Saul claims action premature

By KIM THOGMARTIN

A lawsuit filed by the State Bar of Texas seeking disciplinary action against 222nd District Attorney Roland Saul "has been prematurely commenced," Saul's attorney claims.

A plea for abatement or dismissal was filed Monday in District Court By State Senator John T. Montford of the 28th District in Lubbock. counsel for Saul. down hard on the actions of the District 13 Grievance Committee of the State Bar of Texas, among other things accusing the chairman of having a "conflict of interest in presiding over this matter under the rules governing the State Bar of the Code of Professional Responsibility for attorneys of the State of Texas." Other members of the committee were also accused of conflict of interest, but the document does not elaborate on what those conflicts were.

Saul also claims he was prived of a full hearing concerning the complaint against him and that the committee violated state bar rules by releasing secret transcripts to third persons, also a violation of Saul's civil

The response also says the committee failed "to maintain the secrecy of the proceedings and that members "did not deliberate in the presence of each other and voted out of the presence of each other in violation of the laws of the State of Texas." On Jan. 13, Judge Pat Boone, Jr. of the 154th Judicial District was assigned to hear all cases involving the two men after 222nd District Judge David Wesley Gulley recused himself from the litigation.

Friday, Judge Boone denied a motion to modify a subpoena filed Dec. 8 by the Hereford State Bank and another motion to quash subpoenas requested Jan. 6 by the law firm of Saul, Smith and Davis, Jerry Smith, Donald L. Davis, Sue Smith, Joe Soliz, First State Bank of Vega and Caryn's Hallmark of Hereford.

Those subpoenas were issued by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury, which has been extended from the Fall 1983 term to continue its own investigation of the District Attorney's office.

Reinauer out to get county wet during which they allegedly

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

"We grow potatoes here and they make alcohol out of potatoes, so I don't think I'm doing anything wrong.'

Art Reinauer, who planted a vineyard two years ago, Monday was telling Deaf Smith County Commissioners he wants to operate a winery in Hereford. Such a move would require the town and surrounding area be changed from "dry" to "wet."

After the meeting, the 30-year-old area farmer said he intends to start a petition calling for the legalization of alcohol sales in Justice of the Peace Precinct 1. The necessity of being in a wet area - as outlined by state law - is due to Reinauer's plans to import California wine to be bottled under his "La Escarabada XIT Vineyard"

Hereford has been dry since three years after its 1898 founding. The issue to go wet was last brought up in 1956, when more citizens signed the petition than voted for the change, Commissioner Austin Rose said with a

Though planted in 1981, Reinauer's vines should not begin to produce grapes of acceptable wine quality for another two years, he said.

He intends, therefore, to initially use wine produced in California. As his vines mature, Reinauer said he would like to gradually become less dependent on the out-of-state product.

According to the farmer, his vines should become profitable after eight years, eventually netting him around $1,500 per acre. The average lifetime of a vine, he explained, is between 50 and 75 years.

Wine production is a quickly-growing industry, Reinauer claimed. Consumption of the alcoholic beverage is expected to increase substatially during this decade, he said, due partly to worsening water qualities in America's larger cities. Reinauer pointed out Europeans drink much wine and beer largely because of poor

In order for the wet-dry election to be held, an application must be submitted with 10 signatures of registered voters. Then a petition with signatures of at least 35 percent of those who voted in the last gubernatorial campaign must be given to county commissioners, who would then call for an election.

Though Reinauer said he would prefer basing his winery in Hereford, he could do so in any one of several neighboring counties. "I do intend to do it," he said, "one way or another."

Meanwhile, commissioners gave Sheriff Joe Brown per-

Commissioners also told Brown he could purchase two new radar units, at $3,150 apiece, for the department. Trading in the old units would reduce the total cost by $800, the sheriff claimed.

A motion was unanimously approved allowing the county to contract Linda Haymes of Amarillo College to teach money management courses here. She said she would bring all the needed materials for the 10-hour, one-day course however often there is enough local interest, which she said was 10 to 12 people.

Butcher, 43, has served as a county deputy for 14 years and was chief deputy for more than five years. He has 22 years experience in law enforcement.

"It is with regret that I submit my resignation, effective Feb. 6, 1984, but I do so in order to comply with county policy," said Butcher. A new personnel policy adopted in October of 1983 states that 'any employee of the county who files for an elective position in Deaf Smith County government will immediately be placed on leave without pay status."

Butcher said he plans to file for office on or before the Feb. 6 deadline. Two other men have already filed as candidates in the sheriff's race-incumbent Joe Brown and former city policeman Paul Ramirez.

Now can run for sheriff

Butcher was one of the seven men who applied for the sheriff's post when Travis McPherson resigned in August of 1983. Brown, former city policeman, was appointed by the county commission to fill out the unexpired term. Other applicants for the job included Loy Smith, Randy Williams, Harold Wheeler, Pat Moore and Floy Driver.

Since Brown was appointed to the sheriff's post and not elected, there had been speculation on some citizen's part that he might be affected by the county policy. However, County Clerk David Ruland said that state law spells out the fact that once a person is appointed to an office, he legally becomes an elected official.

In his letter of resignation, Butcher indicated that he intends to seek other employment, but that he had no specific plans to announce at this time.

