Reagan says

Force may be used on other terrorists

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, sketching more details of his plans for dealing with terrorism, said the United States might attack the capitals of Iran and Syria if there was "irrefutable evidence" that either country was behind a terrorist act.

Administration officials, in an effort to show increasing international unity, on Wednesday cited a West German decision to oust more Libyans as evidence of increasing Western European efforts to combat terrorism. They added that Reagan would keep the pressure on when he goes to the Tokyo summit next month by asking the leaders of the major democracies to do more.

The president made his comment about military retaliation when asked during a White House interview with a group of reporters and editors whether he would order raids on the capitals of Syria and Iran.

"Yes, if we had that kind of evidence," Reagan replied. "If we have irrefutable evidence, I think we should do that. We must have the same policy" against terrorism regardless of which state sponsors it.

"State-supported terrorism is a form of warfare and you just can't sit by and let somebody else declare war on you and pretend that you're still at peace," Reagan said.

But he added, "It's much more difficult to trace the source terrorism sponsored by others than it is by Libya."

Later, an administration official said Reagan would use military force only as a last resort if other efforts, such as diplomatic and economic pressure, failed.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, noted that Reagan did not make that point during the interview Wednesday. But he said the president has stated that position repeatedly, including at his most recent news conference.

Reagan repeated in the interview that the United States had proof Libya had planned 35 terrorist actions. In a similar interview Tuesday, Reagan said the actions were "particularly aimed at Americans, but they take place in all of the other countries."

He said, for example, that the U.S. Embassy in Paris was a target, and that an attack was planned on people as they lined up to obtain visas to visit the United States.

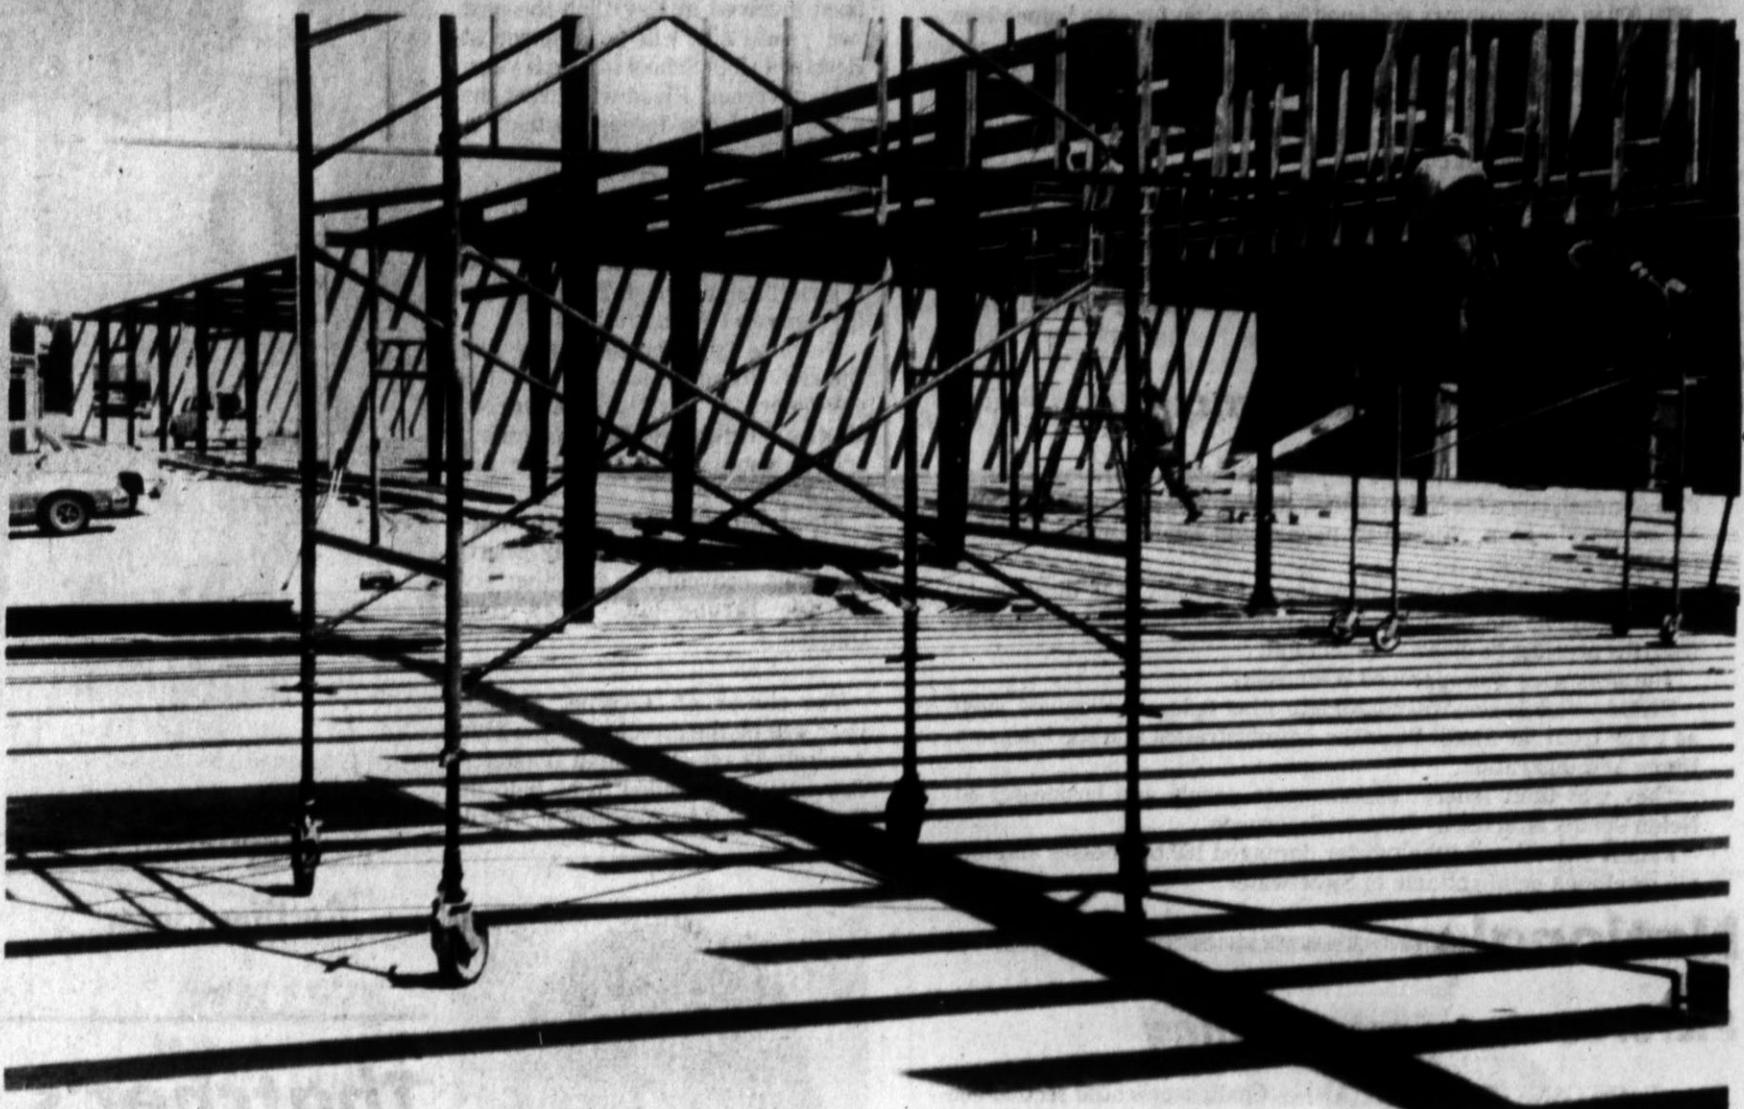

Reagan's comments were provided by The San Francisco Examiner.

In a speech to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce on Wednesday, the president threatened to "act again" if Libyan-sponsored terrorism against Americans continues. He said last week's air raid against Libya showed that "no one can kill Americans and brag about it."

Meanwhile, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., said the U.S. raids on Libya probably won't deter terrorism, and should have been preceded by a greater emphasis on infiltrating terrorist groups.

Hart told reporters that while the United States should adhere to its policy of not attempting to assassinate foreign leaders, it should keep open the option of attempting to kill or capture the leaders of terrorist bands.

In another development, Ambassador Vernon A. Walters said Americans who remained in Libya against Reagan's orders will be prosecuted if they return to the United States.

Senate rejects termination of domestic programs, approves taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-led Senate, in its first two votes on the fiscal 1987 budget, reasserted its view that domestic programs must be maintained even if that means challenging President Reagan's opposition to a tax increase.

By an 83-14 vote Wednesday, the lawmakers rejected an amendment to include in the Senate budget Reagan's proposal to terminate 44 domestic spending programs. The overwhelming majority refused to end the politically popular programs even though they will cost $4 billion in taxes next year.

The Senate then voted 60-38 to add $300 million in new taxes — above the $18.7 billion already proposed by the Senate Budget Committee — to cover increased education spending.

"The Senate seems to be going in the wrong direction — more spending and more taxes," said Ed Dale, spokesman for the president's Office of Management and Budget. He called the vote on the 44 terminations "a little innocent game-playing" that "can't be taken seriously."

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the budget committee chairman, offered the amendment and then voted against it himself, to bolster the committee's arguments that some taxes were needed to meet the required $144 billion deficit ceiling next year.

"Building a budget based on terminations that will not occur does not offer a realistic contribution to deficit reduction," Domenici and Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the ranking Democrat on the committee, said in a letter to colleagues Wednesday refuting the White House position.

The 44 programs earmarked for extinction by the administration included the Rural Electrification Administration, Export-Import Bank direct loans, soil conservation programs, the Small Business Administration disaster loans, the Agricultural Extension Service, food and shelter for the homeless and the Legal Services Corp.

Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo., called the budget committee's tactic a sham. He said it was designed to em-

He claims liability insurance costs are out of control due to dishonest law suits and exorbitant awards. "Our legal system and our legislators are not solving the problem. I believe the solution can be found in the free market place through our pricing system," says the writer.

Here's his solution: "I would be willing to sign a waiver of immunity against a lawsuit for any product or services. I would promise to hold no one else except myself responsible for anything which may happen to me. In return for this waiver, I would expect to be rewarded with a discount on the purchase price or service."

Derr tenders resignation

Stating that he is "very close to consummating an administrative position with another school," Eddie Derr has resigned from his superintendent's post at Walcott School, effective June 30.

Derr submitted his resignation to the Walcott School board of trustees Wednesday night.

In his resignation statement Derr told the board that by resigning now, it would have ample time to seek a qualified replacement.

The board named Ernest Brown, senior board member, as the contact person to head the search and is enlisting Derr's assistance in finding a replacement.

