No letup seen in heat

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Here in the South Plains, the sun's rays roast the back of your neck like char-broiled barbecue.

You can almost taste the sauna-like air steaming across the withering cotton fields.

Even rocks appear to melt in the ripples of heat shimmering off the road.

After nearly three weeks of 100-plus degree heat last month - the South Plains' hottest June in history, officials say July will keep on cookin'.

Above normal highs and below normal rainfall is the forecast, said Bob Lacy, spokesman for the National Weather Service in Lubbock.

"It just doesn't look like it is going to let up," he said.

June made 90-degree weather seem like a dream with the mercury soaring past the century mark a record 19 times, including a blistering 110 degrees on June 24 - the hottest day ever recorded in Lubbock.

The record replaced the old mark of 109 degrees on June 15, 1939. Lacy said Lubbock's average maximum temperature in June was 99.3 degrees.

Only a trace of rain was recorded last month, making it the driest June in the South Plains history. The previous record was .21 inches of rain in June 1933.

Lacy said a trace could be defined as less than .0005 of an inch.

"That's about a drop of rain," he said. "And June is usually one of the bigger months for precipitation."

Until this year, June averaged 2.81 inches of rain, Lacy said.

The thirsty conditions have left cotton farmers in the South Plains, which produces a quarter of the nation's cotton, fearing devastating losses.

More than 500,000 acres of the crop already have been pronounced dead and farmers say each rainless day means more acres lost.

"It's a bad situation," said Don Johnson, a cotton farmer and executive vice president of Plains Cotton Growers Inc. "Everyone who can irrigate is irrigating. And the ones who are depending on rain with dryland acreage are about as far as they can go without a good soaking rain."

Lacy said the chances of scattered evening showers will improve in July but won't produce substantial precipitation.

That's bad news for state parks in West Texas, where lightning strikes have ignited several fires on parched grassland. Several parks have banned any open fires, smoking or fireworks, allowing only gas stoves for cooking.

A fire at the Guadalupe Mountains National Park, ignited by a lightning strike a week ago, continued to burn Monday.

More than 6,000 acres have burned at the park just south of the New Mexico state line near Carlsbad Caverns National Park.

Lubbock Power & Light is preparing for a scorching July, which is "typically our driest, hottest, most water consumptive month," said Dan Hawkins, a LP&L spokesman.

But Hawkins added that "right now we don't foresee any problems supplying all of our customers with water through the summer."

Richard Peterson, chairman of the atmospheric science group at Texas Tech, blamed June's hot and dry conditions on a high pressure system that lodged itself over the Southwest for most of the month.

Feedyard Challenge winner

Keeling Cattle Feeders won the first annual Feedyard Challenge traveling trophy during the Rhinestone Roundup Weekend activities for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame. Scott Keeling is shown accepting the trophy Saturday night from Margaret Formby, CHOF president.

Roundup reaps bonus for CHOF

The Rhinestone Roundup Weekend at the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage was a big success, according to directors of the museum.

The Roundup saw the induction of four women into the Hall of Fame, as well as a new program format that included the first annual Feedyard Challenge. A preliminary report Monday indicated the CHOF netted approximately $10,000 from ticket sales and $6,000 from an auction.

Inducted into the Hall were Elsa Spear Byron, Ruth Hackenberg Thompson, Shelly Burmeister and Betty Louise Sims Solt. The 1990 honorees were introduced during Friday evening's festivities, which included a special dinner arranged by Sherry Delamarter of New York City and a concert featuring Patsy Montana and Luce Amen. The induction ceremony was held at noon Saturday.

A ranch supper was held Saturday night and the Feedyard Challenge trophy was presented to Keeling Cattle Feeders. Three teams tied for runner-up honors - Cattletown, Champion and Tri-State. The feedyard teams competed in five events - paint gun contest, tennis, golf, stray sorting and washers. Saturday night entertainment also included a trick rope performance by Joan Wells, 1989 honoree, and music by the Tall Grass Band from Dalhart, and Luce Amen.

Helen Eades of Hereford won the American Airlines trip for two anywhere in the U.S., along with $200 cash from the Hereford Travel Center.

Results of the Feedyard Challenge:
Paint gun--1. Bar G; 2. Keeling; 3. Cattletown. Tennis--1. Champion; 2. Tri-State; 3. Cattletown. Golf--1. Champion; 2. Barrett-Crofoot; 3. Tri-State; Stray sorting--1. Keeling; 2. 7X; 3. Cattletown; Washers--1. Hereford Feedyard; 2. Cattletown; 3. Tri-State.

What's causing the heat

A huge high pressure ridge is steering weather systems up and over the Texas Panhandle. That's why Colorado had a record month for tornadoes in June. A high pressure system, which rotates clockwise, also causes air to sink, which means thunderstorms can't form even when we have enough moisture for storms.

Plan could aid rural health

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress is moving to increase the size of a program that repays loans of young doctors who set up a practice in country towns that lack adequate health care.

Texas has a shortage of doctors in 130 counties, officials say, and would benefit the most from the increase.

The House commerce and energy committee last week approved the reauthorization of the National Health Service Corps, which since 1972 has placed 12,000 doctors in rural areas in dire need of better medical services.

An amendment to that bill authorizes a spending increase from $1 million to $10 million on a loan repayment program that seven states use as an incentive for doctors to move to small towns and rural counties.

A similar bill is pending in a Senate appropriations committee.

Since the program began two years ago, Texas has received the most funds, about $800,000, and matched that with its own money to place the most doctors, 51.

Bridgette Taylor, who watches health issues for the state of Texas office in Washington, said the state should continue receiving the most money from the program.

That's partly because Texas was making loan repayments on its own when the U.S. program began, she said.

"While some other states were trying to scamper around and make application, Texas was able to put its application together pretty easily," Ms. Taylor said.

The counties that need doctors are all over the state, said Claudia Siegel, director of medical programs for the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

"Several are in West Texas. We have some along the valley border area, have them in north, even some that are urban counties," he said.

