Dried weeds and leaves in this alley between Avenues A and B are nothing but fire fuel, according to Fire Marshall Jay Spain. City workers will haul away any brush piled in the alley, but it is the resident's responsibility to cut them down. Spain says it is "fire season" during winter because of dry, windy weather; increased use of stoves, heaters and fireplaces; and neglect to obey holiday safety rules. (Brand Photo)

Lions visited by Dist. Governor

Ed Thames, Lions International District 2T-1 Governor, brought the Hereford Lions Club up to date on area and worldwide happenings in Lionism when he made his official visit to the club Wednesday at the Community Center.

Thames, of Amarillo, urged the Lions to work at retaining members and in reaching out to gather new men as they "serve their fellow man" in the club.

Thames said that the district, which includes the entire Panhandle area, has set a goal of 455 new members this year. He recapped some of the motivations which draw men into the service organization, mentioning specifically the Lions Crippled Children's Camp in Kerrville, the High Plains Eye Bank in Amarillo, and Girlstown. Gov. Thames urged the local club to participate in a worldwide project next April, called "Lions Journey for Sight.'

The project, the idea of current International Lions Club President Ebb Grindstaff of Ballinger, is intended to raise funds for sight conservation April 9-10.

On those dates, Lions Clubs throughout the world will sponsor "journeys" in their communities. The journeys include runs, walkathons, bikeathons, jogathons, etc. in which participants will secure sponsors for distances traveled to raise donations.

Pres. Grindstaff is suggesting that a minimum of 25 percent of the funds raised go to the Lions Clubs International Foundation (LCIF) program designated for diabetes-related research.

Brushy weeds in alleys and along fences make the fire risk high right now, Spain said, especially while it remains windy and dry. After a killing frost, weeds serve as little more than kindling. With rain at the right times last summer, many weeds shot up over head-high.

Reagan unsure of tax cuts start

Under the wary eyes of Con- following year. gress, President Reagan's top economic advisers are fighting over whether he should push to speed up next year's cut in income tax rates to spur the still-ailing economy The president says he hasn't made up his mind yet about seeking a Jan. 1 starting date for the rest of his three-year, 25 percent tax rate cut, now scheduled to show up in paycheck withholdings as of next July 1. But he acknowledged Wednesday it is an "appealing" way to stimulate the > economy. The problem is that a speed up of the tax cut, which would put an additional $14.6 billion in taxpayer pockets next year, would increase the federal deficit by the same amount.

That troubles some of the president's economic advisers and some key members of Congress at a time when congressional budget experts are already estimating that the deficit could reach an unprecedented $170 billion in Administration officials say there is a vigorous debate going on within the White House over whether the taxcut plan is good economics and good politics. Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan first proposed the idea, but is facing strong opposition from budget director David A. Stockman and chief White House economist Martin S. Feldstein.

by a Gallup poll and nurtured by a conservative Christian college, the Disneyland of capitalism - Enterprise Square USA - opens Saturday as a $15 million monument to the free enterprise system.

Through high-tech exhibits ranging from animated puppets to computers and laser discs, visitors of all ages will be able to see what makes capitalism work - and how they're part of it.

"The project began with a Gallup poll in 1975 which showed that college students were very misinformed about our economic system," said J. Terry Johnson, president of Oklahoma Christian College, a Church of Christ institution in Oklahoma City.

"We said that is an educational problem," he recalled Monday, saying there was a need to explain economics "with a delivery that would really communicate with young people."

Teachers want to show 'fads are silly'

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) -First, students started wearing curlers to school. Then came red ribbons, complete with names embossed in white. Recently, wearing a safety pin made a student hip.

Now clothespins are "in" at Highland Park's McCullough Middle School.

But it's the teachers who are going after the latest fad.

Principal Cecil Floyd wears the wooden clothespins on his suit lapels. 'It's good for school spirit," he explains

Teachers parade through the halls, wearing the clothespins dangling from their suits like jewelry. One instructor uses his for a tie clip.

