Into Alleged Sex Scandal

House Ethics Committee Launches Probe

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee is launching its own probe on the heels of a Justice Department investigation into allegations that some members of Congress may have sexually preyed upon the youthful pages they employ.

A top Senate source said the allegations center on a few, no more than two or three House members. But other sources said as many as 10 representatives could be under investigation. None have been identified.

The accusations surfaced when a 16-year-old male page, who said he did not participate in the activities, relayed to a staffer in the office of Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., details of parties involving cocaine and sodomy. The page also reported incidents of homosexual "preying on pages," as one source put it.

The Justice Department was notified and the page was interviewed June 14 by attorneys in the department's public integrity section, sources said.

The Denver Post said in today's editions that Roy Opp of Denver identified his son, Jeff, as the page who went to Schroeder's office. The elder Opp was quoted as saying he was certain his son, who was not available for comment, wasn't involved in any wrongdoing.

"I'm certain and comfortable that he did nothing," the father told the newspaper. "He was not involved sexually and didn't take drugs."

The Denver Post said the father flew to Washington on June 13 and a day later was with his son when the boy spent more than 90 minutes telling his story to Justice Department officials.

Since then, the Justice probe reportedly has been expanded to include allegations of congressmen soliciting female pages for sex.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Ethics Committee, said Thursday he has instructed the committee staff to immediately begin a thorough investigation.

"Any charges that may be proved will be reported to the House promptly for appropriate disciplinary action," Stokes said.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said he was "deeply disturbed" by the allegations. "The truthfulness of these charges must be determined without delay," he said.

"We have to end the thing fast," a source close to the House leadership said. "But at the same time, it's going to be desired by all the members to make sure the people involved are caught and gotten rid of, because there's no doubt that there's a crime involved if this is true."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., who conferred with Attorney General William French Smith on Thursday, said earlier that he was "flabbergasted."

Senate leadership sources said they understood no members of the Senate nor any Senate pages were involved in the allegations.

Baker, however, said he has requested the sergeant at arms to inquire whether an investigation has "any relevance to the Senate whatsoever" and keep the leadership "apprised of that inquiry."

Honor America Slated Sunday

The sounds of the Hereford Chamber Singers and speeches by local attorney Wayne Thomas and former First Baptist Church pastor Doug Manning will highlight "Honor America - A Patriotic Evening," beginning at 8 p.m. Sunday at Whiteface Stadium.

The program is sponsored by the Women's Division of the Deaf Smith Chamber of Commerce, particularly the Public Affairs Committee, headed by chairman Eileen Alley.

Chamber president Bill Johnson will open the program with welcoming comments, and the Rev. Mack McCarter of the First Christian Church will deliver the invocation. Boy Scout Troop 52, under the direction of Troop Leader Neil Lemons, will conduct the flag ceremony.

Special music will be provided by the Chamber Singers under the direction of Bill Devers, who will conclude the patriotic evening by leading the crowd in "God Bless America."

All local Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Bluejays, and Bluebirds are encouraged to attend the event, and they will be recognized during the evening.

Discovery of Body Raises More Questions in Scheme

SEVIERVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A fishing crew's discovery of a Texas man's body floating off the coast of Florida ends the search for one man sought in a $200 million cocaine-smuggling scheme that was foiled in Tennessee.

Detective Clint Etheridge of the Palm Beach County, Fla., sheriff's department said Thursday an autopsy showed that Charles Lesley Kageler Sr. may have died from two wounds from a boat's propeller blade.

Kageler, 48, of Lubbock, Texas, was wanted by Tennessee authorities in connection with a 1981 attempt to smuggle 614 pounds of nearly pure cocaine from Colombia, South America, to East Tennessee.

A cocaine-laden plane, tracked by drug agents, landed in darkness March 23, 1981, at a secluded Sevier County airport and two men, including Kageler's son, were later arrested.

After measuring the weight of the cocaine, Tennessee Bureau of Investigation agents said the confiscation was the largest cocaine haul from an aircraft in U.S. history.

But authorities said Kageler, believed to have masterminded the scheme, and another man were at the airport the night the plane arrived and managed to elude agents.

Both had been missing more than a year before Kageler's body was found near Jupiter Island in Florida.

Garage Sales Turn Trash into Treasure

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

The cliché of "One man's trash is another man's treasure" is proven true nowhere better than at garage sales.

They (also known as carport sales, backyard sales, front porch sales, etc.) have allowed chronic packrats to literally come out of their closets — with their junk.

Ah ... the bargains. Five cents for an old key ring. Books going at 25 cents each. Clothes for just a few dollars. And endless boxes of miscellany.

Need some extra silverware for the camper? Dog wants a new blanket? Wonder if a thingamajig would work in that broken doodad? There is something un-live-withoutable for everyone at a garage sale.

"The things you think there's no way they'd sell, that's what they (shoppers) buy," says Danova Bromlow, who recently ran a sale with Marcy Varner.

"To get rid of a lot of useless stuff and to make money" was the motive of the sale for Ms. Varner.

Susan Gutierrez had her first sale a couple of weeks ago because she "had too much junk and I didn't know what to do with it." She confessed that some of the stuff she was selling was being recycled — she said she tries to go once a week to garage sales herself.

Both women said baby furniture and baby clothes are the fastest selling item. Mrs. Gutierrez said one gal bought out nearly all her baby clothes.

Reagan Says Buildup Prompted Arms Talks

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan says the enormous military buildup he is embarking upon is the factor that "brought the Soviet Union to the negotiating table as quickly as they came."

Before flying to his ranch 20 miles from here for a vacation, Reagan told broadcasters and editors meeting Thursday in Los Angeles that his increase in defense spending also will keep the Soviets at the bargaining table.

But he said a Soviet-encouraged freeze on nuclear weapons "would make this country dangerously vulnerable to nuclear blackmail."

The Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START) between the United States and the Soviet Union began Tuesday and could take months or even years before they are completed.

Reagan also told the broadcasters and editors from Western states that he was "terribly disturbed" to learn that Egyptians believe the United States knew in advance and sanctioned the Israeli invasion of Lebanon early last month.

And he hinted he believes that the insanity defense in criminal trials should be modified to place the burden of proof on the defense, saying it's hard enough to prove one's own friends sane.

ingsworth and Deloris McCuistian said bedding went well and, overall, at least half the wares were gone by afternoon of opening day. The trio said jeans, toys and kids' clothes also bring in the customers.

Mrs. Gutierrez said a few come in looking for certain items, but a lot just browse around. Out of 14 customers she had one morning, only two did not buy anything.

Mrs. Hollingsworth said a lot of her customers came

Band Director Vaughn Leaves; Priest Promoted

BY BOB NIGH
MANAGING EDITOR

The highly successful Hereford High School band program suffered a blow this week with the announced resignation of band director Randy Vaughn. Vaughn, who moved up to direct the high school band when Ben Gollehon left in 1974, will be moving to Klein, TX and will be band director of nearby Strack.

"It was a very tough decision for Cindy (his wife) and I to make," Vaughn said. "There are a lot of great kids here, and it will be tough to leave them."

Vaughn also praised the support the band has received in the past. "The parents and community have been great in supporting the band," he said.

While Vaughn has his sight on the Houston metro area, HHS Activities Director Robert Priest took over the duties of assistant principal this week. Priest is replacing Raymond Schroeder, who was named La Plata Jr. High principal recently.

Priest 39, has been with the Hereford system since 1971, coming here after attending the University of Texas at Austin on a National Science Foundation Academic Year Scholarship to obtain his master's degree in Botany.

Priest was head coach at La Plata in 1972, and moved to the high school varsity staff in 1973. He quit coaching in 1978 to teach biology, and was named Activities director two years ago.

"This is a great opportunity for me," Priest said. "I think that it's up to the administration to allow the teachers to be the best they can be before we can have a successful school."

"My goal is to support the teachers so we can have a good, strong educational program."

Vaughn, who attended WTSU and was graduated with a BME in 1968, will be moving to Klein in August. Right now he is helping Superintendent Dr. Harrell Holder secure a replacement for him.

"We've got a good program going here, and we will draw some good people," Vaughn said. "I am leaving about 185 kids in the program in the high school, and the band program itself is in good shape all the way down."

Vaughn's replacement will have solid support from newly-named assistant band director Paul Lindley, a recent WTSU grad who did his student teaching at HHS last year, and for junior high directors Jim Priest at La Plata and Jim Summersgill at Stanton.

"Strack does a lot of things like Hereford with their team teaching program, and there's a lot of opportunity for advancement," Vaughn said.

"The area had one class AA school 10 years ago, and they now have three 5A schools. They predict that there will be a total of 10 that size within the next 15 or 20 years."

Vaughn has continued a tradition of excellent band programs at the high school, helping keep intact a streak of 24 straight Sweepstakes performances.

His wife, Cindy, who has taught fifth grade at West Central, will teach fourth grade at Spring, another nearby suburb of Houston.

