Pickens extending Unocal purchase

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. says his partnership may extend its takeover offer for Unocal Corp. to seek all of the company's stock in an attempt to overcome the latest obstacle to the hostile pursuit of the oil company.

While Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co., would not be specific about his next move, he said Thursday that expanding his bid for Unocal is one possibility. But he added in a telephone interview from Houston, "We are considering several alternatives."

'Considering several alternatives'

Another option, he said, is seeking court action to block Unocal's latest defensive move — a conditional offer to buy back 49.9 percent of its stock for $6.28 billion stock buyback.

Pickens' group now owns 13.6 percent of Unocal's stock and is offering $54 a share in cash for another 64 million shares, enough to give it 50.1 percent ownership. It has said that if successful, it would acquire the remaining shares with securities valued at $54 a share.

But Unocal said earlier this week that if Pickens' partnership succeeded in raising its stake in the company to 50.1 percent, it would then buy back the remaining shares with securities valued at $72 a share.

Such a move would leave Unocal heavily burdened with debt, raising the price of a takeover. In addition, the securities being offered by Unocal would have first claim on the company's assets, making it difficult for Pickens to raise additional cash by borrowing against Unocal's holdings.

Unocal stock closed Thursday at $46.75 a share.

Unocal's competing offer has put the Pickens group in a quandary and is forcing it to come up with an offer of its own that is more attractive to shareholders.

Pickens said he has been meeting with the group's investment bankers in New York to consider the group's alternatives.

He didn't rule out raising the value of the group's offer, but he said, "I have always thought it isn't smart to raise your own bid."

Responding to speculation that Unocal's latest move has threatened to undermine $3 billion in "junk bond" financing that the group has arranged, Pickens insisted, "the financing is in place and firm."

Among those pledging to back the $3 billion in funding are some of the largest stock speculators, including the wealthy Belzberg family of Canada which has committed $165 million; financier Irwin Jacobs of Minneapolis, $100 million; Meshulam Riklis of New York, $60 million; Saul Steinberg of New York, $50 million; and Charles Knapp of Los Angeles, $45 million.

Inmate tells of brothel operation

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A Texas prison inmate is telling investigators how he ran a brothel from his prison cell under the condition that prosecutors seek to have his wife's bond reduced, authorities say.

Raymond Carl Freda Sr., 51, was indicted last month on charges he ran a prostitution ring called the Hot Tub Club using his prison connections.

Freda is currently serving a life sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections' Eastham Unit near Lovelady, but was transferred to Montgomery County Jail after he was indicted.

Montgomery County Sheriff Joe Corley said Wednesday that in exchange for Freda's information, prosecutors have agreed to ask that bond for Dolores Conti, 44, Freda's wife, be reduced from $150,000 to $25,000. She and five others were indicted with Freda on organized crime charges.

"I feel comfortable that she's not going anywhere (if released)," Corley said. "She owns a home in Spring and I understand they have a 10-year-old child who has some medical problems."

Freda received a life sentence in 1980 as a habitual criminal after he was convicted in the attempted arson of a Houston restaurant. He had been in the Eastham Unit since 1981.

Meanwhile, the number of prison employees disciplined for alleged involvement with Freda grew to four on Thursday with the suspension

'Transition payments' next farm idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the search goes on in Congress for a formula to rescue U.S. agriculture from its economic doldrums, two farm-state senators are proposing an idea guaranteed to at least get noticed.

Sens. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., and David Boren, D-Okla., say they will introduce legislation that includes something called "transition payments" to farmers, to help them survive until their export markets rebound from the current slump.

The payments would be substantial — up to $63,000 per farmer in 1986, declining to a maximum of $31,500 in 1990. And the sponsors conceded that their bill "is not the cheapest farm plan coming down the pike by any means."

The transition payments would be based on a farmer's production of wheat, corn, cotton or rice in the 1984-85 crop year and would use a sliding scale that diminishes the payment rate on larger farms.

Farmers would collect their payments regardless of what they do with their land. If the payment is based on past corn production, for example, a farmer could switch to growing soybeans or even leave it idle and still receive the money each year, Boschwitz said. "It's an upfront, straight cash payment for them to use however they see fit," he said.

The payments represent the most unusual and perhaps the most generous safety net offered in any comprehensive legislation advanced so far in the 1985 farm bill debate.

But like other alternatives before Congress as it labors to draw up a new generation of agriculture policy, the goal of the Boschwitz-Boren plan is to dramatically cut price supports to the point where U.S. farm goods can again compete in world markets. The income guarantee payments would shelter farmers from the initial shock of lower price supports.

"Our farmers want to produce. They want to be competitive, and they can be competitive," Boschwitz said Thursday at a news conference called to outline what he said is the first bipartisan farm bill to be drawn up in the Senate.

Boschwitz said substantial cuts in price-support loan rates would offset the increase in the value of the dollar relative to other world currencies since 1981. That increase has had the effect of hidden tax on U.S. farm exports and has contributed to a marked slide in world market share for major grains.

Felony escape charged

A felony escape indictment was returned Thursday by a Deaf Smith County grand jury against Antonio Rios Hernandez, 38, who failed to return to the Deaf Smith jail from a work release program.

According to Deaf Smith County Criminal District Attorney Roland Saul, Hernandez has been wanted since he left the jail Oct. 22, 1984. He was serving a one-year sentence on a theft charge.

Also indicted Thursday was Francisco Carrera, 30, charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer. Carrera allegedly rammed a Hereford City Police Officer with his car after being stopped on a driving while intoxicated charge.

Indicted for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon were Ramon Enriquez, 25, Danny Reyna, 20, and Nicolas Lomeli 26.

Mark Anthony Garcia, 19, was indicted on two counts of burglary of a building.

Dollar drops due to report

By The Associated Press

The dollar continued to lose ground against major world currencies in early trading in Asia and Europe today, extending a sharp retreat that was triggered by a Commerce Department report of unexpected weakness in the U.S. economy.

In addition to its report Thursday on sluggish overall economic growth, the Commerce Department also said that after-tax corporate profits fell 0.5 percent in last year's fourth quarter — the third straight quarter of sliding earnings.

In foreign-exchange trading Thursday, the dollar fell to its lowest levels in more than seven months against some key currencies, and it fell further in the early going today.

The Commerce Department Thursday revised its estimate of U.S. economic growth, as measured by the GNP, to a meager annual rate of 1.3 percent for the first three months of the year, compared with the initial estimate in March of 2.1 percent.

The revised figure for the GNP — the broadest measure of economic health — came in at the slowest pace since the end of the last recession, when the GNP expanded at a rate of 0.5 percent in the final quarter of 1982.

The department said in a separate report that after-tax corporate profits fell 0.5 percent in last year's fourth quarter — the third straight quarter of sliding earnings.

"For some reason, the market really chose this number to hang its hat on," said Frank Pusateri, a currency analyst at the New York branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The GNP report, among other things, signaled to the credit

Senior citizens' set for open house

The Hereford Senior Citizens Association will celebrate its tenth anniversary by officially showing off its new facility at 426 Ranger on Sunday with grand opening activities and public tours.

The leveling of the cornerstone, conducted by the Grand Lodge of Texas, will kickoff the event at 1:15 p.m. The Grand Lodge is active in the cornerstone project which gives public buildings a commemoration.

