WASHINGTON (AP) The Republican-led Senate, in bold defiance of President Reagan, has ended three weeks of tumultuous budget debate by narrowly approving a 1984 spending and revenue plan which would permit a $9.9 billion tax increase next year, and $75 billion over the next three years. In a dramatic 50 to 49 roll call vote minutes before midnight Thursday, the Senate gave a stunning victory to a small band of tenacious Republican moderates and minority Democrats who said attacking swelling federal deficits with higher taxes is the key to economic recovery.

Their opponents, led by Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., argued for higher defense spending and against any budget which threatened all or part of this year's 10 percent income tax cut.

The debate, spiced with acrid partisan battles, will likely set the agenda for the 1984 congressional and presidential elections. At the very least, the day of wild, seesaw legislative battles in which the outcome was in doubt until the very end.

Senate budget resolution sets up tough negotiations with members of Democratically-controlled House, which previously approved a budget plan with far higher taxes and a far-slower defense buildup over the next five years.

The winning plan was drafted by freshman GOP Sen. Slade Gorton of Washington and was approved only after the Senate had taken nine previous roll call votes on budget alternatives of wide extremes.

They included an unsuccessful proposal by conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, Baker finally let the budget he and Reagan strongly opposed go through the Senate, because to block it further would have shattered the congressional budget process.

The majority leader said he was determined to have the Senate pass a budget, even if it was one he didn't support, and personally called for a second vote on Gorton's plan.

Twice before, including once earlier Thursday night, the Senate rejected the same proposal it ended up approving, and then only after there was serious danger of no 1984 budget blueprint passing at

One of the plan's main GOP supporters, Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, said, "This was the last train out of the station and there was nothing else to follow. We either had the compromise or nothing."

WASHINGTON (AP) -Sen. John Tower, R-Texas,

collected more in honoraria from speeches last year than the average Texas wageearner received in salary, records show.

Tower received $26,200 for 16 speeches made to various organizations and interest groups in 1982, plus $300 for an article that appeared in Washington Quarterly, according to his financial disclosure report released

That was in addition to his Senate salary of $60,662. The average salary of the Texas wage-earner likely totaled about $17,000 last year, an analysis of figures provided by the Texas Employment Commission shows.

Among the 29 members of Congress from Texas, Tower was the biggest recipient of such honoraria in 1982, although three others also exceeded the $17,000 figure.

They were House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Forth Worth, who received $20,550 in honoraria; Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, with $19,750 and Rep. Phil Gramm, R-College Station, with $17,650, according to House financial reports released earlier this week.

Of this, Wright contributed $1,350 to charity and Hance $1,560 to charity.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, reported no income from honoraria in 1982.

Besides his honoraria, Tower reported outside income of between $15,000 and $52,000 from savings accounts and rental of drilling rig equipment.

White wants tax for teachers' raises

AUSTIN (AP) - Gov. Mark White says lobbyists who are more concerned about a minor tax increase than a good education for Texas children have stalled his $1.27 billion luxury tax package which would be used to raise teachers' salaries.

White told a statewide television audience Thursday night that a garbage collector in Houston and a prison guard in Huntsville make more money than teachers.

His address was part of a campaign to build public support for taxes he has proposed to raise teachers' salaries 15-24 percent over two years.

"Every year," White said, "we are graduating high school seniors who can't read, can't write and can't multiply and divide. Is it any wonder? Every year we are losing some of our best teachers because we won't pay them a decent salary."

For generations, the governor said, women subsidized the nation's educational system because teaching was one of the few professions open to them, but today "bright, well educated women have many other op-

White said the "crisis in education" comes at a time of Calla Mountz, age 90, a pioneer resident of Deaf Smith County, died at noon Thursday in her home at 106 West 7th St.

Services will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church with Dr. Ron Cook, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in West Park Cemetery under direction of Gililland-Watson Funeral

Mrs. Mountz was born Sept. 1, 1892, in McIntire, Iowa. She came to Hereford in 1908 from Mitchell County, Iowa, with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Lambert.

She joined the First Baptist Church, then located in the old building in the west part of town, with her parents when they first arrived in Hereford and she has been active in the church since that time. At age 16, she was playing the piano for church, and soon after the she began teaching Sunday school. A member of the choir, and choir director for three years, she also sang many solos for worship services, weddings, funerals, parties, and many other special occasions throughout her life.

Mrs. Mountz was a member of the original quartet organized by Mrs. G.A.F. Parker in 1912, which several years later organized the Hereford Music Study Club. These ladies also formed a "Chorus Class" in 1915 and presented operettas, assisted by other residents. The quartet performed for many special events in the

The nuclear waste hearings made big news across Texas this week, and we were a little surprised that Gov. Mark White and other state officials made such a strong stand against locating the repository in Texas.

