Iran Blames U.S. Agents for Blast

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran announced today that "U.S. agents" killed the warden of its main prison as more than a million Iranians attended a mass funeral in Tehran of 72 political leaders who died in a bomb blast.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said the revolutionary prosecutor's office in Tehran announced Warden Mohammad Kachou of Evin Prison "has been assassinated by U.S. agents." It gave no details.

The forbidding prison on the outskirts of the Iranian capital is the chief place of confinement for opponents of the Islamic fundamentalists controlling the Iranian regime. Firing squads have executed hundreds there since the overthrow of the monarchy in February 1979.

The United States also was condemned at the funeral for the victims of Sunday's bombing at the Islamic Republican headquarters as the chanting crowd extolled the "martyrs" and shouted "America defeated!" over and over, Tehran Radio reported.

"What happened was an American crime," one unidentified speaker told the throng as it assembled for the funeral procession through the Iranian capital. "The crimes of America are well known all over the world. America calls itself a civilized nation. Such civilization is a barbaric civilization. It is a civilization to enslave mankind."

Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani told the mourners they must fight on two fronts, one the battlefield with Iraq "and the other an internal one."

"With your determination, you can defeat the enemy and the Fifth Column trying to create disturbances," he declared.

Rafsanjani threatened an intensified crackdown on the opposition, saying, "We have been trying to reason with the counter-revolutionaries. But after this horrible crime, how can anyone expect us to let them do what they like to do." He said the bodies of those killed in the bombing Sunday night would be taken to their birthplaces for burial.

Begin, Peres Lead Party For Election

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin and challenger Shimon Peres led their forces to the polls today for a general election in which neither Begin's Likud Bloc nor Peres' Labor Party.

Begin was among the first to arrive at a polling place near his Tel Aviv residence when the voting began at 7 a.m.

"I bet you don't know who I'm going to vote for," the prime minister said teasingly before stepping into an enclosure to choose a party slip.

"Until early morning nobody will know who will form the government," he said. "Here it is not a choice between two men. It is between 31 parties."

The polls were open until 10 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT) and computer projections of the outcome were expected soon after.

Peres voted near his home in suburban Tel Aviv, telling reporters: "This is a fateful day. I'm keeping my feelings to myself."

With final opinion polls reporting Likud and Labor running neck and neck and well short of a majority, both the major parties urged the 2.4 million voters not to give their ballots to any of the 29 smaller parties on the ballot.

Rainfall Here Only .41 Inch

Although nearby Canyon last night was reportedly under a flood watch, the official rain report for Hereford was only .41 of an inch.

Other areas received less rain. Summerfield Fertilizer reported about .2 of an inch of precipitation and the Bruce Coleman residence at Walcott reported "just a sprinkle" of rain last night.

Easter Fertilizer, south of Hereford, missed the action entirely. They received no rain at all.

The J.E. McCabe residence, east of Dawn, reported that they received about an inch of rain last night. McCabe said he hopes "it's just a sample of things to come."

The H.L. Hershey residence, northeast of Hereford, also reported about an inch of precipitation. The Heraheys reported that the rain arrived as a nice shower, and was not too heavy.

Bentsen Says Oil Measure Crucial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, says an amendment okayed by the Senate Finance Committee provides less than a fourth of the incentive that Texas oil producers need, but is an important first step.

By a 10-4 vote, the committee approved the amendment pushed by Bentsen and Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., that over a period of three years — beginning in 1983 — would cut in half the tax rate on new oil, which now is taxed at 30 percent.

Passage of the Boren amendment Thursday was the committee's final vote before its final adoption by a 19-1 vote of a tax cut bill. The tax rate on new oil would be dropped to 25 percent in 1983-84, to 20 percent in 1985 and to 15 percent in 1986.

The committee rejected, a day earlier, Bentsen's amendment that would, beginning next year, exempt from the Windfall Profits Tax the first 1,000 barrels of daily oil production for independent oil producers and royalty owners. The committee defeated it by a vote of 6-9.

Bentsen was rebuffed in committee two years ago on an exemption for independent producers by a 7-11 vote, but modified his proposal and won full support for his 1,000-barrel exemption on the Senate floor, 53-41.

Thumper Here
Deaf Smith General Hospital has acquired a new friend for residents of this area, and though this one is not as cuddly as Bambi's furry friend it can save your life. "Thumper" is a 65 lb. portable aid to Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation, it performs cardiac compression and ventilation. Just received by the hospital Friday, it cost approximately $4500 part of which was raised by the Rotary Club at a fish-fry held in April. The hospital is absorbing the rest of the cost and after an intensive in-service training this week for emergency personnel it will be in use in the ambulance and hospital as needed. Shown here is Director of nurses, Gerry Hollinger demonstrating "Thumper."

Second in Series Handling POWs 'Quite an Experience'

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of a three-part series on the Hereford POW camp. Ly Brand staffer Debe Graves. In the first part the construction of the camp was covered. Today, Major Schroeter and Bill Phipps recall some experiences at the camp at its peak of activity. The final part of the series will feature memories of a former prisoner at the camp, who made a visit to Hereford recently.

By DEBE GRAVES
Staff Writer
The first company of American soldiers to come to the newly-built prisoner of war camp was the 400th

Military Police Unit followed by the 426 and 417 Military Police Escort Guide. The headquarters company was composed of men working in the compounds, hospitals, kitchens. Each company had 155 soldiers and two officers attached. Some of the guards were the same grim-looking soldiers who had guarded the presidential route across America. They were chosen for their ability to handle a gun, and for handling men.

At first, relations between the camp personnel and the town were strained. A front page editorial in the Feb. 18, 1943 edition of the Hereford Brand reported "Gossip Results in Near-Tragedy."

It went on to explain: "Through some unidentified channel, a rumor was started that the people of this community were getting up a petition to forbid the presence of soldiers on the streets of Hereford after nine o'clock at night." It was also rumored that "Hereford has been placed on the 'forbidden list' to men stationed at the camp."

"A mere telephone conversation between officials of the city of Hereford and the officers at the camp cleared up the entire matter in a few seconds," the writer assured. In fact, Hereford did serve its country and its servicemen well. It is estimated that 99 percent of the local families had brothers, sons, fathers, or some other relative serving Uncle Sam and they must have identified the GIs at the camp with their families serving elsewhere.

Prisoner Art
This picture is of a painting on the east side of the Sanctuary of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umberger. The painting depicts the Visitation and was done by Nanco DiBello who was an Italian officer and a prisoner at the Hereford Internment Center for three years.

So admirably did the townspeople open their homes and their hearts to the GIs that dozens of the service personnel stationed here returned once the war was over.

One of those soldiers whose devotions were turned was a Yankee from Lynn, Massachusetts by the name of Bill Phipps. Phipps was First Sergeant of the Italian Officers' prisoners compound, but started out as a mailman, so had the opportunity to become familiar with almost everyone at the camp. An invaluable source of information about the camp, Phipps shared some of his memories concerning the prisoners.

The first captives, who were Italian, arrived in early 1943, most of them taken during the invasion of North Africa in battles near Tripoli and Southern Tunisia. "They arrived in April," Phipps recalled "they were shipped in by train and we marched them down the road from the railroad tracks."

Singing, in Italian, the then popular song "Rosemunda" or as we know it "Roll Out the Barrel" the prisoners marched the eight miles from Summerfield to their new quarters.

Tromping past idle fields of war-rattled Panhandle farmers, the Italian troops were unaware that, due to an error in ordering, the guards had no bullets for the guns they carried.

Hearing To Halt Church Bond Sales Postponed

AUSTIN (AP) — A hearing called today by a State Securities Board official trying to stop the sale of $300,000 in construction bonds by a Wichita Falls church has been postponed.

"The attorney for the church is trying to work out something with us," said Lee Polson, director of the enforcement division of the State Securities Board. "I think something can be worked out."

Polson is trying to halt the Northwest Christian Center of the Assemblies of God from selling the bonds until the church can prove it is able to pay off $2.7 million in bonds issued since February 1979.

In a three-page notice of hearing issued June 15, the board alleged that the sale of $300,000 in additional bonds "would not be in compliance with (state law), would tend to work a fraud on any purchasers thereof and would not be fair, just or equitable to any purchasers thereof because (the church) does not have income sufficient to service its existing debt."

Dan Hill, pastor of the church, called the statement a "bunch of false allegations" last week and predicted that the hearing would not be heard.

About 300 parents whose children attend the church's school met Sunday and signed a document to send to Austin that "states an affirmation of our admiration for the church and for the school," said school superintendent Durhl Causey.

Creditors Give Braniff More Time On Debt

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International and its 39 major creditors may have polished off a tentative agreement that would further postpone the airline's debt payment of more than $600 million, a Dallas newspaper has reported.

Though an announcement from Braniff was expected early today, sources told the Dallas Morning News that attorneys for the airline and creditors met behind closed doors Monday night to finish off a new plan.

Braniff had obtained a 140-day deferral of all debt payments in February, an agreement which ends today. Airline officials had been pleading for a more lenient payback plan for its debts of more than $600 million.

Southeast Texas Accident Claims Five

PINELAND, Texas (AP) — Five persons died late Monday when a tractor trailer rig loaded with 50,000 pounds of loose rice was involved in a collision with an automobile, the Texas Department of Public Safety said today.

DPS spokesman David Wells said Austin said the two vehicles collided at the intersection of U.S. 90 and Farm Road 1 near this Sabine County town in Southeast Texas.

The two vehicles burned following the accident, Wells said.

The victims were identified as Ronnie Dean Kirk, 28, driver of the automobile; his wife, Patsy Ann Kirk, 27, their daughter, Lisa Ann Kirk, 5; their son, Roger Dean Kirk, seven months, and Barry Glenn White, 8, all of Pineland.