The rural health care problem is acute in 50 Texas counties that have no hospital. The state led the nation with 29 hospital closings in 1988, the latest year for which statistics are available.

Some congressional members believe money should just be directed to the National Health Service Corps so Congress can directly see that hardest hit areas are getting help.

But proponents of the loan repayment program say it gives states a chance to intervene before a health service crisis occurs.

Many state public health officers are aware of upcoming changes in service at local hospitals, said Shelly Gehshan, deputy director of the Southern Regional Project on Infant Mortality.

"They can use their money to retain people and avert a problem rather than making people go without access to a practitioner," Ms. Gehshan said.

The corps response is limited to after a doctor leaves, she said.

The program's biggest problem is that it must be reauthorized annually, Ms. Gehshan said. That prevents states from making lengthier commitments to doctors and communities, she said.

Theme set for Jubilee

"Texas' Best--Deaf Smith County" will be the theme for the annual Hereford Town & Country Jubilee, which is scheduled for Aug. 5-12.

The big day of the annual celebration occurs on Saturday, Aug. 11 when the Jubilee Parade moves down Main Street and Jubilee Junction is held in Dameron Park.

The T&C Jubilee committee announced this week that entries are being accepted for the big parade. Anyone desiring to enter a float, vehicle, bike or other type of entry can obtain an entry form at the chamber of commerce office. The Whiteface Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the parade with Hawk Kreig and Jim Ward as co-chairmen.

Jubilee Junction will open in the park after the parade and all non-profit organizations are invited to reserve booth space. There will be booths with all types of food and games. A small fee is charged for booth space. Businesses are also invited to offer free game booths. Entry forms for the booths are also available at the chamber office.

Officials fear census has missed 500,000

AUSTIN (AP) - Stories by federal officials of valiant attempts to get a correct population count in Texas were countered by Texans who told of misdirected and insufficient efforts by the Census Bureau.

The U.S. House Subcommittee on Census and Population at a field hearing Monday heard that Texas' census is off again, perhaps by more than 500,000.

An undercount would cost Texas federal funds and representation in Congress, just as it did in the 1980s, state officials said Monday.

Witnesses detailed shortcomings in counting minorities, rural residents, the homeless, and transients. Federal officials responded by saying the 1990 census is the most accurate ever.

Michael Darby, undersecretary for Economic Affairs in the U.S. Department of Commerce, said, "It's clear we're doing a better job" than in 1980.

Ten years ago, witnesses said, census takers missed 547,000 Texas residents, which cost the state $300 million and one congressional seat.

"I am more than concerned," Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said. "I am deeply disappointed. We're on the road to significantly undercounting Texas again."

Subcommittee chairman Tom Sawyer, D-Ohio, said the Census Bureau had encountered in Texas "many of the conditions that make census-taking difficult - a highly mobile population, literacy and language barriers, sparsely populated areas, poverty and fear of government."

State Rep. Alex Moreno, D-Edinburg, questioned whether the failure to count Rio Grande Valley migrant workers was an "intentional effort to undercount the population of a significant Democrat-dominated area."

Judith Sanders-Castro of San Antonio, staff attorney for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, said the census will have to be adjusted.

"The commitment voiced by the Bureau to reach out to the Hispanic was not backed by a budget or actions," Ms. Sanders-Castro said.

But Darby said census workers went to extraordinary lengths to be sure everyone was accounted for.

He told of census takers using their own boats to visit houses cut off by floods this spring, and of one crew leader who worked from a hotel room after she was evacuated from her own home. Nationally, he said, 98.7 percent of all known housing units were counted as of Monday.

"I am sure by now that you share my belief that the shrill concerns about the completeness and accuracy of the 1990 census are simply not supported by the facts," Darby told the subcommittee.

Moreno and Ms. Sanders-Castro were unconvinced, questioning whether the same diligence had been used to count migrant farm workers who left the Valley early to look for work elsewhere after a hard freeze in December killed many crops.

Land Commissioner Mauro said, "I find it disheartening that anybody really believes that we've counted 98.7 percent of our residents."

"If they would just say, 'We've got real problems and we're going to work real hard to solve them,' I'd feel a whole lot better," Mauro said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox recommended, as he said he did 10 years ago, that the U.S. Postal Service conduct the census.

Fire danger high for 4th

The Fourth of July is a day of celebrating our independence, but celebrations shouldn't go too far on Wednesday.

Hereford residents are reminded that possession of fireworks within the Hereford city limits is forbidden, and fireworks may be confiscated and citations issued for possession of fireworks within the city limits.

Of course, fireworks may not be discharged within the city limits. A fine of up to $200 could be assessed for possessing or igniting fireworks inside the city limits.

Although there is a slight chance of rain in Wednesday's forecast, conditions are extremely dry and the chance of fires being started by fireworks is extremely high. Because of the fire danger, Hereford volunteer firefighters will be celebrating July 4th with a cookout and get-together at the Hereford Fire Department.

Fire Marshall Jay Spain explained the cookout is more than just a time to get together; the volunteer firefighters will be close at hand in case of a fire call. Because of the extremely high fire danger, fewer firefighters than normal will be dispatched to fight fires in rural areas, and volunteers from the Walcott, Simms and Dawn area will be standing by to help with fires in those areas. However, as many firefighters as are necessary will be sent to any fire. More firefighters than usual will remain at the Hereford station in case of calls in the community.

Persons who will be igniting fireworks on Wednesday are urged to seek permission from a landowner outside the city limits, and should have a bucket of water or a fire extinguisher close at hand to quickly extinguish a small blaze before it erupts into a large fire.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, July 3, the 184th day of 1990. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

One hundred years ago, on July 3, 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state of the Union.

On this date:

In 1608, the city of Quebec was founded by Samuel de Champlain.

In 1775, Gen. George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

In 1863, the three-day Civil War Battle of Gettysburg, Penn., ended in a major victory for the North as Confederate troops retreated.

In 1898, the U.S. Navy defeated a Spanish fleet in the harbor at Santiago, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War.

