

Amateur Radio Operators Participating in Field Day

Members of the Hereford Amateur Radio Emergency Service (HARES) will be participating in the 45th Annual American Radio Relay League Field Day Emergency preparedness test this Saturday and Sunday. The local amateur radio operators will be using local ham Wayne White's call of K8SNO for the event, which begins at noon Saturday and runs for 27 hours until 3 p.m. Sunday.

The Hereford group will be assembled north of Highway 60 across from Caviness Packing for the Field Day exercise, with the object to work as many stations as possible, and in doing so, to learn to operate in abnormal situations under less-than-optimum conditions.

"A premium is placed upon skills and equipment developed to meet the challenge of emergency preparedness and acquaint the public with the capabilities of Amateur Radio," White said.

Other hams to be working this weekend include Bob Nigh (N8CEH), Robert Priest (K8SLY), Robert Monical (W8OXE), Chris White (N8AIV), Jim Perkins (N8BCR), Glen White (KA5GWT), and Greg Banner (K8LLS).

During Field Day thousands of hams in the U.S. and Canada set up their stations in the open using only emergency power and portable antennas. The exercise is designed to help the amateurs refine operating skills so necessary during disasters and times of emergency when normal channels of communication are disrupted or unavailable.

Local ham Chris White (N8ALV) got such a chance when he passed a large log of traffic during the disaster following the tornado which struck the Wichita Falls area several months ago.

The HARES will be using the local civil defense generator to produce the power needed to run the radios. (See HARES, Page 2A)

Couple Injured In Truck-Car Mishap

An elderly couple yesterday was admitted to Deaf Smith County Hospital after their car was struck broadside by a tractor-trailer rig at the intersection of highways 385 and 60 around 10 a.m.

Garland Coulter, 70, suffered fractured ribs in the accident. His wife, Evie, 69, was admitted to the hospital for observation.

The Coulters were traveling south on highway 385 when their late model oldsmobile was hit by the truck, which was moving west on highway 60.

The driver of the truck, Albert Godin of Warehouse

Pt., Conn., said he failed to stop when the stop light turned red.

The Coulter's car was rammed into another car, a blue Ford, that was eastbound, at the highway 60 stoplight. The occupants of the Ford were not injured.

Firemen used the "Jaws of Life" to get the Coulters out of the car, however, bystanders said the couple appeared to be just shaken up and not hurt badly.

The couple had been visiting relatives in Hereford and were on their way home to Big Spring when the mishap occurred.

Rescued By Jaws

The Jaws of Life were used to get Garland and Evie Coulter out of their car after it was struck yesterday morning by a tractor trailer at the intersection of highways 385 and 60. Coulter, standing behind the door of his car, is being treated for fractured ribs in Deaf Smith County Hospital. Mrs. Coulter, left, with a neck brace, is under observation at the Hospital.

Texas Jaycees Cheer Reagan Speech

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — President Ronald Reagan drew chants of "Reagan, Reagan, Reagan" and "U.S.A., U.S.A." from nearly 10,000 Jaycees and their wives during his plea for their support to push his economic program past Democrats in Congress.

On his first trip to Texas since his election, Reagan drew applause at least 30 times Wednesday during the 32-minute speech urging the Jaycees "and a few million of your fellow citizens" to let Congress know they want budget and tax cuts.

The loudest applause came when Reagan asked for continued support from those who elected him to get the 25 percent, three-year tax cut he promised through Congress.

He said Democrats were using a "parliamentary gimmick to thwart the will of the people" to keep the tax cut from coming to a vote in the House of Representatives.

"It's your money — not theirs. You earned it — they didn't. And it's time that they let you keep a bigger share of it," Reagan said to loud applause and cheers.

Mike Langton, a Jaycee from Jacksonville, Fla., where he served as an aide to the mayor and a state representative, termed "beautifully orchestrated" Reagan's choice of the young middle-class organization as an audience for a major speech on the economic program.

"The speech was tremendous, very moving," Langton said. "I was a strong Carterite and Reagan is starting to sway me over. He's just a such a dynamic speaker."

"Fantastic," said Barbara O'Brien of Lansing, Mich. "We're behind him 100 percent. Enough is enough."

"I thought it was an excellent, very positive speech," added Jim Parker of Houston, Me. "The Jaycees are 100 percent behind him. We want to take control over government programs and with more volunteerism, I think his program will work."

Eric Olsen, of Golden, Colo., said his state needs more capital for construction and that he believed the tax cuts would provide the money to lending institutions.

"Certain Democrats have vested interest in being stars in Congress," Olsen said. "But I believe there is support on both sides (Republicans and Democrats).

Union leaders may not have supported Reagan, but the rank and file put him in office."

"Even though I'm a Democrat, I support the (tax cuts) programs," State Rep. John David Miles of Georgia said. "Young people need the help. They're hurting."

While Reagan's received a warm welcome inside HemisFair Arena, three separate protests of his appearance attracted about 50 demonstrators outside.

The tightest Secret Service protection ever afforded a president in San Antonio kept the demonstrators across a boulevard and a half block away from where Reagan's limousine came and departed.

The protesters were with San Antonio Women United, a coalition of pro-Equal Rights Amendment groups, the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, AFL-CIO and a group called People's Anti-War Mobilization, objecting to U.S. arms being shipped to El Salvador.

They carried signs saying, "Reagan's Budget Cuts Reward The Wealthy, Hurt The Poor Working Men And Women And Senior Citizens," "People's Health, Not Military Wealth" and "No Draft, No War, U.S. Out Of El Salvador."

But two young men, one representing himself and another the National Association for the Advancement of White People, carried pro-Reagan and anti-affirmative action signs along the same sidewalk.

Police forced the anti-Reagan protesters to demonstrate in the same area with a few pro-Reagan picketers and a fist-fight broke out between two men an hour before Reagan's arrival.

Scene of Death

This was the scene Wednesday evening after the body of an apparent drowning victim was found floating in Pitman Lake at 14th and Ave. C. Two local teenagers found the body and pulled it to shore before calling police. An autopsy has been ordered in the case to determine the exact cause of death. (Brand Photo by Debe Graves).

Local Woman's Body Pulled From Lake By Teenage Pair

Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal is not ruling out either foul play or suicide in the apparent drowning death of a local woman whose body was found floating in an area lake Wednesday evening by two local teenagers.

Rita Chavarria, 29 of 419 Ave. D, was found floating in Pitman Lake at 14th and Ave. C at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday by Francisco Saucedo, 14, and Martin Olivo, 16. She was pronounced dead at the scene by Neal at 8:58 p.m.

Neal ordered an autopsy on the body to determine the exact cause of death. Miss Chavarria's body was transferred to Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, where Dr. Jose Diaz-Esquivel is performing an autopsy today. "I'll know sometime today whether or not she was dead when she entered the water," Neal said.

Miss Chavarria was last seen alive around 12 a.m. Tuesday by her mother, who said she ran out of the house ac-ording to Neal. Mrs. Chavarria reported her daughter missing to the Hereford Police Department around 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Neal said evidence indicated that the body had been in the water "for quite some time."

The two youths who found the body said they "were just walking across the lot and saw this thing floating in the middle of the lake." "At first we thought it was a dummy, but we waded out and pulled her over to the bank and called the police," Olivo said.

Neal completed his preliminary investigation into the death around 1:30 a.m. today after talking with members of Miss Chavarria's family and those who had had close contact with her during the past week.

Funeral services for Miss Chavarria are pending with Rix Funeral Home.

Begin Vows to Control Bank

By MARION KWARTLER
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin, in a TV debate with election challenger Shimon Peres, vowed today to maintain Israeli control of the occupied West Bank of the Jordan and boost its Jewish settler population. Peres said Begin's policies left Israel "scorched earth."

Begin said Israel would retain physical control of the West Bank to prevent the Palestine Liberation Organization from taking over, but remained willing to negotiate autonomy for the Arab inhabitants of the area. "We have set up 144 settlements to which we can add buildings and add population," said Begin. Jerusalem would remain united under exclusive Israeli rule, he said.

Peres, leader of the Labor Party, claimed Begin's economics and his tough foreign policy "has left us scorched earth." By election time June 30, he charged, "the nation's coffers will be empty and Israel isolated."

Peres accused Begin of inflating the Lebanese missile crisis into warlike propositions with threats to use force unless Syria removed the rockets deployed in late April after Israeli jets downed two Syrian helicopters attacking Christian militia positions in eastern Lebanon.

Begin said force would be used if necessary, but meanwhile U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib would be given ample time to seek a diplomatic solution.

Peres also attacked Begin's decision to bomb the Iraqi nuclear reactor, saying it had jeopardized the Egyptian-Israeli peace process and put Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "in an impossible position." (See BEGIN, Page 2A)

Six Killed In Iranian Rioting

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Six people were killed and many injured in anti-government riots in the Kurdish-populated city of Mahabad in northwestern Iran, Tehran radio said today. It also reported the 44th execution since President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr was impeached.

The state radio blamed the riots on the outlawed Kurdistan Democratic Party which has long been fighting for Kurdish autonomy in Iran's northwestern provinces.

The radio said gunmen from the KDP attacked a funeral procession in Mahabad Wednesday, killing six mourners and wounding many others, including the city's governor and six revolutionary guards.

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime has charged the KDP joined the nation's secular leftist and nationalist groups in supporting Bani-Sadr in his power struggle against Iran's fundamentalist Muslim clergy.

Tehran radio said a man was executed by firing squad in the southernmost city of Bandar Abbas on the Strait of United States will give a "careful look" to the degree of protection French authorities give to NATO secrets before such information is shared with the French government.

"Given the fact that they are a military ally, we cannot but be concerned about the inclusion in the government of a group of people who are inimical toward us, toward the alliance and toward our purposes," the official said.

The official State Department position was much milder. "While we fully recognize and respect the right of the government of France to determine its own composition," it said, "it is a fact that the tone and the content of our relationship will be affected by the inclusion of Communists in that government or in any government of our Western European allies."

According to the officials, the statement was designed to ensure U.S. adherence to the principle of non-interference while making it clear that the United States was not developing a tolerant attitude toward Communist representation in allied governments.

Vice President George Bush sounded a similar theme earlier Wednesday after a 2½-hour meeting in Paris with French President Francois Mitterrand.

"Our European allies are sovereign nations and the decision on how they are governed rests with their citizens and their elected representatives," Bush said. "However, the position of the United States on the subject of Communist participation is well known," he continued. "This participation is bound to cause concern."

France withdrew from NATO's military structure in 1966 but participates in NATO political councils. It has now become the only NATO country and the only major Western power with direct Communist participation in government.

French officials have moved quickly to try to ease U.S. concern over the appoint-

Brothers Receive 99 Year Jail Sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — Two brothers have drawn 99-year prison sentences for a $200 savings and loan robbery.

A third man received 75 years for serving as the scout for the March 3 holdup at the Republic of Texas Savings Association office.

State District Judge Allen Stille sentenced the brothers, Willie Foster, 33, and Herman Foster, 36, and Frank Moore, 33, after hearing Prosecutor Tana Daughtrey say the trio were members of a gang of savings and loan robbers who always used the same mode of operation, sending in a scout and using guns and ski masks in the robbery.

