Surge of terrorism reflects Mid East protest of U.S. raid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The surge in terrorism anticipated by the Reagan administration after the U.S. bombing of Libya took shape today with the murders of three kidnap victims in Lebanon, an attempt to put explosives aboard an Israeli airliner in London and fire bombs thrown at a U.S. Marine post in Tunisia.

employees and other personnel from Sudan, apparently because of Libyan threats against American targets.

The announcement came after an embassy employee was shot in the head in Khartoum late Tuesday and thousands of people on Wednesday burned American flags and shouted slogans to protest the U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

An embassy statement did not name specifically Libya, Sudan's neighbor to the northwest, but apparently referred to Col. Moammar Khadafy's government, as no other neighboring nation has threatened attacks on U.S. interests. Libya called for attacks on American interests worldwide after the air raid.

In Libya, Khadafy was reported alive but possibly wounded in the bombing raid on his headquarters Monday night. Administration officials sifting through intelligence reports said there were indications he had left Tripoli, the capital, and had gone into the desert amid reports of fighting within the military.

Three bodies were found in the mountains east of Beirut with a note nearby that said one was a CIA agent and two were British intelligence officers killed in retaliation for the U.S. bombing of Libya, the Moslem Voice of the Nation radio reported from Beirut.

White House deputy press secretary Edward Djerejian said the United States has confirmed that all three victims were British. "As far as we know, there are no Americans found," Djerejian said.

The British government supported the U.S. action punishing Libya for the April 5 bombing of a Berlin nightclub and permitted U.S. Air Force bombers based in Britain to participate in the raid.

In London, a woman trying to board an El Al jetliner was arrested after she was found to be carrying what police said were explosives. Authorities were hunting a male companion of Middle Eastern appearance.

And in Tunis, Tunisia, the headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization, two Molotov cocktails were tossed from a passing car at the residence of Marine guards stationed at the U.S. Embassy. No one was injured; a nearby auto was burned.

Meanwhile, a congressional source said intelligence reports indicated that foes of Khadafy had returned to Tripoli. Sources in both the administration and Congress, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was known to be friction between the army and Khadafy's headquarters guard.

ABC News, quoting U.S. intelligence sources, said there were reports of mutiny at the Tarkunah army base, south of Tripoli. The network said there were reports that Libyan air strikes were used against Libyan army units.

However, the network said there was no indication any particular group had moved to seize power.

Khadafy appeared on Libyan television Wednesday night, condemning the United States for its attack and telling Americans, "We will not kill your children."

The Libyan leader's adopted baby daughter was reported killed in the raid. There had been speculation, because Khadafy had not appeared publicly since the attack that he might have been killed or left the country.

Administration officials from President Reagan down, briding at Soviet condemnation of the U.S. attack, say the Soviet Union refused to help fight the terrorism that forced the United States to take to "the field of battle" as a last resort.

The Soviets protested Monday's attack on Libya by calling off a May meeting between Secretary of State George Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze designed to pave the way for a super-power summit this year.

Meanwhile, the Chicago Tribune reported in today's editions that the choice of targets in the Libya bombing was made partly with an eye to sparking a possible coup against Khadafy. The Tribune cited unidentified intelligence sources in Washington.

County receives supplement for food, shelter

Deaf Smith County has been chosen to receive $8,453 to supplement emergency food and shelter programs in the area, it was announced today by Wayne Amstutz, executive director of the United Way of Deaf Smith County.

The selection was made by a national board made up of affiliates of national voluntary organizations and chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). United Way of America will provide the administrative staff and function as fiscal agent.

The national board was charged to distribute $20 million appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

Amstutz announced that the local United Way has named an independent board to determine how the funds will be distributed in Deaf Smith County. Named to the board were David Ruland, Tony Cortez, Rocky Lee, Thelma Mercer and Rosemary Shook.

The local board is responsible for recommending agencies to receive the emergency food and shelter program funds. Such agencies as the Red Cross, Salvation Army, Senior Citizens, and the Good Shepherd program would be eligible, according to Amstutz.

Under the terms of the grant, local governmental or private voluntary organizations chosen to receive funds must:

(1) be non-profit, (2) have an accounting system and conduct an annual audit, (3) practice non-discrimination, (4) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and/or shelter programs, and (5) if they are a private voluntary organization, they should have a voluntary board.

Qualifying organizations are urged to apply by April 22, 1986. Further information on the program may be obtained by contacting David Ruland at the county clerk's office in the courthouse.

Third round of talks far from agreement

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC oil ministers today failed to agree on a strategy for stabilizing oil prices during a third day of talks, the cartel's spokesman said. Nigeria's oil minister indicated the cartel was far from agreement.

However, cartel spokesman James Audu said progress had been made in a three-hour morning session and that ministers for the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would resume their deliberations Friday.

Audu said OPEC technical advisers would meet later today to come up with recommendations on a pricing and production policy.

Balkacem Nabi, Algeria's oil minister, told reporters some cartel members are not ready to cut production as a means of ending the oil price slump.

In surprise move

Republicans gamble to win aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans, who in a surprise move voted to block President Reagan's proposed $100 million in assistance for the Nicaraguan rebels, expressed confidence they can revive the package later.

Democrats, however, predict the GOP lawmakers will lose the tactical gamble they have taken, and say they will likely approve a different version of the aid containing restrictions the president opposes.

In a surprise move, Republicans joined Democrats Wednesday in approving an amendment that basically eliminated all $100 million President Reagan wants for the Contras fighting Nicaragua's leftist government.

The Republican tactic prevented the House from voting on a proposal by Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., which would have granted Reagan his $100 million package, but delayed spending $75 million of it for at least three months while peace talks were tried to end the Central American struggle.

Instead, by a 361-66 vote, the House passed an amendment by Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., which would replace Reagan's program with a package of $27 million in aid to Central American refugees and $2 million in help to the so-called Contadora Latin nations trying to mediate a peaceful solution.

On the vote, 184 Democrats were joined by 177 Republicans. Only one Republican, Rep. Willis Gradison of Ohio, voted to keep the Reagan plan alive.

The parliamentary maneuvering came because Democrats hold a 252-182 edge in the chamber, with one seat vacant.

Last month, after the House voted 222-210 against Reagan's package, House Democratic leaders promised to bring it up again this month but to attach it to an unrelated bill making $1.7 billion in various appropriations. The Republican-controlled Senate later narrowly approved a modified Contra package.

But Reagan has threatened to veto the spending bill if it passes and he complained Wednesday that Republicans were being denied a vote on a free-standing Contra package because of "a back-door parliamentary maneuver."

Republicans will now have to round up signatures on a petition to try to force to the floor their version of the Reagan package. The GOP will need 218 signatures, meaning it will have to hold all its own members and pick up at least 36 Democrats. Under House rules, the earliest the measure could come to the floor would be May 12.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., later sent word to reporters that he would allow the Contra package to come to the floor in a normal manner, perhaps as an amendment to a defense appropriations bill expected to reach the floor next month.

Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., the third-ranking Democratic leader, said, "I don't think they're (Republicans) going to get enough signatures on the discharge

We had 200 entries in our Sesquicentennial Essay Contest, sponsored by The Brand in cooperation with the Hereford Independent School District. Winners will be announced in Sunday's Brand and the four first-place essays will be published. The essay topic was "What Being a Texan Means to Me."

The "Hands Across America" project has outlined the West Texas portion of the route crossing the U.S. on May 25. The project will raise funds for domestic hunger programs.

People who participate in the program will hold hands to form a continuous chain of support from New York to Los Angeles. The line through West Texas starts from Fort Worth and extends to Wichita Falls, Amarillo and to the New Mexico line. Closest points to Hereford will be Vega and I-40.

A local sign-up meeting has been scheduled Monday at the Community Center from 3:30 to 7 p.m.

Mark your calendar for the chamber's next Fun Breakfast. It will be May 8 at the Community Center with the BS emcees (Charlie Bell and John Stagner) and the usual fun, food and games. Hereford State Bank will be the breakfast sponsor.

The American Cancer Society drive starts Sunday, and The Brand will have a feature article we think you'll want to read. We talked our lifestyle editor, Sandy Pankey, into doing a story on her personal battle with cancer. It's informative, interesting and highly readable...don't miss it.

Hats off to the student council members at Hereford High for the "Contract for Life" program they are conducting. The student council will be distributing the contracts Friday, and details are included in a news article in the paper. The contracts are part of a Drinking and Driving Awareness Week sponsored by the student council.

To fight drunk driving

HHS to distribute 'Contract for Life'

On Friday, Student Council members at Hereford High School will be handing out the "Contract for Life" which is distributed by Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) in its campaign to stop deaths caused by intoxicated drivers.

In the contract, parents agree to provide — at any hour and with no questions at the time — safe transportation for teenagers who have been drinking or are riding with a drunken driver. Teenagers promise to call the parent whenever they may need a ride home.

The contracts wrap the Drinking and Driving Awareness Week sponsored by the Student Council. Other projects have included showing a film to all of the driver's education classes and, during the daily announcements period, reporting drunk driving statistics and warnings.

Prior to the awareness week, Council members conducted a survey among students and found that 12 percent who answered drank alcoholic beverages frequently, 64 percent did so "sometimes" and 24 percent never did.

Four percent said they frequently drink and drive.

On the back of the Contract for Life, the Council published some results of the survey and a few statistics. Telephone numbers of Alateen, the probation office, and lay counselors of Family Services were included for teens who want to seek help.

Sixth body found in Rio Grande

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — After the discovery of six bodies of young women in or near the Rio Grande in the past month, authorities are warning women to stay clear of the river at night.

Detective Sgt. Jimmy Apodaca of the police department in Juarez — El Paso's sister city across the Mexican border — said a body discovered on Wednesday had been in the body for some time.

"We don't know who she is at this time," he said. Apodaca said the condition of the body found Wednesday made it difficult to tell the age of the woman, the cause of death, or whether she had been sexually assaulted. She was wearing slacks and a blouse.

Francisco Flores, head of an investigative group of the Mexican state judicial police, said Juarez law enforcement officers have begun combing the river with 30 men from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. daily in an "Operation Rio Bravo."

"We're warning girls not to hang out at the river at night," he said. Four of the women found were raped and strangled. In another case, police say a woman drowned in the river, and foul play is not suspected.

Three of the women who were apparently slain were found on the Mexican side of the border, and those cases are being handled by Juarez police.

Panel says abandon experiment

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal court review panel has recommended the state abandon an experiment in which nurses and therapists were also used as caretakers for the mentally ill in state hospitals.

The Austin American-Statesman said Wednesday that that care of the mentally ill has deteriorated since the experiment began.

Licensed vocational nurses and therapists have been used as mental health workers on an experimental basis since September because the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation does not have enough mental health workers to meet staff-patient ratios ordered by the court, the American-Statesman said.

Mental health workers, who are the lowest-paid ward employees, keep order among the patients and help with bathing, eating and other basic needs.

"The review panel concludes that it was an error to accept the compromise of the therapy technicians and LVNs in the first place," said the panel in a report obtained by the American-Statesman.