In 1930, Congress created the U.S. Veterans Administration.

In 1950, American and North Korean forces clashed for the first time in the Korean War.

In 1962, Algeria became independent after 132 years of French rule.

In 1971, singer Jim Morrison of The Doors died in Paris at age 27.

In 1976, Israel launched its daring mission to rescue about 100 passengers and Air France crew members being held at Entebbe Airport in Uganda by pro-Palestinian hijackers.

In 1978, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the Federal Communications Commission was within its authority to reprimand New York radio station WBAI-FM for broadcasting a George Carlin comedy routine titled "Filthy Words."

In 1979, Dan White, convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the shooting deaths of San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey

Gorbachev under fire in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) - Conservatives mounted a stinging counter-offensive against Mikhail S. Gorbachev today at a crucial Communist Party congress that could help determine the fate of the Soviet president's ambitious reform efforts.

Yegor K. Ligachev, a Gorbachev rival on the party Politburo, angrily attacked what he called a media campaign aimed at discrediting party conservatives and their allies in the military.

He won thunderous applause from the 4,657 mostly conservative delegates in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses.

Ligachev derided two of Gorbachev's key reforms, private ownership of factories and a move toward private ownership of land, as anti-socialist. But he refrained from mentioning the Soviet president by name.

Ligachev has been mentioned as a possible conservative challenger to Gorbachev when the 28th party congress elects the party leader.

He refused to say today whether he would be a candidate, but he has said Gorbachev should not hold the top party job and the country's presidency at the same time.

But Gorbachev had his partisans today as well.

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, a close ally, defended sweeping changes Gorbachev has wrought in Soviet foreign relations, including the freeing of Eastern Europe from Soviet domination.

On Monday, Gorbachev tried to defuse disputes between hard-liners and reformers in a keynote speech to the congress, the first in four years.

Both sides are increasingly blaming Gorbachev and other party leaders for the failing economy, ethnic unrest, rampant crime and republics bent on secession.

Ghost hunting

Built by convicts between 1823 and 1825, the Richmond Bridge over the Coal River in Richmond, Tasmania is the oldest bridge in Australia. It is said to be haunted by the ghost of a cruel overseer who was murdered and then thrown into the river by convicts building the structure.

License not required for ghost hunting

Australia is known for its natural wonders, but if you believe in ghosts, it is also the place for the supernatural.

Ghosts are an elusive lot, and in Australia they are even more so. Down under they are not quite the tradition that they are in America, English or Irish lore. Australian ghost stories are generally localized and not known nationwide.

If you are in Australia in search of ghosts, it helps to know where to start. Australian ghost stories are usually rooted in the country's convict origins. Two of the areas richest in convict history are the Rocks section of Sydney and Port Arthur in Tasmania, the island state found off the southeast coast of Australia. They are the perfect haunts for the unsettled souls in Australia's past.

The Rocks, which is within walking distance of the Sydney Opera House, is the site of the first European settlement in Australia 200 years ago. These first settlers were English and Irish convicts, sent to Australia for the terms of their natural lives, and their guards. Visitors can find excellent examples of colonial architecture among the row houses, shops, and restaurants that are found in the Rocks today.

During the day, the Rocks is the happy haunt of the tourist, but with some imagination the visitor may stir up a 19th century specter or two, particularly at twilight. Walking through the narrow cobblestone alleys, an unexpected eerie feeling may close in on visitors, causing them to turn up their collar. It is easy to imagine the harsh life of the convicts, who were often put on bread and water or punished with the lash for the smallest offenses. The red brick buildings of the Rocks stand as monuments to the convicts' troubled existence. Who is to say that their unhappy spirits do not remain here and in Port Arthur?

The present-day serenity and beauty of Port Arthur, which also had its beginning as a penal colony, belie its earlier reputation as hell on earth. However, a greater eeriness is suggested by the colonial architecture that survives. Most of the structures are just shells of buildings with no interiors.

Sunday services at the church at Port Arthur, built between 1835 and 1837, gave the prisoners a weekly break from the harshness, even terror, of their daily lives. The church burned down in 1884, and only the exterior with its glassless windows

Amarillo's Annual Old West Days planned

Amarillo's western heritage will be emphasized Aug. 18-25 with the return of Old West Days, sponsored by Civic Amarillo and the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce Convention and Visitor Council.

The celebration of the region's past will be built around the finals of the Cowgirls Rodeo Association Barrel Racing at the Will Rogers Range Riders Rodeo Arena and three nights of the Panhandle Stampede, a fully-sanctioned PRCA event to take place at the Civic Center.

"A part of what we are trying to do," said Dee Dee Stoddard, events coordinator of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, "is to revive the spirit of Amarillo's western heritage. Last year, Old West Days was an overwhelming success with attendance of more than 15,000 throughout the week. We are anticipating a much larger crowd this year."

There's something in Old West Days for everyone, even for those who have never been on a horse. Organizers are hoping the entire city will dress western on Wednesday the 22 and turn out to see the Kwahadi Indian Dancers.

Saturday the 25 is the biggest day on the schedule with a downtown parade, an afternoon of kids activities, square and round dancing demonstrations, performances by the Texas Thunder Cloggers, a pancake breakfast, washer pitching and a beauty contest, all to take place at the Civic Center.

Saturday, August 4, there will be an Old West Days style show, presented by Susan's Modeling Agency, and preview at Western Plaza Mall. Many groups involved in Old West Days will be making short "teaser" performances throughout the day. Events will take place at the mall from 12:00-6:00 p.m.

Hereford resident listed in Who's Who Glenda Kendrick, 18-year-old daughter of Bobby and Elizabeth Kendrick of Hereford, has written a biography that has been accepted for publication in the 24th annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Kendrick, who was born in Amarillo, attended Hereford schools until the seventh grade and then transferred to Grace Christian School in Canyon.

Only five percent of all students from our nation's 22,000 high schools are honored in Who's Who.

She is now eligible to compete in the annual scholarship program sponsored by Who's Who. A minimum of $65,000 will be awarded this year.

