

School Board Members Hear Complaint About Drill Team

By GAIL FIELDS
Staff Writer

Hereford Independent School District Board of Education last night in special session decided not to take any action on the high school drill team selection that Mrs. Sylvia Wallace, a black woman, alleges was unfair.

Mrs. Wallace told the Board she thought that the drill team had been pre-picked, or that the judge of the try-outs had been influenced by someone in the school system. Mrs. Wallace spoke on behalf of her daughter, Joyce High, and two other black girls, Barbara Brown and Angie White. Mrs. Wallace was accompanied by the mothers of the two other girls.

The girls were three of 45 trying out for 22 positions on the drill team but they were not selected. However, Mrs. Wallace told the Board she thought the girls originally did make it.

"I feel like the girls did make it," she said. "I wouldn't be here if I didn't feel they had."

The girls were judged by Mrs. Hanson, a former Kilgore Rangerette and current drill-team director at A&M Consolidated High School in College Station.

Superintendent Harrell Holder told the board that Mrs. Hanson had judged approximately 15 such tryouts and that her record for picking minorities is good. Holder said that last year Mrs. Hanson chose more minority girls for the drill team than had been chosen in previous years combined.

Mrs. Wallace stressed that she is not a prejudiced person and that she didn't think the girls should be selected because they are black. However, she said the girls were good enough for the team and that the judge didn't know what she was doing.

"Out of 40 something girls, not one little black girl made it and I don't like it," Mrs. Wallace said. "Out of three of these girls, one of them should have made it." "They are good," she said.

Mrs. Wallace said some of the drill team members had helped the girls practice for the tryouts and the members told them that there was no reason why they shouldn't make the team. Also, Mrs. Wallace said that after the tryouts several of the girls that had made the team called her daughter and told her they couldn't understand why they had made the team and

Housing Costs Raise Inflation Rate

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp rise in housing costs pushed the nation's annual inflation rate to 8.4 percent in May, more than three points above the previous month's rate, the government reported today.

But for the first time since early 1979, the 12-month gain in the consumer price index was less than 10 percent — a further bolstering of economists' predictions that the double-digit crunch is finally at an end. Prices in May were 9.3 percent higher than in May 1980.

May's rise in housing costs — primarily reflecting higher mortgage interest rates and house prices — accounted for most of the 0.7 percent monthly increase, the Labor Department said in its report. Declines were posted, however, in gasoline and food prices.

The May data means that for the first five months of the year, inflation also rose at an 8.4 percent annual clip, well below the 12.4 percent rate registered for all of last year. Specifically, the department's report said:

—Housing costs rose 1.3 percent, boosted by an increase of 2.1 percent in mortgage interest rates and 0.9 percent in house prices. Rent rose 0.8 percent, the largest gain since October. Housing prices overall rose 0.7 percent in April.

—Gasoline prices continued declining, falling 1.5 percent, after a 1.4 percent drop in April.

—Food and beverage prices declined 0.2 percent. Grocery prices were off 0.5 percent from April, reflecting a sharp drop in prices of fresh fruits and vegetables.

—Prices of new cars rose 2.4 percent, partly as a result of American manufacturers' ending their rebate programs.

—Medical care costs climbed 0.9 percent, led by rises in doctors' fees, up 1.1 percent in May. Charges for medical services rose 0.8 percent, while hospital room fees were up 0.3 percent.

—Entertainment prices rose 0.5 percent after a slower gain of 0.2 percent in April.

—Costs for apparel and upkeep were down 0.2 percent, after rising 0.2 in April and 1 percent in March. The Panhandle Living Costs Called 'Fairly Stable'

The Cost of Living in the Texas Panhandle increased by 0.6 percent in May, an annualized rate of 0.67 percent. This is up from the last month's decrease of 0.3 percent. In May, decreases in Transportation costs were offset by increases in Medical, Clothing, Utility and Food costs.

According to Security Federal Savings president, Aubrey Steele, "We've seen an overall Cost of Living increase of just over 5 percent in the first five months of 1981. However, January's large tax increases have been followed by several months of slight increases, or in two months, decreases in the Cost of Living for an average family of four. Actually, we've been fairly stable in this area, compared to other parts of the nation."

Medical costs increased by 1.87 percent. This is the fifth month in a row that Medical costs in the Panhandle have increased. Since the first of the year, Medical costs have increased by 8.93 percent.

Clothing costs increased by 0.80 percent, due to increases in selected undergarments.

Utility costs increased by 0.19 percent due to a slight increase in electrical fuel adjustment charges. Gas and water rates remained the same.

Food costs increased by 0.135 percent. Shelf items, as a whole, decreased by 0.86 percent due to decreases in sugar, eggs, flour, bread, and peanut butter. Produce prices increased by 1.78 percent due to increases in celery and potato prices. Meat prices increased by 2.48 percent due to higher beef and frankfurter prices.

In the past five months, Panhandle food prices have

Police Search Suspect's Residence for Evidence

ATLANTA (AP) — Authorities worked into the early morning hours today searching the home of Wayne B. Williams as prosecutors prepared for his preliminary hearing on a murder charge filed in the death of one of 28 young slain blacks.

Williams, a 23-year-old free-lance photographer, was arrested Sunday on charges of murdering Nathaniel Cater, 27, whose strangled body was found in the muddy waters of the Chattahoochee River last month.

The preliminary hearing for Williams originally was set for Monday, but it was postponed until today at the request of his attorney, Mary Welcome. She said she needed more time to prepare his defense.

The hearing is to determine if there is enough evidence to bring Williams before a grand jury.

Ms. Welcome went to federal court on behalf of Williams earlier this month seeking an injunction to prohibit the news media and police from linking him to the killings. Hearings were held last week on the requests, but

Settlement Reached In Air Controller Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the air traffic controllers union predicts his 14,000 members will ratify a new contract that falls far short of what they sought.

A tentative contract agreement was reached in the pre-dawn hours Monday, just two hours before the controllers scheduled a strike that could have crippled the nation's air transport system at the start of the summer travel season.

"We're glad it's over," said Robert E. Poli, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization. "I am pleased with the agreement, and I don't believe I'll have any trouble selling it to the members."

Poli said copies of the contract and ballots will be sent to members next week and that the full ratification process should take about two weeks. Parts of the contract dealing with pay, fringe benefits and some working conditions also must be approved by Congress because the controllers are federal employees.

The agreement, hammered out in all-night negotiations, was a victory for President Reagan, who declared last week that the government would not offer any more money than the $40 million package it placed on the table two weeks ago.

PATCO originally sought $770 million. But under pressure from the administration and Congress, it agreed to the government figure after redistributing the money within the package. The actual figure for the first year of the 42-month pact is $39.3 million.

Under the terms, the controllers, who now average $34,000 a year, would receive a first-year salary increase of about $4,000, including the negotiated raise and the one due all government employees. PATCO had asked for $10,000. The union also would gain something it long has sought — a voice in the Federal Aviation Administration's policy decisions on controllers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of futile attempts to reshape President Reagan's economic program to their liking, Senate Democrats are making one final bid to restore about $1 billion in cuts targeted for social programs.