"This error needs to be corrected by requiring the hiring and maintained employment of adequate numbers of mental health workers," the report said.

Traces of dioxin widespread

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists are having difficulty pinpointing the human health hazards of dioxin because people in industrial societies often carry traces of the toxic chemical in their fatty tissue, a researcher says.

Recent findings suggest "the entire industrial world adult population was contaminated with dioxins," not just people exposed to it in specialized settings. Dr. Arnold Schecter said Wednesday at a meeting of the American Chemical Society.

The findings also suggest that human breast milk in the United States may contain worrisome levels of the chemical, which may cause cancer, said Schecter, professor of preventive medicine at the Upstate Medical Center of the State University of New York at Binghamton.

Levels averaging about 7 parts per trillion have been found in fat samples from residents of the United States and Canada, according to data Schecter presented. The levels were for the most dangerous form of dioxin — 2,3,7,8-TCDD.

Nobody knows how dangerous those levels are, said Schecter. The substance's effect on humans is being debated by scientists, but it has been associated in industrial studies with such things as liver damage and a serious skin disease called chloracne. Animal studies suggest a link to cancer.

Lady arrested for carrying bomb

LONDON (AP) — Police today arrested a woman suspected of trying to carry a bomb aboard an El Al Israel Airlines flight at Heathrow Airport, Scotland Yard said.

The London airport's busy Terminal 1 was cleared and flights suspended as police searched for a man also suspected of being involved, a Scotland Yard spokesman said.

Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad was called in. The woman had checked in for the El Al flight and had passed immigration controls when she was found to be carrying "a suspect explosive device," said the Scotland Yard spokesman, who refused to be identified, citing police regulations.

No details about the suspects, their identities or nationalities were disclosed.

An El Al clerk who declined to give her name said the flight was bound for Tel Aviv, Israel.

Gunmen attack former residence

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen in a speeding car fired a fusillade of rocket-propelled grenades at the former residence of the British ambassador in Moslem west Beirut today, damaging the mansion.

Police said there were no casualties among the 12 Lebanese servants and gardeners at the British-owned building in the Batrakieh neighborhood. The British Embassy residence was moved Christian east Beirut last year.

The Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio station said it received a claim from an anonymous telephone caller that the building was rocketed by a pro-Libyan guerrilla unit, the Omar Mukhtar Squads.

Several Palestinian and leftist Lebanese groups have vowed strikes at British and American targets in retaliation for Tuesday's U.S. bombing raids on Libya.

Stalin's daughter to have flown

MOSCOW (AP) — Josef Stalin's daughter has left the Soviet Union for the United States, an airline official said today. It was the second time Svetlana Alliluyeva has left her native land in a restless odyssey to find happiness.

Heinz Lanz, Swissair manager in Moscow, said Miss Alliluyeva, the only daughter of the dictator who ruled this country with an iron hand for 29 years, left Moscow Wednesday on a Swissair flight to Zurich.

He said she was booked to travel on to Chicago the same day. There was no confirmation that she had arrived in Chicago, and no information as to her final destination.

Americans to evacuate Sudan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moammar Khadafy is alive but he may be wounded, he may have fled into the desert and his opponents may be "trying to take matters into their own hands," say administration officials sifting through intelligence from Libya.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, in Boston on a speaking trip, said reports of gunfire in Tripoli could indicate "there may well be some people ... who are trying to take matters into their own hands."

A congressional source said intelligence reports indicated that foes of Khadafy had returned to Tripoli. Sources in both the administration and Congress, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was known to be friction between the army and Khadafy's headquarters guard.

ABC News, quoting U.S. intelligence sources, said there were reports of mutiny at the Tarkunah army base, south of Tripoli. The network said there were reports that Libyan air strikes were used against Libyan army units.

However, the network said there was no indication any particular group had moved to seize power.

At the same time, government sources said the Reagan administration had received intelligence indicating Khadafy had fled his Tripoli headquarters and was probably "someplace in the middle of the desert."

"He has several times before gone into the desert when things got tight in Tripoli," the official, who declined use of his name, said. "He recharges his batteries in the desert."

Intelligence information reaching the government also reportedly indicated Khadafy may have been wounded in this week's raid. There was no information on the nature of the wound, if any, or on his location in the desert.

Khadafy appeared on Libyan television Wednesday night, condemning the United States for its attack and telling Americans, "We will not kill your children." The Libyan leader's adopted baby daughter was reported killed in the raid.

Meantime, officials said the administration was preparing to evacuate many Americans from neighboring Sudan, where a U.S. Embassy employee was shot following Monday night's U.S. bombing raid on Libya.

There also has been an influx of Libyans into the country and massive anti-American demonstrations in the capital city of Khartoum.

The victim, identified by a colleague at the Khartoum embassy as William J. Calkins, 33, was evacuated to a hospital in Jidda, Saudi Arabia. He was in serious condition with a single bullet wound in the head, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said.

The department, citing the Privacy Act, would not release the victim's name.

A department official, declining to be named publicly, said Americans and their dependents would take regular flights out of the country.

Officials, citing security reasons, declined to say when the evacuation would take place. There have been about 200 American officials, with an equal number of dependents, and about 700 other Americans in Sudan.

OPEC

he replied, "Price war or no price war."

He was referring to the assertion by several OPEC nations, including his own, that Saudi Arabia was striving to drive oil prices even lower in a bid to force non-OPEC oil producers to cut their production.

Without an accord this week, oil prices would be expected to continue at current levels, or possibly fall further, analysts say. Prices in the world market have slumped to the current levels ranging between $11 and $13 a barrel from about $31 last December.

White House struggled on decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The biggest problem of a free democracy is that you can't do very many things secretly," one White House aide observed this week after the surprise bombing raid against Libya.

This administration, despite President Reagan's constant complaints to the contrary, has been more effective than most in cutting off the flow of information about the president's work behind closed doors.

Nevertheless, much was known about White House intentions leading up to the attack itself.

Reagan reiterated his willingness to retaliate for terrorist acts against Americans if he could determine responsibility. And U.S. officials spoke openly of the strength of their evidence tying Col. Moammar Khadafy's regime to the fatal bombing of a West Berlin nightclub.

Senior administration officials even disclosed, almost a week before the air raid, that Reagan's key advisers were agreed that he should take military action to punish the perpetrators of the April 5 disco bombing. They even noted that Reagan's hard-line aides had been joined by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who in the past had opposed retaliatory raids out of concern for the innocent and the long-range effects of such a policy.

The officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said no time or targets had been selected, although Reagan himself has since told USA Today he knew on April 9 — five days before the attack — when and where the strikes would occur. He said he was careful not to say so as he answered a myriad of questions about Libya that night during a nationally broadcast news conference.

About the same time, Pentagon officials disclosed that two U.S. aircraft carriers were canceling port calls and returning to stations in the Mediterranean.

Their movements were used in the days to come as an indicator of Reagan's intentions, but observers were misled when the flattops seemed to be in a holding pattern off Sicily. The big ships actually moved in under cover of darkness to take up stations off Libya just before the attack began.

By the end of the week, members of Congress were complaining the administration wasn't keeping them informed of developments, and several warned that the president was required by the War Powers Act to consult Congress before attacking Libya.

"Any public discussion or notification could have jeopardized the mission," said one White House official, speaking on condition he not be identified. "I realize that's always open to interpretation, but I lean toward the military view, that the element of surprise can be critical. The less notice, the greater likelihood of success, and the less danger to the lives of the pilots involved."

Gunmen wanted by state

HARLINGEN, Texas — Someone was murdered every four hours in Texas during 1985, according to law enforcement estimates.

Unfortunately, too many of the killings were typical of the December murder of Francisco Bustamante.

Police reports indicate that Bustamante, 31, had just been released from prison. On December 5, he got into an argument with another man at the Coffee House Bar in Harlingen.

Witnesses said that at about 10:00 p.m. the two men went outside, apparently to settle their differences.

One of the men walked over to a black pickup truck parked in front of the bar and pulled out a short-barreled shotgun, observers told investigators.

The gunman fired one round at Bustamante, but the blast missed him and hit the outside wall of the bar. Two patrons inside the bar were struck by some of the shotgun pellets and were injured.

Bustamante tried to run from his assailant, police said, but a second shot fired by the gunman struck him in the left side and he fell to the ground.

The gunman then walked over to Bustamante and fired a third round at point blank range, killing him instantly.

Report cards out next Friday petition." But Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois disagreed. He said that enough conservative Democrats support the Republican position so that "given a clean shot" at Contra aid, "we'll win."

Investigators say the offender then jumped into his pickup truck and fled the scene. The pickup was later recovered in a secluded area southwest of Harlingen.

Witnesses identified the gunman as Florentino Garcia Aceves, 24, of Harlingen. Detectives say there apparently had been some bad blood between Aceves and Bustamante that culminated in the fatal shooting.

Aceves is described as being 5-7, 150 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. He is possibly wearing a beard and has a bite scar on his left cheek. He has a tattoo with the name "Marcy" on his right arm.

This week Aceves has been added to the Texas Most Wanted list. A reward of up to $1,000 is being offered by the Governor's Office for information leading to Aceves' capture.

Anyone with information about Aceves' possible location is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Antique Show, Sale set this weekend

The public is reminded of L'Allegra Study Club's Annual Antique Show and Sale to be held this weekend at the Hereford Community Center.

The event is planned from noon until 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Price of admission is $2 per person and the ticket will be good for all three sale days. They may be purchased from any club member or at the door.

Also, scheduled Saturday from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m., will be the club's geranium sale. This year there will be four-and-a-half inch potted geraniums for sale for $2.50. All those attending this event are requested to use the center's west entrance.

There are approximately 19 dealers that will be displaying their merchandise from Texas, Missouri, Indiana, Colorado and New Mexico. Some of the items to be featured include furniture, nautical articles, silver, linens, primitives, quilts, coffee and tobacco tins, baskets, advertising signs, Oriental art, dolls, toys, military and political paraphanelia, Depression glass and jewelry.

An additional feature during the sale will be door prizes to be given throughout each day of the show. Local businesses who are donating merchandise include Arrowhead Mills, Inc., C. Ramirez and Sons

Mexican Food Restaurant, Cabochon, Caison House Restaurant, Caryn's Hallmark Shop, Dos Caballeros Mexican Food, Etcetera, Finishing Touches, First National Bank, Flowers West, Gaston's, Grandma's Korner Too, Helen's, Hereford State Bank, K-Bob's Steak House, Little's, Louise's, McLain Garden Center, Mrs. Abalos Lil Charro Too, Pants Cage, Park Ave. Florist, Pizza Hut, Pizza Mill and Sub Factory, Smith's Food and Drug, Ranch House Restaurant, The Vogue and Wishes.

Proceeds from this year's show will be used to purchase a new defibrillator-external pacemaker-cardiac monitor for the emergency room at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

May Kay McQuigg is the show chairman and she is being assisted by Kitty Gault and Ella Marie Veigel.