Kendrick's goal is to become a "life flight paramedic". As a member of Explorer Scout Post 911 in Hereford, she and six other young men and women have been studying the paramedical field with Scoutmaster Mike Foster.

Following a two-year paramedic course at Amarillo College beginning this fall, Kendrick plans to enroll in the four-year program of missionary training at Colorado Christian University in Denver. Then, she hopes to find employment in her career field in Colorado.

Kendrick is a member of the Bible Baptist Church in Hereford.

Germany and Italy announced a military and political alliance in 1939 known as the Rome-Berlin Axis.

Mid-week holiday offers double fun

We celebrate Independence Day on July 4. Right? Wrong. This year the Fourth falls on a Wednesday and gives you a great excuse to have two weekends of fun in the great outdoors. I offer the following suggestions knowing some great spots will be omitted but here we go.

Escaping from the heat means a getaway to New Mexico. Try the Pecos Wilderness east of Santa Fe. Great camping, trout fishing in the Pecos River and cool evenings, so don't forget a sweater! Those of you who believe that roughing it means a motel room will want to visit Red River or Ruidoso. Kids of all ages will have fun, and besides, one does not have to suffer all the whims of the elements just to have fun outdoors. The days in Santa Fe are a little hot, but my most vivid memory of the Fourth is night time in this capital city. In addition to the official city fireworks display there are private unofficial displays and horn honking contests all over town. The skyline is alive with fireworks of every description. No other city can party like Santa Fe.

If Palo Duro Canyon is just too convenient, check out Copper Breaks State Park south of Quanah or Caprock Canyons State park just north of Quitaque. Each has excellent camping. Fishing includes bass, crappie or catfish from either a bank or a boat. Be sure to get your reservations early.

The water ski and jet ski crowd can be counted on to visit Greenbelt, Mackenzie, Meredith, White River, Ute and Conchas lakes. Take plenty of sunscreen, lots of cold drinks and some 100 percent UV protected sunglasses to enjoy this American spectacle.

The serious bass fisherman will head for Lake Baylor near Childress because this pint-sized lake has developed into a trophy bass paradise (lake record bass: 11.97 pounds) and NO WATER SKIING OR JET SKIS ARE PERMITTED. Teenage kids on jet skis just do not mix well with dedicated anglers.

LAKE OF THE WEEK--Lake Clayton located just north of Clayton, N.M.; elevation 5,050 feet; features bass, walleye, catfish and rainbow trout. It is the trout that seem most ready to hit your bait. Select a camping spot next to the water and try fishing from the bank with several rods. Bait up with corn, salmon eggs and earthworms. Try different depths from four feet down to about 12 feet. When one rod catches a trout rig the other rods the same way and get ready for some fun fishing followed by some great eating. Fish never seem to taste better than when eaten out doors right after being caught. You will need an out-of-state fishing license and a trout stamp but the younger are free.

Any questions or suggestions, drop me a note in care of this newspaper. Good luck and good fishing.

Old powers make semis

ROME (AP) - Cameroon threatened to gatecrash the party of World Cup traditionalists. In the end, though, the old order prevailed.

England and Argentina scraped through to the semifinals on grit and sheer luck, losing some of the luster and gleam they accumulated during their soccer history.

Of the final four, only West Germany and Italy performed up to standards throughout. Both were in control in quarterfinal games, despite the closeness of the scores in 1-0 victories against Czechoslovakia and Ireland, respectively.

Mercifully, the two World Cup powerhouses do not meet in the semifinals. Italy plays defending champion Argentina in Naples today, and West Germany plays England in Turin on Wednesday.

Argentina, Italy and West Germany have won at least two World Cups each and England, which invented the game, has won it once and also oozes experience.

"With the last four being great traditional countries, what more can the world of soccer ask for?" West German coach Franz Beckenbauer said.

How about better soccer, for a start, with less conservatism? From Italy, such a style is more acceptable because the team is built around the defense, making 1-0 games the norm.

But England and Argentina supposedly possess strong attacks. Where have they been?

England used its savvy and more than a little luck to survive in a World Cup in which upsets were the order of the day until the burden of achievement became too heavy.

"It was experience that told in the end," Cameroon forward Roger Milla said following the most exciting match in a disappointing World Cup, England's 3-2 victory in the quarterfinals.

Experience takes decades to gather, as the World Cup has proved.

The Indomitable Lions, considered a 500-1 outsider before the tournament, outwitted and looked ready to beat England until eight minutes remained. Cameroon produced darting runs, joyful combination play and creative moves to dominate an often dour England. But the Africans committed an elementary error, neglecting defense when their feet pushed them to look for a clinching goal.

Out went the team that provided so many smiles in a tournament that made imagination seem out of date.

"These competitions boost the hope that professionalism will gain hold in Africa," Kunde said. "Then, we can do even more."

Cameroon went further than it expected and was not disappointed to go out at this stage. Former champions play for higher stakes.

"A semifinal berth was the minimum target for us in this World Cup. We are now looking forward for a possible place in the final," Beckenbauer said. "I have a lot of confidence in this team."

Atlanta rips Expos, 6-3

By The Associated Press

The Montreal Expos couldn't open the roof at Olympic Stadium, but it didn't keep the Atlanta Braves from hitting the ball out of the park.

A mechanical problem prevented the Expos from opening the roof for the first time this season and a pitching problem kept them from winning the game.

Jim Presley hit two of Atlanta's four home runs off rookie Howard Farmer as the Braves beat the Expos 6-3 Monday night.

"I don't know why, but the ball seemed to be really jumping off my bat tonight," Presley said. "Power hitters have streaks where they get homers in bunches. That's what happened tonight."

Farmer, making his major league debut, got a rude welcome when Oddibe McDowell led off the game with a double and Jeff Treadway followed with a home run on Farmer's fourth pitch of the game. "I was too tight. I was trying too hard," Farmer said. "But the guys said to hang with them and I will. Next time I'll make sure to keep the ball down."

