Town and Country Jubilee set this week

Memories of 1963

Judy Kriegshauser Cloud looks over a 1963 Hereford High School yearbook and the oldest version of school mascot Scat's head, both of which are part of the collection at the Deaf Smith Historical Museum. The head is similar to one Mrs. Cloud designed as a student at HHS 30 years ago, when Scat was first introduced as the mascot. Scat will be displayed by the museum in this week's Jubilee Parade, while the Class of 1963 will hold their 30th reunion this week as well. In the HHS yearbook, original Scat Jay Boynton can be seen in the bottom right hand photo on the right page.

Administration claims plan will create 8.3 million jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Clinton administration renewed its claim on Friday that the president's economic plan would create 8.3 million new jobs by 1996, then passed out a list showing how many each state would get.

Republicans immediately ridiculed the new figures as the latest political broadside in the budget battle being waged in a House-Senate conference committee. And private economists voiced deep skepticism over the administration's figures.

Passage of Clinton's deficit-reduction plan and continued low interest rates will produce about 8.3 million new jobs through 1996, Vice President Al Gore and a host of other administration officials said in a group news conference.

"The focus of the president's plan is to ignite economic recovery and create more than 8 million additional jobs," said Gore.

Stepping up a campaign for the plan, the White House also put out a state-by-state analysis of where the administration believes those jobs would be created.

Some examples: California, 1.9 million; New York, 173,337; Florida, 1.0 million; Illinois, 295,168; Arkansas, 46,550.

A House-Senate conference committee is working on a final version of Clinton's plan of tax increases and spending cuts designed to reduce the deficit by $500 billion over five years.

Clinton promised during last year's campaign to create 8 million new jobs in his first term. The White House analysis document reinforced that pledge.

The document makes an overall assumption that 8.3 million new jobs will be created by the economy through 1996, and divides them among the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The analysis was produced using an economic model and does not deal with specific new jobs created by the president's legislation.

Gore and other officials said that the forecasts closely follow those by private economists. They cited a projection by DRI-McGraw-Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm, suggesting 9 million in new jobs by 1996 if the Clinton plan passes.

"Passage of the plan means restoring the American dream for the average American family. Failure to pass the plan means gridlock, loss of confidence and stagnation. It seems that the choice should be clear," said Laura D'Andrea Tyson, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers.

She and other officials conceded that the state-by-state analysis was misleading in some respects because it was based on job growth trends during the 1980s.

The report also does not take into effect such factors as the loss of jobs from proposed military base closings in states like South Carolina.

"The president's so-called job-creation study, issued today, makes projections that will surely come true when pigs sprout wings and soar with eagles," said Sen. Phil Gramm, D-Texas.

Four die, one missing in cave closed by flooding in Missouri

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Relatives and friends tried to learn today why a man and three boys swept to their deaths in a rush of water went cave-exploring in a park that had been closed for weeks because of the Midwest flooding.

The bodies of three boys, aged 8 to 12, and a 30-year-old male counselor were recovered Friday. Two boys, 9 and 10, and a 21-year-old female counselor were still missing.

The parents of the missing counselor, a college student, waited anxiously near the entrance to the park Friday night. In tears, the mother asked a reporter, "Our daughter, is she there?"

Police did not immediately release the names of the victims.

The victims, from a home for troubled boys, were visiting Cliff Cave County Park, which lies along the swollen Mississippi River just south of St. Louis.

The park had been closed for weeks because of the flooding, police said. Heavy thunderstorms that passed through the area Friday afternoon caused flash flooding.

The Missouri Department of Social Services, which has custody of many of the children at the home because they have been abused, and St. Louis County Police, ordered investigations.

Elsewhere, new downpours were causing the worst flooding in Nebraska since the deluge began, and threatened again the water treatment plant in Des Moines, Iowa, which reopened this week after being flooded July 11.

Flood and storm warnings were up this morning in parts of Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois as thunderstorms bombarded the region yet again. As much as 5 inches of rain was forecast in some areas.

The bodies of the two boys and the counselor were found outside the cave amid logs and debris, officials said. Several hours later, searchers found a fourth body inside the cave.

Police Sgt. William McDevitt said if the floodwater had washed the three missing into the Mississippi, their bodies could already be more than 100 miles downstream.

Authorities planned to resume looking today.

By LINDSAY RADFORD Summer Intern

A child's laughter tickles the ear and sweet smells of barbecue tease an empty stomach—a celebration of life on the High Plains begins once again with the 13th annual Town and Country Jubilee.

Now an intricate part of community pride, the Jubilee began in 1981 as a simple idea between Argen Draper and Garth Thomas.

The two Hereford residents wished to see a celebration of the positive aspects of life in the Panhandle area.

Draper and Thomas united forces with Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce President Tom Burdett to turn their dream into a reality.

With the chamber serving as sponsor, a jubilee committee was formed with Draper and Thomas as co-chairpersons.

"We met every week for months, never wasting a minute," said Draper. "It was tremendous work," said

Mike Carr, executive director of the chamber. "There was no base or tradition to begin with."

Despite everyone's uncertainty, the first Town and Country Jubilee was a tremendous success.

"We felt like we were throwing a party and no one was going to come," Draper remarked. However, more than 2,000 local and area residents joined the celebrations that first year.

This year, 4,000 visitors are expected to attend the Jubilee.

The stability and success of the Jubilee is credited to the community.

"The Hereford area is full of strong, straightforward people willing to cooperate. None of this would have happened without them," stressed Draper.

Perhaps one of the most memorable events of the 1981 Jubilee was the beard-growing contest. "Those men looked absolutely ridiculous," Draper said.

"The climax of our work was to see the wagon train come through the Jubilee. That was the year of the sesquicentennial," said Carr.

Today the jubilee has become such an important part of local traditions that organizations have their own chairmen.

"The activities have grown by themselves. They certainly compliment the promotional and organizational efforts of the chamber," remarked Carr.

Not only do organizations devote time to the jubilee but so do businesses. Each year companies decorate their store fronts, kick off back to school sales and hold sidewalk sales.

This year's theme, "Hereford Means Business," poses several interpretations.

"We want people to know what we have and that we are seriously looking to grow as a community," said Carr. "This is a theme business- (See JUBILEE, Page 2A)

HHS Class of '63 to note 30th anniversary of Scat

By GARRY WESNER Managing Editor

During the 1962-63 school year, some of the Hereford High School cheerleaders, realizing the school did not have a mascot of its own, determined to do something to change things.

The result was Scat.

That was 30 years ago and this week, the Class of 1963 will gather for their reunion, which will be held during the Town and Country Jubilee.

Preparing for the reunion brought back those memories to a couple of members of the class, who then set out on a quest to find the original Scat head built by the group.

Judy Kriegshauser Cloud, who was head cheerleader that year, recalled the elements used to build the original Scat.

"We had real horns," she said, that were mounted on the head that was built on an old football helmet.

The curly forelocks on the Whiteface's head were made, she said, from "a bath mat" dyed the right color.

"We bolted real cow horns onto the helmet. Then we used a bath mat for the curly hair and then we painted it," she said.

The original Scat was Audni Miller, who started the year wearing the homemade head and maroon cow's outfit.

However, sometime during the year, Jay Boynton took over the Scat duties and it is his picture that appears in the 1963 yearbook as mascot.

Mrs. Cloud said she did not know why the mascot was changed during the year.

Jere B. Shultz said cheerleader Jenny Holt McWhorter started the ball rolling for the mascot.

"The one that came up with the idea was Jenny Holt McWhorter. She just said, 'why don't we have a mascot?'"

The students voted to create one, then voted on its name.

The name for the mascot, Shultz said, came from right at the school.

"It was named after (principal) C.B. Russell. His nickname was Scat," Shultz said. Prior to becoming principal, Russell had been football coach at the school.

Last week, Mrs. Cloud went to the Deaf Smith Historical Museum, where the head of Scat was reportedly stored as part of the museum's collection.

Unfortunately, the head that director Donna Brockman turned up was not the original.

Instead of the real horns, it had stuffed cloth horns and there was no curly hair on top.

In addition, the inside was constructed around a cardboard box and hard hat.

A search through old HHS yearbooks determined that the original Scat head was photographed each year through 1968, but that the 1969 yearbook had a different head in the picture—similar to the one in the museum's collection.

Nobody knows what happened to the original head.

However, since the one at the museum is the oldest known Scat in town, it will be the one honored during the Jubilee parade.

Brockman said the museum will have a pickup entered in the parade, with a congratulatory message provided by the Class of 1963 on Scat's 30th anniversary.

Because museum exhibits are not permitted to be loaned out, a representative of the museum board will ride in the pickup with the head, showing it to parade watchers.

Community leaders at work

City Commissioner Wayne Winget is carried by Deaf Smith General Hospital chief executive officer Ron Rives as the two volunteered their time to serve as "cheerleaders" during Friday night's fundraising exhibition basketball game between the West Texas Sharks AAU Boys 11-year-old team and the Hereford All-Stars. The other cheerleaders were insurance agent Jeff Torbert and assistant district attorney Greg Buckley. See story and additional photo on Page 6A.

Investigator says files on House Post Office missing

WASHINGTON (AP) - A prosecutor says many files are missing from records provided to a grand jury investigating charges of embezzlement at the House Post Office, according to a published report.

In a letter to Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C., chairman of the House Administration Committee, Interim U.S. Attorney J. Ramsey Johnson said "broad categories of files are unaccounted for." The Washington Post reported today.

The missing files included correspondence of former postmaster Robert V. Rota, the Post said. Rota has pleaded guilty to misdemeanor charges in connection with the House Post Office case. Court papers say he helped two officials identified only as "Congressman A" and "Congressman B" embezzle tens of thousands of dollars. The court documents match House records of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and former Rep. Joe P. Kolter, D-Pa.

In his letter to Rose, dated Tuesday, Johnson said that following a review, "we concluded that many House Post Office files are unaccounted for. That is, there are broad categories of files (such as Mr. Rota's correspondence files from later years) that were not included in either the task force materials or existing House Post Office files."

A House task force reviewed the operations of the House Post Office last year.

HJH Roundup

By CAROLYN WATERS

Junior High...a new adventure for seventh graders and a new challenge for both seventh and eighth graders. Besides the required subjects, students can choose electives such as athletics, band, art, orchestra and choir.

Parents and teachers can help these students, especially in these elective areas, by encouraging them to enjoy what they are doing without striving for perfection--let them get comfortable with these changes first. Part of life is "trying things out."

At any age, the best impetus to following through is the pride of accomplishment. That's why "motivate, motivate, motivate" is a better slogan than "practice, practice, practice."

Developmental psychologist Linda Dunlap says that praise makes every undertaking, from ballet to baseball, more rewarding for parent and child alike. If your child doesn't perform perfectly, whether it is in the classroom or with extra-curricular activities, don't undermine his feelings of accomplishment.

Don't point out what they did not do, but help them to feel competent, let them know they did something. Don't ask for perfection, ask, "Did you improve?" or simply say, "That's a tough job, but you're doing better!"

Parents and teachers are only guides, the ones to help children sense the possibilities. Children are the ones to choose, setting in motion a lifetime of true passions.

HJH principal, Marilyn Leasure, and teachers Myrna Buckley, Catherine Cortez and I attended a Middle School Academy, sponsored by TEA, in Austin last week while Jana Rudd was attending a Learning Styles Workshop. These activities, as well as those attended by many more of HJH teachers, will be most helpful as we begin the new school year. HJH will be practicing full teaming of seventh and eighth grade classes. With teaming and other changes being made at the junior high level, we expect attitudes as well as academic achievement to improve.

For those who are beginning to purchase school supplies, we ask that junior high students delay these purchases until after they have met classes August 18, 19, 20 and have received supply lists from teachers.

An announcement will be made very soon about the date and details of junior high orientation for each grade level. Schedules will be available at these orientations.

Volunteer service noted

City Commissioner Carey Black, left, and County Judge Tom Simons, second from left, accept a mock check from the Retired Senior Volunteer Program that denotes volunteer service given by the group in 1992. The "check" was for $101,968, which represents 12,746 hours of service the volunteers gave. The presentation was made at RSVP's 20th anniversary party Friday in the Hereford Senior Center. Shown presenting the "check" are, from left, Lola Curtsinger, food service and deliveries; Celia Serrano, Panhandle Community Services; Zoila O. Gutierrez, quilter; Henny W. Matthews, volunteer; and Estill Burrell, volunteer.

Bones of woman dead 11 years finally laid to rest in Plainview

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) - The headless corpse of a female that has gone unidentified since being found more than 11 years ago finally has been given a proper burial.

The skeletal remains were laid to rest Friday at a brief ceremony attended by a few strangers. The bones were placed in a grave marked by a sign bearing the name Jane Doe and 1972, the year her body was found. She is believed to have been in her 30s.

A farmer discovered the corpse Feb. 16, 1982. The woman's arms were bound behind her back by a bra and her head was missing. It was found eight days later near Scottsdale, Ariz.

The mangled body has been linked to two infamous Texans: convicted murderer Henry Lee Lucas and discredited pathologist Ralph Erdmann.

When Lucas claimed to be a serial killer, he listed the woman among his victims, saying she was a hitchhiker he picked up between Abilene and Colorado City.

An indictment was returned against Lucas but was later dropped. Lucas is on death row after being convicted in an unrelated Texas case.

Local officials have tried burying the corpse for several years, but it was in Erdmann's possession. About a year ago, he returned what he said was the woman's bones, but officials weren't sure of their identity.

"We were very suspicious because the bones were accompanied by a skull and we knew the body we gave him to autopsy didn't have a head," Hale County District Attorney Terry McEachern said.

Hereford also means business when it comes to entertainment. The Amarillo Gunfighters will return to shoot up the neighborhood and Barney, the singing dinosaur, will make his Hereford debut. Numerous musical groups will also be performing.

A list of Jubilee activities appears on page 10A of today's Brand.

Collecting candy and enjoying the bright floats at the Kiwanis parade has also developed into a tradition.

"Service to the community is our whole philosophy," said Kiwanis President Jerry Warren. "We believed we could really contribute by organizing the parade."

Every year there are approximately 92 entries.

"Three years ago the parade reached a record 128 entries in an attempt to create a suburban record," said Warren.

Unfortunately, UIL rules will not allow the Hereford High School marching band to join in the parade. The band cannot meet as a group until August 4.

The Kiwanis Club will be one of many groups selling food at Jubilee Junctions in Dameron Park. All the proceeds will be redirected into community projects.

Non-profit organizations are allowed to charge participants, but profit-seeking business cannot charge the public.

Jubilee Junction will include events and activities for all ages. Everyone can enjoy the petting zoo, a sponge toss, face painting, and volleyball and horseshoe tournament.

More than 35 booths are expected to fill the park on Saturday. All events are open to the public.

Sixth town protests arrival of killer Meza

SWEETWATER, Texas (AP) - About 30 residents of this West Texas town gathered Friday in front of a corrections facility to protest the arrival of convicted child killer Raul Meza.

This is the sixth stop for Meza since being released from prison June 21. His arrival in each city has been met by outraged residents who want him out of their neighborhood.

"I'm terrified that he is here," said local resident Debbie Ross, an organizer of the gathering. "They say that Concepts (Inc., the facility) is secure, but it's not. We have had escapes before, and I have children."

Meza, who was convicted of the 1982 rape and murder of 8-year-old Kendra Page in Austin in 1982, has bounced from Uvalde to El Paso, San Antonio, Wichita Falls and Mineral Wells until landing in Sweetwater this week.

Despite being denied parole seven times since 1985, he was released after serving 11 years of a 34-year sentence because he had accumulated enough good time.

The messages on their signs simply read: "We don't want a child killer in Sweetwater," and "Get Meza out of our city."

Their words were just as succinct.

"Sex criminals are never cured. They will always repeat their crimes," Gladys Bales said. "Meza knows the game by heart. He played the game and worked the system, and now people say, 'Oh, he is cured and we should let him go.' It's a crying shame that he is going to be set free."

Jody Bradley, chief administrator for Concepts, would not confirm that Meza is inside, but local officials have verified it.

Just hearing that Meza could be nearby was enough to get the protesters out.

"We have 25 or 30 people here today, and there will be more," Armando Valdez said. "If this doesn't work, we will do it again as many times as we have to."

Sweetwater is located about 40 miles west of Abilene.

fill the air to emphasize the importance of beef. More than 700 residents enjoyed the cook-off last year and more are expected to enjoy the tastes of Hereford this year.

