Texas files second suit against DOE

(AP & staff reports)—A second suit concerning the selection of Deaf Smith County as a possible site for a high-level nuclear waste repository has been filed by the state, it was announced Tuesday by Attorney General Jim Mattox.

The second lawsuit was sent to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, Mattox said. The state filed the first suit Dec. 19, 1984 in an attempt to stop the Department of Energy's selection of a site in Deaf Smith County.

"This newest lawsuit is also over the DOE's failure to follow the law governing the selection of a permanent repository for dangerous high-level nuclear waste," said Mattox.

Gov. Mark White said the Energy Department "selected the site prior to establishing guidelines that are to be used for that very purpose."

Mattox said the suit contends that DOE guidelines were "seriously flawed" because they did not take into consideration "the largest underground body of water in the nation and the 12th most agriculturally productive county in the nation."

At a rally in Hereford on Dec. 23, Mattox was quoted as saying he believed DOE had planned as early as 1982 to name Deaf Smith County as one of the top three sites. The DOE named Deaf Smith as one of the three top contenders on Dec. 19, 1984. Mattox claimed DOE was making the guidelines needed for the selection process fit the Deaf Smith site.

Steve Frishman, director of the governor's Office of Nuclear Affairs, said the DOE on at least three occasions sent proposals to Washington, D.C., indicating some officials were considering the Deaf Smith site well in advance.

"DOE has consistently failed to abide by the law, this time by giving nothing but a perfunctory nod to two critical issues--water and agriculture—when establishing its guidelines for site selection," Mattox said.

The appeals court in New Orleans is also scheduled to make a ruling on a similar suit filed by the state and other parties on Dec. 19, 1984, the same day DOE announced the selection of the top three sites. That suit has been delayed pending the outcome of a motion to dismiss the case by federal attorneys.

If the state and others in the lawsuit are successful in their efforts to keep the case from being dismissed, the court will rule on the merits of the case later this year. Federal attorneys have questioned the state's right to file such cases against the DOE.

Alice Hector, an Albuquerque attorney representing two West Texas groups opposing the nuclear waste site, said Tuesday her clients have joined the suit by the state against the DOE, just as they joined the suit last year.

"We're filing the same lawsuit that Texas filed, which challenges the guidelines for the selection of the site," Miss Hector said. "We believe they have not given enough consideration to the water in the area and the farmland."

Miss Hector said the two groups—POWER (People Opposed to Wasted Energy Repositories) and STAND (Serious Texans Against Nuclear Dumping)—believe the federal waste agency has not given full consideration to the effects the waste may have on the Ogallala aquifer—the major source of water in the region—and the value of the agricultural industry in the area.

Road Request

County commissioners Tuesday heard Bud Paetzold discuss road conditions in Precinct One. Commissioner Bill Bradly told Paetzold his road, South Progressive, would be considered "on the list" for caliche. Paetzold presented several photos, one shown below, of road conditions which did not allow proper drainage after recent rains.

County hears road complaints, plans budget hearing June 10

By KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

An irate resident of Precinct One appeared before the Deaf Smith County Commissioners Court Tuesday morning, with complaints about Precinct One Commissioner Bill Bradly that he said he wanted the rest of the commissioners to hear.

Bud Paetzold, who lives south of the city, claimed that "70 percent of the roads in our precinct are in bad, bad shape."

Paetzold furnished the court with pictures of roads near his house, one of which he said is used by "from 20 to 200 cars daily."

His complaints focused not only on the alleged poor condition of the roads, but on the fact that a road north of Dawn which he says is used by only five farmers is currently being surfaced with caliche.

Bradly, who responded to most of Paetzold's accusations, claimed Paetzold had never asked that the road in question be placed on the list to be caliched. He said landowners pay for the caliche and the Precinct One road crews do the work.

Bradly said requests for caliche are filled as they come in, but other work might be done more quickly if it is requested at a time when the crews are free to do it.

"I want my road caliched next," Paetzold proclaimed. "I have 20 to 50 times more traffic. If you're doing others first, that's favortism."

Bradly responded that "other people have asked first," and "we're doing them just as fast as we can get to them."

Paetzold seemed somewhat satisfied when Bradly told him his request could be considered "on the list" and that he could get it caliched in about six weeks.

A road that has been "dug out" to enable a farmer to have a tailwater pit was another source of Paetzold's anger. He claimed the pit has existed for the past 13 years.

Bradly said the Texas Department of Water Resources has okayed the pit, and he accused Paetzold of turning the farmer in for maintaining the pit. Paetzold said he would "swear on a stack of Bibles" that he did not turn his neighbor in. "He thinks you did," Bradly replied.

Judge favors Holly in TRLA suit

In a 55-page decision, U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson has ruled in favor of the Holly Sugar Corporation in a suit filed in 1983 by plaintiffs represented by Texas Rural Legal Aid.

Robinson on Friday dismissed the suit filed by Silvester Trevino Jr., et al, against Holly Sugar Corporation, the American Federation of Grain Millers International Union, and the American Federation of Grain Millers Local 321, as well as locals #285, 280 and #279.

Listed along with Trevino as plaintiffs were Eliseo Carbajal and Elida Alonso, employees of Holly Sugar and members of Local 321. The plaintiffs had sought to have the suit certified as a class-action complaint.

The suit was based on grievances by the three, all Hispanics, who claimed that Holly Sugar discriminated against minorities when recalling employees for "inter-campaign" work, which is work made available to campaign workers once the sugar beet harvest has ended but before a new campaign season begins.

"During March 1982," the complaint read, "the majority of defendant company's employees holding year-round and inter-campaign positions were Anglo males."

The suit also claimed that Holly denied the plaintiffs equal employment opportunities in the areas of hiring, discipline, promotion, wages, demotion, lay-off, recall, job assignment and termination.

The petition had asked for monetary, declaratory and injunctive relief, and asked that Eliseo Carbajal be reinstated to his job. Carbajal claimed he was terminated from his employment in September 1982 and that his discharge was in violation of the collective bargaining agreement.

The local office of Holly Sugar was unable to comment on the suit and referred the Brand to an Employee Relations Official, who was in a meeting at presstime this morning.

Randall Marshall, designated spokesman for TRLA, is out of the office this week.

Judge Robinson's decision was filed in U.S. District Court in Amarillo.

Reagan announces

Tax overhaul proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, winning plaudits from congressional tax writers, is proposing a vast tax overhaul with lower rates, larger exemptions and fewer deductions, a system he promises will lift the poor and make everybody's neighbor pay a fair share.

"America, go for it," he urged.

The 72-year-old federal income tax is un-American, unwise, unwanted and unfair, the president said in a nationally broadcast speech Tuesday night. "For the sake of fairness, simplicity and growth, we must radically change the structure of a tax system that still treats our earnings as the personal property of the Internal Revenue Service," he said.

"Death and taxes may be inevitable, but unjust taxes are not," Reagan said in a speech laden with praise for free enterprise, the family unit and American ingenuity. His proposal, he said, is "America's tax plan: a revolutionary first for fairness in our future; a long overdue commitment to help working Americans and their families; and a challenge to our entire nation to excel..."

Key members of Congress were generally impressed with what details the president offered. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., whose House Ways and Means Committee must originate tax legislation, presented the Democratic Party's formal response to the president and pledged cooperation.

If Reagan's plan can deliver all its promises, said Rostenkowski, "he'll have a great deal of Democratic support." But Democrats, who control the House, will not rubber-stamp the plan, he added.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., who heads the Senate Finance Committee, said American workers would fare well under the president's plan and added "the prospects of passage this year are excellent."

Reagan and his aides withheld a detailed explanation of his proposal until today. But highlights include:

-Seventy-nine percent of individuals would pay the same or less tax than under present law.

-The total tax burden on individuals would be reduced by 7 percent while corporate taxes would rise by 9 percent.

New vaccine available here

City Health Officer Dr. Howard Johnson has announced that a new vaccine against life-threatening bacterial disease in children is available in Hereford.

The vaccine, licensed by the Food and Drug administration on April 21, prevents diseases caused by the germ commonly known as "HIB," which includes spinal meningities.

"Haemophilis b Polysaccharide vaccine has been long awaited by child care health experts," Johnson said, "because the disease it prevents occurs more commonly among children in care centers than in the general population."

Both centers for disease control and the American Academy of Pediatrics recommend that the vaccine be given routinely to all children ages two through six.

Most recent estimates are that one in 200 children will contract HIB disease during the first five years of life. Although the Haemophilus bacteria are commonly found in the nose and throat, they can enter the blood stream and cause serious diseases.

The most common and lethal of these is bacterial meningitis, an inflammation of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord, which affects approximately 60 percent of those children who contract HIB disease during the first five years of life.