But whether the effort succeeds or not, Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia says many Democrats will help give overwhelming Senate approval to the $39.6 billion package of cuts the Republican majority is pushing.

The Senate took up the legislation briefly Monday evening to handle some technical matters. Full debate was beginning today, and Republican leader Howard Baker said he expects to take the vote on final passage before Congress begins a 10-day Fourth of July recess Friday.

"In the overall, we have agreed with the president in goals, the goals being to restrain federal spending and balance the budget," Byrd, the Democratic leader, told reporters on Monday as he announced a package of proposed amendments to the budget-cutting bill.

Earlier, he predicted the final vote would be close to the 78-20 tally by which the Senate approved Reagan's budget outline last month. About two dozen Democrats, including Byrd, eventually voted for that one after unsuccessful attempts to change it.

In the House, meanwhile, the Rules Committee was meeting today to determine the procedures for consideration of a companion budget-cutting bill. That debate on the House floor probably won't begin until Congress returns from its recess.

Democratic leaders, after first saying they would attempt to prevent any amendments, now have switched signals and may insist on a number of roll calls, forcing Republicans to vote individually on cuts proposed for popular programs.

The House measure calls for $37.7 billion in cuts for 1982, although Reagan and budget director David A.

Stockman have complained that about $9 billion of the total are phony savings that won't actually reduce spending.

The minority Republicans are pushing an alternative in the House that is much more comprehensive than the suggested changes Democrats came up with in the Senate.

Senate Democrats, out-numbered 53-47, have offered dozens of amendments to two previous bills in attempts to remake the Reagan-

County Fathers Hear Bull Barn Complaints

Deaf Smith County Commissioners were confronted again by the issue of the Bull Barn Monday as they met in regular session at the courthouse. A small group of concerned citizens approached the county fathers concerning their decision to ban dancing at the county-owned Bull Barn.

The commissioners had decided at their last meeting to discontinue scheduling dancing of any kind at the Bull Barn as of October 3, 1981. They amended that stand somewhat Monday after discovering that another function had already been set for a date in November, and the commissioners had agreed to go ahead and allow all previously-scheduled dances as of June 8, the date of the last court meeting.

The commissioners also accepted the easement for, the location of the tornado siren in the county, and approved routine reports.

No action was taken on two items on the agenda Monday. They included approval of the 1981-82 county budget, and renovations to the district courtroom. Action on both of those items will be taken at the July 13 meeting.

Texas Monthly magazine will name its 10 best and 10 worst legislators in the July issue. An advance copy mailed to our desk reveals that Billy Clayton, this district's representative, heads the list of the "best."

Traditionally, the magazine omits the presiding officers from the poll, but they called him "so outstanding in his fourth term," that they felt compelled to include the Speaker on the list.

The only other legislators on the "best" list from North or West Texas were Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland and Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls. The area also claimed two of Texas Monthly's "worst" tags—Sen. Bill Healy of Paducah and Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka.

The selections, according to the magazine's editors, are based on technical skill and how power is used, not on political philosophy. The ratings are always interesting, and the articles pull no punches in lambasting what the researchers consider the weaknesses of the legislators.

Hereford's Sen. Bill Sarpallus drew a "special award" in the magazine, a salute for gaining the best nickname of the session. He was tagged "Senator Applecheek," according to the article because he was young, innocent, naive, nice and

South Bank Will Remain As Boundary

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The states of Oklahoma and Texas have recommended to the U.S. Supreme Court that the south bank of the Red River, partially covered by Lake Texoma, should remain the boundary between them.

The court on Monday forwarded the joint Oklahoma-Texas recommendation to Denver attorney John Carver, who as "special master" in the border dispute, has scheduled an August hearing on the case.

Their recommendation runs counter to a request by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission that the boundary be shifted so that the entire lake and the Denison Dam hydroelectric plant are in Oklahoma, officials said Monday.

That would put Texas-consumed power from the installation in interstate commerce for the first time, and would make it subject to federal regulation.

The high court agreed last year to settle arguments over the location of the Oklahoma-Texas border near Denison Dam.

The south river bank has served as the state border since a 1922 U.S. Supreme Court ruling, but the need for a new border decision was prompted several years ago by a controversy over electric-power rights.

Houston, Peking Joined in Dance

PEKING (AP) — Film and stage star Gwen Verdon and other dancers of the Houston Ballet Company joined dancers from the Peking Institute of Dance in a performance before 2,700 people Monday night, the official Xinhua news agency reported.

The dancers also included Clare Duncan, administrator and principal teacher of the Houston Ballet Academy, Xinhua said.

The Chinese and American dancers performed together in excerpts from Tchaikovsky's "Sleeping Beauty" and in a dance set to Bartok's Piano Concerto No. 3, it said.

The Americans will give five more performances with the Chinese dancers before going on to Shanghai for further performances, Xinhua said.

Two Inmates Die In Prison Stabbings

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Two inmates died and another was seriously wounded in unrelated stabbings at the Ellis Unit of the Texas Department of Correction, prison officials say.

Prison spokesman Rick Hartley said all three cases will be referred to a Walker County grand jury.

James Thompson, 36, died Monday morning en route to the Huntsville Unit Hospital after he was stabbed in the unit's main hallway, said Walker County Sheriff's Deputy Dale Myers.

Thompson had been serving a life sentence from Dallas County for retaliation, was stabbed five times with a homemade knife by a 26-year-old inmate, Myers said. Thompson allegedly had made sexual advances toward the other inmate, precipitating the incident, Myers said.

James Davis, 32 and serving a life sentence for murder and attempted murder in Dallas County, was stabbed Sunday evening in a prison recreation room, TDC officials said. Davis died en route to the prison hospital.

William Nickelbrough, 40, remained in critical condition late Monday at John Sealey Hospital in Galveston. Nickelbrough was stabbed Sunday evening as he left the unit's dining hall by a 25-year-old inmate, said Deputy Steve Gardner.

The inmates apparently had quarreled several days before the stabbings, Gardner said.

Reagan To Announce Court Replacement in Mid-July

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, apparently deciding against using his first Supreme Court appointment for the first woman justice, has "already picked out" conservative Southern California jurist J. Clifford Wallace, congressional sources say.

Justice Potter Stewart retires July 3, and sources said Reagan is likely to announce his selection for a successor by mid-July.

Wallace, a 51-year-old Mormon from San Diego and a Republican lawyer with 11 years on the federal bench, "is the administration's frontrunner," one source familiar with the selection process said Monday.

"This guy is already picked out as far as the administration is concerned," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Described as a moderate conservative by various California lawyers, Wallace was first considered for the high court by former President Ford, but John Paul Stevens filled that vacancy.

Wallace is a member of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco. He was named to that post by former President Nixon after serving in the U.S. District Court for Southern California.

Wallace, who began a three-week vacation Monday, could not be reached for comment. White House spokesman David Gergen, said reports about any potential nominees are premature. "We have a growing, not a shortening list," he said. Other sources said, however, that Wallace is at the top of that list.

