Explosion hurts Pastora, kills five others

By CARLOS LONGHI
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Nicaraguan rebel leader Eden Pastora was wounded and five people, including an American journalist, were killed when a bomb exploded during a news conference just inside the Nicaraguan border, Red Cross officials said.
The explosion, which injured at least 28 people, occurred Wednesday evening about one mile over the border in La Penca, about one mile inside Nicaragua across the San Juan River that divides the two countries.
Pastora's guerrilla forces have been fighting in the region against troops of Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.
Among those killed was Linda Frazier, a reporter for the Tico Times newspaper in San Jose and wife of AP Central American correspondent Joseph B. Frazier, according to Miguel Carmona, general director of the Costa Rican Red Cross.

American among dead

Pastora was wounded in the heel, according to his nephew, Leonel Pastora, a member of his uncle's Costa Rican-based Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, known by its Spanish initials ARDE. Carmona said Red Cross workers have evacuated 20 people who were injured and there were more to be moved to hospitals. Among those at the news conference was AP correspondent Reid G. Miller, who said later by telephone that he sustained shrapnel wounds and burns.
Earlier, Red Cross officials told the Tico Times that 28 people were injured in the blast.
The news conference was held in a warehouse-type building in a jungle area that has been controlled by ARDE rebels and Pastora's headquarters had been in that area. There was no official report on what type of explosion it was or exactly where it was located.
Nicaraguan Red Cross officials in La Penca by Radio Monumental and Radio Reloj, another San Jose Radio station, monitored here.
Radio Reloj reported the bridge over the river between La Penca and Boca Tapada in Costa Rica was down but it was known whether it was because of explosion or rain. The bridge was being used to ferry some of the wounded by to Costa Rica.
Before the bridge was out, Red Cross officials had said they had transported five of the wounded to a hospital in the Costa Rican town of Ciudad Quesada, about three hours drive south of where the news conference was conducted.
Radio Monumental said Pastora had wanted to cancel the news conference because of heavy rain, but had been

Doggett, Hance continuing pleas for votes

By SYDNEY RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — Democratic Senate hopefuls Lloyd Doggett and Kent Hance prepared for their final campaign jaunts following a debate during which they traded barbs and appealed for crucial last-minute support.
Like the runoff campaign, Wednesday night's debate was marked by each candidate charging the other with dirty politics and lying.
The debate was the first

Dirty politics, lying charges voiced by each time the candidates had met face to face since the May 5 primary in which saw Hance beat Doggett by only 273 votes, one of the closest primary races in Texas history.

Both candidates have run intense, media-oriented campaigns to win a majority of the 500,000 to 800,000 Texans expected to go to the polls Saturday.

Doggett hammered away at Hance's voting record on traditional Democratic social programs, like Social Security and Medicaid. Hance attacked Doggett for being "too liberal for Texas" and playing dirty politics.
The only surprise of the debate came from Hance responding to Doggett's charge that he had voted to cut Social Security benefits to the elderly.
Hance read a letter from Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, congratulating the Lubbock congressman for being "solid as an oak" on a 1983 vote rescuing Social Security.
Doggett said Hance's voting "record speaks louder than any letter from a friend and colleague in Washington."

After the debate, a Doggett staff member said the letter dealt with only a single vote and not the pattern of anti-Social Security votes Doggett had been criticizing.
Hance opened the debate by thanking former U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger for his endorsement earlier in the day.
Krueger, who won the Democratic nomination in 1978 before narrowly losing to incumbent Republican John Tower, came in third, 1,300 votes behind front-runner Hance in the primary.
Krueger had a great deal of support from Hispanic voters and his endorsement was considered a major coup by the Hance camp.
During the primary race, Doggett called Krueger spineless, carrying a plastic spine to news conferences as a gimmick to enhance his point.
In making his endorsement, Krueger said Hance displayed a higher moral character than Doggett during the campaign.

Doggett said he did not regret using the spine, adding that it is "essential the senator from the state of Texas have a backbone to stand up to selfish interests in Washington. That's what this contest is all about."
The winner Saturday will face U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, a former Democrat and the Republican nominee, in the November election. The Senate seat is being vacated by Tower, who retiring after 23 years.
Doggett, a 37-year-old Travis County lawyer who has served in the state senate 11 years, is known as an uncompromising, consumer advocate and champion of the State Sunset Act.
He has received support from organized labor, teachers, urban voters and ethnic minorities and has been particularly popular in the Rio Grande Valley and in his home district.
Hance, a 41-year-old attorney, garnered much of his support from voters in the state's rural areas, particularly in his West Texas congressional district and in East Texas.
After the debate Wednesday night, Hance attended the opening of a new campaign headquarters in McAllen while Doggett attended a rally in Harlingen.
Gramm's press secretary Larry Neal said the Republican congressman was in Washington and did not plan to watch the debate.
"It's there primary and their debate," said Neal, adding that Gramm was prepared to debate the winner of Saturday's runoff.
Harlingen television station KGBT and Dallas station KERA hosted a the one-hour debate, parts of which were

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says one thing is for sure—if you had your life to live over, you'd need more money.

Mankind has become so much one family that we cannot insure our own prosperity except by insuring that of everyone else. If you wish to be happy yourself, you must resign yourself to seeing others also happy.—Bertrand Russell

All's fair in love, politics and war — or so the old saying goes.

There may be a lot of truth to that statement; at least most of us can see it in the political arena at the present time. Some of the charges leveled by campaign directors would be funny, if they weren't used in such a serious situation.

Readers, and listeners, see some of these shenanigans on the local level, but most of it appears in state and national races. The reason for that is many candidates employ advertising agencies or consulting firms to handle their campaigns.

These campaign directors survey the arena and figure out the issues, ideas and gimmicks that will sell in urban areas as well as out on the farm. The agencies have their candidates uttering words and phrases that may get in the headlines and, above all, on television.

Whether these statements have any relation to facts or reality, or even the personal beliefs of the candidates, sometime has little to do with the situation.

Trio of local races slated

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer
While balloting on May 5 narrowed the field somewhat, seven races — three local — for the democratic nomination remain to be settled by Saturday's primary run-off elections.
Drawing the most interest has been the battle for Deaf Smith County's sheriff between incumbent Joe Brown and former chief deputy Dean Butcher. Incumbent Bill Bradley and newcomer Larry Ulbarri remain in the race for county commissioner candidate for Precinct 1, while Troy Don Moore and B.L. (Lynn) Jones were the top vote-getters in the Precinct 3 commissioner's race.
Brown, 41 years old and a former lieutenant on the Hereford police force, has been sheriff since last September. Deaf Smith County Commissioners made the appointment on Aug. 24 after Travis McPherson resigned following 12 years in office. Brown announced his candidacy on Jan. 18, citing the changes he had made since taking office and his 12 years experience in law enforcement as qualifications for the post. "I feel that I have support from my staff and that we get along well," Brown stated.

Butcher, who had been McPherson's personal choice as his own replacement, remained on the force after Brown assumed office. On Jan. 23, Butcher resigned as chief deputy in order to comply with a new county policy requiring any county employee who runs for office to take a leave of absence during the campaign. Butcher filed on the Democratic ticket Feb. 3.
Butcher announced his candidacy by pointing out his 22 years experience in law enforcement and listing his record for clearing hot checks and forgeries. He also cited his priority of fighting drug abuse as qualifications for the sheriff's post.
"As the chief deputy for Deaf Smith County for the past six years, I am proud to present my record to the public," he said.
Bradly, now serving his first term as commissioner, announced on Jan. 9 his intent to seek re-election to the post. A lifelong resident of the precinct and graduate of West Texas State University, Bradley has owned a photography and gun sales business since 1961.
"I am seeking re-election because I enjoy serving the public," Bradley explained.
Ulbarri, a local barber, is making his first bid for public office. He stated this week in a political advertisement that

Ship owners destroy papers

HOUSTON (AP) — The owner of a drilling ship which sank in the South China Sea has been destroying papers which might damage its defense against relatives of crewmen who died in the accident, an attorney says he has been told.

