Mondale pledges to increase taxes

By MIKE FEINSILBER Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — With Geraldine Ferraro his ticket mate by his party's shouted acclamation, Walter Mondale is running for president on promises to "stop the illegal war in Nicaragua," meet the Soviets once a year, slash the deficit — and raise taxes.

Accepting his party's nomination, Mondale launched his uphill battle for office from the rostrum of a Democratic National Convention that finally achieved unity — over his choice of a woman as vice presidential partner.

Ms. Ferraro's nomination Thursday night was approved by unanimous, long, loud shout.

Even when she said no more than, "My name is Geraldine Ferraro," the 3,934 delegates shouted themselves hoarse.

Democrats gave Mondale the harmony he needed if he is to have a chance against President Reagan. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who four years ago failed to wrest the nomination from Jimmy Carter and then avoided the nominee's embrace on the podium, delivered a rousing introduction for Mondale.

"By his choice of Geraldine Ferraro," Kennedy said, "Walter Mondale has already done more for this country in one short day than Ronald Reagan has done in four long years."

Then Mondale came out fighting. He accused President Reagan of keeping his proposals for solving America's problems secret, just as Democrats used to claim Richard Nixon did with his "secret plan to end the war" in Vietnam.

"If this administration has a plan for a better future," said Mondale, "they're keeping it a secret."

He said the next president — whether he or Reagan — will have to raise taxes, an unusual concession. Most politicians shun such talk.

"Taxes will go up, and anyone who says they won't is not telling the truth to the American people," Mondale said. The differences between himself and Reagan, he said, are that he is willing to admit to the tax increase now and he would raise taxes "fairly." He did not say by how much.

Nicaraguan solution, too

He promised, if elected, to end within 100 days of taking office the United States' covert but well-known involvement in attempts to overthrow the leftist government of Nicaragua. He proposed to meet with the Soviets annually, to cut the deficit by two-thirds, and he said he would like to see the states ratify the Equal Rights Amendment by the end of his first term.

Thus started the fall's campaign. Reagan and George Bush will be renominated next month in Dallas. Bush already has agreed in principle to debates against Ms. Ferraro, and Mondale challenged Reagan to debate him. Reagan has said he is willing to.

"Americans want the truth about the future — not after the election, but now," Mondale said.

Outside the convention hall, police in riot gear arrested 369 demonstrators in various protests around the city. The demonstrators were marching in opposition to 87 arrests earlier Thursday during protests against several large corporations. Most of the arrests were for unlawful assembly.

Today, the Democratic team goes its separate ways, after jointly attending a meeting of the party's National Committee.

Ms. Ferraro returns home to her working class district in Queens, N.Y., for the weekend with her family and then heads for her congressional office in Washington.

Insecticide complaints prompting probe

By KIM THOGMARTIN Staff Writer

The Texas Department of Agriculture (TDA) is investigating complaints from Deaf Smith and Parmer county farmers that cotton crops have been damaged by weed killers sprayed on nearby fields.

Al Hernandez, administrator of the enforcement section, Agricultural and Environment Sciences Program of the TDA, said investigators from Austin expect to be in the area several weeks. The division is responding to charges that cotton has been damaged by 2,4-D, a hormone type herbicide used for weed control.

Marvin Payne, owner of Hereford Farmers Gin, said reports of damaged cotton have been coming into his office every day. "I've especially had calls from farmers north of town," he said. "One fellow has 300 acres that are damaged."

Payne said herbicide swivels up the leaves on the cotton plants, which keeps the stalks from being fed properly. "When the plant isn't fed, the bolls don't develop," he explained.

State agency examines cotton damage

Payne said the spray will not kill the cotton but it reduces the yield by as much as one-half to two-thirds.

Minor damage from the weed killer occurs nearly every year, Payne said, but this year the applications appear to have been heavier. "I imagine the heavier rains and higher humidity have caused a bigger weed problem," Payne guessed. "They probably used more chemicals this year."

Dennis Newton, Deaf Smith County extension agent, said he started getting calls about a week ago. He said he has been referring people to the TDA office in Amarillo because the state agency is the only one with power to enforce the herbicide and pesticide laws.

Hernandez said investigators, who are now working out of a gin at Friona, will be taking pictures of damaged cotton and attempting to prove that spraying occurred and where the drift might have originated from. He said he had fielded "50 to 60 complaints" so far.

Samuel Biscoe, who works in the legal division of the TDA, said if and when violations of the pesticide law are proven, the TDA will only have the authority to prosecute applicators who are licensed by TDA.

"We are authorized to administer penalties in lieu of suspensions," he explained. "The fine starts at $50 per day of violation and is not to exceed $1,000 per day. I've never known the maximum to be assessed."

Briscoe said that action would be a civil matter, handled through the county court. He said there could be cases that would result in criminal proceedings as well.

The use of 2,4-D is regulated in Parmer county, where it appears the greatest damage has occurred. Deaf Smith does not regulate the chemical.

Settlement approved for Cervantez suit

By REED PARSELL Managing Editor

A tentative settlement between Department of Public Safety officers and plaintiffs in a lawsuit regarding handling of suspected illegal aliens was approved earlier this week by a federal court judge.

Amarillo Judge Mary Lou Robinson Monday filed her acceptance of a compromise reached by lawyers representing both sides of the case. Initiated in 1979, the suit stems from the detainment in Deaf Smith County of two men incorrectly thought by DPS officers to be illegal aliens.

As agreed by attorneys, DPS is to pay Pedro Cervantez $8,000 and Juan Lozano $2,000. Each plaintiff was placed in Deaf Smith County Jail, Cervantez for a few days and Lozano a few hours.

Awards, arrest rule changes required

The arresting DPS officers are listed in the suit as James Adams, Darrell Matthews, Gary Whitfill and Wilson Speir.

Another monetary commitment DPS must meet is paying $1,000 to any Hispanic in Region 5 "questioned, arrested, detained, incarcerated or charged by DPS personnel...for alleged violations of the immigration laws or for investigation of their immigration status."

There are certain limitations for the awards, including they must be based on incidents since Dec. 12, 1977: exactly two years before the suit was filed. Should more than 40 people be eligible for compensation, $40,000 is to be equally divided amongst them.

In addition to the monetary stipulations, restrictions on DPS officers enforcing immigration laws are to be honored. No longer will the lawmen be able to question anyone about his "right to be in or to remain in the United States." Nationality and immigration status are not to be discussed.

However, DPS officers may arrest or detain someone for violating state or federal immigration laws. They may also notify the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service should they believe someone is in violation of any immigration law. Such suspicions must be "based on specific, articulable facts."

Should a DPS officer arrest someone suspected of breaking any immigration law, he is to "promptly" inform the "appropriate federal authorities." Records are to be kept of the arrest or detainment and subsequent actions.

The settlement with DPS is the third reached by plaintiffs, who also worked out approved compromises with INS and Deaf Smith County. Objections to any of the settlements are to be considered by Robinson, with the latest agreement having a 90-day deadline.

"Normally you don't expect any objection to this kind of settlement," commented Randall Marshall this morning. He is the official local spokesman for Texas Rural Legal Aid, which filed the suit and represented the plaintiffs.

Representing DPS were lawyers from the state attorney general's office.

Pair of purses stolen Wednesday

Two purses were stolen Wednesday, one containing $262 in cash and silver, the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's department reported this morning.

Anne Mayo of Chilton informed deputies her purse - the one containing $262 - was taken at approximately 1:30 p.m. at Winn's on W. Park Avenue. She told a deputy she had inadvertently left it in front of the store near a telephone.

Another purse was ripped off at about 11:05 p.m. from the Cattleman's Club, 705 W. Bradley. It contained $123.86, according to the sheriff's office, though it was recovered that night. One arrest was made.

The department also reported two rear tires and wheels, worth a combined $276, were stolen from a 1973 Chevrolet owned by Cruz Barrientez Jr. of Hereford. He had apparently left his vehicle near Horizon Seed, seven miles east of town on Highway 60, after it had broken down at approximately 6:30 a.m. Upon returning, the tires and wheels were gone.

Fund drive for YMCA concluding

"Final Stretch Drive" week for the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA building fund-raising effort is to conclude Saturday, which has activities slated from noon to 6 p.m.

Hot air balloons, singers, dancers, a trampoline exhibition and clowns are to be among the featured acts at the site of the new YMCA building on E. Fifteenth Street. The structure is being made possible by the fund drive, which is just shy of its $925,000 goal. Group officials have said they hope Saturday's festivities will raise $30,000.

There are also to be drawings for prizes donated by various area businesses.

