

The Hereford Brand

VOLUME 15

HEREFORD, TEXAS, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1915

NUMBER 4

"Oceans of Water" at Hereford

Over 100,000 Acres of Land With a River of Water Flowing Below It Surround County Seat of Deaf Smith Co.

The Success of Irrigation From This Underflow Is Proven by 26 Wells Now In Operation. Irrigating Covers 3,000 Acres. Experts Say That the Shallow Water Belt Around Hereford is a Better Proposition for Either the Investor or the Small Farmer than the Shallow Water Area of California Where Land is Worth $200 to $500 Per Acre.

The Hereford Brand is going each week to about 600 people in Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. Most of these are people who own land in this section or are interested in some way in the country. They are taking the Brand because they are interested in this country and its development. Many of those bought their land in the boom days of five or six years ago. Many of them feel that they bought it too high, others feel that they were held up and robbed and some of them are sore on the country and her people. Now the Brand would feel recreant to a sacred trust if it did not give these people the exact truth about the country and its development. We have no land to sell, hence have no ax to grind.

We are looking at the country from the standpoint of these northern farmers, being from that great state where you have to show people. Our eyes have been and are open for the truth. So with an unbiased mind we are going to try to give those non-resident readers the exact truth as we see it.

Many of you did buy your land too high in the sense that you could have bought it for less if you had come here and taken the time to investigate. You did not buy it above its real intrinsic value but above its market value. In most cases you were induced to do this by the real estate shark from your own town who had an operator at each end. Their main effort was spent in keeping you from a real knowledge of conditions and prices. The real citizenship of this country, those who were here then and are here yet, those who are laboring through fat years and lean years, such as every country has had, had no hand in this deal. In fact they deprecated the methods often employed. They were given no chance to tell you the truth and sell you land at current prices.

No place in the world is there a better class of people than right here. They believe in letting the other fellow have a chance for his life—a run for his money—as well as themselves. No place in the world offers better opportunities than this for the man who comes prepared to meet conditions as they are and comes to be a learner rather than a teacher, and wants to make a living and a competence out of that winning triumvirate, Soil, Sunshine and that are here almost in profusion.

First, unless a man is willing to start at the very bottom, some working capital is necessary—not so much, though, as to buy and equip a farm located in the corn belt, and operate it successfully. The man who ties his capital all up in land is inviting defeat to begin with. Own less land and have more operating capital is always good advice in this country. After you make money to buy more land it will still be here. You will have to pay more but you will be able to pay more.

Combining farming and stock raising, believe in the country and her people, and they are both worthy. Shun the land sharks and big special excursion. You people who own land in these three counties which the Brand covers, come down here in this spirit and you will make good and see your land increase in value in the next ten years till what you paid will look very cheap.

Around Hereford is a shallow water belt where land is certain to be high. Underneath is a flowing river of water from forty to a hundred feet deep that seems inexhaustible. Already some 26 wells are in operation and more being put in. A well waters from 100 to 300 acres, according to the size of the well. On this land they raise four and five crops of alfalfa, 60 to 80 bushels of maize or oats, 30 bushels of wheat. This section, in time, will be closely settled with a man on every 80 acres. Such land now is comparatively cheap.

Some of you readers of the Brand in the corn belt that have land here, come down and improve it and help reap during the era of prosperity that is coming to this country.

The Brand has this standing offer: Any one coming here and not finding conditions as represented by the Brand, from time to time, true, can come to the office and get his expenses both ways for the trip, and the Brand is able to carry out its obligation.

A Much Needed Convenience

Hereford citizens in general and particularly the teachers in the public schools, appreciate the blowing of the 7 o'clock whistle each morning. It is a convenience to every one and thanks are due Mr. Oberthier of the electric light plant.

Hereford is a mighty good place to buy. It will pay you to come a long way to inspect the business houses here.

Formula for Preventing Borers

The following formulas have been given out by the Government thru Farm Demonstrator W. L. Boys, for the prevention of borers in apple and other fruit trees:

Formula No. 8—2 quarts strong soft soap; 1-2 pint crude carbolic acid; 3 ounces Paris green; 3 gallons water. Add more water if the solution becomes too thick.

Formula No. 9—1 gallon soft soap; 1-2 gallon hot water; 1 pint crude carbolic acid; 8 gallons water.

Formula No. 10—1 bushel stone lime (slaked with warm water); 10 pounds sulphur, (made into a paste); 1-2 gallon gas tar; 50 gallons water.

Formula No. 11—Saturated solution washing soda; add soft soap to make thick paint; 1 pint crude carbolic acid; 1-2 pound Paris green to every 10 gallons.

Formula No. 12—50 gallons water; 10 pounds stone lime; 5 pounds whale oil or lye soap, 1 gallon crude carbolic acid.

A small amount of salt or Portland cement added to any of the above solutions will make them stick better to the body of the tree.

Several coatings of asphaltum, grades C and B, have been successfully used on trees in California to prevent the issuance and entrance of borers. The material is applied warm with a brush, several applications being necessary. The first coat must be somewhat lighter than those following.

Since the various species of borers lay their eggs at different times, the trees should be kept thoroughly coated throughout the spring and summer. At least three applications should be made: one in March, another in June, and the third in early September. The entire trunk should be covered from a little below the surface of the soil to a short distance above where the first branches start, and with fruit trees the larger branches should also be kept covered.

Meeting of Farm Demonstrators

W. L. Boys, left Thursday for Childress where he is on the program before the meeting of the farm demonstrators of this section of Texas. Mr. Boys has been asked to explain his hog self-feeder that has been so successful around here. He had a small model made and will go down to show the boys how to feed hogs in the most scientific manner.

Needs The Brand

Compton, Ill. Feb. 22, 1915. To the Editor of Hereford Brand: Please find inclosed a check for one dollar to renew our paper as I am interested in the country and can't do without the paper.
M. F. Beener.

Buy Some Fine Herefords

Mr. Rat Jowell returned this week from a trip through Kansas. While gone he bought about 30 head of pure bred Hereford cows and heifers, the tops from a large herd. These will be brought here as soon as the quarantine now existing, is lifted. Mr. Jowell has been one of the pioneer Hereford men of this section and has done much to make the breed popular by his selection of fine herd bulls. Mr. Jowell left Wednesday for a trip over into New Mexico.

Another Good Snow

Panhandle soaked, insures another good season for wheat.

A snow of seven or eight inches fell over this part of Texas last Saturday night and Sunday followed by rain. The snow soon melted leaving the moisture on the ground.

This snow and rain puts the ground in good condition for wheat with anything like ordinary weather conditions from this on the Panhandle will have a good wheat crop.

The acreage is large and the prospect for a good price was never better. There is now an excellent season in the ground for the starting of spring crops. Farmers and stockmen are all feeling jubilant.

Does Well Farming

L. F. Nelson, one of the progressive farmers of Deaf Smith county, just north-east of town, is a new subscriber this week. He is well pleased with his farming operations here. He raised over $2000 worth of feed and grain this last year under dry farming. He raised 900 pounds of sudan grass seed from two acres, using just two pounds of seed. Considering that seed is worth 25c per pound this is going some.

