Just Playing It Safe

"With friends like these, I don't need any enemies," was the response of Lynton Allred when Doug Manning showed up with a parachute and a photographer prior to his first airplane ride with Allred. After just receiving his pilot's license, Allred offered to fly Manning to McLean Friday night for his appearance as commencement speaker. Manning tipped off the photographer that he would have a parachute under his arm when Allred picked him up.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Austinites piled furniture on lawns and spread their soaked carpets in the hot sun that followed an overnight flood that left at least nine dead and millions of dollars of damage.

"I feel like either laughing or crying, but I have better things to cry about," said Jill Mueller as she looked through her water-ravaged home along Shoal Creek.

Mayor Carole McClellan made a Monday morning inspection of damage resulting from downpours that dumped almost seven inches of rain on some sections of the city between late Saturday night and early Monday morning.

"I think we are fortunate we didn't lose more lives, when you look at the devastation," the mayor said.

Austin Police Sgt. Ernest Shugart said authorities had recovered nine bodies, including a man whose pickup truck swirled into a drainage ditch whirlpool and a woman whose car was found 12 feet off the ground in trees.

Shugart said four others were listed as missing, including a mother who was swept away with her baby as her husband watched.

The Austin Municipal Airport recorded just over four inches of rain Sunday night and early Monday, and that brought the total since Saturday night to about seven inches.

Flash flood quickly pushed water to 20-30 feet deep in parts of town.

Homes along Shoal Creek suffered the most damage. The creek, usually a placid stream, wanders from north to south through a residential area and empties into Town Lake.

"The homes at the turns of the creek were demolished," said area resident Cam O'Keefe. "It looks like we had a week of hurricanes."

Mrs. O'Keefe and husband Kayo helped rescue a stranded woman and son, whose home was battered by the water.

"We put our boots on first to avoid snakes," said Mrs. O'Keefe.

One of the dead was identified as Michael Villarreal, 18, whose pickup truck wound up in a flooded drainage ditch in North Austin.

Mike Sheridan, a night auditor at a hotel near the ditch, said he saw the truck go down like a sinking ship.

"It looked like someone was pushing the back of the truck. Then it looked like it floated backwards. I could've sworn I saw someone jump on the tailgate before it went down. I saw arms..." Sheridan recalled.

Water ran "like the muddy Mississippi" in a ditch that usually carries a trickle, he said.

Shugart said the body of an unidentified woman was found early Monday morning in the back seat of her Cadillac, which was tangled in branches 12 feet off the ground.

Thousands of cars were soaked, floated and stranded on Austin streets. Auto dealerships several blocks from the Texas Capitol lost scores of new cars, and spent most of Monday trying to get rid of mud piled four inches deep.

Hot Spot Veterans Aid Reagan Handling of Volatile Countries

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, assembling a team to handle U.S. policy in the volatile states of Central America, is drawing heavily on men who played active roles in the Vietnam War and other past international hot spots.

From Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to military advisers on the ground in El Salvador, Reagan's Latin American policy team has considerable experience in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Other key State Department officials were on the scene in Chile during U.S. efforts to "destabilize" the Marxist government of Salvador Allende in the early 1970s, and several were in the Dominican Republic when 14,000 U.S. troops occupied the island in 1965.

Administration officials say it is only natural for Reagan to turn to people with such backgrounds in a situation that has "gone beyond talking." Critics, however, contend Reagan selected officials who are likely to seek military answers to largely political problems.

"They're emphasizing the military aspects," said Enrique Baloyra, a University of North Carolina professor on Latin American affairs. "They see only one side."

Reagan dispatched 66 non-combat military advisers to El Salvador to help the ruling military-civilian junta defeat leftist guerrillas, who the State Department contends are supplied and directed by Cuba and the Soviet Union.

"A friendly country in our hemisphere is trying to halt the infiltration into the Americas by terrorists, by outside interference and those who aren't just aiming at El Salvador but, I think, are aiming at the whole of Central and possibly later South America and, I'm sure, eventually North America," Reagan said March 6.

Among officials involved with U.S. Latin American policy:

-Haig commanded troops in Vietnam from 1964 to 1967 and later, as deputy to National Security Adviser Henry A. Kissinger, played a prominent role in U.S. efforts to block Allende from taking office.

-Thomas O. Enders, 49, Reagan's choice to be assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, was deputy chief of mission in Cambodia from 1970 to 1974. -John Bushnell, 47, acting assistant secretary for inter-American affairs and a

To Get Price Freeze

Saudis Ready to Up Oil Price

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, appeared ready today to raise its price slightly in return for a price freeze on other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, oil ministers and other OPEC sources reported.

The Saudis were expected to raise their base crude oil price from $32 a barrel to $34, Iraqi Oil Minister Tayeh Abdul Karim said Monday after the first day of the oil cartel's semiannual price-fixing meeting. But Sheikh Ahmed

Zaki Yamani, the Saudi oil minister, told reporters his government would "never" go to $36, the base price charged by most of the other members of the 13-nation group.

Saudi Arabia was also enforcing a price freeze on the other governments by refusing to reduce its record production of 10.3 million barrels a day, more than 40 percent of OPEC's total output. This, coupled with increased exports from non-OPEC countries and conservation in the industrial nations, has resulted in a glut on the oil market that is keeping the price down.

The average OPEC price is now slightly more than $35 for a 42-gallon barrel. A Saudi increase of $2 would raise the average about 80 cents a barrel and add about half a penny a gallon to the price of oil consumed by the United States.

Libyan Oil Minister Abdessalam Zagar told reporters the Saudis had given "a few hints" that they were willing to raise their price. Iranian Deputy Oil Minister Hassan Sadat said the Saudis had to raise their price because of pressure from other OPEC members.

Some sources predicted Saudi Arabia would also agree informally to lower production, but Yamani said

Elusive Duck Finally Succumbs to 'Rescue'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Groggy from bites of drug-soaked bread, a duck that eluded rescue workers for more than a month despite a three-foot-long arrow in her breast has been grabbed, airlifted to an operating room and had the arrow removed.

But the tough little mallard made life rough on her rescuers to the very end. The duck, named Donna by Humane Society of Southern Nevada volunteers, was captured by Tom Harper of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service after a tussle in the middle of a small pond at the Sahara Country Club golf course. "I'm glad that's over," said the dripping Harper, who had been after the duck for several weeks.

The duck, groggy from the sodium amylal in the bread, was flown by helicopter to a veterinary hospital shortly after her capture Monday, and the target arrow was removed.

"The duck has been operated on," said a spokeswoman for Dr. Gary Weddle. "The arrow is out, and she's doing fine."

Donna was shot at least a month ago by an unknown

Coffee Blood Bank Goal Is 216 Pints

Coffee Memorial Blood Bank has set a goal of 216 needed pints of blood, according to Pat Clark, chairman of the Blood Bank Committee.

The Bank will try to reach this goal through a blood drive to be held Wednesday from 3-6 p.m. in the Community Center.

Those needing blood are:

Jewell Lutz, 16 pints; Julia Reyna, 20 pints; Bertha McGrew, 8 pints; Willis Dugan, 8 pints; Ann Nichols, 16 pints; Earl Williams, 8 pints; baby boy Rodriguez, 8 pints; Brenda Pagett, 8 pints; Marsha Stillman, 16 pints; William Griffin, 76 pints; baby girl Trevino, 4 pints; Grady Manly, 24 pints; and Georgia Rice, 4 pints.

Passengers Overpower Hijackers in Turkey

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) - A hijacked Turkish airliner returned to Istanbul from Bulgaria after the Turkish crew and passengers overpowered the hijackers to save five American bankers and three other foreign passengers.

Five of the passengers and two of the four hijackers were wounded, but the five Americans were unharmed.

"We owe our lives to the courageous and brave Turkish stewardesses and particularly to the Turkish passengers," George C. Clark, a senior vice president of Citibank told reporters after the plane returned to Istanbul Monday night, some 41 hours after it took off.

The bold escape came at a military airfield near the Bulgarian Black Sea resort of Burgas where the Turkish Airlines DC-9 landed Sunday after four armed Turkish left-wing extremists took the plane over during a flight from Istanbul to Ankara, the Turkish capital.

Clark, 56, said he and the four other vice presidents of the New York-based bank "started to get frightened" when the hijackers ordered them to the front row of the plane.

"They checked our identities and found that we were all Americans, and their attitude toward us got worse as the negotiations continued," he said.

"The terrorists told the passengers... that at 5 o'clock they were going to release all but the first three rows and at 6 o'clock they would kill the Americans," said Brian Carlson, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Sofia.

"Turkish passengers began plotting, apparently with the pilot, to save the lives of their fellow hostages."

One of the passengers, Kemal Deniz, said several men used hand signals with the stewardesses to communicate a plan of action.

Two of the hijackers were lured from the aircraft with the promise of holding a news conference. Pilot Metin Iktizogu "gunned the engine forward, then stepped on the brakes hard, causing a lurch in the plane, and the passengers rose up and grappled with the terrorists," Carlson reported.

Begin Offers Peace Talks With Lebanon

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Prime Minister Menachem Begin has offered to open peace talks with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis in Beirut or Jerusalem, Israeli Radio reported.

