10 percent overweight cuts 1 year 3 months. Drink soft drinks. One saccharin sweetened softdrink costs you two days of life. If sweetened with sugar it will cost you 210 days because of added threat of weight gain.

That's what Luigi said. I find it hard to believe. Married men don't live longer, it just seems longer. I have known people who smoked enough, drank enough soft drinks (and hard ones), and were enough overweight that they should have died three years before they were

I suppose a person could quit all of the things that are bad for him and live forever. I am sure it would seem like forever!

We have become so absorbed in all of this it has become a national phobia. One of my favorite people said, "I think the whole deal is backwards. We should start out old and get younger."

I said, "If that happened we would all be scared to death of birth!"

Then we would have ten thousnd articles on how to stay old. Come to think of it, that might be more fun!

It's My Turn

Saturday was Armed Forces Day across the nation, probably one of the lesser known observances celebrated within our nation's boundaries. In case you didn't know, that's why the flags were put out across your town yesterday

Armed Forces Day was just one day after Peace Officers' Memorial Day, and is just a few days before the traditional ballyhooed Memorial Day, which usually concludes the month of May with a bang.

I never had the opportunity to enter the armed service since I was in college when my birthdate was drawn number 83 or something like that when the draft was re-instated back during the Vietnam War era. My I-H student classification was enough to keep me from being drafted into the service, even with my low number.

So, I fought the war in the classroom, somewhat relieved that I didn't have to face the uncertainty of the jungles of Asia, wondering whether or not I was to live another day.

Sometimes I think missed much by not "serving my time," and I'm sure the members of the American Legion and all Veteran's Associations are proud of their time spent defending and protecting the rest of us.

With the advent of the all-volunteer Army, many people consider our armed services inferior. But, I for one, am proud of those who continue to make the sacrifice to maintain our protection and defense.

Even though Armed Services Day is not promoted as much as it certainly should be, we all need to stop and take a moment to remember those who served. Not just those who made the ultimate sacrifice in giving their life, but those who were fortunate enough to make it back as

Election Problem

Editor's note: The Bootleg Philosopher on his Deaf Smith County grass farm on Tierra Blanca Creek has an unorthodox answer to an election problem this week.

Dear Editor:

The U.S. Census Bureau issued some figures the other day showing that 93 million people said they voted in the Presidential election last year, when actual voting figures showed only 86.5 million really voted.

In other words, 6.5 million people were putting the Census Bureau on. I don't know why, unless they figured it wasn't any of the Census Bureau's business. How or whether you vote is like your bank balance, it's private. I know a man who, walking down a street in his home town, glanced up at the bank's time and temperature sign and noticed it read "10.39." He rushed inside and demanded to know why the bank was advertising his bank balance.

But what I'm getting at is the splendid possibilities offered by the frame of mind of those 6.5 million citizens who misinformed the Census people. It's the answer to the smart-aleck TV networks.

You'll recall they announced the winner in the Presidential election before all the polls closed, by asking people as they came out of the voting booths how they voted. This outraged some people and they want a law prohibiting the networks from doing it

That's the trouble with this country. The only answer some people can think of to problem is to pass a law. The networks can be stopped from prematurely announcing election results if more people will join the 6.5 million who misinformed the Census Bureau. When you come out of the polling place and some TV reporter asks how you voted, tell him wrong. The network will rush the results out and wind up hilariously fooled. One or two tailspins like that and the networks will go back to waiting like the rest of us. This procedure is not recommended when you're making out your income tax.

Yours faithfully,

WASHINGTON -- The Media Institute, a nonprofit, research nonpartisan organization based in Washington, D.C., has a reputation for conducting very comprehensive studies of network news coverage of key economic issues. For example, in Television Evening News Covers Nuclear Energy: A Ten-Year Perspective, it analyzed all network news videotapes on the subject of nuclear energy broadcast between August 5, 1968 and April 20, 1979. The institute found both an antinuclear bias in the coverage and a lack of sufficient information to judge objectively the risks and benefits of nuclear power.

In Television Evening News Covers Inflation, the Institute found that the overwhelming majority of inflation stories originate with the government and-or government spokesmen; and that by an equally wide margin the inflation stories broadcast tend to exonerate the government of any contributing role in the growth of inflation.

Juarez Means Economic Stability to El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - To outsiders, "Juarez" still brings thoughts of quick divorces, gambling, drinking and scantily clad women at wild nightclubs. But to people in neighboring El Paso, Juarez is a partner in economic stability - the source of pesos that are welcome north of the border.

With no other major cities for nearly 300 miles in any direction, El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, have learned to depend on each other for commerce, creating a unique economic climate that is virtually oblivious to changes in the rest of the United States and Mexico.

"We're pretty isolated here," said Mark T. Miles, director of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce. "The nearest city is too far for much trade to go on. There is relatively little monetary connection between Juarez and Mexico. Very little comes into Juarez from the balance of Mexico."

The two cities form the second largest metropolitan area along the border. Both are growing rapidly.

"We're really one big community separated by a stretch of water and some bridges," bank executive Don Shuffstall said.

Shuffstall, an Army Latin america expert before he joined State National Bank, said there is more interaction, and more trade, between El Paso and Juarez than anywhere else along the border.

"There are 70 million to 80 million bodies crossing the bridges here every year," he said. "More than 70 percent of the businesses in El Paso accept pesos. It's big business here."

A 1979 survey conducted in Juarez by El Paso business consultants Thomas F. Lee and Associates indicated that people in Juarez spent nearly $90 million in El Paso during 1978.

The survey said the average Juarez family made less than $270 a month in 1979, but spent an average of nearly $30 in El Paso every eight days or so.

Obviously, the retail industry benefits the most from the shopping trips to El Paso.

Sid Rosen, president of the Downtown Development Association Inc. and owner of two downtown men's stores, said about 70 percent of the commerce' in the central business district is from Signs at downtown businesses are in Spanish and English. Most sales clerks are bilingual and pesos are as well-accepted as dollars.

While downtown areas in cities nationwide are decaying, downtown El Paso bustles with pedestrians at all hours of the day.

"We have a very, very lively downtown," Shuffstall said. "That's because we're tied so closely with Juarez. The center of Juarez and the center of El Paso are only a few blocks apart,"

"Our salvation certainly has been the border," added Rosen, who said he had his best year ever last year, while businesses across the country suffered from the

"These wholesale salesmen who travel all over the country tell me that if it wasn't for the border, their sales would be well down," he said. "A lot

Sid Rosen, president of the of other areas weren't as

The people from Juarez also make excursions to suburban shopping centers. Miles said surveys of license plates in shopping center parking lots show as many as 30 percent are from Juarez.

"Some of it has to do with price," said Juarez business leader Guillero Ochoa. "Some of it has to do with availability and some of it has to do with variety."

Although to a lesser degree, dollars flow into Juarez much like pesos travel the other

A Chamber of Commerce market survey done earlier this year shows more than 35 percent of El Paso residents visit Juarez fairly regularly, spending a median amount of $17 per visit, mostly on food and liquor.

"Juarez has pretty well always been a net profit to El Paso," Miles said. "It's tended to be a bedroom community. They do their business in El Paso and live and sleep in Juarez. This is changing some. But the volume of sales in Juarez still is not nearly equal to the net income of the people there."

The trade crossing the bridges is so important to retailers on both sides that they constantly monitor government bridge policies to make sure the traffic and money continue to flow.

Rosen said he and others went to Washington recently to fight for retention of temporary crossing permits, which government officials planned to discontinue. They convinced the officials to keep issuing the permits. This protected a cheap labor pool for El Paso.

In earlier years, tourism was the main business for Juarez. Americans visiting the city could buy cheap liquor, gamble, go to wild nightclubs or get a quick divorce.

In an attempt to change that image, the Mexican government banned rapid divorces and cleaned up

Now, both Juarez and El arez Paso jointly vie for convention trade and 'the new ters. tourism pours millions of dollars into the area, said Bob nter Knight, executive director of ty as the El Paso Convention ez. Bureau. Knight said tourism with in El Paso was up 19 percent last year, despite high gasoline costs and decreases with in other parts of the country.