If the Department of Energy had any doubts about the vocal opposition in Texas, the public hearings should clear up that question. The issue is a highly-emotional matter with some citizens. In view of those feelings, we think the hearing in Hereford was conducted rather smoothly.

The testimony presented by citizens here had plenty of legitimate questions and concerns. We regret that references were made to possible violence because that's the first thing the big-city press and the scandal-hungry television types picked up on for their headlines.

In a news report out of Tulia Tuesday night, a DOE official was quoted as saying that Hereford had the largest crowd among all the hearings conducted in six states and that the area has unique agricultural concerns.

Will the loud protests keep the nuke dump out? That question was asked of a DOE official here Monday night prior to the public hearing.

"It is just one factor in the selection process. Objections alone will not keep a site from being selected," said J. William Bennett, director of geologic repository division,

One thing citizens might keep in mind is that the Nuclear Act requires that five sites be nominated. That would create a possibility of the DOE having its mind made up on a site, but still having to go through the motions. We'll probably never know the complete story in the selection process.

Giant cobra swallows giant python

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) - Plantation workers shot a 14-foot king cobra to death as it was swallowing a 10-foot python about 12 miles from Kuala Lumpur, the daily Straits Times reported today.

The snakes were discovered Thursday on a palm plantation by a worker identified as M. Anthony, who summoned others to shoot the reptiles, the paper said. The python was already dead, said the daily, which printed front-page pictures of the snakes.

Omaer Bin Mohamed Yusof, a government official, told the newspaper the cobra was the biggest he had ever seen and that it would be preserved in the department's museum. He said snake experts will dissect the python for study.

The Guinness Book of World Records shows the longest cobra on record measured 18 feet 9 inches and died in the London Zoo at the outbreak of World War II in 1939. It was caught at Port Dickson, about 42 miles south of Kuala Lumpur.

The amendment was designed to reduce future investments of Texas' large school, veteran and retirement funds in South Africa.

It stated that "no funds may be invested in a business enterprise that conducts business with or has investments in the government of the Republic of South Africa."

The amendment applied to the foreign government, not private businesses in that country. It was agreed that some businesses in South Africa might not like the government's apartheid policies.

After the amendment was adopted the Senate tentatively approved a bill that would broaden investment of large state funds

A final vote is still needed.

Washington said doing business with South Africa in 1983 would be the same as doing business with Nazi Germany 40 years ago, but Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, questioned whether one country such as South Africa should be singled out.

Washington responded, "You're playing games, but you're playing with the wrong people, because you're playing with people's lives."

The jet was diverted soon after it took off from Miami International Airport at 2:19 p.m., said Eastern spokesman Jim Ashlock.

The hijacker apparently cleared Eastern's security system, Ashlock said, adding that the company would cooperate with the FBI and the Federal Aviation Administration. But he said there were no immediate plans to tighten security.

All passengers at Miami International Airport must walk through a metal detector and put their belongings through an X-ray machine machine before boarding a plane.

"The bottom line of the system is to make sure no one is hurt," Ashlock said. "A diversion to Cuba on an occasional basis is a small price to pay for overall safety."

Matamoros store clerk says business up 100 percent

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) - Bargain-hunting American shoppers have found paradise in Mexico's border cities since last year's peso devaluations, and the local merchants are rejoicing

- all the way to the bank. While sales have plunged sharply on the Texas side of the border and several hundred businesses catering to Mexican shoppers have failed, Matamoros merchants are reaping the benefits of Americans' sudden buying

Oscar Martinez, who has worked 13 years for a curios shop in the downtown market area, says sales this year have exceeded his wildest

"We've had good seasons and bad seasons," Martinez said during an interview that

But, said Martinez, "We've never had (a year) that was so good in 13 years. We're talking about a 100 percent increase over last year."

Martinez says other merchants in the city's market area also are reporting record-breaking sales.

The economic surge apparently is under way all along the U.S.-Mexico border, according to a recent story in Mexico's business daily El Financiero.

The newspaper, which surveyed business leaders in several border cities, said the border area could bring in $1.3 billion in badly needed foreign exchange this year.

Sales are up 50 percent and tourism is up 40 percent in what El Financiero called the 'suprising recovery" of the Martinez attributes the sales boom solely to the 1982 peso devaluations and the comparative strength of the American dollar.

"They knew they were going to get bargains," Martinez said of his American customers.

"People that didn't come last year did this year because of the devaluation," he said.

In January 1982, Americans could purchase about 27 pesos with a dollar.

