Clinton announced his decision after a 75-minute Oval Office meeting with Guinier, who he said was "surprised that I felt the way I did." Attorney General Janet Reno, who had staunchly supported Guinier, attended the meeting briefly.

Guinier made no immediate statement. Her husband, Temple University communications Professor Nolan Bowie, said Guinier remained in Washington, but she checked out of her hotel.

Clinton said he understood the anger civil rights leaders would feel and vowed to consult them as he sought a new nominee, saying he hoped to make a decision within

The speculation became so intense that Guinier even made an extraordinary televised plea Wednesday night for a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing that would let her defend herself against critics who she said "distorted" her academic writings to make

At the same time, civil rights leaders escalated their campaign to save the nomination.

Mfume publicly warned Clinton that dropping Guinier would cost him the caucus' political support on a number of issues, and noted that the president will need their votes to pass his programs. The caucus has 40 members, 39 of them in the House that passed Clinton's budget package last week by just six votes.

After Clinton announced his decision in a brief, televised news conference, Mfume said in an interview that the Black Caucus "must now reassess and re-evaluate its relationship and role with this administration into the future."

Clinton has been trying to move sliding to a 36 percent approval rating in some polls, but he maintained that he abandoned the nomination over principle, not politics.

Guinier, a 43-year-old University of Pennsylvania law professor who attended Yale University Law School with the Clintons, was attacked as a "quota queen" with far-out views about the federal Voting Rights Act. The initial criticism came from conservative activists but it spread to the centrist Democratic Leadership Council and a number of Senate Democrats.

Roger Wilkins, a close friend of Guinier's and a former Justice Department official, said: "Lani Guinier ... was nibbled to death by cowardly, anonymous White House aides."

Patricia Ireland, president of the National Organization for Women. told a Bloomington, Ind., audience that the nomination was blocked because Guinier was "willing to speak out articulately, persuasively and effectively against the exclusion of African-Americans and women from the position of power."

will come to an end Saturday when Krueger, appointed as interim election which narrowed the choices voters in Deaf Smith County and senator, and Kay Bailey Hutchison, to Krueger and Hutchison. They led the balloting in that election with Hutchison edging her opponent by a small margin.

Neither candidate has backed off in a heated campaign marked by charges and counter-charges of wrong-doing.

Although the special election on May 1 was not conducted by the political primary system, the two top vote-getters represent different parties.

Hutchison, in her first term as Texas treasurer, is a Republican. Krueger, a former U.S. Congressman, is a Democrat. He was appointed by Governor Ann Richards to serve in the U.S. Senate until a new senator could be elected.

Since the unexpired term ends in January 1995, the new senator will hardly be settled in office when campaigning begins after the first of the year for a six-year term.

Political observers have forecast a light turnout for the Saturday voting.

Welfare reform bill focuses attention on child support

Clinton's welfare reform promises to include a national network to track child support cases so that no matter where an absent father travels, the government can get its hand on his wallet, says Health and Human Services Secretary Donna E. Shalala.

Shalala said the Internal Revenue Service may also be called in to help wrest child support from parents who refuse to pay, although she acknowledges that the agency isn't crazy about the idea.

Improving child support collections has stumped Congress for the past decade. But Shalala says the Clinton plan will be far broader than previous efforts.

"You need to put the whole system in place, from the national ... information system to a real collection system to an expectation from fathers that no matter where they are or what their income is, they're going to have to contribute something," Shalala said.

"And that means they're going to have to go to work to support their children," she said in an interview Thursday with The Associated Press.

Now, one-third or more of all child support cases cross state lines and billions of dollars in child support payments are never collected. According to the government, $16.3 billion in child support was owed in 1989 and $11.2 billion was collected.

A national data base is necessary, Shalala said, "so that people can't cross state lines and not allow us to reach into their pockets and get them to support their children. ... Let there be no doubt that a child support system will be part of the overall welfare reform package."

The Clinton administration has begun work to overhaul Aid to additional $14 billion over five years Families with Dependent Children. to make Head Start full-day and The state-federal welfare program is year-round.

Phone lines bogged down by radio calls

WASHINGTON (AP) - President now reaching a record 5 million families, most of them headed by a single mother.

Clinton has said that low-income Americans should be given education, training and public assistance for two years, followed by work requirements for those who are able.

Asked Thursday whether mothers of young children would be exempt, Shalala said: "Not necessarily."