Ochoa said the rapid growth of industry in Juarez has meant fewer jobs depend on the tourism dollar.

"There have been changes to some extent because of the expansion of industry," Miles agreed. "Before we had those plants, their best income was in the tourist business. They wiped out quickie divorces about the time they opened those manufacturing plants."

The plants, most operated by American firms, have caued tremendous changes in the Juarez economy, Ochoa said.

Many American companies have discovered labor-intensive work can be done as cheaply in Mexico as in Hong Kong or Taiwan. During the past several years, 112 American companies have located plants in Juarez.

Ochoa is general manager of the Bermudas Industrial Park Group, which operates three Juarez industrial parks holding 55 percent of the factories, called twin plants because there are facilities on both sides of the border.

"In dollars, $2.7 million is dumped into the economy of Juarez each week via payroll," Ochoa said. "It's been estimated that 40 to 50 percent of that is going to the El Paso side for the purchase of goods and services. That's a million a week."

"The unions say we're exporting jobs, but that's really not so," Shuffstall said. "Over 100,000 jobs in the United States contribute raw materials and complentary services to the operation of the twin plants."

Shuffstall said the minimum wage in Mexico is about $8 a day, making it much cheaper to produce items like electronic parts south of the border. And, Mexico's in-bond system allows American companies to take raw materials and goods in and out duty-free.

"The Mexican government encourages twin plants because it provides employment," Shuffstall said.

Rapist, Kidnapper Held In One of 8 Killings

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)

— Police held a 51-year-old convicted rapist and kidnapper today without bail in one of eight killings that terrorized hikers on coastal trails, and a sheriff said nothing indicated "anyone else was involved" in the other murders.

David Joseph Carpenter, described by a neighbor as a "good guy," was taken into custody without incident Friday at his San Francisco home on charges of murdering Ellen Hansen, 20, and wounding Stephen Haertle,

The attack on the two occurred March 29 at Henry Cowell Redwood State Park in Santa Cruz County.

If convicted, Carpenter could face the death penalty under special circumstances attached to the charges. The circumstances include murder during attempted rape and lying in wait to commit murder.

Carpenter came under suspicion in the trailside slayings case while San Jose police were investigating the May 2 disappearance of Heather Skaggs, 21, Deputy San Jose Police Chief Eusevio Hernandez said Friday. Ms. Skaggs, who worked with Carpenter, was last seen leaving her home to go car shopping with him, Hernandez said.

The slayings, which authorities said were committed by a killer who made his victims plead for mercy, started with the Aug. 20, 1979 death of Edda Kane, 44, of Mill Valley. Her body turned up along a trail on Mount Tamalpais, about 10 miles north of San Francisco.

The body of Barbara Schwartz, 26, of Mill Valley, also was found in March 1980 on Mount Tamalpais. In October, the body of Ann Alderson, 26, of San Rafael, was found on the mountain.

In November, the fear shifted to a popular trail at Point Reyes National Seashore, about 20 miles south of San Francisco, when the bodies of Shauna May, 23, and Diane Marie O'Connell, 22, were found.

While looking for the two women, searchers found the bodies of Cynthia Moreland, 18, of Rohnert Park, and Richard Stowers, 19, of the Coast Guard. They had been missing for more than two

A neighbor, Bobby Sue Klemke, says Carpenter was the first to greet her when she moved to San Francisco from Iowa in October. She said he gave gifts to her and asked her for a date, which she declined.

"He appeared like a good guy," she said Friday, watching as he was led away in handcuffs. "I have wondered about his mental stability." She said Carpenter gave her children key chains with tiny guns dangling from them.

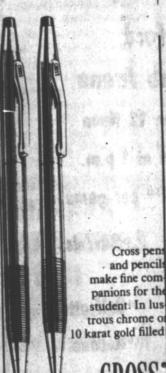

On Dec. 7, 1960, Carpenter was sentenced to 14 years on a federal charge of assault with a deadly weapon, said Max Weger, spokesman for the federal Bureau of Prisons. He eventually was parceled

On May 4, 1970, Carpenter was convicted of two counts of robbery and one count of kidnapping in Calaveras County, Calif. Corrections officials said Carpenter received two consecutive terms of five years to life and a term of one to 25 years in prison.

On Oct. 30, 1970, while in state custody, Carpenter was convicted of robbery and rape in Santa Cruz County.

Killer Sentenced 99 Years-Released in April

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) -R.A. Southard of Odessa served as foreman of a jury in 1974 that thought it had sent a man to prison for 99 years for the murder of an 81-year-old millionaire lawyer and ran-

The murderer was released in April, and Southard says he agrees with Gov. Bill Clements that jurors should be told the parole mathematics that add up to shorter terms for many convicts.

Southard learned from a reporter that Bill Scott was out of prison, paroled by Clements.

"It doesn't amount to a The 13 years plus "good to 99 years and he's out in 13," he said. "I didn't expect him to serve 99, but I thought it would be longer than 13."

That's Clements' point in his jury information bill. Backers say it would "take the blindfold off jurors" as they decide prison terms.

Scott was convicted of killng Odessa lawyer Paul Moss during a 1967 burglary. He pleaded guilty at his first trial and got 25 years. He served six years before the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals granted him a new trial. Scott was assessed 99 years by Southard's jury. He served seven years after the verdict.

The Scott case is a grayarea case. Moss was killed in a bizarre, probably unintentional manner.

At the time Scott was 39. The victim was a venerable old Odessa lawyer and rancher, known as "Judge."

Scott told police he stalked Moss and cased the lawyer's

On May 11, 1967, Scott went to the office to burglarize it. Moss came in and Scott hid in a bathroom, until he made a dash for the door. Moss was standing on a chair, putting books on a shelf.

"My going by him startled him and caused him to fall from the chair. I heard two big crashes, a big one and a small one," Scott told police. "Mr. Moss had fallen on the floor and he was bleeding pretty bad and gurgling and spitting up blood."

Scott left the office, bought a newspaper and returned to the office. He took keys from Moss' body and stole some blank checks. He forged Moss' signature and cashed a $12,300 check and a $9,321 check.

Van Cliburn Piano Contest

FORT WORTH, Texas millionaire Richard W. Mon-(AP) - The sixth Van crief and his wife, Marsland. Cliburn International Piano competition gets under way here Sunday with the notes of Bach's English Suite No. 3 in G-Minor played by Australian Alan Kogosowski.

Kogosowski drew the starting spot from a silver punch bowl Friday to the cheers and applause of 37 fellow contestants. The 28-year-old Melbourne native kidded with Fort Worth Symphony direcfor and Cliburn jury chairman John Giordano, who told he crowd in mock dismay, 'He's not going to sign it (the numbered slip)."

Kogosowski joked back, "I an't spell my name."

Later, Kogosowski said he 'I'm not nervous at all. The all is that the judges might orget how good I am."

Kogosowski will round out is preliminary performance with works by Beethoven, Chopin, and Liszt.

The pianists are competing for a total of $37,500 in prizes, and the chance to launch an nternational career as a soloist with the world's major

When rain began to fall on the daisy- and strawberry-

There was an atmosphere of old home week among the contestants, noted by Anthony Phillips, executive director of the Van Cliburn Foundation.

"We have the cream of the crop here this time," he said. "I think many of them have met each other before at other competitions because they are all so good."

other in last year's Chopin inthe Paris Conservatory and the University of Texas at Austin.

Most of the contestants have been performing under pressure since they were children. Chan Hee Kim first appeared in public on Korean television at the age of 4. Kogosowski, who leads off Sunday, appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show at 13. At the same age, Carmen Or of Israel made the decision not to return home to the Soviet Union from a piano competition in Geneva.

"This is going to be fun," she said. Everyone has a different method of staying relaxed during the competition. Said Yves Rault, 22, of St. Jean de Luz, France, winner of last year's Gina Bachauer International Competition in New York, "I try not to worry to much and get my work done."

Rault tried his first piece of fried chicken as he kidded with Francois Kerdoncuff, 27. of Paris, a former fellow student at the Paris Conservatory and veteran of the 1978 Tchaikovsky Competiton in Moscow. Rault noted that next Tuesday is the Feast Day of his namesake saint in

"I'd like to play then - actually, I'd like a party," he joked. Rault drew a slot on Monday.