Landslide victim sought today

LANGTRY, Texas (AP) - Park rangers braved a dangerously shifting mass of rocks to search for a man buried in a landslide three days ago, although they conceded he probably was crushed to death almost instantly.

Edgar Joe Dorroh, 45, of San Antonio, disappeared about 12:30 p.m. Saturday when a massive canyon wall collapsed in the Amistad National Recreation Area, said Chief Park Ranger Eldon Kohlman.

Kohlman planned to resume the search early today, although he said it was "extremely doubtful" that Dorroh

Dan Goldman, assistant superintendent of the park, said he was hopeful Dorroh's body could be recovered today, after three days of concentrated searches had cleared some areas.

But he also said it was "virtually impossible" that Dorroh would be found alive.

Bush wants spending limit

HOUSTON (AP) - Vice President George Bush, admitting that it will be difficult to cut the record federal budget deficit in an election year, asked for Congress' help and called for a balanced budget amendment.

Bush, who spoke Monday to the National Association of Homebuilders convention, said in a press conference that he preferred to let President Reagan reveal in his State of the Union address how he plans to deal with the deficit, projected at $180 billion a year.

But he said a strict limit must be set on spending. "Anyone can see that Congress can't discipline itself anymore," he said. "Discipline is going to have to come from the outside. It's time, it's past time, that we had a balanced budget amendment - a device to discipline both the executive and legislative branches of government."

Ruling may increase executions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's latest effort to set guidelines in capital punishment cases is leading some state officials to expect more executions in

Attorney General Jim Mattox of Texas said three of that state's 177 condemned inmates have nearly exhausted court appeals

And in California, where some 150 are on death row, officials said the court ruling could have an important bearing on the pace of executions.

Monday's ruling did not bear directly on the case of Anthony Antone, who was scheduled to die today in Florida's electric chair. However, a three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals early today granted Antone a stay until noon Wednesday to give him one last chance to take his case to the Supreme Court.

House to debate weatherization

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite growing concern over federal deficits, the House is opening its first working session of the year with a multibillion-dollar bill denounced by Republican critics as a budget-busting social program.

The House planned to begin consideration today of the measure, which would expand the federal program to insulate and weatherize the homes of low-income people to cover an estimated 13 million houses over the next 10 years.

Democratic sponsors say the bill makes economic sense. When all the homes are weatherized, they say, the country will burn the equivalent of 65 million fewer barrels of oil each year, and $3.3 billion a year will be saved in fuel costs.

Much of that money would come from federal aid to the poor and elderly, they argue. The federal Low Income Energy Assistance Program, which provides direct financial aid to poor families to pay fuel bills, now costs close to $2 billion a year.

Some East bloc citizens who viewed the film concluded it lacks realism and horror. Some said it shows how little most Americans know about war.

"They (the Soviets) have seen worse stuff in their own World War II films," said a Western source in Moscow who saw the film with Soviet citizens.

Some Soviets said the most powerful moment of the ABC film came when Minutemen missiles thundered from Kansas silos en route to the Soviet Union.

Glenn addresses DOE issue

"Building around the long haul," Democratic presidential hopeful John Glenn on Monday made Amarillo part of his Texas campaign swing, a tour made despite the coming primaries in New Hampshire and Iowa.

Glenn, a former astronaut who has been one of Ohio's U.S. Senators since 1975, gave a breakfast speech and held a press conference at the Villa Inn. Wife Annie Glenn is accompanying the candidate on his Texas visit, which included other Monday stops in Lubbock and El Paso. He previously just concluded a tour through Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi.

While meeting the press, Glenn was asked what he thought of the U.S. Department of Energy's search for a nuclear waste dump, considering Hereford and Tulia are among the final nine possible hosts.

The senator said, because "technical his background," he has been involved in the matter for quite some time. He co-authored legislation which allows the governor of the chosen location's state to veto the repository, though an override can be accomplished by a two-thirds vote in each house of the U.S. Congress.

Glenn said he felt "it can be safe storage. I'm not too concerned about all the problems once we get them worked

An Amarillo television reporter then asked the senator if he favored the dump being placed in the Panhandle. "I don't think you were listening to what I just said," Glenn replied. He said he "in no way, shape or form" has come to any such conclusion. More time and study are needed before an intelligent decision can be made, he maintained. Agriculture was also addressed at the press conference. "I think the emergency loan programs," he said, "should have already been implemented to help people out." Such programs have worked before, he

Glenn felt increased farm exports would also help the agricultural economy. He said he favors some sort of acreage set-aside system and felt conservation was needed to help some of the nation's 130 million dying acres.

His agricultural plans, Glenn said, included some thich would help Mexican-American workers. The Hispanic vote is important to the senator, who enjoys a "Vive Glenn" following in Texas. The ability to find jobs and be treated fairly are goals he said he has for Mexican-Americans. Danny Hill, 47th District Court District Attorney, called Glenn "a true American hero" during his introductory remarks, referring to the senator as "my Audie Murphy, my John Wayne."

'There's a lot of things he could be and a lot of things he could be doing," Hill stated, "and that alone tells me what kind of man he is. I think John Glenn is our kind of man, the man we want to be president."