Randy Vaughn

Priest, who also coached and taught at Plainview and Ralls before moving to Hereford, said he is looking forward to working closer with HHS principal John Walsh.

"John is a very innovative, strong academic-minded person," he said. "And, he has some great ideas to help the school evolve an even better educational program."

No replacement has been named for Priest either. His wife Nancy teaches special education classes at Aikman.

Nation's Jobless Rate Steady at 9.5 Percent

By MERRILL HARTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate held steady at 9.5 percent in June, but the number of Americans who gave up looking for work because of the tight job market set a record, the Labor Department said today.

Although the jobless rate was unchanged from May, the number of people out of work actually fell — from 10.5 million to 10.4 million.

But 1.5 million people fell into the "discouraged worker" category — a statistic reported by the government every three months. The number of discouraged workers rose by 160,000 from the first quarter.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics attributed the steady unemployment rate to the process of seasonal adjustment, by which it adjusts raw unemployment data to account for such routine, predictable variations as school closings and the weather.

The jobless rate normally rises in June with the influx of school-age job-seekers, but because far fewer youths entered the labor force than expected the overall adjusted rate held steady.

The labor force actually shrank by 475,000 last month. The number of people working declined 353,000 and the number of people thrown out of work fell by 122,000, more than offsetting any tightness in the labor market that would have otherwise driven the rate up further.

In advance of today's report, several private analysts said unemployment is certain to remain at post-war record levels through the summer. The economists said they doubted the 10 percent cut in income tax rates or the 7.4 percent boost in Social Security benefits that took effect Thursday would produce enough of a spurt in consumer spending to cut into the unemployment toll.

The nation's unemployment rate was 9.5 percent in May, a fractional rise from the previous month. Nonetheless, 10.5 million Americans were out of work and new records were set for joblessness among blacks and adult males.

Before this year, the previous post-World War II

Grocery Bills Climb Again

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The temperature isn't the only thing that's been rising since the start of summer. An Associated Press market-basket survey shows grocery bills went up in June for the second straight month, with meat prices leading the way.

The AP survey is based on a random list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food items. The items were priced at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and have been repriced on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Among the highlights of the latest survey:

—The marketbasket bill increased last month at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed, declined in four cities and was unchanged in one. Overall, the marketbasket bills increased by an average of 1 percent. During May, the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in 10 cities and decreased in three, for an overall average rise of 1.3 percent.

—Prices have gone up 3.5 percent in the first six months of this year. The AP found that the marketbasket bill increased at the checklist store in 11 cities between Jan. 1 and July 1 and decreased in two. The situation was worse than in 1981, when the marketbasket bill decreased an average of 5.7 percent in the first six months, but better than 1980, when there was a 6.5 percent increase.

—Meat items were to blame for much of the June increase. Meats accounted for 21 percent of the items on the AP checklist, but for 32 percent of the June increase. The price of a pound of chopped chuck went up at the checklist store in six cities and the price of frankfurters was up in seven cities. Pork chops declined in seven cities, but the drop is expected to be only temporary because the supply of hogs, as well as the supply of beef cat-

Routine Check Discovers Missing Nuke Component

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — FBI agents are trying to trace a secret electronic nuclear weapon component that was discovered missing during an inventory check at the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant, an official said.

Gerald Johnson, chief of operations at the Department of Energy plant, declined to describe the function of the classified part, but said it does not contain radioactive material.

"A thorough check is being made of both the Pantex plant and other DOE facilities that were involved with the component," Johnson said Thursday.

The Pantex plant is the final assembly point for U.S. nuclear weapons.

"The FBI has been asked to assist in the investigation, which is routine whenever there is an inventory discrepancy involving classified material," he said.

"We are not even completely sure that it is missing," Johnson said.

Johnson said he could not comment on when the part was discovered missing, when the last inventory check was made, or when the last time a classified part was discovered missing from the Pantex plant.

Johnson said he would not say when the FBI was notified about the problem, but he said plant officials had "talked again" with the FBI Thursday.

He also said he could not describe where the part was kept in the plant, and what kind of security measures were taken to safeguard the part.

"We have an elaborate security system, and we continuously do inventory checks," he said Thursday evening. "We have an elaborate accountability system and we keep elaborate records to maintain control of inventory."

Tax Grab Bag Gets Finance Panel OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee today approved a $98-billion grab-bag of tax increases affecting health-care expenses, cigarettes and telephone service while giving the government new weapons to stop tax cheaters.

The bill, with more than two dozen provisions that together represent one of the largest tax increases in history, was approved in near-record time — 17 hours that ended just before 2 a.m. Senate action is expected later this month. The measure's fate in the record was 9.0 percent, which was recorded in May 1975 as the nation emerged from a recession brought on by the Arab oil embargo.

The bureau reported Thursday that initial claims for unemployment compensation benefits totaled 550,000 in the week ending June 19, a decrease of 45,000 from the prior week's total on a seasonally adjusted basis.

That would not take into account, however, any futile search for jobs by out-of-school teen-agers who do not qualify for jobless benefits.

At his nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday night, President Reagan acknowledged that unemployment "may remain stubbornly high for a time."

Capitol Hill pages who reporters tried to question Thursday said their superiors have told them not to talk about the case.

Officials said a page's average stay on Capitol Hill is about a semester, though some stay as briefly as two months while others remain as long as two years. They live in supervised housing near the Capitol, attend Capitol Page School and pay for their own uniforms, lodging and meals from paychecks somewhat above $600 a month.

Pages' duties generally involve running errands for members of Congress, such as delivering notes or distributing news releases.

House is uncertain.

The tax increase was written in response to a Senate directive aimed at reducing the federal deficit in hopes of cutting chronically high interest rates. The bill would raise taxes by about $21 billion during the 1983 budget year, which begins on Oct. 1, and about $98 billion during the 1983-1985 period.

The measure, approved 11-9 over united Democratic opposition, would take back part of the reduction in business taxes that Congress enacted 11 months ago. The tax boost is backed by the Reagan administration.

Several of the tax increases would have a direct effect on consumers.

The bill would reduce the deduction for medical expenses, which now is limited to expenditures that exceed 3 percent of adjusted gross income. The bill would allow a deduction only for expenses above 10 percent of income.

The deduction for uninsured casualty losses — such as by fire — would be reduced.

Smokers would have to pay an extra eight cents for a pack of cigarettes; the bill would double the tax to 16 cents and produce $4.8 billion.

The 1-percent federal tax on telephone service would rise to 2 percent in 1983 and 3 percent in 1984 and drop again to 2 percent in 1986 and afterward. This change would produce $2.6 billion over three years.

For the first time, a 10-percent withholding tax would apply to most interest and dividends, with exemptions for small banks and elderly and low-income taxpayers. Securities transactions would have to be reported regularly by brokers. The IRS could check those reports against income-tax returns.

The compliance measures would produce about $29 billion in 1983-1985.

Collins Gets Big Piece Of Republican Pie

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Senatorial candidate Jim Collins will get $781,000 from the National Republican Senatorial Committee, but it comes with a warning not to waste it on buttons, balloons or bumper stickers.

Vince Breglio, executive director of the committee, handed Collins a $15,000 check Thursday as the down payment on the contribution. The Republican Senatorial Committee spreads money around to candidates it thinks have good chances to beat Democratic incumbents.

Lloyd Bentsen, Collins' opponent, is the second most "vulnerable" Democrat in the U.S. Senate, according to Breglio. Only Paul Sarbanes of Maryland is more vulnerable, he said.

The committee uses a direct-mail solicitation campaign to attract contributions. Breglio said about $9 million has been raised for this year's Senate races.

Collins, a Dallas congressman, is getting the second largest chunk of it. About $1 million will be spent in California, he said.

Bignone Pledges Civilian Government

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's new president, retired army Maj. Gen. Reynaldo Bignone, has repeated his pledge to return the country to civilian rule within two years and has promised to alter the economic policies practiced by the six-year-old military regime.

After taking office Thursday, Bignone appealed in a nationally broadcast speech for the help of all Argentines during the course of his transition administration.

The 54-year-old Bignone, considered an able administrator, replaced army Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri, who was forced out by his fellow generals after Argentina's humiliating surrender to the British June 14 in the undeclared Falkland Islands war.

Bignone asked the Argentine people for help in returning the country to civilian rule, which he has promised to do by March 1984. As a step in that direction, the government on Thursday lifted a six-year-old ban on partisan political activities.

Draft Dodger Pleads Innocent At Arraignment

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The first young man since the Vietnam war to be charged with evading military registration has pleaded innocent, and says he is prepared to go to jail for his beliefs.

"I feel obligated to protest an injustice in society," Benjamin H. Sasway, 21, said Thursday after appearing before U.S. Magistrate Harry R. McCue.

"In a sense, I feel obligated to make my country better, and to go CO (conscientious objector) or move to Canada or somehow even register would be a selfish decision. I can't allow that," he said.

Sasway, charged with one count of failure to register with the Selective Service System, marched briefly outside the Federal Court Building with about 175 anti-draft protestors before surrendering to federal marshals.