The prosecutor said a police officer saw the trio leaving the March 3 scene and arrested them when they ran a nearby stop sign.

Constable Confiscates

32 Emaciated Horses

LA PORTE, Texas (AP) — A Harris County constable has seized 32 emaciated animals, including 27 Shetland ponies, after receiving reports they were starving.

Constable Raul C. Martinez carried out the confiscation order Wednesday at the request of Justice of the Peace Larry Wilson.

Martinez said he is looking for a 26-year-old man to serve notice of the confiscation and for questioning about alleged animal abuse, a misdemeanor.

The ponies, four horses and a goat were transferred to another stable pending a July 1 hearing. If Wilson finds the animals were abused they will be sold at public auction.

Martinez said the animals were found eating hay in a small corral and that others renting space at the stable said the man being sought had brought the hay early Wednesday.

"According to witnesses he feeds them sometimes once a week, sometimes every 10 days," Martinez said. "Four horses have died from malnutrition."

Typing Pool Inmates

Refuse To Work

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — State prison officials say 70 inmates are refusing to report to their jobs in the prison typing pool at the Wynne Unit that has 2,300 prisoners.

Rick Hartley, spokesman for the Texas Department of Corrections, said a small group began the strike Tuesday and that others became involved Wednesday. He said the group had not presented any grievances.

"There has been no specific complaint or demand by the inmates," he said. "They just don't want to work."

Hartley said those on strike represent only about 3 percent of the inmates assigned to the prison records operation.

"We're not overly alarmed about this but if they keep this up they will subject themselves to some disciplinary proceedings," he said.

Gulf Coast Possible Dumping Grounds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A state energy expert says the federal government has eliminated all Gulf Coast-East Texas underground salt domes except one as a possible dumping ground for nuclear waste.

Dr. William Fisher of the University of Texas said Wednesday the Oakwood salt formation on the Leon-Freestone county line ranks fourth on a list of four possible sites for an experimental nuclear waste disposal facility.

He said there "are much more serious problems" with the Oakwood formation, because there has been oil well drilling in the area.

The other salt formations on the list include two in Mississippi and one in Louisiana, he said.

Fisher, director of UT's Bureau of Economic Geology, said the federal government is seeking three sites and two "have already been identified" in Washington and Nevada.

He told the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council — TENRAC — the government has been investigating possible sites since 1977 and has looked at underground formations from the coast up into East Texas and also in the Palo Duro Basin of the High Plains.

Fear Rides By The Non-Union Trucker

BIG ROCK, Va. (NEA) — Junior Howard fingers the .38 caliber pistol he keeps strapped beside his seat and says he will give any striking miser who tries to open the door of his coal truck five in the face.

"You can take that to the bank, honey," says the fast-talking 51-year-old trucker who regularly spices his language with the word "honey" — and with a good many earthier expressions of rage, disappointment, surprise, you name it.

The bearded southwest-Virginia man epitomizes the rough, tough life of the professional gear jammer. To wit: — He used to haul moonshine out of the back hills of Virginia and Kentucky and says he enjoyed every minute of it.

— He has been in more bar-room brawls than he cares to remember. The bullet hole in his left arm is a lifelong keepsake of a particularly eventful evening at a tavern.

— Howard says his 28-year-old son pays strict attention to him because he can still whup the boy if he needs be.

The man they call River-jack drives a 15-ton coal truck up and down Lynn Camp Hollow as many as 15 times a day. He hauls for the United Coal Company, one of the largest non-union outfits in Virginia.

The boisterous Howard is the clear leader of the group of independent truckers who meet at E & K's for

"I just tell them I have a job to do and if they want to do anything about my hauling to take it up with my boss," he says as he brandishes the brown pistol. "I'd even let them throw a rock or two at me. But when they start shooting or rushing my truck, honey, that's war."

His truck has been victimized several times by giant tacks, apparently strewn onto the road by angry union men.

"It takes me about an hour to change a flat," he says, "and they know that's one less load of coal I'll move that day."

Earlier, back at the cafe, Howard and some of his mates vowed to return the tack-throwing favor to some members of a nearby United Mine Workers local the day the contract was signed.

Howard makes $7 an hour hauling coal for United. He can drive as many loads a day as he wishes. A friend of his once hauled non-stop for 19 hours.

Union and non-union mines compete for the local labor pool. The pay is about the same, about $80 a day for underground employees.

Non-union workers are frequently paid bonuses if their output exceeds company expectations; incentive clauses have never been popular with union miners. The non-union shops can promise steady employment as their employees don't have to worry about strikes.

Union miners are bitter because they say that the independents would be working for starvation wages if not for the ironroads the union has made.

The coal truck seems to groan a bit as Howard gears down to scale the last steep hill before reaching the waiting end-loader and the giant pile of coal. He shifts easily.

His truck has more than 123,000 miles on it, and he treats it like a baby. He even sprays the interior with Lemo on Friday.

"United did one thing the other day that made me mad," he continues. "One of their people told a television reporter they were hauling even more coal now than they were before the strike. To me, honey, that's kinda like me calling you over to see my brand new car when I know you don't have nothing at all to drive. That kind of talk is bound to irritate the strikers."

Two of Howard's sons are union men. He says that he has told them in no uncertain terms to stay off the picket line and not to cause any trouble. He says he will soon line up a job for one hauling non-union coal.

"It's either work like that or starve," he says. "It's that simple. That's what I tell the pickets when I see 'em."

Howard gets his load, kibbles with a veteran driver he calls Big Eye and then slowly heads back down the road, considering the possibility of labor strife in the coal fields.

Kerrville—Heart Of Hill Country

KERRVILLE—The Texas Hill Country is a vast area of rolling hills, sparkling streams and forest, sprinkled with attractive cities and splendid facilities for vacationers.

Kerrville proudly bills itself as the "Crown Jewel of the Hill Country" and points to numerous reasons why it should have that title.

Kerr County is just north of Bandera County, famed for its dude ranches, and is about an hour's drive from San Antonio and 90 minutes from Austin.

Kerrville is the principal city with a population of 18,000 and attributes of cities much larger.

This is the home of Mooney Aircraft, whose small planes are sold throughout the U.S. and overseas, and also is a wool and mohair center and noted for its summer camps, hunting, tourism facilities and convention hospitality.

Two of the state's best known guest ranches are near Kerrville. One is Lazy Hills, operated by Bob and Caroline Steunrock. Theirs is a family-run ranch which provides guests the peace of country life and the relaxation of resort living.

Hormuz today for participating in anti-government riots to protest Bani-Sadr's dismissal Monday.

The execution raised the toll to 44 since riots protesting Bani-Sadr's impeachment erupted Saturday and spread to other Iranian cities in the next two days. Thirty people were killed and about 300 injured in the fights between Bani-Sadr's supporters and opponents.

Of the 44 people executed, seven were members of the Bahai faith, a non-Muslim religion founded in Iran in the 18th century. It preaches universal brotherhood and believes in the divine foundation of all religions. The faith has its world center in Haifa, Israel, where the sect's founder died.

Iranian parliament voted him unfit for office the day before, was reported still at large. An order for his arrest was issued Sunday, and he has been rumored to be in Egypt, Turkey, western Iran or in hiding in Tehran.

His successor as president apparently will be Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, the high school teacher picked by the fundamentalist clerics of the Islamic Republican Party to head the government when they broke with the Westernized, leftist Bani-Sadr a year ago.

Reliable sources in Tehran reported by telephone that Rajai would be the IRP candidate. This insures his election since the party controls the government, the parliament, the election machinery and the revolutionary guards, and has the full backing of Khomeini, the supreme leader of revolutionary Bani-Sadr, dismissed on Monday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini after the regime.

The sources said Minister of State Behzad Nabavi, who headed the Iranian team in the negotiations that freed the U.S. hostages, would become prime minister.

The presidency, which the clerics of the IRP reduced to a figurehead post during the power struggle with Bani-Sadr, is now filled by a three-man council made up of Supreme Court President Mohammad Beheshti, Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani and Rajai.

Beheshti, the head of the IRP, and Rafsanjani are both ayatollahs, the highest clerical rank in the Shiite Muslim faith. Tehran Radio said Rajai would be in charge of the day-to-day affairs of the presidency while Rafsanjani would represent the presidency on the Supreme Defense Council, which is running the war with Iraq.

A French Communist official disputed Western descriptions of the party as beholden to Moscow. "The Communists are not pro-Moscow; they are for France," he said.

Other French sources stressed that sensitive military matters are not discussed at full cabinet meetings. This presumably would deny the Communist ministers — all named to non-sensitive posts — access to military secrets.

used during Field Day. Power for lighting and turning the rotor directing the antennas to be used will also be derived from the gasoline-powered generator.

This is the third year for the HARES to participate in Field Day. They operated at Whiteface Stadium in 1979 and were set up near Tierra Blanca School last year.

During Field Day the local radio operators will be available during breaks in operating to answer questions about equipment, procedures, and the public service role that amateur radio plays in the community. The public is invited to stop by and visit the operation any time during the 27-hour period.

Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League, a membership society of U.S. and Canadian Amateur Radio operators, headquartered in Newington, Ct.

Five classifications are set up each Field Day to allow different size radio clubs or individuals to compete for recognition on an equal basis with other amateurs. The five classes include Class A-Club-Non-Club Portable; Class B-One-or-Two Person Portable; Class C-Mobile (Stations in vehicles capable of operation while in motion); Class D-Home stations using commercial power; and Class E-Home stations using emergency power.

In addition to points received for contacts made, Field Day participants get bonus points for using 100 percent emergency power, publicity, origination of messages, message relay, satellite contacts, and using natural power (solar, wind, methane, grain alcohol, etc.).

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While it is customary to wring hands when the Bureau of Labor Statistics announces another rise in consumer inflation, that reaction is often inappropriate. Some people should clap instead.

Based on the latest report of the consumer price index, the clappers might include some homeowners and homesellers, retirees, and people with money to lend, all of whom conceivably could have benefited.

Which is to say that the consumer price index, specific and detailed though it be, is a very broad generalization that applies to people in various ways, and sometimes doesn't apply to certain people at all.

The latest increase, a seven-tenths of 1 percent rise in May, resulted mainly from rises in housing costs — prices, rents and mortgages. Did this add to your living costs? Most likely not. Seventy percent of all U.S. households are homeowners. Most have fixed-interest mortgages.

Many homesellers didn't really mind either, even if high-interest mortgages were said to depress homebuying. Having accumulated big equities in their houses, they were willing to grant the buyer a first mortgage at lower rates. To offset this, they raised the selling price.

Some retirees have indeed been hurt by inflation, but many haven't. Some have benefited. Who? The homeowner, for one. The Social Security beneficiary for another. Remember, their cost of living raises are based on the consumer price index, even if their expenses may not be.

Lenders, of course, have been in an enviable position recently, since interest rates they earn often exceed the inflation rate. It's hard to believe they were offended by higher interest rates in the CPI.

