

After three weeks of campaign

Local UW drive nears halfway mark

The United Way of Deaf Smith County has reached 45 percent of its goal, it was announced Monday, with pledges and contributions totalling $49,490 collected after three weeks of the five-week campaign.

Following the weekly report meeting at the Community Center at noon Monday, UW President M.D. Gentry said that officers and volunteers "are still optimistic" about reaching the campaign goal of $110,000 to help fund 10 community agencies.

"Ideally, we'd like to be at 60 percent of our goal at this time," said Gentry. "However, we've distributed some 2,000 prospect cards and only 18 percent have been returned. That means we can easily top the goal if we keep working to get those cards returned," he added.

Helen Langley, campaign chairman, singled out the Golden Age division Monday as the weekly "stars." That division has reported 117 percent of its goal. Contributions total $6,000 and the division goal was $5,100. Worker J.O. Robinson turned in about half of the total, according to chairman Leona Kimball.

The largest increase of the week came in the Major division headed by Buddy Peeler. That division has a goal of $39,000 and it showed an increase of $9,500 during the week for a total of $15,425 and 40 percent of its goal.

Three other divisions are at the halfway mark, or better, on their division goals. The Pacesetter division had pledges of $10,625 for 50 percent of its goal. The Golden K

Kiwanis Club contributed $350 to the Pacesetter total this past week.

The Special division has reached 53 percent of its goal of $11,500. Chairman Donnie Houle reported that Coca Cola employees contributed $225 more than they had last year. The Whiteface division total is now $2,038 or 57 percent of its goal. Chairman Tony Calkins reported the Sonic car wash project brought in $143 for the United Way. The Key Club will wash cars Saturday, Oct. 11 from 2 to 5 p.m. to benefit the UW drive. Hal Moore of the Sonic will again provide the water and soap for the project.

Other division totals and percentage of the goal: Professional $3,219 (34%); Agriculture $1,520 (34%); Metro $3,987 (31%); General $615 (23%). The campaign is scheduled to run two more weeks.

American reporter Daniloff freed after month of detention in Moscow

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — American reporter Nicholas Daniloff, freed by the Soviet Union a month after being accused of espionage, flew home today under a secret superpower accord said to include the release of a Soviet charged with spying in New York.

The 51-year-old U.S. News & World Report correspondent and his wife, Ruth, arrived in Frankfurt on Monday night after a flight from the Soviet capital. This afternoon, they boarded a Pan Am jet, this time bound for Washington and a reunion with their two children, Caleb and Miranda.

The plane carrying the Daniloffs left Frankfurt airport at 1:19 p.m. (8:19 a.m. EDT), airport spokesman Horst Aussen said.

"I feel great," Daniloff shouted as he waved to reporters before getting into a limousine at the consular residence for the 15-minute drive to the airport. The Daniloffs spent the night at the residence.

Daniloff said Monday night he did not know details of the agreement under which he was allowed to leave the Soviet Union, but expressed thanks.

"I'm grateful to the president of the United States. I'm free, I'm in the West. I cannot tell you about any other arrangements. ... All I know is that I am free," he told reporters upon arriving from Moscow.

President Reagan said details of the arrangement that led to Daniloff's release would be made public today.

Asked during a political swing through the Midwest Monday whether the United States had blinked during negotiations with the Soviets, Reagan replied: "They blinked."

Sources in the administration and at the United Nations in New York said that under the superpower accord, Soviet U.N. employee Gennadiy Zakharov, arrested on spying charges one week before Daniloff was seized, would be freed after what one called "some sort of judicial proceeding."

U.S. officials, however, have insisted publicly that there will be no swap, and officials at the U.S. attorney's office in the New York City borough of Brooklyn said Monday said there had been no change in Zakharov's status.

U.S. media reports said Zakharov would plead no contest to the charges against him. Today's editions of The New York Times quoted Reagan administration officials as saying he would be sent back to the Soviet Union in exchange for a group of dissidents.

CBS News said the dissidents would probably be Yuri Orlov, David Goldfarb and Vladimir Slepak.

At the same time, it was not clear whether the Reagan administration would yield to Kremlin demands that it revise an expulsion order under which the Soviets must reduce the size of their U.N. mission from 275 to 170 officials over a two-year period.

The first 25 Soviets, described by administration officials as intelligence agents, had until Wednesday to leave the United States.

Although the U.S. administration had insisted there would be no exchange of Daniloff and Zakharov, Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze negotiated at length on the cases in Washington and New York.

A Soviet-bloc source at the U.N. said Shultz and Shevardnadze agreed Sunday that Daniloff and Zakharov would be exchanged. The source, who usually is well-informed, provided no further details.

The Daniloff case was among several issues that had threatened plans for a second summit between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and embittered relations between the two superpowers.

The KGB secret service jailed Daniloff as an accused spy Aug. 30, in what U.S. officials called Soviet retaliation for the Aug. 23 arrest in New York of Zakharov, 39.

On Monday evening, Daniloff left the U.S. Embassy in Moscow in an embassy van, flashing a "V-for-victory" sign from the window. He was accompanied by U.S. charge d'affaires Richard Combs and Henry Trewitt, deputy managing editor of Daniloff's magazine.

We attended the National Newspaper Association convention in Nashville, Tenn., last week, and the program naturally included a trip to Opryland and a night at the Grand Ole Opry. Featured speakers at the convention were former Sen. Howard Baker and Alex Haley, author of "Roots".

Following a glowing introduction, Haley said he was reminded of something his grandfather told him, "Anytime you see a turtle sitting on top of a fencepost, you know he had some help in getting there."

Haley briefly told the story of his life and how he came to write the popular book, "Roots." He said he didn't start out to write a book. He was curious about the tales he heard from his aunts and other family members as they sat on the porch and spun tales about the past. He started doing research on families and the work led to his book.

Haley told a humorous story about how he got started on his writing career. While serving as a bus boy in the U.S. Coast Guard, he started writing love letters for sailors on board his ship. He would write the letters for $1 each, and built up a big "client" list after some of his customers told others about the good results of their letters.