Robert Sanders, of Bossier City, La., identified as the driver of the truck, was not injured, Wells said.

Diamond Shamrock To Sell Two Operations

DALLAS (AP) — The chairman and chief executive officer of Diamond Shamrock Corp. says the company will sell its plastics and animal nutrition businesses — two of five businesses the company identified last year as being under consideration for sale.

W.H. Bricker said Monday the company already has sold its foods and human health operations and has elected to keep its metal castings business.

Bricker said neither the plastics nor the animal nutrition businesses "will be able to meet the demanding financial and strategic goals we have established for the 1980s. Negotiations are under way for the sale of both businesses at this time. When the sales are completed, they will provide additional cash for internal investment in our ongoing operations."

He said the discontinuance will result in an estimated charge against income of about $39 million, or $1.76 a share, for the second quarter, which ends Tuesday.

Solons Want Test Flights Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Dallas congressmen have asked the Federal Aviation Administration to stop test flights to and from Runway 13-L at the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Rep. Martin Frost and Rep. Jim Mattox wrote C.R. "Tex" Malugin, FAA southwest regional director, that the noise has presented an extreme problem to residents of Irving.

Testing of the runway should last no longer than 15 days, including the testing days to date, and any remaining tests should be conducted during hours "not so disruptive to the residents of Irving," the Democratic congressmen said.

Weather

West Texas — Partly cloudy, warm and humid through Wednesday. Widely scattered thunderstorms most sections, more numerous with a few locally heavy Panhandle and southwest mountains through tonight. Highs 80s and 90s. Lows mid 60s Panhandle to low 70s south except near 60 mountains.

POW

Officers were not required to work, were allowed to use the recreational facilities until 11 p.m., and were allowed up to $40 a month American money as wages and could spend $15 of that per month on luxuries at the post exchange.

Enlisted men served as orderlies and agricultural beautifully engraved rings and necklaces.

Father John Krukert was pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Umberger at that time and he used some of the Italian prisoners to paint the inside of the church. Beautifully hand-painted murals and pictures painted by the prisoners still remain on the interior walls of the church. The Italians were almost 100 percent devout Catholics and the following nine men were responsible for the work done at the church: Achille Cattanei, Leonidu Gorlato, Mario DeCristofard, Antonio Monet, Enrico Zorri, Kino Gambetti, Nanco DiBello, Amedeo Mareto, Carlo Sani. Their names are inscribed on a plaque just inside the door of the church. DiBello, who was an officer, did most of the work.

Major A.J. Schroeter was also employed at the camp and he recalls the friendliness of the prisoners. "The Post Exchange sent a contingent of POW's to unload cargo at highways 385 and 60. An American guard was sitting behind the truckload of prisoners and the tailgate was not in place. When the truck started off the guard fell out. The prisoners jumped out, picked him up, dusted him off, handed him his gun, and helped him back hands to work the several hundred acres kept in reserve to supply food for the camp.

When civilian farmers and contractors wanted to employ these workers they submitted contracts through Alec Bateman, county agent at that time, and if approved by the Eighth Service Command in Dallas, they could do so.

At the expense of transportation the farmers must have provided, and for 10 cents an hour wages, they had dedicated and enthusiastic workers. That the farmer must have used at least 15 of the workers was one of the very few regulations imposed by the government, and the farmers, whose field help reserve had been depleted by Uncle Sam's call for able bodied men, were glad to hire the prisoners.

Boredome at the camp was a particular problem alleviated by work shops dotting the compound where tools were supplied for the artistically inclined prisoners. Scrap lumber was given them, and from this source of supply came works of art, violins, guitars, drums, chairs, beds and beautiful chests.

From scrap metal they formed models of airplanes, ashtrays, and even from coins they fashioned who spent every day at the camp, the gardens had "risen" about a foot above the flat terrain.

The tunnel was discovered just hours before the prisoners were planning to escape and, according to Phipps, had the men's escape been successful they most likely would not have been found, as the area corn was well over head high.

Another attempt involving a tunnel was when the prisoners were required to clean up the church at the camp for the holidays. Phipps insisted that they pull out the organ and clean behind it, but the prisoners insisted that the organ was "too heavy to move." The prisoners, of course, lost the argument and upon moving the organ the guards found a tunnel that the prisoners had been working on.

Though there were some who wished to escape, life overall was relatively good for the Italian prisoners. Many of the captured Italians had thousands of Lire when they were taken prisoner in North Africa. The money was confiscated and deposited, with the prisoners receiving credit for it. Many of the prisoners invested in War Bonds with the money received during their internment.

Tardy Elected Vice President of TCFLI

Dop C. Tardy, Hereford real estate executive, was elected vice president of Region 1 of the Texas Chapter, Farm and Land Institute, in San Antonio this past week.

The FLI election was part of the annual Texas Association of Realtors convention in San Antonio's Convention Center. Tardy will succeed Jerry Bradshaw of Lubbock in January.

Other FLI posts in 1982 will be held by Craig P. Browne, College Station, president; Sally Frank, Freeport, vice president; J. Leonard Grafa, Denton, secretary; and regional vice presidents: Karl G. King, Wichita Falls, W.A. Brown, GrapeLand, Pat Wieland, El Paso; Joseph Cullinan, San Antonio; Benie Wilber, Winnie, and Bernard F. Cullen, Harlingen. Serving as national governors will be Browne, Wilber, and Bill Beebe, Austin.

Hit and Run Vehicle Located

A Deal Smith County Sheriff's deputy yesterday located a vehicle that was involved in a hit-and-run accident in Canyon Sunday night.

The driver of the vehicle, a juvenile, was turned over to Canyon authorities.

In other county action, Leroy Morrison reported to the Sheriff's office that a food processor was taken from his home southwest of Hereford.

Also, according to the Sheriff's office, John Slotts was arrested for public intoxication.

Major Thefts Reported

Hereford Police received three theft reports over the past two days, as well as assault and criminal mischief reports.

Stanger-Orsburn Buick, 142 N. Mills, reported to Police that sometime Saturday night someone took four wire hubcaps off a 1981 Pontiac. The hubcaps are valued at $200.

Jimmy Gust, of Memphis, reported that sometime between 7-9 p.m. last night someone took a silicone cassette player and approximately six cassette tapes from his car. The car was parked at the bowling alley.

Bobby Moore, 308 Ave. H, told police that last night someone entered her home through a window and took a stained-glass oil lamp.

The burglar also evidently cooked dinner for himself. Damage is estimated at $20.

Also, charges are expected to be filed today in an assault case. Kim King, E. Walnut Road, told police she was assaulted on the Taco Villa parking lot last night. According to police, Miss King was involved in a fight.

Felipe Luna, 319 Miller, reported to Police yesterday that a neighbor kid threw a rock and broke a windshield on his car. The child's parents paid for the windshield.

Police yesterday issued six traffic citations.

At Annual Convention

Members of NAACP Attack President's Economic Policies

DENVER (AP) — After giving President Reagan a polite but cool reception at his annual convention, members of the NAACP have turned their attention to strong attacks on Reagan's economic policies.

During its first day, the 22nd Annual Convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People passed resolutions on Monday condemning the Reagan budget cuts and authorizing NAACP participation in a protest march this fall.

And, after sending Reagan off with smiles and handshakes, the NAACP's two top officers lashed out at the administration's economic programs.

Those programs will wreak "additional hardship, havoc, despair, pain and suffering" on blacks and the poor, said NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks.

In his 20-minute address, Reagan told the NAACP that "government is no longer the strong draft horse of minority progress."

He asserted that government aid programs to minorities have failed and urged the 400,000-member civil rights group to support his tax and budget cuts.

The program of cuts, Reagan said, "will move us toward black economic freedom because it is aimed at lifting the entire country and not just parts of it."

Reagan also vowed to protect blacks' voting rights and never to stray from "our national commitment to battle discrimination."

Hooks termed Reagan's speech "thoughtful" but said the NAACP has little faith in the president's programs.

"We know for a certainty that his budget initiatives, favoring as they do the rich and well-to-do over the least well-off of us... while simultaneously taking those same dollars from the poor, afflicted and aged, are bound to worsen our double-digit inflation," Hooks said.

Reagan was introduced to the convention by NAACP board Chairman Margaret Bush Wilson, a St. Louis attorney, who gently chided the president for failing to accept an invitation to address the NAACP during the 1980 campaign.

But in a speech delivered Monday night, she compared Reagan to the biblical "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" — war, famine, pestilence and death.

Reagan "presides over a government whose major actors seem determined to dismantle or undermine national policies and programs that have fed the hungry, educated the ignorant, cured disease and reined in the forces that would increase the risk of war," Mrs. Wilson said.

She criticized Reagan's foreign policies for "downgrading America's concern for human rights," but saved most of her criticism for the president's domestic programs. She voiced opposition to "block grants" to states, efforts to amend the Voting Rights Act and reductions in education and jobs programs.

Vote

on the outcome.

A close election would send both parties scrambling to line up support among the smaller factions for a governing coalition. But Israel has never had a single-party government in its 33 years of independence although labor was the dominant force until Likud defeated it four years ago.

If neither Peres nor Begin could patch together a majority within six weeks, another election would have to be held.

Prolonged negotiations would put in limbo such crucial matters as the Syrian missile crisis in Lebanon and the long-postponed talks with Egypt on Palestinian autonomy.

Likud won 43 seats to Labor's 32 in the last election. Begin then had no problem forming a coalition with the centrist National Religious Party and several smaller centrist and religious blocs.

The key issues in the campaign included the inflation-wracked economy, the future of Jewish settlements in occupied Arab lands, the continuation of the Mideast peace process and Israel's relations with Egypt, the United States and Western Europe.