Geranium Sale

In conjunction with the Annual Antique Show and Sale this weekend at the Community Center, L'Allegra Study Club members will also be selling geraniums. All proceeds will be used to purchase a new defibrillator-external pacemaker-cardiac monitor for the emergency room at Deaf Smith General Hospital. Displaying the potted plants are club members, from left, Jan Weishaar, Judy Wall and Cathy Guseman.

Book reviewed at CowBelles luncheon

Helen Rose reviewed the book "Cattle Empire" by Lewis Nordyke when members of the Hereford CowBelles met Tuesday for a covered dish luncheon at the Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

The meeting was called to order by Dee Ann Trotter, president, and Della Hutchins gave the invocation.

In 1984, the United States admitted 843,903 immigrants to its shores. Between 1820 and 1984, the U.S. had admitted a total of 51,966,349 immigrants.

The flag of Denmark is the oldest unchanged national flag in existence, dating back to the 13th century.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Juanita Bowles, secretary, and the treasurer's report was submitted by Zula Arney.

Charmayne Klett gave a report on the spring convention and nutri-facts which is being introduced in retail grocery stores around the country.

It was announced that an executive meeting is set for April 29 at the Caison House.

The next meeting of the CowBelles will be at the Hereford Community Center May 20. Lou Ann Smoot, beef industry council member of Austin, will be conducting a workshop on Nutri-Facts. Anyone interested in learning more about this topic is welcome to attend.

Visitors welcomed by Bippus Club members

Mrs. Charles Higgins and Mrs. Inman Larson, both of Hereford, were welcomed as guests when members of Bippus Extension Homemakers Club met recently in the home of Mrs. C.F. Homfeld.

Roll call was answered with "favorite home remedies my mother used."

During the business session, members voted to buy two trees to plant at the Bippus Community building. Also, a tree planting and game night supper was scheduled for April 26 at 6 p.m. Everyone was asked to bring sandwiches and cookies.

In conjunction with the Texas sesquicentennial celebration, Alta Mae Higgins presented a program on Texas. To illustrate her talk, she used the Texas, Sesquicentennial and United States flags. She also used the state flower, bluebonnet, and the yellow rose of Texas.

Other articles used by the speaker included a large poster with a Texas map which was surrounded by pictures of the Alamo, the mockingbird, Sam Houston San Jacinto monument, all of which are important to Texas history. Mrs. Higgins presented each member with a list of books about Texas and suggested that all Texans should read at least one book relating to the state.

Others present at the meeting were five club members and hostess and three children.

Celebration of Texas topic of club program

Argen Draper presented a program on "Let's Celebrate Texas" when members of Cultural Extension Homemakers Club met recently.

Edith Hunter, vice-president, called the meeting to order and asked for prayer, the Pledge of Allegiance and the opening exercise.

Vernis Parsons, hostess, introduced Draper who quoted from William B. Travis, "I'll never surrender or retreat. I'm determined to sustain myself as long as possible and die like a soldier who never forgot his own honor or that of his country."

She also said that April 21, 1836, Sam Houston won Texas independence in the battle of San Jacinto.

Draper presented members with a list of books to read and gave each a test on Texas facts. She concluded her program by saying, "Uniqueness of Texas is more than a common heritage. It is a spirit, a style, a pride and a special bond between all citizens unlike any other, giving a strong feeling of independence."

The next meeting will be with Raylene Smith. Parsons served refreshments to Bertha Dettman, Byrdie Fellers, Wilma Goetsch, Jewell Hargrave, Edith Hunter, Jewel Rogers, Mary Lou Spinhirne, Virginia Summers, Marie Thames, Esther Walton and Carrie Mae Doak.

Texas sesquicentennial to be observed by local lodges

Members of Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met Tuesday evening. It was announced that the group, as well as the Hereford Odd Fellow Lodge No. 476, will be observing the Texas sesquicentennial when they host the Panhandle Association of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs April 26-27.

The sesquicentennial fact for the evening was that the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Grand Lodge of the Republic of Texas was organized in 1841.

During the business session, committees reported on progress being made in preparation for the P.H.A. business meeting and banquet.

Also, with vice-grand Glessie Shelton presiding, there were 14 visits and 22 cheer cards reported.

Lodge Deputy Lydia Hopson reviewed the yearbook of Ruby Johnson, president of Rebekah Assembly of Texas.

Glessie Shelton and Anna Conklin were co-hostess of the fellowship hour. Others attending were Hopson, Karrol Rettman, Susie Curtsinger, Ada Hollabaugh, Wallace Shelton, Ben Conklin, Anthony Iribeck, Jo Iribeck, Peggy Lemons, Ursalee Jacobsen, Faye Brownlow, Leona Sowell, Dorothy Lundry, Fern Durham, O.E. Durham and Roberta Combs.

DATE BOOK

April 17, 1986

Today is Independence day in Syria. It is the 107th day of 1986 and the 29th day of spring.

TODAY'S HISTORY: On this day in 1961, Cuba's "Bay of Pigs" was invaded by Cuban exiles who had been trained, armed, and directed by the United States. Cuban Premier Fidel Castro easily repulsed this attempt to overthrow his government.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS: Nikita Khrushchev (1894); William Holden (1918); Harry Reasoner (1923).

TODAY'S QUOTE: "I don't like life here in New York. There is no greenery. It would make a stone sick." — Nikita Khrushchev.

TODAY'S MOON: First quarter.

TODAY'S BARBS BY PHIL PASTORET
Financial facts made easy: "Hedge funds" are what you lay out for bushes that fall to leaf-out come summer.

Big As Texas

Becky Parks and Rachel Herrera measured to prove this Sesquicentennial cake was 70 x 20 inches. The Future Homemakers of America and the Home Economics Related Occupations classes made and decorated the cake for the Northwest Primary program held Tuesday night. It took 18 mixes to assemble the giant cake.

Officers installed by Draper

Argen Draper installed new officers when members of La Afflatus Estudio Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Emily Suggs.

Jennie B. Terrell will serve as president; Mary Williamson, vice-president; and Aileen Montgomery, secretary-treasurer. Draper used as her theme "Women Patriots".

The brief business meeting was conducted by Terrell. Members completed plans for the club's last spring meeting. The group will visit the Herrington House in Amarillo and then will meet for lunch.

Members also voted to make donations of $50 each to Operation Good Shepherd, the Deaf Smith County Library and the Deaf Smith County Historical Museum.

Others attending included Eva Gilliland, Alberta Higgins, Lydia Hopson, Bea Hutson, Lola Jewell, Allyne Johnson, Della Stagner, Pet Ott, Martha Sue Noel, Louise Kenney and Virginia Beasley.

Alexander named to society

Baylor University student Paula Esther Alexander, a biology major from Hereford, has been named to the prestigious Phi Beta Kappa scholastic society.

The initiation ceremony was held recently on the Baylor campus.

Phi Beta Kappa, founded in 1776 at the College of William and Mary in Virginia, is an honorary society for college students of unusually high scholastic ability. Membership eligibility is based on broad cultural interests and undergraduate scholarship in courses of liberal arts and sciences.

Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa have been established at 228 American universities. Baylor's chapter is one of six in Texas. The Baylor chapter was granted in 1976.

Hereford resident inducted

Jeffrey Shire, son of Al and Marsha Shire of Hereford, was among 15 West Texas State University students to be honored by induction into the Delta Xi Chapter of Beta Beta Beta, the national biological honor society.

The initiation banquet was held April 3.

To be considered for induction, a student must have completed four courses in biology and have a 3.0 grade-point average overall, including at least 3.0 in all science courses.

Polish partitions

For 133 years, between 1785 and 1918, Poland didn't exist. The last of three partitions among Russia, Prussia and Austria erased the nation of Poland from the map of Europe.

POLLY'S POINTERS

New rules make canning safer

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — I've been canning for 40 years, but I'm concerned about the methods I've been using. I always cold pack my tomatoes, processing them for 35 minutes. I recently read that quarts should be processed for 50 minutes. I've been fortunate in that I've never had any spoilage, but would like to know if I should continue using my old method.

Also, how about canning pickles? I've been told that the jars should be put into hot water after packing the cucumbers and adding the boiling brine. Once I pour the brine on the cucumbers and tightly seal the jars, I consider the job done. The pickles always turn out OK the way I've been doing it, but I would like to know what is really correct. — LUCILLE

DEAR LUCILLE — Canning season is almost upon us, so it's a perfect time to review safe canning practices.

Food scientists are always coming up with new information in the area of preserving food. That's why the old ways are not always considered safe today. You're wise to question your traditional methods if more recent information shows that they may not be the best.

A couple of years ago, the U.S. Department of Agriculture revised its recommendations regarding canning tomatoes. They no longer recommend cold-packing tomatoes. Rather, the tomatoes should be hot packed (brought to boiling before placing in jars), then processed for 45 minutes for quarts and 35 minutes for pints. It was found that cold-packing tomatoes was not always adequate to prevent spoilage or the growth of harmful microorganisms.

Similarly, the USDA now recommends that all pickles be processed in a boiling water bath after packing in jars and adjusting the lids. Processing times vary according to recipes, however, generally 10 minutes is adequate for pints, and quarts up to 20 minutes. This not only ensures that the pickles will not spoil, but also causes the jars to seal properly. Avoid overprocessing since too long a time in the water bath can cause pickles to lose their crispness.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Canning Fruits, Tomatoes and Pickles," which has complete directions for boiling water bath canning, processing times for the most popular fruits, pickles and tomatoes, and recipes for fruit butters and dilled green beans. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

Ann Landers

Obedience schools

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend tearfully told me she is going to put her dog to sleep because "he is totally out of control." This 3-year-old collie that she's had since a puppy has not been housebroken or taught to sit.

Another sad story: Our neighbors have a beautiful cocker spaniel puppy. "Ginger" runs out of the house every time the door is opened. He refuses to come back when they call him so they leave the door open and wait until he decides he's ready to return home.

These people paid $300 for this bright little dog, but they haven't bothered to put a collar with an ID on him.

What can a person do about such sad situations? Both dogs are fed and sheltered better than a lot of people I know, but instead of lying at their masters' feet beside the hearth they are chewing the rugs to shreds.

Why do people assume that the cute cuddly puppy they bring home will grow up knowing not to jump all over people, chew the furniture, snap at small children and drag bones from the dinner table into the living room?

You printed "A Dog's Plea" recently. I'd like to add the following lines:

Please give me loving discipline and training. Without these the relationship we both want will become a nightmare of frustration and anger and everybody loses.—C.C.

DEAR C.C.: I hope you offered to find a home for Dog No. 1. Regarding the second situation, people who don't want to take the time to train their puppies should be told about obedience schools.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister and her husband came to our home for a lovely filet mignon dinner and a game of bridge last Saturday night. In the middle of dinner my brother-in-law left the table, walked into my spotless kitchen and threw up in the sink. He returned to the dining room and said nothing.

I did not discover what he had done until I went into the kitchen to carry out the plates. I called my sister in, handed her the sponge and told her to please clean up the mess. She was just as horrified as I.