Haley told the newspaper people at the convention there was too much negative reporting in the media. "Find the good and praise it!" Haley concluded.

Baker, the former senator from Tennessee who ran for president in 1984, said he would decide after the November elections whether or not he would seek the office again. Baker was well received at the convention.

Another popular speaker was Minnie Pearl, a country comedian star for about 50 years. She told many old jokes, but they were still funny, coming from such a well-known gal from Grinder's Switch. "I told a newspaper man that a picture he ran of me didn't do me justice," said Minnie Pearl. "You don't need justice, you need mercy," the photographer said.

Most of the speakers were natives of Tennessee, in keeping with the site of the convention. Gov. Lamar Alexander welcomed the convention crowd to the state of Tennessee.

We made a couple of interesting tours. One was to the Hermitage, the restored home of Andrew Jackson. Another was on the General Jackson, a paddlewheel showboat that cruises down the Cumberland River. We also had a brief afternoon visiting Opryland, a multi-million dollar family show park with more than a dozen stage productions highlighting all forms of American music. It also has rides, shops and restaurants in a beautiful 120-acre setting.

It was an interesting trip, especially since it was our first visit to Music City, U.S.A.

Reagan, Gorbachev to meet in Iceland

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced today that he and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev will meet in Reykjavik, Iceland, on Oct. 11 and 12.

Reagan made the surprise announcement to reporters assembled in the White House to hear Secretary of State George P. Shultz outline the terms that led to the release of American reporter Nicholas Daniloff a month after he was seized in Moscow and charged with spying.

Reagan called the planned session with Gorbachev as a one-on-one meeting and said it was "not a summit."

"All we've agreed upon is that we're going to have a meeting," he said of the Iceland session.

About the same time Reagan and Shultz were making their dramatic announcements, Gennadiy Zakharov was entering a no contest plea in federal court in Brooklyn under an arrangement that allowed him to leave the country later today.

Zakharov, a Soviet citizen who had been working at the United Nations, had been arrested a week before Daniloff was seized and charged with spying.

State

Senate approves earlier primary

AUSTIN (AP) — The Legislature has approved a bill which a sponsor says will force presidential candidates to listen to Texans and what they think is important.

The Senate on Monday accepted House amendments and sent to Gov. Mark White a bill to shift the Texas presidential primary from May to the second Tuesday in March, allowing the state to join in the southern "Super Tuesday" primary.

The bill was passed by the House on Saturday. Sponsors said White has indicated he would sign it into law.

"Texas with this vote assumes its leadership position in the South, which I think will continue to grow," said Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, who spearheaded creation of the southern regional primary.

"It's a great day for Texas," he said.

The other Senate co-sponsor, Chet Edwards, said Texas issues such as energy and agriculture "are going to be heard and listened to and considered by those people who want to occupy the most important political position in the country."

"With the passage of this bill today, we can't say who the next president is going to be — what we can say is Texas votes ... are going to be important," said Edwards, D-Duncanville.

"Our views are going to help shape the national agenda as they've never done before."

Eleven southern states already have scheduled their primaries for early March.

National

Other hostage situation at standstill

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — The Reagan administration should be as aggressive in seeking the release of the Americans held in Lebanon as it was in pressing the case of Nicholas Daniloff with Moscow, the sister of one of the hostages says.

"Of course I'm pleased Mr. Daniloff is coming home, both for him and his family," said Peggy Say, whose brother, Terry A. Anderson, was abducted in Beirut 18 months ago.

"I think that although (Daniloff's) capture was certainly unfortunate, he was fortunate that he was detained by a country which provided an opportunity for the Reagan administration to further their political interests in making an issue of his case. ...

"I'm absolutely convinced that had the same kind of effort been made in this case as in the Daniloff case and every other hostage case, these men would have been home long ago," Mrs. Say said from her Batavia home Monday night. "I think we all have to ask now why that same kind of effort hasn't taken place for Terry Anderson and the other hostages in Lebanon."

Anderson, 38, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped by March 16, 1985. The Islamic Jihad organization has claimed responsibility for the kidnapping.

POWs may remain in Asia

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Pentagon report contains no new hard evidence, but nevertheless concludes that the possibility is strong that American servicemen are being held against their will in Southeast Asia, administration sources say.

The report, prepared by a task force under retired Lt. Gen. Eugene F. Tighe, former director of the Defense Intelligence Agency, does not establish "beyond all doubt" that Vietnam War-era POWs remain behind, the sources said Monday.

It also concludes that no evidence substantiates charges the Reagan administration has purposely covered up evidence of live prisoners, the officials added.

Nonetheless, the task force concluded the preponderance of the available intelligence information supports a conclusion that American POWs are still alive and held against their will, the sources said.

"It's kind of like saying where there's smoke, there's fire," concluded one of the sources. "But they didn't come up with a smoking gun as I understand it, and they cleared the administration of any cover-up."

Almanac predicts reasonable winter

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — The winter of 1987 should be mild for most of the nation, says this year's Old Farmer's Almanac, which also warns people who break a mirror on Friday the 13th to burn their socks with holes in them.

The 195th edition of the nation's oldest continuously published periodical goes on sale this week with a familiar blend of nostalgia, stories, brain-teasers, tidal charts and planting tables, recipes, astrological tables, ads, folklore and, of course, weather forecasts.

One ad promotes an electric card shuffler ("Be The First With The Latest!" $9.95 gift-boxed) while the classifieds offer National Geographic magazines from 1888 and directions on how to make $1,200 a month raising earthworms.

The almanac advises triskaidekaphobics (people who fear the number 13) unlucky enough to break a mirror on Friday the 13th to burn all their socks with holes in them on the highest building or hill available.

There will be three Friday the 13ths in 1987, says the almanac.

