Reagan leaves tonight for European summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan embarks tonight on the first overseas trip of his second term, still struggling to keep his visit to Nazi graves from overwhelming his hopes for a celebration of 40 years of Western European peace and reconciliation.

The president is making an overnight flight to Bonn, West Germany, for the annual summit of the seven major industrialized democracies that begins Thursday.

Also on the itinerary before Reagan's return May 10 are state visits in West Germany, Spain, Portugal and a speech in Strasbourg, France, marking the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe and looking toward the future of East-West relations and European unity.

But the president's intentions for an upbeat journey have been submerged by an uproar over his planned visit next Sunday with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl at the Kolmeschoe cemetery at Bitburg, near the Luxembourg border.

Among the nearly 2,000 graves are those of 49 soldiers from the SS, the elite Nazi combat corps which ran Adolf Hitler's concentration camps.

Jewish leaders, American veterans groups and members of Congress have condemned Reagan's appearance at the cemetery.

Hours before Reagan's departure, Bitburg on Reagan's schedule was "a mistake, a blunder and poor judgement," Reagan should go ahead with it out of diplomatic and foreign policy considerations.

House debates his visit

During debate on the measure Monday, Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., addressing Reagan as though he were present in the House chamber, said: "You are taking our moral leadership several notches lower. You are leaving a permanent blot on this nation's history. This resolution is a last plea. Please, do not visit Bitburg."

But Rep. Thomas F. Hartnett, R-S.C., said that although placing Resolution signed by 82 senators has urged the president to reassess his plans, and a letter signed by 257 House members was sent to Kohl urging him to withdraw the invitation for Reagan to visit Bitburg.

Wayward winter winds leave Northeast in drought

By JOHN DIAZ Associated Press Writer

Wayward winter winds have left the land between Philadelphia and Boston moist when it should be soaking wet, leaving millions of people who live in the region facing one of the worst droughts in years, experts say.

After nine straight months of below-average rainfall, drought alerts or emergencies have been declared in northern New Jersey, eastern Pennsylvania, New York City and 20 towns in Massachusetts. Lawns are going without water, cars are unwashed and some restaurants are serving water only on request.

Three reservoirs at the headwaters of the Delaware River in New York State are at 61 percent of capacity when they should be nearly full. These Catskill Mountain reservoirs provide about half of New York City's drinking water and are considered a guidepost of the region's supply.

"We are in worse shape going into the hot, dry summer than we've ever been — and that includes the drought of the '60s, which is the worst on record," said Dawes Thompson of the Delaware River Basin Commission, which tracks water supplies for southern New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Robert Goodell, the commission's chief engineer, figures the area around the Catskill reservoirs would need about 15 inches of rain before June — three times normal — to lift the drought warning.

The dry winter has been blamed on storms that veered from their normal patterns, fluctuations in land and sea temperatures, a lack of snow and the meandering of high-altitude winds known as the jet stream.

The jet stream normally moves along the South and Gulf Coast, said Kenneth Bergman, a climate analyst for the National Weather Service. Last winter, it swung north over the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence Valley, taking normal rain and snow storms with it.

Municipalities are being forced to tighten the tap.

Gov. Thomas H. Kean has declared a drought emergency in northern New Jersey, banning car washing, lawn watering and the automatic serving of water in restaurants. To prevent forest fires, more than 2 million parched acres of public and private woodland have been closed to hiking, camping and other recreation.

In Massachusetts, 20 communities have imposed watering restrictions and more may join the list soon. Boston's rainfall has been almost 8 inches below normal since last summer, but Marcus Kemp of the Metropolitan District Commission said the mammoth Quabbin Reservoir is 85 percent full and should provide a steady flow to the city and 44 other communities.

After the 1967 drought, he noted, it took until 1976 to fill the reservoir.

Compounding the problem was Boston's snowfall last winter, 26.6 inches compared with 43 inches in 1983-84, said meteorologist Bob Pannuto. "Winter is the time of year when we should be building up a reserve."

Gov. Richard Thornburgh has declared a drought emergency for 16 eastern Pennsylvania counties with about 5 million residents. Cheaters who water their lawns or wash their cars face up to $500 in fines and 90 days in jail.

New York Mayor Edward Koch declared a drought emergency on Friday, imposing mandatory water conservation.

Central Park, which normally has 13.8 inches of rain by April 30 each year, has had just 6.7 inches this year.

Combest planning bill to give LSC more power

Nineteenth District Representative Larry Combest said Monday he is working on a bill that if passed could change the relationship between Texas Rural Legal Aid and the Legal Services Corporation, which provides most of TRLA's funding.

"I'm drafting a bill that would make agencies such as TRLA more responsible to the LSC," Combest explained. "Currently, LSC has practically no control over the agencies it funds."

Combest said the new law would also shorten the period of time it takes for LSC to defund an agency for violations of the Legal Services Act. "I would like to see a period of 70 to 75 days for defunding," he said.

Earlier this year, Combest called for a thorough investigation of the Hereford office in TRLA in light of complaints about the office from a number of local citizens. Wendell Wylie of LSC's office of Compliance and Review conducted a preliminary investigation last fall, later publishing a rather lengthy report of his findings. TRLA vigorously objected to the report, referring to it as innuendo and demanding an apology.

LSC did not issue an apology, and later sent a five-person investigative team to Hereford to document testimony gathered during the first visit.

Wylie said Monday he expects to issue the findings of that probe within the next two weeks, and TRLA Executive Director David Hall of Weslaco will have a chance to view the documents before it is released to the media.

Combest said he feels it would take a "pretty severe violation" of the Legal Services Act for LSC to recommend defunding of any of the agencies it supports, and he feels his bill would give LSC better control in cases where defunding would not be the proper method of dealing with problems.

The Lubbock congressman said he expects to introduce the bill around June 1.

TRLA has drawn citizen complaints for such things as filing discrimination suits against Deaf Smith County and the local school district, and for its support of Labor leader Jesus Moya.

IRS shredding may be 'tip of iceberg'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The destruction of thousands of tax documents at the Internal Revenue Service regional center in Austin may be "just the tip of the iceberg," two lawmakers said.

Their comments came Monday after IRS Commissioner Roscoe Egger confirmed the incident in testimony before the House Ways and Means Oversight Subcommittee, which authorizes the IRS budget.

Rep. Richard T. Schulze, R-Pa., told Egger he was upset about the shredding of documents in Austin and an earlier scandal involving the IRS regional center in Philadelphia.

"I have the feeling that this is just the tip of the iceberg we are seeing, and it scares the devil out of me," Rep. Richard T. Schulze, R-Pa., told Egger.

Two General Accounting Office officials told the House panel Monday that tax documents has been recovered from a women's restroom and from an acoustical tile ceiling at the Philadelphia office. The office has also been plagued by allegations of document destruction.

Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Austin, the chairman of the panel, echoed Schulze's concerns.

"We might have just touched the tip of the iceberg," he said after the meeting. "We are going to review every (IRS) service center in the country to see if they have instances of shredding or mutilation or misplacement of documents."

"Any unauthorized shredding of documents is a very serious matter and a matter of national concern," Pickle said.