Petition for State Entomologist

An effort is being made by a number of Hereford citizens to secure the services of the State Entomologist J. W. Neal to come here and give the people instructions in proper methods of exterminating orchard and shade tree pests. This is a very important movement and should have the cooperation of all the people here. The following notice has been prepared by the undersigned business men.

To the Citizens of Hereford:

Prof. J. W. Neal, State Entomologist, has agreed to come to Hereford and advise our citizens how to prevent the loss of our trees through various insect pests that are now doing untold damage, provided we make the proper request of the Agricultural Commissioner. This service will cost us nothing for it is paid for by the state.

There will be a meeting of those interested at the office of W. L. Boys in the court house, Tuesday March 2d, at 2 o'clock. A large attendance is urged as our fruit and shade trees are of the greatest value in this community, while the future of fruit growing in the Hereford country is at stake.

The E. T. Woodburn Chapter

At the home of Mrs. W. H. Rayzor, on the afternoon of Feb. 19th, the most clever program for months was enjoyed by the Daughters and several of the Confederate Veterans.

The Chapter session subject was "Virginia—Her Contribution to the Confederacy."

Roll call responded to with name of one of Virginia's brave soldiers, officer or private.

Music, vocal, "All's Quiet Along the Potomac Tonight"—Mrs. H. B. Stephens.

A social hour was enjoyed during which those present were served with Old Dominion's social emblems boiled custard and pound cake. The following verse, originated by one of the Daughters was upon place card:

"This 'biled' custard while you drink

Of Generals Lee and Jackson think; And let each bite of this pound cake Be taken for loved Virginia's sake.

"Here's to Jackson, Lee and Old Virginger, Beats of love from the heart that's in 'yer."

Nearly Inch Moisture

The rain gauge at the First National Bank of Hereford showed .8 inch moisture as a result of snow and rain of the week.

Try A "Want Ad."

Brand "want ads" bring results. If you have anything to sell or trade, or have lost something, employ little "want ad." The Brand goes all over Castro, Parmer and Deaf Smith counties, as well as into half the states of the union.

BIG CROWD TO THE CONVENTION

Cattlemen Going in Large Numbers to El Paso for Big Round Up

From all over the Plains comes the report that an unusually large number of cattlemen will start next Sunday for El Paso, to attend the Cattlemen's Convention next week. Canadian is sending a special car and a band, while Higgins claims they will have more than they can get in one special coach. A large number from around Hereford are getting ready to go.

Cattlemen all over West Texas, have done well the past year and are in good spirits.

Amarillo is sending a big delegation to try to pull the Convention for that city next year. Albuquerque, N. M. is also trying to land the Convention and the contest is likely to wage warm at El Paso.

Scientific Hog Feeding

Mr. John Zinzer, one of the good farmers north of town a few miles has solved the hog feeding problem in a most scientific way.

Mr. Zinzer about 70 days ago received a load of hogs of about 70 head from down in New Mexico. They averaged 130 lbs here. He put them on a full feed of ground maize supplemented with cotton seed meal in about parts of ten to one using the self feeder mixing the feed as ground. He lets them have access to fresh water all the time.

At the present time a most conservative guess would put them at an average weight of 260 lbs, or a gain of about two pounds per day.

Mr. Zinzer is keeping track of his feed and the gain made on these hogs and a complete report of the experiment will be given later.

Nips Boys for Gambling

Night policeman Ross disturbed a little game last Monday night that was being pulled off at a private residence. Captain Ross and an assistant listened to all the varying fortunes of the game from the outside and after being convinced that the time was opportune the officers entered. They found a game in progress with six participants. As a result of this little visit by the Captain, the city coffers are bulging with something like fifty plunkers that would not otherwise be there.

The officers are receiving wide commendation for their efforts in trying to rid the city of this vice of gambling.

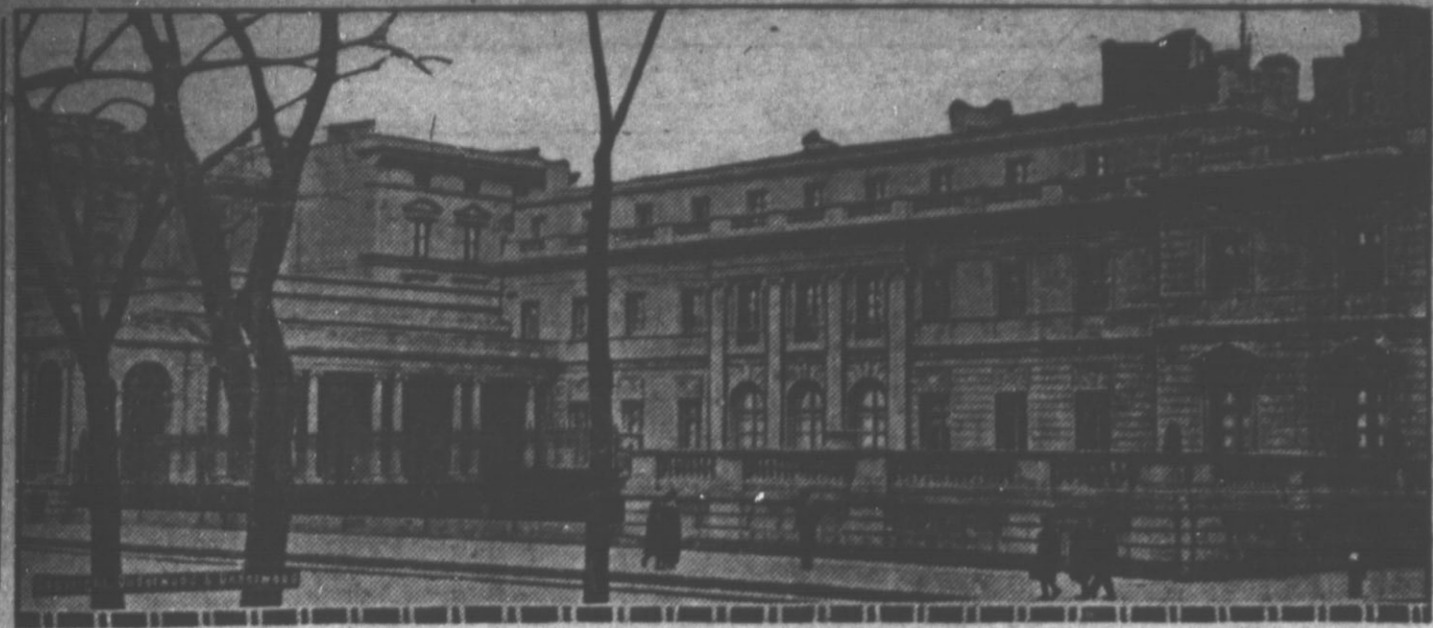

The Car Got There

Mr. J. L. Fuqua was winner in an auto race with the east bound express Thursday morning. Just as the train was pulling out of the station Mr. Fuqua's car was seen hitting the high places about opposite the freight depot carrying two passengers which he wished to transfer to the train. A group of bystanders took much interest in watching the rapid change from the moving car to the disappearing train and as the engine puffed out of sight the two passengers waved a fond farewell to Hereford from the steps of the rear coach.

