

Jobless rate edges down to 6.9 percent

By The Associated Press

The U.S. unemployment rate edged down in December for the second straight month to its lowest level in almost six years, pushing total employment for the month to an all-time high, the government reported. Growth in service-related jobs and manufacturing employment helped push the jobless rate to 6.9 percent in December from 7 percent the month before, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

Unemployment had been at 7.2 percent in October and September. But although analysts said the shrinking jobless rate could be a sign of future economic strength, the stock market staged a broad retreat on Wednesday, erasing the gains that had propelled the market to record highs the previous day on several Wall Street barometers.

The unemployment figures translated into 138,000 fewer jobless Americans during December, and put total employment for the month at an all time high of 108.2 million, the government said.

The manufacturing rebound created 45,000 more jobs in December, as 237,000 jobs overall were created during the month, the Labor Department said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the drop in the jobless rate to the lowest level of Ronald Reagan's presidency indicated continuing improvement this year in the jobs picture.

Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, noted that unemployment remained high at 8 million, and during 1985 there was little decline in the number of people who had given up looking for work "because they thought their search would be fruitless."

On Wall Street, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials suffered its largest one-day drop ever, plunging 39.10 points to 1,526.61. It topped the previous record drop of 38.33 points on Oct. 28, 1929.

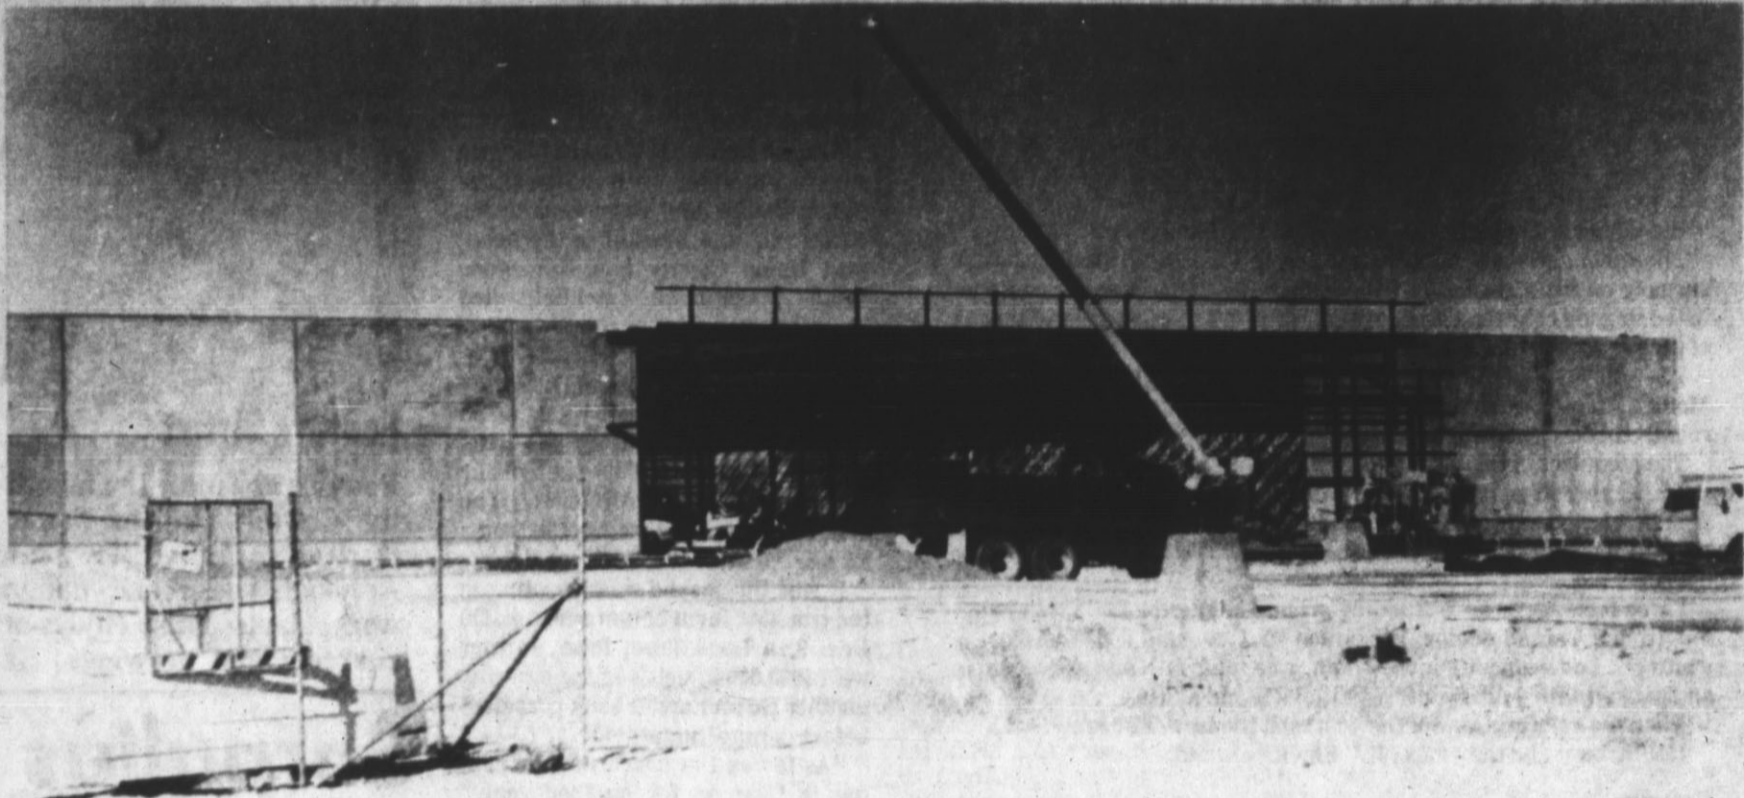

Analysts said signs of economic strength reflected in the unemployment figures, and disappointment that the Federal Reserve has not cut its discount rate on loans to banks, prompted an upsurge in interest rates on the credit markets. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction of interest rates, fell about $20 for each $1,000 in face value.

Once stock and bond prices began sliding in response to the rise in interest rates, the trend snowballed as investors sold stock to protect gains made in the powerful market rallies of late 1985.

In other economic news, a survey of city officials nationwide indicated more optimism about economic growth than last year, according to the National League of Cities.

But the survey of elected officials in 371 cities indicated the officials were worried about the federal budget deficit and the prospects for federal aid cuts.

Alan Beals, director of the league, said although the officials listed the deficit as their top concern they want to eliminate it by increasing taxes rather than cutting domestic spending.

Hereford Grows

Construction continues on the proposed Save-n-Gain on North 25 Mile Ave. The store is due to be completed near the end of March. A mall is also proposed to be built onto the structure and the entire building will be about 110,000 square feet. Revco Drug, three specialty shops and Thunder Buster Restaurant, have already agreed to locate in the mall. All work should be completed around June of this year.

Former Hi-Plains president indicted for embezzlement

DALLAS (AP) — A grand jury has indicted two men for allegedly defrauding a savings and loan in Hereford that subsequently was closed by federal officials and later re-chartered.

Dallas businessman W.W. "Doc" Taylor was charged with fraud and with aiding and abetting an alleged embezzlement of funds from the Hi-Plains Savings & Loan Association that were transferred to Taylor's Dallas-based company, Southwest Mortgage Service Corp.

The indictment, returned Wednesday, charges James Howard Gentry, a former director and president of the association, with embezzling at least $3.8 million.

Gentry was a longtime resident of Hereford and prominent businessman. He was a partner in First Realty of Hereford and had been engaged in farming operations for a number of years.

If convicted, each man could be sentenced to up to 30 years in federal prison and fined up to $30,000, officials said.

A secretary at Taylor's office Wednesday told the Dallas Morning News that Taylor was expected to be out of the office for the remainder of the week and that "we do not care to comment at this time."

Gentry, reached by the Morning News in Quinlan, Hunt County, said he was unaware of the indictment and would "rather not comment at all at this time."

He and Taylor also are accused of conspiring to misapply the money and credits of Hi-Plains Savings for personal gain between September 1982 and April 1983.

Hi-Plains Savings was declared insolvent Nov. 25 by federal savings regulators and was re-chartered under a federally appointed board of directors.

FSLIC spokesmen told the Morning News Hi-Plains Savings failed because of "poorly underwritten and under-collateralized high-risk" loans for time-share condominiums — which is the major business of Taylor's Southwest Mortgage Service.

Before being re-chartered in November, the S&L had been under state supervisory control since April 1985. Reagan Ferguson had been appointed to manage the association and was named president when the S&L was re-chartered.

Ferguson said this morning that the association had assets of approximately $111 million at the close of business Dec. 31. "We have a positive net worth," he added.

The S&L was newly chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in November, with a five-member board and a management team from

Nelson declines another term

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Deaf Smith County Judge Glen Nelson announced Wednesday that he will not be seeking another term in office.

"Decision time has come and I have made up my mind. Before I decided, my wife Helen and I discussed the matter over a period of time, and with a lot of prayer and soul searching I have decided not to run for another term as county judge," Nelson said.

Nelson stated health and age as the main factors in his decision. The 71-year-old Nelson said that his health is fairly good now, but he could not know for sure how good his health would be in five years.

Nelson stated that the case load is steadily increasing making the job of judge and administrator more difficult.