The remainder of the program will begin at 2 p.m. with Doug Manning as master of ceremonies. The program will include a welcome by the association president, Homer Garrison, music by the Hereford Chamber Singers, and a keynote address by Bob Bobbett, Director of the Texas Department on Aging.

After the ceremonies there will be a reception and tours.

The facility, built entirely for senior citizens, was financed totally by local pledges except for a Maybee Foundation contribution of $50,000. The estimated value of the new facility is $600,000.

The group formerly met in the old Central School at 406 West Fourth.

Margie Daniels, executive director, said the building is unique in that not many cities of Hereford's size have a center, and few senior citizens' groups in the state own a center.

The local group began its fund raising campaign in February of 1984, and by August construction had started. The new building was in use by March 11 of this year.

Daniels said that lunch is served to 350 to 400 persons daily. Other activities at the center include, quilting, fitness sessions, hearing and blood pressure checks, games, crafts, and special programs.

Rain delays landing, Discovery has blowout

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts, their homecoming delayed 98 minutes by rain, glided safely back to Earth today at the end of a bittersweet journey that astronaut-Sen. Jake Garn hailed as proof that "man is needed in space."

The 103-ton space plane blew one of its six tires as it rolled to a stop, but the astronauts were not aware of it and the rupture did not divert the craft from its center-line touchdown.

Fifty-five minutes after the landing, the crew left the shuttle for medical exams and showers. Garn walked unsteadily down the stairs, and waved and smiled weakly as he was helped into the astronauts' van.

Discovery, its final dash across central Florida heralded by sonic booms, dropped out of a clear sky and onto a 15,000-foot runway three miles from the launch pad it left a week ago and where shuttle Challenger is perched, 10 days from liftoff. Like the landing, Discovery's launch was delayed by rain.

With commander Karol Bobko at the controls, the shuttle touched down at 8:54 a.m. EST, swooping in from the south after making a series of wide circles above this spaceport. The ship had traveled 2.5 million miles.

As the shuttle neared the end of its rollout, Mission Control told the astronauts, "I think you blew a right-hand outboard tire." Inspection later showed that it was an inboard tire that had blown, and television pictures showed it to be frayed.

"The Swat Team is home," said Mission Control, referring to the makeshift, flyswatter-like tools the astronauts used in an unsuccessful attempt to repair a satellite.

Five charges filed

Hereford Police and Deaf Smith County Sheriff's deputies joined in a daylong search for a Hereford man Thursday, finally making a late-night arrest.

As the result of a family dispute and threats made Thursday morning, the man has been charged with criminal mischief, public intoxication, disorderly conduct, assault and attempted rape.

Other arrests Thursday included one for public intoxication, another for driving while intoxicated and a third for assault and injury to a child.

The 305 E. Gracey residence of Albert Edwards was broken in to Thursday, with burglars making away with a scanner, two jewelry boxes, a stereo and speakers, a television set and assorted eight-track and cassette tapes.

The burglary of a van belonging to Jerry Brock, 605 East Fifth, resulted in the $514 theft of a camera, equalizer and amplifier.

Police also investigated three separate reports of juveniles skipping school, shoplifting and making obscene gestures at each other. Those youngsters were to meet today with the juvenile officer.

A pickup reported stolen from McGee Furniture Wednesday was found Thursday near Summerfield, apparently not damaged.

Missing girl identified

DENISON, Texas (AP) — The body of a child found floating in Lake Texoma April 3 is that of 5-year-old Christi Lynn Meeks of Mesquite, who had been missing for three months, authorities said.

"It has definitely been determined off the dental examination that it is Christi Lynn Meeks," Grayson County Justice of the Peace Charles Odle said Thursday. "As far as we know, it was death by drowning, but she has been identified by dental records."

Odle said Thursday that the girl, who was abducted Jan. 19, was wearing one shoe which a sheriff's deputy told him matched the description of "Cabbage Patch" decorated tennis shoes worn by Miss Meeks.

"When we found her, she had on a little moccasin or shoe that one of the deputies said that the Meeks girl was wearing," Odle said.

Coal conversion plant to be built

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. has announced plans to build an environmentally sound coal conversion plant at its Deer Park manufacturing facility near Houston.

The "coal gasification demonstration plant" would be the first to use a clean, environmentally compatible process for converting nearly any kind of coal into medium Btu gas, James McCormick, manager of synfuels business development for Shell, said Thursday.

Construction should begin late this year and the plant should be operating in early 1987, Shell said.

"The facility will use 250-400 tons of coal daily to produce synthetic gas and steam which will be consumed within Shell's Deer Park Complex," McCormick said. "The design, engineering, operating and environmental data necessary to build large commercial facilities should be provided by this demonstration plant."

Reward boosted to $20,000

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and the Communications Workers of America have doubled to $20,000 the reward offered for information about the slaying of a telephone cable splicer.

The body of Janet A. Vavra, 32, of Nacogdoches, was found in her telephone company truck Feb. 21 in Polk County, about 45 miles from Nacogdoches. She had been shot four times.

Ms. Vavra, a seven-year telephone company employee, was reported missing after she failed to return from her work shift.

Southwestern Bell and the union, in a joint statement, said they were boosting the award "because we hope it will bring to justice the person or persons responsible for this crime."

"We care about the safety of our employees and we believe this poster will help create public awareness of the increased reward and hopefully produce information that will lead to an arrest," the statement said.

Murchison gets more time

DALLAS (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge has given Dallas businessman Clint W. Murchison until June 16 to submit a list of his debts and assets for the Chapter 11 reorganization of more than 100 of his properties.

The list was due Monday, but U.S. Bankruptcy judge John C. Ford granted the extension after meeting with Murchison's attorneys and several of his creditors.

The creditors are seeking repayment of more than $250 million from Murchison, the former owner of the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Officials receive 'odd' checks

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky treasury officials are accustomed to off-the-wall tax protests — but 92 checks for a nickel each? And one for a penny?

Credit the account of Gina Richerson, 25, who makes $10,500 a year and unprotestingly paid 2,000 of it for federal, state, and local taxes. Then she got dunned for $4.61 in unpaid state taxes.

"It really made me mad," she said. "I don't make that much." Ms. Richerson hit on the check-writing spree and called on three friends, who scribbled furiously for about 15 minutes to write the 93 checks to the Kentucky treasury.

Instead of angering state revenue officials, Ms. Richerson's protest apparently amused them, spokeswoman Marva Gay said.

She said the department regularly receives unusual forms of payment, citing cases where taxpayers have settled their bills with pennies.

But this was the first time Ms. Gay had heard of someone submitting a wad of checks.

10,000 workers walk off

DEVONPORT, England (AP) — Ten thousand workers walked off their jobs for half a day at a Royal Navy shipyard to protest government plans to place the yard under private management.

The protest followed Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine's announcement Wednesday that he intends to save money by hiring private contractors to run the Devonport Dockyard in southwestern England and the Rosyth Dockyard in southeastern Scotland.

The Devonport workers walked out Thursday after working only half their shift.

The government would retain ownership of the shipyards, but the change could mean the loss of 2,500 of the yards' 20,000 jobs.

Mother's Day Committee lauds American women

NEW YORK (AP) — Kentucky Gov. Martha Layne Collins, the state's first female chief executive, gave credit where it was due when she received her award as a "role model American mother."

"Without them, I couldn't have made it," said Mrs. Collins, 48, of her son, Steve, 24, and daughter, Marla, 21. "They started traveling with me at ages 6 and 9."