The reason for the madness is simple, explains Janet Mullenix, a 26-year-old math teacher who came to school Wednesday with a strip of wooden clothespins clasped to her blazer lapel.

"If the kids can be silly, we can be sillier," she said.

The creator of the clothespin craze is Jane Dalton, a 29-year-old social studies teacher who said she wants to prove fads are silly

Some teachers said fads are especially silly in this affluent island suburb of Dallas, where students try very hard to keep up with the latest

For example, the students all wear blue jeans on Fridays, teachers said.

"They're very conscious of their appearance here," said Chris Fulmer, an art teacher. "They all wear Polo and Izod, and all the girls wear their hair the same way."

Ms. Dalton admits her fad, despite its intention, has become obsessive. "I spend my nights painting clothespins," she said. Although the teachers said they intend to mock middle school fads, many students have missed the point. "I'm getting requests from the kids," Ms. Dalton said. "They want clothespins, and they want to know where you can get them."

'Giant' oil deposit found off California Coast

HOUSTON (AP) - Four oil companies have discovered a "giant" oil deposit off Southern California that could yield production of 50,000 barrels a day, Texaco U.S.A. said.

Council expects up to 520 fatal accidents

CHICAGO (AP) - The National Safety Council expects between 420 and 520 fatal traffic accidents across the nation during the four-day Thanksgiving holiday weekend.

The holiday period gets under way at 6 p.m. next Wednesday and ends the following Sunday at midnight.

Last year the death toll was 413. In 1968, there were 764 traffic fatalities during the Thanksgiving celebration, the most ever in a U.S. holiday period.

Council researchers say that during a four-day, non-holiday period this time of year, about 480 traffic deaths could be expected.

Officials deny helping bounty-hunters collar Mexican drug defendant

EL PASO, Texas (AP) Federal officials have denied allegations that the U.S. government helped four Texas bounty hunters kidnap a drug defendant in Mexico and hustle him across the border into El Paso.

A public defender Wednesday contended his client, who jumped $40,000 bail and fled across the Texas-Mexico border, was handcuffed and blindfolded at gunpoint before he was carried to U.S. authorities in Texas.

'It makes us sound like a bunch of Gestapo people," U.S. marshal's office supervisor Arnold Stolz said.

Ramos said Quintana-Samaniego was approached Sept. 23 by four men who talked of buying some property in the village.

Ramos said the men left once, apparently uncertain whether Quintana: Samaniego was who they wanted, but came back a second time, chased him into a ditch and handcuffed him.

They blindfolded him after brandishing guns and drove him to Ciudad Juarez, the Mexican border town across the Rio Grande from El Paso. There they established radio contact with federal authorities who met them at the bridge, Ramos said.

At one point before heading to Juarez, the bounty hunters tried to intimidate Quintana-Samaniego into positively identifying himself by pulling down his pants and threatening to sexually assault him, said Ramos. It was then, Ramos said, that the men found the Mexican's identification card.

Ramos contends the Mexican citizen had his rights violated, and added that ex-

The bounty hunters hired by Texas Fugitive Apprehension to track down Quintana-Samaniego "could face up to 40 years in jail for the kidnapping," Ramos said.

The four Mexicans employed by the bountyhunting firm never harmed or sexually abused Quintana-Samaniego, countered Al Lopez, head of the Texas Fugitive company.

"I would send my own sister with these people," he said.

The firm was hired for $8,000 to track down Quintana-Samaniego to prevent loss of $40,000 put up by the Afuera-Out bail bond company when the Mexican left jail, Lopez said.

Behind every successful

Chamber manager, there's a supportive and involved wife. Well, something like that...

Janice Carr, a vivacious young homemaker, often takes part in activities which her husband, Mike, is involved with as executive vicepresident of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce.

Mike, who is beginning his fourth year as Chamber manager, is in charge of planning and coordinating a wide range of community activities, and works as a liaison between various organizations and individuals.