8 violent offenders escape jail

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Eight prisoners, including one convicted of murder and another accused of two slayings, were at large today after escaping in two separate breakouts, officials said.

Five inmates fled the Oklahoma State Penitentiary at McAlester late Tuesday, the Highway Patrol said. Earlier, three Osage County prisoners overpowered a deputy sheriff and stole his car and guns.

Lt. Lloyd Basinger at the patrol's McAlester office said the escape at the penitentiary was reported at 9:50 p.m. Tuesday.

Abuse charge pending

Sexual abuse charges are pending against a Hereford man after his stepdaughter informed teachers at Shirley Intermediate School that she had been abused since the first grade.

The information was given to teachers Tuesday after the fourth grader viewed a film on sexual abuse, part of a pilot social and emotional growth program being taught this month on the Shirley campus.

Hereford police who were contacted by the Texas Department of Human Resources, questioned the man. The suspect denied the charges, and a few hours later police were called to his home because the man had threatened suicide.

Police took the man to the Psychiatric Pavillion in Amarillo, then turned the case over to the Criminal District Attorney's Office.

Police also made four arrests Tuesday, charging the four juveniles with minor in consumption of alcohol. One of the four was also charged with evading arrest.

Officers also investigated four domestic disturbances and a criminal mischief complaint.

A bank deposit bag containing $68 in cash was reported missing by the Great American Food and Beverage. The owner reported it was taken sometime around Friday from an unlocked office.

Facial muscles can trigger emotions in brain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The mere act of putting on an angry face or a disgusted look can trigger the corresponding emotion deep within the brain, researchers have found.

Part of the brain that controls the facial muscles is connected to the lower parts of the brain where the emotions are thought to reside, said Paul Ekman of the University of California at San Francisco.

"By making a face, you can create, you can generate emotions," Ekman said at a press conference Tuesday during the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. "These changes seem to be very strong."

While it has always been clear that emotions can produce characteristic facial expressions, the discovery that facial expressions could produce emotions was startling, Ekman said.

It could explain how people empathize with one another, he said.

"It may be a means by which you feel what others feel," he speculated. "You see people with an expression on their face, you put on that expression and you feel the emotion."

Ekman has found that the effect occurs with fear, anger, disgust and sadness. Strangely enough, it does not seem to occur with smiles and happiness, at least according to research done so far, Ekman said.

"Maybe because we smile so much, it's disconnected from the physiology," he said.

Furthermore, he said, the researchers do not yet know whether facial expressions can be used to turn off one emotion by triggering another — whether putting on an angry face can counteract sadness, for example.

Ekman has demonstrated the new link between expressions and emotions by asking subjects to make cer-

Sheriff resigns or goes to prison

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge has ordered Kaufman County Sheriff Roy Brockway to either resign by June 12 or begin serving a one-year prison sentence for beating and kicking a prisoner.

Brockway was convicted last year of violating the civil rights of a 23-year-old jail inmate.

The inmate, Dallas County resident Timothy Barrickman, suffered cracked ribs and several facial cuts while being held in the Kaufman County Jail. He was being held in connection with an investigation of tractor thefts, but he never was tried in the case.

In January, U.S. District Judge Jerry Buchmeyer sentenced Brockway to one year in prison. But Buchmeyer said the sheriff could avoid imprisonment if he resigned and remained out of law enforcement for five years.

Brockway appealed the judge's decision to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and the judge at first agreed to let the sheriff postphone a decision pending a ruling by the appeals court.

But Buchmeyer reversed his decision Tuesday, saying that he had studied similar cases and was convinced Brockway would lose his appeal.

The Associated Press was unable to reach Brockway by telephone at his home.

Traffic deaths up from last year

CHICAGO (AP) — An improved economy sent more people onto the nation's highways this Memorial Day weekend, and the National Safety Council blamed that for the increase in traffic deaths.

The council said Tuesday that deaths over the three-day weekend totaled 411, or 36 more than the 375 who died last year.

"The economy means people have more money to buy fuel and the availability (of fuel) means more mobility, and that means more travelers," said Sean Clancy, a council spokesman.

The highest traffic death toll on record for a three-day Memorial Day weekend was the 597 logged in 1969.

The council had estimated that the holiday period, which traditionally marks the start of the summer vacation season, could result in 380 to 480 deaths on the highways. Council statisticians figure 340 people could be expected to die during a similar length of time on a non-holiday weekend.

Man goes on shooting spree

ST. JOHN, Ind. (AP) — A man with a semi-automatic weapon opened fire on traffic along a highway, then shot his way into a department store Tuesday night, killing three people before he was slain in a shootout with police.

James Koslow, 31, who worked in the production department of the Chicago Sun-Times until he suffered a back injury several months ago, was killed by police, Lake County Sheriff's Detective Bernie Johnsen.

The others killed were a motorcyclist, a woman store employee, and a woman who had been a customer in the store, said Lake County Sheriff's Department Lt. Mike Higgins.

While in the store, Koslow, of St. John, shouted, "I am no cripple. You're going to pay. This is for all the people in the hospital," Johnsen said, quoting witnesses.

Police do not know if Koslow had been hospitalized, but his father, Edward, "claimed he had a back injury and it stopped him from working for the past two or three months," Johnsen said. Johnsen said the younger Koslow had complained of being in pain and was "kind of despondent."

Six people were wounded in the attack, including a tow truck driver, a small boy, and three women shoppers and one male shopper. Two were listed in critical condition.

Death row prisoner electrocuted

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Marvin Francois, who shotgunned six people to death execution style because his mask fell off and exposed his face while he was robbing a "drug house," was electrocuted in Florida's electric chair today.

Francois was put to death shortly after 7 a.m. at the Florida State Prison.

The U.S. Supreme Court late Tuesday denied a plea by Francois to postpone the execution.

It was the third execution in Florida this year, the 13th since the state reinstated the death penalty in 1976 and the 43rd in the country since capital punishment was reinstated the same year.

Francois and two other men, all armed and masked, entered a home to take drugs or money from the occupants, police said. Assistant State Attorney David Waksman said at the time of Francois' trial that he went to the home to kill a man thought to be muscling in on the drug business.

The three tied up the two occupants before the owner of the house returned with five others. They also were bound. Court records indicate that after Francois' mask fell off, he said all eight would have to be killed. Francois shot six of the victims in the head with a shotgun in the living room. Two others were wounded but survived and testified against Francois, whose accomplices also were sentenced to die.

Shiites retake nursing home

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Backed by a four-hour barrage of gunfire, Shiite Moslem militiamen halted a Palestinian counterattack at the besieged Beirut refugee camp of Sabra, and retook a key building.

Palestinian defenders of the Sabra refugee camp on Tuesday sneaked through a series of tunnels and surprised Shiites holding a seven-story nursing home that overlooks Shiites Sabra and neighboring Chatilla in west Beirut.

The seizure threatened the Shiites' supply lines in the area.

Palestinian spokesmen confirmed the Shiites had regained the nursing home, but said the guerrillas recaptured other smaller positions and regained control of Sabra's main northern entrance.

The Shiite Moslem militia Amal attacked the Palestinians on May 19 in a bid to halt an effort by Yasser Arafat of the Palestine Liberation Organization to re-establish his power base in Beirut. The PLO's fighters were forced out of the city by Israel's 1982 invasion.

Police said another 20 people were killed and 62 were wounded Tuesday in fighting for control of three refugee camps. At least 389 people have died and 1,755 have been wounded in the fighting.

Akef Haidar, head of the Shiite Amal militia's politburo, claimed the Palestinians drugged and massacred 20 Shiite defenders of the nursing home, but the Palestinians rejected the claim.

"Why would we kill them? We would have taken them prisoner to trade them for thousands of Palestinians the Amal is holding. They were killed fighting for control of the home," said a Palestinian spokesman in a telephone interview.

The Palestinians' counterattack at Sabra was launched after defenders apparently got reinforcements from the other camps through a series of tunnels constructed several years ago.

According to plan

Childless couple gets tax burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's tax plan would cut the taxes of a typical $26,000-a-year four-member family by about $500 a year but would raise the burden on a childless couple with income of $45,000.

The biggest factor for the $26,000 family would be the increase in the personal exemption to $2,000 per person. Under present law, the exemption is expected to rise with inflation from $1,040 to $1,080 next year.

The most pronounced effect on the other family, on the other hand, would be the loss of some deductions.

Here are unofficial calculations on how three hypothetical families with average deductions would fare if the president's plan becomes law:

Under present law, a one-earner couple with $26,000 income and two children is allowed four exemptions worth a total of $4,320. They have $3,600 in mortgage interest and a $500 deduction for charitable contributions. They pay state and local taxes of $2,600 and union dues of $600.

Those itemized deductions total $7,300; subtracting the standard deduction leaves an excess of $3,630. Subtracting that and the exemptions from income leaves a taxable income of $18,050 and a total tax of about $2,000.