Farmer (0-1) was called up from the minors last week to replace the injured Kevin Gross in the Montreal rotation.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 5, Houston 1; San Francisco 3, St. Louis 2; Los Angeles 3, Chicago 1; and Pittsburgh 4, San Diego 3 in 14 innings.

Braves starter John Smoltz (6-6) allowed five hits and three runs in 7 1-3 innings for the victory and Joe Boever finished for his seventh save.

Andres Thomas led off the second with a homer and Presley hit his first home run of the game with one out in the third.

Farmer set the Braves down in order in the fourth but gave way to Dale Mohorcic with one out in the fifth after allowing Presley's two-run homer to give the Braves a 6-0 lead. Phillies 5, Astros 1

Darrel Akerfelds pitched out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the seventh inning and finished for his first major league save.

Bruce Ruffin (6-7) worked 6 1-3 innings, allowing four hits to earn his third victory in his last four games. With the Phillies leading 3-1, Ruffin walked the bases loaded with one out in the sixth and Akerfelds relieved.

Eric Yelding lined out to shortstop Dickie Thon and Rafael Ramirez hit into a force at second to end the threat and the inning.

Jim Vatcher hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

Giants 3, Cardinals 2

Don Robinson allowed two runs in 8 2-3 innings and scored a run.

Pedro Guerrero spoiled Robinson's shutout bid when he hit his ninth homer with one out in the ninth inning. One out later, Milt Thompson doubled and Jose Oquendo chased Robinson with a run-scoring single. Jeff Brantley got his 11th save when pinch-runner Rex Hudler was caught stealing by Gary Carter.

Loser Joe Magrane (4-11) allowed three runs and six hits in seven innings.

Dodgers 3, Cubs 1

Tim Belcher pitched a five-hitter. Belcher (6-6) held the Cubs hitless for 4 2-3 innings before Luis Salazar singled to center. The Cubs spoiled his shutout bid in the eighth inning when Ryne Sandberg hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded.

Kal Daniels and Hubie Brooks had RBI singles in the first and Rick Dempsey and an RBI grounder in the third.

Pirates 4, Padres 3

Jay Bell singled home Jose Lind from second base with one out in the 14th inning.

Lind led off the 14th with a double off Calvin Schiraldi (2-1), and after pitcher Bob Patterson struck out trying to sacrifice, Sid Bream was intentionally walked. Bell followed with a single to center.

Patterson (5-3) pitched three hitless innings for the victory.

Cal takes one from Tribe

By The Associated Press

It was like taking candy from a baby. Actually, it was more like taking a ballgame from Candy.

The California Angels stole a 2-1 victory from the Cleveland Indians on Monday night when left fielder Candy Maldonado collided with center fielder Mitch Webster, causing him to drop Wally Joyner's bloop with two out and a runner on third in the ninth inning.

Chili Davis opened the ninth by drawing a walk from Cleveland reliever Jesse Orosco (3-4) and Dave Winfield followed with a bunt single. Rudy Seanez relieved and Lance Parrish grounded into a double play that sent pinch-runner Max Venable to third.

Joyner then hit a fly to no-man's land in shallow left-center.

Here came Maldonado. There came Webster.

"When you're in motion, it's tough to change direction," said Maldonado, who originally called for the ball.

But baseball's unwritten law of the outfield says the center fielder catches anything he can reach. Webster called Maldonado off at the last second.

"When I heard him, it was too late," Maldonado said. "All I tried to do was stop and let him go in front of me. He's the center fielder. I have to let him take it."

The ball hit in Webster's glove just as the glove slammed into Maldonado, jarring the ball loose. Maldonado was charged with an error.

In other American League games, it was Chicago 5, Detroit 4; Oakland 3, Toronto 2; Boston 3, Texas 2; and Kansas City 11, New York 5.

Maldonado's gaffe made a winner of Chuck Finley (11-4), who was moved up a day in the rotation to enhance his chances of pitching in next Tuesday's All-Star Game. Finley held the Indians to a run and four hits in 8 1-3 innings, and Bryan Harvey fanned the last two batters for his 11th save. Cleveland's Bud Black yielded one run in seven innings.

White Sox 5, Tigers 4

Chicago's vaunted bullpen blew a three-run lead in the eighth inning, but the White Sox remained four percentage points ahead of Oakland in the AL West when Carlton Fisk singled home the winning run in the ninth.

Robin Ventura opened the ninth with a single off Detroit relief ace Mike Henneman (4-5) and took second as Ivan Calderon grounded out. Craig Grebeck ran for Ventura and Ron Kittle was walked intentionally before Fisk, who had a sacrifice fly in Chicago's three-run first inning, singled to give the White Sox their 10th victory in 11 games.

Bobby Thigpen (4-2), who leads the majors with 26 saves but blew one in the eighth, was the winner.

Athletics 3, Blue Jays 2

Rickey Henderson hit his 14th home run and Mike Moore (6-7) held Toronto to four hits in seven innings. Dennis Eckersley got the final six outs for his 25th save.

Henderson's home run in the second inning scored Mike Gallego, who hit into a forceout after Walt Weiss singled. A sacrifice fly by Mark McGwire in the first inning produced Oakland's first run off Jimmy Key (4-4), who yielded 10 hits in six innings.

Red Sox 3, Rangers 2

Kevin Romine led off the bottom of the ninth inning with his first home run of the season and Mike Boddicker outlasted Nolan Ryan for his 10th straight victory. With seven strikeouts, Ryan became the only pitcher in baseball history with 100 or more strikeouts for 22 seasons, breaking a tie with Don Sutton.

Romine hit a 3-2 pitch off Kenny Rogers (2-4) into the left-field screen.

Boddicker (11-3) gave up 10 hits and struck out nine.

Royals 11, Yankees 5

The Yankees, who lost a no-hitter on four unearned runs Sunday, continued their sloppy play, committing three errors and issuing three bases-loaded walks. Five Kansas City runs were unearned.