As a "goodwill ambassador" he helps area merchants coordinate advertising, is involved in "Better Business Bureau" type of activities, and works with industrial and community pro-

"In a way he's like a salesman - promoting the community," notes Janice, who says that Mike travels some with his job and must keep up with legislation affecting Hereford and the vicini-

"It's not a real defined job," she continues, "and because he answers to the Chamber Board of Directors and Board president, there are changes fairly often and new people come in with fresh ideas. It keeps you on your toes and keeps you from getting set in your ways." Janice supports Mike in his Chamber activities, sometimes entertaining new people and helping them get acquainted. "I've met a lot of the new Swift personnel and families and that's been enjoyable," states Janice.

The Carrs attend West Texas Chamber conventions and meetings of the Panhandle Chamber Executives, of which Mike has served as

We just got back from a convention in Kerrville," says Janice. "They are always fun - everybody brings something from their town for door prizes. Mike has won things like a pecan tree and a handmade quilt."

As a member of the decoratheir committee of the Chamber Women's Division, Janice helps decorate for the big banquet each year and for the Women's Division quarterly meetings. "I also fill in on other committees sometimes when I'm' needed," she says.

The couple has one son, Andrew, who is three years old. 'Andrew went to the football games for the first time this year and he thought that was a lot of fun," says Janice. He also follows Mom around quite a bit as she is involved a variety of community acivities.

Janice is reporter for the Hereford Panhellenic Association, which helps acquaint senior girls with sororities and rush where they plan to attend college.

"I was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha at West Texas State University and really feel like it made a difference in college," notes Janice. "I still keep up with many of the friends I made when I was involved in that. Janice is a member of Los Ciboleros chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution and is historian for L'Allegra Study Club.

She is also a member of the committee to nominate and research for the Cowgirl Hall of Fame. "We accept resumes on possible inductees and do research in order to select worthy candidates for the Hall of Fame," she comments.

Janice earned her degree in elementary education from West Texas State University and has received certification in learning and language disabilities. She has also done work on her master's degree.

She taught language development classes two years at the old Central School and two years at West Central, and has been a homemaker since 1977.

Janice was born in Hawaii, but grew up in Hereford. One summer while I was teaching school I went back and took summer school at the University of Hawaii, living in the dorm," says Janice. "I met some of my parents' friends and they showed me around. It was really a lot of fun. "Mike and I went to Hawaii on our honeymoon, also." Mike was born in Crowell, near Wichita Falls, and grew up in Pampa. He graduated from McMurr y College with a major in finance and management and came to Hereford as manager of Gibson's, where he was employed until he assumed the position of Chamber manager

When Janice is not busy doing things outside her home, she enjoys crocheting, needlepoint, and reading. 'Andrew and I go to the library every week and he was really excited last month to be named "Child of the Month" there, receiving a poster with his name on it," notes Janice.

We had a garden this summer and the whole family enjoyed that," she adds.

When it comes to cooking, Janice says that she likes easy things. "Andrew is getting to the age where he likes to sit on the cabinet and help," she comments.

One of my roommates in college gave me this recipe for pork chop casserole,' says Janice. "It suited my budget and time schedule then, and it still does. It's also a good dish for the times Mike gets held up at work, because it's just as good later as it is right away.

The macaroons are good for showers or club meetings. I've had several people call and ask for the recipe. You can use any kind of preserves, but I always use apricot because I think it is good with the almond flavor-

Harris poll accurate in picking playoff games

Sports Editor

Ever wonder how accurate the Harris Rating System poll is concerning high school playoff games?

Last week, the Harris poll guessed correctly on 71.8 percent (69 of 96) of the playoff games.

Breaking that down farther, it was 20-12 (.625) in Class 5A; 24-8 (.750) in 3A and 25-7 (.781) in Class 2A. Playoff games in Classes 4A and 1A begin this weekend.

The most notable upsets in 5A, according to the poll, were Fort Worth Western Hill's victory over Wichita Falls Rider and Austin LBJ's triumph over Brazoswood. Rider and Brazoswood were 10-point picks.