Lawyer Frank M. Staggs Jr. said in an affidavit an anonymous employee of Global Marine Drilling Co. called him last week to say that six or eight of the firm's executives "have been engaged in a systematic process of destroying sensitive documents regarding the sinking," the Houston Chronicle reported today.

Staggs said he got the call Friday. The caller told him the destruction was being carried out "with the knowledge of, and under the direction of, Global Marine's attorneys," he said.

Hitman sent to solitary cell

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Charles V. Harrelson, convicted of killing a federal judge, is spending 15 days in solitary confinement after a guard took away a 6-inch stainless steel knife he was hiding, prison officials say.

Harrelson, 45, was sequestered on Friday on orders from a prison disciplinary committee, Warden Marshall Herklotz said Wednesday.

Prison guards found the knife last week during a routine search of Harrelson's cell, said Herklotz, warden of the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit.

Harrelson had camouflaged the knife so that it looked like a belt buckle until it was removed from its black leather belt, Herklotz said.

Three weeks ago, prison officials said Harrelson apparently had plotted to smuggle weapons into the Eastham Unit, a maximum-security facility north of Huntsville in Houston County.

Krueger backing Hance

AUSTIN (AP) — Saying Kent Hance has demonstrated more character than Lloyd Doggett, defeated Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Bob Krueger has endorsed Hance for the nomination.

Krueger, who was the subject of several bitter attacks from Doggett before the May 5 primary, also said he would campaign with Hance for Saturday's runoff election.

"I have made my decision on the basis of the character I think they have displayed during the course of the campaign. I think character ultimately is your largest and best test of how a person will perform in office," Krueger said Wednesday.

Krueger said he never heard from Doggett after finishing third in the primary. At one point before that election, Doggett brandished a plastic spine and accused Krueger, a former congressman, of lacking the backbone to serve in the Senate.

Supreme court backs land act

HONOLULU (AP) — Bolstered by a favorable U.S. Supreme Court decision, Hawaii will move quickly to force big landowners to sell property to thousands of renters even though some legal questions remain, a state official said.

The high court, in an 8-0 decision, said the state can use its powers of condemnation to break up a 200-year-old system of concentrated land ownership as long as the aim is a broad public benefit.

Still to be resolved is a case in which the Hawaii Supreme Court must determine what constitutes "public use" of land, a lawyer for one large landowner said.

But state Deputy Attorney General Michael Lilly said, "There is nothing to preclude the filing of condemnations and pursuing the condemnations already filed. Everything can go forward."

Soviets urged to resume talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was closing a 16-nation NATO strategy session today with a plea for Western alliance unity and a message to the Soviet Union: return to nuclear arms talks.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan planned to tell a meeting of North Atlantic Treaty Organization foreign ministers there is "no step more important to the cause of world peace" than prompt resumption of negotiations the Russians suspended last year on medium and long range nuclear arms.

Secretary of State George Shultz and his allied counterparts, meanwhile, have conducted a detailed examination of the widening war in the Persian Gulf with the United States said to be urging the allies to take a more active and vocal role in bringing the fighting between Iran and Iraq to an end.

Floodwaters invade Northeast

A week of record rain that has claimed 17 lives forced hundreds of families into temporary shelters today as raging rivers from Maryland to New Hampshire overflowed banks, making some highways impassable and many homes uninhabitable.

Up to 8 inches of rain have fallen on parts of the Northeast since Monday as the stubborn storm refused to move on. In Massachusetts, officials battling rising waters evacuated half a million trout from the largest fish hatchery in the East.

Meanwhile, forecasters predicted a repeat of Wednesday's record-breaking 90-degree heat in the Rockies and warned that snowmelt coupled with rain today could trigger flash flooding.

At least 17 people have died nationwide in flood-related accidents since Sunday, when water swirled chest-deep through Tulsa, Okla.

Kuwait asking for stinger missiles

Kuwait has asked the United States to sell it Stinger anti-aircraft missiles as protection from attacks in the Iran-Iraq war on oil shipments in the Persian Gulf, according to Reagan administration sources.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said Wednesday night that Kuwait unofficially asked for the missiles for the same purposes as Saudi Arabia, which recently received 400 from the United States.

Kuwaiti Defense Ministry sources said that a U.S. military delegation was in Kuwait today discussing the Gulf nation's requirements for U.S. arms. They did not confirm the report that Kuwait had requested the missiles, or say whether the delegation was specifically considering such a request.

Of attempt on Pastora's life

Reporter gives first-person account

EDITOR'S NOTE: Associated Press Correspondent Reid G. Miller dictated this story from the hospital in Quesada, Costa Rica, some 120 miles from La Penca.

LA PENCA, Nicaragua (AP) — Eden Pastora, the famed "Commander Zero" who leads an anti-Sandinista rebel band in southern Nicaragua, called a press conference Wednesday.

For some journalists, it was to be the last.

About 15 or 16 of us gathered Wednesday at a hotel in San Jose, Costa Rica, and were driven north by Pastora's men to the San Juan River that marks the border between Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

We boarded two long dugout canoes powered by outboard motors and rode up river for two hours to Pastora's camp on the Nicaragua shore.

Disembarking, we were led up a steep muddy slope to a two-story frame house that had no wall on the front river-side — a not untypical style of building in the tropics.

We found Pastora on the second floor and after a round of jovial greetings we began to gather around him for an informal question-and-answer session.

Pastora stood at the head of a high narrow table with most of the journalists crowding around the table's edges two or three deep in places. I was on the edge of the circle, trying to get my tape recorder to work. It had gotten wet during the boat ride.

I had just given up on the tape recorder and was starting to step into the tight circle to take notes when there was a blinding explosion that knocked me back about 10 feet into a wall.

The explosion seemed to come from the middle of the circle of journalists. It was 7:30 p.m. I crawled into an adjoining room and found myself at the open front of the building.

I slid down a two by four brace to the ground, then rolled into a shallow slit trench that had been dug nearby.

Many of Pastora's men stood with their rifles slung, offering no help to the injured and seemingly stunned.

Many of the wounded, like myself, had crawled or stumbled from the building and were sitting or lying on the muddy riverbank.

Not for about a half hour did there seem to be any organized effort to remove the more seriously injured from the building's interior.

Linda Frazier, wife of AP Central American Correspondent Joe Frazier and a reporter for the English-language weekly Tico Times in San Jose, was pulled from the house almost an hour after the explosion and laid on a blanket nearby.

Mortally wounded, she was to lie there another two hours before help came — a doctor and two nurses dressed in the green fatigues of Pastora's Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, known as ARDE. She and all of the other wounded received an injection of antibiotic but little else.

At one point I crawled over to her, unable to walk because of shrapnel wounds in my right leg.

She took my hand and I could see she was talking to me but I could not hear her words because the explosion had left me temporarily deaf. I learned later that she had died.

Finally, Pastora's men began to move the wounded back downstream by boat, a journey that in my case took more than an hour before I was helped off the boat on a muddy flat. Whether or not the wounded were taken to the same pickup point I do not know. I saw four others there when I arrived. A Red Cross team bandaged our wounds and we were loaded onto four-wheel drive vehicles for another hour and a half ride on muddy, bumpy dirt roads to the nearest major hospital some 120 miles away from La Penca.

Before being loaded into a camper truck for the ride to the hospital, one of the Costa Rican Red Cross workers stuck a note in my face that he had scrawled on a piece of scrap paper.

It said, "Good luck."

Pentagon warned against escalating Salvadoran war

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of counter-insurgency experts, headed by retired Maj. Gen. John K. Singlaub, has warned the Pentagon against escalating and Americanizing the war in El Salvador, sources familiar with their report say.