After Stewart announced his resignation, effective July 3, Reagan dangled the possibility that his first Supreme Court appointment might go to a woman. He said he was "always" on the lookout for someone to possibly become the court's first female member.

Last Oct. 14, then-candidate Reagan said, "I am announcing today that one of the first Supreme Court vacancies in my administration will be filled by the most qualified woman I can possibly find."

In a letter to Reagan, Senate Judiciary Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., suggested eight people, including Wallace and three women, as possible candidates to succeed Stewart.

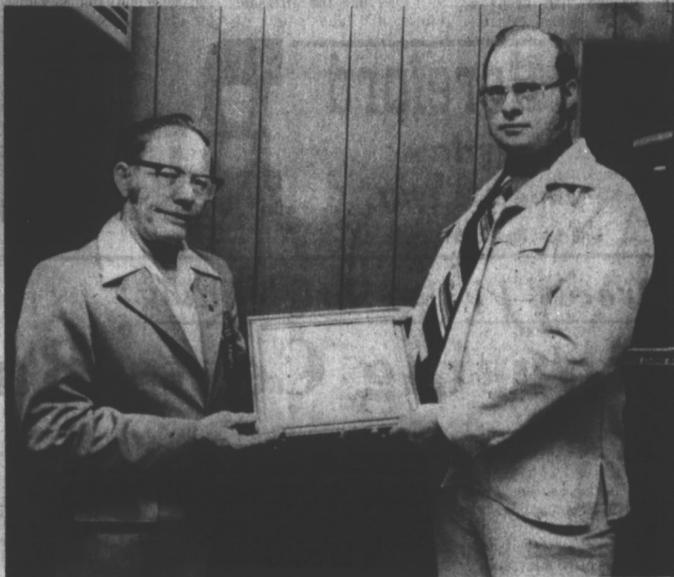

In addition to Wallace, Thurmond suggested Attorney General William French Smith; presidential counselor Edwin Meese III;

White House aide Elizabeth Hanford Dole; and four judges, Charles E. Simons

Jr., chief U.S. district judge in Columbia, S.C., Cornellia G. Kennedy of the 8th U.S.

Circuit Court of Appeals in Detroit; Annyla L. Kearsy, of the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, and

C. Bruce Littlejohn of the South Carolina State Supreme Court.

Five Injured in Refinery Fire

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — An explosion set off a series of fires shortly before dawn today at a Houston Ship Channel refinery, injuring five workers.

About 30 fire units from nearby communities and industrial plants were held on a standby basis nearly two hours before units from Pasadena and Crown Central Petroleum Corp. brought the fires under control. All the fires were out within three hours but firemen continued to wet down smoldering units. The injured were reported to be in stable condition.

The 100,000 barrels-a-day Crown Central refinery is among numerous petroleum and chemical plants along the ship channel that links Houston with Galveston Bay and the Gulf of Mexico.

Crown Central officials had made no comment but witnesses said an explosion shook the plant and was followed immediately by a fire ball that moved up the sides of a 100-foot tall processing unit. Other fires broke out in other sections of the plant. Firemen said the blazes were brought under control as various pipe and flow lines carrying flammable materials were shut down.

The Coast Guard's fire boat, the Captain Crotty, also was placed on the alert, keeping watch from the channel near the Crown Central installations.

A number of the back-up fire units were dispatched from other plants by the Channel Industries Mutual Aid Alliance which coordinates emergency aid in the area.

Gigantic traffic snarls greeted early morning motorists. Several roads in the ship channel area were blocked off and the Washburn Tunnel linking highways on both sides of the channel was closed about two hours.

Search

no ruling has been issued yet.

Today's hearing before State Court Magistrate Albert Thompson promised the first public glimpse of evidence gathered against Williams by a special police task force and a team of FBI agents who have been probing the string of slayings that began in July 1979.

Much of that evidence was gathered during a search of Williams' northwest Atlanta home on June 3, but authorities returned Monday afternoon for another, more comprehensive search that lasted 10½ hours.

At least seven to eight large paper bags of material, as well as a large piece of green carpeting, were removed in two vans from the Williams' house as 10 to 15 officers searched the brick dwelling from the roof to the crawl space underneath. They also were seen scavenging through garbage cans and searching the yard. An officer at the scene, who declined to be identified, said technicians were lifting fingerprints inside the house as part of the search. The officer said the task force has on file the fingerprints of all 28 victims.

Senate

Republican economic program.

All their efforts have ended in failure, and Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., dodged a question on Monday on whether any of the new attempts would pass.

Instead, he said an "overwhelming number" of Democrats were behind the proposed changes, and Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said the amendments highlighted the difference between Democrats and Republicans.

The Democratic amendment include: —Retaining the minimum

Social Security payment for current beneficiaries, at a cost of $925 million, and eliminating it for future retirees. The Republicans want to wipe out the benefit immediately.

—Maintaining foster care and adoption aid as independent federal programs, instead of folding them into block grants to the states. That would cost about $80 million.

—Providing $40 million for the Economic Development Administration, instead of abolishing it as proposed by the administration. —Providing school lunches for children in orphanages and institutions, instead of phasing the program out in 1984, as the president wants. There would be no additional cost in 1982, but an extra $69 million would be spent in dropped by 0.88 percent. Housing costs remained stable for the second month in a row.

Transportation costs dropped for the second month in a row. In May, gasoline prices dropped by 1.9 percent and in April by 0.75 percent.

Steele adds, "The many percentages and numbers in our survey really must be looked at over a period of months. Since they are weighted according to how much each area affects a family's budget, it can give the people of the Panhandle an idea how they stand against inflation."

The Security Federal Savings Cost of Living Survey is prepared using 303 Panhandle price indicators.

Costs

justed consumer price index rose to 269.0 in May, which means that goods and services costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $26.90 last month.

The Labor Department also said real spendable earnings — after taxes and after adjusting for inflation — dropped 0.4 percent in May for an average married wage earner with three dependents.

Real spendable earnings were down 2.0 percent from May 1980.

Since the spring of 1980, inflation has declined slowly but steadily. The decline has prompted some economists to express optimism that the nation may finally be coming out of its double-digit crunch.

The Reagan administration is predicting a 10.2 percent inflation rate for the year, measured from December 1980 to December 1981.

Donald Ratajczak, director of the Economic Forecasting Project at Georgia State University, is predicting consumer prices will rise 8.5 percent. Edward Yardeni, chief economist and vice president of the brokerage house E.F. Hutton & Co., forecasts an even smaller, 5.1 percent rise.

"Over the next three or four months, there could be some very good news on inflation," said Allen Sinai, vice president and senior economist of Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass.

He projected an annual rate for the next few months of 5 percent to 8 percent.

Sandra Shaber, senior economist at Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., also predicted "continued moderating inflation this summer."

But she cautioned that inflation could pick up later in the year, with rises in prices for food, fuel and housing, though "we're not talking about any major increase."

Voltaire, the famous Frenchman, was a dwarf in body and a giant in intellect.

In one of his books, the question is asked: "What, of all things in the world, is the longest and the shortest, the swiftest and the slowest, the most divisible and the most extended, the most neglected and the most regretted, without which nothing can be done, which devours all that is little, and enlivens all that is great?"