Egger said Monday that IRS officials in Austin did not inform him of the incident until after a local union official revealed it to reporters Friday.

The union official said a supervisor ordered the destruction of between 5,000 and 6,000 documents in the business master file section in the fall of 1984 in an apparent attempt to pad productivity figures.

March economic index drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main economic forecasting gauge decreased 0.2 percent in March, reversing a two-month gain and hinting of lagging business activity later in the year.

Moreover, the report issued today by the Commerce Department revised downward the gains posted by the index of leading indicators for the past two months — dropping the February increase from 0.7 percent to 0.5 percent and the January gain from 1.5 percent to 1.3 percent.

The index has not risen for three consecutive months since last May.

Most analysts had been expecting at least some gain in the March index as a signal the economy was ready to pick up steam after a first quarter in which growth, as measured by the gross national product, was only 1.3 percent.

The Reagan administration has based its budget assumptions on projections of 4 percent growth for the year.

Although many private economists view that as a bit optimistic, the majority of them have been predicting an annual growth rate of well over 3 percent for the year.

In another report today, the Commerce Department said the United States suffered an $11 billion foreign trade deficit last month, only a slight improvement from the $11.4 billion deficit run up in February.

In March, imports rose 0.7 percent despite sharp drops in shipments of petroleum and cars to the United

Hereford Key Club honored

The Hereford Key Club was a big winner at the 38th annual Texas-Oklahoma Key Club International Convention, held over the weekend at the convention center in Ft. Worth.

The club was awarded second place in the "Single Service Project" category for its Hereford Senior Citizen's center project. Earlier this year, the club donated a 25 inch remote control color television to the center.

Based on the entire year's activities and projects, the club placed second for its achievement report, and was named first for its contribution to the T-O District "Project Concern."

The local club was rated sixth out of the 300 Key Clubs in the T-O District, based on grading and rating of its monthly reporting of activities and projects.

Don Flood, president of the Hereford chapter, was singled out as the Outstanding Club President Award. According to advisor Gene Brock, that selection is made by the officers of the district based on the Key Club president who promotes and carries out the objectives and ideals of Key Club. Flood was also awarded a medallion as "Leader of Leaders."

Fifty Hereford Key Club members, along with Brock and Kiwanis advisors Wayne Winget, Greg Banner, Mal Manchee and Jim Ward, represented the 127 members of the club.

Stefan Hacker, who has served as L. Governor of Division 33, was officially retired from his duties at the convention. Nathan Flood was installed as the new L. Governor for the 1985-86 Key Club year.

School board to meet Thursday

One arrested, firemen called twice
Sheriff's deputies made one arrest for public intoxication and responded to two reports of family disputes. They also talked with a truant and took a bicycle theft report.
Hereford Volunteer Firemen answered two calls Saturday afternoon: a shed caught on fire at 508 Whittier and a dishwasher shorted out at 210 Ave. J. Damage was slight in both instances.

Family dispute settled with arrest
Six Hereford women took their family dispute into the Hereford Police Station Monday, with officers making one arrest for verbal threats.
Other arrests over the weekend and Monday included four for driving while intoxicated, two traffic arrests and two for public intoxication. Three juveniles were also taken into custody, one on theft charges, another for criminal mischief and a third for lack of supervision.
Police officers responded to a number of reports, including six domestic disputes and two cases of neighbors fighting.
An ongoing dispute between several Hereford men resulted in a broken windshield, and a sign was damaged at a local church.
There were three bicycle thefts reported, and a renter accused his landlord of criminal trespass by entering the residence while the renter was not at home.

Coplen ends spelling bee career
A futile appeal to the judges at the Regional Spelling Bee marked the end of Matt Coplen's entry in the contest and completed his three-year reign as Deaf Smith County's top speller. An eighth grader at La Plata, Coplen will be too old for the annual contest next spring.
"Flammable" was his stumbling block Saturday, despite his appeal to the judges. After announcing the spelling as incorrect, the judges asked for taped replay and confirmed their decision. Coplen appealed, requested another replay, but lost the case.
"It has been a super-good experience for Matt these years," said Janie Coplen, his mother. He and his parents spend about an hour a day together "in training" for the bees.

State lawmaker faces trial

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — State Rep. Frank Collazo, who faces trial on a bribery charge, says he is "comfortable and ready to go" in the case.

Jury selection was scheduled to start today in the trial of Collazo, 53, a Port Arthur Democrat who was indicted March 21 on the second-degree felony charge.

The indictment alleges Collazo in 1982 solicited partnerships in two businesses owned by Chester Slay, a Beaumont businessman and former state representative, in exchange for influencing the Texas Water Quality Board and Texas Department of Water Resources.

Slay last year lost a water pollution lawsuit brought by the state. Defense attorneys in a pretrial hearing Monday asked state District Judge Leonard Giblin Jr. to allow the trial to be videotaped for television.

However, the judge denied the request. Defense attorney Louis Dugas said he wanted the trial televised "because our client is a public official, and I think the public ought to see what sort of case that's been brought against him so they can judge for themselves."

If the public viewed the trial, it would offend their sense of justice, the attorney said. Giblin also denied defense attorneys' motions to dismiss the case.

Broker given 35-year sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — A commodities broker faces a 35-year prison sentence for arranging the sinking of an oil tanker off the Senegalese coast as part of a multimillion dollar oil fraud scheme.

Frederick Soudan, 41, of Houston apologized Monday after U.S. District Judge Carl Bue read the prison sentence.

"I got involved in something beyond my comprehension," he said. "I should have known better. I made a mistake ... and I'm very sorry."

Soudan will be eligible for parole after 10 years. Bue also told Soudan he should try to repay the $4.25 million prosecutors claim he made in a $56 million oil swindle.

Soudan was convicted on March 26 of 17 counts of wire fraud, perjury, interstate transportation of stolen property, conspiracy to defraud the United States and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

He had faced up to 86 years in prison and an $88,000 fine. Prosecutors contended Soudan stole 200,000 tons of crude from its Italian owner and ordered it delivered to South Africa on the super-tanker Salem.

According to the 22-count indictment, Soudan and four other men arranged for the tanker to be sunk off the coast of Senegal on Jan. 17, 1980, to cover up the theft.

Government prosecutors said Soudan made $4.25 million from the scheme, which they claimed was part of a conspiracy to steal 1.4 million barrels of oil from European firms and secretly deliver the crude to South Africa.

National

Thursday 'National Day of Prayer'

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — The National Day of Prayer Task Force is urging Americans to "take five at 12" on Thursday — five minutes at noon — to give thanks to God and to pray for his "continued blessing on the nation."

The non-denominational task force, through a network of state coordinators, also is encouraging special prayer services.

President Reagan, in a proclamation setting the May 2 date for the annual national observances, said, "We are all God's handiwork, and it is appropriate for us as individuals and as a nation to call to him in prayer..."

"We can give thanks to God for the ever increasing abundance he has bestowed on us, and we can remember all those in our society who are in need of help, whether it be in material assistance or in the form of charity or simply a friendly word of encouragement."

