On Wednesday night in this vicinity appeared a phenomenon that few people have ever seen. It was a rainbow caused by the refraction of the moon's rays just as we see a rambow in day time-at least that is what it seemed to be. It made plain beans seem just a little more insipid next day, but those big plates of chicken, those tempting salads, wonderful cakes etc. ad infinitum will always stand to the Brand as the consummation of culinary skill.

The year's work has closed very satisfactorily. The association has not only been able to meet its obligations, but has given more largely to benevolences than in previous years.

The Buckner Orphan's Home had their special agent, Mr. J. J. Pipkin, here. He reports their worthy institution to be still doing its wonderful work of caring for those who are without homes or friends. The Summerfield church contributed $70 to be used in buying a cow for the Home. The church at Hereford has always been a strong friend to this institution and one of its best supporters.

LOOKING TOWARD LAND OF PLENTY

The number of land buyers that are dropping in here to take a look at our bountiful crops and beautiful country indicates that interest in this section is being awakened. The eyes of the country are being turned toward the Great Plains Country. Not one has come here but has expressed surprise at the bountiful crops of grain, fruit and hay growing here. They have seen great herds of Hereford cattle as fine as in the world and have gone away believing that the half has never been told.

It is hoped that many of these will cast their lot with us.

All this great sun kissed country needs is people of industry and pluck. People who will settle on its soil and with plow and reaper garner the bounties that await the faithful tiller of the soil.

This fall is likely to see a large number of new settlers, and that's what's needed. We have enough speculators now.

We are gratified to learn that the American Retail Jewelers Association, now in session in New York City, is putting on a style show this week, demonstrating the latest improved way of wearing jewels; claiming that a knowledge of how to wear gems is a crying need of the American people.

We've felt for sometime that something was radically wrong with us Americans, and are thankful, indeed, to learn just what it is that ails us for we're frank to admit that to a certainty WE'VE never known how to wear 'em nor how to get 'em.

F. A. Vanderlip On The Business of Banking

The farmers of this nation to come into their own must study business. We must, as a class, understand the fundamental principles that underlie every industry. its functions to society and its relation to agriculture for there can be no intelligent co-operation without understanding. Mr. F. A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, when asked "What is a Bank" said in part:

The first and most familiar function of a bank is that of gathering up the idle money of a community, email sums and large, and thus forming a poel or reservoir upon which responsible persons may draw as they have temporary use for money. It is evident that this makes large sums in the aggregate available for the employment of labor and the development of the mmunity. But much more is accomplished than the use of the money actually deposited in the banks, for by the use of drafts, checks and bank notes the efficiency of money is multiplied several times over. A very large business, for example one of the great beef packers, may use very little actual money; on one side of its bank account will be entered the checks and drafts it is daily receiving from everywhere in payment for meats, while on the other side will be entered the checks it draws in payment for eatile, etc. Its only use of meating the contract of labor and eattle, etc., its only use of money being for small payments, to labor and

If there were but one bank in a community and everybody paid all bills by drawing checks on that bank, and everyone receiving a check immediately deposited it in the bank, the amount of money in the bank evidently would not change at all and the entire business of the community would be settled on the books of the bank. And the situation is but slightly changed when there are several banks, for they daily exchange among themselves all the checks they receive on each other, which practically effset themselves, although the small balances are paid in cash. This is called 'clearing' and in every large city there is a 'Clearing House' where representatives of the banks meet daily to settle their accounts with each other.

A bank is constantly receiving from its customers, particularly those that are shipping products to other localities, drafts and checks drawn on banks in other cities, which it usually sends for deposit to a few correspondent banks in the central cities with which it maintains permanent accounts. In this way these scattered credits are consolidated and the bank draws upon these accounts in supplying customers with the means of making payments away from home. As each local community sells and buys about the same sount abroad in the course of a year, these payments largely offset each other. It is evident that the banks are very intimately related to the trade and industry of a country. The banker is a dealer in credit much more than a dealer in money, and of course his own credit must be above question. He exchanges his credit for the credits acquired by his customers, and lends credit for their accommodation, but he must conduct the business with such judgment that he can always meet his own obligations with cash on demand. This is the essential thing about bank credit, that it shall always be the same as cash."

New York was treated to an interesting sight the other day when Sperry, in his stabilized flying boat, swooped across the bay and circled around a big harbor dredge.

To our people in the windows of our New York office, this performance had an interest aside from the spectacular. Sperry was using Texaco Motor Oil; the dredge was using Texaco Crater Compound—and to complete the circle, the very building in which our offices are situated gave another instance of Texaco service.

For in this carefully-run power plant, one of the largest isolated plants in New York City, Texaco Engine Oils lift the friction load and keep the big bearings cool.

Do you wonder we were impressed?