The contestants represent 17 nations, including, for the first time, the People's Republic of China. Zhu Da Ming, 29, of Peking, and Yu Jin, 24, of Harbin, said with many smiles and limited English that they are 'very happy" and "very pro ud" to have been chosen for the competition.

said Dean. Clements' bill would have allowed Southard to get a clearer picture of what the 99-year sentence meant, Dean said. In this case, the only greater option was a life sentence, which has the same effect as 99 years. Foes of the bill say it would result in longer sentences as jurors start multiplying and dividing to figure out how long a sentence would be needed to keep a man in prison for as long as the jury deemed proper. "My opinion is the instruction on parole laws will not actually mean longer terms. The juries speculate right now. They speculate too high and they speculate too low," said Dean.

If they knew the facts, they would not have to speculate at all, he said.

John Duncan, executive director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, is among those predicting jurors are going to start doing some math work while they deliberate.

There are others who oppose the bill, including Mike Holmes, the district attorney

"Philosophically, I agree it would be nice to tell the jury, but telling the jury is one thing, then you have to reduce it to a charge for the jury. That charge would be about 50 pages long," he said.

Holmes was not the district attorney when the Scott case was charged. He said the

"My feeling was that they could better evaluate him than I could. I don't know if he is rehabilitated or not," he

Green and Southard support Clements' bill. The former prosecutor said jurors should know the real effect of their sentence recommendations. He agreed with Dean that jurors already speculate about parole and know that many convicts do not serve their full sentences.

"I don't think they know they get out that soon," he

Quarterback Alan Wartes (18) gets a play from head coach Don Cumpton as the Herd of-fense prepares to run against the defense Fri-day night at a scrimmage at Whiteface Field.

The Herd is about halfway finished with spring training, and there are still a lot of spots to fill for next year's varsity. (Brand Photo by Richard Spears).

Progress Pleases Cumpton; Changes Made in Defense

Despite cool temperatures and a cloudy sky, the 90 high school hopefuls who hope to play with the Varsity Whitefaces next season hit the field Friday evening for their first scrimmage.

After working with the players only a week, head coach Don Cumpton will begin thinking about who will fill the positions left by this year's graduating seniors.

The scrimmage was held at Whiteface Stadium, and before the night was over, every boy was able to "show his stuff." No statistics were kept in the game; it was just a chance for Cumpton to look them over.

"We've had a good spring..." said Cumpton. "We're at the point now, where we're trying out new kids, new positions, and I'm real pleased with the effort we're getting, and the progress we're making in the areas where we graduated pretty heavy."

Cumpton also stated that there have been some changes in the Whiteface defense. Whereas the Herd had been playing an odd defense with a five man front, they have now changed to a four man front, which Cumpton says should really help the team's defense become sity squad? At this point, no one knows. That choice remains with Cumpton. When asked how this important choice is made, Cumpton replied, "We go into the Spring practice with the idea that each player will have a shot at his particular position, and spring wears on, we evaluate our players each day. As the season approaches, we try to place each player where he needs to be. Hopefully, we can make some intelligent decisions, and put the player on the team where it will do them the most good, that's

The athletes who played so well last year on the Junior Varsity team, will be relied upon heavily to fill some of the gaps for the Hostile Herd next year.

Spring training will formally end May 26, with the Maroon and White game, although Cumpton said that most of the athletes will be working out on their own during the summer.

"I'm real pleased with the intensity everyone has been ment I've seen," Cumpton said. "We're optimistic, like every other team at this point, and after looking at our schedule for next year, possibly every team we'll play could be better than they were this year. That means we're going to have to be bet-

The race, which is a little better than six miles long, will be plotted in the hills and roads of Veteran's Memorial Park, The Fun Run should prove to be a grueling one, so interested contestants are advised to train well, says Joe Soliz, a member of the CYO and an organizer for the Fun

The Hereford Police Department will aid the CYO in supervising the route and keeping automobiles out of the area. The race will start at 1 p.m. and contestants are asked to be at the park no later than 12:30.

To help narrow the odds, there will be four different divisions to compete in: Men 19 and over; Women 19 and over; Men 18 and under; and Women 18 and under. Trophies will be awarded to first place winners in each division, plaques for second place winners, and T-shirts for third.

Soliz said that all spectators are welcome to attend this running spectacle, because the runners "will probably need some encouragement for that last

Indians' Barker Secures Spot in Baseball Hall

Bosetti wanted to get into baseball's Hall of Fame, but Len Barker's perfect game assured him of a spot in a showcase at the baseball museum in Cooperstown.

"I'll be hanging right on that wall - Bosetti, 0-3," the Toronto Blue Jays centerfielder said, after Cleveland's Barker tossed a dazzling 11-strikeout effort to give the Indians a 3-0 victory Friday night. "He's made sure we'll be in the Hall of Fame."

Barker, 3-1, a 25-year-old fastball expert who led the American League in strikeouts last season, relied

"I couldn't have done it without these guys," he said, praising the fine defense that supported him. "Maybe people are going to start believing in us now. They should have been believing us already."

The perfect game was the first ever thrown in Municipal Stadium, which became the Indians' home in 1932. It was the 11th in big league history.

when Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter blanked the Minnesota Twins 4-0.

The last American League no-hitter was thrown by Barker's teammate, Bert Blyleven, when he pitched for Texas. That was on Sept. 22, 1977, against California.

Blyleven also took a nohitter into the ninth inning against weak-hitting Toronto last week before settling for a two-hft victory.

On Friday, Barker's control was nearly perfect, as he threw just 103 pitches and never allowed more than two balls on any one hitter or five balls in any one inning.

More important was the Indians' defense, which was solid early in the game and became fired up after third baseman Toby Harrah dived into the stands to grab a foul pop hit by Cecil Upshaw.

"Playing hard on defense effects the team in such a positive way," Harrah said. "It gets you going. The fans kind of like it, too. I'd dive into the stands every day when you get that kind of reaction."

Shortstop Tom Veryzer and second baseman Duane Kuiper also turned in solid Kuiper also grabbed a short-hop line drive to his right and threw out Bosetti in the sixth.

"I think most ballplayers in that situation really want the ball hit to them," Kuiper said, "because they're confident. I knew the condition of the field. The only thing I was concerned about was, I didn't want a cheap one, a slow roller past the pitcher, to go for a hit. So I played a little shallower."

The Blue Jays, though, would have settled for anything.

"I've never seen so many guys pulling for someone to get a hit in my life, or a walk, error - anything," said Mayberry.

"I would have loved to break it up," Bosetti said.

"But I kind of had mixed feelings. I was getting into the people yelling. Lenny's going to get a $50,000 raise just for Indians President Gabe Paul said he would discuss a bonus with Barker today.

The game was, played before 7,290 fans in a misty rain with temperatures in the 40s - conditions to which both teams are accustomed.

"We're used to playing in this kind of weather," Barker said. "It really didn't bother us. I'm always wetting the ball and rubbing it up to get a better grip. The mist just gave me more moisture to actually just begun.

Barker's most impressive stretch came during the fourth through the eighth innings, as he struck out two batters in each frame. He was mobbed by his teammates and about 100 fans as Manning hauled in the final out. A carpet of white towels led to his locker, and he cracked open two bottles of champagne which were circulated

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Former Colonial champion Jerry Heard ruled as the unlikely leader today in the semi-complete, raindelayed second round of the $300,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Heard, posting a sparkling 5-under-par 65, was one of only nine players to finish Friday's round before thundershowers chased the contestants to the clubhouse. Ominous storm sirens summoned the players from the course at 12:15 p.m. CST. PGA officials called it quits at 3:30 and instructed the players to resume Friday's on-course positions at 11:30 a.m. CST today. The late start allowed time to repair the course and permitted Saturday's scheduled telecast to go on as planned. Weather permitting, the second round would be completed today with the final 36

The field will be cut to the low 60 pros and ties for the final two rounds.

Heard spotted the lightning as he approached the 18th hole Friday and said he started to take cover at once.

