Reagan, O'Neill Hint of Budget Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) -After nearly two months of stalemate, President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. are hinting at progress in the search for a bipartisan alternative to Reagan's red-ink budget.

"I look forward to progress being made as soon as they (members of Congress) come back from the Easter recess," Reagan told reporters at the White House Monday. "That's why we're negotiating so fast."

The president added that a summit meeting with congressional leaders "will be part of the procedure before we finally arrive at a budget."

White House Chief of Staff

James A. Baker III, White House congressional liaison Kenneth M. Duberstein and key Republicans and Democrats from the House and Senate already have been holding a series of meetings on a possible compromise.

But prior to Monday, Reagan had been consistent in defending the spending plan he submitted to Congress Feb. 8 and insisting that White House aides were attending the private meetings only to listen and report back on congressional options. On Capitol Hill, O'Neill, D-Mass., told reporters Monday, "There really is a possibility we can work some things out....There is a little progress being made from what I can gather."

The speaker declined to discuss specifics, but he said that while "the president is still in cement about his tax plan of last year

...they're (the administration) offering everything else under the sun."

O'Neill added that Reagan appeared to be "not as hardened on defense as he was" and there may be some movement on the issue of reducing the president's planned military buildup.

A White House source who asked not to be quoted by name tried to temper Reagan's remarks by saying "no breakthrough is immi-

The source added that the president's comments should not be interpreted as a call for an immediate summit. "I think all he was saying was before the process is over, there will have to be a meeting of the minds at the highest level," the source

Congressional sources, who also asked to remain anonymous, said the White House and congressional negotiators hope to have a compromise proposal ready in the next several days to present to Reagan, O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr.

Under terms of the private talks, any of the three can veto whatever agreement the negotiators have worked out, although Baker is said to be

Burglars Hit Stanton Again

Stanton Junior High has reported that 12 pieces of been burglarized for the second time within two weeks, the latest with reports of approximately $930 of audio equipment missing.

Terry Russell, assistant principal, told Hereford police Sunday that a window pane on a southside door was knocked out and that the coke machine had been broken into with an undetermined amount of cash missing.

Fingerprints and photos were taken at the scene.

Monday, school authorities added a list of missing audio equipment to the report. Taken were a Dynaco Pat 4

Pre-amplifier, a BIC turntable, two Southwest Technical Products amplifier, a set of headphones, a set of patch cords, a set of 20-inch headphone extension cords and a set of 10-inch speakers.

No suspects have been named in the case.

Nearly $250 worth of home video games equipment was reported stolen from a residence. Subjects entered by forcing a garage and back door open.

WASHINGTON, D.C. -Senator Lloyd Bentsen today announced that he will be visiting Hereford on Thurs-

"I look forward to visiting personally with the citizens of the Hereford community and learning firsthand their thinking concerning the critical issues facing their area, as well as our nation," Bentsen said.

A public reception will be held at the Hereford Community Center, from 3-4 p.m. equipment to the windswept, treeless islands 250 miles east of southern Argentina that the Argentine navy and a force of several thousand midnight tonight. In Brussels, her government asked the NATO allies to put economic pressure on Argentina, including a ban on arms sales and the withholding of export credits. Mrs. Thatcher's foreign minister already has resigned, and she had been expected to face calls to quit in the House of Commons and be questioned about intelligence reports received in advance of the Argentine invasion Fri-

Reports in The Times and Daily Telegraph quoted intelligence sources in Buenos Aires as saying Mrs. Thatcher's government knew of an imminent attack on the Falklands in the last week of March "and yet they chose to ignore it totally."

Fears that Mrs. Thatcher might be forced to resign caused panic selling on the London Stock Exchange for the second day.

At one point shares lost nearly $5.25 billion in value before a midday recovery. Just before the close, the Financial Times industrial index was down 11.5 at 548.4. The British pound fell 2 cents to just under $1.75, its lowest point since 1977.

Stock values dropped $4.4 billion Monday, the biggest one-day loss of the year.

The Argentine government flew reinforcements to its invasion force in the Falklands after a British fleet sailed to try to retake the South Atlantic islands and the rich offshore oil fields believed around them.

Three C-130 transports carried more troops, guns and troops seized last Friday.

The Argentine public appeared little disturbed by the departure Monday of the first section of a British armada of 40 warships, far stronger than Argentina's entire navy, that is scheduled to reach the Falklands in two weeks.