Here is the answer given: "Time."

"Nothing is longer, since it is the measure of eternity. Nothing is shorter, since it is insufficient for the accomplishment of your projects."

"Nothing is more slow to him that expects; nothing more rapid to him that enjoys. "In greatness it extends into infinity; in smallness it is infinitely divisible. All men neglect it; all regret the loss of it; nothing can be done without it. "It consigns to oblivion whatever is unworthy of being transmitted to posterity, and it immortalizes such actions as are truly great."

her daughter had not. Each of the three black girls received a score of 33. All of the girls who made over a 35 in the tryouts were selected for the team.

Board member Paul Ramirez noted that the score sheets showed that some scores had been changed and some had even been lowered, but Holder said he thought that some of the changes were simply errors that were corrected.

Dr. Holder also pointed out that 23 girls were not chosen for the drill team and this number included many anglos. Dr. Holder also said he had been concerned when Mrs. Wallace called the night after the tryouts because he had seen the three girls and he said they were attractive and athletic. He also expressed concern about the number of spanish girls chosen, however, he disagreed with Mrs. Wallace's allegations that the tryouts were judged unfairly.

Several of the board members told Mrs. Wallace that the selection process would be a judgmental process no matter who was in charge of it and that some students are going to be hurt anytime the school had a selection procedure.

Board president James Gentry asked Mrs. Wallace exactly what she wanted the Board to do about the selections.

"I request that the board give these three girls a chance to prove themselves," Mrs. Wallace said, and added that she didn't think the school should have to bring someone from out-of-town to judge the tryouts.

Gentry ended the discussion saying that the Board appreciated Mrs. Wallace's concern and honesty. Mrs. Wallace said she would be back.

In other business, the Board decided to postpone again any action on the district budget. Assistant Superintendent Bill Phillips told the board that he didn't have a concrete enough budget plan for a decision at this time. Phillips said that about 90 percent of the budget increases were in salaries.

The Board accepted the resignation of Board member David Hutchins, who cited personal reasons for leaving in his letter to the Board. The Board granted Hutchins' request that his resignation be effective immediately.

Several persons were brought up by Board members as replacements to Hutchins however, only one name was mentioned. Board members said the persons under consideration for the position asked that their names not be mentioned yet.

Gentry told the Board to "mull over these mysterious names a few weeks."

The Board is required to appoint a board member to fill Hutchins' place until the next election in April.

The Board also discussed policy concerning transfer students. The action in the meeting made official the procedure that Dr. Holder has been using to accept transfer students.

The superintendent now has the authority to decide each individual hardship transfer case on the merits of the case presented.

Bani-Sadr Still Eludes Capture

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Iran's deposed president, continued to elude capture today.

Apparently he put no faith in a promise from Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini of protection if he threw in with the fundamentalist Islamic clerics who defeated him in a year-long power struggle.

Rumors circulated around the Middle East that the 47-year-old leader of the moderate and leftist forces in the Iranian revolution had escaped abroad. But his presence outside the country could not be confirmed, and sources in Tehran reported earlier that he was moving from hideout to hideout in the Iranian capital.

Khomeini, the 81-year-old supreme leader of the revolutionary regime, dismissed his former protege and economic adviser from the presidency Monday after Bani-Sadr's clergy-led foes in the Iranian parliament declared him incompetent by a vote of 177-1.

Khomeini followed up the dismissal with an hour-long broadcast calling on the fugitive to give himself up, repent and become a "writer and thinker" for the regime. The speech was recorded.

"It would be in your interest to repent and return, freed from corrupt and criminal cliques around you, to serve as writer and thinker," said Khomeini.

Ann Landers Fascinated By Pornography

DEAR ANN: I have been married over 25 years. I love my husband, but we have a problem that is getting worse every day.

During the last five years my husband has become fascinated by pornography. It began with his taking me to see X-rated movies. Soon that was the only kind we ever went to see. Then on the way home, he would stop by a newsstand and buy a girls magazine for us to read together in bed.

About two years ago he purchased a videotape recorder and we have derived much pleasure from it. We take movies at family outings, weddings, graduations and anniversaries. Now, every weekend he rents a pornographic movie to watch in bed when the children are out.

I have tried to explain that this type of entertainment is offensive to me. I get turned off by it—not on. Some of our worst arguments have been because of these movies. It makes me sick to my stomach to have this type of garbage in the house. I live in fear the children will find it. Going to the theater to see the trash was bad enough, but knowing it is stashed in our closet gives me the creeps.

If you think I have a case, please tell me—and HIM.—Concerned

DEAR CONCERNED: Some people enjoy pornography. They find it sexually stimulating—a terrific turn-on. Your husband is obviously in this category. You, on the other hand, find it offensive and disgusting.

Your husband has no right to impose pornography on you. At the same time, you need to understand where he is coming from—and why.

The breakdown in your relationship can be repaired only by a third party. I urge you to explore the problem with a therapist. You both need to see it from the other's point of view. Get going. The survival of your marriage may depend on it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: There was a time in my life when I was sure the only kind of letter I would be sending you would be classified as hate mail. When I was a rebellious teenager, my breakfast used to consist of your column (shoved in my face), a cold egg and an argument with my mother. Now that I am in my mid-20s, I see you in an entirely different light.

You never lie to your readers. You've helped an awful lot of people, and you are always big enough to admit it when you are wrong. Too bad I can't say the same for some of our political leaders.

Please print my letter, Ann. I am sure my sentiments are shared by many. You deserve this compliment.—With Love From Canada

DEAR CANADA: What a valentine! And in June! Thank you so much.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I go to a rather nice beauty salon every Friday for a shampoo and set. Every six weeks I get a color job. The shampoo and set take about an hour and a half. The color keeps me there an extra hour.

Problem: My operator smokes constantly and I get a headache. Once he burned my hair. He is very temperamental and I hate to say anything. Will you print this?—Twice Shy

DEAR SHY: In every state the board has a regulation that says an operator may not smoke while working on a patron. Your operator should know this. If he doesn't—tell him.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Somehow the words "I told you so" are never as exhilarating as you thought they'd be.

Face it. Mothers build their entire lives around "revenge." During the child-raising years, there is no chore too degrading...no words too cutting...no actions too humiliating to endure because deep down inside there is a voice that promises, "Wait...just wait...until you have children of your own."

Sometimes, a smile used to creep across my face as I imagined my son saying to his son, "Don't bounce the ball in the house another 12 hours, sweetheart, or you'll make Daddy lose control over his saliva," only to have the child dribble the ball right across his face.

The real test of parental restraint is trying to tell a child anything that might save him from a painful mistake.

Take the heartbreaking saga of our son's first car. Every night, he and my husband would shop the lots, scour the want ads, and run down leads.

Finally, the choice narrowed down to two possibilities: A 1978 four-door with automatic shift, four new tires, white exterior, 20,000 miles and a dog in the rear window wired for red, yellow and green signals. It was previously owned by a little old lady who worked from her home and was afraid to drive in the dark.