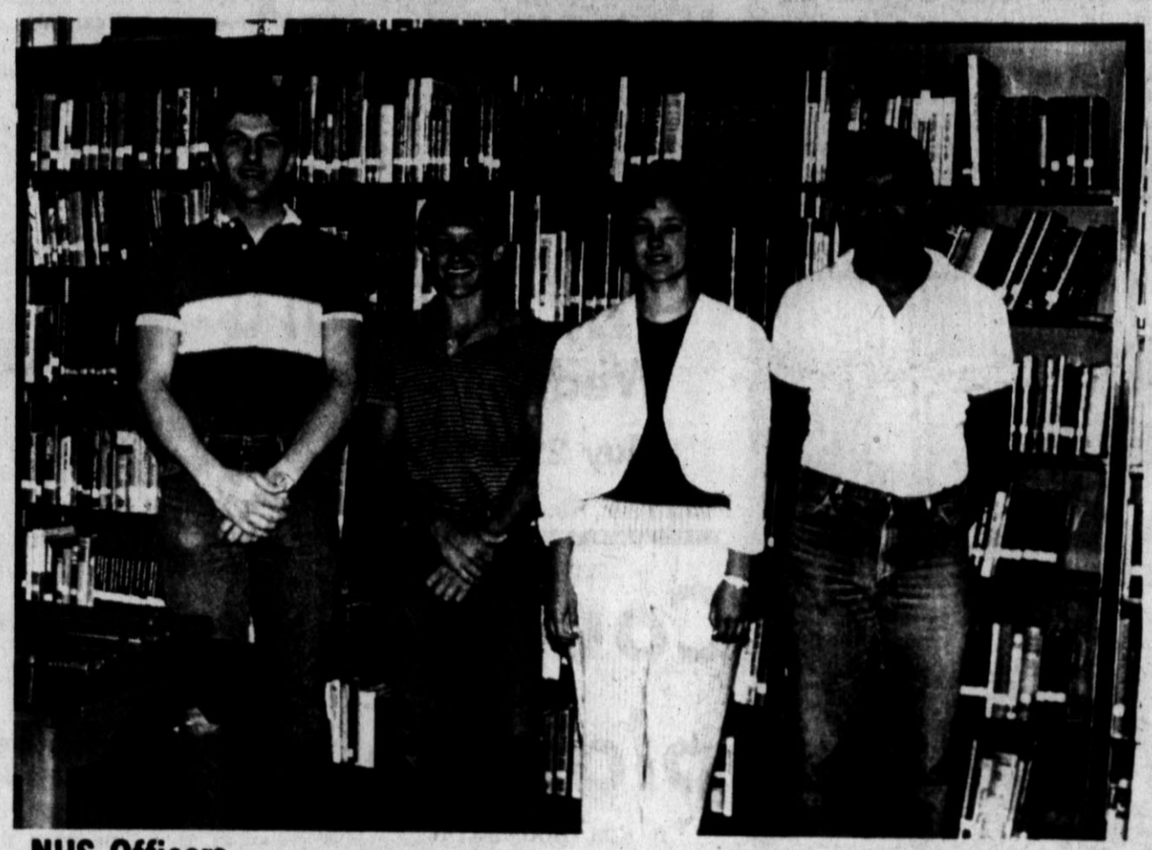
Reagan's plan would eliminate the deduction for state and local taxes, which would make it unprofitable for this family to itemize deductions. But by boosting the family's exemptions to $8,000 and the standard deduction to $4,000, the proposal would cut taxable income to $14,000. That would result in a tax of $1,500 — a $500 reduction.

A two-earner couple with two children and $45,000 in income would also get a tax cut under the Reagan proposal.

This family hypothetically pays mortgage interest of $7,000, gives $900 to charity and pays state and local taxes of $3,450. The husband contributes $2,000 to an Individual Retirement Account. The couple gets a special $1,500 deduction to offset the "marriage penalty" on two-earner couples. Subtracting excess deductions and the personal exemptions leaves a taxable income of $29,500 and a tax liability of about $4,440.

Even after losing the deduction for state and local taxes and the marriage-penalty writeoff, this family would be better off under Reagan's proposal of the $8,000 in exemptions. Taxable income would be $31,100 and tax $4,275 — a cut of about 3.7 percent.

On the other hand, if that same couple had no children, their tax bill would increase by almost 6 percent. Under present law, the income subject to taxation would be $31,660 and the tax liability would total about $4,980. With only two exemptions, the couple's tax bill under Reagan's proposal would rise to $5,275.



NHS Officers

New officers for the National Honor Society chapter at Hereford High School have been elected for the 1985-86 year. From left, they are Don Carl Tardy, president; Larry Backus, vice president; Shyla Gerk, secretary; and Vince Medrano, treasurer.

VACCINE

The new vaccine is 90 percent effective in children between the ages of two and six, Johnson said.

"The United States Public Health Service recommends that children 24 months of age and older receive this new vaccine," he said. "Because of their increased risk, children 18 to 23 months of age who attend day care centers should also be vaccinated, however these same children may require a booster injection at a later date because the vaccin is not as effective."

Johnson said it is the "general consensus of the medical community that this vaccine being relatively inexpensive should be given to all children in this age group because of the ability of this vaccine to prevent a potentially fatal disease process."

Johnson urged all parents to contact their own private physician about the advisability of immunizing their children.

The vaccine is manufactured by Praxis Biologics and is distributed exclusively by the Mead Johnson Nutritional Division, Evansville, Inc.

While the vaccine is not currently available at the Texas Department of Health Clinics, a TDH spokesman in Canyon said the state is trying to come up with the money to supply the vaccine to its free clinics.

Jerry Deshey, head of Immunizations at the Canyon office, said the drug is so new that the TDH does not have the money in the budget for it. "The state is in favor of the vaccine," he said, "and they're doing everything they can to find funding for it. It just takes time to generate money."

Crime program set

The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's office is planning a neighborhood crime watch program, similar to that of the city's, but especially designed for rural areas.

Deputy Mary Johnson said an orientation seminar would be held June 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Hereford Community Center. She said that although the session is basically for rural residents, city residents are invited also.

For further information, contact Mary Johnson or Fidel Reyna at the sheriff's office, 364-2311.

tain facial expressions — without telling the subjects what emotion those expressions correspond to — and measuring physiological changes in the subjects.

These are the instructions for fear, for example: Raise the eyebrows, pull them together. Raise the upper eyelids; tighten the lower eyelids. Drop the jaw, stretch the lips horizontally and hold them.

After a few minutes practice, 90 percent of the subjects able to perform these movements report feeling afraid, Ekman said, even though only 3 percent of them are able to figure out what emotion Ekman is trying to elicit.

A.A.M. to meet in Amarillo

The American Agriculture Movement of Texas will hold three meetings in Texas to discuss the farm policy reform act of 1985 which it supports.

David Senter, the national director of AAM will attend a meeting in Lubbock on Friday and in Amarillo on Saturday.

The Lubbock meeting will be at the South Plains Electric Coop, 110 N. Ave. A, at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday's meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at Sutphen's Barbeque, 16th and Madison in Amarillo.

COUNTY

Paetzold also complained about pools of water alongside the roads where people dump trash and dead animals. He claimed the roads are not properly graded so as to allow rainwater to drain into the bar ditches.

Commissioners Troy Don Moore, Austin Rose and James Voyles were silent throughout the exchange between Bradly and Paetzold.

Other business during Tuesday's meeting included a visit from Hereford Fire Marshal Jay Spain regarding funding of rural volunteer fire departments.

Spain asked that commissioners consider allocating $1,000 per year to the Walcott, Dawn and Sims volunteer fire departments plus a compensation of $100 for each call made by the squads. He also asked that $100 be awarded every year for each member of a department certified by the State Fire Marshal's Association.

County Treasurer Vesta Mae Nunley brought up the subject of overtime compensation for county employees and how it might be affected by a Feb. 19 U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

The court decided in the case against the San Antonio transit system that employees of that city's bus network should be subject to Fair Labor Standards Act (FSLA) overtime provisions.

County Auditor Alex Schroeter said he had spoken with someone at the U.S. Department of Labor in Dallas, and "they don't know whether we have to pay time and a half or not."

Schroeter said he expected a Labor Department representative to visit him in Hereford in July to discuss the ruling.

Chief Sheriff's Deputy Loy Smith appeared before the court to ask for a raise for sheriff's secretary Sharon Penington. Simth said besides serving as secretary to Sheriff Joe Brown, Penington also serves as a child abuse and rape crisis counselor, searches female prisoners, fills in as bailiff and dispatcher when needed and serves as the department's purchasing agent.