George Brett went 4-for-5, Gerald Perry homered and Kevin Appier (3-3) went six innings. Brett had an RBI single in the Royals' two-run first against Jimmy Jones (1-2) and singled for one of three hits in Kansas City's six-run second, which included three bases-loaded walks by reliever Eric Plunk and a futile throw to the plate that cost another run.

Matt Nokes homered for the Yankees.

Auto dealership is family operation

Chevrolet-Oldsmobile agency owned by Stevens since 1981

By ORVILLE HOWARD
Special Feature Writer

America's love affair with the automobile may have begun with the multi-colored Chevy but folks around Hereford have a fond affection for the Oldsmobile.

Steve Stevens sells them both but he doesn't have the answer to this Panhandle marketing trend--the Oldsmobile is pacing the Chevrolet on the Hereford showroom floors.

"I really don't have the answer to this sales trend," said Stevens. "But the Oldsmobile has been out-selling the Chevrolet around Hereford for quite a while. On the national level, however, it's just the opposite...the Chevrolet has been a real leader for more than a half century."

L.D. "Steve" Stevens and his wife, Joyce, own and operate the Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile dealership out on the north edge of town where 25-Mile Avenue blends into U.S. 385. It's a family operation from square one--they own the land and property "lock, stock and barrel." Though Stevens may be the family leader, it's Joyce who runs the business end of the business and their son, Jerry, is a front-runner in showroom sales.

"We all work together here as a family unit," said Mrs. Stevens, who has been the business manager of two family dealerships during the past 20 years. "Our daughter-in-law, Linda, worked here in the business until recently when she took time off to bring us a beautiful grandson (2 1/2-year-old Jay.)"

Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile is a rather unpretentious dealership which reveals a basic in simplicity and quality, built at a time in Hereford history when it was the last stop north other than the John Deere store about a mile farther down the road toward Vega. But it is now surrounded by highway business firms on both sides of the thoroughfare which oldtimers called 25-Mile Avenue...25 miles to the county line.

Though the Chevy and the Olds are the glamour gals of Stevens' showroom floor, it's the Suburbans and pickups that's leading the pack in sales...once again bucking national GM trends.

"Our Suburban and pickup sales have really been good," said Stevens, as he recounted nearly a decade of business in Hereford. "And I'd say that right now, the Suburbans are out-doing the pickups."

Though the recent drought has put the damper on business and industrial sales throughout the Great Plains, Stevens said the first quarter of 1990 was the best on record in new car sales since he opened for business here in 1981.

"The year started off really great, breaking all sales records for the first quarter," said Stevens. "Then this dry weather set in and really slowed things down."

Stevens was referring to current drought conditions across the Great Plains where low-counts on rainfall and high-counts on temperatures have been breaking records since official atmospheric recording began in 1890 in Amarillo. But Stevens is one of those optimistic Hereford businessmen who says that another hot day is another day closer to fall... "A day closer to the cool days of rain and better times."

"When you've got a business, you've got to continuously think positive, or otherwise, you might as well toss in the chips," said Stevens. "We have really enjoyed living in Hereford the past decade. We've seen community problems come and go, but doesn't all communities have their problems?"

Stevens noted that the key point in his decision to move to Hereford in 1981 was the progressive attitude of the community--"We never knew Hereford existed until we checked out an ad on this dealership in a national trade journal. We came down and looked over the town...liked what we saw and made the move - I guess we'll be selling cars here for the rest of our lives and when we get through with it, Jerry can take it and run with it."

Mrs. Stevens, who is something of a perfectionist when it comes to the accounting and bookkeeping end of the car business, said one of things which impressed her in Hereford lifestyles was the fact that a lot of their business is frequently done with little more than a handshake... "We are proud to be a sales organization where you can do business with a handshake - there is no high-pressure atmosphere in our dealership."

The Stevens couple did not reveal the business details, but did say that an expansion may be in the mill - "We will have active participation in Dimmitt by mid-July and an announcement will be forthcoming."

On the showroom floor, the Chevrolet Family Lumina is becoming a by-word in family travel, a rather compact version of the Suburban with a lot of vision. As one customer once put it, the boys in Detroit finally built a suburban which would let the womenfolks see where they're going...when you've got children on one side and a stack of groceries on the other, you need lots and lots of window. And that is exactly what the Lumina has, along with outright sportiness in exterior design.

The Lumina line comes in a number of models and designs which features fuel economy without sacrificing performance--Chevy execs call it "intelligent power...power without sacrifice." And there's the Beretta GTZ and the Cavalier with its electronic fuel injection...they call it "Chevy Thunder."

On the sportier side of life, there's the Chevy LT Sedan or the LT Hatchback, or perhaps the Corsica Lt Hatchback. The Corsica LTZ Sport Sedan is moving heavily on the import car market as the domestic designers pack in a ton of high-quality engineering with exquisite styling in comfort and convenience. The Beretta GTZ Sport Coupe, however, is stealing the show for the younger set and the young at heart. And of course the favorite color is that ever-popular Chevrolet Red. The Camaro is hanging in on the top side of sales, featuring a destined "Classic" in the IROC-Z Thunder, simply labeled "Convertible Passion."

However, the Chevy story is never complete without the coveted Corvette which blazed new trails in sportscar designing back in the rock 'n roll days of the 1950s. And after nearly 40 years of popularity on the American highways, the Corvette remains a front-runner in the Classic sportscar field. And Chevrolet developers do not hesitate to flaunt this worldwide fling--"The Corvette for 1990 is the exotic American with world-class technology, incomparable style and V8 performance that has humbled some of Europe's finest."

Chevrolet trucks and vans may be upstaged on the national levels, but around Hereford, they're the "classics" of the road. Though the Golden Triangle has one of the highest counts of paved roads in rural America, the very nature of the cattle, grain and vegetable business demands the most of man and beast--and the vehicles they ride and drive. As one oldtimer once put it, "The Texas Panhandle is no place for anything that's weak."

Oldsmobile is claiming that the 1990 models are the most advanced automobiles in its 92-year history--from a special steel alloy on the body metal to the sophisticated Visual Information Center (VIC). Every full-size Oldsmobile coupe and sedan has four-wheel independent suspension, with V8 engines to set them in motion...165 horsepower and 210 foot-pounds of torque. They call this line the "New Generation of Oldsmobile."