The building, already under construction, is expected to be finished in October. Rick Brown, YMCA president, is to give a tour of the structure at noon Saturday.

Windows of 1954 truck broken

All windows of a 1954 Chevrolet pickup were broken sometime early Thursday morning, Hereford police reported this morning.

Victim of the $500 crime is Aubrey Don Burns, 432 Ave. H. The vandalism apparently occurred at 1203 E. First St. between 1 and 5:30 a.m.

Meanwhile, police investigated one incident apiece Thursday of assault, burglary, minor theft and theft of services.

THURSDAY'S HIGH: 93 (normal high this date: 92 record: 103 (1927))

OVERNIGHT LOW: 62 (normal: 67 record: 55 (1897))

OUTLOOK: Fair tonight with a low near 65 and southerly winds of 10 to 15 miles per hour. Saturday is expected to be sunny, boast a high in the lower 90s and have 15 to 20 mile-per-hour winds, sometimes gusty.

Block presides over listening session

DALLAS (AP) — The president of the Texas Farm Bureau told U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block that his organization supports a farm program that would reduce existing incentives for overproduction at home and abroad.

S.M. True also said Thursday during a "listening session" conducted by Block that the Farm Bureau wants policies that would maximize long-term opportunities for profit in agriculture.

True was part of a session that involved participants from five states and the District of Columbia who voiced their opinion on food and agriculture policy that will help the agriculture department write the 1985 farm bill.

He also said that a policy based for all commodities and price support programs should be enforced only after careful consideration of other commodity sectors.

The Farm Bureau, with 313,568 members, also supports a target price system and the elimination of farmer-held reserves.

The Texas Cattle Feeders Association, representing cattle feeders from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, favors a minimum amount of government involvement in their business.

Sheriff not told of prison riot

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — Brazoria County Sheriff Joe King said he was upset because he didn't learn of a riot at a prison in his county until almost two days after the disturbance broke out.

But King said he is satisfied with the apology he received from officials at the Texas Department of Corrections, who said they forgot to tell him about the incident.

"I'm concerned with not being notified since that has been the practice in the past, and hopefully it will be in the future," King said Thursday. "But I'm not going to raise Cain over one incident."

King said his department was not informed Monday night when the Clemens Prison Unit in Jones Creek was rocked by a riot of 250 to 300 inmates.

No one was seriously injured in the riot, during which the inmates broke windows, set fires and jammed cell doors before being subdued by tear gas.

Prison guards find knives, bludgeons

PALESTINE, Texas (AP) — Guards searching the cells of about 1,700 prisoners found homemade knives, bludgeons and other weapons a day after a guard was stabbed by an inmate, a prison spokesman says.

The search of two cellblocks at the Coffield Unit began about 3:30 p.m. Thursday, Phil Guthrie said.

By 8:30 p.m., he said, guards had found "a dozen or so substantial prison-made knives and other things like bars of soap tied into a sock and pieces of metal to use as bludgeons."

Prison system Director Raymond Proconier ordered about 1,700 prisoners in two cellblocks confined to their cells indefinitely about 1:30 p.m. Thursday after a tip was received about weapons, Guthrie said. Prisoners would ordinarily have been allowed to leave the cells for their usual eight-hour workdays or for meals, he said.

Anderson County District Attorney Richard Handorf said Thursday he will seek an indictment for attempted capital murder against a prison inmate in connection with the stabbing of Sgt. Randall McFall.

Magazine to feature nude Miss America

NEW YORK (AP) — Nude photographs of Vanessa Williams in intimate scenes with another woman, being published in the September issue of Penthouse magazine, could cost the reigning Miss America her crown, pageant officials said.

Officials, described as "extremely distressed," were to meet today to decide whether to cut short the reign of Miss Williams, 21, the first black Miss America, said Mary Kay Marks, the wife of pageant executive director Albert A. Marks Jr.

If removed before her reign ends in September, Miss Williams would be replaced by runner-up Miss New Jersey, Suzette Charles, who is also black.

No other Miss America has ever been forced to resign, according to the New York Daily News.

The photographs were taken by free-lance photographer Tom Chiapel "sometime before" Miss Williams won the pageant in September, Penthouse publisher Robert Guccione said Thursday.

"They're nude and they're very revealing," Guccione said. "They're rather like other photo layouts that appear in Penthouse. There is nothing coy about them. They're quite exciting."

Postal service faces midnight contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postal union and management negotiators, resuming contract talks, are attempting to reconcile money differences before the labor pacts expire tonight one minute after midnight, a union spokesman says.

Spokesman Alan Madison, of the American Postal Workers Union, said Thursday that union and management attorneys informed the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service that bargaining would resume today.

Despite the expiration deadline, strikes by postal workers are illegal under federal law, which provides for fact-finding and automatic binding arbitration if the negotiators can't settle their differences.

Postal labor leaders, while urging members to remain on the job, have not ruled out the possibility of wildcat actions beyond their control. And, they said if there's no settlement by the time the two largest unions hold their conventions in late August, the leadership might consider a nationwide walkout even though the Postal Service has vowed that strikers would be fired.

International

London dock workers to end strike

LONDON (AP) — Union officials and port operators agreed today on a "reasonable deal" to end a 10-day dock strike that has crippled Britain's foreign trade, closed scores of major ports and prompted stranded truck drivers to threaten violence.

The agreement, reached after a 15-hour bargaining session at offices of a government mediation service, came shortly after 511 dockworkers at Dover, Britain's largest ferry port, decided to break ranks with about 34,500 other strikers and return to work.

Neither side released details of the agreement, but union official John Connolly said negotiators would recommend that a union conference accept it on Saturday. He described the agreement as a "reasonable deal."

The strike shut down freight operations at more than 90 major ports throughout Britain. It began July 10 when non-union labor was used to move iron ore at the port of Immingham, along England's east coast. Union workers were boycotting the ore to support coal miners, who are in the 19th week of their strike against government plans to close unprofitable mines.

Huberty went out hunting for humans

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — The widow of James Oliver Huberty, the gunman who massacred 21 people at a McDonald's restaurant, issued a public apology to this grieving border town and said she sat in bed watching as her husband put on combat fatigues before the death spree.

"Where are you going, honey?" she asked.

"I'm going hunting humans," he replied.

Etna Huberty said Thursday she did not understand the remark and did not contact police until after she learned of the shootings.

Huberty, 41, an unemployed security guard described as a survivalist who "was always talking about shooting somebody," was killed by a police sharpshooter Wednesday after a 90-minute rampage in which he sprayed a McDonald's restaurant with gunfire, leaving 21 people dead and 19 others injured.

"Everyone is wondering why he would do such a thing," Mrs. Huberty wrote Thursday in a letter to the people of San Ysidro. "He has always been a nervous person who could not take much pressure.... He was always very sad and lonely. His only close friend was his dog, Shep."

San Diego County Coroner David Stark said an autopsy performed Thursday on Huberty showed he was not under the influence of drugs or alcohol at the time of the shooting and "had no physical defects whatsoever."

The autopsy on Huberty revealed "a healthy, 41-year-old male. He had no physical defects whatsoever, such as brain lesions or even scars indicating previous trauma," Stark said.

Tests to determine whether Huberty was under the influence of drugs at the time of the shooting were negative, he said, adding that blood and urine analyses failed to show any trace of alcohol, cocaine, morphine, barbiturates, amphetamines or PCP. However, he said a test for LSD has not yet been completed.

Asking for tea party

TV station tricks gunman

AUSTIN (AP) — A gunman intent on broadcasting his call for a "Texas tea party" has been charged with aggravated kidnapping after being tricked by television station employees who told him he was on the air.

The man identified by police as Walter Joseph Sauder, 30, held a KVUE-TV employee on his lap as he read his statement Thursday. Larry BeSaw, the station's assignments editor, said Sauder surrendered to police after he saw himself on a monitor and was convinced he had telecast his brief statement.

Sauder fired one shot in the station's control room, but there were no injuries, station employees said. He was arrested by police in the studio after his statement.

Police spokesman Bob Davis said Sauder, a New Braunfels, Texas, native who recently returned to Texas from Portland, Ore., was held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Newsroom secretary Nancy Cole said the man came in the north Austin station's front door and demanded to go to the newsroom. Ms. Cole said the man held a pistol to receptionist Anna Garza's back.

On the way to the newsroom Sauder stopped in the control room, where he freed Ms. Garza and grabbed employee Denise Hodgson after firing a shot into the ceiling.

Intern Steven Lavy said he did not immediately believe the intruder was serious.