"I don't think we should subsidize poor mothers to stay out of the work force when working class mothers are going into the work force," she said. 'The issue is what kind of work. It may not be fair to ask them to work an eight-hour day ... but it may be appropriate to have part-time work for mothers who have young children.'

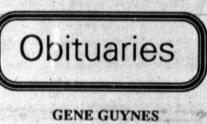

Shalala's comments on work requirements for welfare mothers. including those at home with infants and toddlers, are at odds with the positions taken by the Children's Defense Fund during her long tenure on its board of directors.

The liberal advocacy group had opposed passage of a 1988 law that required states to put a growing share of AFDC recipients into education and training.

On Thursday, Shalala noted that there are many mothers of young children in the work force because they have to be. "And we should not have different expectations for public programs than what society at large has evolved into."

Shalala said national welfare reform would include a "day care system and a child care system that's supportive of people that go to work.'

As part of that effort, the administration wants to spend an

ministry to ridicule

TULSA, Okla. (AP) - The Rev. one that opened: "Dear Leeches of Robert Tilton, seeking to prevent a rerun of an ABC "PrimeTime Live" expose on his ministry, describes himself now as a target for ridicule.

Tilton, testifying Thursday in a federal court hearing, said the ABC broadcast has devastated his followers' faith in him and prevents him from being an effective minister.

"They laugh, they jeer, they give me the finger driving down the road," Tilton said. "If it runs one more time, I'm not sure the ministry can survive."

Tilton is asking a federal judge to segment during summer reruns. The request is a precursor to a libel anchor Diane Sawyer, producer -- A 20-year-old male was arrested Robbie Gordon and Capital Cities-ABC Inc.

Tilton disputes allegations in the 'PrimeTime Live'' segment that he trashed prayer requests and only removed the contributions, bought holy items from Taiwan and falsely claimed to run an orphanage in Haiti. The show originally aired in November 1991 and again in July 1992.

Tilton's comments about ridicule are important because he is required to prove, among other things, that the broadcast damaged him. He is seeking unspecified damages in his pending libel lawsuit.

Testimony late Thursday focused on ABC's attempt to find any orphanage Tilton supports in Haiti. Lee Sullivan, director of the World Harvest Orphanage in Port-au-Prince, testified Tilton's ministry sent $1,200 a month.

Under questioning by ABC attorney Floyd Abrams, Sullivan conceded his orphanage had been called Children's Hope Center and the Robert Tilton Ministries Children's Home in literature from the ministry.

Sullivan said his orphanage is not listed in Haiti's Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Cults - which ABC said it checked - but is known locally.

'To be sure, there are many places that have orphanages in Haiti," Sullivan said. "It's like trying to find a needle in a haystack."

Still: "I'm quite sure she never intended to find it," Sullivan said of ABC's researcher.

Earlier, Tilton read from more than two dozen letters among those mailed to him after the broadcast, including God." Others asked, "How stupid do you think we are?" and "Who are we supposed to trust?"

Both Tilton and his wife have testified that only the first of each follower's prayer requests was sent to him to pray over personally. Others, including all unsolicited prayer requests mailed on non-church stationery, were sent through Tilton's elaborate marketing operation in Tulsa. Contributions were removed and proyer requests put on computer printouts, which Tilton then prayed over.

The prayer requests were then discarded.

"I pray over the computer printouts through the Holy Spirit," said Tilton.

U.S. District Judge Thomas Brett Tilton's attorney with one piece of evidence within 15 days, meaning Brett's decision could take weeks.

Tilton is scheduled to resume testimony Monday.

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Phone systems across the Panhandle jammed for several hours Thursday because of a flood of calls to a radio station giving away $1,000.

"School just got out, and every kid in Amarillo probably picked up the phone" to win the money, said Gary Stevens, area manager for Southwestern Bell.

Many callers north of a line from about Hereford to Shamrock had trouble phoning locally and long listance - or even getting a dial tone Stevens said.

The phone system in Amarillo serves as a hub exchange for cities including Pampa, Borger and McLean, he said.

"We still have computers trying to figure out what hit," Stevens said. "It just takes awhile for the computer to go through the so-called attempts to get a dial tone."

Tim Butler, program director at GNC-FM, said his station has given away $1,000 to the 98th caller every set no timetable for the hearing Thursday afternoon for 10 weeks. except to ask Abrams to provide Phones at the station have jammed in previous weeks, but never affecting such a wide area, he said.