The following morning Sis called to tell me she asked her husband on the way home why he threw up in the kitchen sink. He replied, "Because I felt like it." Have you ever heard of such behavior? Any suggestions?—M.M.B. IN BETHESDA

DEAR BETH: The next time you see your brother-in-law, inform him that if he ever needs to throw up in your home again, he should use the toilet—or it will be the last time you invite him for a meal. My apologies to those of you who are reading this at the breakfast table. I'm typing it at night.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A couple of years ago you described in your column what happens to a car when it hits a tree going 60 miles an hour. I never thought seriously about wearing my seat belt until you pointed out that when a car crashes, the front end has stopped moving, but the rear end is still going 60 miles an hour. Those few lines have made me buckle up automatically. Please, Ann, save a few more lives by running that article again.—SAVED IN CHARLOTTE, N.C.

DEAR CHAR: I don't need to run it again. You picked out the most powerful sentences. I thank you on behalf of those people whose lives you may have saved.

DR. GOTT

Make a habit of good health

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Could you write a column regarding the responsibility of each individual toward his or her health?

DEAR READER — I, too, have addressed this topic in the past.

In the final analysis, each of us is responsible for his or her health. Many of the world's health problems are beyond the control of the individual, however. I have in mind the consequences of war, famine and natural disaster. Nonetheless, in the Western world we seem to bring calamity on ourselves by smoking, drinking alcohol, eating fatty diets, avoiding exercise and doing (or not doing) a whole array of things to ourselves. For this we must assume individual responsibility for this. Doctors can help people by educating them and treating them when necessary, but our roles are limited. I wish that more patients were more willing to "own" their health, rather than placing the burden of responsibility upon the medical profession or society as a whole.

DEAR DR. GOTT — From all that I've read, I fall into a high-risk category for breast cancer: (1) I am 31 years old, with no children, (2) I have fibrocystic disease, and (3) I have large cysts in one breast. Should I leave well enough alone or should I visit a surgeon? There's no history of cancer in my family. How often should I have mammograms?

DEAR READER — From the information you have given me, I am not at all sure that you are in a "high-risk category" for breast cancer. Breast cysts do not necessarily predispose you to cancer, and none of your relatives have had breast malignancies. On the other hand, you are obviously concerned about future problems.

I think your best approach would be to find a gynecologist with whom you feel comfortable and in whom you have confidence. This doctor can examine you at periodic intervals and, depending on the condition of your breasts, advise further testing.

In my opinion, two approaches are vital at this point: You need to learn breast self-examination and practice it faithfully and regularly, and you should have a baseline mammogram for comparison to future studies. The decision about surgical drainage of your breast cysts is one best left to the judgment of your gynecologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm an elderly lady who used to have to put an extra blanket on her feet at night. Now they get so hot — day and night — that I have to run cool water over them. What's going on?

DEAR READER — You may be suffering from either a circulatory abnormality or from a nerve malfunction called neuropathy. See a doctor for a thorough evaluation.

DEAR DR. GOTT — The doctor says my bladder has dropped, but doesn't want to do anything about it yet. When the time comes, should I have surgery or should I have a ring inserted?

DEAR READER — A "dropped bladder" is common in older women who have had children. It can cause poor control of urine-flow, primarily incontinence. If you are experiencing difficulty, a gynecologist may advise surgery to resuspend the bladder in a more normal position. Some doctors use rings or pessaries, rather than surgery, for this purpose. I think the best approach in your case would be to obtain an opinion from a doctor whose judgment you trust. Either option may be appropriate for you, as may a leave-it-alone attitude.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Please settle an argument. A male member of my family says you can only be an alcoholic if you drink something that is 86 proof, such as vodka or whiskey. I tell him that beer and wine are just as bad. What do you think?

DEAR READER — I think you're right. Alcohol is alcohol; it does as much damage in the form of "light" beer as it does in the form of "white lightning," a virtually 100-percent alcohol beverage.

Alcoholism is a disease of denial; it's a disease that tells its victim that no problem exists. One of the alcoholic's favorite ploys is "controlled drinking;" this may include substituting beer and wine for hard stuff. The chemical and health results are the same in a wine-alcoholic as they are in a patient addicted to liquor.

I hope the male member of your family is holding an opinion based on ignorance, rather than taking a position that sounds like a justification for continued drinking. Show him my response to your question; his reaction may tell you a lot.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Several years ago my grandmother got "sinus tablets." The prescription can be refilled whenever she wants and the doctor never checks to see if the pills are doing her any good. Could they be hurting her?

DEAR READER — Possibly. In my opinion, any patient on a prescription medication should be checked periodically. In my view, a doctor who fails to insist on regular followups is not a good physician. Frankly, I'm surprised that the pharmacist doesn't refuse to fill the prescription every year. In my experience, most reputable druggists require that the physician renew a long-term prescription annually.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I had a terrible allergic reaction to my sister-in-law's cats. Three days later I came down with a very bad arthritis attack that lasted two-and-a-half months. Could the allergic reaction have triggered this?

DEAR READER — Although the sequence of events you describe is possible, it would be very unusual. Many forms of arthritis appear to be caused by an auto-immune phenomenon; people seem to become allergic to their own tissues. Cross-reaction is an unlikely cause of your problem. Nonetheless, I cannot dismiss the relation out of hand. Allergies can provoke mysterious reactions.

No such thing as a barrel of oil

AUSTIN (AP) — With crude oil prices down to about $12 or $13 a barrel, why not buy one?

The steep drop in oil prices offers a cut-rate chance to become a Texas oilman or oilwoman, albeit in a small way.

Bubbling crude. Texas tea. Black gold. Your own barrel of it.

Can a Texan buy a single barrel of oil? Apparently not for $12.

This is an exercise for Texans who are oil illiterate, those who believe that gasoline pumps are stationed wherever oil has been struck.

And isn't it fortunate that those finds have been along major highways, and that leaded and unleaded are found next to each other?

The first lesson is that a barrel of oil does not include a barrel. It is simply a measurement — 42 gallons. Oil is not loaded in barrels.

"That was something out of the 19th century," said John Cassel of the Texas Oil Marketers Association. So, the first step is to get a barrel.

"One that would hold oil without leaking," advises James Leonard, an Austin oil producer.

You cannot get into the oil buying business unless you sign in at the Texas Railroad Commission as an oil purchaser.

"You'll probably have to hire a lawyer," Leonard said.

Once you fill out the forms, you have to notify the commission about your intended purchase. Commission spokesman Brian Schaible said you could either file in writing or attend the monthly "oil allowable" hearing at which the big boys stand up and announce how many thousands of barrels per day they intend to buy.

"The law and our rules say you have to tell us when you are going to buy oil and how much. If it's a one-time, one-barrel thing, we would probably not be overzealous in rushing out to advise you of your rights," Schaible said about buying a barrel without commission permission.

Also, somewhere along the way you'll find that all those $12 and $13 figures you've been seeing for a barrel of oil refer to oil futures. The "spot market" prices have been around $20 per barrel.

Step two: Finding your oil. Contrary to popular belief among the oil illiterate, crude is not sold at West Texas roadside stands the way watermelons are sold in East Texas.

"Really the most practical thing would be to go to a refinery and buy a barrel before they refine it," Schaible advised.

"I don't know what the shelf life of a barrel of oil is," he said when asked about potential storage problems.

"The shelf life? About a few million years. I don't think it will go bad on you," said Conoco spokesman Tom DeCola of Houston.

Would Conoco be willing to dish up a single barrel?

"We'd be happy to sell you 100,000 barrels. Would you like to buy 100,000 barrels?" DeCola added.

No. The Austin phone book carries JM Petroleum under the heading of Oil-Crude-Purchasing.

"You could talk to an independent producer, but he wouldn't have the means of metering one barrel to you. I would think it would probably cost you a lot more than $12," said Spencer Falls at JM.

Austin producer J.A. Spiller also tried to help.

"To buy one barrel of oil? You can probably buy a barrel from anybody in the field, if the lease is not under contract to sell to somebody else," he said.

Most of it apparently is under contract. Not to worry, Spiller said. You can go the P-4 route.

"We could file a P-4 form at the commission. I could file a P-4, take the people off one day and put you on, sell you one barrel. You file all the necessary papers, set yourself up as a purchaser of crude oil," he said in what began as a genuine attempt to be helpful.

Julian Martin, executive vice president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said a purchaser also would need proof that he knew how to handle oil.

"There are a lot of substances in there that can't be poured down the street," he said.

Martin's best advice on securing a single barrel of crude was to call a "reclaimer" who refilters dirty oil. Buying fresh crude would be a "rather substantial problem," he said.

"It's going to cost you about $300 to get going with it," Martin said.

Charles Ratliff, an Austin oil producer, said the process could be simple — if you know where to go.

"You go right to the wellhead where they have the big tanks, stick your barrel under the little spigot and they'll turn it on," he said.

"Nobody would do it for 12 bucks."

Richard Hudson of Houston, chairman of the oil marketers association, said you probably can't get one barrel of crude oil.

"No one can economically handle a one barrel unit. One barrel of crude? You can't crack it, you can't distill it, you can't refine it," he said.

"Not too many folks want that gunky black crude that comes out of the ground," said Schaible of the Railroad Commission.

Vice-president offers peace plan for denomination

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The vice president of the Southern Baptist Convention has offered a four-point plan that could restore harmony to the denomination.

The Rev. Winfred Moore also expressed interest in running for the presidency of the denomination at the annual convention this June in Atlanta, but he would not commit himself.

Differences between moderate and conservative elements among the denomination's 14 million members flared into conflict during the 1985 annual convention held in Dallas.

Accusations were made that the moderate voice had been stifled by improper parliamentary procedures, blocking substitutions for an administration-picked committee which names trustees to 20 national agencies and institutions.

At the convention, Moore was chosen as vice president after he was defeated by the fundamentalist-backed Rev. Charles Stanley of Atlanta for the presidency.

Moore, reached at his Amarillo home by telephone Wednesday, said he wrote the plan to answer questions from other Baptists on what he would do to solve conflict if president. The proposal details the distribution of power, appointment process and parliamentary procedures.

He said his plan would increase the distribution of power and include smaller churches by allowing no more than two individuals from the same church to be asked to serve on boards and agencies.

The plan would also ask for nominations from each state convention president, Woman's Missionary Union president, state executive director and chairman of the state convention executive board.

Presently, nominations are on an at-large basis, Moore said. "I think these are the people elected in their respective states who have more knowledge of the people of the state."

Moore, pastor of First Baptist Church in Amarillo, said people asked to serve on boards and agencies should be from churches with a history of supporting the Southern Baptist Cooperative Program, the denomination's plan for financial support of its organizations.

He also called for a professional parliamentarian at the national conventions to maintain proper procedures and said proper identification should be used when ballots are received by delegates.

In the Dallas convention, one of the dividing issues was whether the Bible is inerrant, or without error.

"There is diversity among us all right and always has been diversity in Southern Baptist ranks. When you find 14 million people you're going to have diversity," he said.

"Some of the diversity is theological. There are differences in interpretation. Then of course we've had political activity. We don't really like it but we have it just the same."