"We get a lot of weirdos. You can't tell who's joking around sometimes," said Lavy.

Moya wants $25,000

Farmer object of unionizer suit

BY KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A controversial union organizer has filed suit against a Hereford farmer following an alleged altercation between the two men last Friday morning.

Jesus Moya, 36, who is employed by the International Union of Agricultural and Industrial Workers in Hidalgo, is seeking $5,000 in actual damages and $20,000 punitive damages from John Seiver of 114 Elm Street. The petition was filed Wednesday afternoon in 222nd District Court by Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney Edward J. Tuddenham.

Moya claims that Seiver became angry with him for attempting to speak to around 150 farm workers who were topping onions in a field three miles west of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60. He said Seiver threatened to kill him, then struck Moya with his pickup truck. Moya reported this morning that he was treated last Friday at a clinic in Dimmitt for two injured fingers, a sprained shoulder and an injured back.

The incident is being investigated by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department, but no criminal charges have been filed. Investigator Herman Benavidez said the sheriff's office is not able to make a statement about the case.

Moya said he went to the field after learning that the workers were only being paid 50 cents a bushel for harvesting the onions. He also claimed there was only one toilet facility for the 150 people working that day.

The labor leader said it was his understanding that Seiver was working as a field manager for Griffin and Brand, a local pecking shed. A spokesman for the company said this morning he did not wish to comment on the incident nor the nature of Seiver's employment with his firm.

McDonald's restaurants across the nation flew flags at half-staff Thursday and the company asked broadcasters to delay showing its commercials. Joan Kroc, widow of company founder Ray Kroc, donated $100,000 to start a fund for survivors.

After learning of the shootings, Mrs. Huberty "suspected her husband might have been involved and called police," San Diego police Lt. Paul Ybarro said.

Ybarro said at a news conference Thursday that contrary to some reports, authorities had no evidence that drugs, alcohol or marital problems were factors in the massacre. Police also denied reports that Huberty was a Vietnam veteran. "Without a doubt, we can say he was not," said police spokesman Jim Kurupas.

"At this time, there is no known motive for the shooting. However, Huberty had seemed somewhat despondent over the recent loss of his job," said a statement issued by police. It added that Huberty had been fired from his job as a security guard job at a condominium complex last week.

Sauder took Ms. Hodgson into the studio after director David Brown told him his demand would be met, according to Lavy.

With Ms. Hodgson on his lap and a gun at her back, Sauder read his statement, which said, in part:

"It is time, now or never, for a Texas tea party and a tea party in every state before we all, as individuals, become outright slaves to this world corporate socialism. I will surrender peacefully as soon as I am sure this message is heard."

Police who arrived while he made the statement arrested him immediately without incident.

"He saw himself on a monitor," said reporter Karen Sonleitner. "He thought he was on the air."

Joe Jerkins, KVUE vice president and general manager, praised station employees for the "cool, professional, intelligent manner in which our staff handled this unfortunate incident."

"Basically, they simply decided the best way to handle things was to go along with it. I was amazed by their remarkable calm and actions," said Jerkins, crediting Brown and Lavy for "convincing the man he was on the air."

Ms. Cole said the station has no security precautions against intruders.

"I used to work at the front desk," said Ms. Cole. "We used to have kooks call in bomb threats and the whole thing. There's nothing to keep them from coming in here and blowing us away."

Jerkins said there is no reasonable way to increase security.

AP News Analysis Fritz makes history, faces tough campaign

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Now comes the hard part.

The celebration of San Francisco behind him, Walter F. Mondale confronts the president of the United States — formidable, favored, with the full political power of the White House at his command.

One month from today, Republicans will convene in Dallas to renominate President Reagan, and while Mondale taunted their "drowsy harmony," there's something to be said for it.

Gary Hart was tough. Reagan will be a lot tougher.

Jesse Jackson is a spellbinding campaigner. Reagan is "the great communicator."

Those were the preliminaries. Reagan is the main event.

Mondale has a Democratic Party to mobilize and heal, after a long, exhausting struggle for the nomination he won. Unity pledges come easy at convention time, but when the cheering ends they can be difficult to redeem.

Whatever the fate of his campaign against Reagan and the current odds, Mondale etched one mark that will stand. He changed the unwritten rules of American politics with his choice of Geraldine Ferraro to run for vice president.

"Mr. Reagan calls that tokenism," Mondale said. "We call it America." By choosing her, said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, Mondale "has already done more for this country in one short day than Ronald Reagan has done in four long years."

Even the rabbi who pronounced the Democrats' benediction spoke to that point. "The world has been changed," said Jacob Pressman. The Ferraro nomination may not translate into votes; the polls so far call it a wash. But Mondale's new look in ticket balancing does translate into history. The candidates of the future will not look only among white males for their vice presidential nominees.

In 1988, the Republican ticket will be open, and women like Secretary of Transportation Elizabeth Dole, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas and Sen. Paula Hawkins of Florida surely will be ranked among the prospects for their vice presidential nomination.

Ms. Ferraro said the campaign she and Mondale began on Thursday night is going to be a tough one. "The president has a lot of charisma," she said. Mondale called Reagan's presidential style one of salesmanship, not leadership.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo pointed to one of the frustrations Mondale will face in the challenge to Reagan. He denounced the Republican record while acknowledging that Democrats haven't been able to make such criticism stick.

Mondale will campaign to change that. He began in his acceptance speech, saying, for example, that the people who elected Reagan in 1980 were not voting for $200 billion deficits, and by challenging the president to tell the truth about taxes.

"Let's tell the truth," he said. "Mr. Reagan will raise taxes, and so will I. He won't tell you. I just did."

But Reagan has succeeded so far in putting the blame for deficits on Democrats. Taxes indeed have been increased, but Reagan has kept the focus on the big tax cuts of his first years in office, saying it is Democrats who want to take more money from the people to feed an insatiable government.

The White House is the best platform of all, and it is Reagan's. He is going campaigning next week. He also plans a nationally-televised news conference.

And that's just for openers.

New York's Cuomo, a Mondale man from the start, underscored the problems the ticket is facing. At this point, he said, even with the congresswoman from Queens on the ticket, Mondale trails in New York. That is a state the Democrats must have if they hope to win the White House from Reagan.

Cuomo said he'll work hard to win them votes in New York, but he declined a Mondale request that he campaign nationally.

Hart said he'll go wherever he is needed to campaign for Mondale. Where, and how hard, remains to be seen — the answers may depend on how much Mondale can do to help him pay off $3.5 to $4 million in primary campaign debts.

For all the Colorado senator's public pronouncements and gestures of unity, he has been widely quoted in San Francisco as remarking in private that Mondale will lose in the fall.

Jackson pledged support too, but it is not clear that the defeated black candidate is satisfied his conditions have been met. He said Thursday that blacks and other minorities should hold major positions in the Mondale campaign organization. Jackson said those voters are crucial and they "need signals to motivate them in greater numbers."

Even before he leaves San Francisco, Mondale must confront another hangover of the nomination campaign, his mismanaged attempt to attempt to fire Democratic National Chairman Charles T. Manatt and replace him with Georgian Bert Lance. Mondale reversed himself on the eve of the convention, and named Lance his general campaign chairman instead.

Joyousness shared

Farenthold hails nomination

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sissy Farenthold, the Texan who had her name placed in nomination for vice president 12 years ago, says Rep. Geraldine Ferraro's elevation to the Democratic Party ticket was truly an historic moment.

"The thing that I found so significant about it, which gladdened my heart, was that from everything I could tell, the men shared in the joyousness of the occasion," she said when the Democratic National Convention ended Thursday night.

"That's what I was struck by. That's what this country's supposed to be about. Barrier after barrier coming down. And once they're down, everyone shares in it."

Ms. Farenthold, whose name was placed in nomination at the 1972 convention, said she was the first woman vice presidential nominee to get votes, even if it was just a few. At least two other women had withdrawn their names after being nominated, she said.

Hailing Ms. Ferraro's speech to the convention, Ms. Farenthold said her presence on the Democratic ticket will serve as a rallying point for women nationwide.

"I go back to '72, when I started going out in the country (campaigning for governor), and recall how women related to that candidacy of mine."

"I know how women responded to it," she continued. "We're 12 years into this evolution now. That's what I think you saw today."

Noting that a woman was the highest vote-getter in the 1982 Texas elections, Ms. Farenthold said she believes Ms. Ferraro's candidacy will give "tremendous impetus" to voter registration drives among women.

"Any time you can focus on a candidate, not vote against somebody but for somebody, it's good," she said.