In 1985, the county judge's office handled 689 new cases. Added to that are cases that were pending from 1984. The county judge's offices heard 746 cases in 1985, which averages out to nearly four per day. According to Nelson, each case takes about two hours to complete once they reach the courtroom, leaving not much time for administrative duties.

The county judge also presides over some probate and juvenile decisions.

"I just want the public to know that the office of county judge is not entirely administrative," Nelson said. "I would also like to see the county add a court of law, if we had one, it

Interferon spray may prevent colds

BOSTON (AP) — The next best thing to a cure for the common cold — a way to prevent this wintertime misery — has been successfully tested in two major studies, and a drug company promises the drug will be affordable.

Researchers said in a report published today that their work provides "convincing evidence" that a nose spray made from the hormone interferon can keep people from catching the common cold.

In the experiments, people used the sprays only when children and other relatives brought colds into their homes. The approach was not foolproof. But overall, they suffered 40 percent fewer colds than usual.

Nevertheless, the outcome was far better than any other medical approaches to cold control, which have been uniformly worthless.

"This is, to our knowledge, the first instance where it has been possible under natural field conditions to show prevention of transmission of colds in the household," said Dr. Frederick G. Hayden, chief author of one study.

Foul weather fighters rise early to make streets safe

By SHAWN COCKRUM
Staff Writer

Where is the best place to avoid a cold, snowy, winter morning? In bed. Next to a warm blanket. Or a blanket.

If you are one of the city maintenance department or school administration, you will usually find yourself driving around unexpected city streets.

When the snow falls, city maintenance workers break out the snow plows and salt trucks to make sure that residents can safely drive. The night before, Hereford Street Department was ready to combat the foul weather.

"We try to clear off the downtown area," said McGill. "Then they use the salt trucks in town."

It is the war against slick streets, knows the city maintenance men and usually lifts those first Carr said that some of the worst intersections in Hereford are at Ave. H and Grand, Ave. K, and Grand, Ave. F and Grand, Highway 385 and Country Club Road and the intersection at Third and McKinley.

"When the snows are severe and blowing, the city crews clear off the main streets in town like Moreman and Plains," said McGill.

During a snow storm like Hereford's most recent, the city uses about one ton of salt on the streets. "We try not to put out any more salt than we have to," Carr stated. "What we try to do is keep all of the streets that run east and west clear, that way a person will only have to drive one block before they find a good road." City road workers also clear off the runways and ramps at the airport.

Hereford Independent School District officials are not exempt from enduring the cold mornings. When the snow begins to fall, they begin to worry about whether to have school.

At the first sign of snow, Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder, Assistant Superintendent Larry Warten and Bus Superintendent Eldon Green, get out and drive around to test the roads.

"We also check the weather reports," said Dr. Holder. "We usually try to make a decision by 8 a.m."

The school system can take weather reports as they feel they need for bad weather, but they must be ready to go to school. There are certain holidays that are not affected by weather.

Snow is not the only culprit when it comes to school cancellations. The falling of leaves, in the case of Hereford, will prevent the buses from running.

"School can go on with out snow," said McGill. "About 90 percent of our students live in the city and they will be returned to school."

According to school officials, the weather reports are checked every day that occur when the weather is bad. The reports are already in the books.

So far during this winter, because of snow,

Homemade bomb explodes at school

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A teen-age boy was recuperating from leg surgery, and three others were being held by juvenile authorities after a small homemade bomb was tossed onto a crowded walkway at a Universal City middle school, officials said.

Three boys were injured in the explosion Wednesday, but only one required hospitalization. One of the injured boys was later turned over to juvenile authorities, said Universal City Police Sgt. Ron Meek.

Officials also discovered a second device in a book bag that had been ignited at a bus stop earlier, but did not explode, said Steve Blackmon, principal of Kitty Hawk Middle School.

Both devices could be classified as bombs, Meek said. The most seriously injured was Jessie Bustos, 12. He underwent surgery on his right leg at Village Oak Regional Hospital and was listed in good condition Wednesday. Doctors removed several pieces of plastic shrapnel, a spokeswoman said.

The other two injured in the blast were taken to Brooke Army Medical Center, where they were treated for minor leg injuries and released, a spokesman said.

The identities of the three youths in custody were not released. The explosion occurred about 7:40 a.m. Wednesday, just after the first bell for classes, police said. The school's walkways were crowded with teen-agers trying to stay out of the cold rain while going to class.

Three teen-agers were standing around before the bell rang, passing around a small device, Blackmon said. He said it consisted of a white pill bottle about 3 inches high, wrapped with silver duct tape and packed with gunpowder, paper towels and a fuse.

When the bell rang, one of the youths lit the fuse, Blackmon said. "He threw it and they took off," Blackmon said.

Seven people killed in house fire

DALLAS (AP) — Flames sparked by an electric heater raced through a house early this morning, killing three children and four of their relatives after burglar bars thwarted frantic attempts at an escape, authorities say.

Three people escaped through the home's only unbarred door, but one of them — a 7-month-old infant — was in critical condition at a local hospital, Battalion Chief Troy England said.

The child's father had tried to flee out the home's front door but couldn't find his key to the bars across it, England said. The man then fled with a male relative out the back door but was unable to break the bars free from outside.

Two of the people who died were found huddled against that barred door, he said.

The three children, who died of smoke inhalation, were found in their bedrooms and apparently had never awakened, he said.

Three people had already died by the time firefighters arrived shortly after the fire broke out at 2 a.m., England said. The four others were killed after unsuccessful attempts to resuscitate them, he said.

The fire, declared under control within 90 minutes, heavily damaged the house but reached none of the surrounding residences, he said.

England said an electric space heater that apparently was placed too closely to a sofa is believed to have sparked the blaze.

The victims all were related, but England said their identities have not yet been released.

Survey on fear of AIDS reported

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than one-third of Americans surveyed believe they could get AIDS from donating blood, says a new poll sponsored by blood bank officials who hope a national information campaign will quell what they call unfounded worries.

A report on the survey, released today, also said more than half of Americans believe they would be at least somewhat likely to get the deadly disease if they received a blood transfusion and 81 percent would prefer blood from family or friends if they needed it for an operation.

"The dissemination of accurate information is key in calming such fears," said the report to the American Association of Blood Banks from the Washington-based polling firm Hamilton & Staff.

"Currently, less than a majority of Americans know blood banks test blood for the AIDS antibody, yet when informed of this process, nine in 10 feel more secure about the nation's blood supply," the report said.

Federal health officials say less than 2 percent of the nation's 16,000 known AIDS cases resulted from transfusions — a percentage they say is sure to drop because of blood screening tests begun last year.

And there is no chance of getting the disease from donating blood since needles used for that are sterilized in advance and used only once, the officials say.

The blood bank officials said they were preparing public service announcements for a national educational campaign on the subject.

Polaroid wins case against Kodak

Polaroid Corp. effectively regains its U.S. monopoly today as the only domestic maker of instant cameras, but company officials are not gloating about court rulings in its favor in a 9-year-old fight against Eastman Kodak Co.

For Kodak, losing its estimated 20 percent share of the instant photography market won't be crippling, but what could hurt is a damage award that might be at least $1 billion, analysts say.

This week, the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., denied two motions by Kodak that would have allowed it to keep making and selling instant camera products while it appealed an October decision in Polaroid's favor.

Kodak appealed further to the Supreme Court, but Justice Lewis Powell on Wednesday rejected an emergency request.

"We are pleased with every favorable development so far ... but we try not to speculate on what the future may hold," said Richard deLima, vice president and secretary of Polaroid, whose stock rose $1.25 to $44.50 Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

In the October decision, a judge ruled that Kodak had infringed on seven U.S. patents owned by Polaroid and barred it from making or selling the instant products, such as film, effective today.

Kodak said Wednesday it will allow consumers stuck with the more than 16 million instant cameras to trade them in for its newest disc camera and two film cartridges, a coupon book with $50 worth of rebates on Kodak photographic products, or one share of Kodak stock, which closed Wednesday at $48.625 a share, down $1.375 a share.

Kodak also will accept unsold cameras and film from dealers and issue refunds to them, said company spokesman Charles Smith.

About 800 full-time and 3,700 part-time workers will be affected by the action, which will idle more than $200 million worth of equipment, Rochester, N.Y.-based Kodak said.

Frustrated supervisor kills family

ELK POINT, S.D. (AP) — A Farmers Home Administration supervisor who killed his family and himself was frustrated because his efforts to go by the book had failed to help farmers faced with foreclosure, friends and clients say.

"When things didn't work out the way the book said he just cracked," said Dave Swanson, an Elk Point farmer. "The general feeling of everybody I've talked to today is that his job killed him."

Bruce Litchfield, 38, shot his wife and two children with a .22-caliber pistol Wednesday, then went to his office and shot himself in the head, said Union County Sheriff Eugene "Bud" Rasmussen. Litchfield died about two hours later at a Sioux City hospital.

The bodies of Litchfield's family were found in their beds when authorities went to notify his wife, Laura Ellen, 42, of the office shooting, the sheriff said. The children were identified as Christine, 12, and Allan, 9.

It was the second such shooting in the troubled farm belt in a month. On Dec. 9, a Lone Tree, Iowa, farmer with $600,000 in debts killed his wife, another farmer and a bank president before committing suicide.

"As far as I'm concerned, he kept me in farming for another year," said Swanson, adding that Litchfield would go out of his way to help, doing things farmers didn't ask him to do.