In a classified report submitted last week, the eight-member advisory group opposed sending sophisticated military hardware, aerial bombs, napalm or American combat troops, according to several sources who insisted on anonymity.

The group also said the U.S. government should avoid setting timetables for victory, recognizing that an "unconventional" war against a guerrilla army can last for decades. And the panel advised against use of covert operations that circumvent the law or could prove embarrassing if discovered, according to the sources.

While critical of a recent U.S. trend toward providing more sophisticated conventional weapons to the Salvadoran army, the group's recommendations were intended primarily as a warning against escalating the war into a Vietnam-style conflict involving U.S. combat forces, the sources said.

"There's always an underlying tendency to Americanize the conflict," said Sam Sarkesian, a political science professor at Loyola University in Chicago and a panel member. "All of us felt that the Duarte government (in El Salvador) is quite capable of doing what's necessary with our help if given enough time."

Pentagon officials declined to release the report or discuss its contents, but confirmed they had talked with Singlaub and others recently about U.S. military aid to Central America. "The suggestions made by these individuals are being considered," said Col. Richard Lake, a Pentagon spokesman.

Singlaub, the panel's chairman, retired from the Army in 1978 after twice angering then-President Carter with public criticism of his military policies. Singlaub, in Paris for a reunion of veterans of the Office of Strategic Services, forerunner of today's CIA, could not be reached for comment.

Also on the panel, selected by the Defense Department, was retired Maj. Gen. Edward G. Lansdale, who assisted a successful counter-insurgency campaign in the Philippines in the 1950s and later ran U.S. covert operations in Vietnam. His exploits became so well known they were fictionalized in the novel, "The Ugly American." Specifically, the group criticized the Pentagon's supplying the Salvadoran army with sophisticated artillery. The panel advocated instead greater use of mortars, which, it argued, are less expensive and easier to maintain.

Police arrest three

Hereford police made two arrests for driving while intoxicated Wednesday, when a third person was picked up on an outstanding warrant.

Investigated were two reports of criminal mischief and two of theft from local businesses.

A disturbance between two neighbor men who reportedly have trouble getting along was checked out, though no arrests were made. A case of burglary of a motor vehicle was also reported.

BULL

A case in point is the advertising scheme being used against Don Richards in the 19th Congressional District race to replace Kent Hance. Despite spending only $40,000 in the first primary to his opponent's $250,000, Don Richards led the Democratic ticket.

Don got a lot of mileage on being a conservative and a former aide to Kent Hance, and he earned respect for his hand-shaking, door-knocking campaign. Now, his opponent in the runoff election—Thomas Richards—is trying to confuse the race by labeling Don Richards as a liberal.

The agency directing Thomas Richards' campaign is also trying to link his name with that of Hance, apparently hoping to get some votes on name confusion.

Don got his votes in the first primary the old-fashioned way—he earned them. He had broad-based support across the district, including the endorsement of 16 other conservative West Texas newspapers besides this one. There is now an ever-growing list of agricultural leaders who have endorsed Don.

We have known Don for many years and can state without reservation that he is a good, conservative Democrat. Trying to paint him as a liberal is like claiming Ted Kennedy is a Protestant conservative.

We again repeat our endorsement of Don Richards as the best man for U.S. Congress.

he "is a Democrat with democratic ideals." He said that he does not support factions, "rather government by the people."

Moore filed for the Precinct 3 commissioner's post on Jan. 17, the second to file after Bruce Coleman announced he would not seek re-election.

"I feel that my broad background and eagerness to learn will be the attributes that allow me to perform the necessary functions of this office," Moore said. A Hereford native, Moore is a licensed attorney who now works as an account executive with a farm commodities brokerage.

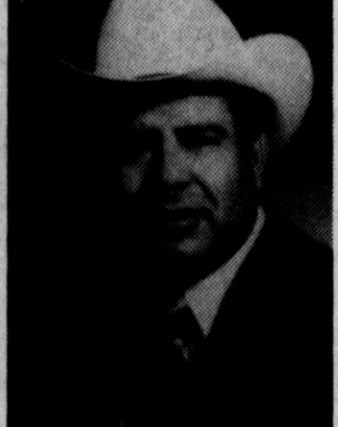

Moore's opponent for the Saturday run-off is a local realtor who stresses business and industrial progress as a key campaign issue.

"I am committed to progress and orderly development, while maintaining our unique quality of life in Deaf Smith County," Jones said when he announced on Jan. 26.

JOE BROWN

Jones studied business and finance at Texas Tech University and Southern Colorado State and worked for General Motors Acceptance Corporation before opening his own real estate agency in Hereford. He also has a contracting company.

The winner of the Precinct 3 run-off will face local accountant Bill Allen in the November general elections. Allen is the sole Republican running for a county office.

Children ready for meat by about eight months

COLLEGE STATION — A child is never too young to start learning good eating habits, but that doesn't mean parents should start feeding meat to their youngsters before the child is eight months old.

"By eight to 10 months of age, the baby is used to eating solid foods and has a digestive system ready to absorb the protein in meats," says Marilyn Haggard, Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

Although meat is a good source of protein, most babies get plenty of protein from milk. The most important contribution meat can make to a baby's diet is iron because iron deficiency continues to be a health problem for many youngsters, says Haggard. Beef also provides B-complex vitamins.

"The meat chosen for a baby should be tender and juicy with no gristle, fat or bone. A blender is especially handy for producing a suitable consistency," she says. "Purchasing strained meats can be much more expensive than fixing your own."

When babies become toddlers, they will like meat in a form then can handle, such as cold meatballs, small tender beef chunks or thin slices of frankfurters.

Parents shouldn't worry needlessly about how much their toddlers eat. Their appetites, matched to smaller needs, often don't satisfy the parent's beliefs about how much a child should eat. "Children rarely go hungry deliberately," Haggard says. "They usually eat as much as they need."

During the first year of life, the baby triples in size, but toddlers have a slower, steadier growth rate. They don't need to eat as much as parents and grandparents often expect. "Don't push," Haggard says. "Remember that toddlers are more likely to eat frequently, rather than to eat a lot at one time."

"If you child is ever-curious, bright-eyed, with solid-feeling flesh and more energy than you know what to do with, he or she is probably eating enough," says the nutritionist.

Serving sizes need to be small for younger children. Haggard offers these guidelines when serving meat: for ages 1-3, 1 ounce boneless lean cooked meat; for ages 3-6, 1½ ounces boneless lean cooked meat; for ages 7 and up, 2 to 3 ounces boneless lean cooked meat.

Bizarre situation

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am having an affair with my brother's eldest son. He is 17. I am 36. I've been divorced for three years.

Don't ask me how this crazy thing got started. I am shocked to find myself in such a bizarre situation. The boy thinks he is in love with me but I know it is nothing more than infatuation. Meanwhile, I've taken him on trips and we have had some terrific times together.

Many people think I am the boy's sister. There's a strong family resemblance. He looks older than his 17 years and I look younger than my 36.

I know we both need counseling but I am afraid to talk to anyone for fear of running afoul of the law. Is a psychiatrist legally bound to discuss information of this sort when a minor is involved?

I don't think we need long-term therapy, just someone who can give us a good perspective on what we are doing and why we should stop. Please check this out and give me the facts.—Ant Hill Unlimited divorce—something I should have done 20 years ago.

Our friends can't understand why we are splitting and I would never tell them. They view my wife as a devoted and loving person. But they never witnessed the flying ashtrays and dishes and the dents in the wall where she had thrown lamps and pots and pans. Nor have they seen the scratches on my wrists or the handfuls of hair she pulled out of my head.

I have known for years the woman needs professional help but she insists that I am the sick one—too wrapped up in my business to pay attention to her. I was at home seven nights a week and never took a trip without her. She was sure I had a woman someplace although I was never out of her sight.