The rest of the favorites were picked by a TD, or less, which meant the game could most likely have gone either

In 3A, Kermit was a 10-point pick over Ozona, but lost, 10-9. Rusk was a solid 21-point pick over Diboll, but fell,

The major upset in 2A came when Southlake Carroll, a 15-point underdog, slipped past Pottsboro, 28-25. Who'll get it this week'

Could it be Permian, a 21-point pick over El Paso Irvin in 5A? - Probably not.

How about Brownwood, a 14-point favorite against Gainesville? Or, how about Fort Bend Willowridge, a 22-point pick against Austin Westlake? -- Again, more than likely not

How about Post? The Antelopes are favored by 20 against River Road, a team they defeated by four touchdowns earlier in the season.

Maybe it'll be Post Isabel, a 14-point pick against Taft in

Or, maybe New Deal, an 18-point pick against Reagan

County (a team with a 5-5-1 record) in 2A. Or, how about Pilot Point, a 23-point pick against Kerens in 2A.

Perhaps it'll be Wink, a whopping 35-point pick against Anthony in 1A. Or, maybe Iraan, a 28-point choice against Fort Hancock.

You can almost rest assured there'll be a few major upsets this week.

West Texas State head coach Don Davis promised a wide-open, exciting offense from the Buffs this season. He said the club would throw the ball 30 to 40 times a game. He was optimistic about putting more fans in the stadium, based largely on the team's offensive appeal. Well, the Buffs have lived up to Davis' expectations offensively. They're among the leaders in total offense and passing offense in NCAA (Division 1-AA) statistics.

Defensively, they've left a lot to be desired of, giving up an all-time high (350) in points (with one game remaining) and 467.9 yards per outing ...

Before the season began, Davis, realistically thought his club might average 12,000 to 15,000 per game. After all, he'd hired a promotion director in John Dittrich. Dittrich had high hopes. Since 1976, he'd been trying to promote the Amarillo Gold Sox.

But, with only six home games he thought promoting would be easier - rather than trying to promote for 68 home games (as is the case in baseball during the sum-

And, thought Dittrich, football was a more fanappealing sport in the Texas Panhandle.

But, such wasn't the case. The six home games this season drew just over 60,000 -an average of 10,000 plus per game.

Maybe it'll take more time. But, WT football just isn't the THING in the Panhandle. I doubt if it ever will be.

Just think, the Buffs played before more people in one road game (at Florida where the crowd was 72,885) than they played before in six games at home

On the road, the Buffs averaged playing before 33,204 -thanks mainly to the huge crowd at Florida. But, Tulsa drew over 25,000 and Southwest Louisiana had over 21,000.

This weekend, the Buffs close out the season at Southern Illinois. A win would leave them with a 4-7 mark (they were 7-4 last season). SIU is 5-5, so the Salukis must win to assure a winning season.

Victor McGee already has set 10 school records this season. He needs five completions against SIU to set another – this one for most career completions.

Hereford's Chamber of Commerce and the high school athletic department deserve a pat on the back

Last week, there were two playoff games at Whiteface Stadium, and this week there'll be another:

According to Mike Carr of the Chamber of Commerce, it costs about $1,000 to host such a game.

'We don't charge anything for the stadium rental," Carr said. "In fact, we don't charge the teams anything. We supply all the help.

The cost is split up between the chamber and the athletic department.

I'll tell you one thing, the coaches deserve a big pat on the back. They really work pretty hard to set things up for the playoff games

We feel we create a certain amount of good will between the schools that come here to play, and feel that is pretty worthwhile

Although there is no contract yet, California senatorelect Pete Wilson said he expects the Army-Navy football game to be played at the Rose Bowl, Dec. 3, 1983. Wilson said that because of the heavey concentration of military in California, he believes the 106,000-seat stadium would be sold out for the game. What price victory? Well, in the case of Penn State and Notre Dame last week, the price was high.

It probably cost Notre Dame a million dollars by losing to the Nittany Lions, while for Penn State it more than likely made the school a cool million.