Henderson leads Sonics force 7th game by pounding Suns in TSHSRA finals projecting a down-to-the-wire Game

Hereford's Justin Henderson had the best ride in the bareback event during the first day of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association Finals Thursday in Amarillo.

Henderson scored 75 with his ride, beating the 66 scored by Henry Campfield of Boys Ranch. Hereford's Jimmie Henderson was tied for fourth with a score of 60.

Chasity Rickman of Hereford was second in breakaway roping. Her time of 4.028 seconds was just behind the 3.763 of Vega's Misty Meyer and just ahead of the 4.307 turned in by Hereford's Samantha Winters.

Rickman also was fourth in pole bending, with a time of 21.756 seconds. Winters was sixth in barrel racing with a time of 17.751.

SEATTLE (AP) - The Phoenix Sonics were 55-27. Suns hoped they wouldn't have to win a seventh game at home to reach the NBA Finals for the first time since 1976. The Seattle SuperSonics aren't leaving them any choice.

The Sonics prolonged their playoff life and sent the Western Conference finals back to Phoenix by shutting down the heroes of Game 5, Charles Barkley and Dan Majerle, for a 118-102 victory in the sixth game Thursday night.

With the series tied at three 6 victories apiece, the two teams will meet in the deciding game Saturday at America West Arena.

The Suns have the home-court advantage over Seattle because of an NBA-best 62-20 regular-season. record, including 35-6 at home. The court has a significant advantage," Danny Ainge of Phoenix said. "But if we approach the game relying on our home court, we're going to be in trouble. It'll be a war because both teams are really sick of each other and both teams want a shot at the title.

The Sonics, who won at Phoenix in Game 2, forced a decisive game by winning an emotion-charged Game quarter, Ainge fouled Michael Cage hard on the shoulder following a rebound. Cage retaliated by shoving Ainge, who was called for a technical and personal fouls, while Cage got a technical.

"Usually in Game 7, the home sending a message to the Suns when he ran hard into Frank Johnson and knocked him down at midcourt.

Meanwhile, Barkley and Majerle struggled offensively after leading the Suns to a 120-114 victory in Game 5 at Phoenix. The league's MVP went from a playoff career high of 43 points to 13 and Majerle slipped from 34 points to 12 and from an NBA playoff-record eight 3-pointers to a single 3.

After Game 5, we felt there was With 1:53 gone in the fourth no way Majerle would be able to come close to shooting that well again," Seattle's Nate McMillan said.

The Suns were only 2-for-15 on 3-point tries, including 1-for-4 by Majerle.

Ricky Pierce scored 27 points and Sam Perkins later appeared to be Shawn Kemp had 22 points, 15 rebounds and three blocked shots for Seattle. Perkins did his best Majerle imitation with four 3-pointers and finished with 18 points.

Barkley took on the Seattle Coliseum crowd of 14,812 in the second half. After being knocked down and fouled by Cage with 1:41 left in the third quarter, he got up and clapped his hands. Then he began talking to the fans.

Was Barkley frustrated? "Frustration is when you don't have a job," Barkley said. The game was decided early in the fourth quarter when the Sonics outscored the Suns 11-4 in the first 4:51 for a 97-79 lead with 6:21 to go. Kemp had a pair of baskets in the run. Players on both teams are "It's in our control," Barkley said. "But it's going to be a hell of a game."

"It's going to be tough in Phoenix, but this is our opportunity to win a championship," Pierce said.

The Suns probably will play without Cedric Ceballos, too. Phoenix coach Paul Westphal said Ceballos probably is out for the season with a stress fracture in his left foot.

Ceballos didn't play in the first half and had to be carried off the floor by teammates after scoring eight points in the first 4:08 of the second half.

"Before it was just pain," Ceballos said. "Now I can't even walk."

Jordan seemed comfortable betting huge sums of money on golf games, but got in over his head and wasn't quick to pay off a six-figure debt, a San Diego businessman claims in a self-published book.

Richard Esquinas, co-author of 'Michael & Me: Our Gambling Addiction ... My Cry For Help!' wrote that Jordan fell $626,000 in debt to him in their golf wagers, then doubled the bet and lost again. The $1.252 million debt eventually was reduced to $902,000 by still more golf wagers last year.

"At first I was skeptical" of Esquinas' claims, Distel said Thursday. "But I wouldn't have written it if I wasn't totally convinced. He had so many details, so many records, canceled checks and such, to back up what he said."