The almanac, expected to sell about 4 million copies, also lists 28 "Food Capitals Of The U.S.A.," such as Methuen, Mass., for yogurt; Utica, Ill., for burgoo stew; Gilroy, Calif., garlic; and Salley, S.C., for chittins.

Robbery attempted at Vatican

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Three armed men burst into the Vatican's payroll office just behind St. Peter's Basilica on the monthly payday today, but fled after an employee sounded an alarm, officials reported.

It was the first armed robbery attempt ever in Vatican City, police said.

Police sent up helicopters and blocked off nearby streets, but the three armed men vanished into rush-hour crowds.

Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro told reporters that the would-be robbers entered the 106-acre city-state in a car shortly before 8 a.m., probably using fake identification papers.

They parked outside the cashier's office in the Vatican's central administrative building, located in the gardens behind the massive basilica and about 500 yards from the residence of Pope John Paul II.

As the armed men threatened the employees, a cashier told the trio that the person who had the key to the safe was not expected until after 8 a.m.

Another clerk then pushed an alarm bell connected with the Vatican security office, Navarro said.

As security agents rushed to the five-story building, the gunmen got into their car and drove to the eastern edge of the Vatican, where they abandoned the vehicle. They then scaled a stone wall and fled toward the busy Via Aurelia.

The administrative building, known as Governatorato, houses various offices of the Vatican's city government, headed by American Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus.

USDA sees big jump in wheat export

By MIKE ROBINSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The outlook for American wheat exports is holding steady at 31.3 million tons for the current marketing year, the government's Foreign Agricultural Service says.

That would mark an advance over the 24.9 million tons exported in the previous marketing year, which ended in May, but it remains well below record levels of five years ago.

Forecasts for other grains are also holding steady, the service said Monday.

In the four weeks ending Sept. 18, U.S. wheat shipments were off 20 percent from the preceding month, the service said in its latest report on grain exports. But total shipments for the year were ahead of the same period in 1985.

Total wheat shipments for the four weeks ending Sept. 18 were 2.5 million tons compared to 1.7 million tons in the same period a year ago.

For the four weeks that ended Aug. 21, total shipments were 3.5 million tons compared to 2.2 million tons in the same period in 1985.

Cumulative shipments for the marketing year reached 9.5 million tons compared to 7.1 million tons a year earlier.

The forecast for corn and sorghum exports for this marketing year remained unchanged for the second consecutive month at 39.4 million tons and 6.1 million tons respectively. Also holding steady were estimates for the year just ended at 31.1 million tons and 4.4 million tons respectively.

Corn shipments for the four weeks that ended Sept. 18 were up 45 percent from the preceding month's total of 1.1 million tons. Sales were up 26 percent because of increased purchasing by Japan, Taiwan and Korea and renewed sales to Mexico, the service said.

Sorghum shipments were off from the preceding month but sales are double those of last year at this time.

The estimate of U.S. barley exports in the current marketing year remained at its previous level of 1.2 million tons, representing a sharp upswing from last year but not quite a return to the levels of two years ago.

The forecast for rice remained at 2.6 million metric tons, a sharp increase over the 1.883 million tons exported in the previous marketing year.

More deterioration in prices in world grain markets was described as the most important development

Thunderstorms trench midwest

Severe thunderstorms pummeled the nation's mid-section, causing millions of dollars in damage and spawning floods that forced the evacuation of hundreds of people and left one man feared drowned.

"The entire village of Gurnee is gone," said Lake County sheriff's Sgt. Steve Townsend said of the Illinois community. "The police are patrolling in boats. The situation is very, very bad."

Up to 8 inches of rain fell on Oklahoma on Monday as thunderstorms and at least one tornado caused extensive damages, officials said. Hundreds of residents north of Oklahoma City were evacuated because of flooding.

"We've got a lot of flood water. We've got a little looting, and we've got some traffic problems. But otherwise, we're doing pretty good," said Howard Watson, director of the Kingfisher City-County Civil Defense, which oversaw the evacuation of 300 residents.

Thunderstorms dumped rain on Michigan's waterlogged Lower Peninsula on Monday, as a tornado in Genesee County destroyed three homes and damaged five others, knocked down power lines, and blew trees on cars and houses, authorities said.

Residents of flood-drenched northeastern Illinois hoped for sun today after Monday's storms ripped roofs from buildings west of Chicago, resulted in flight delays and cancellations at O'Hare International Airport, and continued flooding that has caused an estimated $30 million in damage.

A tiny Montana town was surrounded by water early today, but officials said it was receding.

Heavy rain Monday also caused flooding in Missouri and Kansas while thunderstorms pounded Indiana. Rivers were above flood stage in South Dakota and North Dakota.

Farmers in central Iowa cleaned up in the wake of a tornado, strong winds and hail that destroyed a dozen buildings and caused an estimated $2 million in damage.

In Illinois, where forecasters were predicting even more rain, damage from the recent storms was estimated at $30 million.

In North Riverside west of Chicago, sections of the roof of a K mart store and the building of an automobile dealership collapsed during a thunderstorm Monday, damaging 16 cars and sending at least seven people to hospitals with minor injuries, authorities said.

Saco, Mont., meanwhile, was surrounded by water from a swollen tributary of the Milk River.

"The water is going down," said George DeWolf, head of the state disaster office in Helena. "It's beginning to look better."

A TRICKY BUSINESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Should a grandmother advise a daughter-in-law on how to raise her teenage children?

Tread carefully, says clinical psychologist Judith Kuriansky in Family Circle magazine.

"Grandparents have experience and have the right — even the responsibility — to share what they've learned," explains Kuriansky. "But it's a tricky business. You don't want to appear to be meddling or to risk rejection."

You'll know you're meddling, instead of helping, if your suggestions are always critical of the daughter-in-law. It could be you're feeling an emptiness in your life or are experiencing guilt about your own child-rearing practices.

"Speaking up shows you care," says Kuriansky, "and you may have a positive impact. Apply the rule: 'It's not what you say but how you say it.'" affecting U.S. exports over the last month.