In the top of the lines, you'll find the Trofeo, Torando, Touring Sedan, Ninety-Eight, Eighty-Eight and Customer Cruiser. And there's the Cutlass Supreme, Cutlass Ciera, Cutlass Cruiser and Cutlass Calais.

Stevens pointed out that the Hereford area has an agribusiness base and when agribusiness slumps, the entire community economy slumps--"This is farm and cattle country and the diversification that goes with it...when you're selling in Hereford, you're selling to agribusiness or something that depends on it...there's no one else to sell to."

"Due to this agribusiness base, our new Extended Cab pickup will probably become our leader in truck sales," Stevens added. "GM has needed this line for years and now we're finally getting into the market. However, production of the Extended Cab is still running behind demand...we're back-ordered right now."

Stevens refers to the Texas Panhandle as "Big Car Country"--pointing out that the larger automobiles have been leaders in Hereford sales since before World War II.

Born in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Stevens moved with his parents to the small town of Aurora, Neb., at an early age, and following a short stay in east-central Nebraska the family moved on Brush, Co. While following a career in railroad mail clerking in the early 1940s, the Stevens moved into the North heights area of Denver where Stevens graduated from high school in 1948.

Following stints at various jobs around Denver, Stevens went to work for the old Luby Chevrolet Co. in downtown Denver in 1957, a firm that was the largest Chevrolet dealership in Denver at that time. Starting out in new car sales, Stevens transferred to truck sales in 1965 where he gained the role as a company truck specialist and divisional manager before leaving in 1970 to go into business for himself.

In 1971, Stevens bought the Chevrolet dealership in the rural community of Ault, Co., a town of less than 1,000 located about 70 miles north of Denver. Following nine years in the Chevrolet business at Ault, the Stevens sold out in 1979 to look for a similar business in a larger town... "And a progressive town." After a couple of years

"looking around" they spotted an ad in the Automotive News, telling of the Hereford dealership for sale.

"I didn't know where Hereford, Texas, was but I called the man and talked to him and after a couple of trips down here, we put the deal together," recalled Stevens.

Being at the age of 13 when the Stevens family bought their first dealership in 1971, Jerry Stevens literally grew up on a showroom floor, with his first jobs being a car washer, polisher, janitor and general flunky. But these menial tasks of the car business soon gave away to posts of much responsibility. And when the Stevens sold out at Ault in 1979, Jerry elected to stay with the new owner for a time, joining his parents in the Hereford business in July 1986.

At one point in time, Jerry was looking at a professional career in basketball, but a hand accident cut short a basketball scholarship, so, as he put it, "If you can't play basketball, why go to school?"

"We had been looking for a Chevrolet-Oldsmobile dealership and when we found this one in Hereford, it seemed to be the ideal location for us," said Mrs. Stevens.

The Stevens couple bought the Hereford dealership from George Pratt, who had a partner in Oklahoma. Pratt had purchased the business earlier from Dick Norwood who had built the dealership building as it is today in about 1970 when that area of Hereford was not much more than wheat fields and grass pastures.

Though Stevens appreciates the luxury of the automobiles, his first love is in the truck business--"I really enjoyed the years I spent in the truck business in Denver. It's kind of hard to believe, but nationally, GM car sales run two to three per one truck, while it's just the opposite here at Hereford...we'll sell three to four trucks to one car."

He said that the truck sales were more enjoyable because most of the sales were to men--"Women are tougher to sell to than men...they watch for all the little things and if everything is not just right, they'll walk away. I've seen them walk away like if maybe it didn't smell just right...women are good customers but they're tough when it comes to selling."

Historically, Chevrolet has been among the top three in U.S. sales for more than 60 years. But in a rather irony twist of fate, the founder, Louis Chevrolet, never enjoyed the wealth of the industry, dying almost penniless and in obscurity. General Motors founder, W.C. Durant, also wound up in similar circumstances in later years. Having a payroll of around 15, the Stevens family has continuously upgraded the service department of their dealership. Sizable investments have been made in computer and diagnostic equipment--CAMS machine--for their service department. They recently purchased a freon recovery system which purifies freon and re-uses it rather release it into the atmosphere where it allegedly knocks holes in the Ozone layer high above the Earth.

"When we bought this business, all books were done by hand," said Mrs. Stevens. "As business increased, we felt the need to computerize our accounting as well as our parts inventory and have had those areas totally computerized for the past three years. Our finance and insurance equipment has recently arrived and we will soon be fully computerized in that area as well."

Stevens Chevrolet-Oldsmobile is one of the few authorized "Mr. Goodwrench Quick-Lube" outlets. This is a national program which is another way they believe provides additional customer-requested service. The customer is guaranteed a 29-minute lube job or the next lube job is free.

All department supervisors continuously upgrade their various mechanical skills with in-service and dealership schools and training. And a family example lies in the son--Jerry is a 13-year member of Chevrolet's Legion of Leaders and a 13-year member of Chevrolet's Truck Sales Honor Club and an 8-year member of the Chevrolet Hall of Fame.

In addition to the family supervision, Jay Reeve is parts manager and Mitch Reeve is service manager. Jay grew up in Dimmitt and was with his family's Chevrolet-Pontiac dealership in Dimmitt and LaMesa until 1986. Mitch grew up in Friona and was with his family's Chevrolet-Oldsmobile dealership there until 1988. Alison Esqueda is the company bookkeeper and cashier, and handles followups on customer satisfaction surveys. "We feel very fortunate to call Hereford our home," said Mrs. Stevens. "We're proud to be a part of this community and try to do virtually all of our shopping and buying in Hereford...the town has so much to offer--all we have to do is shop Hereford first."

50 separate economies

NEW YORK (AP) - Regional fortunes seem to be constantly shifting, said Janet Norwood, labor statistics commissioner, in her monthly employment report to Congress.