Getting Out Year Book

The Mothers' Club of this city, are having their year book printed at the Brand office. This club is one of the most efficient forces for good in this county and they have a strong course mapped out for the coming year.

HENRY CLAY FRICK'S $4,000,000 HOME

A palace such as any oriental potentate would envy is the $4,000,000 house in New York which has just been completed by Henry Clay Frick, the coke man of Pittsburgh, who is to make his permanent home there. The palace, which will be occupied by Mr. Frick and his daughter, stands on the ground formerly occupied by the Lenox Library.

Public School Notes

High School

Miss Bess Robertson is again in school after an absence of two weeks caused by an attack of pneumonia.

This week closes the sixth month of our school. The attendance in all rooms is still good, in fact better than the average.

Ernest Woodburn is in school again after an absence of ten days caused by sickness.

The Avon Sketch Club entertained the pupils for an hour on Monday afternoon.

Mr. Dodson is giving the Senior Class some good instructions this week on "Railroads, Railroad Rates Routes, etc." This opportunity is given the Senior Class each year. The course is instructive and Mr. Dodson is certainly well informed on the railroad subject.

"The Starrs," the fifth number of our Lyceum course were to have been with us Wednesday evening, but were delayed at Canyon owing to the change of schedule in the Santa Fe, and the conditions of the road prevented them from making the trip by auto. However, they will be with us later.

The usual Monday morning chapel exercises were not held this week.

The Wilson-McClean Literary Society met Friday afternoon with most of the members present. A special musical program had been prepared and was enjoyed by all present. The girls have pursued the form of study this year of studying a particular author and his work at each meeting.

The boys Philomathean Society met last Friday afternoon with good attendance. The boys have been spending most of their time on the subject of debates. The Societies have done good work this year and the faculty is well pleased with the results.

The Senior Class has begun the first work of the final themes. Some have already chosen their subjects while others are busy finding theirs.

Ruth Myrick was absent two days this week on account of illness.

Seventh Grade

We are sorry to have Willard Garrison out of school for so long. He is one of the leaders of his class.

Accidents will happen even to the most gentle. Lillian Robertson fell and fractured her right arm, but is coming right on to school.

We are now getting the many beautiful word pictures of Longfellow in his "Evangeline." The class is especially interested in this poem as they have just finished studying its historical basis.

Sixth Grade

Viola Rudd accompanied her brother to Spring Lake on business recently. Viola is making good in her school work.

Gladys Hicks has been sick several days.

Marguerite Dameron, Jessie Anthony and Jessie Watson were absent one day this week on account of bad colds. This is the first time they have been out of school this year.

Rowena Money was absent Monday on account of sickness.

Fifth Grade

Several are out of school on account of sickness. Among those who have returned after a siege of colds are Freda Terry, Davis Elliott and Bonnye Brumley.

The pupils of the fifth grade enjoyed an informal program Monday the 22nd in honor of Washington's birthday. The event also marked the closing of a contest between the two divisions of the class. The losing side treated the winners to homemade candy.

Fourth Grade

The fourth grade is glad to welcome Annie Fitzhugh Parker and Mabel Jowell back after an absence because of la grippe.

Elmer Skeen has stopped school and is moving to east Texas.

Both Legs Broken

J. A. Burgess, who resides a few miles east of Lubbock came down on Friday morning's Santa Fe from Amarillo, where he had been at the bedside of his brother, J. W. Burgess, whose home is near Tulla in Swisher county. Mr. Burgess was the victim of a runaway accident Saturday, February 6th, when his team ran away with him and Mr. Burgess suffered the breaking of both his legs. He was taken to Amarillo, to one of the hospitals there, for treatment and when Mr. Burgess left, he was resting easy as possible under the conditions. Lubbock Avalanche.

A new "Ford" stooey is going the rounds and is about like this: A man bought a Ford and drove it about twelve miles when it stopped.

He got out to see what the trouble was and raised the hood and to his surprise there was no engine. The car had been running on its reputation.

FACTS AND FICTION

Experiences of Hereford Citizens Are Easily Proven Facts

The most superficial investigation will prove that the following statement from a resident of Hereford is true. Read it and compare evidence from Hereford people with testimony of strangers living so far away you cannot investigate the facts of the case. Many more citizens of Hereford endorse Doan's Kidney Pills:

B. W. Miller, E. Eleventh & F. Sts., Hereford, says. "I got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills from Woodburn & Son's drug store, when I was suffering from pain in my back and they quickly relieved me. Now when I stoop or lift I don't have that pain in my loins and the trouble with my kidneys has also been removed."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Miller had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Avon Sketch Club Pleases

The Avon Sketch Club presented by the high school lyceum bureau on Wednesday evening was well received. It was a good company and worthy of the excellent hearing given it.

Noted Actress Loses Limb

Sarah Bernhard under went an operation Monday for the removal of one limb at the knee. The operation was made necessary by an infection caused from an injury received while working in a field hospital in France waiting on wounded soldiers.

She says she will go back on the stage as soon as an artificial limb can be fitted.

Two Legislative Sessions

It is now almost certain that the legislature of Texas will hold an extra session, and probably two.

The work mapped out cannot be completed by the time set for adjournment which is about Mar. 25.

The members of the state legislature are allowed $5 per day for 60 days and after that $1.00 per day.

By adjourning and holding a special session they are allowed to draw their regular pay which is certainly small enough if they are worth their salt.

I know him

I know a man who thinks that he could write a book or tame a bee; could run the earth in every way much better than its run today; could sail a boat or ride a mule, or teach the teacher in the school; could beat the band at every squeak were he to train about a week; could do all these were he to try. He doesn't tho—I wonder why? I know him like a printed book, as well as though I were his cook. I know he thinks that he could run the universe and call it fun; if he could only get a start, that he would play a wondrous part. But still he site around and waits, and on his merits cogitates. Perform in every line? Great Scott! He knows he could—but he does not. Now, how can I such insight show, and say to him that this is so? I be man's myself—I ought to know.—Ex.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one graded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ESCAPE OF FRENCH DISPATCH RIDER

This, one of the most extraordinary photographs received from the war area, was taken at St. Die, in the Vosges mountains, and shows the escape of a French dispatch rider from a party of Germans that he encountered. His horse being shot in the leg, he dismounted and dashed into a house where some French soldiers were resting. These troops soon accounted for the pursuing Germans.

The Hereford Brand
(A NEWS PAPER)
Published by
The Brand Publishing Co.
S. F. GUTHRIE, Editor

Address all communications to BRAND PUBLISHING CO.

Entered April 11, 1901, in the postoffice at Hereford, Texas, as Second-class mail matter. First number of the paper issued February 28, 1901, as the Hereford Reporter; first number of The Brand issued March 21, 1902.