Blasts

sources said Rajai and Rafsanjani were called out of the meeting just before the explosion.

Although no group claimed responsibility for the bombing, spokesmen for the Khomeini regime blamed the United States and leftists opposed to clerical domination of the country.

The presidency council issued a "showdown with the enemies of Islam to the last breath."

Several government leaders accused the Mujaheddin Khatami, a group whose leading minds joined with Khomeini, and the Marxist-leaning Fedayeen Khatami.

Amal Shahab Ali Mow-tazeri, the country's second-ranking religious leader, charged that the bombing was the work of "the criminal America and its mercenary agents." Montazeri's son, Hojatoleslam Mohammad Montazeri, was killed in the explosion.

The U.S. government refused to comment, and State Department spokesman Dana Fischer told reporters in Washington: "I simply do not want to dignify such accusations." He added, however, that "we deplore all acts of violence."

Khomeini seemed to link the fugitive Bani-Sadr to the bombing when he asked, "Who are those who are in power? Are they human beings or savage beasts who dare not themselves emerge? They send other people's children... to carry out sabotage."

But government spokesman Behnam Nabavi told reporters in Tehran that Bani-Sadr "may have been informed in advance, but he does not have the power behind him to do such things."

Nabavi said the government has accepted in part Bani-Sadr's reported conditions for coming out of hiding to stand trial. He said the president would be allowed to plead his case and Iranian borders would be sealed.

A Turkish newspaper reported that leaflets circulated in Tehran said Bani-Sadr offered to stand trial if he were allowed three hours on Iranian television and if the army closed off the borders. The leaflets said Bani-Sadr, who has not been seen in public in more than two weeks, would disclose information that would prompt some other leaders to try to flee the country.

In other county action, Rajai, Rafsanjani and other leaders met with Khomeini to consider replacements for the head of the Islamic Republic.

Also, according to the Sheriff's office, John Slotts was arrested for public intoxication.

4-H Reaches Youth In Many Ways

By LOUISE WALKER
County Extension Agent
Today's 4-H program is noted for its flexibility, a feature that makes it the largest youth-serving organization in the country. 4-H is flexible because it's organized in different ways, for different needs, in different places. Organization may take the form of community or neighborhood clubs, project clubs, special interest groups, television, and special activities. Young people may take part in 4-H through any or all of these.

The community or neighborhood 4-H club is associated with an area known to local people, such as a crossroads, a small village, a township, a section of a suburban community, a city block or blocks, or a housing complex. The number of 4-H members in a club may range from five to six to more than 100. This type of 4-H club continues from year to year. Usually both girls and boys belong to the club, enrolling in projects according to their interests.

In many areas, 4-H is organized on a "project club" basis. Young people are encouraged to form these clubs for a year or less. Examples include clubs for gardens, clothing, dairy, automotive, horses, tractors and small engines. These 4-H clubs vary in number of members, and their territory may range from a neighborhood cluster of a few families or a city block to two or three towns or an entire county. In many counties, members of community or neighborhood 4-H clubs may belong to a larger area 4-H project club. Teenagers especially like this system.

In special interest groups, subjects taught depend on special interests and ages of girls and boys and how these relate to community needs. Young people may take part in this kind of intensive short-term group if they do not wish to be members of a 4-H club.

They may get training in bicycle safety, health, first aid and firefighting or for jobs in local businesses.

In the late 1960s a State Cooperative Extension Service produced the first 4-H TV series. That series of 13 half-hour programs about electricity was designed for 9 to 11 year-olds. Since then, several states have developed and shared 4-H TV. Television films or video tapes and educational materials for members and leaders are used in groups or individually. Many have been programmed through school systems. More than 6 million youth enrolled in "Mulligan Stew," the 4-H nutrition television program developed in Extension Service-USDA in the early '70s.

Special educational activities often supplement 4-H programs. These include tours, 4-H junior and teen leader training workshops, achievement programs, camps, state conferences, seminars, recreational leadership training, share-the-fun festivals, career exploration, and exhibitions, fairs and shows.

Two major nationwide events are held for 4-H members each year, National 4-H Congress in late fall in Chicago and National 4-H Conference each spring at the National 4-H Center in Washington, D.C.

Among key events in Texas, are State 4-H Roundup each June at Texas A&M University and State 4-H Congress in July in a major city.

Whichever method suits you best, 4-H has a way for you to learn and have fun in an exciting youth program. Contact the county Extension office for more information.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Ann Landers Entertaining Truckers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been divorced for two years and have teenage children. We live along a major highway and I have always had a thing about 16-wheelers.

After my divorce I bought a CB radio and got to know a lot of the truckers. I enjoy having them over for coffee, lunch and drinks. Some days there are as many as six rigs parked on the highway in front of my house. When it's real cold, the kids double up and some of the drivers spend the night.

I made several trips with one driver. I thought he really loved me and was pretty shook up when I found out he was married and had no intention of leaving his wife. I don't travel with him anymore, but he still stops by when passing through. A real nice guy.

My family doesn't like me being so friendly with truckers. My kids say their classmates call me a "CB Mama" and other names you can't print. My ex-husband says he is going to take the kids away if I don't stop entertaining these guys.

I think he is being unfair. This is my only social life and these truckers are swell company. Please tell me what to do. I will follow your advice.—Falsely Accused In Green Bay

DEAR BAY: I'm sure the truckers are great guys and swell company, but if you value your reputation and want to keep your kids you'd better trim back the numbers to one rig in front of the house at a time—and make sure it belongs to a trucker who is not married. 'Nuff said.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I know exactly what "Desperate In Kitchener" was talking about. I had the same problem.

The kid was 20. I gave him three months' warning in June. By the first of September either have a job, take a minimum of 12 units in junior college or get out. July 15 gave him another reminder. The day came and he was neither employed nor in school, so I changed the locks on the doors and put his clothes in plastic bags on the front porch.

He came home from partying after midnight. When he realized I meant what I said, he started to pound on the door and yell like a crazy man. I called the police. They came right out and told him that since he was over 18 I had a right to keep him out of the house. He swore he'd be back the next day—and he was. I called the police again. Same scene. He finally left but kept harassing me for two weeks.

I finally told his father (we are divorced) to warn the kid that I didn't want to see him until he shaped up.

It took six weeks. He got a job and a roommate and is supporting himself. We are on much better terms now, and I am glad I had the guts to do what I did. It was the hardest thing I ever had to do in my life, but it saved my sanity and made my son grow up and take responsibility for himself.—OK In Oakland

DEAR OK: Too bad you didn't lower the boom sooner. Congratulations on the victory to you and "the kid."

Kathi Bell Feted With Barbecue

A backyard barbecue party honoring Miss Kathi Bell and Don Lee of Canyon was given Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Nieman, 147 Ironwood.

Fifteen couples attended and party games were played by the group.

The couple plans to exchange wedding vows on July 11 at First United Methodist Church here.

Miss Dana Hutchins Feted With Shower

A bridal shower honoring Miss Dana Denise Hutchins, bride-elect of Andrew Everitt Gary, was held Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. Gid Brown. Guests were greeted at the entry way by Mrs. Brown, the honoree, her mother, Mrs. David Hutchins, and the honoree's grandmothers Mrs. Lucille Hutchins and Mrs. C.W. Burford.

Refreshments of sausage balls, cinnamon crisps, and banana bread in a fruit plate with poppy seed dressing, were served from a table laid with a white damask cloth. A silver basket filled with flowers of white and lavender daisies served as centerpiece. Coffee was served from a silver service.

At Wits End

BY ERMA BOMBECK

There's a lot of controversy these days about at what moment life begins.

Equally intriguing to me is at what moment does it end. I've seen some people expire at the age of 22. Their heart continues to beat. The vital signs are intact. They function on a daily basis.

But for all purposes they're "gone." There is no curiosity. There is no anger. They have lost the ability to question anything. They are unimpressed. They are not amused. They stand rigid against new ideas and changes.

The wonderful excitement and zest for discovering what each day brings has been put to rest.

How do you know when you're gone? You'll know. When you sit through a rerun of a television show you hated in the first place and are too lazy to get up and turn the dial.

When you refer to yourself in the past tense. When you wear raggy night clothes to bed and shrug, "Whose gonna see me."

When you say to the motel owner, "I'm checking out" and he says, "I'm not surprised."

Well, if my kids are reading, take note. I'm not ready yet to divide the jewelry. I think I've got a few good years left.

I want to be like 92-year-old Virgil Conner, who recently earned his doctorate in history at Florida State University.

I want to be like 73-year-old Veallon Hixson, who ran her first marathon last year in Phoenix.

I want to be like Arthur Godfrey, who once said to me on the air, "When I'm 70, I want to be named in a paternity suit."

When I'm 80, I want to be saying things like "Well, I never heard THAT before." Or "I'll ask mother. She'll remember." Or "So, let's buy it. We could get a 20-year mortgage on it."

But mostly, I want to be like a woman I knew in Ohio, who at the age of 78 bought a home in Florida and planted a baby palm tree in the front yard.

When a stunned nurseryman said, "Madam, these only grow 10 or 12 inches a year!" she said, "So, when they get higher than the house, we'll have 'em trimmed."

Igal to Participate In 1981 Institute

Saleh W. Igal, of 208 Greenwood, a student at Hereford High School is one of 28 outstanding high school students from across the nation participating in the 1981 Summer Institute in Physics and Computers at Drake University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Igal.

The Institute, which is supported by the National Science Foundation, is intended to provide outstanding high school students with an opportunity to be challenged by their peers and to study an advanced topic in physics. Students in the 1981 Institute at Drake are investigating charged particle dynamics. Activities include computer simulation, lectures and experimental study.