Here is how your Hoople System sees these games:

The Missouri Tigers will down Kansas, 23-13; Clemson will take the measure of intra-state foe South Carolina 35-11: and the Mississippi Rebels will squeak out a three-point win over the Mississippi State Bulldogs, 27-24. Purdue's Boilermakers, led by passer deluxe Scott Campbell, will shade Indiana, 28-24; the Tennessee Vols will subdue Kentucky's Wildcats, 26-15 and the Boston College Eagles will soar past Holy Cross, 22-20.

Virginia Tech is too powerful for the Keydets of VMI and will win, 30-14; Washington will down Washington State, 33-14: Texas will twist Baylor, 33-14 and Maryland will outscore Virginia, 26-6.

Ann Landers

Doctor's column reprinted

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am enclosing a column written in 1959. The author is Dr. Walter C. Avarez, for many years a noted physician with the Mayo Clinic. This column did more to educate me about homosexuality than anything I ever read. To have spoken out this way in 1959 took great courage. Time has proven Dr. Alvarez knew what he was talking about. I hope you will print what he had to say. - A Minnesota Reader

DEAR READER: I knew Dr. Walter Alvarez. He was a splendid doctor - kind, compassionate and brilliant. When I started to write in 1955 he was one of the first to offer encouragement. Here is an edited version of Dr. Alvarez' column.

"Many mothers write me pathetic letters expressing puzzlement and sorrow over a son who is not very masculine. Often he is too good-looking for a boy. His interests tend to be artistic and he never cared for athletics. When he turned 20 or so he became upset because he realized he was different. His love interests were directed toward men. He knew he would never marry and have a family

"I don't know how anyone could fail to feel sympathy for an unhappy lad who has inherited a tendency to be more like a women than a man. Certainly he is not responsible for the genetic and glandular mix-up that went wrong. As I was writing this I stopped for two hours to talk with a young man who told me he takes out girls and hopes one day to marry. But he knows it is dangerous because he feels such a strong attraction for goodlooking men. He realizes such friendships can be hazardous and is fighting hard to stay away from them.

"He had gone to several psychiatrists and found no help. Some of the wisest doctors told him they doubted that anyone could change his sexual preference, any more than they could change the psychic make-up of a heterosexual who adores his

'I urged him to avoid doing anything that might cause

Dr. Alvarez died in 1978, too soon to enjoy the progress made by homosexuals in the area of civil rights and social acceptance that had been denied them too long. His "born wrong" theory certainly holds true for large numbers of homosexuals. But many authorities now have documented cases in which there is no gentic or hormonal problem. The deviation occurred at an early age because of environmental factors. It could be an absent or punitive father, an overly smothering mother, any number of situations that might affect the emotional development and send a person in an unusual direction. Nor did Dr. Alvarez acknowledge that many homosexuals are content with their lifestyles and would not choose to be straight.

I would like to pay tribute to a kind and gentle man who had the courage to speak out on this subject in a sympathetic way at a time when it was professionaly dangerous to do so. He was a model of what every physician should strive to be him to be blackmailed or thrown in jail. I said I hoped he would never marry to put up a front. It is a miserable trick to play on a girl.'

There are no more Mr. Nice Guys in television commercials anymore. The hucksters who used to refer to their opposition as Brand X are gone. The housewives are diplomatically referred to the rival product as the "other leading toothpaste" are no more. The car salesman who used to shipcover his competitor's car in a sheet'went out with ring around his collar.

I can't remember who put on the gloves first, but one day I was horrified to hear Hertz call Avis by name and Coke to acknowledge Pepsi existed. (Somehow I figured they had just hear rumors.

From that day forward, there were no holds barred.

The consumers watched the war on their television screens. We saw who had the catsup that was runny and which one took three years to get out of the neck of the bottle because of its thickness.

We saw the women who dedicated their lives to searching for a peanut butter that wasn't oily and when they found one dropped the other one like a bad habbit.

We saw a stupid husband drag in big-name cold remedies that only made his wife sicker when indeed she had ordered the one with the shot glass on top.

They named names.

'Marmaduke likes all kinds of puppies...even human!'