Subscription Price $1.00 Per Year, Strictly in Advance

Any erroneous statement affecting the character or reputation of any individual or firm which may appear in The Brand, will be gladly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the publishers.

There are no better people on earth than live here.

This country is filling up with new people. The merchant who advertises will get their trade. Getting their trade when they first come usually means holding it. Use the Brand as a business wooer.

We want all the news while it is fresh. Phone your any local happenings to the office or write and send it, we will appreciate the favor. We want to give a real live paper and the work is hard while we are strangers. You can be of great help.

Don't grouch. If this town doesn't suit you, and you are sure, positively absolutely sure, that in spite of your very best efforts, the situation is hopeless and the whole thing is surely, swiftly going to the bows, don't allow yourself to be engulfed in the general malestrom but pack your go-a-broadway and scoot.

A good newspaper is a town's most valuable asset, but no one man can make a great newspaper. The community must help. It takes money and lots of it to run a good newspaper and it is only the community that liberally patronizes a paper in all its departments that can hope for a good paper with a pulling a power.

One of the most inconsistent individuals we ever met is the man who growls at taxes, and yet insists that the public school must be kept up to a high standard of efficiency; who, individually has no use for churches, yet desires his children to attend Sunday School; who welcomes saloons and their companion institutions, yet is anxious for his boy to become a respected citizen. Paradoxical though it sounds, there are men of just that type—we all know them.

HEREFORD RECEIVES ATTENTION

As an evidence that the Hereford Brand has a far reaching influence in advertising this section, attention is called to the fact that the Fort Worth Record of last Monday gave nearly a column of space to a reproduction of the Brand's write up of the first Farmers Short Course ever held here under the direction of the Farm Demonstrator.

Prof. Ben Short of Hereford, who attended these sessions and prepared this article for the Brand, deserves special mention in this connection as the article not only contained much valuable information, but was well prepared.

WILL THEY ENJOY HEAVEN?

Last week two noted characters, both of whom have been in the public eye for more than half a century, passed from earth to the great beyond. Both died confessing faith in the Savior of men. Both believed in life beyond the "swelling tide" where joy shall be the soul's natural state. The lives of these two were in such marked contrast, both in their ideals and their influence, that it is impossible to think of them as enjoying the same things in that celestial land unless their identity is lost, and if identity is lost, then we are not the same but another.

The life of Fannie J. Crosby was for more than half a century a poem of love and benediction for all whose life in any way touched hers. Her eyes long closed to the beauties of this world her soul caught the higher beauty of life and even pierced the jasper walls that divides heaven and earth, and life beyond will but be an unfolding of the beauty of character developed here. Thousands over there will bring to her assurances of the great good she wrought in their lives while here.

On the other hand, Frank James, a character whose life tasted of nearly every crime and seemed to revel in deeds evil, paid the debt of nature and passed out from the shores of this life to another beyond. After years of crime of the most diabolical kind, remorse seemed to overwhelm his soul and he professed faith in a Savior whose blood was shed to cleanse the vilest sinner of all his spots. None doubts the efficiency of the Savior's power to remake the character of even this man and save him.

But how shall heaven appeal to these two most diverse characters? The eyes of Fanny Crosby will open to behold and enjoy in full measure the things she loved here and heaven will be but a continuation of life here on a larger and fuller scale.

Frank James will find himself amidst the things that his life tried to destroy. How will they affect him? Will his soul, although cleansed and renewed, respond to all the beauty of both form and substance as does the soul of the sweeter life who expressed her soul's beauty in melody of song?

We don't believe it.

The supreme lesson of these two lives is that getting to heaven is not all. A life spent here in preparation for celestial life will be prepared to enjoy more than one spent in defiance of God's law, though at last bringing the dregs of life to the altar. No sower of wild oats can ever return and be the same as tho' a more worthy crop of ideals and endeavor had been sown.

Brand Ads Bring Results

The following letter from one of the Brand's pleased customers shows how far a "want ad" in the Brand reaches:

Hereford Brand,
Hereford, Texas.

Gentlemen: Enclosed find 25c as per your statement of my account.

The Brand must be all right. I received more replies to my ad than I have been able to answer—even got them as far away as Mississippi. Put an ad in the Dallas News at the same time and ran it five times including Sunday, and did not receive an answer.

Hoping that everything is well with Hereford and the Brand, I am,
Yours very truly,

SOLD RELICS OF WASHINGTON

Two Authenticated Pistols and a Medicine Chest of His Auctioned in New York.

Two pistols which George Washington carried through the Revolution, a medicine chest which belonged to him and "Light Horse Harry" Lee's flag were sold at auction at New York during the past year. There are no Washington pistols in Mount Vernon or in the National museum at Washington.

The genuineness of the offerings was attested by a documentary record of their sale in 1894, in Alexandria, Va., at the disposal of the effects of Washington's secretary, Bartholomew Dandridge, to whom the general presented the weapons. Their presence in 1894 at the partition of the Marsteller estate is attested. Col. Philip G. Marsteller, one of Washington's pallbearers, bought them at the Dandridge sale for $6.3a.

The pistols are of the flintlock type. They were made by Hawkins of London and bear the gunmaker's guild proof mark "G. P." Silver hands across the butts are engraved "General George Washington."

The medicine chest is of mahogany and walnut, about one foot square, with brass handles. Lee's flag is about two feet square. It had fallen apart from age, but the pieces were saved and are held in place by thin netting.

Washington the Man.

Washington occupies a unique place, not only in the history of the United States, but in the history of the world. No man of such recent years enjoys such a splendid perspective. America views him, not as a man but as a demigod. He looms vast, a hero with the awesome, inspiring splendor that invests the deities of Greek mythology. And yet, Washington the man is very real to us.

May his memory be cherished forever.

Don't be deceived when they tell you "there's none in town." Just call 76, E. W. Harrison. 3-2t

THIS WOMAN WAS VERY UNHAPPY

Physically and Mentally Worn Out—Tells How Nervous and Crying Spells Were Ended by Vinol.

Monmouth, Ill.—"I was weak, worn-out and nervous. I had no appetite and was getting so thin and discouraged, one day I just broke down and cried when a friend came in and asked me what was the matter. I told of my condition and how nothing I took seemed to do me any good. Vinol was suggested. I got a bottle and before it was half gone I could eat and sleep well. I continued its use and now my friends say I look ten years younger, and I am well, healthy and strong. I wish I could induce every tired-out, worn-out, nervous woman to take Vinol."—Mrs. HARRIET GALE, Monmouth, Ill.

There are many over-worked, tired-out careworn, nervous women in this vicinity who need the strengthening, tissue building, and vitalizing effects of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, and so sure are we that it will build them up and make them strong that we offer to return their money if it fails to benefit.

Vinol is a delicious preparation of the extract of cod liver oil and peptonate of iron and contains no oil.

"From Hoke Smiths."