Mrs. Collins was among eight women honored Thursday by the non-profit National Mother's Day Committee, most of whom also were successful in a career.

They included soap opera star Susan Lucci, who plays Erica Kane on "All My Children," mezzo-soprano Frederica Von Stade of the Metropolitan Opera, and astronaut Anna Fisher, who in November became the first American woman to walk in space.

Also receiving awards were Louisa Kennedy, wife of an American who was held hostage in Iran; Sarah Palfrey, former world-class tennis player; Madge Sinclair, TV actress on "Trapper John, M.D."; and Clara Hale, who runs a home for children of drug-addicted mothers.

Scientists considered poisoning over 500,000

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Scientists considered using radioactive food to poison 500,000 of the enemy during World War II, according to a newly declassified letter from J. Robert Oppenheimer to Dr. Enrico Fermi, two pioneers of the atomic bomb.

The proposal, which apparently was never fully developed, was disclosed in an article in the May-June issue of Technology Review, a magazine published by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Oppenheimer, who directed the building of the atom bomb in the Los Alamos laboratory in New Mexico, suggested in the letter dated May 25, 1943, that a plan to contaminate food be delayed until there was enough radioactive poison to kill a half million people, the article said.

The letter, sent from Oppenheimer in Santa Fe, N.M., to Fermi in Chicago, did not say how the poison would be administered or indicate the enemy against which the poison would be directed.

Fermi, an Italian-born physicist who produced the first nuclear chain reaction in 1942, worked with Oppenheimer on the Manhattan Project that built the bomb. A winner of the Nobel Prize in physics in 1938, he died in 1954. Oppenheimer died in 1967.

The author of the article, Stanford University history professor Barton J. Bernstein, wrote that he found the letter in the Library of Congress. He said the project "probably foundered on substantial technical problems and the reluctance of top military personnel to divert resources from the A-bomb."

"It illustrates an important fact:

amid the horror of World War II, including German concentration camps and the mass killing of Jews, many U.S. scientists, like rank-and-file civilians, were willing to devise new ways to kill the enemy by the thousands and even hundreds of thousands," Bernstein wrote.

The atomic bomb was first successfully tested in July 1945 and was dropped on Japan twice in August of that year.

"I think we should not attempt a plan," Oppenheimer wrote, according to the letter reproduced in the magazine, "unless we can poison food sufficient to kill a half a million men, since there is no doubt that the actual amount will, because of non-uniform distribution, be much smaller than this."

Mentioned in the Oppenheimer letter as being aware of the plan were Edward Teller, known as father of the hydrogen bomb; James Bryant Conant, president of Harvard University and chairman of the National Defense Research Committee during World War II; Gen. Leslie Groves, commander of the Manhattan Project; Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff; and Dr. Joseph Hamilton, a physician and associate professor of medicine at the University of California at Berkeley's Radiation Laboratory.

Bernstein said that none of the 16 Manhattan Project scientists he queried, including Teller, Hans Bethe, Frank Oppenheimer, Robert R. Wilson, Philip Morrison, Robert Serber, Eugene Wigner and Richard Feynman, recalled the poison plan.

"Most were shocked when they saw the declassified document," the historian reported.

Career destroyed, future looking grim for Harmon

Harmon Wages was born to be on television. He was a college football player at Florida, a professional football player with the Atlanta Falcons.

He's blond. He's handsome. And they called him Charmin' Harmon.

It all went to hell so quickly.

Here was Harmon Wages' plan a few months back. He would quit his job as sportscaster for an Atlanta television station and move to Chicago to look for television work there.

He wanted to work in a bigger market than Atlanta, for sure, but the primary reason he wanted to move was to be with his girl, Debbie Norvell, the blond child-wonder who had risen meteorically from an Atlanta television news job to bigger and better things with a Chicago station.

Harmon, who is 38, quit his job but before he could finalize his plans for Chicago the world caved in on him.

Harmon Wages got arrested. A local cocaine dealer was busted and named Harmon as one of his customers.

That was bad enough, but then a few weeks later the Feds came back with more ammunition against Wages. Among other things, he was charged with conspiracy to distribute the drug and lying to a federal grand jury.

Harmon Wages suddenly had big-time trouble. I tried to interview him. When I saw his picture on the front page of the paper with his head down, I felt his side needed telling.

Harmon told me he was afraid to be interviewed. He said he was afraid he might say something that would further rile the authorities and bring them down on him even harder.

I did talk to his friends, however. They painted a picture of a man living a nightmare.

They say Harmon is just about broke. They say he can't sleep at night. They say he rarely leaves his home. They say some friends have abandoned him.

They say when the trouble hit, his girlfriend Debbie dropped him flat on his tail.

"He loves her," I was told, "and when he called Chicago to say he needed her, she told him he had ruined his career and he wasn't going to ruin hers. That has been very devastating to him."

Wages' elderly mother also is ill. Harmon worries about her all the time, said a friend. "He's afraid of what all this is doing to her health."

Something else. Harmon Wages was adopted. He has spent the past several years attempting to locate his real parents. Those close to him said he was very near finding them when the arrest came and caused him to have to cease the search.

No money. No job. No girlfriend. A sick mother. A possible prison sentence. One day a celebrity with a future. The next day an outcast.

If Harmon Wages is guilty, he deserves to be punished. But until guilt is proven, he deserves some compassion.

But for the grace of God, how many others would be in the same pits with him?

'They earned it!'

You are seeing and hearing some goofy stuff defended by writers and artists claiming a "right to innovate."

Nobody merits recognition for innovation until he has demonstrated traditional talent.

The greats of the past won their "right to innovate" the old-fashioned way — they earned it!

The composers of yesteryear built on the years before them, passed the mantle from generation to generation gracefully.

Russian composer Prokofieff wrote music which seemed to some discordant, cacophonous. But he had earned the right to write it by first composing the "Classical Symphony," an excellent composition in the accepted tradition.

Prokofieff proved he could play by the rules before breaking them.

Similarly each of the great composers achieved his own credibility — his own worthiness to be heard — by showing his colleagues and his audiences that he was capable of respecting and reproducing the music that came before him.

In literature, the same. Only after you have learned and demonstrated proper grammar have you a "right to innovate."

You can use the word "ain't" only when you know better.

When I hear abstract poetry I want to know if that poet can also write a coherent sentence, can actually communicate to everyone the same feelings and ideas which he apparently chooses to communicate only to a few.

Granted, in art and literature, if there are enough "customers" willing to purchase nonsense, then artistic validity becomes secondary to commercial viability.

But what of the art you and I are forced to buy?

When your tax dollars are used to pay for some mashed-up hunk of junk metal peddled in your town square — have you not the right to demand artistic credentials of the person who put it there?

Ought he not first be able to reproduce Michelangelo's "David" before dumping garbage on your front lawn in the name of "art"?

Chagall and Picasso earned the right to raise eyebrows with their later work because they had proved with earlier work that they did know how to paint and illustrate photographically, precisely.

Today in Italy an "artist" named Manzoni filled 90 jars with his own excrement — labeled each "artist's Excrement" — and one of those jars, auctioned in Milan, sold for $1,400!

Manzoni confirms what many of us have suspected all along about "modern art."

Firms plead guilty to selling illegal pesticide

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Two Texas pesticide dealers face possible fines of several thousand dollars for illegally distributing restricted pesticides.

