

Hance Says Tax Cut Bill May Be in Jeopardy

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, who is carrying President Reagan's bipartisan tax-cut bill on the House floor, says the measure could be in jeopardy because of the controversy that continues to surround the president's spending recommendations.

Because of concern that House committees failed to carry out the president's spending bill goals, Republicans and conservative Democrats have threatened to come up with a complete substitute on the House floor.

"I'm hoping they can work it out, short of that, because the more controversy we get into on reconciliation, the more that will spill over on the tax cuts. We hope to get through with as little trouble as possible. It's important to get the tax-cut proposal through intact," Hance said.

His comments came at a breakfast meeting Thursday at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, which invites a prominent public figure for its weekly sessions.

Some have criticized the proposed 3-year tax-cut bill, calling the president's proposal inflationary, but Hance said it's "better to have the public to have this money and spend it than for the government to have it and spend it. The return will be better."

Hance was one of 38 members of the Conservative Democratic Forum who supported Reagan's proposed spending cuts, and a battle is continuing in the House about how closely the program will be followed.

Among the alternatives offered on the tax-cut plan, is a 2-year bill that would include a higher exemption for royalty owners and independent oilmen from the Windfall Profits Tax.

That's a bill Hance has introduced in the House, which makes it tempting for him to accept, he said. The legislation would affect his district probably more than any other.

"But if I did that, and voted for a 2-year bill instead, how would I explain to the man who drives a Coca Cola truck in Lubbock that I traded his third year of tax cuts for an exemption on the Windfall Profits Tax?" Hance asked.

"It's not how I do. I don't. I tell him his third year and try to take care of the windfall profits matter in some other way as soon as possible."

Several weeks ago, at a town hall meeting in Littlefield, Hance was trying to answer a farmer's question about how he stood on the tax-cut proposals.

The 56-year-old former professor in business law at Texas Tech said he gave "my very best answer" to the farmer.

"When I got through, he told me, 'I didn't ask for an essay. What I want to know is, are you for the president or against him?'" Hance said.

C of C Board Hears Reports

By JULIE SMILEY

Progress reports on Crazy Days, the Town and Country Jubilee and bringing new industry to Hereford headed the Thursday agenda of the regular monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board.

Mike Carr, executive vice president of the chamber, reported that the Fun

Breakfast Thursday morning, kicking off Crazy Days retail promotion, hosted 250 to 275 guests for breakfast. About 200 were dressed crazy for the event, and Carr said response was "exceptionally good."

He reminded members of the "tug-of-war" contest today at 2 p.m., in Dameron Park. Eight teams have formed, four male and four female, to compete and determine which shopping area has the most "pull."

Bill Johnson, vice president of the chamber of commerce, said plans are "going great" for the first Town and Country Jubilee, Aug. 20-23. "It's the best thing that has happened to our community in a long time," said Johnson.

Dick Montgomery, chairman of industrial development, said the hopes of an oil and gas industrial office in Hereford at present are slim because of the mobility of the business. "They have found oil and gas up north, but whether it's economically feasible to develop it now, I don't know," said Montgomery.

Ken Rogers, past president of the chamber, said he thought there would be oil and gas development here, but the activity would not be as extensive as in the past.

Rogers also reported on the closure of the Armour plant. He said prospective buyers have been to Hereford to see the plant, but no official statement or sale has been made by Armour.

Betty Gilbert, women's division chairman, was absent, but Mike Carr did report that the rabies clinic was successful and the Miss Hereford pageant, Aug. 15, has 27 entries.

Rogers encouraged the business community to write letters to the governor's office urging him to place House Bill 24, the gasoline tax exemption bill, on the agenda of the special session. Without passage of the bill, Rogers said there would be no fuel alcohol plants in the Panhandle.

Chamber directors attending the board meeting were, Tom Burdett, Johnson, Rogers, Bob Sims, Joan Coupe, Dennis Canon, Bill Reinauer, Buddy Peeler, Bob Gentry and executive Vice President Carr.

Project County History Office Has New Hours

Summer office hours for Project County History went into effect last week, as work on producing the book began a new phase which will need the help of more volunteers.

Troyce Hanna, general chairman, said Friday. The office in the E.B. Black House will continue to be open half-days Tuesday through Friday each week, but in the mornings instead of afternoons. New hours are 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., including the noon hour for the convenience of employed people.

To date, work on family histories has mainly been collecting and cataloging the stories, Mrs. Hanna said.

More family histories are still wanted, but those already on file are being prepared for the printers. This is true also of club and business stories. Hand-written material has been selected, so the typed volunteers. Some of this has been done, but more remains. Also, words in each story must be counted and all names listed for indexing. Some stories are to be written from notes or outlines.

Some of the work does not require typing skill. Any of it may be done in the office, but some can be taken to homes so it may be done by those who cannot conveniently

Summer Library Program

The parking lot next to the Deaf Smith County Library was busy Tuesday as a crowd of youngsters participated in the second of eight summer library programs. Diane Pierson, county librarian, and Becky Walls, assistant librarian, are pictured here giving instructions on making papiermache "monsters." After being shown the basics, the enthusiastic youngsters made their own monsters, which they will paint at the session next Tuesday. Upon completion the monsters will be on display at the library.

Rites Set for Two Accident Victims

Conrado Cruz, 55, and Charles Rector, 57, died yesterday after they were overcome by fumes in a molasses pit at Friona Feed Yards.

The men, both employees of the feed yards and residents of Friona, died of an asphyxiation, according to Friona Justice of the Peace Frances Euler and Dr. Paul Sprang.

Feed yard employees Wally Guerrero and Guadalupe Mendez, both of Hereford, also required medical treatment. Mendez is in satisfactory condition at Farmer County Community Hospital and Guerrero is in satisfactory condition in Deaf Smith County Hospital.

The accident occurred between 8:15 and 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

Cruz fell in the pit after he was overcome by the fumes while he was cleaning it. Rector, Guerrero and Mendez tried to pull Cruz out of the pit but the men also were overcome by the fumes.

According to David Goddard, senior vice president of Friona Industries, the pit is used in an operation to mix molasses with cattle feed.

The syrup emits methane gas, which can be highly toxic.

Services for Rector and Cruz are pending with Parsons-Ellis Funeral Home in Friona.

Rector lived in Friona 26 years and was a longtime employee of the feed yard. Surviving him are his wife, Sue; a son, Chuck of Long Beach, Calif.; two daughters, Romalee Barabara of Groton, Conn., and Sami Fithen of Lubbock; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Rector of Apache Junction, Ariz., a sister, Marce Marcella Zabori of Farmington, Ill.; and three grandchildren.

Cruz was born in Gran Morelos, Mexico and lived in Friona 2 1/2 years. His body will be shipped to Mexico.

Surviving him are his wife, Consuelo of Gran Morelos; five sons, Hector of Mexico, Conrado Jr. of Midland, Jaime of Borger, Oscar of Midland and Manuel of Casper, Wyo.; four daughters, Leticia Aquirre of Mexico, Maria Gutierrez of Friona and Graciela and Lourdes, both of Mexico; his mother, Concepcion Cruz of Mexico; a brother, Narciso of Mexico; and 14 grandchildren.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements was better satisfied with the work of the 67th Legislature than he was with the 1979 session — according to his vetoes.

Clements announced vetoes of 27 bills Thursday, including the state Senate redistricting bill and $24.5 million out of the 1982-83 state spending bill. Another bill vetoed earlier gave him a total of 28.

During and after the 1979 session he vetoed 31 bills, including one that became law anyway because he was overridden by two-thirds of the House and Senate.

"I am disappointed that the Legislature once again has continued to spend all available revenue dollars in sight and did not provide significant tax relief which I had hoped for," Clements told a news conference Thursday.

He added there were still other programs in the general appropriations bill he would reduce if he had the authority.

Under Texas' constitution a governor can veto only separate specific items in the appropriations bill and may not make reductions.

The Republican governor's veto of the senatorial redistricting bill sent it to the Legislative Redistricting Board made up of the lieutenant governor, House speaker, comptroller, land commissioner and attorney general — all Democrats.

Clements said the Senate redistricting plan was a "subterfuge to keep incumbents in office."

Staff work on a new proposal will come at the same time the state's 181 legislators are preparing for the 30-day special session Clements has scheduled for July 13.

Top priority in the special session will go to congressional redistricting, which was not settled by the recent regular session.

Clements also told a Thursday news conference.

City Sales Tax Rebate Is $18,480

AUSTIN — State Comptroller Bob Bullock this week said Texas cities collecting the one-percent sales tax have received $10.7 million in rebates during the first six months of 1981.

Total for the City of Hereford this year, through June 4, is $236,363. The reports are normally about two months behind the collection periods.

Hereford's portion of the sales tax is up about 6.5 percent over the same period a year ago. The June allocation was $18,480.

In other towns and cities in the area: Dimmitt's rebates were up 12 percent; Friona was up 9 percent; Plainview, up 5 percent; Amarillo up 12.5 percent; Perryton up 35 percent; Borger up 35 percent; Pampa up 23 percent; Dalhart up 8 percent.

Iran Tries To Close Net On Bani-Sadr

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran is trying to close the net around its elusive president, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, but the government concedes it does not have complete control of the nation's borders.

There were rumors that Bani-Sadr had already slipped out of Iran to avoid impeachment, trial and possibly execution by the Moslem zealots who control the government.