To participate in the Institute students are required to be juniors or seniors in high school, have completed three years of mathematics and one year of physics or chemistry and have at least a B grade average. The 28 students at Drake University were selected from among more than 150 applicants.

Worker Details Passing Secrets

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A veteran radar engineer arraigned with a Polish businessman on spy charges says he was lured by money into a life of espionage and fled to Austria and Switzerland to pass secrets to Polish agents.

William Holden Bell, 61, an employee of Hughes Aircraft Co. for 30 years, told the FBI that he was initiated into spying by Marian W. Zacharski, 29, a Polish national who was his neighbor in a beachfront condominium complex.

Bell's story of code words and exotic foreign meetings, which might have been plucked from the pages of a spy novel, was contained in a seven-page affidavit filed Monday by the FBI at the arraignment of the two men. They are charged in the theft of secrets about radar systems.

Bell, who cooperated in the investigation, was held in lieu of $50,000 bond, but U.S. Magistrate James Penno ordered Zacharski held without bail because of fears he would flee. Neither Bell nor Zacharski entered a plea, and preliminary hearings were set for July.

After confessing to agents during five days of interviews, Bell agreed last Sunday to be "wired" with a concealed tape recorder while he met with Zacharski to discuss whether payment for secret documents would be in gold or cash, according to the affidavit filed by FBI Special Agent George S. Bacon.

It apparently was moments after that talk that agents moved in and arrested both men on charges of delivering defense information to a foreign government. If convicted, they could receive life sentences.

The affidavit said Bell had financial problems when he met Zacharski in late 1977 or early 1978.

At first, Bell said, he tried to steal only unclassified material. But after his first payment from Zacharski in late 1978 or early 1979, he felt obligated to provide classified documents.

"At one point Zacharski gave him a special motion picture camera, capable of taking single-frame exposures, a tripod and 'special' film," the affidavit said.

The court documents indicated that Bell and Zacharski had been under surveillance since early 1979. Neighbors said they frequently played tennis and often watched their children playing together in the pool at their luxurious Playa Del Rey condominium complex.

In September 1979, Bell said, Zacharski told him to begin making trips to Europe for secret meetings with Polish agents who would receive his filmed documents.

The agents, who were strangers to Bell, were to approach him in Austria, the affidavit said, and would speak the code words: "Aren't you a friend of Marian?"

Bell said he met three agents this way, gave them the film and negotiated his spying salary. They promised him $80,000 a year plus $3,000 a month as well as $3,000 to $5,000 in expenses for his overseas meetings with Polish agents.

Prosecutors say Bell received a total of $110,000.

Bank Head Warns of Foreign Aid Cuts

By OWEN ULLMANN and CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writers
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara resigns today as president of the World Bank with a warning that slashing foreign aid would endanger not only help for the poorest nations but the United States' own vital interests.

McNamara is completing 13 years at the head of the 139-nation bank. He is working to the end to convince a skeptical Congress and American public that foreign aid is not a budget item to be tossed out in times of austerity, but a crucial investment in the economic, political and strategic well-being of the United States.

In an interview Monday, McNamara said the House created serious problems last week when it approved a 1982 federal budget that would more than halve U.S. payments to the International Development Association. The IDA is a bank affiliate that provides subsidized loans to the world's poorest nations.

"For all practical purposes it leaves IDA totally bankrupt and the outlook would be very bad, indeed," McNamara said.

Since IDA contributions made by 23 other nations are computed on the size of the U.S. share, which is fixed at 27 percent, "it would require a complete renegotiation of the agreement under which the other governments are committed to provide funds," he said.

McNamara resigned as defense secretary in 1968 — at the height of the Vietnam War — to assume the bank presidency. On Monday, he said there would be strategic repercussions if the United States continues reducing its aid to poor nations, a trend that has been going on for two decades.

"If they (poor countries) fail to produce the food and energy they are capable of, the pressure on scarce supplies of food and energy will raise prices; it will stimulate inflation in our country," he said.

"If they have economic disorder, it translates into political disorder, and political disorder in various parts of the world overflows and affects us strategically."

Two years ago, the United States promised to contribute $3.24 billion to the IDA over a three-year period, beginning in 1981. The House, however, voted to limit the contribution to $1.34 billion.

The United States already is one year overdue in making its first payment, while other contributing countries have fulfilled their initial pledges totaling $2.4 billion.

Paul Harvey News Hear Ye, Hear Ye

President Reagan has said that he wants to people the Supreme Court with individuals who will "interpret the law — not enact new law by judicial fiat."

So far so good. He promised that one of his first appointments — not the first necessarily — would be the most competent woman he could find.

So far so good. But in the selection of Supreme Court Justices there should be other considerations than just ideology. Hopefully, President Reagan will select for appointment to the High Court men or women in their '50s — thus to ensure that they'll be around for a while. Justice Douglas, remember, altered our nation's history largely because of his 36-year impact on it. Also, it takes energy to do the job right. Justices will vote on whether to handle some 4,000 cases each year while the average judicial practitioner will deal with only a tenth that many.

Further, the president will want to consider relevant experience — preferably an Appeals Court judgeship.

It is desirable, though not essential, that the appointee have trial court experience also.

It will advantage the nominee enormously if his academic credentials are impeccable. Justice Rehnquist — though conservative — manages to escape condemnation by the Academy because of his recognized and respected intellect.

Without that foundation, any nominee is pregnable to liberal critics who can undermine his effectiveness.

His philosophical moorings should be sufficiently secure so that he cannot be unduly influenced by Washington's sophisticated elite, the media, the academy, or by his own law clerks.

He should be able to write clear and concise opinions. Too many Supreme Court opinions are written to please the law school professors who prefer opinions so complex that they are needed to interpret them.

What about the nominee's predilections. Is he strong or weak on the yet-to-be-decided questions relating to religion, family, federalism and the exclusionary rule relating to limits on evidence. From Escobido to Miranda our court has played a game of technicalities, with the guilt of the accused comparatively irrelevant.

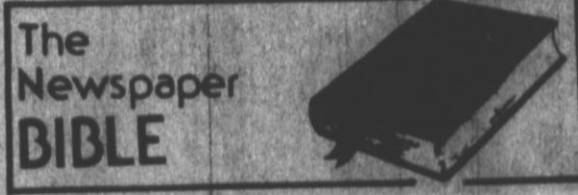

Since the media parroting the Washington Post is suggesting several liberals — may I suggest some other names: Bork, Oakes, Clifford, Wallace.

And if the president wants a woman who is solid — here's a wild card he could submit: Sandra O'Connor.

She was a high level law student at Stanford, was majority leader in the Arizona Senate, has trial court experience, is now an Appellate Judge in Arizona. Competent, judicially experienced, soundly oriented.

Who's on the Supreme Court is some ways more significant than who's in the White House. The philosophy of a president can be constrained by other branches of government.

The word of the Court is the last word.

THEY CALLED HIM 'SHORTY' BUT HE STOOD MIGHTY TALL!

As Jesus was passing through Jericho, a man named Zacchaeus, one of the most influential Jews in the Roman tax-collecting business (and, of course, a very rich man), tried to get a look at Jesus, but he was too short to see over the crowds.

So he ran ahead and climbed into a sycamore tree beside the road, to watch from there.

When Jesus came by He looked up at Zacchaeus and called him by name! "Zacchaeus!" He said. "Quick! Come down! For I am going to be a guest in your home today!"

Zacchaeus hurriedly climbed down and took Jesus to his house in great excitement and joy.

But the crowds were displeased. "He has gone to be the guest of a notorious sinner," they grumbled.

Meanwhile, Zacchaeus stood before the Lord and said, "Sir, from now on I will give half my wealth to the poor, and if I find I have overcharged anyone on his taxes, I will penalize myself by giving him back four times as much!"

Jesus told him, "This shows that salvation has come to this home today. This man was one of the lost sons of Abraham, and I, the Son of Mankind, have come to search for and to save such souls as his."

Boy In Coma After Dental Surgery

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager who suffered either a heart attack or respiratory failure while having four wisdom teeth removed at a dentist's office remains in critical condition in a coma at an Arlington hospital, an attorney says.

Darrell Keith, a lawyer who has been retained by the Bhusahn Bajaj family, said Monday he has some "very serious questions... about the methods and doses of anesthetic administered" to 18-year-old Vikram-Jeet Bajaj.

Bajaj apparently suffered a cardiac arrest or respiratory failure Friday after Dr. Edward Menton, an Arlington oral surgeon, administered an anesthetic intravenously, Keith said.

The youth "is in very critical condition ... with minimal brain activity," Keith said late Monday night. A hospital spokesman confirmed Keith's report about the youth's condition.

Dr. Menton could not be reached for comment late Monday.

The Arlington attorney said it was "premature to comment on whether litigation will be brought as a result of (the teen-ager's) respiratory or cardiac arrest and resulting coma."

Keith said he was hired to investigate the circumstances surrounding the administration of anesthesia and what proceedings took place during that time.

"It is my understanding that the victim's respiratory arrest occurred at a time the oral surgeon may or may not have been in the room and it is unknown whether any other health care providers, such as a nurse, were present in the room when he experienced the respiratory or cardiac arrest," he said.

Keith said Mr. and Mrs. Bajaj had seen in Dr. Menton's office about an hour and a half Friday "when they overheard some commotion in the office by the doctor's staff."

"They were told their son had experienced a cardiac arrest and had been transferred to Arlington Memorial (hospital)," he said.

Keith says the dentist has talked to the family, but added that he didn't know what was said.

"Certainly there are very serious questions that have been raised by the family about ... the drug administered and the practice and procedures used to monitor their son while he was at the oral surgeon's office."

Keith said he was not aware that Bajaj had any medical problems that might have increased the probability of complications.