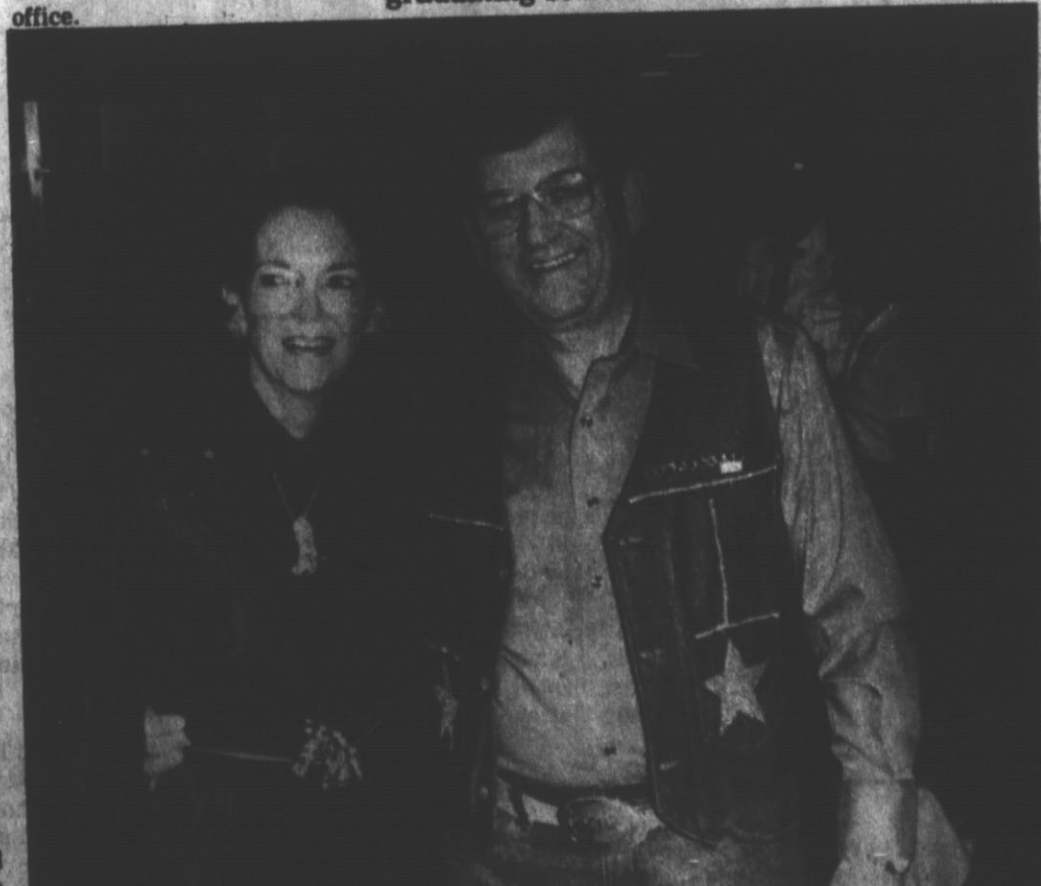

The radio report said Begin extended the offer Monday during a campaign speech in northern Israel. There were no further details and no indication that the talks Begin was proposing would involve Syria, whose anti-aircraft missiles installed last month in eastern Lebanon have been the focus of the current Mideast crisis.

shot down another pilotless Israeli reconnaissance plane Monday. Israel said it was the third plane, all pilotless drones, lost to the Syrian batteries this month, while Syria claimed it was the fifth.

A Syrian communique said it was hit as it flew through Syrian air space and the wreckage landed near the village of Madaya, six miles east of the Lebanese-Syrian border. The Israeli military command said the remote-controlled plane was directed to fly over Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, where the Syrian

Black Man Added to Atlanta Task Force Found Alive

ATLANTA (AP) — A missing 22-year-old retarded black man, whose case had just been added to a special police task force list of missing or murdered young blacks, called home to say he was picking peaches in eastern Georgia, his mother said today.

The case of Ronald Crawford, who disappeared May 18, and that of an unidentified 22-year-old black man whose body was found in a river, were assigned Monday to the task force. The unit now is investigating 28 slayings since July 1979 and is also looking into one other disappearance.

Crawford's mother told The Associated Press her son called home about 11 p.m. EDT Monday. "I heard from him, but we don't know exactly where he's at," Mrs. Crawford said. "I'm not pleased with it. All he told me he was working, and he's down near Augusta, Ga. He's picking peaches." Asked about the report of the re-emergence of Crawford, a spokesman for the task force said, "We are not releasing any information on that right now." Police earlier described Crawford as retarded and mentally disturbed.

"He asked me was I worried about him. I told him 'Yes,'" Mrs. Crawford said. "I said, 'You haven't seen your picture on TV?' He said 'No.' He told me he had been working."

She said her son did not tell her why he had gone to Augusta. "And I was worried," she said.

The only missing person now on the task force's list is 10-year-old Darron Glass, who vanished Sept. 14, 1980.

Meanwhile, officials said Monday that investigators had made "some headway" in their probe into the background of the unidentified 22-year-old, the latest and oldest victim.

Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said he would wait until today, at the earliest, to announce the identity of the man, whose naked body was found floating in the Chattahoochee River Sunday. An autopsy showed he was asphyxiated, like 16 of the 27 youths slain before him.

Proposal to Sell Radar Planes To Saudi Arabia Opposed 3-1

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans generally oppose U.S. arms sales to foreign countries and they make no exception in the case of the Reagan administration proposal to sell advanced radar warning planes to Saudi Arabia, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

The proposal to sell the sophisticated radar planes to the oil-rich Middle Eastern nation draws nearly 3-to-1 opposition from the public. At the same time, Americans think U.S. aid to Israel is about the right level.

Earlier this year, the Reagan administration said it planned to sell five Airborne Warning and Control Systems (AWACS) planes to the Saudis. The administration said it also would sell the Saudis missiles and additional fuel tanks for the advanced F-15 fighter planes they have on order from the United States.

The plan drew immediate opposition in this country and in Israel. The AWACS are large, sophisticated airborne command posts that use computers and advanced radar to watch and direct air battles over a 250-mile radius.

The sales can not take place without Congress' approval and the administration is not expected to formally submit the proposal until later this year.

Only 19 percent of those questioned said they favor selling the AWACS to Saudi Arabia. Fifty-four percent opposed the sales and 27 percent of the 1,599 adults interviewed by telephone nationwide May 18-19 were not sure.

This level of opposition is not surprising since Americans generally oppose any arms sales to other countries.

Fifty-two percent said the United States should not sell any arms or military equipment to any foreign country. Only 27 percent said such sales should be made.

Fifteen percent volunteered that arms sales should be allowed to some countries, but not others. Six percent were not sure.

That is roughly the same level of overall opposition to arms sales as was found in AP-NBC News polls in 1978.

But Americans tend to say this country is now giving about the right amount of aid — economic, military or whatever — to Israel.

Forty-three percent said the level of U.S. assistance is correct, while 32 percent said Israel is getting too much. Eight percent said Israel is not getting enough aid and 17 percent were not sure.

As recently as December 1979, the AP-NBC News poll said the public was evenly split on whether Israel was getting too much or the right amount of aid, with 38 percent endorsing each position.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

American Airlines Announces Flights

American Airlines will provide single-plane service from Lubbock to Cleveland, Philadelphia and Tampa as well as nonstop service to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport where it begins operating here on June 11, Paul Turner, the airline's Lubbock general manager, announced today.

American also will provide convenient connections at its Dallas-Fort Worth hub to and from 43 other major destinations, including Hawaii.

Most connecting passengers are on the ground at Dallas-Fort Worth for only about 45 minutes, and all connections for other American flights can be made simply and without the need to go through security again, Turner said.

American's morning flight 444 will leave Lubbock at 7:10 a.m., arrive at Dallas-Fort Worth at 8 a.m., and continue on to Cleveland, arriving there at 12:02 p.m.

Midday flight 586 will leave here at 1:30 p.m., arrive at DFW at 2:20 p.m., and continue on to Philadelphia, arriving there at 7:10 p.m.

Evening flight 150 will leave here at 6:15 p.m., arrive at DFW at 7:05 p.m., and will continue on to Tampa, arriving there at 11:03 p.m.

Among cities that will be served to and from Lubbock via connections at the DFW center are Los Angeles, Seattle, Chicago, Detroit, Boston and New York.

Turner said the schedule is designed to provide not only same-day travel between Lubbock and Dallas-Fort Worth, which many business people prefer, but also an entire array of easy connections to the East and West for business and pleasure travelers.

In every case, Turner said, a major effort was made to keep total elapsed travel times to a minimum.

He said American's Lubbock reservations number is 763-0675.

Maggie is Going to Make It!

Britain's Maggie Thatcher is going to make it! Don't uncross your fingers yet, but inflation is down and the economy is looking up.

Her prescription was the same as Reagan's: cut expenses and cut taxes.

Belt tightening is never comfortable. And it took two years. But the storekeeper's daughter is going to make it!

When the British elected Maggie Thatcher Prime Minister, they knew what they were getting.

Previously, as Minister of Education, she had discontinued free milk in schools.

Her opponents that long ago were chanting, "Thatcher - Thatcher - milk snatcher!"

But the Big Giveaway was bankrupting Britain so they elected to give her toughness a try.

It was all uphill. After one year of Thatcher - inflation continued up and employment continued down and the GNP was in decline.

Her own party was fragmenting; longtime supporters falling away.

News media at home and abroad were asking, "Will the Thatcher government survive the next vote count in Parliament?"

It did. Now it's T-day plus two years - and things are looking much better - for her country and for her.

The business downturn has bottomed out. Joblessness has topped out. British corporations are beginning to report higher earnings. The British stock market, reflecting optimism, has been setting historic highs.

The lending rate, which had been as high as 17 percent, is down to 12 percent.

Most significantly - because this is a hypo for everything and tantamount to pay raise for everybody - Britain's inflation rate is down from a raging 22 percent a year ago to 12.5 percent now.

The Thatcher monetarist theory is that you strangle inflation with high interest rates, control of the money supply, pruning government spending, and shifting resources to the private sector.

Thefts Reported Over the Weekend

The theft of $1,200 from a vehicle parked behind Pitman Commodities Office was reported to Hereford Police this past weekend. Five hundred one dollar bills and seven $100 denomination travelers checks were taken from the vehicle's glove compartment.

A rototiller valued at $850 was reported stolen from a residence at 448 Mable, while two white ducks, valued at $3 each, were reported stolen from a residence at 512 Star.

An attempted burglary was also reported at Ate Truck Stop.

Hereford police also received reports of harassing phone calls.

Four people were arrested for public intoxication this past weekend, four traffic citations were issued, and four minor incident calls were answered.

Bill Concerning Contracts Approved

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rejecting arguments that the measure would help incompetents, the House passed a bill Monday requiring school administrators to give teachers reasons for not renewing their contracts.

The Senate-passed measure was approved on voice vote and returns to the Senate for action on amendments that made the bill protect superintendents as well as teachers.

