HISD board splits on seeking AG opinion on survey release

By JERI CURTIS
Managing Editor

John Fuston, Steve Coneway, and Bud Patterson want to see it released.

Marilyn Culpepper and Bill Townsend do not.

Cal Jones and Jo Garcia were absent.

The saga of the - a) controversial, b) unprofessional, c) professional, d) invalid, e) valid ... z) all or some of the above - survey of teachers in the Hereford Independent School District continues.

Discussion at Tuesday's regular board meeting centered again around the release of a school-by-school breakdown of the survey results and the release of questions and answers concerning teachers' opinions of a working relationship between themselves and three named district employees.

The survey was conducted several months ago under approval of a joint committee of parents and board members, then released in part at a board meeting on March 19. The released survey deleted portions which mentioned specific names of administrators.

At that meeting, then-president Bill Townsend said the material would be forwarded to the Texas Association of School Boards for legal advisement on liability of such a release.

The letter from the TASB, dated April 22, indicated that "a simple answer" could not be found. The letter said that most survey information is public, but an earlier attorney general ruling did not address any issues which could be raised from a violation of a liberty interest which might result from the naming of an individual person.

The TASB recommended that the compilation of responses and the overall totals be released to the public, with the exception of the questions regarding named individuals.

It added that the "custodian of records" had the authority to request a more definitive opinion from the attorney general.

Townsend told the board that he was against any release of the survey if it regarded personnel and said he was ready to start dealing with solving the problem.

Fuston replied that the board was trying to be part of the solution by using the survey, and that he had no problem with the release because the surveys of the elementary teachers "can tell us something."

Coneway indicated that maybe part of the problem is with personnel in the district.

Townsend said releasing those specifics would be "risky." He said he agreed to the board taking the information and solving the problems,

3 for, 2 against but did oppose public release.

Coneway then questioned why the delay in action on the letter, since it was dated over a month ago. Townsend said he received it shortly after the last board meeting and saw no reason to call a special meeting for it.

The letter was addressed to Townsend and when another board member contacted the TASB for a copy, he was told that Townsend was the client. At the time the request was made, Townsend was the school board president.

Patterson requested that the board ask the state attorney general for an opinion. Coneway seconded the motion. Fuston joined those two in the vote and Culpepper and Townsend voted against seeking the opinion.

The board expects an opinion to be rendered in about 30 days.

In other action, the board voted to allow transfer students from Walcott to attend Hereford's upper grade schools tuition free. Walcott superintendent Eddie Derr was present with Walcott board president Eldred Brown.

Last year the tuition was $632 for a

Respiratory failure takes Quinlan life

MORRIS PLIANS, N.J. (AP) - Karen Ann Quinlan, who found death in the arms of her weeping mother more than nine years after her case established the right to die with dignity, fulfilled a purpose "far beyond what she could have suspected," her bishop said.

Miss Quinlan, 31, died at 7:01 p.m. Tuesday in the Morris View Nursing Home of "respiratory failure following acute pneumonia on top of a chronic vegetative state," said Dr. James Wolf.

Julia and Joseph Quinlan, her deeply religious parents who were daily visitors to her bedside, went into seclusion after the death.

The Quinlans in 1976 won a landmark court order allowing them to remove a respirator from Karen to spare her continued "agony" and to honor her expressed wish never to be kept alive through extraordinary means.

The historic case began when Miss Quinlan lapsed into a coma on April 15, 1975, apparently after consuming several gin and tonic drinks at a party after taking what doctors said was a "therapeutic" dose of a mild tranquilizer and aspirin.

Although she never knew it, Miss Quinlan became a symbol of the right of the terminally ill to decide their fates with their families.

"She had been embraced...as someone with whom the world could empathize," said Paul Armstrong, the family lawyer who argued the case.

The moment of death was "one of great reverence and sense of loss that I could read in Julia's face, who was embracing Karen and was weeping quietly," said Armstrong, who was at the nursing home.

Miss Quinlan developed pneumonia five days ago and "in the last 36 hours, it certainly seemed like she was in more distress than in any of her last 10 years," Wolf said.

No antibiotics were administered, although a non-prescription drug was given to reduce the fever, and by late afternoon, death was "clearly imminent," the doctor said.

Monsignor Thomas Trapasso, the family's spiritual adviser, described the Quinlans as "in some sense relieved" because Karen's death "had always been on their minds."

"Karen Ann Quinlan's 10-year sleep is over and God has called her home," said Bishop Frank J. Rodimer of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Paterson, to which the Quinlans belonged.

"Her tragic accident and her parents' persistence in doing what was morally correct have resulted in a clearer perception as to how we should treat those in the same situation that Karen was in. She had a purpose in life far beyond what she could have suspected."