"I almost was going to hold it, but when I saw where the lightning was, I decided to go ahead and two-putt and get out of there," he said. Heard, along with Lee Trevino and Bobby Nichols, was struck by lightning in the 1975 Western Open in Chicago and his golf game has not been the same since.

"It's easily the best round I've had in three or four. years," he said of his 65, which was also the best score of the tournament.

Coupled with an opening 74, Heard was one under par at the midway point and a shot ahead of Ron Streck, with a two-day total of 140.

Both opened Thursday with 66s and both had surrendered 4 strokes to par when play was suspended Friday.

Floyd had completed 15 holes and Sullivan 8 holes. They were to resume their relative positions today.

Hale Irwin had it two under par through 15 holes Friday and, with Thursday's 69, was 3 under for the tournament and tied at that figure with Tom Kite and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Kite and Zoeller fashioned 67s on Thursday and had not teed off when the rains came

At the time, several players on the course were two under par, including Rod Curl, George Burns, Craig Stadler and Scott Simpson.

Among the players who completed 36 holes were Bob Eastwood and Tom Weiskopf at 142; George Cadle and Vance Heafner at 143; David Edwards, 144; Morris Hatalsky, 147; and Mike Donald, 157.

Defending champion Bruce Lietzke, only member of the select, invitational field with a shot at the $200,000 Texas Bonanza, fired a 36 on the front nine Friday and was one over par for the tournament.

Lietzke, last week's Byron Nelson winner, could pocket a total of $254,000 with a victory at Colonial.

Indians' Barker Perfect

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

Len Barker has had a lot of good moments in baseball. but Friday night was just perfect.

His curveball was awesome," said Cleveland Indians pitching coach Dave Duncan. "He and (catcher) Ron Hassey recognized that early."

The Toronto Blue Jays knew it, too, especially after nine innings of brilliant pitching by the 25-year-old fireballer, who hurled the first perfect game in the major leagues since 1968 with a 3-0 shutout.

"I know I pitched a perfect game, but it really hasn't set in yet," said Barker. "I pitched no-hitters in American Legion ball, but I always walked nine or ten batters."

Noted for one of the hardest fastballs in the American League, Barker relied heavily on a sharp-breaking curve against the Blue Jays. Durtcan said 60 of the 103 pitches thrown by Barker were curveballs.

"I was thinking about it all the way," said the 6-foot-4. 225-pound Barker, a 19-game winner last year for Cleveland. "But you can't take it all that seriously until the last inning. You've still got three guys to go and any one of them can get a hit, a blooper or something."

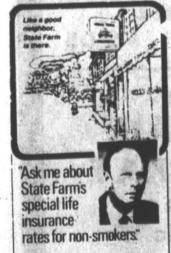

A mist at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium seemed to benefit, rather than hinder, Barker. He said: "I'm always wetting the ball and rubbing it up to get a better grip on it. The mist just gave me more moisture to work with."

In other AL games, it was Milwaukee 3, Oakland 0; Boston 4, Kansas City 3; Baltimore 9. Minnesota 4; Detroit 5, California 1, and Texas 2, Chicago 1. Rain postponed the Seattle-New York game.

4-0 classic for Montreal against San Francisco last Sunday, but only the third in two years. Last year, Los Angeles' Jerry Reuss pitched the only no-hitter in the big leagues, against the Giants.

Barker's beauty was the first no-hitter thrown in the American League since Bert Blyleven did it for Texas against California on Sept. 22, 1977. Ironically, Blyleven pitched no-hit ball against Toronto for eight innings May 6 and finished with a twohitter in a 4-1 victory.

The Indians scored all the runs Barker needed Friday night with two in the first inning on Andre Thornton's sacrifice fly and Ron Hassey's RBI single. They added a run in the eighth on Jorge Orta's home run. Brewers 3, A's 0

Ben Oglivie drove in two runs with two singles and a triple, while Pete Vuckovich and two relievers combined on a six-hitter, leading Milwaukee over Oakland. Jamie Easterly and Rollie Fingers finished up for Vuckovich with Fingers posting his fifth save.

"Hitting is contagious," said Milwaukee Manager Buck Rodgers, who thought that his Brewers may be coming out of a recent slump with their 11-hit attack. "Whatever it was, it was a step in the right direction." Red Sox 4, Royals 3

Carney Lansford's basesloaded single with two out in the ninth snapped a 3-3 tie and lifted Boston over Kansas City. Renie Martin retired the first two batters before walking Carl Yaztrzemski. Yastrzemski moved to second on Jim Rice's single and then gave way to pinchrunner Reid Nichols. Tony Perez walked on a 3-2 count to load the bases for Lansford.

"I wanted him to throw me a strike," Lansford said of Martin. "I just didn't want to Barker's control was swing at a ball. I didn't want Rookie first baseman Rick Leach, the former star quarterback from the University of Michigan, drove in a pair of runs as Detroit defeated California behind the six-hit pitching of Jack Morris.

It was the first start for Leach in Tiger Stadium since the quarterback, who played for Michigan in three Rose Bowls and one Orange Bowl, was called up from the Tigers' top farm club at Evansville in the American Association two weeks ago. Rangers 2, White Sox 1

Ferguson Jenkins and Steve Comer combined on a three-hitter and Al Oliver's sacrifice fly scored the winning run in the seventh inning as Texas beat Chicago. Bump Wills led off the Texas seventh with a double and took third on a balk by White Sox starter and loser Richard Dotson, 4-2. Oliver's fly ball to left brought Wills home.

Jenkins gave up a homer to Carlton Fisk in the first inning, but then settled down to strike out six and walk four before needing Comer's relief help in the eighth.

Thompson in Slump

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

For Pittsburgh first baseman Jason Thompson, it's been a case of "no field; no hit." But the season is Thompson came to the deal that was supposed to keep him moving along to the New York Yankees, a deal that fell through because of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's money ceiling on trades.

Thompson, who hit .317 with 70 runs batted in for the Angels last year, is hitting only .138 with eight RBI this year and is trapped in a 1-for-34 batting slump.

"I'm saving up a lot of hits, and they're going to be coming, believe me," he said. "You just have to keep from going crazy at times like

George Foster opened the Reds' ninth with an infield single and was sacrificed to second. Joe Nolan was intentionally walked, the runners moved up on Enrique Romo's wild pitch, and pinch-hitter Larry Biittner also walked to load the bases.

Steve Yeager and Pedro Guerrero homered, then Ron Cey's one-out, bases-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth inning gave Los Angeles its fifth consecutive victory and stretched the Mets" losing streak to five games.

Dave Lopes led off the ninth with a double off the Neil Allen and took third on a grounder. Intentional walks to Dusty Baker and Steve Garvey loaded the bases and, with the outfield drawn in, Cey drilled his game-winning hit over the head of center fielder Lee Mazzilli.

Mazzilli and Joel Youngblood homered for the Mets.

Astros 5, Cubs 0 Joe Strain had three hits for Chicago. Unfortunately for the Cubs, Leon Durham got their only other one off Joe Niekro, And Niekro's catcher, Alan Ashby, highlighted a three-run fourth inning with a two-run double for the Astros.

Art Howe doubled in the big fourth to run his hitting streak to 15 games. He also scored on Terry Puhl's sacrifice fly in the sixth and drove in a run in the seventh with a grounder. Phillies 2, Padres 1

Steve Carlton ran his record to 7-0 with a ninestrikeout five-hitter for his sixth complete game, thanks to the bat and throwing arm of Mike Schmidt. Schmidt singled for both of Philadelphia's runs in the fifth inning. And in the ninth, when Gene Richards walked and Barry Evans doubled, Schmidt relayed left fielder Garv Matthews' throw perfectly to catcher Bob loone, nailing Richards at the plate to preserve the vic-single. Oester singled home the Reds' first run in the seventh inning.

Braves 11, Cardinals 3 Glenn Hubbard, who recently flexed his muscles with a pair of game-winning home runs, left the power to Bruce Benedict, but kicked in with some timely RBIs in the Braves' romp over St. Louis.