Swanson said he called the FmHA office early Wednesday to talk to Litchfield and was told he was on the phone. A short time later, Litchfield's secretary called back to say her boss had shot himself.

Litchfield was very good at his job, Swanson said. "He was worried about everything he had done for everybody, and it didn't help them. I think that the man had a lot on his head."

The Rev. Marvin Ketterling, who accompanied police to the Litchfield home, said he had read the suicide note Litchfield left on his office desk, but could not remember the exact contents.

"It was to the effect that 'the pressure of my work got to me,'" he said.

The sheriff refused to reveal the contents of the suicide note, but said he did not believe the slayings were related to the farm crisis.

Others, however, thought there might have been a connection.

The Litchfields' pastor, the Rev. Don Greenough, said no one would ever know all the reasons, but problems in agriculture probably played a part in the deaths.

State FmHA Director Dexter Gunderson said he wasn't aware of Litchfield being troubled by his work. Litchfield's office had an "extremely low" number of foreclosures, he said.

SPRAY

The interferon spray is not available to the public and Schering Corp., which makes the spray, isn't sure when it will be. Schering has asked the Food and Drug Administration for permission to sell the spray as a prescription drug.

Hayden said more research will be necessary to learn whether interferon sprays are safe for people with breathing disorders, such as asthma.

"I do think that in the long run, once we understand what the optimal dosing schedule is, it will have a role in preventing colds in otherwise healthy adults," he said.

Whether it becomes a routine weapon against the pervasive woe will depend, in part, on how much it costs.

"Because of the competitive situation, we don't wish to disclose our marketing strategies," said Linn Weiss, a Schering spokesman. "But we believe that eventually we will be able to provide an affordable treatment for prevention of the common cold."

The two new studies were reported in the New England Journal of Medicine. One was directed by Hayden at the University of Virginia and the other was conducted by doctors at the University of Adelaide in Australia.

Both studies found that the spray appears to be effective only against the rhinovirus. Although many germs can cause colds, the rhinovirus is the biggest culprit, causing between 30 percent and 50 percent. The two studies showed that the spray was nearly 80 percent effective in preventing colds caused by rhinoviruses.

In these studies, the sprays were used only to prevent colds, not cure them. However, Hayden said the results of another study, conducted last fall, are being analyzed to see if the treatment will do any good once cold symptoms are evident.

Johnson re-elected

The re-elected president of the Child Welfare Board, Bill Johnson, said Wednesday he wanted to see the board go beyond administration of finances into educating the public of the concerns law enforcement and social workers have in working with abuse cases.

One project planned by the board is a training session next month for board members to learn to present a short film and lead a third-grade classroom discussion on abuse. The 12-minute film focuses on a child's right to no sexual abuse.

Recent general public education on abuse has triggered more reports of abuse and thus created overcrowding in many children's

Sarpalius says there are still critical white oil issues

AUSTIN (AP) — A Panhandle legislator has asked Gov. Mark White to create a special committee to resolve the Panhandle's "white oil" dispute, which is now on appeal in a state court here.

But White indicated much is being done already to resolve the dispute.

Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Canyon, said "there are several critical issues that merit close examination," including the legal definition of white oil, Panhandle Field rules and the economic impact of a ruling against white oil operators.

"Railroad commissioners complain that they don't have any latitude to consider economic impact in making a ruling. The committee needs to decide whether the Legislature should give the commissioners that authority or even force them to consider economic impact," Sarpalius said in a statement issued Wednesday.

Two legislative committees already are reviewing the controversy surrounding the production of white oil, a water-white liquid that is formed when vapors are chilled to as low as 20 degrees below zero.

Whether the liquid can be counted as crude oil in classifying a well is on appeal to the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin. White oil operators claim the liquid is crude oil.

An Austin district judge ruled that the Railroad Commission had the authority to retest and shut down certain wells equipped with refrigeration, or LTX units.

"If people don't think we're having problems, they ought to walk main street in Borger, and they'll learn what economic problems are all about," Sarpalius said. "If these oil wells continue to be shut down, the banks that have invested heavily in them will fail, the businesses dependent on the flow of oil money will close."

He suggested that White appoint a committee of "representatives from all sides in the dispute, as well as legislators and Panhandle-area businessmen affected by the controversy."

"Realistically, a select committee is the only place besides a courtroom where you're going to get all the sides together," one room and see if we can find some common ground."

He said recommendations for administrative rule changes should be forwarded to the Railroad Commission within 60 days of the proposed committee's first meeting, and any recommendations for changes in the law should be presented to the 1987 Legislature.

White said he has been meeting with Panhandle oilmen, royalty owners and major oil companies to find a compromise. The governor said he is "doing everything possible to bring about a solution to this extremely difficult situation."

He said he has not formed a special committee as Sarpalius requested, "because progress was being made, as slim as it was, and I had hoped to see that progress continued without another committee."

White said Sarpalius did not attend any of the meetings between the oil companies and independents.

"This has been a fight since 1977, and nobody has been able to get it settled," White said.

Ann Landers

Brother also responsible

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our son "Tom" (age 18) is a freshman at Louisiana State University. He is an accomplished photographer and has earned a good deal of his college money from his photographs.

When I cleaned his room last week, I spilled a box of his loose photos. While picking them up, I noticed that most were of his sister (just turned 17) in various nude and semi-nude poses. I was shocked and decided to show them to my husband. He was flabbergasted.

When we confronted "Sis" she admitted having posed for Tom several times. She said it was his assignment for a photo course we gave him for his 15th birthday. (We never dreamed he had to do anything like that. We thought he was photographing birds and people on the street.)

Sis didn't think it was a big deal. She said Tom had seen her naked plenty of times and when he asked her to pose that way she did it for fun.

A phone conversation with our son revealed the same facts, but he was very apologetic. He insisted that he had talked his sister into it and that she was not to blame.

We explained our objections and decided that Sis should surrender her newly gotten driver's license and go back to her (pre-age 16) curfew restrictions: 8 a.m. school nights, 10 p.m. weekends.

The problem is my husband. He thinks we let her off too easily.

What, if anything, do you think we should do about Tom, who is obviously guilty but not under our control anymore? Are there any punishments parents can apply to college students?—JUST PLAIN MOM

DEAR MOM: For openers, a 17-year-old girl who is made to adhere to a 10 p.m. curfew weekends is getting plenty of punishment.

As for Tom, he certainly should not be off scot-free. (Where did you get the idea that a college student cannot be punished?) Some privilege should be denied him. His sister should not be made to pay the whole price for the pictures that her brother took. He is at least 50 percent responsible for what transpired.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been reading your column ever since I was 13 and now I am 43. Hard to believe, isn't it? I've learned a lot from you and now I need help.

I filed for divorce in 1984 after 24 years of marriage and raising three lovely children, now 23, 22 and 18. There was a 13-month battle over alimony and property rights. It got quite ugly.

The problem: My in-laws were always very daer to me. No one could ask for better friends. They were a rock of strength in my time of trouble. During my 24 years of marriage they were as close to me as my own parents. I refuse to put an "ex-" in front of their names.

My former husband has not said much on this subject but he has let me know I am no longer legally a part of his family and it would be better if I cooled it in case he decides to marry again. My attachment to his parents would be tough on his next wife, he says. What are my obligations here?—SHAKER HEIGHTS, OHIO

DEAR SHAKER: You owe your former husband nothing. You divorced him, not his parents.

Drugs? How much is too much? Is pot OK? Is cocaine too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers', all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

After 36 years

Father, daughter reunited

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A father and his German-born daughter, who last saw each other 36 years ago in war-ravaged Europe, have at last joined for a tearful reunion.

Anita Rosenfeld, 37, of Philadelphia, was only an infant when her father, 60-year-old Travis Clark of Abilene, was sent back to the United States in 1949.

Her mother died eight years ago, leaving her with the dream of someday finding the father who long ago sent the family "care" packages.

The dream came true Wednesday when Mrs. Rosenfeld rushed into Clark's arms at the Abilene Municipal Airport. As they cried, he crushed a plastic box of six roses against her back with the force of his hug.

They wept for a short time while Clark's wife, their children, relatives and friends looked on, taking pictures and smiling at the reunion Clark called the answer to his prayers.

"You make my life complete," he told her. "Honey, you'll never get away from me again."

Mrs. Rosenfeld had located him only last week after she learned about a Social Security administration-sponsored parent locator program.

"A lady in Social Security in Harrisburg (Pa.) found him in an hour," she said. "But I was scared to death ... afraid he might not like me."

Clark squeezed her even tighter after the comment.

Clark and Mrs. Rosenfeld's mother, Maria Gesiotto, met during his 1947-49 tour of duty in the German city of Bremerhaven, he said. Their daughter was born Jan. 7, 1949, a few months before Clark, an Army corporal, was sent back to the United States.

The pair corresponded until the child was about 4, then lost contact after giving up hope of ever being together, Clark told the Abilene Reporter News.

Social Security personnel who found Clark last week told his daughter they would have to contact him first to see if he would be willing to be put in touch with her.

Clark said he learned last Friday, on his 60th birthday, that his daughter was trying to find him, he said.

"The Social Security woman called me and said, 'Anita, I have good news.' Then he (Clark) got on the line," Mrs. Rosenfeld said Wednesday night.

Rebekah Lodge members to be installed during meeting

Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening with Noble Grand Kee Ruland presiding.