His family carried placards which read: "Not Our Sons, Not Your Sons, Not Their Sons" and "No Draft, No War."

Selective Service officials estimate about 527,000 men have failed to register since former President Jimmy Carter revived the registration requirement in June 1980. About 7.9 million have complied.

Kirkpatrick Has No Remedy

Our outspoken U.N. Ambassador, Jeane Kirkpatrick, accuses the United States of diplomatic ineptitude dating back several decades.

She says we have stumbled from crisis to crisis like a bunch of amateurs. Thus, she says, we have fallen from influence to impotence.

But she proposes no remedy. She suggests that professional career diplomats might help, but acknowledges that these, also, would be subject to bureaucratic turbulence.

Americans, scanning the Humpty Dumpty world, should be grateful that we are not fighting in all the places we might be fighting.

We might have intervened when the Soviets invaded Afghanistan.

We might have interceded in Poland. Surely we would have troops in El Salvador right now except for you.

Had we not learned such bitter lessons in Korea and

Lebanon and in the Philip-

I count 37 armed conflicts presently under way around the world.

It can be argued that any time in history at least 35 nations were fighting over something; that we are more aware now because rapid transportation and instantaneous communication have shrunk the planet.

However, the Center for Defense Informationists that the level of world violence has escalated over the past two years.

Our President's critics call for a "more coherent" foreign policy. I suggest that when the issues are as diverse as Ireland and Cuba, we are better off without any arbitrary public policy which potential enemies might use to trap us in another unworthy military quagmire.

Presently, thank heaven, it is the Soviets — not US — who are bleeding in several of these dead-end situations.

Charges Questionable In Stabbing

County officials say no charges have been filed on a man who allegedly stabbed his wife during an argument early Thursday morning.

Deputies received an anonymous call about 1 a.m. and were informed that the couple were driving to Deaf Smith General Hospital. The vehicle was given a police escort.

The woman refused to file charges then, however, deputies who have talked to the woman since the incident indicated she may file.

City police arrested two minors for consumption of alcohol, one intoxicated driver and issued 14 citations.

In Second Mock Raid

Warplanes Thunder Beirut

By The Associated Press

Israeli warplanes thundered over the Lebanese capital early today, dropping flares and smoke canisters in a second warning to Yasser Arafat's Palestinian guerrillas to quit their Israeli-enclosed enclave in west Beirut.

The mock air raid followed a similar maneuver before dawn Thursday and was seen as bid to quicken the pace of diplomatic efforts to force Arafat's 8,000 Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas out of the Lebanese capital.

Israel earlier agreed to delay invading west Beirut to give the U.S.-sponsored diplomatic effort more time, but it also accused the PLO of using Lebanese civilians as hostages in an effort to block an Israeli attack.

"Indeed we do hesitate to go into west Beirut," Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Thursday, insisting his forces had no wish to harm the estimated 480,000 civilians there.

But Begin told Israel radio "if it comes to a fight, they (the civilians) may get hurt, not because we intend to — we do not — but because the terrorists kept them as hostages."

The Israeli invaders are threatening to storm the PLO bunkers in predominantly Moslem west Beirut to evict the guerrillas by force unless they surrender their heavy weapons and leave Lebanon peacefully.

An invasion of the PLO's 10-square-mile enclave would mean a heavy toll of soldiers and civilians. Lebanese officials claim the 27-day-old war has already claimed 15,000 lives although the Israelis insist the figure is much lower.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said in an Illinois radio interview that an Israeli attack on the PLO strongholds might spur an Arab oil embargo against the United States.

"There would be absolute carnage ... (and) severe retribution against the United States because of that," Percy told an interviewer Thursday. He said an Israeli attack also could be felt in the form of "more high interest rates, higher inflation ... oil embargoes. We're facing a very perilous situation."

Lebanese sources in Beirut said the United States has extracted a promise from Begin to give more time for diplomatic efforts to settle the crisis.

U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib met with Lebanese intermediaries in Beirut through Thursday to reach a compromise agreement between the PLO and Israel.

But a high government official in Tel Aviv said "the time element is crucial. We are not going to be drawn into protracted negotiations lasting weeks or months."

As the jets shattered the sound barrier over Beirut today, thousands of panicky west Beirut residents jammed basements and bomb shelters, some cursing Israel and the United States, the Jewish state's chief arms supplier.

Like everyone, garage sale producers have advice. The tips are: Start cleaning house about a week before, culling out things you don't use. Be sure everything is marked. This avoids an on the spot appraisal and keeps cash in order for multi-family sales. Use a felt marker and masking tape for price tags. Use initials and keep the tape to divide money accordingly at the end of the sale. Get plenty of change. Says one garager, "They'll pull specially shopping. One woman was looking for pure silk sewing scraps to make a patchwork bedspread and a couple was scavenging for Indian artifacts. "The things you sell are things you don't want and won't use," Mrs. McCuistian said, justifying changing trash to cash. Mrs. Gutierrez had $35 in hand by 3 p.m. her first day. "Big" items (such as refrigerators, lawn mowers, furniture) can boost the enterprise into the triple-digits, say the sages.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Another ugly scene, another fight, more yelling and screaming. But I'm helpless. Tell me, Ann, what keeps people together when they don't love each other?

Our marriage was bad from the start, but now it's awful. I don't love my husband and I'm sure he knows it. I know he doesn't love me either. In fact he has someone else.

I used to think I was staying with him for the kids, but how good is it for them to see us fight like cats and dogs?

Financially I could make it - he would pay child support. So, who do we stay together? What keeps two people like us under the same roof? If I knew the answer maybe I could leave or get HIM to leave.

I'm still a young woman, but I feel like an old hag. Don't suggest counseling - we've tried it and it hasn't helped worth a damn. Please answer my question. - Old Before My Time are often terrified of the unknown. Also it takes a tremendous amount of physical energy to make drastic changes. Can this be your problem?

DEAR O.B.T.: People who remain in hellish situations

I've listed two possibilities. The third: you could be masochistic.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since I got my driver's license I have lost 20 pounds and decided to go from brunette to redhead. My eyes are blue but I always had the feeling that green-eyed redheads were the sexiest of women, so now I wear green contact lenses.

If I should get stopped for a traffic violation and the officer looks at my license which says 140 pounds, blue-eyed brunette, will I be in trouble? How can I prove I am me? - Worried In Westchester

DEAR WORRIED: Most officers don't care about the color of the driver's eyes or hair or weight. They just want to make sure the driver has a license. If you are truly worried about this, take another picture and get a new license.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We have three bright children, ten, eight and six years of age. The only time they get to see their daddy is at suppertime. All three of them are talkers. Last night my husband got mad because they were all asking him questions at once. He announced, "From now on there will be no talking at the table."

Tonight they were silent - and sad. Please say something, Ann. - Boston B.

DEAR B.B.: Your husband should be delighted that his children want to ask him questions. I hope he will reconsider. It would be a shame if he choked off that wonderful flow of communication.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You wondered in a recent column if surgeons were the ones who requested that rock music be played during operations. As a nurse who has assisted in the O.R. for many years, I can tell you, yes. They say it relieves the tension. As for me, it just makes me want to dance.

The first operation I ever observed blew my mind. The patient was on the table, cut from stem to stern. It was all I could do to keep from passing out. Meanwhile, the doctors were discussing the Kentucky Derby. This may sound callous, but surgeons cannot afford to become emotionally involved with their patients - and they say music helps. DEAR R.N.: Thanks for a report on the operating room by someone who works in one.

How's Your Honey?

Is your honey raw or processed? How can you tell? Raw honey is that which has never been heated above 100 degrees F. or strained, says Dr. Cass Ryan-Crowe, a food and nutrition specialist.

Processed honey has been heated and filtered to remove any foreign particles, she adds.

Ryan-Crowe is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The color of honey varies depending on where the bees collect the nectar, the specialist says.

In addition, heating honey can cause it to darken slightly.

Unmarried Father Says Texas ERA Gives Him Right to Child Custody

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A Nebraska man says the Texas Equal Rights Amendment gives him the right to take custody of his illegitimate child, who was put up for adoption by her unmarried mother.

"All I can say is I love my daughter and I want her, and she's blood, and I just can't see letting her go when I want to raise her myself," he testified at a 1981 hearing that ended with a ruling against his claim to the child.

The Texas Civil Liberties Union on Thursday asked the state Supreme Court to review its decision, which affirmed lower court rulings against the man. TCLU also wants the Supreme Court to take its first look at the Texas ERA.

John Duncan, TCLU director, said unmarried fathers should have the same custody rights as unmarried mothers, who "automatically" can get custody of their illegitimate children.

But the courts said the "best interest" of the child was the most important factor.

The mother was 16 and the father was 25 when the case was heard in Abilene on Aug. 8, 1981. She testified she had been seeing the man at his York, Nebraska, ranch for about 18 months before the child was conceived.