Now, the going rate is about 147 pesos to the dollar, which means shoppers could have bought the same item they did last year for about a fifth the cost - if prices had not in-

But Martinez says prices increase in Matamoros about 20 percent each year, due mainly to rising costs of supplies and production.

Marcia Alenik of Arlington, Texas, says she and her family come to Matamoros at ast once a year to buy, among other things, Mexico's clothing, silver jewelry and fine leather products.

"We come no matter what the prices are, but we'll probably buy twice as much this year," said Miss Alenik's mother, Patsy Alenik.

Bru G

Leon Alenik says, however, that those good priced in dollars, especially liquors, have remained the same.

Genevieve Thomson of Harlingen, Texas, says she and her husband have been shopping in Matamoros for nearly a decade.

"The prices, I find, still are good," she said. "Not as good as 10 years ago, but still

Mrs. Thomson, who was doing her Christmas shopping in Matamoros recently, says she always brings her northern house guests to Mexico.

"They won't even bargain because they think the prices are so good," she said.

Martinez says, however, that haggling over prices is just as accepted now as it always has been in Mexico.

"Maybe two out of 100 (merchants) won't bargain," he said.

"We know the people will pay about half the (asking) price." Martinez said. "We are prepared for it. We've been doing business like that

But, he notes, the prices are marked accordingly.

An onyx jewelry box, purchased wholesale for about 400 pesos and marked at 1,200 pesos would be sold to an adamant bargainer for about 650 pesos (about $4.45), Martinez

He says a 30 percent to 50 percent profit margain is calculated into the eventual selling price of each item.

Included in the buying boom, according to Martinez, are shoppers who live just across the border in Brownsville, Harlingen and Cowboys, cattle drives and Indian fights were still facts of life in the Great Plains when William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody opened his spectacular Wild West show here 100 years ago today.

Cody performed in the show that played to more than 50 million people in 1,000 cities and a dozen countries until 1916, when he retired.

It was a spectacular production which at its height had 650 performers, but its driving force and biggest attraction was Cody.

"I saw the show in North Platte in 1911," said Nebraska historian and author Nellie Snyder Yost, 78. 'There's only one thing I remember - Buffalo Bill himself and how handsome he was on that big white

When "Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World" - the show's full title - toured Europe, Cody was "the best known and most photographed man in the world," said his 70-year-old grandson, Bill Cody, of Cody, Wyo.

"Buffalo Bill" got his nickname in 1867 while working to provide buffalo meat for workers on the Kansas Pacific Railroad. He had served as a Pony Express rider in his early teens before hiring on as hunter and scout for both the railroads and the U.S. Army.

Before the Wild West show became his sole means of income, Buffalo Bill Cody's exploits had already been romanticized in the "dime novels" of Ned Buntline and Concealed in them were stairsteps, and a young Indian boy would come down from the top of the mountain on his horse - down those stairsteps - and people said it looked just like someone riding down a mountainside."

The cast was an attraction, too, including Sitting Bull, the Sioux chief who triumphed over Lt. Gen. George Custer at the Battle of the Little Big Horn and was later shot to death by federal police for resisting arrest.

Another star was sharpshooter Annie Oakley, "a little farm girl from Ohio," according to Bill Cody. "Granddad heard about her - someone told him she could shoot pretty good - and took her on in the show. He made Cody's partner, Nate Salsbury, hired French Zouaves, Russian Cossacks, South American gauchos, Mexican vaqueros and Arabs, among others, to make spectacular sweeps around the arena.

"They were the top riders of the world," Mrs. Yost said. "And they went 'round that arena just as hard and fast as they could."

Despite Cody's success, his income fluctuated wildly.

Now, after nearly seven years of legal battles, the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway appears headed for completion.

The withdrawal leaves continued funding by Congress as the final ingredient to finishing the canal within the next few years, perhaps as

CowBelles learn about beef

The Hereford CowBelles' monthly meeting was held on Tuesday at the Hereford Country Club with Dr. R. Hollis Klett as guest speaker.

Dr. Klett's topic was "Beef Around the World." He illustrated his talk by showing slides of cattle projects in East Africa, Switzerland, France, Germany, Algeria, the Sudan, Iran and Japan. In Africa, according to Klett, there is a potential for cattle development, but tribal differences and tse tse fly control are problems to be overcome. In contrast to the U.S.A., African cattle, called Ankole, are owned, not for meat, but as a sign of wealth.

· Sanyo Stereos

· Plus a complete line

In Europe, Klett observed Simmental and Brown Swiss cattle in Switzerland and Charlois cattle in France. In a project in Algeria, he was a consultant on a feedlot and cow-calf operation designed to export beef to Europe.