The Quinlans went to court after doctors said Miss Quinlan would never return to a "cognitive state" but refused to disconnect the respirator.

Lake board okays Stewart Dike, for now

Buffalo Lake Water District board members have decided the existence of Stewart Dike is okay for now—but if and when the main dam is repaired they want the smaller structure to go.

That decision was reached by a five to one vote at Tuesday's regular meeting of the board in the Randall County Commissioners Courtroom in Canyon. According to Deaf Smith County board member Garth Thomas, the lone dissenter when the vote was taken, the board will support the Fish and Wildlife Service's application for an amendment to the Texas Department of Water Resources permit which allowed the construction of the dike on the southwest end of the lake.

But, Thomas added, the board will go along with the dike only if three "qualifications" are agreed to by F&WS. The lake board is expected to present its position at a July 2 hearing on the application to be conducted in Canyon by the Texas Department of Water Resources.

The first qualification, according to Thomas, is that the Stewart Dike be removed upon repair of the Umbarger Dam at the opposite end of the lake. The lake has been dry since 1979 when the spillway was declared to be deficient, and the Bureau of Reclamation has recommended that the dam be repaired to alleviate the possibility of flooding of homes and businesses downstream on the Tierra Blanca Creek.

The F&WS widened and repaired Stewart Dike last summer so that water for migratory waterfowl and other wildlife common to the area could be impounded. According to board secretary Charles Johnson, Buffalo Lake complex Manager Rodney Krey made it plain at Tuesday's meeting that F&WS wants the dam to stay no matter what.

"He told us that Stewart Dike is the heart of the refuge," Johnson said this morning. "He said if F&WS ever has to remove Stewart Dike, the refuge would revert to what they call custodial care." Krey could not be reached for comment this morning.

The second stipulation, Thomas said, is that the F&WS modify its general management plan to allow more public access and public recreation areas. While the service has created new picnic and camping areas during the past year, it would still prefer to keep public recreation a low priority as compared with maintaining the refuge as a wildlife habitat.

Finally, the water board is asking the F&WS to establish a date to begin construction and repair of the main dam. Money to repair the dam has not been appropriated, and Congressman Beau Boulter has told the board he is not in favor of spending any federal money on the project.

Thomas, explaining why he voted against the stipulations, said, "I don't think you can establish a date when you're depending on the action of the Congress."

Regarding Stewart Dike, Thomas said he believes the dike, or a similar structure, "is a must, even if or when the main dam is repaired. It is needed to provide water for migratory waterfowl."

Thomas agrees with F&WS that a significant body of shallow water must be maintained because migratory birds prefer shallow water.

Johnson, however, claims that contouring the lake bed according to a plan proposed by the board would provide shallow water around the edges of the lake.

The announcement that Swift Independent Packing Company will close its plant here Saturday came as a big blow to the Hereford business community. While there is no way to shrug off the loss of jobs and payroll, along with related business activity, we can still point to a lot of positive things happening in the community.

While a minority of pessimists have talked "gloom and doom" the past year because of a depressed economy, the community has shown its faith in the future by supporting the building of a million-dollar YM-CA facility and one of the finest Senior Citizen Centers in the state.

And the community has some major business projects on the drawing board. The new Smith Food & Drug Center and shopping center is planned to start construction next month at Hwy. 385 and 15th Street; Furr's has announced plans for a new Save 'N' Gain supermarket on Hwy. 385 across from Sugarland Mall; new apartments for senior citizens are planned on 15th Street; and the Valley View Energy plant is still set for construction east of town.

While there's never much publicity, much by request of prospects, the industrial development committee of Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce is always seeking new industries for the city and county. Hereford was a candidate for the new Wal-Mart distribution center, but Plainview got the plum with some concessions not revealed. It will employ 400 the first year of operation and up to 1,000 after four years.

The point is, despite a setback, we've got to keep hustling!

Baptists reconcile, edgy notes remain

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AF Religion Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Signs of reconciliation pervaded the record-size Southern Baptist Convention today, bolstered by a strong pledge of cooperation by new top officers from both sides in the keen feuding between fundamentalists and moderates.

But edgy notes remained. Shortly after the vast convention on Tuesday re-elected the fundamentalist incumbent, the Rev. Charles Stanley as president, it overwhelmed ingly elected his moderate opponent, the Rev. Winfred Moore, as first vice president.

Arms about each other's shoulders, they pledged close teamwork in leading the nation's largest Protestant denomination, which has been wracked by sharp dissension between moderate and fundamentalist factions.