She also said Ms. Ferraro is undoubtedly going to be grabbing headlines in the coming weeks. "She'll get a lot of attention and she'll be scrutinized," she continued.

Anyone who puts themselves up for public office is scrutinized, she added.

ed. "For her, there'll be a special scrutiny. That's just the way it is, I guess, when you're first."

State Treasurer Ann Richards, who led the Texas Democratic ticket two years ago, said Mondale demonstrated courage with his vice presidential choice.

"It really did something for Mondale to have made such a dramatic move," said Ms. Richards, who seconded his nomination on Wednesday. "For anyone who's worked for the presidency as long as he has — I think that says something about Walter Mondale."

Ms. Richards said there is no question that Mondale made the right choice.

"I thought the time was really right," she said, adding she is confident the ticket will be popular in Texas.

"If we have any problem, it is going to be the amount of time we've got to get her around and get her in Texas enough," Ms. Richards said. "Volunteers are going to be everywhere. You're going to see more women registered. You're going to see more women working to get out the vote than ever before."

Ms. Ferraro will have wide-ranging appeal, agreed Democratic National Committeewoman Billie Carr of Houston.

"I think women and minorities are going to love this ticket. Gerry on the ticket means women are going to come out and support it," she said.

Ms. Carr acknowledged that she would have been positive in talking about the party's chances last Monday, but said Ms. Ferraro's nomination and speech Thursday night produced a special kind of optimism.

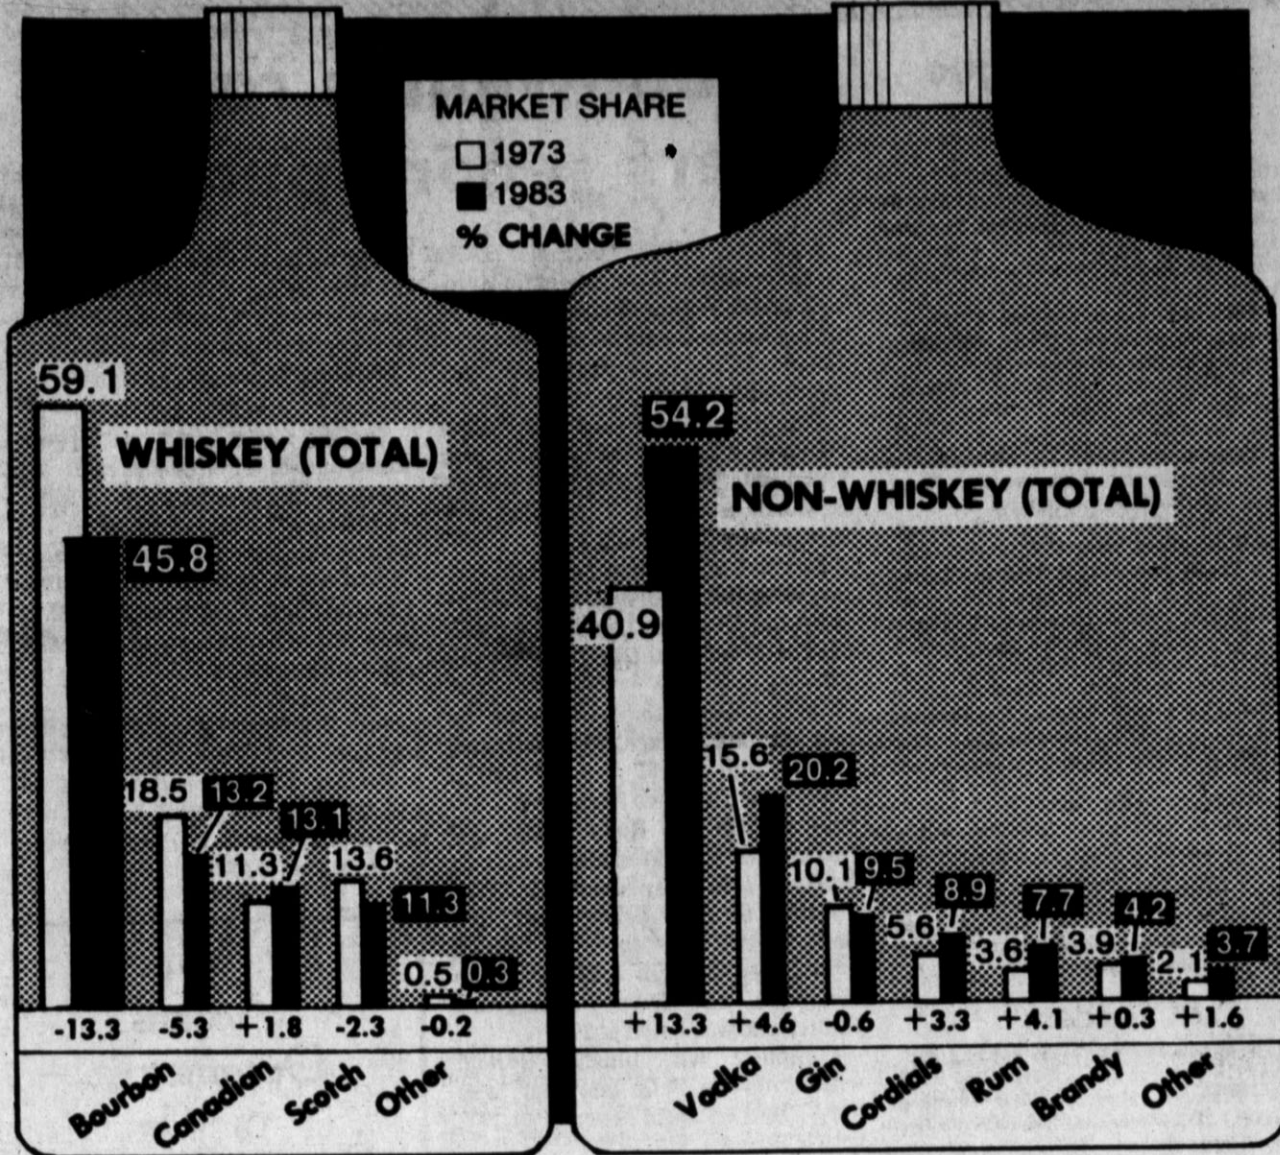

"You know, I'm a seasoned politician of 32 years, and when we nominated her, Billie Carr cried real tears. I felt connected and excited. I'd thought I'd never live to see it. I know that women all over this country feel that way."

EATON IMPROVED

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Frank Layden, coach of the Utah Jazz, thinks he has one of the most improved players in the NBA in his 7-3 center, Mark Eaton.

"Mark just swells up in the center, something like a venetian blind," Layden said. "When we drafted him a couple of years ago, the writers wanted to know what he had done in college. He went to UCLA. I had to tell them something so I came up with the following: Games played, 4. Field goal attempts, 2. Field goals made, 1."

However, in the 1983-84 season, Eaton made 194 of his 416 attempts from the field for a percentage of .466. And he pulled down 595 rebounds to lead the Jazz in that department.

For Americans, whiskey has declined in popularity in the past decade. More drinkers are turning to vodka, gin and other "lighter" spirits.

At convention

Pair attack Republicans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright says the Democratic Party opened the door to the poor while President Reagan opened the doors of the U.S. Treasury to the wealthy seeking tax cuts.

Wright and U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett used speeches to the Democratic National Convention to hammer Republican politicians and policies.

"We Democrats believe there is an alternative between a party of bleeding hearts and no hearts at all, and that is to define a new course for this country," Doggett said Thursday.

Doggett said his Republican opponent, one-time Democratic U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm, is trying to portray their race as a struggle between the philosophical right and left. But he said the question is more fundamental than that.

"When they propose to cut education for our children, it is neither right nor left, it is wrong," he said.

The Republican view of America, Doggett said, is fundamentally different from the Democratic view.

"They see our forests as nothing more than a place to turn James Watt loose wild with his chainsaw. When they talk about a woman's place being in the house, they don't talk about the White House," he said.

Wright described the Democratic Party as the one which has spent 20 years opening doors for Americans — those wanting an education, the handicapped, the poor.

"We Democrats have opened the nominating process for the two highest offices in our land to three large groups of Americans whom prior practice had excluded — to American Catholics, to Southerners, and now to American women," Wright said. "Now we are at a critical juncture. For the past four years, Democrats in Congress have been locked in a struggle to keep the doors of justice and opportunity open for all the children of this land."

Wright said Reagan's tax and spending policies have padded the Pentagon's budget while draining the Treasury, creating huge budget deficits and helping the wealthy.