Smith said Penington is paid $942.58 a month, which is the lowest wage paid any secretary at the courthouse. Commissioners told Smith they would discuss it during the afternoon budget session.

Wayne Allison, a Lubbock insurance agent, presented an employee benefits plan to the court and was granted permission to explain the program to county employees.

Commissioners spent the afternoon going over possibilities for a 1985-86 budget. The new budget year begins Oct. 1.

As work on the budget progresses, the court will hold a proposed use hearing on revenue sharing funds June 3 at 10 a.m.

The public hearing on the budget is planned for the June 10 commissioners court meeting, and the budget is to be adopted in July.

TAX

-The deduction for state and local taxes paid would be eliminated.

-A spouse who is not employed outside the home would be allowed a full $2,000-a-year tax-deferred contribution to an Individual Retirement Account, the same permitted any other worker.

-The earned-income credit, which benefits poor working families with children, would be raised from a maximum $550 a year to $726. This, combined with the rate reductions and increased exemptions and standard deductions would allow a couple with four children to earn $16,000 a year before paying any income tax.

Reagan, pleading for public support for tax overhaul, noted considerable suport in Congress for the goals of simplicity, fairness and growth.

"Remember, there are no limits to growth and human progress when men and women are free to follow their dreams...." he said.

"Let's not let prisoners of mediocrity wear us down. Let's not let the special-interest raids of the few rob us all of our dreams."

MRS. JAMES T. DURHAM
...nee Tambi Sue Gray

Residents' grandson marries in Lubbock

Wedding vows were exchanged recently by Tambi Sue Gray and James T. Durham, both of Lubbock, during a candlelight ceremony held in Bowman Chapel of First United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

Dr. Sam Nader, pastor of the church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Gray of Murray, Ky. and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. James I. Durham of Brenham, Tx. He is also the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Allred and Mrs.J.J. Durham, all of Hereford, and the late J.J. Durham.

An arrangement of foxtail lilies, daisies and wild flowers was placed on the church alter as were ivory tapers. Pews were marked by candlelight silk satin bows.

Julie Sams of Bowling Green, Ky. was maid of honor and the groom's brother, John T. Durham of College Station was best man.

Bradley S. Allred, the groom's cousin, was groomsman.

Monica Purkeypile of Lubbock vocalized "The Wedding Song" and "The Lord's Prayer" and Richard Tolley of Lubbock was trumpeteer. Gordon McMillian of Lubbock was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight ivory silk satin gown designed with a beaded dropped waistline and sheer yoke with a high neckline. It was also fashioned with Victorian sleeves and the tulip train was accented with lace motif.

Her fingertip silk illusion veil was attached to a crown enhanced with lace and seed pearls. She also wore pearl earrings which were given to her by the groom.

Her bridal bouquet consisted of ivy and ivory callias lilies, white rosebuds and baby's breath. She also carried a handkerchief embroidered with the couple's name and wedding date which was given to her by Lendon Schellhase.

The maid of honor was attired in an ivory satin candlelight tea-length gown featuring a front scooped neckline, and a back low shaped V accented with a bow at the waistline. She carried an arm bouquet of mixed wild flowers.

Lindi Gray of Lubbock, the bride's sister, invited guests to the reception-luncheon at The Depot in Lubbock.

Cake was served by Karen Mann and punch was ladled by Karen Gaither and Lendon Schellhase.

A large arrangement of wild flowers and foxtail lilies was placed on the main refreshment table as was the two-tiered cake with ivory frosting. Lace tatting decorated the cake and ivory rosebuds surrounded the base. It was topped with five-inch love birds in a crystal heart.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Disneyworld and Montegobay, Jamaica, the bride wore a black and white twill two-piece suit and pearl accessories.

The couple will make their home at 7811-A Memphis St. in Lubbock.

The bride, a graduate of Murray High School in Murray, Ky., is a 1985 graduate of Texas Tech University where she studied interior design. She is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Clewiston High School in Clewiston, Fla., is a 1984 graduate of Texas Tech with a degree in architecture. He is employed by AC Associates-Architects of Lubbock.

Guests attending the wedding from Hereford included Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Allred, Mrs. J.J. Durham, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Bartlett and James Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Lynton Allred and Mike and Brad, Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Lee and Mrs. Aleane West.

Final spring meeting held by Cultural club members

Members of Cultural Extension Homemakers Club held their final meeting of the spring season Friday at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center.

Following lunch, held in the Kiwanis Golden K Room, a regular business meeting was called to order by Nell Pope. She read "Growing Old". Roll call was answered with "my plan for the summer."

Reports from standing committees were heard as was the treasurer and council delegate's reports.

The club discussed their project, making lap robes for residents of Westgate Nursing Home, and a summer meeting was planned to work on them.

Jewell Hargrove led the group in a vacation quiz to close the meeting.

Luncheon guests were Margie Daniels and Anis Corbett. Members present included Carrie M. Doak, Bertha Dettmann, Ruth Gandy, Edith Hunter, Vernis Parsons, Jewell Rogers, Mary L. Spinhirne, Fannie Townsend, Winnie Wiseman, Virginia Sumner and Byrdie D. Fellers.

The club will convene again on Sept. 13 in the Townsend home.

According to the Aztec calendar, a week lasted 20 days.

Ann Landers

Letter good for a laugh

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have never written to you before and never thought I would, but that letter from "Inquisitive in Long Island" really got my attention.

I, too, used to be inquisitive about what other people had in their medicine cabinets and was often tempted to take a peek, but when a friend told me how she put a stop to it in her house, my curiosity ended.

There was this woman who wasnotorious for snooping in other people's medicine cabinets, bureau drawers, etc. Mrs. X decided to fix her once and for all. On the afternoon Mrs. Snoop was invited for bridge, the hostess filled the medicine cabinet with marbles. There must have been 500 of them.

You can imagine how long that nosy dame was in the bathroom!

I hope you print this letter. It may give other hostesses an idea of how to cure the super-inquisitive ones.--RED DEER, ALBERTA, CANADA

DEAR DEER: Love it! Thanks for my laugh of the day!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Can you use another letter about the importance of keeping an eye on young kids at all times?

During the summer of 1982, on one very hot day, I went to the store for a few minutes, leaving my 2½-year-old son asleep.

When I returned a short time later, I was horrified to see my son standing on the sidewalk naked. He had taken his diaper off.

Now I realize how unpredictable small children can be. An authorized adult should be in charge when a parent leaves the house even if it is only for a short time.

When I read and hear about kidnapping and other horrible crimes against helpless children, my blood runs cold. I keep thinking, "That might have happened to our son." Every night I thank God that our child is safe and well. Sign me–LUCKY AND GRATEFUL

DEAR GRATEFUL: Your letter should be a reminder to parents who leave their youngsters "for just a couple of minutes" that it takes no more than "a couple of minutes" for the place to catch fire, an intruder to come in or the kids to walk out. Thanks for writing. This message cannot be repeated too often.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was happy to see your recent comment stating that you were "rethinking" the question of responsibility of hosts and hostesses toward their guests.

The situation is no different in the restaurant, hotel or catering industry. The young waiter or waitress may be confronted with an unmanageable situation. To hold the serving people and their employers responsible for a wedding guest, a diner, or even a ballpark patron's conduct is unconscionable.

Sometimes the contact between guest and serving person is so minimal that the relationship is less than that of home host. Therefore, the inclination of the "guest" to harass a stranger is even stronger.

Arrest the drunk driver. But don't punish the college vendor or small businessman who tries to exercise good judgment.–J.J.R.

DEAR J.J.R.: Your letter makes a point taht sounds reasonable to me. I am still thinking it over. Thanks for the input.

The onion is related to the lily.

Informal ceremonies conducted at museum

Dedication of the Lomas-Hacker Wagon Yard and the designation of a windmill to John Turner highlighted the annual meeting of the Deaf Smith Historical Society on Sunday.

The informal ceremonies followed a Historical Society board meeting at which new officers were elected. Dorotha Prowell will serve as the new president; Cherry McWhorter, vice president; Lois Gililland, treasurer; and Lavon Nieman, a second term as a secretary.

Also re-elected to the board was Linda Reinauer. New board members elected were Judy Detten, Mary Zinser, Katherine Ruga, Marcella McLain, Claudia McBrayer and Mike Carr.

Resigning from the board were Sue James and Ruth McBride.

The wagon yard, named for Harry Lomas and Bill Hacker who were early patrons of the county museum, houses from the weather several wagons, farm pieces and a carriage. The most recent addition to the transportation collection is an antique hand car, mounted on authentic track, donated by Santa Fe Railroad.

The barn has each item displayed with appropriate accent pieces and spot murals. The lighting was especially designed for the barn and was financed by memorials to A.J. "Major" Schroeter, another museum patron, who was county surveyor for many years.

The barn exhibits are viewed from a glass inset on the south side of the barn.