Mistrial declared in murder case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge declared a mistrial and Ricky Kyle burst into tears after a jury deadlocked 10-2 in favor of convicting him of murdering his millionaire father to avoid being disinherited.

"We're elated that the state failed to convince these fine jurors that Ricky Kyle committed a crime," said Kyle's attorney, Jack Pate. "We anticipated an acquittal and we continue to anticipate it."

Superior Court Judge Robert Devich ended the six-month trial Monday after jurors deliberated 4½ weeks but failed to reach a verdict. Devich set a June 21 hearing on a possible retrial.

Kyle, 22, who was accompanied to court by his wife, Kelly, and their son, Justin, declined to comment.

Henry Harrison Kyle Sr., 60, a former Dallas resident, was shot to death July 22, 1983, in his Bel-Air mansion as he and Ricky Kyle searched for prowlars. The prosecution contended he was murdered, but the defense portrayed Ricky Kyle as firing in self-defense against his abusive, overbearing father.

Deputy District Attorney Lewis Watnick said he was disappointed. "We did have what I would consider overwhelming evidence," he said. "Ten jurors thought it was a very solid case. If 10 believe it was sufficient..."

Watnick said he thought the case would be retried. The prosecution contended Kyle killed his father because he feared being written out of Kyle Sr.'s will.

The elder Kyle, whose personal fortune was estimated at $20 million, headed a $100 million empire that included apartments, restaurants, dairy farms, coal mines, a bank and a television production company.

Pepsi seeks to exploit Coke change

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pepsi Cola Co., seizing "the opportunity of a lifetime," has launched an advertising campaign that seeks to exploit rival Coca-Cola's decision to change its formula.

In a television commercial put together in less than a week, a teenage girl stares into the camera and asks: "Can somebody out there tell me why they did it? They said they were 'the real thing.' They said they were 'it.' And now they've changed."

After announcing that she is about to try Pepsi for the first time, the girl takes a sip from a can and says, "Ummm. Now I know why."

The Coca-Cola Co. announced last week that it was scrapping its 99-year-old formula for one that is slightly sweeter. Pepsi shot the new commercial Friday on videotape instead of film so it would be ready faster.

"We see it as the opportunity of a lifetime, and we cannot simply let it pass by," Pepsi spokesman Ken Ross said Monday.

Ross said the ad will get heavy play over the next month and may be replaced by more ads exploiting Coke's change. Ross would not comment on how much Pepsi was spending on the campaign, but would not deny reports that it was in the vicinity of $2.5 million.

Clean Air Week

Mayor Wes Fisher, witnessed by Mildred Fuhrman and Jewell Smith, has signed a proclamation declaring April 28 through May 4 as Clean Air Week in Hereford. The American Lung Association of Texas hopes the declarations across the state will alert citizens to hazards of breathing polluted air.

'150' project list continues to grow

Obtaining pen pals from "down under," getting on club programs, and learning the official songs of Texas and Australia are on the work list of the Deaf Smith County Sesquicentennial executive committee.

During a meeting last week, it was announced that the Hereford Senior Citizens Association has already planned to exchange addresses with persons in Hereford's sister city of Bordertown, Australia. Bordertown residents will be celebrating the 150th anniversary of their town and was matched with Hereford for international cultural exchange.

The Sesquicentennial committee plans to assist residents of both cities in swapping histories and customs through visits and correspondence. As a part of that, the committee has obtained copies of the music and lyrics of "God Save the King," "Waltzing Matilda," and "Advance, Australia Fair," plus the Texas anthem of "Texas, Our Texas."

Oldham County voters approve public library

VEGA — By the margin of just one vote, a $200,000 bond issue to fund construction of the first-ever public library in Oldham County was approved here Monday.

The vote was 220 for and 219 against, according to county clerk Martha Thompson, with about one-third of the county's registered voters going to the polls.

Taxes will be increased by approximately 2.5 cents per $100 valuation over the next six years, if the tax base remains the same, said county attorney Richard Brainerd. A county about a year ago on a $300,000 proposal was defeated by 20 votes.

The bond proposal was $100,000 less this time, Brainerd explained, because the library group is hoping to receive a $100,000 grant from the Texas Library Systems.

The library will be located near the courthouse, Oldham County is the only county in the Texas Panhandle without a public library.

Nazi war criminals still haunt Europe

LONDON (AP) — Forty years after the defeat of Adolf Hitler, aged Nazi war criminals still cast a shadow over Europe, keeping bitter memories alive and sometimes embarrassing governments.

In one way or another, France, Britain, Ireland, Austria, Italy, Holland and Belgium all have been wracked by the Nazi past in recent months.

The biggest case pending involves Klaus Barbie, who is expected to go on trial, possibly this year, in Lyon, France, where he was Gestapo chief during World War II. He has been imprisoned in Lyon since February 1983, when he was expelled from Bolivia.

Barbie, 71, is accused of deporting thousands of French Jews and others to concentration camps, and of torturing French resistance fighters.

In Austria, meanwhile, the socialist-led coalition had to fight a parliamentary no-confidence motion only last February because the defense minister, Friedhelm Frischenschlager, officially welcomed a Nazi war criminal to his country.

Walter Reder, a major in Hitler's SS guard, had served 33 years in an Italian prison for ordering a reprisal massacre of 1,830 Italian civilians.

He was paroled by the Italians on grounds of ill health and flown to Austria, where Frischenschlager welcomed him and escorted him to a military barracks. Facing protests and demands for his dismissal, the defense minister apologized for "a grave political mistake" and stayed States. Exports were up 3.3 percent, reflecting a big increase in aircraft sales.

The trade deficit, which ran a record $123.3 billion last year, is being blamed in large part of lagging economic growth in the United States, particularly in the manufacturing sector.

Today's disappointing figures in the leading indicator index, a report designed to give insight into the likely shape of the economy six to nine months into the future, could cause further reassessment of those predictions.

On the other hand, the negative figure could revive hope among investors that the Federal Reserve Board might be inclined to loosen credit, lowering interest rates, to give the economy a shot in the arm.

The stock market, generally anticipating at least a modest gain in the economic indicator report, suffered its biggest decline of the year on Monday, partly because of concern that the Treasury's quarterly in office. Reder, 69, is believed to be living in Vienna.

For Holland, the Nazi connection came in the shape of Pieter Menten, a Dutchman jailed for his involvement in the massacre of 20 to 30 Polish Jews by SS men in Poland in 1941.

Upon his release from prison in March after serving two-thirds of a 10-year sentence handed down by a Dutch court, 85-year-old Menten planned to retire to a house in Ireland. But outcry from Irish Jews prompted Dublin to refuse him entry. Menten is still living in Holland.

Britain, like Ireland, was not occupied by the Germans in World War II and has not had to wrestle with such issues, but it too is sensitive to Nazi connections. In April Britain was rocked by newspaper revelations that Princess Michael, a member of the royal family by marriage, was the daughter of an SS major.

The princess, 40, has released a 1948 Bavarian court judgment issued under the Allies' de-nazification law ruling that her father, now deceased, was an SS member only in name, and that his relations with the unit grew so bad that it expelled him in 1944.

Belgium's top war criminal still at large is Leon Degrelle, 78, who led SS troops on the Soviet front and now lives in Spain.