"Ronald Reagan and the Reaganites in Congress opened the doors of the Treasury to tax cuts for the wealthy which are adding $135 billion to the deficit this year," he said. The result, Wright said, is high interest rates that prevent thousands from owning homes, a soaring rate of small business failures and excessive unemployment.

Wright also criticized Reagan's attitude toward nuclear disarmament. "We must open the door to sincere negotiations for a mutual, verifiable nuclear freeze and general arms reduction," he said.

To beat the Republicans, the Fort Worth congressman called on convention delegates to return home solidified behind Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro.

"Let the word go forth from this convention that the Democratic Party is alive and well," he said.

Hundreds arrested in California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police in riot gear arrested 369 demonstrators in protests outside police headquarters and several large corporations Thursday, the last day of the Democratic National Convention.

There were 282 arrests at night, said police information officer Daniel Lawson, as some 500 demonstrators marched to the Hall of Justice to protest the arrest earlier of 87 demonstrators outside the Bank of America and other corporations.

Lawson said most of the arrests were for unlawful assembly, but added there were about a dozen felony charges for possession of dangerous weapons, assault on police officers and other infractions.

Protesters charged that police violated their civil rights by breaking up a peaceful rally in the afternoon, herding the demonstrators along the sidewalks and into the streets, and then arresting them for obstruction.

Francis Drake began his voyage around the world in 1577.

Baker-Finch surges to second round lead in British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Taking advantage of the mild conditions, Australia's Ian Baker-Finch fired a stunning 6-under-par 66 today and surged into the lead on the second day of the British Open golf championship.

Baker-Finch, winner of this year's West Australian Open and last year's New Zealand Open — his only two tournament victories — ripped up the Old Course at St. Andrews with the best round of the tournament so far.

His 36-hole total of 134 equalled the St. Andrews course record set at the Open 24 years ago by Roberto deVicenzo of Argentina.

Baker-Finch, who practiced for six days on the Scottish links prior to the Open, took a two-stroke lead over Britain's Nick Faldo, who was 8 under par for the tournament after 33 holes.

Australian Greg Norman, American Peter Jacobsen and

Scotsman Bill Longmuir, the overnight co-leaders on the strength of 5-under 67s, were waiting to start their rounds when Baker-Finch, one stroke behind after Thursday's opening round, began his onslaught.

He picked up his first birdie on the second hole with a 12-inch tap-in, then holed a seven-foot putt on the third.

A bogey on the fourth hole did not deter him, and he rolled in another three birdies in five, practically windless conditions.

Spaniard Severiano Ballesteros, the 1979 champion, birdied the third hole today and moved from 3 under overnight to 4 under.

After firing in five birdies en route to a 4-under 32 on the front nine, Baker-Finch birdied the 12th and 13th and then managed to hold par on the notoriously perilous 17th.

His second shot hit a bank and rolled back into the bunker but his chip on to the green landed eight feet from the pin and he holed the putt confidently.

The Australian's 10-under-par total for the first two rounds was only two strokes behind the all-time British Open two-round record of 132 set by Henry Cotton in 1934.

In almost windless conditions, the course favored many of the other early starters.

Mark McCumber of the United States shot a 5-under-par 67 to go with his first round 75 while two-time U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin burst into contention with a 68 and was 1 under par after two rounds on 143.

The 39-year-old American from Joplin, Mo., produced one of the shots of the tournament at the 17th.

After dropping a stroke at the previous hole, he desperately needed to save par. Using his putter just off the steep green, he landed within 12 inches of the pin, cleverly staying clear of a threatening bunker, and tapped the ball in.

Meadowlands race offers record purse

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Drivers Ron Waples, John Campbell and Bill Haughton will each be trying for their second victory in the Meadowlands Pace when 12 3-year-olds contest the rich race tonight.

Waples won last year with Ralph Hanover when the race was worth $1,251,000. Tonight's eighth renewal is worth a record $1,293,000, with $646,500 to the winner.

In a bid for a second straight victory, Waples will drive Jariz, the early 6-1 fourth choice behind Guts, 2-1; On The Road Again, 5-2, and Andrej, 9-2.

Jariz finished third in one of the four elimination heats for the race, but his time of 1:53 was identical to that of the first two finishers — Andrej and On The Road Again. The fastest time for a Meadowlands Pace final was 1:53 1-5 by Niatross in 1980.

Campbell will drive Russ Lyn Scott, an early 12-1 shot, who won an elimination heat in 1:53 4-5, while Haughton will drive Farmstead's Fame, who was listed at 20-1.

Campbell, who finished second with Umbrella Fella last year, won the $1 million sixth renewal in 1982 with Hilario.

Haughton's victory came in the second running in 1978, which was worth $280,000, when he drove Falcon Amahurst.

On The Road Again, driven by

Buddy Gilmour, has the best record in the field, but lost the early favorite's role when he drew the No. 12 post, which means he will start in the two-horse second row.

On The Road Again has a record this year of 11 victories and four seconds and a bankroll of $706,250. His second in the elimination heat snapped a four-race winning streak. One of his victories was in the Cane Pace on a half-mile track at Yonkers Raceway. The Meadowlands track is a one-mile oval.

Guts, driven by Bill O'Donnell, has won 11 of 17 starts this year, with two seconds and a third and earnings of $317,565. In his last start, he won one of the Meadowlands Pace elimination heats in 1:53 1-5.

Jacobsen gets big thrill when name goes on leader board

By BOB GREEN AP Golf Writer
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — It was no particular surprise — a great pleasure but no particular surprise — to Peter Jacobsen when his name went up on the leader board in the first round of the British Open Golf Championship.

"In the last few months, I have put more emphasis on expecting to see my name on the leader board," Jacobsen said Thursday. "So when it went up, I said, 'OK, it belongs there.'"

As it worked out, his name did, indeed belong with a 5-under-par 67 next to it.

"It is a great, great thrill," said Jacobsen, 30, who won the Colonial National Invitation in May. It is, suggested Jacobsen, part of his process of "coming of age," as a touring professional.

"Pressure is an intangible," Jacobsen said. "We all have to deal with it in our own ways."

"In the past, I'd get the lead or get in contention, and I'd fall back. That's because I was looking at the big picture, which, of course, is winning the tournament."

"It's a matter of coming to grips with who I am, where my golf game is," said Jacobsen, whose victory at Fort Worth this season was only the second of his eight-year career.

"I'm still not there. I know it. I'm still working on getting there, still trying to get through the door."

"I think I have the skills to win many tournaments, even major tournaments. It's a matter of reaching down inside of yourself and pulling it out." And, he said, that will be his goal in the remaining three rounds of the tournament on the ancient links of the Old Course at St. Andrews.

"I just want to free my mind up. That's my challenge for the rest of the week. Just go ahead and play the kind of golf I've been playing."

"It helps to know that, at least on this day, nobody played the Old Course better than I did. That helps. That's confidence."

"It's a great, great thrill, just being here, playing on this course. This is what golf is all about. This is St. Andrews."

"There are ghosts here. I walked among the ghosts of all the players from the past. They're here," he said.

"I can't imagine a greater thrill than leading — unless it's leading on Sunday."

JESSE'S CHANCE
NEW YORK (AP) — For Jesse Orozco, when the New York Mets traded Neil Allen to the Cardinals June 15, 1983, it was like opportunity beckoning to an understudy when a Broadway star leaves the show.
"I thought the trade of Allen, who had been our No. 1 reliever, was a vote of confidence in me," Orozco said.
He certainly pitched that way. He was the king of the Met bullpen for the last three and one-half months of the 1983 season and finished with 17 saves and a won-lost record of 13-7.
Orozco has continued to pitch well this year and is rated high among the list of National League relief pitchers.

Pirates still on hot-hitting streak

Associated Press Writer

With eight wins in nine tries since the All-Star break, the Pittsburgh Pirates are making a run at respectability.

John Candelaria salvaged a little more of the Pirates' wounded pride with a three-hitter and a two-run homer Thursday as Pittsburgh downed the San Diego Padres 5-1.

With an average of over five runs per game in the nine since the break, the Pirates are threatening to put an end to the "Slumber Company" jokes. They have also clubbed 10 homers in the nine games.

"When you're 14 out or whatever we are, you can't do it in a day or a week. You have to do it a day at a time. You win today and try and come back and win tomorrow," Candelaria said. "We've got to catch (fifth place) St. Louis before we catch New York."

Although a three-homer outburst by the Pirates has become a rarity, the shot by Candelaria was an absolute first. Candelaria had not hit a home run in 566 career at-bats.