Yes, there's another side to the CPI. In general, we hate inflation because it is disruptive, usually leads to economic decline, and unjustly takes from some and hands to others. But as recipients, it is hard to turn down the benefits. It's easier to just feel guilty.

Robert Parry, chief economist of California's Security Pacific Bank, said he often observes the mixed feelings at cocktail parties. The first thing people comment on is the terrible inflation, he said. Then, he said, they tell you how much their house has risen in value.

Besides the outright beneficiaries of inflation, there are those who are affected much less than others.

Not everyone buys a house each month. Very, very few, in fact. And most buyers already own a house and therefore are likely to have substantial equity. Still, rising prices and mortgage rates weigh very heavily in the CPI, and suggest that things are worse than they are.

But among homeowners especially, it's hard to believe they were very discouraged to read that the CPI rose in May chiefly because of rises in the market prices of homes.

In the privacy of their homes they probably lifted a cocktail to dull their feelings of guilt. They might even have clapped.

Oilman Jack Grimm To Sail Saturday

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Oilman Jack Grimm will leave in search of the Titanic Saturday, instead of July 3, and depart from Boston, instead of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Grimm's former partner, Fred Koehler, had challenged the Abilene millionaire to a race to the site of the sunken ocean liner, but Grimm said his decision to leave early was not based on the race.

A spokesman for Koehler's public relations company in New York said Koehler will not search for the vessel this summer after all.

Koehler could not be reached at his home or business in Coral Gables, Fla.

Grimm says he has the edge over Koehler anyway, because he charted 14 potential locations of the wreckage during an expedition last summer.

"Yes, I believe we'll be there first," Grimm said.

The Titanic sank in 12,000 feet of water on its maiden voyage in 1912 after hitting an iceberg off the coast of Newfoundland. More than 1,500 passengers were killed.

Grimm said he will use a sonar sled to locate shapes on the ocean floor with acoustic signals and a magnetometer to detect metals.

Once in the general search area, Grimm said, "we are going straight to the different targets and we intend to pull our sonar and magnetometer sleds over each target at close range. The first one that shows to be the hull of a ship, we'll map in detail."

Grimm said he will try to identify artifacts and debris and cameras will then be lowered to the wreckage to determine the feasibility of returning later with a submersible.

Because both of the submersibles he had planned to use to enter the ship during the 19-day expedition were unavailable, Grimm had announced last week that he would have to delay the voyage until July 3.

The Seacopter, capable of diving to 20,000 feet and narrow enough to navigate the ship's hulls, was developed by Koehler, who had announced his own plans to explore the ship.

The Aluminaut is available, but its owners will not allow its use before the sunken ocean liner actually is located. The Aluminaut, owned by Reynolds Aluminum, is the largest deep-diving submersible.

"If we can find the wreck and it's sitting on its keel or on its port side where we can gain access to the starboard side, then I expect we could probably come back with a submersible of some type," Grimm said Tuesday.

Grimm previously has financed expeditions to locate the Loch Ness Monster, Bigfoot and Noah's Ark.

"I'm a winner this time with the Titanic," he vowed. "...No more losers."

HPD Reports $800 Burglary

Merchandise valued at about $800 was reportedly stolen sometime early this morning from Soundstage One, 216 N. Main.

Burglars took nine stereo components, each worth about $90. A city worker reported the burglary after he saw the front window of the store was broken out.

Police last night investigated the death of Rita Chavarria, 29. The woman's body was discovered in Pitman Lake at 14th and Ave. C by two teenage boys. The woman apparently drowned but the exact cause of death has not been determined yet.

Also, police yesterday investigated a three-vehicle accident at the intersection of highways 385 and 80. Garland and Evie Coulter were admitted to Deaf Smith County Hospital after their car was struck by a tractor trailer driven by Albert Godin of Warehouse Pt., Conn. The Coulter's car struck another car, but the occupants of that car were not injured.

Mrs. Irene Reinart, Route 3, reported to police a misplaced billfold. The billfold contains some checks and money. It is not known if the billfold is lost or stolen.

Police issued seven traffic citations and answered three minor incident calls.

Students Suffer If Reimbursements Stop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Burk Burnett, a small town in North Texas, has 3,382 students in school, almost 20 percent of whom live on federal property.

Since the school district gets no property tax from those students, the federal government has been reimbursing Burk Burnett — and 239 other Texas schools — to offset the cost of educating the children of military families.

But all 240 of those Texas schools will have a crisis on their hands if Congress approves President Reagan's proposal that the federal reimbursement be stopped, an El Paso educator testified Wednesday before the Senate Armed Forces Committee. "Under the president's proposal, Burk Burnett will lose about $653,000," said James A. Francis, associate superintendent of the El Paso school district, arguing for a continuation of the aid.

"This loss will require the permanent residents to have to pay about $237 per child more money for the education of each of their own children in order that the military children can be accommodated in school along with them and that there will be no reduction in the quality of education."

Appearing with Francis before the Senate committee were two other Texas educators — Dr. Clarence Hamm, superintendent in Killeen, and Edmund D. Cody, superintendent at San Antonio North Side High School.

The committee chairman, Sen. John Tower, D-Texas, opened Wednesday's hearing by making plain his support of continued impact aid.

"The federal government has at the very least a moral obligation to provide states with financial assistance to offset educational costs generated by the presence of military installations and activities," Tower said.

"We cannot simply turn our backs on these school districts which without such tax revenues are, in many cases, simply unable to afford the additional costs of educating the dependents of Department of Defense personnel."

The real issue, Tower said, is not whether federal impact aid should be continued to the schools, but how much.

In Texas, the 240 districts received $32.3 million in such aid last year, but Reagan's proposal would reduce this to $9.8 million to only six school districts, Francis added.

Killeen is one of the six districts that would continue to receive some impact aid. The others are Del Valle, Franklin, Lackland, Fort Sam Houston and Randolph, and the last three are districts where boundaries are contiguous with the military reservation.

Killeen, located near Fort Hood, would lose about $2 million, Francis added.

The only alternatives a school will have, if it wants to keep its quality of education high, are to raise property taxes locally or to charge tuition to military families.

Of the 212 square miles in the El Paso school district, almost half of it — 101 square miles — is the Fort Bliss military reservation and therefore untaxable for educational purposes, Francis said.

Property taxpayers in Texas may be unable or unwilling to replace the funds lost by federal impact aid, he suggested.

"If they are called on to do this, and they do follow through, the raise in taxes is likely to be accompanied by resentment that will affect our highly positive climate for military populations," he said.

Extreme poverty exists in El Paso, he added. Among the school enrollment of 61,000 children are 36,627 who meet poverty guidelines and receive free or reduced-price lunches.

"This indicates that about 60 percent of our children come from families who are unable to adequately provide for the education of their own children. These same families are now being asked to pick up the educational costs of others," said Francis.

Soon, wherever military families are assigned in Texas, "their children are going to attend underfinanced schools, because the federal impact will so dilute community resources that an inferior educational program can be the only result," Francis added.

The El Paso educator said the Texas Legislature has just enacted legislation to allow school districts to charge tuition for a student who lives in military housing exempt from taxation by the district.

"Military pay is not adequate to afford this. Litigation would undoubtedly result, and this litigation would only be a further abrasion to the harmony that has existed between the military and civilian people in Texas," Francis said.

"Tuition from the military child is not a good solution to the problem. An increased tax burden on the local property owners is not a good solution. The best solution is the one we have in place right now — an adequately funded program that allows the federal government to provide school districts with funds in lieu of taxes."

Clayton Expresses 'Pretty Good' Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas House Speaker Bill Clayton expressed a "pretty good" reaction to a congressional redistricting plan drawn by Rep. Martin Frost, House Majority Leader Jim Wright says.

Clayton was in Washington Tuesday and a third of Texas' 24-member delegation met with him about the plan during a closed-door session.

Clayton indicated he'd be available for more one-on-one meetings with congressmen in Austin during the House's July 4 recess, which begins this weekend, Wright said Wednesday.

The Texas Legislature will consider redistricting in a special session due to begin on July 13.

The eight congressmen, all Democrats, who huddled with the Texas speaker in Tuesday's meeting were Frost of Dallas; Wright of Fort Worth; Jim Mattox of Dallas; Jack Brooks of Beaumont; Jake Pickle of Austin; Chick Kazen of Laredo; Charles Wilson of Lufkin and Bill Patman of Ganado.

Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station is reportedly the only one of 19 Texas Democrats who has not endorsed the plan. None of the state's five Republicans have come out for it.

Wright said last week, when the remap plan was unveiled, that it would protect all incumbents. That's a feature that particularly interests Clayton.

"It would be, in my opinion, very unfortunate if we go into a special session without giving thought to protecting incumbents, both Democrats and Republicans," Clayton said in Washington Tuesday.

Texas legislators would probably be favorably impressed by a plan endorsed by most of the congressional delegation, Clayton indicated.

"I think he's going to help with this," Wright said of Clayton.

Texas will gain three seats, raising its total to 27, because of population gains over the past 10 years, and Gov. Bill Clements has threatened to veto any plan that doesn't create a new minority seat in Dallas.

Wright said he hopes Clements will reconsider. That can't be done without making the adjacent seats a cinch Republican district, Wright suggested.

"We've been completely non-partisan in the matter, and we think that is something that should be appreciated by the governor and others," said Wright, adding that with three new seats, no incumbent should be placed in jeopardy of losing his spot.

The remap plan drawn by Frost is a modification of one drawn up by the Texas Senate during the regular legislative session, but opposed by Clements.

The redistricting plans that were under consideration during the regular session of the Legislature were looked on unfavorably by Democrats Frost, Mattox and Patman and Republican Ron Paul of Lake Jackson.

Although they have given their endorsement to Frost's plan, both Mattox and Patman say it still leaves a lot to be desired.

Patman says the plan, like most others, he's seen, changes his district too much. Mattox says like most of the other proposed plans, the latest version leaves him a district only slightly Democratic. But that's better for him than the proposals that bring tens of thousands of Republican voters from northern Dallas into his area.

Patman says Frost's proposal "is not one I could not survive, but it is not my preference. My preference is to keep my district the way it is, basically."

Gramm reportedly is displeased that Frost's proposal would take away southern Tarrant County from his district, although he would retain Duncanville, in southwest Dallas County.

More Weapons Sent Instead Of Troops To Fight Rebels

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Soviet Union probably will send more advanced weapons instead of more troops to its war against the tenacious Moslem rebels in Afghanistan, a Western military expert predicts.

But the anti-Communist guerrillas who control most of the rugged Afghan countryside also are receiving modern weapons and training, the expert said, and the Soviets "will have to do a lot of thinking."

The military observer spoke to reporters Wednesday on the condition that he not be identified by name or nationality.

He asserted that Soviet troops are using toxic chemicals that are "non-persistent, lethal, mainly nerve gas. They are probably testing some new stuff, too, but the main use is of conventional stuff."

"They use it indiscriminately to clear an area," dropping gas bombs before a troop column passes through. "It makes things a lot easier."

The source said his information confirmed a diplomatic report in March that 5,000 to 15,000 more Soviet troops had been sent to Afghanistan, a report the U.S. State Department said was not true.