Senator Hoke Smith of Georgia has had babies named after him so numerous and for so many years that now his mail is interspersed every day with letters from various other Hoke Smiths. He has his morning mail sorted into several classes, which include: "Important," "Unimportant," and "From Hoke Smiths." Even though he has grown used to it of late, it seems funny to sign his Hoke Smith to a letter directed to Hoke Smith Jones or any of the scores of other Hoke Smiths that keep writing to him.

What Rigid Inspection Means

Maintaining the quality of a number of products with a large business and varying buyer's requirements is not always a simple matter. It can only be accomplished where the most careful inspection of all products is frequently made.

At Port Arthur, Texas, laboratories are maintained to permit of the continuous inspection of Texaco Products manufactured there, so that quality, for which they are famous, will be kept up.

These laboratories have further matters to consider, for they are the places where new ideas, methods and possibilities are thoroughly tried out and investigated with the object of providing the best possible means of manufacture and the most practical value.

Port Arthur laboratories are a part of Texaco Quality and Service by which these products made in Texas have been foremost in oil manufactures.

CALOMEL IS MERCURY! IT SICKENS!
 ACTS ON LIVER LIKE DYNAMITE

"Dodson's Liver Tone" Starts Your Liver Better Than Calomel and Doesn't Salivate or Make You Sick.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work! Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile crabses into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone on my guarantee.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful tonight and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick. I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless, doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

The Twenty Million Dollar Mystery

Written by HAROLD McGRATH. Produced in Moving Pictures by THE THANHOUSER COMPANY

SYNOPSIS.

Zudora is left an orphan at an early age. Her father is killed in a gold mine, and the fortune from the mine, which grows to be worth $20,000,000, goes into the guardianship of Frank Kamm, Zudora's mother's brother, who has set himself up as a Hindu mystic and is known as Hassam Ali. He decides that Zudora must die before she can have a share of the money, so that it may be left to him, the most of his. Hassam Ali sees an obstacle in his scheme in the person of John Storm, a young lawyer, for whom Zudora has taken a fancy, and he commands the girl to put the man out of her mind. Zudora insists that if she cannot marry Storm she will marry no one.

"Well, well," says Hassam Ali, "I've got my own ways and you can marry me, but in a single case and you must announce him."

Zudora unravels a mystery and wins her first case—a case in which John Storm is saved from being convicted of a murder instigated by Hassam Ali himself.

Zudora and Hassam Ali visit Nabok Khan's house, where she attempts to marry a princess. Storm, seeking Zudora, is made a prisoner. Zudora follows Nabok Khan, restores the princess to her original lover and saves Storm from death.

A maker of diamonds tells Hassam Ali his secret. Storm informs Zudora that his life is being attempted frequently. Storm suspects Hassam Ali. Storm is arrested for stealing the diamond maker's gems, but Zudora discovers the real thieves—a pair of mice.

The negro help employed on Storm's father's farm are fleeing because a great skeleton appears at night upon a hill near by. Storm is baffled in his investigation, but Zudora learns that her uncle has employed Jimmy Bolton, a half-witted man, thus to annoy Storm's parents. Zudora finds Bolton operating a big magic lantern and is attacked by him. Storm appears and saves her.

Hassam Ali asks Zudora to find a gem lost by two mysterious old men. Zudora gets a photograph of the gem and it burns in her hand. An old house is mined by Hassam Ali and the old men. Storm and Zudora are lured there and narrowly escape destruction when the house blows up.

John McWintler, endeavoring to trap and kill George Smith, is killed himself, and Smith is charged with murder. Hassam Ali conspires to have John Storm meet the same fate as McWintler, and he and Storm are overcome by powerful fumes. Zudora saves them, proves that McWintler's own dog trapped and killed him and saves Smith from a band of lynchmen.

An inventor blows up a submarine with a powerful heat ray which he sends through water. Hassam Ali sends Zudora to a photographer directly beneath the inventor's laboratory and orders the inventor to kill her. Zudora gets a warning, and her life is saved. The heat ray machine is destroyed, and the photographer, after a quarrel with Hassam Ali, is found dead in the river.

Wu Chang prevents Zudora's elopement with John Storm by hypnotizing her, and she and Hassam Ali attempt to smuggle her out of the country. This plot is frustrated by Storm.

Baird, Hassam Ali's double, falls in love with Zudora. Baird and Mme. Du Val kidnap Zudora and the Van Wick child. Storm rescues them, and Hassam Ali dies.

With Hassam Ali dead Zudora is released of her pledge to solve twenty cases. She confronts, however, the greatest mystery of all, which is the mystery of her own life, and the ambition to secure the vast fortune of $20,000,000 left to her. This great photo serial is being shown in the leading moving picture theaters by the Thanhouse Company. Among those participating are Marguerite Snow, Mary Elizabeth Forbes, James Cruise, in the new role of reporter-hero, Sidney Bracey and Frank Farrington.

On looking through her uncle's papers Zudora finds that her father left her an interest in a diamond mine, and Storm and Baird both lend assistance in trying to regain for her possession of this estate which is being appropriated by rogues under the leadership of Mme. Du Val. They plan to frighten Zudora so that she will run away.

CHAPTER XII. Bag of Diamonds.

TROUBLES never come singly, is a saying as old as the hills. One morning came the bolt from the blue. The gold mine, with its millions, was no more. A terrible landslide had wiped it out of existence, at the least buried it under thousands of feet of rock and rubble. On top of this figuratively the trustees had absconded with the reserve, and Zudora was at the beginning of things again. There was, then, nothing but this diamond mine, of which she knew nothing except that it existed and that some one else was profiting by its output.

Detective Hunt had agencies throughout the world, and the latest diamond mine registered under the name of sweetheart will be rich one of these days, Storm. Did you know that every penny of the western gold mine has been taken to the Orient with absconding trustees?"

"What are you talking about?" demanded John.

"Why, the Zudora gold mine, rated among the richest in the world, kept hidden from Zudora by her uncle for years."

Storm was dumfounded. "And she never told me the slightest word about it?"

"For fear old Hassam Ali would stick a knife into your back, my boy."

"I understand now! That devil was giving Zudora these cases to lure her to her death. Good heavens! And that girl kept her secret! But who controls this diamond mine. It is illegally done. How are we to get at it?"

"Cable the superintendent that you are the attorney for the rightful owner of the mine and demand a full inventory of the property and its output."

"A bully idea! And now I'll take this whopping good news to the girl herself. She's all the time talking about the evil star, but this looks as if it were on the wane. Luck! I should rather say it was luck!"

Zudora was overjoyed when she learned that the mine itself had been discovered. Gently Storm chided her in regard to the gold.

"I did not tell you because I did not want you involved, John. And, more than that, I was afraid I might lose you."

"Lose me?"

"Yes. I was afraid that so much money would frighten you away."

Storm laughed. "The only way you can frighten me is to tell me that you don't love me."

"Well, then, I shall never be able to frighten you," she smiled back at him.

"And now," said Storm, "I'm off to send that cable before those crooks can get the benefit of the find. Oh, we'll come out on top. You wait."