The mother's parents did not want their daughter to marry the man, and she went to Christian Homes of Abilene, where the child was born in January 1981. An appeals court at Eastland said adoption was the best route for the infant. The mother agreed and the court said ruled against the father's claim.

"His plans included returning with her to the same small town where the illicit sexual activity occurred and included the assistance of his mother and sister in the rearing of the child," said Associate Justice Raleigh Brown's opinion.

Brown also pointed out the mother was an adopted child and understood the "stigma under which an illegitimate child suffers."

"It is the child's best interest and not the interest of the biological father which must be served by legitimation," said Brown.

But the TCLU said Texas decade-old ERA gives the father a custody claim.

"In the case of unwed fathers who are trying to voluntarily legitimize their children, the courts, by refusing to recognize the legitimation, deprive the biological fathers of the right to parental rights without a showing that they are unfit," TCLU said.

"It has been 10 years since Texans adopted the Texas Equal Rights Amendment. In that time, interpretation and application of the amendment have been left solely to the numerous courts of appeal, with varying degrees of scholarship and analysis," said the TCLU brief. "Careful consideration of the Texas ERA is especially crucial now in the light of the recent failure to adopt the federal ERA."

The euthanasia dilemma

She is 93 years old and wants to die. She lives alone in a two-room flat. She has no family, almost no friends. She is sick and nearly blind. Doctors can do nothing for her.

It's just old age, they say.

Should she "qualify" for euthanasia — mercy killing? Doctors are not required to use extraordinary means to keep people alive. But they cannot voluntarily do anything calculated to end a person's life.

Yet, according to one writer, "a substantial body of Americans believe an enlightened society should authorize the termination of life by painless medical means when a person is suffering intensely from an incurable sickness."

What about the 93-year-old woman in our story? Would this "body of Americans" say she qualifies too?

After the questions of abortion and school prayer are disposed of (if ever), some people feel that euthanasia will be the next great debate. If so, the debate will focus on more than just the suffering aged.

If euthanasia is ever legalized, there are those who have visions of doctors going through the veterans hospitals where the mentally deranged, the blind and those with bodies little more than helpless torsos are housed — and "turning thumbs up or thumbs down on one case after another."

The efficiency expert — so goes another warning — might well suggest the economic wisdom of clearing out our country's insane asylums.

The Nazi practice of euthanasia in World War II conjures up more horror pictures.

Dr. Leo Alexander, who testified at the Nuremberg war crimes trials, says that even before the Nazis took over, "a propaganda barrage in Germany was directed at the traditional compassionate 19th Century attitudes toward the chronically ill and in favor of the adoption of a utilitarian point of view."

By 1936, state hospitals in Germany were required to furnish names of patients who had been ill five years or more and were unable to work. Such persons were often liquidated by order of the state.

Alexander says 275,000 persons were put to death "in charitable foundations for institutional care — the mentally defective, psychotics, epileptics and patients suffering from infirmities of old age. All those unable to work and considered non-rehabilitable were killed."

It all started, says Alexander, with the attitude, "basic in the euthanasia movement, that there is such a thing as a life not worth living."

Could it happen here?

There are other worries which anti-euthanasia people have.

Dr. Willard Sperry, the late dean of Harvard Divinity School, said in a book on the ethics of medicine that he had an uneasy suspicion that "the prospect of an inheritance or of release from an intimate relationship that has become irksome might well lead many relatives to suggest mercy killing in some moment when the patient's guard was down."

Even in families "where affections are still unimpaired but resources are limited," Sperry feared that the "prospect of release from an increasingly heavy load of expense might operate in the same way."

An even larger concern with Sperry, however, was what euthanasia would do to the public's confidence in doctors.

"The layman," said Sperry, "still believes his doctor will stand by him to the end. Once let that faith be shaken and the layman will approach the medical profession thereafter with his own skeptical reservations."

Rev. Joseph Fletcher, Episcopal clergyman and the best known proponent of euthanasia, is of course well acquainted with all the reasons people use in arguing against euthanasia. But he rests his case for mercy killing on the premise that "the well-being of persons is the highest good."

Our moral acts are right or wrong, he says, depending on the consequences aimed at.

"The consequences are good or evil," he says, "according to whether and how much they serve human values."

What would he say about the 93-year-old woman in our story?

What would you say?

Judge Hoffman Determined To Remain on Bench

CHICAGO (AP) — He's a diminutive man of advanced years, but still as determined as when he ordered a defendant bound and gagged during the tumultuous Chicago 7 trial. U.S. District Judge Julius Hoffman is alone now and being forced into retirement.

"I'm in good health, even though I'm an oldster," the 86-year-old Hoffman said Thursday after the federal court announced its executive committee has decided he will receive no more cases.

Hoffman still has 150 lawsuits on his docket and what will happen to them is uncertain.

"I am assigned as a senior judge through Dec. 31 of this year," he said. "... I'll do whatever the executive committee wants me to do."

Among the hundreds of cases he's handled in nearly 30 years on federal bench was the trial of the Chicago 7, an event that began in September 1969 and didn't end until February 1970.

Retirement is harsh news to a man who had no intention of quitting, who wanted to continue working after the deaths of his wife, Eleanor, and most of his contemporaries.

The executive committee gave no reason for its decision in ordering Hoffman's retirement from senior status. Judges on senior status are not allowed to try criminal cases, class action suits or other complicated litigation.

"I feel I'm competent to carry on, even in my advanced years," he said in an interview. "I should contribute my experience. The government pays me a good salary and I should earn it. I could earn the same pay without doing a thing."

He delights in showing visitors plaques and citations in his office, accolades from law and order supporters, reminders of the street violence of the 1960s, especially during the 1968 Democratic National Convention. A citation from the Veterans of Foreign Wars honors him in words normally reserved for battlefield heroes.

Many are a result of his highly publicized trials. There was a lengthy Krebiozen cancer cure case and a desegregation order involving a Chicago suburb. And of course, the Chicago 7 trial.

Hoffman defends his controversial handling of that case, in which five of seven defendants were convicted of conspiracy to cross state lines to incite riots during the 1968 convention. The convictions were overturned and a federal appeals court was "critical of Hoffman's conduct."

"The demeanor of the judge and the prosecutors would require reversal even if errors did not," the opinion said.

"I just did what I perceived to be the right thing," he said, referring to heavy contempt sentences imposed after an endless stream of courtroom shouting matches by lawyers and defendants tweaked Hoffman's sense of decorum.

"The question is, do they perform in accordance with the law? When they don't, I see to it they do."

He cited Chicago 7 defense lawyer William Kunstler for contempt. He had defendant Bobby Seale bound and gagged.

And when he mentions Kunstler and defendants Jerry Rubin and Abbie Hoffman, he says, "They made a mockery of the highest trial court."

But Kunstler recalled Hoffman in a book of sonnets in this way:

"Judge Julius Jennings Hoffman,

"A tiny man who could have won the part

"In some neo-casting of Snow White

"Of Grumpy who is angry from the start..."

Others have been less poetic. They've called Hoffman rude and unprofessional, accusing him of occasionally dozing off in court.

In his mirror, Hoffman sees a softer image.

"Some people think I'm a very gentle person," he said. "Others think I'm stern. When sternness is indicated, I'm stern. When a gentlemanly conduct is indicated, I'm that. That happens more often."

If his devotion to the law is unwavering, his personal lifestyle is even more stable. Hoffman lives in the same apartment he shared with his wife of 51 years. Since her death two years ago, his remaining family is a stepchild.

He attends parties, plays an admittedly poor game of golf and enjoys dancing.

Dancing? "If I had any music I'd prove it to you," he said. "I'm glad I don't have any bunions."

Although his life revolves around the law, the loss of his wife has left a vacuum he knows cannot be filled.

"You don't ever get over this closeness," he said. "You adjust to it. It's never quite the same."

When rumors circulated recently that he was to be retired, Hoffman argued valiantly for the right to continue his career.

"There's always been a feeling that when a person reaches 60 or 65 that's retirement age," he said. "I don't think so."

He points to his doctor for proof he is up to the task. At his last checkup, Hoffman reports, his doctor, 22 years his junior, told him: "I wish I were in as good a shape as you are."

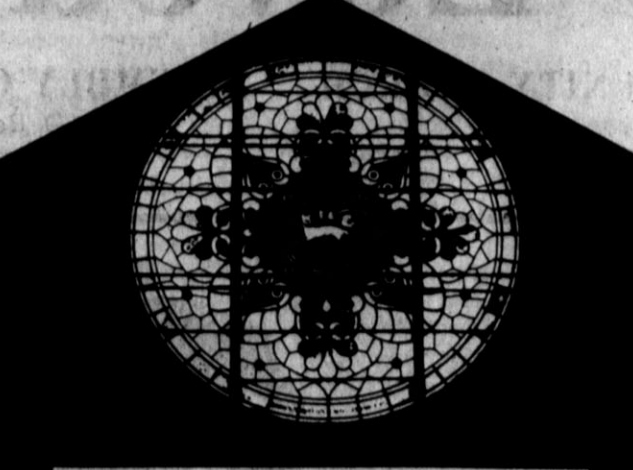

At the end of the Chicago 7 trial, Kunstler told Hoffman that his dislike for the judge had turned to sorrow. Although time has mellowed the intensity of Kunstler's feelings, he still believes the Chicago 7 judge "perverted the law."