Benedict hit a three-run homer in a seven-run sixth inning and Hubbard drove in four runs with a single and a

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Every once in awhile I get a craving to see a mature woman delivering the six o'clock news. I know I'm talking crazy, but sometimes I think if I see another silken-haired nymph with capped teeth and wet lips wrapped around the failing economy, I'll scream. At times when I like to have died from sitting there figuring out how many ways there are to tie a scarf, I'd turn on Walter

Cronkite and try to imagine him with hair parted in the middle and rolled into a bun at the nape of his neck. One of the things people liked about Walter was that he not only delivered the news with wisdom and experience ... he gave you the impression he was going to do something about

An older woman could do that.

Experience could be an asset to a mature woman newscaster. Take the other night. I saw a young anchorper son ... no more than 12 years old ... shove a microphone into the face of a 23-year-old woman who had just given birth to five children, had four others at home, a huband out of work and she asked, "How do you feel?"

A woman over 30 would have known the answer before she asked the question.

The print media, somehow, do not indulge themselves in that kind of discrimination. We have scores of mature woman writers who wear glasses, suffer from paleness, sweat, frown, have poor posture, small eyes, buy boring coats, and don't care diddly about the weather.

I used to know a lot of women who were involved in broadcasting 10 or 12 years ago. One of them had hips. When the School for the Terminally Serious began to turn out women graduates, they were reassigned to small booths in radio stations and eventually phased out. Most of them are underground now, leading beige lives and watching their old

Granted television personalities should look attractive, but a word to the eye-liner and lip gloss set — inside everybody is a mature woman fighting to get out.

I'll never forget the late Totic Fields who appeared one day on the Mike Douglas show. When a sex symbol joined them the audience nearly went crazy. Totic walked out into the audience and shouted, "What are you applauding HER for?"
Every one of you in the audience looks just like me!"

Security Checking is probably the most convenient checking account in town! And if you're a Senior, Direct Deposit is the most convenient way to get your Social Security. Here's why.

- 1. You get Social Security payments faster. With Direct Deposit to Security Checking, you'll get much faster payment of monthly Social Security payments.
- 2. Direct Deposit is completely safe. You'll never have to worry about your Social Security checks getting lost or stolen. They go directly to your Security Checking account for you to use.
- 3. Security Checking is free to Seniors. If you're age 65 or more, there is no service charge for Security Checking. No matter what your balance is. And you'll even earn interest on every dollar in your account!
- 4. Security's five convenient locations. Chances are we're pretty close to you. Security Federal is probably the most convenient place for Seniors. Several of our branch offices are located near Senior Activity Centers. So your Social Security gets to your account more conveniently, and so do you.
- 5. $100,000 insurance of your account. Security Checking is insured to the hilt. Up to $100,000.00 for accounts in the same names. So you can be doubly safe with Direct Deposit to Security Checking.

Book Written on True Confessions, Quirks

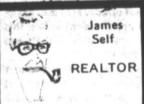

NEW YORK (NEA) - "Hello there, and what nutsy things do you do?"

Judy Reiser (Rye-zer), 31, didn't actually say that. For a year, the New York free-lance art director put it this way: "I'm writing a book on quirks and idiosyncracies. Can I interview you?"

And because she guaranteed anonymity - and because she's pretty and affable - the more than 1.000 friends, colleagues, cab drivers, hairdressers and other strangers she accosted, said

Her hilarious findings are now available in a Simon and Schuster paperback ($4.95) called, "And I Thought I Was Crazy!

search of those findings in the first place stems from her basic makeup. "I'm about as crazy as everybody else," she explains. "This whole thing started when a friend and I told each other crazy things we do, and I thought the subject would make a funny book. But I had no idea what was out there in terms of quirks."

Democrats, small "d," will be pleased to learn she found peculiarity across the board: all ages, races, both sexes and collar-color workers are afflicted. And their quirks are often oddly similar.

Take Ms. Reiser's coffee cup, for instance (not that she'll take yours). Her handling of it is part of what she calls the Howard Hughes Syndrome or, germs, germs, everything's crawling with Most people are righthanded, as I am, so I always hold my coffee cup in my left hand. That way I won't get other people's germs by drinking where they do," she explains, also hate dirty money she says. "And it drives me crazy at home to have to put that first piece of garbage in a clean garbage bag. I'll run out to the incinerator with garbage in my hand just to keep the bag clean."

Don't smirk condescending ly if you're immune to all that. Your quirks just lie in other directions: must your toilet paper roll toward the wall or away from it? Do you lose control if your hangers don't all face the same way? Can you only step off the curb with your right foot?

Or maybe you just get dressed funny. Always red socks. Never. Or the "once more with feeling" routine. Says Ms. Reiser, "A lot of men put on their pants, zip and belt them and then undo the whole process to put their shirts

Going beddie-bye is another area rich in aberration. "People either sleep with one or both feet under the covers or sticking out," she says, "One young man who works in public television told me that since both his feet must stick out, he has a pact with the monsters circulating in his room at night not to touch his feet." Every other part of his 22-year-old body, however, is fair game.

He'd make a nice date for the female museum worker whose monsters congregate under the bed. "She often has to take a running leap from the door to her bed because, otherwise, they'll get her,' says Ms. Reiser. The leaper, incidentally is 32 and per fectly aware, heh heh, there are no such things as monsters.

Now, who among us doesn't eat, however strangely? "A female real estate agent who's 51 always has to have one pea on each forkful if she's having meat, potatoes and peas. When she runs out of peas, she stops eating." says Ms. Reiser.

Then there are the TV writer. 28, who takes his vitamins alphabetically, the male insurance investigator, 32, who takes his by size, small to large, so his throat can adapt and the female psychotherapist, 38, who won't use the same utensil on more than one dish when she's cooking. Which proves that, even people who analyze people who do strange things, do strange things. Says Ms. Reiser, There are a lot of pychiatrists in the book. They're just as crazy as everybody else."

Citizenship Award

Thursday morning during La Plata Junior High Schools annual awards assembly, James Jesko, American Legion representative, announced the recipients of the American Legion Citizenship Award. Those students chosen for this award were Scott Hamby and Dana Cabbiness. Miss Cabbiness was also a co-winner of the La Plata Student of the Year Award. The awards assembly was held in the school auditorium.

Career Expert Maps Plan for Success

NEW YORK (NEA) - By alı means, wait for your number to be called at the bakery. But don't expect to bring home the goodies if you just sit back and wait your turn at work.

"People who wait for promotions don't get them because when you're in a waiting mode, you become invisible to your bosses," says Adele Scheele, Ph.D., career consultant from Los Angeles and author of the Ballantine paperback, "Skills for Success."

In order to move up, you not only have to make contributions to the company, you have to call attention to them. Why you must, she says, is because people either don't notice when something's done well or, if they do, they don't say so. They're too busy notic-ing how much harder they work than you do. "None of us thinks positively about other people's work," Dr. Scheele says, "so you must go in and point out the good things you're doing."

you're doing."

Ah, but only braggarts do that, you say. "I'm not recommending flaunting what you've done," she retorts. "You go in to your boss and share what has happened. You say, 'I made a breakthrough in this report. It's concise, innovanting of the same statement. vative, etc. Isn't that

But you don't stop there. You proceed to show him you've got the interest of the company at heart. "You must then go on and recommend other reports that should be done, by others, as an outgrowth of yours so that he begins to see you in two ways: as a team-player and as a resource," Dr. Scheele says. "If you just do the job you're hired to do you'll go no place. No companys says, 'we want you to do your job and more,' but they reward those who

percent assumable

And if reward is the aim of your game, you have to keep playing, no matter how disgruntled or jealous your peers may become. "People don't succeed in business because they continue to live as if they were still in school, where it was much more important to please your peers than the teacher," she says. "No one wanted to be called an apple collisher. But everyone gets polisher. But everyone gets promoted in school; that's horizontal power. It's different at work. Your peers do not pro-mote you. And your boss must be aware of you for you to get ahead."

So wrack your brain for ways to economize on copying machines or marketing a better ratchet and then speak up at the next meeting. But be prepared to be shot down and shol at. "Group dynamics being what they are, new ideas are not terribly well-received in a group because everyone wants to maintain the status quo," says Dr. Scheele. "So you have to set things up beforehand. Talk to people who are listened. people who are listened to and say, 'can we propose this together?' Or, like a politician, 'if you support me on this, I'll support you on that' — only be more subtle."