Some of the family members of the two were present, including, Frank Hacker of Amarillo, Hazel Sparks, Hacker's sister; Bub Sparks, a nephew; Alyce Sparkes and Virgie Marshall of Amarillo, nieces; Terry Sparks of Hereford, great-nephew; and Trey Sparks, of El Paso, great-great-nephew.

Relatives of Lomas included Dennis Lomas, son; Rob Lomas of Dallas, a grandson; and Jeremy, Laura and Kasey Lomas, great-grandchildren.

The designation of the windmill honors Turner, who installed and maintained the windmill as long as he was able. The windmill recently fell, damaging only itself and the south fence of the museum yard. Turner's grandson, Scott Turner, and his family were recognized Sunday. Attending were Dusty Turner, Brenda Turner, Mrs. Doyle Turner, and Merle Roberson Turner.

Donations by Ron Crist and Turner will make it possible to have the windmill again in working order soon.

County Judge Glen Nelson and commissioners Bill Bradly, Austin Rose, Troy Don Moore, and James Voyles were acknowledged for their help and support of the barn project.

All directors, officers, county commissioners and judge will have lunch at the Black House on June 10 and a board meeting will follow.

Albracht to receive degree

Tony Albracht, son of Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Albracht of Hereford, will receive his M.D. degree from the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School at Dallas in graduation ceremonies June 1.

Albracht is one of 195 receiving degrees from Southwestern, a component of the UT Health Science Center at Dallas, this year.

After graduation, Albracht plans a residence program in internal medicine at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas.

Albracht, a 1981 graduate of Texas A&M University, is a member of Alpha Omega Alpha fraternity.

Mock cheese

DEAR POLLY — Do you have a recipe for making Boursin-style cheese? — KAREN

DEAR KAREN — Make a mock Boursin easily using cream cheese or Neufchatel cheese as a base. Simply blend some finely minced or crushed garlic and herbs into the cheese, refrigerate for an hour or two to blend the flavors and serve with crackers or good bread.

You can vary the quantity of herbs to suit your taste, but for one cup of cheese, I start out with a couple of cloves of garlic (you may want to start with less if you're not a real garlic maven), one-half teaspoon bawil, one-fourth teaspoon oregano, a pinch of tarragon and a grind or two of freshly ground black tepper (about one-eighth teaspoon if you must measure). Adjust quantities to your taste. Other herbs you might add include dill, marjoram, savory or even rosemary. Taste as you mix and let your own preferences guide you.

I also make a version of this spread substituting yogurt cheese (which is simply drained yogurt) for the cream cheese. It's lower in calories and gives the spread a special tang and super creaminess that I love. I'm sending you a copy of my latest newsletter, "Cooking with Yogurt," which has recipes for making yogurt, yogurt cheese and a variety of dishes using these products, including the yogurt cheese mock Boursin. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My pet peeve is with shoppers in a supermarket who push their shopping carts alongside the meat counter, stand there and choose the cuts they want in a leisurely manner, while others (who leave our carts along the side) have to peer around or over their carts to see and to make a selection. Then they look at you as if you're going the wrong way on a one-way street! — MRS. R.N.

DEAR MRS. R.N. — I share your frustration with these inconsiderate shoppers. I do hope you make exceptions, however, for mothers with babies in their carts, who shouldn't leave them for even a minute, and for elderly or disabled shoppers who may need the support of their carts when standing for a long time. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When feeding a sick child, put the food in glass custard cups set into a muffin tin. The muffin tin will be easier to balance than a slippery tray and the dishes won't slide. — JANICE

DEAR POLLY — If you store steel-wool scouring pads in your freezer, they will not rust between uses.

The wrapper inside breakfast cereal boxes is of excellent quality. Use it for a variety of waxed-paper chores. — MRS. E.H.

DEAR POLLY — I have many glass dishes and bakeware items. To prevent scratches and reduce breakage, I place plastic foam trays from packages of meat between the dishes in my cupboard. The foam cushions and protects the dishes. — D.F.

DEAR POLLY — Jot down on an extra calendar letters that you mail out so that you have a record of when they were sent. You can also record incoming mail. — MRS. J.D.Z.

DEAR POLLY — To keep my thread from unrolling from the spool, I put a small piece of tepe on the end. — THELMA

Meat industry offers nutrition information

Health conscious consumers and calorie-watchers can now look forward to finding nutrition information about red meat in the supermarket meat case.

The labels, called "Meat Nutri-Facts" are part of a program being coordinated by the meat industry, says Mary K. Sweeten, a Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist.

Meat Nutri-Fact charts use the most recent U.S. Department of Agriculture nutrient composition research on beef, pork and lamb and presents the data graphically so consumers can make informed decisions right at the meat case, she explains.

"This nutrition information will be most helpful for people on low-fat or low-calorie diets," notes Sweeten. "They'll be able to select a particular cut of meat that provides the calories or nutrients needed in their diet."

The charts provide calorie and nutrition information for a three-ounce cooked serving of a specific cut of meat. The method of cooking used is specified on the chart, as well as amounts of calories, total fat, cholesterol, sodium, protein, minerals and vitamins, the nutritionist says.

For YMCA youth leagues

Soccer registration starts

A registration deadline of June 12 for youth soccer leagues has been set by the Hereford and Vicinity YMCA.

Practice will start in the leagues as early as June 20, and league play is scheduled to begin the week of June 29.

The YMCA's goals for the soccer program are to have a first and second grade league, a third and fourth grade league, and a fifth and sixth grade league. Youth will be in leagues according to what grade they will be in during the 1985-86 school year.

If there are enough youth registered for the leagues, separate leagues for boys and girls will be formed.

After the registration deadline of June 12, there will be a registration period in which youth may sign up to fill vacancies on teams.

All players must be officially registered and pay registration fees before they will be assigned to a team.

Registration fees are $6 for YMCA members and $12 for non-members of the YMCA. Fees include team shirts, awards, and use of equipment.

Goals of the soccer program, as noted by YMCA officers, are to provide fun for children and give them opportunities to learn skills in soccer. Those skills include agility, shooting, strategy, dribbling, throw ins, heading, trapping, passing, positions, and coordination.

Each child will play half of a game during league play.

In addition to youth signing up for the leagues, the YMCA needs parents of youth in the leagues, friends or others to volunteer to coach the teams.

Anyone interested in coaching a soccer team is asked to call the program director at the YMCA at 364-6990.

Application forms for youth are available at the YMCA. For more information on the soccer program, call the YMCA.

Ainge-Scott matchup is key one in NBA series

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Byron Scott hadn't seen anything like it for a while. The background view was unfamiliar, the defense was tight and his shots were missing.

Danny Ainge didn't find the opener of the National Basketball Association Championship Series nearly so strange. It was just one more comfortable day in an increasingly comfortable season for the Celtics guard.

Before Boston crushed the Los Angeles Lakers 148-114 in Monday's first game, Celtics' forward Larry Bird pointed to the matchup between the two as a key to the series.

"If Danny Ainge outplays Byron Scott, we'll probably win the series," Bird said.

In the first game, Ainge outplayed Scott and Boston won. The second game of the best-of-seven rematch of last year's finalists will be here Thursday night.

Ainge, who averaged 12.9 points per game in the regular season and 11 in the playoffs, was the dominant player as Boston built a 38-24 lead at the end of the first quarter Monday.

He hit seven of nine field-goal attempts, including a three-pointer, and had 15 points in the opening period. The Celtics lead never dipped below 14 the rest of the game, and Ainge finished with 19 points on 9-of-15 shooting.

Scott, the Lakers' deadliest outside shooter, sank just one of his first seven shots, on a dunk, and finished at 5-of-14 with 10 points.

"I didn't feel the shots were off. I was shooting a little long, a little short. In the second half I got it going," said Scott. "It's a totally different background here than at the Forum (the Lakers' home court). I have to get used to that."

In the Western Conference final against Denver, the second-year pro from Arizona State was Los Angeles' leading scorer with 23.4 points per game and hit 65.4 percent of his field goal attempts.

The Nuggets sometimes let the player guarding Scott drop off him to double team Los Angeles' big men. But Boston made stopping him a priority and had Ainge shadow him.

"We played hard defense on him and, also, he missed some easy shots," said Celtics' Coach K.C. Jones.

"I'm not going to do anything differently" in the second game, Scott said. "I didn't get tentative. I just know that sooner or later they'll start falling for me so I'll just keep shooting."

"You have to encourage him to keep shooting. I'm not worried about his confidence," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley.

Confidence is the least of Ainge's concerns.

Like Scott, he was a substitute in last year's title round who won a starting job this season. That spot opened up when Boston traded Gerald Henderson to Seattle 10 days before the season.