The Newspaper

ARE YOU WISE, OR OTHERWISE?

All who listen to My instructions and follow them are wise. like a man who builds his house on solid rock. Though the rain comes in torrents, and the floods rise and the storm winds beat against his house, it won't collapse, for it is built on rock. But those who hear My instructions and ignore them are foolish, like a man who builds his house on sand. For when the rains and floods come, and the storm winds beat against his house, it will fall with a mighty crash.

The crowds were amazed at Jesus' sermons, for He taught as one who had great authority. and now as their Jewish leaders. (Matthew

For no one can ever lay any other real foundation than that one we already have--Jesus Christ. But there are various kinds of materials that can be used to build on that foundation. Some use gold and silver and jewels; and some build with sticks, and hay or even straw!

There is going to come a time of testing at Christ's Judgment Day to see what kind of material each builder used. Everyone's work will be put through the fire so that all can see whether or not it keeps its value, and what was really accomplished. Then every workman who has built on the foundation with the right materials, and whose work still stands, will get his pay. But if the house he has built burns up, he will have a great loss. He himself will be saved, but like a man escaping through a wall of flames. (I Corinthians 3:11-

La Afflatus Estudio Club plans Christmas luncheon

Members of LaAfflatus Estudio Club met Tuesday in the home of Allyne Johnson, with Lydia Hopson as cohostess. After the meeting was called to order by President Pet Ott, the social committee reported that the next meeting will be a Christmas luncheon at 1 p.m. on Dec. 8.

Aileene Montgomery led the club collect, and roll call was answered with "A Thought for Today."

Mary Williamson gave a program entitled "American Astros - Where are They Today?" She told about former astronauts who are now successful businessmen. One for example was John Glen, a U.S. Senator.

Other members present were Tresa Hale, Alberta Higgins, Emily Suggs, Opal Elliston, Irene Markham. Della Stagner, Eva Gililland, and Lucille Hughes

Thanksgiving dinner held Tuesday evening

La Plata Study Club met Tuesday evening at the Hereford Country Club for a Thanksgiving dinner, to which husbands were invited as guests. Thirty-one were in attendance.

Hostesses for the party were Margaret Schroeter, Carla Patterson, and Ruby Boston.

Following the meal, served buffet style in the Halbert co. Winners were Sarah Hazelrigg and Louis Woodford.

The club's next meeting will be a Christmas party in the home of Donna VanderZee on Dec. 14.

Think of it like this: If everyone did it your way, whom would you be able to tag for the no-no's when things went wrong?

Degenerated disk?

DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a 26-year-old female, 5 feet 2 and weigh 173 pounds. I would like to know if you could send me some information about a degenerated disk. Is there any treatment for it and if so what kind? I injured my back about three years ago. The first doctor I saw wanted X-rays but I could not afford them. Later when I went back he could find nothing wrong. My back is not getting any better so I went to a neurosurgeon. He said he thinks I have a degenerated disk. I had the X-rays last week but they did not show anything. He has me on some medicine but it does not seem to be helping. Was I right or wrong in going to see a neurosurgeon? don't know whether he wants to do surgery or not until I go back to see him. DEAR READER - If you do have a degenerated intervertebral disk, it is fine to see a neurosurgeon. They do disk surgery if it is needed. You could also have seen an orthopedic specialist. A good place to start is with your family doctor because some back pain is not related to the spine or back muscles at pain to the back from the colon or other abdominal organs.

Ordinary X-rays are often of limited value in finding a degenerated disk. Special Xrays such as myelograms that inject dye into the spinal column so the displaced disk can be seen are often used. So is the CAT scan.

It is difficult to advise you without a definite diagnosis of what is causing your back pain. It could be muscle spasm for a number of reasons.

If you do not have an acute condition, such as a recent flare up from a ruptured disk, it is possible that you need some good exercises for your abdomen and spine. But you should not do these exercises during the acute phase without your doctor's approval. Many young people have back-aches because of weak abdominal muscles. So do a number of older people, too.