The measure would not apply to teachers on probation or to those on continuing contracts but would provide a new right to teachers with contracts limited to a fixed term of years.

A principal would have to give a teacher, in writing, the reasons for not renewing his or her contract. There also would have to be a periodic written evaluation of each teacher.

"What this does is establish tenure for teachers," objected Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Sugar Land.

He contended that the need to write reasons for non-renewal in careful, legal language that would stand up in court would discourage principals from dismissing teachers.

"I feel this would be bad public policy in light of the people saying in the last elections they want competent teachers ... and want to get at the bad teachers," DeLay said.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said a teacher should have the right to know why his or her contract was not renewed.

"It hurts both sides," DeLay replied. "It could be used later to reinstate or not reinstate a teacher."

Weather

West Texas — Partly cloudy afternoons, otherwise fair through Wednesday. A slight chance of showers or thunderstorms east of mountains today. Warmer central and southeast. Highs near 90 north to near 100 Big Bend except mid 80s mountains. Lows upper 50s Panhandle to mid 60s south except mid 40s mountains.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, a long-time advocate of bilingual programs for public school children, insisted on the delay Friday. He said he needed time to consider some "unacceptable" changes made in the bill.

Also on Friday, White sent Truan a letter urging him to "persevere in your efforts to pass a bilingual education bill."

"It is important, both for the education of our children, and for the state's appeal of the recent court ruling in the bilingual education lawsuit that we have new legislation on the subject," White wrote.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ruled Texas must offer bilingual instruction by 1986 to all students who need it, through high school if necessary.

Truan was warned that postponement meant almost certain death for the bill.

"She got a little tipsy, but not enough," Harper said.

At that point, the decision was made to drug the duck.

Harper and Anthony tossed her pieces of bread soaked with the barbiturate, then settled down to wait.

Donna went to sleep for a brief period, then woke and flew to another pond. Anthony and Harper plunged in after her, but she escaped again and flew back to the first pond, where she was captured.

Anthony said the doctor cut the arrow and pulled it from Donna's body. He said the shaft had nicked her crop, the first part of her stomach, and that she had been unable to eat normally.

"There was less damage than was anticipated, thank goodness for her," Anthony said. "Right now the main thing is to make sure no infection sets in."

Earlier, Weddle said he felt Donna would suffer no lasting ill effects from the wound.

"Mother Nature's been taking care of these animals for hundreds of thousands of years before we came along," he said.

Anthony said the duck would remain in the hospital for two or three days before being returned to her mate and ducklings.

In a speech Sunday night, Begin said, "Soviet advisers go with Syrian units into Lebanon." On Monday, he called it "an old piece of news" that reporters had inflated. But it was believed to be the first time an Israeli authority had publicly claimed Soviet advisers were in Lebanon.

"I think we really need it," Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said of the measure authored by Speaker Bill Clayton. "If would simplify the procedure and make it easier to understand."

Another provision of the measure says that contributions not accepted do not have to be reported.

A federal court jury acquitted Clayton last October of political corruption charges in connection with $5,000 in cash given him by an FBI informant posing as an insurance man who was seeking the state's group insurance business. Clayton said he never intended to keep the money.

Tribute Paid To Late George Jessel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fellow comedians Bob Hope and Milton Berle paid tribute Monday to George Jessel, whose long show business career and ceaseless stints on the speaking circuit earned him the nickname "Toastmaster General of the USA" from President Harry Truman.

Funeral services were pending for Jessel, a comedian, actor, singer and producer whose career spanned more than 70 years.

Jessel was born on April 3, 1898, on the same New York City block as Berle.

Jessel's first job was in the Imperial Singing Trio, with columnist Walter Winchell, and he soon came to the attention of starmaker Gus Edwards, who launched him on a vaudeville career.

By 1918, Jessel was a star comedian with the Shubert Gaities. Because his gags sounded too sophisticated for so one young, he spoke them into a telephone onstage as if talking with his mother.

He later toured with Eddie Cantor in an act called "Kid Cabaret." Silent films followed. He wrote a book and soon was dividing his time between Broadway, the musical stage, radio and nightclubs.

Holiday Toll

Below Last Year's

CHICAGO (AP) — Traffic accidents claimed the lives of at least 346 people nationwide during the three-day Memorial Day weekend, far below both last year's total and the National Safety Council's estimate for the holiday.

Last year, 411 people died during the Memorial Day observance.

This year's total of 346 included deaths that occurred between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday in each time zone.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 450 and 500 motorists could be killed over the weekend.

Drenching storms in parts of the Southwest may have helped keep some motorists home, and rain spoiled outings in scattered sections elsewhere around the nation.

Council statisticians estimate that during a three-day, non-holiday weekend at this time of the year, 496 traffic deaths could be expected.

The worst toll on record for a Memorial Day weekend was in 1969 when 629 people were killed in traffic accidents.

Senators Amend, Approve Curb

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senators agreed with the House Monday that politicians should not be permitted to accept cash contributions of more than $100.

The measure was sent back to the House for approval of several amendments.

"Do we really need this or are we ed, he said, and the other fired "at random" before he, too, was overpowered. He said explosives were found on the plane.

The four hijackers remained in Bulgaria, but all the passengers and crew members returned to Istanbul.

The hijackers were reported to be men in their mid-20s who belonged to the Turkish Marxist group Dev

Sol, or Revolutionary Left. They threatened to blow up the plane along with themselves, the Americans, the Japanese couple and a French passenger unless Turkey's military government paid them $500,000 and freed 47 imprisoned leftists.

The government rejected the demands and told the hijackers if any of the hostages were killed, it would execute the 47 leftist prisoners.

At Wits End By ERMA BOMBECK

Every once in a while something happens in our lives to cause us to reshuffle our priorities.

Sometimes, it's a traumatic birthday or a friend facing a crisis. To me, it was the funeral of a good friend that left me vulnerable, confused, and doubtful as to what I am all about.

I wanted to draw all our savings out of the bank and go to Tahiti. I wanted to put the plastic dishes in the driveway and back over them with a car. I wanted to take ballet lessons. Throw away all the fake flowers and replace them with a jungle of vines and greenery. I wanted to take up all the throw rugs and let the dirt fall where it wanted to.

That very night, I took a look at my life, rearranged my cards into a whole new hand, and made a vow. I am not going to be like the woman on the Titanic who, as she climbed into the lifeboat facing an uncertain future, sobbed in anguish, "If I had known this was going to happen, I'd have had the chocolate mousse for dessert."

So get ready, world! Miss Practical is going to start living each day like it's her last.

You know that drawer full of pantyhose that I save? The ones that don't come up to my thighs and depress me every time I look at them? Well, I pitched them.

Remember that big candle in the hallway that's shaped like a rose and gathers dust and gets soft in the summer? I torched it yesterday.

And the car window... the one on my side that has a two-inch crack in it that we said we'd have fixed when we sell the car? Well, it's fixed.

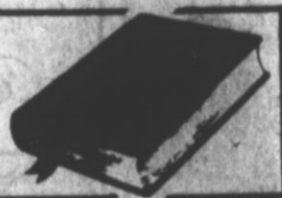

Guess who's coming to dinner Sunday? Evie and Jack, whom we have seen at 16 weddings and say the same thing to every time: "We've got to get together."

And that big can of tuna that I didn't want to open because I'm the only one who eats tuna and I couldn't bear to waste the rest of it? Well, so what!

As I washed my hands with a little silver of pink soap shaped like a sea shell, my husband said, "I thought you were saving those. You got them wet and they don't look like a shell anymore."

I looked down at the handful of suds. A shell only holds life. I had just given it a chance to be something more.

The Newspaper BIBLE

DON'T WAIT 'TIL THE DOOR IS LOCKED!

Someone asked Jesus, "Will only a few be saved?" And He replied, "The door to heaven is narrow. Work hard to get in, for the truth is that many will try to enter but when the head of the house has locked the door, it will be too late. Then if you stand outside knocking, and pleading, 'Lord, open the door for us,' He will reply, 'I do not know you.'"

"But we ate with You, and You taught in our streets," you will say. "And He will reply, 'I tell you, I don't know you. You can't come in here, guilty as you are. Go away.'"

"And there will be great weeping and gnashing of teeth as you stand outside and see Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and all the prophets within the Kingdom of God--for people will come from all over the world to take their places there."

And note this: some who are despised now will be greatly honored then; and some who are highly thought of now will be least important then."

A few minutes later some Pharisees said to Him, "Get out of here if you want to live, for King Herod is after you!"

Jesus replied, "Go tell that fox that I will go on casting out demons and doing miracles of healing today and tomorrow; and the third day I will reach my destination. Yes, today, tomorrow, and the next day! For it wouldn't do for a prophet of God to be killed except in Jerusalem!"

"O, Jerusalem, Jerusalem! The city that murders the prophets. The city that stones those sent to help her. How often I have wanted to gather your children together even as a hen protects her brood under her wings, but you wouldn't let Me."

And now--now your house is left desolate. And you will never again see Me until you say, 'Welcome to Him who comes in the name of the Lord.'"

Youth Problem Areas Discussed

The 4-H & Youth Committee met Tuesday, May 19, at the Library Heritage Room.

A slide presentation was given explaining the purpose of the committee and its role in the Extension program building process.

This committee is the link between 4-H County Council, 4-H Parent Leaders and the community. Contact with members of this committee helps to broaden the perspective of youth in Deaf Smith County, not just 4-H.

The committee participated in a discussion led by Sue Powell concerning some of the youth's problems. Some areas mentioned were: career education, college enrollment education, the image of 4-H among youth, and community services involvement.

Several ideas were discussed and a definite plan of action decided. The 4-H County Council will begin to organize groups of youth for community projects. Glenna West and Casey Cobb will be in charge of this.

The committee then decided to try to work in conjunction with the High School on a career day or week.

Other activities were planned to be carried out and reported on at the next meeting, Thursday, August 27.