Expos' Martinez ignores pain, stifles Cubs

By The Associated Press It was hard to tell that Dennis Martinez was pitching in pain.

Martinez hurled a five-hitter as the Montreal Expos beat the Chicago Cubs 7-1 Thursday night. Despite a sore rib cage, Martinez (4-5) struck out a season-high six batters and got his 197th career win.

"It's painful, really sore," Martinez said. "I felt it with about five minutes left in my warmup. I felt discomfort out there, but it allowed me to stay back and not overthrow. It made me concentrate a lot."

The victory gave Martinez his first two-game winning streak of the season.

"Lately, I've been going out there who threw the ball over second victory in his last six decisions and feeling I have a chance to win," he said. "Things are going my way and the ballclub's way. Earlier in the season, I hadn't been doing my job."

Moises Alou, mired in a 5-for-50 slump, hit a three-run homer for the Expos.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was San Diego 12, Atlanta 4; St. Louis 9, Cincinnati 2; and Pittsburgh 2, San Francisco 1.

A throwing error by Cubs shortstop Jose Vizcaino led to three Montreal runs in the third inning. After Mike Lansing singled and stole second, Delino DeShields walked and Lou Frazier hit a ball to Vizcaino, baseman Ryne Sandberg's head on also had two hits and an RBI. an attempted force play.

Lansing scored on the play and Cardinals 9, Reds 2 Marquis Grissom followed with a two-run single.

Padres 12, Braves 4

At Atlanta, Fred McGriff and Phil Plantier hit two-run homers for San Diego, which scored seven runs in the fourth inning. McGriff hit his 11th homer in the first and Plantier hit his seventh in the third against Pete Smith (2-5). The Padres then sent 12 batters to the plate in the fourth, getting five hits and three walks and benefiting from two run-scoring wild pitches. Greg Harris (6-6) got his fifth

Mariners take high school SS with first pick in amateur draft

Rodriguez is even almost as good as Ken Griffey Jr., the Seattle Mariners will be happy with the way they used their top choice in baseball's amateur draft.

'We just decided to roll the dice and go with a position player," Roger Jongewaard, the Mariners' vice president of scouting and player development, said Thursday after making the pick. "There's a certain risk factor in taking a high school kid, that we're well aware of.'

The last time Seattle selected first was 1987 when they took Griffey Jr., now a three-time all-star.

"Junior is special and he knows it," said Rodriguez, a 17-year-old shortstop from Westminster Christian High School in Miami. "I'm not setting a timetable on my game. I just play hard every game. I'll let managers tell me when I'm ready to go up.

Rodriguez hit .505 with nine home runs, 36 RBIs and 35 stolen bases in 93 at-bats this season. He hit .419 in his three-year high school career with 17 homers, 70 RBIs and 90 steals.

Even before the draft, Rodriguez signed a letter of intent with the University of Miami, which also is interested in him as a football player. Most scouts, however, believe he'll sign with Seattle.

'I might go play football next year," he said, emphasizing his

At Cincinnati, Hector Villanueva homered and drove in five runs, and Paul Kilgus won for the first time since 1989. Villanueva hit an RBI single in the sixth, a two-run homer in the eighth and a two-run double in the ninth.

The Cardinals, who had 17 hits, scored three runs in the sixth off Tim Pugh (3-6). Kilgus (1-0) won for the first time since July 25, 1989, when he led the Chicago Cubs over St. Louis.

Pirates 2, Giants 1

At San Francisco, hot-hitting Orlando Merced had three hits and an RBI for Pittsburgh. Merced has seven hits in his last 16 at-bats. Pirates starter Denny Neagle (1-1) limited the league's best-hitting team to one hit in five innings. But he seemed to tire in the sixth, giving up a one-out double to Darren Lewis and walking Robby Thompson. With runners at first and third, Dave Otto came on to face Will Clark, whose groundout drove in Lewis to cut Pittsburgh's lead to 2-1.

Leiter goes distance for Tigers

DETROIT (AP) - It was a bittersweet moment for Mark Leiter.

He was being congratulated for pitching Detroit's first complete game since last September. But there was a little tug in his heart for his pals Mike Henneman and Bob Mac-Donald, who had warmed up in the Tigers' bullpen Thursday night. Leiter's five-hitter, with home-run help from Mickey Tettleton and Lou Whitaker, carried Detroit to a 5-3 victory over Chicago.