U.S. Magistrate Earl Hines accepted the pleas and set a May 17 sentencing in both cases.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul Naman told the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal the charge against the rice growers group was "where the whole thing started."

The co-op agreed to plead guilty to the charge and give prosecutors information in the pesticide case in exchange for immunity from prosecution for individual farmers, Naman said.

The rice co-op was charged with selling Furadan.

Spokeswoman Phil Guthrie of the Texas Department of Corrections said the prison is continuing its own investigation, but added it is too soon to tell if more guards will be fired.

"We could not even come close to giving numbers," Guthrie said. "It's possible there may be more (firings) but there may not be. I'm not in a position to guess."

'To Remember Me'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am enclosing a beautiful statement that you published a few years ago. I am sure it would be appreciated by many who may not have seen it or by people like myself who want to see it again.—E.N. In Rochester, N.Y.

DEAR E.N.: Thanks for asking. Here it is:

TO REMEMBER ME

The day will come when my body will lie upon a white sheet neatly tucked under four corners of a mattress located in a hospital busily occupied with the living and the dying.

At a certain moment, a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine.

And don't call this my Death Bed. Let it be called the Bed of Life, and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

Give my sight to the man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman.

Give my heart to a person whose own heart has caused nothing but endless days of pain.

Give my blood to the teenager who was pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play.

Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist.

Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

Explore every corner of my brains. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a speechless boy will shout at the crack of a bat and a deaf girl will hear the sound of rain against her window.

Burn what is left of me and scatter the ashes to the winds to help the flowers grow.

If you must bury something, let it be my faults, my weaknesses and all prejudice against my fellow man.

If by chance you wish to remember me, do it with a kind deed or a word to someone who needs you.

If you do all I have asked, I will live forever.—Robert N. Test, Cincinnati, Ohio

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell non-smokers not to marry smokers. It never works. I thought I could persuade my bride to quit after the wedding. Big mistake.

Her breath, hair and clothes smell like a dirty ashtray. The house smells like a pool hall. She coughs at night and keeps me up. I'm seriously considering divorce. She says I'm nuts. Am I?—Niagara Falls

DEAR N.F.: You aren't nuts. Your loathing for cigarettes is getting to you. There's a bigger lesson to be learned here. If something annoys you during courtship it will drive you bonkers after marriage.

"Sexual freedom" presents a difficult decision for teenagers and their parents. Ann Landers offers down-to-earth advice in her new booklet, "High School Sex and How to Deal With It—A Guide for Teens and Their Parents." Department lists best buys in meat

Some of the best buys in meat, according to the latest survey by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), are beef liver, ground beef, chicken, turkey, ground chuck and pork shoulder.

The economy of a cut depends on the amount of cooked lean meat or the number of servings it provides, says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Dymple Cooksey.

"Meat cuts that are relatively high priced and have little or no waste may be more economical than low-priced cuts with a great deal of bone, gristle or fat," she explains.

The USDA study also compared the costs of 20 grams of protein from different meats and alternates, Cooksey reports.

Some meat alternates, such as peanut butter and eggs, are as good a buy as less expensive cuts of meat. Some processed meat products, such as franks and bologna, were found to cost more as sources of protein than pork roasts and some beef roasts.

But many meat alternates and meat products require you to eat more than you normally would to get the same amount of protein, advises the nutritionist.

For example, a 3-ounce serving of cooked lean meat, poultry or fish provides about 20 grams of protein or more. But it takes four and one-half tablespoons of peanut butter, four frankfurters or 10 slices of bacon to provide that same 20 grams of protein, she says.

Fellowship meeting set

Johnny Gonzales will be the guest speaker during the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship meeting set for 7:45 p.m. Saturday at Caison's.

Gonzales' life consisted of drugs, alcohol, crime and violence. He was first busted at the age of nine, sent to reform school at 13, and sent to Santa Fe State Prison at the age of 19. He is not engaged full time in the ministry. He is state chaplain for prisons in New Mexico for the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International, founder of Prison Doors ministries, and works on the streets of local communities and in the prison system and county jails.

In NBA playoff game

Celtics get past Cleveland

By The Associated Press

On a night of National Basketball Association playoff romps, it figured that the defending champion Boston Celtics would be one of the rompers. But the scrappy Cleveland Cavaliers had other ideas.

Boston rolled to a 70-58 halftime lead, but Cleveland rallied to take a 121-117 edge late in the fourth period. Boston's experience — and the scoring of Kevin McHale — saved the day as the Celtics held on for a 126-123 victory in the opening game of a best-of-five first-round series.

In other games, Los Angeles buried injury-riddled Phoenix 142-114; Denver ripped San Antonio 141-111; and Detroit clobbered New Jersey 125-105. In the other tight match, Dallas needed two overtimes to get past Portland 139-131.

"I'll tell you one thing, we can play with them," Cleveland guard World B. Free said. "We didn't win the game, but we played a hard game, not the way they thought it would be."

"They know how to play down the stretch. We're just learning," added Cleveland Coach George Karl, whose Cavaliers brought a 36-46 record into the playoffs against the NBA's winningest team. "I thought we had a good chance to beat them, and I know we can beat them."

Larry Bird scored 40 points for Boston.

Lakers 142, Suns 114

Los Angeles scored a playoff-record 45 points in building a 21-point first-period lead and coasted home. Mike McGee led the Lakers with 22 points and guard Earvin Johnson added 18 points and 19 assists.

Phoenix tied the Lakers 20-20 after 6½ minutes, but Los Angeles went on a 25-2 spurt and it was only a question of margin the rest of the way.

Nuggets 141, Spurs 111

Alex English scored 33 points and Calvin Natt 25 for Denver, which took advantage of George Gervin's first-half foul trouble. The high-scoring Spurs guard played only eight minutes of the first half because of three quick fouls and failed to score a point. Denver, meanwhile, hit 61 percent of its shots in roaring off to a 68-51 bulge.

The 141 points represented the most Denver has ever scored in an NBA playoff game, and the 30-point victory margin was the club's widest ever in the playoffs.

Winners of 11 a.m. and noon April 27 games play at 2 p.m. April 27 in championship game.

Pistons 125, Nets 105

Detroit, a loser five times in six regular-season games with New Jersey, built a 19-point first-half lead and never looked back. Bill Laimbeer led the way with 23 points.

Laimbeer scored 10 of his points in the first quarter and guard Isiah Thomas added 11 as the Pistons cruised to a 39-26 lead. The last tie was 6-6 with 10:06 remaining in the quarter. Then, with Laimbeer hitting for eight points, the Pistons went on a 25-6 spree during the next six minutes that put the game away.

Buck Williams was high for New Jersey with 23 points.

Mavericks 139, Trail Blazers 131

Rolando Blackman scored 43 points, including the baskets that tied the game at the end of regulation and the first overtime, then hit three baskets to overcome a 125-121 Portland advantage in the second overtime.

Blackman hit a driving scoop shot with four seconds to play to send the game into overtime tied at 112, and duplicated the feat with just six seconds to play in the first overtime to tie it at 121-121.

In the second overtime, Kiki Vandeweghe, who led Portland with 25 points, scored twice to give Portland a quick 125-121 lead. But Blackman scored three straight buckets and Mark Aguirre, who finished with 27 points, added two more as the Mavericks finally won going away.

Jazz, Rockets clash tonight in Houston

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Utah Jazz advanced to the National Basketball Association playoffs with a 45-37 record last season, but will enter tonight's first-round playoff game against the Houston Rockets in The Summit with a 41-41 regular-season standard.