Here were Texaco Products used on land, and water, and in the air-used on the light, powerful engine of the aero—on the heavy Corliss engines and dynamos downstairsand as a protection against wear and salt water on the cables of the dredge.

In each case we were able to meet the condition with a lubricant exactly suited to the purpose. We can do the same for you in engine room, mill, or machine shop, on tractor, or in harvester-wherever oil is needed. There is a Texas Company agent near you. Let him tell you which oil you need.

Peter Radford On Co-Operative Marketing Plan

The Farmers' Union is the pioneer force in the campaign for cheap money, warehouse facilities and a financial system adapted to the business of farming. The Union has always stood for the best interests of the farmer and realising that the task was so monumental as to require the combined effor, of all forces, the Farmers' Union, some four years ago, blew the horn and called all hands together to build more warehouses and supply cheap money, and as a result the farmers, the business men and the statesmen, are now shaking hands over a bals of cotton. While the work has only begun, sufficient progress has been made to fully justify the policy of co-operation adopted by the Union and on behalf of the Texas plowmen I want to thank all agencies now engaged in assisting the farmers solving the cotton marketing problem.

We have made reasonable progress in the plan now under way, which con-templates that the business men and farmers build the warehouses; the State supervises the storage and validates the receipt and the banker provides the money at a low rate of interest. The State announces ready and the warehouse commission, with an able corps of assistants, has its problems well under way, and the bankers have declared a willingness to advance money at a rate not to exceed six per cent.

Many warehouses now existing have gone under State supervision, and others are being constructed, but no warehouse system can be made a complete success without sufficient storage capacity to handle the crop.

The present warehouse system is swung around co-operation and it is up to the Texas farmer to assist in constructing warehouses and to patronize them after they are built. No warehouse can succeed unless the farmers organize around it, for no business can prosper without patronage. The farmers and business men must come to the aid of the system and I make a special plea to the farmer, for he is the beneficiary of the movement.

We have just passed through the greatest slaughter in crop prices ever known in the history of the cotton industry. The loss to the Southern planter last year was greater than that of the freeing of the slaves during the Civil war, and the European conflict is by no means over. The phantom of low prices that hover around every cotton field in Texas ought to encourage the farmers to deeds of commercial valor. Look upon the face of your babe in the cradle; look upon the woman who stands by your side, then look your own destiny squarely in the face. Lay aside the petty differences that so easily beset you, awaken from the lethargy of indifference that steeps your senses in poverty and arouse thoughts from their dumb cradles and be up and doing with a determination that wins, and rally around the Union, for there is no other road to success except through organization.

Hog Raising

"Everybody is now discussing hog raising and cattle feeding," says H. B. Lovett of Gray County in an interview with the Drovers Telegran of Kansas City recently. "A sufficient amount of cattle feeding has been done in my locality to demostrate the practability of this industry, which is bound to spread to all parts of this country. J. A. Kemp On Proper Marketing of Cotton

When the course of this nation tore down their warehouses and granaries, closed their smake houses and nailed down the cellar doors and turned their products over to speculators to hold until the consumer demanded them, they ceased to become a factor in fixing prices, for without the facilities to hold their products they lose the power to bargain. It is the missicn of the Farmers' Union to rebuild storage facilities and turn the keys over to the farmers so that the prices may more nearly be governed by supply and demand. Mr. J. A. Kemp, President of the Texas Cotton Confer ence, in discussing the proper me hods of marketing

"We should not only build warehouses, but we should encourage the farmers to put their cotton in them. This must be done by the bankers and bust iness men of the state and it is up to them to get busy. Every business man in Texas knows that it is wrong to force cotton to sell in September and that it is wrong to cause it to be throws on the market at any time in amounts larger than the market demands, yet this thing has been going on in this country ever since co ton has been a factor in the crops of the South. Cotton is the very backbone of this country. When the cotton crop is off and the price bad the whole state suffers. When cot on is thrown on the market in a lump the price is forced down and Texas is hurt just as badly as though the price were down owing to bad s aple of an off year crop. But business men have overlooked this important factor in the handling of the cotton crop.

We must build warehouses all over Texas this summer and when the crop is baled it can be stored in good fire and storm proof structures, making a receipt for a bale of cotton as good collateral as the best bank no: in the Federal Reserve Bank.

The bankers of Texas can finance the Texas cotton crop and I believe they will demons rate this fact this Fall. We have the money to carry the farmers over. The thing is that the farmer and the banker must get to gether. It is a mistake to wait until the cotton is picked and then start to bring about conditions for is financing.

The planter must learn that it is to his interest to take proper care of his cotton and that this care can be had only brough warehousing. The warehouse receipts will mean ready cash. Look what was done last Fall and the start was a late one. The price of co ton was raised in spite of the influences to hold it down. I do not contend that cotton should bring an absormal price, but I do believe that it should bring a price that will he farmer a good return on his investment. This can be done by to the market as the mills call for it."