Her mother had two aunts died in mental hospitals. I have known for a long time that she is very much like them. I suspect she knows it, too, and is terrified. Yet she has flatly refused to get professional help.

That letter in your column changed my life and I want to thank you for it. Having written this down, I feel as if a 10-ton weight has been lifted from my shoulders. Bless you.—Forever Grateful In Pennsylvania

DEAR FRIEND: Thanks for letting me know. I wish you luck and hope your leaving will motivate your wife to get the help she needs. Sometimes it takes a jolt to get people moving.

Dear Citizens Of Deaf Smith County:

I would like to say just a few words about Dean Butcher. This man is one of the finest men in our county. He has been a good friend to a lot of people in Deaf Smith County for a long time.

I believe his 14 years of service should be commended instead of degraded. He has upheld the law through all these times. Maybe that's why some of these so called good citizens are so against him!

They say this has been a clean campaign. Well if you will just remember everything written up in the Hereford Brand and then decide for yourselves who has tried to keep it from being the mud slinging campaign it has been. Mr. Butcher has had to print facts to let everyone know that the rumors are just that; RUMORS.

I feel very proud to say Dean and Betty Butcher and their family have been friends of ours for a long time. We should all value these friendships and not believe all these RUMORS circulating.

Let's all get out and vote for a qualified and law abiding man, DEAN BUTCHER.

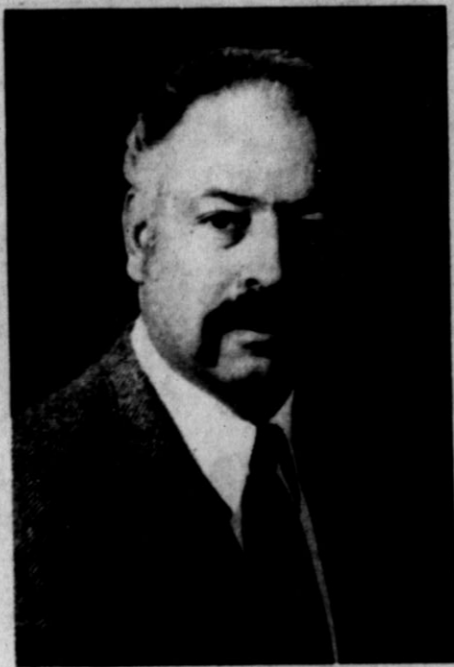

Respectfully,

Elect Larry Ulibarri

Deaf Smith County Commissioner Precinct 1

I am writing regarding a recent campaign flyer being circulated by the campaign committee of my political opponent. The flyer reads, quote "If you don't re-elect Bill Bradley, the Ultra-Liberal Faction operating in our area will have a seat on our County Commissioners Court" unquote.

My concern is to inform all registered voters in Precinct One, first of all that I am a democrat with democratic ideals. Secondly, I don't support factions, rather government by the people. Furthermore, I am an honest businessman and believe strongly in Christinity.

I don't know the reason why my political opponents' campaign would take such a radical cheap shot at my candidacy. But I am inclined to believe that my campaign is headed in a positive direction.

I would also like to add that I certainly don't believe that this group is representative of the interest or thinking of this community. This group consists of only a few select who continue to promote social class lines, and ethnicity as requirements for public office. This group can be termed as going through post-maturation process.

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas System's new chancellor, Hans M. Mark, says he intends for Texas to become the nation's top public university.

"I am convinced that the University of Texas System has the clear potential to become the best public higher education system in the country during the coming decade," Mark said after his appointment Wednesday.

He said it was too early to tell what areas of the Texas system need improvement for the university to reach the top, but said he believes "the drive is here. The will is here."

Mark, 54, has been deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration since 1981. Before that, he served as secretary of the Air Force under President Carter.

The new chancellor said that his background as a nuclear physicist and No. 2 man in the space agency, doesn't mean the university will sacrifice liberal arts to technology.

"Both of these things are equally important. You can't put one above the other," he said.

He also said the system under his administration will not slight other campuses in favor of the main campus, the University of Texas at Austin.

"I have had a lot of experience running organizations with diverse operations," he said. "Every one has a place. No one (campus) is an also ran."

Regents Chairman Jon Newton said Mark was chosen from a field of 169 following a nine-month, nationwide search. The appointment is effective Sept. 1.

Mark will become the university's sixth chancellor. He succeeds E. Don Walker, who has headed the 14-campus system since 1978. The job currently pays $132,600 annually, but that is subject to change with next year's budget, officials said.

Newton said the search committee looked for a chancellor who would blend academic, administrative and political experience. Mark, who before entering the government was a faculty member at the University of California and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, fits the bill, Newton said.

"I believe Dr. Mark has the perfect blend of experience and talent to be the chief executive officer of the University of Texas System. He is a distinguished scientist and an experienced faculty member, academic, administrator and researcher," Newton said.

Mark takes over a system with 14 campuses statewide, 119,000 students, 50,000 faculty and staff members, an operating budget of $1.8 billion and an endowment of $2 billion.

A native of Mannheim, Germany, Mark emigrated to the United States with his family in 1940. He became a naturalized citizen at age 16.

Mark has a bachelor's degree in physics from the University of California at Berkeley and a doctor's degree in physics from MIT.

He taught at MIT and the University of California. He was a member of the President's Advisory Group on Science and Technology in 1975 and 1976, and was undersecretary of the Air Force before being appointed secretary in 1977.

Tidal McCoy, assistant secretary of the Air Force, said Texas was lucky to lure Mark.

Chemical industry unveils cleanup plan

Lion Of Month

Jerry Morgan, local attorney, was named Lion of the Month by Hereford Lions President Ed Line Wednesday during the club's weekly luncheon meeting. Morgan was cited for his unselfish work in several club activities and projects.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chemical industry today unveiled its much-discussed plans to help clean up the nation's hazardous dump sites through a non-profit corporation that would collect fees from dumpers and assemble experts to manage the work.

The effort was greeted with reserved good wishes mixed with skepticism from leading environmental organizations that said many of their questions remained unanswered. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus, whose agency manages the government's "superfund" hazardous waste cleanup program, already has given the project his blessing.

The new corporation, called Clean Sites, Inc., will have a board of directors that includes two former administrators of the Environmental Protection Agency, two university presidents and chairmen of three large companies.

The organizers insisted that Clean Sites must be a supplement to "superfund" and cannot work without it. Louis Fernandez, chairman of Monsanto Chemical Co. and of the Chemical Manufacturers Association, has said public concern over the health dangers from dumps prompted him to organize Clean Sites.

The $1.6 billion "superfund," created in 1980 and largely financed by a tax on chemical raw materials, has cleaned up only six dumps so far, though EPA says it will have begun work at 400 sites by Sept. 30. The agency has identified 546 sites for priority attention, and estimates that as many as 2,200 could fall in that category.

Clean Sites would help organize dumpers to develop cleanup plans, get EPA approval of the plans, manage the cleanup, help allocate responsibility among the dumpers and mediate with the government.

The corporation would move faster than the government, its organizers believe. Fernandez has said at the present pace, "superfund" could still be operating in the next century.

The organization probably will spend $4 million to $5 million its first year in administrative costs for 20 sites, and $12 million to $15 million annually after three years, according to the concept paper reflecting the consensus of the organizing committee. Actual costs will come from companies responsible, and could amount to hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

A joint statement by the Audubon society, the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Environmental Policy Institute, and another by the Sierra Club and the Environmental Defense Fund, said the groups hoped Clean Sites could contribute to cleanup, but wanted several questions answered before giving full-fledged endorsement.

The White House has been the home of U.S. presidents since November 1800.

The first long distance telephone call was made on March 27, 1884, between Boston and New York City by officers of the American Bell Telephone Company. A Boston newspaper reported that, "The words were heard as perfectly as though the speakers were standing close by."

At French Open tourney

McEnroe, Lendl act like kids

PARIS (AP) — It was children's day at the French Open tennis tournament — and youth was served on and off court.