The United States and Canada have also been plunged into the war crimes question.

A Cleveland court has ordered the extradition to Israel of John Demjanjuk, 65, on charges that he operated the gas chamber at the Treblinka concentration camp in Poland where thousands of Jews died.

Yugoslavia is seeking the extradition from Los Angeles of Andrija Artukovic, 85, whom it blames for the wartime massacre of thousands of Serbs, Jews and Gypsies while he was interior minister in the Nazis' puppet regime of Croatia. Artukovic's case is before the U.S. courts.

refinancing plan to be outlined later today will call for a big wave of new borrowing.

Heavy government borrowing, coupled with no action to loosen credit, would put upward pressure on interest rates and further stymie business activity.

Seven of the 10 indicators in today's report were down.

Only the average workweek, building permits and average initial claims for unemployment insurance increased.

The department said the most negative influence on the March index came, in order, from net business formation, contracts and orders for plant and equipment, manufacturers' new orders for consumer goods and materials, vendor performance, change in sensitive materials prices, stock prices and money supply.

The changes left the index at 167.1 percent of its 1967 base compared to 167.5 in February.

REAGAN

Nonetheless, Reagan is holding firm to his plan to visit the cemetery.

"The final word has been said as far as I am concerned," Reagan said Monday in an interview with foreign television reporters. "I think it is morally right to do as I am doing, and I am not going to change my mind on that."

Reagan added, "All of those in that cemetery have long since met the supreme judge of right and wrong, and whatever punishment or justice was needed has been rendered by one who was above us all."

The president said the visit to the cemetery is intended to "bring to the people an awareness of the great reconciliation that has taken place."

Reagan also told the foreign journalists, "Very frankly, I don't think many of your American colleagues in the press have been quite fair about this. They got hold of something and like a dog chewing on a bone they were not going to let go of it."

Clearly, the controversy over the Bitburg visit has knocked White House planners off balance and sent them scrambling to get the focus back on the economic summit and Reagan's message of progress in Europe since the end of the war.

4-H Around the County

By SUSAN RANEY
County Extension Agent

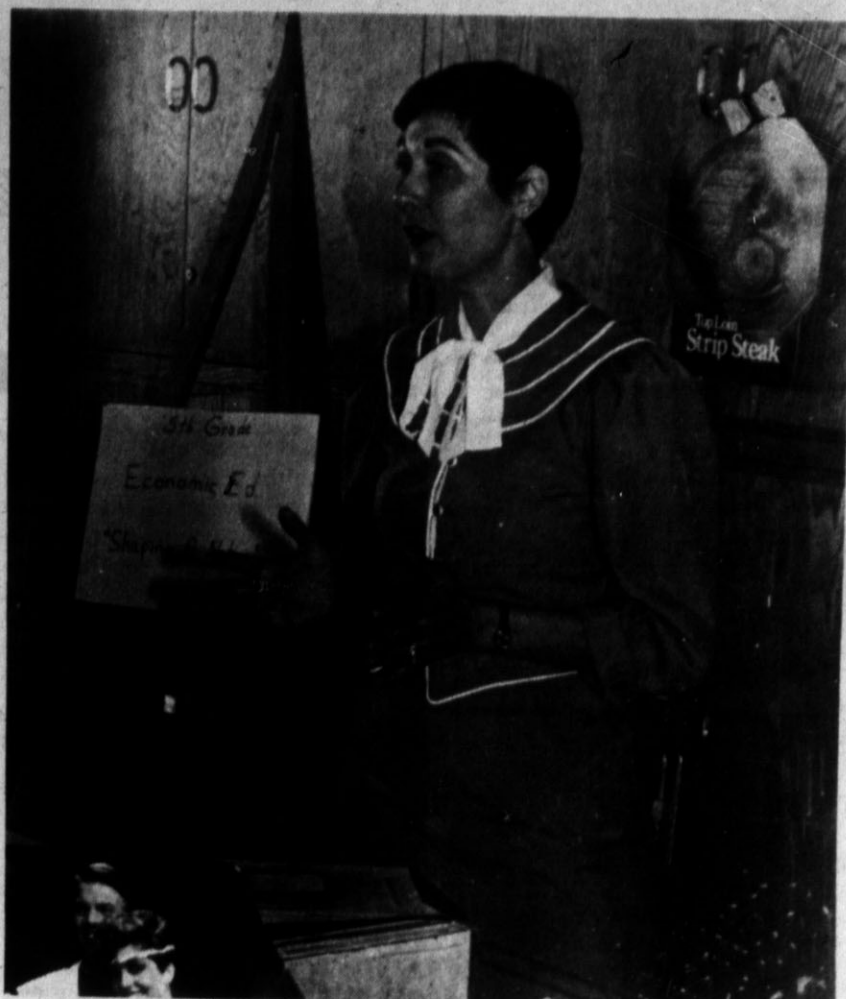

"Learn by Doing" is the basic theme to all 4-H clubs and organizations. The structure of 4-H allows young people to learn research-based methods and practices by actually performing those tasks themselves. Four-H is also a "teach by showing" organization and we accomplish this by encouraging members to present method demonstrations or illustrated talks.

Recently, local members of the Deaf Smith County 4-H Clubs held their 4-H County Round Up. The following 4-H'ers participated in Round Up by presenting illustrated talks and method demonstrations in various categories:

Seniors - Kelly Burrus and Jodi McElhane-Family Life; Jeff Hicks-Sheep

Juniors - Kinann Campbell-Food/Nutrition; Camille Betzen-Health; Jim Bret Campbell-Horse; Cory Newton & Patrick Newton-Horticulture Production and Marketing; Nathan Betzen & Patrick Mies-Landscape Horticulture; Susan Rickman-Mechanical Hand Skills; John-David Rickman-Natural Resources; Jill Dutton & Jennifer Hicks-Pork; Ancy Sciumbato and Greg Urbanczyk-Safety/Accident Prevention; Cheryl Schlabs & Lori Urbanczyk-Sheep; and Betsy Mies and Shawn Sciumbato-Open Class.

These 4-H'ers will travel to Canyon on May 4, 1985 to compete on a district-wide basis at the annual 4-H District Round-Up. Seniors may advance on to State Round-Up, which will be held in College Station at Texas A&M, June 4-5.

Specialist gives tip on lightning safety

When it comes to a brilliant display of lightning in Texas skies, "better safe than sorry," is a good motto.

Deaths from lightning may be rare, but it's shortsighted for anyone to ignore the simple precautions and slight inconvenience of safety measures, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service health education specialist Dr. Mary Ann Heussner.

She says the first rule of lightning safety is to get away quickly from any open space—a field, golf course, hill-top, beach or pool. Get away before the rain starts, since lethal bolts sometimes strike during the muggy lull before a storm.

"If you're caught outside, the best kinds of shelter are buildings equipped with a lightning protection system, steel-framed buildings, and cars, buses or tractors with metal tops and closed windows," advises the specialist. "But don't trust a flimsy shelter on a golf course."

When you can't take cover, you can better your chances by taking refuge in a ravine, culvert or ditch—keeping away from pipes and staying alert for flash floods, Heussner says.