However, Jazz guard Darrell Griffith says Utah is a better team this year than last year's Midwest Division winners, and Coach Frank Layden agrees with him.

"We're a better team now," Griffith said. "We played through a lot of adversity this season. In many ways, this year was even more satisfying than last season."

The Jazz, faced with monetary problems off the court and a series of injuries on the court, nonetheless returned to the playoffs for the second year in a row.

"We had a better record in the second half of the season than we did last year," Layden said. "This came despite a lot of improvement by other teams in our division. We had to overcome all kinds of distractions."

Tipoff is at 7:30 p.m. for the first game of the best-of-five series. The second game is scheduled Sunday before the series shifts Wednesday to Salt Lake City. A fourth game, if necessary, would be in Salt Lake City on Friday, with the series returning to Houston two days later if a fifth game is required.

The Rockets, who rebounded from 14 victories in 1983 to 29 in 1984 and 48 this season, are hoping to get off to a fast start with homecourt victories.

"They play well in Utah and we don't play well when we go up there," Rockets forward Ralph Sampson said. "So we want to get off to a fast start and win it on our home court."

The Jazz have 7-4, 290-pound center Dave Eaton, who blocked an NBA record 456 shots in the regular season.

After losing 5-0 lead

Cleveland manages to defeat Orioles

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer
The Cleveland Indians had it, lost it, and had it again. They finally kept it at the end — because Joe Carter had it all the way.

Breaking out of a 3-for-24 slump with a vengeance, Carter hit a single, double and home run and drove in two runs to lead the Indians to an 11-5 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Thursday.

The Indians had to battle for this one, squandering a 5-0 lead after three innings.

Orioles starter Storm Davis, who admitted, "I stink now," allowed the Indians to get away to a 5-0 lead after three innings.

In other AL action, New York tripped Chicago 3-2; California edged Minnesota 9-8; Toronto stopped Texas 4-2, and Boston nipped Kansas City 4-3 in 14 innings.

Yankees 3, White Sox 2

Ken Griffey made a strong defensive play in the sixth inning that saved two runs and drove in the go-ahead tally with a single in the seventh to lead New York over Chicago.

Bannister, 0-2, who had won his previous eight decisions over New York dating back to 1982. The winner was Rich Bordi, 1-0, who relieved Dennis Rasmussen in the sixth. Dave Righetti worked the last 1-2-3 innings for his third save, getting out of a two-on, none-out jam in the ninth.

With runners at first and second and one out in the White Sox sixth, Griffey snared a drive into the left-field corner by Carlton Fisk, slammed into the wall in foul territory, then spun and rifled the ball to the infield. Second baseman Willie Randolph's relay to first doubled off Tom Paciorek.

Angels 9, Twins 8

Doug DeCinces hit a three-run homer and Rod Carew drove in two runs with two singles and a suicide-squeeze bunt, leading California over Minnesota.

The sweep of the three-game set gave the Angels their first series sweep at Minnesota in the 25-year history of the two clubs. It was California's fifth straight victory and the Twins' seventh straight loss.

Blue Jays 4, Rangers 2

Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run homer in the third inning and Damaso Garcia smashed three doubles as Toronto beat Texas, handing the Rangers their seventh loss in eight games.

Dave Stieb, 1-1, was the winner, pitching 6 1-3 innings, giving up two runs on six hits while walking five and striking out two. Bill Caudill, the third Toronto pitcher, earned his first save.

Red Sox 4, Royals 3

Jim Rice's long home run off Mike Jones in the 14th inning powered Boston over Kansas City.

Rice's blast, estimated at 440 feet, gave the victory to Bob Ojeda, 1-0, who entered the game in the 12th. Jones, 0-1, the fourth Kansas City pitcher, started the 13th.

The Royals tied it at 3-3 in the eighth after the Red Sox had scored two unearned runs to take the lead in the top of the inning.

"In situations like this, you've just got to grind it out," Boston Manager John McNamara said, referring to two previous Boston losses at Royals Stadium in which the Red Sox scored only one run. "We stuck with it and won a big game — a real big game that broke a four-game losing streak."

handers Mark Thurmond, 0-1, on an RBI single by Mike Marshall, a two run double by Candy Maldonado and a sacrifice fly by Scioscia. The Dodgers got their final run in the eighth on Marshall's RBI single.

Valenzuela, 2-1, allowed only a first-inning single by Tony Gwynn, last year's National League batting champion, and an eighth-inning single by pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua. It was the 20th shutout of his career and his third two-hitter.

Valenzuela walked three and struck out eight, fanning six of the seven Padres he faced during one stretch.

Expos 7, Cardinals 1

Mike Fitzgerald's two-run double keyed a four-run uprising in the fourth inning, helping Montreal roll past St. Louis behind Steve Rogers' five-hitter.

Rogers, battling back from an injury-plagued 1984 season, walked four and struck out four. A 15-hit attack, Montreal's biggest in eight games, insured the 35-year-old right-hander his first triumph in three decisions.

Reds 4, Giants 3

Cesar Cedeno's bases-loaded single drove in two runs in the bottom of the 10th to give Cincinnati a comeback victory over San Francisco. The Giants twice failed to hold one-run leads, in the ninth and 10th innings, when they went ahead 3-3 on Chris Brown's RBI single.

After Tony Perez led off the Cincinnati 10th with a single off Greg Minton, 0-1, and was forced at second by Eric Davis, Pete Rose drew a walk and a double steal put both runners in scoring position. Gary Redus drew an intentional walk to set up Cedeno's single, which gave reliever Carl Willis, 1-0, his first major-league victory.

Rose had a single in four at-bats, leaving him just 85 hits away from breaking Ty Cobb's record of 4,191 hits.

Nancy Lopez leads first round of J&B Pro-Am

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nancy Lopez appears in a familiar position at the $200,000 J&B Pro-Am golf tournament.

She shot an opening-round, 7-under-par 66 to move to the top of the list with a one-shot lead over Patty Sheehan and Vicki Fergon in the seventh year of the event she won in 1979, 1982 and 1983.

Had the current bonus offer of $1 million been in effect two years ago she would have been that much richer. However, the bonus opportunity didn't become effective until last year.

Under its terms, Ayoka Okamoto of Japan is eligible having won here last year and Alice Miller for having won the Dinah Shore earlier this month.

Miller is in strong contention after a first round 69 while Okamoto carded a pair of three-putt greens and a 73 in what she termed a "poor" opening 18 because of her putting.

Tied in second at 67 were veterans Patty Sheehan and Vicki Fergon.

Lopez and Fergon were among those playing opening rounds at the par 36-37-73 Las Vegas Country Club Course which plays 6,087 yards while Sheehan played Desert Inn Country Club, 36-36-72, and 6,227 yards.

Sheehan, player-of-the-year in 1983 was second leading money winner last year with $255,185. She also won a $500,000 bonus for winning the LPGA and McDonald's Kids' tournaments consecutively.

She won $50,000 by finishing first last October in the J&B Gold Putter Award Puttoff at this Desert Inn course.

"The Desert Inn course plays much harder than the other one and that's why I'm happy about my score today," she said after the first round.

Lopez was just as happy with her round, commenting, "I played real well. I felt I was aggressive all day long. I was consistent and lucky I didn't have to play in the rain."

The rain fell during the night and on the early starters.