Earlier, State Senator Bill Sarpalius (D-Canyon) said, "It's been about 20 years since we had a Democratic presidential candidate take the time to come to Amarillo...I can't think of anyone that would make a better president than someone who's interested in the people."

"Doesn't this country deserve a winner?" asked William P. Hobby, lieutenant general of Texas and state chairman of Glenn's campaign. "It's been a generation since we had a winner. It's time we had as president of this country a man who has a vision of what this country should be." "I want a strong America,"

Glenn commented soon after starting his speech. "No one wants a stronger America than I do." Despite the desire for strength, though, he said peace is just as important. "It's very hard to accept that, for the first time since World War II, we have no negotiations going on," the Democrat said. "No negotiations whatsoever. We don't like to see that in the future." In his quest for peace, Glenn said, he has presented the 'most conclusive five-points arms control proposal." The nation's $200 billion debt, he claimed, is preventing the expansion of exports. Having adopted a "tough stand" against the deficit, Furthermore, he co Americans cannot afford to wait until after the election for tax increases.

"I want to have every young American literate in 10 years," the senator said while discussing education. He wants Scholastic Achievement Test (SAT) scores to "return to their 1963 peak." Glenn was embarrased to admit, he said, the United States ranks 10th in international assessment test Generally considered to be the Democrats' secondrunner behind Walter Mondale, Glenn concluded his speech by saying, "This has always been a 'why not?' nation...We have been a goaloriented country and we can be that way again.

"I need your help, I need your vote, I need your voice."

Ag Man of Year

Jerry Roberts, a farmer in the Simms Community northwest of Hereford, was presented the "Man of the Year in Agriculture" award at the Sugar Beet Banquet Saturday night at the Bull Barn. Roberts, left, was cited for his allaround farming practices and service to the community. Speedy Nieman, publisher of The Hereford Brand, made the presentation.

NA 1 200 1915 New gynecologist faces opposition

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

Chicana CA 95944

Deaf Smith General Hospital board members decided Monday to offer a job to a Wichita, Kan., gynecologist despite "80 to 90 percent" of the DSGH staff pposing his presence.

Dr. Michael Dobbs is to be guaranteed at least $8,000 per month to come here, board members decided on a 4-2 vote. The current Kansan is supposed to be warned, however, of the substantial opposition he faces.

'What the staff has said," explained James Bullard, hospital administrator, "is they are opposed to hiring physicians in the hospital because we have resources here which make their overhead expenses less."

Voting against the action were Drs. Charles Allison and Gerald Payne. None of the four who approved the motion are physicians.

Also at Monday's special meeting, the board considered ways of funding proposed renovation to the hospital, looked over the 1982-1983 audit report, received a proposed plan for DSGH in the 1980s by Dr. Allison and took no action following a closed session for personnel discussion.

Last fall, members of the district board agreed to have renovation and remodeling work done to the hospital and purchase new x-ray equipment. Bullard has said the project would probably cost around $750,000.

On Monday, he explained there were three alternatives by which money could be raised for the proposed work: certificates of obligation, general obligation bonds and revenue bonds. Board members seemed to rule out general obligation bonds. though, as they require a vote from county taxpayers for

Jerry Smith said he and the other board members had been examining the situation for a long time, and he doubted whether the area residents could "intelligbly" vote on the matter. He wondered if voting would "be fair to them."

Bullard said he sought advice from a Houston firm which has much experience with health matters. "It was their impression that we could sell these funds to an independent organization," he reported, "and probably find somebody to buy the whole

With a likely interest rate of 9 percent, Bullard said, paying off a 12-year loan of $750,000 would cost the hospital district about $100,000 per year.

Should the needed extra revenue come through taxes, Board President Frank Zinser Jr. said, county citizens would need to be charged three cents more per $100 valuation. They are now taxed approximately 10 cents. Each cent, Zinser explained, nets the DSGH district around $35,000.

A decision on which form of financing to pursue was postponed until February's regularly-scheduled meeting, which should be at noon Tuesday, Feb. 21.

The x-ray machine, according to Bullard, should cost between $319,000 and $327,600. Renovation and remodeling work would be done to many patients' rooms and to the front lobby area. Though not included in the immediate proposal, long-range work might include covering the patio on the hospital's north side and relocating the emergency room.

Explaining the audit for the budget year ending Sept. 30, 1983 was Julian Berry of local Berry, Ham & Company. Among other things, the report indicated hospital district assets ended at $2,611,037, up from the $2,378,360 recorded a year

The report also showed revenues exceeded expenses last year by $134,103. During the budget year ending Sept. 30, 1982, the district lost

Reflected in the audit was a "bad debt" of $839,933, which Bullard and Berry explained was actually higher than reality since some of that amount was carried over from the previous year. Bad debt represents uncollectible accounts and indigent care

Dr. Allison's plans included a call to recruit one physician for each of Hereford's two health clinics. He also proposed, within the next two or three years, the hiring of a qualified general surgeon with experience in major obstetrics, gynecology and orthopedic procedures.

He also encouraged the board, in five years, evaluate the possibility of building a new hospital in the 1990s. He suggested doctor office space not be built "unless we are prepared to offer the space to all the physicians in the coun-

DEAR EX-WIFE: The word you are looking for is "alimony" and, in my opinion, you are entitled to something for the eight years you scrimped to put your husband through school. The courts are notoriously ungenerous, however, with women who can support themselves.