But Hoffman says he's a tolerant man.

"You have to be patient," he said. Some lawyers "don't have any natural ability. They have offensive personality traits ... I think I've been a successful judge."

"I'll let my survivors be a judge of that."

Membership in American churches is increasing, but not as rapidly as the population is growing. A study just released by the National Council of Churches and based upon 1980 membership, the most recent year for comprehensive figures, notes that what growth there has been in recent years is uneven, with several mainstream Protestant denominations showing declines.

Eve Ball Honored Here in April Three Texans Capture Golden Spur Awards

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Eve Ball was inducted into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage center at Hereford in April, 1982.)

SANTA FE (AP) — A 92-year-old Ruidoso, N.M., woman who has spent the past 33 years chronicling the life of the Apache Indians has been presented the Western Writers of America Saddleman Award.

Golden Spur Awards, called "the Oscar of Western writing" by the writers' association, were presented Thursday to 10 people.

Ruidoso's Eve Ball is a former winner of a Golden Spur and has been nominated three times for the Saddleman Award, presented by the international Western writers association for "outstanding contributions to the history and legend of the West."

Born in Kentucky, Ms. Ball grew up on a cattle ranch in Kansas and traveled through Texas and New Mexico in later years. She settled in New Mexico, five miles from the Mescalero Apache Reservation.

Ms. Ball's dedication to learn from and write about the Apaches earned her friendship and confidence, and to her they revealed their stories.

She has talked at length with Amelia Naiche, granddaughter of Cochise; Ace Daklugie, nephew of Geronimo and James Kaywaykla, nephew of Victorio.

But Ms. Ball said her early efforts to publish stories about the Apaches were unsuccessful because her research was done orally.

"If it wasn't in print, it didn't happen," she said publishers told her.

Ms. Ball's works include "In The Days of Victorio," "My Girlhood Among Outlaws," "Ma'am Jones of the Pecos," and "Ideh, An Apache Odyssey."

She currently is writing another book.

Asked Thursday about winning the Saddleman Award, Ms. Ball said, "I'm afraid I'll wake up and find out it's a dream."

The winner of the Saddleman, sponsored by Levi Strauss and Co., is determined by association members who vote from a list of nominees.

Winners of the Golden Spur Awards are determined by panels of judges made up of active association members.

Golden Spurs for best Western novel went to Elmer Kelton of San Angelo, Texas, and Lee Head of Santa Fe in a tie vote.

Kelton won the prize for his book "Eyes of the Hound," while Ms. Head was presented the award for "Honky Tonk Man."

Loren Estleman, author of "Aces and Eights," won the award for best Western historical novel. Estleman is from Whitman Lake, Mich.

Winner of the award for best Western non-fiction work was University of Kansas at Lawrence professor David Dary. He wrote "Cowboy Culture."

Alice J. Hall, a National Geographic magazine staff writer, won the Golden Spur for best Western short non-fiction article. Her article, "Buffalo Bill and the Enduring West," appeared in the July 1981 issue of National Geographic.

The prize for best Western short fiction went to Carla Kelly of Ogden, Utah, for her work "Kathleen Flaherty's Long Winter." The article appeared in Far West magazine.

Paul Cooper of Los Angeles won the Golden Spur for best Western film script. Cooper wrote "Establish Thou The Work of Our Hands," for the television show "Father Murphy."

Mark Johathan Harris, author of "The Last Run," was presented the award for best Western juvenile fiction. Harris lives in Los Angeles.

The prize for best Western cover art went to Wayne Baize of Amarillo, Texas, for his work "Touch of Winter," which appeared in Quarter Horse Journal.

A new award, the Medicine Pipe Bearers Award given for best first novel in the field of Western writing, went to Wayne Barton for his work "Ride Down the Wind." Barton is of Midland, Texas.

The awards banquet concluded a five-day 29th annual convention that attracted about 200 writers, publishers, educators and historians from across the United States, Mexico and Germany.

Statuary Hall

The National Statuary Hall in the U.S. Capitol occupies the original quarters of the House of Representatives. The Hall was created in 1864. Each state was invited to contribute not more than two statues of distinguished persons. In 1933 the number was limited to one statue from each state. To date a total of 91 statues have been contributed by the 50 states.

Guilt Moves Veteran To Return Flag

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Harry V. Anderson is a little vague on the details of how he came across that souvenir flag in the winter of 1945, but he's determined to see it returned to its rightful owners.

It has taken the 80-year-old Anderson almost two years and several letters to officials in the United States and West Germany, but the flag soon will be returning to the people of Krautheim, a town about 100 miles southeast of Frankfurt.

Anderson acquired the red and white flag, which bears the colors and symbols of the town of Krautheim, in March 1945, while enroute from Bastogne, Belgium, to Berchtesgaden, the site of Adolf Hitler's estate in the Alps. His unit, the Army's 101st Airborne Division, was overseeing the surrender of German soldiers in southern Germany.

"I bought it from soldiers who took it from Krautheim," said Anderson. "I think I traded a gun for it, but I'm not sure."

Collecting souvenirs was popular among soldiers during the war, but Anderson never felt quite right about keeping the 98-year-old flag. As the years passed, he became increasingly concerned about seeing it returned to Krautheim in time for its centennial.

"It was exciting right after the war to pick up the flag," Anderson said. "It's a beautiful prize. But even though I didn't steal it, I've always felt a little guilty and remorseful about keeping it, since it rightfully belongs to the people of Krautheim."

Two years ago, Anderson contacted the West German ambassador to the United States and the American ambassador to West Germany and inquired about returning the flag. The Germans wrote back that there were two Krautheims, across a small river from each other.

"That made things a little more difficult, since I had no idea there were two Krautheims," Anderson said.

Undaunted, Anderson wrote letters to officials in both towns and to the West German consulate in Houston. He and his wife, Maude, even offered to fly to West Germany to return the flag.

His efforts have paid off. Although no one has yet been able to determine which Krautheim the flag was taken from, the West German vice-consul in Houston has assured Anderson that it will be returned to its proper owners.

"A great many people will be happy with the wonderful news" of the return of their flag, Vice-Consul Bernard Rottle told Anderson last month.

Anderson, who founded Interior Design magazine in 1932 and was its publisher until his retirement in 1969, said he hopes his actions will prompt other American servicemen with war souvenirs to think about returning their spoils.

"Even though I like the flag, I have no basic use for it," said Anderson. "But it has an intrinsic value to the Germans. I'm sure there are other trophies like this that would enrich the German people if they could get them back. Besides, it's good public relations for the U.S."

But there is one war souvenir Anderson got during a visit to Hitler's hide-away at Berchtesgaden that he is not about to give back. It is a wine goblet bearing the initials A.H.

"I couldn't return it if I wanted to," he said. "The person it belonged to is long gone."

FAITH IN GOD WILL RESTORE YOUR SELF-CONFIDENCE

Are you ever consumed by doubts of your own abilities? Do you sometimes fear that you may be unequal to whatever task you are assigned in your chosen work? Then let faith in God give you the assurance that if the work you are doing is right, then you will be given the ability to perform it adequately and that there is nothing you cannot do if it is required of you. God never intended that man should be limited in his capacity for good work, so go to Church this Sunday and trust Him to give you all the courage and self-confidence you will ever need.

The United States and Soviet Union have been negotiating nuclear arms limitation since 1969, when their first round of talks began in Helsinki, Finland. That series eventually produced accords signed by President Richard Nixon and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev on defensive missile installations and a five-year missile freeze, since extended. The Soviet Union had a numerical advantage that the United States compensated for with more and multiple (MIRV) warheads. The Vladivostok Agreement between Brezhnev and President Gerald Ford was the basis of the subsequent strategic arms limitation treaty signed by Brezhnev and President Jimmy Carter but never ratified. Both sides have pledged to observe its provisions during renewed negotiations.

Hispanics Claim Media Neglect

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Newspapers and television networks practice benign neglect and ethnic libel in their treatment of Hispanics, delegates to the League of United Latin American Citizens' national convention were told.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale was scheduled to speak today to the Hispanics discussing ways to increase their political and economic clout. President Reagan and Vice President George Bush declined invitations.

LULAC general counsel Ruben Bonilla, in a paper distributed at the convention, accused newspapers Thursday of "benign neglect" of Hispanics and minorities, and charged the three major TV networks practice "subtle censorship and ethnic libel."

He said a 1982 survey commissioned by the American Society of Newspaper Editors revealed only 1.3 percent of the reporters and editors on the nation's general circulation dailies are Hispanic and 60 percent of all daily newspapers employ no minority journalists.