"I'm not leaving bitterly," Derr told The Brand today. "I think we've had a good relationship (he and the board) as the school has grown. It's just time for new leadership."

His wife Ginger, a second grade teacher at Walcott, has not turned in a resignation yet.

Derr said he was interviewing with several other schools in the state.

He served eight years as superintendent in Walcott after moving to Deaf Smith County from Lorenzo where he was a school principal.

Homeowners amend complaint

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Homeowners in the Panhandle town of Phillips, who have been asked to leave their land by the Phillips Petroleum Company, have amended a court petition to ask for $800,000 in compensatory and punitive damages for each homeowner ordered to move.

The amended complaint, filed this week in U.S. District Court in Amarillo, also asks the court to grant a preliminary injunction blocking Phillips from enforcing the eviction order until litigation in the class-action suit is concluded.

Phillips residents living in the southern part of town have been ordered by the Oklahoma-based oil company to relocate by Aug. 31 to make way for expansion of the company, which is the area's largest employer. Those in the northern section have until Dec. 31 to make way for the company, which has been leasing the land to the homeowners.

Nolan Co. gets assistance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan approved federal disaster assistance for Nolan County, hard-hit by a tornado that killed an elderly man, injured 92 people and left as many as 1,500 residents homeless.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency was directed to provide eligible storm victims with temporary housing and grants from the president's disaster relief fund.

The assistance was approved Wednesday.

FEMA officials also will coordinate other federal assistance, such as loans from the Small Business Administration and the Farmers Home Administration.

They will limit federal assistance to people and businesses in Nolan County affected by Saturday's tornado.

FEMA officials said the twister damaged 160 businesses and left 510 dwellings uninhabitable in Sweetwater.

Pictures show crew falling

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's nose section containing the crew compartment broke cleanly from the shuttle's exploding fuel tank, according to newly released photos, but NASA says it hasn't determined whether the crew cabin shattered before or after it hit the ocean.

The 10 pictures released Wednesday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration were snapped by a 70 mm ground tracking camera over 26 seconds.

The photos tend to support reports by investigators that the nose and crew compartment were together through the nine-mile plunge Jan. 28 and shattered on impact with the Atlantic Ocean.

NASA officials are uncertain at what point the seven astronauts died. The prevailing belief is that they died almost at the moment of the explosion, either from shock or a rapid decompression of the cabin.

The first in the series of pictures released Wednesday shows the cone-shaped nose section and other unidentified debris being blown away from the fireball created when the tank exploded after apparently being struck by the upper part of the right solid rocket booster.

The nine other pictures show the nose section and cabin continuing to fly upward for a few seconds before plunging. It hit the water at about 160 mph between three and four minutes after the explosion.

Blast caused by bomb

LONDON (AP) — A bomb explosion rocked the offices of British Airways on one of London's main shopping streets early Thursday, the state-owned airline said.

Police initially reported that one person was injured in the explosion and a subsequent fire, and that some residents of apartments above the airline office were missing.

However, they later said that injured person suffered only from shock, and that they believed everyone else had been accounted for.

Fire officials said about 5 percent of the six-story building on Oxford Street had been damaged by fire.

The airline, Scotland Yard and the fire department said at first that they did not know what caused the blast, but the airline subsequently confirmed that a bomb had gone off.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the blast, but there have been a series of terrorist attacks and bomb threats against British targets since the government allowed the United States to use British-based bombers to attack Libya on April 15.

The London Broadcasting Corp. quoted police at the scene as saying that the blast appeared to have been caused by an explosive device hidden among bags of garbage stacked outside the building. Officers from Scotland Yard's anti-terrorist squad went to Oxford Street and began searching the building where the explosion occurred and nearby stores and offices.

The London Fire Brigade said the explosion occurred at about 4:50 a.m. (10:50 p.m. EST, Wednesday), and that about 25 firemen fought the blaze while rescue crews looked for people who could not immediately be accounted for.

Scotland Yard sealed off the street, and ambulances went to the scene.

Mexico turns to PR

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican officials have hired several top U.S. public relations firms to clear what they believe is an image of a country with roaming bandits, drug traffickers and a smog-choked capital in shambles following a September earthquake.

"What we hope to do is get the image of Mexico, the positive image of Mexico, in all corners of Washington — at the White House, in Congress, in the media and among the intellectuals," one senior Mexican government official told the Houston Chronicle.

"Too often, the image of Mexico that is conveyed to the United States shows only one side of the apple — the side with the worm."

Mexican officials say their image troubles started with negative news reports about the kidnapping and murder of U.S. narcotics agent Enrique Camarena, last seen alive in February 1985 in the northwestern city of Guadalupe. Two American tourists also were slain and the integrity of July elections was questioned.

In the past year, government officials have publicly accused foreign journalists of being biased against Mexico.

"The number of negative stories grew in a way that worried us," said one top Mexican official with direct access to President Miguel de la Madrid. "The U.S. press is the most hostile...and when you go personally to the United States to refute these charges, they tell you that it is too late. That is why now it is important for us to be prepared."

Flood elected T-O district governor

Nathan Flood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Flood of Rt. 4, Hereford, was elected to serve as Governor of the Texas-Oklahoma District of Key Club International at the 37th Annual T-O District Convention held in Dallas on April 18-21, 1986.

As governor, Flood will direct the activities of the largest district in Key Club International, with 272 clubs.

It will be necessary for Flood to visit the 38 divisions in the T-O District; for their Fall Training Conferences and Spring Rallies.

He also will preside over the District Board which includes the governor, a district treasurer, district secretary, district editor, and convention coordinator for the 1986-87 school year.

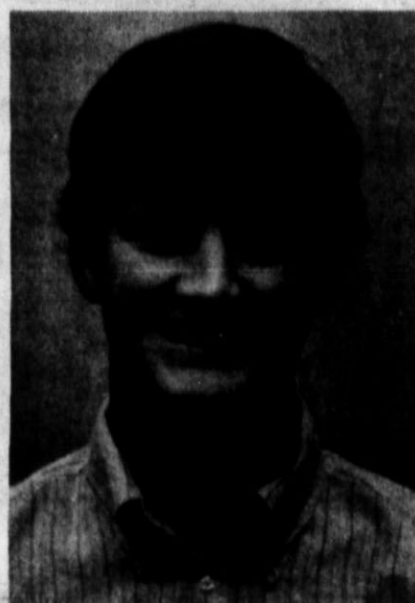

Flood will be called on to participate in various K-Family Board meetings, conventions and other activities throughout Texas and Oklahoma.

"It's a disgrace for this body to treat the economic future of this country so lightly," said Armstrong.

He said it was not surprising that people were looking at the lawmakers as "gutless wonders."

Two dozen GOP senators had signed a letter opposing the committee budget. Of those, 11 sided with maintaining the domestic programs in Wednesday's vote.

Demo meeting set

Democratic precinct conventions will be held at 7:15 p.m. on election day at the polling places, it was announced today by Roy D. Messer, county Democratic chairman.

He explained that any qualified Democratic voter 18 years of age or older who resides in the precinct and who votes in the Demo primary, whether absentee or in person, shall be eligible to participate and to be a candidate for any party office or for any delegate position.

Messer set the date for the county convention at 9 a.m. on May 17 in the Hereford State Bank community Room. Delegates and alternates from the precinct conventions will elect delegates to the state Demo convention.

Thatcher's son ordered to leave

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has been asked to leave his Dallas apartment in a reaction to threats following the U.S. bombing of Libya, the Corpus Christi Caller reported today.

Mark Thatcher, 32, had been ordered to leave his stylish downtown apartment complex by Friday but has been permitted to remain until his lease expires May 31, the newspaper said, citing an unidentified "government authority."

According to the Caller, State Department Deputy Spokesman Charles Redman confirmed that Thatcher was being protected by Dallas law enforcement officials and U.S. diplomatic security.

Thatcher, whose mother was the only western European leader to openly support the U.S. raid, was asked to move out after State Department security officials requested the apartment management's permission to add closed-circuit television mini-cameras to the television surveillance system at the complex, the newspaper said.

The operators of the apartment, Inter-City Investments, responded by asking Thatcher to move, it reported. The company would make no public comment, however. "I have nothing to say to you, goodbye," company spokesman Edwin B. Jordan said when contacted by telephone Wednesday night.

Asked whether Thatcher had been asked to leave, apartment manager C.J. Vannoy said he would not "confirm or deny that," the Caller reported.

Thatcher, a former race driver who has worked in Dallas as a British motorcar representative, could not be reached for comment despite telephone calls to his office and residence, the newspaper said.

U.S. warplanes attacked what the State Department said were military installations on the Libyan mainland April 14.

Following threats of reprisals and speculation that President Reagan's family may be in danger, security was stepped up in Washington and at U.S. facilities throughout the world. Mrs. Thatcher insisted that U.S. government bodyguards be assigned to her son, U.S. Rep. Mac Sweeney, R-Wharton, told the Caller Wednesday night.

Community concert performance tonight

A program by The American Boychoir, one of the outstanding youth choirs in the nation, at 8 p.m. tonight in the High School Auditorium will mark the concluding concert of the 1985-86 season for Hereford Community Concert Association.

Admission is limited to members and their guests.

Members of the choir are students at the American Boychoir School, America's premiere nonsectarian choir boarding school. The choir was founded in 1937, and has sung all over the world in the 49 years of its existence. Its current season has included a concert tour of England, as well as from coast to coast in America. TV and Radio credits include NBC, CBS, ABC and PBS.

From "Battle Hymn of the Republic" to Bach and Handel oratorios, the musical program will include something for every taste. They have in recent years sung at the United Nations, in Lincoln Center, Carnegie Hall, Radio City Music Hall, and the White House. They are always eager to spread their talent to the whole country, and while New York and Los Angeles are on their regular schedule, they have found time to sing in more than 1500 cities and towns all over America.

The 26 boys who sing in the choir are the guests this evening in Hereford homes. Host families are providing time and opportunity for rest and relaxation, as well as "bed and board" for the talented young men.

Officers of the Hereford Community Concert Association are now reminding the community that as one season ends, another is about to start. The membership campaign for 1986-87 is just getting underway this week with the beginning of renewals for current members. After a few days to permit the re-enrollment process to be completed, the membership will be opened to all interested persons.

Mrs. Donald Meyer is membership chairman, and is being assisted by Mrs. Austin Rose and Mrs. Abel Ruga. A drive headquarters has been opened in the Chamber of Commerce office, and all interested persons are encouraged to call 364-3333 for more information.

Donation Presented

Gladys Merritt of La Madre Mia Study Club presents a donation to Kay Redwine, left, chairperson of Hereford Support Group. The donation is to help sponsor local workers of Hereford Satellite Work Training Center to participate in the Texas Special Olympics. The Hereford Support Group is also sanctioned by the state of Texas.