Tied at 68 were Lenore Muraoka of Honolulu and Patty Hayes of Rockledge, Fla. They played the Las Vegas Country Club course and moved to Desert Inn today. The final two rounds are both at Desert Inn.

The tradition of the president of the United States throwing out the first pitch of the major league baseball season began in 1910 with William Howard Taft. Taft showed up without warning at the ball park to watch the Washington Senators play the Philadelphia A's, and threw out the first pitch at someone's suggestion.

Dodgers beat San Diego 5-0

Valenzuela hurls shutout

By Ken Rappoport

AP Sports Writer
After a lack of hitting support last year, Fernando Valenzuela seems to be taking matters into his own hands this season.

Looking as good as he did in his rookie season in 1981, when he won the Cy Young Award, the Los Angeles Dodger pitcher hurled a 5-0, two-hit beauty over the San Diego Padres Thursday.

The shutout was the second straight for the left-hander, who stopped the San Francisco Giants 1-0 on five hits last Saturday and hasn't allowed an earned run in 25 innings this season.

"There's no trend," said Dodger catcher Mike Scioscia. "He's going out there and pitching the same way he always has. He pitched about as well as a guy can pitch today. He used all of his pitches and they were all working today."

In other National League action, Montreal routed St. Louis 7-1 and Cincinnati edged San Francisco 4-3 in 10 innings.

Last year, Valenzuela had a 12-17 record, and rarely got any runs from the weak-hitting Dodgers, who averaged only 3.12 runs per game, fourth lowest in the National League.

On Thursday, however, he got four runs in the first off Padres left-

Showboats worried more about Walker than Flutie

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Coach Pepper Rodgers says his Memphis Showboats were worried about more than quarterback Doug Flutie as they prepared for tonight's meeting with the New Jersey Generals.

"We have to stop Herschel Walker before we worry about Flutie," Rodgers said. "We have to stop Herschel from pounding us in the dirt."

Flutie won the Heisman Trophy because of his passing ability, but Rodgers said he wanted the 5-foot-9 quarterback to pass.

If Flutie passes often, that means Walker is being contained, Rodgers said.

The game will be Flutie's second appearance in Memphis, but his first as a pro.

And tonight's reception at Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium is bound to be decidedly warmer than it was when Flutie and Boston College lost to Notre Dame in the 1983 Liberty Bowl.

During a telephone interview with Memphis sports writers this week, Flutie recalled that frigid Liberty Bowl night when the temperature plummeted toward zero and fans built fires in the stands.

Tonight's weather forecast called for 75-degree temperatures at game time, and the fans will be welcoming the Generals' quarterback with 10,000 kazooes.

"We're calling them 'magic fluties,' and we want the fans to play for Flutie when he comes out on the field and at appropriate times during the game," said Showboats public relations director Rudi Schiffer.

The kazooes were provided by a Memphis bank which is also buying a large block of tickets for resale to its customers.

The Showboats, 4-4, are coming off a 13-10 overtime upset of Baltimore while the Generals are 5-3, following a 34-7 trouncing of Portland.

The game will be the USFL debut for Luis Sharpe, a former St. Louis Cardinals offensive tackle, who signed with the Showboats this week.

Sharpe, a 6-foot-4, 260-pounder from UCLA, was a first-round draft choice in 1982 and was an alternate to the NFL's All-Pro team for two years before becoming a free agent at the end of the 1984 season.

In other USFL action this week, it's Jacksonville at Orlando and Los Angeles at Denver on Saturday night. On Sunday, Houston visits Arizona, Portland is at Baltimore and Tampa Bay plays at Birmingham. In the Monday night game, Oakland hosts San Antonio.

Conservation program would sharply reduce land erosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 10-year "conservation reserve" program for taking 20 million acres from crop production would sharply reduce soil erosion in the United States, according to two studies by Agriculture Department experts.

Both reports, recently sent to Congress, said the program, even at a cost of more than $1 billion a year, would be an economical way to save precious topsoil and reduce surplus crop production.

Pressure is building on Capitol Hill and among conservation groups for a new long-term soil bank that would shift at least 20 million acres of highly erodible cropland into trees and grass to protect it from wind and water damage.

The administration has been cool to the idea, citing its impact on budget spending and the deficit.

Democratic Gov. John Evans of Idaho, representing the National Governors' Association, told the Senate Agriculture Committee on Monday that a new conservation reserve should "set aside land for at least 10 years" and that it could help reduce federal spending on crop price support operations.

Some other groups, including the National Audubon Society and the Wildlife Management Institute, urged the committee to consider removing up to 30 million acres from crop production and putting it in a long-term conservation reserve for 20 years or longer.

One of the Agriculture Department reports — by Roy M. Gray of the department's Soil Conservation Service — said a 10-year conservation reserve program aimed at idling 20 million acres would cost about $9.6 billion over the entire decade, an average of slightly less than $1 billion a year.

"Over half the acres participating in the program would come from land presently planted to wheat," the report said. "The next highest participation would be soybeans, followed by corn and cotton."

The agency says there are about 421 million acres in the United States used for crops and hay. Water erosion causes a loss of about 1.8 billion tons of topsoil each year, with wind erosion adding another 1.2 billion tons.

According to a 1982 survey, about 923 million tons are lost on 41.2 million acres, which are eroding at the rate of more than 10 tons per year.

About one-half of the loss to water erosion occurs on only 10 percent of the land, with the Corn Belt having the greatest concentration of losses. The soil lost to wind is mostly in the southern and northern Plains and the mountain states.

If 20 million acres were taken from crops under the program, the average reduction in erosion would be about 19.5 tons per acre — more than 390 million tons of soil saved annually from both water and wind erosion, the report said.

Further, it said, if Congress does not include a "paid diversion" provision in the 1985 farm bill for paying farmers to take unneeded cropland from production, a 10-year conservation reserve would boost the farm price of wheat about 20 cents a bushel; corn, 10 cents a bushel; and cotton, 5 cents per pound.

The other report, written by Neill Schaller of the department's Economic Research Service, also gave high marks to the long-term conservation program.

"Retirement of surplus crop acres targeted to highly erodible land could be a cost-effective alternative for meeting both conservation and commodity program objectives," it said.

Costs could range from $840 million to $1.4 billion a year.

At a news conference last week, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said a new budget agreement providing more for agriculture over the next three years also means more spending for conservation programs. He said that could include a long-term conservation reserve, but no decisions have been made.

Accent on Agriculture

Watch for alfalfa weevil

By DAVY VESTAL

The month of April is a critical time for alfalfa producers in the Texas panhandle, cautions Davy Vestal, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent for agriculture.

This is the time when producers need to examine their alfalfa for the presence of alfalfa weevil larvae.

With the beginning of warm spring weather, overwintering female weevils begin laying eggs. The young larvae which hatch out are very small, yellowgreen in color and feed in the growing tips and developing buds. Older larvae are green with a white stripe down their back.

"We expect to have our peak alfalfa weevil activity in April or early May in our area," said Vestal. If larvae numbers are high enough to reach the economic threshold, one properly timed application should give control. Treatments should be applied in alfalfa 2 to 6 inches tall when two or more larvae are found per plant or when 30 to 50 percent of the plant terminals show weevil feeding damage. Taller plants 7 to 14 inches tall should be treated when 25 or more weevil larvae per square foot are present. Several effective in-secticides are registered for alfalfa weevil control.