The report said the price deterioration was led by sharp increases in European Community export subsidies for both wheat and barley and it said that the drop was also stimulated by reports of large sales of Canadian and Australian wheat to the Soviet Union at below publicly posted Wheat Board levels.

It said a special subsidy was offered to the Soviet Union for the first time, enabling the Soviets to buy European wheat more cheaply than could other foreign buyers.

The report said a delay until September of Soviet purchasing activity has increased pressures on world markets and noted as a further pressure a lower Australian guaranteed minimum producer price for wheat after six years of increases.

U.S. grain shipments could pick up as a result of a strike at Thunder Bay, Ontario, a major Canadian grain port, that is beginning to disrupt that nation's sales, the report said.

It said Thailand continues to export rice at a near record pace with 1986 exports through mid-September at about 3.4 million tons, up 10 percent from a year ago.

Largely because of a drought-reduced domestic crop, Peru's government food agency plans to purchase about 110,000 tons of rice before the end of 1986 and another 150,000 tons for delivery in early 1987, the report said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear editor:

I am trying to locate descendants of William J (Billy) Wheeler and wife, Fanny, who provided land for a townsite and right-of-way for the H&TC Railroad at what is now Richardson, Texas. This couple also provided the first school in the new townsite of Richardson in 1880.

The Richardson Retired Teachers Association has been able to obtain a Texas Historical Marker for the Wheeler School and its is to be unveiled on Sunday, November 9 at 2:00 p.m. in front of the present Administration Building in Richardson.

Their bachelor son, Jack, died in 1937 and his obituary listed as survivors a sister, Mrs. Emma Hawkins of Hereford. Two brothers were also listed with only New Mexico and California as residences.

Do you have some way of contacting possible descendants through a genealogy or news item column? I would sincerely appreciate hearing from any of their descendants as we would like for them to be invited to the dedication.

Thank you for any help that you may be able to give me in this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Tour ties present with the past

By CINDY SMITH
Staff Writer

If you saw a church bus stopped at La Escabarda Winery, don't get excited—it was full of people taking a regional tour organized by the Deaf Smith County Historical Society.

Approximately 42 Hereford residents and a bus driver, Jay Thompson, arrived at Hereford State Bank Saturday at 8:30 a.m. to tour some of Deaf Smith County's historical sites in the west part of this large county.

Beginning the narration of the tour, Frank Zinser told patrons that Deaf Smith County is one of 10 counties included in the makeup of the famed XIT Ranch.

The western half of the county is sometimes forgotten because it is so remote and sparsely populated. Deaf Smith County is spread across 1,500 square miles of grassland, farmland, and mesquite land.

Bumping along, participants enjoyed the sites and the stories behind Westway Community, Bootleg Corner, the Garcia Community, Garcia and Mustang Lakes, the "Tree", and several ranches including Bridwell, Moser, Hoover, and Perrin.

On F.M. 1058 about 15 miles out was what is said to be the largest prairie dog town in this part of the country. The town loaded with prairie dogs, sometimes five and six on top of a hole, covers two to three square miles.

Zinser explained that the land in the western part of Deaf Smith County was least desirable to farmers and ranchers in the early days because of lack of water.

In 1886, when the first cattle were stocked in Deaf Smith, it was a dry year and farmers and ranchers didn't have wind mills at that time. They had to use surface water facilities which were especially scarce in the western part of the county due to the big drought.

Members of the tour looked and listened as Zinser pointed out O.G. Hill's horse farm where quarterhorses are raised and the Hill farm lake which is inhabited by ibis (large wading birds).

Coming upon the Westway community Zinser noted the Circle A Arena is "used a great deal by young people in the area aspiring to be cowgirls and cowboys."

Westway may look to some passersby as just a spot in the road. Not so — from the historical point of view Leta Kaul is chief caretaker of a Westway Community reunion at which a mayor is elected every year.

Recalling some of Texas' history,

Zinser said groundbreaking for the capitol took place in 1882 and at the same time the state of Texas had surveyed the Deaf Smith County and XIT property to establish the legal descriptions of these properties.

The XIT people had to have some kind of evidence proving this was their land and they sent a crew to explore the western region of the Panhandle and thus, at a later period the county lines were established.

While at Bootleg the bus stopped to pick up another narrator, Ernest Brown, who gave members of the tour a little history about the local farming and ranching families.

The bus rolled past the Brumley ranch, Bootleg community, county maintenance barns and housing for road workers.

According to Brown, there are several theories of how Bootleg community got its name. A reddish-brown house, built by Phineas Short, used as a tradestore for the area. Also there was a distillery in the area some miles to the northwest which was responsible for the community being so named. Brown laughed at the thought of it and said he had a lot of good parties there.

Brown and Zinser gave the run-down on the land acquired for the XIT. Seven-hundred-ninety miles of fence was put up to enclose the whole of the XIT properties and then crossed to establish some seven ranch divisions.

The Gusemans own Garcia Lake which is supposedly the largest lake in this area, at which 150 head of antelope used to roam.

Mrs. Geniveve Guseman, riding on the tour, noted that at one time they owned 99 sections of land.

Garcia Lake is now watered by an eight to 10 mile long plastic pipe. The other lake that was toured is Mustang Lake where herds of mustangs used to run wild.

"Of course, both lakes are dry now," said Zinser, "it takes four to six inches of rain in one afternoon to fill 'em up."

Brown recalled that the old Messenger school was the only school in the area at the time as compared to a school like Walcott.

Brown and others on the trip laughed as they remembered having to gather cow chips to heat the house in the winter.

Passing a lot of former old sand beds, Brown pointed out another Deaf Smith County historical site, the "Tree." Katherine Benefield jokingly asked Brown if he named all his trees and Brown just laughed. He said, "For some reason, the tree just came up, don't know how it got there, it just came up."

Brown joked about installing a drip irrigation system for the "tree."

He also recalled a family that put in 12 miles of fence built using post hole diggers one winter.