"Did I know it was a homer? I had a good idea," said Candelaria. "I've thrown so many to other hitters I recognize it. I don't expect to hit another one in the near future. It feels great, but I'll take the win. That's what they pay me for — not to hit home runs. That's what they pay Jason Thompson and Bill Madlock for."

Whether they get paid for it or not, Tony Pena and Dale Berra also slugged homers for Pittsburgh. But Candelaria's 400-foot blast drew the notices.

Only three other major leaguers, all pitchers, have had more career at-bats than Candelaria without hitting a homer: Don Sutton, Steve Rogers and Ron Reed.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago topped San Francisco 6-4, Philadelphia crushed Atlanta 9-1, Cincinnati bopped New York 9-6, Los Angeles creamed St. Louis 10-0 and Houston edged Montreal 3-2.

Candelaria's home run almost overshadowed his overpowering pitching. He beat the Padres in 1 hour, 50 minutes. Only one other NL game this season has been that quick.

Candelaria, 9-6, retired the final 13 batters and ran his personal winning streak to four games. Cubs 6, Giants 4

Gary Matthews has been struggling, but he won't let Chicago Manager Jim Frey sit him down.

"Every time I start thinking of putting someone else in there for him, he comes through with something big," said Frey.

Matthews' tie-breaking, three-run homer in the seventh inning powered the Cubs to their eighth win in nine meetings with the Giants and made a winner of reliever George Frazier, 2-0.

Matthews was hitless in his last 12 at-bats when, with two out, he blasted his sixth homer of the season with some help from Wrigley Field.

"I didn't hit the ball that well," said Matthews, "but I got enough of it and the wind blowing out helped."

Phillies 9, Braves 1

Jerry Koonsman hurled a four-hitter and Tim Corcoran drove in four runs with four hits as the Phillies won their fourth in a row.

Juan Samuel and Ivan DeJesus also had four hits for the Phillies, who had 17 hit overall.

"I've had games before with big leads and just challenged hitters with my fastball," the 40-year-old left-hander said. "I've given up three, four, five runs before, but I was going to pitch my own game. I just decided to mix them up."

Koonsman got his big lead when the Phillies chased Craig McMurtry, 7-11, while scoring five first-inning runs. Koonsman, 11-7, walked one and struck out seven in winning his third straight start and sit decision in his last seven.

Reds 9, Mets 6

Cincinnati broke a 4-4 tie in the sixth when New York shortstop Rafael Santana had the ball knocked out of his glove while tagging Brad Gulden on a rundown at third base.

Gulden raced home and Eric Davis followed with a two-run double off ex-Red Bruce Berenyi, 7-10.

Mario Soto surrendered six runs in 6 1-3 innings but raised his lifetime record against the Mets to 8-1. His two-run double in the second gave Cincinnati a 3-2 lead and his 10th victory against three defeats broke the Reds' three-game losing streak.

Dave Parker homered for the home team, his eighth. Darryl Strawberry hit his 13th for the visitors.

Dodgers 10, Cardinals 0

Orel Hershiser pitched a two-hitter for his third shutout in as many start-shrivers drove in three runs with three hits.

Including four innings of relief, Hershiser, 6-3, extended his string of scoreless innings to 31. He also set down the final 20 batters he faced while pitching the 12th shutout of the year by a Los Angeles hurler.

The Dodgers opened a four-game invasion of St. Louis with a 13-hit attack.

Astros 3, Expos 2

Jerry Mumphrey's single to left in the bottom of the eighth scored Craig Reynolds from second with the game-winner.

Reliever Gary Lucaswalkd Reynolds and Jose Cruz before giving up the single to Mumphrey and lowering his record to 0-3.

Mike LaCoss, 5-0, allowed six hits, struck out three and walked two while improving his record over the Expos this season to 2-0. It was his first complete game since May 13, 1983.

Seaver getting better results second time around in AL

By JIM DONAGHY Associated Press Writer

Tom Seaver, who won three Cy Young Awards in the National League with the Mets, says his first time around the American League in 1984 was a "learning process." Now the AL batters are starting to learn about Seaver.

Seaver, 9-6, combined with Jerry Don Gleanon Thursday night to defeat the Cleveland Indians 3-0.

Cleveland rookie Steve Farr, who struck out nine, left after giving up a leadoff single to Carlton Fisk in the ninth. One out later, reliever Mike Jeffcoat walked Greg Luzinski and threw a wild pitch to move the runners to second and third. Greg Walker followed with a sacrifice fly to left before Ron Kittle slugged his 22nd home run off reliever Don Schulze.

In other AL games, Minnesota edged New York 2-1, Detroit stopped Texas 9-2, Kansas City beat Baltimore 6-3, Oakland downed Milwaukee 4-1 and Toronto defeated Seattle 8-1.

Seaver had given up six runs on nine hits in 4 2-3 innings in his first appearance against Cleveland two weeks ago. But he limited them to eight hits, striking out three and walking one, before giving way to Gleanon in the ninth inning.

The win lifted Chicago to within two games of the idle California Angels in the AL West.

Tigers 9, Rangers 2

Detroit won its sixth game in their last seven as Kirk Gibson and Lance Parrish slugged home runs and Ruppert Jones went 4-for-4.

"The key to anything is to apply yourself," Jones said after his perfect performance that paced a 13-hit Detroit attack.

Following Jones' sixth-inning single, Gibson slammed an 0-1 pitch from Texas reliever Odell Jones into the left-field seats for his 14th home run of the season to give the Tigers a 6-0 lead. The two RBI raised Gibson's total to 53, a personal high for his five-year career. Parrish belted a three-run homer, his 19th, in the eighth after Lou Whitaker and Jones singled.

Milt Wilcox, 9-6, struck out seven and did not walk a batter in 7 1-3 innings as Detroit held its eight-game lead over Toronto in the AL East.

Twins 2, Yankees 1

Minnesota executed the major's first triple play this season and Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly snapped a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning.

Kent Hrbek opened Minnesota's eighth inning off New York relief ace Dave Righetti, 2-3, with a double and advanced to third on Tim Teufel's infield hit to second. After Dave Engle popped out, Brunansky lofted a sacrifice fly to center, allowing Hrbek to score.

Third baseman Gary Gaetti, who has figured in Minnesota's last three triple plays, started this one in the second inning by fielding Rick Cerone's bouncer, tagging third to force Don Mattingly, and throwing to second baseman Teufel to force Bobby Meacham. Teufel's strong throw to first beat Cerone.

Royals 6, Baltimore 3

Hal McRae singled and doubled, driving in two runs, and rookie Mark Gubicza scattered seven hits.

With the score locked at 2-2 in the bottom of the seventh, Greg Pryor, Onix Concepcion and Willie Wilson stroked consecutive singles off Mike Flanagan, 9-8, to put the Royals on top 3-2. Gubicza raised his record to 6-8 while striking out eight and walking two.

Wayne Gross hit his 13th homer for the Orioles in the ninth.

Athletics 4, Brewers 1

Dave Kingman smashed his 27th home run to tie Hall of Famer Ralph Kiner for 29th place on baseball's all-time list with 369.

Kingman homered deep into the left field bleachers off Moose Haas, 6-7, with one out in the fourth. The RBI was Kingman's 83rd, high in the majors, in the 82 games he's played. Kingman also leads the majors in homers.

Blue Jays 8, Mariners 1

Right-hander Dave Stieb, 11-3, allowed only three hits over the eight innings and Damasco Garcia stroked three hits, including a home run.

Jesse Barfield added four hits, two singles and two doubles, to the 15-hit Toronto attack.

The Jays scored all the runs they needed in the top of the first.

Stieb took the AL lead in ERA at 2.21.

REDFORD'S HERO
NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Redford, who stars in the movie, "The Natural," in which he plays a baseball slugger, says Hall of Famer Ted Williams was his hero as a boy. In the movie, in which Redford shows amazing baseball form, he tried to copy Williams' stance.

"The first time I was in New York, it must have been about 1957, I found out the Boston Red Sox were playing the Yankees in Yankee Stadium," Redford recalled. "I went to the ballpark and got a seat in the bleachers. But Ted wasn't in the lineup. Then he came up to pinch-hit in the ninth inning. I'll be darned if he didn't hit a homer which landed right in back of me."

Redford concluded: "I had had some good days myself but that had to be my biggest thrill in sports."

During the past five years, Philadelphia Phillies third baseman Mike Schmidt has led all major leaguers in home runs with 199. The underrated Cecil Cooper, first baseman for the Milwaukee Brewers, is tops in RBIs with 535. George Brett, third baseman for the Kansas City Royals, has posted a .328 batting average to lead in that important category.