Members present at the meeting were: Sue Powell - Chairman, Jimmy Rowton, Lupe Alvarado, Billie Jo Gee, Herb Vogel, Casey Cobb, Glenna West, Louise Walker, Robby Vann and Penny Cribbs.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Lingerie Shower Hosted

Miss Terry Hetzel was honored with a lingerie shower recently in the home of Renee Hill. Gifts were presented to Miss Hetzel and refreshments were served. Hostesses were Patti Robbins, Ms. Hill and Tami Lawson. Miss Hetzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.D.

Ann Landers

Not Accepted Everywhere

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I doubt that you will ever see this, but I'm going to give it the ol' college try.

I have been a reader for a long time and read many letters from wives who have been left for another woman, but they don't know what pain is until they have been dumped for another man. It happened to me after 15 years of what I thought was a good marriage.

You will probably say, "He'll get his," but so far, he is riding high. He takes his lover on trips (a recent one was sponsored by the Episcopal Church, and they had a wonderful time). He seems to get richer and more successful.

I am not bitter, but I am confused by the total acceptance of homosexuality which ruined my life. You can't imagine what it is like to take on a man and his lover in a divorce suit. I finally gave up -- handed over the house, the money and walked away. I know God will provide for me later. -- No City, No State, I've Had Enough

DEAR HAD ENOUGH: First, homosexuality is not totally acceptable. A great many people view it as an abomination, and I hear from them every day. Second, homosexuality did NOT ruin your life. Your life was ruined by a husband who turned out to be bisexual.

I don't know if you are interested in the information below, but I promised to print it as soon as I checked it out. There is an effective organization for straights who have married homosexuals (both gays and lesbians). These people want to learn how to make their marriages work. This organization also provides a network of emotional support for straights who have discovered that their marriage partner is gay. They want to learn how to cope with the situation. The address is:

STRAIGHT PARTNERS
P.O. Box 1603
Hyattsville, Md 20778

If you write to this organization, please enclose a self-addressed envelope for a personal reply.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of two daughters, both in their 20s. They simply cannot get along. It's not that they argue -- they completely ignore one another. I honestly believe they hate each other. This is extremely unpleasant because we all live under the same roof.

When I try to get these girls to do things together, it seems to push them further apart. Should I keep trying to make peace, or should I just let them lead their own lives and hope one day they will become friends? -- NYC established. You can do nothing to change things. Let them alone and be content that they are not at each other's throats. It could be a lot worse -- and it usually is in families where sibling rivalry is intense.

DEAR NYC: These young women are in their 20s. Their personality patterns and preferences are well-

CONFIDENTIAL to The Truth Is Dead: Sorry to hear the bad news. I didn't even know it was sick. Instead of being so cynical, why not pull up your socks and accept the job -- even though it is "beneath your dignity"? It's more dignified than living off your brother.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap.

Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

4-H Firsthand 'Where Did It Come From?'

By PENNY CRIBBS
County Extension Agent
"What a man hears, He may doubt
What a man sees, He may possibly doubt
What a man does, himself, He cannot doubt."

Seaman A. Knapp This statement, which is the philosophy behind extension, was made by the man who founded the co-op extension service in Terrell County, Texas, Seaman A. Knapp. The purpose was, "to raise the income and standard of living for the American farmer and his family." The best way to do this was through demonstrations which the people participated in.

But, where did 4-H come from?

Well, in order to achieve the purpose of extension, he soon realized that changes in methods and techniques were needed. But, the saying, "You can't teach an old dog new tricks," soon slowed down progress.

"Change and youth go hand-in-hand." What better way to make changes than to begin with America's Youth--result: the birth of the first 4-H club, called, "The Corn Club."

Since that time, 4-H has grown to become a national organization. Some 230,000 youth alone are involved in 4-H projects and activities.

Exchange programs throughout the U.S., Canada, and Europe are available to senior 4-H'ers each year. Not to mention the thousands of dollars that are given to these youth yearly through awards and scholarships.

Yep, "from the Corn Club in Texas--to foreign exchange in Switzerland" 4-H has grown. It is now one of the most respected and honored organizations in our country.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic levels, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

Cultural Extension Club Meeting Held

The Cultural Extension Club had its spring luncheon at the Thompson House Restaurant recently. Mrs. Jewel Hargrave presided over a short meeting during the luncheon.

Guests present were Annis Corbett, Elizabeth Conway and son Jeremy.

The next meeting will be

September 11 in the home of Vernis Parsons.

Members present were Fanny Townsend, Virginia Sumner, Carrie Mae Doak, Jewel Rogers, Winnie Wiseman, Edith Hunter, Vernis Parsons, Ellia Stehr, Jewel Hargrave, Ruth Gandy and Tillie Scott.

Pat Walker's deserves a bouquet--they helped me lose 24 pounds!

Becky Hendricks' True Story:

Me, hiding in my oversized raincoat.

It seemed like everyone who came into my family's store asked me if I was putting on weight. That hurt my feelings, but I knew I had gained too much. Although I'm tall (5'10"), I couldn't excuse 164 pounds.

When I saw a newspaper ad for Pat Walker's salon close to my Stockbridge, Georgia home, I went in for a complimentary treatment. From my very first visit, I liked the encouraging attitude of the counselors. They taught me so much about how to eat sensibly, without denying myself my favorite foods.

I really like relaxing on Pat Walker's passive exercise unit, too. Those sessions (2 or 3 times a week) kept my figure smooth and firm while I lost 24 pounds and a total of 30 inches.

Now, everyone compliments me on how good I look. I tell them I couldn't have done it without Pat Walker's.

Make an appointment now for a free, no-obligation consultation at Pat Walker's. We'll explain how our program works, from the no-muss, no-fuss passive exercise treatments to our belief in your right to privacy. We'll tell you how much you need to lose, how long it will take, and the total cost of your complete figure correction, based on four dollars per thirty-minute treatment. CALL NOW!

El Paso and Juarez—Tamp Economic Pairing

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — To outsiders, Juarez still evokes thoughts of quick divorces, gambling, drinking and scantily clad women at wild nightclubs. But to people in neighboring El Paso, Juarez is a partner in economic stability — the source of pesos that are welcome north of the border.

With no other major cities for nearly 300 miles, El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico have learned to depend on each other for commerce, creating an economic climate that is virtually oblivious to changes in the rest of the United States and Mexico.

"We're pretty isolated here," said Mark Miles, director of the El Paso Chamber of Commerce. "The nearest city is too far for much trade to go on. There is relatively little monetary connection between Juarez and Mexico. Very little comes into Juarez from the balance of Mexico."

The cities, with a combined population of about 1.5 million, form the second largest metropolitan area along the border. Juarez is larger, with nearly 1 million residents, and both cities are growing rapidly.

"We're really one big community separated by a stretch of water and some bridges," said Don Shuffstall of State National Bank, referring to the Rio Grande. "There are 70 million to 80 million bodies crossing the bridges here every year. More than 70 percent of the businesses in El Paso accept pesos. It's big business here."

A survey by business consultants Thomas F. Lee and Associates indicated Juarez residents spent nearly $90 million in El Paso in 1978. The survey said the average Juarez family made less than $270 a month then, and spent an average of nearly $30 in El Paso every week.

The retail industry gets most of those peso-dollars. Signs and most salesclerks are bilingual, and many price tags are in both dollars and pesos. While downtown areas in other cities are decaying, El Paso bustles at all hours.

Sid Rosen, president of the Downtown Development Association Inc. and owner of two men's stores, said about 70 percent of the downtown customers are from Juarez. "Our salvation certainly has been the border," he added.

"Some of it has to do with price," said Juarez business leader Guillermo Ochoa. "Some of it has to do with availability and some of it has to do with variety."

To a lesser degree, dollars also flow into Juarez from El Paso.

A Chamber of Commerce survey this year showed more than 35 percent of El Paso residents visit Juarez regularly, spending a median amount of $17 per visit, mostly on food and liquor.

"Juarez has pretty well always been a net profit to El Paso," Miles said. "It's tended to be a bedroom community. They do their business in El Paso and live and sleep in Juarez."

For U.S. citizens, crossing the border is generally merely a matter of waving at customs agents. Mexicans officially need documents to allow entry into Texas, but thousands cross illegally every day.

Retailers monitor government policies to keep the traffic and money flowing. Rosen said he and others fought for retention of temporary bridge crossing permits, which the government planned to discontinue. They convinced officials to keep issuing the permits, protecting El Paso's cheap labor pool.

Tourism once was the main business in Juarez, and visitors could buy cheap liquor, gamble, go to nightclubs or get a quick divorce. In an effort to change that image, Mexico banned rapid divorces and cleaned up much of the other activity.

Now, Juarez and El Paso jointly vie for convention trade and the new tourism pours millions of dollars into the area, said Bob Knight of the El Paso Convention Bureau. He said tourism in El Paso was up 19 percent last year.

Many U.S. companies have discovered labor-intensive work can be done as cheaply in Mexico as in Hong Kong or Taiwan, and in the past several years, 112 American companies have located plants in Juarez. The plants have had a big impact on Juarez' economy, Ochoa said.

Miles agreed, saying, "Before we had those plants, their best income was in the tourist business. They wiped out quickie divorces about the time they opened those manufacturing plants."

"In dollars, $2.7 million is dumped into the economy of Juarez each week via payroll," Ochoa said. "It's been estimated that 40 to 50 percent of that is going to the El Paso side for the purchase of goods and services. That's a million a week."

Shuffstall said the minimum wage in Mexico is about $3 a day, making it much cheaper to produce items like electronic parts south of the border. And U.S. companies can take raw materials and goods in and out of Mexico duty-free.

Robert Head, executive director of the El Paso Industrial Development Corp., said El Paso also is favored because of its Sun Belt location and large workforce. He agrees Juarez also is important.

"You can't be this close together without it having some effect," he said. "The more jobs there are in Juarez, the more pesos are put into El Paso. Anything that increases the attractiveness of either city will help both sides."

Holiday Deaths Told to 346

By BRIAN FRIEDMAN
Associated Press Writer

Americans remembered the nation's war dead, the young blacks slain in Atlanta, the plight of Vietnam veterans and the pleasures of sun and food in celebrations of Memorial Day.

Former South Vietnamese army soldiers honored the sacrifice of American GIs at a ceremony in Oregon on Monday, Vice President George Bush visited Arlington National Cemetery, and in a little town in Tennessee they held tobacco-spitting contests and wheelbarrow races. And wherever there was sun, there were picnickers and sunbathers.