Assadollah Lajvardi, Tehran's revolutionary prosecutor, said Thursday on Tehran Radio that Bani-Sadr has been missing since Tuesday.

"We have notified the borders and asked our brothers who control the air and land frontiers to be on alert," Lajvardi said.

Cutbacks on Legal Aid Program May Not Be Enough to Escape Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — House cutbacks in the U.S. legal aid program — including first-ever curbs on assistance for poor people who are homosexuals — may not be enough to avert a presidential veto, Republican leaders say.

Legislation to keep a scaled-down Legal Services Corporation alive for two more years was approved by the House late Thursday and sent to the Senate.

Reagan wants the seven-year-old program — once a major part of the War on Poverty but now under attack by conservatives — dismantled entirely, with its responsibilities given to the states and local bar associations.

House GOP Whip Trent Lott, R-Miss., and other Republican leaders suggested that the House-backed restrictions on use of legal aid funds may not be enough to meet administration objections.

"It's still a likely candidate for a veto," Lott said. Although the legislation's fate in the GOP-run Senate is uncertain, the House's 245-167 vote was below the two-thirds margin needed to override a veto.

The most fervent debate on the legislation was over an amendment, adopted 281-124, barring the legal aid corporation from using tax dollars to "promote, defend or protect homosexuality."

It was the first time either chamber of Congress has voted to deny federal assistance of any kind to homosexuals.

The amendment, introduced by Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., also prohibits the use of federal funds to enforce a corporation regulation opposing discrimination against potential clients based on their sexual orientation.

The measure would deny government-paid legal aid to homosexuals in cases in which their sexual orientation became an issue, according to sponsors of the amendment.

"Taxpayers' money will not be used to defend homosexuality or a homosexual lifestyle," McDonald told the House.

He said the move was in keeping with the new conservative mood in the country.

But legal aid proponents called it discriminatory and probably unconstitutional.

"It's mean-spirited and unworthy of members of this House," said Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass.

The restrictions would not apply in criminal cases, where defendants unable to afford an attorney could still get court-appointed counsel or be represented by a public defender's office.

A last-minute, GOP-led effort to kill the program outright and turn its responsibilities over to states was rejected 221-165 in a party-line vote.

In other actions chipping away at the legal aid program, the House acted to bar the corporation from using federal funds to initiate school busing or abortion litigation or defend, except in certain cases, undocumented aliens. And it chopped the program's budget to $341 million each for this year and 1982 — a cut of 25 percent below current levels.

The Baptist Standard, among other religious publications has reported that the rumor has surfaced again and people are getting excited about flooding the FCC with petitions. The advice: wait for a real issue and make sure it's not a rumor.

While visiting with Rep. Kent Hance last week, he remarked that one of his major concerns on being elected to office was that it would be many years before his voice would be heard.

Now, if the Hance-Conable bill passes, his name may soon be in the history books. Serving just his second term, Hance finds himself in the national political spotlight as co-sponsor of the biggest tax-cut bill in history.

Hance has taken a lot of "heat" from Democratic leaders in the House, but he seems serene in the face of suggestions that he's no longer eligible for political favors from those leaders.

"I'm convinced the people in this nation don't care if it's a Democratic or Republican bill. They want lower inflation and their taxes cut," says Hance.

According to a U.S. Treasury Department textbook on thrift, 100 average men who start their productive life at 25 will end up as follows: At 65, one is wealthy; four are well-to-do; 59 are not self-supporting; and 26 have died.

The odds don't look too good for a 55-year-old man, do they? But, look on the bright side. This comes from a government textbook and the researchers tend to get carried away in the bureaucratic process of compiling such figures.

Continental Employees

Predict Victory

In Takeover Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Employees of Continental Airlines rallied outside the company's headquarters Thursday as their leaders predicted victory in the fight to block a takeover bid by Texas International Airlines.

"We've begun to smell the roses," said Paul Eckel, head of the Continental Employees Association, the group spearheading the effort by the carrier's workers to purchase control of the airline through an Employee Stock Ownership Plan, or ESOP. "It's really a question of time now."

Although a federal judge Tuesday refused to issue an injunction sought by Texas International to halt the ESOP purchase, Eckel said he expected further legal challenges from TI Chairman Francisco Lorenzo.

"Lorenzo is very committed to this thing," said Eckel. "I expect he will pull out every stop to try to stop us. I expect three or four more obstacles, although I don't know what they will be, until we finally succeed. He's going to lose, though. He's in it for the money, but we're in it for life."

Houston-based TI, which owns a 48.5 percent interest in Continental, had sought in federal court to halt the ESOP plan, which calls for Continental workers to forgo $185 million in future raises in order to purchase 15.4 million newly issued shares of the Los Angeles airline's stock. The ESOP purchase would effectively cut TI's share of Continental in half while giving the airline's employees a 51 percent and controlling interest in their employer.

If the ESOP purchase is implemented, Continental would become the largest worker-owned company in the United States.

Drugs No. 1 Domestic Problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost twice as much cocaine and four times as much amphetamines were made and used in Texas last year, a disturbed Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says.

And only hours after he called reporters into his office to give them the latest statistics on the rising drug usage, he and other Senate Democrats met behind closed doors Thursday and passed "without a dissenting vote" an anti-drugs package.

They called the runaway drug problem the nation's No. 1 domestic problem and called on establishment of a new cabinet position strictly to coordinate an intensified battle against drugs.

includes a mandate that the CIA and other governmental bodies cooperate in passing along drug information and surveillance reports.

Bentsen had reported that cocaine usage in Texas leaped from 490 pounds in 1979 to 800 pounds in 1980 and that methamphetamine, known among drug users as "speed," quadrupled from 200 million dosage units to 800 million units.

"It's a very disturbing report. We're losing the fight against drugs," Bentsen said, relaying the DEA's estimate that the retail value of drugs illegally manufactured and used in Texas increased from about $640 million in 1979 to more than $1 billion in 1980, a jump of 63 percent.

On the brighter side, the legal manufacture and use of heroin and PCP (angel dust) declined from 1979 to 1980. Bentsen said heroin usage in the state dropped from 486 pounds in 1979 to 140 pounds in 1980 and marijuana use dropped from 1.5 million pounds to 1.25 million pounds.

The manufacture of angel dust dropped from 200,000 units in 1979 to 150,000 last year, and Bentsen attributed part of the loss to President Carter's signing into law in 1978 of legislation by the Texas Democrat that made it harder to obtain piperidine, one of the key ingredients.

"But I won't be completely happy until we completely eliminate this drug, which can literally drive people crazy," Bentsen said. "In light of these disturbing and disheartening statistics, I will be redoubling my efforts to gain passage of ... legislation needed in the war against drugs. It is obvious that more must be done than has been done to this point," Bentsen said.

"You're going to see a continuation of the drive to stop this drug traffic. The public demands it, and I am going to do all that I can in the way of appropriations to see that enforcement is increased or sustained instead of being cut back."

He and other senators met with President Reagan several weeks ago to urge administration support for an omnibus crime bill that is being drawn up, Bentsen said.

"The president was quite responsive, he said.

General Telephone Means High Rates

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — General Telephone officials, unhappy with the tiny rate hike awarded Wednesday, say they'll be back real soon to try to get more money from its 1.3 million Texas customers.

The company wanted a $45.3 million rate hike package, but the Public Utility Commission, unimpressed with GTE service, granted only a $2 million increase.

Monthly rates for residential and business service will not be increased. The San Angelo-based company wanted to hike residential rates by up to $3.34 per month and business rates by up to $11.09 per month.

The commission voted 3-0 to approve a hearing examiner's report that also recommended continuing a $4 million annual penalty for bad service. A hearing will be held by December to determine how long the penalty should remain in effect.

R.W. Britt, president of General Telephone of the Southwest, said the small increase was inadequate.

"We have no alternative but coming back as rapidly as possible (with another rate increase request)," he said, adding another request could be filed by October.

The commission first ordered the $4 million penalty last year when GTE was granted a $35.1 million increase. Customers in the company's widespread Texas service area said the service is bad, sometimes worse than bad.

GTE lawyer Ward Wueste told the commission the penalty causes "a problem and a dilemma" for the company.

"We believe we've had a lot of progress. The progress has a price and that's why we're back here," he said. "It's cost us a lot of money and that's our dilemma."

Further improvements depend on attracting needed capital, said Theodore Brophy, chairman and chief executive officer of GTE. He said the company now meets 19 of 22 PUC service standards.

Brophy said the penalty "serves more as an impediment to improved service," but PUC Chairman George Cowden disagreed.

"Your own activity in the past few months shows the commission sent a message and you received it," he told GTE officials.

John Bell, who was PUC general counsel during last year's GTE rate hearing, appeared Wednesday for the Texas Municipal League, which wanted GTE to refund $9.6 million. Bell agreed with Cowden that the penalty has been effective.

"It's certainly not the ratepayers fault," he said of GTE's service problems. "It's kind of sad it took a penalty to get the company's attention."

The PUC-approved plan will mean higher rates for mobile telephone service and "foreign exchange" service — which allows local calls to nearby cities. GTE also will be allowed to charge $10 for prewiring of new homes, a service that has been free.

GTE customers no longer will receive a $5 credit for bringing their phones in when they discontinue service. Customers who do not bring their phones in will be billed for a service call.

Airlines Prepare To Slash Flights

DALLAS (AP) — Texas-based airline officials are mapping strategy for limited service if air traffic controllers walk off their jobs Monday, a move that will drastically curtail flights and cost the carriers millions in revenue.