"I think we'll get along great," said Stanley, 52, an Atlanta pastor. He told a news conference his heart had immediately warmed toward Moore when they first met recently and that he was "more than willing" to work with him.

Moore, 65, an Amarillo, Texas, pastor, defeated by Stanley for the top office by a vote of 24,453 to 19,795, said, "I think you're going to see everybody in this convention coming closer together than you've ever seen them before."

An additional conciliatory move came in a "crisis-solution" report before the convention today, backed both by Stanley and Moore and calling for a "peace committee" made up of representatives of both sides in the struggle.

If approved, it would investigate points at issue, involving agencies, seminaries and other units of the 14.3 million-member denomination, and bring in recommendations for resolving them at the convention next year.

Nevertheless, hints of continuing strains surfaced in a rash of resolutions facing the 44,000 "messengers" from congregations across the country, nearly twice the total ever attending an annual assembly in the denomination's 140-year history.

There also were some firmly unswerving notes in Stanley's post-election remarks, particularly about seminaries that fundamentalists have charged are infected with liberalism about the Bible.

Asked if he would do anything to make professors toe the line, he said there are "limitations to academic freedom" which also "needs accountability."

He said it would be up to the "peace committee" to deal with the situation, adding, "I think we do have problems. We need to deal with them honestly, openly and in a Christ-like fashion."

Questioned repeatedly about links with the Rev. Jerry Falwell, head of Moral Majority of which Stanley was an officer until a year ago, Stanley said they are friends and share numerous stands on social issues.

However, Stanley emphasized he took those stands, such as opposing abortion and favoring prayer in public schools, as an individual "strong Christian citizen and not a right-winger."

Asked his view of a proposal to modify the bylaws by which the president appoints a key committee that indirectly determines trustees of denominational institutions so as to spread authority to three top officers, he said: "I think it should remain just like it is."

That presidential sway over the makeup of institutional trustees is what has injected partisan passions into the contest for the top office. (See BAPTISTS, Page 2A)

Stolen truck used in Boys Ranch escape

Hereford police and sheriff's deputies discovered a stolen vehicle in Hereford Tuesday which had been used by three teenage boys making their escape from the Boy's Ranch near Vega.

A black Datsun pickup had been taken from the ranch, then left on Avenue G Tuesday morning. The trio drove away in a 1976 Chevrolet Monte Carlo belonging to Gilbert Rodriguez, 436 Ave. G.

The boys then proceeded to Plainview, the Hereford police report said, where they were involved in a minor accident. Rodriguez' car sustained minor damage and the boys were taken into custody.

Police also investigated several thefts locally. A tool box and tools valued at $445 were taken from a vehicle owned by Travis Lovvorn, 122 East 15th Street.

Mr. Burger East was burglarized after intruders broke out a window and entered the business. Candy and a screwdriver were taken and police found the screwdriver at the Dairy Queen when they investigated an unlawful entry there. Apparently nothing was taken from the Dairy Queen.

Sheriff's deputies investigated the theft of three goats, valued at a total of $165, from Ramon Guzman of 825 Knight.

Hereford Volunteer Firemen made one run, to wash down spilled gas.

R-rated movies shown in class

VIDOR, Texas (AP) — Plans to repeal this city's pornography ordinance aren't related to last week's complaints that some teachers violated the rule by showing R-rated movies in classrooms, a city official said.

"This is just something that needs to be brought to the attention of the council. The school issue is just something that's caught the public's attention," said city attorney Jerry Hatton.

Last week, Vidor resident Virginia Payne filed a complaint stating that teachers at Vidor Junior High School violated the ordinance by showing pornographic movies to students.

Ms. Payne specifically said an R-rated movie shown to seventh-graders was pornographic. The movie, "Whose Life Is It Anyway," is about a man wrestling with a terminal illness, and about his demands to die without interference.

Since the complaint, the school board has adopted a policy requiring school administrators to approve all R- and PG-rated movies before they can be shown in class.

Mayor Dru Stephenson told the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal he favors repealing the ordinance because it duplicates state statutes. The City Council, which passed the city ordinance in December, will vote on the rule's repeal Thursday, he said.

The statute bans the sale and display of pornography, and specifically prohibits the showing of obscene material to children aged 17 or under.

DALLAS (AP) — A group claiming it will stage a parade in honor of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, is under investigation by the attorney general's office because no such event has been planned.

Assistant Attorney General Steve Gardner said his office has had several complaints concerning Rainbow Inc., a group that apparently is using the names of famous black people to solicit money it claims to need to have a parade in Dallas honoring King.

Donations from several states ranging from $3,000 to $10,000 have been given to the group, Gardner said.