Six-thousand noisy kids clambered through the stands at Roland Garros Stadium Wednesday, testing Ivan Lendl's stony patience and prompting John McEnroe to make subdued, but insistent, demands for silence.

But most of the children had been dragged off to bed by the time Argentina's Guillermo Vilas — only pushing 32 but something of an old man in pro tennis — bowed to 25-year-old Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland in a 4-hour, 40-minute first-round battle of wills.

Another "old-timer," 31-year-old Jimmy Connors, who is third-seeded in the men's field, took to the court today for his second-round battle against Britain's John Lloyd.

Also seeing action today were the tournament's No. 1 seeds — McEnroe and Martina Navratilova.

McEnroe was scheduled to play fellow American Ben Testerman in a replay of last year's first-round battle in which McEnroe shouted at linesmen and kicked a press photographer's camera. Navratilova's second-round foe was Marcella Mesker of The Netherlands.

Gunthardt's 4-6, 6-4, 7-6, 7-6 victory came in semi-darkness and marked the first time he had ever beaten Vilas, who is trying to climb back into the top 10 on the Atari-ATP computer.

The Vilas upset was the upstarts' only real victory of the day, although Vilas wasn't the only seed to fall. No. 16 Chris Lewis of New Zealand, who reached the final at Wimbledon last year, was knocked out by Hungary's Balazs Taroczy 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

In other first-round matches Wednesday, McEnroe polished off qualifier Horacio de la Pena of Argentina 6-3, 6-1, 6-3; Czechoslovakia's Lendl, seeded second, beat Matt Mitchell of Moraga, Calif., 6-3, 6-2, 6-0; and sixth-seeded Yannick Noah of France, the defending champion, struggled a bit but pulled out a 6-4, 4-6, 6-2, 1-6, 6-1 victory over Mark Dickson of Tampa Fla.

Chris Evert Lloyd of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., easily defeated Heidi Esterlechner of West Germany 6-0, 6-1, but Michelle Torres of Northfield, Ill., upset No. 9 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

For Soviets attending

Samaranch reports 'no hope'

MOSCOW (AP) — Juan Antonio Samaranch, president of the International Olympic Committee, said today there is "no hope" that the Soviet Union will compete in the Los Angeles Olympic Games.

Samaranch, who arrived Wednesday on a last-ditch mission to get the Soviets to reverse their boycott, told reporters at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport before leaving that the Soviets will not participate.

Asked if there was any hope at all that the Soviets would go, Samaranch said, "the hopes were very, very little and today there is no hope at all."

The IOC president and his delegation were received today by Nikolai Talyzin, one of 11 Soviet deputy premiers.

The delegation also met with Marat Gramov, chairman of the Soviet National Olympic Committee, which announced on May 8 that it would not send athletes to Los Angeles because it considers their security threatened by anti-Soviet groups.

The deadline for declaring participation in the Games is Saturday. Samaranch said that the Soviets have now officially made it clear that they will not be sending

Cub fielders blow Trout's no-hitter bid

By JOHN KEKIS Associated Press Writer

Nobody said anything about Steve Trout flirting with a no-hitter. As it turned out, it didn't matter.

Trout came within four outs of carving the masterpiece of his career, and then it spoiled by Albert Hall's infield single.

"I was wound up and intense," Trout said after the Cubs snapped a four-game losing streak with a 6-2 victory over the Braves.

"At first I was upset when it was scored a hit," Trout said of the smash that second baseman Ryne Sandberg knocked down on the outfield grass, but couldn't find in time to make a throw.

When the hit sign was flashed on the scoreboard, Trout turned toward the press box and shouted at the official scorer, but later changed his mind after thinking about the play.

"It was a tough play. It was fair. It was a hit."

Elsewhere, Los Angeles defeated Montreal 4-1, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 3-2, Cincinnati rallied to defeat Pittsburgh 6-4 in 14 innings, and St. Louis beat Houston 6-4. San Diego and New York were rained out for the second night in a row.

Trout also lost his shutout on Hall's hit. With two outs Alex Trevino walked and moved to third when Jerry Royster's grounder up the middle bounced off shortstop Larry Bowa's glove for an error.

Hall's hit scored Trevino and the next batter, Rafael Ramirez, lashed a clean RBI single to left to score Royster and chase Trout, 6-3. Lee Smith finished up for his ninth save of the year.

"I thought about it around the fourth inning," Trout said. "But nobody said anything to me about a no-hitter. You definitely don't mention that on the bench."

Chicago jumped on Len Barker, 4-5, in the first. Leon Durham lashed a two-run double, giving him 41 RBI.

Chicago added three runs in the fourth on Bob Dernier's run-scoring hit, his third of five singles, and a two-run double by Sandberg, who had three RBI.

It was the third time in Dernier's career he's had five hits in a game, all against Atlanta, and gave him six straight hits.

Dodgers 4, Expos 1
Franklin Stubbs and Ken Landreaux hit two-run homers and Alejandro Pena pitched a five-hitter as the Dodgers moved into first place in the NL West.

"I'm getting one hit a game, but I just can't seem to get more than one," said Stubbs, who beat Bryn Smith with a home run for the second time in 10 days.

The Dodgers have only six homers in their last 22 games and Stubbs, brought up from the minors April 28, has four of them.

"He's got my number, I guess," said Smith, 5-4.

Pena, 5-2, won for the first time since April 29, hurling the 15th complete game by the Dodgers' staff this year, tops in the league. Gary Carter ruined his shutout with his ninth homer.

Reds 6, Pirates 4

At Riverfront Stadium, reliever Don Robinson put on a spectacular hitting and pitching display, but with victory just one strike away he made a crucial mistake.

Robinson gave Brad Gulden a pitch too good to pass up in the bottom of the 14th inning, and he belted it for a three-run homer, snatching a victory and a game-winning hit away from Robinson, 6-1.

Robinson had taken matters into his own hands in the top of the inning, lashing a run-scoring single to center off Bob Owchinko, 2-1, for a 4-3 lead.

"It's very disappointing," said Robinson, who worked eight innings and struck out eight. "I haven't pitched like that since no telling when,

and I end up getting beat by a home run."

Wayne Krenchicki belted a solo homer in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

Cardinals 6, Astros 4

In the Astrodome, pinch hitter Tito Landrum' two-out, two-run single in the eighth solved three problems — it gave him his first game-winning hit of the year and only the Cardinals' second come-from-behind victory in 50 games and provided Ricky Horton with his first major-league win.

"There have been a lot of times this year when I would come to the plate.

Couples to defend title

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Fred Couples, defending Kemper Open champion, has taken the unusual step, for him, of going to the driving range for practice after a round of golf.

After shooting 75-80 and missing the cut in the Memorial tournament last week — a first for him in 24 consecutive events, Couples stayed on at Dublin, Ohio, for a few hours the next day at the driving range with his long irons.

He played nine holes in the rain-shortened Kemper Open Pro-Am on Wednesday and immediately went to the range for a couple more hours with the three, four and five irons.

"The only thing I'm doing good is driving," said Couples in preparation for the Kemper, which was to begin today. "I'm hitting the driver long and straight. If I don't hit too many bad irons, I'll do OK."

After winning the Tournament Players Championship nine weeks ago, he finished tied for third in the Greater Greensboro, 10th at the Masters, tied for 48th in the Sea Pines Heritage and then took a week off. He came back to finish tied for 20th at the Tournament of Champions and rested for two more weeks before Muirfield.

"I played horribly at Muirfield," he said of last week's course. "That comes from not playing when I take off. When I go home, I just don't hit a lot of balls. I would rather take time with my wife, Debbie, and do things with her."

"It's tough to get the feel of things when you've been away," he continued. He said, however, that he is not really concerned about his game. "If I had missed five straight cuts, then I might be worried about it."