Or, a 1971 sports car, with a stick shift, metallic silver exterior with racing stripe, 123,000 miles, which when parked at the curb, bowed so that two wheels were in the middle of the street. It was previously owned by a stunt man who had been in three Burt Reynolds movies with it.

"It's a touch decision," said my husband, "but I think I'd have to go with the four-door."

"Why is it you never want me to be happy?" said my son.

"I'm buying the sports car!"

Last week, he called and was without a car. It just collapsed before his eyes at a drive-in hamburger stand.

The words "I told you so" somehow weren't as sweet as we had hoped.

Maybe it was because we had to pay to have the car towed away that took the edge off it.

Mrs. Guseman Feted With Baby Shower

Mrs. Chip Guseman was honored with a baby shower Saturday morning in the Halbert Room of Hereford Country Club.

Highlighting the decorations was a large brass antique candle accented with daisies and ivy. It was placed in the middle of the candlelit room and held gifts brought by the guests.

The serving table was laid with a pink cloth. A cupid figurine bowl held the centerpiece of white daisies trimmed with blue ribbon and holding a large candle.

Each of the tables were laid with white cloths and decorated with vases of daisies and candles, accented by cupid figurines.

Yarbro, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Genevieve Guseman. Other special guests were the honoree's grandmother, Mrs. J.V. Pickett; her sister, Mrs. Ron Smith and Stacy of Canyon; and Nancy Newsom of Amarillo.

Hostesses included Mmes. Ed Reinauer Sr., Bill Reinauer, O.G. Nieman, Joe Reinauer Sr., Jerry Sublett, Joe Lambert, Harry Bennett, Joe Paetzold, Gerald Payne, W.W. Gilbreath, Bill Carothers, Gary McQuigg, Owen Seamands, Art Stoy, Tom Burdett, James Head, J.A. McWhorter, Carl McCaslin and Gene Bradley of Dimmitt.

Mrs. Gerald Payne and Mrs. Bill Reinauer served guests punch, coffee, cream puffs filled with chicken salad, cream puffs with pudding and an assortment of fresh fruit.

Mrs. Guseman presented a corsage from the hostesses made of pastel shades of baby socks and ribbon.

After Mrs. Guseman opened gifts, they were displayed on a large table laid with a blue cloth.

Special guests included the honoree's mother, Mrs. R.N.

Helpful Hints On Canning Food Given For Consumers

COLLEGE STATION - With gardens flourishing, many consumers are attempting food preservation at home to save on food costs. While home canning may look simple, every detail requires careful attention.

If you do choose to can some vegetables, the Food Quality and Safety Committee of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, offers these important points:

- Before starting, contact your local county Extension office for the latest information.
- Use only high quality produce for best results.
- Be sure to have the pressure gauge on your pressure canner checked. Your local county Extension office usually has the equip- ment to provide this service.

- Also check gaskets and seals on your pressure canner.
- Follow directions to every detail; do not use your own times or pressures.
- All low-acid foods such as green beans, corn and potatoes must be processed in a pressure canner. Watch bath methods are not adequate for proper preservation of low-acid foods. Firm, fresh tomatoes which are not over-ripe may be processed in a water bath.
- Use only approved canning techniques; processing in a microwave oven or conventional oven is not an approved method.
- Use only standard canning jars with lids and rings; old mayonnaise or peanut butter jars are not designed for home canning.
- Do not reuse lids.

- Do not use jars that are chipped or cracked.
- Do not overfill jars as this can cause a faulty seal.
- Be sure tops of jars are wiped clean before sealing.
- Avoid sudden pressure drops; wait until the pressure gauge is at zero before opening the lid.
- Be sure to allow for processing adjustments for those elevations over 1000 feet; charts are available in canning guides.
- Avoid placing jars direct from the pressure canner on to cool surfaces; it's best to cool jars by placing them on a rack.

- Be sure to check all lids for a depression which indicates a good seal; products in jars without a good seal may be eaten immediately but should not be stored for later use.

4-H Offers Many Opportunities

By PENNY CRIBBS

MY HOW TIME FLIES WHEN YOU'RE HAVING FUN!!

This summer has seemed to whiz by for our 4-H'ers! Camp one week, horse shows the next, a Fashion Revue, and still another camp! They seem to be moving from one event to the next with the mere changing of a day - YOUTH!

I am proud to be part of an organization which offers so many opportunities to young people. The chance to learn through personal experiences is a valuable asset.

One reason 4-H is able to offer so many learning experiences is because of the hard work the 4-H'ers do and the trust they enable others to have in them.

A sponsor's job for a 4-H activity holds more rewards than frustrations solely because they are such pleasant and dependable kids to work with. I can't help but think, it is the 4-H program that helps to instill responsibility, citizenship, trust and dependability in these youth. Thank goodness for such a program.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Players Concerned About Length of Strike

Expectations Dim, Says Tom Seaver

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

There will be no baseball strike negotiations today and a number of players are becoming increasingly concerned that nobody will be talking or playing for a long time.

A ray of hope glimmered on the horizon Monday when federal mediator Kenneth Moffett, who had just helped avoid a nationwide air controllers' strike, called for another negotiating session between the striking Major League Players Association and management's Player Relations Committee, headed by Ray Grebey. But, three hours later, Moffett canceled the session.

"I just had a change of heart," said Moffett. "I needed more time to think about things. I might do something in the next day or two."

Cincinnati Reds pitcher Tom Seaver, who was a part of the aborted negotiations last week, said that Moffett canceled the meeting "out of fatigue."

"I heard he had canceled the meeting on the radio," said Seaver. "I called the office (of the players association) and they said Moffett just canceled it out of fatigue."

Also called off on the 11th day of the strike was an International League game between Charleston and Tidewater scheduled for Thursday in Cleveland. Players for the Charlies, Cleveland's Triple A affiliate, and the Tides, and the top farm team of the New York Mets, decided Monday not to play the game in the 78,000-seat home of the Indians. The possibility of picketing outside the ballpark by the striking major leaguers may have scared off the minor leaguers.

"We don't belong to the (major league) players' association, but we support it," said Charlies pitcher Mike Paxton. "They wouldn't have scheduled the game if it had not been for the strike. I hate to see it canceled. It probably would help the Charleston ball club."

Indians President Gabe Paul, who called the players' decision "ill-advised," said the Indians had guaranteed all expenses to bring the Tides to Cleveland. Proceeds from the contest were to go to the Charlies, with the Indians making up any financial losses incurred.

Seaver was one of the major leaguers who expressed a deeply pessimistic view of when an agreement to end the first midseason player walkout in baseball history might be reached.

"If you add up all the things that are going on, it only leads to one conclusion: the owners are not trying to break the union, but they're trying to severely weaken it. They're not going to weaken our support of Marvin (Miller), but they want to weaken our stand," said Seaver.

"My expectations now are the worst," Seaver said. "It's been awful. Absolutely nothing has been done. There has been no reason for any hope."

Seaver participated in three negotiating sessions last week and came away without optimism.