Reports were made of sick members with 29 visits and 10 cheer cards recorded.

The semi-annual report was read and adopted. It was announced that new officers will be installed Jan. 14 with an informal meeting and salad supper.

At a previous meeting, members voted to give a scholarship to a worthy high school senior. The recipient will be chosen at a later date.

Ann Conklin, acting as hostess, served a chili supper to Ruland, Ben Conklin, Karrol Rettman, Susie Curt-singer, Lydia Hopsons, Verna Sowell, Anthony Irlbeck, Dorothy Lundry, Ada Hollabaugh, Helen Bishop, Gene Bishop, Sadie Shaw, Guy Lawrence, Bessie Lawrence, Edna Mathes, Leona Sowell and Ursalee Jacobsen.

DR. GOTT Vitamin data easy to find

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm concerned that I might be "overdosing" on vitamins. Where can I find the RDA for my group (age 66, 5 feet 8, 137 pounds)?

DEAR READER — The Recommended Daily Allowance for vitamins and minerals can be found in most diet books, medical textbooks and diet brochures. These are available in your local library, at your hospital's library or from any certified nutritionist in your community. I have found the following references to be useful: "Vitamins and Minerals: Help or Harm?" by Charles W. Marshall, Ph.D. (George Shickley and Co., 210 West Washington Square, Philadelphia, PA 19106).

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says I am a borderline diabetic and put me on a diet. I've started walking and am up to three miles a day. One of my worst complaints is tiredness. My energy doesn't last long. I'm 49 and in menopause. Will the diet and exercise control the diabetes, or must I look forward to being put on medication? Sometimes I cheat with a small dish of ice cream, but I'm doing all I can.

DEAR READER — Tiredness can result from a wide variety of problems, including diabetes, anemia, low thyroid and menopause. If your doctor has found you to be normal (except for your blood sugar), I think it is likely that strict dieting and exercise will, in time, correct your borderline diabetes. Your tiredness should improve as your weight and blood sugar fall.

I don't know whether you will require medication; that is a decision best left to you and your doctor. The important consideration now is that you follow instructions and do the best you can.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My boyfriend has an itching on the end of his penis and a pressure-like feeling in the testicles after sex. His other girlfriend is prone to yeast infections. I'm not, although I did have a slight infection one time, but that cleared up without treatment. Can you tell me what might be causing his problem?

DEAR READER — I think he has too many girlfriends. Perhaps he would have less pressure and itching if he were to limit his affections to one partner. Evidence clearly shows that multiple sexual partners increase the risk of an astounding assortment of venereal diseases, not only for the central character, but for everyone with whom he or she has relations.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I need some help. I am 5 feet 3, 55 and 225 pounds. I had a cancerous growth on the mouth of my womb many years ago and everything was removed. I've never been a big eater, but I can't lose weight. I'm taking care of my 5- and 7-year-old grandkids, so I am always on the run. We're on a fixed income. I try to keep fruit and raw vegetables in the house, but I don't have my bottom teeth, so that makes it a little hard. Can you help?

DEAR READER — You seem to be describing a common condition: weight gain after hysterectomy. You can be helped by a diet. My first suggestion is that you see a dentist and be fitted for a lower plate. Your dining pleasure will improve and you'll be able to eat nutritious, low-calorie salads and vegetables without having to worry about how to chew the food. As a general rule, the easiest foods to chew are usually the most fattening, so I think your first step should be into a dentist's office or the dentistry school of a university or hospital near you.

To give you more information on weight loss, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, WEIGHT LOSS THROUGH CALORIE CONTROL. Other readers who want a copy should send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

POLLY'S POINTERS

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — My kids simply refuse to eat vegetables. Is there any way they can get those vitamins without eating vegetables? — CONNIE

DEAR CONNIE — Do they eat fruit? Many of the nutrients we eat vegetables for, notably vitamins A and C, are abundant in many fruits.

Serve them fruits two or three times a day: apricots, peaches and cantaloupe for vitamin A; bananas for potassium; prunes and raisins for iron; citrus fruits for vitamin C; apples and pears with the skins on for valuable fiber; and they should be pretty well nourished.

You can also try sneaking vegetables into their diet in other ways. Perhaps they like raw vegetables better than cooked, for example, grated carrots in a carrot-pineapple-raisin salad. Puree cooked vegetables and add them to the cheese sauce in macaroni and cheese. Grate vegetables to mix into meat loaf or hamburger meat.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Nutrition Boosters" which has more ideas and recipes for adding extra nutrition to the family diet. Others who would like this issue should send

DEAR POLLY — Here are some ideas to keep those roaming, trash-loving pets and hurricane-like winds from making trash-day blue-day.

Prevent the loss of the trash can lid by securing it to the can with a wire attached to the center handle of the lid and one side of the can.

For trash cans left primarily indoors, try using a bungee cord. Permanently attach the bungee cord to one side handle by pinching the hook closed with a pliers. The cord is then tied around the handle in the lid and extended to the other handle where it is hooked into place. — NICKI

Malone leads 76ers over Clippers

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Moses Malone spent much of the game at the free-throw line, but when the Los Angeles Clippers tried to foul him, they couldn't.

Malone scored 17 of his game-high 31 points on foul shots Wednesday night and added 15 rebounds to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to their 10th NBA victory in 11 games, a 116-114 decision over the Clippers.

Los Angeles, which scored the last seven points of the game, cut a nine-point deficit to two on Benoit Benjamin's basket with 10 seconds left. But the 76ers were able to run out the clock although Cedric Maxwell tried frantically to foul Malone.

Maxwell, who scored 20 points, said the call might have been made if he was still playing for the powerhouse Boston Celtics instead of the Clippers, who are 11-25 this season and have lost seven of their last eight games.

"It's because we're not wearing the green and white, I guess," Maxwell said. "I grabbed Malone, but no whistle. I guess I should have thrown him down, but that's what happens when you're on a losing team. You don't get much respect."

"We were trying to foul Moses, but we did not get the call," Clippers Coach Don Chaney said. "The losses are beginning to take their toll. We're in the middle of a long road

signed before midnight deadline

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Tigers came to terms with outfielder Kirk Gibson and catcher Carlton Fisk reached agreement with the Chicago White Sox as major league baseball clubs worked at fever pitch to sign their free-agent players before Wednesday night's deadline.

The 28-year-old Gibson and the 38-year-old Fisk were two of several free-agent players who agreed to contracts with their clubs before the midnight deadline.

Others were Tigers third baseman Tom Brookens; reliever Donnie Moore of California; brothers Phil and Joe Niekro, both pitchers, and catcher Butch Wynegar of the New York Yankees, and second baseman Tony Bernazard and pitcher Jamie Easterly of the Cleveland Indians.

Under the new free-agent system, players who reject their team's offers and choose not to go to salary arbitration had until 11:59 p.m. EST Wednesday to re-sign. After the deadline, teams must wait until May 1 to negotiate with their free agents. In the meantime, free agents are eligible to negotiate or sign with any other team.

The one player left unsigned was pinch-hitting specialist Kurt Bevacqua of San Diego.

Tigers spokesman Dan Ewald said Gibson's agent, Doug Baldwin, agreed to a three-year contract "moments before" the deadline. Ewald said the club's long-standing offer of $3.9 million was "in the ballpark."

Fisk, who hit 37 homers and drove in 107 runs last season, came to terms on a two-year contract. The agreement was actually reached early Thursday morning. The Major League Player Relations Committee gave the two sides a two-hour extension of the deadline.

In other NBA games, it was Boston 126, Cleveland 95; Sacramento 88, Indiana 87; New Jersey 106, Milwaukee 99; Phoenix 109, Washington 97; and Los Angeles Lakers 125, Portland 121.

While the Clippers are struggling, the 76ers have rebounded from a 6-8 start and are now 22-13. The victory over Los Angeles was Philadelphia's first at home after a 5-1 road trip.

Malone and power forward Charles Barkley combined for more than half of Philadelphia's points and rebounds as Barkley posted 29 points and 16 rebounds.

Celtics 126, Cavaliers 95
Boston won at home against Cleveland for the 20th straight time as Larry Bird scored 25 points, Kevin McHale 24 and Robert Parish 22.

The Celtics, who haven't lost to the Cavaliers in Boston since 1978, pulled away in the first quarter with a 17-3 streak and then extended their advantage to 64-45 at halftime with a 25-11 run in the second quarter.

Lakers 125, Trail Blazers 121
Los Angeles had to put its starters back in the game when Portland scored 48 points in the fourth quarter to cut a 24-point deficit to three.

The Lakers led 97-73 after outscoring the Trail Blazers 36-17 in the third quarter. Then Portland outscored Los Angeles 48-28 in the fourth period to make the game close.

Nets 106, Bucks 99
Albert King scored 24 points and sparked a late run that carried New Jersey past Milwaukee, snapping the Bucks' seven-game losing streak.

The Bucks, who were led by Sidney

Moncrief with 25 points, led 89-88 midway through the fourth quarter before King scored five points during a 9-2 spurt that put the Nets ahead 97-91 with 3:06 left.

Kings 88, Pacers 87
Sacramento, last in the Midwest Division, won its fourth straight game by rallying from a 20-point

Another SWC favorite bitten

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Another Southwest Conference favorite has been bitten by an underdog.

Texas A&M supplied the surprise of the night Wednesday by whipping heavily favored Southern Methodist 73-61 in Moody Coliseum.