Nonsmokers' rights

Idea whose time has come

AUSTIN — Americans concerned about the serious potential health risks of breathing air tainted by tobacco smoke have begun to band together, using the democratic process to secure nonsmokers' rights, according to the latest annual report issued by the American Lung Association, the "Christmas Seal" People.

The two-thirds majority of the adult population in the U.S. that do not smoke have become a very vocal majority indeed, the Lung Association says. Many states, cities, and counties across the country, heeding the voice of their citizens, have enacted limits on smoking in public. And a few pioneering states are now regulating smoking in the workplace. Their partners, in this effort, are the growing number of companies that have discovered limiting smoking on the job makes good business sense.

A recent Gallup survey commissioned by the Lung Association found that 87 percent of Americans want companies either to ban smoking at work or else limit it to certain areas. The Lung Association cites a few of the hardships caused to both employers and employees from smoking:

-Smokers average a 25- to 45 percent higher absentee rate than non-smokers, which translates into 80 million lost workdays a year due to smoking.

-Lost productivity due to smoking-related illness in the U.S. adds up to a whopping $30.4 billion annually.

-Employers have to shoulder a hefty chunk of the $22.3 billion yearly in health-care expenditures caused by smoking.

"Freedom From Smoking At Work," a new program from the American Lung Association offers companies tailor-made stop-smoking programs and customized nonsmoking policies suited to all kinds and sizes of businesses and industries.

For information concerning smoking in the workplace, contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 3520 Executive Center Drive, Suite G-100, Austin, Texas 78731-1606 or call toll-free 1-800-252-LUNG.

Dietary guidelines presented by ACS

"Although there's no magic potion you can take to prevent cancer, we have learned that certain foods may reduce your cancer risk," said Dr. Clyde Rush, president of the Deaf Smith County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

According to Rush, the nutritional guidelines developed by the Society include adding more foods high in fiber and vitamins A and C to your diet, as well as cutting down on fats, alcohol, and salt-cured foods. "The evidence upon which we formulated these guidelines was based on laboratory experiments and observation of human populations," said Rush.

For example, the high incidence of certain cancers in the United States—breast, colorectal and uterine—appear to be linked to some degree to high-fat diets. Rush said these cancers are rare in countries that rely primarily on high-fiber diets.

"Residents of Hereford will have a chance to learn more about diet and cancer during this year's Cancer Crusade, which is being conducted this week," said Rush.

Society volunteers are conducting a door-to-door distribution this week of a folder called "Eating to Live: What Food May Help You Reduce Your Cancer Risk?" to residents. The folder includes the Society's dietary guidelines:

-Add more fresh vegetables to your plate: Dark green and deep yellow vegetables, as well as the "cruciferous" variety (broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, mustard greens and kale), appear to offer protection from colorectal, stomach, and respiratory cancers.

-Increase your intake of vitamin

A: Cancers of the lung, larynx and esophagus may be reduced by eating deep yellow and dark green fruits and vegetables, like peaches, apricots, squash, spinach and watercress. According to Rush, don't use pills alone to get your vitamin A, as they are harmful in large doses.

-Add more vitamin C to your diet: Oranges, red and green peppers, strawberries, lemons and limes all help protect against cancers of the stomach and esophagus.

-Include fiber in your diet: Lots of foods have fiber—fresh fruits and vegetables, bran cereals and whole-grain breads. Fiber keeps the digestive system healthy and may prevent colon cancer.

-Reduce your intake of fat: Your risk of breast, prostate, and colon cancer increases if you eat a high-fat diet. Choose low-fat milk, low-fat yogurt or cottage cheese and eat more poultry, fish and lean meats. Avoid fried foods.

-Cut down on salt-cured, smoked and nitrite-cured foods: Cancers of the stomach and esophagus are common in parts of the world where large quantities of conventionally smoked, salt-cured and nitrite-cured foods are consumed. Don't have frequent servings of smoked bacon, ham or hot dogs, certain cold cuts and sausages.

-Go easy on alcohol: Heavy consumption of alcohol is linked to cancer of the liver, and heavy drinkers who smoke are at much greater risk for cancers of the mouth, throat, larynx and esophagus than non-smokers.

Capture flavor with deglazing

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — In many recipes, instructions call for deglazing a pan with white wine after frying meat. How is this done? — LOIS

DEAR LOIS — Deglazing is simply a way to retrieve some of the flavor left in a pan after sauteing meat or vegetables. The procedure is simple and well worth using.

Simply pour the deglazing liquid (often wine, but it may be broth or water) into the hot pan after removing the sauteed food. Then let the liquid simmer briefly while stirring and scraping the bottom of the pan with a wooden spoon. Be sure to scrape up any brown bits stuck in the bottom of the pan; they are full of flavor.

This mixture of liquid and residue from the sauteing then becomes the basis for a sauce for the dish. It may be reduced (boiled down to reduce its volume) or used as is for a thin sauce or other ingredients may be added for a more complex sauce. Proceed according to the particular recipe you are preparing. Careful deglazing can really mean the difference between a fabulous sauce and one that is bland and uninteresting. — POLLY

Facts on gambling

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a casino dealer in Las Vegas who wants to set the record straight. "Smiling All the Way to the Bank" has got to be a phony. No one who has been around casinos for as long as he claims he has calls the game "Blackjack." It's "21" Mister.

If "Smiling" is playing $25 chips and averaging only 12 chips per hour profit he is either a lousy player or playing in a game with a very low limit. The smart player increases his bet when he's winning and gets out as soon as he starts to lose. In my 20 years of dealing I have never seen anyone end up winning who played "by the hour."

Your readers should be smart enough to know that the casinos are not in business to give away money. They should also be told that the dealers work for small salaries and depend on tips to keep the wolf from the door. Remember that the next time you get lucky, Annie — NEVADA SUN READER

When I was 10 I decided I didn't want to be around Uncle Cal anymore and I told my mother he was "fresh." She laughed and said, "You're just imagining thing, dear. He's a very nice man!"

I was furious with my mother because she wouldn't help me. I skillfully dodged Uncle Cal after my unsuccessful attempt to get some help from Mom, but he didn't seem to mind because he had a new "interest"—my 5-year-old cousin.

All this happened many years ago but the dirty skunk is still at it. My skin crawls when I see him. Last week at a family reunion he was fooling around with a 6-year-old girl, the way he used to fool around with me. Please tell me what to do. I feel awful knowing what I do and saying nothing, Ann. It's wrong, wrong, wrong. Give me some advice and fast.—GUILT BY SILENCE IN MO.

DEAR GUILTY: You simply cannot let "Uncle Cal" continue to get away with molesting innocent young children. Speak to the mothers of these little ones. Go directly to the children, as well. And go to "Uncle Cal," tell him he'd better get professional help in a hurry because the news is out, the party is over and you're passing the word far and wide.

Western novel helped doctor break through learning disability

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Try reading when p's, d's, b's, q's, m's and n's look the same — sentences resemble mirror images — and distorted sounds float into the ear.

"I thought my name was Robert Dallen Hamblen," said Dr. Robert Allen Hamblen.

Hamblen was moderately dyslexic. The word, itself a jumble of unmatched syllables, comes from the Greek word dys (bad) and lexis (speech), and means reading impairment. Some experts believe the problem stems from a lack of maturation of the left hemisphere of the brain, where language is processed, according to psychologist O. Paul Smith.

"The child stays continually behind," he said.

When he was nine years old, Hamblen couldn't read. His classmates and teachers thought he was lazy or stupid. His parents spanked him if he earned a grade equivalent of C.

"If you don't read in our society, you're a dummy, a social misfit. I bet a lot of social misfits are dyslexic," Hamblen said.

But Hamblen earned degrees in geology, pediatrics and anesthesiology thanks to a determined nature and a Zane Grey novel. Back in the early 1940s when the term "learning disabled" was unheard, Hamblen struggled to understand the simplest written phrases, yet his math and science grades were good.

"Most people can overcome the problems of dyslexia with enough motivation," Hamblen said.

Hamblen was motivated, all right. Hamblen learned to read because he wanted to own and ride a horse.

For three years Hamblen skipped lunch at school and saved his money to buy a horse. "Sometimes I came home from school dizzy, (from lack of food) and my mother would get angry with me," he said. If Hamblen's parents gave their children money to go to a movie and buy a soda afterwards, Hamblen would forego the fun and bank the money.

"I would go to the school playground and swing or whatever until time to go home," he said. Hamblen also asked for money in lieu of Christmas or birthday presents.

As the horse fund grew, the 9-year-old youngster realized his father would never allow him to ride if his grades didn't improve. In the summer between the fourth and fifth grade, Hamblen set a plan in motion.

"I worked eight hours a day. I read 'The Last Trail' by Zane Grey. I skipped over a few words, but I worked the rest out phonetically. My brother helped. It took four weeks to read the book."

Hamblen still owns the book that played such a monumental part in his life. "I still remember the characters and the plot."

After Hamblen completed the book, he spent another two weeks re-reading it.

Thereafter, Hamblen could read well enough to make superior grades.

The following Christmas when Hamblen was 10, he paid $75 for horse and saddle.

The magnificent campaign turned into a Pyrrhic victory, however.

"The two happiest days of my life were the day I got the horse and the day he left. That was the meanest horse that ever lived."

Hamblen learned to compensate for his disability and developed a good memory. He also learned to paraphrase information he read. "I could see the words but I couldn't say them." Sometimes the trick worked too well.

"Once I was reading aloud in a high school class. The teacher said 'Stop, you're giving us the essence of each sentence, but you're not reading the sentence.' I was changing things out. If the sentence read 'Jack has gone to town,' I read 'Jack went to the city.' The kids snickered."

The dyslexia "totally stifled any creative writing. I had no time to put that much thought into creative writing."

College was not difficult, according to Hamblen. "I spent more time reading than most people." Hamblen depended on his memory to get him through tests. "Timed quizzes were worst. It took so much time to read the question, I had to have the answer at my fingertips."

Hamblen found ways to shortcut his studies. For example, Hamblen found he could memorize a dissection manual for a class in anatomy. "I made index cards to memorize. Dyslexics can overcome any problem."

One day, while Hamblen was attending pediatrics class, at Southwestern Medical School, heard Dr. Lucius Waites of Dallas discuss dyslexia.

"I said 'My God that's what I had.' For the first time I said, 'Hey, I'm not a dummy after all. Maybe I'm just wired differently.' I had a better self image after that."

For a time he was so excited about what he had learned, Hamblen considered entering pediatric neurology.

Hamblen, who was graduated from college with a geology degree, could only find work as a detail man for a drug company. "My Dad said, '1960 was the year Bobby worked.'"

The job inspired Hamblen to attend medical school. After his pediatrics residency he switched to anesthesiology. "I had to deal with the parents, not the kids. I also realized I wouldn't see my own children."