A possibility of four class reunions will take place during the weekend activities.

"This is a perfect time for past residents to gather and view the developments of the community," said Carr.

Reunions also boost restaurant and hotel sales.

An average of seven to ten reunions meet during the jubilee each year.

Festivities will take place all week long with the Town and Country Jubilee culminating Saturday evening.

After being ordered by doctors to stay at home, the princess sent regrets to organizers of the Great North British Transport Games.

Cowboy autograph-seekers becoming bold

AUSTIN (AP) - Larry Garrison, who heads up security at the Dallas Cowboys training camp this summer, says zealous fans are resorting to guerrilla tactics in their battle for autographs.

"We realize (fans) all want to get autographs, but the reality is, they can't," said Garrison, director of the St. Edward's University Department of Public Safety.

Among crowds that reach 2,500 or more, a clear majority of the autograph seekers stay near the field along "autograph alley."

Sometimes players stop to sign, and sometimes they don't. Most of the fans say "thank you" when a player - hot and sore after two hours of practice - stops to autograph a card or T-shirt.

Some of the fans, though, have abandoned autograph alley altogether - ambushing players as they make their way across campus in golf carts.

"The kids are a bit more aggressive this year," said Garrison, who monitors training camp from his own golf cart and keeps a two-way radio handy. "They are starting to figure out the routes the players are taking."

As players crossed the campus to their dorm earlier this week, several youths on bicycles chased them, holding the handlebars with one hand and pen and paper with the other.

Another youth simply stood in the path of an oncoming golf cart and refused to budge. The player stopped to sign but noticed a swarm of others coming toward him and took off.

It was an ambush. "The minute you stop - whoosh - they're like flies on you," Garrison said.

Garrison encourages fans to stay near autograph alley.

"We have to look at it from the player's side also," he said. "These guys that come off the field have been practicing for two hours. Most of them are very generous about stopping to give autographs. But at a point, they just need to get away." Defensive back Thomas Everett said he feels bad that he can't sign all the autographs the fans want.

"Everybody who knows me knows I'm a softhearted, soft-spoken guy, and when I have time, I'm going to sign autographs, and when I don't, I just can't," Everett said. "We're on a real strict schedule here."

MOSCOW (AP) - Former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, one of the last cold warriors, accepted an honorary degree while the Soviet leader who presided over an empire's end beamed proudly in the audience.

Communism was one of mankind's "greatest tyrannies," Lady Thatcher said Thursday in a speech at Mendeleyev Chemical University, and there "should be no nostalgia for the old system."

Acknowledging the pain and chaos accompanying the attempt to reshape this huge nation, she assured her audience that "Russia will always be a great power."

The university conferred an honorary doctorate of science on Lady Thatcher. A former chemist and Britain's Tory prime minister from 1979 until 1990, she is now a baroness and a member of the House of Lords.

Former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, looking tanned and fit, and his wife, Raisa, were among the guests of honor at the sweltering summer ceremony.

Although Lady Thatcher was a staunch anti-Communist, she hit it off with Gorbachev from the moment they met in 1984, when she declared, "I like Mr. Gorbachev. We can do business together." The two have remained friends.

Research money to AIDS -- like it or not

If you had your choice, what would be the disease you would spend the most money with which to find a cure? Would it be heart disease that kills millions each year, or maybe it would be cancer? Maybe you would choose to find a way to stop the pain and suffering of Alzheimer's disease, diabetes or arthritis.

In the proposed Clinton administration budget, that decision has been made for you. The federal government will spend the greatest amount of your money next year on AIDS research.

To accomplish the spending increases for AIDS research, other research programs will be cut. Heart disease research will drop by 1.3 percent. Other programs that will be cut include research on arthritis, Alzheimer's, diabetes, strokes, mental health and depression.

At the same time, AIDS research will have a 21 percent increase in funding to $1.3 billion. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala says the increase in funding is necessary. "We left researchers to their own devices for decades, and they left out major portions of the population," she recently testified.

While AIDS infections are increasing at a growing rate, it is not a major cause of death. Heart disease kills 15 times more people than AIDS, and cancer kills 10 times more. The Center for Disease Control says the more Americans will die of either heart disease or cancer in 1993 than have died of AIDS during the entire history of the disease.

Before AIDS became a politically popular disease, the federal government spent just over $6 billion for both research and treatment of the disease. In 1993, almost $5 billion of your tax dollars will be used for the same purpose.

Basing disease research funding levels on the amount of political pressure that can be mounted is bad public policy. Those decisions should be made on purely scientific facts and probability of positive results.

AIDS is basically a self-inflicted disease. Homosexual sex, sex with those infected and intravenous drug use account for 97 percent of the cases.

There is a place for AIDS research, but our tax dollars for disease research should be used to provide the most good for the most people. Using that criteria, AIDS research funding would be way down the list.

Clinton paying price for pledge on gay ban

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Once the campaign promise was uttered, there was no way to avert a political price for President Clinton's pledge to lift the ban on gays in the military. Now he's paying it on an installment plan.

He stirred the issue in the first place, let it become an early White House distraction, arranged to make an unpopular decision twice, and isn't through with it yet.

Congress is going to vote on a compromise that satisfied neither the gays who want the ban eliminated, nor the opponents who want it to stand unaltered. With the influential Sen. Sam Nunn apparently on board for the Clinton plan, chances are it will be approved, but not without a fight.

The courts are just getting started and they'll have the last word. They might have had the first, too, but for the campaign pledge that put a no-win question on the Clinton agenda.

"I don't view it that way," Clinton said on Larry King's CNN call-in program. "I was in a no-win if the only way I win is to do exactly what I think is right..."

That would have meant lifting the ban as promised, a step he said Congress would have overruled immediately, probably as part of a defense bill he could not have vetoed.

Besides, to let it become a veto issue - his first - would have heightened the argument and helped opponents keep it going, into the 1994 congressional campaign and probably into Clinton's own in 1996.

Republicans didn't tackle Clinton on the question in the 1992 campaign, when the subject drew neither notice nor attention. The year before the election he'd said that he wanted to lift the ban, an ad lib reply to a student question after a talk at Harvard University. He made the campaign promise to a gay audience at a fundraising rally in Beverly Hills, and in his campaign book, "Putting People First."

Clinton says he never committed to a change in the rules of conduct that would let gays serve in the military without regard to what they do in private. The record bears that out; he didn't mention it.

Now private lives have become the disputed crux of the compromise, which forbids disclosure of homosexuality and continues the rule against homosexual conduct, on or off base. It takes effect Oct. 1.

Still, Secretary of Defense Les Aspin said it achieved most of what Clinton promised. His nutshell explanation at one in a series of congressional hearings on the issue: "As a general proposition, the policy being 'don't ask-don't tell-don't pursue,' the new part is in the 'don't ask' and 'don't pursue,' not in the 'don't tell.'"

So the military won't try to find out who's gay - no inquisitions or witch hunts, Aspin said - but if it does learn of homosexuality, that remains grounds for discharge. It also will be grist for lawyers. "We're going to have to test any proposal in the courts," Aspin said. "There are people out there who want to litigate lots of things, and test the limits and push their different agendas..."

A USA Today-CNN poll published on Thursday suggests that Clinton may have gained support with the compromise, deemed acceptable by 58 percent, including some of the majority who still favor a ban on gays in the military.

A first, temporary order, to stop asking recruits about homosexuality, was issued Jan. 29.

To counter complaints that he'd been distracted and lost his focus, Clinton commissioned a time study and said he showed he'd spent only 2 1/2 hours on the issue in his first 100 days. According to the White House, the president spent very little time on the matter until the week before the new policy was set, and then dealt with it for only a few hours.

That same sensitivity erupted when Clinton was asked a question that suggested his compromise signaled weakness.

"I am the first president who ever took on this issue," he snapped. "... It may be a sign of madness, sir, but it is not a sign of weakness."

Out of the Blue

By Garry Wesner

By GARRY WESNER
Managing Editor

For 10 days this past couple of weeks, I found myself in a situation I had not encountered since sometime during high school -- I was afoot, with no motorized transportation at all.

What happened was, the transmission on my 1991 automobile decided that 34,000 miles was quite enough, thank you, and it would just quit.

So, I deposited my Corisca in the able care of Steven's Chevrolet, where I was assured the work would be done -- and done under warranty.

As a result, I found myself scrounging transportation, borrowing vehicles or just plain hoofing it.

I learned something, though. Walking around town really gives you a perspective you don't get in a vehicle.

For example, as I walked to the Brand office one day, I discovered a house on Centre Street that I had never seen before!

I mean, how can you miss a house? Well, there's this big tree in the front yard and the garage is set at the front of the house, so it all just kind of blended into the neighboring houses as I drove past and I never really realized what it was.

It was really interesting.

I also learned how LONG some of these residential blocks are. I saw those interesting little bubbles forming on the surface of the blacktop as temperatures soared into the 80s and 90s, and I found how much energy you lose going from the hot outdoors to a cool building to the hot outdoors again.

Also, the Saturday I walked almost three miles introduced me to some muscles I had never previously met, which kept me informed of their agonizing presence for days!

Anyway, now my car is back and, although I really should take this experience to heart and keep walking for my health's sake, I'm just glad to have the air conditioner.

Well, on to other subjects. I recently had a couple of documents come my way about personal finances and budgeting that I thought would be interesting to share with you.

One is "a Guide to Family Budgeting" by Larry Burkett of Christian Financial Concepts.

The other is a packet from Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Amarillo and the Plains Area, which serves Hereford and other surrounding towns.

Both documents give several helpful hints for bringing spending under control and making the most of your money.

Both give similar hints.

For example, CFC provides several areas in which to budget, as well as the suggested amount of net income that should be used for each area.

Because it is a Christian organization, it stresses tithing -- or giving 10 percent of gross income to the church -- as an important part of budgeting.

The budget suggestions are:

- Housing, 38 percent.
- Food, 12 percent.
- Automobiles, 15 percent.
- Insurance, 5 percent.
- Debts, 5 percent (CFC says it would be great if most budgets included 7 percent or less for debts, but acknowledged that the norm is greater than this).
- Recreation/entertainment, 5 percent.
- Clothing, 5 percent.
- Medical/dental, 5 percent.
- Savings, 5 percent.
- Miscellaneous (variable household expenses), 5 percent.
- School/child care, 8 percent (if this is used, other categories must be adjusted to provide the money, since the above totals 100 percent already).
- Investments, variable percentage.
- Unallocated surplus income (garage sales, gifts, etc.) can be kept in a checking account and placed in this category.

CCCS and CFC both provide some hints on ways to save money in a variety of areas, including one most of us probably have trouble with -- grocery shopping. Among them are:

- Shop alone.
- Stick to your list. Never shop when hungry because impulse purchases destroy budgets.
- Substitute store brands for name brands whenever possible.
- Use a calculator, if possible, to total purchases.
- Shop for advertised specials.
- Reduce or eliminate paper products -- paper plates, cups, napkins, etc. (Not only does this save money, it is also environmentally sound, too).
- Avoid prepared foods such as TV dinners, pot pies, cakes, etc. (you are paying for expensive labor that you can provide).
- Shop garage sales for children's clothing which is easily outgrown.
- Stop wearing clothes that require dry cleaning.
- See if someone in the family could learn to cut and style hair.
- Stop smoking.
- Don't skip regular medical and dental check-ups. Preventative measures are usually less expensive in the long run.
- Eliminate some or all leisure activities that cost money.
- Evaluate your insurance and eliminate some coverages with little or no value.
- Keep your checkbook up to date.
- Never buy any big ticket item the same day you choose it.
- Consider budgeting as a reward system, not a deprivation system.
- I hope that helps if you find the old paycheck just doesn't go quite as far as it used to.
- ***
- Well, I guess that's all for this week. Have a good week and, remember, let's be careful out there.

Editorials from around the state

By The Associated Press

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from Texas newspapers:

July 15
The Galveston Daily News on the Rap Trial verdict:
In Austin Wednesday, a jury handed the death sentence to a murderer who claimed violent, anti-police rap music was a partial cause of his actions. The murderer is 19-year-old Ronald Ray Howard. In April 1992, Howard shot and killed Department of Public Safety trooper Bill Davidson near Victoria after Davidson pulled him over for having a broken headlight. Howard was driving a stolen car. The eight-man, four woman jury took only 40 minutes to convict Howard. They took more than five days, however, to decide whether Howard should be sentenced to die or to life in prison. Part of the reason for the deadlock stemmed from a statement Howard's attorney, Allen Tanner, made during his closing argument. Tanner contended that years of living with violence, gangs and angry "gangsta" rap music taught Howard to hate police. ... To which we say: You're going to have to do much better than that. ... It doesn't matter whether Howard was blasting N.W.A. or Chopin that night in April. The only person or thing he can blame for his actions is himself. And appropriately, the only one who will pay for those actions is Ronald Ray Howard.

July 16
Austin American-Statesman on Rap Trial verdict:
The verdict reached in the Ronald Ray Howard murder trial has implications that policy-makers and other interested parties would be well advised to study. The case drew national attention because Howard used as part of his defense the assertion that the rap music he was listening to influenced him to kill a Department of Public Safety trooper. ... Howard also cited his upbringing in a rough Houston ghetto as playing a role in his crime. Upbringing may be a poor excuse, but it is difficult in poor and minority neighborhoods to tell whether police are friends or foes - at least in the eyes of the people who live there. ... To their credit the men and women on the jury were smart enough not to be persuaded by the argument that the rap music was a contributing factor in the murder of trooper Bill Davidson. ... Although jurors returned the guilty verdict quickly - about 40 minutes - the lengthy deliberations (more than five days) indicate it was not as easy for them to sentence a teen-ager to death. ... That's as it should be. If society must end a life, it shouldn't be without a great deal of agonized deliberation. Some would say, however, that Howard was doomed from the beginning, before he started listening to rap and long before he met Davidson. ... There is no question that Howard is guilty of murder. He is a menace to society and the public should be shielded from him and others like him. He should spend the rest of his life behind bars. But the public good is not served by killing him. The death penalty may bring a conclusion to this phase of the case, but there will be others. The death penalty obviously does not put a bulletproof shield between killers and police officers and the rest of us.

July 16
El Paso Herald-Post on Clinton's economic plan:
The House-Senate conference committee that began taking up the budget ... has unenviable work ahead of it. The pain of crafting a final version of the president's economic plan from the two different bills that passed the two houses lies less in the 10 percent where they differ than in the 90 percent where they overlap. Both versions squeaked to passage by ultra-thin margins, and neither drew a single Republican vote. While the 100 or so House members and more than 50 senators on the conference committee include a few from the minority, final passage will almost surely be a one-party affair, with accountability inescapable. Moreover, the president is very publicly banking on the deficit-reduction he insists his plan will bring. ... In reality, many economists project little or no deficit-reduction from the Clinton plan. John Makin, for example, resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute, foresees the plan will leave the deficit "largely unchanged" - raising taxes just enough to scare off an equal amount of revenue through deadened economic growth.

July 19
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal on China's Olympics bid:
Communist China bids to host the Olympic Games in the year 2000. A resolution introduced in Congress opposes it - and rightfully so. Yes, we know that, according to tradition, politics are not supposed to intrude on the games.

But it is mostly for political reasons that Beijing's ruling Marxists want China to get the Olympics: Its selection by the International Olympics Committee might tend to legitimize their regime in the eyes of the Chinese people.

The bloody record of China's old rulers in trampling on human rights cannot be ignored in the selection process. The massacre of young, democratic-minded dissidents in Tiananmen Square in 1989 is too recent for anyone to think that the Beijing regime has changed its ugly stripes. The IOC is to make its site decision on Sept. 23. Our advice is: Just say no.

July 19
El Paso Times on Chinese boat people in Mexico:
There can be little doubt that the U.S. government pressured Mexico to take responsibility for deporting more than 650 Chinese crowded onto three U.S.-bound freighters. In doing so, Mexico probably saved this country a lot of time and trouble, plus millions of dollars in legal fees, housing costs and other expenses. The United States, in effect, held Mexico's coat while it did our dirty work - work which was particularly unappealing, given the difficult history of U.S.-Mexico immigration problems. For that, the United States owes Mexico a debt of gratitude and credit for helping out in a tough situation. ...