Olympic cyclist out because of drugs

DENVER (AP) — What road cyclist Alexi Grewal thought was an innocent herbal vitamin probably will end his longtime dream of competing in the Olympics when he was just a few days short of his goal. Grewal, 23, of Aspen, Colo., one of the best American road cyclists, was suspended from competition Thursday for 30 days for taking an illegal substance. His automatic suspension by the U.S. Cycling Federation also effectively disqualifies Grewal, who had already made the Olympic team, from the Los Angeles Games.

Tests taken after Wednesday's race in the Coors International Bicycling Classic showed a banned substance in his urine, said Ian Emerson, an official for the 10-day cycling series. Emerson identified the illegal substance as phenylethylamine, which is found in some over-the-counter cold and hay fever remedies.

The chief medical officer of the Coors Classic, Jeff Paulsen, later said the substance was either ephedrine or pseudoephedrine, also contained in over-the-counter cold preparations.

"I've been in training 12 years of my life for the Olympics," said Grewal, who was crestfallen by the news of the suspension. "I'm going to follow every appeal."

But the cyclist said he had no one to blame but himself for the mistake. "It's not the officials' fault, it's my fault," Grewal said. "I didn't take anything intentionally. My two tests on the races show it."

Grewal, who said he took an herbal vitamin before racing on Wednesday, was suspended before the start of Thursday's seventh race in the 10-day Coors Classic road cycling series.

"I read the label and it was written in Chinese," Grewal said. "It was such an innocent thing. I popped one in my mouth and started the race." In addition to the Olympics, the presence of the illegal substance eliminated Grewal from the Coors Classic, where he was the overall leader and winner of two of seven events so far.

While the suspension is appealed automatically to the U.S. Olympic Committee, Michael Aisner, Coors Classic race director, said he doubted it would make any difference.

Bob Paul, a U.S. Olympic Committee official, said in Los Angeles that the USOC had learned of the suspension but that it was too early to say how it affected Grewal's chances to compete in the Olympic Games.

"Until we get more information, we can't say for sure that he's out of the Olympics," Paul said. "We tell the athletes to stay away from herbal substances, but they don't always listen."

The announcement that the routine drug tests were positive came just before the Washington Park Criterium, seventh stage of the Classic.

The top two finishers and the overall leader, plus two racers chosen at random, submit urine for testing after each race in the Classic.

There will be four U.S. men on the Olympic cycling team. Grewal and Ron Kiefel were named earlier, with the final two expected to be selected in the next few days, a Coors Classic spokesman said.

Many major college frosh gridders in for awful shock

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer
Across the country these days, college football players are arriving on campuses, preparing for the upcoming season and a new phase of their lives. For some of them, particularly the freshmen, it could be an awful shock.

"I imagine some of those kids are starting to experience a great jolt," said John Reeves, director of sports and recreation at the University of Rochester.

Coaches have a way of passing through on their way to someplace else. At the University of Miami, players recruited by Coach Howard Schnellenberger will find Coach Jimmy Johnson in charge. At Oklahoma State, players recruited by Coach Jimmy Johnson will discover Coach Pat Jones running the show.

The college games serve as a farm system for the professionals and the pressure, practice and travel regimen can be grueling.

Reeves has seen his share of players who were consumed by that grind wash up on the beaches of Division III schools, where sports occupies a less demanding place in collegiate life.

He pointed to a study by Harry Edwards of the University of California at Berkeley which showed that the average Division I football player puts in 40 hours of work per week in his sport.

"Count travel and it's about 65 hours," Reeves said. "You have to be awfully dedicated for that. You must be motivated to become a pro or brilliant if you want an education. I don't put down Division I. I went to Penn State and I admire their program. It's just that I think Division III might be a better way to run college athletics."

Better for whom? "Better for the person more interested in academic pressure than in the pressure to win. Better for the person more interested in megatrends than megabucks. Better for the youngster who is brilliant, but not brilliant enough to put in 65 hours in athletics and still be a chemistry or engineering major."

The spirit of competition does not suffer either because, Reeves said, the school you're playing has the same philosophy about sports' place in the college experience.

"It's still great competition. It's no insult to play Division III. Many Division III players could play in Division I," Reeves said.

There is no national TV exposure for Division III, although with the networks battling over the sport's Supreme Court-mandated free agent status, it might not be a bad area for cable outlets to explore.

There are no athletic scholarships on the Division III level. Financial aid for athletes is based on need, the same criteria that is used for the rest of the student population.

It takes a special young man or woman to turn away from a free ride at a major university to play sports, and perhaps even pay for the privilege to attend a Division III school instead.

But the choice is not without its advantages.

"What Division III offers is a viable alternative, a very good alternative for the athlete who wants to play ball and still have time to write for the student newspaper or join the chemistry club," Reeves said.

USFL's top teams to play in England

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Two United States Football League teams have chosen a curious and distant way of unwinding after the season.

Instead of packing up the equipment and heading for the golf course, the two most successful teams this season — the champion Philadelphia Stars and the Tampa Bay Bandits — will meet in an exhibition game at Britain's premier soccer stadium Saturday to give local sports fans another taste of American professional football.

Last year, the National Football League's Minnesota Vikings beat the St. Louis Cardinals 28-10 before a crowd of nearly 33,000, and the organizers of Saturday's game are expecting the same amount of interest.

The Stars and Bandits will be playing for a trophy sponsored by a British travel company.

Both teams were given time this week to train on the lush Wembley turf, where England won the soccer World Cup in 1966 and where the English Football Association soccer cup final is held every year.

During a break in practice, John Bassett, managing general partner of the Bandits, said the British fans can expect a good show Saturday.

"In terms of playing records last season, you have here the two best teams in the USFL," he said. "Philadelphia won the title last week and of the 18 teams, we have the second-best record."

Bassett's 16-year-old tennis-playing daughter, Carling, delighted British sports fans just a few miles from here at Wimbledon earlier this month. He wants the Bandits to do the same.

"We are basically a wide open, offensive and exciting team. They are a solid, all-round team and don't give anything away," Bassett said.

Ann Landers Americans fortunate

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please print this. It appeared in the St. Columba's newsletter in Hanover Park, Diocese of Chicago. It tells a lot about the responsibilities of an American.—Lucky Us

THE GLOBAL VILLAGE

If the world were a village of 1,000 people, only 60 would be Americans. All others would represent the rest of the world—303 would be white, 330 Christian. Five hundred would be unable to read or write, and 800 would be constantly hungry and sickly.

The 60 Americans would have one-half of the total income of the village and their life expectancy would be almost twice as long as the others.

Of the 60 Americans, members of the lowest-income group would be better off financially than the average of the remaining 940 villagers.

Can you imagine a community where 6 percent of the people have almost all the food and wealth and four-fifths of the people are hungry? This is the way it is, Mr. and Mrs. America, and we had better be aware of it.

DEAR LUCKY: The message is a good one. It should make people more keenly aware of how fortunate we are to live in America and the enormity of our responsibilities to the less fortunate around the world. But the figures are incorrect.

The essay was checked out by Denis Goulet, a distinguished professor at the University of Notre Dame. His research shows that:

(1) The U.S. population is approximately 5 percent of the world population, not 6 percent.

(2) According to the World Bank figures, the world's illiterates are 33 percent, not 50 percent.

(3) According to The World Almanac Book of Facts (1984) Christians number 1,028 billion, in a total population of 4.68 billion. This is 27 percent, not 33 percent.

(4) Several figures have been published on the world's hungry. The most reliable put the percentage at 17-18 percent, not 80 percent.

(5) As for life expectancy, European Socialist countries (including Russia) account for 8.5 percent of world population. They have a life expectancy of 72 years. By no stretch of the imagination can one affirm that the U.S. has twice the life expectancy of the rest of the world.

My apologies to St. Columba's, but because so many readers "borrow" items from my column and print them elsewhere, I felt the need to set the record straight.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I underscore your advice concerning helping grown children? DON'T — unless it is a dire emergency, such as illness.

After purchasing homes for my four children and helping them get a start in life, I now have four dependents who are middle-aged and can't cope. I am still bailing them out and probably will do so forever. The best thing parents can do for their children is teach them to stand on their own two feet. They will respect you. Mine don't.—Anonymous In Miami

DEAR MIAMI: Good advice for parents with young children. For you it's too late and I am sad for the things you left unsaid. Thanks for sharing.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Cut risk of overheating

DEAR DR. LAMB — About two years ago I had an attack of heat exhaustion. It was the summer a lot of people died from the heat. I had been pretty hot driving to my parents' house after staying in my air-conditioned home.