Even then, you won't deflect all the flack. "People usually respond critically in a group," she says. "We're group," she says. "We're trained in school to get our papers back with what's wrong written on them, not what's right."

So don't take the flack personally and don't let it throw sonally and don't let it throw you. Dr. Scheele suggests, "If someone says the idea is too expensive, then you say, "That's a good point, but if I can work that out would the idea be valuable?" Or, 'I did a lot of researching on the pricing and in the long run, it's cheap.' In other words, be ing and in the long run, it's cheap.' In other words, be sure to find out what's right with your idea and be sure you don't ignore what people say. Also, show appreciation when others submit ideas, to indicate your recognize they're indicate you recognize they're trying to do what you are. Remember, there's always competition in a corporation but there's also co-operation. And in a meeting, you generally don't want to hurt the company or the group.

The Consumer Alert

AUSTIN-Unless you have personally suffered the misfortune of the loss or theft of a credit card, you are probably unaware of the headaches attendant to that malady. The obvious inconvenience of the loss can be seriously compounded by the possible exposure to financial liability if you fail to report the loss as quickly as possible.

Unauthorized purchases on lost or stolen credit cards run into the millions of dollars each year. However, you can limit your liability to $50.00 per lost card by timely notification of the card issuing company of your loss. This partial protection is provided for under federal law, specifically the Truth in Lending Act.

This law requires the issuer of the card to apprise the consumer of this liability protection and to supply the consumer with a self-addressed, stamped notice to use if the card is lost or stolen. The consumer is immune to all liability should the card issuing company so fail to provide this information. Conversely, it is the legal duty of the consumer to sign every card he possesses.

The loss of a wallet full of credit cards, even with the limited liability, can mean a big loss in our credit-oriented society. Therefore, a few practical safeguards should be followed to minimize the risk of this loss. Always destroy any cards that you don't use or that have expired. Be sure to sign new cards right away and immediately destroy the Attorney General ones they replace. Never lend credit cards, for this is a breach of the contract that you have with the issuing company. Further, keep a list in a safe place of all credit cards and their numbers so that you will have easy access to the information you will need when notifying the respective issuing companies of your loss. Follow up any telephone notification to the issuing

The suit further charges that Buchsbaum violated the Securities & Exchnge Commission's proxy rules by the formation of a limited partnership for the purpose of illegally soliciting proxies See the difference between SF 101 and most other hybrids,

Friona Industries Report Earnings

FRIONA, Texas - Friona Industries, Inc. achieved net earnings of $1.6 million, or 73 cents per share, on revenues of $144.1 million for the first nine months of its current fiscal year.

During the same period ended March 31, 1980, the Company reported net earnings of $2 million, or 92 cents per share, on revenues of $128.9 million.

"Operating profits were generated by all segments of the Company's business, with the exception of Company Cattle," said Ron Davenport, president.

Commercial Feeds operating profits of $1.3 million were 19 percent ahead of the first three quarters of fiscal 1980.

Operating profits for the Animal Health Supplies segment exceeded $584,000 for the nine months, about 20 percent ahead of the same period of last year.

Grain operating profits of $419,000 climbed 42 percent. Custom Feeding produced $2.7 million in operating profits, a decline of 10 percent when compared with the first three quarters of fiscal 1980.

Meat Processing operating profits of $353,000 showed a drop of 59 percent.

Cattle prices continued to decline causing the Company Cattle segment to register a loss of $365,000 for the nine months, compared with a loss of $322,000 in the prior year's nine months.

The sharpest price impact on cattle prices occurred during the third quarter when Company Cattle reported an operating loss of $1 million, compared with a loss of $535,000 in 1980's third quarter.

As a result, the Company had a net loss of $266,000, or 12 cents per share, on total revenues of $43.4 million, compared with net earnings of $233,000, or 10 cents per share, on revenues of $36.1 million in the same three months of the prior year.

"Total U.S. meat supplies, including pork and poultry, were at a high level during our third quarter," said Davenport. "This put pressure on the selling price of beef and drove prices

"Also, we are still incurring start-up costs caused by expansion of our distribution system for hamburger meat and dairy products."

During the quarter the Company serviced an average of 590 Wendy's Old Fashioned Hamburger Restaurants with hamburger meat from its Columbus, Ohio and Norcross, George Operating profits of $447,000 from Commercial Feeds rose 11 percent above those of the third quarter of fiscal 1980.

Animal Health Supplies generated $87,000 in operating profits, a gain of 31 percent, and grain was 4 percent higher with $99,000.

Custom Feeding operating profit of $666,000 was about 16 percent lower, primarily attributable to a 3 percent declinein occupancy at the Com-pany's three feedyards. In March, 1981, the Company sold its one-third interest in Village Southwest Meats, INc., which operates a plant in San Antonio, Texas, to process meat for about 150 Wendy's restaurants in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Mississippi.

"We determined that it was not in the best interest of the Company to remain a minority owner in this operation," said Davenport.

Three farmers had, for one reason or another, decided they could no longer remain in farming, and had pooled their equipment together for an auction sale; all three were my friends.

Farmers and implement dealers from miles around came to participate in the demise of three more of our nations' finest, the American

These were not "overextended young farmers," as former Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland would have you to believe, nor were they worn-out old farmers. They were all midthirty to forty year olds. Hard workers and good farmers, men who were born and raised on the farm, with a lifetime of experience of producing food for this nation. Now that experience has been forfeited as the gavel of the auctioneer has sounded and he shouted, "sold to the highest bidder."

I remember the first time I met one of these fine gentlemen. It was several years ago when he and his brother, then in their early twenties, came to my farm looking for supplemental work. They had just begun farming for themselves and had purchased a new "used" tractor and breaking plow. In order to pay for this new purchase, they were seeking additional work with the tractor

I hired them to help prepare my land for early sugar beet planting. They did an excellent job for me, very consciencious to please. However, the thing that impressed me the most about these two young men was their enthusiasm for work. They kept their tractor going twenty-four hours per day, one plowing during the day, the other at night. While they were working on my farm, they were also keeping up their work on their farm, feeding cattle and hogs and doing those chores that must be done each day!

They were able to pay for their new "used" tractor in two years with money earned in this way. I watched them as they grew into men. They continued to work hard, not only as farmers but in community service as well.

When the "hard-times" of the seventies began, they realized the farm would not support both families, so the younger brother moved into town and secured work. Drought and low prices continued to force the older May 17, 1981.

I suppose I should be thankful that he was able to salvage the home place by renting it out to a neighbor who had more equity to withstand these hard times. However, I can't help but have a bitterness in my heart as I see the lifetime farmer move into town to compete with someone else for a city job. To force him to take a job in town is as bad as forcing a doctor of medicine to become an auto mechanic. His "Doctor of Farming" degree, earned by thirty five years of "on the job training" is now wasted.

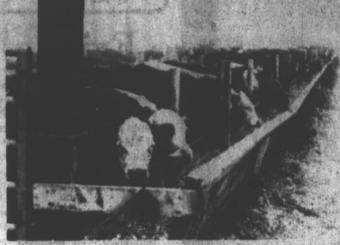

He will do all right in town, most farm boys do. They have the ability and the desire to be successful and are not afraid of work. However, the job he takes will mean someone else will be forced onto the unemployment rolls.

His plight was caused by sixty-three percent parity, thirty seven percent less than a fair price! Wake up, America, least all your fine young farmers meet with the same fate and your cupboard become bare.

Most retailers were caught off-guard this spring with beef supplies much greater than had been predicted in light of the depressed market prices seen since last fall. This means lower prices for consumers, according to J.W. (Bill) Swan, president of the National Cattlemen's Association. "Last fall and winter the U.S. Department of Agriculture and other forecasters kept predicting short supplies of beef and sharply higher prices this spring," said Swan, kicking off National Beef Month on May 1. "These forecasts badly missed the mark, but they were repeated so often that many people came to believe

The NCA is joined by several other groups making extra efforts this spring to promote beef sales in order to avoid a sudden drop in market prices that could result if retail sales don't use up the over supply of hanging meat.