He described himself as a moderate conservative, as compared to the fundamentalist conservatives. His backing in the Dallas convention came from the moderate elements.

Moderates and conservatives have been at odds over the leadership of Stanley, who is not eligible for reelection.

The Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis, Tenn., who is considered to represent the conservative wing of the convention, announced his candidacy last week.

DISCLOSURE AND REGULATION

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Securities Act and the Securities Exchange Commission haven't done what they were designed to do with respect to disclosure and the regulation of financial accounting reports, according to George J. Benston.

Benston, of the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management, says the accounting disclosure sections of the act should be repealed and the SEC replaced with a better system.

"There is no reason to believe that presently mandated disclosure benefits investors more than the disclosure previously made voluntarily," Benston says. "But there is good reason to believe that the present system is considerably more expensive than a voluntary system would be."

Local governments to feel oil price dip

AUSTIN (AP) — Local governments in virtually every part of the state will feel the effects of the oil price decrease when they start to collect property taxes in 1987, according to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Cities, counties and school districts may feel the revenue loss more than state government, Bullock said Wednesday.

Bullock has already warned state officials that oil price fluctuations, with spot market prices dropping from $26 a barrel to $13 a barrel, would cost the state $1.3 billion in projected revenue.

"As big as that impact might seem, it could appear small next year when hundreds of Texas cities, counties, school districts and other local governments face the possibility of dramatic reductions in their local tax bases because lower oil prices have cut the taxable value of oil and natural gas deposits," the report said.

The report said if oil is selling for $17 per barrel or less on January 1987, the taxable value of the state's oil and natural gas reserves could drop by between 30 and 50 percent of their current value.

"A 50 percent drop from the 1984 value levels would cut the tax base of local governments by as much as $43 billion," Bullock's office said.

That scenario could leave local governments with the choice of cutting their spending to match the revenue losses or raising taxes — or both.

"The drop will, in one stroke, wipe out a major portion of the tax base — and the ability to raise taxes — of many local governments," Bullock's report said.

The comptroller said the effect of the rapid decline and oil and gas prices will not hit local governments immediately because the property values used to finance their operations for 1986-87 were set on Jan. 1 of this year, before the major price declines.

The lower property tax values will show up on tax rolls developed after Jan. 1, 1987. These values will be used to collect taxes in the fall of 1987 and early 1988 to finance local government operations until May 1988.

Bullock's report gave an example of how many local government might be affected.

"At least 230 of Texas' 254 county governments and as many as 851 of the 1,069 tax collecting school districts included oil and gas deposits on their tax rolls in 1984," the report said.

According to Bullock, "the greatest blow is expected to fall on areas of North Central Texas which lie along a line roughly 100 miles on either side of the city of Abilene running north to the Red River and west along the Oklahoma border from about Wichita Falls to the base of the Panhandle."

Another area to suffer is that around San Antonio and northeast to Giddings, where there are large numbers of "stripper" wells, which produce a few barrels each a day, Bullock said. The price drop could force many of those operators to stop production entirely, Bullock said.

WATER PARTICLES

DENVER (AP) — Within the last 10 years, scientists have been able to detect particles in water to the billionth — even trillionth — degree.

That technology has led to their discovery of infinitesimal amounts of known carcinogens — cancer-causing substances. But, there's no crisis at hand, according to the American Water Works Association. It says biochemists have shown those minute amounts detected are inconsequential to the causes of human cancer. Carcinogens, in fact, are found in many basic foods and beverages at much higher levels than in water, says the association.

Compared to many of the foods and beverages people consume, drinking water is, by far, the safest, it concludes.

Seniors team up for real estate sales

HILLSBORO, Texas (AP)— The best buy on earth is the earth itself, or so goes the motto of the octogenarian real estate team of Enloe Simmons and Frank Marshall.

It was true 63 years ago when Simmons started selling pieces of the planet. It was true when Marshall teamed up with him in 1940. And it's true today.

"What's better?" said Marshall, 82, who still shows houses to customers, though he uses a walker. "You own that dirt, no matter what happens. You can have a business on it or whatever. But that dirt is going to be there tomorrow."

Marshall & Simmons plan to be there, too, right there in the old building across from the City Hall that they've shared since the birth of the partnership.

It's a long, tall closet of a building constructed in the early 1900s, only 14 feet wide but with an antique pressed-metal ceiling at least 22 feet above the floor. The men still use space heaters and manual typewriters in their private cubicles topped with florentine glass.

The office has had nary a touch of cosmetic improvement since they moved in, but they're more than happy with the cracking walls and the antique furniture that surrounds them.

"We don't want to move," Marshall said. "Everybody knows right where we are. We don't do any advertising. Everybody you see coming in here is people we've known for years.

"It's sort of a joke. If the undertaker gets a call to pick me up, he knows to come right here. I'm just not going to be anywhere else."

Neither Marshall nor Simmons is a Hillsboro native, but both cousins moved to the Hill County seat early in their lives to pursue a career.

Simmons, 63, moved to Hillsboro from Nashville, Tenn., in 1921 and began selling real estate in 1923, long before a license was required. In 1936, he moved into his present office when he began working with Marshall's father.

Marshall was born in Abbott, then moved to Hillsboro where he began selling insurance. During a 12-year stay in Dallas, he began selling real estate along with insurance. Realizing he liked real estate better, he returned to Hillsboro and joined Marshall & Simmons.

On a recent business day, Simmons was dressed to kill in his gray suit and hand-tied plaid bow tie that he wore to show a house to customers just moments earlier.

"I taught Troy Dungan to wear a bow tie," Simmons said of the Dallas TV weatherman with Hillsboro roots, who is regionally famous for just such a clothing ornament.

As the brokers talked — Marshall reclining in his chair and Simmons leaning against a doorway in Marshall's cubicle — it was easy to see the respect they have for each other. Both as friends and businessmen.

They view partnership as a marriage, and theirs is a good one.

"If you get along with each other like we do, it's definitely an advantage," Marshall said.

"It's just like getting married," said Simmons, who married at the age of 66 after a 36-year courtship.

"If you get the wrong woman, you're in trouble. But he and I grew up together. He didn't have any brothers and sisters and neither did I."

The partners don't think about retirement. They are still healthy, sharp and enthusiastic about the job.

Marshall uses a walker because he "wore out" his hip over the years. "But the walker just slows you down — that's all."

Added Simmons, "I told my doctor that my joints are still working fine. But the other day I noticed a little screw lying on the desk, and I didn't know where it went. Then I wondered if it might have come from up here," Simmons said, tapping his temple.

"You don't grow old by living a number of years, you grow old by giving up your ideas," Simmons said. "I haven't done it yet, and I don't look forward to ever doing it."

Simmons said he "died twice" on the operating table years ago. He suffered cardiac arrest during surgery for an intestinal obstruction and again during another surgery for a bleeding ulcer.

He's not afraid of dying. Like Marshall, he's satisfied he has used his life to make friends and more friends. They are the people that keep them in business.

"You never saw a hearse pulling a U-Haul," Simmons said. "So build your monuments among your friends. In all the years of doing business, we've never sued anybody and we've never been sued. A lot of people in real estate can't say that."

With that he turned around, bore down on his faithful typewriter and began clanking out a contract for the deal he had just closed.

From oil price drop

Republicans urged to seek political gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Except for those in oil-producing states, Republicans could benefit from a political windfall if the plunge in gasoline prices can be linked to the GOP administration, the House Republican Research Committee says in a memorandum.

Party members in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana "will make do with mixed messages as glad tidings overall are offset by turmoil in certain communities and key industries."

The March 19 memorandum, titled "A GOP Windfall: The Oil Price Plunge and How to Talk About It," offered members tips for telling voters how the oil price decline benefits them and how Reagan is responsible for those benefits.

"I hope the Republican Party doesn't take it on itself to do everything it can to make that a partisan issue," said Republican Rep. Joe Barton, whose East Texas district is coming off an oil boom.

"Because in our state and Louisiana and Oklahoma, it needs to be a non-partisan issue and everybody pull together for the good of our area," he said.

Barton, a freshman whose reelection race is targeted by Democrats, has gone against the Republican congressional tide by favoring an oil import tax.

"I'm on the right side and I don't think it's going to be an issue for me," said Barton.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is pushing for an oil import fee to stabilize prices. His Republican counterpart, Phil Gramm, is opposed to the import fee.

Gramm favors measures to support the banking industry and tax incentives for oil producers instead, an approach also endorsed by other GOP members of the Texas delegation.

Barton said Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., who gave copies of the memorandum to Democratic members of Congress, was trying to paint the Republicans as opponents of producing states and Democrats as "their big friends."

"That's just a bunch of hogwash," Barton said.

Coelho is head of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

In the memorandum, the research committee said Republicans should make sure their constituents link lower prices to Reagan.

Thanks to the decline in gasoline prices, "the annual (average) household budget is $400 stronger than it was pre-Reagan," the memorandum said.

"If Republican members do not stress these points, Democrats will palm off OPEC's collapse as — to use the phrase (Democratic economist) Walter Heller tried in the Wall Street Journal — the luck of the Irish," the memorandum said.

"What themes can help constituents to link their savings to our policy?" the memorandum asked, then gave some suggestions, including "free markets earn their keep," "it's another tax cut," and "the expansion gets a second wind."

"Broadly defined," the memorandum said, "the Carter-Democratic approach of red tape, price controls and weak foreign policy led to gas lines, price hikes and economic stagnation. The Reagan Era has, in every way, produced the opposite. It is fair to invite people to compare."

Downed F-111 may have damaged civilian area

WASHINGTON (AP) — A massive bomb from the American F-111 which was downed during the attack on Libya may have fallen on a neighborhood in Tripoli, damaging civilian homes and the French Embassy, Pentagon officials say.

The search for the lost bomber was called off after Navy ships and planes failed to find any trace of the aircraft or its two-man crew, Adm. William Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said Wednesday.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the Pentagon remained uncertain about the cause of the damage in the civilian area.

"It could have come from the plane that is missing," Weinberger said in Boston. "We just don't have any idea."

"But it's a mile away from any of the target areas, and it was specifically rejected as a target even though there's a large intelligence building right next to the French Embassy," Weinberger said.

Pentagon sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said officials were studying the possibility the bomber was hit by anti-aircraft fire and missed its target when it dropped a 2,000-pound bomb.

"We are confident that there was no mix-up in the targets," one source said. "But if this plane was hit or had internal problems, it could have lost a bomb."

The Newspaper Bible

"YES, I WILL HEAL YOU. BE HEALED!"

Then, leaving the synagogue, He and His disciples went over to Simon and Andrew's home, where they found Simon's mother-in-law sick in bed with a high fever. They told Jesus about her right away.

He went to her bedside, and as He took her by the hand and helped her to sit up, the fever suddenly left, and she got up and prepared dinner for them!

By sunset the courtyard was filled with the sick and demon-possessed, brought to Him for healing, and a huge crowd of people from all over the city of Capernaum gathered outside the door to watch.