Accidents marred the weekend, however. By the end of the three-day holiday, 346 people had been killed on the nation's roads, according to the National Safety Council. During last year's Memorial Day Weekend, 411 people were killed, the council said.

Bush laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier after a 21-gun salute and the sounding of taps as about 5,000 tourists and dignitaries watched.

A dozen veterans of the army of South Vietnam joined present and past American servicemen in a service at Williamette National Cemetery in Portland, Ore. Thuan Q. Pham, formerly a lieutenant colonel in the Army of the Republic of Vietnam, presented a wreath of flowers at a memorial to the unknown soldier and told the Americans, "The people of Vietnam will never forget your sacrifices."

In New York City, Josephine Holmes attended a service at the Soldiers and Sailors Monument, wearing a Gold Star pin on her dress. Her son was killed at Guadalcanal in World War II. "I'll never forget the day," Mrs. Holmes said. "Sept. 19, 1944. He was 19."

She later went to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Manhattan as part of what she called her duty "to take care of those who come home."

At the Wadsworth Veterans Hospital in Los Angeles, eight Vietnam veterans continued a fast and another group staged a sit-in in the hospital's lobby to demand an investigation into health care for veterans and into the effects of Agent Orange, a chemical defoliant used in the Vietnam War.

The two groups plan to remain at the facility until President Reagan or other administration officials answer their complaints.

"If they (the administration) have no response, we have no response," said hunger striker Dane Stewart,

25. "They know what our demands are; we're staying here. If we all die, we all die."

The protesters left the facility briefly to attend a memorial service for ex-Marine James Hopkins, whose May 17 death triggered the demonstration. Hopkins drove his Jeep through the hospital's glass doors in March and fired shots in the lobby. He said he was suffering from the effects of Agent Orange. Hopkins was awaiting trial on charges stemming from the incident when he died, apparently of an overdose of liquor and sleeping pills.

Atlanta's 29 missing or murdered black youths were remembered in several ceremonies across the nation.

In Washington, members of the Committee to Stop Children's Murders, including some of the mothers of the victims, marched in the streets. A vigil was held at the state capitol in Salt Lake City by the recently formed group, Save Our Children. A moment of silence for the slain children was observed in Los Angeles.

More than a million people swarmed the oceanfront at Coney Island in New York, but only 395,000 turned out at Los Angeles County beaches, far below the holiday's record.

In Ironton, Ohio, the 113th Memorial Day Parade drew thousands of spectators to view marching bands, antique cars and a 21-gun salute.

Crowds also gathered for tobacco spitting, wheelbarrow racing and marble shooting on the final day of the second annual "Moscow Summer Olympics" at Moscow, Tenn. The three-day event was started last year as a spoof of the Summer Olympics in the Soviet Union, boycotted by the United States because of the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

Herd Holds Spring Game Tonight

Spring football drills for the Hereford Whitefaced climaxes tonight with the annual Maroon - White intrasquad game with the kickoff set for 7:30 p.m. at Whiteface Stadium.

A freshman scrimmage is scheduled for next fall's sophomore prospects, and that game will get underway at 4:30 p.m.

Don Cumpton, athletic director and head football coach, said his staff emphasized fundamentals during the three-week spring training period. The squads had 14 actual workouts during the time prescribed by the University Interscholastic League.

"We tried to divide our squads evenly and have three units on each team," said Cumpton. "We're going to try and split time with the three units," he added.

The Herd mentor said he hoped the team selections would provide "a close game." Cumpton said the coaches didn't try to put first-team offense against first-team defense. "We hope we've got some of our best offensive and defensive players on both squads."

The Whitefaced return 15 legends from last season, but Cumpton counts only five returning starters. The veterans include two-way starter Aubrey Richburg; Don Delozier and Alan Wartes on offense, and Barry Josseland and Bruce Clark on defense. The Herd lost 29 players via graduation.

Cumpton said he wouldn't mind seeing "a low scoring game." That would mean, he pointed out, that the defense is coming along. The Whitefaced changed their defensive alignment this spring to a 4-3 after operating with a five-man front for a number of years.

The change was made, according to Cumpton, "because the 4-3 seems to fit our personnel better at this time." It is doubtful Cumpton will show all the ammunition his team possesses, since scouts will be here from other schools.

Following is a breakdown of the teams for tonight's spring contest:

Indy Title Taken from Unser; Andretti Declared as Winner

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mario Andretti's first day as a two-time winner of the Indianapolis 500 was a roller-coaster of emotion.

When the 1969 Indy winner went to sleep Sunday night, he was a second-place finisher in that day's Indy classic. But the 41-year-old racer from Nazareth, Pa., awoke on Monday to find that the race stewards had snatched the triumph away from Bobby Unser, the man who took the victory laps at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, and made Andretti the winner.

"I didn't know what to say or how to feel," Andretti said. "When (chief mechanic) Jim McGee called me at about 8:30 (a.m.), it was a shock. My first feeling was, 'Hey, I won.' But then my emotions were very mixed."

"Winning here is supposed to be a delightful experience. I'm sure in time it will be. It's a plus and a minus for both of us, though. It's a very unusual way to win an event. It's unfortunate for him and for me."

"The unfortunate thing is that Bobby went through all the hoopla, all the things the winner gets to go through. Then it was taken away from him. And I did not get to go through any of that."

"I know how Bobby must feel. The 1978 Italian Grand Prix was taken away from me precisely that way because I supposedly jumped the line at the start. Maybe this makes up for it a little, but I don't know whether anything really makes up for it."

"And that doesn't make Bobby feel any better." Andretti, teammate Gordon Johncock and A.J. Foyt all complained to the stewards following the race that Unser had illegally passed a group of cars on lap 149 as he came back on the track from the pits during a yellow flag caution period. The stewards, who are in charge of the race course, looked at videotapes and other race data and agreed, penalizing Unser one lap.

That left the two-time Indy winner nearly a full lap behind Andretti, but still in second place ahead of Australian Vern Schuppan. However, it also cost Unser and the Roger Penske team about $100,000 in prize money.

A pair of protests by Penske — one pleading that Unser was innocent of the charge and the other accusing Andretti of the same type violation — were denied by the stewards after nearly six hours of hearings Monday. Although the checks for both first and second place were being held up pending an appeal on those decisions, the Indianapolis Motor Speedway released the tentative figures.

If nothing more changes, Andretti and team owner U.E. "Pat" Patrick will eventually receive a check for $262,424 from the record purse of $1.6 million. Second-place money for Unser and Penske, the man Andretti drove for last year, would be $168,674.

Those figures would change if the positions were again reversed because accessory money that is part of the prize fund is based on individual car sponsorships. In 1980, Johnny Rutherford and car owner Jim Hall took a record winner's payoff of $318,819 because of additional accessory and lap money.

Golf Pros Divided On Making Major of Memorial

By GEORGE STRODE

AP Sports Writer

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) —

Golf's touring pros are divided over whether Jack Nicklaus' Memorial Tournament should be come a fifth major for the sport.

Currently, the U.S. and British opens, the Masters and the PGA comprise the game's Big Four tournaments. Mark Hayes, the first-round leader in this year's Memorial, which was won Sunday by Keith Fergus, says Nicklaus' showpiece already enjoys major status.

"This course is tougher than Augusta (site of the Masters), said Hayes. "It's the best course, it's the best tournament in the world. It's done as it should be, and you know who to thank for that."

But Tom Weiskopf, who grew up in this central Ohio area with Nicklaus, disagrees.

"There's going to be four majors. There should remain four majors. The theme of the Memorial is a good idea, but I don't think golf needs another major," he said.

Tom Purtzer, a contender in the sixth annual event at Muirfield Village, sides with Hayes.

"What do you expect from Jack? He has taken the best out of every tournament and molded it into this tournament," said Purtzer, whose 287 tied him for third place, three shots behind Fergus and two higher than runnerup Jack Renner.

Nicklaus' burning desire is to create another major with the Memorial. To work toward that goal, he has created and built a $10 million layout on the ground he once hunted on as a child.

Muirfield Village is reminiscent of Augusta National. Nicklaus has chosen the theme of green, the same as the Masters. Even the wrappings on the sandwiches are green. The dye in the lakes and creeks are green. And the officials and volunteers all wear green.

Some of the holes at Muirfield Village, particularly the 158-yard 12th, bear striking resemblances to those at Augusta.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Filipino Mario Siodina shot a 1-under-par 71 to edge countryman Eleutrio Nival by two strokes and win the Dunlop Masters golf championship.

Siodina finished with a four-day total of 286 at the Seremban International Golf Club Course. Nival shot a 2-over-par 74 in the final round to finish at 287.

ADENAU, West Germany (AP) — Swiss race car driver Herbert Mueller died after his Porsche 908 crashed during a race at the Nuernberg track near here, authorities reported.

The 42-year-old Mueller's car smashed into a pileup involving four other cars about an hour after the race began and exploded in flames, track officials said.

Q. Less than two months ago, I completely overhauled the differential on my 1978 Bronco. Now I have a brand new noise coming from the rear. The tires are all right. What's my next move?
A. Make a test drive and perform the following tests: Change the transmission lever from one speed range to another. If the noise appears in one and not in the other, it is coming from the transmission. Note the road speed at which the noise is loudest. Stop the car and race the engine until it's at the speed the noise was heard. If the noise is present, it's caused by the engine or exhaust, or as you drive, lightly apply the brakes while holding the car speed steady. If the noise varies in pitch, you need to replace a wheel or axle shaft bearing.

Rodeo Team Wins Again

The Hereford High School boy's Rodeo Team re-established themselves as the number one team in the Tri-State Rodeo Association competition this past weekend in Canadian. The team brought home the first place team trophy with a total of 20 points, increasing their overall lead in the TSRA team standings.

Six of the 11 team members who traveled to Canadian placed in the competition.

Tony Wilcox placed third in bullriding, Brett Cunningham placed first in calf roping, Lee Washington placed third in calf roping, Steve and Shawn McConnell placed first in team roping, Robert Esqueda placed first in bullriding and Rita Ward placed sixth in barrel racing.