Couples, who won last year's five-man playoff on the second hole of sudden death, leads a field of 156 in the $400,000 Kemper Open over the 7,173-yard, par 72 Congressional Country Club Course in the suburbs of the nation's capital.

However, many of the tour's top players have skipped the stop. Only four of the top 10 money leaders are entered.

Commissioner Rose Commends Dean Butcher in 1980

True, but there is so much more to being an Administrator and Law Enforcement Leader than taking care of a County vehicle.

I voted for Joe Brown for Sheriff of Deaf Smith County when he was appointed. The way he has run that office has convinced me that it was a good choice, but more than that, the way he has run his campaign assures me that I am still on the right man.

Joe Brown is dedicated to being a good Sheriff, dedicated to rising above prejudices and petty fault finding and dedicated in his honest desire to serve you.

NCAA competition

Hayes sizzles in 10,000-meters

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Until two weeks ago, Kathy Hayes had never run a 10,000-meter race.

Now, after her record-smashing performance in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships Wednesday, only three Americans have run it faster.

Hayes, a 5-foot-5 junior at the University of Oregon, blazed to a collegiate record of 32 minutes, 48.8 seconds in becoming the first individual winner in this week's NCAA competition.

Spurred on by the cheers of her home school crowd, Hayes sizzled to a 68.2-second clocking in the final 440 yards to outspurt Wisconsin's Katie Ishmael.

With just under a mile to go, Hayes took the lead, only to surrender it to Ishmael with 1½ laps remaining.

Hayes pulled ahead for good with just over a lap to go.

"I think I was just going on the crowd," she said. "It was just adrenalin. I wasn't going to give up that easy."

Her winning mark broke the five-year-old collegiate record of 32:52.7 set by Joan Benoit when she competed for Bowdoin.

"I think the record's pretty weak," Hayes said, "because people don't run the 10 that much. It will probably be broken pretty often."

Still, Hayes wasn't complaining about her performance in a race she hadn't intended to run until injury forced her hand.

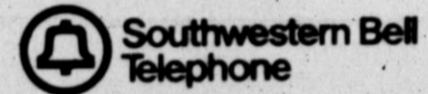

A week and a half ago, she ran her first 10,000 in order to qualify for the NCAA meet.

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has filed a tariff with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to make end user common line charges associated with Centrex CO service equal to those to be billed to Private Branch Exchange service. The Commission has suspended the proposed tariff until October 1, 1984, or before, and assigned the matter to Docket No. 5686.

The equalization of end user common line charges for Centrex CO service is to be accomplished by a reduction in Centrex service charges. The net effect of the Centrex service charge adjustment and an interstate end user common line charge will be an increase in total billing.

Says Pat Riley

Celtics must win game

BOSTON (AP) — It's only the second game of a possible seven-game series, but Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley says the Boston Celtics "have to win" tonight and will use more physical contact to accomplish it.

"They're sending us a very subtle message" in their comments to reporters, Riley said Wednesday. "They're going to bump us and be more physical, and I hope our players are listening because that's the approach I think they're going to take."

After the Lakers won Sunday's first game of the National Basketball Association championship series, 115-109, Boston's Cedric Maxwell said, "We played L.A. with kid gloves. We did not really touch them or bump them early in the game. We let them do what they wanted."

Facing the prospect of a more brutal battle tonight, Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said Wednesday, "I hope they're not more physical. They'll probably bring brass knuckles if they are.

"Sunday's game was very physical. I think they want to make it count for something. We were able to deal with it except for brief stretches when they got a lot of offensive rebounds."

The Lakers rode their fast break to a 28-10 lead in the first eight minutes. Boston never caught up, although it outscored the Lakers 99-87 the rest of the game.

To win, the Celtics say, they must improve their outside shooting to keep Los Angeles from double-teaming their big men and must retreat quickly on defense to stop the Lakers from scoring easy baskets off the fast break.

"I haven't seen a fast break this good in years and years. They're the best I've seen in the last 10 or 15 years," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones.

"It's a necessity that we win," Maxwell said. "To be down 2-0 going to Los Angeles, we really don't want to do that . . . We won't play any bigger games this season except maybe the final one."

Only seven times in NBA history has a team lost its first two playoff games at home. And only once has that team come back to win the series. That was Los Angeles over San Francisco in the Western Division semifinals in 1969. In the championship series that year, Boston beat the Lakers, 4-3, in their most recent playoff meeting.

The home court "is a factor. I don't think it's a big factor but it's a factor."

COMMISSIONER COLEMAN RESPONDS TO BUTCHER AD

A 1980 comment on car maintenance does NOT imply 1984 endorsement for Sheriff. This misleading ad is typical of the poor taste and judgment that is very inappropriate in a Sheriff.

WHEN Travis named Butcher Chief Deputy, Dean said, "I am certainly not an administrator". I believe subsequent years of poor performance proved him correct.

CITY administration gave Joe Brown the highest of recommendations for his 12 years excellent service and earned promotions in the Police Department.

JOE BROWN is a clean, high principled family man.

JOE has been Sheriff since the Court appointed him on September 6, 1983 and has shown the quality of leadership and devotion to duty that had been sadly lacking.

JOE Brown has run a clean race while being accused of everything from drug dealing to being a friend of TRLA

WHAT absurd charge will be made next?

JOE Brown has a superb record of solid performance. He deserves our support on June. 2. We need the quality leadership he offers.

Boston, Toronto continue winning ways

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Bobby Ojeda had Minnesota's number. Dave Stieb has Chicago's.

Ojeda, pitching in Boston's cozy Fenway Park, baffled Minnesota 2-0 with a seven-hitter Wednesday night while Stieb, hurling Toronto, ran his lifetime record against the White Sox to 9-3 as the Blue Jays held on for a 2-1 victory.

Elsewhere in the American League it was Texas 7, Kansas City 3; New York 10, California 1; Baltimore 8, Seattle 2; Detroit 2, Oakland 1 and, in a two-night double-header, Cleveland 9, Milwaukee 1 in the first game and Milwaukee 3, Cleveland 2 in the 10-inning second game.

Ojeda needed only 102 pitches and 119 minutes to record his league-leading third shutout of the season. That, coupled with Bruce Hurt's 6-0 silencing of Kansas City (there were a couple of rainouts between the two) provided Fenway Park with its first successive shutouts since Sept. 29-30, 1916, when Babe Ruth and Dutch Leonard blanked the Yankees.

"It's among his best games," Boston Manager Ralph Houk said. "I've been after him to throw strikes because with his stuff he can get any hitter out. He said he would try — and he did."

The Twins nicked Ojeda for two hits in each of the first two innings before he settled down. "I was worried a little when they got those dinky hits, but Ojeda came through," Houk said.

"It was a fun night," the pitcher added. "We moved the ball around, changed our attack, started throwing different pitches, and it all worked."

Jim Rice drove in both runs, with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and his seventh homer of the year — and first in Boston — in the seventh.

Blue Jays 2, White Sox 1

"Every pitcher has a team he pitches well against. This is mine," Stieb said of the White Sox.

He came within two outs of a complete game before a walk and Ron Kittle's double brought Manager Bobby Cox to the mound. "He told me I'd thrown 150 pitches. That was enough," Stieb said.

Jimmy Key took over and gave up an RBI grounder to Marc Hill before nailing down his fourth save and Stieb's seventh win in eight decisions.

Buck Martinez and Alfredo Griffin had run-scoring singles as Toronto won for the eighth time in nine game. It also was the Blue Jays' 18th consecutive one-run victory. Rangers 7, Royals 3

Mickey Rivers added an unaccustomed long ball to his short game to lead Texas past the visiting Royals. In the third inning, he slugged a two-run homer, his first of the season to go with one each of the past two years. And his bunt single loaded the bases in the fifth to trigger a three-run burst.

"You never can tell about me. I might get 20 home runs this season," said Rivers, whose homer gave Texas a lead it never relinquished.