But no parade is planned in Dallas for the slain black civil rights leader, said Lloyd Davis, executive director of the Federal Holiday Commission.

Davis also said Rainbow Inc. appears to be using the names of several black celebrities, sports figures and politicians without permission.

A spokesman for music star Stevie Wonder, who is listed in Rainbow Inc. literature as the honorary chairman of a "National Advisory Committee" of black leaders, said Wonder knows nothing about the organization.

"They have no right to use Stevie's name in connection with any fund raising," said Ira Tucker, Wonder's publicist. "If they don't stop, we'll request a cease and desist and we'll file a lawsuit."

City of Dallas officials told the Dallas Times Herald that Rainbow Inc. does not have a permit to solicit funds for a Martin Luther King Day Parade.

Calls by The Associated Press to Rainbow Inc. offices Tuesday for comment were not returned.

$103.9 million granted for job training

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White said Tuesday that $103.9 million had been allocated to 34 areas in the state for job training programs under the Job Training Partnership Act.

The Texas Department of Community Affairs will contract with local groups to prepare economically disadvantaged Texans for jobs.

Of the total amount, $77.1 million will go to provide job training and other services to teen-agers and adults. The remainder, $26.7 million will be designated for summer youth employment programs.

Survivors ask Reagan to visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Japanese who survived atomic blasts in 1945 asked President Reagan to visit Hiroshima on Aug. 6, the 40th anniversary of the bombing, but the White House says Reagan has no plans to travel to Japan in August.

The survivors' group, the Japan Confederation of A- and H-Bomb Sufferers Organizations, also invited Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to attend the anniversary.

At a news conference in Washington on Tuesday, Senji Yamaguchi, who was 15 when a bomb was dropped on Nagasaki, talked of his physical disorders since 1945. The United States dropped the bombs at Hiroshima and Nagasaki at the end of World War II, killing roughly 200,000 people.

Child molesters use home computers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says many child molesters and pornographers are communicating through home computers, and a senator says he has drafted a bill to make the practice illegal.

"Like advertisements in 'swinger magazines,'" pedophiles use electronic bulletin boards to find each other, special agent Kenneth V. Lanning, of the FBI behavioral science unit, told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee on Tuesday.

Sen. Paul Trible, R-Va., told the subcommittee on security and terrorism he planned to introduce a bill shortly which would ban such activity.

But Victoria Toensing, a deputy assistant attorney general, said any statute banning transmission of simple descriptive information about juveniles would pose "serious constitutional problems" if no obscene or pornographic writings were involved.

Film portrays Andropov as refined man

MOSCOW (AP) — A new documentary film about the late President Yuri V. Andropov portrays the former chief of the KGB secret police as a refined man who wrote poetry to his wife and a committed Communist who fought imperialism.

"Y.V. Andropov, Pages of a Life," publicly screened for the first time Tuesday night, chronicles Andropov's life in an unusually personal manner, including interviews with his family and visits to his country dacha and Moscow apartment.

Andropov's role as Soviet ambassador to Hungary during the 1956 uprising there was recalled by Hungarian Communist Party leader Janos Kadar, who formed a counter-government that with Soviet troops eventually suppressed the anti-Stalinist revolt.

How much did spying hurt?

WASHINGTON (AP) — As soon as John A. Walker Jr. was arrested in suburban Rockville, Md., and charged with espionage, the Navy began its detective work, trying to answer the question, "How much were we hurt?"

Within hours, Navy investigators were poring through Walker's service records, checking his duty stations and assignments and beginning the long process of interviewing his neighbors and friends.

As more arrests followed in the widening ring, Rear Adm. John L. Butts, director of naval intelligence, was appointed to head a 35-member board charged with coordinating the activities of investigators and producing a damage assessment.

Working late into the night behind locked doors on the Pentagon's top floor, the panel sifted through the reports of investigators, talked with Navy experts on tactics and operations, and came up with an answer for top Pentagon officials to the question of how much damage was done.

That answer, provided Tuesday by Adm. James Watkins, chief of naval operations, was "serious" but "not catastrophic." Navy Secretary John Lehman said that while U.S. ships and weapons were safe, overcoming the security loss would cost "many millions of dollars."

The damage assessment given at a Pentagon news conference capped three weeks of intense work by investigators.

They began their answer on the worst case assumption, Watkins said.

"We always consider the worst case," he said. That means the service figured that any sensitive information that could have been passed was actually given to the Soviets.

For Pentagon investigators, the chief fear involved missile-firing submarines, the "boomers" that form the heart of America's nuclear arsenal.