Quinceanera ceremony celebrates girl's passage from childhood to womanhood

By PAT SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - More than a year's worth of planning is over. The caterers are set. A band has been hired, the hall decorated, tuxedos rented and dresses have been made to fit 16 different sizes and shapes.

Father Jim Conway has even promised to turn on the airconditioning in the church.

Still, pandemonium reigns. David Zavala, looking as debonair as a 4-year-old can in his white tuxedo and white dress shoes, has only black socks to wear.

Ralph Torres wanders around looking for someone to sew a button back onto his black tux. "It's women's work," he growls.

Ralph's sister, Pearl Rodriguez, frets over the spaghetti straps on the dress that won't allow her to wear a brassiere as she shuffles around the small house seeking other girls' tips on how to manage the situation.

Virginia Luz Teniente calmly puts the finishing touches on her hair and makeup, meanwhile, refusing to be unnerved by the chaos. Gina has waited more than 15 years for this day and she wants it to be as perfect as a wedding day.

Gina and her friends and family are preparing for her quinceanera, a traditional Hispanic 15th birthday celebration. Seemingly comprised of equal parts wedding, debutante party and bas mitzvah, a quinceanera celebrates a young girl's passage into womanhood, her commitment to the Catholic Church and her debut in society.

The festivities begin with a special quinceanera ceremony and Mass at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Here, Gina will "give thanks for making it through the difficulties of youth and say she is now ready to take on responsibility and be of service to the community," says Father Conway, who will direct the Mass.

Father Conway, a native of Ireland, has been in San Antonio 28 years, eight of those at St. Patrick's. He estimates he performs 15 to 20 quinceanera Masses annually.

"It is an opportunity to challenge them and to renew their commitment in their faith," he said. "But it is meaningless if they just come in on that one day."

A Court of Honor composed of 15 young ladies and their escorts, one for each year of the honoree's life, and two young princesses and their escorts precede Gina and her parents up the aisle to the altar. There, she will receive several gifts, each blessed by Father Conway and bearing special significance: a ring as a symbol of her commitment to God; a tiara to express the successes she's had in challenging life; flowers symbolizing that life must constantly be nurtured; and a bible and rosary beads as a means to reach out to God.

At the end of the Mass, Leo Teniente gives his daughter's hand to her escort, Jose Nunez, and she walks back down the aisle looking very much like a bride on her wedding day.

It is commonly believed that quinceaneras were originally held to announce a young girl's availability for marriage. Lola Teniente hopes it will be sometime before her daughter considers that ceremony.

Aside from feeling Gina is far too young to get married, Lola is not ready to start planning again, nor can they afford to.

Gina's quinceanera cost more than $4,000.

"A quinceanera is exactly like a wedding, except she doesn't get married," Lola says.

As the costs and elaborateness have risen over the years, patrons or sponsors have become necessary to help share in the expense. Gina's guest list features nearly 100 sponsors for everything from the church donation and tiara to the keg of beer and disc jockey at the reception.

Dinner is planned for 350 guests with a total of 800 people expected to attend the dance that follows. Family and friends are asked to contribute, though several offer on their own after having asked the Tenientes for contributions over the years for their own family events.

"It's payback time," Lola says. "Some parents even offer their kids a car instead of the party, it's cheaper and less hassle," adds Leo.

Today's quinceanera is quite contemporary. Although Gina is wearing the traditional white dress, in Mexico, girls sometimes wear pink. It is short and backless with a bolero jacket to be worn in church then disposed of as soon as she steps outside.

There is no mariachi band, a standard at most Mexican festivities. A DJ will fill in after the band has finished.

In an age of mounting gang violence, armed guards have been hired to patrol the parking lot and young men are frisked and purses are searched before anyone enters the ballroom.

After the dinner plates are cleared, the lights are dimmed and the band plays "Sixteen Candles."

A circle forms around the dance floor and with tears running down her cheeks, Gina dances one last time with her father while her escort waits nearby. Midway through the song, Leo hands his youngest child over to Jose and the dance floor fills up for the evening of revelry.

OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE TODAY

The quick profits in real estate have a tendency to come and go in cycles. When a local market is good many people find it possible to purchase a home. They may purchase a "fixer upper," and watch the value rise over a short period of time. When a local market is slow, receiving their profit may take more time and effort, but in the end will be just as good if the price, and location are carefully considered. Even with today's economy being what it is, history has shown us that real estate is one of the best investments anyone can make. Research on housing trends show us some definite traits. Prices at least stay at the same level as inflation, and most times appreciate faster than inflation. Statistics show the rate of home appreciation since 1990 has been around 5% nationally, with the inflation rate hovering around the 4% mark. And with interest rates as low as they are today, purchasing a home now can give buyers a nice hedge on inflation.

Sharks eat All-Stars in exhibition match

The West Texas Sharks attacked a team of Hereford All-Stars and won 55-50 in a basketball exhibition Friday night at Whiteface Gymnasium.

A crowd of 150 was introduced to the Sharks, a team of 10- and 11-year-old boys--mostly from Hereford--who will be going to Cocoa, Fla., for the AAU national tournament for 11-under boys, to be held Aug. 1-7.

The emphasis was on fun. The crowd was entertained by quality basketball by the Sharks, a quality effort by the All-Stars, and four cheerleaders who didn't quite make the cut for the Dallas Cowboys' squad. As offensive linemen, that is.

Each Shark must have scored at least 40 points, while the All-Stars gave new meaning to the term "dribble." The referees combined for a dozen steals and at least two assists.

The Sharks went into the final minute up 51-48. The All-Stars were setting up for a tying three-pointer, but Don Cumpton threw the ball away in a play reminiscent of the 1982 NCAA finals, when Georgetown's Fred Brown passed the ball to North Carolina's James Worthy and cost

Georgetown the game. (The difference: Brown didn't actually mean to pass to Worthy.)

The Sharks scored the next four points to ice the game.

The Sharks are Craig Campbell, Kurtis Flood, Cody Hodges, Slade Hodges, Roy McCracken, Eric McNutt and James Miller, all of Hereford; and Cole Campbell and Garrett Poole, both of Amarillo. Steve Hodges and Burl Miller coach the team.

The All-Stars were Danny Haney, Don Cumpton, David Wagner, Terry Brown, Key Harrison, Dave Hopper, Fritz Backus, J.J. Villarreal, Dwayne Cassels, Steve Wright, Pat McGinty, Paul Owen, Jay Peden and coach Karen Marsh.

Most athletes don't want to be role models

By STEVE CAMPBELL
Fort Worth Star-Telegram
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Try not to get mixed up in the blur of mixed messages.

Be like Mike - which, as all men, women, children, and space invaders know, does not rhyme with Nike.

Just do it.
Be like Mike, drink like him, eat like him, dress like him, soar through the air like him.

Wear the same shoes that Michael Jordan wears, Charles Barkley wears, David Robinson wears, Bo Jackson wears, Jim Courier wears.

Then again, you might want to walk in the shoes of Shaquille O'Neal, who also has a soft drink guaranteed to quench your thirst.

Of course, you can buy that soft drink where Troy Aikman shops.

Oh, and don't forget to use the same pain reliever, wear the same boots, eat the same fast food, as Nolan Ryan.

Follow the leaders to a store near you.

Follow them, but how far? What happens when Air Jordan becomes Air-out-some-dirty-laundry Jordan, accused of running up enough gambling debts to pay the salary of a utility infielder or three? What happens when a man on a pedestal falls from grace? Does fault lie with the man, the pedestal, or the people who insist on putting the man on the pedestal in the first place?

Jordan, the Chicago Bulls superstar, is the most visible athlete of the day, a one-man conglomerate, but he is by no means the only one who has stepped - or been thrust - on to center stage. They come into our living rooms day and night, selling products and themselves, and they get paid handsomely for it. The average player in major-league baseball and the National Basketball Association makes more than $1.2 million a year; the average National Football League player just under $500,000 last season.

In return, athletes provide entertainment and escapism. Without these kids' games played by grown men, barrooms would get quieter and office water-cooler small talk would get smaller, and call-in radio shows would go the route of the eight-track tape.

Is that enough? Or should strings - besides higher tax rates - come attached to the paychecks? Should they, by virtue of their visibility and economic wherewithal, serve as examples to the rest of the world? Should they give something back and, gulp, serve as role models?

"Do you want to know the truth, or do you want me to say the right thing?" Dallas Cowboys Pro Bowl offensive lineman Nate Newton said. "Do you want to know the truth of what I feel and what most athletes feel?"

Charles Barkley makes his feelings loud and clear in a Nike ad that first aired at the start of the NBA playoffs. Instead of pumping the shoe, Barkley assailed the notion that his otherworldly basketball talents translated into deeper obligations:

"I'm not a role model. I'm not paid to be a role model. I'm paid to wreak havoc on a basketball court. Parents should be role models. Just because I can dunk a basketball doesn't mean I should raise your kids."

Barkley touched a nerve with athletes and fans.

"What Charles Barkley says," Newton says, "is what a lot of athletes wish they had the guts to say."

Fran Anderson runs the Eastside Boys and Girls Club in Fort Worth. On a typical summer day, some 200 kids will stream in and out of the club.

"A lot of kids, given their choice, will have their parents be role models first," Anderson said. "They'll idolize a sports figure or whatever, but when you really come down to it what a parent says or does makes a big difference in the way the child grows up."

Anderson, in fact, doubts many of kids pay much attention when a Jordan runs into difficulties off the court.

"All they know is he's cool," Anderson said. "He's cool with the shoes. He's making the big bucks, selling the cola, the T-shirts, whatever he's selling. I don't think it really makes a difference to the younger kids. I don't think they understand. Even adults."

Aikman, the Cowboys' Super Bowl MVP quarterback, has used his visibility to form the Troy Aikman Foundation to help disadvantaged children. Since starting his foundation last October, Aikman has raised more than $250,000. With the help of a seven-member board, Aikman plans to channel that money directly to individual children - or groups - whose needs slip through the cracks of established programs or charities.

"I don't completely agree with Charles," Aikman said. "Obviously, we don't choose to be role models. It's part of the business. I think we do have a responsibility to be role models and serve as good examples. On the other hand, I get tired of parents complaining about players who aren't good examples."

"When I grew up, I looked up to a lot of athletes and respected what they could do. But I knew the difference between right and wrong. I knew that if they did something bad, that didn't mean I should do it. That came from my parents. It's up to parents to instill in their children the difference between right and wrong."

Newton agrees. He describes his off-the-field obligations this way: "To my family. My wife and child. Then to my mother and father, sisters and brothers. If I want to. Then to the fans. If I want to. A little deeper than that, what I'm trying to say is, I don't owe anybody anything just because I play sports and society decides to hype it up."

"You're a role model, whether you want to be or not. How you want to be is up to you. The only people who squeal about that commercial are the people who want athletes to raise their kid. They're always saying, 'Look at Michael Irvin, look at Daryl Johnston, look at these guys.' They're trying to get away from their responsibility."

"When my parents raised me, there wasn't any Larry Little, or Dr. J, or George McGinnis, or World B. Free. There wasn't anybody like that. My parents used positive role models like Dr. Martin Luther King, people like that. My father would go back to the Bible, or black history, when he wanted to give me positive role models."

If Newton had his way, he would clear the Air. Sure, Richard Esquinas trashed Jordan in "Michael & Me: Our Gambling Addiction ... My Cry For Help." Sure, Esquinas alleges that he won $1.25 million worth of golf bets from Jordan in a 10-day period. Sure, Jordan admits to running up a $300,000 tab.

On the other hand, this is the same Jordan who generally watches his Ps and Qs to the point that advertisers pay him more than $30 million a year to pitch their products. This is also the same Jordan who donated $100,000 last winter to help Chicago schools fund its extracurricular programs.

"Michael Jordan - what do you think his kids are going through?" Newton said. "His kids are the ones who are going to have to suffer from this when they go to school. If you think he's such a good role model, if you want him to be a good role model, why do you burn him so bad so that his kids have to go to school and suffer?"

It shouldn't be necessary to remind people that athletes, even those with the best of intentions, have their frailties and failings.

Babe Ruth was a drinker and womanizer of legendary proportions. Wilt Chamberlain claimed to have

Heat helps Cowboys

Notes from training camp

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Writing from Room 222 wondering what ever happened to No. 22. Takeouts from this sauna the world champion Dallas Cowboys call training camp...

Jimmy Johnson is convinced more than ever that his Super Bowl victory was forged in the heat of the St. Edward's University training camp.

"A lot of critics said it would have an effect on us at the end of the season," Johnson said. "It did. We got better."

Johnson is already harping on that theme again this year.

"We had fewer injuries last year because of our mini-camps and hard work in Austin," he said. "We didn't have any injuries in the Blue-White game and that's because of our off-season conditioning."

Apparently someone who likes camp scrimmages as much as Johnson is Texas Gov. Ann Richards. She told Johnson during a camp visit: "I love the sound of it."

Johnson replied: "Governor, you've always been physical."

Kudos to the security guard who spotted and arrested a man with a concealed loaded pistol in his possession during the governor's visit. It's getting to the point where spectators are going to have to go through metal detectors.

For you trivia nuts, the first play for the Cowboys in training camp as they began defense of their title was a handoff from Hugh Millen to Michael Beasley. Rehabilitating Troy Aikman was watching and Emmitt Smith was probably on some golf course in Pensacola lining up a 10-foot putt.

Aikman looks like he'll be ready to start the season but the Cowboys are going to have to find a way to placate Smith's pride. It has become apparent the NFL's leading running back isn't going to get his $4 million. In fact, he may not even get $3 million. Smith has no bargaining power other than holding out for the season. The Cowboys can use the "franchise" category on Smith to keep him from going to another team. It could get ugly.

Owner Jerry Jones, looking around at the crowds jamming the practice field for workouts, said "This has gotten bigger than life."

Certainly as big as the diamonds in your Super Bowl ring, Jerry.

Over 200 media types were credentialed for the first day of training camp.

One allegedly credentialed person brought utter embarrassment to the Fourth Estate by rushing up to Aikman while he was being interviewed to ask for an autograph.

The camp's second most embarrassing moment belong to Brett Daniels of the public relations staff.

His golf cart went out of control and tore the outside mirror off a parked Cadillac.

Brett was much chagrined to learn the car belonged to owner Jones, who took it in good humor and said the staff should get more exercise and walk.

What's this? Did I actually see the reclusive Charles Haley signing autographs in autograph alley?

Perhaps a visit to the eye doctor is in order.

Did you know the diamonds the Cowboys have in their Super Bowl rings came from India?

Jerry, don't they have a diamond mine in Arkansas?

Another thing I don't understand is why women bring children less than a year old to Cowboys practices in 97-degree heat and press up against a chain-link fence.

Do the kids really want to be there?

Guys you would like to see make the team. The Garrett brothers, Jason and Judd. Jason is a quarterback and Judd is a running game who rushed for over 100 yards in the first scrimmage.

Jason was on the practice squad last year.

Get ready for next week. The Los Angeles Raiders are coming. Which means three days of fist fights and some football.

By the way, Raiders owner Al Davis said after last year's scrimmages that the Cowboys would be worn out by the end of the season.

It will be interesting to see if his Raiders learned anything about the Cowboys work ethic.

Al's greasy hair formula should suffer another melt down in Travis County.

FACT:
"ALL FORDS ARE CREATED EQUAL"
OPINION:
"THE DEALERS WHO SELL THEM AREN'T"

Dear Hereford,

Roy Riley, Manager
Western Ford - Lincoln Mercury

Many buyers today are under the impression the "Big City" dealers have a price advantage over small town dealers. That may have been true years ago, but today there are anti-trust laws which prohibit Ford Motor Co. from offering volume pricing, or inequitable freight charges among its dealers.

SO, WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO THE DEALER? It means that whether I am a dealer who may sell 5,000 units a year, or a dealer selling 50 units a year, I pay exactly the same price per vehicle as the next guy. And furthermore, whether my dealership is one block from the factory, or 1,000 miles from the assembly line, my freight charges per vehicle are the same.

SO, WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO CONSUMERS LIKE YOU? It means that while all Fords are created equal in quality and value, "THE DEALER MAKES THE TRUE DIFFERENCE".

I believe today's customers, such as yourself, are looking for a fair price, good selection, service after the sale, and a friendly no-pressure "Western Deal".

Let me invite you to come by and test drive one of our "Western" Ford or Lincoln Mercury vehicles. I know you'll find a dealer who's single concept is to make a large enough difference to bring you back to Western Ford again, again and again.