Both live cattle and feed are imported into Iran. Carcass beef is not allowed into Iran because the meat has to be slaughtered according to religious customs and laws.

In Japan, Klett worked on a project to improve the cost of production of beet cattle. There, cattle are raised to 1500 pounds before being slaughtered. Hereford CowBelles Presi-

The Future of Telephone Rates

As Southwestern Bell prepares itself to be a stand-alone company in 1984 - separate from AT&T - many of you. no doubt, have been wondering what's going to happen to telephone rates

Will they go up? How much? Will you have to pay twice as much for phone service as you now do?

While it's impossible to answer those questions definitively. It is possible to give you an idea of where rates are headed ... and why.

Local service rates will probably go up

For example, the rate you presently pay for local service will-in all probability-go up. This is primarily due to the fact that local service, for the most part, has been priced well below its cost. The average statewide cost to Southwestern Bell for keeping a residential line in service is about $30 per month. On the other hand, the average monthly rate our customers pay ranges from $7.85 to $10.75. This $20 or more difference between cost and rates has been made up primarily by revenues from long distance service and telephone equipment.

However, since most of those revenues will not be available to Southwestern Bell after divestiture, local service will have to be priced more closely to its cost. In turn, though, the rates of long distance and other services which have subsidized local service may go down.

Other factors which will contribute to higher local rates include our need to more quickly recover our investment in equipment and facilities, and the effects that are still being felt from past inflation.

To help offset the rise in local rates. Southwestern Bell wants to offer customers more pricing plans so that they will have more control over what they pay for local service. We are working closely with regulators not only to develop pricing options that will fit almost every pocketbook: but also to keep telephone service one of the best consumer values around.

Effects of divestiture to be studied by PUC

As you may be aware, the Texas Public Utility Commission next month will begin general hearings to examine how divestiture will affect Texas ratepayers. There are a lot of questions and potential problems to be solved. But by cooperating and working together with regulators, we feel we can work out the best solutions, in the long run. for all concerned.

If you'd like additional information on this topic or have any questions. I'll try to help you find the answers.

Ann Landers Old friends drift apart

DEAR ANN LANDERS:
This is my first letter to Ann Landers, and I'm sorry it has to be a dozen lashes with a wet noodle. I am upset with your concept that friends can be "outgrown." Drift apart, yes, but outgrown-never.

yes, but outgrown-never.

It just makes me sick that a combination of lucky circumstances can make it possible for some folks to have bigger and fancier homes, Cadillacs, country club memberships and trips. They get spoiled and stuckup, forget their old friends and social-climb like crazy. I've seen this happen to the kids I went to school with 20 years ago. They are nothing

I'll bet my letter will open a few eyes and explain a lot about why some people haven't heard from a few so-called friends in a long time. The answer: "They have become too rich to bother with you." Face the truth and see them for what they are.—Hattiesburg, Miss.

word "outgrow." May I ask how you distinguish between the two? Is it not possible that in 20 years some of your classmates have failed to become involved in activities that stretch minds, improve vocabularies, broaden horizons and alter values?

Some people simply get older - and fatter. Others become more interesting, better informed, more discriminating and less willing to settle for the same conversation they heard 20 years ago. Perhaps that's why they "drift apart."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please share this with others for the benefit of those thousands of women who rely on self-induced vorniting as a means to deal with food binges. It is commonly referred to as "gorging and purging" and is as deadly an illness as anorexia peryosa.

For nine years I have struggled with this every day of my life even though I know a dozen reasons to stop. You've had several columns about it — in fact, the first real insight I got into my problem was from you. I feel fragmented, worthless, hopelss, ashamed and depressed. A few months ago I considered suicide. I have experienced all the terrible side-effects--stomach and throat irritation, hoarseness, tooth decay, bruised eyelids from the strain of vomiting, and dangerously low potassium levels that have affected my heartbeat and energy level.

I started to see a very good therapist recently. I also enlisted the support of a loving fiance and concerned parents. I am determined to relinquish my role as "victim" and make some significant changes in my behavioral pattern.

I am writing to encourage each person who resorts to gorging and purging to get help now, before it is too late. I should have taken your advice years ago when you suggested it. Thank God I came to accept the fact that I couldn't solve the problem alone. Just sign me—Healing Slowly And Ever So Grateful

DEAR HEALING: Thank you for a splendid letter. Nothing I might have said could be half so convincing. Bless you for writing.

Increasing risks face young drivers

Texans between ages 15 and 34 are two and a half times more likely to die in an auto accident than are all other Texans, according to statisticians for the Texas Department of Health.