"I'm going to, John. I'm going to wait until there are no more clouds anywhere. Then I'll marry you."

"That's a bargain!"

"A real bargain. Goodby, and may your cable bring good luck to us all."

There appeared a story in one of the Sunday newspapers about the Zudora find. The mine had been paying, but not largely. The description of the mine was well done. One saw the Kaffirs in breech cloths digging in the bluish clay, the white men on guard to make sure that none of the natives hid a stone. Suddenly one blazing hot afternoon one of the Kaffirs came running over to the nearest watcher. He exhibited a stone of several carats, a real find. The watcher, who was a Kaffir, was suspended from his neck and gave the signal to quit work for the day. The Kaffirs dropped their tools and fled away under escort of the watchers. There followed a little sketch of how a crooked Kaffir was caught with a gem hidden in his ear. The African was promptly arrested and marched off to jail.

Henry Howard, the superintendent, was seated at his desk when the head watcher came in with the find. It weighed three carats and was of the purest white. A stone of this quality meant more. Howard immediately cabled the supposed owners. The next day the strike traveled up and down the region.

Bruce, the smuggler himself, received the cable, and he hastened away to acquaint Mme. Du Val with what had happened. Mme. Du Val and several others were in the Grecian salon when he arrived through the secret passage. He was greeted enthusiastically. Mme. Du Val looked extremely beautiful to him at that moment. There were times when he wished his friend Radcliffe in the nether regions. The woman puzzled him. She was rich. Her home was one of the most beautiful in or about New York, yet she played a crooked game. She was evidently one of those women who played the game for the sport of it, for the blind hardships, and the excitement. The morals of her engagements never bothered her. He had watched Radcliffe for some time and gathered no little satisfaction from the fact that Mme. Du Val simply tolerated him because he was a redoubtable schemer, brave and shrewd.

"Well, what's to be done?" inquired Radcliffe.

"Send for Howard to bring the diamonds here. We will have to see that man personally. That story in the newspapers is the devil to pay. The girl is sure to see. If not she, Storm, it's going to be a big game now, instead of a little one," Bruce declared.

"All the more excitement in pulling the wool over the eyes of the law. This man Howard may be an honest man," said Madame.

"In that case, good night to Mr. Howard, and we'll put a man in his place who will not bother us with questions so long as he gets his rake-off," said Radcliffe.

When Harry Howard received the cable directing him to bring the month's find to New York he frowned. There was another cable at hand, and this one astonished him greatly upon its arrival. For years he had been sending the small but valuable output to those he believed the rightful owner, and here was a contestant, and this contestant seemed to be a legitimate one. It was a mixup that disturbed him greatly.

There had always been something mysterious about the present owners. He had never seen any one of them, only their accredited agent, who invariably presented a lettered heart when he came to claim the diamonds. And now they wanted him in New York. Was there any sinister purpose behind this command? Henry Howard was an honest man, and before many weeks he was going to pay for his honesty.

He sent two cablegrams, one to the present company and one to John Storm. The first read, "Will come to New York." The second read, "Arrive New York 10th. Will give accounting of Zudora mine." Then he booked his passage and sailed from Cape Town to Liverpool.

Storm was elated over his cable. He informed Zudora, and they visited Detective Hunt. And while they and Hunt were talking over the affair Baird came in, looking rather debonaire and carrying a cane. At first he had had some difficulty in looking Storm or Zudora in the eyes, remembering how at the instigation of the real Hassam Ali he had attempted the young lawyer's life. But these days he was able to look with serenity into the eyes of all mankind.

"Hello, Baird!" cried Hunt. "You're just the man I want for a stunt."

"I'm always ready for that."

Zudora looked at him gratefully. Somehow his eyes always puzzled her. It always seemed that somewhere she had known these eyes intimately. The four of them left the office together and later separated in front of a florist's shop.

"Now," said Hunt, "a little work for you, Friend Baird."

"I'm with you, if there's any excitement in it."

"There'll be some. I want to keep a watch on that garage and junk shop where the money was put that night. Something strange about that junk shop. People go in there and don't come out again. There's some kind of a tunnel, and between you and me and the gate post this tunnel leads to the marble home of Mme. Du Val."

"I never heard anything about a tunnel," said Baird honestly.

"Or you saw but one of the facets of this clever diamond woman. In that day you were using her; consequently she did not tell you any of her secrets. Now you watch the hut and I'll watch the marble palace, and then we'll compare notes as to whom we see enter or leave the hut and the palace."

But when they compared notes they had nothing that was important.

About four weeks later, however, they were rewarded. Baird saw Bruce enter the hut and disappear, and Detective Hunt saw Bruce come out of the villa without apparently having entered it. Hunt proceeded to follow his man back to town. Bruce had an office in one of the downtown skyscrapers. The door had no business announcement, such as is usually found upon office doors. There was merely a number, and below that in small letters the word "private." Private, Hunt was sure this office was. He hung about in the shadow until Bruce left, when he set about calmly to pick the lock. He was rather curious to see what kind of an office this was. He found many interesting documents, but nothing incriminating. The smuggler was a shrewd fox.

Suddenly Hunt heard footsteps. He heard a key in the lock. Bruce had returned! Hunt made a quick scramble out of the window, where he clung to the iron shutter. The effort was worth his while. The man who accompanied Bruce was none other than Howard, the superintendent of the Zudora diamond mine. This conversation was going to be interesting. Bruce had put one over. Evidently Howard's boat had been a day from the trip, as he had been scheduled to arrive the following morning.

"You have the gems?" asked Bruce.

"I have."

"You pulled them through the customs?"

"I did. But that does not mean that I intended to keep their arrival a secret from the United States government."

"Oh! was the noncommittal utterance of Bruce.

"Now, Mr. Bruce," went on Howard, "there is another claimant to this mine."

"And with not a foot to stand on," said Bruce triumphantly.

"Well, that remains to be seen."

"What do you mean?"

"Why, that this muddle has got to be thrashed out. I'm honest, Mr. Bruce." Detective Hunt grinned from behind his shutter.

"Nobody accused you of not being honest," said Bruce indignantly. "We'll go right now and get the facts as our side know them, and you'll realize that it will take a long siege in court to pry this mine out of our hands. Come along. Are the gems in that valise?"

"In a false bottom."

"Ah!"

Detective Hunt did not like the sound of that ejaculation. He was mighty glad that he had detailed Baird to keep an eye on the garage. Bruce meant to play some trick on Howard. There was nothing for Hunt to do but trust to Baird's watchfulness.

Sure enough, half an hour later, Baird saw Bruce and the stranger enter the hut, and almost immediately two rough looking men and another whom Baird recognized as Gyp the gun man came into view. Baird remained in his hiding place. It was going to be a long wait, and he wanted the men to reappear before he left. He wanted Gyp's status in this affair.

Meantime Bruce and Howard arrived at Mme. Du Val's through the tunnel. This tunnel did not particularly reassure the superintendent of the Zudora diamond mine. Why all this bother to enter his employer's house? Were they smuggling the gems, then, and this tunnel was for madame's go-betweens? He did not like the business at all. He was more than ever inclined to the opinion that he had been long the dupe of these people.