The Bridwell ranch was another ranch pointed out on the tour. It has 98,000 acres of which 36,000 are in Deaf Smith County.

Flora Homfeld, a homesteader since 1932, was also picked up on the trip. She remembered seeing the Bippus house built by George Bippus, Herbert Bippus' grandfather, in 1910.

The famed Bippus house was a classic two-story structure that was furnished better than average in those days. The Bippus house compares to the E.B. Black house in Hereford.

One of the highlights of the tour was riding through the breaks off the caprock. The caprock elevation is 41,000 feet deep and 800 to 900 feet lower in the valley below. It is told that cattle rustlers used to hide their cattle in the breaks.

Getting this far off into Deaf Smith County, people on the bus began to realize how differently the countryside changes in such a short distance.

Mesquite is part of the vegetation down in the breaks. Zinser said a hundred years ago there weren't any mesquite trees in this country. Now the mesquite trees have to be sprayed to keep from growing solid and starving out the grass.

He presented cans filled with the county's native grasses, blue grama, side oats grama, buffalo grass, and vine mesquite to members on the tour to observe.

Zinser explained that the blue grama made up 90 percent of the grass in the county and the rest make up the balance. He also mentioned buckhorn cactus was a recent addition to the county's vegetation.

Being out in the barren boondocks where there wasn't a farmhouse in sight, Zinser pointed out a power line that Deaf Smith County Electric Coop has running down through the caprock to service the Bridwell Ranch campsite.

Riding through the breaks seemed like a film clip out of an old western. One kept waiting for the Indians to come riding over the top with a war cry ringing through the air.

Touring the Bridwell ranch throughout the caprocks the bus jostled on down the county road which extends into Oldham County. Endee, an old community, was brought to the passengers attention as being a hideout of some of the thorns in the side of the ranch people.

The tour continued traveling right on the state line to Glen Rio which is about five miles from the Bridwell ranch. It features a sign reading "first motel in Texas." When the Department of Public Safety moved the highway that goes to Tucumcari, it cut Glen Rio off.

A tiny white post marks the northwest corner of Deaf Smith County on the New Mexico line.

The Ira Scott ranch was not toured due to roads being washed out by the recent rains. Zinser joked that they weren't going to rebuild the road until they knew for sure that it wasn't going to rain again.