"Last year my confidence was at a down, as down as it could get, and I just made a commitment to myself to work hard," said Ainge, in his fourth NBA season out of Brigham Young. "It got to the point where I wasn't looking to shoot.

"I played in some summer leagues and was the leading scorer and got my confidence back," he added. Now, "I don't shoot a shot that I don't think I'm going to make."

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeff Reardon of the Montreal Expos, who appeared in four games and saved all of them, has been selected the National League's Player of the Week.

NEW YORK (AP) — Power-hitting outfielder Gary Ward of the Texas Rangers has been named the American League's Player of the Week after batting .444 with six extra-base hits, including two home runs.

TRACK AND FIELD

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Edwin Moses, who planned to make his 1985 outdoor debut in the 400-meter hurdles at the ARCO Coliseum Classic on June 8, has withdrawn because of an injury, a spokesman for the meet said.

Moses, a three-time Olympic gold medalist in his specialty, was working out in Sao Paolo, Brazil, recently prior to a meet when he slipped and hurt his right knee.

First complete game since June 19, 1983

Hooten hurls Rangers past Royals, 6-1

By CRAIG HORST
Associated Press Writer

An injured knee that didn't heal for two years left Burt Hooten understandably discouraged.

The Texas righthander felt considerably better Tuesday after pitching his first complete game since June 19, 1983, stopping Kansas City 6-1 on seven hits to end the Royals' six-game winning streak.

It also dropped the Royals a full game behind idle California in the AL West.

"I was terribly down," said Hooten, whose complete game was his first in four starts this season and his first in the American League.

"I had knee surgery in '82," said Hooten, signed by Texas as a free agent in December after 9½ years with the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Tommy (Lasorda, Dodgers manager) was counting on me to come back and start when the knee was right. But I felt the knee was not sound until the last few months of last year. It's continuing feeling good this year."

Hooten suffered through a bad spring training with the Rangers, and started the season in the bullpen. He made seven relief appearances, compiling a 1.98 earned run average in 13 2-3 innings to earn a spot in the rotation.

He lost his first start at Detroit, but then defeated Chicago and pitched well in a no-decision against Boston before arriving in Kansas City.

"It's been an uphill battle," said Hooten, who baffled the Royals with his knuckle-curve, curveball and a fastball that still carries some zip at age 35.

"I've looked on it as a learning experience. It's taught me to have patience. I've gotten a little better each time out. It happens when you go out and do well, it's something you can build on. I've just got everything together and now I'm pitching well."

Manager Bobby Valentine found out about Hooten as soon as Valentine took over for the fired Doug Rader.

"He was the first guy I called when I got here," Valentine said. "He told me, 'Just give me the ball, and leave me alone and I'll do a good job for you.'

"That was the Burt Hooten of old (Tuesday)," added Valentine. "He had good control of his three pitches. He did not establish any pattern with the hitters throughout the game. He had a pretty good fastball in the middle innings."

Hooten protected a 2-1 lead until the Rangers scored another run in the eighth and broke the game open with three more in the ninth.

Oddibe McDowell drove in the first Texas run in the third when he was credited with a bunt double. McDowell bunted toward Royals second baseman Frank White after Wayne Tolleson had singled and stolen second. White tried to scoop the ball to first baseman Steve Balboni, but it dribbled under his glove into short right field as Tolleson scored and McDowell slid into second.

McDowell put the Rangers up 2-0 with a sacrifice fly in the fourth after they loaded the bases on consecutive singles by Larry Parrish, Don Slaught and Tolleson off Kansas City starter Mark Gubicza, 1-3.

The Rangers pounded reliever Joe Beckwith for four runs with Slaught, Gary Ward, Cliff Johnson and Larry Parrish all connecting for run-scoring hits.

Kansas City got its run in the fourth when Jorge Orta singled in Willie Wilson, who opened the inning by doubling to the gap in left-center.

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 1

While Toronto's exploits may be no match for the runaway Detroit staged a year ago en route to winning the World Series, the consistent Blue Jays aren't apologizing to anyone.

Toronto won a club-record eighth straight game Tuesday night to run its mark to 29-14 — identical to its showing after 43 games last season. It pales by comparison to Detroit's 35-8 at the same time a year ago, but this time the Blue Jays lead the Tigers by four games instead of trailing by seven in the American League East.

Perhaps as fascinating was that most of the Blue Jays weren't aware of setting a team record.

"I didn't realize it, but now that I do I guess that makes it something special," Dave Stieb said after hurling a three-hit, 6-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

"Honest, I didn't know it," Manager Bobby Cox said.

Ernie Whitt provided all the offense Stieb needed with a home run, two singles and three runs batted in.

Brewers 3, Indians 2

The Milwaukee bullpen, mostly ineffective since Rollie Fingers went down with an injury near the end of the Brewers' pennant-winning 1982 season, may be back in business under the leadership of none other than Fingers.

He recorded his seventh save when he combined with Moose Haas for a five-hitter as the Brewers beat Cleveland.

"Tonight was one of Rollie's better performances this season," Milwaukee Manager George Bamberger said of the 38-year-old right-hander, baseball's all-time save leader with 331.

Fingers has registered saves in his last four appearances after getting only three in his first 11 of the season.

Haas now is 5-2.

76ers in no hurry to hire new head coach

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The departure of Billy Cunningham has left a void — one that owner Harold Katz of the Philadelphia 76ers is in no hurry to fill.

Cunningham, who produced one National Basketball Association champion and two runners-up in his eight years as the 76ers coach, announced his resignation yesterday, saying it was time to move on to other areas of life.

Katz said he would form a coaching committee to find a successor to Cunnningham, who won 454 games and lost 196 for a .698 average.

"It might be a month from now, two months from now," Katz said.

The owner said it wasn't important to have a coach by the June 18 NBA draft, since his coach didn't have that much input into the draft.

"I'm not ruling out a college coach, but I lean to an assistant or a former head coach in the pros," Katz said.

Among the college coaches who might be considered are Villanova's Rollie Massimino and Georgetown's John Thompson.

Cunningham, 41, told a news conference yesterday, "I have made a decision with my family and some friends. ... I've been fortunate enough to be connected with professional basketball now for 20 years, coaching for eight years, and I feel that it's time for Bill Cunningham to move on to other areas with his life."

Cunningham led the Sixers to the league title in 1982-83 when they won 12 of 13 playoff games. As a player, he was one of the stars on the championship 76ers of 1966-67.

Both Cunningham and Katz denied a published report that the resignation was prompted by personal differences between them.

Bulls fire coach Kevin Loughery

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls have posted a "Help Wanted" sign outside the coach's office for the 10th time in eight seasons after Vice President Jerry Krause fired Kevin Loughery over "philosophical" differences and sent two assistants packing in the bargain.

Loughery recorded a 65-99 mark in his two seasons with Chicago.

New Houston reliever suffers loss

Backup catcher helps Pirates defeat Astros

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

The big individual winner in Pittsburgh's 4-3 victory over Houston didn't get into the game until the fourth inning and the big loser didn't arrive at the ball park until an hour after the game started.

Backup catcher Junior Ortiz, who replaced injured Tony Pena in the fourth inning, belted a the game-winning single in the 12th inning Tuesday night to break a 3-3 tie that had kept the game deadlocked since the seventh inning.

Houston reliever Julio Solano started the day in Tucson, Ariz., with the Astros' AAA club but caught a noon flight and arrived at the Astrodome at 8:30 p.m. in time to pitch two innings and get the loss.

Ortiz' single to rightfield off Solano in the 12th sent Lee Mazzilli home with the winning run and ended the Astros longesst game of the season.

"I wanted to hit the ball to the outfield," Ortiz said. "It was a forkball that was up so it was a good pitch to hit to the outfield. It's good to win an extra inning game. If we keep playing like we have been, I think we'll win a bunch more games."

The Astros had battled back to tie the score at 3-3 in the seventh inning that forced the extra innings.

"I still feel okay," Solano said. "I pitched last night too but it was only two-thirds of an inning. There's really not much to say. I just tried to do my best."

Pittsburgh scored three runs in the fourth inning off starter Ron Mathis on sacrifice flys by Steve Kemp and Bill Almon and Pena's single.

Houston got one run in the fourth when Almon's fielding error allowed Kevin Bass to score from third on Phil Garner's grounder.

Denny Walling's double and a single by Bass scored the second run in the sixth and Terry Puhl's sacrifice fly tied t in the seventh.

"I'm starting to feel good at the plate," said Pittsburgh's Johnny Ray, who got four hits. "This has been a frustrating season. This should be a psychological lift for us to win an extra inning game rather than lose.

"We've been playing great baseball the last few weeks, we could easily be 7-i in our last eight games but we lost a fews games that we led going into the ninth," he said.

Pena suffered a sprained left ankly sliding back into first base in the fourth inning on a pickoff attempt. Pena was taken to a hospital for x-rays, which proved negative.