In all, Hamblen had attended school for 27 years with dyslexia.

Hamblen still fights dyslexic tendencies. "I have to watch myself or I'll make a 'b' into a 'd,' or flip the vertical on a 'b' to a 'p.'"

Spelling is a "bear" for Hamblen. "I have to write around words I can't spell."

As a doctor, Hamblen said he doesn't need to write well. "I love science and math. I have 90 percent as much fun working as playing. I love my job."

Hamblen has a daughter and two sons. Both of Hamblen's sons have experienced dyslexia to some extent. Hamblen recalled one son's fifth grade teacher thought he was dumb and goofing off. "But his achievement test scored highest in math in the school," Hamblen said. Another time Hamblen discovered his son was malingering, conjuring up illnesses to avoid school. "He had begun to believe he was a dummy. We reassured him he was not and we had a talk with his teacher."

The doctor has made sure his sons do not suffer as he did. "I told each one it was partly my fault. You'd outgrow it. You just had to work harder to do it."

Serious growers wage war on insects to bud beauty from thorny bushes

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — John Long greets spring's balmy breezes and unfurling blossoms with the war cry: "Spray! Spray! Spray!"

While many of us are rummaging through the closet looking for the ice chest and picnic basket, Long and hundreds of Dallas-area rose enthusiasts are locked in mortal combat with sucking aphids, ravenous beetles and deadly fungi.

If it sounds serious, it is. Victory could mean triumph at one of the state's major rose shows; defeat definitely means a home-grown garden full of bug-eaten flowers.

At work, Long is a supervisor in Arlington's street maintenance department. At home, he is president of the Mid-Cities Rose Society, which claims 200 members.

Even the uninitiated cannot pass Long's modest suburban house without getting the clear impression that he is not your garden-variety rose-grower. In raised beds along the house are more than 300 varieties of rose bushes, each neatly labeled with official names such as: "Ingrid Bergman," "Sir Harry Pilkington," "Uncle Joe." The center of the front lawn has been churned over to provide a quarantine bed for exotic specimens from Germany and Africa.

Long, 61, has been working every day since February, pruning and fertilizing his thicket of rose bushes. At dusk, he retreats to a shed in his backyard where he mixes his own pesticide with the concentration of a chemist.

"I spray religiously. It's like having your car greased," he says. Last year he did not follow his spraying schedule and paid the price when spider mites invaded. "They got to the foliage before I could stop them," he says. "It cost me a queen."

The queen: the best bloom of the show, the award every rose-grower covets. In six years of shows, Long has won three queens. Many serious gardeners of longer tenure are still waiting to produce that perfect specimen.

J.D. Downing, whose Haltom City home is obscured by more than 500 rose bushes, has earned ribbons and second-place honors but has yet to win the highest award, although he enters about a dozen shows a year. "My wife says, 'Always a princess, never a queen,'" says Downing, who also belongs to the society. A retired newspaper pressman, Downing has plenty of time to search for promising varieties, and to nurture the plants to physical perfection.

One year, for instance, the Downings heard rumors that a magnificent new strain had been perfected by Canadian botanists. The couple promptly hopped a plane, rented a car and spent weeks touring nurseries throughout Canada.

Downing doesn't consider his enthusiasm out of the ordinary, not in the ferociously competitive world of the rose shows. While the rose plants typically are inexpensive — rarely more than $15 for a bush or cutting — new varieties are tough to come by. When gardening catalogues offer the new strains, they frequently sell out within days.

"You just have to develop your own sources and find out where to get them," Downing says.

If Long and Downing are the veterans of the Mid-Cities Rose Society, Mike King is the rookie. At 14, he's the youngest member of the club and one of the few growers in the state competing in a category reserved for teenagers.

He doesn't talk like a rookie. During the spring, King suffers from allergies while he works outdoors with his bushes.

"There's a lot of work," says King, who looks forward to the day when he can compete with adults.

The workload before the rose shows this month and next in Dallas, Fort Worth and the mid-cities is particularly heavy. The mild winter set the stage for a bug boom. Long says the beetle challenge is the worst.

So the rose-growers spray ardently, day in and day out, fiercely protecting the still-unopened blooms they have pinpointed as potential prize stock.

"It takes a lot of work, and it can take years of experimenting," Long concedes. "I can't take a vacation at this time of year. But it grows on you."

"It's like racehorses. You're always searching for the one that will win."

Hay fever affects millions in U.S.

LUBBOCK — Just when you thought it was safe to put away the bottle of nasal spray from your last winter cold, it's sneezing season again.

Your eyes water, your nose itches and you think your head is going to explode.

The technical name is allergic rhinitis, but most people know it as hay fever. About 14.6 million people in the United States suffer from it, and many miss work or school because of it.

Anyone can develop these allergies, particularly if a person's parents had them, said Jitra Anuras, M.D., staff allergist at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center. Allergies occur when the body's immune system overreacts by producing immunoglobulin E (IgE) antibodies in response to allergens such as pollen, mold or dust.

Re-exposure to the allergen causes an explosive release of histamines and other substances which, along with geographic factors, cause allergic symptoms.

"You can have sneezing, nasal congestion, itchy and watery eyes and post-nasal drip," Anuras said. "There also may be asthmatic attack or blocking of eustachian tubes in the ear that affects hearing. Some people feel symptoms like fatigue. They feel tired all the time and may be more irritable than usual."

That tired feeling, she said, may be a combination of the allergy process itself, lack of sleep because of the symptoms and antihistamine use.

Most allergies are caused by pollens from trees, grasses and weeds; mold spores; and house dust and mites. Pet dander also can be a problem.

Pollens and outdoor molds follow a seasonal pattern, Anuras said, and pollens can be carried several hundred miles. Just because you don't live near a particular variety doesn't mean you won't be bothered by it.

A hard frost or snow will reduce the number of mold spores outside, but other types grow inside in places like attics, bathrooms, refrigerators and garbage cans.

Likewise, the indoors is a haven for dust mites.

"They don't bite, and you can't see them, but they are in carpets, mattresses and pillows," Anuras said.

Cleaning is the best defense against indoor molds and mites, she said. Mites can be battled by vacuuming frequently and putting plastic covers on bedding and pillows.

If pollens are the culprit, air conditioning, electric air filters and staying inside should help.

"Probably no one can stay inside all the time," Anuras said, "but it is best to avoid outdoor activities in the mornings when pollination is most active."

The most fortunate people are those who know which one of the allergens to blame for the way they feel.

"You can take over-the-counter antihistamines or decongestants, but it would be worthwhile to know exactly what you are allergic to because avoidance might be the best solution," she said.

People may treat themselves with over-the-counter medicine throughout the allergy season, but Anuras warns that frequent use without diagnosis may delay treatment for an infection. A physician can also prescribe a more effective medication. The problem with antihistamines is that they make many people sleepy.

"A new development is a non-sedating antihistamine called Terfenadine that causes almost no drowsiness and is taken only twice a day," Anuras said.

Another new non-sedating drug, Astemizole, is taken just one a day but has not yet been approved by the Food and Drug Administration, she said.

Corticosteroids also can be taken in nasal spray form to shrink passages, but the effects of their long-term use is still being studied.

Gromolyn sodium is a type of nasal spray and atomizer that prevents histamine release, Anuras said. But the trick is to use it before you are exposed to allergens and keep using it every four to six hours.

Treatment in severe cases may involve immunotherapy, or allergy shots, to build up blocking antibodies and to inhibit IgE production. But, Anuras said 30 to 60 injections must be given to build up to the maintenance dose, and the maintenance dose is then given every three or four weeks for four to five years. Researchers are testing methods in which 13 to 15 injections are required instead.

Most allergists perform skin tests to determine the cause of allergies, although another, more expensive test, called the radioallergen sorbent test (RAST), can find specific IgE antibodies, Anuras said. But she warned against other advertised tests which have not been approved by the American Academy of Allergy and Immunology and are believed invalid.

Elk In Deaf Smith County

When Dan McWhorter told friends he'd seen an elk on his ranch 13 miles north of town, no one would believe him. "Probably a big mule deer," said one skeptic. But McWhorter changed the skeptics into believers when he snapped this picture of the elk. He described him as being large as a horse with short antlers. Seeing is believing!

Combest announces award competition

WASHINGTON — Congressman Larry Combest has announced the Congressional Arts Award Competition for high school students who live in the 19th Congressional District. The grand prize winning entry will be displayed—along with high school entries from across the Nation—in a corridor of the U.S. Capitol dedicated to the artistic talents of today's youth.

Three other entries will be selected for display in Congressman Combest's offices in Washington, Lubbock and Odessa.

The contest is part of An Artistic Discovery, an annual exhibition whereby Members of the U.S. House of Representatives recognize the creative talents of young Americans, said Combest. Between now and May 1, 1986, Members of Congress will conduct local competitions for high school students in order to select the artworks to be displayed in the national exhibition.

"I am very enthusiastic about the competition this year," Combest said. "There is an abundance of creative talent among the students who live in the 19th District, and I am pleased to be able to provide them an opportunity to display their talents and to recognize them for their abilities."

The competition, to be conducted at no expense to the Federal government, is open to any high school student in the 19th District. Artwork must be two-dimensional and no larger than 30 inches by 30 inches (unframed).

This is the second year Combest has sponsored the Congressional Arts Award Competition. Last year, Robbie Timms of Lubbock was awarded the winning entry and his oil painting is currently on display in the U.S. Capitol.

Westin worked for old capital cities

NEW YORK (AP) — In 1976, Av Westin worked as a documentary producer for a little-known communications company named Capital Cities. Ten years later, Cap Cities owns ABC, Westin runs ABC News' "20-20" and his former and current bosses still are putting a microscope to the bottom line.

"Their philosophy is decentralized management. In the news division, you're responsible for your own operation," Westin said. But if programs go over budget unnecessarily, he added, "you'll be invited to seek employment elsewhere."

In the wake of major economizing at ABC, including 75 staff cuts at ABC News recently, the Cap Cities mind-set has been closely analyzed inside and outside the network. Because of his previous Cap Cities connection, Westin's insights are worth noting.

Westin was executive producer of ABC's evening newscast until he criticized the new division's operations and was fired in 1976. He formed his own production company and was asked by Cap Cities to do a documentary on the energy crisis.

At the time, Cap Cities was one of the few syndicators of public-affairs programs. "The way they operate is that they ask what you need to do a job," Westin said. "Then they ask questions about the number of days of filming and other costs."

A budget is established. "If I went over, that would be my problem," Westin said. "If I went under, they didn't expect any money back. What we're now seeing here at ABC is essentially the same policy."

Editorially, Thomas Murphy and Daniel Burke, Cap Cities' chief executives, gave Westin freedom on the energy project. "They never got in the way," he said.