But Mme. Du Val impressed him. The beauty of her home and its luxurious furnishings rather upset his preconceived ideas. This woman was already rich. Why all this mummery? He took a dislike to Radcliffe immediately. The other individuals he met he rather ignored. But he is duty bound to turn over his present possession of diamonds. The other claimant must establish proofs. That was all there was to it.

While madame engaged his attention Bruce signaled to Radcliffe, and they strolled out into the conservatory.

"That man," whispered Bruce, "is thinking of going to the other side. Hassam Ali's niece has tumbled to the fact that this mine is really hers. You already knew that she held that gold mine in Montana, worth a king's ransom. Well, I've faked stuff to make her believe that a landslide has destroyed the mine and that the trustees have absconded with the funds. This was done with the idea of making Zudora and Storm hike out to Montana to investigate. Once there there was a mighty slim chance of their ever coming back. But, oddly enough, they have accepted the fake as truth and have made no effort to go out there. I'll write another anonymous note advising them that it would pay to investigate the report. But meantime there's this man Howard to take care of. We'll warn him, and if he does not fall in with us—why, he must be pushed off the board."

"I'll take care of that end of it," agreed Radcliffe. "We're running too smoothly to let a fool cog us up. Trust me."

They returned to the salon, and a quarter of an hour later Bruce and Howard departed.

Gyp and his two companions then entered the salon and were given a small bag with the best of the gems. They were to be cut at once in case Howard jumped the traces. Gyp and his companions returned to the old garage of junk but. The moment they left the hut for the street Baird followed. He had an inkling that they were going to the diamond cutter's with the Howard collection, and he determined that the game should never get that far.

The three crooks finally went into a saloon, as Baird had a suspicion they would. He strolled in and took the table next to them. Under the table he saw the little valise. And while the three were busily engaged in the pleasant pastime of shaking dice for the drinks Baird neatly fished the valise from under the table with the crook of his cane. Then he left the saloon, and once outside he lay to it as fast as his legs could go.

Mme. Du Val's Rage Was Terrible.

There was a fine racket in that saloon when the crooks discovered their loss. Each accused the other of carelessness. Gyp, more than the other two, appreciated the thunderbolt that had fallen at his feet. Radcliffe would kill him out of hand. In terror he collapsed on the table. His companions dragged him from the saloon, and the three started out on the hopeless task of hunting for a man with an ivory crook to his cane.

That evening Howard found a note which filled him with consternation. It was an open threat from his employers. He was walking on thin ice. But he was an old hand at warfare. He had lived too many years in Africa to be really afraid of threats. He merely slipped an automatic into his pocket and went about his affairs calmly.

That same evening Zudora and Storm were greeted with a tremendous surprise.

Mrs. Ramsey, with whom Zudora was living, knocked to say that a Mr. Baird was anxious to see Zudora.

"Send him right up!"

Baird was greeted cordially. He put the valise on the table, opened it, lifted the false bottom, and there lay a handful of uncut diamonds, a comfortable fortune for any reasonable person.

"What has happened?" demanded Zudora, greatly excited.

Briefly Baird recounted his adventure, and when he had done the girl seized Storm and began to waltz him around the room. But these uncut stones could not be kept in the house, nor could they take them and sell them or deposit them in a safety box at a bank. What to do with them now they had them? Until the mine was indubitably proved to be Zudora's legally they had no right to them. Morally they had, of course. Then Mrs. Ramsey made a suggestion.

"Why not hide them in yonder flower-erpot?"

They congratulated Mrs. Ramsey upon her happy thought. After the stones were hidden Baird took his departure.

Gyp and his frightened companions after having hunted futilely for the man with the ivory headed cane finally concluded that the best thing they could do was to go to Mme. Du

"I'll wager Hunt is back of this trap," said Radcliffe. "You see, we've got to act quickly, and I think that Munn game is the best we can use. Get Zudora in this private asylum and it will take ten Sherlock Holmeses to get her out."

"Very well. We will make the arrangements at once. Zudora must be put away. That will relieve the pressure against us."

Dr. Munn received them, a smirk on his face. Visitors of this character always meant "patients." He never inquired into his clients' motives. Terribly he was given his lines.

"It must be accomplished at once," said Mme. Du Val.

"Leave it to me, madame. How long will your patient remain here?"

"Forever, if you can make that possible."

"Many of my patients are afflicted with strange illnesses, and generally they die. But it is very expensive."

"Will $10,000 cover these expenses?"

"Amplly, madame."

The first individual to disappear from the haunts of men was Howard, the diamond mine superintendent.

The second to vanish was Zudora. Bruce and Radcliffe accomplished the feat dexterously by means of a ladder to Zudora's window. She was half asleep when they fell upon her, bound and gagged her. They searched in vain for the diamonds, which they were confident Zudora had hidden in this room somewhere. They even lifted the plant out of the flower pot, but fortunately did not examine the dirt carefully. They hung it to the floor, where later John found the stones scattered about.

Radcliffe wrapped a blanket about the girl and took her out of the win-down and deposited her inside the waiting taxicab. A moment later they were bowling away at a furious rate, and by midnight Zudora was confronted with the terrible knowledge that she was an inmate of one of those dreadful houses she had often heard and read about—a private insane asylum!

And in the very next room paced the man who wanted to be loyal to her interests—Henry Howard!

Amazing Aversions.

Vincent, the great painter, would swoon upon going suddenly into a room where roses were blooming, even though he did not see them. Valta tells us of an army officer who was frequently thrown into violent convulsions by coming in contact with the little flower known as the pink. This same authority also tells of the case of a lady who, when she saw a white headdress, who if present when lined was being boiled for any purpose would be seized with violent fits of coughing, swelling of the face and partial loss of reason for the ensuing twenty-four hours.

Writing of these peculiar antipathies and aversions, Montague remarks that he has known men of undoubted courage who would much rather face a shower of cannon balls than look at an apple. In Zimmerman's writings there is an account of a lady who could not bear to touch either silk or satin and would almost faint if by accident she should happen to touch the velvety skin of a peach. Boyle records the case of a man who would faint upon hearing the "swish" of a broom across the floor and of another with a natural abhorrence of honey. Hippocrates of old tells of one Nicanor, who would always swoon at hearing the sound of a flute.—Pearson's.

Tough Silk Grass.

The best fish line is made in Honduras of "silk grass," one plant of which has from fifty to a hundred leaves up to nine feet long. The fiber is so strong that the native drivers of ox teams in the mahogany camps braid their bull whips from it, preferring it to leather. Experiments are now under way to see if it can be cultivated profitably.

Trainer, but as yet nothing had turned up. Hunt was in his office one day busy with clippings about diamond news when a name struck his eye: "A rich strike at the Zudora in South Africa. Owners are highly enthusiastic." Hunt snatched up his hat and hurried off to John Storm's office. Here was something tangible.