"I'll tell you, pitching a complete game really didn't mean a thing to me," Leiter said. "At least not right now. That's because I was a reliever. I know how it is to be warmed up in the bullpen and wanting to get in the game.

Leiter (5-1) was making his sixth tart in 14 appearances this season. He began the season in the bullpen and came out for an emergency start April 27 at Kansas City. After three more relief stints, he went into the rotation to stay.

He is 4-0 in his five starts since that night in Kansas City when Bill Krueger pulled a hamstring. "When Mark went back in the rotation, he was in," said Detroit manager Sparky Anderson, who was ejected in the third inning for arguing with plate umpire Dale Ford. "It wasn't just a fill-in. He has (filled in) in the past. But not this time."

In Thursday's only other American League game, Kansas City edged Milwaukee 6-5.

The Tigers halted a three-game losing streak, increased their AL East lead to one game and stopped a seven-game skid against the White Sox at Tiger Stadium.

Chicago's Kirk McCaskill (2-6), pitching for the first time since irritating a nerve in his elbow May 15, gave up five runs on nine hits in 5 1-3 innings.

With the score tied at 3 in the Detroit sixth, Gibson doubled and Tettleton drew an intentional walk. Alan Trammell singled home Gibson and Chad Kreuter singled Tettleton in for a 5-3 Detroit lead.

Chicago's Tim Raines, who has reached either by walk or hit in the first inning of seven straight games, opened this game with a single, moved up on Leiter's throwing error and scored on George Bell's fly to left.

The Tigers tied it in the bottom of the inning when Tony Phillips doubled, moved up on Whitaker's single and scored on Cecil Fielder's grounder.

Tettleton's 11th homer, leading off the second, gave Detroit a 2-1 lead.

Raines' fifth homer, following a single by Ozzie Guillen, gave the White Sox a 3-2 lead in the third. Whitaker tied it with his fourth homer leading off the bottom of the inning.

Royals 6, Brewers 5

George Brett hit his fifth home run of the season as Kansas City spoiled Mike Boddicker's return to Royals Stadium and gained sole possession of first place for the first time in six years.

Boddicker (3-4), traded from Kansas City to Milwaukee on April 27, gave up six runs and eight hits in 4 2-3 innings. He is winless in four starts since May 14.

Mark Gardner (4-2) got the win, giving up four hits and five runs in 5 1-3 innings. Jeff Montgomery got the last three outs for his league-leading 18th save.

The Royals moved a half-game ahead of idle California in the AL West.

Gustafson said the semi hit the back of his pickup, spinning it around, and then hit his vehicle again. "I thought I was a goner," he said.

"I'm a little stiff, but I'm OK," he said.

Oklahoma State coach Gary Ward asked Gustafson if he had a wad of spitting tobacco in his cheek when hit. Gustafson said "no," but his that his presence brought the average spitting cup spilled tobacco juice all

The fishing at Lake MacKenzie near Silverton should be good in 1993, according to the latest studies by Charles Munger, an inland fisheries biologist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Mr. Munger reports "blue channel and flathead collections were very good during recent gill net surveys." He noted that the walleye reproduction is "very limited," but 75 percent of those caught in the nets were more than 25 inches long. The hybrid stripers are the last survivors of stocking from 1979-1981 and all were longer than 24 inches. Munger noted that the hybrids may not last much longer.

A final note from Munger indicates that the population of black bass was extremely high for gill nets, but better data on bass will be collected in the fall.

My recommendation: keep the hybrid stripers and catch-and-release the largemouth bass. A 20-foot rise would work wonders for the fishing at MacKenzie. Now is not a bad time to take a video camera and make a permanent record of the interesting lake features that will hold fish after the rains come.

Lake White River was gill-netted in April and TPWD biologist Joe Kraai reports "good numbers of channel and flathead catfish." According to Kraai, walleye numbers have decreased since 1990 and evidence indicates that they are not reproducing. He also reports a healthy population of white bass, with one sandy exceeding the current state record or 5.56 pounds. The status of largemouth bass is usually determined in the fall studies.

Good news--It is a pleasure to report the results of these scientific studies. Some previous studies were the results of "cove kills" using rotenone. This writer always found it difficult to report that our government employees indiscriminately wiped out all the fish in a cove in order to give the anglers a lake report. Besides, every fisherman secretly feared that he was fishing in one of those dead-water coves.