During prime time, only 37 of the 3,546 characters presented on the three major networks were Hispanic, said Bonilla, a Corpus Christi attorney.

He said his figures were based on an analysis of prime time television during January and February of 1981.

"On ABC television during prime time, the only speaking roles were for Hispanic females, all of whom were inmates of prison systems. At NBC, almost half of the speaking roles (3 of 7) related to Hispanic criminals. On CBS, the only speaking Hispanic figure was a bar-room fighter," Bonilla said.

Public Broadcasting Services, according to its April 21, 1982 projected employment statistics, has 123 females, 52 blacks and only 4 persons of "other minority" status among its 233 employees, he said.

"Thus, the Hispanic community is essentially invisible on television and when it is permitted to appear, it appears primarily in criminal roles, thereby constituting a form of ethnic libel," Bonilla said.

A panel of working journalists asked to rank the news media's sensitivity to Hispanics on a scale of 1 to 10, gave consistently low marks.

The highest mark given by any of the six panelists was a 3.758 by Alan Pusey, who worked on a prize-winning Hispanic series for the Dallas Morning News. The lowest mark was a minus three from Dan Medina, a Los Angeles-based correspondent for the Cable News Network.

Businessmen Stung by Barter Scam

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — More than 80 merchants claim a Fort Worth man cheated them out of $23,000 in a barter service scheme he operated for three months before leaving town.

Doctors, lawyers and radio stations were among those filing complaints with the Nueces County district attorney's office against Monte Lee Thornton.

An arrest warrant was issued for Thornton, 24, accusing him of theft of services, said District Attorney Bill Mobley. He said the investigation is continuing.

A spokesman at the Tarrant County sheriff's office said Thursday the warrant was received Wednesday but there was no record of his arrest.

"The people were coming in here two-by-two complaining. Now they're coming in one-by-one," said Dan Flynn, the Nueces County assistant district attorney handling the case.

The business men accused Thornton of cheating them through their participation in his Corpus Christi Regional Trade Exchange.

Barter services usually operate with members exchanging goods and services with each other instead of cash. A grocer might exchange food for auto repair with someone who owns a garage.

Patrick Worsham, who was hired as sales manager of the trade exchange, filed a complaint with the district attorney's office last week charging Thornton with writing hot checks to pay salaries and bills.

"After about six weeks, Monte mentioned he had a cash flow problem but he assured us that he had $50,000 in certificates of deposit to back the operation," Worsham said.

He said the checks Thornton used to pay employees and trade commission members bounced at the Citizens State Bank of Corpus Christi.

Worsham said he filed the complaint with the district attorney's office after Thornton failed to cover the check with dues money and loans he had obtained from trade exchange members.

The exchange could have worked, said James Andrews, owner of Waterbed Boutique and the Corpus Christi Gem Exchange.

"But all the cash and checks he received he pocketed. He was just waiting for the day that he could split town. It was all a big sham," Andrews said.

He was one of the first merchants to join the exchange and said Thornton owes him more than $3,000 for office rental, telephone bills and personal loans.

"I even encouraged others to join," he said. "I had to call everybody up and tell them not to join because Thornton was taking the merchandise out of town and the checks coming into the bank were outstanding. It was hard to save face."

Worsham said Thornton came to town in April and promoted the trade exchange by saying he was affiliated with other barter services in Dallas, Houston and other cities.

Fifty-eight Corpus Christi businessmen paid the $325 fee to join the trade exchange and 25 others wrote checks as personal loans to Thornton, Worsham said.

Thornton suggested the employees come up with money to buy the exchange or he would declare bankruptcy. He then left the city, Worsham said.

Mets Frustrate Expos, 2-1

By The Associated Press

Montreal pitcher Scott Sanderson probably felt as frustrated as the frightened squirrel that had scurried around the Olympic Stadium turf in the fifth inning during the game against the New York Mets.

The Expos right-hander held the Mets to only six hits in a complete-game performance, but a pair of unearned runs in the third inning led to a 2-1 defeat.

The loss prevented the Expos from tying the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies for first place in the National League East. Instead, they trail by one game entering a five-game, three-day series starting tonight against the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

In the only other NL game, Pittsburgh beat Chicago 5-2. "I've felt good my last 10 starts in a row," said Sanderson. "I think I've done the job that's been asked of me. The only thing you can do is continue to go out there and do your best."

Sanderson contributed to his downfall by yielding a two-out double to rival pitcher Mike Scott in the third. Scott also had another double in the eighth.

Speedy Mookie Wilson then hit a grounder to third baseman Tim Wallach, whose throw sailed over the head of first baseman Al Oliver allowing Scott to tie the score 1-1. Wilson, who took second on the errant throw, scored the winning run when Bob Bailor, the next batter, singled to center.

"I was trying to get the ball there as quickly as I could," said Wallach. "I guess I had a little more time than I thought I had."

"But I hurried the throw. I didn't set myself properly. I knew the ball was going into the dugout the minute it left my hand."

The Expos, who have lost six of their last eight games, managed only six hits against Scott, 6-5, in 72-3 innings. Even the squirrel, which Expos utility infielder Brad Mills said appeared to come from the runway near the Montreal dugout, failed to provide inspiration.

After running around the field for about five minutes, the squirrel was escorted by field attendants out a door down the left-field line.

"We needed this game by Mike badly," said New York Manager George Bamberger of Scott's effort. "Runs have been hard to come by for us lately."

The only run Scott allowed was in the first inning when Tim Wallach drew a two-out walk, Al Oliver singled and Gary Carter stroked an RBI single.

It was Scott's first victory as a starter since April. He had spent much of the last month in the bullpen trying to correct his problems.

Jesse Orosco bailed Scott out of an eighth-inning jam, getting Warren Cromartie to ground out with runners at first and third.

When Orosco walked Dan Norman leading off the Expos ninth, Neil Allen relieved. Chris Speier sacrificed Norman to second before Allen retired the next two batters for his 16th save.

Pirates 5, Cubs 2
Catcher Tony Pena knocked in two runs with a single and a triple to lead Pittsburgh over Chicago.

Enrique Romo, 5-2, took over from starter Ross Baumgarten in the sixth and won the game with a brilliant relief stint. Romo did not allow a baserunner over the final four innings, retiring 12 consecutive Cubs.

The victory was the third straight and ninth in the last 12 games for the Pirates.

Lloyd Bursts King's Bubble; Connors, McEnroe Close In

By MARK S. SMITH AP

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd stripped the magic from Billie Jean King and Martina Navratilova powered her way past Bettina Bunge to reach the women's finals of the All-England Tennis Championships today.

Lloyd, the second seed, outlasted the 38-year-old King 7-6, 2-6, 6-3. Navratilova crushed Bunge, who was seeded 11th, 6-2, 6-2.

King, playing in her 104th match at the fabled grass court tournament and seeking her seventh Wimbledon singles crown, fought gallantly. She won five straight games to grab the second set, then fended off four match points before finally falling.

Thrilling the Center Court audience, King pulled off another of her two-week string of surprises, fending off the first match point just before a sudden rain shower interrupted play.

The women, who had met 23 times previously with Lloyd holding 16 victories, returned to the court after a 40-minute delay. Lloyd immediately gained her second match point with a forehand passing shot, but gave it right back by drilling a backhand wide of the mark.

King, who came to the All-England Club as the No. 12 seed, staved off a third match point, seized the advantage with a beautifully executed drop volley and served out the game to pull to within 3-5.

King then set the Center Court crowd abuzz by taking the first two points from Lloyd in the next service game. But her younger opponent calmly retaliated by winning the next three points, angling a drop shot winner off of King's drop volley to gain her fourth match point.

King pulled to deuce with a forehand volley, but Lloyd hit another sparkling passing shot for the ad point and topped the 20-time Wimbledon champ with the last of a handful of well-disguised lobs from the backhand side.

The two-hour victory marked the fifth consecutive year that Lloyd, a three-time Wimbledon champion, has gained the finale.

King yielded just two points on her first two service games in the opening set, but was broken in the fifth game. However, she broke right back and the two exchanged service to go to the tiebreaker.

From 2-2, Lloyd tore off three straight points and maintained that cushion to set point, which came when King netted a smash.

The Czechoslovakian-born Navratilova, who became a U.S. citizen last year, is going after her third Wimbledon singles crown. She also captured the title in 1978 and 1979.

The men, meanwhile, were completing their quarterfinal round. Defending champion John McEnroe faced Johan Kriek, the fifth-seeded South African, while Tim Mayotte, the unranked American in his second year as a pro, opposed No. 11 Brian Teacher, a six-year Wimbledon veteran.

The match between McEnroe and Kriek was another replay. The two faced each other in the quarterfinal round here last year, with McEnroe a straight-set victor. But this year, Kriek defeated McEnroe in the finals of the U.S. Indoor championships at Memphis, Tenn.

Another factor working against McEnroe was the tough schedule he's had to keep because of the incessant rain delays — either a singles and a doubles match or two doubles matches each day this week. He was still on court, defending his doubles title with Peter Fleming, after 9 p.m. Thursday.