The Mustangs had beaten Arkansas and Baylor on the road and expected to treat a homecoming crowd of 7,000 to a victory over the Aggies, who had been struggling with injuries.

Guard Todd Holloway scored a season-high 26 points in the finest game veteran Aggie Coach Shelby Metcalf said he had ever seen one of his guards play.

In other games Wednesday night, Texas handed Arkansas its third straight loss 59-55, defending champion Texas Tech nipped Rice 51-50 and Texas Christian ripped Baylor 64-48.

TCU and Texas lead the SWC with 3-0 records, while A&M and Tech are 2-0. SMU dropped to 2-1 and Arkansas, Baylor, Rice and Houston have yet to win a conference game.

Arkansas is now off to its worst start since 1970-71 as new Coach Nolan Richardson still looks for his first SWC victory. So is new Baylor Coach Gene Iba.

But in A&M's bout with SMU, Metcalf said Holloway "played as fine a game as I've seen a point guard play at Texas A&M since I've been here."

Holloway got 23 points worth of scoring help from guard Don Marbury, the leading scorer in the SWC.

"We played just a great game," said Metcalf.

SMU Coach Dave Bliss agreed: "I think they showed what kind of team they can be tonight. Their experience just wore us out. We were never in the game."

Texas Coach Bob Weltlich said his Longhorns "are an underrated group. It was a big win for us to come from 11 points down like we did."

Arkansas went 17 straight possessions without scoring a field goal.

"I suspect Arkansas might feel it's in a little trouble now," said Weltlich.

In Houston, Texas Tech's Tony Benford sank a basket with 11 seconds to play for his second game-winning bucket in as many games. It was Benford's shot at the buzzer in overtime that gave Tech a 69-68 victory over Houston Saturday.

Benford scored 18 points to lead the Red Raiders and helped nullify a game-high 19-point performance by Rice's Greg Hines, playing despite a sprained ankle. Meanwhile in Waco, Norman Anderson pulled down 14 rebounds to help Texas Christian defeat Baylor. TCU never trailed, leading 24-19 at the half.

Baylor's Brandon Taylor outscored all players with 12 points, while Larry Lott led TCU players with 11.

Correction on HHS basketball schedule noted

Four Hereford High School basketball teams will play at home on Thursday, Jan. 16 against Lubbock High School.

Varsity games will be played at the Hereford High School gym, with the girls' game at 6 p.m. and the boys' game at 7:45 p.m.

Junior varsity games are scheduled at the Stanton Junior High School gym that night. The boys' junior varsity game is set for 6 p.m., and the girls' junior varsity contest at 7:45 p.m.

The Brand regrets an error in Wednesday's issue that indicated that the high school boys' teams would be playing Tuesday. The only games next week for any HHS varsity or junior varsity team is on Thursday, Jan. 16.

On Friday, this week, those four HHS teams play at Tascosa High School.

Patriots' Fryar probably lost for rest of playoffs

NFL conference championships set Sunday

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Four days before the biggest game in their history, Sunday's AFC championship contest with the Miami Dolphins, the New England Patriots arrived here to find they had lost their top long-back threat, wide receiver and punt returner Irving Fryar.

Patriots officials said Fryar, the top choice in the 1984 NFL draft and an AFC Pro Bowl choice as a return man, severed a tendon in the little finger of his right hand Wednesday as he was replacing a knife in a kitchen drawer at his home.

As the rest of the Patriots were being honored at a parade in downtown Boston just before they boarded a plane for Miami, Fryar was reporting to a hospital for treatment. Pat Sullivan, New England's general manager, said doctors told him that Fryar would probably be out for the season, meaning that if New England beats the Dolphins Sunday, he would miss the Super Bowl Jan. 26 in New Orleans.

"Theoretically, Irving could play on Sunday," Sullivan said. "But if he were, the doctors feel the chances of a complete recovery could be hindered."

Fryar's injury was the major news of the day Wednesday, when travel plans topped the National Football League playoff news.

The Chicago Bears returned to Suwanee, Ga., and the Atlanta Falcons' training camp to prepare for the NFC title game at Chicago's Soldier Field against the Los Angeles Rams. The Rams were to head for Chicago Thursday, beating the Bears there to acclimate themselves to the Midwest, where temperatures were hovering around the zero mark.

The Dolphins, meanwhile, spent the day practicing in the rain at their complex at St. Thomas College in north Miami.

"We don't mind the conditions," said Coach Don Shula. "We feel that if it comes up rain on game day, we'll be better prepared."

New England's smooth flight, however, was disrupted by the injury to Fryar, who in the regular season returned two punts for touchdowns, had seven TD receptions and scored a 10th time on a reverse. He had 39 receptions for 670 yards, a 17.2 average.

"When he didn't get to the plane, people began asking, 'Where's Irving, where's Irving?'" said wide receiver Cedric Jones, one of those who will be asked to help replace him. Coach Raymond Berry said Fryar would be replaced in the starting lineup by Stephen Starring with Jones moving into Starring's role as the third wide receiver in long-yardage situations.

Asked about bad luck on the eve of a big game, Berry said: "The unexpected in this business is a certainty. It's not a 'maybe.' It's gonna happen."

The Dolphins, meanwhile, practiced without offensive tackle Jon Giesler and tight end Joe Rose.

Giesler was nursing a sore knee he's had all season and Rose has a swollen toe. But Shula said both would be ready.

"We have a lot of aches and pains and bumps and bruises we hope will go away by game time," he said.

Chicago Coach Mike Ditka, still concerned about the Bears' coverage on kickoff returns, made another move Wednesday to strengthen his special teams.

During the Bears' 21-0 NFC playoff victory last week over the New York Giants, Ditka placed linebackers Otis Wilson and Wilber Marshall on the kickoff team for added muscle.

After Wednesday's practice in Suwanee, Ga., Ditka said Willie Gault also will be on the kickoff team for Sunday's NFC title game at Chicago's Soldier Field.

The Rams' passing game is in the hands of Dieter Brock, a veteran from the Canadian League who signed with Los Angeles last March. The Rams had the least number of passing yards in the league.

"Makes no difference," said Ditka. "He has a good arm and he's a smart quarterback. He's done what they want him to do offensively."

"Everybody wants to see a (Dan) Marino, a (Joe) Montana, a (Dan) Fouts, but Brock is effective and productive and he wins football games."

"I get kinda mad about it when a lot of people around here think I'm a bad quarterback," said Brock. "I let it go because there's nothing I can do but just go out there and play the best I can."

McCovey is voted into baseball hall of fame

By JOHN NELSON
AP Baseball Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie McCovey's first major league assignment, in 1959 at age 21, was Hall of Fame pitcher Robin Roberts. He went 4-for-4 with two triples and two singles against the Philadelphia pitcher, and now McCovey joins Roberts in baseball's most prestigious circle.

McCovey, the National League's top left-handed home run hitter with 521 in his career, on Wednesday became the 16th player elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility.

The former San Francisco Giants first baseman was named on 346 of 425 ballots returned to the Baseball Writers' Association of America. He needed to be named on only 319, or 75 percent, of the ballots. The 47-year-old McCovey spent 19 seasons with the Giants, 2½ with the San Diego Padres and a half year with the Oakland A's.

Jerry Coleman, who managed the Padres in 1980, the year McCovey retired, called him "the most remarkable athlete in the history of baseball. I can't believe a man at 42 can be as productive as he is."

McCovey, a native of Mobile, Ala., who lives in the San Francisco area, ended his career with 2,211 hits, 1,155 RBI and a National League record 18 grand slam homers.

Billy Williams, who spent the first 16 seasons of his 18-year career with the Chicago Cubs, missed being elected by four votes. He was named on 315 ballots for a percentage of 74.1. This was his fifth year on the ballot, and he has 10 years of eligibility remaining.

Williams, who hit 426 career homers, also narrowly missed election last year, falling 45 votes shy of 75 percent with 252.

Pitchers Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Jim Bunning were third and fourth, respectively — Hunter with 289 votes, Bunning with 279. Roger Maris, a sentimental outsider to make the Hall after his death last month, was fifth with 177 votes.

McCovey will be officially inducted into the Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine in August. He was one of 14 players on the ballot for the first time. A total of 41 players were listed on the ballot.

The other players elected in their first year of eligibility were Ted Williams, Sandy Koufax, Mickey Mantle, Bob Feller, Jackie Robinson, Ernie Banks, Willie Mays, Warren Spahn, Al Kaline, Bob Gibson, Hank Aaron, Frank Robinson, Brooks Robinson, Stan Musial and Lou Brock.

Complete totals in the 1986 baseball Hall of Fame voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America are:

Willie McCovey, 346; Billy Williams, 315; Jim Catfish Hunter, 289; Jim Bunning, 279; Roger Maris, 177; Tony Oliva, 154; Orlando Cepeda, 152; Harvey Kuenn, 144; Maury Wills, 124; Bill Mazeroski, 100; Lew Burdette, 96; Ken Boyer, 95; Minnie Minoso, 89; Mickey Lolich, 86; Elroy Face, 74; Ron Santo, 64; Joe Torre, 60; Elston Howard, 51; Curt Flood, 45; Vada Pinson, 43.