Father's Day is Sunday, June 20, and next week's column will list some great gift ideas and a few bargains. Here's a preview: Want to save some money when buying those Flying Lures advertised on television? Stop by the closest K-Mart store and $10 will buy enough of these lures to conduct your own test. Makes Dad happy and saves you $35 off those inflated TV prices.

Question of the week--How many rods can a fisherman legally use? Answer: the folks at TPWD referred me to a pamphlet entitled 1992-93 Fishing Guide. On page 28, it reads, "The law says you may not fish with more than 100 hooks on all devices combined." Come to think of it, I do think I have seen some catfish guys with nearly that many rods at Greenbelt.

Habs win in OT, tie Stanley Cup series

MONTREAL (AP) - The Montreal Canadiens really stuck it to the Los Angeles Kings this time. "We got a lesson tonight.

We got a lesson tonight. Obviously, we'll have to watch stuff like that throughout the series," Kings coach Barry Melrose said after an illegal stick infraction cost his team a game in the Stanley Cup finals.

The Kings and Canadiens headed back to Los Angeles for Saturday's Game 3 of the finals tied 1-1 following Montreal's 3-2 victory in overtime Thursday night.

Eric Desjardins scored three goals in a record performance for a defenseman in the finals. But it was largely overshadowed by the call against Los Angeles' Marty McSorley for using an illegal stick.

If baseball is a game of inches, then this hockey game was a game of a quarter-inch. That's how much McSorley's stick blade was curved over the limit allowed.

Demers pointed out the infraction to referee Kerry Fraser and Fraser had the stick measured. Under NHL rules, the blades of sticks can only be curved up to a half-inch. Brian Lewis, director of officiating, said the blade was curved "a good quarter-inch" over the limit.

McSorley's blade would not have come into play except for the propitious moment. The Canadiens were trailing 2-1 with 1:45 left and were a desperate team.

"We were dead. We didn't want to go down 2-0" in the series, Demers said.

In response to my letter of complaint to the manufacturer, I was told the cord had been kept short for reasons of safety. This view was reinforced by your correspondent, Ed in Elmhurst, Ill. However, I suspect the purpose of the shorter cord was to protect manufacturers against any possible lawsuits.

I am an extremely safety-conscious individual and am convinced that in

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When appliance with a cord that is too short, purportedly for safety reasons, is ludicrous. Not all of us are blessed with easily accessible electric outlets, and a short cord offers far less satisfactory alternatives with greater safety concerns. And now for the question:

Do I shorten the legs of my table so the cord will reach an outlet? Or do I haphazardly perch the appliance on the edge of the table so the cord will reach?

Should I precariously stack phone books (or something similar in girth) under the appliance so that it will reach an outlet high up on the wall? Or do I run back and forth from the table to a remotely located appliance, where an outlet is convenient?

Perhaps I should place the toaster on the floor where an outlet is within reach. Or maybe I should buy an extension cord that could be unsuited for the power needs and start a fire.

I suppose I could hire an electrical contractor to rewire my home so that no outlet is more than 2 feet away from where it is needed. Or as a possible alternative, I could sell my home and settle only for one equipped with outlets suited to a distance deemed safe by the appliance manufacturer.

Anyone concerned about safety could easily affix a cord to a table leg. down to the floor, by encircling the two with tape. Surely, no one with an ounce of common sense would place a strung-out cord in the path of traffic.

Do you have any ideas on this subject, Ann? I would like to hear them .-- R.K., Austin, Texas

DEAR AUSTIN: A proper extension cord should not cause a fire. recommend it. You have raised several other possibilities, however, but most of them don't make any sense, which, of course, you know.

If anyone in my reading audience has something to suggest (that makes sense, of course), I will print it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What has happened to the American people? Have we completely lost our pride? At least half the population in shopping malls, airports and supermarkets look like bums. In no other country is this the case.

I would like to say a word, too, about the gross over-eaters in our country. I'll bet that two out of three Americans are overweight.

It is fascinating to see what goes on in our cafeterias. I have seen slobs who need to lose 40 pounds, pile on food and eat like harvest hands. The biggest eaters are the men with huge pot bellies and the women who are two ax handles across the rear end.

Anyone can eat less food and lose a pound a week. Try it. You'll like it .--Oklahoma

DEAR OK: What in the world is making you so angry? I'll bet it has nothing to do with what you have written. You ought to find out.