"My expectations now are the worst," Seaver said. "It's been awful. Absolutely nothing has been done. There has been no reason for any hope."

Asked if he expected the strike to last longer than two months, Seaver said, "At least!"

Kansas City reliever Dan Quisenberry echoed Seaver's comments.

"It's hard to foresee anything happening," he said Monday. "I can't see how it's ever going to be settled. We're like two rams butting heads."

"I don't think there will be a winner. The longer the strike goes, the more devastating it gets. From the way things look now, I'd have to say there is a very good possibility the season is over."

Miller, executive director of the players association, said that he had read through 55 ideas to end the strike sent to him by fans. He also said he received offers from people who wanted to mediate.

The union was expected to file suit in U.S. District Court in New York on Monday in hopes of gaining a portion of television revenue the owners collect from the networks and cable television. But the suit was not filed.

The owners have a $50 million strike insurance policy that has a 153-game deductible, which will be reached Wednesday. After that, the owners will receive $100,000 for each game lost to the strike.

As the strike continues, it may threaten the free agent status of about a dozen players who would reach six years of major league service this year. The six-year figure is the minimum required for free agent status and participation in the November re-entry draft. Compensation for players lost in that draft is the lone issue of the walkout. In the past, a team signing a free agent surrendered a first-round pick in the amateur draft as compensation to the team that lost the player.

Those players in their sixth major league season include pitchers Ron Guidry of the New York Yankees, Sid Monge of Cleveland and Joaquin Andujar of St. Louis; infielders Lamar Johnson of the Chicago White Sox and Ron Jackson of Minnesota; outfielders Dave Collins of Cincinnati, Jerry Turner of San Diego and Tony Scott of Houston, and catcher Ed Ott of California.

The union claims that players are still on the active roster during the strike and that the walkout time must be included in the computation of free agent and salary arbitration rights.

The owners disagree. One player who won't be going the free agent route is left-handed pitcher Steve Carlton of the Philadelphia Phillies. Carlton, who won the Cy Young Award last year, has agreed to a new contract reportedly worth $3 million for four years.

Longer the Strike, Better Shot Zimmer Has As Ranger Pilot

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The longer the baseball strike lasts the better chance Don Zimmer has of being the Texas Ranger manager next year.

They've played a cold brand of hardball at Arlington Stadium under owners Bob Short and Brad Corbett, who went through 11 managers in eight years.

Corbett set the franchise record with five managers in one year in 1977.

Now, the 50-year-old Zimmer, the rotund, crew-cut man the Boston Red Sox fans loved to boo, is getting a one-year make good shot from new owner Eddie Giles, who is trying to bring some stability to the organization.

With the man who hired Zimmer, Executive Vice President for Baseball Operations Eddie Robinson, looking on anxiously, the Rangers are off to their best start in their nine-year history.

The Rangers were 33-22 when the strike was called, a game and a half behind Oakland in the American League West.

Zimmer made effective use of bench and bullpen. He turned the Rangers into the best hitting and fielding team in the league through what would have been the first one-third of the season.

The Rangers' .284 team batting average was best in the AL and their fielding percentage of .986 tied with Detroit for the top spot. Texas' designated hitters were stroking the ball at a .325 pace, best in the league.

Had highly salaried pitching stars Fergie Jenkins and Jon Matlack been effective the Rangers without question would be perched atop their division.

Jenkins had the worst earned run average on the team (.526) and was 4-5. Matlack had a 4.00 ERA with a 3-5 record.

Zimmer solved the troublesome Ranger fielding problems by going with Mario Mendoza at shortstop and giving first base to Pat Putnam, who had a good hit, gruesome glove reputation.

Mendoza responded by giving a gold glove performance at shortstop while Putnam amazed his critics with steadiness afield.

When injuries struck the Rangers, Zimmer's bench came through. Bill Stein hit .441 while playing third base for Buddy Bell...Mike Wagner hit .345 subbing for Mendoza...and Leon Roberts hit .323 playing leftfield for Billy Sample.

Of course, Robinson must share the spotlight because he was smart enough in the off-season to trade Seattle for Mendoza, Roberts and pitcher Rick Honeycutt (6-1). And he got Wagner from Detroit.

But who would have suffered if Zimmer's moves on the field failed?

In Texas, the manager's head always rolled when things got dicey. Also, if Robinson had been as smart as Billy Martin and sent the team to camp early ala the Oakland A's things could have been different. The A's pitchers were ready for a torrid start. Oakland anticipated a strike. Texas didn't.

Zimmer has received no assurances he is back next year.

But not even the Texas Rangers could dare fire a manager who has produced like he has.

Could they?

Midland Wins Homer Derby Over Amarillo

By The Associated Press

Mel Hall's solo home run with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning powered the Midland Cubs to a 10-9 Texas League baseball victory over the Amarillo Gold Sox Monday night.

In other action on the first night of the second half of the season, El Paso beat San Antonio, 9-5, in 11 innings. Shreveport edged Tulsa, 7-6, and Arkansas defeated Jackson, 4-1.

Hall's ninth inning homer was his second of the night and ended what had been a home run hitting derby by both teams.

Hall also had a two-run homer. Carmello Martinez and Jack Upton each had solo homers for the Cubs.

Joe Lansford had two solo homers, Jeff Pybrun had a two-run homer and Jerry DeSimone had a solo homer for the Gold Sox.

Norm Churchill, 5-7, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Mike Barba, 2-1.

Jerry Lane drove in three runs with a bases-loaded double as the El Paso Diablos exploded for four runs in the 11th inning to defeat the San Antonio Dodgers, 9-5.

Lane had a three-run homer in the third inning when El Paso scored five runs.

Dale Holman had a two-run homer and Leo Hernandez had a solo homer for San Antonio. Tony Torrez, 2-2, was the winning pitcher. Orel Hershiser, 3-4, who had retired the first 13 men he faced until the 11th inning outburst, was the loser.

Ron Darling, the first draft choice of the Texas Rangers in the recent major league draft, made his pitching debut for the Tulsa Drillers in a game the Drillers lost to the Shreveport Captains, 7-6.

Darling, who pitched the first three innings, struck out four and gave up three hits and two unearned runs. He did not figure in the decision.

Jorge Aranzamendi's two-run single helped the Arkansas Travelers defeat the Jackson Mets, 4-1.

Arkansas grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Jeff Doyle had a solo homer.

Mike Davis' solo homer for the Mets tied the game at 1-1 in the fifth inning and was the first hit surrendered by Arkansas pitcher Jerry Johnson.

Bjorn Borg Determined To Capture U.S. Open

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg, one match behind him in his bid to win the Wimbledon tennis title for a sixth straight time, says he is now even more determined to win the U.S.

Open. It is the one major title that has eluded the 25-year-old super-successful Swede. Borg opened his 1981 Wimbledon campaign with a solid 7-6, 6-3, 6-1 triumph over American left-hander Peter Rennert and said afterward: "My biggest remaining ambition in the game is to win at Flushing Meadow." Rennert hung in for the first set but was then overwhelmed by the improving defending champion, who ran his winning streak at Wimbledon to 35 consecutive matches.