Dick Allen, 41; Thurman Munson, 35; Don Larsen, 33; Wilbur Wood, 23; Tim Lincecum, 16; Dave McNally, 12; John Hiller, 11; Paul Blair, 8; J.R. Richard, 7; Ken Holtzman, 5; Willie Horton, 4; Jim Longborg, 3; Andy Messersmith, 3; Dave Cash, 2; Manny Sanguillen, 2; Jack Billingham, 1; Jose Cardenal, 1; Bud Harrelson, 1; George Scott, 1; Vic Davalilo, 0; Darold Knowles, 0.

Sports briefs

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tony Robinson, the highly touted quarterback of the University of Tennessee who went down with a midseason knee injury, was arrested for allegedly selling cocaine to an undercover officer, university officials said.

Robinson and roommate Kenneth "B.B." Cooper, a former running back for the Volunteers, were arrested at their off-campus apartment after officers bought a quantity of cocaine from the pair, sports information director Hayward Harris said.

Robinson, 21, of Tallahassee, Fla., is a senior at Tennessee who was touted as a possible Heisman Trophy candidate before his playing career was dealt a severe blow by a knee injury in a game against Alabama Oct. 19.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — An ailing Woody Hayes, his voice halting and choked with emotion, got out of a wheelchair to accept the American Football Coaches Association's Amos Alonzo Stagg Award for long and meritorious service.

The 72-year old Hayes compiled a record of 238-72-10 in 33 seasons at Denison (1946-48), Miami of Ohio (1949-50) and Ohio State (1951-78), and ranks fifth on the all-time victory list. His Ohio State teams won two national championships.

BASEBALL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Starter-reliever Dave Rucker and rookie outfielder Randy Day of the Philadelphia Phillies have agreed to contract terms that give the club the right to test them for drugs, a team executive said.

The clause accepted by Rucker and Day allows testing on a random and strictly confidential basis.

The Major League Players Association opposes testing of any kind and filed a grievance with the National Labor Relations Board after the owners unilaterally scrapped what the MLPA regarded as an adequate program of detection, treatment and punishment.

BASKETBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the Los Angeles Lakers have increased their leads in fan voting for the National Basketball Association Western Conference All-Star team, according to the latest tabulations released.

Johnson leads the guards with 448,272 votes, compared with 168,725 for runner-up Lafayette Lever of Denver. Abdul-Jabbar tops the centers with 270,492 votes, and is followed by Wayne Cooper of Denver with 155,616.

Alex English of Denver leads at forward with 223,255, followed by teammate Calvin Natt at 199,544.

GENERAL

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A former Southern Utah State College student has filed a $2.8 million civil rights lawsuit claiming she was dismissed from school and her job as an assistant athletic trainer because of slanderous statements about her moral character.

Kim Gardner claims in the suit filed in U.S. District Court that SUCS head trainer Ben Davidson, athletic director Stephen Lunt, baseball coach William Groves and football coach Donald Conrad defamed and slandered her.

Gardner seeks $1.8 million in compensatory damages and $1 million in punitive damages, plus court and attorney fees.

RACING

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Bill Elliott, who became racing's first one-season millionaire on the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National circuit, has been voted the top driver on the 12-member 1985 Skoal All-America team.

Elliott's record-setting season included 11 Grand National victories, among them the Daytona 500, the Winston 500 and the Southern 500.

Anger after massacre leads to TV movie script

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jeffrey Bloom got so angry after the so-called "Big Boy Murders" in Los Angeles in 1980 that he sat down and wrote a movie script in which everyone is allowed to carry a gun for protection.

"I was trying in the script, maybe without knowing it, to work out my anger," said Bloom. "I sometimes do that to work out my outrage. I put myself in the position of the lead character and said, 'What would I do if I lost all my family?'"

Bloom originally wrote "The Right of the People" as a feature film, but it was turned down and sat on his shelf for several years. "Then a few months ago an ABC executive remembered reading it and asked me if it was still available," he said.

The movie, starring Michael Ontkean and Billy Dee Williams, will be broadcast Monday night by ABC.

ABC's Broadcast Standards and Practices had Bloom revise his original script to allow the anti-gun proponents have a larger say in the film; Bloom feels the changes do not hurt the integrity of the film.

"Their concerns were that the piece not be one-sided and that there should be less dogma," Bloom said.

The opening of the movie is reminiscent of an actual robbery-murder case in Los Angeles just over five years ago. Ontkean plays a district attorney whose wife and daughter are killed when gunmen invade a coffee shop and spray it with automatic weapon fire.

On Dec. 14, 1980, two masked men invaded a Bob's Big Boy restaurant and herded 11 people into a meat locker. They opened fire on them, killing four and injuring five.

It was at that time that Bloom, a karate expert, bought his first gun for protection.

In the film Ontkean leads a campaign for a city law that any person over 18 who does not have a criminal record can carry a gun. The police chief predicts chaos, and it's not long in coming.

"The first script I wrote turned out a kind of a tract because I was so angry," said Bloom. "I think I was guilty of preaching demagoguery in the script. And that's what the story is — a warning against demagoguery. This time, after five years, I realized it was better to present the idea rather strongly and let the audience come to its own conclusion.

"What the film offers is a modest proposal. If I become so outraged against the violence around me, and I've lost faith in the police, then I should have the right to bear arms. In the movie it's carried through to a conclusion. Everyone can carry a gun. This is about what would happen if everyone was armed. It would create more havoc than we have now."

In the movie, simple arguments turn into gunplay. People try to play hero during an armed robbery and wind up dead.

Bloom, a gun owner himself, said, "There is a separation between the right to carry a gun and the right to own a gun. This film is not against the right to own guns. There is one exception: inherent in that right is that we not abuse it. Like all our freedoms, we do tend to abuse them."

"The movie is a warning against demagoguery, against the irresponsible use of guns. It's an argument that we should tackle the problem, not the results, about why we have murders — because no one gives a damn."

Bloom suggests that it's more important to address the social problems that cause crime.

"There is one strong point in the film I'd like to see come to pass," he said. "You can't drive a car without passing a driving test. But when you buy a gun you don't have to have any training. I'd like to see a law requiring at least three hours of training in the handling of guns."

A chip of silicon a quarter-inch square has the capacity of the original 1949 ENIAC computer, which occupied a city block.

Senator Bill Sarpalius

Reports

AUSTIN — Mention court reform to most Texans, and they think immediately of the criminal courts. They think of our slow appeals process or juries that don't know enough about the parole system.

Talk to a legislator about court reform, though, and you will hear about the entire spectrum of Texas courts. Depending on who you talk to, lawmakers are interested in changing everything from the way we select our juries to the way we determine our judicial districts.

Perhaps the most interesting of the reform proposals is one aimed at changing the way liability cases are handled in the civil courts. There is a growing movement in the state to restrict jurors' abilities to grant large awards in wrongful injury or death suits.

Insurance companies and defense attorneys alike believe jury awards are too high for the type of injury involved. The end result of these inflated awards, insurers say, will be liability insurance that is too expensive for the average Texan.

Instead of allowing juries to make any award they please, some insurance companies are asking the Legislature to create a system of liability limits. The state would determine the maximum amount that could be awarded for a particular injury. Juries would still have some discretion in making awards, so long as they did not exceed the maximum.

Put simply, the system of liability limits would require the Legislature or State Board of Insurance to determine how much an injury is worth. An arm might be valued at, say, $100,000 if lost. A life might be worth considerably more.

Proponents of this new system say it would be fair, but reasonable. Victims or survivors would receive ample money, but juries no longer would be free to give awards that send insurance rates soaring out of sight.

These supporters of limitations say the end result would be stable, possibly lower, insurance rates, and just compensation in all cases.

Opponents of the plan claim liability limitations go against long-standing tradition in American justice. They say juries always have been given the latitude to make awards as the jurors see fit. They also say no one can set an arbitrary value on a person's life or health.

Liability limitations, of course, represent just one possible solution to a complex problem. Another option might be to tell juries before they begin their deliberations about the complete consequences of large awards.

Regardless of which course we choose, one thing remains certain. Insurance rates are climbing fast, and inflated jury awards are partly to blame. The issue should be studied thoroughly when the 70th Legislature convenes in 1987, and a solution ultimately must be found.

If you have any questions or comments about liability limitation, please write us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas, 78711.

TRAVELERS AID

NEW YORK (AP) — A foreign currency guide available to the public at no charge is a highly useful publication for travelers, says Travel Agent Magazine.

The semiannual guide, published by Reusch International, contains a currency conversion table of 24 frequently visited nations, information on import-export restrictions and tipping suggestions.

For example, the guide advises visitors to Austria to leave some small change, even though 10 percent is usually added to the bill, whereas in Germany 10-15 percent is already added, making further tipping unnecessary unless special service was requested.

(The guide is published by Reusch International, 1140-19 St. N.W., Washington, DC 20036)

TEACH SAFETY TO CHILDREN

NEW YORK (AP) — Two-thirds of American children between the ages of 3 and 7 do not know their home telephone number, and nearly half do not know such vital information as their own address or what number to dial in an emergency, according to a survey of 500 children.

The survey, conducted in supermarkets nationwide, was done for Texize, the sponsor of "Operation Kids," a national preventive child safety program.

Even children as young as three should be taught life-saving information.

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

BORDEAUX WHITES

People are forever tasting the red wines of Bordeaux, the reds of other districts or vintages from a single chateau. Few, however, have ever sampled many of the dry white Bordeaux wines. The least known are the wines from Entre-Deux-Mers. The least tasted are the Graves, now made drier than they used to be and among the best there are. Graves Superieure is a rating reserved for white wines and these are usually good buys. No better wines are made from the Sauvignon Blanc grape except, perhaps, in California. Quite different wines come from the upper Loire, wines like Sancerre and Pouilly-Fume, for example. A selection of these would be a fine sampling. Serve with some sort of plate before a main course of fish or chicken.