Pirate officials didn't say how long Pena would be out of the lineup.

Reds 13, Cubs 11

Why are boomerangs and bad checks like the Cincinnati Reds?

The answer to that seldom-asked question was easy Tuesday night as Tony Perez kept the Reds coming back, first from a 6-0 deficit, then from 10-5, finally breaking an 11-11 tie in the seventh inning and beating the Chicago Cubs 13-11.

Pesky Cincinnati refused to be left behind, scoring five runs in the fourth inning and six runs in the sixth.

Perez was 3-for-3 with a three-run homer in the fourth and a run-scoring double in the tie-breaking seventh.

"I don't think there's any team in the National League that's got a player like Tony who can come off the bench and hit a home run and drive in a lot of runs," said Reds shortstop Dave Concepcion, who drove in the winning run in the seventh. "I don't see anybody in the National League playing as well as he is."

"Who's 43? Do I look 43? That's only age. It's only numbers," said Perez, who has some impressive numbers. On the season, Perez is 10-for-20, with six walks, a double, four homers and 13 runs batted in.

Perez has hit all four homers in his last four games, giving him 375 over his major-league career. Tuesday's homer moved him past Rocky Colavito, into 27th place alone on the all-time list. The double gave him his 1,603rd RBI.

Cardinals 9, Braves 3

Tito Landrum homered and singled during a seven-run onslaught by St. Louis that was wrapped around a 24-minute rain delay in the fourth inning. The Cardinals had four singles, three doubles, Landrum's two-run homer and a fielder's interference call in the inning. They had 19 hits in the game.

Terry Pendleton, Vince Coleman and Willie McGee had the doubles in the fourth inning. Coleman had a pair of doubles on the night, and Jack Clark was 4-for-5 in the game.

The Cardinals, with 220, have scored 27 more runs than any other team in the NL. The Reds are second.

Expos 8, Padres 5

Andre Dawson pinch hit in the sixth and drove in a run with a single, giving Montreal a 5-4 lead. After San Diego tied the score 5-5, Dawson stroked a two-run double in the eighth that gave Rich Gossage his first loss of the season.

Bert Roberge, 1-1, pitched two innings for the victory and Jeff Reardon earned his 13th save, tying Gossage for the major-league lead, pitching the eighth and ninth.

Steve Garvey and Kevin McReynolds each hit their seventh homers as the Padres took a 3-0 lead in the first.

Pinckney awaits draft with mixed emotions

AP Sports Writer

New York's pro basketball cognoscenti can recite the names from memory. Paul Hogue ... Darrell Imhoff ... Greg Cook ... Eugene Short ... Jesse Dark ... all fine fellows, all high Knickerbocker draft choices, all better suited for other pursuits.

They comprise a litany of lost opportunities for the National Basketball Association's New York franchise.

So when the Knicks won the NBA draft lottery earlier this month, it produced great joy in their town, particularly in one section of the Bronx where the playground critics review the team daily.

There was, however, one local resident and longtime Knicks' fan who greeted his favorite team's good fortune with something less than unbridled enthusiasm.

This was not, remember, the Ed Pinckney Lottery.

"The Knicks' luck with draft picks and getting the right players hasn't been great," Pinckney said. "I thought their chances in the lottery were slim. When they won it, everybody in my neighborhood was happy. But I saw my chances to play for them go out the window, so I had mixed emotions."

That's because Pinckney has first round NBA draft credentials after being the Most Valuable Player in Villanova's improbable upset of Patrick Ewing and Georgetown for the NCAA championship. Unless the NBA changes the draft rules again, the Knicks will have only one shot in that round and will fire it for the big Hoya Pinckney has been battling for the last four years.

That is an ironic turn of events for the kid who grew up in those Bronx playgrounds, dreaming about the championship Knicks of Frazier, DeBusschere, Reed and Bradley. For a team seeking a big man, he would have been an attractive hometown pick — except for Ewing's looming presence. But then, Pinckney has been coping with that presence for some time now — twice a year in the Big East Conference regular season, and once more in the tournament.

"You look forward to those games, playing the best in the country," Pinckney said. "It was a great rivalry. Everybody on the campus got excited for those games."

Never was the Villanova community more excited than when Pinckney and his pals encountered Georgetown again last month, with the national championship at stake. The Wildcats, however, thoroughly accustomed to Ewing and Co. by now, were carefree about it.

"In the dressing room before the game, we were so loose you'd never believe it. The guys were throwing tape, joking around," Pinckney said. "We had nothing to lose. The pressure was all on them."

Then there was the Cinderella element. Villanova had come out of a tough Big East season with 10 losses, not exactly NCAA tournament credentials.

"We had just lost to Pittsburgh — by 23 points," Pinckney said. "We weren't very impressive in the Big East tournament. We thought we might be going to the NIT. I remember watching the NCAA draw in the field house. They put us in against Dayton — at Dayton."

The Wildcats overcame that obstacle and later ones against Maryland, Michigan, North Carolina and Memphis State. That earned them a championship chance against the tournament's heavyweight — Georgetown. Another team, less familiar with the Hoyas might have been awed. Pinckney and Villanova were not.

So Villanova went out, shot 78 percent — "Who shoots 78 percent?" Pinckney chuckled — and won the title.

Now Pinckney's back home, shooting baskets in the schoolyard with his nephew, Billy Singleton, and waiting for the June 18 NBA draft. He knows who the Knicks will pick. He just wishes he didn't.

Indy 500 winner was once a taxicab driver

By BRUCE LOWITT AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When Danny Sullivan showed up at Central Park, what should be waiting for him but a New York City taxi.

Sullivan hadn't been behind the wheel of a cab for 16 years — and when he did drive one here, it was for all of three weeks. He has been busy learning and perfecting a different kind of driving for more than a decade.

Indy cars. Road racing. Grand Prix.

Still, on Tuesday, as he accepted more accolades for his Indy triumph and began the promotion for next month's U.S. Grand Prix at the Meadowlands, he first had to drive one camera crew after another around the neighborhood, recalling over and over how he and a buddy used to race their cabs through the park or across 42nd Street or down Broadway.

A year ago, he went along with some television producer's idea of driving a taxi while the real cabbie sat in the passenger seat. "The guy was petrified the whole time," Sullivan said.

With good reason. "All those other race drivers, they're professionals. We know they know what they're doing. We know what they're thinking," Sullivan said. "But the average driver behind the wheel in the city ..." He shook his head in dismay.

"Did you know I nearly got run down the night before Indy?"

Sullivan had attended a dinner on Saturday night. Roger Penske, for whom he drives, has an off-duty policeman who chauffeurs people around. He was driving Sullivan back to his hotel.

"We came to a corner. We had a green light. But the driver slowed down. He sensed something just wasn't right. All of a sudden this guy runs the red light. He's going a mile a minute. If we hadn't slowed down, he'd have gotten us right where I was sitting. Can you imagine me getting knocked out of the race before it'd even started?"

Sullivan shook his head again.

He repeatedly recalled those few weeks when, fresh from quitting the University of Kentucky after two semesters, he was scrounging for work in the Big Apple.

"When I came here with a buddy, I had about $800. I think we went through that the first two nights," he said. "I was here earning a living. I had nothing to fall back on, didn't own a credit card, didn't have a trust fund, none of that."

His parents back in Louisville, Ky., weren't very happy with him. They had sent him to private school, to military school and to college and now he was driving cabs, waiting on tables. They sent a family friend to check up on their son.

He was supposed to redirect Sullivan's attention back to college. He steered him instead into auto racing, paying for driving lessons in Britain as a 21st birthday present.

"The minute I sat in my first racing car, I fell in love with it," Sullivan said. "My family and friends say they always knew I wanted to be a race-car driver because I was always terrorizing the streets and I'd had a Go-Kart when I was a kid."

Chemotherapy infusion pump may extend life for patients

DALLAS -- An implantable chemotherapy infusion pump can extend the lives of some patients with metastatic cancer of the colon and rectum, according to surgeon Dr. Jeffery Schouten at The University of Texas Health Science Center at Dallas.

The pump is useful for those patients whose colorectal cancer has metastasized (spread) only to the liver, as often happens with colon cancer.

"The liver is the most common site of recurrent disease from colon cancer," says Schouten, "and in many patients with metastatic colon cancer, the liver is the only detected site of recurrent disease."

Colon cancer, that is, cancer of the large bowel or the lower five or six feet of the intestine, will strike an estimated 96,000 persons in the U.S. in 1985, according to the American Cancer Society. Cancer of the rectum, the last five to six inches at the end of the colon leading to the outside of the body, will be diagnosed in approximately 42,000 new patients this year. Their combined incidence is second only to that of lung cancer.