When none of this is practical, crouch as low as possible with no part of your body except knees and toes touching the ground. Also remember to avoid tall isolated objects, like a lone tree, staying twice as far away as the tree is high.

Just being indoors doesn't entirely protect you from lightning, Heussner points out.

Stay away from open doors and

There are more than 620 million Roman Catholics in the world, while 369 million people are Protestants. Muslims list 555 million followers and there are 462 million Hindus. About 250 million practice the Buddhist religion and 17 million follow the Jewish faith.

"Unfortunately, when someone is struck by lightning, bystanders often don't know what to do," remarks the specialist. "Others won't touch the victim for fear he is still electrically charged."

But a lightning victim can be safely touched, and often revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, Heussner says.

Beef promotion workshop conducted

A workshop on beef promotion was conducted by Lou Ann Smoot of the Beef Industry Council office in Austin when members and guests of the Hereford CowBelles met recently at the Community Center for their monthly meeting and luncheon.

Copies of promotion materials being used by the Beef Industry Council were distributed to those attending the workshop. In addition, it was pointed out that meat cut charts as well as wall posters of different sizes are also available through that office. 4-H groups, grocery stores or anyone interested in obtaining these materials may contact any CowBelle or the Beef Industry Council office directly.

A special thanks to Texas Cattle Feeder's Association was expressed by President Dee Anne Trotter for their help on the workshop.

A short business meeting was held after the workshop concluded.

Next month the Hereford CowBelles will tour the Panhandle Plains Museum at Canyon.

In season finale

Herd scores 4-3 win over Palo Duro

By GARY CHRISTENSEN
Sports Editor

A sacrifice fly by Doug Evans drove home the winning run as the Hereford High School varsity baseball team defeated Palo Duro 4-3 Saturday in Hereford.

Kurt Simon played a role in all four Hereford runs to help the Herd win the season finale.

The victory over Palo Duro put Hereford in sixth place in District 3-5A.

The Herd's final district record is 5-11, behind Lubbock, Monterrey, Plainview, Lubbock High, Amarillo High, and Lubbock Coronado.

For the season, Hereford won nine games and lost 13.

Kurt Simon stroked a two-run double in the first inning to give the Herd a 2-0 lead.

Simon batted in Chet Bunch, who had singled, and Mike Scott, who had walked.

Palo Duro scored one run on an error in the second inning to close the gap to 2-1.

The Dons then moved ahead 3-2 in the third inning. The first run was batted in with a single.

An error put Palo Duro runners at first and third, and the second run of the inning was scored on an RBI groundout.

Simon led off the fifth inning with a triple for Hereford. He was batted in by Sammy Suarez who hit a single.

Hereford, which left the bases loaded in the second inning, also left them loaded after the fifth-inning run was scored.

In the seventh inning, Simon recorded a single and went to second base on an error. He then moved over to third base on a wild pitch.

Doug Evans then came to bat and provided the heroics for the Herd when he hit a fly ball deep into center field. Simon easily moved the final 90 feet, and Hereford won the district battle, 4-3.

Hereford pitchers Donnie Rieves and Bobby Medina combined for a three-hitter. Two Palo Duro batters struck out and two others reached base on walks.

Rangers spoil Martin's 4th debut with Yanks

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Larry Parrish says he even has trouble hitting three home runs in batting practice.

But Parrish did it in a game Monday night, spoiling Billy Martin's fourth managerial debut with the New York Yankees.

Parrish knocked in six runs with the three homers as the Rangers snapped a five-game losing streak with a 7-5 victory over the Yankees and Ron Guidry.

Parrish drilled three homers, two of them off Guidry, and knocked in six runs to spoil Martin's comeback with a 7-5 Texas Ranger victory on Monday night.

"I don't know how to explain it," said Parrish. "Everytime I swung at the ball I hit the center. I wish it was that easy every night."

"You can go to batting practice and not hit three out. It was just one of those freak things."

It was a "freaky" night. Bobby Meacham cleared the wall with a drive in the fourth inning off starter Frank Tanana but instead of getting a three-homer he got a two run single and was ruled out.

Meacham was admiring his work when he passed Willie Randolph who thought the ball was going to be caught. Meacham was called out and given a single but the two runners on base scored.

"I'm not going to blame anyone for that one," said Martin, who replaced Yogi Berra, who was fired Sunday.

"Things like that happen." Meacham said "I was running hard. I went to touch first and Randolph was going back to first. There was no way I could stop."

Dave Schmidt, 1-1, picked up the victory in relief for Texas.

Parrish has a special spell over Guidry, now 1-3.

Parrish has touched Guidry for four homers in two years and has 12 career homers against the Yankees, most against any team.

He also is now only the fifth player to hit three or more homers in a game in both leagues. Parrish played at Montreal in the National League.

Parrish's two-out, two-run homer off reliever John Montefusco, making his first appearance of the season, in the eighth inning was the game winner.

Parrish also hit a three-homer off Guidry in the fourth inning and a solo shot the sixth after Gary Ward had homered.

Martin said of Parrish's homer binge: "That's something you very seldom see."

PUBLIC NOTICE

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc. ("AT&T Communications"), in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUC") hereby gives notice of its intent to implement a new schedule of rates for its services. The new rates will be effective May 14, 1985, unless otherwise determined by the PUC. All customers and classes of customers would be affected by the proposed rates.

AT&T Communications has filed a reprice of its tariffs designed to more closely recover access and other costs for WATS and 800 Service and all private line services including Channel Services, Foreign Exchange (FX), DATAPHONE Digital Service, and OCC Facilities.

Also proposed is the institution of a charge for Directory Assistance to begin to recover access costs incurred for such service and increases in rates for operator assisted AT&T Long Distance calls. The initial minute charge for all AT&T Long Distance calls and additional minute rates for AT&T Long Distance calls 51 miles or less are proposed for increases to reflect the access charges approved by the PUC for such calls.

The proposed new rates for all services would result in an increase in adjusted test period revenues of $139 million or 12.7 percent.

A complete copy of the proposed tariffs are on file with the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene or participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Video games may provide relief from frustrations

Instead of kicking the dog after a tension-packed day, blasting aliens on a video game may be healthier for you—and the dog.

Video games, often noted for their violence, may provide an outlet for the everyday frustrations that could lead to aggressive behavior. In a Texas Tech University study of eighth-grade video game players, aggression levels decreased after playing two video games.

The study was conducted by Professor Connie Steele, who chairs the Department of Human Development and Family Studies, with assistance from graduate student Rebecca J. Glover. The researchers attempted to answer the question, Do video games stimulate or relieve aggressive responses from eighth-grade males?

Video games have become a big business with at least $5 billion per year spent in video arcades—usually at 25 cents per game, Steele said. The figure does not include the millions of dollars paid for cassettes for playing home video games.

Recent concern over video games stemmed from the violence enacted in the games, Steele said. Several researchers have compared the violence to that portrayed on television. Studies have shown that children are more likely to aggressively act out violence after watching television.