Their no-frills corporate offices also left an impression. Burke and Murphy shared one secretary and a coffee pot, Westin remembered.

Murphy, Burke and a Cap Cities lawyer screened the documentary, asked some pertinent questions and let it run unchanged. They later commissioned another program from Westin, and he was researching the documentary on privacy in 1977, when Roone Arledge, the incoming president of ABC News, invited Westin back.

Westin eventually became executive producer of ABC's news magazine, "20-20."

Ways with Wine by David Hutchins

SERVING WINE

In the Middle Ages, a popular way of poisoning one's enemies was to ask them to dine and, during the festivities, serve them a goblet of poisoned wine. Gradually, the custom arose for the host to taste the wine before his guests to allay their fears. Today, a host samples the wine as a means of assuring his guests that it is good. A host first should serve himself and then his guests. He should fill his own glass approximately one-fourth full and satisfy himself as to the quality of the wine. He then should pour the wine counter clockwise around the table for everyone in turn. After everyone has been served, he should serve himself.

For an outstanding selection of fine wines to suit every personal preference and to complement every meal make THE STORE your first stop. ## DR. GOTT Aging affects smell and taste

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I still have some sense of smell and taste, but I can only smell and taste things that are strong. A long time ago I had a bad head cold and inserted some Vicks VapoRub up my nose. Could this have caused the problem? I'm past 72, and also suffer from deafness.

DEAR READER — As people age, they tend to develop less efficient senses; eyes, ears, smell and taste can be affected. I doubt that the Vicks caused the problem, but putting this material up the nose is an unwise idea. The oil base in Vicks can irritate the nose and, in some people, enter the lungs, where it causes a form of chronic pulmonary infection called lipoid pneumonia.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm a teenager and have visible veins on my legs, arms and face. They don't stick out like varicose veins, they are just on the surface. What are these from and how can I get rid of them?

DEAR READER — I believe you may have inherited a tendency to enlargement of the capillaries of veins in your skin. You need an examination to make sure you don't have an internal problem, such as liver disease, that might account for prominent veins. If your condition is a cosmetic problem, you may also wish to see a plastic surgeon.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 61 and in relatively good health. My ophthalmologist diagnosed me as having "suspect glaucoma." He wants to wait a year for a repeat test. However, I have a fullness in my eyes, and I'm not sure if this is related to the glaucoma or a sinus problem. Is it safe to wait a year?

DEAR READER — Yes, it is. Early glaucoma does not ordinarily produce symptoms of eye fullness. Have your doctor evaluate your sinuses. If you are uncomfortable about waiting a year for a glaucoma followup, ask your ophthalmologist to refer you to a colleague for a second opinion.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Is there any possible physical danger in having a hair transplant?

DEAR READER — Hair transplants performed by a medically qualified person are safe. However, when performed by one who is not qualified, the results can be disastrous. Infection is the primary problem.

Lawyer winds up decades

DALLAS (AP) — Image is important to District Attorney Henry Wade, a veteran trial lawyer who won't voluntarily let himself be photographed chomping on one of his famous cigars.

Wade explains that peccadillo quite seriously, just before shooting a brown stream of tobacco juice into a desk-side spittoon. People don't like to see a man chewing on a cigar, he says.

Such bits of insight into human nature have helped Wade hold the elected job of Dallas County district attorney for the past 35 years. They also have helped him win every case he personally has prosecuted, securing the death penalty 29 out of 30 times, including in the trial of Jack Ruby.

"Trial work is 90 percent human psychology, deciding what makes 'em tick," says the gravelly voiced 71-year-old prosecutor, who will retire this December.

Psychology is what Wade used in picking both juries and young lawyers for his staff, who have done all the courtroom work for him the past 12 years.

In trying Ruby, the man who shot and killed Lee Harvey Oswald — the accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy — Wade's psychology prompted him to evoke the image of country lawyer vs. the flamboyant "king of torts," Melvin Belli.

Belli handled civil, not criminal, cases, Wade noted, and "he knew nothing about the procedure in Texas."

"We took the approach that he had the greatest lawyer in the world representing the defense and they (the jury) would feel sorry for me, a poor little country attorney," Wade recalled with satisfaction. "He (Belli) called me a cornball or something."

But Wade was able to convince jurors Ruby's act was premeditated, and not a crime of passion, and won the death penalty. The case was overturned on appeal and sent for retrial — a fact Belli contends is proof he really was the winner — but Ruby died before he could be retried.

Phil Burleson, who served as defense co-counsel in the Ruby case, said emotions were high in Dallas after the Kennedy's 1963 assassination.

"It was hard to get jurors who didn't want to strike out at someone for President Kennedy," he said.

In a telephone interview, Belli called Wade "very rough" but "gentlemanly" in the courtroom.

"He was a very tough prosecutor. He had I don't know how many homicide executions, and he gloried in those, and Dallas got what it wanted," Belli said. "Despite his belief in capital punishment, I still admire him for doing his job and his tenacity and giving Dallas what it wanted. I don't like a milquetoast for a district attorney."

Wade says he has never had a moment's regret about the people he helped send to death.

"They're all people that don't deserve to live. I think they all needed electrocuting," he said.

Burleson generously credits Wade's tough law-and-order attitude with helping keep crime in Dallas down.

"No telling how many thousands of crimes have not been committed in Dallas because criminals knew Wade was tough," he said.

Not everyone believes Wade has always been on the right side, though — especially those who point to the 1982 armed robbery conviction of Lenell Geter, a young black engineer in nearby Greenville.

Geter was sentenced by a Dallas judge to life in prison although he had no prior criminal record. His co-workers believed him innocent and brought the case to the attention of the news media, with the story eventually being aired on CBS' "60 Minutes."

After discrepancies were brought to public attention and four of five eyewitnesses identified another man as the robber, Wade dropped the charges against Geter, despite Wade's own uncertainty about the man's innocence.

"We checked out his story. It had a lot of holes in it. A lot of little things were inconsistent," Wade said.

On the other hand, he said, "there was no question the press had raised doubts. One case is not going to make or break the criminal justice system."

Geter declined comment about Wade's handling of the case. He and five other engineers, who also were investigated for possible criminal activity by Dallas-area police agencies, have filed a federal lawsuit against Wade and five agencies alleging institutionalized racial discrimination.

Burleson, who worked as an assistant DA to Wade for three years before he helped defend Ruby, calls Wade a "powerful prosecutor" who knows people.

"He knows what jurors are interested in, knows what it takes to impress jurors," Burleson said.

A devoted family man with five children, Wade says he simply likes people — and that's what has kept him from accepting a judgeship all these years.

"A judge is a lonely person, particularly your appellate judges in Austin," a job Wade says he's been offered. "I'm more a people person than sitting and studying research. I've had a lot of people want me to run for attorney general or governor. We'll never know whether I'd have been elected."

Wade, a Democrat, ran for higher office only once — seeking a congressional seat — and was defeated.

Years later, he said he was glad.

But high-ranking politicians have been among his friends, including John Connally, former Texas governor and U.S. Treasury Secretary. The two were fraternity brothers at the University of Texas and roomed together at the Navy's fighter directors school.

Connally recalled Wade as a loyal friend who kept his mouth shut about Connally's behind-the-scenes efforts to get himself a transfer after a falling out with a commander during training.

The commander "called in Hank Wade and another friend to find out how I'd done it (got the transfer). Hank said he had no idea."

On a more serious note, Connally also said Wade has "never fully exploited the talents he had."

"He came out of Rockwall, Texas, from a very modest family and was always underrated as far as his intelligence is concerned."

Wade was one of 11 children of Henry Wade Sr., who served as Rockwall County attorney and county judge off and on for 30 years, as well as practicing as a defense attorney.