"Our future (cattle producers and feeders) and the future of adequate beef production depends on more aggressive movement of beef now," Swan explained. "We have to get through the current burdensome supply."

To urge increased emphasis on beef sales, 75 members of the NCA have called on top officials of 60 leading supermarket chains plus local firms. "We are asking those who have not vet done so to immediately do more 'featuring.' Our advice to the public is to watch for good price specials on various beef cuts. particularly now in this period of abundant meat supplies." Swan concluded.

Some Facts About The Beef Cattle Industry

The beef cattle industry is the largest segment of American agriculture. Annual sales of cattle and calvas in 1979 totaled more than $35 billion, or about 25% of cash receipts from all farm marketings. There are approximately 1.3 million full- and part-time beef cattle operators across the country.

Agriculture and the cattle industry are important to other segments of the American economy as well. For every job on the farm, there are three jobs in related supply and processing businesses. Every dollar of cattle sales directly generates an additional $5-$6 of business activity in the farm supply and food businesses. One out of every five jobs in private enterprise is related to agriculture and agribusiness.

When consumers spend more on beef, supplies are used up more rapidly, and prices tend to rise. Rising prices (or lower costs) are signals to the hundreds of thousands of individual producers to increase numbers of cattle. When prices decrease, or costs increase rapidly, numbers tend to be reduced, and beef supplies decrease.

The continued availability of beef at relatively favorable prices has been made possible by the efficiency of modern beef production, with its scientific technology and increased mechanization. Output per man-hour in agriculture has increased almost twice as fast as in manufacturing industries.

The beef cattle industry is important in part because it converts otherwise wasted resources into essential protein and other nutrients. Eighty percent of the feed consumed by beef cattle in the U.S.

comes from roughages and by-products not edible by man, and that does not include some 900 million acres of grazing land. The grain that is fed to cattle is not food grain, but feed grain, like field corn and grain sorghum.

Fifty percent of the land area of the world, including 40% of the land in the U.S., is classified as grazing or range land - land which cannot be used to produce cultivated crops. Without ruminant (four-stomached) animals like cattle, this land would go to waste as a renewable resource for food production. Ruminants, with their ability to digest cellulose (which makes up threefourths of the world's plant material), offer the only way to harvest food from the billions of acres of land which are too rough, too dry or not fertile enough to produce

Per capita supplies of beef on a retail weight basis were about 78 lbs. in 1980. This converts, in turn, to approximately 38 lbs. of cooked, edible beef consumed per person per year. On a daily basis, this amounts to only about 1.7 oz. per day, or considerably less than the 3 to 6 oz. of meat recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture as the daily allow-

Demand, Inflation Mean More Farm Imports

Agriculture Department says "inflation and rising demand continue to broaden rembership in the once-exclusive" list of countries that import more than $1 billion worth of U.S. farm commodities each

"A decade ago the sole domain of Japan, the billiondollar markets for U.S. farm products now include 11 nations, representing a crosssection of the world marketplace," says a new report by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service.

"Together, the 11 accounted for $24 billion of the $41.3 billion worth of U.S. agricultural exports in calendar 1980."

The analysis was included Wednesday in "Foreign Agriculture," a monthly publication of the agency. Some of the most dramatic gains in exports went to relative newcomers in the rankings, the report said. The figures were not adjusted for transshipments of U.S. commodities, meaning that some countries might have imported some products for resale or delivery to others. "Mexico shot from ninth...in 1979 to No. 3 last year as shipments there soared 143 percent to $2.5 billion," the report said. "Exports to China rose 123 percent of $2.2 billion, giving fourth place to a country that as late as 1977 received virtually no U.S. farm products."

Among the 11, only the Soviet Union took less than in 1979, reflecting the partial embargo of U.S. grain shipments which was imposed on Jan. 4, 1980, and was removed last month.

Tech Studies Feeding of Pigs

LUBBOCK - Just what it takes to tickle the tastebuds of pigs is under scrutiny at Texas Tech University.

If animal scientists can determine what pleases porcine palates best, then pork raisers can do their job more efficiently and feed producers can provide the tastiest blend of feed and ad-

Using weaned pigs, Profs. Donald E. Orr Jr. and Leland F. Tribble of the Texas Tech Animal Science Department are mixing various amounts of feed ingredients and additives and determining pork preferences.

"We are looking at how the ingredients themselves affect palatability, rather than at of these ingredients, Orr said. adding flavors and focusing on how these influence palatability," Orr said.

However, the use of flavors to increase the palatability of animal feeds is a possible long-range application of this research, Orr indicated.

The ingredients and additives Orr and Tribble are testing include wheat midds, wheat bran, brewers grains, dextrose, fish meal, flash dried blood meal, feather meal, dehulled soybean, cottonseed meal, brewers yeast, tallow, bentonite, dicalcium phosphate, defluorinated phosphate, antibiotics and anthelmintics. In preference tests the pigs standard diet of corn and soybean meal with fortified vitamins and minerals-or an alternative diet in which one ingredient in the standard ration has been changed.

For instance, dicalcium phosphate, a primary phosphorus source for pigs, would be deleted from the alternative ration and defluorinated phosphate would be substituted a the phosphorus source.

The preference test will be supplemented by a nonperiments will make possible the development of a rating system of these ingredients according to their palatability for weaned pigs. Feed producers need this information to make feeds that pigs will readily consume and to know how best to vary feed ingredients when there are fluctuations in prices or availability

The young pigs the animal scientists are working with will be kept in the farrowing house an average of 27-28 days after being farrowed, before being weaned and transferred to the nursery.

In the nursery the newly weaned pigs will be given various feeds combinations for the next five weeks.

"Young pigs grow rapidly and convert feed to muscle tissue very efficiently," Orr said. "The stress of weaning is what we are trying to minimize. We want to encourage the pigs to cons these starter rations."

Young pigs compare favorably with broilers in will be given a choice of a weight gain and feed conversion efficiency, Orr said, but it is important for newly weaned pigs to eat properly. "Pigs which do not consume adequate amounts of feed perform at a suboptimum level of growth and may have a higher mortality rate," he said.

Lubbock County Field Laboratory. There the pigs are weaned at three to four weeks, instead of at six to eight weeks, the time allowed by the swine industry in the past. Orr gave three reasons for moving weaning to an earlier time in the pigs' lives.

"First, earlier weaning is being practiced to allow sows to be bred sooner so that we can increase productivity. Secondly, this allows us to increase the intensity of use of our farm facilities. Finally, the pigs do have a capability of consuming feed at this early age if a nutritious feed, composed of ingredients they will readily consume, is given to them," Orr said.

The park's general manager, Ray Williams, said the Sister Sledge prints and autographs will be the first to be permanently made part of the plaza outside the theater.

Rapid growth of the display is insured by the park's lineup of talent for this season. In coming weeks such names as Merle Haggard, Larry Gatlin and the Oak Ridge Boys will be invited to put their handprints and often their shoe (or boot) prints in concrete for their fans to see and "measure" for years to come.

"I just wish we had started this new attraction earlier," Williams said. "Since 1971, we have had more than 300 top name entertainers appearing in concert at the park and we'd have quite a display by now. But, with more than twenty acts already booked for this year, the Plaza will contain a very impressive lineup of star memorabilia."

Williams said the imprints are placed in a special buffcolored concrete, the mixing of which is carefully timed so that the concrete will reach exactly the right stage of firmness at the time the star is scheduled to arrive.

PRIVATE BENJAMIN

When CBS announced its intentions of developing a series based on the phenomenal success of Goldie Hawn's "Private Benjamin" feature flick last winter, I let out a laugh because this reporter had seen other movieto-video adaptations ("Walking Tall," "Foul Play" and "Breaking Away" to name just a few) flunk miserably in their prime-time trials. But much to my amazement, Warner Bros. TV, who developed the video version of "Private Benjamin" with Goldie's blessing, has done exceedingly well in the ratings in its short stint on the spring schedule and has earned a spot on the network's fall slate. To wit, ABC and NBC are also developing projects about women in the Army as well.