And the auto death rates for these young Texans are expected to increase while the rates for the same age group nationwide are projected to decrease.

To better understand this major health problem, statisticians Linda Lloyd and Pat Venus analyzed motor vehicle accident deaths among 15-34-year-old Texans from 1970 through 1980. Their findings appear in the May issue of Texas Medicine, the journal of the Texas Medical Association.

Association.

In 1980, motor vehicle accidents were the fourth leading cause of death for all Texans, the report says. But for the 15 to 34 age group, these accidents were the leading cause of death. "In that year, more than half of all Texas who died in motor vehicle accidents were between the ages of 15 and 34; however, less than one third of the populationw as in this young age group," the statisticians write.

The group with the highest risk of dying in an auto was males between ages 20 and 24. Among females, the 15-19 age group led.

The report notes that three factors contribute substantially to motor vehicle fatalities: speeding, alcohol and non-use of seatbelts. Speeding and driving while intoxicated each caused 24 percent of all fatal accidents statewide.

As for seatbelts, only 11 percent of drivers nationwide use them and this figure is declining. Detailed information on seatbelt use in Texas is not available, but one study suggets that the percentage of Houston and Dallas residents using seatbelts is smaller than the national Figures from the Texas Department of Public Safety show that 98 percent of all people killed and 95 percent of all people injured in motor vehicle crashes in 1980 were not wearing seatbelts.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that 50 percent fewer deaths from motor vehicle crashes would occur annually if every driver and passenger wore a seatbelt. Applying this estimate to Texas suggests that 2,150 lives would have been saved in 1980 had all Texans wore their seatbelts.

Time Inc. to split into two companies

DIBOLL, Texas (AP) Time Inc. has decided to restructure itself into two separate companies in hopes that each will be stronger on their own.

The board of directors of the firm, known widely for its publishing, said Thursday that two of its subsidiaries -Temple-Eastex and Inland Container - will be merged and then spun off as a separate forest products company. In remarks at the annual meeting of board directors, Time President and Chief Executive Officer J. Richard Munro said the rationale for restructuring Time into two separate companies was founded on management's belief that the major parts of Time Inc. can become stronger than the whole." The new firm, not yet been named, will have its corporate headquarters here in Diboll, home of former Time board chairman Arthur Tem-

Temple-Eastex spokesman Alan Miller said Temple would play a significant role in the new corporation, but said he did not know what it would be. Time acquired Temple Industries in 1973.

Under the plan, which still must be approved by the Securities Exchange Commission, Internal Revenue Service and shareholders at a meeting later this year, Time shareholders would be given a proportionate number of shares in the new corpora-

Both Temple-Eastex and Inland will be divisions of the new corporation. "Each of the proposed new companies will be endowed with healthy balance sheets," said Munro. "Each will be of investment grade quality. And each will be able to identify and satisfy its own capital needs. Independence will permit a significant improvement in the allocation of investment capital.

"At the moment we inevitably have a continuing tug of war between widely different needs that have to be evaluated from distinctly different perspectives."

Temple-Eastex and Inland Container accounted for $1.1 billion in revenues to Time in 1982, about 32 percent of the corporation's revenues.

Munro said separation will also give both companies clear-cut identities and will clarify the "blurred image" of Time in the eyes of many stockholders, security analysts and employees.

"The new forest products industry would be born, or reborn, in what we believe are is a solid upswing in housing and improving paper markets," he said. "It will have exceptional timber reserves, high productivity plants, and the advantage of doing most of its business in the economically favorable

Clifford J. Grum, board chairman of Inland Container, has been selected as the new firm's chief executive officer. Inland Container will continue to be headquartered in Indianapolis, Ind.

Joe C. Denman Jr. will remain chief executive officer for Temple-Eastex and Clinton G. Ames Jr. will continue as chief executive officer for Inland Container.

Miller said that the formation of the new corporation would not substantially affect the operation of either firm, although they would now be part of a Texas corporation.

A New World Of Happiness

Faith Lets You Discover

FAITH SHOWS THE FALSE PREMISE OF

e so-called "new morality" we hear so much about these days is neither new nor moral, because its activities have been practiced and condemned since the dawn of history; and yet it appears to be gaining an increasing acceptance among the very people who would have been outraged at the idea only a few years ago. Nevertheless, under the guise of personal liberty these destructive habits bind us instead with the chains of a self-imposed slavery and demonstrate a total lack of respect for our minds and bodies by subjecting them to proven health hazards. It is not too late to learn that those rules of conduct set forth in the Bible were pretty good ones

after all, and that those who follow them and go to Church regularly are always ahead in the long run.