"That's Trainer's mine, I'll wager my hat," said the detective jubilantly. "Ever see such luck? If I hadn't been sitting, looking over the news of the day on diamonds just to see what might be tried in the smuggling line we might have gone on until the end of time before we'd have landed within a thousand miles of the place. ALIEN PRISONERS IN CANADA MILITARY CAMP

German and Austrian aliens are being interned in concentration camps at various points in Canada, and have been set to useful public work—clearing land and building roads. The photograph shows a batch of prisoners airing their bedding at Petawawa, Canada's permanent military camp, situated in the wilds of northern Ontario.

Crop and Stock Notes

Recently J. W. Johnson sold to C. W. Terry of Portales, N. M.; 20
head of registered Hereford heifers, 8 to 10 months old for fancy prices.
Mr. Terry also bought a good young bull to go with herd, paying a good price for same. He is starting a pure-bred Hereford business and came here to get his foundation, and it is expected he will be heard from later. Childress Post.

Some Good Herefords
The editor of this paper in company with W. L. Boys farm demonstrator and Mr. Able of the Cordova hotel were taken out by Mr. William Womble to his farm north-east of Hereford nine miles. Here the party were shown Mr. Womble's fine herd of pure-bred Herefords. This is one of the best pure-bred herds in the Panhandle and consists of a fine string of cows and heifers headed by three young bulls of show ring quality. Any one who does not believe the Panhandle has fine cattle should see this herd.

J. C. Hooper and Alex Anderson continue to buy cattle for their ranch near Plainview. Mr. Anderson was at Lorenzo this week and bought 300 black muley 2 year old steers and sent them here. Wednesday he was at Post City and bought 70 head of 3 year old steers and Mr.
Hooper was expecting them in last night on the train. They now have 600 head of cattle on their ranch.—
Plainview News.

Bob Montgomery of Borden Co is here. This morning he closed a deal with Chis Slaton for 65 coming two year old thoroughbred white face heifers at $52.50 a head, and they will be shipped to his Borden county ranch next week. Mr. Montgomery is an old-time Hale county man, having here for 23 years previous to his removal to Borden county last year. He says he was one of the first men to ever be in Plainview, and still has a warm spot in his heart for the town and its people.—

G. L. Fawver sold and delivered four head of hogs to N. A. Armstrong in Floydada last Friday, the four netting a total weight of 2090 pounds, or an average of 532 1-2 pounds. He received six cents per pound for the hogs, or approximately $120. Mr. Fawver is a strong believer in hogs and maize as a money-making combination. He specializes in Duroc Jersey hogs, which he considers the best breed of several popular kinds. His stock of hogs are all well-bred, having breeders from some of the best strains of the Duroc Jerseys in the state.—Hesperian.

Calves Top K. C. Market
The highest cattle sold on the Kansas City market last Monday was a load of 74 head of fed calves from the pens of N. A. Armstrong, Floydada, which brought $7.85, and averaged 673 pounds. This price was 10 cents higher than anything else on the market for the day.
The bunch of calves attracted quite a bit of attention from buyers and commission men.—Hesperian.

Hereford Hogs Top Market
Mr. James Robinson three miles south of Hereford got returns last week from a load of hogs shipped to Fort Worth and these hogs topped the market for that day selling for $7.10. These hogs were fed on kafir and milo supplemented with a little oil meal. This goes to show that there is no better feed than the crops raised here for feeding hogs.
Mr. Robinson is using the self feeder plan.

Windmill Irrigation Success
Mr. G. W. Smith, one of the business men of Hereford is demonstrating in a small way what can be done irrigating in this shallow water belt with a wind mill.

Mr. Smith has five acres in the west part of town that he watered last year from a windmill. He says he had plenty of water and raised a splendid crop of feed and vegetables of all kinds. Mr. Smith says that with two good steel wind pumps together with a gasoline engine to use when the wind is still, and a tank or reservoir he can water fifteen acres abundantly, and that a man can make a living on fifteen acres and some money by raising a diversity of crops, such as berries, vegetables and grain crops.

It looks as though the use of this water by windmill pumping is likely to develop in N. M. in a few years.
Of course it is not so successful as a good pumping plant, but for the man that can't afford the large plant it solves the problem.
Once the eastern farmer learns that a good living can be made on ten and twenty acres there should be an influx of small farmers here that will make this country blossom.

Carter Harrison Defeated
Carter Harrison for seven terms.
Mayor of Chicago was defeated at the recent Democratic primary by Robert Swertzer by a large majority.
Although Mrs. Carter Harrison took an active part among the women voters in the interest of her husband, the large part of the women suffrage vote went for Swertzer.

We need a few more ears maize.

It Always Helps
says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Gardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Gardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Gardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill.
I wish every suffering woman would give GARDUI
The Woman's Tonic
a trial. I still use Gardui when I feel a little bad, and it always does me good."
Headache, backache, side ache, nervousness, fired, worn-out feelings, etc., are sure signs of a woman's trouble. Signs that you need Gardui, the woman's tonic. You cannot make a mistake with Gardui for your trouble. It has been helping suffering women for more than fifty years.

HOLY SHRINES OF FREEDOM

Headquarters Occupied by Washington Throughout the Country Are to Be Preserved.

THROUGH the efforts of the various patriotic societies many of the old houses made famous by Washington as his headquarters during the war of independence, have been preserved and are now suitably marked for the information of posterity.

Cambridge, Mass., points proudly to the fact that many occupied by Washington. First Washington lived in the residence set apart for principals of the college. Then he moved to the home of a fervent Loyalist, John Vassall, later this became the residence of Henry W. Livingston.

great post, and here were written many of his works since become world famous. Washington had many houses in New York. None is more beautiful than the building now known as the Jumel mansion. This was his headquarters from September 18 to October 21, 1776. It is also rich in memories of Aaron Burr, who married the widow of Stephen Jumel. Jumel gained possession of the house when Roger Morris and his wife fled because their Tory sympathies threatened to get them in difficulties. It was Mrs. Morris, who as Mary Phillips, George Washington wooed in vain. At Neshaminy, 20 miles north of Philadelphia, is a headquarters of Washington rich in historic memories. It is a rough stone building, two stories in height, located near the bridge over the Little Neshaminy creek. Here Washington held an important council of war, at which for the first time the young Marquis de Lafayette took his place as one of Washington's advisers. The Valley Forge headquarters of Washington is justly famed as one of the holiest shrines of American freedom. This old stone house was the residence of the founder of the time

The Neshaminy Headquarters when the fortunes of the cause went to their very lowest. On the Hudson is the venerable structure that did Washington service at Newburgh. This had a military use. It was situated on a bluff that overlooks the river for eight miles to West Point.

MAKING THE BEST OF IT

Bobby—it ain't much of a cherry tree, but as long as I'm playing George Washington it'll have to do.

Washington's Birthplace Gone. Washington was born February 22, 1732, at Bridges Creek, Westmoreland county, Va. The home in which he was born burned down in 1735. No vestige remains, only a stone placed there by George Washington Parke Custis to mark the site of the "old low-pitched farm house"