Borg said he was under even more pressure this year. "Always I'm under pressure," he said. "Even when I'm not the champion, I'm under pressure. I don't feel I have to win every match, but people expect it." The excitement, however, is not diminished.

"Every time I look forward to Wimbledon. It is special, the greatest tournament to play. It is tradition. Wimbledon always has been No. 1," he said.

If the seedings hold, Borg would meet volatile American left-hander John McEnroe in a repeat of last year's thrilling five-set men's singles final. But the seedings didn't hold completely on Monday.

McEnroe and third-seeded Jimmy Connors both recorded straight-set victories, but three seeds were defeated on an opening day full of surprises.

Charlie Fancutt, an Australian ranked 194th in the world, defeated No. 4 seed Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Eric Fromm of Glen Head, N.Y., upset 13th-seeded Yannick Noah of France 6-4, 6-4, 6-3, and Texan Bill Scanlon ousted 11th-seeded Victor Pecci of Paraguay 7-6, 6-0, 6-0.

Fancutt and Fromm both are 22-year-olds who have reached the main draw at Wimbledon for the first time. "Grass is an equalizer," Fancutt said. "I got all fired up because this is Wimbledon."

Fromm was taken aback by the attention he received from the media. He walked into a crowded interview room and joked: "I only expected a couple of people."

Connors, champion here in 1974, wasn't joking about his intentions.

"If my expectations had changed, I wouldn't be here," Connors said.

"I want to win it. If I didn't think I was prepared, eager and in the right shape, then I would have no business here," he said after his 6-1, 6-2, 6-4 victory over fellow American Dick Stockton.

McEnroe, expected to be the main challenger to Borg, was at his petulant worst during his 7-6, 7-5, 6-3 victory over Tom Gullikson. At one stage, he broke his racket and called an official "an incompetent fool."

"I suppose it was my fault because I was feeling jittery," he said later. "I was definitely wrong and I will no doubt pay for it."

Baseball's Longest Game In History Resumes Tonight

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Marty Barrett thinks it would be "kind of neat" to score the winning run.

After 32 innings, two months and four days, it would be a relief for anyone to score the winning run.

The longest game in professional baseball history resumes, and may end, tonight when the Rochester Red Wings visit the Pawtucket Red Sox.

Before their regularly scheduled International League game, the teams will resume their marathon that started at 8 p.m. on April 18 and was suspended at 4:07 a.m. April 19 after 32 innings with the score tied 2-2.

Barrett, his 2-for-12 output for the game on hold, is the scheduled leadoff hitter in the bottom of the 33rd against Rochester's Mike Boddicker.

"I'm going to try to do anything just to get on base and then hopefully someone can knock me in," the Pawtucket second baseman said. "Maybe I'll use one swing to try to hit it out."

That was virtually impossible in the first 32 innings when a strong wind from center field kept hard-hit shots from going out of McCoy Stadium and 19 diehard fans inside to the inconclusive conclusion.

"I suppose so," Pawtucket Manager Joe Morgan said when asked if the game was his strangest baseball experience. "I don't remember that kind of stuff too much. Every day's a different game for me...I'm sure I'll remember this contest."

"I don't think the importance is greater than any other game but I guess the recognition would be more," said Rochester Manager Doc Edwards.

Equipment, lineup cards and scorecards are among the game's items destined for the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.

"For someone that had the talent I did, this is probably the only way your name will ever be in Cooperstown," said Edwards, a .238 hitter in five major league seasons. "The recognition is fine, but I'd just as soon have won it in nine innings."

Rochester scored the first run in the seventh inning and Pawtucket tied the game in the bottom of the ninth. Each team scored again in the 21st.

The Red Wings nearly went ahead in the top of the 32nd, but Pawtucket's Sam Bowen threw out John Hale trying to score from second base on a bloop hit to short right field.

Bobby Ojeda, the Red Sox' best pitcher, is slated to throw the first pitch of the resumed game to center fielder Dallas Williams, who is hitless in 12 at bats.

Ojeda has a feeling the game will go six more innings. Morgan and Barrett figure on three. Edwards won't hazard a guess.

"If both teams are swinging the bat, it could be over in one inning," Edwards said. "If neither team is swinging the bat, who knows?"

The previous longest game was on June 14, 1966, when the Miami Marlins defeated the St. Petersburg Cards, 4-3 in 29 innings that lasted six hours, 50 minutes. The major league record is a 26-inning contest on May 1, 1920 when the Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves tied 1-1.

A media invasion is expected at McCoy, where a half-dozen reporters regularly cover the Red Sox. More than 60 reporters and several radio stations are expected. Chicago and Boston stations plan to broadcast the game live and writers from as far away as Tokyo and London are expected.

"It's not just another game," Ojeda said. "I'm kind of skating in on it because a lot of the guys were in it early, around the 20th."

"I was a little bit everywhere that night, clubhouse, took a nap on the trainer's table. It was a cold night, in and out, got a lot of coffee."

Barrett and most of the other players couldn't afford the luxury. Because of limited minor league rosters, many had to play all 32 innings.

"All the pitchers were coming in with good stuff and we were just beat from playing it long," he said.

"After about 17 or 18 innings, people were kind of laughing, saying this was kind of neat, but it was going to end pretty soon. But when it got in the 20s, people were saying, let's get it over with. It wasn't humorous anymore."

Reagan Gives Talk To Sports Champs

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military band struck up the strains of "Hail to the Chief" and a smiling, waving President Reagan strode jauntily to the microphone beneath towering portraits of George and Martha Washington.

Then he welcomed his 600 guests.

"I must have talked about some of you when I was a sportscaster," he said. "What did I say?"

Laughter filled the East Room of the White House. Tension disappeared. The large assembly, which had waited expectantly for the President's arrival, relaxed. Glasses tinkled. One could sense a feeling of camaraderie.

The man who in a 1940 movie as dying George Gipp implored Knute Rockne to "win one for the Gipper" was comfortable and perfectly at home among some of the giants of American sports, past and present. He was greeting the honorees as well as the architects of the $300,000 art exhibition "Champions of American Sports," which formally opens in Washington's National Portrait Gallery today. It will be displayed throughout the country during the next 12 months.

Calling sports "indispensable" to the health and life of the country, he lauded the erasure of racial and other prejudices and modestly mentioned that he had been one of the early forces in the crusade.

"John L. Sullivan was a great heavyweight years ago," he recalled. "People wanted him to be beaten because he was Irish. Sullivan was beaten by James J. Corbett (another Irishman) and John L. said, 'If I had to get licked, I am glad it was by an American.'"

The President reminded the group that there was a corollary in the careers of baseball's Jackie Robinson and boxing's Joe Louis.

He told how Louis, a black man, had gained the respect of the country by knocking out Nazi Germany's Max Schmeling and a decade or so later, Jackie Robinson had been admitted as the first black in baseball through the courageous efforts of Branch Rickey.

The President recalled his experiences as an underweight right guard at Eureka College, a small institution 20 miles from Peoria, Ill.

"In one game, I played opposite George Musso, an All-Pro later with the Bears," he said. "In those days, you played both offense and defense and Musso outweighed me by 100 pounds."