John visited our children every weekend. They loved him dearly and he was devoted to them. When he was 36, John met a not-quitedivorced woman and they began to carry on. Strangely enough, Mother liked the woman and welcomed her into the family. My wife and I. decided we could not expose our children to such immoral behavior and banned him from our home. (To this day my wife blames our son's divorce on the examples set by John.)

Six months ago mother died. John and his wife were at the funeral. I went over to him, feeling that at such a time two brothers should comfort one another. He turned to me and said, "It's too late. Lifestyle habits may disturb sleep

COLLEGE STATION -Getting enough restful sleep is important if a person is to feel good and function properly. Sleep patterns can be interrupted, however, by factors such as age, food or alcohol intake, and sleep

Many sleep disorders have been associated with poor lifestyle habits, according to Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

These poor lifestyle habits include lack of exercise, inadequate meals and ineffective handling of stress. "Positive changes in these habits will improve sleep, and may even completely alleviate the problems associated with sleep," says

Heavy meals before bedtime can interfere with sleep, since digestion is such a demanding physiological process. Food allergies can cause insomnia and caffeine can disturb sleep, because it acts as a stimulant.

Shirer says evidence indicates that heavy alcohol intake causes less total sleep time, less deep sleep, and less dreaming sleep.

Sleep medications can be bought over-the-counter or with a prescription. "These medications, when used on a short-term basis under a physician's supervision, are frequently beneficial and worthwhile," says Shirer. The recommended dosages of over-the-counter sleep aids should not be exceeded. Overdoses can cause confusion, memory disturbances, worsening of glaucoma, and, in are cases, death.

Sleep aids prescribed by physicians are usually either barbituates or ben-zodiazepines. Both of these drugs are physically addictive, Shirer warns.

Barbituates, when consumed in large doses, can cause kidney failure, breathing difficulty, coma, and death. Large doses of benzodiazepines by themselves are not harmful, but combined with alcohol they can lead to impaired functioning and even death.

Adequate sleep necessary for an individual's health and well-being. If sleeping troubles occur, improvements in lifestyle habits may help; Shirer comments. For more severe problems, a physician should be consulted.

Stanton moves into second place with 67-58 victory

Stanton's ninth-grade boys basketball team took sole possession of second place in its district by topping Gattis Monday, 67-58, in Stanton gymnasium.

'We played and moved the all around as well as we save all year," ninth-grade coach James Salinas said after the game. "Their press hurt us a little bit, but when we broke it, we got some easy lavups."

The Dogies jumped out to a 16-6 lead after the first quarter and never trailed in the contest. Todd Weaver netted eight of his game-high 19 points in that period.

The teams fought a relatively even second quarter as Stanton carried a 28-21 advantage into halftime.

But the Dogies began to pull away in the third period but held their biggest lead when Mark Parker tossed in a layup in the fourth quarter, making the score 46-31.

The Cubs staged a comeback in the final stanza and pulled within three, 53-50, but Jimmy Hazzard laid in a bucket and Weaver followed with two unanswered field goals to ice the victory.

Stanton raised its district record to 6-2 and boasts a 10-3 won-lost record on the season. These Cubs dropped their district record to 5-3 and are 10-3 overall. Hazzard threw in 13 points

Multi-million dollar losses recorded

Bookies lose on Super Bowl

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) -Nevada bookmakers shared in the drubbing given the Washington Redskins in

Super Bowl XVIII.

The legal books suffered a multi-million dollar loss for making the Los Angeles Raiders a 3-point underdog before Sunday's 38-9 rout.

"It was the biggest single amount we ever wrote and the biggest single amount we ever lost," said Jimmy Vaccaro of the Barbary Coast sports book, where limits were $100,000 per bet. "It was a bad day at Black Rock. The

"We are tattered and torn here in Las Vegas, but we are resilient and we will bounce back," he laughed.

Bookmakers had estimated legal betting in the state would run as high as $75 million on the game. Unfortunately for the sports books, most of the money was bet on the underdog Raiders.

"The loss to the state's sports books had to be in the millions," said Sonny Reizner of the Castaways sports book. "But that's one of the hazards of the occupation. Just look at all the friends we made, all the strangers that came in just for this event."

Reizner declined to specify a loss for the Castaways, saying it "wasn't anything disastrous."

Betting at the Castaways was about 60-40 for the Raiders while at the Barbary Coast it was closer to 3-1 for the winners.

Tar Heels voted top team

By The Associated Press

The North Carolina Tar Heels matched their perfect on-court record with unanimous selection as the No. 1 college basketball team in the nation for the second straight week.

North Carolina, 14-0, collected every first-place vote in the weekly Associated Press basketball poll, released Monday. A nationwide panel of 60 sports writers and broadcasters placed the Tar Heels first on every ballot. DePaul, also 14-0, was second again and Kentucky, 14-2, was third.