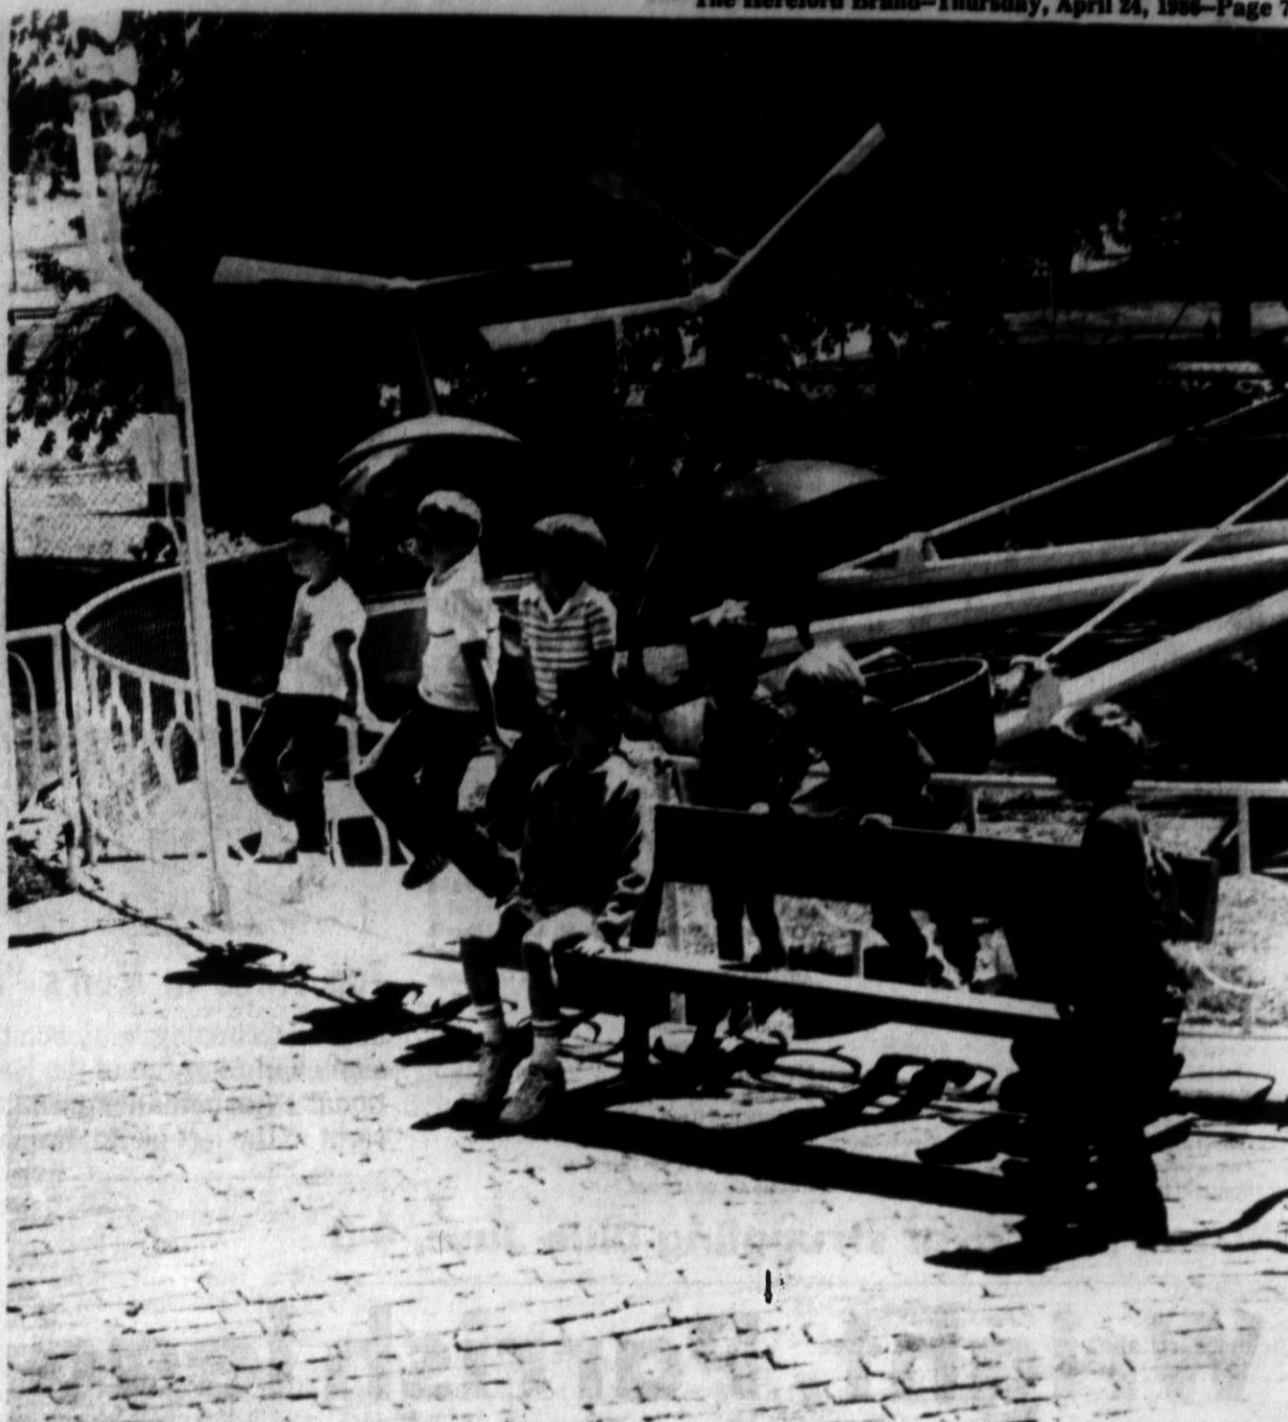

The junior Wade also held the Rockwall county attorney post before being elected Dallas County district attorney in 1960. At that time, there were 21 lawyers on the staff, which today has mushroomed to 155 lawyers.

Wade says he much prefers trying cases "than to sit up here and hire and fire people and settle fuses and put out fires." But he also finds administrative duties rewarding.

"One of the enjoyable things of this office is to hire a lawyer that's just out of law school that knows nothing and three years later he can go out there and try a case," he says.

How does he know how to pick those young lawyers?

"Well, it's human psychology."

Early retirement can be shocking

NEW YORK (AP) — For many middle-age workers, the announcement can be sudden and numbing. The notice says your company is offering early retirement incentives, and you are among the employees the company wants to lose.

At age 50 or so, thoughts of retirement may seem far away, but as tens of thousands of American workers are finding out, retirement decisions can come sooner than planned.

"I could spend all my time doing preretirement workshops if I had time to do it," said Harvey Fried, director of the Labor Relations and Research Center at the University of Massachusetts.

Monsanto offered early retirement incentives to 3,880 employees last year. CBS Inc. offered it to 2,000. Union Carbide plans to eliminate 4,000 jobs through early retirement. Many of the 7,400 cuts under way at AT&T involve early retirements, and Du Pont had 11,200 employees opt to leave the company that way.

Mergers and acquisitions, which were epidemic last year, also contributed to the run on early retirement.

Some large companies offer generous incentives and give employees time to consider the offers. But not all companies are generous, and many employees have been forced to make quick decisions before the offers expire.

And some people come away feeling they didn't have much choice.

"We have a lot of concern about these early retirement programs," said Christopher Mackaronis of the American Association of Retired Persons. "The threshold issue is whether the incentive is voluntary or not. ... I think it's especially difficult for older workers who may be jeopardizing their pension rights by not taking the offer. It's a concern: 'If I don't take this, will I be laid off?'"

Where can older workers go for help in deciding whether they should accept the offers? And if they accept them, what do they do for the next 20 to 30 years?

"They should make it a primary objective to get all the information they can — what will be coming to them, what they'll be getting, how that can be invested," said Denise Loftus, manager of work force education for the AARP. "They need good financial advice immediately."

Early retirement incentives vary, depending on the company, the age of the retiree and the retiree's length of service. Du Pont, for example, increased pension benefits by adding a five-year bonus to an employee's retirement age and the employee's length of service. So a 60-year-old with 30 years at Du Pont would receive the pension of a 65-year-old with 35 years' service — about a 17 percent increase per month.

Some companies offer severance pay as well, and early retirement can mean a substantial chunk of cash. But employees should not treat the money like lottery winnings, because they may have to make it go a long way.

When deciding whether to accept an early retirement offer, employees should think far into the future.

"They should be aware of the questions to ask when they're retiring," said Ms. Loftus, "such as what they're going to do with the time, where they're going to live, are they considering their health, what are the financial aspects, what are their attitudes about retiring, and what are the legal aspects, investments."

Texas wins over struggling Blue Jays, 9-8

Wright, Parrish lead Rangers over Toronto

By The Associated Press
The Texas Rangers, mockingly referred to as the "Strangers" when they opened the season with a rookie-filled roster, are quickly shedding that monicker.

In fact, they've wasted little time proving they have a potent lineup and a staff of strong-armed pitchers. "We keep this up and we won't be strangers to too many people for too long," said outfielder George Wright, who went 4-for-5 with a homer, two runs batted in and three runs scored in a 9-8 victory on Wednesday over the struggling Toronto Blue Jays.

The Rangers, off to their best start since 1983 with an 8-6 record, have shown a surprising power. In only 14 games, they've hit 23 homers, 29 doubles and scored 85 runs. In their first 13 games of 1986, they hit only nine homers and scored 48 runs.

"We came out of spring training last year thinking we had a great offensive club, but then we were hit by injuries left and right and by mid-season the club was depleted," said Larry Parrish, who went 4-for-4 Wednesday with a homer, five RBIs and two runs scored. "Now, we're back healthy and we're putting some runs on the board."

The Rangers jumped to a 3-0, first-inning lead against right-hander Dave Stieb before falling behind 4-3, but opened the sixth with consecutive homers by Wright and Parrish to take a 5-4 lead and chase Stieb.

They added four more runs in the seventh against loser Dennis Lamp, 0-2, on a two-run double by Parrish and a two-run homer by Don Slaught before weathering a three-run homer by George Bell in the ninth.

Rookie Mitch Williams, who went only two-thirds of an inning, was credited with his first major-league victory, while Greg Harris tossed the final three innings and survived the ninth-inning scare to post his second championship formula for 25 years, may be on to something. After defeating Oakland 5-0 on Wednesday night the Angels found themselves atop the American League West standings with a 10-6 mark, one game ahead of Texas.

So far in 1986 the Angels have won with a blend of youth and experience. Reggie Jackson, 39, is hitting .447 with four home runs; 35-year-old Brian Downing has five homers and leads the American League with 16 runs batted in, and 36-year-old George Hendrick is batting .409.

Rookie Wally Joyner, 23, stepped in at first base with a .333 average, four homers and 10 RBIs. On Wednesday, 25-year-old Mike Witt pitched a five-hitter, struck out eight and walked one. The Angels' right-hander recorded his first complete game since August 22 and his first shutout since April 25.

Mauch started managing in 1960 with the Philadelphia Phillies and the closest he came to an October dream was in 1982 when the Angels won the AL West pennant, but lost in five games to Milwaukee in the playoffs.

Rangers 9, Blue Jays 8
At Toronto, Larry Parrish homered and drove in five runs leading Texas over struggling Toronto.

The Rangers broke open a 5-5 tie with four runs in the seventh against reliever Dennis Lamp, 0-2. The victory gave Texas a record of 8-6 and dropped the defending AL East champion Blue Jays to 6-9.

Mariners 4, Twins 3
At Seattle, Dave Henderson's two-run homer in the bottom of the 10th inning lifted Seattle over Minnesota to snap the Mariners' six-game losing streak.

Reliever Mark Portugal, 0-1, walked Danny Tartabull to lead off the Mariners' 10th. After Jim Presley bunted to move Tartabull to second, Henderson fell behind 0-2, but then lined his second homer of the year over the right field wall.

White Sox 2, Brewers 1
At Milwaukee, pinch-hitter Reid Nichols hit a double down the right-field line in the ninth inning to score Bobby Bonilla with the winning run as Chicago downed Milwaukee.

Tom Seaver, 2-2, pitched six-hit ball over 8 2-3 innings while striking out seven and walking three.
Indians 5, Orioles 1
At Cleveland, Brook Jacoby, Julio Franco and Carmen Castillo homered and Ken Schrom combined with Scott Bailes on a six-hitter as the Indians beat Baltimore. Schrom, 3-1, allowed three hits, struck out one and walked two in six innings.

Yankees 3, Red Sox 1
At Boston, Dave Collins and Darnell Coles keyed a decisive two-run fifth with RBI singles and Frank Tanana pitched a three-hitter over eight innings as Detroit defeated Boston.

Tanana, 2-1, walked six and struck out one in the numbing 40-degree weather, but was tough in the clutch as the Tigers took the rubber of a three-game series. Willie Hernandez pitched the ninth for his fifth save.

Yankees 2, Royals 1
At Kansas City, Dennis Rasmussen pitched a three-hitter over seven innings sparking New York over Kansas City and the Yankees' first three-game sweep in Royals Stadium since 1974. The first-place Yankees won their fourth consecutive game in improving their record to 10-4 in the AL East.

3-2 over Atlanta

Astros rally for victory

By The Associated Press
There's something about a bases-loaded situation against the Atlanta Braves that brings out the best in Craig Reynolds of the Houston Astros.

Reynolds was in that situation Wednesday for the third time this season, and it cost the Braves for the third time in a row.

Reynolds delivered a two-run pinch-hit single up the middle to cap a three-run rally with two out in the ninth as the Astros completed an impressive 7-1 road trip with a 3-2 comeback victory over Atlanta.

"Reynolds keeps coming up with the key base hit all of the time for us," Houston Manager Hal Lanier said.