"I couldn't go over him, I couldn't go under him. Once I tried to go around him and I bumped into one of my own men."

He said he couldn't play baseball because he couldn't see the ball. So he took up football because the ball was bigger.

NFL Suit Defense Scheduled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Football League, sued by the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission and the Oakland Raiders for refusing to allow the Raiders to move to Los Angeles, was scheduled to begin its defense today in U.S. District Court.

The first witness was expected to be NFL treasurer William Ray. He was expected to testify about the history of professional football, its organization and its finances.

Later in the week, the lawyers were expected to argue motions for "directed verdicts." The NFL's defense is expected to take about two months.

Maxwell Blecher, attorney for the Coliseum Commission, and Joseph Alioto, attorney for the Raiders, rested their case on Monday, at which time the NFL asked Judge Harry Pregerson to dismiss the antitrust case. Attorneys for the league claimed there was a lack of evidence.

Judge Pregerson gave no indications when he might rule on the NFL motions for dismissal.

The motions, filed over the weekend by lawyers for the NFL and Los Angeles Rams, asked the judge to throw out the case. Defense lawyers commonly file such motions, but it is rare that judges grant them, opting instead to let the juries decide the case.

The final witness for the plaintiffs, economist Louis A. Guth, concluded his testimony Monday, saying the Raiders would make much more money if the team were permitted to play in the Los Angeles Coliseum, which was vacated by the Rams when they moved in 1980 to nearby Anaheim in Orange County.

The antitrust action involves a series of allegations against the NFL and has proceeded 29 court days.

Al Davis, the Raiders' managing general partner, charges that NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle breached an oral contract that would have allowed Davis to move his team to Los Angeles, and that rule 4.3 in the NFL constitution, providing that team owners approve a franchise move by a three-quarters vote, is illegal.

Davis also has accused Rozelle of conspiring with Rams' owner Georgia Frontiere and San Diego Chargers' owner Eugene Klein, preventing him from moving the Raiders.

"I feel excellent about the case," said Davis Monday night. "I stick to what I've said from the beginning, the rule (4.3) is illegal. It's used to prevent competition. It's too restrictive and we don't need the rule."

By Don Henslee
Q. After checking out the starter and recharging the battery I'm still at a loss to explain why my 1974 LTD sounds so sluggish when it starts. Any suggestions?

A. Check your battery first, then cables and terminals. If naked cable shows anywhere, replace the cable. If cables are OK, remove cables at battery posts and clean both terminals and posts. Next, check for a frequently overlooked condition called "hydrostatic lock." This is caused by water in a cylinder. Liquid cannot be compressed, and its presence keeps the piston from going all the way on the compression stroke. To check, remove sparkplugs and attempt to crank the engine. If it now cranks briskly, water probably is leaking into cylinders. Remove the cylinder head and check for cracks. The block, particularly around valve parts also should be examined.

Con Artist Rents House 8 Times

SPRING, Texas (AP) - A con artist who rented the same three-bedroom house to at least eight families and then vanished with $5,900 in rent and deposits apparently knew the neighborhood well, detectives say.

Detectives said the con man and his female companion - described as "the friendly looking kind that could talk you into anything" - distributed copies of the neighborhood newsletter and told the newcomers how to obtain passes to the swimming pool.

"He knew almost too much," said Don Cook, 28, a mechanic from Cincinnati who moved to this Houston suburb with his wife, Sheri, and their three children. "He even told us a church was going to be built here soon and we found out later that was true."

The Cooks and five other families - each claiming to have signed a lease and paid deposits ranging from $400 to $1,200 - tried to move into the three-bedroom, two-bathroom house over the weekend.

The other renters were the John LaTourneaus from Nisswa, Minn., the Jack Martins from Tulsa, Okla., the Glenn Zepalacs from Houston, the John Ellises from Missouri, and the James Reeses of Denver.

America's Expensive Ailment - Aching Backs

BOSTON (AP) - Bellhops and bank presidents say it. Steelworkers and stenographers say it. At one time or another, so does almost everybody else over age 30 - "Oh, my aching back!"

Low back pain is one of the most common and distressing complaints in the industrialized world, health experts say. It is one of the most puzzling, too.

Eight of every 10 Americans will suffer from back pain at least once during their lives. They and their insurance companies spend an estimated $14 billion a year on diagnoses, operations, rehabilitation and lost-work benefits to try to get rid of it. Yet, most of this effort will fail.

No one really knows what causes most cases of backache. And almost nobody is trying to find out.

"It's safe to say that there is no other ailment as widespread as back pain, and there is no ailment less studied and, therefore, more mysterious," says Dr. Joseph Novak, head of rehabilitation medicine at St. Francis General Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Consider the statistics: -Currently, 75 million people in the United States suffer from back problems.

-Two million Americans cannot work because of them.

-Back injuries account for 460,000, or one in five, of the nation's work-related injuries.

-Back pain is the most expensive ailment among Americans between the ages of 30 and 60.

-Insurance companies pay $6,600 for the average back injury claim. Some cost more than $100,000.

And yet, Dr. Alf Nachemson, a Swedish doctor who is probably the leading expert on the problem, laments: "There are hardly 20 people on this earth doing real, thorough, systematic research into the cause of back pain."

One reason for this is that nobody dies from a backache.

"Low back pain is not the glamorous type of research that draws a lot of people," says Dr. Stover Snook, a Harvard psychologist who conducts back research for Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. in Boston. "It's not a life-threatening injury. It happens to be very expensive and very uncomfortable, but it's not like doing research on cancer or something exotic."

Exotic or not, a backache is miserable.

During the National Basketball Association playoffs this year, Celtics Coach Bill Fitch was suffering such back pain that he had trouble sitting on the bench for more than three minutes at a time.

"It might be described as man's most important non-life-threatening disease," says Dr. Augustus White, chief of orthopedic surgery at Beth Israel Hospital in Boston. "It's so common and has such tremendous impact on the quality of life. It can be terribly debilitating or just a damned nuisance. It can be very profoundly inconvenient and lead to a good deal of depression."

Mercifully, low back pain usually goes away by itself. Ninety percent of the victims get well within two months, no matter what their doctors do.

But for some, it is a lifelong affliction. Sometimes surgery helps, but it can also worsen the problem.

About 5 percent of back pain victims have ruptured, or slipped, discs.

Discs are rubbery shock absorbers that fit between the bony vertebrae that form the spine. As people grow older, the discs wear out and sometimes press against the spinal cord. Besides back pain, this can cause sciatica, a pain that radiates down the legs.

Disc surgery can usually relieve the sciatica, but in 60 percent of the cases, some back pain remains.

Nachemson and many other doctors maintain that American surgeons perform too many disc operations. This kind of surgery is seven times more common in the United States than in Western Europe.

If the first operation fails, there is little chance a second or third will stop the ache. Yet some people undergo a dozen or more back operations in a futile search for relief.

James I of England (IV of Scotland) was the first monarch to call himself King of Great Britain.

The U.S. Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn., was founded in 1876.