Sincerely,

Phillies beat Giants in 14

By The Associated Press

San Francisco got its big blow from Barry Bonds. Philadelphia's came from Todd Pratt - and Will Clark.

With the Phillies ahead by a run, Bonds sent Curt Schilling's first pitch of the ninth inning over the wall in right-center field, sending the game into extra innings.

Then, in the 14th, Clark collided with his own pitcher, allowing the winning run on base. One out later, Pratt's fly ball gave the Phillies a 2-1 victory Friday night, snapping the Giants' four-game winning streak.

Also in the National League, Cincinnati defeated Florida 3-2, Atlanta topped Pittsburgh 6-2, Houston beat Chicago 5-1, St. Louis outscored Colorado 13-11, Los Angeles beat New York 5-2 and Montreal defeated San Diego 5-0.

In the American League it was New York 5, California 2; Boston 6, Oakland 5 in 10 innings; Texas 6, Toronto 5; Baltimore 5, Minnesota 1; Milwaukee 3, Chicago 2; Cleveland 9, Seattle 4; and Kansas City 7, Detroit 6.

Rangers 6, Blue Jays 5

Pinch-hitter Ivan Rodriguez drove in the go-ahead run with an infield single, capping a three-run seventh inning that boosted Texas over Toronto at Arlington Stadium.

The Rangers have won nine of 12 to move within 1 1/2 games of first-place Chicago in the AL West.

Craig Lefferts (3-7), the third Texas pitcher, gave up one hit in 2 1-3 innings for the victory. Tom Henke finished for his 21st save, fanning the side in the ninth. Pat Hentgen (12-5) took the loss.

Astros 5, Cubs 1

Chicago doesn't need to see any more of Luis Gonzalez. Gonzalez went 4-for-4 with an RBI and has 15 hits in 37 at-bats (.405) with three home runs and nine RBIs against the Cubs this season. He extended his hitting streak to 14 games and is hitting 25-for-50 (.500) in that span.

Mark Portugal (8-4) allowed one run on seven hits in 8 2-3 innings as Houston won for the fourth time in five games.

Greg Hibbard (8-7) gave up two runs on five hits in six innings.

ROLE MODELS

slept with 20,000 women. Pete Rose gambled his way out of the Hall of Fame. Steve Howe seemingly goes into drug rehab as often as Michael Caine churns out movies. Roy Tarpley is serving out a two-year suspension for violating the NBA drug policy. Politician breaks campaign promise. Dog bites man.

"Because of the position we're in, we're automatically looked up to by kids," the Texas Rangers' Nolan Ryan said. "I look at it from the standpoint of, if I'm going to have an influence - whether it's my own kids or somebody else's kids - then I want it to be a positive influence. So that's what I try to do."

"I read Bo Jackson's article saying we shouldn't be raising other people's kids. Well, we're not raising other people's kids. That's not what's asked of role models. It's just that if kids look up to you and you're in a position to be an influence on them, why not be a positive influence? Is that asking too much?"

Ryan said he hasn't been out of the glare of the spotlight "since the first no-hitters." The first two of his seven no-hitters came in 1973.

"I think the more exposure we get, the more we are under a magnifying glass," Ryan said. "Our actions are scrutinized much closer. That's true of politicians, entertainers, musicians, everybody. There's so much media attention now that everybody has a tendency to rebel to it. They're saying, 'Hey, I don't have to fulfill my role. This isn't my role. This isn't what I'm paid for.'"

"It gets old. It gets tiresome. I would love to be out of the public eye a lot of times. But that just comes with the territory. So my attitude about that is, that's part of the job and I'm going to do the best I can. When I walk away from it, when I'm not in it any longer, I'd like to look back and say, 'Hey, I tried to do the best job I could - on and off the field.'"

Fly-zapping pyramid developed by Agriculture Department scientists

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A miniature white plastic pyramid that electrically zaps farm-bred flies before they can migrate to nearby suburbs has been developed by Agriculture Department scientists.

The pyramids could be placed along the flyway on farms, between the manure where they breed and the areas where they become pests, said Lawrence G. Pickens, an entomologist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service and one of the inventors of the device.

"In some cases, they would be effective at home sites to intercept the pests before they get into the kitchen," he said.

The 3-foot-tall pyramids are equipped with solar-powered grids on the sides and top that produce a weak electric current that provides just enough of a shock to zap the flies.

"Flies - but not beneficial insects - seem to be attracted to the light reflected off the white plastic," Pickens said. The pyramid is harmless to humans, animals and birds, he said.

The device was designed for use on farms that generate manure-bred houseflies. "They are unsanitary and can become a major nuisance at neighboring homes," he said. "With so many people moving into the suburbs, farm-bred flies have become, in some instances, subjects of lawsuits."

USDA said it can cost an average farmer $5,000 a year to control flies with insecticides.

The pyramid operates completely on solar power, Pickens said. No batteries are required and the solar pack can be replaced easily. The device needs only an occasional cleaning during the fly season, he said.

The research service has signed a cooperative research and development agreement with Olson Products Inc. of Medina, Ohio, which recently began marketing the first commercial version of the pyramid to farmers for less than $400.

The pyramids should be used in conjunction with other fly controls, Pickens said. Barns should be cleaned frequently and the manure should be dried or composted and turned once a week. Adding baited traps at the fly-producing sites help further reduce flies, he said.

Other potential uses for the pyramids, Pickens said, would be at beaches, zoos, landfills and feedlots.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Agriculture Department is proposing to add a sixth test to the list of official diagnostic tests for pseudorabies, a contagious livestock disease.

The so-called Particle Concentration Fluorescence Immunoassay, or PCFIA, is an automated blood test

NEW YORK (AP) - It was 30 years ago that Mary Quant asked Vidal Sassoon, a fellow Brit, to create a hairstyle to match her avant garde women's fashions.

He did, and the rest is history. Sassoon's severe clipped styles, along with the wash-and-wear perm, virtually ended the era of beehives and hair rollers.

Sassoon's revolutionary styles - and 50 years in the industry - has been saluted with a book just out from Rizzoli "Vidal Sassoon: Fifty Years Ahead," $40 hardcover, by Diane Fishman and Marcia Powell, and a world exhibition. The exhibit, which toured Europe and stopped in New York, will wind up in Taiwan and Hong Kong in the summer.

currently used to diagnose brucellosis, an infectious bacterial disease in cattle and bison.

Billy G. Johnson, deputy administrator of veterinary services in USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said researchers at the National Veterinary Services Laboratories in Ames, Iowa, discovered that the test also can diagnose pseudorabies in swine.

"The effectiveness and speed of the Particle Concentration Fluorescence Immunoassay would make this test a valuable tool in the cooperative effort to eradicate pseudorabies," said Johnson.

Five different tests now are officially approved for diagnosing pseudorabies in swine. State animal health authorities can use any official test. In some states, producers pay for a portion of testing expenses.

"Several states would be able to use their PCFIA screening equipment more efficiently by conducting tests for both brucellosis and pseudorabies, giving state authorities another option that could ultimately save producers money," Johnson said.

Unique names put Texas towns on the map

By CHERYL WILKERSON
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) - Here's one for Trivial Pursuit: What Texas town is named after a muscular, evenly tanned, tree-swinging monkey man?

For the answer, ask anybody in the little town northwest of Stanton in Martin County. They'll tell you that Tarzan is named after the lord of the jungle himself.

In 1926, when Tant Lindsay asked the federal government for a post office in his tiny town, he was told to submit a list of six potential town names. He did, and they were all rejected because they were all already in use somewhere else in Texas. The same happened to the next four lists he submitted, said Mary Rivas, a postmaster relief for the town.

Finally, he decided to try something different. He used six words from a new book he had bought his daughter: Tarzan, Lord, Jungle, Edgar, Rice, Burroughs.

Lindsay became the first postmaster of Tarzan, Texas, and he stayed that way until 1944, Rivas said.

Tarzan isn't the only town that needed an unusual name in order to get a post office.

Northwest of Littlefield in Lamb County is a town whose name has gotten some attention - enough to merit a Dairy Queen commercial.

But Earth didn't start out as such. People who settled the town wanted it to be called Fairlawn or Tulsa because most of them were from Oklahoma, said Noel Pittman, city secretary. But the federal government said try again.

There are at least three stories about how the town got its name. One says that there was a sandstorm and one of the pioneers said, "Look at all that good earth." The other two, according to Earth news columnist Blanche Hudson, have founder Col. W. E. Halsell saying, "Ah, the good earth."

The West Texas towns of New Deal and Notrees also got their names because of post office duplications. New Deal is about 12 miles north of Lubbock, and Notrees is northwest of Odessa in Ector County.

In 1935, funding was received for a new school district that would combine Monroe, Center, Caldwell and Grovesville school districts. Since it began during the Roosevelt presidency, the school district was named New Deal. In 1948, when the town of Monroe was ready to get a post office, the town took on the name of the school district, according to a story written by Jeri Lyn Rieken.

The history of Notrees isn't quite as complicated. Colette Brown said that in 1946 when her husband Charles was trying to get a post office for the town, the government told him he needed an unusual name. He said, "Well, no trees is all we've got out here." Happy, Pep and Needmore also had simplistic beginnings.

The "town without a frown" north of Tulia got its name reasonably enough. Patricia Sims, city secretary, said that settlers were coming through the area and needed water badly. When they came upon a draw, they were happy.

In much the same fashion, Pep, 20 miles northwest of Levelland, was named after the spirit of its people. The town's German settlers weren't expected to get their community going as quickly as they did. But when a prospector returned to the area, he looked at what they had accomplished and said, "By golly, you people are sure full of pep to get things going this fast."

Although there's not much history written about the origin of Needmore, C. G. Lewis said everyone used to gather at a store in the town in 1933. One day, a salesman who was there trying to sell goods to the store asked the townspeople what they needed. One citizen said, "We need more of everything."

Still, many West Texas towns have gotten their names from the ranches they were built on.

Muleshoe, about 80 miles northwest of Lubbock, was carved out of a piece of Muleshoe Ranch. One story says that the owner, E. K. Warren, was walking along one day with some of his employees when one picked up an old mule's shoe.

A few miles southeast of Muleshoe is a tiny town named after the Circle Back Ranch. June Gore, who grew up in Circle Back, said she always heard stories of how the ranch's circle emblem was branded onto the backs of its cows.

There are two stories of how Loop, southeast of Seagraves, got its name. According to Doris Hunt, a local historian, one story is the town's post office was on a ranch with an "O" brand, and the post office came to be called the Loop Post Office. The other story says the town was named when one of the settlers saw a cowboy playing with his lariat, and his loop grew bigger and bigger.

Even New Home, south of Lubbock, began as Deuce of Hearts after the Deuce of Hearts Ranch it was built on. Radene Turner, city secretary, said the school was also named after the ranch. But when the townspeople began using the school for a church, they didn't think it was proper to call it Deuce of Hearts Church. So the fewer than 10 families who made up the community decided that since the town was their new home, they would name it as such.

But New Home isn't the only West Texas town that got its name from a church. Percy Carter, who has lived in Lums Chapel since 1926, said that in 1925 a man named Lums donated an acre of land for the church. The church and the town was named after him.

Quitaque, southeast of Silverton in Briscoe County, was named after not one man, but a whole tribe of Quitaca Indians, according to Edie Sargent.

Seeing well gives kids confidence

Vision is not just essential to learning, it also plays an integral role in a child's athletic performance and safety, artistic creativity and psychological development, according to the Better Vision Institute (BVI).

One out of every six children needs some form of vision correction. To help parents, teachers and children understand the importance of good vision and how to maintain it, the BVI has created the "ABC's of Eyecare" Program.

So many sports activities rely on vision that without proper care a child can be placed at a competitive disadvantage and can even be at greater risk of injury, say experts at BVI. Foot-eye and hand-eye coordination are used when kicking a soccer ball and catching a baseball. Without accurate vision, a child can miss a football, a balance beam during gymnastics or a kick during martial arts.

The noisiest land animals in the world are the howling monkeys of Central and South America. In full voice, they can be clearly heard for distances up to 10 miles.

"TEXAS" cast members have local family ties

DARLA HUBBARD

Several members of the cast of "TEXAS" have relatives in Hereford. Those involved with the internationally acclaimed musical drama include Esther Criner, Darla Hubbard, Shyla Messer and Daniel T. Ruiz.

Esther Criner, daughter of Gerald and Elizabeth Witkowski of 128 N. Texas, joins the cast of "TEXAS" this season as a violinist. A recent graduate of Hereford High School, she has performed for the Hereford Pioneer Jubilee, Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center, Miss Hereford Scholarship Pageant, Hereford Fiddlers' Festival and the All-Region Orchestras in Amarillo and Odessa. In Odessa, she was a member of the Permian High Orchestra which received sweepstakes in UIL competition and also the select performing group, Satin Strings, which performed in Philadelphia for the National Convention of Federated Music Clubs. She will be a freshman music major at West Texas A&M University in the fall.

Darla Hubbard, daughter of Paul and Julia Hubbard of 226 Ranger Drive, is a newcomer to the "TEXAS" hospitality staff this season. A recent graduate of Hereford High School, Darla is currently living in Canyon and plans to attend West Texas A&M University in the fall. Darla's grandparents are L.E. and Katherine Hubbard of 815 S. Lee and Margaret London of 305 Western. She is the niece of Johnny and Linda Hubbard of 432 Star and Beck and Steve Hysinger of Route 5, Hereford.

Shyla Messer, granddaughter of Carl Caperton of 1604 Ave. F., is returning for her second season as a member of the "TEXAS" hospitality staff. She is a 1993 graduate of Graham High School in Graham. During her senior year, she earned college credit for English through Midwestern State University. She plans to attend West Texas A&M this fall. Shyla is also the niece of Doug Caperton of 118 Bradley, Jacky Messer of Route 3 and Roy Messer. Daniel Ruiz, son of Carlos and Lilia Ruiz of 411 Centre, joins the cast for his first season as a singer. He is a 1990 graduate of Hereford High School and has attended Amarillo College where he appeared in "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," "Working" and "Janice and Friends." He has also appeared in "Addict," "Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Rainmaker." Ruiz is a native of Hereford and his grandparents are Carlos and Pauline Trevino of 314 Ave. I and Florentina Ruiz of 207 W. Sixth St. Daniel is the nephew of Carlos and Lina Ruiz of 409 Ave. K. and Sylvia Menius.

"TEXAS", written by Pulitzer prize winning playwright Paul Green, plays nightly except Sundays at 8:30 p.m. in Palo Duro Canyon. Song, dance and spectacular special effects tell the story of the Panhandle in the late 1800s.

Like the land it is named for, "TEXAS" is filled with diversity, action and adventure. Cowboys ride horses through the rugged canyon, Indians leap from the canyon rocks, farmers till the soil and workers build a railroad. Cowboys and farmers battle each other and the land, until friendships are forged and a newfound trust forms the foundation for a town. The realities of hard work are tempered with romance and a touch of ribald humor.

More than 100,000 people fill Pioneer Amphitheater each summer to watch the nation's best attended outdoor drama. Last year, visitors came from every state and 89 foreign countries. They were awed and entertained by the action, the adventure and the romance that takes on an added dimension in its spectacular outdoor setting.

Tickets for "TEXAS" are $12, $9 and $6 for adults, and $12, $4.50 and $3 for children under 12. For reservations or additional information, call 806-655-2181 or write to P.O. Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015.

Help protect kids from insect bites and stings: have them avoid wearing scented lotions, hair spray and bright clothes. They should always wear shoes outdoors. Also have them avoid areas that may attract insects such as gardens, garbage bins and stagnant water.

Summer homes need a thorough cleaning before moving in since allergy-causing mold and mildew have had all winter to grow. To kill germs that cause mold and mildew and eliminate the source of odors, treat surfaces with a disinfectant. Don't use products like ammonia.

Extension News

Women who substitute spinach salads to meet their iron needs are fooling themselves because the iron that is available in vegetable sources is not nearly as well utilized as meats, according to a registered dietitian.

Eliminating meat cuts out a major source of nutrients. Small amounts of lean meats are good foods for maintaining adequate amounts of iron, zinc and B vitamins, according to Mary Abbott Hess, M.S., R.D., 1990-91 president of the American Dietetic Association.