Knuckleballer Charlie Hough scattered eight hits for the Rangers.

Yankees 10, Angels 1

The Yankees beat California for the first time in six games this year, pounding rookie Ron Romanick and Jim Slaton for 15 hits. Romanick blanked Ron Guidry and the Yanks 3-0 on three hits 10 days ago. This time, Guidry scattered seven hits.

Roy Smalley hit a solo homer in the second inning, Butch Wynegar slammed a three-run shot in the sixth and New York added four runs in the ninth, two on a single by Steve Kemp, his 1,000th career hit. Orioles 8, Mariners 2

Eddie Murray sparked a four-run fourth inning in Seattle with a three-run homer, his 10th homer of the year, and Mike Boddicker pitched a four-hitter for his fourth complete game as the Orioles won their fifth in a row.

The island of Manhattan was formally surrendered to the British by the Dutch Nov. 10, 1674. Lying at the mouth of the Hudson River, the island was strategically important to the British for control of the Hudson Valley. It enabled them to offer resistance to the French whose American holdings then stretched from the St. Lawrence to the Mississippi.

Murray's blast off Ed Vande Berg followed singles by Len Sakata and Cal Ripken Jr. Gary Roenicke tripled and Benny Ayala hit a sacrifice fly to cap the rally.

Baltimore added three runs in the eighth on doubles by John Lowenstein and Mike Young and Todd Cruz's homer. Tigers 2, A's 1

Steve McCatty pitched a five-hitter for Oakland, but the fourth one was the killer — Kirk Gibson's ninth-inning homer for the Tigers, who boosted their record to 37-9 and maintained their 5½-game lead over the Blue Jays in the East.

Gibson's seventh homer, deep into the right-center field bleachers, broke a 1-1 tie. The A's scored an unearned run in the fifth, then Detroit tied it in the sixth when Barbaro Garbey tripled and scored on Alan Trammell's grounder.

Indians 9-2, Brewers 1-3

Cleveland ended its five-game tailspin in the opener as Neal Heaton pitched a four-hitter and Mike Hargrove and Ron Hassey drove in two runs apiece. But in the nightcap, Bill Schroeder hit solo homers in the third and fifth innings and Cecil Cooper singled home Milwaukee's tie-breaking run in the 10th for the split.

Leaves USFL

Craig James looks to NFL

DALLAS (AP) — Craig James was so excited to learn he had been drafted by the Washington Redskins that January morning in 1983, he blacked out.

"Yeah," he said the other day, "I went back to sleep."

His first trip to talk contract with the USFL team was long-awaited and carefully planned.

"When I got on the plane," the former SMU running back said. "I didn't know if I was going to Washington, D.C. or Washington state."

He arrived at the Redskins' bargaining table with good intentions.

"I was going to use it as leverage after the NFL draft," James said.

Then contract talks with the Redskins went so well that James' advisor-friend, Sherwood Blount, was struck by an undeniable fact.

"We're really going to have to do this," Blount said.

"I know," James said.

Reality, for the all-anything from Houston Stratford, it is two sobering years in a pro football time warp. Already, just 17 months after helping unbeaten SMU beat the University of Pittsburgh in the Cotton Bowl, he has seen and felt enough to be a tested pro.

"I can say I've had more experience in two seasons than most guys get in five or six," James said. "I'm not a rookie any more."

Reality. It was a stranger to Craig James — sure, strong, sure-of-hand, fast afoot, handsome, rich, recognizable and outgoing. This is the guy who married the first girl he ever dated. James and Marilyn have a 5-month-old daughter, Jessica, and if all follows form, the infant will grow to be a beauty.

James walked off the field a loser only 11 times his high school and college careers. He wasn't just a breakaway runner, he was the No. 4 punter in the nation his senior year at SMU. He turned down a 6-figure contract out of high school to play baseball.

For James, then, the cold facts of life in the USFL struck home with a thud. He found that reality is running behind a lousy offensive line in front of 6,000 people. It is getting hit so hard in Jacksonville, the inside of his left ear hurt for days. It is getting his facemask knocked off his helmet. It is hearing that the team's leader on defense was dumped not because he couldn't play, but because his backup had a smaller contract. It is watching his first pro coach get fired. It is seeing the owner sell the club.

"I was 6-1½ when I first went up there, and I got beat down to 6-1," James said. "But I would do it all over again."

Easy to say now. The New England Patriots of the NFL recently picked up his 3-year, $1-million contract and James will be reunited with his No. 1 fan, patriots head coach Ron Meyer, the former SMU coach. The Patriots' line, which included future Hall of Famer John Hannah, is a good one, and James' knee is healthy again. Meyer is saying things like "Great hands, run him inside or outside ... Craig can scar you in so many ways."

James' golf game is getting better, and he is learning real estate from Blount. Better yet, the Redskins still owe him $400,000 for 1984, plus $200,000 next year. Life is wonderful again.

He looked back at the recent bittersweet past and looked ahead to his days with the Patriots.

— USFL's caliber of play: "I was surprised at the talent. I figured the level of play would be about like a good college game, but it's stronger than that. At a college ranked in the top five, you have five, maybe six, good players on the field all the time. In the NFL, you have 11, but I'd say all the USFL teams have seven, and some had eight or nine. The USFL didn't have the depth. Second teams dropped off quite a bit. In Washington, that was because they didn't want to have to pay any money for second-teamers."

— Hitting in the USFL: "Ooo. Those guys are so hungry, trying so hard to make good on their opportunity, they will knock your head off. The day I got my facemask knocked off, I was going down in a pileup and I kept feeling something on my face. Then I suddenly realized it was fists punching me in the nose. The competition for jobs is so tough, you see some serious cheap shots."

— USFL's chances for survival: "They're trying to do things first class. For instance, when we went on the road, we stayed at the very nicest hotel in the city."

YOU AUTO KNOW

Don Henslee

Q. Are there any checks I can make on my car's power steering without tearing out the whole unit or paying a service charge?

A. Certainly and the first and most basic is to regularly check the power steering fluid level. Check on level surface, wheels straight ahead, with the fluid at operating temperature, but with the engine stopped. Be careful not to allow any dirt or foreign substance into the fluid access when taking the cover off. If the fluid is extremely low, check for leaks in the system. You can do a very easy check of oil flow and relief valves in the system by turning the steering wheel fully right or left with the engine idling. If everything is in order, you'll hear a slight buzzing noise. Do not hold the wheel in either extreme position for more than a second or two. If you do not hear a buzzing, suspect a striking or malfunctioning valve.

New music program benefits handicapped children

This summer handicapped children in Hereford and the surrounding area will have the opportunity to participate in a unique program.

A recreational music class for children with handicaps is to be conducted by Judy Summersgill, a registered music therapist. The class will be jointly sponsored by Amarillo College Community Service Programs and the Hereford Noon Kiwanis Club.

Students are scheduled to meet on Mondays and Wednesdays at 3 p.m. beginning June 11 in the Hereford High School band room. Interested persons may register by calling Ms. Summersgill at 364-5117.

"I'm really excited that Amarillo College and the Kiwanis Club have made this program possible. I'll be teaching two classes just like this in Amarillo, but I've not had the opportunity to work with the youngsters here in Hereford before," Ms. Summersgill said.

The program is to combine singing, moving and playing instruments in a variety of musical experiences, including rhythm and singing games, simple folk dancing, instrumental ensembles (using piano, guitar, Orff instruments and rhythm instruments), improvisation and informal singing.

The class is primarily designed for children with mental retardation, but those with accompanying difficulties are also welcome, according to Ms. Summersgill.

"I have a group of children in Canyon with a wide range of abilities, but they are all able to participate. That's one of the special assets of a music therapist. I use music as a medium to meet the needs of individuals because it is so flexible and can be tailored to many levels of ability."

Music therapy, a relatively new field, combines music with psychology and special education techniques. It began after World War I when it was found that music increased the morale of veterans.