DEAR READER - Not much. Fortunately the liquids are quickly warmed and, of course, they mix with the contents of the stomach. Very hot liquids or food may be a bigger danger, as they irritate the delicate lining of the throat and particularly the esophagus.

Now, a lot of really cold liquid in the stomach, such as ice water, can chill the under side of the heart enough to cause the T waves in an electrocardiogram (ECG) to change. This doesn't mean it damages the heart.

But I have seen enough acute heart attacks in young, rather healthy individuals who got very hot, as in play-ing football, and then drank a lot of cold liquids, to discourage drinking a lot of cold water or other cold liquids in that situation.

Jurors convict Waco firm, acquit officers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) = A jury's paradoxical verdict that a Waco construction company is guilty of rigging bids but its top officials are innocent has left the firm's attorney puzzled.

Young Brothers Inc. Contractors, one of the state's largest highway construction firms, was convicted Wednesday of federal bid-rigging and mail fraud charges stemming from a 1977 Gillespie County construction project.

After 14 hours of deliberations over two days, jurors also acquitted Young Brothers president Francis M. Young and vice president John Miller.

"It doesn't seem right," said attorney Robert Sheehy. "Naturally we feel the verdiet with the officers was correct, but we don't understand why they would try to find the corporation guilty.

Young said he thought jurors simply found it easy to convict a corporation.

"I guess it was a way to slap our wrist," Young said "It's not like flesh. It would have been horrible if Mr. Miller or I had been convicted. With a corporation, you're just talking about money.

He said the company's conviction would be appealed

Removing rust stains

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY - We have a new cement porch. I'd like to know how to remove rust stains that come from lawn chairs sitting on the cement. Also, flower blooms have fallen off during the summer and left stains on the cement. - J.K. DEAR J.K. - A rust remover containing muriatic acid would remove the rust stains, but it might also mar the smooth finish of the cement floor. I'd try this safer remedy first. If it doesn't remove both the rust stains and flower stains completely, it may dim them enough to make them fairly unnoticeable. Mix a paste of lemon juice and salt. Spread this over the stained areas, let it set for five minutes, then scrub with a stiff brush and rinse thoroughly. Some readers have had good luck using laundry pre-soak products to remove oil and grease stains from concrete and cement. Those products might be helpful if the lemon juice and salt treatment doesn't do the job. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY - I have a remedy for the reader who spilled bleach on her jeans. Although there's considerable work involved, the results are worth it. I had the same problem and used this method successfully.

Step one: Wash jeans thoroughly and dry. Make sure all bleach is out of jeans. Step two: Buy a box of color remover (in the home dye section of variety stores and supermarkets) and follow instructions. Remove all color until the jeans are white or almost white. Rinse until water runs clear. Step three: Again, wash well and dry.

Step four: Use home dye in the color desired (I used navy) according to package directions. Rinse we The jeans should come out evenly colored. As long as all the bleach was washed out initially, there should be no light spots. Of course, any visible label (the designer's name, for example) will probably have faded, too, but at least you'll have a perfectly good, wearable pair of jeans. — SHIRLEY DEAR POLLY — When baking cakes, I sprinkle the greased pan with wheat germ instead of flour. It's more nutritious and flavorful. For a chocolate cake, I use cocoa. which makes a richer looking cake. - I.G.

Fireplaces not so hot after all

While many Texans are looking forward to enjoying the warm glow of their fireplaces this winter, the glow may by the warmest part of a standard masonry fireplace.

The average masonry fireplace delivers only 5 percent of the heat generated by the fire to the home, says Dr. Mike Walterscheidt, forester with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. The other 95 percent goes up the chimney

In addition, the fire, whenburning properly, draws between 500 and 600 cubic feet of air per minute. That air, enough to empty a 1,400 square foot home in about 20 minutes, is drawn into the home under windows, around doors and through cracks in the floors of even the finest homes. The result is that fireplace can actually hinder, rather than help, your heating system, says Walterscheidt

Despite the efficiency of a fireplace most persons whose homes have one will want to use it. The forester offers several suggestions that canadd to the enjoyment of a fireplace.