Negotiations between the Federal Aviation Administration and the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) broke down Wednesday, and members of the union are set to walk off their jobs Monday at 7 a.m. EST.

Nationwide, airline officials estimate a walkout could cost them $80 million to $100 million a day.

In Texas, Dallas-based Southwest Airlines would be among the hardest hit because the FAA is cutting back on most flights of less than 500 miles. Southwest Vice President Camille Keith said Thursday the company would reduce flights by 80 percent, going from 2,256 daily flights to 448 — or 64 departures a day.

"We currently have 39 (daily) departures to Houston," she said. Under the FAA reduced service plan, "we'd have one flight to Hobby (Airport) and one to Intercontinental."

Ms. Keith said that a prolonged strike could mean employee layoffs, although "we have told them they'll be on the payroll until July 1. If it goes on longer we'll have to re-evaluate it."

Braniff Airlines could put workers on the streets in 20 cities where the company would be forced to suspend service entirely, according to spokesman Ray Chanaud.

Among the cities that would have no Braniff service are Austin, Amarillo, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Lubbock, Midland or Odessa.

Stephanie Roth, a Texas International spokeswoman, said the Houston-based carrier is prepared to reduce flights by about two-thirds, as required under FAA rules, in the event of a strike.

"But we aren't sure how many flights that will affect," she added.

Ms. Roth said the airline has not considered layoffs. "We haven't even begun to address the issue of that. We're not planning for gloom and doom here. We're going to go on a day-to-day basis."

She said passengers willing to come out to the airport and "stand by" about an hour before departure would have a fair chance of getting a seat.

Republicans Plan Strategy For Battle on House Floor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are developing their strategy for an all but certain battle on the House floor over a $37.8 billion package of budget cuts that the Reagan administration says isn't enough like the president's proposal.

Republican lawmakers were expected to reveal today how President Reagan wants them to move on the budget cuts recommended by Democratic-controlled House committees.

to a bill to keep alive the legal aid agency, which Reagan wants to eliminate. The House approved the overall bill 245-137 and sent it to the Senate.

—Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., an opponent of abortion, told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee that defining life as beginning with conception would stop a "holocaust of the unborn." —But Sarah Weddington, who successfully argued the Supreme Court case that led to legal abortions, said the proposed bill is unconstitutional and its impact on human rights unknown.

—Some members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee denounced Israel's bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor as "vigilante violence." Others on the committee defended the attack, saying Iraq was developing nuclear weapons to destroy Israel.

—The Senate urged the Reagan administration and the baby formula industry "to support the basic aim" of a World Health Organization code restricting sales promotions of formula. The resolution approved by the Senate 88-2 was similar to one passed by the House.

—The Senate Democratic Caucus voted to support legislation creating a Cabinet-level narcotics control office with power to order the CIA and agencies involved in narcotics control into the government battle against illegal drugs.

—Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., agreed to end his filibuster and let the Senate vote on a far-reaching amendment that would prohibit the Justice Department from seeking court-ordered busing to integrate schools. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker gave Weicker one more hour to wrap up his arguments today.

—Army Brig. Gen. William C. Louisell, the Pentagon official in charge of drug and alcohol abuse control programs for the military, told a House subcommittee that he was "not satisfied with the levels of reported use or with the consequences we suffer due to that use." He said alcohol abuse was a more widespread problem than drug abuse.

High Legal Bills Prompt KKK Leader

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — High legal bills have prompted the leader of a Ku Klux Klan faction to order his followers to stop brandishing weapons in public. The Tennessean reports in a copyright story.

"We must raise money fast, or we are in trouble," Nashville's morning newspaper quoted Bill Wilkinson, head of the Invisible Empire of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, as saying in a Klan publication.

"We must avoid further confrontations which might be likely to result in arrests, even if we feel we are right," Wednesday's editions of the newspaper quoted him as saying.

Iran

"Unfortunately, because of the counter-revolutionary troubles inside the country, our borders are not completely under the control of our security forces, and the possibility of being smuggled out exists."

Bani-Sadr was rumored earlier this week to have fled to Hamadan, his native city in northwest Iran. The central government's control is especially tenuous in the northwest near the Turkish border, where Kurdish rebels have been fighting for autonomy.

There was speculation both in Tehran and in Ankara, Turkey, that Bani-Sadr may have already made his way across the border.

"Until 4 p.m. the day before yesterday I knew that he was in Tehran. But from then on contact with him has been lost," Lajavardi said Thursday. "Therefore I cannot answer questions on his present whereabouts."

The now-powerless president's family and close friends, reached by telephone in Tehran, also said they did not know where he was.

"We have entrusted him to God. May God keep him," said his sister, Robabeh Sakineh.

The Majlis, the Iranian parliament, is to begin debate Saturday on Bani-Sadr's performance as president and charges that he violated various articles of the constitution. Since the Majlis is controlled by his foes in the cleric-led Islamic Republican Party, the debate is considered certain to end in adoption of a resolution asking Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to dismiss him.

Khomeini, the leader of the revolutionary regime, removed Bani-Sadr last week from the post of commander-in-chief of the armed forces, his last position of any power.

Bani-Sadr's supporters said they would boycott the debate, but they are too few to prevent a quorum of 180 deputies in the 217-seat Majlis.

County

spend time in the office.

Work is also beginning on the general history section and volunteers are needed to do research, gather facts for stories, or write them. Other workers may contact businesses for their histories. A number of county residents have said they would like a part in compiling the history, and this is the time for them to notify the of-

Militant demonstrators have been parading in the streets of Tehran almost daily, demanding Bani-Sadr's dismissal, trial and execution, and comparing him to the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, who was deposed in the 1979 revolution. Tehran Radio broadcast an appeal from Khomeini urging the people to calm down.

Anyone who has some time to spare this summer and would like to find an interesting volunteer job is invited to inquire. Telephone calls may be made during office hours to 364-4338 or 364-8371.

day news conference there was a possibility of a second special session later this year when the federal government makes its block grants to Texas, instead of specific grants to local governments and agencies.

Texans vote Nov. 3 on a proposed constitutional change that would create a state finance management committee consisting of the governor, lieutenant governor, House speaker and chairmen of the House and Senate committees on taxes and appropriations. Clements said earlier this committee could handle administration and distribution of federal block grants.

"If the amendment is passed by voters, it hopefully will give us a management tool to avoid calling a special session for this purpose," Clements said Thursday.

"But I'm not sure it will work. We just hope it will."

Clements chopped off $1.72 million appropriated for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in the event the funds are not received from federal sources.

"The state should not adopt a general policy of replacing shortfalls in federal funds with state general revenue. This rider would set such a precedent," he said.

Another veto knocked off $1.26 million for new mobile training programs at the Amarillo, Harlingen, Sweetwater and Waco units of the Texas State Technical Institute.

"The institute should continue to concentrate on its central mission and should not be involved in extension work," he said. "Our 47 community colleges and the (Texas A&M) Engineering Extension Service provide a broad, in-place extension network that would be duplicated by these."

The governor erased $400,000 for the Family Farm and Ranch program because he said the Texas Department of Agriculture could not make any loans until Sept. 1, 1983.

He marked off $5.4 million for state agencies that license professionals because he said the agencies already have a right to exceed their budgets by 30 percent.

Clements vetoed new construction totaling $7.1 million for Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation units at Abilene, Denton and Vernon, saying they were of "lower priority" than other humanization projects.

Among his vetoes of single bills, Clements said:

— A bill to shift payment of court-appointed attorneys in capital cases from local governments to the state was at odds with "historical practice."

— He thought the Texas Open Meetings Act was working well now and saw no need for major changes as proposed in a bill. "It would absolutely encourage litigation, adding to our overcrowded court dockets and unnecessarily hamstringing governmental bodies all over this state," he said.

— The real problem with a bill against ticket scalping was that it prohibited resale of tickets to professional events within 1,000 yards of the parking lot, while there was no similar prohibition for college athletic events.

— He opposed giving regulation of gasoline production in Texas to the Texas Railroad Commission because "it is an agricultural by-product and properly involves the Alcoholic Beverage Commission and the Agriculture Department."

United States Shows Israeli Disapproval

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States, traditionally Israel's staunchest ally, is planning its harshest-ever U.N. rebuke to the Jewish state with a vote strongly condemning its destruction of the Iraqi nuclear reactor.

U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick was to vote today for a U.N. Security Council resolution that was expected to win unanimous approval from the 15 council members.

Its key provision said the council "strongly condemns the military attack by Israel as a clear violation of the United Nations Charter and the norms of international conduct."

A spokesman for Mrs. Kirkpatrick's office, after checking the record books, told reporters it was the first time the United States had supported a resolution in the council "strongly" condemning Israel, though it had backed condemnations eight times since 1953 and censure of Israel 15 times.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Iraqi Foreign Minister Saadoun Hammadi agreed on the wording of the resolution after the Arabs dropped demands for economic and military sanctions against the Israelis. The United States opposed sanctions during the five days of council debate and was expected to veto any resolution calling for them.

Instead of sanctions, the resolution urged Israel to pay damages to Iraq, saying the Arab state was "entitled to appropriate redress for the destruction it has suffered, responsibility for which has been acknowledged by Israel."

Israeli Ambassador Yehuda Z. Blum, who is expected to reject the U.N. condemnation today, has already told the council his government will not pay Iraq "a brass farthing."