Even if the 85,000 Soviet troops the U.S. government estimates are in Afghanistan have been increased to 100,000, many more will be needed to stamp out the resistance, the expert said. But "I predict more and better weapons instead of a lot more troops," he added.

In the past 60 days the Soviets have started using night-vision equipment, putting a crimp into the after-dark activities of the insurgents, he said.

The Truth About 55 mph

AS TOLD BY A TEXAS STATE TROOPER

There's been a lot said about the 55 mph speed limit. But I'd like to add something based on my 23 years on the road as a Texas State Trooper.

The law was passed to save gasoline, and it has done just that. But we discovered another benefit—the lower speed saves lives.

Why, in 1975, 16 per cent fewer people were killed because Texans were trying to slow down. But since then, we have started driving faster again on our freeways and state highways. In 1980, 4,424 people were killed. That's an all-time record.

Now I'm not trying to scare you. But I've learned that a person's chances for getting killed increase with higher speed, and driving too fast is one of our leading highway killers. Why gamble by driving a little faster to get where you're going? Slower speed gives you more time to react...precious time to avoid danger and stop your car or truck. In fact, compared with 55 mph, your chance of being killed in a crash at 70 mph is more than doubled!

I hope you'll remember what I've said the next time you drive. I don't want to have to tell your family that you have been killed in a traffic accident.

Thank you,

Jasper Taylor

Wealthy Lawyers Form Coalition on Redistricting

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Several wealthy Texans have formed a coalition to persuade state lawmakers to come up with a congressional redistricting plan aimed at putting more conservatives in Congress.

The group, Texans for a Conservative Congress, was formed during a breakfast meeting at the Loews Antole Hotel in Dallas last week, the Corpus Christi Caller reported Wednesday.

"We're interested in continuing the move toward conservatism in the nation," said Amarillo attorney W. C. Madden Jr., who will co-chair the committee along with Victoria banker Zac Lentz.

The meeting, hosted by Corpus Christi attorney

Hayden Head Sr. and Steak & Ale restaurant magnate Norman Brinker of Dallas, was attended by about 40 business leaders from across the state, the newspaper reported.

"We hope to generate support for conservative redistricting without regard to (political) party," Head said.

The Texas Legislature was unable to agree on a redistricting plan during its regular session which ended June 1. Legislators begin a 30-day special session in July to consider, among other things, the issue of re-mapping of congressional lines.

"We're going to try and make a contribution to get them to come up with a redistricting plan that will afford the conservative candidate the opportunity to be elected," Madden added.

He said the state's receptiveness to a conservative congressional delegation was evident when the voters swung to the Republican camp last November.

Reagan Says Rival Plan is 'Sabotage'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan, facing a near-certain setback in pushing his version of budget cuts through the House, says a rival plan backed by House Democrats would "sabotage our attempts to cut federal spending."

Frustrated in his desire for a single yes-or-no vote in the House on a Republican-backed package of budget amendments, Reagan accused Democrats Wednesday of resorting to a "parliamentary gimmick to thwart the will of the people."

Rhetoric aside, however, administration officials said privately they doubted they could muster enough support to reverse the decision Wednesday of the House Rules Committee against a single vote on the GOP plan. Republicans planned to challenge the committee's action on the House floor today.

Despite the long odds against winning, the administration fought up to the last minute for one vote on Reagan's plan, which calls for $5.2 billion more in budget cuts than the $37.8 billion package supported by House Democrats. The administration fears that if the House takes separate votes on politically popular programs such as food stamps and housing subsidies they will be rejected and the budget reductions will fall far short of Reagan's goal.

The Rules Committee's action caused Reagan to change his tune as he set out Wednesday on a six-day trip from Washington, combining work, social visits and a long weekend at his ranch outside Santa Barbara.

In the first of three speeches plugging his economic program, Reagan told the U.S. Jaycees convention in San Antonio that Congress had made enormous progress toward restraining federal spending. However, the praise turned to sharp criticism when, in a last-minute addition to the speech, the president lambasted the Rules Committee and unleashed his harshest attack yet on House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

Responding to O'Neill's charge that Reagan's policies could destroy America, the president said: "Those who make such charges want to return to the same old discredited policies that set off America's economic high fever in the first place."

"If you're better off with the repeated red ink, high taxes and monster government of the past, then you go ahead and oppose our new program," Reagan challenged. "But if you're ready to try something new, come with us."

The audience of more than 8,000 shouted and whistled its support.

Arriving in Los Angeles later in the day, Reagan fired off telegrams asking support in today's vote from the 63 House Democrats who bucked their party and gave Republicans the margin of support to approve the president's budget blueprint May 7.

"Gag rule to deny House consideration of our entire package is unacceptable and denies American people opportunity to be heard on runaway federal spending," the telegram read. "Our previous efforts will be badly damaged unless we can stay together on this issue."

In a separate statement, Reagan said that by forcing separate votes on different parts of his budget-cutting package Democrats wanted to "splinter that package into pieces. They are pursuing a divide-and-conquer strategy, a strategy that would once again allow special interest groups to triumph over the general economic interest of the nation."

Five Implicated In Mail Fraud

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A federal investigation into county spending practices in Texas and Oklahoma has resulted in indictments against three county commissioners and two former commissioners on charges of bribery and mail fraud.

"All five are alleged to have extorted kickbacks under color of official right, using the mail to defraud their county governments," said U.S. District Attorney John Hannah during a news conference he called Wednesday to announce the indictments.

Named in the indictments were: Red River County Commissioner Robert Lunsford Edwards, 18 counts; Fannin County Commissioner Charles Eugene Edwards, 7 counts; Bowie County Commissioner J.C. Arnold, 36 counts; Former Bowie County Commissioner Carlos Eugene Tidwell, 14 counts; and Bernard Nettles Brown, 38 counts.

Hannah's office and the FBI are leading the Texas investigation that is part of a multi-state federal investigation into kickbacks and extortion involving county commissioners and road and bridge materials salesmen.

The year-long probe has resulted in charges against 13 present and former Northeast Texas county commissioners and two Texas vendors.

The investigation also has netted at least 18 indictments against county officials in Arkansas and reportedly involves up to 100 judges or county commissioners in 40 counties throughout Oklahoma.

The indictments handed down Wednesday allege that the five commissioners conspired with vendors to place orders for road and bridge materials that were never delivered.

The county officials allegedly then endorsed invoices and mailed checks for the fictitious supplies to the various equipment salesmen. The indictments allege that the vendors, Dallas Thompson and Sharron Griffen of Griffen Lumber Co., in Ferris, Okla., would then return to the commissioners about half the amount of money they received for equipment that was not delivered.

Besides Thompson, 77, and John F. Lands, 66, of Queens City, two other Texas county commissioners pleaded guilty in April to the bribery and mail fraud charges.

Six other county officials pleaded innocent last month to a total of 111 counts involving kickbacks, mail fraud and conspiracy.

FBI officials have examined records in at least 16 Northeast Texas counties over the past year and handed down indictments against officials in Bowie, Red River, Fannin, Titus and Cass counties.

Hannah, who says the investigation will continue, reportedly mailed letters last month to county auditors in Gregg, Marion, Camp, Harrison, Upshur and Wood counties requesting the names and addresses of all salesmen who have sold road machinery and supplies to the counties for the past five years.

The U.S. Attorney's designated replacement, Bob Wortham, said Wednesday that when he takes office later this month he will name Hannah as a special prosecutor to continue the investigation into political corruption throughout counties in East Texas.

The Consumer Alert

by Mark White
Attorney General

AUSTIN—Inflation has hit the consumer hard in the last few years and nowhere is it more apparent than in the housing industry.

One of the recent innovations which has come about in order to combat this problem is the variable rate mortgage recently authorized by the Federal Reserve Board. Basically what this new rule does is allow the Federal Savings and Loans (S & L's) and Federal Mutual Savings banks to issue home loans with interest rates that rise or fall with the money marketplace.

For consumers who are used to a fixed mortgage rate that remains the same throughout the life of the loan, the new Adjustable Mortgage Loans (AML's) may come as a shock. Because of high interest rates lenders are reluctant in the present economic climate to make loans that commit their resources for 25 or 30 years at a fixed rate of interest.

The argument against AML's is that during periods of high interest rates a borrower's monthly payments will unexpectedly increase which might result in a great number of foreclosures. Others oppose AML's with the argument that current borrowers must subsidize the long-term mortgages at lower rates granted years ago.

However, there are signs that lenders will voluntarily set limits to the amount of monthly payments which will be charged.

Here are some highlights of the AML rule which the Board put into effect on April 30:

1. Although there are no limits in periodic interest rate adjustments, the adjustment must be based upon some type of interest rate index such as the three-month and six-month Treasury bill auction rates and the national average contract mortgage rates for the purchases of existing homes. Whichever index is used, it must be readily verifiable by the borrower and not under the control of the lender.

2. The lender must give an AML borrower a disclosure form with an AML application. The form must describe the adjustable elements of the loan, its key terms, and an example of how it will work.

3. The lender must notify the borrower of interest rate adjustments at least 30 days but not more than 45 days before the adjustment dates.

4. Borrowers may not be penalized for loan prepayments. This is intended to provide borrowers maximum flexibility to look for more favorable financing sources during the term of an AML. The term may never exceed 40 years.

Only time will tell how useful and popular these new mortgages will be. In the meantime, if you are looking for mortgage money, make sure you shop around and understand the loan agreement being offered by the lender. You should know if, when, and how much the payments can be changed.

Drug Agents Use Controversial Civil Law to Seize Property

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A test case — with the potential for U.S. Supreme Court review — is developing from a federal law used to seize drug dealers' property even if criminal charges have not been filed.

Drug Enforcement Administration agents used a controversial 1978 civil law on April 28 to seize a home, furniture, jewelry and other possessions totaling $1 million that belonged to brothers Matias and Benito Montemayor.

U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela said Wednesday he was concerned that the property was seized without a hearing and set a July 23 court date for government lawyers to prove the reasonableness of the seizure.

"It is essential because of constitutional questions," he said, "that a hearing be given to a person whose property has been seized as soon as possible to be sure due process has been served."

Vela spoke at a pretrial hearing on the case.

The Montemayors lived in spacious houses in an exclusive McAllen subdivision before Drug Enforcement Administration agents swooped down April 28 to confiscate their property.

Neither man was at home, no drugs were found and no criminal drug charges are pending in this country against the brothers.

Federal agents obtained a warrant from local U.S. Magistrate William Mallet after convincing him they had probable cause to show the property was purchased from illegal drug transactions.

DEA Agent Ken Miley of McAllen said after the seizure that the law was designed to hit drug dealers "where it counts, in the pocketbook."

Both of the brothers are Mexican nationals. Matias Montemayor served 18 months in federal prison on cocaine trafficking charge and also was jailed in Mexico on drug charges.

His lawyer, Michael Guinan of Chicago, said the property was seized unconstitutionally and should be returned.

His client is in jail under $2 million bond on unrelated charges of federal firearms violations. He was arrested on a sealed indictment in McAllen on June 2 after officers chased him into a cornfield.