I guess staying in a cool place and then getting out in the heat is what did it. I was lying on a couch at my mother's and she was cooking. It was really hot and the fan seemed to just blow hot air.

The first symptom was just feeling real tired. The next was feeling absolutely exhausted, weak and nauseated. Then the top of my head felt real hot. My mother poured ice water from the refrigerator over my head and it felt lukewarm.

She said I was white as a sheet. I got better, then worse. Then I couldn't breathe well, so Mom called the emergency room.

They said to get me into a cold shower and get fruit juices into me as soon as possible. Then I was to go home and stay in the air-conditioning. I got better but I felt weak for several days.

I had two bouts last year. It's been real easy for me to get too hot. Do you think I had heat exhaustion? What can I do to prevent it from happening?

DEAR READER — It would not be possible to tell from your letter just what you had. Heat exhaustion is one possibility.

There are really three major problems from heat. You can have heat exhaustion with a loss of body water, or you can have heat exhaustion with a loss of salt with retention of too much water, or you can have heat stroke, which is characterized by a progressively high body temperature. I have explained the differences in The Health Letter 7-12, Heat Stress: Cramps, Exhaustion, Stroke, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If you don't have salt depletion, taking salt or salt tablets can increase your chances of having heat stroke. If a person must be exposed to lots of heat and sweats a lot, I think it is a good idea to weigh daily to be sure that you have not lost a lot of body fluid. Drinking a quart of milk, a pint of orange juice and an adequate amount of water also helps.

The body accumulates heat, so a cool room at night is important in helping to prevent exposure problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am being treated for a seizure disorder. My first seizure was about two years ago and thus far I have had six. I take four 100-milligram Dilantins a day and three tablets of phenobarbital.

My attacks begin with a warm feeling in my ears and the palms of my hands. They become very red. I get very weak when it's over. I get cold and have tremors. The first two attacks were mild, with only the warm and weak feeling. The third attack, I had these symptoms plus I lost consciousness, had no control over my bowels and vomited. I was hospitalized. They worked on me for 10 minutes to revive me.

I had CAT scans, brain waves, a liver scan, ECG, the works, and everything was negative. Since then I have had three seizures but with the medication I get only the red-hot ears and palms and am very cold with tremors at the end.

I am 56 and a healthy person otherwise. Do you have any suggestions?

Rape family descendants meet for two-day reunion

The descendants of William David Rape and his wife, Susie Emma Luther, recently gathered at the Hereford American Legion Hall for a reunion. Sixty-seven persons representing New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Texas were present at the two-day affair.

Descendants of seven of their ten children were in attendance, including the two surviving children, Jack Rape of Fritch and Ruby Dillard of Post.

Billy G. Rape of Pampa was elected president; Winfred Padgett of Canyon, vice-president; and Enola Rape of Pampa, secretary-treasurer.

A brief report on the ancestral nationalities of the family was given by Nell Norvell, author of "The Rape Family Tree."

Buy firewood

DEAR POLLY — It's only the beginning of summer and already people in our area are advertising firewood for sale. Is this a good time to buy firewood? Is it cheaper in the summer? — CAROL

DEAR CAROL — It may or may not be cheaper in the summer, but there are reasons why now is a good time to buy firewood for your winter heating needs.

You probably won't have to wait as long for delivery now as you would in the fall, when people are all clamoring for a delivery before winter snows fall.

Your wood will have time to age a bit before you need to burn it. This is an especially important point. Wood should age for at least several months after cutting before being used in a fireplace or woodstove. Dried, aged wood ignites more readily and burns hotter and more cleanly than green (freshly cut) wood. It smokes less and contributes less creosote buildup to chimneys. However, for a long-burning fire — one that you want to burn at a low level throughout the night, for example — some experts suggest that you burn a combination of aged and green wood.

Last, but not least, you'll have the peace of mind that comes with being prepared for the upcoming heating season. No worries about whether or not you'll get your wood delivery before you need it.

DEAR POLLY — I always thought coffee was a good beverage for someone on a diet, but now my friend tells me coffee does have calories! I can't find it in my calorie counter. What's the story on those coffee calories, Polly? — MARIE

DEAR MARIE — I'm afraid your friend is right. Black coffee has from two to 10 calories per-cup. And, of course, the calorie total is higher if you add cream and sugar. If you only drink a cup or two a day, those calories are fairly insignificant. But if you're using many cups of coffee to get you through the day and evening, the calorie count can indeed build up. You'll want to be especially wary of fancy coffee drinks — those containing large amounts of milk or cream, whipped cream, chocolate, alcoholic beverages, etc. (Tea, by the way, has about two calories per cup.)

You may want to switch to other low-cal beverages such as club soda (although watch out for the sodium content if you're interested in limiting your salt intake) or seltzer, bouillon, herb teas (they come in a delightful variety of flavors), and good old tap water. Don't forget fruit juices, too. While they can contain significant numbers of calories, they also provide important nutrients and are far more beneficial to maintaining a healthy body than "empty" drinks such as coffee. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I buy a lot of vegetable and flower plants and usually must keep them for a while before I can get them into the ground. I put the containers into a child's wagon. They are easily moved into the garage when the nights are cold or if it's too windy. — MRS. V.W.

DEAR POLLY — If you have difficulty moving a heavy chair to clean under it, try turning it over on its side instead. So much easier than moving it. — GENEVA

Today in History

Today is Friday, July 20, the 202nd day of 1984. There are 164 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 20, 1969, Apollo Eleven astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin became the first men to set foot on the moon.

On this date:

In 1810, Colombia declared its independence from Spain.

In 1861, the Congress of the Confederate States began holding sessions in Richmond, Va.

In 1881, Sioux Indian leader Sitting Bull, a fugitive since the Battle of Little Bighorn, surrendered to federal troops.

One year ago: The U.S. House of Representatives voted to censure Illinois Republican Daniel Crane and Massachusetts Democrat Gerry Studds for having engaged in sexual relations with congressional pages.

Today's birthdays: Video artist Nam June Paik is 52. Actress Diana Rigg is 46.

Thought for today: "We may well go to the moon, but that's not very far. The greatest distance we have to cover still lies within us." — Charles De Gaulle, French president (1890-1970).

Victims see years of recovery

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Morris Hohmann and Mary Frances Lamport know the grief facing survivors of the McDonald's shootings in California. They went through a similar hell 18 years ago when a sniper fired from atop the University of Texas Tower. For Mrs. Lamport, now 59, it's a hell that began on a sightseeing trip and has not ended. Her 16-year-old son, Mark Gabour, was one of 16 people killed by sniper Charles Whitman, who also wounded 31 people. Mrs. Lamport's son, Michael Gabour, was shot in the head, but recovered. She was shot in the skull and spine, left paralyzed and blind. "There was a feeling of communication between myself and all those people injured," she said after her husband read her a newspaper story about the Wednesday massacre at a San Ysidro, Calif., McDonald's. Twenty people were killed and 20 injured before police killed the gunman. "I live with it," Mrs. Lamport said of her injuries. "I have absorbed it. It's part of me. It's a part of my life. It never leaves me." Hohmann, an Austin funeral director, was wounded on Aug. 1, 1966, as he scrambled to help Whitman's victims. He was shot in the leg. "Because of my field of work, I don't think it was psychologically destructive as much as it would be to somebody who doesn't deal with it every day," he said Thursday. "But for the person on the street, John Q. Public, I'm very sure psychologically it takes years to overcome. "It very definitely, even after all these years, to some extent makes a celebrity out of you," said Hohmann. He predicted that the survivors who saw the California gunman might face a tougher psychological recovery than many of the Texas victims. Mrs. Lamport and her family were climbing the steps inside the UT Tower when Whitman barricaded himself on an observation deck and opened fire. The details of the day are etched in her mind. It was the last thing she saw before losing her sight. She said she has regained some vision, but remains legally blind. "We were face to face with (Whitman) at the top of the stairs" when the shooting began, she recalled. "Michael was first hit. The next one he got was me. I started falling. I never heard Mark make a sound and I assumed he was all right," she said.

The Plan Of Salvation

The greatest example ever given
Of the plan of salvation
Is of the thief upon the cross
Without elaboration.

He could not give a cup of water
To a neighbor in distress.
He could not lift one from a ditch
He only could confess.

He could not do one good deed to Earn this great salvation,
He could not take the vows at church
Or any organization.

With hands and feet nailed to the cross
There was nothing he could do,
But express his faith in Jesus
That was all he had to do.

There was no creed or ritual
He could not be baptized.
But Jesus said, "Verily I say today-
Thou shalt be with me in Paradise.