Before the cold season sets in, check the chimney for obstructions and creosote buildup, Creosote, a tarry substance, is found in all types of wood and, as a result, will be found in chimneys, not just the ones where cresotetreated wood has been burn-

A chimney rated as Class A COLLEGE STATION .. Laboratories, Inc., among the safest chimneys available, will withstand temperatures up to 1,700 degrees F. for 10 minutes. Temperatures in a creosotecaused chimney fire can reach 3,000 degress F. So, check the chimney and clean it if necessary before starting

> Since a cold chimney will not draw as well as a warm one, hold a lighted, rolled-up newspaper toward the top and rear of the fireplace to warm the chimney and help prevent smoke from backing up into the room when the fire is started

> Allow ashes to accumulate to at least an inch deep on the hearth since they act as insulation and will help the fire burn more efficiently

Add new logs to the rear of the fire where they will reflect light and heat into the Use screens or glass doors in front of the fire to prevent sparks from falling onto the carpet or floor. Glass doors can double the efficiency of a fireplace, which means going from a 5 percent efficiency to a 10 percent efficiency. Glass doors can also be closed when the fire is unattended or at bedtime and will help keep home heat from escaping up the chimney

Installing and using an outside air source directly into the fireplace can also help its

Finally, never leave children unattended in a room where there is or has recently been a fire.

Catholic bishops condemning war

WASHINGTON (AP) Roman Catholic bishops are nardin of Chicago, head of the pushing ahead with their projected sweeping condemnation of nuclear warfare despite objections conveyed directly from the White House.

In the unusual confrontation between the Reagan administration and leaders of the nation's largest Christian body, the bishops are saving the presidential criticism will get careful consideration.

But as the National Conference of Catholic Bishops today continued discussing their document challenging some U.S. nuclear strategy, indications were they'd stick to their positions.

The administration's intervention will be taken very seriously as a real contribution to our discussion," commented Archbishop John R. Roach of St. Paul-Minneapolis, president of the conference.

But I don't see it as an occasion for any major turnabout on the positions of our document," Roach said.

The proposed pastoral letter calls for a nuclear freeze. and condemns as immoral any use of nuclear weapons, or any threat or intent to use them. It says even their possession as a deterrent is tolerable only so long as steps are being taken toward mutual disarmament.

Archbishop Joseph L. Bercommittee that drafted the bishops' planned teaching letter, said he didn't feel intimidated by the White House criticisms

From the beginning we invited and asked for comments." Bernardin said. He said most administration objections had been raised Stovall has been released before, and indications were that most bishops still backed their document.

The administration complaints were delivered voluminously Wednesday - a load of brown White House envelopes stacked on a meeting room table and addressed individually to the nearly 300 bishops.

Copies of the seven-page letter inside, signed by national security adviser William P. Clark but explicitly speaking for Reagan and top Cabinet officials, charged fundamental misreadings of American policies.

Reagan guarding against accidental war

WASHINGTON (AP) - In a "confidence-building" message to the Soviet Union, President Reagan is planning to propose new measures to guard against accidental nuclear war, according to administration sources

In a speech nearing completion and to be delivered within a week, Reagan will call for improving the hot line between Washington and Moscow and more notification before nuclear missile tests, the sources said.

The speech is designed to assure the late President Leonid I. Brezhnev's successors that the United States is committed to arms control. Reagan will draw attention to the massive sums the two superpowers spend on defense and urge a mutual effort to reverse the nuclear weapons .race, said the sources, who asked not to be identified.

While Brezhnev's death last Wednesday is not viewed by U.S. officials as ushering in a new era of Soviet foreign policy, Reagan and his advisers are taking the occasion to call for improved relations. In the speech, the sources said, Reagan intends to show how U.S. proposals for cutting back nuclear missiles can foster peace.

Now under negotiation in Geneva, the proposals would cut back by one-third U.S. and Soviet intercontinental nuclear warheads and reduce or eliminate nuclear missiles in Europe. Prospects for an early agreement are considered slim.