MULTIPLE RECEIVER SYSTEM

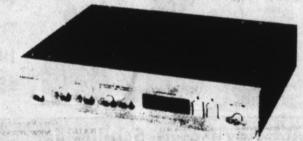

NEW MULTIPLE RECEIVER MODEL ALLOWS HOME VIEWING OF AS MANY TV'S TUNED TO AS MANY DIFFERENT CHANNELS FROM ONE ANTENNA, AS OWNER PREFERS!

After almost two years of intensive engineering, Birdview has announced their new home receiver. The only satellite system that allows multiple-receiver hookups to one antenna, for the first time, homeowners have complete freedom of choice in viewing selection on every TV in their house, All from one antenna. Other new features of the multiple-receiver system includes stereo/audio reception, infrared remote control, digital synthesized tuning, and optional antenna drive.

Birdvie

One-Piece Construction, Maximum Efficiency

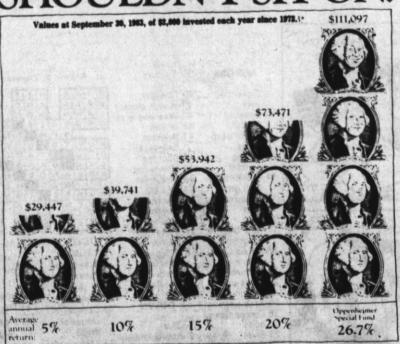

Birdview's antenna is designed for maximum aesthetic appeal, efficiency, strength and durability. Construction is a one-piece, 8½ foot aluminum spun parabolic (dish) reflector. The antenna is characterized by clean lines and simple installation on a six inch diameter ape to be anchored in a 40" hole secured by concrete.

New Multiple-Receiver Model Allows Home Viewing of As Many TV's Tuned To As Many Different Channels From One Antenna.

For the first time, homeowners have complete freedom of choice in viewing selection on every television in their house - All from only one antenna. Other new features include stereo-audio reception, infrared remote control, digital synthesized tuning, and optional antenna drive.

A little difference in the amount your IRA earns each year can make a large difference in the amount you retire with. Happily, the same law that allows you to start an IRA also allows you to switch it with no tax penalty.

Which gives you the opportunity to seek better returns for your investment.

You could, for example, switch to the Oppenheimer Special Fund. Just compare the average annual return on your IRA with the 26.7% average annual return on the Oppenheimer Special Fund as shown above. If you had been able to put $2,000 a year into a Special Fund IRA, since its inception, it would have been worth $111,097 as of Sep-tember 30, 1983.

And because at Oppenheimer we offer a choice of 12 different funds, you can switch among them when your goals, or economic conditions, change.

AND ASSOCIATES, INC. 364-2232 205 E. Park Ave.

Infrared Remote

Channel selection on Birdview's new receiver can be controlled by Birdview's new infrared remote control unit from across the room. Small enough to fit comfortably in your hand, the remote's rugged die cast housing assures reliable operation.

New Splitter Allows Multiple Receiver Hookup And Long Cable Runs

Birdview's new LS40 line splitter permits multiple-receiver hookups from one antenna, with full-channel selection at each set.

DEAR POLLY - I have never seen a hint on a use for all those stamps from publishing houses that one uses to order magazines. So here's mine:

Even a two-year-old child likes to be creative, When my children got bored with regular toys, I got out these stamps. Sometimes the children pretended they were regular stamps like Mommy used. They scribbled letters, put them in old envelopes I had saved and stamped them. As they grew older, the stamps were used to decorate papers. Hours were spent licking the stamps and making arrangements of them.

MRS. W.A.M.

DEAR POLLY — While getting my recipes together for my Christmas baking, I remembered how awkward it always is with a cookbook here and a recipe card there, sometimes lost under a flour or sugar jar. I decided to rewrite the recipes I planned to use this season on recipe cards. Then I punched a hole in the upper left corner of each card and hooked them all together on a shower curtain ring. I hung the ring on my kitchen cupboard handle. There the recipes were pretty much at eye level. When I finished with one, I just flipped the card over to the next recipe. I now have clean cookbooks and have avoided the frustration of losing loose cards among my assembled ingredients. loose cards among my assembled ingredients. -SHIRLEY Demonstrations and illustrated talks are two of the most effective methods of presenting information. People learn faster and remember longer if they see as well as hear - one reason that demonstrations and talks are a vital part of the 4-H program.

The greatest value of demonstrations and illustrated talks, however, is to the 4-H members who plan, prepare and present them.

Every 4-H member profits in some way from planning and presenting a demonstration or illustrated talk. Poise, confidence and selfassurance grows each time a person makes a presentation. Through demonstrations and talks, 4-H members have the opportunity to:

-Work on something they like and in which they have an interest.

-Gain new knowledge and learn about a specific subject -Learn to plan and organize their thoughts so they can express themselves more clear-

-Emphasize the major points of a presentation through the use of visuals or

-Develop good judgment, speech and actions before an

-Listen to the opinions of others -Teach and show others improved methods and practices learned through 4-H, thus performing a service to the community

What are 4-H demonstrations and illustrated talks? They are planned presentations by one or more 4-H members that teach information related to a project or activity. Simply, they are ways of showing and telling others how to make or do something and sharing useful informa-

Demonstrations and illustrated talks add variety, interest and enthusiasm to the 4-H program. One key to a good 4-H program is member participation. The more often 4-H'ers are involved in club meetings; projects, committee work, demonstrations and talks, the more they become and consequently continue

4-H membership for a longer period of time. Through participation and involvement they feel a part of an active, democratic organization that is doing someting.