The team will travel to Guymon, Oklahoma this weekend for the last rodeo of this season before the Tri-State Finals which will be held June 4-6 in Amarillo.

Country Club Tennis Tournery Results Given

Dave Hopper teamed with Cindy McWhorter to capture the Championship division of the Memorial Day Mixed Doubles Draw Tennis Tournament at the Hereford Country Club.

Hutto and Sue Sims winning the consolation title.

B Division runners-up were Jim Clarke - Pauline Howard, while Charles Gilliam and Patsy Brock were consolation winners.

A total of 93 entries were received for the tourney, which lasted four days, and contained four divisions. Other divisional winners were Frank Bezner - Sondra Reinauer, A Division; Bill Howard - Jan Weishaar, B Division; and Ken Rogers - Susan Barrett, C Division.

Taking second in the C Division were Fred Uphaw - Staci Payne, while James Head teamed with Jeri Bezner for consolation honors.

The club's next tournament will be June 20-21, with men's doubles and women's doubled play the format.

Hopper - McWhorter defeated Trent Thomas - Wanda Payne for championship honors, while the team of Kevin Downing and Janet McWhorter took consolation laurels.

GOLF

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Keith Fergus shot a 71 to record the first victory of his five-year career, a one-stroke triumph in the prestigious Memorial tournament.

Fergus finished with a 284 total, four strokes under par on the 7,116-yard Muirfield Village Golf Club course.

Jack Renner took second with a 71 and a 285 total. Tom Watson, George Archer, Craig Stadler and Tom Purtzer tied for third at 287. Archer and Stadler had 75s, and Watson struggled to a 74.

GANTON, England (AP) — Britain's Nick Faldo shot a 67 for an 8-under-par 205 after three rounds in the Sun Alliance PGA golf championship.

Three shots behind was Scotsman Ken Brown, who was fined $105 for slow play after a 3-under-par third round of 68. In third place was Australia's Greg Norman with 209.

Hereford Man In Marathon

Dean Fox of Hereford finished 64th overall at the Funfest Marathon in Amarillo last Saturday. Fox turned in a time of 3:29.26 for the 26-mile plus race.

Tyler Todd, of Brenham, was the winner of the race in a record time of 2:23.11, eclipsing the old record of 2:24.28 set by Kyle Hefner in 1979.

The top woman finisher was Moo Thorpe of Sante Fe, New Mexico in a time of 3:16.14. A total of 148 runners completed the marathon with 250 more finishing the mini-marathon, which was won by Bruce Washburn of Tucumcari in a time of 1:11.31, also a new record.

The top women's finisher in the half marathon was Donna Burge of Houston, in 1:23.37, also a record-setting pace.

WENTWORTH, England

(AP) — Australian Noel Ratcliffe recorded a 2-under-par 70 and took a one-stroke lead at the end of the third round in the $150,000 Martini International golf tournament.

Ratcliffe had a 54-hole total of 213, one stroke ahead of compatriot Rodger Davis and Bernhard Langer of West Germany.

AUTO RACING

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bobby Allison went from seventh place in the field and held off a challenge from Harry Gant to win the World 600 N.A.S.-CAR Grand National stock car race by eight seconds at Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Allison, in a Buick, led 10 times for 140 laps in capturing his second World 600 title, and averaged 129.326 miles per hour.

Cale Yarborough, in a

Buick, was in third place, two laps behind Gant's Pontiac.

LIME ROCK, Conn. (AP)

— Brian Redman powered his Lola T-600 to a four-lap victory in the two-hour Camel GT race at the Lime Rock Track for his second in his new prototype Lola with a Chevrolet engine.

TENNIS

PARIS (AP) — Adriano Panatta of Italy upset eighth-seeded Harold Solomon 6-3, 7-5, 6-2 in the French Open at Roland Garros stadium.

In other matches, top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden beat Jose Lopez-Maseo of Spain, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, while third-seeded John McEnroe downed Vince van Patten 6-2, 6-0, 6-4.

ROME (AP) — Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina beat Victor Pecci of Paraguay 6-3, 6-4, 6-0 to win the $200,000 Italian Open.

Hunter Safety Course Slated

A Hunter Safety Course will be offered the first part of June with local Texas Parks and Wildlife Department official Chuck Cosper conducting the class, which will include six hours of instruction.

The course will be held June 5-6 and will lead to certification of those who complete it under the Texas Hunter Safety Act.

The class will be limited to 15 persons, and those interested may contact Cosper at 364-4723 after 7 p.m. daily to get the details.

"We are interested mainly in the young people," Cosper said, "but the class is open to anyone regardless of age."

Included in the course will be three hours of classroom instruction and three hours of practical application at the local shooting range.

Stein Stars for Texas; Palmer Blanks Yanks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Bill Stein is a good man in a pinch and Jim Palmer is outstanding against the New York Yankees, in particular, but Carl Yastrzemski is something else just about every time out.

Stein, signed as a free agent during the off-season, set an American League record with his seventh consecutive pinch hit in the bottom of the ninth inning Monday night, singling home the winning run to give the Texas Rangers a 4-3 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Meanwhile, Palmer, who said two weeks ago he might have to become a reliever because he was having trouble pitching more than a few innings at a time, hurled his second consecutive complete game, a five-hit 10-1 rout for the Baltimore Orioles over the Yankees. It was his 26th career triumph over New York, most of any active pitcher, and matched Palmer's 26 victories over his other pigeons, the Cleveland Indians.

And the 41-year-old Yastrzemski, appearing in his 3,000th major league game, delivered a key two-run single as Boston wiped out a 6-2 deficit with four runs in the seventh inning and walked and scored the winning run in the ninth as the Red Sox edged the Cleveland Indians 8-7.

"The old man did a pretty good job in his 3,000th game," Manager Ralph Houk said. "He had one heck of a night. The man is almost unbelievable. He made a couple of great plays in the field, sparked our comeback in the seventh and wound up by scoring the winning run. He'll beat you any and every way possible."

Elsewhere, the Oakland A's downed the Chicago White Sox 5-2, the Detroit Tigers pounded the Milwaukee Brewers 12-3, the Seattle Mariners swept a doubleheader from the Kansas City Royals 7-1 and 5-2 and the California Angels edged the Toronto Blue Jays 2-1.

Yastrzemski's heroics helped the Red Sox overcome home runs by Cleveland's Joe Charboneau, Andre Thornton and Toby Harrah.

Rangers 4, Twins 3
Stein set his pinch hit record with a bases-loaded single after Texas tied the score on singles by Mickey Rivers, Al Oliver and Buddy Bell, his third RBI. Stein broke the mark of six consecutive pinch hits by Bob Johnson of Baltimore in 1964.

The major league record for consecutive pinch hits in a season is eight by Dave Philley of the Philadelphia Phillies in 1958. Philley added a ninth in 1959 before his string was broken.

Stein has now hit in 15 consecutive games, seven of those with only one at-bat, and his hitting .538 with 21 hits in 39 trips to the plate.

Orioles 10, Yankees 1
Despite DeCinces' slugging and Palmer's pitching, the home run by Belanger, the Orioles' perennial Gold Glove shortstop, was the blow that thrilled the Baltimore crowd of 42,949. "I knew when I hit it that they were getting the books out to find out when I hit my last one," Belanger said after his 20th career homer and his first in 949 at-bats.

A's 5, White Sox 2
Rickey Henderson tripled, singled and scored twice and Tony Armas belted a game-breaking three-run double in leading Oakland to its fifth consecutive triumph behind Steve McCatty's six-hit pitching. Armas, the AL leader with 35 RBIs, capped a four-run burst in the bottom of the fifth with his bases-loaded double after Henderson's RBI single broke a 1-1 tie.

Tigers 12, Brewers 3
Jack Morris won his fifth game in a row with a six-hitter to run his career record to 6-1 against Milwaukee while his teammates backed him with a 16-hit attack. John Wockenfuss and Richie Hebner drove in three runs apiece and Lynn Jones, who had been hitting .198, had four hits and two RBIs. Wockenfuss slammed a three-run double in the fourth while Hebner hit a solo homer in the fifth and a two-run double in the ninth. Cecil Cooper and Ben Oglivie homered for the Brewers.

Mariners 7-5, Royals 1-2
Lenny Randle and Rick

Auerbach homered to lead Seattle in the nightcap. Randle tied the score 1-1 with a fourth-inning homer and Auerbach provided some insurance with a two-run shot in the seventh. In the first game, Gary Gray drove in four runs with his third two-homer game in 10 days and rookie Brian Allard checked Kansas City on six hits.

Angels 2, Blue Jays 1
Mike Witt, a 6-foot-7 rookie right-hander, blanked Toronto on two singles for eight innings before needing help in the ninth. RBI singles by Bobby Grich and Butch Hobson gave the Angels a 2-0 lead.

Toronto scored in the ninth on a pair of walks and Lloyd Moseby's single but Andy Hassler retired John Mayberry and Garth Iorg, stranding runners at second and third and handing the Blue Jays their sixth consecutive setback.

Expos Rebound; Astros Triumph

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

The Montreal Expos were at home for the first time since May 10, and the nagging memory of a 4-8 road trip needed to be erased.

It started in Los Angeles, where the Expos lost three straight. They stretched that to four losses in a row in San Francisco, then stumbled through San Diego and Chicago, where they lost two of three.

They were beginning to look very little like the team that had finished one game behind Philadelphia in the National League East Division last year.

Then, St. Louis came to town, leading the division by 3½ games, and, suddenly, the Expos were cooking. Bill Gullickson snapped a personal four-game losing streak with 61-3 strong innings, and light-hitting Chris Speier drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a run-scoring single that powered Montreal to a 5-3 victory over the Cards.

The victory left Montreal 2½ games back of St. Louis and a half game in arrears of the Philadelphia Phillies, who lost 13-3 to the New York Mets Monday.

Gullickson, 2-4, took a four-hitter into the eighth inning, but he yielded a double to Keith Hernandez, three singles and a run before there were two out in the ninth. Left-hander Bill Lee doused the fire, allowing a run-scoring ground out by pinch hitter Tito Landrum and inducing Tom Herr to fly out, to gain his third save.