Criminal Mischief Reported

Police have received three reports of criminal mischief over a two-day period.

A man Wednesday went in the Allsup's on Park Avenue and kicked a game machine. Damage is estimated at about $100. Also Wednesday, Cynthia Francis, Ave. K, reported that someone threw a rock through her window causing $25 worth of damage.

Gloria Hernandez yesterday told police that someone threw a rock through her window causing $100 of damage.

Police have a suspect and the case has been taken to the District Attorney's office to press charges.

Esteban Ramirez, 118 Ave. H reported his son, Gustavo, was missing. Gustavo left the house at 6 p.m. yesterday.

Police arrested one female juvenile for public intoxication Wednesday, and received two harassing phone call reports and one prowler call Thursday.

Twenty-four traffic citations were issued over the two-day period.

Around the Town

A pre-nuptial party was held Saturday evening at the home of R.C. Hoelscher for Tina White and Terry Langehennig. The party was co-hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Coplen.

A buffet supper of fruits, vegetables, meat balls and sausage balls was served to the guests. The couple opened their gifts and displayed them on the hearth in the living room.

The couple plan to be married June 27 at First United Methodist Church. She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Walter G. White of Hereford. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Langehennig of Fredericksburg.

The Bobby Boyds and the Bill Lyles accompanied their sons, Brent and Keith, respectively, to a Freshman Summer Conference at Texas A&M University recently.

Both boys were in the 1981 graduating class of Hereford High School and enrolled for Fall classes as freshmen at A&M during the conference. Orientation sessions for parents and students were also held during the conference.

Enroute to College Station, the Lyles visited their son, Jim, in Austin and returned via Denton for an extended visit with their parents. The Boyds also visited friends and relatives in Irving, Arlington, Ennis, Munday, and Idalou.

Bethany Boyd also accompanied her family on the trip.

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.)—Dr. Richard Mowsesian has advice for persons considering retirement—don't.

That's an oversimplification, but the associate professor of educational psychology at The University of Texas does have strong feelings about the importance of work in our daily lives and its relationship to the aging process.

Our nation has three basic resources, Dr. Mowsesian believes: its natural physical resources, the capital for development of those resources, and its human beings. Only the first two are used currently as the basis for estimating our national worth.

"We just don't use our human resources in productive and creative ways," he says. "We follow our usual throw-away policy even with people," especially as related to a mandatory retirement policy.

"We lose a significant amount of knowledge, skill and expertise over a number of years" through such retirement programs, and we have not been creative enough to look at how human resources could be used better, he suggests.

Forced retirement itself is an artifact of the early industrialization of the nation, Dr. Mowsesian says, and it is very cost-inefficient for industry, which such policies originally were designed to serve.

Saying he has a different view of the Social Security system, Dr. Mowsesian expressed the view that it should be related more to the individual's desire to continue working.

Not everyone wants to work 40 hours a week at 70 years of age, but some may want to and may be physically able to do so. There should be ways for all to continue to make meaningful contributions to themselves as well as society, Dr. Mowsesian says.

Such contributions could help alleviate one of the most common mental health problems among older Americans—depression. Depriving themselves of identity through their jobs leads many to retreat into themselves, researchers are finding.

The underlying philosophy of Social Security must be re-examined, the associate professor believes, in light of much new information. He says in particular that it has outgrown its original purpose.

When formulated, the system was intended to move older workers out of the work force to make way for the younger ones. When it was devised it made sense because America was undergoing a "younging" of its population, he notes. Now that the country is growing up and we are looking at a graying of the nation, that philosophy is no longer relevant, he says.

The fastest growing age group in the American population today is made up of persons over 70. Dr. Mowsesian pointed out. He ventures what he calls a "fearless Mowsesian prediction" that in the not-too-distant future, there will begin to be a shortage of young workers coming into the labor force.

Entitlements under the Social Security system are also a sticky issue. For example, he cites the statistic that Indian men in our nation have a significantly shorter life expectancy than Caucasian women and, therefore, much less chance of drawing their retirement benefits. That is just one area ripe for research, he believes.

Another research question, he points out, is whether the large number of women going into the labor force will cause a decline in their hold on the longest-life-expectancy statistic.

In 1940, the U.S. had an estimated 10 workers for every retired non-worker. However, it is estimated that by 2000 there may be only 2.5 workers for each retired non-worker, the psychologist says. That should encourage rethinking to allow older citizens to contribute voluntarily a part of their own support, in his opinion.

Dr. Mowsesian gives a course on aging and work as a teaching overload because of his dedication to development of the area. The course is part of UT Austin's gerontology program.

"We hope to attract more young people to the area of delivery of services to humans, because that is where the action will be soon," he says.

He considers himself "one of the new kids on the block."

He began his work in the area while on leave at the Advance Study Center at the Ohio State University. It was there that he developed a monograph on aging and work which he currently is expanding for a book scheduled for publication by the UT Press.

Temple Baptist Church Announces Youth Revival

Temple Baptist Church will hold a Youth Revival at the church for junior high, high school, college and career students beginning Sunday, June 21 through Wednesday, June 24.

Morning services will be held at 7:15 a.m. with evening services at 7:30 p.m.

Scheduled to preach at the revival is Josh Hunt. Born to missionary parents in the Philippines, Hunt converted at age of six and had a teenage rebellion stating "I wandered away from the Lord."

In Clovis, N.M. where his father was pastor, Hunt came to total commitment to Jesus. He felt called to full time ministry as a junior in High School. He graduated from Wayland and is now a student at Southwestern Seminary.

He is presently Youth Director at Springdale Baptist Church in Fort Worth. Hunt served a few weeks as interim Music Director at Temple Baptist, 1979-80.

Bill Sloan, currently a student at Southwestern, will provide the music during the four-day revival.

A native of Parkersburg, West Virginia, and being raised in Roswell, N.M., he is a 1980 graduate of Wayland with a bachelor of arts major in religion and minor in counseling.

He plays the piano and guitar, having published 15 songs. He is the Music and Youth Director of First Baptist Church, Prosper, Tex. Rev. J.L. Bozeman, pastor, urges the public to attend.

Testing Machine

Dr. Leroy Humphries, biomedical physicist for the Harrington Cancer Center, is shown testing the linear accelerators. Dr. Humphries is using a meter to test the new six megavolt x-ray machine, and the center is also testing and preparing a new 18 megavolt x-ray machine for the opening of the center in July.

Don, Sybil Harrington Center Prepares for Grand Opening

Two linear accelerators for treatment of cancer by radiation have been delivered to the Don & Sybil Harrington Cancer Center in preparation for the opening of the center in July.

"Both the Clinac 6-100 and the Clinac 20 have been delivered, and the Clinac 6-100, which is a six megavolt x-ray machine, has been installed," said Dr. Leroy Humphries, cancer center physicist.

He said he is in the process of calibrating the smaller (6 MV) machine now and will calibrate and test the Clinac 20, which is really an 18 megavolt x-ray machine, when it is installed.

"It will take about four weeks for acceptance testing and calibration of the 6 megavolt machine to insure that it will meet the exact specifications set for it," he said. "It will take even longer for the Clinac 20, because of its variable energy output."

Dr. Dan Epley said a linear accelerator is much more powerful and is able to treat a much more specific area than what most persons think of as an x ray.

Dr. Epley is the cancer center's radiation oncologist, or specialist in treating tumors with radiation. He explained that linear accelerators give the maximum radiation dose beneath the skin, rather than on the surface, and with proper focusing causes less damage to normal tissue around the tumor than conventional x-ray treatments.

"X-ray energy is measured in volts," he said. "Low energies are measured in thousands of volts, but high energies are measured in millions of volts, called megavolts."

He said radiation treatments actually injure the cancer cells so they can no longer continue to divide or multiply.

"The radiation has a similar effect on normal cells, but these healthy cells are better able to repair themselves than cancer cells," he said. "Also, with a linear accelerator, the energy can be concentrated to a small area so that the tumor can be treated with little damage to normal cells."

He said x-ray treatment for cancer is not really new, but great strides have been made in recent years.

For instance, x rays were discovered in 1895, and radium in 1896. Within a few years of the discoveries, scientists found that x rays were capable of damaging body tissue. A little later researchers uncovered the curious fact that x rays and radium did more damage to cancerous tissue than to normal tissue.

"So the knowledge is not really new," he said, "but until a few years ago it was difficult to treat cancer cells without damaging or destroying a great number of healthy cells. Now, thanks to the new technology, the machines—linear accelerators—give off high doses of radiation to the tumor area with less injury to the surrounding tissue. How far the beams penetrate depends on the speed at which the electrons hit the target. The greater the speed, the greater the depth of penetration and the more accurately the treatment area can be pinpointed."

Dr. Epley said many patients will have a computer programmed treatment, so the rays will go to the area where treatment is needed, regardless of how far beneath the surface or how near the surface the tumor is located.

"Dr. Humphries will be primarily responsible for computerized treatment planning, after we have worked together to find and mark the exact location of the tumor in relations to the outside of the body," said Dr. Epley.

Dr. Phillip Periman, medical director for the cancer center, said he hopes both linear accelerators will be in use before the summer is over.

There's enough phosphorus in the average man's body to make 2,200 match heads.

Penny-Saving Pastas Pamper Your Purse

Pasta is one of the reasons you can keep your food budget fit for inflation fighting. Cheddar, cottage, Mozzarella and Parmesan cheeses combined with pasta makes an appetizing dish to set before your family.