So Jesus healed great numbers of sick folk that evening and ordered many demons to come out of their victims. (But He refused to allow the demons to speak, because they knew who He was.)

The next morning He was up long before daybreak and went out alone into the wilderness to pray.

Later, Simon and the others went out to find Him, and told Him, "Everyone is asking for You."

But He replied, "We must go on to other towns as well, and give My message to them too, for that is why I came."

So He traveled throughout the province of Galilee, preaching in the synagogues and releasing many from the power of demons.

Once a leper came and knelt in front of Him and begged to be healed. "If You want to, You can make me well again," he pled.

And Jesus, moved with pity, touched him and said, "I want to! Be healed!"

Immediately the leprosy was gone—the man was healed!

Jesus then told him sternly, "Go and be examined immediately by the Jewish priest. Don't stop to speak to anyone along the way. Take along the offering prescribed by Moses for a leper who is healed, so that everyone will have proof that you are well again."

But as the man went on his way he began to shout the good news that he was healed; as a result, such throngs soon surrounded Jesus that He couldn't publicly enter a city anywhere, but had to stay out in the barren wastelands. And people from everywhere came to Him there.

Football team announced by Fina

Hacker named academic all-state

STEFAN HACKER

The starting quarterback for the 1985 Hereford Whiteface varsity football team has been named to the Fina Texas Academic All-State 1985 High School Football Team, announced today.

Stefan Hacker, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hacker and a senior at Hereford High School, is one of 11 high school seniors chosen for the team.

Each player named to the team will receive a $1,000 college or university scholarship. The academic all-state team will be honored at a banquet in Dallas in June.

Paul Meek, chairman of Fina and a member of the committee of judges that made the final selections, said the 11 players chosen are outstanding scholar-athletes, who combine superior work in the classroom with active participation and leadership in school and community activities.

"This is a group of remarkable young men," Meek said. "Much has been said recently about football players who do unsatisfactory work. These young men, and the hundreds of others who took part in the Fina competition, show marvelous qualities of scholastic ability and leadership.

"It is safe to say that in a few years a great number of them will be holding positions of leadership in government, business and all other aspects of our society. After studying their high school records, I am more confident than ever that our future leaders have good foundations to build on."

About 1,000 athletes were considered by the screening committee. All of them had grade-point averages of 85 or higher, and were in the top 25 percent of their classes.

Hacker, as the Herd's starting quarterback, led District 3-5A in passing with 1,068 yards in 76 completions out of 141 attempts.

Also a strong safety on defense, Hacker's other football statistics included these: five touchdown passes thrown; 90 carries for 223 yards rushing, 2.3 yards per carry, and five touchdowns scored; and a 33.6 yard average in punting.

Hacker was one of the football team captains.

Hacker is a varsity athlete in three sports—basketball and baseball in addition to football. He played at the forward position for the Whiteface basketball team, and is now playing as a leftfielder and pitcher for the Herd varsity baseball team.

In basketball, Hacker averaged 5.0 points, 2.0 rebounds, 1.3 steals and 1.1 assists per game. He shot 39.5 percent from the field and 66.7 percent from the free throw line.

Hacker is one of the Hereford High School boys selected for "Who's Who Among America's High School Students." He was voted the "Most Intellectual" boy student by the HHS faculty, and is a finalist for the U.S. Presidential Scholarships, which will be awarded by President Ronald Reagan.

Voted as class president his sophomore and senior years, Hacker has served as Key Club president and lieutenant governor. He has been in the National Honor Society all three years in high school.

A piano player, Hacker won five consecutive superiors in Festival Gold Cup Award competition and won a Golf Certificate Award. He is an Eagle Scout, and a junior deacon at First Christian Church.

His community service activities have included a grass-planting project at a senior citizens park, a tree-planting project at a day care center, a walkathon for the Lung Association, a blood drive, and junior and senior life saving training.

Hacker participated in a church mission trip to San Antonio, where he helped paint and renovate a house for a needy family.

The Fina committee of judges reviewed letters of recommendation as well as the community activities of the 60 finalists.

Recommendations on Hacker included these statements: "Stefan is an... outstanding young man and has contributed in every phase of our community's life," and "He is recognized in our community as a leader among his peers in developing areas of contributions to community, church and school service."

Meek notes that although some of the students named to the academic all-state team had stellar careers in high school football, their football abilities were not factors in the judging.

Any senior football letterman was eligible for consideration. To ensure that high school students from all sections of the state would be selected, Meek said, a geographic distribution formula was followed.

Of the 60 finalists for the all-academics team, 15 were selected from each of four regions in the state. In addition to Hacker, another Hereford School School football player was a finalist from the west region—Brett Clements, a Whiteface linebacker who was named to the all-district 3-5A first defensive team.

The other 10 players named to the academic all-state team are: Steve Sides, Roosevelt High School, Lubbock; Mike Fernandez III, United High School, Laredo; Thomas Goulter Jr., Flour Bluff High School, Corpus Christi; Charles Hobbs, Gregory-Portland High School, Portland; Pat King, Brazos High School, Wallis; Andrew Marusak, Ranger High School, Ranger; Brett Mayes, Denison High School, Denison; James Sandlin, Anahuac High School, Anahuac; and Lance Wright, Corsicana High School, Corsicana.

Meeks notes that eight of the 11 members of the academic all-state team served on student councils at their school and that five have been class presidents. Four of them are Eagle Scouts and four were highly mentioned in the National Merit Scholar program. Nearly all of them were active in church activities.

In addition to Meek, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of American Petrofina, Incorporated, other members of the panel of judges that selected the academic all-state team were: Walter Buckel, publisher of the Lamesa Press-Reporter and president of the Texas Press Association; Charles E. "Joe" Greene, a Dallas businessman and a former All-Pro lineman with the Pittsburgh Steelers; Jim Host, president of Host Communications, Inc., of Lexington, Ky.; Fred Jacoby, commissioner of the Southwest Conference; W.N. "Bill" Kirby, Texas commissioner of education; and Dudley Waller, owner and general manager of radio stations KOOI and KEBE in Jacksonville, Texas, and president of the Texas Association of Broadcasters.

In losing his 12-inning perfect game in the 13th inning in 1959, Harvey Haddix gave up only one hit, Joe Adcock's homer. The winning pitcher in the 1-0 victory for Milwaukee over Pittsburgh, Lew Burdette, allowed 10 hits.

Houston defeats Giants 4-1

Ryan pitches, hits Astros to win

By The Associated Press

At 39, Nolan Ryan still throws smoke, not quite as often as he used to but enough to make young batters blink and wonder how fast he must have been when he broke in 19 years ago.

Ryan's mix of fastballs, curves and changeups kept the youthful San Francisco Giants guessing plenty Wednesday during a rain-swept 4-1 victory by the Houston Astros.

The major league strikeout king not only had control on the mound, fanning nine in 7 2-3 innings, but he came up with his first game-winning hit ever.

The Giants' advertising slogan this year is, "You gotta like these kids," but in this game you had to like the old man.

Ryan struck out hot rookie Will Clark and veteran Bob Brenly twice each. Between the third and seventh innings, Ryan set down 11 straight batters, fanning five.

"It's amazing that he can still throw as hard as he does, maybe in the low 90 to 93 mph range, consistently and then rear back and throw even harder when he has to," said Brenly.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was San Diego 2, Los Angeles 1, and Cincinnati 5, Atlanta 3. St. Louis at New York and Pittsburgh at Philadelphia were postponed by rain.

Ryan also took advantage of what Giants' second-year pitcher Roger Mason called a "way too fat" fastball in the second inning with two out and the bases loaded.

Ryan, who entered the game with a .122 career hitter batting average, lined the pitch to left field and drove in two runs.

He said afterward that he didn't realize that was his first game-winning RBI.

"A big RBI man like me, that is pretty surprising," he added with a wry smile.

The game-winning RBI statistic has been used only since 1980, when Ryan went to Houston after eight years in the American League. But he couldn't recall ever having one in his four years with the New York Mets from 1968 to 1971.

"It was a mistake pitch on (Mason's) part," said Ryan, 2-1. "A pitcher needs to take advantage of every opportunity that arises."

That was all Ryan needed. He allowed six hits, three walks and one unearned run before reliever Dave Smith came in to record his league-leading third save with one-hit pitching over the final 1 1-3 innings.

Ryan's nine strikeouts boosted his career total to 4,101 as he avenged his opening-day loss to the Giants in Houston.

His first strikeout of Brenly ended an early threat following a double by Joel Youngblood and a walk and wild pitch to Jeff Leonard in the first inning.

"Ryan has enough savvy where even on days when he's not feeling great, he's got other things that he can go to," said Mason. "He doesn't just rely on his fastball. He's got a great curve ball to go with it. You can learn a lot by watching him."

Mason, 0-1, allowed five hits and struck out five before leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

The Giants scored an unearned run off Ryan after a walk and an error in the eighth as second baseman Bill Doran lost Brenly's RBI pop fly single in the first bright sunshine of the day.

Padres 2, Dodgers 1

Tom Lasorda is rarely at a loss for words on the subject of baseball, but he readily admits he has no explanation for the Los Angeles Dodgers' record-setting run of futility.

"I've never seen anything like it," the Dodger manager said Wednesday night after his team played its 10th straight one-run game in a 2-1 loss to San Diego. "If somebody had told me something like this would happen, I'd have told them they're crazy."

Simply put, what has happened is that the Dodgers — favored by most to repeat as National League West champions — have lost seven of those games, including the last three in San Diego's final at-bat.

Padres Manager Steve Boros, whose team has won seven of 10 — and shares with the Dodgers the major-league record for consecutive one-run games at the start of a season, also is devoid of a meaningful answer.

"I'd like to be able to explain it, but I can't," Boros said after Graig Nettles' pinch-hit single off reliever Tom Niedenfuer produced the winning run with two out in the ninth inning.

Nettles, whose glove work at third base for the New York Yankees made him a Dodger World Series nemesis long before he joined the Padres, certainly came through with his biggest hit so far this season. He went to the plate mired in a 1-for-16 slump.

"I know relief pitchers don't like to get beat with their second best pitch, so after it got to 3-2 I was looking fastball all the way," Nettles said.

The hit scored Kevin McReynolds from second base.

Dennis Powell, 0-2, making his first start of the year, allowed the Padres just four hits in 8 1-3 innings. Niedenfuer replaced Powell after Powell walked McReynolds.

Steve Garvey grounded out to first, moving McReynolds to second, and Garry Templeton was intentionally walked to bring up Nettles.

His hit made a winner of reliever Rich Gossage, 2-0, who worked the ninth in relief of starter Dave Dravecky.

The 10th consecutive one-run game for both teams is one shy of the National League record for consecutive one-run games in a season.

Reds 5, Braves 3

In his 17th major-league season, Dave Concepcion could be forgiven for relaxing every now and then. But the 37-year-old Cincinnati shortstop didn't stay on top because he'd made a habit of such things.

"I was getting lazy, losing my stroke," Concepcion said when explaining why he showed up 5½ hours early.