Lary Sorensen, 4-3, was the loser, giving up 10 hits and five runs in 62-3 innings.

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago edged Pittsburgh 10-9 in 11 innings, Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 7-1, Cincinnati downed San Francisco 6-0 and Houston beat San Diego 6-3.

six before Jeff Reardon relieved, earning his second save.

Kingman's homer came in the second off losing starter Dick Ruthven, 6-2, and gave the Mets an 8-0 lead.

Cubs 10, Pirates 9
Scot Thompson lofted a bases-loaded single over Pittsburgh's pulled-in outfield with none out in the 11th inning to boost Chicago over the Pirates and give the Cubs their third straight victory.

Steve Henderson homered twice for the Cubs, leading off a four-run eighth inning and again to tie the score 9-9 in the ninth. They were the second and third homers for him this year.

Trailing 8-0 after 3½ innings, Chicago started its comeback with four runs in the fourth, two unearned, off Pirates starter Rick Rhoden.

In the 11th, Chicago loaded the bases against reliever Victor Cruz with a single by Leon Durham, who stole second, a single by Henderson and a walk to Jerry Morales.

Dodgers 7, Braves 1
Los Angeles veteran Burt

Hooton won his seventh game without a loss, working 51-3 innings, and Steve Garvey drove in three runs with a single and a two-run homer in the fifth inning.

The Dodgers scored three runs in the first inning off Atlanta right-hander Bob Walk, 1-4, with the help of a pair of Braves errors. Dusty Baker singled home one run, and Garvey drove in another with an infield hit. The third run scored on Ron Cey's grounder.

Walk left after the first inning with a pulled muscle in his rib cage.

Reds 6, Giants 3
Larry Bittner knocked in two runs with a double and Johnny Bench singled home a run in Cincinnati's three-run eighth inning, snapping a 3-3 tie and sending the Reds over San Francisco.

Ken Griffey started the inning with a single and stole second. After two were out, George Foster, who had homered in the fourth, scratched out an infield single. Bench followed with a single to left, and Bittner then doubled.

Kathy Hite Wins $125,000 Tourney

CORNING, N.Y. (AP) — To hear Kathy Hite tell it, she was overdue for some good luck on a golf course.

"The tour is a very lonely life and not very gratifying unless you're winning a lot of money," she says. "About three years ago, I fell out of love with a fellow and decided to throw myself 100 percent into golf. But when you throw yourself 100 percent into something and don't do very well, you feel as low as an animal in a molehill."

The love that went sour caught Hite, 32, in the middle of her Ladies Professional Golf Association career.

But the frustration — and the obscurity — ended Sunday after her 72-hole total of 6-under-par 282 earned her the championship of the $125,000 Corning Classic.

The $18,750 prize money was more than she had earned in any of six previous seasons, but she left the impression she was as excited about winning some attention and respect for her play.

Her other pros playing the par-72, 6,286-yard Corning Country Club layout applied pressure in layers.

JoAnne Carner, who has 28 tour victories, finished a shot behind with a 5-under-par final round of 67 and a total of 283.

In addition, Nancy Lopez-Melton played just ahead, and Hite was shoulder-to-shoulder with precocious rookie Patty Sheehan. Lopez-Melton and Sheehan both finished at 3-under 285, but it took a double-bogey-6 on No. 17, which Hite birdied, before the winner took the lead for good.

Cathy Morse was the only other player to break par for the tournament with a fifth-place total of 286.

However, 28 of the pros who started the final round shot 71 or better.

Arnold's Arm Takes Longhorns to Victory

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas banged out 33 hits in two games against Stanford on Monday, but it was Tony Arnold's right arm that sealed a record 21st trip to the College World Series for the Longhorns.

Arnold ran his record to 17-0 by holding hard-hitting Stanford to six hits for a 10-2 Monday night rout after the Cardinals scored a ninth-inning run to take a 9-8 afternoon win.

Stanford, 43-22, needed the afternoon win to avoid elimination in the NCAA Central Regionals. The victory set up the Monday night final.

The Horns went to their ace, Arnold, who beat Brigham Young here Friday, responded by holding the Cards to three singles through the first eight innings. He tired a bit in the ninth and gave Stanford two runs on three hits.

Texas jumped on three Cardinal pitchers for sixteen hits in the win.

"17-0 doesn't mean anything except going to Omaha," said Arnold, referring to the College World Series. Texas, 50-9-1, opens against top-ranked Arizona State Saturday night.

Texas tagged Stanford starter Steve Cottrell for two runs in the second. The Horns added one in the fourth and rallied for four in the sixth.

Catcher Burk Goldthorn started the four-run outburst with a single, one of his four hits in the night game. Bryan Burrows followed with an infield single that chased Cottrell and brought in reliever Mike Sullivan, the winner in the afternoon game.

Shortstop Spike Owen greeted Sullivan with a single to load the bases. Right fielder Larry Long added a run-scoring single, one of his three RBIs.

Sunning while on medication

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true that while taking certain medicines one should not sit in the sun? If so, why? What, if any, harm could have been done if one has acquired a dark tan slowly? Is there any cause for alarm if one has been taking medicine for eight months without advice from a doctor about this?

DEAR READER — Yes, and it is also true of using various skin preparations and soaps. These preparations increase the sensitivity of the skin to sunshine. In other words, it is easier to get a bad sunburn and damage your skin. Anyone taking medicines that increase the sensitivity to the sun must be particularly careful about being out in the sun too long and should take extra precautions to avoid sunburn.

Antibiotics such as tetracyclines may increase your sensitivity. So will sulfa medications, some diuretics and even salicylates as found in common aspirin. Barbiturates and tranquilizers also increase sensitivity to the sun's radiation. These are sometimes used in some cases of elevated blood pressure as well as for nervous tension. If a person is taking small doses of antibiotics, such as tetracyclines for acne and then wants to get some sunshine, he will be more sensitive than other people and may end up having a bad sunburn as well as acne.

The same is true of acne preparations used to peel the skin. Certain aftershave lotions such as Hai Karate and Jade East may increase your sensitivity. So will bactericidal soaps that contain TBS (tribromosalicylanilide). Check the ingredients on your soap.

If you have been getting plenty of sun and not having a problem, your tan is already protecting you somewhat. But anyone who is on such medicines should use sunscreens and limit his exposure.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I think I read in your column that lumpy breasts were caused from too much caffeine in coffee, colas, plus too much chocolate. I can't find it and I really need that information as I am quite concerned about this problem.

DEAR READER — That study was the work of Dr. John P. Minton, professor of surgery and oncology at Ohio State. He discovered that many women who had lumpy breasts would have regression or actual disappearance of breast lumps if they would stop ALL caffeine, which is found in coffee, tea, colas and chocolate.

Since then he has also reported that nicotine from cigarette smoking also appears to be a factor in lumpy breasts. His studies show that after eight weeks of no

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been deaf now for almost two years. I can't even understand much with my hearing aid. An X-ray made about six months ago showed that the bone was somewhat thick over the right ear. They stated possible otosclerosis. I looked this up in the encyclopedia, which says such problems can be helped by an operation called fenestration. What is that? Is it dangerous? I asked one doctor if an operation would do any good and he said he was afraid it would not help me. If it isn't dangerous what have I to lose? Both ears are bad now. I'm willing to try the operation; no need being deaf if help is possible.

DEAR READER — You need careful testing including a battery of modern hearing tests to identify the nature of your deafness. Otosclerosis is a condition where there is an overgrowth of bone in the ear. It can prevent the normal transmission of sound waves. In some instances the bone can be removed or another opening be made (fenestration) to permit the sound waves to pass through the ear. This operation and modifications of it have been very helpful in selected cases.

You may have more than one type of hearing loss. If you have degeneration of some of the nerve cells in your inner ear or the nerve mechanism of hearing, then surgery will not correct this form of hearing defect. Hearing aids are commonly used in nerve cell and nerve damage. These should be designed to fit the particular type of hearing loss a person has. Just amplifying all the sound frequencies may enable you to hear a lot of sound but distort it so much that you can't understand normal conversation. In case most of the loss is of high frequency sounds, the aid should selectively amplify these. Just getting a hearing aid without proper testing may not do the best job for your hearing loss. That is why it is important to define what kind of hearing loss you have and what is causing it. Some forms of hearing loss can be corrected and no hearing aid is then necessary.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My 28-year-old daughter has developed high blood pressure and is on medication. The problem is she has different readings in her arms. Her left arm is normal; the high reading is in her right arm. Her doctor does not know why. Do you have any idea why this occurs?

DEAR READER — Have her ask her doctor to refer her to a cardiologist. One possible explanation is that she has a congenital defect called coarctation of the aorta. In these cases there is a constriction of the main artery that leaves the heart, on the aortic arch, between the place where the artery originates that goes to the right arm and the one that goes to the left arm. The anatomy is such that pressure falls beyond the constriction. As a result the high pressure is seen in the right arm and the low pressure beyond the constriction is in the left arm and legs. If this is the case, the heart specialist may want to reconsider how she should be treated. When the constriction is severe, it can be surgically corrected.

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Do you know of any way to keep tiny birds from roosting and building nests in outside window awnings? — KATIE

DEAR KATIE — Perhaps the nicest solution is to hang a shiny wind chime from the awning frame, if the frame will support it. You could also try spraying a strong-smelling solution, like a disinfectant, on the awnings. On the other hand, if the birds aren't really doing any damage, why not let them nest where they like? They'll certainly do a good job of keeping the insect population down, and it's fun to watch the bird families grow up. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Instead of keeping an address book, I write names, addresses and phone numbers on index cards and keep them in a card file. When someone moves, I just write out a new card and toss out the old one. This is much neater and easier than constantly scratching out addresses and numbers in a regular book. On the back of each card, I list other useful information such as birthdays, anniversaries and clothing sizes.