He was not present at Wednesday's hearing. Guinan has said he will challenge the constitutionality of the 1978 civil law. The judge asked for written arguments on the subject from Guinan and government lawyer Jose Berlanga of Houston.

The judge said the government must prove at the July hearing that it had probable cause to seize the property.

Berlanga also has asked for a jury trial on the law's constitutionality if Vela rules the government was justified in taking the possessions. The judge asked for research from Berlanga on the law allowing plaintiffs in seizure cases to request a trial by jury instead of letting a judge decide the outcome.

Nortenos commute between cultures

LAKE PATZCUARO, Mexico (NEA) — By dawn many of the older men of this region are already on the roads, driving ox carts to the markets. The women are also awake, sweeping the dust from the doorsteps of their homes, and the children have set off with their pottery to draw water from the community wells.

But where are the young men? Gone as usual, the people say.

Which means they are in the United States. The young men of Lake Patzcuaro are among the estimated 2 million Mexicans who steal north each year to work in the barrios of the southwestern United States. But they are a special part of the force: They are the regular "nortenos," the illegal aliens who, in a real sense, commute between the two countries.

The men here have been sneaking into the United States for entire generations. They often go up en masse, and they stay until they have made enough money to feed their families. Locals say the men usually travel to the same places, mostly in Southern California, and even work for the same employers.

It is a way of life, and the result is a demographic curiosity throughout central Mexico. Many of the small villages are stripped of working-age men (in some cases up to 60 percent to 70 percent) and all that remain are the older fellows, the children—and a good many lonely and frustrated women.

Violeta Iglesia is one of the latter. She lives to the west of the lake, and she says she hasn't seen her husband in more than a year. "It's a bad sign, the silence," she says. "Sometimes the men go off on their own up there and get in trouble; sometimes they never come back."

But usually they do come back. Because, in fact, the trips north have become remarkably routine.

Sisters Find Baseball Tough Habit to Break

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Sisters Frances Evans and Magdalen Hession have discovered baseball is a tough habit to break.

The two Catholic nuns scan the newspaper sports sections each morning, hoping to find a headline that reads, "Strike Over; Rangers Playing in Arlington Tonight."

The sisters, members of the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word, have shared their enthusiasm for the sport since the first Texas Rangers game at Arlington Stadium.

"I never saw a big league game until 1972, when the Rangers came to Arlington," Sister Frances said. But she grew up playing baseball as a catcher and a shortstop.

"When the Rangers came I was determined to get tickets for Maggie and me to the opening game," she said. "Tickets were only $5 then, so we could go to that one game."

The highlight of that game was when Frank Howard hit the first home run out of Arlington Stadium. Sister Frances recalled a moment so exciting that a fellow in another section had a heart attack.

Shortly thereafter, a friend found out how much the nuns enjoyed baseball and bought them season tickets. They've rarely missed a game since.

"What I enjoy is the competitiveness," Sister Frances said. "And I like the kind of crowds. They're family-oriented people who bring their children. Some of the children were just little ones when we started going to games and now they're practically grown. We've made lots of friends."

"Since we work in a stressful situation all the time, it's nice to be outside and to relax, to forget about it all," added Sister Magdalen.

Sister Frances is director of social services at St. Joseph's Hospital, where Sister Magdalen is a patient representative in the surgical area.

They also enjoy getting to know the ballplayers and their families.

"Our seats are such that we can look at our guys in the dugout," Sister Frances said. "We're right over third base. When Bert Blyleven used to pitch, he used to wave. And whenever Billy Martin comes back he always looks for us."

The strike has left a gap in the sisters' lives. They say they spend more time visiting some of their elderly friends now, but they miss cheering for their team.

"I just want those guys to know how much their fans are hurting," said Sister Frances. "I mean both the managers and the players."

"I think there's wrong on both sides. Someone like George Steinbrenner is giving such huge salaries. It's like giving candy to a baby. Once he has it he wants more."

"I don't like to see players traded. But it's the same principle as when you work for a company. You go where they send you."

"I know the guys here want to play. I don't really blame them," she said.

Baseball Strike in 14th Day; May Lose Projected Insurance

NEW YORK (AP) — The major league baseball strike entered Day 14 today with the players association due to respond to new free-agent compensation proposals from the owners — and the owners in danger of losing their projected $50 million in strike insurance.

The first face-to-face bargaining sessions in five days broke up after less than two hours Wednesday as a grim-visaged Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies, the National League player representative, termed the proposals "insignificant" while management expressed its displeasure with Boone's remarks.

In Philadelphia, Common Pleas Judge Stanley M. Greenberg issued a temporary injunction blocking Lloyds of London from paying out any of the strike insurance the owners were to begin collecting Wednesday. Richie Phillips, the attorney for major league umpires, said the order was issued pending a hearing Friday on a class-action suit filed by the umpires' union, which accuses the owners of bad-faith bargaining, partly because of the existence of the insurance policy.

The 26 major league owners paid Lloyds $2 million for insurance that would pay each $100,000 per date lost to the players' strike for approximately seven weeks after the cancellation of the 153 games. The 153rd cancellation in the 13-day old strike took place Wednesday.

Phillips said the suit was filed on behalf of the umpires and persons "similarly situated, namely those individuals or groups having contractual relations with major league baseball... municipalities, players, vendors, concessionaires... It's our feeling that the million-dollars plus a day the owners will receive from the insurance provides incentives and encouragement to continue the pattern of refusing to bargain to gain a full settlement of the dispute."

The owners threw the ball back to the players when the chief management negotiator, Ray Grebey, director of the Player Relations Committee, said that "the burden of movement at this point in time rests with the players association; they called the strike."

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett said both sides would meet again today — "We're shooting for 11 a.m." — but it appeared likely that the players would reject the owners' new proposals which, among other things, would limit the number of "ranking" free agents in the re-entry draft requiring a major league player as compensation to no more than 14 in any one year.

The new alternatives also would reduce the percentage of free agents who would qualify as "ranking" under certain specified performance criteria and would thereby require more than the current amateur draft choice as compensation.

Although Moffett described Wednesday's meetings as "businesslike," Boone termed the new compensation proposals — and compensation for free agents lost through the re-entry draft is the sole issue in the major league baseball's first in-season strike — "not fundamentally different from the proposals which have been on the table for some time."

Grebey expressed resentment at Boone's remarks, calling it an "unfair" characterization of the owners' latest move. "To get a reaction that this is minor and insignificant..." he said, his voice trailing off.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, was again absent from the latest negotiations, as he has been since the strike began. Boone was joined by Baltimore's Mark Belanger, Cincinnati's Tom Seaver, Rusty Staub of the New York Mets, Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees and Donald Fehr, general counsel to the union.

Besides an annual limit of 14 free agents who would require a major leaguer as compensation, the major changes in the owners' new proposals would classify "ranking" free agents as those in the upper 25 percent (Type A) and upper 40 percent (Type B) of specified performance categories. The figures represent a reduction by the owners from a previous proposal of 33 and 50 percent.

Until the owners unilaterally implemented their compensation plan last February, all free agents were compensated for by an amateur draft choice. The agreement which gave the owners the right to implement their plan also gave the players the right to strike. And on June 12 they did just that.

Bjorn Borg Headed Toward Sixth Successive Wimbledon

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Bjorn Borg took another step toward his sixth successive Wimbledon title and then talked of how playing on the two show courts here has helped him.

The Swede has not had to play on an outside court at the All-England Club since he faced Australian Mark Edmondson in 1977. All his matches since then have been on either Centre Court or No. 1.

"Centre and No. 1 are much better," said the 25-year-old Borg after his 6-4, 6-1, 6-3 second-round crushing of Mel Purcell of the United States Wednesday afternoon.

"The ball bounces much better on those courts. It stands to reason. They are not played so much."

Centre and No. 1 are the enclosed courts at Wimbledon, with some 22,000 seats between them — all sold months before the tournament. They are carefully tended and kept exclusively for the championships.

There are 16 other courts, most of them free to spectators once they have paid their entrance money to the grounds. These courts are used all summer by All-England Club members.

Borg was one of the few player able to finish his second-round match Wednesday before Wimbledon's traditional enemy, the wet English weather, ended play prematurely.

Borg was particularly happy with his serve.

"I think I'm timing it much better when I throw up the ball," he said. "I had a much better feel. I was much more comfortable today."

John McEnroe, who Tuesday was fined $1,500 and warned about his future behavior following incidents in his opening match against Tom Gullikson, behaved faultlessly in his second-round match against Raul Ramirez of Mexico. McEnroe, the No. 2 seed, led Ramirez 6-3, 5-5 when rain halted the proceedings.

Second-seeded Jimmy Connors won two tiebreakers to lead Chris Lewis of New Zealand 7-6, 7-6, 1-2 when the rains came.

While McEnroe managed to stay out of trouble, his close friend and doubles partner, Peter Fleming, took up where "Superbrat" left off Monday.

Fleming was given a warning for a time violation and then had a penalty point awarded against him in his second-round match against Tim Gullikson, Tom's twin brother.

Fleming was in trouble for leaping up and down in mock delight after a series of disputed calls.

"These officials are humorless," said the giant American after the match was interrupted at one-set all and 5-5. "The rules just weren't meant to be applied the way this guy (the umpire) applied them. These officials here are very sensitive and inflexible."

Chris Evert Lloyd and Martina Navratilova, two former women's singles champions, were quite enough to beat the weather as both moved into the round of 32.

Navratilova downed 16-year-old Susan Mascarin of the United States 6-0, 6-1, while Lloyd ousted Yvonne Vermaak of South Africa 6-1, 6-2.

American Pam Shriver, the No. 7 seed, ousted Elizabeth Little of Australia 6-0, 6-3.

All the uncompleted matches are scheduled to be played today.

Injunction Issued on $50 Million Strike Insurance

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Common Pleas judge issued a temporary injunction Wednesday blocking Lloyds of London from paying major league baseball team owners any of $50 million in strike insurance they were to have begun collecting, according to the attorney for the umpires.

Richie Phillips said Judge Stanley M. Greenberg issued the temporary order at 3:30 p.m. pending a hearing Friday morning on the class action suit filed by the Major League Umpires Association. Greenberg could not be reached for comment, but a clerk in his office acknowledged that a hearing was set for Friday. She asked not to be identified.

Age Group National Competition Held

Nard's Gymnastics West Texas Tumbling Association are hosting Age Group National competition for USAF (United States Acro-gymnastics Federation) and AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) Junior Olympics in Canyon at the West Texas State University Activity Center July 3-5. USAF will compete July 3 and 4 in five events. They are

The 26 major league owners paid Lloyds $2 million for insurance that would pay each $100,000 per date lost to the players' strike for approximately seven weeks after the cancellation of the first 153 games. The 153rd cancellation in the 13-day old strike took place Wednesday.

"The temporary restraining order was granted that restrains Lloyds of London correspondents from paying any monies to major league baseball or any member teams under their strike insurance policy," Phillips said in a telephone interview.

Phillips said the class-action suit was filed on behalf of the major league umpires and persons "similarly situated, namely those individuals or groups having contractual relations with major league baseball... municipalities, players, vendors, concessionaires."