The British navy also took over Britain's second largest cruise liner, the 43,975-ton Canberra, for use as a troop carrier

A blackout air raid drill was scheduled Wednesday night in Comodoro Rivadavia, the south Argentine city closest to the Falklands. And red crosses were painted on the roofs of hospitals there and in other south Argentine ports.

But a secretary at a Middle Eastern embassy in Buenos Aires said Argentine employees laughed when the staff began stockpiling flour, coffee and other staples.

President Reagan again urged Britain and Argentina to settle their dispute without bloodshed, telling reporters in Washington he didn't think control of the islands justified the use of force.

Reagan said the United States is "ready to do anything we can" to help its two friends reach "a peaceful resolution of this with no forceful action or no bloodshed." But he refused to say what he would do if Britain and Argentina went to war.

An extension for the rate study of Southwestern Public Service was voted by the commission, postponing the deadline for 120 days. The deadline would have been April 18, 30 days from the SPS filing in March.

A zoning change from residential to central business in the 800 block of West Park was denied on recommendation of the zoning commission. The zoning was a heavier zoning than required for the property owner's needs and he was advised to request a different zone change.

Objections to a new building construction in the Bluebonnett addition were dropped from the agenda and approval on plats in South Jackson Acres was tabled.

S&Ls Record Losses; Unemployment May Rise

By JAMES PELTZ AP Business Writer

High interest rates took a record bite out of savings and loan institutions in the second half of 1981, sending nearly 85 percent of the nation's individual S&Ls into the loss column, the government says.

Losses for about 3,800 federally insured S&Ls totaled $3.1 billion for the sixmonth period, more than twice the record $1.5 billion for the first half of 1981, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Monday.

The agency never reported a six-month industrywide loss before 1981 in the four decades it has been keeping such figures. The main problem for S&Ls is that most have been forced to pay higher interest rates to attract deposits than they have been earning on the home loan payments they take in.

One of the instruments S&Ls offer for deposits are six-month money market certificates. Rates fell on the $10,000-minimum-deposit certificates Monday. Starting today, banks and S&Ls may pay as much as 13.17 percent interest on the certificates, down from 13.493 percent.

The certificates are pegged to yields on short-term Treasury securities auctioned each Monday, and yields fell about one-half percentage That has also held back point at the latest auction. But despite that decline, rates on Treasury bills and other short-term loans have remained stubbornly high.

WASHINGTON (AP) -President Reagan says he hopes to meet with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev this summer to discuss global reductions in nuclear Reaffirming his opinion that the Soviet Union has an edge over the United States in nuclear weaponry, Reagan suggested Monday that he and Brezhnev address a United Nations disarmament conference and meet afterward to discuss "arms reduction" and "arms control."

The president told reporters he was not suggesting "a full-blown summit conference" between the leaders of the two superpowers.

"I think that if he (Brezhnev) is here and we both bring up (arms control), I think it would be well if he and I had a talk," Reagan said. Meanwhile, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. scheduled a speech today on U.S. nuclear arms policy before the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies

The U.N. conference, focus-

Peking Talks Focus On Sales To Tiawan

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. officials are believed to be trying to convince Chinese authorities in talks reportedly under way in Peking that the Reagan administration's sale of military spare parts to Taiwan is no threat to China.

The issue of U.S. arms sales to Taiwan was raised Monday by Chinese ambassador Chai Zemin in a 30-minute conversation with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Chai told reporters after the meeting that his discussion with Haig was "merely informal" and that official talks were under way in Peking between Chinese and U.S. officials.

Chai gave no hint of the specific nature of the Peking talks, but a senior U.S. official said last week that the administration is trying to convince China that its policy of giving Taiwan what it needs for self-defense was no threat to China.

This official, who asked not to be identified, said this policy was "part of the package" that included normalization of U.S.-Chinese relations.

Brisendine Gives Tips On Purchasing Home Appliances

Mrs. T.E. Brisendine presented a program on home appliances for the 80's at the Thursday meeting of the North Hereford Extension Club in the home of Mrs. Tony Hoffman.

Mrs. Brisendine gave several helpful hints on buying home appliances and listed questions that should be asked before buying a particular item. Two of these are "Do you have a place for it? and Can you afford to operate

She said that most appliances should last from 10-15 years, noting that the owner's manual should be read when the appliance is brought home and every few years afterwards.

Mrs. Brisendine suggested buying the most simple appliances because they are easier to take care of and easier to be repaired.