The alfalfa weevil has only one generation per year and is only a pest of first cutting, said Vestal. After the larvae finish feeding, usually by mid May in our area, the larva spins a net-like cocoon on the plant or in the soil debris.

The adult weevil emerges from this cocoon and leaves the field. The weevils stay out of the alfalfa fields all summer and re-enter them in the fall. The adults overwinter in the field and the cycle then repeats itself.

Since the larva are a pest of first cutting, it is sometimes possible to cut a little earlier than usual and avoid chemical treatments. Cutting results in exposure and a lack of food which kills many of the remaining larvae. Winter grazing by livestock helps reduce weevil populations.

Texas land prices finally slip down

COLLEGE STATION — After bucking the trend of declining farm real estate values over the rest of the country, farmland prices in Texas finally slipped a little the past year.

Texas farmland is now worth about $725 per acre in nonirrigated areas, a decline of almost 7 percent from the past year.

Irrigated cropland, at the same time, declined slightly to about $980 per acre, and ranchland dropped in value by about 2 percent to nearly $600 per acre.

"Until last year, Texas had experienced a basically stable farmland market for irrigated cropland and an increasing value in dryland cropland," points out Dr. Forrest Stegelin, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Prospects for 1985 indicate that Texas farm real estate values will continue to slip despite urban sprawl and potential income streams from natural resources."

How will this decline in farm real estate values affect landowners?

"Since real estate accounts for roughly three-fourths of all farm assets, landowners have suffered a substantial paper loss in their net worth," notes Stegelin. "Despite this loss, equity per farm still remains fairly high, but this masks a wide range of situations. A small but growing number of farmers and landowners now have little or not equity in their farm assets."

The economist points out that the loss of net worth may have relatively little consequence on the farming operations of landowners with little or no farm debt. However, the loss does represent a disheartening blow to their financial nest egg.

"Farmers who rely heavily on farm debt are the ones really hurt by this erosion in farmland values," Stegelin emphasizes. "This loss in equity, unless offset by favorable earnings, can lead to a substantial reduction in their borrowing capacity."

The economist notes that farm real estate values may have retreated to levels that offer higher rates of income return than were required by land buyers over the past several years. Some recent farm real estate transactions have offered positive cash flow prospects for the purchasers. But whether the improved relationship between land values and income returns will soon arrest the current downturn is doubtful, Stegelin says.

"For instance, the growing number of financially-strapped farmers who need to liquidate assets to reduce their debt to acceptable levels adds considerably to the amount of land available for sale," he points out. "At the same time, the tendency of potential land buyers to wait for evidence that land prices have bottomed before buying results in an inordinately weak demand for land relative to the supply available."

"Such an attitude by potential land investors has undoubtedly been reinforced by the Reagan Administration's proposals to reduce government farm program benefits," notes Stegelin. "At a minimum, these proposals cast considerable uncertainty about prospective income returns on land ownership over the next few years. Within this environment, agricultural lenders are quite pessimistic about current trends in farmland values."

1,120 acres donated to Tech

LUBBOCK — Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wilson of Lubbock have donated 1,120 acres of land to the Texas Tech University College of Agricultural Sciences.

The land, located in southern Cochran and northern Yoakum Counties, will be used for farm management and appraisal courses and brush and weed control research.

Honey rate set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Honey producers will receive average loan and purchase rates of 65.3 cents per pound on their 1985 production, a half cent below the 1984 level, Agriculture Secretary John Block says.

Botanists reviving ancient technique to find better seeds

LUBBOCK — Botanists are revolutionizing centuries-old plant breeding techniques to find good seed for heavy crop yields despite poor soil and bad weather.

In Texas Tech University laboratories, botanists are growing cotton for fiber and saltbush for forage, both resistant to drought and saline soils.

The Texas Tech laboratory is the first in any university to consistently produce whole plants from cell cultures of cotton.

Plants start with a cell suspension culture, and new strains can be developed in four or five months instead of in years.

The advantage to the studies of saltbush — Atriplex canescens — is that this semi-arid plant, once domesticated, can produce with little or no irrigation the same high protein forage as thirsty alfalfa.

The advantage sought in cotton — Gossypium hirsutum — is seed and fiber production from crops that not only seed little water but also produce well despite the salinity of brackish water and soils common in dry climates.

The end result could be longer productive life for water short agricultural lands like the High Plains of West Texas and a return to productive life of dry lands around the world.

The scientific experiments, done cooperatively in agricultural and biological sciences laboratories, will produce cotton plants from cells tested in test tubes for drought and salt tolerance.

Seeds from cotton produced from these plants can be turned over to plant breeders for developing new varieties for farm production.

Primary investigators for separate but coordinated projects are Dr. J.R. Goodin who heads the Department of Biological Sciences and Dr. Carol Robacker, cellular geneticist in the Department of Plant and Soil Science. Both faculty members participate as members of a U.S. Department of Agriculture plant stress research team located at Texas Tech.

"As revolutionary as our process is," Goodin said, "we are not engaged in genetic engineering. That probably will be the next step."

"Selection of salt and drought resistant cell lines is a start toward production of plants adapted for saline soils and arid lands. Although many scientists have worked with this kind of selection in tobacco," Goodin said, "little work has been done in cotton or saltbush."

Goodin's interest in saltbush has extended over the past 20 years. He and other scientists have had success in growing the crop in Egypt and elsewhere in northern Africa, but the goal is to produce a domesticated seed that will grow uniformly. In the wild, saltbush grows short and tall, with individual plants maturing at different times.

"Such irregularity makes it undesirable for the producer, even though it is highly nutritious, acceptable to livestock and can be grown with much less water and fertilizer and poorer quality water than common forage crops," he said.

Cotton is a major crop on the Texas South Plains where the economy depends to a great extent on irrigated agriculture. Water comes from the Ogallala Aquifer, but the supply is diminishing and cannot be replenished naturally.

In the High Plains, we can look forward only to about 35 more years of irrigation from the Ogallala," Goodin said, "so it is important to work with haste to find solutions to water management problems and to find ways to compensate for the undesirable salts that irrigation leaves in the soil."

With in vitro techniques, we can select variant cell lines resistant to drought and salt stress," he said, "and from them we can grow plants for adaptation to saline soils in arid lands."

Success of the Texas Tech experiments can help farmers in the U.S. Southwest, Goodin said, but there also is "great potential for reclaiming land lost to production throughout the world."

"Our ultimate goal could prevent some lands from becoming deserts and could help recapture near desert lands for crop production."

Processes used for selection of cotton and saltbush strains vary. For cotton, the scientists have been successful, for instance, using stem sections of young seedlings. They sterilize these and then place them in culture tubes. After growth begins the tissue becomes a large lumpy mass of cells which, when placed in a container of liquid and agitated, forms embryos. Embryos derived from the liquid cultures are placed in tubes containing hormones and nutrients. Plantlets that develop are kept in the tubes long enough to develop initial root systems. Then they're potted in vermiculite.

Plantlets derived from a cell culture may be as different from a parent plant as human children are from their parents. Plantlets derived from shoot multiplication — a system used for saltbush — replicate the parent plant, just as does a geranium derived from a cutting."

In breaking new ground, each step forward requires a lot of trial and error to reach success," Goodin said, "and right now timing is perhaps the most critical factor in our research."

He said the laboratories hope to place new cotton strains in the hands of seed breeders within a year. Then, as breeders develop salt and drought resistant varieties from the new strains, the planting seed can be marketed for growers.