The family moved to the United States from India about 18 years ago and the teen-ager had been to Dr. Menton once before, the lawyer said.

Lubbock Chosen As Site For Forums on Aging

Texas delegates to the national White House Conference on Aging have selected Lubbock as one of five regional sites for a series of open forums on aging they will conduct in June and July.

The forums will assist the Texas delegates in preparing for the Washington conference (Nov. 30-Dec. 4), an event held every 10 years to mold U.S. policies on aging issues.

The Lubbock forum will be held July 9, beginning at 9:30 a.m., at Lubbock Christian College. Serving as coordinators for the meeting are Dr. Gail House and Gayle McComb of Lubbock, two of the 76 delegates who will represent Texans, especially those residing in the Panhandle, South Plains, and North Texas region, are invited to participate in the Lubbock meeting, according to Mrs. Chris Kyker, Texas conference coordinator.

Recommendations for resolving some of the major problems facing the state's elderly, as proposed at the recent State White House Conference on Aging, will be reviewed and validated at the regional forum.

From these recommendations, specific action plans will be developed for meeting priority needs of older Texans, at local, state and national levels.

Still No Progress Seen in 19th Day of Strike

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

Their Manhattan offices are separated by only about a half dozen short city streets, but the striking Major League Players Association and baseball's Player Relations Committee remained much farther apart than that today.

No talks were scheduled in the walkout, which has shut down baseball for 19 days and almost certainly has added the July Fourth holiday weekend, traditionally one of the sport's top gate attractions, to its mounting casualty count.

Both sides talked briefly with Federal Mediator Kenneth Moffett on Monday but no progress at resuming negotiations was reported. Donald Fehr, general counsel of the players association, thinks the stalemate over compensation to teams losing free agents is the re-entry draft is destined to continue for a long time.

"I believe a significant number of owners have written off the season," said Fehr. "If that happens, then the strike will still be on next April. If the summer is over, there is a lot less incentive to settle it over the winter. The owners think the players will collapse but they won't. This thing could go on forever."

Meanwhile, the players missed an entire paycheck for the first time today. Players are paid on the 15th and 30th of each month.

Fehr characterized a revised management proposal on compensation made at last week's bargaining sessions as "so minimal...not something that will lead to an agreement."

Management reduced its formula for defining ranking players who would qualify for compensation from 50 and 33 percent to 40 and 25 percent and increased the number of second level players who may be protected in any compensation from 18 to 20 last week.

"It's like somebody driving up to your house in an old, broken down car with no engine, no wheels, the windshield shattered and the tail light broken and asking you to buy it," said Fehr. "You say, 'No,' and so, the next day, he comes back with the car fixed. Will you buy it then?"

Fehr said the next move is up to management.

"But as far as the players are concerned, it's been their move for a long time."

Elsewhere on the strike front, a federal judge in Philadelphia refused to return to state court a suit filed by the Major League Umpires Association, which seeks to block payments from a $50 million strike insurance policy. The insurance provides the owners with $100,000 for every canceled game after a 153-game deductible.

Judge Donald Van Arsdale last Friday dissolved a temporary injunction won by the umpires in state court and then denied a petition to return the case to the state court's jurisdiction on Monday. "It seems to me there is federal jurisdiction," Judge Van Arsdale said. "There are federal questions of collective bargaining and unfair labor practices."

Attorney Richie Phillips, representing the umpires, appealed the ruling.

In another Philadelphia courtroom, two fans filed a $10 million civil suit against both sides in the stalemate.

William Halloran and Maury Galonoy charged "intentional and reckless disregard for the rights of others," and charged that the players and owners had "injured and damaged innocent bystanders," by denying the fans their right to see baseball games.

The suit added that the public will be subjected to violent crimes by individuals unable "to rid themselves of tensions and problems," by attending games.

In Cincinnati, Mayor David Mann met with civic leaders seeking ways to cut the city's economic losses in the strike.

Mann said that every game the Reds fail to play at Riverfront Stadium costs the city about $900,000.

"I don't think we'll ever make things as though there wasn't a baseball strike," the mayor said. "But I think we can cut our losses."

Another meeting to develop specific plans was scheduled for today.

Umpires Appeal Judge's Ruling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Major league umpires have appealed a ruling that a federal judge had authority to dissolve a temporary injunction barring Lloyd's of London from paying club owners strike insurance.

U.S. District Court Judge Donald Van Arsdale, who on Friday had nullified the state court injunction aimed at blocking up to $50 million in insurance benefits, ruled Monday that the federal courts did indeed have jurisdiction in the case.

The umpires, represented by sports attorney Richie Phillips, then appealed Van Arsdale's order to the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Attorneys for Lloyd's, however, insisted that the court would not accept Phillips' petition. "It is not an appealable right," they said.

Van Arsdale made his ruling from the bench after an hour of testimony. "The motion to remand (to the state court) is denied," he said. "It seems to me there is federal jurisdiction... There are federal questions of collective bargaining and unfair labor practices and there is diversity of citizenship because Lloyd's is based in a foreign country."

The suit contended that the insurance payments are an incentive for the owners to prolong the 18-day-old players' strike.

The class action complaint was filed last Wednesday, the day the strike benefits were activated, in Philadelphia Common Pleas Court — a state court with jurisdiction within Philadelphia County.

Local Drag Racer Takes First Place

A local drag racer Saturday took first place in racing competition at Lubbock Dragway.

George Pacheco of Hereford won the event in his Chevy II wagon.

Pacheco is sponsored by Jerry's Automotive and Machine of Dimmitt.

The event was held during each performance.

The first section of the team roping will be held Sunday, June 28, beginning at 9 a.m. Approximately 250 teams are expected to enter.

The roping should last until the middle of the afternoon, and there is no charge for admission. The public is welcome.

General admission tickets are $4. Box seats are $4.50, and tickets for children 6-12 are $2. Children under six years of age are admitted free.

Borg, McEnroe, Connors Stay in Lead

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It is hardly the Wimbledon quarterfinals the experts predicted.

Tim who? Rod who? Tim is Tim Mayotte of Springfield, Mass., 20, the current NCAA champion who turned professional two weeks ago and has played only one grass court tournament before in his life.

Rod is Rod Frawley, a late developing Australian who has suddenly emerged from the pack at age 28. Each has dropped only one set on the way to the quarterfinals, and both have attracted little attention. The headlines belonged to the consistent tennis of Bjorn Borg, the antics of John McEnroe and the grunting of Jimmy Connors.

Mayotte's Wimbledon victims include John Sadri and Sandy Mayer, both feared grass court players.

Frawley had a rather easier path to the final eight, but has beaten the world's top junior, Thierry Tulasne of France, and the extrovert Brazilian Carlos Kirmayr.

A victory over Frawley today would allow the tall, powerful Mayotte to emulate one of the men whose footsteps he followed at both Stanford University and as NCAA champion McEnroe.

Four years ago, McEnroe came to Wimbledon as an unheralded amateur and reached the semifinals. Mayotte is one match away from equalling that feat. He also is only one match away from a possible semifinal meeting with McEnroe.

Seeded second here, McEnroe, the left-handed, 22-year-old New Yorker, faced speedy South African Johan Kriek in today's quarters. McEnroe annihilated the South African in the WCT Finals in Dallas earlier this year, winning 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The other two quarterfinal matches pitted Borg, going for his sixth consecutive Wimbledon title, against 12th-seeded Peter McNamara of Australia and Connors against Vijay Amritraj of India.

Amritraj has won four of his nine meetings with Connors.

Meanwhile, 18-year-old Pam Shriver has something to prove to herself — that she can win a string of great matches and not just one.

She played a great match Monday, defeating her 18-year-old rival Tracy Austin 7-5, 6-4 to reach the Wimbledon semifinals. It earned her a crack at top-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, who has beaten her in all seven of their previous meetings.

The statistics will not worry seventh-seeded Shriver too much. The 5-foot-11 Lutherville, Md., player, who will turn 19 on Saturday, ended an 11-match losing streak against Austin in front of a packed crowd of 34,000 on Wimbledon's center court and said afterward she was full of confidence for the semifinals.

"That must be my greatest win," she said. "I played an almost perfect match."

"I now know I can play a great match. Now we are going to see if I can string together a sequence of great matches."

"Today was good for me. I couldn't ask for anything better before playing Chris."

Lloyd, who defeated Shriver, then 16 years old, in the final of the United States

Open three years ago, defeated 10th-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-2, 6-2 in a little over an hour to clinch her place in the semifinals.

"It doesn't worry me who I'm playing," said Lloyd, who reached the semis for the 10th straight year.

"I like playing Pam because she is a serve-and-volley player. That gives me something to aim at — and she's a pretty big target," Lloyd joked.

Lloyd, 26, had very little to worry about Monday. The chunky Jausovec, who had earlier upset fifth-seeded Andrea Jaeger, did not have the consistency to disturb the No. 1 seed.

The Yugoslav player mixed up her shots intelligently but made too many unforced errors. The other semifinal is a much tougher match, according to the seedings, with second-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia playing Czechoslovakian-born Martina Navratilova, who is seeded No. 4.

Mandlikova overwhelmed Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-0, 6-0 in 40 minutes, while Navratilova ousted Virginia Ruzici of Romania 6-2, 6-3.

Turnbull was hampered by a wrist injury, but Mandlikova, the 19-year-old reigning French Open and Australian Open champion who is halfway to the Grand Slam, said: "I know the result looks easy on paper, but I had to work for every point."

Ali to Fight Again

CHICAGO (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali, sidelined with a bout of pneumonia, says he will fight several exhibition matches in September.

"I'm going to get my weight down and fight exhibitions, probably in September at Madison Square Garden," Ali said Monday in an interview with radio station WLUP-FM. "I'll whip them both in the same night, but if they can put it on me and I don't have it, I will formally retire."