The extra batting practice "really worked," said Concepcion, who hit two homers and drove in three runs.

Concepcion started the seventh inning by lining loser Rick Mahler's first pitch over the center-field fence for his first homer of the year to tie the game at 3-3. He also hit a first-pitch homer to left off reliever Bruce Sutter in the eighth. It was the fourth two-homer game of his career, the last time coming June 5, 1981 against Montreal.

Pinch-hitter Tracy Jones had put the Reds ahead — and made a winner of John Denny — with a single later in the seventh.

YMCA 'Fun Trip' planned on Monday

A YMCA "Fun Trip" is scheduled for Monday which will include going to a planetarium and an amusement park.

Signup deadline is Saturday, with a minimum of 20 and maximum of 60 for the trip.

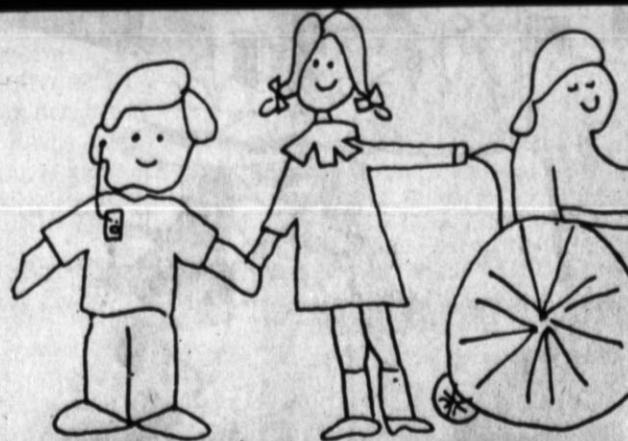

The group will leave the YMCA at 9 a.m. Monday and will be at the Theatre-360 Planetarium at the Discovery Center from 10 a.m. to noon. There will be a puppet show and a "rerun of Halley's Comet," as well as other activities there.

After lunch, the group will go to Wonderland Amusement Park from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. After that, the "Fun Trip" will conclude with games in a park, then return to the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA at 6 p.m.

Cost for YMCA members and caravan members is $10, and for non-member of the YMCA, the cost is $20.

For more information on the "Fun Trip," call the YMCA at 364-6990.

Companies probed by '60 Minutes' see stocks rise, study shows

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Although most businessmen shudder at the prospect of falling under the scrutiny of television's "60 Minutes" crew, a new study suggests an appearance on the show is good news for stock values.

In the study, three North Texas State University finance professors looked at 13 companies that were the subject of "60 Minutes" segments. The companies' stock value rose an average of 12 percent over normal increases during a 15-day period after the broadcasts, according to the study conducted by Sharon Garrison, Wallace Davidson and P.R. Chandrasekaran.

"Our gut reaction was that the effect would be negative — that if Mike Wallace rakes you over the coals, stock would go down," Davidson said. "But it didn't, it went up."

Researchers said the increase may be due to the fact that the exposure, whether positive or negative, results in free advertising for the company. The segments also give companies a chance to air their side of the issue, Chandrasekaran said.

"This may be the only chance the companies have gotten, the only national attention to their side of the issue. So it may have reduced the uncertainties about the realities of the problem," he said.

Don Hewitt, executive producer of the CBS-TV program, said in a telephone interview from New York that he was not surprised by the study's findings.

"I think it all goes back to what Joseph Pulitzer said, 'I don't care what you say about me, just spell my name right.'"

The professors used transcripts of the programs from 1981 to 1983, choosing only the 13 public corporations with stock on the New York or American stock exchanges.

Only one of the "60 Minutes" broadcasts in the study, "The Reselling of Tylenol," was favorable to the company, according to the researchers. The December 1982 segment examined Johnson & Johnson's efforts to re-market Tylenol after a tampering scare.

For the study, the researchers established a stock portfolio for the 13 companies, compiled stock market prices and other financial data and fed it into a computer.

The computer analysis made adjustments for overall market conditions and compared normal stock market price increases with excess increases that could be traced to the "60 Minutes" broadcasts, the researchers said.

WHAT GOES UP MUST COME DOWN

CHICAGO (AP) — The number of 100-story buildings going up is about to come down, says a construction management firm.

The firm, Morse-Diesel Inc., which built the Sears Tower here and New York City's Pan Am Building, says skyscrapers of the future will climb only to 40 or 50 stories.

It says the 40-to-50 story building is more practical and takes two years to build instead of three. A "super-skyscraper" costs $300 million or more, and density-conscious residents are mounting battles to prevent construction of super-skyscrapers, adding another deterrent to constructions which rise 100 or more stories.

Knowledge of insect key to control

Holding Cell

Policing the area for cotton-damaging insects is a major thrust of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Dr. Don Rummel, entomologist, examines a trap into which bollworm moths are lured and captured for a TAES program aimed at predicting migration of the insect to the High Plains.

When it comes to policing cotton fields for damaging insects, the chief investigating detective is Dr. Don Rummel of Lubbock, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologist.

Rummel said knowledge of the destructive pests' lifestyle may be as incriminating as chemical warfare. "To develop an effective control, we have to understand the insect," Rummel said. "We have effective chemical insecticides, but we don't want to depend strictly on them because insects can develop resistance."

"If we know how the insect operates, we may be able to find non-insecticidal control methods," he added.

Historically, the High Plains cotton production area has been considered to have minimum insect problems Rummel noted.

Prior to the 1970's, we had sporadic outbreaks. Generally, the bollworm had a pattern of being a serious problem about every six-eight years," he said. "The majority of the farmers didn't treat at all between that time."

Rummel said recent data indicates that moth immigration from Mexico — where increased acres of corn are being planted — now is believed to be a reason for recurring bollworm problems on the High Plains. Cooperative studies between Rummel and U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists are trying to pinpoint the extent of the attributable factors for moth immigration.

"In the late 1970's, we saw an increase in bollworms, but that was generally related to more corn acres," said Rummel. "In about 1980-81, we began initially looking at overwintering survival, emergence patterns and immigration."

"It was interesting to find that during the early part of the season many of the moths were immigrating from South Texas and northern Mexico," he added. "But we also found that they will overwinter here."

To distinguish the difference in local and alien moths, a team of scientists have set several pheromone traps. When moths are lured into the snare, a notation is made whether the local moths have emerged from overwintering cages. From such information, Rummel said, predictions of bollworm infestation for the upcoming crop year can be made.

"If we see moths before they (local moths) emerge, we know it is immigration," the entomologist explained.

Rummel said some entomologists feel that a joint bollworm control project between Texas and Mexico might be feasible in the future. If the sources of the moths can be pinpointed and migration predicted, it might be cheaper to go to the source (Mexico) and control the worm there," he said.

Locally, the team will continue to monitor weather patterns, pheromone traps and overwintering cages at the Lubbock station. By gathering such information, he said, a precise computer program may be written within the next two years to make accurate and rapid infestation bulletins for farmers.

Rummel said that in conjunction with the prediction information, the scientists will continue researching alternate control methods along with chemical controls.

One promising area is in breeding cotton for earliness, he said, which could allow the plant to make its yield set in hard bolls before the late season infestations reach damaging levels.

With the 1986 crop, Rummel and USDA researcher Dr. J. Quisenberry will plant "fair-sized" plots of an unusually fast fruiting cotton genotype.

"A faster variety with early maturity could help us escape late season bollworm damage," he said, noting that having all of the cotton crop planted within the first few May 1 days of May could also eliminate much of the bollworm problem.

Former ag chief getting 'pushy' about farm exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orville L. Freeman, a former secretary of agriculture and now president of the privately supported Agriculture Council of America, is getting pushy with the Reagan administration over U.S. farm exports.

A week ago Freeman told a House subcommittee that "agricultural exports are a disaster area" and called for "a coherent package of aid measures" to fit the overseas customer's specific situation.

"Foreign policy and diplomacy and economic considerations are hopelessly mixed up," he said. "U.S. aid efforts are not packaged to effectively meet competition from other exporters and to promote market development in the individual countries. In short, the process is a mess."

But Freeman didn't stop with his Capitol Hill appearance. A few days later he fired off a letter to President Reagan to urge the appointment of a White House special assistant for agricultural trade and food aid, a new job authorized by Congress in the Food Security Act of 1985.

The letter, which was made public Wednesday, was endorsed by a number of other groups, including the Association of American Railroads, CARE, National Cooperative Business Association, National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, National Farmers Organization, National Grange, U.S. Overseas Development Committee and U.S. Wheat Associates.

Freeman said the coalition felt the new assistant should have the confidence and strong support of the president, along with the stature, experience in international dealings and keen understanding of American agriculture.

The group recommended four candidates to Reagan: Bill Pearce, former deputy U.S. trade representative, now a senior executive with Cargill Inc.; Rep. Cooper Evans, R-Iowa; Robert Delano, former president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Al Quie, former congressman from Minnesota, now a full-time farmer.

Freeman noted in his letter that the new law calls for the appointment to be made by May 1, 1986.

The 13-year-old Agriculture Council of America was formed as a communications and education organization for agriculture. Freeman, who took charge earlier this year, said the council has been reorganized around a new action program "directed totally at expanding U.S. agricultural exports."

Farm exports, which peaked at $43.8 billion in 1980-81, are forecast by the Agriculture Department at $28 billion this year.

In yet another action, Freeman named a veteran USDA foreign expert as his No. 2 at the council.

Turner L. Oylo, who has been the U.S. agricultural counselor in London since 1981, will take over as ACA's executive director about mid-June.

Oylo, who is retiring from federal service, began his career at USDA in 1962, during the eight-year tenure of Freeman as secretary of agriculture in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. During his career, Oylo has served in a number of foreign assignments, including Paris and Bonn, as well as during the Tokyo Round of trade negotiations.

April named Lamb Month

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was unheralded at the time, but on March 21 Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng signed a proclamation designating April as National Lamb Month.

In his proclamation, Lyng noted that "sheep were first brought to our shores in 1519 by Spanish explorers" and that today the U.S. sheep industry "provides numerous jobs, contributes substantially to the economy and clothes and feeds consumers at home and abroad."

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

GREAT WHITE
Chardonnay, often incorrectly called Pinot Chardonnay, is to white wine what Cabernet Sauvignon is to red wine. Chardonnay is France's great white wine grape. It is the foremost white grape of Burgundy and one of the chief grapes of Champagne. Its cultivation in California recently has reached a new peak in terms of both quality and quantity. No better wines than the best Chardonnays are presently being produced in this country. Chardonnays range in color from very pale to almost gold. Young, inexpensive Chardonnays, which are usually blends, experience little or no aging in wood casks. At their best, they are crisp and fruity. Quality Chardonnays are mouth-filling wines with a fresh-fruit flavor and are aged in oak cases.

We love to talk about wines at THE STORE so come on by and let us answer any questions you may have about them. We feature a fantastic selection of white and red wines...both domestic and imported. Stop by 400 N. 25 Mile, 364-7802 and look us over. Mon.-Sat. 10-9, use our drive up door until midnight for beer and wine, on Sun. only beer and wine is available from 12-12.