Are you planning a special dinner party? If so, one of us at THE STORE would be happy to suggest just the right wine to compliment your menu. A bottle of wine can add a touch of conviviality and good cheer. You'll find us at 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 where we are open Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

Allow one bottle of wine for each couple invited to a dinner party.

Of militant young Palestinians

Refugee camps breed new generation

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The battered, squalid refugee camps of Lebanon are breeding a new generation of militant young Palestinians who are being recruited by extremist factions blamed for a chain of terrorist attacks, including the Rome and Vienna airport massacres.

Mohammed Sarhan, 19, the sole survivor of four Palestinians who attacked the El Al Israeli airline desk at Rome airport Dec. 27, came from Beirut's notorious Chatilla camp.

Sixteen people died in the Rome attack. Three more, including a gunman, were slain in a similar attack in Vienna the same day.

Two Palestinians jailed in Cyprus for killing three Israelis in Larnaca Sept. 25 also came from Chatilla.

They represent a generation of Palestinians living in the shantytown camps in Lebanon, Jordan and Syria where conditions have been steadily deteriorating for years amid wars, political crackdowns and economic recession.

Disillusionment with Yasser Arafat's efforts for rapprochement with Israel and the dismemberment of his Palestine Liberation Organization as a result of Israel's 1982 invasion have heightened militancy among the camps' young men.

In addition, a resurgence in the belief that only terrorism will achieve the dream of a Palestinian homeland has driven many young men into the ranks of hardline factions like Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council, a Palestinian splinter group.

Abu Nidal has become the world's most wanted man after a spate of bloody terrorist attacks in Europe and the Middle East blamed on him and his followers.

U.S. and Israeli officials say he was responsible for the Rome and Vienna bloodbaths, the hijacking of an Egyptian airliner in which more than 60 people were slain and dozens of other attacks.

Western intelligence reports say that in recent months he has recruited young militants from the camps and now has several hundred activists in Lebanon, Syria and Libya.

The camps in Lebanon, once the center of Arafat's "state within a state" when the PLO virtually ruled much of the country, have been the target of Christian, Moslem and Israeli forces.

Right-wing Christian militiamen slaughtered hundreds of Palestinians and Moslems there and in the neighboring Sabra camp in September 1982 while Israeli troops surrounded the camps.

One of the Palestinians jailed in Cyprus, Khaled Abdel Kader Khatib, a 28-year-old student, said his family was wiped out in the Chatilla massacre.

Sarhan is reported to have told Italian investigators that "suicide squads" of young Palestinians who survived the 1982 massacres have been formed in Lebanon.

Last summer, Syrian-backed Shiite Moslems overran much of Chatilla during a bloody five-week war against Beirut's camps. More than 650 people were killed and some 2,500 wounded.

Sabra was overwhelmed after tenacious resistance. Many buildings that survived the shelling were dynamited and bulldozed.

Only Bourj el-Barajneh, the largest of Beirut's camps, held out.

But nearly every house in a 100-yard-deep belt around the ramshackle shantytown, where sewage runs in open drains in the narrow alleyways, is riddled with bullet and shell holes. Many are uninhabitable.

Hasne Amkar's two-story cement block house was shredded by rocket-propelled grenades and machine-gun fire. She lives there with her four daughters and two of her sons.

"We can't move because we have no money," she said. "Where is there to go? No one wants us. Everyone's against us these days. This house full of holes is all we have."

Mrs. Amkar, 49, has survived the 1976 massacre of the Tal al-Zataar camp stormed by Christians as well as Israeli air raids, Israel's 1982 siege of West Beirut and last summer's fighting.

Three sons were killed defending Tal al-Zataar. Now a fourth has picked up the gun, abandoning his engineering studies at Beirut's Arab University.

For some two million Palestinians, the camps define the limit of their hopes.

The U.N. Relief and Works Agency, which cares for Palestinian refugees, estimated that last summer's battles in Beirut displaced 30,000 refugees.

Job cutbacks in the oil-rich Gulf states, where thousands of Palestinians worked, has cut off the flow of money back to their families in Lebanon.

Many exiles can't return to Lebanon. The government has refused to renew the papers of 15,000 Palestinians who left Lebanon to work abroad.

Wrongful death suit filed over Rick Nelson crash

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The widow and son of Andrew Chapin, a musician who died with Rick Nelson in a fiery New Year's Eve airplane crash in Texas, filed a wrongful death suit against two Southern California aviation companies.
Attorney Daniel Cathcart filed the lawsuit Wednesday in the Burbank division of Los Angeles Superior Court on behalf of Chapin's wife, Lisa, and the couple's 4-year-old son, Ian, of the Panorama City area of Los Angeles.
The suit against Martin Aviation Inc. and Century Equipment Co. seeks unspecified general damages and funeral expenses, Cathcart said.
"They have lost a husband and a father, their source of income and a cornerstone," Cathcart said. "If someone is responsible, they have to seek whatever redress possible."

Chapin, 30, a member of Nelson's Stone Canyon Band, died along with the 45-year-old singer, the singer's fiancée and four others when their DC-3 caught fire in the cabin and crashed Dec. 31. Autopsies determined they died of smoke inhalation and burns.
The Chapins contend both Century Equipment and Martin Aviation carelessly inspected and repaired the craft, causing an in-flight fire to occur.
"We had nothing to do with that plane," said Tony Colletti, president of Martin Aviation's operations at Burbank Airport. "We never did maintenance. We rechecked it months ago but that's it. It's definite, 100 percent, that we didn't do anything to it."
Martin Aviation maintains small planes and rents hangar space at the airport, Colletti said. He added the firm had not been informed of the lawsuit.

The National Transportation Safety Board has not yet determined the cause of the crash.
The lawsuit claims that Century Equipment, which rents hangar space at the airport from Martin Aviation, leased the plane although a heater installed in the craft's rear portion did not have adequate fireproof protection.
Numerous calls to Century Equipment went unanswered Wednesday.
Laurel Barzie, Chapin's sister-in-law, said the plane had developed a problem with one of its engines a month ago and Chapin was afraid of the craft.
"He didn't want to go on that airplane," Ms. Barzie said. "He was going to quit the job because he didn't want to go on that plane."
Although Cathcart said Century Equipment owned the aircraft, the National Transportation Safety Board said Nelson purchased it from the company in May 1985. But Cathcart said maintenance of the craft was the issue, not ownership.
"Rick Nelson, I doubt, had the certificates and ratings that would allow him to repair his own airplane," Cathcart said.
A memorial service Monday for Nelson at Forest Lawn Hollywood Hills was attended by 1,000 relatives, friends and fans.
Nelson grew up before America on his parents' television show, "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," where he went from a crew cut 11-year-old to a real-life teen-age singing idol to a 25-year-old husband.
Nelson's early rock 'n' roll hits included "Travelin' Man," "Poor Little Fool" and "I'm Walkin'."
Henry Hudson entered New York Harbor, seeking China, in 1609.
In 1783, Britain, France, Spain and the United States signed the Treaty of Paris, which ended the American Revolutionary War. It also set out the boundaries between the U.S. and Canada.
Virginia Dare was the first child born to European parents in the New World. She was born on Aug. 18, 1857, at Roanoke Island, N.C.

Plea bargain reportedly in works

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A man on trial for allegedly defrauding investors of nearly $5 million with a machine that supposedly could turn garbage into oil has reportedly agreed to a plea bargain in the case, according to a published report.
Dean Wolzen joined another officer of the now-defunct Gulf Resources Inc. in accepting prosecutors' offer to plead guilty to lesser charges in exchange for cooperation in a trial against four other men, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said today.
The plea from Wolzen, vice president of the firm that a judge shut down in 1983 after a U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission investigation, is expected later today, the newspaper said.
U.S. District Judge David O. Belew Jr. said Wednesday that attorneys defending the remaining four defendants will meet with him to decide what to tell jurors about Wolzen when the jury reconvenes today — the third day of testimony.
Wolzen's reported plea decision came on the heels of testimony from an Oklahoma wheat farmer who told jurors that Wolzen and Jerry Eutsler, former GRI president, "conned" the 69-year-old man and his friends into investing in the company.
The company sold shares in machines that supposedly would turn coal and garbage into oil.
Eutsler, 49, turned government witness when he agreed to plead guilty in November to conspiracy and mail fraud charges.

Eutsler will be sentenced Jan. 31, and faces a maximum 15-year prison term and $12,000 fine. Wolzen faces a maximum 75-year prison term if he is convicted on the charges for which he is standing trial.
Still on trial are Richard A. Ellis, 47, and David Robison, 53, both former residents of the Trophy Club in Denton County; William G. Pfaff, 60, of Choctaw, Okla.; and Floyd D. Wallace, 68, of Leslie, Mich. Wallace is the inventor of the machine.
Alvin Blehm — the Hitchcock, Okla., farmer — testified that he and his wife lost nearly $75,000 when he bought limited partnerships in lignite coal leases in New Mexico.
His partnership was later exchanged for shares in Gulf Resources, which would manufacture the oil machines. He and other shareholders, he testified, were promised huge profits in the sale of the oil.
The machines were hailed as a major breakthrough in synthetic fuel production during a shareholders party July 20, 1981, in Midwest City, a suburb of Oklahoma City, Blehm testified.
Blehm, who later became a member of Gulf's board of directors and remains an ardent supporter of the machines, testified that investors were told they would be the first to make the oil-conversion process commercially feasible.