Method demonstration workshops will begin in Deaf Smith County the third Wednesday in February, and will continue through the county contest in April. There are over 20 categories in which 4-H'ers can choose a method demonstration or an illustrated talk. They may present this alone or as a team with another 4-H'er.

Call Susan Raney, Deaf Smith County extension agent, for more information concerning 4-H method demonstrations and illustrated talks to various clubs and organizations throughout the last two weeks in April. Please call the extension office if your club is looking for a special program seems out of place and exaggerated.

Boll's novel was widely criticized, at home and abroad. A 1981 article by the Manchester Guardian in Britain characterized the book as an attack on "the Streicher-like violence of parts of the German tabloid press," referring to Julius Streicher, a sadistic Nazi propagandist. But the parallel newspaper editor, Catton, is motivated not by ideology but

In West Germany, Boll's story was attacked by conservatives. One politician described "The Lost Honor of Katharina Blum" as "a book justifying violence."

CBS movie leaves no margin for doubt: Kathryn Beck is innocent, though perhaps slightly indiscreet in her haste to fall into Cole's arms; the cops are unrestrained brutes, and the newspaperman is an unprincipled opportunist eager "to wake up this country ... bring some life

Boll's story was set, of course, in Germany, and Kathryn's nightmare, enacted today, in a small, unnamed town in Illinois, seems at times overdone.

"The Lost Honor of Kathryn Beck" is a first-class effort, directed by Simon Langton ("Smiley's People," "Rebecca," "Therese Raquin"), and shot by Gordon Willis ("The Godfather," "All the President's Men," "Klute," "Annie Hall," "Zelig").

Often, insurance is bought "piecemeal" over a period of time.

Many times, in reviewing programs, we have found that essential coverages are not insured at all or inadequately. Meanwhile, money may be spent on insurance which we would consider optional, that is, nice to have but not at the expense of more essential coverages

CATTLE MARKET REPORT FOR FRIDAY

COUNTY OF DEAF SMITH

DEAR DR. LAMB - Doctors today warn many of us about triglycerides, but don't tell us what to do about our diet except to lower the carbohydrates and sugar fats. Could you explain how much bread, spaghetti, salad dressing and desserts we can consume safely?

During a recent checkup, my doctor said that my triglycerides were much better. He also said I should drink skim milk. But if I tested so much better, I don't see why this is impor-

DEAR READER - I understand your frustration. You want more specifics than you are getting. But some general principles usually will handle the diet problem for most people.

The amount of food you can eat depends entirely on your body fat. If you have any excess body fat, you should decrease your calories and increase your exercise to eliminate your excess fat. Controlling your body fat is probably the most important dietary step you can take for good health. Current thinking is that the diet should limit fat so that it contributes no more than 30 percent to 35 per-cent of the total caloric intake. Moreover, your saturated fat should be limited to 10 percent of your total caloric intake. Cholesterol should be limited to 300 mg. day. Most people find ose directions hard to follow, which is why doctors and patients occasionally don't communicate well.

I have broken it down to the four basic food groups in

Choose only those items of each food group that are low in fat. Use fortified skim milk, not whole milk. Use lean meats to eliminate the excess fats and emphasize poultry and fish to help decrease your saturated fat intake. Increase your breads, cereals, fruits and vegatables, but don't increase so much that you take in more calories than

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a bad habit of swallowing gum. Does it really take seven years for it to be digested? I limit my gum-chewing because of this, but like to have a piece now and then. Any information would be appreciated.

DEAR READER - I suspect that old story was invented by parents who didn't want their children to chew gum.

It doesn't take seven years to digest. Most of it is undigestible bulk and will move through the intestines in about 48 hours. If the gum you chew contains sugar, the sugar will dissolve and be absorbed like other sugars from other substances.

Chewing gum may lead to swallowing air, which can cause gaseous distention and discomfort. It also may contribute to dental problems.

steel to construction companies and secondary suppliers. "This has been a real nightmare," said Michael Smith, manager of the Albuquerque-based Smith Pipe and Steel Co. "We don't usually carry around Geiger counters in our business."

The contamination first was discovered last week when a truck carrying steel passed through a radiation detector at Los Alamos National Laboratory and triggered an alarm.

Smith said he had bought three truckloads - about 70 tons - of reinforcing steel, known as rebar, from the Aceros de Chihuahua foundry in Chihuahua, Mexico. All but about 10 tons were sold before he learned some contained low levels of cobalt 60, a radioactive isotope used for radiation therapy in hospitals, he said.

Smith said it was the first time he had done business with the Mexican firm.

In Phoenix, the Arizona Radiation Regulatory Agency said tests revealed radia tion levels of up to 350 millirems per hour at suppliers' yards around Phoenix and Mesa. Earlier readings had indicated levels of 10 to 12 millirems.

The permissible radiation dosage for U.S. workers in the nuclear industry is 5,000 millirems per year, and AARA director Charles Tedford said the rebar found in supply yards has been isolated and appears to have caused no harm to workers.

"You would have to sleep on top of one of those piles for quite a long time," Tedford said.