The striking stability of the national jobless rate over the past two years, she told the Joint Economic Committee, has disguised substantial and important regional shifts.

During the past 12 months, for example, the nation's official monthly jobless rate has varied from 5.3 percent only three times - in May 1989 and in March 1990 when it read 5.2 percent and in April 1990 when 5.4 percent was recorded.

Remarkable stability indeed. But only when you average things out, and averages are not what people live by.

This is a big country, statisticians explain, and some of them say it is about time the differences were recognized. U.S. regional economies, they say, are as big as the economies of major industrialized nations.

Geographical differences aren't the only ones. Sector differences are just as pronounced.

While homebuilding is off in New England, where it had been booming, it is up in Houston, where it had collapsed. While economies of some Rocky Mountain and Southeast states are depressed, several Midwest states are well off.

The Stevens dealership also features used car sales, with the past calendar year being their best ever: "We don't go out and buy used cars to keep our lot full...we sell and service only those that we take in on trades."

Though Stevens hails from a third-generation farm and railroad family of the Midwest and Joyce was the daughter of a Colorado dairy farmer, they now call themselves Texans--"We weren't born in Texas--but we got here as fast as we could."

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: WHEN IN CHARGE, PONDER. WHEN IN TROUBLE, DELEGATE. WHEN IN DOUBT, MUMBLE. — JAMES BOREN

All drivers, passengers encouraged to buckle-up

Major V.J. Cawthon, regional commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety said, "Everyone looks forward to happy holidays, especially the Fourth of July, but the sad thing about all holidays is that a number of people will lose their lives in traffic accidents." He stated that as in years past, the Department of Public Safety will conduct "Operation Motorcade", whereby, all available state troopers will be on the streets and highways attempting to make them a safe place for the Texas traffic to travel. Cawthon stated, "Our troopers will be especially watchful for those hazardous drivers who refuse to slow down, run stop signs, pass in no passing zones and who drink and drive." He encouraged all drivers and passengers to buckle up and to reduce the chances of death or injury in case of an accident. He stated that this practice should go hand in hand with the voluntary compliance of the traffic laws. "If you, as a motorist, would drive and treat your fellow motorist as you would like to be treated on the roadway, you can help in making this a safe holiday. Remember to slow down and 'Drive Friendly, The Texas Way'," stated Major Cawthon. Keep in mind to slow down a little and live a lot, don't drink and drive and buckle up at all times.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I find it increasingly difficult to make sense out of what is happening these days.

A person can get arrested for throwing a couple of beer cans out of a car onto the highway. He or she can also get a hefty fine for spitting on the sidewalk or smoking in an elevator. But it's OK for performers to dance naked in a nightclub because they are "expressing themselves," and the right to express yourself is protected by the First Amendment.

Crazier still--it is OK to burn the American flag. The United States Supreme Court says so because of the First Amendment thing again.

Thousands of people have fought and died for that flag but if somebody want to show disgust for our country and burn this symbol of freedom, he can do it and nobody can lay a glove on him.

Please explain this to me. -- No Name in Knoxville

DEAR KNOXVILLE: What you refer to as "that First Amendment thing" is the reason people from the world over are trying to get into this country. They are guaranteed freedom of expression, which is what liberty is all about.

People who burn the flag are expressing their lack of respect, their anger or their disgust for this country. They are making a statement. The First Amendment gives that right. I never worry about a government that allows people to say whatever they want. It's when a government tries to shut people up that I get nervous.

Thanks for giving me a chance to say this on the Fourth of July.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing about your insensitivity to parents who do not restrain their children when in a car. Obviously you don't realize that children unbuckle the car seat and seat belts themselves. I have, on more than one occasion, stopped three times on one block to re-buckle, threaten, and yes, even spank my children. They then wait until I'm on the highway, where I can't stop, and unbuckle themselves again.

Two of my children were involved in a serious accident with my husband. Both had unbuckled themselves. They learned nothing from that experience. We have tried reasoning, threatening, screaming and spanking and have even turned around and gone home. Once I tied to car-seat straps together but the child took off all her clothes and wiggled herself out. Our children range from 2 to 10 years of age. The 10-year-old is as bad as the younger ones. She was one of the children in the accident.

You are quick to criticize parents. Why don't you give us some advice? I am willing to do anything to keep my children safe. And I'm sure millions of parents would be grateful for some help with this problem. -- Not Kidding in Danbury, Conn.

DEAR DANBURY: I see more here than just the problem of keeping the kids safely restrained in the car. It appears that there is an ongoing battle in your family about who is in charge, and the kids are winning. If you don't get control and exercise parental authority soon there is going to be hell to pay.

I urge you to get family counseling at once. Obviously whatever you are doing is not working. You all need professional help.

Is that Ann Landers column you clipped years ago yellow with age? For a copy of her most frequently requested poems and essays, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562. (In Canada, send $5.87.)

Panelists included Sarah Tobolowsky of Dallas, Dr. Dolores Akins of Hurst and Dr. Sandy Weeks of Commerce.

Mrs. Gene Moody of Lamesa, World Fellowships Committee chairman, introduced Ana Rosa Adaniya of Peru, a World Fellowship recipient currently studying at UT-Austin.

service. The State Chorus was directed by Jan Robinson of Dallas. Lucille Naylor of the local chapter was included in this special service.

The convention closed with a formal dinner honoring the chapter, state and international presidents on Saturday night. Betty Mercer was honored as a past president.

The international society of women educators was started in Austin on May 11, 1929; when Dr. Annie Webb Blanton invited 11 other teachers from all over Texas to join the new organization.

From the nucleus of a dozen members in Texas, the organization has grown to over 18,500 members in Texas and over 176,000 members in 3,100 chapters throughout each of the United States and seven provinces of Canada, as well as Norway, Sweden, Finland, Iceland, Great Britain, The Netherlands, Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Costa Rica and Puerto Rico.

Fort Worth area chapters will host the convention in 1991. An international convention of all member states will take place in New Orleans July 31-Aug. 4, with several thousand expected to attend.