The trace element zinc is a component of every living human cell. Zinc is best known for its involvement in enzyme functions. The Nationwide

Food Consumption Survey, Continuing Survey of Food Intakes 1986, showed that zinc intakes of some population segments, especially women, young children and athletes, fall short of the recommended amounts. As with iron, growth spurts can impose increased needs for zinc.

Meat, liver, eggs and seafood are good sources of highly available zinc. Whole grain products rich in phytate and fiber contain less zinc and zinc is in a less available form. Fruits and vegetables are modest sources of zinc. Beef, for example, not only is an excellent source of zinc, but the zinc is readily available.

Lean meat is also a major source of phosphorus and five of the B-complex vitamins--thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, B6 and B12. Pork, in recommended serving sizes, provides more thiamin than any other food commonly eaten. Liver is an excellent source of vitamin A and is one of the best food sources of riboflavin. Other meats also are good sources of riboflavin.

Nazarene Church to sponsor tent crusade

In conjunction with the Annual Town 'n' Country Jubilee festivities this week, several events will be sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene. The public is invited to attend.

Also, planned is a funfest scheduled at 7 p.m. Friday at the Church of the Nazarene. The award winning clowns, "Carefree" and "Suzy-Q" will entertain. A clown seminar, led by T.J. Thurman of the Dallas/Fort Worth metroplex, will be conducted.

During the Jubilee Junction, a free "Jesus" tent, sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene, will be featured. Activities under the big top tent, which seats 300, will include games, face painting, gospel magic, etc. Refreshments will be served and entertainment will be provided by clowns and puppets.

Between The Covers

By JOE WEAVER

Another Summer Reading Program behind us! We had a number of kids sign up for the program, and quite a few went the limit to get all prizes offered. Special thanks to those who brought our programs, and extra-special thanks to those of you who promptly paid your fines this past year. Money raised from the fines is what pays for materials used in the Summer Reading Program.

Less than a month now until school starts! I know all of you want to be reminded of that. We have been preparing throughout the summer for a new school year by obtaining books on subjects that have, in the past, been in demand for reports. The home school movement continues to gain adherents, too, and we keep a fair amount of resources for those learning (and teaching) at home. One of those is the fourth edition of The Home School Manual, by Theodore E. Wade and others. This appears to be a very comprehensive book, for its size. The manual tells about "the tremendous advantage of home schooling," "how to teach specific subjects and inspire children to learn," "where to find materials and help," and lots more.

Of course, there ARE some good weeks of summer left, so you might want to take advantage of some "fun" books. Diving to Adventure will help you get the most from you diving and snorkeling. Santa Fe, history of an Ancient City will give you a good background if you plan a visit to that locale. And if the kids are driving you up the wall, try keeping them busy with a project or two from Crafts for Kids. These vary from stuff only a parent could appreciate to some quality items.

If you've enjoyed the Naked Gun movies, you'll get a kick out of The Naked Truth by Leslie Nielsen. The title may speak of the truth, but the book is far from it. A hilarious "rip-off" of the typical Hollywood biography, Nielsen claims to have rubbed shoulders with everybody who is anybody, with romantic connections with every Hollywood beauty from Grace Kelly to Cindy Crawford, "daughter of Broderick and Joan." You get the idea.

Dick Francis' new mystery Blood Sport is finally out. The former jockey and racing correspondent has turned out another gripping suspense story set in racing circles.

Espionage and suspense master John LeCarre returns with The Night Manager, a spellbinding tale of illegal arms dealers and an international drug cartel whose ruthless leaders are rising to unheard-of power. There are already some requests against this one, so come get your name on the list.

Birthday Invitation

We cordially invite everyone who is acquainted with Bessie (Granny) Holmes to attend a party held in honor of her 81st Birthday. Saturday, July 24th, 5:00 - 7:00 p.m., at Hereford Elks Lodge.

MRS. MARCOS VASQUEZ
...Cecelia Rodriguez

Rodriguez, Vasquez wed in afternoon ceremony

Cecelia Rodriguez of Hereford became the bride of Marcos Trevor Vasquez of Abernathy during a mid-afternoon wedding ceremony held July 3 in St. Anthony's Catholic Church. Monsignor Orville Blum officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mario and Mary Rodriguez of 320 Ave. J, and the bridegroom is the son of Jose and Marylou Vasquez and Candelaria Vasquez, residing in Abernathy and Albuquerque, N.M., respectively.

Elizabeth Cepeda served as maid of honor and the groom's brother, Jose Damian Vasquez, was best man.

Bridesmaids were the groom's stepsister, Christie Davalos; and the bride's cousins, Jessica and Denise Jaramillo.

Serving as groomsmen were the groom's brother, Daniel Vasquez; and the bride's cousins, Frankie Jaramillo Jr. and Tony Rodriguez.

The bride's cousin, Renee

Rodriguez, daughter of Tony and Alicia Rodriguez, was flower girl. The bride's brother, Michael Rodriguez, son of Mario and Mary Rodriguez, was ring bearer.

The unity candle was lit by the bride's mother, Mary Rodriguez, and the groom's mother, Marylou Vasquez.

Raul Guerrero provided musical selections.

The reception was held at Tu Cantina.

The bride is a 1992 graduate of Hereford High School and is currently attending South Plains College in Levelland. She is employed by Bank One in Levelland.

The groom, a 1993 graduate of Abernathy High School, is planning to attend South Plains College this fall.

Wedding guests represented Albuquerque, N.M., Dallas, Asherton, San Antonio, Abernathy and Lufkin.

Planning summer activities

Freeing kids to daydream and to fill their time with afternoons of bike rides, fishing, baseball or playing "Monopoly" with a best friend, is a welcome change from a schedule-driven and often stressful school year.

But as parents know, without something new or exciting to do, kids eventually show signs of boredom. Now is the time to look at the weeks ahead to provide a balance between freedom and organized activities. Here are some tips for planning a super summer:

Note the things that fascinate your child. Is he or she enamored with dinosaurs, castles and knights, horses, or even snakes? Foster your child's passion and seek out special summer classes at your local YMCA, library, zoo and children's book and toy stores. Most workshops are inexpensive and sometimes free of charge. Be sure to mark the date and time on your family calendar when you register.

Although most summer camps are filled by now, many community recreation programs, churches, museums and nature centers are open for registration for day programs. If your child is intent on going to an overnight camp that is full, request to put his or her name on a waiting list in the event of cancellations.

Look for volunteer opportunities with your pre-teens and teenagers. Contact child-care centers or hospitals and inquire how your child might assist.

Explore money-making projects your child will enjoy. Help your child make a flier to distribute to neighbors and friends offering services such as lawn mowing, car washing, pet sitting, and baby sitting.

For your older kids, you may want to look for jobs in the want ads. My 13-year-old recently took a short caddie course at a city golf course. It's his first job outside the neighborhood, but close enough to get there on his bike.

And don't forget the fun and profit of an old-fashioned lemonade stand. Kids delight in the preparation as well as the sales.

Cats should explore the great outdoors

Telling a cat owner that cats should stay indoors often elicits indignant responses like, "It's only natural for a cat to go out," or, "How could I deprive him of so much pleasure?"

The fact is, there are no good reasons to allow a cat to roam outside. Outdoor cats often pay with their lives, and millions of taxpayer dollars are spent every year for animal control to rescue, treat, feed and house many of these animals.

House cats who are allowed outside kill millions of songbirds and small mammals each year. Although many cats retain hunting instincts, there is no natural reason for them to hunt. Wild predators only kill what they eat, but a well-fed house cat kills for play. Birds and other small animals have enough problems surviving without having to satisfy the hunting instincts of neighborhood felines.

Of course, the most important reason to keep a cat inside is for the animal's own safety. Outdoor cats are vulnerable to diseases, parasites and poisoning. Other cats, dogs and wildlife are potential enemies of cats and often engage in fights that leave the cats with torn ears, cut eyes, abscesses and other injuries requiring veterinary treatment. Outdoor cats get caught in painful leg-hold traps and suffer for days before dying or being released, and many free roaming cats die from auto accidents. Outdoor cats also contribute significantly to pet overpopulation. Unaltered cats who are allowed to roam and mate account for millions of the cats euthanized in animal shelters each year.

Many owners say their cats will be miserable if they're cooped up in the house all the time. But, The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) says, with a little attention to what a cat likes and needs, a pet owner can easily create a healthy, happy indoor home for a cat.

Newly adopted cats should be kept inside from the beginning, and outdoor cat owners can begin the conversion to indoor life by only letting the cat outside during the middle of the day, then gradually shortening the length of time he is outside until he is no longer allowed out. Meanwhile, it's important to keep the cat occupied inside. Especially important is extra play and attention. Outdoor cats welcome the indoors if they are given lots of love, attention and playtime.

Free booklet explains lymphocytic leukemia

A new free booklet explaining Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia, funded by Berlex laboratories, is now available from the Leukemia Society of America.

Although scientists have been able to unlock many secrets of the universe, a great many more remain a mystery. The exact cause and means to prevent Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia (CLL), for example, is unknown. There seems to be no direct link between the disease and any exposure to radiation.

CLL is the most common form of leukemia in Western countries, accounting for some 30 percent of all reported cases. A disease of middle or old age, approximately 90 percent of all people affected with CLL are over the age of 50. Each year, at least 8,200 new cases of the disease are diagnosed.

The malignant disorder involves a progressive accumulation of small lymphocytes (a type of leukocyte, or white blood cell). The abnormal and excessive reproduction of any type of cell disrupts the delicate balance necessary to sustain the body's general state of health.

A higher incidence of CL has been reported among rubber manufacturing workers, and farmers involved in soybean production, cattle raising, dairy production and herbicide use. No hereditary pattern has been established, but there is a slightly higher frequency of immune system disorders among family members of CLL patients.

Many patients in the early stages of CLL have no symptoms, so the disease is usually discovered during a routine physical examination and blood test. If you or a loved one are over age 50, you should get a yearly physical. Some symptoms do occur, but usually in varied and subtle forms.

- Patients have reported:
- Chronically not feeling well.
  - Fatigue or dizziness.
  - Excessive perspiration or night sweats.
  - Frequent high-grade or chronic low-grade fevers.
  - Increase in infections and swollen glands.
  - Loss of appetite or weight loss due to spleen enlargement.
  - Abnormal blood clotting and painful bones and joints (less common symptoms).

Fortunately, several new therapies for CLL have recently been introduced. A great deal of research into the development of these therapies is sponsored by the Leukemia Society of America. The Society also sponsors a variety of programs that help ease the emotional and financial strain created by CLL.

The free booklet contains extensive information about Chronic Lymphocytic Leukemia. It will be distributed by Berlex laboratories representatives and through local Society chapters, or by calling the Society's toll-free number: 1-800-955-4LSA.

Over the past decade, the U.S. death rate from asthma rose by nearly 50 percent, according to recent reports from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. About 12 million Americans suffer from the suffocating disease, including 2.7 million children. Asthma is responsible for more than 10 million

What's happening at the museum

By CARMEN FLOOD

Do you know what's going on at the Deaf Smith County Museum? How long has it been since you were there? If it's been a while for you, you may be surprised to learn that museum is a veritable beehive of activity all year 'round representing 38 states and 7 foreign countries.

We have toured and given programs to roughly 1,500 students, mostly from Hereford schools, but also to students from Amarillo, Farwell, Muleshoe, Friona, Dimmitt and Nazareth schools. There are also programs given for all kinds of organizations through the year, again mostly local groups, but also for groups from all over the area, and even from around the country who might be traveling through our town.

We have developed an Indian Trunk which we use to give programs on the Indian presence in this area to anyone interested and that program has been enthusiastically received. So much so that we were asked to take it to the Mountain States Museum Association in Colorado Springs with an explanation of how it was put together, it's cost, and how many persons are reached through it. They are considering putting together something similar in that area, and needed information from our already successful program. We consider that a true compliment to us and what goes on here at the Deaf Smith County Museum.

The museum, along with the E.B. Black House, has been the sight of 19 weddings and numerous parties of all kinds in the past 12 months and is booked for many more in the future. They are both lovely sights for celebrations by people who love beauty and history.

Those of us who are museum buffs, when we travel, stop wherever we see a sign for an historic building, and we can testify to the extraordinary qualities and condition of our museum in Hereford. We give so much credit to the foresight and hard work of the original directors and townspeople who put great effort and money into founding and nurturing the wonderful facility we have here.

You may have noticed that there is a lot going on around the museum and grounds right now. We are in the midst of a facelift to the facility with fresh paint and some repairs being done for us by a crew of workers and trustees from the County Jail. Everything from the windows and trim to the office and even the caboose are getting a new lease on life thanks to their long hours and diligent efforts. The results are another part of Hereford ready to receive guests and make a positive impression. Our thanks to Tom flood and his crew, our hats are off to you!

— YOUR EYES —

SUN'S OUT!

Of course, the sun is out all year around, but somehow we don't seem to notice it as much until spring when the days are longer and we spend more time out of doors.

Time was, wearing sunglasses was a matter of comfort. But now that we know that sunlight can damage our eyes as much as it burns the skin, it's extra-important to protect them from ultraviolet rays.

The American National Standards Institute (ANSI) has set up a ratings system. Cosmetic lenses that absorb less than 60 percent of visible light offer some eye comfort but little real protection. What ANSI calls general-purpose lenses will absorb from 60 to 92 percent of visible light, 95 percent of ultraviolet-B and 60 percent of ultra-violet-A, good enough for most outdoor activities in temperate regions. But where sun will be reflected off sand, snow or water, special purpose lenses are recommended to block at least 99 percent of UB-B, 60 percent of UV-A and up to 97 percent of visible light.

Treating ovarian cancer

There is a new weapon in the fight against ovarian cancer, the leading cause of cancer death in women in the U.S. Taxol, first found in the bark and needles of the Pacific yew tree, has produced results researchers call "dramatic" in some patients.

That's good news. The average American woman faces a one in 70 chance over a lifetime of developing ovarian cancer. Surgery and chemotherapy are traditional and effective treatment choices. When the cancer resists treatment or recurs, taxol has demonstrated encouraging results.

Early detection and treatment are critical to successful management of ovarian cancer. Sadly most cases are found in the latter cases of the disease.

Scientists are looking for ways to diagnose the disease earlier and are investigating new treatments. New treatments include an agent that can slow a cancer's metastases (or spread) and gene therapy to turn off the genes that keep chemotherapy drugs from killing cancer cells.

Half a kidney may be better than none

By ROGER J. BULGER, M.D.
Kidney transplants, which once made medical headlines, now are almost commonplace. They have been remarkably successful in saving patients with endstage kidney disease, yet this very success has engendered a major problem - how to obtain a sufficient number of kidneys suitable for transplant. Approximately 20,000 Americans are waiting for donor kidneys, and every year thousands die that could be saved if a kidney were available. While various programs aim to encourage kidney donations, researchers using pigs as models are attempting to double the patients that can be helped with the existing supply - by splitting the kidney in half.

While it has been long known that one kidney is enough to maintain good health, it was thought that the kidney could not be reduced in size and still work efficiently. However, studies of patients who lost half a kidney to cancer showed that the remaining half can function adequately for at least ten years. This allowed the theoretical possibility of using a single donor kidney to help two patients by splitting it in half.

Unlike livers, human kidneys had been thought to be too difficult to divide and transplant successfully because of the structure of their blood supply. Upon further examination Dr. Dilip S. Kittur of Johns Hopkins School of Medicine determined that by rearranging their plumbing - altering the connection of two arteries - human kidneys could be split into functioning halves.

While this was fine in theory, it needed to be shown it could work in practice. As a first step, Dr. Kittur studied kidneys of pigs - which are similar to those of humans - and demonstrated that a kidney could be split in half and still retain its function. Kidneys were removed from young pigs, halved, and then each pig received one half of its kidney back. The pigs thrived for several years, with adequate kidney function.

The next step was to actually transplant a half-kidney into a different pig. Dr. Kittur demonstrated that they could successfully connect these half-kidneys when transplanted from one into another. However, the pigs ultimately rejected these transplants, in part because anti-rejection drugs were not administered.

Much work needs to be done before human kidneys can be split and transplanted successfully. While concerns remain that the limited amount of kidney tissue transplanted might eventually "wear out," the prospect of doubling the number of potential recipients makes this research well worth pursuing.

Prevent workplace injuries

More safety for employees and more savings for employers could come from efforts to protect workers from on-the-job injuries, experts agree.