THE EDUCATED WOMAN

She's Gaining in the Degree Race

While the nation's college-educated population is increasing overall, the women's share of it is increasing fastest in all major categories. A study covering the decade of the '70s shows the numbers of women almost doubling in the category of all degrees, pulling almost even with men in bachelor's degrees and scoring their greatest proportional gain — tenfold — in first professional degrees in such fields as medicine and law. Their gains are likely to accelerate during the '80s. Since 1979, women have outnumbered men in college enrollments.

ST. LOUIS (AP) - A crea- Theology tionist minister who claims to have found the spot where a dinosaur stepped on a stillwet human footprint has challenged skeptical scientists to join him on his dig.

"Scientists who are interested can examine for themselves while we are excavating June 16," said the Rev. Carl E. Baugh, who holds a doctorate from the California Graduate School of

"It will be 'high noon,' in a sense, because it will be the moment of truth," he added.

Baugh said Monday that a 12-man team of creationists unearthed four human footprints last month beside those of a dinosaur, disproving Darwin's theory of evolution.

"My purpose was to unearth a couple of dinosaur prints," said Baugh. "And we were privileged to unearth 24 of them.

Baugh said the prints were found underneath four inches of clay and another foot of limestone on a ledge above the riverbed.

He said his group moved 40 tons of rock to find the four prints, each 16-inches long with a stride of 3.5 feet between them, which appeared to be made by a 7-foot-tall

Beside them, on the same strata, were the tracks of a Tyrannosaurus Rex, he said. Baugh said the prints converged, until the dinosaur stepped on the last footprint.

He displayed a plaster mold of the first print, showing a distinct outline of what appeared to be a big toe, and said it had been verified as human by a Washington University anatomy pro-

"I can't come to any real conclusion," the anatomist, Dr. David Minton, said later. 'I've looked at it and I'm open-minded about the possibility of a human footprint in that area, but I can't come to a comfortable conclusion on whether it is human or not based on what I've seen.

"I think the evidence is sufficiently good that they should look some more," he added, "and I rather wish they had before making this

Similar prints have also been studied by Dr. Juan Langston, a professor of geological studies at the University of Texas at. "They are just plain wrong," said Langston, adding that there are other explanations for the oblong impressions, including the possibility they were made by an unknown animal. The Journal of Creation-Evolution recently debunked similar tracks found in the same area.

'We referred to them as ... the creationist's Piltdown because we think it's a hoax or a mistake," said the jour nal's editor, Fred Edwords of Buffalo, N.Y.

"Under the circumstances as reported, these may not have been. But a lot of scientists were quite taken in by the Piltdown Man."

A cranium and jawbone supposedly unearthed in Great Britain in 1912 were used to prove the existence of an early man, dubbed the Piltdown Man. But in 1954, tests showed that the cranium was a cleverly disguised modern skull and the jawbone was that of an

Miss Conrad, a recent graduate of the University of California at Davis, was trapped Wednesday in a space about 2 feet high and 5 feet long when snow crashed through the second-story wall of a three-story ski patrol building. The avalanche that hit the building was among several during storms that brought more than 12 feet of new snow to the Lake Tahoe basin, 200 miles east of San Francisco.

Miss Conrad was apparently saved by a bench, which protected her from a wall that was pushed in and over by the snow, said resort spokesman Marshall Lewis.

"I was walking in the locker room," Miss Conrad told reporters. "I didn't know it was an avalanche until today." She said she apparently blacked out for a while.

Town On Edge Of Bankruptcy

PAW PAW, W.Va. (AP) -Being the mayor of Paw Paw means everything from chasing stray dogs to cutting the grass at the town cemetery. But David Clark never thought the job would also leave the very survival of the town in his hands.

Perched on the Potomac River where it slices between West Virginia and Maryland, the tiny community is wondering how long it can go on being a town if it can't pay a $10,500 bill. The bill stems from 1978, when the former police chief chased a motorist who later won a lawsuit against Paw Paw.

While $10,500 would be the price of a coffee break to a large city, Clark says the bill is likely to break the bank although as he points out, Paw Paw doesn't even have a bank

Paw Paw has been in a slow decline ever since the last of the Union troops stationed there during the Civil War marched away. A few stores and a funeral home huddle at the single crossroads in the center of town, where fresh flowers are placed regularly at the monument to the local men who died in World War I.