Lasagna noodles and macaroni are used in two hearty casseroles. Use convenience items such as frozen spinach, cream soup and spaghetti sauce to speed preparation say Dairy Council home economists.

If you'll let the casseroles stand about 10 minutes after baking, it will allow the cheese to mold with the pasta so you can slice it easily into squares for serving.

MACARONI AND CHEESE SQUARES-RATATOUILLE SAUCE

Squares:
1 1/2 cups elbow macaroni, uncooked
2 tablespoons butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Cheddar cheese

1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed creamy chicken mushroom soup
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs
1/2 cup milk
3 eggs, beaten
Sauce: (Yield: 2 1/2 cups)
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 cup EACH: chopped celery, green pepper and onion

1/2 cup sliced zucchini
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon basil
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 can (8 oz.) stewed tomatoes
1 cup water
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. For squares, cook macaroni according to package directions; drain. Meanwhile, saute onion in butter until tender, about 3 minutes. Combine macaroni and onion. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Spoon into a well-buttered 2-quart rectangular baking dish. Bake 40

chopped spinach, cooked and well-drained
1 egg, beaten
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
8 lasagna noodles, cooked and drained
2 cups (8 oz.) shredded Mozzarella cheese

Saute onion in butter until tender about 3 minutes. Combine spaghetti sauce, garlic powder, water and sauteed onion in medium-sized saucepan. Simmer, uncovered, 10 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in tuna; set aside. Meanwhile, combine cottage cheese, spinach, egg and Parmesan cheese.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Arrange 4 lasagna noodles in bottom of a 2-quart rectangular baking dish. Layer half the cottage cheese mixture, a third of the Mozzarella cheese and half the tuna sauce. Repeat layers; top with Mozzarella cheese. Bake 30 to 35 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before serving.

to 45 minutes, or until a knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let rest 10 minutes before loosening edges and cutting into squares. Meanwhile, for sauce, saute celery, green pepper and onion in butter in medium-sized saucepan until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in zucchini and seasonings. Stir in tomato sauce and stewed tomatoes with liquid. Combine water, cornstarch and instant chicken bouillon. Stir into vegetable mixture. Bring to boiling over medium heat, stirring frequently. Boil and stir 2 minutes. Serve sauce spooned over macaroni and cheese squares.

TUNA-CHEESE LASAGNA
8 servings
1 tablespoon butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 jar (15 1/2 oz.) spaghetti sauce with mushrooms
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
One-third cup water
1 can (9 1/2 oz.) tuna, drained and flaked
1 1/2 cups cottage cheese
1 package (10 oz.) frozen

Engineers Son Compiles History of AT&SF Railroad

Frank R. Price, the son of a long time Santa Fe Railway engineer, is compiling a history of the Plains Division of the AT&SF Railroad. Amarillo is the site of the general offices of this division which encompasses Western Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle, and Eastern New Mexico. Price's project is concerned with the first, second and third districts of the Division.

"There are surprisingly few records left of this division history," said Price, "it was for this reason that I began this project over eleven months ago. When I started working on this history I could find no photographs to speak of; and little else which would indicate more than the existence of a railroad through this area. So far I have saved more than 200 photos from certain destruction, and I have collected upwards of 400 photos and a great deal of historical information which will eventually be placed in a museum along the Plains Division; possibly at Canyon."

Just recently Price was furnished with a seventy-nine page history titled: "Memories of 49 Years on the Santa Fe Railway" which was written by Rayond McLeod

Ann Landers Moms Dreams

DEAR ANN: We know you can't possibly print all the letters you receive. But I hope you will find the space for this one. It is a letter to our mother. We've made it an open letter, so those who find its contents familiar might benefit.

Here's to you, Mom, for all the dreams you dreamed for us. We never became the ballerinas or vocalists or pianists or doctors or lawyers you hoped we would be. We never married millionaires or learned to speak 10 languages. Instead, we are the children who forgot to say "thank you" when it probably would have meant a lot to you. We are the ones who talked when we should have listened. We are the little tykes who woke you before dawn to serve you the breakfast-in-bed birthday special—burnt toast, weak tea, unscrambled eggs and the ole chew-it-if-you-can bacon. Of course, we sang "Happy Birthday, Mommy."

Our childhood is over and here are the "thank-yous," many years overdue. Thank you for being there when we needed you—for being our tower of strength when you yourself needed support. Thank you for believing in us. Thank you for saying what we needed to hear and for knowing when silence meant more than words. Thank you for giving us the chance to dream our own dreams, even though your dreams were more glamorous. Thank you for giving us room to grow and to learn from our own mistakes. We are—Your Loving

Children

DEAR CHILDREN: What a beautiful tribute! I hope this column gets mailed to thousands of mothers all over the world.

DEAR ANN: Dad told us he was giving up drinking for Lent. I was thrilled. He doesn't consider himself an alcoholic, but he does drink every night of his life and I often wondered about it.

Last night Dad was watching TV and I brought his "ginger ale" to him. When some of it spilled on my hand, I licked it off. There was whiskey mixed in with the ginger ale. I could have died. He lied to me and broke a sacrificial vow to God. Don't suggest AA or counseling. He wouldn't go. He insists he is no longer grieving over my mother's death but I don't believe it. He even updated his wardrobe and has taken out some women.

Help me, Ann. I love him and can't stand to see him this way. What do you suggest?—At Wit's End in Worcester

DEAR WORCESTER: For him I can suggest nothing. He didn't write. You did. Please look in your phone book for Al-Ateen. This organization is for children whose parents have a bottle problem. At these meetings you will meet other teenagers who will give you the emotional support you need. Please write again and tell me if you took my ad-

Amarillo is the site of the general offices of this division which encompasses Western Oklahoma, the Texas Panhandle, and Eastern New Mexico. Price's project is concerned with the first, second and third districts of the Division.

"There are surprisingly few records left of this division history," said Price, "it was for this reason that I began this project over eleven months ago. So far I have saved more than 200 photos from certain destruction, and I have collected upwards of 400 photos and a great deal of historical information which will eventually be placed in a museum along the Plains Division; possibly at Canyon."

Just recently Price was furnished with a seventy-nine page history titled: "Memories of 49 Years on the Santa Fe Railway" which was written by Rayond McLeod Champion, Sr. The material cover information from 1918 to 1967. "It is this kind of a find that really has excited me," said Price.

"I am in contact with well-known railroad author Lloyd Stagner of Newton, Kansas," said Price, "and Mr. Stagner informs me that the Madam Queen or engine 5000 is the last Texas Type on display in the state. Plus, this engine is the only remaining single engine, single class-single design 'Texas Type' in the world," he said.

The Madam Queen interest is what determined Price to get involved with this project. He has begun a public awareness campaign to try and bring attention to the old steam engine which is deteriorating badly in her open air storage pen. "We are witnessing the second passing of the steam engine," said Price. "If the current trend continues; just a very short time from now there will be no steam engines on display as we know them. Chances are good that the remaining engines could be junked or at the last removed to obscure locations. This would be the greatest shame to happen to railroad history since the 1950's when thousands of locomotives were cut-up for scrap content. As recently as the early sixties these engines were still being chopped up. American history deserves better preservation."

It is expected that later this year the 'Madam Queen' will be recommended for consideration as a National Historic Site. This recommendation will come in conjunction with a historical study to be published by the city of Amarillo sometime this spring; and it will be based on efforts by Price to familiarize the public with the plight of the 5000.

Meanwhile, Price's research continues and he is still looking for photographs, books, records and information about this area's Santa Fe railroad history.

Coalitions Seek Regulation Of Infant Formula Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of minority rights groups is asking the Reagan administration, which rejected an international code on infant formula marketing, to strictly regulate the industry in America.

The organizations say millions of dollars and thousands of lives can be saved by promoting breast feeding for babies born to poor people in this country. The Senate, meanwhile, was voting today on a bipartisan resolution that expressed "concern" about the administration's position on the infant formula issue. The House on Tuesday said it was "dismayed" that the administration opposed the code.

Drug Administration should force formula makers to state on package labels that "Breast is Best." The labels should be written in Spanish as well as English, the coalition said. A spokesman for the baby formula industry said the rights groups were trying to force their ideas on the nation's mothers, regardless of their preference.

The Infant Formula Council of Atlanta, representing the formula makers, also said the rights groups were using outdated and misleading figures in seeking to scare people about the use of infant formula. There has been a sharp decline in infant deaths in the last 10 years, including those born to poorer families, the council said. Robert C. Gelardi, head of the council, said opponents of formula "appeared to be proposing a campaign of enforced universal breast feeding regardless of the mother's or the physician's choice."

The United States stood alone last month as 118 other nations in the World Health Organization adopted a voluntary code aimed at controlling the advertising and marketing of infant formula in developing Third World countries. Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., who is sponsoring the Senate resolution with Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said that "to cast the lone negative vote was detrimental to our national and international interests."

Hopes Slim as Strike Heads into Second Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball strike, now a record in terms of games lost, headed into its second week today and the owners and players headed back to the bargaining table after a one-day reassessment period.

And if there is a break, the general counsel of the Major League Baseball Players Association says it will have to come from the owners' side.

"We don't have any brand-new ideas that we haven't broached," says Donald Fehr. "But that doesn't mean that we won't react to something they might have."

At this stage, the only glimmer of hope would seem to come from the Player Relations Committee (PRC), which sets the owners' policy.