All, 39, the only boxer ever to gain the heavyweight title on three separate occasions, added, "I want to prove to people that that wasn't me the night of the (champion Larry Holmes) fight. I don't want to go out like that."

"I can still dance, I can still fight," he said.

All entered Provident Hospital several days ago with a bout of walking pneumonia and said he expects to be released within two days.

Tennessee Lawyer Appears Before Grand Jury

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The wife of a man missing since one of the nation's largest cocaine seizures says her attorney, Gordon Ball, appeared before a federal grand jury in Houston on Monday after he was subpoenaed.

Ball, of Newport, Tenn., appeared before the federal panel and returned to Tennessee on Monday, Holly Kageler, his client and wife of Charles Leslie Kageler, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

Kageler, 47, is wanted by federal officials on charges that he jumped a pre-sentencing bond by assuming an alias, moving to Gatlinburg, and being at the Sevierville-Gatlinburg Airport the night an airplane carrying 614 pounds of cocaine landed from Colombia.

Ball has represented Mrs. Kageler in one court appearance in Sevierville to try to recover property seized in a police search of her Gatlinburg home after the cocaine haul.

Ball's grand jury appearance in Houston came as a retired pilot accused of flying the plane full of cocaine was arraigned at Sevier County courthouse.

After Monday's arraignment, Clarence Dennis Newell, 51, was moved to Jefferson County Jail to be separated from Kageler's son, Charles Leslie Kageler Jr., 24, a Lubbock, Texas pilot charged in the case. Newell and the senior Kageler are former pilots with Texas International Airlines.

"He's been subpoenaed," Mrs. Kageler said about Ball. "It's probably something to do with jumping bond."

Ball was accompanied to the grand jury session by attorney Robert Ritchie of Knoxville. Ritchie, who returned from Texas late Monday night, refused to comment. Ball could not be reached for comment Monday night.

Mrs. Kageler's father, Cecil Holliman, 68, of Houston, also was subpoenaed. "They asked him if he had heard from Les and he told them he thought he was dead," Mrs. Kageler said about her father's testimony.

George Kelt, an assistant U.S. attorney in Houston, said he met both Tennessee attorneys Monday. But Kelt, citing laws that prohibit him from discussing cases before a grand jury, declined further comment.

Kelt was one of the federal prosecutors who handled the bond revocation hearing on Kageler shortly after federal and state agents seized the cocaine on March 24 from a Beechcraft Queen Aire 80 twin-engine plane.

The plane landed the previous night, and Tennessee Bureau of Investigation agent Bob Denney told federal officials in Texas that Kageler was at the airstrip when he went there to check out the plane. But Kageler and three other men fled.

After hearing the allegations at the bond revocation hearing in March, U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue issued an arrest warrant for Kageler and raised his $1,000 bond to $1 million. Kageler had been free pending an appeal on a tax evasion conviction last November.

The senior Kageler and Gerald Hemp, 42, a Gatlinburg neighbor, were negotiating with local officials to lease the Sevierville airport prior to the cocaine haul. Shortly after the seizure, Internal Revenue Service agents accused each man of owing more than $3 million to the federal government for income earned from January to March 30.

In Sevierville on Monday, Newell waived the reading of allegations against him at his arraignment as Circuit Court Judge Kenneth Porter entered an innocent plea for him because his attorney was absent.

Porter gave Houston attorney Harry Noe 14 days to file motions for his client, who is charged with one count of possession of cocaine. No trial date was set.

Porter, who set Newell's bond at $1 million, first refused District Attorney General Al Schmutzer's request to imprison Newell in the Dan-tridge jail about 40 miles north of here. But after talking with Schmutzer, Porter allowed the move.

Schmutzer's request came after Sevier County Sheriff Carman Townsend said it was impossible to keep Newell separated from Kageler's son. Newell and the junior Kageler have been charged with possession of cocaine and conspiracy to deliver the drug.

Newell, arrested May 18 in Noe's Houston office, fought extradition before agreeing earlier this month to be moved to Sevierville last Friday.

'General Hung' True American

NEW YORK (AP) — Posters of American jet fighters and of Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign plaster his bedroom walls. His high school classmates nicknamed him "the General" and call him "ultra-conservative."

So it didn't seem remarkable to them that their friend should apply for, and win, admittance to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, class of 1965.

What is remarkable is that the skinny, bespectacled 17-year-old who checks into the military academy on the banks of the Hudson River Wednesday was 5½ years ago a refugee from America's most unpopular war — and unable to say even "yes" and "no" in English.

Hung Vu is one of the first two Southeast Asian refugees to be accepted into the ranks of this country's military elite as a citizen — a brand new citizen as of June 1.

For the quiet, personable youth, joining "the long, gray line" is the crowning achievement of what he called "the most difficult years" of his life, starting Oct. 9, 1975, when he arrived here with his family, confused, homeless and depressed.

For his father, Tu Vu — a 10-year Vietnam Air Force veteran, three-time refugee and "stateless person" for five years — it caps the dream he has had for his family since war forced them to move from North Vietnam to South Vietnam in 1954, to neighboring Laos in 1968 and to France in May 1975, days before South Vietnam fell to the communists.

Aided by the Catholic Relief Services, for whom Tu Vu has worked both in Laos and Manhattan, the family reached the United States five months later.

Life was not easy. Tu Vu worked a second job as a United Nations security guard to support his wife and two children. He helped his wife shop until she learned English through a night course. Hung "didn't even know how to say 'yes' or 'no' when he arrived," the Rev. Robert Charlebois, Tu Vu's employer, said.

"At first it was so frustrating," Hung said. "For my first (school) report I had to look up almost every word from the dictionary, and I couldn't understand the questions on the tests."

But within six months of his arrival, Hung had decided one thing — he wanted a military career.

"My friends think I'm crazy and joke that I'm ultra-conservative, but they still respect me," said the honors graduate of Newtown High School in Queens.

Perhaps because of the war he survived, national defense is one of Hung's deep interests. His convictions, expressed in a mature, three-page statement on why he wanted to attend West Point, were what impressed the admissions board "right off the bat," said Capt. Blanche Mazur, his admissions officer.

He wrote about freedom and the fear of losing it. He also expressed fear that the citizens of his new country may not care.

"Most young men no longer feel responsible for fighting for this nation's freedom, the freedom that has made America what it is today — the greatest nation on Earth," he wrote.

Perhaps, he said, America is in this "confused" state because they are not being offered leadership. "I am willing to be a part of that leadership," he wrote.

"We don't get that many thought-provoking letters," Ms. Mazur said. "Oh, we get some applicants talking about patriotism, but you could tell his was genuine and you knew where it came from. Plus, there was no extra credit he had to be given. He earned everything himself."

His long list of achievement includes a four-year grade-point average of 90.97, a state Regents scholarship, Scholastic Aptitude Test marks of 520 in English and 620 in math out of a perfect 800, and membership in the Civil Air Patrol, the National Honor Society and student government.

Sweepstakes Winner Never Entered

BRYANTVILLE, Mass. (AP) — Marian and Steve Smolinsky, retirees who live on Social Security, were mystified when their names showed up on a winning Irish sweepstakes ticket worth $153,000.

They had never purchased a ticket and hadn't received one as a gift. Without a ticket stub it wasn't even clear that they could collect.

But sweepstakes organizers in Dublin say that even if the mysterious benefactor who bought the Smolinskys a ticket doesn't step forward, the couple can still claim their prize. All they have to do is prove their identities and they're in the money.

The Smolinskys first heard Saturday that they apparently had won one of the two top prizes in the Irish Hospital Sweeps Derby. The horse race had been run earlier that day in Dublin and won by the Aga Khan's horse Shergar. Khan is an internationally known religious leader.

Their name and address was on the winning ticket slip held by the sweepstakes organizers, derby officials said in Dublin.

"It's impossible," Mrs. Smolinsky said when told the news. "Someone called from Ireland this morning, and my husband just said they were crazy."

The Smolinskys, inundated with calls, have stopped answering their telephone. They have said repeatedly they would not believe their luck until they got official word from the sweepstakes organizers.

That will be on its way to them shortly along with an official claim form, Joe Macken, public relations officer for the event, told The Associated Press from Dublin.

"In the past, there have been occasions where payments have been made where a winning ticket has been lost or is otherwise unavailable," he said Monday.

"In this case, the trustees would require an authorized statement — probably something sworn before a lawyer — that the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Smolinsky of...Bryantville, as named on the counterfoil, before forwarding the money," he said.

Smolinsky, 66, a retired baker, and his 63-year-old wife are the only couple by that name in Bryantville.

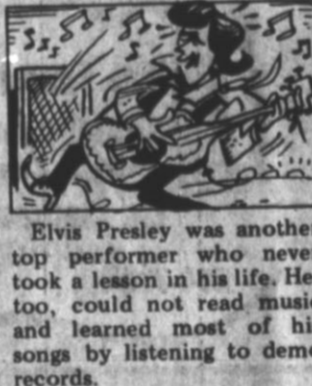

Macken suggested that "maybe somebody bought them the ticket and put it in his or her pocket and simply forgot to give it to them or to tell them about it."

Sweepstakes organizers traced the winning ticket back to a batch of 100 sold at the Limerick Inn in Ireland's County Clare, Macken said. The inn is near Shannon International Airport, which is used by thousands of American visitors each year.

A daughter, 35-year-old

Marian Smolinsky of Brockton, Mass., said her parents were "overwhelmed" by the news.

"I guess they'll accept the money...I assume they would," Miss Smolinsky said. "They haven't talked about what they'd do with it."

Q. After checking out the starter and recharging the battery I'm still at a loss to explain why my 1974 LTD sounds so sluggish when it starts. Any suggestions?