The 25 boys participating in the study volunteered through a local junior high school. The subjects were first tested to measure their aggression levels and then allowed to play video games. After playing two video games of their preference, the boys were given a post-test to compare aggression levels.

Most of the video games played were considered to be moderately violent and competitive, Steele said. The games involved shooting or destroying enemies, mashing human figures, annihilating enemy planes and outer space invaders.

"We predicted that there would be no change in the aggression level," Steele said. "But the aggression level decreased significantly—so much that it couldn't be attributed to chance."

Television viewing and video game playing differ because watching television is passive, leaving the aggression bottled up, Steele noted. The action in video games may help players release stress and aggression.

Researchers in the Texas Tech College of Home Economics plan to continue the study with a larger population to reinforce the findings, Steele said. Steele and Glover presented their study to the Texas Council on Family Relations annual conference April 18-19 to complement the conference theme "Violence in the Family."

"If we really do act out our violence on video games—then let's have the whole world play them," Steele said.

Ann Landers

Two points of view

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I simply must respond to that Trenton mother who said she would rather raise five sons than one daughter.

During my growing-up years my mother made no bones about the fact that she would rather have had a fourth son than me. We argued about my hair, my clothes, my dirty room, the time I spent on the telephone, my inability to make a bed correctly, or peel a potato or set the table—just name it and I was a total flop and a miserable disappointment.

Mom had to admit, however, that I never came home drunk and threw up on her $9,000 Oriental rug. I didn't wreck the family car, have to get bailed out of the clink, throw wild parties when she and Dad were out of town, or get kicked out of school. My brothers did all these things.

For years I listened to Mom tell everybody who would listen what a pain in the neck a teenage girl can be. She always said, "Boys are so much easier to raise. My daughter is a handful."

Now, 30 years later, Mom has severe health problems. Who do you think is taking care of her? You guessed it. Her sons can't be bothered and their wives couldn't care less. They don't even visit her. They are too busy, too tired, or too overworked. Incidentally, they all live within three miles of us.

I would never throw any of this stuff back in Mom's teeth, but you can be sure she is—EATING HER WORDS IN EL PASO

DEAR EL PASO: Here's another point of view.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I respond to "Driven Nuts in Trenton"? I want to say AMEN! AMEN! AMEN!

I also raised three boys. I was dying for a daughter but the doctors said I shouldn't have another child, so we adopted a baby girl. The nursery was decorated in pink, with satin and ribbons everywhere. We couldn't wait until we received the call from the agency to come and get our adorable daughter.

The child is now 12 years old and she has made our lives miserable. She fights with everyone and has the worst disposition I have ever seen. She appreciates absolutely nothing. We have done everything but stand on our heads to please her. Nothing works. I must say we love this child but we certainly don't like her.

We didn't realize how lucky we were to have three fine boys. Many a time my husband has asked me, "Why didn't we quit when we were ahead?"

If you see this letter please don't print the name of the city because many people will know I wrote it. The girl is notorious in this town and I have more trouble right now than I can handle.—ALSO NUTS IN IOWA

DEAR IOWA: Please don't give up on the child. I recommend family counseling. Everyone will profit from it. The next letter should shore you up. Keep reading.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Gender has nothing to do with it. We have two daughters. One drove us nearly crazy and the other is the major reason I am sane today.

Given enough time, love, discipline and support, the most difficult child can grow up to be a joy. We know. It happened to us.—EXPERIENCED IN ERIE

DEAR ERIE: Thanks for a sensible conclusion. I agree.

How much do you know about pot, cocaine, LSD, speed, PCP, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' all-new booklet, "The Lowdown on Dope." For each booklet ordered, send $2.00 plus a long, self-addressed envelope (39 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Poor diet may add to arthritis problems

Good nutrition will not cure arthritis, but poor diet may compound the problem, says a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

Mary K. Sweeten explains that arthritis is a chronic inflammatory process of unknown origin which causes discomfort and pain in the joints.

"In an attempt to alleviate the pain, many arthritics become the victims of food faddists, quacks or self-appointed experts who advocate miraculous cures with a special diet plan," she says.

Dietary oil, vitamins, lecithin and blackstrap molasses have all been promoted for the relief of joint pain. But there is no scientific evidence that any food or any nutrient is of special help to people with arthritis, Sweeten points out.

"Still, people with arthritis should pay attention to their diet," she says, "since nutritionally balanced meals benefit overall health, muscle tone, and build resistance to the wear and tear of the disease."

According to the specialist, one recent study of rheumatoid arthritis patients indicated that one out of four was malnourished and deficient in a variety of proteins, zinc and folic acid.

An inadequate diet, the effect of arthritis drugs, or the disease itself may be the cause of nutritional deficiencies, Sweeten notes.

Whatever the cause, people with rheumatoid arthritis should make special efforts to eat well with a varied diet of fruits, vegetables, meats, fish, poultry, grains.

Festival of Praise to perform

The tour group, Festival of Praise, will perform at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Community Church. The public is invited to attend.

The program of choral, solo and instrumental music has been described as "an experience in music, worship and praise" and is specifically designed to include the entire audience in worship.

Also appearing are The Sparrows who celebrate their 27th anniversary of continuous service. Both groups will be supported by the Concert Brass and special featured soloists.

Cookie crafts presented

Deborah Goldsmith of Dimmitt was the program speaker when members of Sugar Works Cake Decorating Club met Thursday evening in the home of Carol Odum.

The speaker demonstrated a program on cookie crafts and each member made a graham cracker truck. Goldsmith also gave several hints on making other things with cookies.

Following the program, Odum presented Goldsmith with a gift of appreciation and the business was held.

A visitor, Marty Steinkruger, was welcomed and Mary Lou Abend-schan read "Another Day" by Grace E. Easley.

Others present included Sue Rogers, Anita Diaz, Paula Garnez and Sherry Davis.

Accent on Health

The Texas Department of Health has released data showing that Texas led the nation in reported cases of congenital syphilis in babies born during 1984. Most of the 103 reported births of children infected with the disease were premature or stillborn, and five of the 48 babies born alive died soon after birth. A TDH spokesman said with preliminary figures from other states now available through December, the Department's high count of reports constitutes about 44 percent of all cases reported in the nation for 1984.

Commissioner of Health Dr. Robert Bernstein said Texas' proportionately high reported incidence of the disease confirms that many pregnant women fail to seek prenatal care early, when the disease can be detected and cured without affecting the baby. He said it also indicates that even some women who get prenatal care sometimes are not adequately screened for syphilis.

"We are intensifying our public information effort to urge mothers to seek early prenatal care. We also are stressing to physicians the importance that they thoroughly screen each expectant mother for syphilis infection and other sexually transmitted diseases," Dr. Bernstein said.

"These days, when AIDS and herpes get so many headlines, the public tends to ignore the fact that although a cure for syphilis is readily available, the disease is still with us, and will continue to be a threat until the last infected person is treated. The real tragedy in cases of congenital syphilis is that with early treatment of the infected mother, and prudent attention to prevent reinfection throughout her pregnancy, no child need ever be born with syphilis," Dr. Bernstein said.