Some of the steel has already been shipped to Authorities checking sites original source of the consecondary suppliers and used in construction projects, including homes, said Tedford. Estimates that an overall total of 300 tons of potentially contaminated rebar had been shipped to Arizona have now risen to 500 tons.

A Nuclear Regulatory Commission official said Mexican investigators may have traced one source of the contaminated steel, which has also surfaced in Texas and California.

Ralph Heyer, a health physicist with the NRC's regional office in Arlington, Texas, said investigators checking a Juarez, Mexico, scrapyard on Friday had found scrap metal emitting high levels of radiation.

Heyer said the yard, which had shipped metal to Aceros de Chihuahua, has been shut down until officials locate the taminated scrap.

New Mexico Environmental Improvement Division investigators are checking 150 construction sites around the state, including 100 in Albuquerque, where possibly contaminated rebar may have been stored or used, officials said. Tom Buhl, chief of the state Radiation Protection Bureau, said that as of Monday, contaminated steel had turned up at four sites, but none had been used in a building yet.

Other sites were being checked by two survey teams, he said.

Customers who bought steel from Smith Pipe and Steel that was marked with the "AC" symbol of Aceros de Chihuahua were asked to set the material aside until it has been checked for radioac-

The scope of the survey, expected to take up to two weeks, could be narrowed if Mexican authorities can determine when the contamination occurred, Buhl said.

"There might be something that will allow us to say steel purchased before a certain date was not contaminated," he said. "That would really help our surveying a lot."

Officials declined to reveal specific locations until all the sites can be checked.

"It ranges from private homes to small offices to major buildings - mostly homes," Jere Millard, program manager of the EID's Radiation Surveillance Sector, said Friday.

At a few of the surveyed sites the rebar already had been set in concrete, but none of those rods was radioactive,

Leaders meet to plan strategy for registering Hispanic voters

McALLEN, Texas (AP) -Hispanic leaders in the Rio Grande Valley have promised to sign up at least 50,000 Mexican-American voters before the presidential election as part of a nationwide voter registration strategy.

Politicians and community organizers from throughout the valley met Monday night to plan for the South Texas voter registration campaign. The meeting, sponsored by the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, drew about 60 people representing grassroots groups in Cameron and Hidalgo coun-

Texas has been divided into four regions by the San Antonio group, and similar strategy sessions have already been held in Pearsall, Victoria and Lubbock. California, New Mexico, Arizona and Colorado also have held voter registration meetings.

The Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, which describes itself as a nonprofit, nonpartisan group funded by 18 foundations and organizations, was founded in 1975. It has served as the model for two other organizations - the Midwest Voter Registration Education Project operating in 15 states and the Puerto Rico Voter Registration Project in New

Funding and technical expertise for local campaigns such as the one being planned for the valley are provided by the San Antonio-based group. Nationwide, about 3.4 million Hispanics are registered to vote, with another 3.1 million eligible but not registered, project organizers say. Hispanic organizations hope to register 1 million more Hispanics, including 200,000 in Texas, before next fall's presidential election.

One organization at the meeting, Valley Interface, has already begun a registration campaign in conjuction with the project. With 200 workers pledged to sign up 100 people each, a minimum of 20,000 potential voters are expected to be registered, according to Valley Interface's Jim Drake.

Together, Texas and California with the largest Hispanic populations in the nation, hold 28 percent of the electoral votes needed to win the presidency. One presidential hopeful, John Glenn, was in Brownsville Monday night wooing Hispanic voters at the same time the registration meeting was being held in McAllen. Similar trips to the valley are planned by other presidential contenders. "Texas is clearly one of the most important states to us, and one where we'll be doing most of our work," said Robert Brischetto, research director for the project.

Organizations such as Valley Interfaith and labor unions will provide manpower for the drive. And while the project says it is non-partisan, the overwhelming majority of people at the meeting were Democrats.

"But then about 70 percent of the Hispanics in the San Antonio, Edinburg, Mcallen area are registered Democrats and 85 percent of Hispanics voted for Mark White during the last gubernatorial campaign," Brischetto said.

More than 232,000 Mexican-Americans voted for White in a race he won by 231,000 votes. Brischetto said. Between 1978 and 1982, there was an 86 percent increase in the number of votes cast by Mexican-Americans in

Mother weeps throughout testimony at trial

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) - The clinical tone of the Genene Jones murder trial, a tenor set by medical witnesses who were the first to testify, has been shattered by a mother's tears.

Shortly after Petti Mc-Clellan took the witness stand Monday, the sobbing began. "I had a little girl," she said in response to a question from Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton. Sutton is trying to prove that Ms. Jones, a vocational nurse, killed 15-month-old Chelsea on Sept. 17, 1982 by injecting succinylcholine, a muscle relaxant.

The prosecution believes the nurse administered the drug while Chelsea was supposed to be getting routine immunizations at a Kerrville pediatrician's office. Medical experts were to return to the stand today. State District Judge John Carter ruled Monday that Dr. Bo Holmstedt, a Swedish poison expert, can testify about his test that showed Chelsea's body tissues.