A. Check your battery first, then cables and terminals. If naked cable shows anywhere, replace the cable. If cables are OK, remove cables at battery posts and clean both terminals and posts. Next, check for a frequently overlooked condition called "hydrostatic lock". This is caused by water in a cylinder. Liquid cannot be compressed, and its presence keeps the piston from going all the way on the compression stroke. To check, remove sparkplugs and attempt to crank the engine. If it now cranks briskly, water probably is leaking into cylinders. Remove the cylinder head and check for cracks. The block, particularly around valve parts also should be examined.

Silverman Resigning From NBC, Source Confirms

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred Silverman, once considered a wizard of TV programming, will resign his position as president of NBC and will be replaced by producer Grant Tinker, sources at the network told The Associated Press today.

Tom Brokaw, the host of NBC's morning "Today" show, and Roger Mudd, NBC News's chief Washington correspondent, will assume the duties of co-anchors of the "NBC Nightly News," said the sources, who asked not to be identified.

John Chancellor, the current anchorman, will become a commentator, the sources said.

NBC's profits have dropped from about $150 million in 1977 to about $80 million last year, less than one-third the profit reported by ABC and CBS. And NBC has lagged in the prime-time ratings.

Silverman, former programming chief at ABC, was hired by NBC to improve the network's ratings and profits.

He could not immediately be reached for comment in Hawaii, where he was vacationing.

A spokesman for NBC would say only that a forthcoming announcement from the network's parent company, RCA, would concern "a change in NBC's management."

Tinker, 55, worked in the programming department of NBC from 1961 to 1967, and his MTM Productions is considered one of the best independent television studios in Hollywood.

MTM, named for Tinker's former wife, actress Mary Tyler Moore, makes "Lou Grant" and other prime-time television shows.

The reported decision by Brokaw to join the "NBC Nightly News" team will silence rumors that Brokaw would join CBS or ABC when his contract expires in July.

NBC spokesman Bill McAndrew said Brokaw, co-anchor of the morning news and features program since 1976, was negotiating a new contract with NBC on Monday night.

The New York Times said Brokaw's new multi-year contract would call for $1 million a year. The newspaper said he would take over the co-anchor slot next spring.

Brokaw, 41, had made it known he was less than enthusiastic about remaining on the "Today" show, where his salary has been an estimated $400,000 a year.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Less than a month after the Legislature ratified new boundary lines for state House and Senate districts, the entire redistricting process is in upheaval again.

Governor Bill Clements has vetoed the plan for the Senate, thereby allowing the plan to be redrawn by the constitutionally provided redistricting board, composed of five state officials.

The board, headed by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, tried to meet for the first time last week, but postponed action pending the outcome of a lawsuit filed last week which challenges the new House districts.

The class action lawsuit, with three legislators heading up the list of plaintiffs, charges that counties have been illegally split in each of the five major metropolitan areas: Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston and El Paso, as well as Laredo and Amarillo.

A state district judge was scheduled to hear the case this week. If the judge finds for the plaintiffs, the new House districts will be invalidated and the redistricting board will assume the task of drawing an acceptable plan.

Congressional Redistricting

Meanwhile, Clements has not backed down one iota from his announced intent to veto any plan approved during the coming special session which does not provide for a black congressional district in his home town of Dallas.

The Legislature adjourned last month without reaching a compromise on new congressional districts. Due to population growth, Texas is entitled to create three new congressional districts.

Clements & Blacks

Clements has been insistent in his desire to create a predominantly black state senate and congressional district in Dallas.

He has publicly and loudly said the Dallas blacks must get a fair shake.

That's a worthy cause, but some legislators are saying Clements has other motives hidden behind the civil rights banner.

The real targets are liberal Democrats who are a pain in the neck to Clements: State Sen. Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, and congressmen Martin Frost and Jim Mattox.

Perhaps the most influential black in the Legislature,

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, was highly critical of Clement's statements concerning the veto of the Senate plan.

"Clements doesn't care about blacks and he never has, but blacks are protected by the Voting Rights Act and Republicans are not."

Washington said the Senate plan had "a Dallas district that in excess of 66 percent minority. Is Clements suggesting that blacks are so lethargic and lazy that we cannot elect one of our own without packing all of us into one district?"

Mauzy, Two GOPs

Washington was referring to the Dallas district, now represented by Mauzy. Clements may have a problem because Mauzy, a white liberal, is in good standing with blacks and has been repeatedly re-elected in predominantly minority district.

And Clements is probably more worried about the political survival of two Republican senators from Dallas who find themselves paired in a new district: Dee Travis and John Leedom. Travis, however, is expected to run for Congress.

Dallas Congressmen

That brings up the issue of congressional districts in Dallas. Clements says he wants a district cut where a black can win. Be that the case, the plan he has in mind will do that and weaken two liberal Democrats, Frost and Mattox, at the same time. Clements has already called Mattox "a disaster" and vowed he must go.

The Libs

If the Democrats dominated the Senate plan, not all Democrats were pleased. Two members of the House liberal faction, John Bryant, D-Dallas, and Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite, said they welcomed Clements' veto of the Dallas senatorial plan.

Lyon, in fact, had already drawn up the papers for a lawsuit challenging the Senate plan.

Bryant and Lyon oppose the plan because it would divide Dallas County into six different districts, many largely rural in character.

Conspiracy Ruled Out In Assault Conviction

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A state judge has ruled there is "absolutely no evidence" of a conspiracy against Kenneth Bora, but says he will study the possibility that prosecutors suppressed evidence in an assault case for which the former nightclub operator was convicted.

Attorneys for Bora, serving a 20-year prison term for shooting undercover narcotics agent Benjamin Creig Matthews in September 1979, argued last week that Bora should get a new trial because new evidence had been discovered and because certain Tyler officials had conspired to "get Bora at all cost."

Bora was one of about 120 people indicted in a massive Smith County drug bust that resulted from Matthews' undercover work in 1978 and 1979. Although he was tried three times on drug charges, Bora never was convicted, but was found guilty of shooting Matthews five months later.

argued that witnesses had been found who said someone other than Bora shot Matthews, but Carroll said one of the witnesses was lying.

Michael Gray, who was one of those arrested in the giant bust, testified that David Ashcraft had bragged in jail that he gunned down Matthews in a south Tyler mobile home.

Carroll said Gray's story was "perjured testimony, and that Gray 'lied intentionally and knowingly' out of vindictiveness toward Ashcraft, whom he blamed for his incarceration."

guards at the Majdanek concentration camp in German-occupied Poland, one of the largest built by the Nazis to carry out their "final solution" to the Jewish question." In addition to Jews, it held Gypsies, Ukrainians, Russians, Poles, homosexuals, retarded persons and other "undesirables."

Estimates of the number who died there range from 250,000 to 1.5 million between the opening of the camp in 1941 and its liberation by Soviet troops in 1944.

The trial began Nov. 26, 1975, and the court heard testimony from more than 300 witnesses in Germany, Israel, Poland, the Soviet Union, Australia, Canada and the United States.

The prosecutors asked for three consecutive life sentences for Mrs. Ryan, 61, who was extradited from the United States for falsifying her citizenship papers. Judge Guenter Bogen handed down two life sentences for her.

Witnesses at the trial said she was known as "The Stomping Mare" because she trampled prisoners to death with steel-studded boots. She was convicted of child murder and selecting prisoners for the gas chambers.

Former Camp Guard Gets Life Sentence

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan, the concentration camp guard who married a GI and lived as a New York housewife, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for her part in the death of more than 100,000 prisoners at the Majdanek death camp during World War II.

Seven other defendants were given prison sentences ranging from three to 12 years at the conclusion of West Germany's longest war crimes trial.

A ninth defendant, former SS Cpl. Heinrich Groffmann, was acquitted because of insufficient evidence.

The prosecutors had recommended the acquittal of Groffmann, but all the sentences were less than they requested. The verdicts set off shouts of protests from some of the scores of spectators in the packed courtroom.

"Nothing learned in five and a half years!" shouted one. Others yelled "Giant Scandal!" "An outrage to the victims!" and "Nazi murderers behind bars!"

There was a similar uproar in 1979 when four other defendants were freed for lack of evidence.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

Reports

AUSTIN — We were able to pass so many agricultural bills during the last session of the Legislature that we could not tell you about all of them in one column.

One important bill we passed is known as the "Right-to-Farm Act." It addresses a problem that has plagued agricultural operations for years — nuisance suits.

The problem usually occurs when a city or town grows into the country. A farmer, rancher, or feedlot operator may find himself next-door neighbors with a subdivision. Before too long, the suburbanites start to complain about the noise or the smell. So they sue and many times the farmer or rancher has to shut down.

We believe this result is unjust for at least two reasons. One is that agriculture is too important to be subject to the whims of city people who do not understand it. Another is that the farmer was there first.

Under the new law, if the agricultural operation was there at least one year before the city, the agricultural operation may stay in operation. But more than that, the farmer or rancher may make the person who sues him pay all costs of court, attorney's fees and any other expenses he incurs defending his agricultural operation.

In plain English, it no longer will cost people money to defend their right to make a living feeding their neighbors.

We all recognize that people are moving to Texas in record numbers. These people, along with those born and raised here, need a place to live. But people also need to eat, and agriculture has taken a beating from other interests in recent years. We do not want to give agriculture an unfair advantage, we simply want to restore balance.

It is time for all of us to realize that land is a limited resource. Both farmland and farmers are disappearing at record rates. Once arable land is converted to another use, it is never recovered. Similarly, once a farmer quits farming, he rarely returns.

We have a balance of people on both sides of this issue in our district. We hope to hear what those of you on both sides have to say. Please write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Show us a neighbor with a black eye and we'll lay odds he just stepped on the garden rake he left under the leaves last autumn.