The Department of Health, through intensified public education, plans to re-emphasize the importance of early diagnosis not only of syphilis, but other health problems in expectant mothers, Dr. Bernstein explained. The agency's venereal disease prevention staff will join others concerned with early prenatal care for mothers-to-be in a statewide "Moter Care is Baby Care" campaign during April and May.

"We at TDH hope we can bring renewed attention to the fact that syphilis, as easily treated as it is, is still a major health problem," Dr. Bernstein said.

The Health Commissioner added that while cases of syphilis in babies occur in every segment of Texas society, the typical mother whose baby becomes infected is young, unmarried, non-white, and lives in an urban area.

1876 election

While Democrat Samuel J. Tilden received a majority of popular votes for president over Republican Rutherford B. Hayes in the 1876 election, 22 electoral votes were in dispute. The issue was left to Congress and Hayes was given the presidency in February 1877, after the Republicans agreed to end Reconstruction in the South.

Bug has fondness for prickly pear

LUBBOCK - A cactus bug's preference for fried munchies may have important implications for ranchers.

The cactus bug's particular fondness for flash-fried prickly pear cactus may play a future role in the management of unwanted range brush, according to Texas Tech University Entomology Chairperson James K. Wangberg.

The cactus bug can destroy single prickly pear cactus plants and severely damage whole fields of the plants.

Wangberg said researchers working with prescribed burning have long believed that cactus insects had a preference for burned plants.

"If the fire expert's observations are true, then we need to determine how important a part of the fire management equation the insects are an exactly how they can figure into pastureland management," he said.

Wangberg's current research looks at not only how the insects select their host plants, but also how many insects are needed to kill the thorny plants. "Initial laboratory tests indicate the bugs do rely on odor more than sight to locate hosts plants," Wangberg said. "The tests have also shown that when given a choice between burned and unburned plants, the bug's olfactory response was stronger for the burned plant."

Wangberg emphasized that his long-term research will involve more than finding out if the bugs really liked burned cactus best.

"We are trying to test our lab findings in the field, but that can be really tough," Wangberg said. "There are so many variables in the field you can't control like you can in a lab so this will be a long-term effort on our part."

Wangberg said he will enlist the help of a plant physiologist or biochemist to determine why the bugs like the plants burned.

"There has to be a biochemical reason why the bugs prefer burned plants to raw. Humans prefer cooked food because it is easier to digest. Maybe the same is true of the bugs," he said.

Wangberg said that even though the insects can be helpful in prickly pear management, the plants can never be totally eradicated.

"Even though the insects can do a great deal of damage, the plants aren't defenseless. They do have mechanisms to withstand the bugs," he said.

Though most ranchers view the cactus and weeds as competitors with the growth of more favorable range grasses, some ranchers look on the prickly pear as emergency sources of water and food for livestock during drought conditions, Wangberg said.

When water is scarce, ranchers can burn the thorns from the cactus making the prickly pear edible for the cattle. The water stored in the cactus can help cattle survive severe drought times, Wangberg said.

"It's a lot of work to remove the thorns, but the cattle love the plants. They eat them just like dessert," he said.

Wangberg has been surprised and pleased at the attention his cactus bug research has attracted in other parts of the world.

Texas Most Wanted Fugitive

TYLER, Texas - Cledis Clark Weatherford is known to law enforcement officials in East Texas as the "Jogging Burglar."

There's a good reason for the nickname. In what police describe as an "active" career, Weatherford is renowned for the various disguises he uses while casing residential neighborhoods for possible burglary targets. His favorite is to wear a jogging suit.

In living up to his nickname, Weatherford has managed to keep jogging at least a step in front of the law. He has been wanted by the Smith County Sheriff's Department for more than five years on a felony charge of burglary. And when he finally is caught, police departments throughout East Texas and Oklahoma would like to talk to him about 37 unsolved burglaries - primarily in wealthy residential areas.

This week the elusive Weatherford has made the Texas Most Wanted list. A $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to his capture.

Weatherford is described as a white male, about 45 years old, 6-0, 180 pounds, with graying hair and brown eyes. He has a scar on his head. Detectives say Weatherford has used a variety of aliases, including Cledis Cecil Weatherford, Clet Weatherford, Cleda Weatherford and Cledis G. Weatherford. He has driver's licenses from Texas and Oklahoma.

Weatherford has been wanted since December 27, 1979, when he failed to appear to begin serving a federal prison sentence.

Investigators say they believe he still is somewhere in Texas because he has family in the state. He was last seen driving a 1979 white and red Lincoln Continental Mark V with Oklahoma license plates MY-3368.

Anyone with information about Weatherford's location is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll-free at 1-800-252-8477, or their local Crime Stoppers program. In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

To be eligible for the U.S. Senate a person must be at least 30 years old, a citizen of the United States for at least nine years and a resident of the state for which he has been chosen. Senate terms are for six years and the salary is $72,600 a year.

In Concert Friday
The gospel rock group "Lazarus" will be in concert Friday at 8 p.m. in the Bull Barn. Friday night's performance is free. The group, which is from Amarillo, appeared in Hereford last December.

Public invited to concert

The public is invited to hear Festival of Praise at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Community Church. The touring group is made of adult singers from all walks of life and all parts of the United States and Canada. Also, to appear are The Sparrows, who are celebrating their 27th anniversary of continuous service. Both groups will be supported by the Concert Brass and special featured soloists. The program of choral, solo and instrumental music has been specifically designed to include the entire audience in worship. It includes new gospel songs as well as familiar praise choruses and traditional hymns.

New Arrivals

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Davis are the parents of a daughter, April Dawn, born April 23 in Lawton, Okla. Grandparents are Bob and Lillie Davis of Friona and Richard and Dixie Fortenberry of Hereford. Great-grandparents are Nanny Fortenberry of Friona, Juanita Hitt of Hereford, Mr. and Mrs. O.C. Davis and Jewel Jones of Georgia. The couple also has four sons, Rusty, Ricky, Nathan and Daniel.

Polly's Pointers

Polly Fisher Soaking

DEAR POLLY — I unraveled an old afghan because I wanted to use the wool for a sweater. However, the unraveled yarn is very crinkly. I knitted a sample square of the yarn and I don't like the way it works up. Is there any way to remove the kinks from the yarn? Would steaming help? — EMMA

DEAR EMMA — Steaming might help, but I don't think it will be enough. I found the following method in "The Book of Knitting" by Marinella Nava (1984; St. Martin's Press). If the used wool has been wound into balls, rewind it into skeins. Immerse the skeins of yarn in plenty of warm water to which a little soap powder or detergent has been added. Leave the skeins for a few hours, until the crinkled effect has disappeared, then rinse several times. Thread the skeins (without squeezing them) onto a support and leave them to dry away from direct heat. When the yarn is completely dry, it can be wound into balls again and reused.