I also use index cards for recipes and cover them with self-sticking plastic or clear cellophane tape. When I'm cooking, spills and crumbs can be wiped off in seconds. — JACKIE

DEAR POLLY — I've found that when writing on unruled stationery, my letters usually come out very messy. I've solved my problem by taking a sheet of notebook paper, cutting it down to the same size as my stationery, and then heating it with the ruled lines with a dark felt-tip pen. I place this ruled paper under my stationery. The dark lines show through clearly, so I have nice guide lines without marking up my good stationery. — L.L.

DEAR POLLY — When we celebrated our 25th wedding anniversary last year, I found it difficult to keep gift cards with the proper gifts. Recently we attended a wedding, and to give the bride and groom the trouble I had, I wrote a brief description of the gift on the back of the card. I also included our return address to make it easier for them when sending thank you notes. — D.B.W.

Van Cliburn International Competition Brings Class to Cowtown

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Say hello to Cowtown, the "Texas-most" city, home of the world's biggest beer joint, the stockyards and the Van Cliburn Competition.

The what? Yep, right here in Fort Worth. It's the Sixth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, one of the four major keyboard competitions in the world.

It's an unusual event in an unlikely setting, and they've been doing it here every four years since 1958. The Cliburn is finely-tuned madness, totally lacking in such Texas trademarks as Lone Star Longhorns and homegrown rednecks.

It's wine and cheese and black ties and classical music and beautiful people and seated dinners and a minor study in social one-upmanship.

Even the piano tuners are imported.

Such shenanigans could expose Fort Worth for what it really is—one of America's best kept cultural secrets.

But that's another story, as is Billy Bob's Texas, a monstrous country and western nightclub more in tune with Fort Worth's image than the Cliburn.

Nonetheless, at this very minute, some 38 contestants from 17 countries are competing intensely for a plethora of riches, the least of which is a $12,000 cash prize.

"To be an artist is a sublime vocation," Cliburn said once. "If a young person enters the classical field solely to seek monetary reward, he is in the wrong profession."

Money aside, if that's possible, the Cliburn is internationally renowned for its career-building efforts. Said one critic:

"It is, indeed, difficult to convey the tension and thrill of an event which will select one of the world's best pianists and turn him or her into an overnight sensation with a full-fledged solo career."

The winner will tour the world for countless orchestral and recital engagements, including New York's Carnegie Hall, which even Billy Bob has heard of.

Thus, the five previous winners became household words in houses that listen to classical music.

They were Ralph Votapek, the only American winner, in 1962; Radu Lupu of Romania, 1969; Cristina Ortiz of Brazil, 1973; Vladimir Viardo, Russia, 1973; and Steven De Groote, South Africa, 1977.

None, of course, has yet matched the acclaim of Cliburn, the 46-year-old Kilgore, Texas, native who won instant fame as the gold medalist of Moscow's Tchaikovsky Competition.

He became more than a star-overnight he was an international hero, and so recognized with a tickertape parade in New York.

It was Cliburn's triumph in Moscow, in 1958, that inspired the co-founders of the National Guild of Piano Teachers, Dr. and Mrs. Iri Allison, to launch the event bearing Cliburn's name.

But a remarkable lady named Grace Ward Lankford had other ideas.

Contacting Allison by phone in Austin, Mrs. Lankford, president and co-founder of the Fort Worth Piano Teacher's Forum, posed a single, succinct question:

"Why not Fort Worth?" Fine, said Allison—provided it could be carried out "on a scale and in a manner the importance of the event warranted."

Mrs. Lankford wooed and won the support of several sponsors, including Texas Christian University, the Chamber of Commerce, the teacher's forum and the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

Later, the sponsors would include the Junior League, which represents almost as much social clout as it does money, which is considerable.

The competition grew in stature and impact, and suddenly Cowtown had itself a musical event which many insist stands as a rival and alternate to the Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow.

And one of its most curious coincidences has been the consistent awarding of first or second prize to a Moscow-trained contestant...

The winners are selected by an international jury that this year includes judges from Italy, Romania, France, New Zealand, Japan, the Philippines, China, Brazil and the United States.

Madame Lill Kraus has been a member of every jury since 1962, and the panels have been characterized as "so obviously blue ribbon as to be beyond reproach."

Both the judges and contestants are the social prizes of the city's "first ladies," who wine and dine them day and night for two frantic weeks.

"You wouldn't believe how much one-upmanship there is in having contestants in their homes," said a woman who monitors the Cliburn activities on a quadrennial basis.

"This is considered a very 'in' thing." Some of the homes and parties, she said, "are places the ordinary people wouldn't get into in a thousand years. This is the inner circle."

Others might disagree, but let them try to get a ticket to Van Cliburn's traditional lake party. The chances are somewhere between slim and none.

Ditto a number of other bashes in the elegant homes most usually found on Fort Worth's west side.

It is hardly a secret that certain well-heeled social lions and lionesses have purchased new and very expensive pianos to lure contestants to their homes.

"You can't believe how many grand pianos are sold here every four years," laughed Cissy Stewart, who chronicles the social swirl for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

"Steinway could damn well afford to underwrite the whole thing."

On the other hand, some support the Cliburn financially and even serve on committees, but prefer not to keep contestants in their homes.

"It's a hell of a commitment," said a lady who knows. "It's like keeping a kid for two weeks. He's gotta be chauffeured around and taken care of day and night. "And all he wants to do is practice."

"There can be language problems and food problems and they get homesick, and of course they're nervous and tense to begin with. Some people want them, some badly, but I'm not one of them."

The 38 contestants, incidentally, are no older than 30, no younger than 18, with an average of 13 years professional training and three previous competitive experiences.

They are the top third of 127 pianists screened on videotape by a separate jury. "We have the cream of the crop here this time," said Anthony Phillips, executive director of the Cliburn Foundation. "They are all good."

Young Child Dies Of Fatal Burns

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A severely burned 6-year-old boy tried to comfort his sobbing father before he died Monday evening of injuries suffered in a fire that also critically burned two other children, officials said.

Carlos Medina Jr., one of three children airlifted from Laredo to the Brooke Army Medical Center burn unit here Monday, told his father, Carlos Jorge Medina, at a Laredo emergency room not to cry because he was going to die, said Laredo Fire Capt. Pedro Garcia.

"The father couldn't stop crying," said Garcia. The Medina youth suffered third degree burns over about 50 percent of his body in the blaze Garcia said apparently was touched off by an electrical short in a room cooler at the Medina home.

A BAMC spokesman said Leticia Yolanda Medina, 3, and Juan Jose Villarreal, 3, were both in critical condition early today.

Garcia said the Medina girl had third degree burns over about 50 percent of her body and the Villarreal boy had with second degree burns over about 20 percent of his body.

"As our unit approached the house, a border patrolman asked me if we had called an ambulance. When I saw the three children, I knew what he meant," Garcia said.

Firefighters arrived at the scene about 2 a.m. Monday and found Medina and his wife Yolanda fighting fire and smoke and trying to rescue the children. "The children should have never been burned or as badly burned as they were. Everybody was home, but the parents didn't realize the room was on fire until they heard the children crying," said Garcia.

He said the cooler was on a small table in front of a bed shared by the three children. "The father told me it was the screams of his son that had awakened him. By then, the room was fully involved and the children severely burned. Their night clothes had burned onto their little bodies. It was the worst incident I have seen in my 26 years with the department," Garcia added.

Garcia said the three children were immediately rushed by EMS units to Laredo's Mercy Hospital. He said attending physicians frantically treated the crying children. They later told the Medinas the three children had to be flown to San Antonio's BAMC burn center for intensive treatments.

A C-9 plane left Laredo International Airport at 3 p.m. and arrived at Kelly Air Force Base where it was met by military helicopters that transported the youngsters to Fort Sam Houston. Officials said the helicopters could not go to Laredo for the mercy flight because of severe weather in the area early Monday.

Meanwhile, Garcia said, authorities were still trying to locate the parents of the Villarreal child, who had left their son with the Medina's while they went to Mexico.

Acrobat Arrested After Tower Climb

CHICAGO (AP) — Still dressed as a comic-book hero, Daniel Goodwin was in jail today as he expected after becoming the only person ever to climb to the top of the world's tallest building — on the outside.

The 25-year-old professional acrobat and gymnast from Las Vegas, Nev., used suction cups and metal clips to climb up the metal-and-glass west side of the Sears tower on Monday, outwitting authorities who tried to stop him and bringing cheers from dozens of spectators 110 stories below. It took him 7½ hours, battling 40 mph winds.

"He agreed that this wasn't something everyone should do," said Jack Rimkus, the police officer who arrested Goodwin atop the 1,454-foot building. "He said he expected to spend a few days in jail."

Goodwin, still wearing his custom-made, red-and-blue "Spider-Man" outfit, was led away in handcuffs at the summit.

He was held for investigation of disorderly conduct, criminal trespass, and criminal damage to property, Cmdr. Robert Casey.

"He said he grew up where there's lots of trees and had always been impressed with tall buildings and cities," Rimkus said.

The 5-foot-7, 180-pound Goodwin, originally from Kennebunkport, Maine, "behaved like a perfect gentleman" while handcuffed and led away, Rimkus said. Goodwin suffered no ill effects from the climb, except for a sore hand, police said.

"He was very grateful to be on top," Rimkus said. "He held out his arms for the cuffs...and thanked all of us." The climb became a Memorial Day event downtown, where streets are usually deserted on holidays. Parents brought children, bicyclists stopped to crane their necks and a vendor hawked sunglasses at the tower.

Goodwin climbed a ladder and from there used 8-inch iron climbing hooks to attach himself to grooves used by window washers. He would twist a hook until tight, use it as a step, then remove one from below to make a new step higher up, Rimkus said.

Authorities gave up trying to stop Goodwin when he reached the 55th floor. After 15 minutes of negotiation — while Goodwin dangled — they allowed him to climb unhindered while the scaffolding was pulled up behind him for safety.

Sears, Roebuck and Co. officials said they considered the stunt a crime and would try to see if the building was damaged.

Richard Harris, 26, said he heard about the climb on the radio and brought his 5-year-old son, Michael, to watch because the boy is an avid fan of Spider-Man, a Marvel Comics character.

Looking through binoculars at the climber — clad in a bright suit with orange-red belt, hood and knee-length boots — Michael said, "Yep, he's the real thing."