Workers compensation costs are an increasingly large part of an employer's cost of doing business. Premiums go up when employees are injured in the workplace - and when premiums go too high, business suffers. Fewer workers are hired and prices charged for the goods and services the company produces go up.

Companies also lose money when workers are injured because they may be unable to fill orders and lose customers. They must also spend time hiring and training new or replacement employees.

Helping to hold down workers compensation costs and increase workplace safety is the National Council on Compensation Insurance (NCCI).

Most sore throats are caused by viruses. They are usually uncomplicated, last only a few days, and can be relieved temporarily without prescription medication.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

HOLD'EM OR FOLD'EM

An old Kenny Rogers' song contains the lyrics "You've got to know when to hold'em, know when to fold'em". Kenny was referring to cards, but the same message applies to many business owners.

Knowing when to cut your losses is a valuable skill. Unfortunately, few know when or how, making their failure even more disastrous. Nearly one-quarter million businesses will fail in the United States this year. Some will die quickly and others will drag out the process until all assets are consumed.

During normal business cycles, all companies will have periods of decline. How early you recognize the decline and how you deal with it will determine the longevity of your firm. You should base the decision to hold on or cash it in on the numbers the business generates and the trends that affect the future.

You should ask two key questions at the start. First, does the business generate a true profit? Second, if the answer to the first question is "no," can you make the business profitable?

Often, we do not answer the profitability question accurately. Some owners do not have adequate record-keeping systems and others do not consider all expenses and costs. Some of our clients tell us that they are operating at a profit; however, they have not taken any wages from the business.

Finding true profitability

True profitability should include a reasonable wage for the owner as well as a return on the actual investment. If you are capable of earning an annual salary of $20,000 per year in other employment, then that is a reasonable cost to charge to the business. You must include the salary figure to calculate real profit.

You should also include your investment in the business. For example, if you have $50,000 invested, you should consider the current rate or return on your investment capital. If we assume a 6 percent annual rate of return, you must include another $3,000 per year to obtain a correct view of true profit. Therefore, the total opportunity cost of foregoing other employment and making a reasonable return on investment increases the break even point by $23,000.

If your business is not generating a profit after including these costs, you should ask several questions. Are sales levels trending up or down? Is your inventory level increasing or decreasing? Can you increase prices and still maintain an acceptable sales level? Can you reduce the cost of goods sold? Are there better buying sources or ways to save on transportation costs? Can you lower fixed costs? Can you increase sales? Etc.

Know when to fold'em

If you've done all you can and the business is still declining and the losses are growing, you may want to "fold'em." Two main options are available: Sell the business lock, stock and barrel or liquidate the assets. Usually, neither option is financially rewarding, but you should evaluate both and select the lesser of the two evils.

While a truly unprofitable business has little to sell, you may recoup some of your money. You might show potential for your carefully selected and maintained inventory, loyal customer base, prime location, or area trends which should help future profits.

Knowing where to look for a buyer is important. Study your suppliers, competitors, customers and employees. Once you have found a prospect, discretely let them know the business is for sale. Be patient, a good sale may take some time to develop.

If you cannot find a buyer, you may have to liquidate the assets. Liquidation with you in charge is preferable to your creditors having control. Don't lose your self-esteem over a business failure, some of this country's biggest success stories had miserable flops at some point in their lives.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: All the members of our family are longtime fans of yours, but we have come to the conclusion that you must get out of your apartment in Chicago and find out what is REALLY going on.

My husband and I have a total of 65 years of teaching between us. Our experience extends from New York City to Miami. Your recent column made us both holler, "Bull," when you pleaded with that teacher in California to hang in there because she was needed. Ha, ha, ha.

Teachers are blamed when students do poorly although the fault lies in the home. A motivated child will do well even with a lousy teacher. The classroom has become such a stressful place that most teachers want to move up the ladder into non-teaching positions. The political maneuvering that goes on behind the scenes is something to behold.

Parents have relinquished to schools all the responsibilities that are theirs, except the ability to punish. While students behave in an unbelievably inappropriate manner, teachers have lost the right to discipline them in a way that would convey the message promptly.

Sex, jobs and TV take priority over education for most students today. And last, but not least, drug use by both parents and children is producing a generation of numskulls.

My husband and I are hanging on by our fingernails until we can retire in three years. God help this country if we don't wake up and stop trying new programs that waste the taxpayers' money. Our society is in deep trouble, and one need only look at the classroom to understand why. -Mr. and Mrs. in Miami, Fla.

DEAR MIAMI: I can understand your frustration, but your not-so-subtle message is that teachers should be permitted to hit students. Sorry, I don't agree. Aside from the moral question, in today's climate of violence, with weapons all around, it could be extremely dangerous, and I am four-square against it. Expel, yes. Hit, no.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband just received a painting of himself, done from a photograph. It is a gift from his grown children, my stepchildren, in honor of his retirement.

The problem is that this painting is very large (and poorly done), and there is only one place in the house where it will fit. If we hang it there, it will overpower the entire room. What's even more upsetting is that the colors are not compatible with the rugs or furnishings.

My husband doesn't want to offend the children. I'm in the middle. Any suggestions?--Chestnut Hill, Pa.

DEAR CHESTNUT: Hang the picture for three months, and then send it out "to be re-framed." This could take a very long time, during which you could replace it "temporarily"--which can turn into forever.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a boy who just turned 14. I make stupid remarks because if I am quiet all the time, people will think I'm a dummy. After I mouth off, I wish I had kept quiet.

My feet are too big, and my face breaks out just before I go somewhere and want to look decent. Am I a freak or what?--Kentucky

DEAR KENTUCKY: Cheer up, son. You sound pretty normal to me. What you need is time. About three years will do it.

An alcohol problem? How can you deal with it, How to Conquer It, will give you the answers. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Alcohol, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is in response to "Learning Spanish in Dayton," who complained that people don't work hard enough for their companies.

At midlife, I changed occupations. There are a dozen people working in this office. We have no time clock. Everyone puts his own time on the time sheet.

I have seen phony time sheets and coffee breaks that run anywhere from 15 minutes to six hours if the boss is out of town. Yesterday, three employees played cards for seven hours.

We have sick leave, vacation time, pension plans, paid insurance and wages ranging from $10.85 to $18.69 per hour, as well as time and a half for overtime. And still they complain. When will it end?--Somewhere in Missouri

DEAR MISSOURI: Good question. Keep reading for some additional comments:

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The cradle-to-grave mentality has bankrupted our wonderful country morally, financially and creatively.

From the top down, the U.S. government, state governments, unions, ad nauseam, have all "benefited, perked and privileged" employees to the point of bankrupting the citizenry. Major corporations are being brought to their knees daily.

Wake up, Americans! We are responsible for ourselves, first, last and always.--Shiremanstown, Pa.

From Rochester, Minn.: Corporate America is in trouble because of years of short-sighted, foolish decisions made by grossly overpaid corporate executives. These people rarely pay for their mistakes. Even if they are fired, they are so wealthy they continue to live in luxury and couldn't care less.

No City, USA: I work for a worldwide multibillion-dollar company. The average person here puts in 10 to 12 hours a day with no breaks or lunch. We have learned to eat and work at the same time. Our "lunchroom" consists of two vending machines and a water fountain. When a co-worker expressed his complaint about the workload, he was told, "There are 24 hours in a day--get it done."

Denver, Colo.: My husband works 12-hour shifts. We have excellent benefits that include medical, dental and optical. For the first time in our married lives, we can finally make it on one paycheck. If others want to complain about the company, let them try to find something better out there. They'll be very disappointed.

Salem, Ore.: This is in response to "Learning Spanish in Dayton." I am a small business owner and can attest to the fact that the letter writer was on target.

Federal and state taxes, Social Security and Medicare, unemployment insurance and worker's compensation are eating me alive. Sometimes I wish I could turn back the pages to the time my company was just me.

Maple Hill, Kan.: I have to agree with "Learning Spanish in Dayton." America the Beautiful is going to become "America the Broke" if we don't shape up.

St. Louis: As a retired manager in a Fortune 500 company, I've been around the block and paid my dues many times over. One of the most overused pacifiers today is the "stress syndrome." When I was a kid in the '40s and '50s, social gurus attributed our shortcomings to "the bomb." Now "corporate stress" is in vogue. Both are cop-outs. Whoever said life was supposed to be easy?

Planning a wedding? What's right? "The Ann Landers Guide for Brides" will relieve your anxiety. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Brides, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Create a western-look lampshade

Western designs are everywhere, from home decor to fashion. Your teen can light up his/her room with this stenciled and stitched Wild West lampshade. It's an easy craft project to create the "Yippie-I-Ay" look. You'll need:

- 1. inexpensive standard white lampshade, 10-inch diameter at the base (no pleats or plastic backing).
- Gold metallic acrylic paint (available in craft stores)
- Large index cards
- X-acto knife
- sponge
- 2 yards 3/8-inch satin or grosgrain ribbon, or leather cording
- Double-sided tape
- Feathers and beads (optional)
- Sewing needle large enough to thread ribbon or leather

Step 1: STENCIL
Use a cookie cutter in the shape of a cactus, star or half moon, or draw a shape freehand on a piece of paper. Copy the pattern on the index card. Cut around the outline of the drawing with the X-acto knife. Discard the cut-out piece of double-sided tape and attach it to the lampshade. Dab a small piece of sponge in the paint, blot several times on newspaper, then lightly dab the sponge on the stencil figure. Gently lift the stencil off the shade. Repeat on another part of the shade or use another stencil design. Let paint dry before stitching.

Step 2: STITCHING
Thread the needle with the ribbon. Poke the needle into the shade 1/2 inch from the lower rim. Pull the ribbon through, leaving 10 inches of extra ribbon dangling. (You will use the excess ribbon for tying when stitching is complete). Make a whip stitch around the lower rim of the shade allowing 1-inch between each stitch. When you have stitched around the shade, remove the needle and tie the remaining ribbon to the dangling ribbon, adding beads and feathers between knots, if you wish.

Extra ideas: Use the stencils to decorate bedroom walls.

Or use leftover paint to spruce up a dull picture frame. Stencil designs on a new mat and frame your best friend's picture.

Send your "Decorating Kids' Rooms" ideas to share with other readers to Donna Erickson, P.O. Box 16188, Minneapolis, MN 66516.

Goldin plays cupid in ABC's 'Street Match'

Soap opera favorite Ricky Paull Goldin ("Another World") takes on the role of matchmaker in ABC's "Street Match," debuting Wednesday. In the show, Goldin arranges dates between people he encounters on the streets and lets the camera record what happens next.

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Ask any single person you know if dating in the 1990s is easy, and he or she will probably laugh in your face. The truth is: it has never been easy to get a date, and one of the toughest hurdles to get over in the world of dating is that proverbial opening line.

Ricky Paull Goldin, who plays Dean Frame on the NBC daytime soap opera "Another World," has the solution: he will ask the person out for you. On his new ABC show "Street Match," Goldin walks up to strangers on the street and asks them if they would like to go out on a date. Once the person spots someone who looks interesting, Goldin walks up and asks him or her to participate in the date.

"Anybody who walks in front of the camera while we are walking down the street has the potential to be the star of the show that day," Goldin says. "It is a reality-based, non-scripted show. The only prerequisite we have when we begin a day's shooting is if we are going to ask a woman or a man and the age group. It is a fly-by-the-seat-of-your-pants show; anything can happen and does."

"The show dives into people's personas, and you get an interesting, lovely, intelligent, witty person on one day, and the next day you get someone who is on the pompous side, who doesn't see himself for what he is. We go to their homes and meet their mother, wacky roommate or dog. We see how they live, and then we follow them through the entire date. There have been people who have said at the end of the show, 'I've had enough,' and walked off, and some shows end with the couple making out."

The show travels to cities all over the country and to all types of communities. "We went to a nursing home where we met an 82-year-old man who told us he was single—he had been widowed for 22 years. He was looking for a 'young girl, you know 73 or 74.' That is what he said. We found a match for him, and the first thing he said to her was, 'I can drive.' It was great."

Gabe Sachs, the creator of "Street Match," says the idea for the show came from his adolescent problems with dating: "I was the kid at school dances who always stood around in the back and waited for some girl to ask me to dance," Sachs says. "Yes, I was hoping for miracles, but to ask a girl to dance or to the movies was totally frightening to me. In truth it has never been easy for me to ask a girl out. I would say things like: 'Hey, come see my student film,' or 'I'd like to get your opinion on this script.'"

"I wanted to create a show that would break that nervous, insecure barrier that keeps people from approaching someone they are interested in. Ricky Paull and I have been friends for years, and I knew he was the perfect person to break the ice for them."

Colleen Dion works soaps coast to coast

BY CANDACE HAVENS

She's bold and beautiful, and she is on "Another World." Colleen Dion has been through some big changes this year with her move from the West Coast and a job on the daytime serial "The Bold and the Beautiful" to the East Coast and a job on "AW." The move was made possible when "B&B" took her off contract status and her character became a recurring role. Not one to sit around and see what happens, Dion landed a contract role as architect Brett Gardner on "AW" after only one week of looking for a new job. She and her husband, Steve, were ready for a change, and moving to New York City seemed like a good idea.

"Things still haven't settled down," says the actress. "The job is great, but Steven and I are looking for a bigger place to live. We looked upstate a little bit, but it is just more convenient to live in the city."

Colleen grew up in Chicago and upstate New York, and she was prepared for the cold weather when the couple arrived in December, but her husband wasn't. "I told him that it hardly ever snows in the city, and then we get here and it is the worst winter they had in years. I'm never going to live that one down."

The weather wasn't the only thing that was different when Dion arrived in New York; she also had an increased workload. "I was doing a half-hour show in Los Angeles, and 'AW' is an hour long. The first day I went to work, I had 20 pages of dialogue to learn, and I flipped. It has gotten easier with time, but I was scared to death at first."

"AW" is Dion's fifth soap opera. She was Evie Stone on "Search for Tomorrow," Cecilia on "Loving," Felicia on "B&B," and she also appeared on "Santa Barbara." Many of her fans have followed her to the different soaps, and Dion feels lucky to have one faithful fan in particular - her mom. "My mom is my biggest fan and my best friend. She watches the show every day." What would fans be surprised to know about her? "That I am boring," Dion replies. "I love to stay at home and watch TV, and just hang out with my husband."

Caine brings customary charm to HBO's 'Blue Ice'

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Michael Caine became a star in 1966. He'd acted in films for a decade (beginning with a small role in "Hell in Korea"), he'd won popular and critical acclaim for his portrayal of roguish spy Harry Palmer in 1965's "The Ipcress File," but it was "Alfie" that raised Caine to new heights in filmgoers' eyes. Women, especially, were drawn to his portrayal of the Cockney playboy, and he was perhaps the first screen lover to make glasses sexy.

Caine has remained a star ever since, appearing in gems such as "Hurry Sundown," "The Man Who Would Be King," and "Educating Rita," and despite clinkers like "Blame It On Rio" and "Jaws IV: The Revenge." Ironically, Caine was filming the latter the night he was named Best Supporting Actor for his performance in 1986's "Hannah and Her Sisters." In recent years, Caine has won acclaim for his television turns in "Jack the Ripper" and "Jekyll and Hyde."

Now, Caine brings his trademark charm and style to "Blue Ice," a project on which he's also a co-producer.

Directed by Russell Mulcahy ("Highlander") from a witty script by Emmy winner Ron Hutchinson, the movie premieres Saturday, July 31, on HBO.

Caine plays Harry Anders, a former British Intelligence officer who wearies of the cloak-and-dagger life. Now, Harry operates a popular London jazz club, reveling in the noise, the crowds and, most of all, the music. (Bobby Short and Charlie Watts appear as members of Harry's house band.) Apart from the occasional barroom brawl, Harry's days and nights are stress-free.

Into his peaceful life comes Stacy (Sean Young), the beautiful wife of the American ambassador. Romance ensues, and then Stacy makes a request: an old boyfriend seems to be in trouble; can Harry find what it is?

Harry gets more than he bargained for, finding himself immersed in a web of murder and deceit uncomfortably similar to his life a decade earlier.

"Blue Ice" features fine supporting work from Ian Holm ("Henry V"), Alan MacNaughton and a surprise guest star.

LET'S TALK

Genesis of 'The Waltons,' Roseanne's fowl attire

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: My roommate and I are having a dispute. She says "The Waltons" is based on the 1963 movie "Spencer's Mountain" starring Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Hara. I thought it was based on the real life of Earl Hamner Jr. Could you tell us who is right? -M.E., Portland, Ore.