Jobs are scarce and most people commute across winding mountain roads to jobs in Virginia and Maryland. The students from the tiny high school - which graduated 13 seniors last year - leave home quickly. Clark says the town had been trying to slow the downward slide. A new water system was built with a federal grant and there was even talk of attracting in-

But then came the night in May 1978 when Charles H. Harbaugh of Berryville, Va., drove through town.

Police Chief Lawrence Sherman stated in court documents that he clocked Harbaugh doing 47 mph in a 25 mph zone. A chase ensued with Sherman stopping Harbaugh three times only to see him speed off again each time the chief got out of the cruiser.

The chase spilled over into Maryland where local authorities, after being radioed by Sherman, stopped Harbaugh. After a night in a Maryland jail, Harbaugh was released after a judge ruled that Sherman lacked jurisdiction in Maryland.

Clark, who was not mayor. at the time, said the incident went unnoticed in Paw Paw. Then a year ago, another police officer said he clocked Harbaugh driving above the speed limit on his way through town. Again a chase across the hills ensued with police from West Virginia and Virginia joining in before the driver eluded them. Clark, who also serves as justice of the peace, found Harbaugh guilty in absentia and notified Virginia authorities, who suspended his driving license for three weeks. Harbaugh responded with a $1.3 million lawsuit, alleging his constitutional rights had been violated dur ing the first chase.

After a trial in Baltimore, a jury awarded Harbaugh damages and legal costs amounting to $10,500 - a sum almost half of the town's annual $25,000 budget. The decision bewilders Clark.

"I didn't feel the town should be held liable for a police officer's actions," he said. "I can't see how the jury found any fault against the

Most of Paw Paw's 600 or so residents, according to Clark, didn't know about the case until the town got the bill. In a community were the local tax of a few dollars per family hasn't been raised in 30 years, the sum seemed impossible.

"This is the biggest headache we've had in a long time," Clark said. "I'd been lying if I didn't tell you this hadn't taken something out of Mark Davis, Sherman's lawyer, said his client would not answer any questions about the incident.

The suit is headed back to court because Harbaugh is not satisfied with the award. Clark says the town may end up paying even more.

The problem of footing the bill is frequently mulled over in Jerry Kline's general store, where the shelves are crowded with everything from bacon to aging posters from the Saturday Evening

Kline says no one has yet come up with a solution. 'Nobody likes it. Nobody thinks it's fair," he said.

Most of the townspeople, in fact, don't believe Paw Paw should pay up.

"They don't know what they're going to do," said a clerk at the local liquor store. "But everyone says they aren't going to pay."

Instead, people look to Clark for an answer. The mayor, a quiet man, shook his head and said, "I guess they have a lot of faith in Clark said the town tried selling its old pump house to raise the money, but the only offer was rejected as too low. About the only other property Paw Paw has is the cemetery, where Clark and omissioners take turns cutting the grass.

The mayor said that a woman in Virginia recently had sent in a contribution to help with the expense and that the money would be deposited in a bank pending the outcome of the second court case. Clark declined to name the lone doner and would not discuss the amount receieved.

Clark, who is paid $25 a month, says small towns aren't equipped to deal with such modern problems. People who still nod to strangers on the street find the idea of insurance against lawsuits outlandish, he said.

Such insurance would cost Paw Paw $1,100, said Clark. "It's almost impossible. But it sure makes you want to scratch hard to come up with the money to guard against this," he said.

Baseball Umpires Agree To New 4-Year Contract

NEW YORK (AP) - The only strikes the umps will be calling this season will be on the batters in front of them.

Just a few hours before the call of "Play ball!" was heard Monday in Baltimore and Cincinnati, the Major League umpires' union and the American and National leagues agreed on a new fouryear contract which, according to union attorney Richie Phillips, "places umpires in the top one percent of all salaried employees in this country.'

The minimum annual salary, $18,000 under the old contract, is now $26,000 and the maximum, previously $50,000, is $75,000.

The agreement also will permit the league presidents - Lee MacPhail of the AL and Chub Feeney of the NL to assign umpires to the playoffs and World Series based on merit, rather than the rotation system used in recent years.

"We have the best umpires and now we will have the best of the best working the special events," said Phillips.

He and the two league presidents reached the agreement around sunrise Monday after a 12-hour bargaining session and about 10 hours before home plate umpire John Kilber threw Cincinnati Manager John McNamara of the Reds' rainshortened 3-2 Opening Day loss to the Chicago Cubs.

"In the first year, salaries will increase an average of 40 percent, and over the four years of the contract, the increases average 60 percent," Phillips said. "In some categories, the increase is more than 100 percent over the term of the contract."