It has met many times in recent weeks and, in fact, had another closed session Thursday.

Committee members would not say if they had new proposals to present to the players' negotiators when talks were to resume at 3 p.m., EDT, today at a midtown New York hotel.

Federal mediator Kenneth Moffett had given negotiators a day off Thursday in hopes that both sides would be able to come up with new proposals to halt the strike which has cost baseball a record 87 canceled games so far. That's one more game than was canceled in the 13-day strike of 1972.

The players went on strike last Friday in a dispute over compensation for players who sign in the baseball's re-entry draft.

Meanwhile, the National Labor Relations Board — because the negotiations have dragged — has decided to give the two sides additional time to talk and has postponed until June 29 its hearing into the players' charge of unfair labor practices.

The hearing had been scheduled to start June 15, then was postponed to June 22. The owners later requested a six-week continuance — and got a week.

"We are anxious to let the parties try and resolve their dispute in collective bargaining," said Alvin Blyer, counsel for the NLRB's New York office, "but at the same time we don't want to disband our procedure. As time goes by, a postponement is less likely. Each request is looked at more carefully."

In a related development, New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner reaffirmed publicly his support for PRC director Ray Grebey. It appeared to quiet rumors that there was a rift developing between a small group of owners and the PRC.

There had been reports that Steinbrenner was pushing for Grebey's release and that he and two other owners — Edward Bennett Williams of the Baltimore Orioles and Eddie Chiles of the Texas Rangers — were prepared to mount a threat to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's job if he did not act quickly to end the walkout.

In a message from Steinbrenner received Thursday by the commissioner's office, both league presidents and the PRC, the Yankee owner said: "Please be assured that the Yankees are supportive of the PRC and the negotiating committee and have publicly stated so numerous times. We think it is imperative that our representatives engage in a meaningful negotiating as part of the bargaining process regardless of any factors. We have been advised by the negotiating committee that this is being done."

"We are completely supportive of the commissioner in this approach." Steinbrenner's telex served to answer some suggestions that the owners were not unified in their cause. On another labor front, it was revealed that baseball almost had another strike on its hand — by umpires.

Richie Phillips, counsel for the Major League Baseball Umpires Association, said Thursday that umpires considered striking in protest of American League President Lee MacPhail's edict aimed at keeping Terry Cooney from umpiring in a game involving the Oakland A's.

But Phillips said the potential walkout was made unnecessary by the players' strike last Friday. MacPhail had ordered the crew of which Cooney is a member off the Oakland assignment because, he said, he feared for Cooney's safety after the umpire had filed criminal charges against Billy Martin, the Oakland manager. MacPhail had suspended Martin one week and fined him $1,000 for bumping Cooney during an argument May 29 in a game

Martin, allowed to continue managing pending a hearing of his appeal of MacPhail's ruling, has said that Cooney should not work any games involving the A's and other teams in the American League West. "MacPhail is buckling under pressure from Billy Martin," said Phillips in an interview from his home near Philadelphia. "The reassignment is a declaration of open season on umpires. Cooney wants to work his schedule. The issue here is the perception of the public that Cooney is an honest ump who can't be run out of a series."

Phillips said that MacPhail's action would encourage other managers and players to abuse umpires, with whom they were having problems.

Thorpe Leads In U.S. Open

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Jim Thorpe, a golfer with a legendary name but not a legendary record in his profession, led the U.S. Open Golf Championship when the first round was over. It was fitting.

Like so many Opens of the past, the first-day heroics go to the unknown, the undistinguished or the unheralded.

Thorpe's golfing career fits the description nicely — and more.

He's won just over $7,000 this year, he's a black in a mostly white profession, and he's relatively unknown.

But he played the snug little Merion Golf Club Thursday like you might have thought Raymond Floyd would. (Floyd thrashed around in woods, bunkers full of fern and creeks. He shot a 75.)

"I haven't played well this year, so I am pleased," said Thorpe as he came off the 18th green.

With his 4-under par, 34-32-66, he took a 1-stroke lead over J.C. Sheel, and a 2-stroke lead over a cluster of five that included a variety of talent and personalities such as:

—Bob Ackerman, an assistant golf pro in his first Open after failing to qualify five previous times.

—David Graham, an Australian who last tasted victory in Phoenix in January but has not played well recently.

—Jack Renner, a frail-looking short-hitter with only one tournament win to his credit since turning pro in 1976.

—Chi Chi Rodriguez, 45, the dapper little Puerto Rican, always with the straw hat, who hasn't seen the inside of a press tent in five years.

—John Cook, rookie pro and former amateur champion.

Three shots back at 1-under par and no strangers to contention were Johnny Miller, Jack Nicklaus, Hubert Green, George Burns, Lon Hinkle, Rex Caldwell, Bill Kratzert and Tommy Valentine.

At even par 70 were 16 golfers, including Tom Watson, Bruce Lietzke, Jerry Pate, Ben Crenshaw and Lanny Wadkins.

Less successful were Gary Player, with a 72, Arnold Palmer, with a 77, including a triple bogey on No. 18, and John Brodie, the former National Football League player who turned in an 80.

Merion has never been successfully assaulted during the three previous Opens held here. The four-day total has never been under par.

Spinks' Topsy-Turvy Career Dealt Big Blow

DETROIT (AP) — The topsy-turvy career of former heavyweight boxing champion Leon Spinks, which suffered when Larry Holmes knocked him out a week ago, has been dealt another blow — this time by Detroit police.

Spinks, 27, who had been arrested at least four times in the past three years, was arrested early Thursday for carrying a concealed weapon.

Police said Spinks was behind the wheel of his 1980 Cadillac when officers spotted him in northwest Detroit, a few miles from his home, driving with an expired license plate.

As the former World Boxing Association champion reached into the glove box for the car's registration, police spotted a .357-caliber Magnum handgun, officers said.

"He is still shocked by it (the arrest). He said that at this particular time he's trying to get his life back together."

The gun was not registered to Spinks, said Inspector David Patterson, the precinct commander. The car Spinks was driving belongs to a corporation bearing his name, Williams added.

Spinks stood mute when arraigned before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Donald L. Hobson, who entered a plea of innocent. He was freed on a $1,000 personal bond pending a preliminary examination June 24, a court spokeswoman said. If convicted, Spinks could face a maximum five-year prison term and a $2,500 fine.

Spinks also was arrested for an unpaid parking ticket and ticketed for the expired license plate, said Williams.

Before his arraignment, Spinks refused to talk to reporters.

The arrest came less than a week after he challenged Holmes in Detroit for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title and was stopped in the third round.

Amarillo Splits With San Antonio

By The Associated Press
A dropped infield fly allowed the winning run to score in the bottom of the ninth inning Thursday night as the Jackson Mets beat the Arkansas Travelers, 2-1, and clinched the first title in the Texas League Eastern Division.

Paul Zymarek drove in three runs with a solo homer and a two-run single as the Shreveport Captains edged the Tulsa Drillers, 6-5.

Shreveport jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first and never trailed although a four-run outburst by Tulsa in the eighth inning made it close. Three of the runs came on a homer by Pete O'Brien.

The winning pitcher was Greg Moyer, 2-3. Walter Terrell, 6-5, was the loser.

Doug Loman had a two-run homer as the El Paso Diablos beat the Midland Cubs, 6-3.

Tom Candiotti, 5-1, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Craig Lefferts, 6-7.

The Amarillo Gold Sox beat the San Antonio Dodgers, 4-1, in the first game of their doubleheaders as the Dodgers couldn't get enough base runners home. They stranded seven in the seventh inning contest.

Mark Zouras had a three-run homer in the second game as the Dodgers bounced back for a 7-3 victory in the nightcap.

Leonard, Hearn Get Ready for Big Fights

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — World Boxing Council welterweight champion Sugar Ray Leonard is completing his daily training sessions quicker than a soft drink commercial because that's the way Manager Angelo Dundee has planned it.

Forget the possibility that Leonard, who is stepping up for a shot at Ayub Kalule's World Boxing Association junior middleweight crown, is not taking the fight seriously or that he is avoiding work to keep his weight up.

"This is a normal workout for Ray," Dundee said. "You never worry about Ray working. You worry about him working too damn hard. As far as his weight is concerned, it's fine, right where we want it to be."

Dundee said Leonard was presently maintaining a weight of 153 pounds instead of the 147 limit for welterweights and that would present no problem for Thursday night's double main event fight in the Astrodome.

World Boxing Association welterweight champion Thomas Hearn, likely Leonard's next opponent, will defend his title on the same card against California welter champion Pablo Baez of the Dominican Republic.

"The difference between Ray at 147 or 151 is a fine line," Dundee said. "Instead of him drying out the night before the fight, so he'll eat dinner. Then the next morning, he'll have a little breakfast."

"I put Kalule on a level with Hearn and (Marvin) Hagler," Dundee said. "We're certainly not taking him lightly. He can go 15 rounds without spitting. He's very durable. Janks (Leonard's trainer Morton) has Ray in the best shape of his life."

Hearn continued training for his bout with Baez in relative obscurity compared to the attention given Leonard.

Meeting Set For Women's Softball Loop

An organizational meeting for a women's softball league is scheduled for Tuesday, June 23, at the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA office in Sugarland Mall.

Time of the meeting will be 7 p.m. League fees, playing days and locations will be determined at the meeting. Anyone interested in entering a team in the league will need to be present at the meeting. For more information, call the YMCA at 364-6990.