Hope this does the trick. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — To make handy bookmarks, I utilize corners from envelopes. Cut across one corner diagonally, creating a triangle. Decorate with pretty seals and the word "Bookmark." The corners slip over a book's pages easily and fit snugly. — BESSIE

DEAR POLLY — Here's how I ended the greasy mess left by using my electric deep-fat fryer. I set the fryer into a shallow square cake pan. The fryer is easy to handle (it can be moved by moving the pan) without burning your fingers or getting them greasy. The pan also keeps the grease from getting onto the counter top. Cleanup is easy. — DIANA

At home in West Texas

Some children rarely see sun

Some Texas students rarely see the sun rise above their homes. They wake at 4 a.m., catch the bus at 5 a.m. and travel more than 80 miles to school. They spend eight hours at school, then it's back on the bus for another 1 1/2-hour ride home in the red-orange rays of a setting sun. In rain or shine, this daily routine occurs 180 days a year for students in many West Texas school districts and especially in Alpine and Van Horn. For more than five years, teen-age residents from Terlingua and Lajitas have traveled about 170 miles a day, five days a week, to attend high school in Alpine. Many of the students from Lajitas travel 30 miles every morning to catch the bus on the eastern outskirts of Terlingua. The car-bus combination adds up to more than 230 miles a day some of those students travel for education. "We've been doing this about six years, and it's something all schools around here face," said Alpine School Superintendent Richard Souter. "We're all isolated around here." Souter said the high school students commute back and forth because there is no high school in the Terlingua-Lajitas area. The only school in the area houses kindergarten through eighth grade. "The kids seem to be adapted to it and know what they're doing," Souter said. "But it's still tough on them. I would hate to do it myself." Sixth- through 12th-grade students in the Guadalupe National Park area wake up before the rooster crows to catch the bus to Van Horn. There's no morning cartoons for these students. They have to have their hair combed, teeth brushed and breakfast eaten before the 4:45 a.m. bus departs for the 75-mile trip to Van Horn. "It's just a way of life," said Van Horn School Superintendent Lewis Rogers. "We also have students from Kent, in the eastern part of our county (Culberson), who travel 42 miles one way for class." In one week, students who travel to the Alpine and Van Horn districts accumulate enough mileage to make two trips from Texoma to Brownsville, the northern and southern tips of Texas. B.J. Edwards, director of transportation for the Texas Education Agency, said many students have to travel long routes because they live in isolated areas that are far from the nearest school. He said the Alpine and Van Horn routes are the greatest distances students in the state have to travel for class. "It's regrettable they have to do this, but when there's no other school in the area, they have to go the nearest one," he said. Edwards said he traveled the Terlingua-Alpine route once for observation purposes. He said the trip is very long. "It's not much you can do about that route," he said. "There's no other school between Terlingua and Alpine, and that's just something we have to do." Beginning in the fall semester, there will be an additional number of students added to the list of those awakening before the sun rises. The Marfa Independent School District board decided Feb. 12 to bus students from Redford to Marfa. Redford's elementary- and high school-age students will travel about 76 miles to attend classes in Marfa. Marfa School Superintendent Carl Robinson said the decision was made because of the new state requirement of the "one-room, one-teacher" stipulation.

Paul Harvey

Paul Harvey's comment has tried to be fair and still will. Despite my personal empathy for suffering animals I have consistently defended the medical necessity for some laboratory experiments involving animals. But some lab scientists are now in intolerable embarrassment to their longtime supporters. As one for-instance, the redundant, repetitive experiments in the Gennarelli Laboratory at the University of Pennsylvania are hideously reminiscent of Auschwitz, Dachau and Buchenwald. There, too, torture tests and agony-unto-death were defended in the name of "science." Your taxes are paying for some monstrous medical experiments which you are supposed neither to see nor know about. Indeed, when a committee of the Congress contemplated this subject EVEN THE COMMITTEE was not allowed to see videotapes of this Pennsylvania laboratory. Both the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Health decreed that the film must not be shown on Capitol Hill. While many medical laboratories are torturing animals, from this one videotaped evidence is available. If you wish more graphic detail than I am willing to relate, you can secure same from PETA - People from the Ethical Treatment of Animals - P.O. Box 42516, Washington, D.C. 20015.

Twenty million rats, rabbits, cats, dogs, mice and monkeys are killed each year in the name of science. And the number has quadrupled in recent years. While many experiments result in benefits to man, most have become experiments with no benefits beyond the abstract accumulation of knowledge and some experimenters don't even profess that purpose anymore. Researchers are under no legal obligation even to use anesthetics. Dogs are driven insane with electric shock. Monkeys are attached to electrodes to see how much pain they can take before they die. Primates are restrained for months in steel chairs, their heads encased in concrete, while researchers make jokes about the spilling of acid on a helpless baboon. Yes, the PETA recordings will document the jokes, also. And some of what they do to kittens I cannot bring myself to describe. I am not taking sides. Our family has created a foundation the specific purpose of which is to encourage however the humane treatment of animals. As is 150 living creatures are sacrificed every minute, at a cost of $7 billion a year, and two-thirds of that money is YOUR TAX MONEY. Some lab attendants hear so many screams either they can't hear anymore or can't take anymore. There is an ongoing holocaust which somebody must hear and heed and resist.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

AUSTIN - We never thought we'd see the day when criminals were treated better than Texas public school students, but it happened. The black moment came one rainy afternoon last week as the Senate debated an omnibus education bill aimed at the fine tuning House Bill 72, the famous (or infamous) education reform measure. H.B. 72 has been criticized, often unjustly, for radically overhauling Texas' education system without completely addressing the needs of the people affected. Most of the complaints are isolated, but one objection seems universal. A vast number of teachers, parents and students believe the new restrictions on extracurricular activities are unfair. The new rules prohibit students from participating in extracurricular events if they are failing any courses. That's good: students who are failing need to be working on their schoolwork first and extracurricular activities second. Unfortunately, the rules also state that a student who makes a failing grade on their report card is suspended from extracurricular activities for six weeks. That's bad: students should be suspended only when failing. It usually takes less than six weeks to raise a grade back to passing. We recognized the imbalance in the system and sought to correct it. We proposed a week-by-week probation system. Under our plan, a student who failed a course automatically would be suspended from extracurricular activities. But, if the student raised the grade, the student would be readmitted. If the student let the grade slip, the student would be suspended again. Only by raising their overall six-week average and receiving a passing grade on a report card could a student be removed from week-by-week probation. We thought our proposal equitable. It kept with the spirit of H.B. 72 but gave students a real incentive to raise their grades. Do well on the next test and you're back on the team, in the band, able to go to the stock show or whatever. Our colleagues disagreed. We presented our proposal as an amendment to the omnibus education bill and it failed by three votes. Another senator summed up the Senate's action by saying students were being treated more harshly than criminals. Criminals, he said, are offered parole if they show signs of rehabilitation. Criminals are offered good conduct time if they behave in prison. Criminals rarely serve their full sentence. Students, however, will be punished differently, he said. If they improve their attitudes, tough. This state allows no good conduct time for its children. If they raise their grade, too bad. Rehabilitation in Texas is a privilege reserved for criminals, not for students. If students can take any solace from our work in the Senate, it is that the amendment made an impact on the State Board of Education. As a result, the board appears ready to cut the suspension period from six weeks to three weeks. That's an improvement, but criminals still have it better.

"Sealed bids will be received in the office of the State Purchasing and General Services Commission, Austin, Texas, covering the proposed lease of space located in the city of Hereford, Texas.