The entry by Mayotte into the quarterfinal round was gained at the expense of the last Briton in the tourney, Buster Mottram, who was never in command Thursday and fell 6-2, 7-5, 6-3.

Mayotte's semifinal opponent, Brian Teacher, made the bracket by disposing of Mats Wilander, the Swedish hero of the French Open, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Another upset Thursday was engineered by 12th-seeded Mark Edmonson of Australia, who toppled third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis 7-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

On Saturday, Edmonson is to face Jimmy Connors, who breezed to a 6-1, 6-2, 7-6 victory over sixth-seeded Gene Mayer on Thursday.

Soccer Day Camp Begins Monday

A soccer day camp will be held July 5-9 for fourth graders and older at the Hereford Church of the Nazarene Family Center, according to John Marshall, center director.

Conducting the clinic will be Marshall and Emilio Romero, both 15-year soccer players, and David Marshall, a 12 year veteran of the game.

Enrollment will be $15 for each child or $25 for two from the same family. Classes will be from 9 a.m. until noon.

The camp will focus on shooting, heading, rules, throw-ins, dribbling, passing, trapping and agility for the game.

Campers will meet at the church's Family Center, Ironwood and La Plata, at 9 a.m. and leave for the field from there.

Marshall, a Dallas native, played on a national championship soccer team in junior high and was letterman and All-District at Thomas Jefferson High in Dallas. He played on the Baylor University team and is currently with the Hereford Twisters.

David Marshall, his brother, played with the Texas Longhorn touring Europe, participated in the Gothic Cup and was All-District in high school.

Romero has played in Mexico and the U.S., has coached YMCA teams and the Junior Twisters and is with the Hereford Twisters currently.

Mood Light Before U.S.-Russia Track

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The mood appeared light and amiable as the United States and the Soviet Union prepared to begin their 17th dual track and field meet tonight at Indiana University's new $6 million stadium.

"We would like to have our walkers start 1,000 meters ahead (in the 20-kilometer walk)," Sam Adams, head coach of the American men's team, joked Thursday at the technical committee meeting, in which the officials and coaches of both teams discussed the ground rules and lane assignments for the two-day event.

Adams was looking for a handicap for his walkers because of the Russians' superiority in the event.

During a discussion about starting blocks for the sprinters, the Soviet translator quipped, "Our head coach says they're more of a problem for the Americans because they're running faster."

That's true. Carl Lewis, ranked No. 1 in the world in the 100-meter dash, has the fastest time (10.00 seconds) in the world this year, while Calvin Smith, the Americans' other entrant in the 100, beat Lewis by .02 of a second last week with a wind-aided 10.03 in a triangular meet against West Germany and Africa at Durham, N.C.

In addition, in the 17 meets between the United States and the Soviet Union, American men have placed first each time in the 200-meter and 400-meter dashes.

The Soviet women have beaten their American counterparts 16 of 17 times since the series began in 1958, while the U.S. men have a 12-5 advantage. In combined scoring the Soviets hold a 13-3 lead, with one tie.

Nikolay Politiko, head coach of the Russians' men's and women's teams, called this meeting "a match of the giants."

"The world is watching what we do," echoed Ollan Cassell, executive director of The Athletics Congress, the governing body for track and field in the United States.

He was referring to television coverage of the meet, which will be shown in the Soviet Union, Western Europe and Japan, along with the United States (Saturday on ABC).

The series has not been totally free of global politics. From 1966-68, there was no competition because of the international tensions that arose from the Vietnam conflict.

In addition, there was no meet in 1980, when the United States led a boycott of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

The series resumed last year at Leningrad, with the American men defeating the Soviets 118-105 and the Soviet women trouncing the U.S. team 99-60, giving the Soviet Union a combined 204-178 victory.

U.S. women's head coach Bert Lyle hopes to upset the Soviet women this time with a team led by sprinter Evelyn Ashford, the American record holder in the 100 and 200.

"The Theatre," erected in 1576, was the first such structure built in England exclusively for the performance of plays.

In 1906, the Chicago White Sox won the World Series with a team batting average of only .230.

Runs in Bunches Fuel Yankees', Rangers' Wins

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

Thanks, said Frank Tanana.

Thanks, said Mike Morgan. Thanks a bunch.

Texas and New York bunched their runs early Thursday night, the Rangers jumping on California for five runs in the fourth inning en route to a 7-2 victory over the Angels, the Yankees pouring their five runs across in the first inning to pave the way to a 5-3 triumph over the Milwaukee Brewers.

In the rest of the American League, Detroit defeated Boston 5-4, Cleveland beat Baltimore 6-2, Minnesota mauled Chicago 9-2 and Seattle stung Toronto 4-3.

"If I could get a five-run fourth every time out it would be a lot easier," Tanana said after pitching his second complete game of the season, a six-hitter. "Getting ahead of the other team early takes the starch out of their shorts and lets me be more aggressive."

Rookie Dave Hostetler's four hits and Billy Sample's RBI double that gave him a 13-game hitting streak and capped the big fourth keyed the Rangers' victory.

Tanana used to be a California fastballer. Now, though, he's lost some of that speed. He has to rely on guile. He did it against his former teammates.

"I used every pitch I have and every speed I have and every ounce of control I have," he said. "That's the new F.T. — the way I have to pitch now."

Yankees 5, Brewers 3

Unlike Tanana, Morgan still has heat. And the Yankees' early burst allowed him to burn the Brewers.

"You get some quick runs in the first inning and you can pitch differently. You can go right at them with a fastball and that makes it easier to pitch," he said following his seven-hitter. It was Morgan's first complete game in 11 starts this season with the Yankees and his first since September 1979, when he was with Oakland.

"I was getting stronger as I went along. I didn't lose any velocity. The last few starts I've been trying to finesse the other team. I'm basically a power pitcher," he said.

Ken Griffey had three hits, two of them triples including one that started the Yankees' scoring in the decisive first inning.

Tigers 5, Red Sox 4

Unlike Texas and New York, Detroit (namely Kirk Gibson) saved the best for last. Gibson, who had singled for a run in the third inning, pulled an inside pitch from Boston relief ace Mark Clear down the right field line — barely fair — for a game-winning, bases-loaded, two-run double in the bottom of the ninth.

"I think he wanted to come in on me a little more, to jam me," Gibson said. "I'm still struggling to find my stroke a little bit. I find it sometimes, then I lose it. I just wanted something to hit hard and I got it."

"I was pretty excited out there. If the umpire had called that a foul ball, I don't know what we would have done."

Indians 9, Orioles 2

Von Hayes had a three-run homer — his second consecutive three-RBI game — and a double to lead Cleveland to its fourth successive victory. Hayes has 18 RBIs in the past 14 games.

"My average isn't nearly as good as it was my first couple of years (in the minors)," he said. "But at least I'm delighted that I'm driving in runs."

"He's something, isn't he?" Indians Manager Dave Garcia said of his converted third baseman. "He used to scare me in the outfield, but not anymore. He covers a lot of ground and has a good arm."

Twins 9, White Sox 2

Not since the second, third and fourth games of the season had the Twins won three in a row. Rookie Kent Hrbek chipped in with two RBIs but, for a change, his wasn't the only big bat for Minnesota.

"It's about time we picked up Herbie," Manager Billy Gardner said. "Now everybody is chipping in."

Gary Ward opened the scoring for Minnesota in the second with an RBI triple, then he homered in the fourth. And Ron Washington hit a bases-loaded triple in the sixth.

Mariners 4, Blue Jays 3

Bruce Bochte's seventh-inning double broke a tie and gave Seattle's 43-year-old Gaylord Perry his 303rd lifetime victory, but the ancient Mariner needed additional help. Four relievers followed him to the mound, Bill Caudill picking up his 14th save.

"Everybody who came in wanted the ball," said Perry. "The bullpen has done the job for us all season and they believe in themselves."

Longhorns Claim All-Sports Championship

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Strong showings in football and swimming propelled Texas to The Knoxville Journal's 1982 National Collegiate All-Sports championship, based on the newspaper's annual survey of the nation's top sports programs.

The Longhorns ranked among the nation's top 10 in five sports, including second-place finishes in football and swimming, according to the newspaper's copyright 12th-annual survey published today.

Results are based on the National Collegiate Athletic Association's 10 leading sports: cross country, football, soccer, basketball, wrestling, swimming, track, tennis, golf and baseball.

UCLA, which was ranked No. 1 in the survey last year, was runner-up this year despite finishing first in swimming and tennis.

Tops in baseball was Miami of Florida, ranked third; followed by football champion Clemson in fourth and North Carolina and Southern Methodist tied for fifth place.

Rounding out the top 10 in the Journal's standings are Oklahoma State, Arizona State, golf champion Houston and Southern California.

The newspaper ranks each college's finish in each sport on a scale of 1 to 20, with first place earning 20 points, second place worth 19 points, etc.