When colorectal cancer is detected and treated in an early localized stage, the five year survival rate is 87 percent for colon cancer and 78 percent for rectal cancer. This compares with 47 percent and 38 percent respectively after the cancer has spread through the bowel wall or to lymph glands.

When colorectal cancer spreads to the liver, the average patient lives six months, says Schouten, assistant professor the UTHSCD Department of Surgery. But with the infusion pump delivering the drug 5-fluorodeoxyuridine (FUDR), the average patient lives 12 to 18 months after cancer is detected in the liver.

Patients spend an average of 10 to 14 days in the hospital following the hour and a half operation. Most are able to return to their regular daily activities at three weeks. Refilling and flushing out the cigarette pack-size pump is done on an outpatient basis.

"Patients who opt for the pump experience minimal discomfort and say that the additional quality time is worth the inconvenience," says Schouten.

The patient is spared the ill effects of nausea and vomiting associated with total body chemotherapy since the chemotherapy is delivered directly into the liver, Schouten says. He explains that the pump is connected to a catheter placed in the hepatic artery, delivering a drug concentration four times higher than if it were given intravenously.

Culpepper installs new guild officers

Nell Culpepper conducted installation ceremonies when members of the Hereford Art Guild met Tuesday for a luncheon in the Hereford Community Center.

Hilda Haven will serve as president; Lottie Wertenberger, first vice-president; Leota Cook, second vice-president; Audrey Rusher, secretary; Annie DeLozier, treasurer; Verna Elliott, reporter; and Carrie Mae Doak, parliamentarian.

Culpepper used silk flowers of different colors to represent love, loyalty, intelligence, eternal vigilance, and consistency. The color violet was used to represent service for the parliamentarian.

During the business meeting, members shared exhibits of pictures and a porcelain doll and answered roll call with "what plans do I have for the summer?"

Doak presented the art scholarship to Amy Mason from the guild. Also, dues were paid for the following year.

The group discussed plans for an art workshop for the summer with the first being scheduled June 27.

SIMON CARDENAS JR.

Of Colombia's 25.6 million people, 58 percent are Mestizo; 20 percent Caucasian; 14 percent mulatto; 4 percent Negro and 1 percent Indian.

The U.S. prairie lands that extend from North Dakota to Texas and from the Missouri River to the Rocky Mountains are called the Great Plains.

Cardenas named for special award

Simon Cardenas Jr., grandson of Lucio Blea Jr. of 330 W. Second St., has been named a United States achievement academy national award winner.

This is a position of honor less than 10 percent of all young people can attain, placing Cardenas among the nation's most elite youth.

Cardenas' picture and biography will appear in the appropriate volume of the awards yearbook which honors America's outstanding students.

In addition, Cardenas is now eligible to apply for a USAA college scholarship. Last year the academy granted over $26,000 in cash awards.

Gary Jones graduates

FORT WORTH, Tx. – Gary Wayne Jones of Hereford was among some 760 Texas Christian University students who completed degree requirements and received their diplomas during spring commencement on May 18.

Jones of 332 Douglas received a bachelor of business administration degree in general business.

Spring baccalaureate and commencement services, combined into one event, was held in TCU's Daniel-Meyer Coliseum. Presiding was Dr. William E. Tucker, TCU chancellor.

During the evening the honorary Doctor of Humanitarian Service degree was conferred upon William A. Moncrief of Fort Worth.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—Texas lawmakers neared an accord on the state budget by giving conference committee approval to a new twist on motor vehicle inspections.

If approved by the full Legislature before adjournment at midnight, Memorial Day, inspection sticker prices will go up from $5.25 to $7.75, an increase of $2.50.

But Texans who buy a new car will have to pay $15, good for two years. This new twist is a result of lawmakers efforts to find an extra $150 million to balance the budget by raising various state fees.

Also proposed was a $50 increase in the cost of filing a suit in state district court. Child support cases were exempted.

Hightower Wins One

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower has had tough going this session with budget writers cutting his outlays and limiting his staff, but last week his foes carried the battle against him too far. Hightower, perhaps riding on a sympathy backlash, finally won one in the Legislature.

When House Agriculture chairman Bob Saunders, D-LaGrange, moved to dilute Hightower's power to regulate pesticide use, particularly his protection of stoop laborers in the Rio Grande Valley, he found himself not only up against the Mexican-American Caucus, but enough handfuls of conservatives from both parties to warrant surrender.

He abandoned his proposal which was backed by chemical lobbyists and the Texas Farm Bureau, two groups which Hightower angered earlier with his new, stringent pesticide regulations.

Abortion Foes Defeated

Also abandoned last week was the attempt to pass stricter abortion regulations. Abortion foes L. B. Kubiak, D-Rockdale, and Jan McKenna, R-Arlington, tried to build their measure into other legislation renewing the Texas Department of Health, but some key lawmakers threatened to filibuster.

The Speaker asked Kubiak and the others to retreat and avoid a confrontation that could lead to a special session this summer.

State Agency Axed

The Speaker called it right, too, as House members demonstrated when Bruce Gibson, D-Cleburne, and some other anti-abortion foes tried to revive the Texas Health Facilities Commission by tying it to abortion regulations.

The controversial commission regulates who can build and expand hospitals and nursing homes, but House members voted 97-49 to axe it.

Even some pro-life lawmakers voted to dismantle the commission, including McKenna. House and Senate leaders pronounced it dead for this session.

Mauro Big Winner

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro came out a big winner this session, when the governor signed new law giving him added land management authority, not only over public school lands, but all other state-owned lands as well.

Mauro will have added powers to trade low-revenue state land for property bringing more money to public schools. His new responsibilities call for him to assess and make "best use" recommendations for land owned by other state agencies.

Mauro, a Democrat, owes much of his success to a quiet bipartisan effort headed by the bill's Republican sponsor, state Sen. John Leedom of Dallas.

Vet Tracts Easier

Another approved bill gives the Veterans Land Board, also chaired by Mauro, the authority to make veteran loans on 5-acre tracts, much easier than the present 10-acre minimum requirement.

Urban sprawl and the decade's rising interest rates have made it difficult for veterans to find an available ten acres.

Presidential Primary

The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill moving the Texas presidential primary up two months from early May to March.

Passed 90-56, all Republicans voted against the measure which is thought to provide Democrats with a more conservative candidate than the original proposal.

Seminars work on bosses vs. workers problem

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (AP) — The technological change that continues to shift the American economy from heavy industry to services has spawned a rapidly growing business specializing in teaching bosses how to get the most out of their workers.

"We're in the business of helping people to cope. They've got to get the tools they need," said Bernard Erdman, president of Padgett-Thompson, a concern that puts on one-day seminars for management.

Fred Pryor, founder of Fred Pryor Seminars Inc., another seminar firm, said, "This is a $7 billion business and I would say its really in its infancy. It is constantly growing ...."

The traditional education supplied by colleges and universities does not prepare students for the jobs they must do in the workplace, Erdman said.

"Employers complain they (college graduates) may be well read, but cannot relate to their work," he said. "Companies like ours are bridging that gap."

Pryor said a survey of people who attended his seminars in 1984 found that the participants considered the top problem in business to be a lack of communication between bosses and workers.

"Employees have a lack of trust in their employers because of the lack of communication," said Pryor. "There is an 'us versus them' polarization. The first thing we try to do is raise the consciousness of management. They are thinking of the authoritarian style of management, and that really isn't effective anymore."

Padgett-Thompson expects to have a half-million people attend its seminars in 400 cities this year. They will be taught how to hire and fire, basic supervision, how to interview and how to manage. Padgett-Thompson also offers a seminar for secretaries and another for the woman supervisor.

A new half-day seminar offered this year for blue-collar workers promises to teach employees to have a positive attitude toward their companies and customers while instilling "loyalty, respect and courtesy in the workplace."

"We offer pragmatic, useful training," Erdman said.

Seminar "presenters," who must have business experience, undergo a rigorous six-week training at Padgett-Thompson before they are put on the road to give the standardized seminars.

Fred Pryor Seminars, which claims to have offered the first one-day seminar in 1970, will travel to 165 cities for 2,000 seminars. Seminar topics include "How to Get Things Done," "Women in Management," "Managing Under Pressure" and "Winning Through Negotiation."

"The public is saying, 'I want to know how to work with people,'" Pryor said. "We have to make them conscious of the needs of people. We have to teach people to listen, and we have to teach them how to listen.

"They (employers) need to look at employees as resources and encourage them to develop themselves. This is the belief that the individual holds the answers to his own problems if he is given the opportunity to develop."

Erdman sees a potential market of 82 million people for the 2,000 companies or so offering the one-day seminar.

People have more leisure time and are beginning to ask themselves, "How can I be happy," said Pryor.

"People want to feel like they count," he said. "Increased productivity results from increased feelings of self worth."