Saltbush would be a new crop.

"It should be easy to market, however," Goodin said, "as soon as growers discover they can produce a high quality forage with less water."

Coyotes moving from prairie to eastern state livestock ranches

BLAND, Va. (AP) — With 30 of their lambs slaughtered in a little over a year, Betty and Robert Munsey have been bombarded with proof that the western prairies aren't the only places coyotes roam.

"The first time it happened and I was told it was a coyote, I was worried for the children," Mrs. Munsey said this week. "We didn't have any problems with dogs or coyotes on our farms until last year."

"Some people are going out of the sheep business because of the killing."

Wildlife officials say the voracious animals are firmly ensconced in the East and Midwest, preying on livestock in states like Virginia, Indiana, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Farmers from Virginia's Shenandoah Valley and Appalachian Mountains say coyotes have been around for decades, but according to Keith Turner, president of the Rockingham County Sheep and Wool Producers Association, "It's getting to be more of a problem each year."

Japanese land at $17,000 an acre

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmland prices in Japan last year showed the smallest gain since the mid-1960s, says a report by the Japan International Agricultural Council.

Even so, Japanese farmland prices "remained on a high plateau" of about $17,000 per acre, the report said.

Japan has only about 13.3 million acres of farmland.

Although sheep are more susceptible than other livestock, coyotes have been known to prey on hogs, goats, cattle and poultry and have raided gardens, said Gary Simmons of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. They avoid people, he said.

Coyotes began moving east early this century in the wake of the eradication of American wolves, Simmons said. "That allowed the coyote to come in and fill the niche the wolves vacated."

"It's just something that eastern sheep farmers are going to have to get used to," said Jack Payne, a Penn State University wildlife specialist. "They haven't been able to get rid of them in the West, so I doubt they'll be able to get rid of them in the East."

The raids on sheep in Bland County have become so numerous — 100 lambs last year and 54 already this year, Mrs. Munsey said — that farmers have asked the county Board of Supervisors to establish a $100 bounty on coyotes.

The Munseys now keep their herd of 147 ewes close to home instead of letting them roam under the stars on Big Walker Mountain. A local trapper is working on their 1,200-acre tract, but two lambs were killed this month by an animal believed to be a coyote, and the trapping has been unsuccessful.

Western sheep farmers have had some success controlling coyotes but some of their techniques aren't available in the East, said Simmons, the wildlife service's branch chief for animal damage control in Washington.

Eastern sheep flocks are only a fraction of the size of western herds, so it's questionable whether officials in eastern states would be willing to invest much money in controlling the coyote population, he said.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Emotions

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have tried to enlist in the armed forces, but every time I take their physical exam, I fail because my pulse climbs to 120. I'm 19, weigh 150 and am in good health. I don't smoke or drink, use salt or drink anything with caffeine. My usual resting pulse rate is 70 or lower.

I jog and walk about five miles a day and my maximum pulse rate never exceeds 140 a minute. Since I have been rejected four times by the Army, I think every time I take the exam I mentally increase my pulse. Can the mind play tricks with my pulse? If so, how can I overcome this problem?

DEAR READER — You are probably as healthy as can be, judging from your story. Yes, your mind can increase your heart rate that much and even more. Emotions can raise both the heart rate and blood pressure. You probably are right in believing that your emotions cause you to react this way when you are being examined.

It is difficult to overcome such reactions. If you had access to a doctor's office, you could have your pulse taken regularly until you got used to it. You might get some benefit from behavioral modification if you could locate a reliable source for it in your community.

You also could further improve your level of physical fitness. As endurance capacity is developed, the heart rate can be reduced. Roger Bannister had a resting rate of over 70 before he trained to be the first man to break the four minute mile. When trained, his resting heart rate was below 40.

If you can lower your resting heart rate considerably through training, then when you take your exam and your heart rate increases, it may not exceed the limits allowed to enter service. It's worth a try.

Meanwhile, read The Health Letter, Special Report 32, What Your Heart Rate Means, which I am sending you. Understanding your problem may help solve it. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently you discussed malnutrition among hospital and nursing-home patients. You were so right to point out the problem, but you laid the problem on the wrong doorstep.

There are patients who have no relatives or have relatives who are too ill to feed them, live out of town, are self-employed and work 12 or more hours a day, or would have to bring small children to the hospital with them.

Let's put the responsibility for feeding a feeble patient right where it belongs — with the hospital! If a hospital can charge its patients a fortune, it should provide the most basic and vital service.

DEAR READER — Hospitals and nursing homes should see to it that all patients are not only served a balanced diet according to their needs, but also that they eat it. My concern is that many trays of food go uneaten because no one helps the patient.

I wish the problem could be solved by putting the responsibility where it belongs. I don't disagree with you. But I have seen a lot of human nature and I know there will be many times when employees will not exercise their responsibility. Regardless of where the responsibility lies, the point is to feed the patient. I strongly recommend that relatives and friends make sure that their loved ones are getting good basic care, and this may require that they show up during the patients mealtime.

Oceans

Four major bodies of water are recognized by geographers and map makers. They are the Pacific, Atlantic, Indian and Arctic Oceans. The Atlantic and Pacific are considered divided at the equator into the North Atlantic and South Atlantic; the North Pacific and the South Pacific.

The Newspaper BIBLE

SOME VERY GOOD RULES TO LIVE BY

Moses climbed the rugged mountain to meet with God, and from somewhere in the mountain God called to him and said, "Give these instructions to the people of Israel. Tell them, 'You have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I brought you to myself as though on eagle's wings. Now if you will obey me and keep your part of my contract with you, you shall be my own little flock from among all the nations of the earth; for all the earth is mine. And you shall be a kingdom of priests to God, a holy nation.'" (Exodus 19:3-6)

Then God issued this edict: "I am Jehovah your God who liberated you from your slavery in Egypt. You must worship no other god than me. You shall not make yourselves any idols: any images resembling animals, birds, or fish. You must never bow to an image or worship it in any way; for I, the Lord your God, am very possessive. I will not share my affection with any other god!"

"And when I punish people for their sins, the punishment continues upon the children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren of those who hate me; but I lavish my love upon thousands of those who love me and obey my commandments."

"You shall not use the name of Jehovah your God irreverently, nor use it to swear to a falsehood. You will not escape punishment if you do." (Exodus 20:1-7)

The Newspaper BIBLE

THIS IS YOUR LIFE!

Look here, you people, who say, "Today or tomorrow we are going to such and such a town, stay there a year, and open up a profitable business." How do you know what is going to happen tomorrow? For the length of your lives is as uncertain as the morning fog--now you see it; soon it is gone. What you ought to say is, "If the Lord wants us to, we shall live and do this or that." Otherwise you will be bragging about your own plans, and such self-confidence never pleases God. (James 4:13-16)

Lord, through all the generations you have been our home! Before the mountains were created, before the earth was formed, you are God without beginning or end.

You spread out our sins before you--our secret sins--and see them all. No wonder the years are long and heavy here beneath your wrath. All our days are filled with sighing.

Seventy years are given us! And some may even live to eighty. But even the best of these years are often emptiness and pain; soon they disappear, and we are gone.

Who can realize the terrors of your anger? Which of us can fear you as he should? Teach us to number our days and recognize how few they are; help us to spend them as we should. (Psalms 90:1-2, 8-12)