The Newspaper BIBLE

HAPPINESS IS...
As for Philip, an angel of the Lord said to him, "Go over to the road that runs from Jerusalem through the Gaza Desert. So he did, and who should be coming down the road but the Treasurer of Ethiopia, a eunuch of great authority under Candace the queen. He had gone to Jerusalem to worship at the Temple, and was now returning in his chariot, reading aloud from the book of the prophet Isaiah."
"The Holy Spirit said to Philip, 'Go over and walk along beside the chariot!' Philip ran over and heard what he was reading and asked, 'Do you understand it?'"
"Of course not," the man replied. "How can I when there is no one to instruct me?" And he begged Philip to come up into the chariot and sit with him! The passage of Scripture he had been reading from was this: "He was led as a sheep to the slaughter, and as a lamb is silent before the shearer, so He opened not his mouth; in his humiliation, justice was denied him; and who can express the wickedness of the people of His generation? For His life is taken from the earth."
The eunuch asked Philip, "Was Isaiah talking about himself or someone else?"
So Philip began with this same Scripture and then used many others to tell him about Jesus. As they ride along, they came to a small body of water, and the eunuch said, "Look! Water! Why can't I be baptized?"
"You can," Philip answered, "if you believe with all your heart." And the eunuch replied, "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God."
He stopped the chariot, and they went down into the water and Philip baptized him. And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, and the eunuch never saw him again, but went on his way rejoicing.

NEARING ZERO POPULATION GROWTH

When the number of births equals the number of deaths, a country approaches zero population growth, assuming, of course, that immigration is not a major factor. Although the U.S. population is still increasing, we are getting closer to zero population growth because of a decline in births.

Teacher developing sign language for scientific terms

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Teaching advanced biology to deaf students can be difficult because many scientific words have no corresponding sign in American Sign Language, says biology instructor Brian Rasmus.

He plans to remedy that problem. An instructor at Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, Rasmus received grants totalling $13,600 to work on inventing hand signs for scientific terms.

Under the present system, long technical words like "photosynthesis" must be spelled letter-by-letter with the sign language alphabet, he said. This is difficult for the instructor or interpreter to communicate and difficult for the deaf student to read.

"It's a real problem in the deaf community, not having the language to teach science," especially for advanced courses, he said.

"At the advanced level, it's very technical. There's a tendency to finger-spell instead of signing," he said. Because few universities offer advanced study for the deaf, most students rely on interpreters to translate what the instructor says into sign language, he said.

Finger-spelling the scientific terms "lessen the concept of development" for the deaf student, Rasmus said.

Signs lessen this problem because they describe the object they name, thus giving a better picture of the word, Rasmus said. For example, the sign for the word defining the process by which cells divide is both hands together representing a sphere, then drawing apart into two spheres, he said.

Hand signs are easier to see and make the presentation more colorful, the instructor said.

Rasmus is working on the project with Dr. Donald M. Allen, associate professor of life science at the University of Texas at the Permian Basin. The two received a $5,000 grant from the University of Texas at Austin's developmental department and a $8,600 grant from Easter Seals.

American Sign Language experts will evaluate the possible signs for the words, to be shown on videotape, Rasmus said. He said he hopes the project will take only two years.

Kindergarten, nursery school enrollment up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's kindergartens and nursery schools are hearing the echo of the post-World War II Baby Boom, as the children of that generation begin entering school.

The slump in enrollment that occurred with the Baby Bust, which followed the boom, continues to plague elementary and secondary schools, but the Census Bureau reports that enrollment is up among the youngest Americans.

Private nursery school operators are reaping the biggest share of children in that category, the bureau said Wednesday, but when the tots move on to kindergarten, most switch to public schools.

The Bureau reported the number of children in nursery school and kindergarten climbed by about a half-million between 1980 and 1984, the most recent complete figures available.

Nursery school enrollment grew from 2.03 million in 1980 to 2.35 million in 1984, while during the same period the number of children in kindergarten increased from 3.27 million to 3.48 million.

While the so-called Baby Boom generation continues to bear children at rates lower than their parents, the large number of people in the age group has produced an increase in total births, which population experts have termed an "echo" of the boom.

In addition to this surge, the Census Bureau observed that nursery school enrollment has been rising steadily since the 1960s because of the greater proportion of parents enrolling their children in these schools. This has paralleled an increase in the number of mothers seeking to continue their education and careers.

Enrollment in elementary schools peaked in 1970 and has since declined by 21 percent; falling 31 percent in private schools.

There were 13.8 million students enrolled in high school in 1984, 1.2 million fewer than in 1980.

College enrollment was 12.3 million, up about 616,000 since 1980. However, the number is not significantly more than the 1981 enrollment, the report noted. Women continue to constitute 51 percent of college students, as they have since 1980.

Graduate school enrollment rose 21 percent between 1974 and 1984, to 1.8 million.

Other findings of the new study include:

—Between 1970 and 1984, the number of white college students rose by 37 percent, to 9.3 million, while the number of blacks doubled to 1.1 million. —In 1984 the percentage of Hispanics who were high school graduates was 60 percent, up from 52 percent in 1972, the first year for which figures were available. About 30 percent of the high school graduates attended college in each year.

Scientists estimate that as many as 200,000,000 meteors enter the earth's atmosphere every day. These and other meteorites are estimated to add more than 1,000 tons daily to the Earth's weight.

Company to pull out

DALLAS (AP) — The Halliburton Co. will pull its operations out of Libya to comply with President Reagan's orders, but company officials say they doubt the move will have any effect on the Libyan government.

Halliburton's Houston-based subsidiary Brown & Root Inc. is the engineering and management consultant for a 1,200-mile water-pipeline project under way in Libya.

But Halliburton spokesman Guy Marcus said that Brown & Root's exit would only leave its Italian, French, German and British competition to fight over the chance to finish the job.

"It doesn't create any leverage against Libya," Marcus said.

He would not disclose the value of the Libyan pipeline contract, but said other of Dallas-based Halliburton's companies also are providing oil field services work in Libya, where the company employs "less than 20 Americans."

Halliburton officials were working Wednesday to get those workers out of the country, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

Halliburton and Enserch Corp., another Dallas-based company with a unit in Libya, said they were reviewing their projects and would comply where necessary with President Reagan's order to cease all business with the country.

Enserch will comply with the law as it relates to its contract drilling operations in Libya, spokeswoman Crystal Bell said.

Pool Co., a Houston-based Enserch unit that is one of the world's largest oil rig operators, has served a strong Libyan market for several years.

"We do have rigs there and do intend to comply with the law," Ms. Bell said, adding that she believes the company employs no U.S. citizens there.

Under the directive Reagan signed Tuesday, Americans will have to leave and U.S. companies will be forced to cease their operations in Libya.

Work done under contracts that existed legally before Reagan's order must be stopped by Feb. 1, and all loans, sales or purchases that contribute in any way to the Libyan economy will be barred.

The executive order stems from continuing terrorist attacks the president has linked to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with an order of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice that on November 21, 1985, the Company filed a tariff to introduce a new digital link service called MEGALINK I.

MEGALINK I is a standard digital service that supports full duplex transmission at bit rates of 2.4, 4.8, 9.6, and 56 kilobits per second. The service, if approved, will be offered on a two-point intra-LATA basis, when suitable digital facilities are available. It is expected that the net revenue effect of this tariff would have a positive impact on company revenues.

The Commission has assigned this matter to Docket 6634. A prehearing in this docket is scheduled at 10 a.m., on Monday, January 13, 1986, in the Commission offices at 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard in Austin, Texas.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. Motions to intervene should be filed with the Commission on or before 4:00 p.m., Friday, January 10, 1986. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223, or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso Público

De conformidad con una orden de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, por medio del presente aviso anuncia que el 21 de Noviembre de 1985 se registro una tarifa para introducir un nuevo servicio para conexiones digitales denominado MEGALINK I.

MEGALINK I es un servicio para conexiones digitales que mantienen transmisiones dobles a velocidades de 2.4, 4.8, 9.6, y 56 kilobits por segundo.

De ser aprobado este servicio, será proporcionado en una base de dos puntos dentro de nuestra área de servicio, siempre y cuando este disponible el equipo apropiado.

La Comisión ha registrado este asunto bajo el Expediente 6634. Se llevará a cabo una audiencia preliminar para discutir todo asunto relacionado con la información en este expediente a las 10 de la mañana, el lunes 13 de Enero de 1986 en las oficinas de la Comisión, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard en Austin, Texas.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención deberán presentarse ante la Comisión antes de las 4 de la tarde, viernes 10 de Enero de 1986. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission, Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

Retirement!

RETIREMENT noun the act or condition of retiring; withdraw or remove.

George Washington once said, "Retirement is as necessary to me as it will be welcome."

When you think of retirement; images of sleeping late, going fishing, or unlimited travel probably come to mind.

At First National Bank, we want you to be able to enjoy your retirement. That's why we suggest an I.R.A., or Individual Retirement Account. With an I.R.A., the money you deposit is free of federal income taxes, along with the interest, until you retire. It's an excellent way to supplement your social security.