Earlier in the season Reynolds had a grand slam homer to beat Atlanta ace Rick Mahler. His two-run double with the bases loaded Tuesday night wiped out a 2-0 deficit in the seventh and Alan Ashby followed with a game-winning homer in the ninth for the Astros.

"When the ninth inning started, I didn't anticipate getting in the ball game," Reynolds said, alluding to a sparking pitching effort by Braves starter Zane Smith, who had given up only four singles in the first eight innings.

Smith, 1-1, gave up a single to Glenn Davis with two out in the ninth and then had an 0-2 count on Kevin Bass, who then drew a walk on four consecutive balls.

Smith, seeking his second shutout in a row after blanking Los Angeles 3-0 on two hits last Saturday, was chased from the game when Jose Cruz slapped an RBI single to right.

Bruce Sutter came on in relief and walked Alan Ashby to load the bases after pinch-runner Tony Walker stole second. Reynolds then hit a grounder up the middle into center field.

"I didn't hit it that well, I just hit it in the right spot," Reynolds said. "I felt like after the bases were loaded, Bruce would try to get ahead of me. If he gets ahead of me, I'm in trouble. If he gets ahead, he's really, really tough."

Reynolds said he decided to go for the first pitch if it was in the strike zone.

"It just happened to be up the middle," Reynolds said. "It was down, a pretty good pitch. It was a split finger fastball."

"I got Reynolds to do what I wanted him to do," Sutter said of the grounder. "I can't guide 'em. I feel bad for Zane. He pitched a heckuva ball game."

The victory went to Julio Bolano, 1-0, who worked a scoreless eighth inning in relief and Dave Smith pitched the final inning to gain his sixth save.

"I had pretty good stuff tonight, better than the other day, I believe," Smith said, referring to his Saturday shutout. "It's a tough loss, but shoot, it's a long season, too. This time I walked one, and it cost me."

Atlanta scored twice in the fourth when Dale Murphy opened with a walk and moved to second on Bob Horner's single to left.

Terry Harper advanced both runners with a sacrifice bunt and Glenn Hubbard drove in Murphy with a

After Bruce Benedict was walked intentionally following a 2-0 count, Andres Thomas hit an RBI double down the left-field line.

Houston starter Bob Knepper, allowed six hits, walked four and struck out three over seven innings.

Smith struck out nine batters for a career high and walked only one batter.

Cubs 6, Cardinals 0, and Phillies 5, Expos 4

It was a long time between victories for Steve Carlton and a longer time between shutouts for Scott Sanderson.

But the two convalescing pitchers achieved those goals Wednesday — Carlton's first triumph since last May 20 and Sanderson's first shutout since Sept. 18, 1981.

"I feel tremendous. I feel healthy. I plan to be healthy all season long," said Sanderson, who allowed just five singles, walked one and struck out seven in hurling the Chicago Cubs past the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0. Ironically, his last shutout was pitched against the Cubs when he was with Montreal.

Carlton, as usual, wasn't heard from after he went 5 1-3 innings and allowed three runs on five hits while walking six and fanning the same number in the Philadelphia Phillies' 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos, the veteran left-hander's 315th career triumph.

"His stuff has been getting better each time out, and this win will mean a lot for him," pitching coach Claude Osteen said. "It will make him believe in himself again."

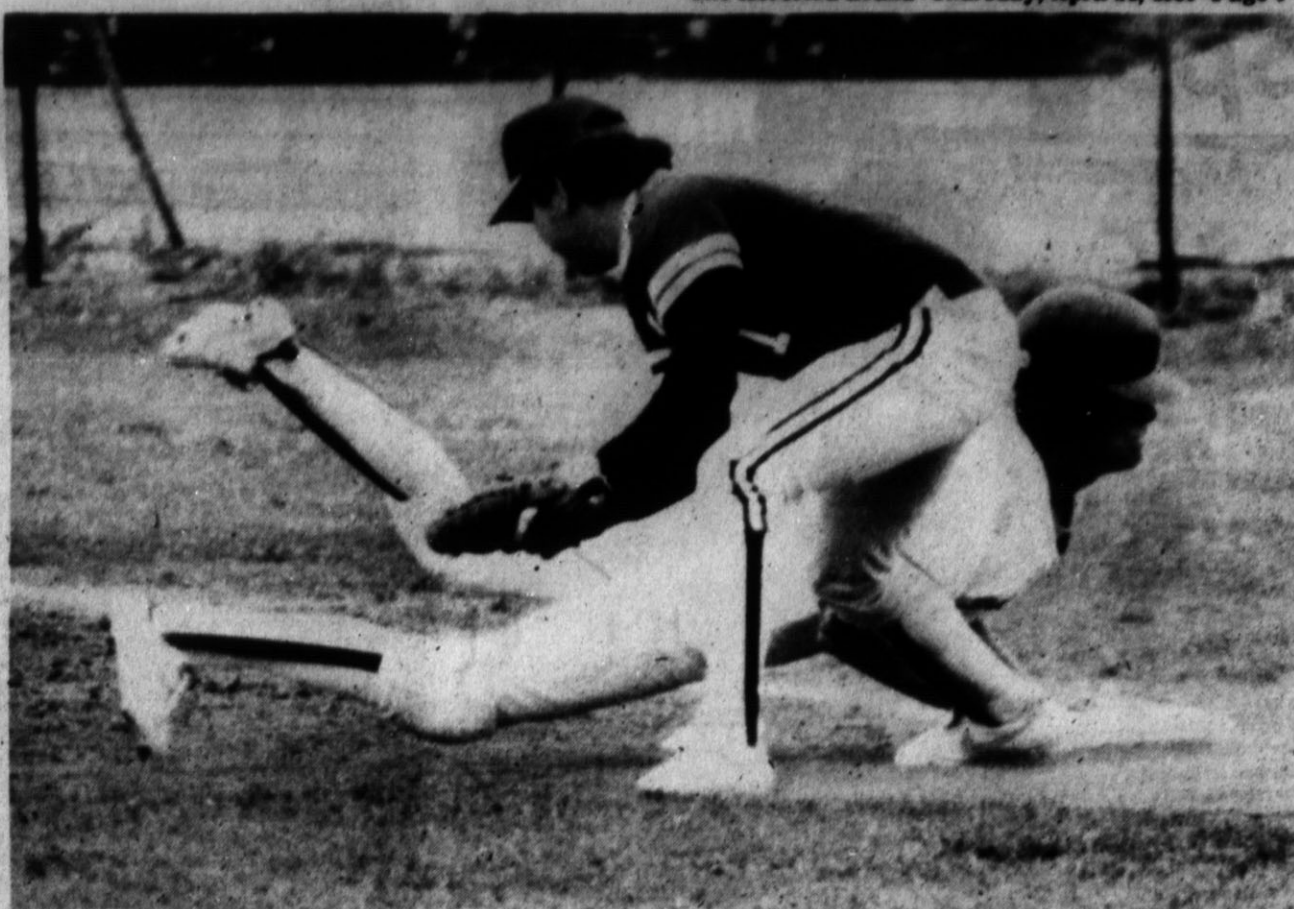

Like all the Cubs' starting pitchers, Sanderson spent time on the disabled list in 1985 when he caught his spikes on the mound and went down with a torn knee ligament. Chicago supported the 29-year-old right-hander with a 12-hit attack, led by Ryne Sandberg with a pair of doubles and a run-scoring single.

In other National League games, Los Angeles snapped San Francisco's six-game winning streak 6-4, and San Diego downed Cincinnati 7-4. New York and St. Louis were not scheduled.

Steve Jeltz backed Carlton with a three-run triple as Philadelphia ended a five-game losing streak. The 41-year-old Carlton, who spent most of last year on the disabled list with a strained rotator cuff, got solid relief help from Don Carman and Steve Bedrosian.

Dodgers 6, Giants 4
Mike Marshall and Bill Madlock homered and Fernando Valenzuela contributed with his arm and bat. Marshall and Madlock each had three hits and Marshall drove in four runs, including a three-run homer in the first inning off Scott Garrelts. Valenzuela scattered eight hits, struck out 10 and singled home a run.

Padres 7, Reds 4
Andy Hawkins pitched 6 1-3 strong innings and singled twice as San Diego overcame a grand-slam by Cincinnati's Dave Parker. Hawkins allowed just four hits, one of them Parker's third-inning slam, as the Padres broke a four-game losing streak and handed the Reds their fourth straight loss.

4th straight no-hitter is goal

BOSTON (AP) — The unwritten rule in baseball is don't talk about a teammate's no-hitter when it is in progress. There has been little chatter in the Tufts dugout when Jeff Bloom starts a game.

Bloom, a 6-foot-3 left-hander from Dix Hills, N.Y., goes after his fourth consecutive no-hitter as a starter Friday when Tufts faces Bates in a Division III college baseball game. "There's a little pressure," Bloom said of his attempt for No. 4. "I'm going to be upset when I give up a hit. It's been so long."

March 29 was the exact date for the last hit Bloom surrendered as a starter. He allowed six runs and 10 hits in four innings in his first start of the year against Wesleyan, which won the game 12-7.

Tufts Coach John Casey decided it was time for a talk of sorts with Bloom.

"I was trying to be too fine," Bloom said of his first start. "I wasn't throwing hard." In his second start of the season, Bloom pitched a no-hitter against MIT. In his third start, he did the same thing to Boston University. Trinity was the victim last Saturday. "It's an amazing thing," Casey said. "I'd have to say the odds they'd give you on that would have to be one million to one."

Dallas now leads Utah two games to one

Lakers oust Spurs, Mavericks lose to Jazz

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers joined Milwaukee, Boston and Houston in the second round of the NBA playoffs Wednesday night, completing a three-game sweep with their third straight easy victory over the San Antonio Spurs.

The 114-94 decision was the closest Los Angeles victory of the series. Earlier, the Lakers won 135-88 and 122-94.

The win propelled the defending world champion Lakers into the second round of the playoffs against the winner of the Utah-Dallas series, which the Mavericks lead 2-1 despite a 100-98 loss to the Jazz Wednesday.

It's no surprise to Los Angeles Lakers Coach Pat Riley that his defending NBA champion team made a clean sweep of the San Antonio Spurs in the first round of the playoffs.

But he was surprised at the ease with which the Lakers dispensed with the Spurs, eliminating them from the playoffs 114-94 Wednesday night.

Earlier, the Lakers had won 135-88 and 122-94 over the Spurs in the Western Conference first round.

Los Angeles now faces the winner of the Utah-Dallas series. The Mavericks lead two games to one.

"We did have the attitude that we could sweep San Antonio," Riley said. "I was a little surprised by the margin of victory in all three games."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who led his team with 25 points Wednesday, summed it all up for the Lakers.

"We are a better team than the Spurs. I think the series spoke for itself," he said.