The defense tried to bar Holmstedt's testimony by claiming his test is not accepted by the scientific com-

Mrs. McClellan's hour of tearful testimony began Monday when she said she held her child's arms while the shots were given. Chelsea reacted after the first of two injections, Mrs. McClelllan testified.

"She started acting funny. She was whimpering," she said through her tears. "She tried to say, 'Mama,' and she couldn't get it out."

"I told Genene something was wrong, to do something, Mrs. McClellan recalled, adding that the nurse said Chelsea was "mad because she had to have the shot."

The second shot threw Chelsea into a seizure-like reaction that led to her death during a frantic ambulance ride, according to to Mrs. Mc-Clellan, a 28-year-old physical therapist living in Ingram.

"She went limp like a rag doll, just like a rag doll," she testified. "She was looking at me. Her eyes were all strange-looking. They weren't like they were supposed to be. She was just Raggedy Ann. That's exactly what she was like."

Dr. Kathleen Holland, the pediatrician, called for an ambulance to take Chelsea to a Kerrville hospital. Then a San Antonio hospital was deemed best for the girl.

Chelsea died en route at a Comfort hospital. She had gone to Dr. Holland's office only because her brother Cameron had a cold, Mrs. McClellan testified.

The pediatrician decided to use the opportunity to have her nurse give the routine

Mrs. McClellan's courtroom account of the day was gut-wrenching. Jurors occasionally looked away. Spectators, including reporters, had tears in their eyes. The defendant appeared emotionless, her gaze fixed on Mrs. McClellan. The witness said her daughter has a similar seizure-like episode after an Aug. 24, 1982 visit to Dr. Holland's office. At that time she was taken to the Kerrville hospital and released after eight days in intensive care.

After the second seizure, Chelsea was taken back to the Kerrville hospital, where "it was just like before. Her arms didn't have any coordination. She was looking at us but they weren't Chelsea's eyes," Mrs. McClellan told jurors.

Last week, medical experts testified that the girl's symptoms were consistent with a reaction from succinylcholine, the powerful muscle relaxant Ms. Jones is accused of injecting.

Mrs. McClellan said she saw her daughter alive for the final time at the Comfort hospital. "She was just lying there, blue. She was just lying there," she said, recalling that her husband Reid tried to warn her that Chelsea was in grave danger.

"I got real mad at him, so mad at him. I told him there was no way Chelsea could die. She wasn't sick. She wasn't sick," Mrs. McClellan testified, her sorrow boiling into anger.

During cross-examination, lawyer Burt Carnes continued the defense attempt to show Chelsea was a sick girl who could have died from several possible causes. Chelsea was born four weeks prematurely and had a membrane disease that could cause her to stop breathing.

Carnes got Mrs. McClellan to acknowledge that a member of her husband's family had died from the same disease. But Mrs. McClellan remained sure that her daughter was never sick enough to die.

"One minute she was running around playing, and the next minute she was lying there," she testified. "Then they come out and tell me she's gone."

Ms. Jones faces a life sentence if convicted here. She also faces charges of injuring six children in her care in Kerrville, and is charged in San Antonio with administering life-threatening injections to a month-old boy at a hospital where she was employed before moving to Kerrville.

Texas Monthly magazine reported last year that Kerr County District Attorney Ron Sutton believed Ms. Jones tried to create medical emergencies so she could appear to save the children with her medical skill. He since has refused to comment on those remarks.

The Newspaper BIBLE

Notice among yourselves, dear brothers, that few of you who follow Christ have big names or power

Instead, God has deliberately choses to use ideas the world considers foolish and of little worth in order to shame those people considered by the world as wise and great.

He has chosen a plan despised by the world, counted as nothing at all, and used it to bring down to nothing those the world considers great. So that no one anywhere can ever brag in the presence of God. For it is from God alone that you have your life through Christ Jesus. He showed us God's plan of salvation; He was the one who made us acceptable to God; He made us pure and holy and gave Himself to purchase our salvation. As it says in the Scriptures, "If anyone is going to boast, let him boast only of what the Lord has

The Dads Association Distinguished Visiting Professor Program began in 1982 with a visit by Dr. Melvin Calvin, recipient of the 1961 Nobel Prize in chemistry. In 1983, the distinguished professor was Dr. Norman E. Borlaug, 1970 winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for work in helping to solve the world's food problems.

Allen said the program is funded by an endowment established by the association. It introduces to the university and the West Texas area international scholars who have contributed to the needs of man. Simon's most recent books include "Models of Thought," 1979; "Models of Discovery," 1977; "The Sciences of the Artificial," 1969 and 1981; "The

the 1969 Distinguished Scientific Contributions Award the American from Psychological Association and the 1975 Fredrick Mosher Award from the Association for Computing Machinery. He also has been honored as a Distinguished Fellow by the American Economic Association, National Academy of Sciences and the American Psychological Association. He has been a visiting lecturer at Harvard, yale, Princeton, New York University, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Northwestern, Dartmouth and the University of Michigan.

Business Administration Dean Carl H. Stem said the Nobel laureate's visit will have "tremendous impact on the College of Business Administration. It will be a high point of our academic year."

Psychology Department Chairman JohnH. Harvey said a lot of people in the country want to hear and interact with Simon.

"When his expertise is this broad, it cuts across many departments and gives many people an opportunity to hear