Nicklaus Family All Involved in Golf Meet

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus & Co. — it's a family corporation competing in the 81st U.S. Open Golf Championship.

The good-looking, string-bean kid lugging Big Jack's 75 pounds of clubs around the Merion course this weekend is Nicklaus' No. 1 son, Jack, Jr.

Why? "I can't carry the bag all by myself," the world's premier professional golfer quipped laconically when the matter was raised Thursday after his opening round of 69.

The father-son and son-father combination isn't a new tieup in bigtime golf. Jackie, Jr., previously carried Nicklaus' bag in the 1976 British Open at Royal Birkdale. Big Jack reversed the procedure the last two years in caddying for his oldest son in qualifying tests for the Open.

"My dad said he was a better caddy than I was a player," Jackie, Jr., remarked, noting that on both occasions he failed to make the grade.

It's a beautiful, model relationship — the North Palm Beach golfing Nicklauses — all for one and one for all. Jack, Jr., 6-foot-4 and 185 pounds, is a scratch golfer, an internationalist already, at age 19. Steve, 18, caddied for his pop in the Atlanta Classic a couple of weeks ago. Gary, 12, named for Gary Player, shot an 89 in the Florida junior tournament in Tampa Thursday while Jack, Sr., was helping extract the teeth from the Merion tiger.

Nancy Jean, 16, is a budding gymnast. Little Michael, 8, is getting adjusted to miniature clubs back in North Palm Beach, Fla. Barbara, as Mrs. Nicklaus, is boss of the whole shebang.

Papa Nicklaus, 41, still busy adding to his mountain of 19 major championships and 68 tour victories overall, is not a doting parent pressing his offspring into following his footsteps.

"I don't care what they do," Jack said when questioned on the subject, "it's only important that they do well."

The thousands of fans following Nicklaus Thursday saw father and son in deep conversation after Jack had teed off on the fifth hole.

"Jackie reminded me to be sure to hit right," Papa Nicklaus said. "After I drove, I showed him what I did — pause at the top of my swing and shift weight — to avoid going left."

Every round is a learning experience for young Nicklaus.

"Sometimes a caddy can be a hindrance," the elder Nicklaus said. "Jackie respects me and I him. We team up very well."

Nicklaus' longtime regular caddy, Angelo Argea, will continue sharing the bag while supervising a new Golden Bear restaurant back home.

Who Am I?

I coached the only team to win both the National Invitation and the NCAA basketball tournaments. That was three decades ago. As a coach, I spent 40 years with the same college. That helped me to become "Mr. Basketball."

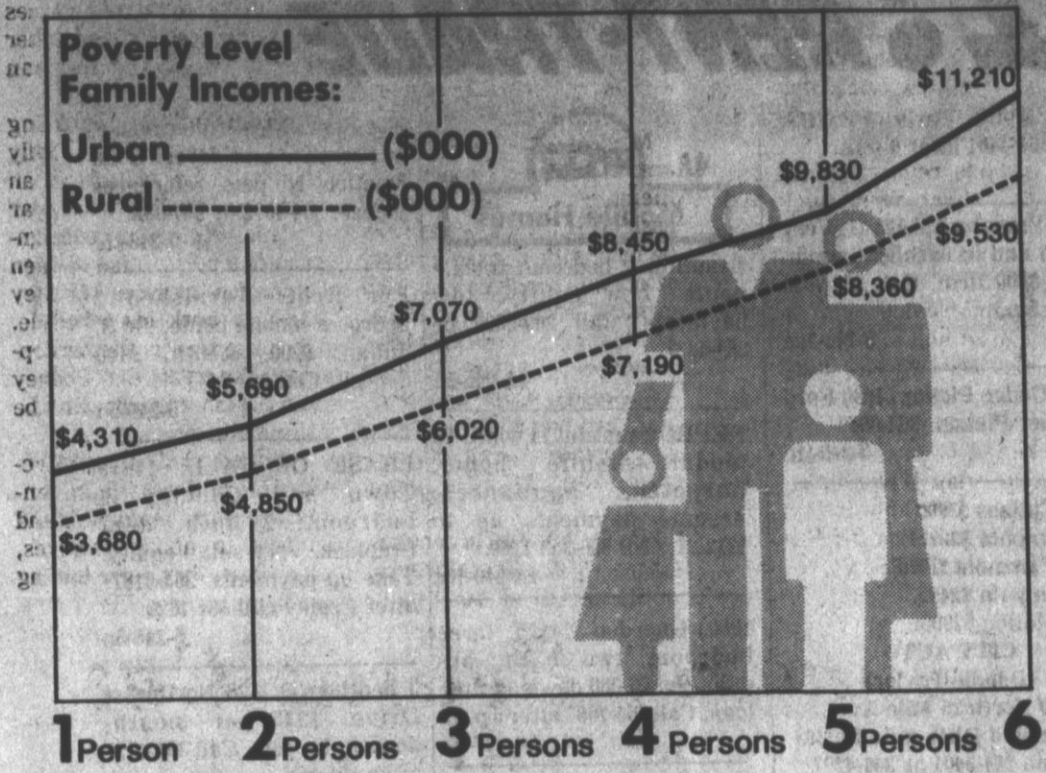

ANSWER: Nat Hearn, who was NIT and NCAA titles.

The Cost of Being Poor IN AMERICA

Source: Department of Labor

The poverty thresholds for American families have taken another upward leap with inflation. Set by the Department of Labor and used by federal agencies to determine eligibility for aid programs, the new levels took effect in March. For an urban family of four persons, the income considered to be at the poverty level is now $8,450, up $1,000 in the past year. For a rural family of the same size, the new figure is $7,190, a one-year increase of $850. Graph shows comparative urban and rural poverty incomes under the new standards for family units up to six persons in size.

Hightower Pushes Bill to Keep Buffalo Lake Near Canyon

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas congressman pledged Thursday to introduce legislation to provide for money to preserve a lake in the Texas Panhandle as a wildlife refuge and a recreational area.

Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Vernon, said he will "continue to push for action in every way I can" to resolve the problems affecting Buffalo Lake in Randall County, a few miles west of Canyon.

He met Wednesday with two representatives of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and said the Southwest division engineer for the U.S. Corps of Engineers is scheduled to visit with him in Washington next week "to get things moving."

The first part of solving the problem is to develop a coordinated and workable interagency plan, Hightower said. The second part is getting the funding, either from money already already within the agencies' budgets or from special appropriations.

"I am prepared to introduce legislation to provide funding for whatever action may be necessary, even in view of the general budget restraints," Hightower said.

His meeting with Jim Pulliam, deputy assistant director of the Fish and Wildlife agency, and Gordon Hansen, assistant regional director, lasted for about an hour Wednesday.

They discussed ways to develop a coordinated plan of action among the departments of Fish and Wildlife, the Army Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation, he said.

"One of the frustrating roadblocks we face in getting action to strengthen the spillway and dam is that after six months, the position of director of Fish and Wildlife has still not been filled by presidential appointment," Hightower said.

"Until we have a director who can make decisions for his agency, Fish and Wildlife will not be fully involved in a solution. And it will take all three agencies' involvement to make Buffalo Lake safe and useful again."

Hightower said he wants to preserve the lake as both a wildlife refuge and a recreational area "while providing the flood control we've got to have there."

Since flood control is one of the prime missions of the Corps of Engineers, that agency will be involved in any necessary repairs or reconstruction of the spillway or dam itself, the congressman said.

Solons Eye Region Interests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern congressmen, having already shown their ability to control decisions in the House on national economic policy, are now setting their sights on protecting regional economic interests.

"The battle has been forced upon us and I think we will respond," Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, told members and supporters of the fledgling Sunbelt Council on Thursday.

The bipartisan group of more than 100 Southern and Southwestern congressmen, formed just two months ago, renewed their pledge to fight other regions of the country for a fair share of federal dollars.

Texas Briefs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday named Lindsley Waters Jr. of Dallas to the Texas Board of Corrections for a term extending to Feb. 15, 1987.

Waters, 64, owns a home and apartment construction firm. He will replace Freeman Dunn of Houston, who resigned.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — So many young people moved to Texas in the 1970s that "the sheer magnitude of women of child-bearing age in Texas is astounding," says the director of a state project to plan for the future.

Dr. Victor Arnold, director of the Texas 2000 Project, told alumni and friends of the University of Texas on Thursday that Texas could be the second most populous state by 1990. By the year 2000, he said, Texas' population could be 22 million, an increase of eight million from its current population.

During the 1970s, he said, 58 percent of Texas' population growth was from people moving into the state — a "startling shift," since the figure for the previous decade was only 10 percent.

Of that in-migration in the 1970s, Arnold said, 55 percent of the heads of households were under 35 years of age, and two-thirds of the remaining immigrants were in the 18-24-year-old bracket.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Thursday recommended setting air conditioner thermostats at 75 degrees in state office buildings this summer to save energy and reduce utility bills.

Clements issued an "official memorandum" that also advised agency directors to use their discretion on possibly observing a "no coat, no tie dress code" from July 1 to Sept. 7.

The governor said between the temperatures of 72 to 78 degrees raising thermostat settings one degree can result in an estimated 4 percent savings in energy use.

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — The body of Walter Jones, 81, was found Thursday in his home at Center Union, a small community near Bastrop and southeast of Austin.

Officers said he had been gagged, tortured and strangled with "old neckties, electrical cords and towels."