Points are awarded according to official NCAA tournament results in cross country, wrestling, swimming, track and golf. The Associated Press final football poll is used in football and the AP's final basketball poll is used after ranking the Final Four finishers.

Similar rankings are used in baseball, where the final eight teams in the College World Series are followed by the next dozen best teams in Collegiate Baseball News' final poll.

Tennis' top four finishers are followed by next best 16 from the International Tennis Coaches Association's final poll.

When the results were tallied, the Longhorns became the first team to take the title besides UCLA or Southern California.

"This is great news," said Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds. "In my first year here, I've been impressed with the quality and balance of the athletics program. A lot of times an institution will have great football but will not adequately support the non-revenue sports."

In the second rung of 10 teams, according to the survey, Alabama finished 11th, followed by Arkansas, and Penn State, with Stanford, California and Texas-El Paso tied, followed by Georgia, Brigham Young and a tie between Iowa and Pepperdine.

In the third 10, Iowa State was followed by a tie among Indiana, Nebraska and Oklahoma, followed by another tie among Minnesota, San Jose State and West Virginia, then Tennessee and, 30th, Missouri.

Beth Daniel in Control Again

TORONTO (AP) — Beth Daniel, who left the women's golf tour for the last two weeks in an effort to straighten out her strokes, appears to be in control of her game again.

The rangy South Carolinian clubbed the ball long and straight and combined that with a deft touch around the fringes to fire a 5-under-par 67 Thursday in the first round of the Peter Jackson Classic on the 6,071-yard St. George's Golf and Country Club layout.

That gave her a 2-stroke lead over Hollis Stacy, Betsy King and Marlene Floyd-DeArman going into today's second round of the $200,000 Ladies Professional Golfers Association event, one of three designated major tournaments on the tour.

Canadian veteran Sandra

Post, also having trouble getting her game together, was in a group at 70 with defending champion Jan Stephenson, 1976 titlist Dorina Caponi, Shelly Hamlin and Dale Egeling.

Sandra Haynie and Sally Little headed a nine-member group at 71.

Pat Bradley, who won the Peter Jackson two years ago when it was last played at St. George's, shot a 73, while Nancy Lopez is seven shots off the pace at 74 — two over par.

JoAnne Carner, a winner of the event at St. George's in 1975 and 1978, also had a 74 — the first time she's been over par after 11 competitive sub-par rounds.

In all, 18 players bettered par on the usually tough St. George's course, which has been host to the tournament three times previously. Twenty-seven in the field of 112 were at par or better.

But that par-shattering standard doesn't figure to hold over the next three days as the women chase the $30,000 winner's purse, particularly if the winds start playing tricks on several holes and the greens dry out.

"Those are the four toughest finishing holes we'll see all year," said Daniel. "I'd have to say you'd go all the way to (No. 12) before you can find a hole to make up any strokes."

Stacy, asked which of the last four holes the players could make up for any mistakes, suggested: "If they can par those four holes, they'll be picking up strokes."

Daniel, 25, from Charleston, has led the LPGA money winners in two of the three years she's been on the tour and is a three-time winner in 1982.

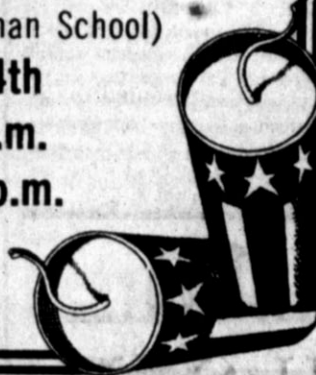

But she hasn't been particularly pleased with her game.

"I just haven't been hitting the ball well," she said after Thursday's round. "I was disappointed in the way I had been playing and with my attitude, which had been negative."

She took herself off the tour the last two weeks.

Cleaning Formica counters

DEAR POLLY - I have problems keeping my Formica countertops clean. They seem to stain so easily - every little spill of fruit juice or sauce leaves its mark. I don't want to scratch them. What is one supposed to use on these counters? - JANET

DEAR JANET - Baking soda makes a good nonabrasive cleaning powder for Formica. Just scour it on with a damp sponge or cloth. Lemon juice is also good for bleaching out some stains. But a good Pointer has just come in from CRIGLER, who writes: "After trying the bathroom spray cleaner (foam cleaning basin, tub, and tile) on my stainless steel sink, I had another thought. I have some Formica-top tables that have been a problem. The bathroom cleaner did a fantastic job on those as well." Sounds like an excellent solution. My thanks to Crigler. Hope this helps Janet and all you other readers who are cleaning your Formica today. - POLLY

DEAR POLLY - Every week, when you do your weekly cleaning, move your furniture an inch from where it was for the last week. This will prevent permanent indentations and holes in your carpeting. - DORIS

DEAR POLLY - To unclog a toilet easily, mix some dishwashing detergent in a pot full of very hot water and pour it into the toilet bowl. Then plunge. The detergent and hot water will help dissolve the clog quickly. - MAX L.

DEAR POLLY - With vacation time here, I have a suggestion for keeping the kids from asking "How far is it? When are we going to get there?" while on a trip. Just give them a map and have them keep track of your progress. It will not only make the trip more interesting for them, but it's education, too. - MRS. W.N.H.

DEAR POLLY - Instead of buying the individual packets of instant oatmeal, I put one-half cup regular quick cooking oats in a bowl, add one-half to three-fourths cup boiling water, stir and let sit a few minutes. It works as well as instant oatmeal. You can add your own flavors for a lot less money than the little packets cost.

I use a pizza cutter to quickly cut up pancakes, waffles and French toast for children. - J.C.

DEAR POLLY - Bothered by box elder bugs? Plant petunias as near to the house as you can. They will keep the bugs away. - MRS. C.S.

DEAR POLLY - When I attend a picnic dinner, I always take two paper plates, stacked on top of each other. I use the top one for the dinner and have a clean one underneath for the dessert. - MRS. J.L.

DEAR POLLY - To keep raisins from sinking in my pound cake, I cook them just enough to make them soft. I cut nuts into two or three pieces. With these methods, I've had good luck in keeping the fruit and nuts "afloat." - MRS. R.

DEAR POLLY - Here's a Pointer for those who own cats. I've found that alfalfa pellets (also called rabbit ration) make the perfect substitute for expensive cat box litter. The pellets work just as well as regular litter, last longer and cost much less. A 50-pound bag of alfalfa pellets cost about the same as a 20-pound bag of the leading litter. Any store which carries feed products for livestock will have the alfalfa pellets.

A piece of charcoal placed in a bookcase will absorb dampness and protect your books from mildew. - MRS. R.E.A.

Too much vitamin A?

DEAR DR. LAMB - A family member of 65 years who felt low on energy became involved with a "nutrition program" about a year ago. They recommended large doses of vitamins and minerals, one of them being 25,000 IU of vitamin A daily. Several months after starting the program she started to suffer severe distress in the back of her legs and burning of her feet day and night. Also the inside edges of the entire shinbone were sore to touch, as in a bruise. She discontinued the large amount of vitamins a couple of months ago and the legs are much improved, but she still has some burning of the feet.

In the past years she has felt better when taking a daily all-purpose vitamin but is afraid to do so now. How soon might the body be normal again from too much vitamin A? How soon can she safely take a good vitamin? She lives alone on a limited income and sometimes fruits and vegetables are not plentiful in her diet. She uses lots of fresh carrot juice.

DEAR READER - She should see a doctor. You do not know that her difficulty was caused by too much vitamin A, although that can cause pain in the ankles, feet and muscle pains. A doctor can check her blood level for vitamin A. Usually most of the symptoms from excess vitamin A will disappear in a week or two but increased bone deposits (hyperostoses) may persist for months. Adults are known to develop vitamin A toxicity if they take 50,000 IU a day for several months. Because there is vitamin A in milk, milk products and many foods, the National Academy of Sciences recommends that adults should not take more than 25,000 IU a day, about the level your relative took. So her intake is marginal in terms of causing vitamin A toxicity. But carrot juice is loaded with carotene which the body converts to vitamin A.

If her blood level of vitamin A is OK she could take a daily all-purpose vitamin without fear of harm, one with about 5000 IU in it and not massive doses of any vitamins.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 19-2, Vitamin A: An Essential Hazard, which includes information on why you need it and what happens if you take too much. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a middle-aged woman and for the past 20 years I get a swollen eye or lip about three times a year. I do not feel sick before and have no idea why I get this.

I look awful when it comes on me and I will not go out. It starts with a tingling pinchy feeling and the swelling lasts a half day. I have mentioned this to doctors when I have had checkups and they have said my blood is OK. What do you think is the cause of this?

DEAR READER - You probably have an allergy. Think of it as a giant hive. The difference is that a hive involves the superficial part of the skin and your condition involves deeper structures. We call these reactions angioedema.

Try to find out if you are exposed to something that precipitates the attacks. It may be something you eat that you react to, such as shellfish, chocolate, nuts, tomatoes or even some fresh fruit. If you can identify something that seems to be associated with the attacks you can avoid it.