The umpires are being paid for the first 30 days of the strike. "That means if they don't play the rest of the season, the umpires lose half a season, and of course, they won't be in position to seek other employment because they'll be on constant standby to go back to work," Phillips said.

"It's our feeling that the million dollars plus a day the owners will receive from the insurance provides incentives and encouragement to continue the pattern of refusing to bargain to gain a full settlement of the dispute," Phillips said.

According to Phillips, other suits are being considered. He said the suit was filed in Philadelphia because the umpires' main office is here and Lloyds also has an office here.

The dispute over free agent compensation continues with negotiations to resume Thursday. A two-hour session Wednesday brought a new proposal from the owners, but National League player representative Bob Boone of the Philadelphia Phillies said the offer was "not fundamentally different."

First Round of $300,000 DT-MGC To Start Today

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Two old pros, Lee Trevino and Dave Hill, and a corps of brand-new ones were among the central figures today in the first round of the $300,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

All are seeking their first checks in regular Tour competition. At the other end of the scale are Trevino and Hill, each a $1 million winner, who have combined for seven victories in this event alone, three by Trevino, the defending champion, and four by Hill.

Each has a particularly fondness for this tourney. "If I could only play one tournament a year, this would be it," said Hill, 44. "I'm not sure exactly what it is. The people, I guess. I like the people here and they seem to like me and I just feel at home and relaxed."

Copper Harbor, Back To Nature

By JULES LOH AP Special Correspondent

COPPER HARBOR, Mich. (AP) — In this village, if you leave a tip, the waitress calls after you, "Hey, mister, you forgot your change." It is that sort of village.

It is at the northernmost point of a finger of murmuring pines and hemlock jutting into Lake Superior. About 30 people live here year round, far fewer than reside in the town graveyard. If you look at a map, Copper Harbor is the dot at the tip of Michigan's Upper Peninsula's upper peninsula.

Spring arrives late this far up the globe tilt. At the end-of-school picnic the other day, the kids played softball amid lilac blossoms. Lilacs in June.

Miss Howe played shortstop. She had to, and parents and friends and recent graduates played other positions, as ringers, because the kids actually celebrating the end of school barely numbered enough to make a team, let alone a team to play against.

Bobbi, Natasha, Johanna, Forest, Aaron, Darren, Jeff, Kristen and Danny constitute the Copper Harbor School student body. Miss Howe is the teacher.

One-room schoolhouses with one teacher once were commonplace in this country but that was before the nation traded remoteness and innocence for pavement.

All three yet survive — one-room schoolhouses, remoteness and waitresses who remind you to collect your change — though you might have to go to the end of the road to find them. The road ends here. Education does not.

"My pupils take the same standardized tests as all the other pupils in the state," Miss Howe said, with pride. "They do well."

"I want them to excel. When they go on from here, to high school, the social adjustments will be hard enough for them without having to worry about their studies. I don't want anyone to fall behind."

When they do go on to high school they will climb into a bus and ride 35 miles, to Calumet, and 35 miles back, through winter snows that accumulate 200 to 400 inches. That's snow enough to cover the schoolyard flagpole. People here dig tunnels in order to shovel less.

It was Copper Harbor's isolation and severity that lured Marsha Howe, the schoolmarm, here a year ago.

She is a backpacker, a climber, a skier. She is 30. She is a fine shortstop and also, apparently, a fine teacher. After only one year the members of the school board — who are also the parents of most of her pupils — granted her tenure.

"You can imagine how personal teaching is here," she said. "I don't prepare a year's study program for a grade. I prepare individual study programs for individual pupils."

"Next fall we get a new kindergartner, Amber Meadowcroft, and I will have 10 pupils," she said.

In a nation of interstate highways, resource centers and peer-group relationships, there remains, it would seem, something to be said for one-room schoolhouses, closeness and clean snow.

Not to mention lilacs in June.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

We are moving forward full speed with a plan to relieve the problem of over-crowding in the Texas prison system.

Through a new conditional parole program utilizing existing halfway houses and a temporary tent encampment within the perimeter of prison security areas, we will be able to get 3,000 inmates who now sleep on Department of Corrections floors into more-comfortable facilities by July 1.

Our plan is responsive to the order of Federal District Judge William Wayne Justice to eliminate triple-celling of inmates by August.

Attorney General Mark White is seeking a stay of Judge Justice's far-reaching decision with regard to the Texas prison system, many aspects of which we strongly disagree with. We do agree, however, that over-crowding must be eliminated promptly.

Hopefully, 750 inmates will be paroled to halfway houses by June 1 and another 750 before July 1. Meanwhile, I have recommended $16 million be appropriated for intensively-supervised halfway houses during the next biennium.

Board of Pardons and Paroles contracts with halfway houses and individual parolee contracts will be drawn tightly to insure protection of law-abiding citizens, restitution to victims of crimes and minimum cost to taxpayers.

A supplemental grant of $1.25 million from the Governor's Office of General Counsel and Criminal Justice to the Board of Pardons and Paroles permits immediate placement of conditional parolees in halfway houses. Inmates will receive the highest degree of supervision to assure protection of the public. Initial conditional parolees have been identified and are being processed to halfway houses with advice of local judges, prosecutors and sheriffs.

Meanwhile, we are obtaining military tents from the Texas National Guard to house another 1500 low risk inmates temporarily within prison unit security areas. July 1 is our goal for this relocation. The tents, which have been used by our loyal servicemen in the field, will certainly be a preferred alternative to triple-celling of inmates during a brief, five-months period.

The Legislature already has approved my emergency request for a $35 million appropriation to construct additional permanent housing for inmates. When this construction is completed November 1, inmates who have spent the summer and early fall in the tent encampments will be transferred to the new quarters.

Texas Department of Corrections is studying possible purchase of the Harris County Rehabilitation Center or building new facilities on state land to expand work furlough programs under my $18 million appropriations request. We have also increased funding for adult probation programs.

The TDC construction program for the 1982-83 biennium will provide 10,800 additional permanent bed spaces by August 31, 1983.

I am encouraged, based on my meeting with U.S. Attorney General William French Smith, that the Reagan Administration is re-examining its position in the lawsuit involving the Texas prison system. I am increasingly hopeful of a stay on appeal of the Ruiz v. Estelle suit.

We are, indeed, in a crisis situation, however — one which could cost the state billions of dollars.

I am confident the programs I have set out will eliminate the problem of inmates sleeping on floors by July 1, without need for wholesale release to homes via an inadequately-supervised work furlough arrangement.

All of this has been undertaken in good faith and with integrity to alleviate the situation in our prisons. I believe that Judge Justice will be pleased with our efforts.

'Romance' of handmade knives

Teen masters old craft of knife making

By Don Wolf

LEVITTOWN, Pa. (NEA)

An old, dying craft has captured the imagination of 18-year-old Ken Steigewalt. For the past two and a half years, he has devoted himself to knife making.

Other guys his age may be involved with sports or photography or stamp collecting. But Ken prefers to spend much of his time shut up in his family's garage-turned-workshop, cutting and filing and heating steel into hunting knives of almost jewel-like exquisite-ness.

No more than 300 people in the United States are recognized as top-grade knife makers, says Ken, who has every intention of making his mark among them. His dream is to be mentioned in the same breath as Bo Randall and Bob Lovelace, two of the most respected knife makers in the country.

Ken's skill and interest in knife making are so keen that he's decided to put off college for a while. He says that a job recruiter with doctorates in chemistry and physics has advised him to stick with the knives because his talent seems so great.

Already, Ken has sold some 200 knives to people who live not only all over this country but in Europe as well.

Avid knife collectors have enthusiastically compared his work to that of the best, Ken says proudly. He earns $10 an hour making knives and can easily earn more as he becomes better known.

That's not bad for a guy who at 15 just wanted to see if he could make a better knife for himself than he could find in the stores.

"I've always been fascinated by knives. We all are," says Ken, who likes to hunt. "We can't live without using them."

He started out making throwing knives from old steel scraps such as car fenders and back-saw blades. Those early ones went to relatives.

Now he uses hard tool steels, like the kind used in the molds or dies of factory-made knives.

He displays his 11 basic knife models in a briefcase with royal violet foam-rubber padding. He recently had printed a detailed brochure that he sends to those who respond to his advertisement in a knife-collecting publication.

Ken is planning to go to Dallas in July for one of the major knife-collecting conventions, which can attract 50,000 people a day. He expects to make some sales there and to meet other knife makers who will sign his petition for entry into their guild.

If knife making sounds like an avocation, it is — at least on the East Coast. Indeed, Ken thinks he may be the only knife maker in his home state of Pennsylvania. But things are different in the South and West.

"Down South, everyone carries a homemade knife," says Ken. "There's a knife show every week in the South."

The prices of Ken's knives range from $45 to $100. But there is the potential for far more.

His face brightens when he talks of one 65-year-old knife maker who sells his wares for up to $3,000 each and has orders dating back 20 years. Or of another man whose knives doubled in value to more than $1,000 each after he retired.

Ken has already experienced the near fanaticism some collectors have for an expertly hand-made knife.

There was one collector from New Jersey who bought Ken's entire briefcase of 11 knives for more than $300.

Ann Landers

Uneasy Dad

DEAR ANN LANDERS: About the advice you gave to "Uneasy Dad" and your readers' replies to it: I have a Master's Degree in social work and have been counseling families and adolescents for over 20 years. It has been my experience that whenever a father starts talking about how some jerk is just waiting for a chance to take advantage of his "well-developed" daughter, it means HE has sexual feelings for her himself.

Father usually becomes extremely strict, especially where other males are concerned, because he is projecting his own sexual feelings for her onto them. This results in bitterness and hostility on her part and leads to family battles.

The father subconsciously welcomes these fights, since the mutual hostility keeps them apart and keeps him a safe distance from the object of his illicit sexual desires.

The daughter often rebels by becoming promiscuous and sometimes getting pregnant. When that happens, the father self-righteously proclaims to the mother, "See! We weren't strict enough with her!"

I suggest that you advise the "Uneasy Dad" to get professional counseling and learn to deal with his feelings about his daughter before they result in an all-too-common family tragedy. Sincerely-T.W.

DEAR T.W.: A lot of fathers out there are going to hit the roof, but you have done a neat bit of analysis, and I am in agreement with your assessment of the situation. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Someone wrote in and asked you to settle an argument. It had to do with whether a man's socks should match his shirt or his suit. You said socks should match the suit.

Check again. Actually, socks don't have to match anything. In fact, black socks are always in good taste with black shoes.

Now you have started several new arguments in our office. Will you please do a little more homework and come up with a better answer?—Home Of The Red Sox

DEAR RED: Thanks for inviting me to review the issue. I was right, but remiss in not citing an authority.

The word from on high comes from Lawrence Pucci, one of Chicago's finest custom tailors. He said, "The socks should match the suit," and added, "It is acceptable for the socks to match the shirt or cashmere sweater, but only if it's strictly sportswear."

So, there you have it from someone whose opinion matters.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The "No Regrets" letter in your March 17 column struck home.

When our wonderful mother died at 41, we were on our own (our father took no responsibility for his four children). We've all come through OK, thanks to our oldest sister who was only 18 at the time—we never had to accept any form of charity.