Johannisberg Riesling is the only true Riesling.

TOUGHER ON YELLOW NUTSEDGE

Dual controls yellow nutsedge at the same low rate it takes to control annual grasses. Whether you grow corn, sorghum, cotton, or potatoes, Dual gives you the longest and best control of annual grasses and yellow nutsedge.

See your Ciba-Geigy dealer for answers to your questions about Dual, and while you're there fill out a Sorghum Export Booster Card.

It won't cost you a penny, but it will help add to the $50,000 that Ciba-Geigy has already given to the National Feeds Grain Council. Every card returned will add one dollar to the total to promote export sales of your sorghum crop. For more information call your Ciba-Geigy representative ... JOE NEUMANN at (806-655-9735).

LONGER LASTING DUAL Made Like No Other Herbicide To Perform Like No Other Herbicide.

It took the best heads in the country to come up with a grain sorghum like this.

You can trust HT 126DR.

If you've been thinking about using a superior grain sorghum hybrid, trust the best heads in the country to produce Terra's HT 126DR. This medium maturing hybrid with tropical breeding contains full season yield potential. It is medium height, with excellent stability and good head exertion with semi-open head. Plus HT 126DR has disease resistance to downy mildew, MDMV, head smut and tolerant to anthracnose.

Smart farmers plant HT 126DR.

HT 126DR performs well throughout the sorghum belt and it's high yielding properties are especially adapted to all sorghum producing areas having sufficient rainfall or irrigation. Smart farmers throughout the country plant HT 126DR grain sorghum, because HT 126DR is a very intelligent choice.

Get HT 126DR at your nearby Terra Seed dealer.

Rockets go against Kings in NBA playoffs

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Robert Reid still can recall the bitter taste of defeat after the Rockets' abrupt departure from the NBA playoffs last season.

"It was like you ate a 24-day old watermelon and couldn't wait to get it out of your mouth," said Reid. "I started the next Monday getting ready for this season."

The Rockets, who were upset by Utah in the first round of last year's playoffs, will again be favorites tonight when they host the Sacramento Kings in the first game of their best-of-five games first-round series.

This year the Rockets aren't wearing their favorite's role as comfortably.

"We have to be very careful and have the killer instinct," said center Akeem Olajuwon. "But I feel better about this year. We have one more year of experience for each player."

Olajuwon and 7-4 Ralph Sampson, the Rockets' Twin Towers, will be the focus of the Kings' concerns but Reid could be the key to Houston's success.

Reid will start at point guard instead of his customary sixth man role because Allen Leavell is still recovering from a wrist injury suffered April 3.

"Everyone knows when Ralph and Akeem are in the game, they'll kill you so it's up to me to get the ball to them where they need it," Reid said.

Reid was stunned by the Rockets' early departure from the playoffs last year. He started lifting weights the next day and has been an integral part of the Rockets' success this season in winning the Midwest Division.

"He's playing the way I anticipated he would play before I got the job," Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said.

Sacramento Coach Phil Johnson says the Kings must try to contain the Twin Towers and not let any other Rockets break open the game.

"We're not going to be able to stop Sampson and we're not going to stop Olajuwon, no one's been able to stop them all season," Johnson said. "You've got to hold those guys to their average."

The second game of the series is

Nearly unbeatable at Boston Garden

Celtics are favored over Bulls

The Boston Celtics, nearly unbeatable at home during the regular season, have the Chicago Bulls right where they want them — Boston Garden — in the first two games of their NBA playoff series.

The Celtics, 67-15 overall and 40-1 at home, have every reason to be overconfident against the Bulls, winners of only eight of 41 road games. The two teams meet tonight in one of four NBA playoff series openers.

Boston players say their own expectations are just as high as those of their fans and the media.

"We expected ourselves to win last year and the year before and the year before that," Celtics forward Kevin McHale said Wednesday. "Other people's expectations of us are half of what they are of ourselves."

"A lot of those expectations are held by the players themselves," swingingman Scott Wedman added. "So if it's coming from the players, it's confidence, not pressure."

Other best-of-5 first-round series starting tonight are Detroit at Atlanta, Sacramento at Houston and San Antonio at the Los Angeles Lakers.

Boston's 40-1 mark broke an NBA record of 37 home victories in a season and also erased the all-time mark of 33-1 set in 1949-50 by the Rochester Royals. The Celtics' 31 consecutive home victories is another NBA record.

The Bulls believe they would have been much better than 30-52 had they not lost guard Michael Jordan for 64 games with a broken left foot.

The Bulls won six of their last 10 games to pass Cleveland for the last playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. Over that span, Jordan averaged 26.5 points in 27.7 minutes per game.

Boston's Dennis Johnson will get the primary responsibility for stopping Jordan.

"DJ is one of the toughest I go against," Jordan said. "He's seen a lot of offensive players and knows what to expect."

The defending champion Lakers also appear to have an easy first-round opponent in San Antonio. Los Angeles finished 62-20 for the second consecutive season, while the Spurs won only 11 of their last 38 games and finished 35-47.

"We are all starting at the starting gate," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "We know what we've done this season and we're proud of our record."

The Lakers, who won NBA championships in 1980, 1982 and 1985 without the home-court advantage in the final round, would have to play four games in Boston if they meet the Celtics in the championship series for the third straight year.

"We have the home court in all of our conference games," Riley said. "We have shown we can win the championship on the road in three of the last six years. When and if we get to the finals, both teams will be ready to play, no matter where."

"I think the key to the San Antonio series will be how (Spurs' center) Artis Gilmore plays," Lakers forward Maurice Lucas said. "If we don't come prepared, we will have trouble."

"Last year, it was 'Will Boston repeat?'" starting guard Byron Scott of the Lakers said. "Now, it's 'Will Boston win the title?' It's not 'Will the Lakers repeat?' Everything is turned around in Boston's favor."

The Lakers open defense of their crown tonight, facing the San Antonio Spurs at the Forum in the opener of a best-of-five first-round playoff series. The second game, also at the Forum, will be played Saturday afternoon.

"The (Boston) Celtics have already, in so many words, dethroned us," Coach Pat Riley of the Lakers said. "They're already planning the coronation back in Boston Garden. So be it."

"Teams are always blowing their horns about how they are going to beat us. They're knocking on the door, we're hearing them coming, it's going to be their year, all those things."

Said guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson: "All those other teams who say they can beat us will have to come through us to get where they want to go. Since I've been here, this team has not gotten any respect."

"I love the position we're in," Johnson added. "I've always loved being the underdog. We could win 70 games and it would be the same. They just don't respect the Lakers. If don't matter to me, though. We'll do our thing out on the court."

The Lakers had a 62-20 record during the just-completed regular season, the same record they had during the 1984-85 campaign. They are trying to become the first NBA team to repeat as champions since the Celtics did the trick in 1969.

Los Angeles' record was the best in the NBA's Western Conference while the Celtics, who lost to the Lakers in six games in last spring's Championship Series, had a 67-15 regular season mark.

"Even though I think we may not have played our best basketball on a consistent basis (during the regular season), we always found a way to win," Riley said. "This is the trademark of a veteran team, this one in particular."

"I don't think there's any doubt we're ready ... and I'm talking about winning the championship."

Los Angeles won four of its five regular-season games against San Antonio. The Spurs had a 35-47 regular-season record, worst in their history. But that hasn't dampened their optimism.

"I think that San Antonio is the last team the Lakers wanted to meet in the opening round," center Artis Gilmore of the Spurs said. "We play them real well."

Gilmore was one of many San Antonio players sidelined because of injuries during the regular season. But the Spurs enter the playoffs as well off physically as they've been in some time.

Pair of 2-hitters pitched in A.L.

By The Associated Press

"You can't pitch much better than that," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said.

He was talking about his own Bret Saberhagen, but he could easily have been referring to Ron Romanick of the California Angels.

Both Saberhagen and Romanick pitched two-hitters Wednesday night to lead their teams to victories — Kansas City beating Boston's Al Nipper 1-0 and Romanick stopping the Seattle Mariners 4-0.

In other American League games on Wednesday, Minnesota defeated Oakland 7-5 in 10 innings and Chicago downed Detroit 10-4. Three other games — Baltimore at Toronto, Texas at Milwaukee and New York at Cleveland — were postponed by inclement weather.

Saberhagen, who last year became the youngest pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in the AL, faced just 29 batters, striking out six and walking just one.

The only Boston hits were singles by Tony Armas with two out in the second and Don Baylor leading off the fifth. Neither advanced beyond first.

Nipper was almost as good as Saberhagen, allowing just five hits. But one was Steve Balboni's second homer of the season to lead off the second, the only run Saberhagen needed. Last season Balboni had only two hits at Fenway Park.

In the California-Seattle game, Romanick lost his perfect game by walking the very first batter, the first of five in the game. And, with two down in the sixth, Ivan Calderon's single broke up the no-hit bid.

But the California right-hander didn't mind.

"It's my best game ever, as far as keeping my stuff through nine innings goes," Romanick said. "I was a real pitcher out there."

Gorman Thomas got Seattle's second hit, a one-out single in the ninth.

Romanick is now 2-0 as he tries to erase the memory of the second half of 1985. After going 13-4 before the All-Star break, he won only one game after July.

White Sox 10, Tigers 4

Ron Kittle had a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly, while Carlton Fisk also homered as Chicago overpowered Detroit at Comiskey Park.

"I don't care if I was 1-for-13," said Kittle. "I didn't consider myself in a slump. I hadn't swung at a bad pitch all season."

The triumph was only the second in eight games for the Sox as Floyd Bannister, Bill Dawley and Bob James combined for a four-hitter.

Detroit's Dave Collins was ejected from the game in the seventh inning when he charged the mound after a Bannister pitch sailed behind him. Two innings earlier, Detroit's Randy O'Neal had hit rookie John Cangelosi with a pitch.

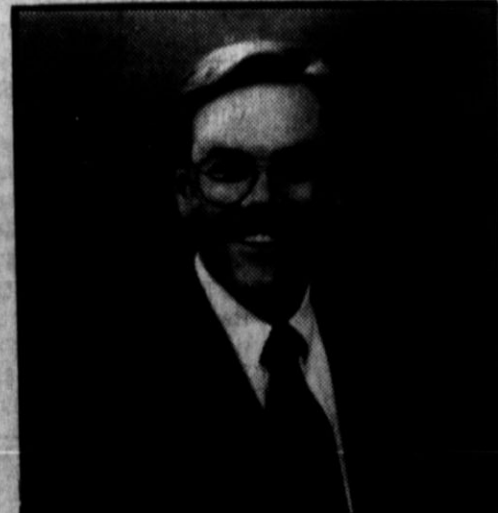

Twins 7, A's 5

A two-run homer by Gary Gaetti in the 10th inning, his third of the season, powered Minnesota over Oakland at the Metrodome.

With two outs in the 10th, Mark Salas reached on an infield hit. Gaetti then hit a two-strike pitch from A's reliever Keith Atherton deep over the left-center field fence as the Twins snapped a four-game losing streak.