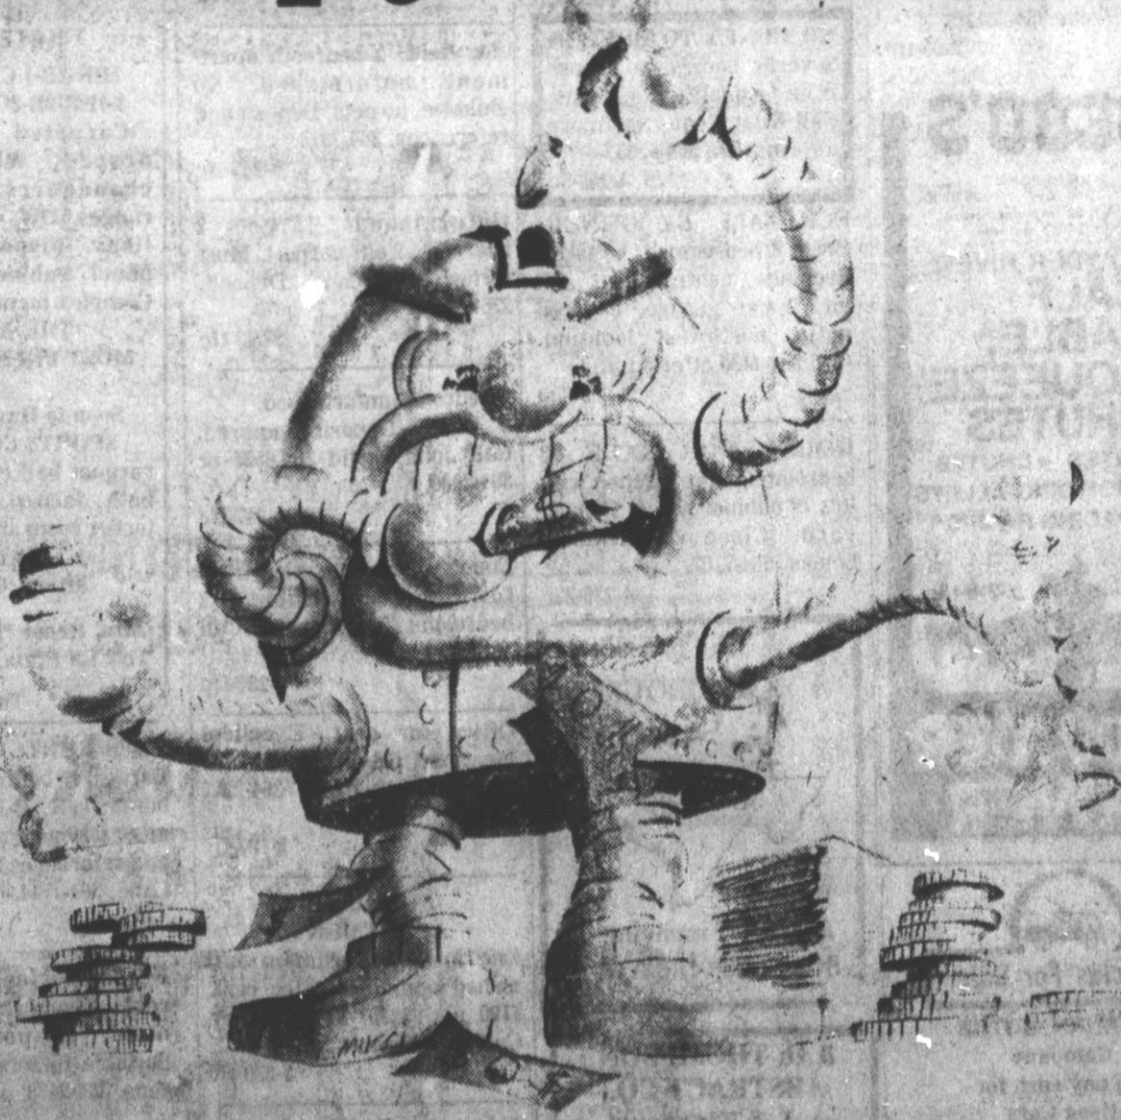

The two-bedroom house had been ransacked.

Jones had lived alone in the remote area since the death of his wife last January. Neighbors said he might have been killed by someone who had heard rumors he kept large sums of money hidden in the house.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Dr. Harvey Knight Jackson, 73, Amarillo, was barred from practice Thursday by the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners.

The board said Jackson's license was revoked on the grounds that his widespread prescribing of potent painkiller drugs constituted "professional or dishonorable conduct likely to deceive or defraud the public."

Sleep-in lenses may help

DEAR DR. LAMB - Two years ago a 75-year-old relative had cataract surgery in one eye. After surgery she wore a contact lens. She now has severe arthritis in her hands and cannot put the lens into her eye. This is a problem as she lives alone. Is it now possible to have an implant put into that eye? The unoperated eye is now deteriorating. Would it benefit her to have an implant in one or the other or both eyes if that is possible?

DEAR DR. LAMB - You have put your finger on one of the problems associated with common contact lenses, the difficulty some people have in putting them in and taking them out. If you have a tremor or arthritis or any number of problems, it can be difficult.

Implanted lenses are useful in certain cases. Of course, you have to be sure the rest of the eye is able to function well enough that an implanted lens will be useful. If the retina or other structures are not adequate, an implanted lens or any other kind of lens will not be that much help. That, by the way, is one reason why doctors don't want to operate on some people who have cataracts.

Now, there is a new development that may help your relative. A lot of work is being done on new contact lenses that may be left in place for long periods of time. Some of those are likely to be available this summer. Dr. H. Dwight Cavanagh, professor and chairman of Emory University's Department of Ophthalmology, says he has patients who have worn the new "sleep-in" contact lenses for four years without taking them out. Your relative should ask her eye doctor about these. Once a year or longer intervals would certainly solve such problems without resorting to implanted lenses.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am 32 years old and have three children. I've had four D&Cs for uterine bleeding caused by a fibroid. It is about the size of an orange and growing slowly. My physician has a wait and see attitude about surgery since they often shrink at the menopause. But I'm a long way from the menopause. I am convinced a partial hysterectomy would eliminate the problem and others that appear connected to it - migraine headaches, dizziness, moodiness, short temper, cramps, acne and edema. They go with any bleeding in the past.

DEAR DR. LAMB - You are putting a lot on your fibroid. About the only thing your doctor could guarantee is that you wouldn't bleed from it anymore. And you might want to consider a hysterectomy (removal of uterus while leaving your ovaries intact) if you have finished your family and do have surgery.

A lot of those other symptoms you describe are commonly caused by premenstrual tension, the natural hormone cycle. If your ovaries are intact and functioning, you will still have them, with or without your fibroid or uterus. Bleeding is one indication for surgery removal of a fibroid tumor.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have been having rectal bleeding for about a year. It is not a great deal of blood, but it shows up for a day or two every four to six weeks. It even shows up on my clothes. The doctor has given me tests in the hospital and all he found were some internal and external hemorrhoids. There is no pain or itching, except a great deal of gas when bleeding occurs. The doctor gave me suppositories and told me to use hot sitz baths. I still have bleeding every month or so, in small amounts. Do you think I should have rectal surgery? I am 65 years old.

DEAR DR. LAMB - It is important for anyone who has bleeding to have an examination. Don't just assume that it is hemorrhoids. There are a number of serious medical conditions that can also cause bleeding. I would doubt you have any of those in view of your examination.

Your letter makes several important points. First, you have no pain. Internal hemorrhoids are inside the rectum and the pain fibers that cause pain and itching are outside, under the external skin area. The internal type tend to bleed without causing pain. The external type tend to cause pain and itching without bleeding. Of course, if you are really unlucky you can have both.

Then you mention gas and that your doctor gave you a suppository. That suggests less than perfect bowel function. Constipation and bowel problems that result in straining make hemorrhoids worse. That includes hard stools - hence the suppositories. And regular bleeding, even of a small amount, can be a cause for iron deficiency that can result in an anemia. So it is wise to keep a check on that.

DEAR DR. LAMB - What is the RDA for protein for a 50-year-old male? I understand the value was changed last year.

DEAR READER - You have been misinformed. The Recommended Daily Dietary Allowance for protein for males, age 25 and older, is still 56 grams a day. For males age 11 to 14 the amount was raised from 46 to 48 grams a day and for males 15 through 22 it was raised from 54 to 56 grams a day.

Remember that the RDA values are approximate amounts that should meet the nutritional requirements of practically all healthy people. In the case of protein, the values are valid only if the person is also getting enough calories to eat - otherwise the protein may be used for energy requirements. Of course, the energy requirements can be met by carbohydrates and fat, including the fat deposits of the body.

FAITH SHOWS THE FALSE PREMISE OF THE "NEW MORALITY"

The so-called "new morality" we hear so much about these days is neither new nor moral, because its activities have been practiced and condemned since the dawn of history; and yet it appears to be gaining an increasing acceptance among the very people who would have been outraged at the idea only a few years ago. Nevertheless, under the guise of personal liberty these destructive habits bind us instead with the chains of a self-imposed slavery and demonstrate a total lack of respect for our minds and bodies by subjecting them to proven health hazards. It is not too late to learn that those rules of conduct set forth in the Bible were pretty good ones after all, and that those who follow them and go to Church regularly are always ahead in the long run.

"And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them."
—Ephesians 5:11

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien,
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
Yet seen to oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.
—Alexander Pope