Today music therapy is employed in settings as diverse as infant education programs and nursing homes.

"My special love is working with school age children. It is crucial during these formative years that youngsters master certain skills and behaviors which will enable them to function in the adult world," Ms. Summersgill stated. "That is where music therapy comes into the picture."

"Music is a perfect tool for working with children. The therapist sets non-music goals such as increasing fine and gross motor skills or increasing attention span and the ability to follow verbal directions. The children, however, don't realize they are working. For them, the music is fun."

Many school systems now employ music therapists to provide therapy for their handicapped students, including those with emotional difficulties, learning disabilities, mental retardation, physical impairments and vision and hearing disorders.

The therapist works with these students to help alleviate behavior or learning difficulties which hamper their educational progress. In addition, the therapist can provide music education for those students who are unable to participate in regular music classes.

Ms. Summersgill, who furnishes music therapy for handicapped students in the Canyon Independent School District, earned her music therapy degree at West Texas State University.

She completed a six-month internship at the Cleveland Music School Settlement in Cleveland, Ohio, and after becoming registered with the National Association for Music Therapy, moved to Hereford and established a music therapy contracting service.

She will be conducting a summer recreation program for Children's Cottage in Amarillo and teaching two recreational music classes for handicapped children in Amarillo and Canyon, as well as providing private music therapy for individuals.

Amarillo College Community Service Programs support individuals and groups seeking to enhance the quality of living in the community by providing opportunities to explore new activities for personal growth and enjoyment.

Currently, there are few organized summer programs in which handicapped children can participate. In sponsoring the recreational music class in Hereford, AC and the Noon Kiwanis Club are attempting to help fill this gap with constructive programming designed to foster personal and musical development.

Drum Majors

Hereford High School drum majors for 1984-85 were announced recently. Pictured is Randy Villarreal, a senior student at HHS, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Villarreal of 112 Star. Also serving will be junior student, Elvira Lopez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luis Lopez of Route 5.

Girlstown Booster

Sid Shaw, left, was honored at the Hereford Lions Club meeting Wednesday when President Ed Line announced that a life membership in Girlstown was being presented to Shaw for his work as chairman of the Girlstown Coat & Shoe Fund this year. The $100 life membership was presented from a weekly fund-raising campaign.

South of the Border

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The president of the central bank says speculation in the peso by exchange houses along the border with the United States is not hurting the country's economy. Miguel Mancera, quoted in Tuesday's edition of El Nacional, also predicted that the speculation will not force the government to devalue the peso. The official rate is 180 pesos to the dollar, but in exchange houses along both sides of the border from San Ysidro, Calif., to Laredo, Texas, the value of the peso is being quoted at more than 200 to the dollar. Mancera said the amount of pesos involved is small. He said only foreign tourists with left-over pesos, some border merchants and migrant workers are buying dollars at that rate. More than 80 percent the dollars obtained in Mexico are purchased at the official rate, he said. MEXICO CITY (AP) — Energy Minister Francisco Labastida Ochoa says Mexico is watching the international oil market closely to determine if it can raise the price of its petroleum exports. Labastida Ochoa told reporters Monday that PEMEX, the state oil monopoly, reviews prices on the international market two or three times daily. "When the conditions are present for modifying the prices of both the heavy and light crudes that Mexico exports, we will do it," he said. Mexico is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, but generally gears its prices to those of OPEC. More than half of Mexico's oil exports go to the United States.

woodlands without making any effort at reforestation, Castanos said. He warned that eventually such methods will completely destroy Mexico's abundant forests and fine woods like cedar and mahogany. MEXICO CITY (AP) — East German Foreign Minister Oskar Fischer called for international cooperation to reduce tensions that he described as nearing a dangerous level. Fischer arrived here Monday to hold a series of talks with high Mexican officials, including President Miguel de la Madrid, Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda and the president of the Mexican Senate. Fischer is scheduled to leave Thursday. In an interview with the government newspaper El Nacional published Tuesday, Fischer said that with international tensions rising to a dangerous level in many parts of the world, there is a need to make use of common sense and foresight to achieve cooperation. He said that both his country and Mexico can play a useful role in securing a reduction in tensions. Fischer described relations between the two countries as excellent and said he was confident his visit would improve even further the ties between East Germany and Mexico.

Sure sourdough

DEAR POLLY — I have some buckwheat flour. Can you tell me how to make pancakes from it? — MRS. F.C.
DEAR MRS. F.C. — We're in luck. Mrs. C.C. from Maryland has just passed along her own recipe for buckwheat sourdough pancakes. Here it is:
To make the starter: In a glass bowl, mix one cup water, one cup all-purpose flour and one tablespoon sugar into a smooth paste. Cover and let stand at room temperature for two to three days until it bubbles and ferments (it will smell sour and clean). Store in a loosely covered glass jar in the refrigerator until you're ready to make the buckwheat pancakes.
To make the pancakes: The night before serving the pancakes, place one-half cup of starter in a glass bowl and mix in one cup milk, one-half cup buckwheat flour, one-half cup all-purpose flour and one-half teaspoon salt. Cover and let stand at room temperature overnight.
In the morning, stir the batter and remove one-half cup to keep as starter for the next batch (you may add this to any starter left over from the original starter recipe). To the remaining batter, add one teaspoon baking soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, one egg and two tablespoons melted shortening (Mrs. C.C. uses cooking oil). Mix well and bake on a hot griddle. Recipe makes 10 to 12 buckwheat pancakes. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Children and sometimes grownups have difficulty keeping a winter neck scarf where it belongs. Try sewing one-half of a snap fastener to the scarf and the other half to the inside of the coat collar. During scarf season, snap the scarf in place and it will no longer be lost while wearing it or when hanging it in a closet. — JANICE Ways to use leftovers, store vegetables for freshness and substitute inexpensive foods for costlier versions are included in "Polly's Food Budget Savers." Send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title.

Unhealthy runners

DEAR DR. LAMB — I run eight miles on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and five miles on Tuesday and Thursday. I run three miles or race on Saturday. I was kicked out of the Navy for becoming an anorexic. I've always exercised heavily. Could you please send me your Health Letter on jogging deaths?
DEAR READER — First, a number of excellent runners at the peak of their performance have died from unexplained causes. They were all very thin. There is some evidence that being too thin from dieting or from limited calorie intake and running can be a significant hazard. It may predispose fatal heart irregularities, even if you can run for miles and are a top-notch marathon runner. The question of heart attacks and running is an interesting one. There are very few cases of deaths while running that occur in anyone who didn't already have heart disease. The limited number of people who have heart attacks or die from heart attacks while running suggests it's not all that common. A number of young men who have died while exercising already had a clot formed inside the coronary artery before they dropped dead while exercising. The point is, the damage had occurred before running, not from running. Nevertheless, because silent coronary artery disease is common, it's prudent to walk until your risk factors are under control. That means until a person's blood pressure is normal, his cholesterol levels are normal and, of course, he shouldn't smoke.

IN ANY JOB, IT'S EXPERIENCE THAT COUNTS.

LARRY COMBEST WILL HELP PRESIDENT REAGAN IN NOVEMBER.

Larry is the republican candidate who can win in November. He has worked hard to build the party, to open the door to new conservative voters. That's how President Reagan won in 1980. That's why these people support Combest for Congress.

4th generation West Texan.
Area President F.F.A.
Worked as a farmer, teacher and in the wholesale oil business.

THIS IS WHAT SENATOR JOHN TOWER SAYS ABOUT LARRY COMBEST:

"Larry Combest is a man I have admired and respected since the time he served as a valued and trusted member of my staff. He knows and understands the problems facing our agricultural community.

I have a very high regard for his ability, for he is one of those rare men who can always be counted on to get the job done. I have tremendous respect for his integrity, dedication and convictions that have earned him the reputation he enjoys today."