It's hard for me to pinpoint a specific reason for "Private Benjamin's" TV success, other than it being a topical fad. The scripting ranges from fair to good, but lacks the comical yuks which made the movie so enjoyable. Lorna Patterson gets an "A" for effort in her interpretation of Judy Benjamin, which is less J.A.P.ier (Jewish American Princess) than Goldie's big screen characterization. Hawn was actually living out a part of her life in the screenplay, while Patterson is trying to inject new elements into the character, which is critical if the show is to succeed on a long term basis.

The supporting cast is nothing special, save for Hal Williams and Eileen Brennan who have recreated their big screen roles for TV's prime-time wars. Brennan, who has had several chances in prime-time series before, now has a role that she truly relishes. Her bellicose Captain Lewis is probably "Private Benjamin's" most outstanding character, so maybe, just maybe, fans of the flick just can't get enough of Brennan. I guess you can call her the "J.R." factor.

I am also enamored of the show's theme song and opening narration which makes the viewer feel as if he/she really hasn't missed anything, since every episode is a new adventure in the life of Miss Benjamin.

But I'm still not convinced that "Private Benjamin" will be a huge success, unless the overall scripting improves and Miss Patterson continues to add even more depth to her character. Perhaps Goldie should direct an episode or two next fall.

Daryl Anderson In 'Lou Grant'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - ting at the University of Daryl Anderson says he thinks newspaper photographers complained about the character he portays on "Lou Grant" for the wrong reasons.

In the early days of the CBS series, Animal, photographer for a Los Angeles newspaper, looked like a candidate for a rescue mission. He had a three-day growth of beard, a far-away look in his eyes (perhaps put there by a controlled substance) and clothes that looked like he got them at Things have changed. Animal now has a beard rather than stubble, has sworn off the weed, and dresses more respectably. Not that he's gone Establishment, but Lou and Billie and Joe may have to start calling him Dennis Price instead.

"I'm really surprised that all the criticism has been about his appearance," said Anderson, "and not about the fact that he is portrayed as a reporter's assistant. That he just tags along. Although once I did tell Billie that I was there because pictures sell

LOS ANGELES (AP) -It's been 10 years since Jimmy Cliff portrayed the angry young singer in "The Harder They Come," and if reggae -Jamaica's shuffling answer to rock 'n' roll - hasn't exactly dominated pop music in the intervening years, it's certainly made inroads.

More than a few top new rock bands, notably Britain's The Police, have openly acknowledged their debt to reggae and its cousin, ska, and any number of pop veterans have borrowed the hypnotic rhythms as well listen to Stevie Wonder's recent hit, "Master Blaster."

And what about the musicians who created the sound? Well. Jamaican stars like Cliff, Bob Marley - who died May 11 after a long bout with cancer - and Peter Tosh don't seem to have much difficultly filling clubs and smaller concert halls in this country.

In Cliff's case, the critically acclaimed "The Harder They Come" is still a perennial late-night bill favorite at repertory film theaters, and he is in the process of arranging a distribution deal for his new film, "Bongo Man Has Come."

But radio has never taken reggae to its bosom, and reggae albums have not mopped up the competition on U.S. record charts

Cliff, in town recently for a series of standing-room-only concerts atthe Roxy on Sunset Strip, doesn't seem particularly concerned about his status on the U.S. record charts — probably because his worldwide sales and concert proceeds are more than enough to keep him and his band, Oneness, in Dun & Bradstreet's good graces for vears to come.

But the wiry singersongwriter is upset about one aspect of reggae's following here, and that is its overwhelmingly white nature.

"I think it's two reasons," he said slowly in his lilting Jamaican accent. "Economics and the media. Economics is controlled by whites, also the media. So when a white promoter books a show, he automatically promotes to the white people. If he does promote to the black people, it's sometimes out of their reach to afford it."

He added that the black music establishment in this country - "the Motowns and the disc jockeys, and all that kind of thing" - may view reggae as a threat to American black music.

However good reggae has always had a ragged edge to it that is hard to capture in a studio, and Cliff said he wasn't entirely satisfied with the results of using polished U.S. rhythm and blues

"The material is good," he said. "But the musicians that I started out using to do the demos weren't musicians that were considered top session musicians - they were just ordinary musicians. But I would have preferred to use them to do the actual

Klinton Spilsbury-'The Lone Ranger'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) -"Here - I THOUGHT I would hand these out," said Klinton Spilsbury, passing a silver bullet with a shy grin.

Unmasked, he is a 31-yearold with the startling good looks of a fashion model and an air of faint embarrassment over the events that have happened to him. On screen he is the 1981 Masked Marvel of "The Legend of the Lone Ranger," the Lord Grade-Jack Wrather production being released this month by Universal Pictures.

Spilsbury may well find "Lone Ranger" purists consider him an upstart who has deposed the aging Clayton Moore. The new movie is not the kind that will win the hearts of the nation's critics, and Spilsbury is likely to get wounded in the crossfire.

Yet he probably deserves better than the fate of dispensing silver bullets on publicity tours. He appears to be a thoughtful, dedicated, ambitious actor who can offer more than a pretty face. Enough of a defense - let him speak for himself. He does that quite well.

"Before the movie, I had two minor parts in television, and I mean minor," he admitted before embarking on the publicity tour. "I studied acting for six years, both here and in New York. There were some lean times, but I never

"My parents had always accused me of never following through on things. This was one time when I was determined to show them I

"I guess one of the things holding up the deal was that I wouldn't sign for a television series as well. I guess I was naive, but I figured that I didn't want to enter something that wasn't going to work on its own."

Spilsbury told his agent no chance remained. Eleven days before shooting was to start, he received a call from the director, William Fraker, who asked him how much money he had. "Twenty dollars," said the actor. "Go buy yourself some silver bullets," Fraker said.

Friedenberg, who spent eight months interviewing the affected farmers before writing his script, is amazed at how easily we slipped into the national disaster

"At first PBB was thought to be a great new discovery. It was used to fireproof electrical wires, and it did a swell job. But then there was that one little mistake, and after several years, the government realized that it was so deadly and dangerous that it can't even be made anymore. "I want viewers of 'Bitter Harvest' to be uncomfortable

I wish to extend my deepest thanks to Dr. Cannon, the nurses, Mr. Bullard and the entire staff of Deaf Smith County Hospital for the very special care and attention given to me while in the hospital here. To the ambulance driver and nurses on the fast and safe transfer to High Plains Baptist Hospital. To all my friends and neighbors for their prayers, deeds and kindnesses, cards and flowers. May God bless each and every one. Another special thanks must go to all the nurses, staff, doctors and surgeons for the constant care and attention in High Plains Baptist Hospital during my lengthy stay. To Dr. Moore of the First Baptist Church, Amarillo, the hospital chaplains for their many prayers and visits that made by recovery easier. To all "thanks" and may God bless each and every one.

In other cases the cells slowly change to carcinoma in situ, a mild malignancy that is very slow in growth. Obvious-ly, your doctor doesn't want to subject you to unnecessary surgery. And he doesn't want the minor changes to progress without knowing it and taking measures at that time. The only reasonable approach is careful follow-up. Stay with him and be sure to keep your relation to the blood flow through our skin. There are appointments so he can treat

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am very concerned about a new game the neighborhood children are playing. One person gets behind the other one and puts his arms around the front person's chest as if he is going to hug him from behind. front person then starts taking deep breaths as fast as he can; after several of these he takes in a deep breath and holds it. The person behind then squeezes on his chest.

It causes the person being squeezed to faint. My son claims it is just harmless fun but I think anything that makes you faint can be very dangerous. What causes them to faint? Is it dangerous?

DEAR DR LAMB - I would like to know your opin-ion of the various body wraps for weight loss and cellulite, which is my problem on hips and thighs.

DEAR READER - If a person wants to lose fat, they are of no value. They won't cause you to lose a pound of fat. Unfortunately, they are a imick. Save your money.

All these devices do is trap local body heat released from the skin surface they cover.

that evaporates and cools.

The local build-up in unre-leased heat may increase sweating as your body tries to overcome the interference with its normal cooling mechanism. So you may lose some water from the tissues. If you were a body builder that might make your muscles more distinct for a show.

Loss of body water by sweating from a wrap or even sitting in a steam room is not ss of fat and can even be dangerous to some people; Your body requires a normal amount of water for good health.