A: You both are. Writer Hamner's reminiscences of his Appalachian boyhood inspired both "Spencer's Mountain" and the 1971 TV movie "The Homecoming - A Christmas Story," which in turn led to the long-running CBS series, "The Waltons," narrated by Hamner. "Homecoming" stars Ellen Corby and Richard Thomas, among others, went on to star in "The Waltons." "Homecoming" is available on video, and "Spencer's Mountain" can be found on laserdisc.

Q: What's up with the chicken sweatshirt that the women take turns wearing on "Roseanne"? It's white, oversized and has a large chicken in the center with small chicks surrounding it. On one episode, Roseanne, Darlene and Jackie all wore it at different times. What's the scoop? -Sharie Wright, Forest Grove, Oregon.

P.S. - Ha! Ha! The show just ended and Dan was sitting on the couch wearing that shirt.

A: Roseanne Arnold came up with the idea of the recurring sweatshirt as an in-joke for the cast and dedicated viewers such as you. Good work!

Q: Why was Becky dropped from "Roseanne"? Did she ask for a raise? -Grace Christopher, Nacogdoches, Texas.

A: Financial considerations weren't what compelled Lecy Goranson to leave "Roseanne." She simply wanted to attend college full time.

Q: I need some information on the movie "Tobacco Road." I think Dana Andrews and Ward Bond played in it. What year was it made, and can it be rented on video? -Tom Vannatter, Carlsbad, N.M.

A: The 1941 movie starred Andrews, Bond and Gene Tierney. It has not been released on video.

Q: What's the name of the man who narrated the famous early '60s sci-fi show "The Outer Limits"? -Rob Szymanski, Hydesville, Calif.

A: Vic Perrin narrated "The Outer

Lecy Goranson

Limits," which ran on ABC from Sept. 1963 to Jan. 1965.

Q: For Karen Dennis in Denton, Texas, who wanted to know about a "Star Trek" fan club: They are everywhere! Starfleet: The International Fan Club has organizations all over the world. There is even one in Denton: The USS Vindicator NCC-23911. She can contact Capt. John Simmons at 1900 Sam Bass, #N-5, Denton, Texas 76205.

These clubs (I am a commanding officer of the shuttle Tejas in Vernon, Texas, myself) devote themselves to furthering mankind in all ways. We support worthy charities, recycle, work with children, visit hospitals and do anything we can to promote space and the sciences. We fashion ourselves by "Star Trek" ideals. It is an organization well worth aligning yourself to. Peace and long life. -Chrylon Stroud, Vernon, Texas.

A: Thanks for the additional information. The address I gave was for Star Trek: The Official Fan Club, which was recommended by Paramount, producer of "Star Trek: The Next Generation" and "Star Trek: Deep Space Nine." With letters about all three series pouring in from all over the country, a single central fan club seemed the appropriate address to give. For Trekkies who may have missed it, the address is: P.O. Box 111000, Aurora, Colo. 80042.

LeMond won't contend for Tour's yellow jersey

BY MICHAEL SCOGIN

American bicycle-racing fans can rest assured that it won't be Greg LeMond cruising through the Champs Elysees to win Europe's storied 2,300-mile race when the Tour de France returns to CBS on Sunday, July 25. The network has won five Sports Emmy Awards for its outstandingly effective, dramatic coverage of the event in the years 1983-1988.

LeMond, a three-time victor and the only American ever to win the Tour de France, is sidelined with an injury suffered during the spring. In his absence, Andy Hampsten and Lance Armstrong become the Americans to watch in 1993. Hampsten, who relishes the race's mountain stages, is a veteran of the Tour who has flirted with a top-three finish several times while Armstrong is an impressive 21-year-old competing in his first Tour.

Twenty teams of nine cyclists began their arduous trek through some of France's toughest hills and longest valleys on Saturday, July 3, in an almost month-long battle for the coveted yellow jersey. It is estimated the 80th Tour de France has attracted over 10 million spectators along its route.

"To be around the Tour de France is kind of a combination of the Super Bowl and a visit from the pope for three weeks," says David Banks, who is producing CBS' coverage. "We try to turn it into a music-video documentary sports show."

Val McKee (Kevin Bacon) battles huge, carnivorous worms in "Tremors," Monday on NBC.

'Article 99' entertaining, thought-provoking despite flaws

BY STEVEN ALAN MCGAW

Imagine "M*A*S*H" rewritten and co-directed by Billy Wilder, Frank Capra and a TV sitcom neophyte, and the result might be something like 1992's "Article 99," a film little seen in its brief theatrical release. A blend of icy cynicism, hearty belief in the "little guy" and sometimes threadbare plot developments, Howard Deutch's film is at once entertaining, thought-provoking and maddeningly uneven.

Perhaps the problem is that "Article 99" just never decided what it wanted to be when it grew up. The film seems to meander between "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "The Hospital," with occasional forays into the territories of Rambo-style machismo and poorly staged slapstick. It just never picks a path and sticks to it.

But some films, like some people, can be forgiven a lot just because of good intentions. "Article 99" springs from a good idea, the performances are sound, and the statements it makes, however clumsily, need to be made.

Ray Liotta ("Unlawful Entry," "Dominick and Eugene") stars as a rebellious, resourceful doctor in a Veterans Administration hospital. Frustrated with the VA's dense bureaucracy and ceaseless cost-cutting, Liotta and his confederates (John C. McGinley, Forest Whitaker, Lea Thompson) have become experts at going around the proper procedures, even if it means scheduling patients for prostate surgery when they really need a triple bypass, or shifting patients from one ward to another rather than let them be returned to the street.

Into the fray comes intern Keifer Sutherland, a young man with his eyes on lucrative private practice and totally unprepared for the grim realities of real-life medicine.

Stand-out performances come from Liotta and John Mahoney as the hospital's ruthless, politically minded director. Kathy Baker ("Picket Fences") is appealing as a rule-bound psychiatrist angered, then attracted, by Liotta's maverick behavior.

More Elvis on the way; TNT tallies votes for favorite films

Raycom, a sports and entertainment company based in Charlotte, N.C., has announced a five-year contract with the estate of singer Elvis Presley. The arrangement calls for a series of syndicated television specials co-produced by Raycom and the estate, culminating in a 1997 spectacular commemorating the 20th anniversary of Presley's death on Aug. 16, 1977. The first two offerings air this summer in a two-week window beginning Aug. 7. Lisa Hartman-Black and Mac Davis serve as co-hosts and narrators for both programs. "America Comes to Graceland" offers a tour of the singer's opulent Memphis home, as well as interviews with celebrities such as Elton John, George Harrison and Travis Tritt on the influence of Presley's music. "Elvis: His Life and Times" is billed as the "definitive Elvis biography," featuring candid comments from members of the singer's family and inner circle of friends, as well as never-before-seen footage of Presley at work and at play.

Elvis Presley: Gone, but not unmarketable

The results of the poll will be announced in the series' last installment on Thursday, Sept. 16, when Whoopi Goldberg fronts George Cukor's "A Star is Born." Proceeds from the poll go to the Actor's Fund of America, which operates several retirement and nursing homes.

Recent casting news includes Macaulay Culkin in the feature version of the comic strip "Richie Rich" and Jaye Davidson as an alien in the futuristic thriller "Stargate."

Four new shows to join CBS Saturdays in fall

BY SCOTT WHITE

Returning this fall on CBS Saturdays will be merchandise-moving juggernauts "Disney's The Little Mermaid," back for its second season, "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" and "Garfield and Friends." Additionally, "CBS Storybreak" returns after skipping a season in the hiatus closet.

The commercial tie-ins of the returning shows are thankfully not quite as apparent in the network's new offerings. "Marsupilami," a Walt Disney Studios production about the adventures of a long-tailed jungle critter named Marsu, leads off the new fall shows. "Cadillacs and Dinosaurs," a flashy animated series based on Mark Schultz's award-winning comic books, hits the road with an ecologist and a scientist as they cruise Xenozoic terrain in a Cadillac.

Following closely on the heels of the "Dennis the Menace" feature film, cartoonist Hank Ketcham's beloved slingshot-wielding rascal will be featured in "The All New Dennis the Menace" animated series.

The most exciting new entry will be the addition of underground science hit "Beakman's World," which CBS has reeled in from the sea of syndication. Beakman (Paul Zaloom) will take the helm of a prestigious network slot to wow audiences with his wacky look into the exciting world of natural phenomena and science experiments.

Amanda Peterson stars in "Posing: Inspired By Three Real Stories," Tuesday on CBS.

July 25 - July 31 HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 19)

Perhaps it would be wiser to think things through carefully before making a decision. An appointment or a journey may be postponed.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20)

One of your goals is within reach. You will need to learn to control spending and set up a budget. There is a possibility of travel in the near future.

Gemini (May 2 - June 20)

Use your intuition when dealing with unusual circumstances. It would be best to keep your ideas and intentions to yourself for now. Be yourself in all situations.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

There could be a loss of balance in a close relationship. Remember that pride can destroy love. Getting upset will not help matters.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

There will be much happiness and material gain. Worries will begin to disappear, and new opportunities will appear. A health problem will improve.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

The right person could help you succeed with a project. Cooperation with loved ones could bring about necessary changes on the domestic front.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Protect your own affairs, but do not be obstinate. Use discretion when dealing with a tricky financial matter. You have the strength to see things through.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)

If you remove all the obstacles, you will have the vision to go ahead. You must use your energy and talent wisely. Think before you speak.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 20)

You will be blessed. The foundation has been laid for a successful venture. You are very close to getting something you have always wanted.

Capricorn (Dec. 21-Jan. 19)

You will reap a harvest from seeds you planted in the past. The results and gains will be much better than you ever anticipated.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Investigate all aspects of a project before becoming involved. Future plans may need to be canceled. A disagreement or misunderstanding could get out of hand.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20)

Do not be overly anxious when negotiating financial matters; things will go well if you proceed carefully. A cycle of positive change is on the way.

HIGHLIGHTS

Veteran broadcaster Tom Brokaw examines the bleak outlook for employment-minded high school graduates in "The Lost Generation," on "The Brokaw Report" airing Wednesday, July 28, on NBC. Today, fresh-faced graduates hoping to join the work force have few prospects other than "McJobs," low-paying, unskilled positions that offer little chance of advancement. Brokaw looks at programs springing up to help these youths, including one whose enrollees were near-suicidal one year ago.

STAR NOTES

Udy enjoys playing shady character

BY SCOTT WHITE

When asked what research she has invested in her characterization of Myra, an indentured prostitute on the CBS hit "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman," Helene Udy laughingly responds, "Well, let's say I've assimilated that information over the years."

She goes on to explain, "I mean, I've been very interested in Westerns anyway. In terms of what it was like to be a hooker in those times, I know it was not a glamorous thing, an easy thing. Women had a hard enough time as it was, so hookers put themselves at the lowest place on the totem pole. ... It wasn't like the Renaissance; it wasn't an intellectual time. It was a time when you were just surviving if you were lucky. That just made [Myra's] profession a whole lot harder."

Raised in Montreal, Udy has directed several noted plays, including "Out in America," which earned her a Dramalogue Award. She says her film credits include "a lot of B movies, a lot of horror movies. Nothing that would be worth, like, running down to the video store for."

Happy with her growing role on "Dr. Quinn," she feels the program has potential for lasting appeal.

"The thing about this show is that it's timeless. Twenty years from now, it'll still have relevance. I mean, we're not all going to be wearing bell-bottoms and looking stupid."

HIGHLIGHTS

Also featured is a look at Australia's diverse wildlife and weather extremes.

Good nutrition helps prevent osteoporosis

Preventing a loss is easier than replacing it. Preventing a disease is easier than curing it. Preventing osteoporosis is easier than living with it...but people afflicted with this "disease of lifestyle" can cope by choosing "the elixir of youth"--good nutrition and exercise--says a Texas

Woman's University nutritionist and researcher.

Dr. Nancy DiMarco, associate professor of nutrition and food sciences at TWU, explains, "If we want to live to old age and not be debilitated by diseases of lifestyle like osteoporosis, we must take care of our bodies. We need to get sufficient amounts of calcium and regular exercise to support a high-quality life."

Osteoporosis, which robs the body's bones of calcium and other minerals, affects more than 25 million Americans--80 percent of them elderly women. The disease costs this country more than $10 billion a year for hip fractures alone. Prevention is a key: prevention through good nutrition--particularly calcium intake--during adolescent years and early adulthood, and prevention of bone loss in midlife and later years through weight-bearing exercise, nutrition and several other measures.

"Weightbearing exercise and nutrition should be learned at an early age and then practiced throughout life," says DiMarco. "However, it isn't too late to start these practices at any point in a person's life."

"Osteoporosis will become a premier lifestyle disease of the 1990s and the year 2000," she adds. "It is a tremendously costly disease, exerts a major impact on women and will increase in incidence with age if post-menopausal women and elderly men do not eat properly and exercise."

Bone density and bone mass interest DiMarco, particularly because they indicate whether an individual may be susceptible to or already have osteoporosis. Because the disease affects so many women, past and present researchers like DiMarco in the department of nutrition and food sciences at TWU have taken a special interest in osteoporosis and how it develops.

Bones are living, growing tissue that constantly renew throughout a person's lifetime. Bone is formed by the production of a soft protein framework which hardens when mineral calcium phosphate is deposited. Osteoporosis is result of long-term depletions of calcium and other minerals that exceed the body's ability to resupply them. As a result, the body loses bone mass, and the bones are structurally weakened.

Osteoporosis is characterized by an age-related decrease in bone mass, which results in an increased susceptibility to fractures. Persons whose risk is greatest for developing the disease include: post-menopausal women and, to a lesser extent, men aged 75 or older; fair-skinned people of northwest European ancestry; those with slender, non-athletic physiques; smokers; and persons who consume excessive amounts of coffee and alcohol. Hereditary factors, lower levels of sex hormones and levels of physical activity also affect the development of osteoporosis.

One major aspect--diet and calcium intake--interests DiMarco. "Whether or not a woman gets enough calcium each day is important in the prevention of arrest of osteoporosis," she explains. "Recommended dietary allowances (RDAs) established by the Food and Nutrition board of the National Academy of Sciences tell Americans what their caloric intake should be. Americans need 800 milligrams of calcium per day.

According to DiMarco, peak bone mass is achieved for women between ages 25 and 35 years of age, and diet has a direct effect. During this time, women can optimize their bone mass through a combination of nutrition and weight-bearing exercise; it is a healthy activity designed, like most exercise today, to increase cardiovascular fitness, explains DiMarco.)

Then, from ages 40 to 45, bone mass starts to decline. "Among most women, the decline in bone mass averages about one percent per year," says DiMarco. "From the nutritional point of view, women need to optimize calcium intake during peak formation."

And they need to eat or drink nutrients that have a high calcium absorption rate, which is important as well. Some foods--dairy, in particular--contain calcium that is easily absorbed by the body...milk is recommended most frequently for this reason. Some vegetables contain calcium that is less easily absorbed, and persons trying to measure their calcium intake need to keep these differences in mind.

But what does all of this information mean? It means that women should start to fight osteoporosis immediately at whatever stage of life they're in.

President's Corner

BY SHIRLEY GARRISON
HSCA President

This past month has proven to me what a great bunch of people we have in Hereford and Deaf Smith County. I want to start by telling you about some of the things that have taken place and some of the people who have helped make them happen. Some of you know we have had some parking lot drainage problems, including pot holes, around the Senior Center. The board gave the go ahead signal to get it fixed. We got bids on asphalt and concrete. Concrete seemed the best route because of poor drainage.

At this point board member L.J. Clark, retired highway engineer, took over the supervision and surveying. We soon completed the job, and recent heavy rains proved it took care of our run off water and that included overflow from Ranger Street. Thanks, L.J.--A good job. He also supervised a new parking and driving pattern which required new parking stripes. Of course all of this did not come cheap, so a maintenance fund was started within our own membership for $10,000 to cover this and other repairs. The parking lot and drainage work in the alley ran over $9,000. Thanks to all our good people the goal at press time surpassed $6,000 and is still climbing. We also want to thank Gid Brown for his help on building maintenance.

This past week was devoted to getting our Festival of Tree sponsors. In past years Ann Werner played a yeoman role, and we miss her. This year we recruited Hershel Black and Eldred Brown. Don't you know it would take two men to fill one woman's place, but they moved in fast and all sponsors will probably be in place by the time you read this article.