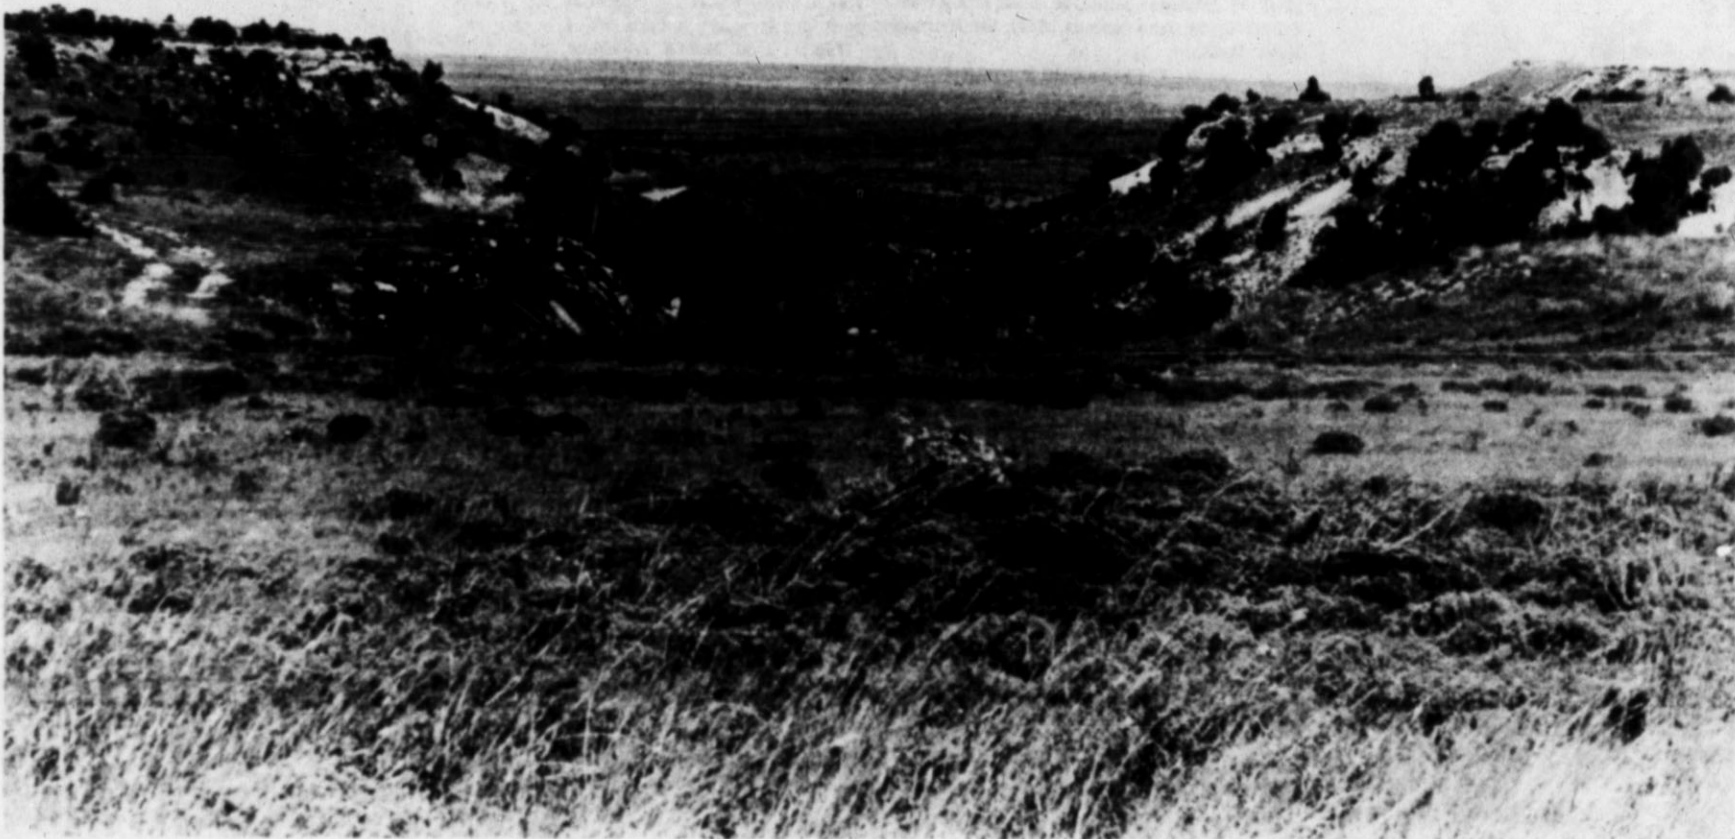

The bus bumped along past the Bippus Community house which featured an original outhouse out back. The old Bippus school was made into a house by Charles Hoover. Soil bank land lined both sides of the road from the 1930's sandstorms when the government started the soil bank program.

The Hoover homestead was pointed to, while the bus took the passengers up to Walcott for a lunch served in the school cafeteria.

Brown had to show off the school, of which he is a board member, and in the new library students had left a teddy bear display just for the tour people to see. The Walcott school has 54 students, kindergarten through eighth graders, and the others are bussed to Hereford High School.

The next stop on the agenda was the Simms community and Boxcar Ranch. Years ago it looked like a Special thanks goes to Irene McKinster, Mike Carr, Margaret Schroeter, Frank Zinser, Ernest Brown, Mrs. C.F. Homfeld, Johnnie Turrentine, the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce and Historical Society for making this tour possible.

Also, the loud speaker system donated by Allen Parson of K-Bob's was greatly appreciated by patrons as it is hard to hear when bumping down a county road on a bus.

Danny White throws three touchdown passes

Cowboys defeat Cardinals, 31-7

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Thanks, in part, to the problems of a struggling opponent, the Dallas Cowboys remain close to the pace they'd like to maintain.

"I think we're on the verge of exploding offensively," quarterback Danny White said after exploiting the St. Louis Cardinals' defense with three touchdown passes in a 31-7 triumph Monday night.

"We haven't come close to fulfilling our potential. It was a closer game than it seems," White said. "Our defense made some big plays. So far, we have done the things it takes to win."

The Cowboys, who led 10-0 at halftime, saw their lead cut to three points when St. Louis took the second-half kickoff and drove for its only touchdown. They responded by burying the Cardinals.

Gordon Banks' 56-yard kickoff return gave the Cowboys good field position at the St. Louis 42. White followed with a touchdown pass of 13 yards to Tony Hill and found Herschel Walker with an 8-yard scoring pass 8½ minutes later that broke the Cardinals' backs.

"We're not making any plays," said disappointed St. Louis Coach Gene Stallings, the ex-Dallas assistant who after four games is still seeking his first NFL victory.

"We had chances early, but we just couldn't score. Somewhere along the line, we have to make the plays," Stallings said. "We dropped screen passes and short hitch plays. We've got to make those those."

Next to Banks' electrifying kickoff return, the play that hurt the Cardinals the most occurred just before halftime.

St. Louis quarterback Neil Lomax scooped a shovel pass to Earl Ferrell on third-and-6 from the Cowboys' 8. Ferrell lateraled back, and Lomax' pass was picked off in the end zone by Dallas rookie Johnny Holloway.

Lomax, who later threw three more interceptions, admitted embarrassment over the play — which was illegal anyway — that left the Cards trailing 10-0.

"It was just a bad reaction. We really should have come away with three points (on a field goal)," Lomax said. "It was stupid on my part. It had a big effect on the game."

Nonetheless, St. Louis breathed fire and brimstone briefly after rookie Vai Sihakema returned Dallas' kickoff 20 yards to open the third quarter.

A roughing penalty against the Cowboys helped launch a 76-yard touchdown march requiring seven plays. Ferrell ripped off a 21-yard gain to the Cowboys' 46, and Lomax found J.T. Smith for 17 yards to set up Anderson's 10-yard scoring jaunt up the middle.

But White, who connected on 16 of 29 passes for 223 yards, with two interceptions, went to work following Banks' return and found Hill on the fourth play of a sweep to make it 17-7. Dallas' back-breaking scoring drive, which climaxed with 11:15 left, was even easier, as White found Walker open in the left corner to cap a 39-yard advance.

The Cowboys' rout became complete when cornerback Ron Fellows intercepted a Lomax pass and sped 34 yards down the right sideline to the end zone with 2:15 left.

"We had much better field position due to our defensive play. St. Louis has a much better defense than the score indicated," White said sympathetically.

Stallings said he could not disagree, citing woes with an offense hamstrung in large part by the absence of wide receivers Roy Green and Pat Tilley, who are on injured reserve. Keying Dallas' attack with White, who has 10 touchdown passes for the year, was the versatile Walker, making his first NFL start as a fill-in role for injured Tony Dorsett.

"I wanted to go out and show things to them and do my best," said Walker, who gained 82 yards on 19 carries as the game's leading rusher and caught a team-leading five passes for 57 yards. "I feel very comfortable. The coaches and players have done everything possible to make me feel that way."

Stallings graciously called the Cowboys 3-1, "the best football team we've played so far" despite the Cowboys' modest bulge of only 287-225 in total yards.

"We had a hard time in the first half. St. Louis kept the pressure on us," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry, whose NFL sideline success was his 256th to tie him with Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins.

"In the third quarter, our offense started to jell," Landry said. "After they scored in the third (quarter) and then we came right back and scored, it kind of shifted the momentum our way."

Low income women learn nutrition

Sixteen hispanic women gathered for an unusual graduation ceremony in the living room of a modest McAllen home last week, far from Texas A&M University yet very close to one of its traditions.