However, it bugs me that she too has never received the appreciation due her. Our youngest brother got a college education with her help, and he is the least appreciative of all. Sis has always been taken for granted, doesn't complain. However, I'm sure she would appreciate a "thank you" on Mother's Day, for she has done more to deserve it than many a real mother.—F.A.M. In Stanford

DEAR F.A.M.: Sharper than a serpent's tooth goes for thankless siblings, as well as children. Mother's Day has passed—but there's Christmas down the road.

Discover how to be date bait without falling hook, line and sinker. Ann Landers' booklet, "Dating Do's and Don'ts," will help you be more poised and sure of yourself on dates. At Wits End

By ERMA BOMBECK

When are Japanese manufacturers going to give Americans a break?

They are killing consumers by instant obsolescence. How many of you have bought a camera that was the last word in technology? It fit in your shirt pocket, took bright pictures on a cloudy day, required no settings, no flash, corrected its focus light, had drop-in film, was battery driven and cost pennies to develop.

By the time you got it to the car, it was obsolete. They were unpacking a new one that fit on your ring finger, thrived on sand and hard knocks, didn't even have to be pointed toward the subject, and the picture appeared by a three-year-old spitting on the lens.

Remember when Detroit thought they had progressed by putting lights in a car that said, "FASTEN YOUR SEAT BELT?" The Japanese brought out a car with voices that remind you your lights are on and your brake is set.

As for stereos, you have to open up the store in the morning to keep on top of it. I've seen the natural progression in our home...from records that chipped when they were in a draft to cassettes and tapes. Needles that went from gold to platinum. From systems that played one 45 to an entire album.

Now it seems the Japanese are making all of it history. They are bringing out a "system" featuring a special record that you can beat to death and it will play for hours. It is "digested" by a machine that has no needle...just a laser beam. What do you do with a $3,000 record collection you already have, I don't want to think about.

For years, I've been wanting to buy a new portable typewriter. The one I have now could not be carried by an expectant mother after her second month. It weighs a ton. Week after week, I have watched the evolution of portable typewriters as they become smaller, lighter and more efficient. Last week, I heard a Japanese manufacturer tell of a new one that not only weighed 4 ounces, but stored up to 200 pages of material on tape.

I'm still holding out. I figure by next Wednesday they'll have one that is powered by perspiration, is programmed for humor, reaches out and tickles the readers, and is made to carry me.

If it doesn't do that, then I'll just wait until Thursday to buy it.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas effective July 21, 1981, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

It is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 15.8 percent increase in the company's intrastate revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

The filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for interexchange private line and foreign exchange (FX) services. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies because such companies provide interexchange private line and foreign exchange service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's tariffs.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell, en conformidad a las reglas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel para servicio de teléfono en Texas con vigencia a partir del 21 de Julio de 1981, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel que se ha solicitado rendirá un aumento de 15.8 por ciento en los ingresos intrastatales de la compañía.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission en Austin, Texas, al igual que en cada municipalidad afectada y servida por Southwestern Bell, y cada una de las oficinas de la compañía para negocios con el público en Texas tiene una copia para lectura pública.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

El registro incluye, pero no se limita a, propuestas para aumentar las tarifas para servicio de línea privada entre centrales telefónicas (interexchange private line) y servicio de central telefónica extranjera (foreign exchange FX). Cambios en dichas tarifas de servicio también afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen los servicios ya mencionados en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell.

IS YOUR HOME TOO HOT?

Stop overworking your air-conditioner and electric billing meter, check out our patented and proven new method of re-insulating your home, whether it's new or old.

Look what some of our satisfied users have to say:

After having Full Home Insulation re-insulate our home, when the temperature got into the high 90's, we didn't have to run our air-conditioner at all. The temperature stayed at 70 to 72 degrees evenly throughout the house. Our children have allergies and elimination of the dust has stopped their coughing inside the house.

When you can change the temperature to very comfortable from unbearable in a tin sided building with sheetrock in the kind of heat we have had you have really done something. We have added freezers, a complete restaurant kitchen, exhaust fans and our electricity has increased in costs, but still you have made our electric bills less than before.

In winters before Full Home Insulation Co. reinsulated my mobile home, the heater ran all of the time and still couldn't warm it. Now in winter, it is very comfortable and with the heater out off at least 60 percent of the time.

Since having Full Home Insulation Co. reinsulate our home over the existing rock wool already in the walls and attic, our heating cost has been cut by a good 40 percent. Thanks for a job very well done in only one day.

Jaycees Vote On Women Members

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The 200,000 member all-male Jaycees service organization will get a chance to vote on whether women will be admitted to the group at the local level, says newly-elected national president Gene A. Honn.

"Our bylaws read 'young men 18 to 35' and my philosophy is the membership will make that decision (whether individual chapters can admit women)," said Honn, 36, after his election to the national office Wednesday during the Jaycees' 61st national convention.

Honn said prior to the convention, national officers agreed to allow a referendum at the local level on whether women could be admitted to the Jaycees.

He said the vote, scheduled for August and September, would be on whether to change the bylaws and admit women to membership in individual chapters. "If it fails, we will continue to operate as we are currently," he said.

He declined to say how he felt about the admission of women to the organization, but said he would abide by the outcome of the referendum.

Jaycee public relations officer Randy Kindy said the referendum, "is seen as a compromise, as a way to let each member to cast a vote," on the admission of women.

He said when the question of admitting women has been brought up at previous national conventions, it has been voted down by "only one or two percent" of the national membership that attends the conventions.

The referendum would allow women to have full membership status in local chapters, but Kindy said he did not know if the women would be allowed to vote in state and national conventions.

He said courts in at least two states have ruled against the all-male policy, but that the rulings were being appealed.

"Traditionally, the ones to challenge (the all-male membership) have been from the metropolitan areas where there are a lot of working and business women," he said.

Currently a women's auxiliary of the organization meets at the same time as the Jaycees convention, but the women have no votes.

Honn said his major priority for the coming year was "developing the leadership ability of the individual members to create greater impact," in individual communities.

Honn is an agriculture extension advisor for the University of Illinois, has served as national vice president of the organization the past year, representing Illinois, Idaho, Kansas, Montana and South Carolina.

An alumnus of Illinois State University and the University of Illinois, Honn is involved with the National Association of Country Agricultural Agents, the National Association of Extension Advisors, Farm Bureau, Future Farmers of America and 4-H.

He was elected by acclamation at the Wednesday evening session after Jay Brim, of Austin, Texas, and Dennis Snelson, of Independence, Mo., withdrew as candidates.

The Lawrence Williams Family

Now You're Cookin'

"Honey, I'm not all soul; most of my recipes are honky!" saying this Peggy Williams laughingly refused to share with us her secret recipes for southern fried chicken, spare ribs, or chitlins.

The Lawrence Williams family reside at 519 Ave. G and laughter must be the key word around their household. Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams were raised in Frisco; though she lived in St. Louis, Mo. for awhile before they married and moved to Hereford in February, 1974.

Williams is employed at Armour and enjoys gardening and working with animals, remnants from his boyhood spent on the farm.

Mrs. Williams has been employed by Energas for five years as a clerk-typist and as she puts it "all-around secretary." Her interests include sewing, cooking, jazzercise three nights a week, and her main love is reading. She also attends night classes taking courses in arts and crafts, successful living, and mid-management.

The Williams have a daughter who is "six going on 29" her mother assured us. Misty will attend Aikman elementary next year and having visited her mother at work several times is so determined to be a secretary that she applied for a job there! She lists her interests as "swimming and meeting people."

As a family they enjoy trips to Amarillo, attending movies, and riding horses. The Williams attend St. John Baptist Church.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN — If we don't pass a bill to license doctors during the special session, there won't be any licensed doctors in the state.

This is because of the new "sunset" legislation. It provides that the Board of Medical Examiners shall license doctors and that the board only last for a certain time. If the Legislature thinks the board is still needed after it expires, it can renew the board's power.

The purpose of this sunset legislation is to make sure the state is not burdened with obsolete and costly bureaus and offices. For example, England just recently abolished an office for a man to stand on the cliffs of Dover with a telescope and watch for Napoleon. Sunset legislation could have saved them a lot of money.

We don't have a man to look out for Napoleon, but you might think we did if you listened to some of the testimony we heard concerning how we should (or shouldn't) license physicians. We heard more than 40 hours of advice in committee about everything from optometrists to nutrition counselors.

Despite the tough problems this bill represents, we must come to a solution by September 1. That is when the authority of the board expires.

Peace Movement Set

BONN, West Germany (AP) — NATO's plans to station U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe has given birth to the Peace Movement in West Germany.

It has never organized formally, and its loosely knit ranks include clergymen, students, housewives and soldiers whose politics range from right to far left. Its name evolved from its aim — to kill the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's plan to deploy 572 medium-range American nuclear missiles in Western Europe, starting in 1983, as a counter force to Soviet missiles already in place in the East.

The Peace Movement also has begun to question West Germany's alliance with the United States and its role as NATO's main forward base. It threatens to undermine Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's government as well as the Western alliance's plans for increasing military strength in Western Europe.

Supporters of the NATO plan claim the U.S. weapons are necessary to offset Soviet SS-20 missiles, which can deliver nuclear warheads to targets throughout Western Europe.

According to the Western plan, NATO would try to negotiate an arms-control agreement with the Soviet Union before the missiles are deployed.

Ostrich eggs may be eight inches long and weigh three pounds. The newborn chick can be a foot tall.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Lose excess fat first

DEAR DR. LAMB — I want to ask about my blood pressure readings. I have readings as high as 170 over 110 and 148 over 114. I am concerned about these as my mother was only 56 when she had a stroke and two heart attacks. My doctor doesn't seem to be worried as my pressure comes back down to normal within one to three hours, with readings around 130 over 80. I am not on any medicine for high blood pressure but feel I should be. Am I wrong or is my doctor wrong?

I work in a hospital and have been sent to the emergency room several times. I'm 35, weigh 170 and am 5 feet 3.

DEAR READER — Your story is that of a vascular hypertensive, today often called borderline hypertension. A lot of people who have labile blood pressure never have persistently elevated readings. It is a reflex response. When you get excited — and that can include while having your blood pressure reading taken — your arteries squeeze down and your heart rate picks up, pumping more blood than usual, which causes your pressure to rise. When you relax and your heart slows down, causing your pressure to fall. This can all happen in a few minutes. The trouble with treating people like you is that the medicines that tend to lower your pressure when it is high also lower it when it is on the low side. The end result often leaves something to be desired.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 20-year-old woman and am considering starting a family within the next few years. When I was five I had an operation for a hernia on the right side of my abdomen. Will I have to deliver my baby by Caesarean section because of the scar from this operation? I have heard that doctors prefer to do a C-section on a woman who has had a C-section before to prevent a rupture. Is this because of fear of rupturing the abdominal wall or the uterine wall?

DEAR READER — The concern is that the scar in the uterus will rupture. Even so, not every woman who has had a previous Caesarean section will require one the next delivery. In some cases, such as a small pelvis that won't permit normal birth, the same indication for the first section will apply to all future pregnancies. Your hernia operation should not be a reason for a Caesarean section.