A big thanks to Hershel and Eldred. Also to the entire staff and all the volunteers who make Hereford Senior Center the best. We're all here to serve our seniors of Deaf Smith County.

Margie's Notes

We here at the Center are so thankful for the beautiful rains we've had the last several days. Although, when I see the damage the floods up and down the Mississippi have caused, I am thankful for our dry windy atmosphere.

I really admire John Kreigshauer for helping take a truckload of supplies to help some of those in need. I understand a list of needed items will be printed in the Brand and also on KPAN radio. When I heard John on KPAN a few days ago I was not surprised that he and his family were working on this project. They helped us last winter when the weather was so bad we had to have four-wheel drive vehicles deliver meals to our homebound. John and his family worked together delivering meals and checking on other needs of the seniors. We need to help John get his truck full!

We want to thank Mary Kocan for a special donation to the maintenance fund. She gave a sizable sum and wanted it to honor all our volunteers who help make home-delivered meals possible. She said this service means so much to her well-being.

On Aug. 10 at 1 to 1:30 p.m., Deaf Smith General Hospital will bring us a program on Physicians Directives. This program is very important, because as a patient in a Texas hospital, you have certain legal rights.

So please come and take advantage of this educational program. We want to thank the staff at Deaf Smith General Hospital for all the programs they present us to enable us to make wiser decisions for better medical care.

Coming Events

Facts

Arthritis is a disabling and occasionally crippling disease that afflicts more than 44 million Americans. Feet are most susceptible to it, as each has 33 joints which can be affected.

It's important to see a podiatrist if you notice such symptoms as swelling in one or more joints, recurring pain or tenderness in any joint, early morning stiffness or limitation of motion.

Many people who'd like to stay on the path to good foot health don't because Medicare and other health care plans do not cover preventive foot care. They only cover the more costly conditions that often develop precisely because simpler preventive measures weren't taken earlier.

News for senior citizens

Self-care with non-prescription over-the-counter (OTC) medicines is an important health care option for older Americans, who consume at least one quarter of all OTC medicines.

If you take OTC medicines from time to time, or on a regular basis, follow these safety tips from the Nonprescription Drug Manufacturers Association and the National Council on the Aging:

-Always tell your doctor all medicines you are taking. OTC medicines are serious medicines and can cause unwanted interactions with other drugs, foods or drinks.

-Read the label and follow directions carefully.

-For correct dosing, don't confuse teaspoon and tablespoon.

-Never take medicines in the dark. -Remember to keep all medicines out of the reach of children--and that includes grandchildren!

-Always check the package and the medicine itself for signs of tampering. If something looks like it may have been tampered with, don't take it--tell store personnel.

Social Security

Social Security Manager

Q. How often should I check my Social Security earnings record? Is there much of a chance that an error may occur?

A. You should check your Social Security earnings record at least once every three years. Errors in your earnings record are more likely to occur if you change jobs frequently or have more than one employer. Contact the local Social Security office or call the toll-free number: 1-800-772-1213 and ask for the "Request For Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement" (Form 7004). About a month after you send in the form, you'll receive a statement that shows your earnings as reported to SSA by your employer. Check our records against your own files. If you find an error, contact us right away with proof of your actual earnings such as a W-2 form.

Q. My son, who is disabled, receives Supplemental Security Income (SSI) checks. He wants to find a job but I'm afraid that if he goes to work, he'll lose his Medicaid benefits. Is it possible for him to work and keep his Medicaid coverage?

A. Yes. Your son may continue to qualify for Medicaid even if he earns too much to receive SSI benefits. To keep his Medicaid coverage, he must continue to be disabled, meet all other SSI eligibility requirements, be dependent on Medicaid coverage to continue working and be unable to purchase similar medical care.

Q. My 16-year-old disabled daughter, who has no income, lives with me. Is she eligible for SSI?

A. She might be. It depends on your total family income and how many other children are in the house. Your best bet is to check with Social Security at 1-800-772-1213, business days between 7 a.m. until 7 p.m.

Q. I just filed my income taxes and I am expecting a refund check. Will the return affect the amount of my SSI?

A. No, your tax refund will not affect the amount of your SSI check. However, if you save your tax refund and it puts you over the SSI resource limit ($2,000 for individuals and $3,000 for a couple) you should report it to Social Security.

Q. I've been receiving a Social Security benefit since my dad died four years ago. Although I'll be 18 in March, I won't graduate from high school until June. Will my Social Security benefit stop when I turn 18?

A. No. Social Security benefits can be paid as long as you attend high school or until the month you graduate or reach 19--whichever occurs first.

Q. Recently, I took a second job. Both my employers are deducting Social Security taxes from my wages. It seems that by year's end I will have paid more in Social Security taxes than necessary. What can I do?

A. You don't have to pay Social Security taxes on earnings over $57,600. When you file your Federal income tax, there is a section on your Form 1040 that allows you to apply for a refund of any overpayment in your Social Security tax. You continue to pay Medicare taxes on earnings up to $135,000.

Q. I suffered a disabling injury as a result of an automobile accident several years ago and began receiving Social Security disability benefits. Although my medical condition hasn't changed significantly since the accident, I'm looking for a job because I need extra income. Will my disability benefits stop immediately if I'm able to get a job?

A. No. If you return to work before there is a significant improvement in your medical condition, you may be eligible for a "trial work period." The trial work period, which may last up to nine months, allows you to test your ability to work. If you show you are able to work, you will be paid benefits for an additional three months after the end of the trial work period.

Nutrition Notes

CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD

The Food Guide Pyramid tells us that the basis of a healthful diet is to eat plenty of cereal, grains, vegetables, and fruit while consuming less fat, oil, and sweets. Few of us as children were given plates filled with plant foods and a side dish of meat. It was usually the other way around. But increasing your cereal, grain, fruit, and vegetable eating is important and is possible for everyone with a little help.

The good news is that these foods are probably the ones you like to eat. The trick is to include more of them in your daily food choices. Let us take a quick look at these food categories.

Cereal and Grains: These are part of the Bread group

*all ready-to-eat cereals and hot cereals and wheat germ

*sliced bread, pita bread, bagels, English Muffins, bread sticks, and crackers

*pasta, including spaghetti and other noodles made without whole eggs

*brown rice, white rice, barley, polenta

*popcorn (unbuttered)

Aim for the use of whole grain varieties in the cereal and bread groups.

Vegetables:

* green, leafy such as lettuce, spinach, kale, Brussels sprouts

*red, orange, and yellow such as yams, carrots, peppers, squash, cabbage

*Green beans, peas, broccoli, corn, potato, celery, cucumber, and onion

*vegetable juice

Fruit:

*citrus fruit such as oranges, grapefruits

*berries such as strawberries, blueberries, raspberries

*melons such as cantaloupe, honeydew, watermelon

*apple, pear, banana, peach, apricot, grapes, plum, nectarine, mango, kiwi

*dried fruits such as raisins, figs, prunes, apricots

*fruit juices

As discussed in earlier articles the number of daily servings of cereal, grains, vegetables, and fruit a person should eat depends on his or her calorie level for the day. The number of servings may sound like an impossible goal for you to achieve. The serving size chart listed in the July article can help as a guide for you as an individual in your selections and portion sizes. Remember to vary your choices from day to day to get more of the nutrients you need to stay healthy and fit.

Getting Creative

Here are some food preparation ideas to help you make the switch to high cereal, grain, vegetable, and fruit eating.

1. Have two vegetable-and-grain main meals each week:

Try rice and beans; vegetable stir-fry and rice; tortellini salad; bean filled tacos and tortillas; hearty vegetable-rice soup with low fat crackers.

2. Sprinkle cereal or wheat germ on ice milk or low fat yogurt. Or add berries or chopped fruit to these frozen desserts.

3. Add lots of celery, zucchini, green peppers, mushrooms, and onions to tomato-based pasta sauce.

4. Eat fruit salad as an appetizer or with your low-fat cake or cookies at dessert.

5. Prepare tuna and chicken salads with celery, grapes, chopped red peppers, or apple pieces. Enjoy these salads with low-fat crackers.

6. Dip fish or skinless chicken first in low-fat milk, egg white, or cholesterol-free egg substitute and then in crushed cereal before baking.

7. Use whole-grain bread or cracker crumbs, oatmeal, or crushed oat bran cereal in your meatloaf or hamburgers.

8. Dip pretzel chips or baked tortilla chips in salsa or other low fat dips.

Remember when you add plant products to your diet, be sure to drink a variety of fluids to maintain proper elimination. This is recommended whether you feel thirsty or not. Approximately eight (8) glasses of water or other nonalcoholic beverages each day will do the trick.

Don't Forget:

To maintain a healthy diet it is essential to eat adequate servings from the remaining food groups (milk and meat groups).

See your doctor if...

A new study reported in the New England Journal of Medicine has discovered that Peripheral Arterial Disease (PAD-blood circulation problems brought on by the hardening of the arteries) can increase the risk of heart disease by five times for people over 60. The study determined that PAD screening is more important than cholesterol testing for that growing population segment, although PAD can strike at any age. Four million people, or about 12 percent of Americans over 60, currently have some level of PAD.

However, results of this ten-year study also indicate that a simple test in the doctor's office can lead to quick diagnosis of PAD, which is often easily treated.

Recently, new systems for PAD screening have been developed that are as easy as having your blood pressure checked. Family practice physicians, internists, cardiologists and other specialists are increasingly using new testing techniques in support of a nation wide "Get Your Pipes Checked" campaign, which encourages patients to request a PAD screening during each visit to the doctor's office.

Dr. Michael Criqui, who led the PAD research team at the University of California at San Diego, stated, "The data demonstrates how new testing techniques can define the presence of PAD more precisely than before."

"Not since discovering the dangers of abnormal cholesterol has a study revealed more clearly that PAD risk requires the intervention and treatment of primary care physicians," said Dr. Charles Kilo, former chairman of The National Council on the Aging's PAD Advisory Council and associate professor of clinical medicine, Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis. "The best way to fight PAD is to recognize and act on its early symptoms."

However, according to Dr. Criqui, less than half of PAD patients have typical symptoms. "That's why a simple office test may be important," he said. The good news is that preventive measures can save lives and reduce healthcare costs by discovering and managing PAD earlier. Nationwide PAD screening may complement President Clinton's healthcare reform plans by reducing Medicare costs for hospitalizations and surgeries.

Risk indicators for PAD include hypertension, smoking, obesity or a family history of cardiovascular disease or diabetes. In its early stages, PAD may cause pain in the legs during walking, which usually subsides during rest.

"The combination of proper diet, exercise, medication and giving up smoking can control PAD before it becomes a serious problem," explained Dr. Kilo. "But first, get your pipes checked. PAD testing is easy, painless and can save your life."

Many experts agree that preventive foot care by a skilled podiatrist could save people of all ages from more costly medical treatments such as surgery, even amputation. It could also keep many people healthy enough to work--a blessing for employers, employees and all taxpayers who support unemployment and other social services programs.

Beat brittle bones

Prevention is an important focus of health and medicine today.

We now know that many diseases can be avoided by practicing healthy lifestyles. Osteoporosis, a bone disease in older people that can lead to hip, wrist and spine fractures, is one disease for which changes in behavior can have a significant impact.

During the first half of life, up until about age 30, human bones grow heavier and stronger by small amounts of old bone being removed and larger amounts of new bone being added. Around age 30, this process begins to slow down and reverse. By the time women reach menopause, almost no new bone is added and some bone is lost.

This bone loss in older people generally doesn't cause problems. Osteoporosis, however, speeds up the bone loss, causing the walls of the bones to become thinner and the inner bone material to become less dense. These brittle, weak bones tend to fracture and break easily. Each year 1.2 million fractures are caused by osteoporosis, and many of these lead to long-term disability and even death from complications.

Many more women than men develop osteoporosis because female bones are smaller and lighter. Women lose bone faster than men because the hormone estrogen, which is produced in large quantities during childbearing years, is believed to protect against bone loss. After menopause, production of estrogen is markedly reduced.

Other factors that put a woman at risk for developing osteoporosis include having a family history of the disease, eating a diet low in calcium, smoking, drinking, and not getting enough weight-bearing exercise. Certain medications, such as blood thinners, also increase bone loss.

Although bone loss cannot be stopped or reversed, it can be slowed down by making bones stronger. Starting when you are young, eat a calcium-rich diet or take a calcium supplement. Exercise by walking, jogging or doing low-impact aerobics. Reduce or avoid the use of alcohol and don't smoke.

Because lack of estrogen after menopause is a major factor in developing osteoporosis, doctors recommend hormone replacement therapy for patients likely to develop brittle bones. A woman usually starts taking the medication around menopause and continues for a number of years, even decades. Hormone replacement cannot be taken by all women. Check with your doctor to see if the treatment would be beneficial for you.

Some day scientists may discover the secret to helping bones rebuild. Until then, your best protection is to eat right, exercise and avoid unhealthy behaviors.

Strep throat is dangerous because it can lead to rheumatic fever. Although rare, this fever can attack the heart and other parts of the body. This can be avoided by taking a prescribed antibiotic. Also, a rare form of throat infection called epiglottitis is life-threatening for children.

Cancer screening vital for older women

The older you get, the more reason you have for getting screened for cancer.

Older women are at much higher risk of developing breast cancer and of dying from this disease than are their younger counterparts. Studies show the cancer mortality rate for women 65 years or older has increased 11 percent in the past 15 years.

Fortunately, doctors see an answer. "The potential to decrease mortality is available to us," says Mary E. Costanza, M.D., Professor of Medicine at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center. "With widespread and regular use of screening mammography and clinical breast exams, experts estimate that breast cancer deaths can be decreased by 30 percent."

The changes in the health and longevity of Americans these days make it more important than ever that the country take the steps needed now to ensure that more and more women age 65 and older have breast cancer screening, say the experts at the National Cancer Institute.

"By 2015, 15 percent of the American population will be over 65," reports Dr. Costanza. "The implication of this in terms of breast cancer incidence and mortality is staggering; breast cancer is already of epidemic proportions; the incidence rises sharply with age; the oldest segment of our society is increasing at the fastest rate."

Spotlight on health

Amid the debate over the future of the U.S. healthcare system many people have forgotten just how good the quality of care really is.

Most hospitals and doctors' offices use state of the art equipment to help diagnose and treat illnesses and conditions. Many diseases that were once greatly feared are now easily cured or prevented. The problem is, of course, paying for this care.

Fortunately, for many people not having the cash on hand may no longer be a problem.

In an increasing number of hospitals, clinics, doctors' offices and the like, you don't have to remember to bring cash, a check or even your health insurance forms to get the medical attention you need when you need it. Now, you can pay for your healthcare with a credit card.

There are more good reasons to ask your doctors, dentists and hospitals if they accept credit cards:

-Many insurance plans are increasing their deductible and co-payment amounts, leaving patient with higher out-of-pocket expenses. By paying with a credit card, you can delay or spread out your payments in a way that's most convenient for you.

-You can seek healthcare based on need, not on whether you have the cash on hand to pay for it.

-You have a convenient method of paying and a record of what you paid and when.

-Paying with a particular card can actually reduce your medical expenses. Users of such a card can receive a cashback bonus of up to one percent on each purchase based on their annual purchases. With the high cost of healthcare, that amount can be significant.

The odds of getting cancer

Although women age 65 and over get breast cancer more often than women under 65, they are less likely to think they will get this disease.

HUDSON WATER VALVE

Introducing the Hudson Valve

A valve specifically designed to control the flow of water in tanks and troughs automatically. Anytime. Anywhere. This high volume, full flowing valve is protected by its own multi-functional bell shaped body of glass reinforced nylon resin. It eliminates malfunctions and costly time and expense in repairs and maintenance. It not only ends flooding, breakdown and water loss, it also does away with breakage of floats, balls and lever arms by livestock. The positive shut-off feature functions in a 5 psi to 150 psi water pressure range. The valve is rustproof, anti siphon and installs in seconds.

ADAMS HARD-FACING CO.

ADAMS Wheatland Sweeps are manufactured from 1080 high carbon steel, heat-treated and oil quenched for extra wear and durability. All ADAMS Wheatland Sweeps have flanged shanks with the flange extending into the body to the sweep for additional strength to the sweep. Most Wheatland sweeps are offered in either "medium" or "low" crown, with the low crown sweep usually being requested where minimal soil movement is desired.