In this case, the tradition - now 70 years old - is offering access to education through the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX), which is part of the University System.

Three of the women had completed the six-month Expanded Nutrition Program (ENP) and were presented certificates by Hidalgo County ENP agent Adlita Munoz.

"The Expanded Nutrition Program provides nutrition education to help low-income families improve their diets," said Munoz.

She explained that the diets of many low-income families do not contain enough vegetables, fruits and dairy products. Their diets also tend to be high in fat from frying foods in lard and eating fatty foods.

The ENP program teaches participants about the basic nutrients and eating a balanced diet. They learn how to prepare foods with less fat and sugar and how to get the maximum nutrition for their food dollar, adds Munoz.

The women who enroll in the ENP program are taught in small neighborhood groups by program aides who have been trained by county Extension agents. In Hidalgo County, 12 bilingual ENP aides teach up to 65 groups each per month.

The women who graduated from the McAllen ENP courses taught by Mrs. Julia Pena and Mrs. Lucille Meniola evidently learned some important lessons.

One graduate told of how she was anemic, but after learning how to prepare leaner, less expensive cuts of meat through the ENP course, had improved her health and lost weight.

Another woman described how her children had been eating powdered soft drink mixes like candy, which is bad for their teeth. Through the ENP course she learned the importance of fruit and was now making her children nutritious fruit drinks.

According to Dr. Lynn White, Extension family sciences project group leader, the Hidalgo County ENP program is one of 10 in Texas.

"The program is especially designed for low-income families with young children," she remarks. "When parents learn about nutrition, their children also develop healthy eating habits that may prevent nutrition-related health problems later."

White says the program also teaches economy measures that help families lower their family food costs.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You have done it again. Believe me, you have saved a life. Mine.

I was married for almost 28 years and six of the most wonderful children in the world. Five weeks ago my wife left me and the kids for a 22-year-old guy. She says she is madly in love with him and refuses to let this last chance for heaven get away. The woman is twice his age and she has four kids older than he is. I tried everything I could think of to get her to change her mind but nothing I said made any difference. She is now living in the kid's apartment.

When she left she tore my heart apart. Life was meaningless and suicide seemed like the only way to end the agony. I planned to take my life the following morning, but that night I picked up the Newark News and ran across the letter in your column about parents who commit suicide. I cried all the while I read it, but it opened my eyes. It made me realize how short-sighted and selfish I was.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart, Ann Landers. I am asking you to print this letter and you have my permission to use my name and city. I will never forget what you did for me and my children.-MR. M., FATHER OF SIX IN OAK RIDGE, N.J.

DEAR DAD: Thank you for letting me know. For those who did not see that column, the bottom line was this: "Stick around and face the problem. You family needs you. Killing yourself may put an end to your pain but it will create problems without end for those you leave behind."

DEAR READERS: Several weeks ago I printed a column by Dr. Dean S. Edell about Ovral, "the morning after" pill.

I would like to make it clear that this pill should be used as an emergency measure the morning after unprotected intercourse. It is NOT, repeat NOT, a substitute for birth control pills.

Dr. Daniel Mishell Jr., chairman of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of Southern California, says that for the majority of women it would be safer and just as effective to take a pill with a lower amount of estrogen.

who DID look like someone. At every family get-together I was put on display and stared at, and had my chin grabbed and twisted so that everyone could see every angle of my face.

When I was 6 years old it was decided that I looked like my great Aunt Edith, who was almost 70 at the time. I was absolutely horrified because Aunt Edith had a beak of a nose, bulging eyes, lots of wrinkles and a wart on her chin with hair growing out of it.

During my growing-up years I was a loner, depressed and introverted. I would spend hours in front of the mirror praying for my face to change. Thankfully, when I was 16 my face must have changed because I was elected May Queen. It was the happiest day of my life.

Please inform people not to tell kids they resemble older relatives. Children need all the positive imagery they can get. To be told they resemble someone 50 years older can be very depressing.-AN ORIGINAL SWAN.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Regarding the mother in Longview whose children resembled no one in the family: Here is a story about a child

DEAR SWAN: Thanks for sitting in my chair today. Your message is a good one and could have come only from someone who has been there.

Americans buckle up, diet for health

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are dieting and buckling their seat belts in an effort to improve their health and safety, but nearly one-third of adults still smoke and less than half exercise regularly.

A sharp increase in using seat belts was the major new finding, according to the study made public Monday.

The study also found many Americans making an effort to lose weight, but less than half are exercising regularly and large numbers continue to smoke cigarettes despite wide knowledge of the danger involved.

According to the report, 55 percent of men and 42 percent of women consider their weight to be "just about right."

However, one-quarter of men and almost one-half of all women were trying to lose weight, primarily by eating fewer calories, or increasing physical activity," the report said.

That concern, though, didn't mean they were all turning to exercise.

Push button and Maxine gets drunk

BOSTON (AP) — Push one button and Maxine the singer belts out a song guaranteed to turn around her down-and-out career. Push another and a drunken Maxine slurs the words and loses her big chance.

Maxine's fate depends on her sobriety, and that's determined by pushing the buttons at a Boston Museum of Science exhibit designed to teach youngsters to avoid the dangers of alcohol consumption.

"Ben's Grille" uses television sets and a cabaret backdrop to tell the stories of four people who have problems with liquor. The museum says the exhibit, opening today, is the first such display.

"We had all kinds of concerns at first, whether people would be upset about us talking about drinking in a museum," said the head of exhibits, Larry Bell.

If successful, it may go on the road to other museums and to classrooms.

Bell called the exhibit "an interactive soap opera."

Three TVs hang above a mock cabaret at the museum and play continuously the melodramas of four characters:

Maxine, a reformed alcoholic, is tempted with liquor under the pressure of an important audition. Her admirer, Sammy the florist, is an alcoholic who tempts her because he is afraid to lose her. Jim the jock makes a loud fool of himself when drunk. And Janice the housewife drinks after fights with her husband.