He is very much alive, but the boss refers scathingly to a perennially tardy colleague as his late employee.

9 Number Zip Coming Into Being

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hyphenated, nine-number ZIP code is coming into being. But its use will be voluntary and the Postal Service says it expects only mass mailers — firms that drop half a million letters into the mailbox at a time — will use it.

And it is unlikely that any mail you get will be bearing the extra numbers for some time to come.

Regulations published in the Federal Register on Monday will put the nine-digit ZIP into effect by amending existing Postal Service regulations.

Postal Service spokesman Bob Becker said today businesses are free to start using the longer code at once, although he does not expect many to do so.

Starting late in July, 15 million businesses and government agencies that generate and get large quantities of mail will be notified of their own unique nine-digit ZIP codes so they can start putting them on their return addresses.

Efforts are still under way in Congress to block the Postal Service from using the longer code. If successful, these would derail Postal Service plans.

The service says it anticipates an annual $480 million saving in manpower cost by 1987 as a result of greater use of automation made possible by the use of the nine-digit code.

Under the new system, businesses with mass mailings will be able to borrow without charge for 60 days the U.S. Postal Service's national computer tapes, which contain the ZIP-plus-four codes for every address in the nation.

The borrowers' computers will be able to pull from the Postal Service tapes the longer ZIPs of the addresses on the borrowers' mailing lists.

"While use of the ZIP-plus-four code is completely voluntary, the Postal Service hopes that mailers will adjust their addressing practices on a schedule appropriate to their needs and begin to use it over the next several years," the Postal Service said.

"Widespread use, particularly by business mailers, will enable mail processing to become more efficient and economical, thus helping to hold down the frequency and size of future rate increases."

The Postal Service has proposed to the Postal Rate Commission that volume mailers be given a one-half cent discount on mailings of 500 or more first-class letters or cards.

Until that proposal is approved, Becker said, he did not expect many firms to make the conversion.

Mayor's Shooting Just a Hoax

By MATT YANCEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Marion Barry was "as surprised as anybody" to hear the news bulletin that he had been shot. It was a hoax, and a television anchorman admitted to his viewers: "We've been had, folks."

Washington's three network stations interrupted normal programming Monday night to report that Barry, 45, had been seriously wounded in a shooting at his home. A half hour later, they broke in again to say it wasn't true.

Barry heard the bulletin at the home of his legal adviser, Herbert Reed.

"I was as surprised as anybody else," the mayor said later at a news conference in front of his southeast Washington home. "I think it's a horrible way to play a joke."

Barry's first reaction was to call his wife, Effie, and tell her he was OK. But she was at a friend's house, where she heard the same report.

"I couldn't believe it," Mrs. Barry said. "There were just so many stories going. I just said, 'Take me home so that I can see what's happening.'"

What was happening, according to information pieced together from city officials and the television stations, was a hoax.

James Van Messel, executive news producer at NBC-owned WRC-TV, said someone called the network desk there about 9:45 p.m. EDT to say the mayor had been shot and police had two suspects in custody.

The caller, who identified himself as James Taylor, said he was phoning from the mayor's command post and left a return number that later turned out to be a public telephone booth.

When a reporter for the station immediately called the number, Van Messel said, a man answered as the mayor's command post and said Barry was being taken to the hospital at Andrews Air Force Base.

"In our case, a number was stuck under somebody's nose," Van Messel said. "He asked some questions and when we got some answers, the question was whether to go with the story."

WRC went on the air with a news bulletin, moments before stations WJLA and WTVB.

Van Messel said his station's reporters then found another number for the command center and called it. "The cops knew nothing, the hospital knew nothing. All of a sudden things started to fall apart," he said.

Mrs. Barry said she was numb from the experience.

"I think that this is probably one of the worst tricks you can play on anybody," she said. "It's possible, it's real that we have crazy people in this world."

There was, in fact, a shooting Monday night about a block from the mayor's home.

Acting Police Chief Maurice Turner said an off-duty police sergeant shot himself in the side when a .22-caliber gun in his hip pocket discharged accidentally earlier in the evening.

Death Not to be Taken For Granted, Someday

EDITOR'S NOTE: In this first part of a three-part series, the modern-day medical search for a fountain of youth is examined.

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Death. We take it for granted. Someday we may not.

Scientific breakthroughs, including genetic engineering and better understanding of the ways cells work, have given new hope to scientists in their quest for a modern Fountain of Youth.

The goal of these men and women pursuing a modern version of the dream that tantalized Spanish explorer Ponce de Leon in the wilds of Florida centuries ago is life far longer than anything now known — perhaps centuries.

To achieve it, they are untangling the obscure workings of growth and maturity, decay and death. And the efforts are paying immediate dividends with improved knowledge of senility and hope for cures for this helpless dotage.

Immortality? A cure for death, if there ever is such a thing, will probably not be as simple as a single life-prolonging potion. But biologists believe their new knowledge will let them slow the process of aging. Someday, they hope, the human body will no longer falter and stop like a wound-down clock in its seventh or eighth decade.

If they are right, people someday may enjoy life for 100 years or more relatively free of aging, then succumb to quick, death.

And as scientists search for the hidden genetic regulator that somehow instructs a cell when it is time to stop reproducing itself, even more incredible changes are possible.

"If we learn what the nature of the biological clock is, it may be possible to extend the lifespan much more than to 100," says Dr. Samuel Goldstein, a geneticist at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Little Rock, Ark.

"It may be possible to double or triple the lifespan to 200 or 300 or more," he says. "At the moment, that's science fiction, but I think it's possible. I wouldn't have said it 10 years ago, but the recombinant DNA techniques in the last few years have really made a fantastic revolution."

Manipulating the genetics of aging is an art so new that it exists only in the imagination of scientists. But experts believe it may be possible someday to reprogram, replace and repair the genes that control the way we grow old.

"All the evidence points to the fact that genes determine aging," says Edward Schneider, associate director of the National Institute on Aging. "There are many genes involved, probably over 100. Therefore, it is unlikely that in the very near future that simply replacing or manipulating genes would reverse the aging process. However, as we learn more about how the genes do affect aging, then it is theoretically possible that we may be able to extend lifespans."

One of many problems in the quest for longer life is the built-in mortality of each human cell. The average person has 50 trillion of these units, and each will reproduce itself only about 50 times.

When the reproduction stops, organs vital to life simply wear out.

One idea is to slow down the body's destruction by lowering its temperature. The chemical reactions that cause decay would then happen more slowly, just as a steak lasts longer when it is kept in a refrigerator.

"The general rule for animals is that the rate of aging goes down by a factor of two for about every eight degrees Centigrade that the body temperature is lowered," says Dr. Bernard L. Strehler, a biologist at the University of Southern California. "If you apply that to humans, about two degrees would produce a 25 percent increase in longevity."

But turning down the body's thermostat is more difficult than it sounds. Barbiturates will do it, but they are too dangerous. Even if a new drug is found, it will take years of testing to make sure that such radical tinkering with the body is safe.

Someday, however, scientists say it may be possible for people to lower their temperatures when they go to bed at night, so they will conserve themselves as animals do with frequent spells of hibernation.

However, Strehler believes that more fundamental manipulation will be necessary to escape death.

"My simple view is that aging is those things that go wrong when cells lose the ability to divide," he said. "If we could replace our cells as rapidly as they deteriorate, we could probably live very long, if not indefinitely."

Oil Production Site Will Remain Open

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Railroad Commission has decided not to halt production at the Sour Lake oil field if Texaco and independent oil field operators can come up with a plan to prevent saltwater spillage from a sinkhole into an environmentally sensitive stream.

Commissioners Jim Nugent and Buddy Temple agreed to give the oil operators 45 days to work on solving the brine problem. But they said water in Clemmons Gulley, a freshwater stream, and nearby Pine Island Bayou would be tested frequently.

The 12-acre sinkhole, first noticed in 1929, is adjacent to the stream. The southern edge of a levee Texaco built to prevent saltwater from overflowing into the stream has deteriorated, the commission says.

Texasco and the Sour Lake

Field Operators Group will share the cost of repairing the levee and pumping brine out of the sinkhole, officials said.

In recent testing, the commission found that the water in the stream contained 350 parts chloride per million parts water. By comparison, the drinking water in Houston contains about 50 parts chloride, the commission said.

The commission conducted hearings last year to determine the cause of the brine overflow. But Willis Steed, director of field operations in the Railroad Commission's Oil and Gas Division, said Monday it would be "impossible" to blame any one company.

Steed said he will recommend a long-range plan later this summer to rid the sinkhole of brine and replace it with "semi-fresh" water.

IS YOUR HOME TOO HOT?

Stop overworking your air-conditioner and electric billing meter, check out our patented and proven new method of re-insulating your home, whether it's new or old.

Look what some of our satisfied users have to say:

After having Full Home Insulation re-insulate our home, when the temperature got into the high 90's, we didn't have to run our air-conditioner at all. The temperature stayed at 70 to 72 degrees evenly throughout the house. Our children have allergies and elimination of the dust has stopped their coughing inside the house.

When you can change the temperature to very comfortable from unbearable in a tin sided building with sheetrock in the kind of heat we have had you have really done something. We have added freezers, a complete restaurant kitchen, exhaust fans and our electricity has increased in costs, but still you have made our electric bills less than before.

In winters before Full Home Insulation Co. re-insulated my mobile home, the heater ran all of the time and still couldn't warm it. Now in winter, it is very comfortable and with the heater cut off at least 80 percent of the time.

Since having Full Home Insulation Co. re-insulate our home over the existing rock wool already in the walls and attic, our heating cost has been cut by a good 40 percent. Thanks for a job very well done in only one day.