Laker guard Earvin "Magic" Johnson finished the game with 14 points and 17 assists. His 48 assists for the three-game series is an NBA record.

The outcome of Wednesday's contest was never in doubt.

The Lakers led from the start and pulled to a 21-point, 84-63 lead at the end of the third period. Jabbar helped power a third-quarter surge, pouring in 10 of the Lakers' 28 points. The Spurs could manage only 15 in that same period.

Spurs point guard Wes Matthews led all scorers with 30.

Rookie Karl Malone scored on a jumper with 50 seconds left and grabbed a defensive rebound a few seconds later as Utah stayed alive in its series with Dallas.

Malone, who finished the game with 16 points, tied the game at 98-all after he stole the ball and scored with 2:30 left.

Rickey Green scored a playoff career-high 32 points for Utah.

The Mavericks, who won the first two games of the series in Dallas, knew they were in for a long night when Utah scored 12 straight points before the first quarter was half over and took a 16-4 lead by the 6:40 mark.

Green, who scored 17 of his game-high 32 points in the first half, scored six of Utah's first 16 points and the near-capacity crowd of 11,635 was worked into a frenzy.

But it didn't last long.

Dallas stormed back and tied the score at 35 with 7:29 left in the half when Mark Aguirre hit a turn-around jumper in the key, then the Mavericks went ahead on two straight baskets by Sam Perkins.

The momentum swungback and forth and the score was tied 10 times before Malone knotted it at 98 when he stole the ball and hit a jumper with 2:30 left. Green scored on a 20-footer a minute later to put the Jazz, playing without the injured Adrian Dantley, ahead 98-96. But Rolando Blackman converted two free throws for the Mavericks with 1:10 left to tie the score a 12th time.

Malone hit the game-winner 20 seconds later, then ripped the rebound from James Donaldson at the other end of the court after Blackman's shot rolled off the rim.

Blackman finished with 16, including five during the final 3:35.

Clogging becomes popular in Texas

DENTON, Texas (AP)—The halls are alive with the sound of thud, tap, click.

Thud, tap, click? Yes, thud, tap, click. Those are music to the ears of a clogger. But most of us poor souls haven't discovered the joy of clogging—yet.

One Denton clogger wants that to change. She's spreading the word about the old-style dance and hopes one day there will be fewer people asking, "Clogging? What is that?"

Wendy Guess had been clogging for seven years. Two of those years she was a member of the Academy Cloggers in Provo, Utah.

"It's very popular in Utah. I'd like to see more interest in it in Texas."

It's logical that Texans should become interested in the jig-type tap dance. Texas is a lot closer to the roots of this old South dance.

"It's origins are in Scotland and Ireland. Where they did the jig," she said.

When people from those countries settled in the hills of Tennessee, they remembered the old jig but weren't true to it.

"They intermixed with Indians and blacks," she noted, with each culture taking a little from the other to give birth to clogging.

The dance gets its name from the big wooden shoes the first cloggers wore, she said.

"It's a faster type of square dance. It has a faster beat."

Clogging is made up of heel clicks, kicks, crossover and rock steps, hops and shuffles, she explained. But there are no real standards.

"There are different names (for the steps) and different styles. Practically every little valley has its own style."

But there is a group working to standardize the name and style for competition purposes, she said. Clog competitions are big in Virginia, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Kentucky, Georgia and Utah.

Anyone with an ounce of geographic knowledge knows Utah is nowhere near those other states. So what is it doing in there with all those other southern states?

Utah is home to Brigham Young University. And the dancers there include clogging in their performances, she said. Classes in folk dancing, which includes clogging, are also taught there.

She clogged while she studied at BYU, she said. She also performed with one of the school's dance groups. But she was first exposed to clogging at Rick's Junior College in Rexburg, Idaho.

She auditioned for a dance troupe there and part of the tryout was to learn and then do basic clog steps.

"Then throughout the school year I was exposed to it more. By the second semester I was actually performing."

"I loved it. The music, the steps. There is a novelty side to it. That is what I like. To be creative."

Once she and a partner teamed up with a scarecrow for a little showtime clogging. Actually the scarecrow was a fake, and her partner had a three-legged pair of pants. They wore the pants together and stuck a scarecrow head between them, she said.

"With its head between us it looked like a scarecrow with its arms around us."

People can clog alone or in pairs, she said.

"The trend is line dancing. Everybody does the same steps."

She also likes to throw in a few clog steps when she is dancing at parties, just to show people what it's like.

"Sometimes at dances I'll throw in a few steps. Intermix it with the Cotton-eyed Joe."

Clogging was born along with bluegrass music, she said. But now there is a movement toward pop songs.

One of her favorite songs to clog to is "Neutron Dance" or songs with that kind of flavor. Another good one is the rocking, rolling, "Bop" by Dan Seals.

"Stuff like that is fine."

But there is still plenty of room in the clogging world for fine old tunes like "Smokey Mountain Rag," "Steamer Lane Breakdown" and "Foggy Mountain Breakdown." In fact in most competitions and performances bluegrass is the music used, she said.

Ms. Guess will be sharing her knowledge and skill in the dance with other Denton area residents in a Parks and Recreation Department class.

In August, as part of the state's Sesquicentennial celebration, Ms. Guess and about 1,400 dancers from around the state will perform in the Dallas Convention Center as part of the Dance Fest '86, she said.

"We will do the dances of the countries that had a major influence on the development of the state."

Service Honors

At the recent Texas-Oklahoma District Convention held in Dallas, Hereford High School Key Clubbers were given several awards for service and performance. Patrick Phibbs, left, was recognized for the second year as one of the top 20 secretaries in the district. Shawn Moore, center, was installed as the Lt. Governor of the District; and advisor Gene Brock was given an award for outstanding service as a regional advisor. The Hereford chapter also was given a first place trophy for a single service project in which they helped several United Way agencies. The local club was ranked third in reporting and second place for achievements. Those honors were from among 272 clubs in the T-O District.

Dream began years ago

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe Barbera's dream — to bring the Bible's greatest stories to life through animation — began back in the third grade at Holy Innocence School in Brooklyn.

Later, after he co-founded Hanna-Barbera Productions, he spent another 17 years trying to sell the television networks on the idea of a series of animated Bible stories. The networks kept saying no.

"I think they felt, and rightly so," he said, "that any biblical subject would involve a difference of opinion. They just didn't want to get into anything that controversial."

The advent of home video finally solved Barbera's problem. Hanna-Barbera recently issued the first six cassettes of "The Greatest Adventure Stories From the Bible." Another 20 video cassettes are in development.

Hanna-Barbera is, of course, better known for such cartoon shows as "Yogi Bear," "The Flintstones," "The Jetsons," "Scooby-Doo" and "The Smurfs."

Barbera recently took the cassettes to a convention of Catholic educators in Anaheim, where the programs were well received.

"It was at Holy Innocence that I found out I could draw. I reproduced the famous picture of Jesus riding into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday. I did it in chalk on the blackboard. Later, I read about Michelangelo lying on his back painting the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel and getting full of plaster dust. With me, it was chalk dust. When my mother found out I was spending all my time doing biblical scenes and neglecting my other studies, she yanked me out and put me in public school."

The first six biblical stories are "Moses: Let My People Go," "David and Goliath," "Joshua and the Battle of Jericho," "Noah and the Ark," "Samson and Delilah" and "Daniel and the Lion's Den." Each cassette runs 30 minutes and sells for $19.95.

Such performers as Ed Asner, Lorne Greene, Gavin MacLeod, James Earl Jones, Herschel Bernardi, Robby Benson and Mariette Hartley are heard on the tapes.

Key Club Leaders

Hereford's Nathan Flood, left, holds the banner which the Hereford High School Key Club can use next year while he is in office as Governor of the Texas-Oklahoma District, which includes 272 clubs. At right, Stefan Hacker shows a plaque he received after being named Outstanding Club President in the district. The two honors was bestowed at the 37th annual T-O Key Club convention held in Dallas. Fifty-seven members attended the meeting with sponsors Gene Brock, Mal Manchee, Wayne Winget, Harly Daniel and Mike Veazey.

The Olympic runner, Jesse Owens, established four world track records in one afternoon.

Transplant goes smoothly

LAKE EMMA, Alaska (AP) — The four cow caribou remained crouched in their wooden crates at the edge of a frozen mountain lake, unsure what to do next.

Ahead of them was an uncertain future on the Tustumena benchlands of the Kenai Peninsula. Behind them was their home in the Nelchma Basin, 250 miles to the northeast.

Tipping one crate slightly, biologists gave one cow some gentle nudges. She finally lunged out of the crate and lurched to her feet. After a few uncertain steps, her head and tail shot up and she took off.

The other three cows followed, one by one, quickly disappearing into the black spruce surrounding the lake.

The four caribou were part of the first load in a week-long transplant operation aimed at restoring caribou to their traditional habitat on the Kenai Peninsula southwest of Anchorage.

Caribou were plentiful there 100 years ago, but wildfires altered their habitat and market hunters decimated the herds at the turn of the century.

A transplant 20 years ago established one small herd near Kenai and another of about 400 in the mountains near Hope. Last year, 28 animals were released near Lake Emma, and this year's transplant is designed to bolster that fledgling herd.

With the use of a net trap instead of tranquilizer darts, this year's transplant by state and federal biologists went more smoothly.

"This will revolutionize big-game transplants in Alaska," said Ted Spraker, an Alaska Department of Fish & Game biologist, after watching the nets fall on small groups of caribou.

Starting March 1, biologists began putting hay at eight sites around Lake Louise, where much of the thriving Nelchma herd winters. The caribou took quickly to the strange food and began showing up regularly at most of the stations.

Beginning March 13, Bob Schmidt of the Colorado Division of Wildlife stretched his 70-foot-square nets between poles at the most popular bait stations. Running around the nets' circumference and from the center poles were wires connected to small black boxes, stenciled "BOOM" and "GOTCHA," buried in the snow.

Schmidt hid in the nearby timber until a small band of caribou was lured under a net by the green alfalfa. Then he pressed a red button on his control unit, triggering blasting caps wired to the rope supporting the net. Before the caribou had time to react, the eight-inch mesh net had blanketed them.

Mike Hedrick of the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service said a total of 52 caribou were moved in a week. "We have 48 caribou that we can count as living," he said. "And we think that 48 are in good shape." One may have broken a leg.

The total was almost twice the number transplanted last year, with far fewer fatalities. This year, six caribou died during the transplant. One cow broke her neck as she struggled against the net before biologists could subdue her, and a calf died after apparently being kicked by adult caribou in a corral, said Greg Bos, an Alaska game official.

Bright yellow collars with big black numbers will help biologists keep track of the transplants. At least 10 of this year's caribou also are wearing radio collars to help monitor their movements, said Ted Bailey of the USFWS.

Hedrick said he hopes the new animals eventually will join with last year's releases to form one large herd.