Meatloaf magic

By Polly Fisher

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — What is the secret of good meatloaf? My husband says he loves the stuff, but he complains that mine is too dry. I mix an egg into the meat, but that doesn't seem to help. — MRS. T.

DEAR MRS. T. — The egg will bind the meat together but won't really make the loaf moist. Ground beef with a slightly higher fat content, such as ground chuck, will make a juicy loaf, but I prefer to use the leaner ground round. I moisten it with one-quarter to one-half cup of beef broth for each pound of meat. Be sure to bake the meatloaf only until done — that is, when it's nicely browned and crusty, and pulls away slightly from the sides of the pan. If you're unsure about when the meat is fully cooked, you can always make a small cut into the center of the loaf and peek inside. An overbaked loaf is a dry loaf. You can also use plain water, tomato juice or other liquids instead of the broth to vary the flavor. — POLLY

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wanted to comment on the problem of sweaty feet. I had this problem until about two years ago. It can be horrible. My niece told me to put a little baking soda in each shoe before putting them on. It stopped the odor but my feet are still wet when I take my shoes off. I work six hours a day in a cafeteria so I have to wear enclosed shoes.

DEAR READER — Thank you for trying to help others. Baking soda will absorb some odor. Not everyone may tolerate it as well as you have so I would advise a limited trial first for anyone who wants to try this remedy. I have received many home aid suggestions about controlling foot odors since my first column on this subject and many of them are useful. Regardless of what you use the first step in controlling foot odor is frequent bathing of the feet, at least twice a day, and changing socks as often as you can, again, at least twice a day. It is also useful to change shoes every day so one pair can be at home airing out while you are wearing the other pair. Open shoes are helpful. So is going barefooted at home where you can do so comfortably. Socks that absorb moisture are also useful. And there are commercial preparations that can be used to help, too. With a combination of the aids available, most foot odor problems can be helped if not completely controlled.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 73-year-old woman and I work very hard. In addition, I started a walking program two years ago and walk three miles a day. About a month ago I started having some chest discomfort, a dull ache that bothered me. It would come and go and sometimes hurt for a day or two, then I wouldn't feel it for several days. I had X-rays and they didn't surprise me as I've had them before. The doctor did a stress test and said the results were not too good, and I was out of shape. So he put me on Donnatal and Propanolol and told me to

DEAR POLLY — There's no need to sprout-avocado seeds in water before planting in soil. Just plant the seed, large end down, directly in potting soil. Completely cover the seed. Be sure to keep the soil moist. I've found seeds will sprout faster this way than in water. — JEANNE

DEAR DR. LAMB — I get more exercise to tone up my heart. I told him I walk three miles a day but he doesn't believe me. Now I'm wondering if the machine can tell the difference between an overworked heart and not enough exercise? I'm now exercising two hours a day plus all my other work and I am tired. I think that is too much for a 73-year-old woman.

DEAR READER — I agree. No, that test is not that accurate, particularly for women. Ask your doctor for me to review the article on the national study of stress tests that appeared in the New England Journal of Medicine, Aug. 2, 1979.

He will find that in 175 women who had pain suggestive of heart disease only nine had coronary artery disease but 33 had positive stress tests. False positive tests in women are common. Perhaps he will let you go back to only one hour of exercise plus your other work when he reads this.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My boyfriend and I have been going out for four months. He told me that when he was younger he had encephalitis. Because of this he is deaf in one ear. Could you please tell me exactly what encephalitis is? We are thinking about marriage and having children. Is encephalitis catching? What are the chances of having a child born with encephalitis?

DEAR READER — You have nothing to worry about. "Encephalo" refers to the brain and "itis" means inflammation, so your boyfriend had inflammation of the brain. It must have left permanent damage to the area that receives sound signals. The damage is permanent at this point but the infectious process that caused it is long since over. You can have brain inflammation from a number of infectious diseases, even though there are specific germs that cause special types of encephalitis. Your boyfriend's condition is neither contagious nor inherited. He will have no further changes from the encephalitis either.

French Native Turns Into American Cowboy

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — Charles Beysier dresses like a cowboy, rides like a cowboy and, like all good cowboys, has a rodeo championship to his credit. But he still has a hard time convincing some people that he's a cowboy.

"I had to show one guy my (Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association membership) card this morning before he believed I was a bronc rider," Beysier said.

What's the problem? It's his French accent — something not often heard in rodeo circles.

His nationality has set him apart from other cowboys ever since he earned his full-time professional status in 1976 — four years after he came to America.

Before that, when he was growing up in France, his only exposure to cowboys was on the television.

"I would see as many cowboy movies as I could," he said. "In France, Thursday used to be an off day in school. So all the theaters in town would show cowboy movies for the kids. Some would have French subtitles; others would be translated into French."

When he was 22, Beysier hitchhiked to Les Saintes Marie De La Mer in Southern France, where rodeos were held. It was there that he rode his first bull.

In 1969, he got a chance to study the riding techniques of American cowboys when Buster Ivory, a rodeo producer from Pampa, Texas, brought a touring company to Paris.

Ivory was unable to continue a European tour as he had planned and ended up selling all his horses to the rodeo in Beysier's hometown.

For the next three years, Beysier rode continually in the French rodeo.

In June 1972, he set out for America and went to El Paso, Texas, where he saw his first rodeo in the States.

"I got to talk to a lot of cowboys," he said. "I asked a lot of questions. It was just great."

He competed in rodeos part time, holding down other jobs, until 1976, when he won $1,000, qualifying him for full-time status.

In 1977 he won the season bronc riding championship at Mesquite, Texas, but the next year, after getting bucked off his first rodeo at the first major rodeo of the season, he started having doubts about continuing.

"I was riding terrible," he said. "I was doing nothing right. Mainly, I think I was just homesick. I hadn't been home about six years."

Go home, he did. But home wasn't as he had remembered.

"Nothing was the same in my hometown. The rodeo was gone. And mostly I found people not to be as friendly as I had become accustomed to in Texas," he said.

So in January of this year, Beysier came back to Mesquite and began working at rodeo champion Don Gay's rodeo school.

He says he likes the work but has the same problem he's had all along: getting people to believe he's a real cowboy.

Just the other day one of his students walked up to Beysier with a dubious look on his face.

"You mean you are a bronc rider?" he asked me. I think with my French accent I really had the guy confused," Beysier said. "So I just had to prove it to him."

Paul Harvey News New Look At Education

Bell urges "a return to basics to improve the quality of education in the United States."

He says the number one priority of our schools must become discipline — good student behavior — rigid rules of conduct.

After that is accomplished our schools must resume teaching mathematics and English and how to write a good sentence.

He says we've become preoccupied with driver training, expressive dance, pep rallies and such.

We must, he says, resume teaching the subjects for which public education was created in the first place.

With cuts in the education budget it becomes increasingly urgent that any cutbacks cut back to essentials.

Chester Finn Jr., author of three books on educational policy — urgently recommends focusing on developing skills, self-restraint, self-discipline; respect for such

"old-fashioned" considerations as merit and accomplishment.

It's happening.

Even in such a bastion of mandatory equality as Washington, D.C., special schools are being established for the academically vigorous.

Secretary Bell's public utterances are helping everywhere to make educational traditionalism respectable again.

Even the National Education Association—which has made a quasi-religion of "equity" instead of "quality" is respectfully silent.

Secretary Bell says that public education in our nation does not have to die, but it is going to have to shape up.

And on its own, community after community is raising educational standards, dispensing with educational frills.

Teachers are being tested before they are hired.

Students are being educated before they are graduated.

Wheeler to Recieve Full-Service SF

Security Federal Savings and Loan Association has just been granted permission to establish a full-service branch office in Wheeler, Texas, according to Aubrey Steele, president.

Word on the approval was just received from the Federal Home Loan Bank in Little Rock. It will be the sixth Security Federal office, and the fourth office opened since 1973.

Security Federal's board of directors announced that Dan Kenney, a Wheeler native, will be appointed managing officer of the branch. Kenney is a 1967 graduate of Wheeler High School and received his degree in accounting from Oklahoma State Tech. he and his wife, the former Vicki Davidson of Wheeler, have three children. Kenney, who joined Security Federal in 1972, has served as loan officer and is currently Data Processing Manager. He helped develop Security Federal's interest bearing checking account in 1980.

The planned expansion, according to Steele, comes "despite national news which tends to portray the savings and loan situation as rather bleak. In fact, we see room for growth. Our area is fairing much better economically than many parts of the nation, and Wheeler is certainly part of the Panhandle's expanding economy. We felt we could best serve the area through a full-service office."

Security Federal Savings and Loan Association was chartered in 1926 in Pampa. By 1937, the association had established its first branch in Amarillo. Three offices now serve the Amarillo area. The fifth office, in Hereford, was opened in 1975.

Security Federal currently has assets over $260 million, making it the largest savings and loan association in the Panhandle area.

Strike Leaves Gap In Sisters' Lives

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Sisters Frances Evans and Magdalen Hession have discovered baseball is a tough habit to break.

The two Catholic nuns scan the newspaper sports sections each morning, hoping to find a headline that reads, "Strike Over; Rangers Playing in Arlington Tonight."

The sisters, members of the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word, have shared their enthusiasm for the sport since the first Texas Rangers game at Arlington Stadium.

"I never saw a big league game until 1972, when the Rangers came to Arlington," Sister Frances said. But she grew up playing baseball as a catcher and a shortstop.

"When the Rangers came I was determined to get tickets for Maggie and me to the opening game," she said. "Tickets were only $5 then, so we could go to that one game."

The highlight of that game was when Frank Howard hit the first home run out of Arlington Stadium. Sister Frances recalled — a moment so exciting that a fellow in another section had a heart attack.

Shortly thereafter, a friend found out how much the nuns enjoyed baseball and bought them season tickets. They've rarely missed a game since.

"What I enjoy is the competitiveness," Sister Frances said. "And I like the kind of crowds. They're family-oriented people who bring their children. Some of the children were just little ones when we started going to games and now they're practically grown. We've made lots of friends."

"Since we work in a stressful situation all the time, it's nice to be outside and to relax, to forget about it all," added Sister Magdalen.

Sister Frances is director of social services at St. Joseph's Hospital, where Sister Magdalen is a patient representative in the surgical area.

They also enjoy getting to know the ballplayers and their families.

"Our seats are such that we can look at our guys in the dugout," Sister Frances said. "We're right over third base. When Bert Blyleven used to pitch, he used to wave. And whenever Billy Martin comes back he always looks for us."

The strike has left a gap in the sisters' lives. They say they spend more time visiting some of their elderly friends now, but they miss cheering for their team.

"I just want those guys to know how much their fans are hurting," said Sister Frances. "I mean both the managers and the players."

"I think there's wrong on both sides. Someone like George Steinbrenner is giving such huge salaries. It's like giving candy to a baby. Once he has it he wants more."

"I don't like to see players traded. But it's the same principle as when you work for a company. You go where they send you."

"I know the guys here want to play. I don't really blame them," she said.