Phillips said an umpire who made the first-year minimum of $18,000 in 1981 will have a salary of $26,000 this year and enjoy increases to $28,000, $30,000 and $37,000 over the life of the contract. And all umpires will enjoy significant gains in pension and insurance benefits.

"The terms of this contract reflect recognition of the contributions umpires make to this great game. We are pleased that we reached it without the necessity of a work stoppage." There was an acrimonious seven-week strike by the union in 1979.

"On behalf of both leagues, I would like to say we are very pleased with this agreement," MacPhail told a noon news conference announcing the contract. "We think it's fair and we are glad to see the umpires get recognition in the upgrading of their salaries. The pension plan we've negotiated is comparable to the better ones in the country.

The contract provides for a 100 percent increase in the pension plan, including a program to benefit umpires already retired which will provide an increase of up to $2,500 annually in their pensions. Per diem payments will increase from $77 to $90 with cost of living allowances built in, too.

Sampson Named Top Basketballer

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) -The Los Angeles Athletic Club has voted Virginia's 7-foot-4 All-American Ralph Sampson as this year's John Wooden Award winner, given annually to it's college basketball player of the year.

Others receiving awards Monday night were Will Grimsley of The Associated Press, who won his third straight national sportswriters' award, and NBC's Dick Enberg, who won the national sportscasters' award for the fourth time.

Ray Scott, the television voice of Penn State University football and basketball network and a play-by-play announcer for the Minnesota Vikings, was inducted into the National Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association Hall of Fame.

Sampson, a junior, is the first non-senior to win the award in its six-year history. He could not attend the ceremony because his plane was grounded by bad weather in Charlottesville, Va.

The prize is named for retired UCLA basketball Coach John Wooden who guided his teams to 10 national basketball champion-

Other winners have been UCLA's Marques Johnson, North Carolina's Phil Ford, Indiana State's Larry Bird, Darrell Griffith of Louisville and Danny Ainge of Brigham Young.

Sampson has scored 1,599 points in three years and has led Virginia to NCAA playoff berths the past two years, including the Final Four in 1981 where the Cavaliers lost to North Carolina in the semifinals.

This year, Sampson averaged 15.8 points, 11.4 rebounds and blocked 99 shots while leading his club to a 30-4 record. The Cavaliers were eliminated by Alabama-Birmingham in the NCAA tournament's Mideast Finals.

Snow was forecast for the Cubs-Reds game, and the temperature was 42 degrees at game-time. The snow held off, but the 51,864 at Riverfront Stadium sat through rain delays of 46 and 51 minutes before the game was called after eight innings.

Keith Moreland and Bump Wills, a couple of newcomers to the Cubs, each homered, and Moreland singled in the eventual winning run in the eighth inning. Moreland was acquired from Philadelphia, where Cubs General Manager Dallas Green and Manager Lee Elia spent the previous season, and Wills came over from Texas.

Doug Bird pitched seven strong innings for Chicago, yielding five hits and one run.

"It's not last year's club," Wills said of the rebuilding Cubs. "We've got new personnel, new front office people, a new direction. I'm as excited as heck about hitting that home run. It probably was the highlight of my major league career."

MONTREAL (AP) Centers Peter Stastny of the Quebec Nordiques and rookie Barry Pederson of the Boston Bruins were named as cowinners of the Player-of-the-Week award for the period ending Sunday, the NHL announced.

INCLINE VILLAGE, Nev. (AP) - Tamara McKinney, a member of America's World Cup skiing team, beat teammate Abbi Fisher by a 11/2-second margin to capture the women's slalom title at the U.S. Alpine Champion-McKinney had a combined time of 89.91 seconds, while Fisher was second at 91.58.

U.S. Attorney Fired By President Reagan

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A U.S. attorney in California, fired by President Reagan after he embarassed the administration by identifying a key Central Intelligence Agency source in Mexico, says he has nothing to be sorry for but won't fight the dismissal.

William H. Kennedy, a Reagan appointee, was fired Monday after he resisted pressure from superiors to resign last week.

Kennedy, 50, confirmed 11 days ago that CIA and Justice Department officials blocked an indictment of CIA source Miguel Nassar Haro, a former chief of Mexico's federal security agency.

Nassar has been implicated in a ring that stole $8.4 million in cars in Southern California and smuggled them into Mexico, sources say. When he confirmed that the indictment had been blocked, Kennedy told the San Diego Union he though "prosecution should proceed.