The stories stop at crucial moments and children are asked what the characters should do: accept the drinks being pushed upon them or choose soft drinks instead.

When the child points to his choice on the screen, the space he touches — "soft drink" or "house wine" — determines which way the plot will turn.

A soft drink for Maxine ends with her stellar performance of "Route 66" before a talent agent. A house wine ends with a stumbling rendition of "Adieu" that people walk out on.

"You made the wrong choice," Ben the bartender admonishes the viewer who put Maxine down the path to ruin.

Alcoholics, he tells them, get just as drunk on wine as they do on hard liquor. "And let me tell you something else: It isn't too late for Maxine to stop smoking."

The $150,000 exhibit, two years in the making, was the brainchild of the museum and Multigroup Health Plan, a Massachusetts health maintenance organization.

Former Boston Bruin Derek Sanderson, a reformed alcoholic, was an adviser.

The exhibit also offers children pamphlets telling them where they and their parents can get help to deal with drinking problems.

Set water heater lower for savings

If you're searching for ways to reduce your utility bill, don't overlook the hot water heater.

Although heating or cooling air consumes the largest share of home energy, hot water heating accounts for 18 percent of the home energy bill, says home energy expert Dr. Susan Quiring.

"Heating water over 100 degrees Fahrenheit, which is about the hottest the human body can tolerate, doesn't make much sense," she says. "Yet water-heater thermostats are often pre-set much higher than that at the factory."

In homes with a dishwasher, a hot water temperature of 140 degrees is needed for best results. But if the dishwasher contains its own heating element, a lower water heater setting will be more practical, says the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service housing specialist.

Some homeowners have to set the water heater thermostat higher just to get comfortable water at the point of use, Quiring observes. In this case, the loss of heat is usually due to the distance the water travels through bare pipes.

Since water loses one degree per foot when traveling through a bare line, insulating hot water pipes in unheated crawl spaces and garages can minimize heat loss, the specialist maintains.

Most do-it-yourselfers can insulate water lines by wrapping them in flexible tubing, foam type insulation or wrap-around pipe insulation with pipe tape.

Insulating the water heater tank will also help keep the water hot. Ready-made insulation jacket kits are sold at building supply stores and require only about 15 minutes to install.

Be sure to cut away the top and bottom areas of the insulation jacket as directed in the insulation kit, cautions Quiring, since covering the entire water heater is hazardous.

Maintaining your water heater, especially in hard water areas, further increases energy efficiency, the specialist says.

For hot water heaters under a year old, she recommends starting regular maintenance by completely draining and refilling the heater once a year. In addition, a bucket of water should be drained from the heater as often as every other month in problem water areas. This removes sediment which absorbs heat energy.

But water heaters which have not been drained regularly may already have sediment in the drain valve. Once opened, a clogged drain valve may not close completely, so Quiring advises against draining older heaters.

Style Show Tonight

The public is reminded of the benefit style show to begin at 7:30 this evening in the Hereford Community Center. Tickets for the event, which is sponsored by Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, are priced at $2 per person and may be purchased at the door. Proceeds will be used to benefit the Hereford Satellite Work Training Center and the Lifeline program. Sandra Potts is modeling a new fall ensemble furnished by the Pants Cage. Other merchants participating include Louise's, Etcetera and Helen's.

Dimmitt residents named Parents of the Year at WT

Miguel and Sabina Velasquez of Dimmitt were named "Parents of the Year" at West Texas State University's annual Parents Day celebration Saturday.

Other finalists in the 1986 Parents of the year competition were Robert and Riga Morgan of Hereford, Wendell and Patsy Gresham of Friona, Bill and Tinkey Mayfield of Happy, Bill and Jacque Sava of Dimmitt, J.E. and Patsy Sherrill of Bovina and Jerry and Donna Smith of Friona.

The Velasquez' was selected by committee from a field of 20 finalists who were nominated by their sons and daughters at WTSU, as well as sons-in-law, daughters-in-law, and friends of the family.

railroad with 10 and 12 boxcars parked in the middle of the field used to house feed and equipment.

The bus tour headed south to see one of the most important sites, the La Plata Marker. La Plata was the seat of the county located almost in the direct heart of Deaf Smith County.

When the county was being named there was a problem getting a name agreeable to the XIT and the La Plata people. The XIT people wanted a different name and even a different county site.

They wanted to name the town where the La Plata marker is located Grenada, but it was impossible to get a post office under the name since there was already a town by that name in Texas. So the county court was opened and the town was renamed La Plata but it was misspelled, the spelling was supposed to have been La Platta.

Due to prairie fires, a drought, and freezing winters and the coming of the railroad to the present town site of Hereford, the town of La Plata rapidly diminished. It was first discussed in 1896 by the commissioners to move the county seat to what was then called Bluewater (which is now Hereford) to be closer to the railroad.

It was voted upon to move the county seat to Bluewater and Hereford went by that name until it was learned that there was another town by the name of Bluewater and they couldn't get a post office, either.

So the citizens settled upon the name Hereford after the first registered Hereford cattle. Hereford had a population of 843 according to census in 1900.

The town has grown, the county has stayed the same. Both are part of a huge agricultural area even if it is barren up in the breaks through the caprock.

In 1960, the La Plata Study Club, then headed by Margaret Formby, solicited funds to establish a marker.

Margaret Schroeter arranged to get a half acre of land to dedicate the stone, have it deeded to the county and they were to keep up the grounds of the marker.

Deaf Smith County now has a population of 25,000 and Hereford has approximately 16,000.

Members of the tour enjoyed their last stop, a wine tasting tour of the new XIT La Escarbada winery just north of Hereford and an explanation of what could be an additional industry to the area.

TEAMWORK

TEAMWORK noun a joint action by a group of people in which each person subordinates his individual interests and opinions for the unity of the group.

When the word "teamwork" is mentioned, the most obvious thought is that of football or another sport. While it is true that a football team must have unity, teamwork also applies to business.