Justice Department spokesman Arthur Brill said Kennedy was fired only after he was "given an opportunity to resign and refused."

"Attorney General William French Smith said the action was taken because Kennedy has made improper comments about a pending criminal case. The comments were highly prejudicial to the interests of the White House," Brill said.

In a statement after his dismissal was announced, Kennedy said, "The statement attributed to me in the San Diego Union was an accurate confirmation. There is nothing more to add or apologize for. I will comply with the president's order.'

San Diego Mayor Pete Wilson, a Republican who had lobbied in support of Kennedy's appointment, called the firing "unfortunate."

He described Kennedy as "a career prosecutor of the highest caliber, and I don't know what broader national interest seems to be being. served here."

In the Union article, Kennedy identified Nassar as the CIA's "most important source in Mexico and Central America." He was summoned to Washington last week to explain his action.

Department sources said that Kennedy's defense was that he had not disclosed the identity himself but merely confirmed the accuracy of an account brought to him by the newspaper.

The incident was sensitive for the Reagan administration, which has been taking steps to stem security leaks. In recent months, administration officials have testified in Congress that foreign sources for the CIA are drying up because the U.S. is perceived as being unable to keep intelligence

Genetic Links To Cancer Explored

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) - Most types of cancer appear to start with genetic changes in the body's cells and then worsen as the more destructive and faster growing cells push out healthy tissues, researchers said Monday.

Improved techniques of viewing chromosomes - the parts of cells which carry the genetic maps enabling organisms to reproduce - indicate that all cancers may have chromosomal defects, said Dr. Jorge Y. Yunis.

Yunis told scientists at the sixth annual Symposium of the University of North Carolina Cancer Research Center that he was able to detect genetic abnormalities in all of 150 cancerous tumors studied.

Yunis, a professor of laboratory medicine and pathology at the University of Minnesota Medical School in Minneapolis, Minn., attributed the findings to evolving techniques that let researchers view up to 2,000 bands on a chromosome, compared with 150 to 300 bands usually visible.

Yunis speculated that some of the defects could be inperited within families, while others could be caused through contact with chemicals or radiation.

"Perhaps a common mechanism of neoplasia (cancer) in man is that we have some 100 to 200 sites of so-called cancer genes," he said. "So you have carcinogens affecting these sites to produce nonfamilial neoplasias." Dr. Louise Strong, associate professor of medical genetics at the University of Texas System Cancer Center in Houston, presented additional evidence of the role of genetics in cancer.

She said several diseases characterized by broken chromosomes led to an increased risk of leukemia as well as cancer of the colon, breast and brain. Among those with a disease called Bloom's Syndrome she said, "virtually every one of these patients who reached the age of 21 had developed some kind of cancer." Ms. Strong emphasized that the increasing discovery of genetic factors did not detract from the role of the environment - ranging from

BANK

PROTECTION ... against

FIRE, THEFT and LOSS of all your valuables.

sunlight to cigarette smoking - in creating cancer. But evidence presented at the symposium strenthened the position that environmental factors do their work at the genetic level. "Genetic as well as environmental factors interact along the way to forming cancer," Ms. Strong said. However, she said, genetic factors at times override environmental factors.

For example, she said, patients with chromosomal defects tended to develop cancer of the colon at the same rate in Japan as in England, while in England, the normal population has a much higher incidence of that cancer.

People who have a family nistory of cancer also tend to have an increased risk of cancer, with the disease appearing at an earlier age, Ms. Strong said. If genetic links can be confirmed in all cancers, researchers may look for ways to limit the rate at which cells alter their chromosomes, she DALLAS (AP) - A Senate Republican leader has urged passage of a constitutional amendment to guarantee broadcasters' First Amendment rights. But a number of his colleagues who also journeyed here disagree.

Sen. Robert Packwood, the chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, received a standing ovation Monday from members of the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) after outlining his plans to push for a constitutional amendment.

Only with such an amendment can the electronic media be guaranteed the same freedom of expression as newspapers, the Oregon Republican explained, because "no president, no Congress and no court has served this republic and its people as well as our Constitution."

A few hours later, however, three of Packwood's Senate colleagues joined four congressmen for a panel discussion that left the audience disappointed over the level of support expressed for the laws that Packwood attacked - equal time and the fairness doctrine.

The equal time law specifies that if a candidate uses a station's airwaves, the broadcaster must provide an equal opportunity to that candidate's opponents. The fairness doctrine, meantime. requires the presentation of