Superior American technology has made the giant boats invulnerable to Soviet detection — and thus attack — and Walker's service aboard two subs in the 1960s, along with his tour at an onshore sub communications facility, raised concern that the subs might have become more vulnerable.

Watkins laid that fear to rest. The U.S. subs, he said, "are still 100 percent survivable," which means they couldn't be knocked out by a Soviet nuclear strike. "There is no indication that the Soviets have broken the code of how to detect" U.S. subs, he said.

The worst damage, Watkins said, involved communications, including codes and the design and operation of some sophisticated equipment. Much of that information is "perishable," which is the Pentagon's term for information that changes often enough so that it is not particularly valuable.

The main value to the Soviets of the information furnished by the spying, Watkins said, would be to "let them better understand what they've observed."

The two superpowers constantly monitor each other's military activities, and information about the U.S. intentions could be put together with observations by the Soviets to come up with a more accurate picture of what the United States might do during wartime.

But the Navy already is moving to limit the damage, Watkins said. "Tactics will have to be modified," he said, without explaining what those tactics were or how they would be modified.

Plane blown up after hostages let go

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Hijackers of a Jordanian airliner today released 66 passengers and crew, including two Americans, then blew up the plane with eight Jordanian sky marshals aboard, airport officials reported.

There were conflicting reports, however, that the hijackers took the eight sky marshals with them as hostages when they fled the plane. The hijackers' whereabouts was not known.

The hijackers raked the plane with automatic weapons fire, then two explosions rocked the Boeing 727 and set it on fire as it stood on the airport runway, witnesses said.

"The eight security men were left aboard the plane when it was blown up. They went up with the aircraft," one official told The Associated Press on condition he not be identified. The hijackers "disappeared," he said.

However, the pilot of the hijacked airliner, Capt. Ulf Sultan, a Swede, told The Associated Press soon after the plane was blown up that the eight Jordanian sky marshals "were not aboard the plane when it was blown up."

"We have been assured by the hijackers that they are safe," he said.

The plane was hijacked in Beirut on Tuesday, stopped in Cyprus, tried twice to land in Tunisia, refueled in Sicily, returned to Beirut, attempted to fly to Syria and then came back to Beirut Tuesday night.

agreement regarding the future of the smaller dam, Thomas said there was "a real effort toward harmony between the board and the F&WS in evidence."

The water board met in Canyon because Krey told them last month they would no longer be welcome at the refuge headquarters if they continued to oppose the dike. However Krey announced Tuesday night that the service had reconsidered and would allow future meetings at its building south of Umbarger.

Thomas said the Buffalo Lake board has not yet obtained a copy of the amendment recently passed by the Texas Legislature which would allow it to conduct elections in November. State Sen. Bill Sarpalus initiated the amendment at the board's request, because the legislation written to establish the board provided only for April elections.

Thomas said that because the voters did not approve a tax issue in November 1983 when the permanent board was created, the board has no money to pay for April elections. The amendment would allow board members to be voted on during November countywide elections when expenses would be minimal.

The board also intends to again ask for a tax appropriation during the November election, to fund increased public recreation at the lake area and support board activities.

Derr told the board that the students moving from Walcott would probably be an advantage to Hereford since the average daily attendance determines funding for a school. The ADA allowance for each student is about twice what the tuition charge was. Walcott would continue to provide transportation for the students.

The board voted to purchase an outdoor carpeting from Modern Carpet in Dimmitt, at a price of $7,023.05, for the all-purpose building being constructed near the field house. An Etahafoam carpet pad will be purchased from A.E. Quest and Sons in Lubbock at a price of $6,321.

Coneyway abstained on the vote. In other formal business, the board voted to allow Family Cancer Plan, sold by James Self, to be allowed on the payroll deduction for district employees.

The board accepted the resignations of Velma Arroyos, Lesley Woodard, Rebecca Rudd, and Linda Cox.

Approved for employment were Bertha Celaya, Carrie Dippel, Sue Thornton, Sarah Lawson, Don Summersgill, Janet Princ, Cuca Ortega and Kris Adams.

During a public comment time, Margaret Marshall told the board of a testing situation in which her child was not placed in the proper class and had been tested twice for reading readiness although he had been determined as ready the first time. She also noted that the group he was in was determined to be "moving too quickly" and thus had its reading limited.

She appealed to the board to stop being indecisive, suggested an administrative resource person be appointed to clarify the curriculum and help teachers adapt, and use the school board meetings as a public forum.

Dr. Harrell Holder, administrator, later urged that all board committees "get active" in the next two weeks.

with moderates claiming the strife stemmed from a fundamentalist drive for power.

On the other hand, fundamentalists claimed the dispute involved views of doctrine and campaigned for curbing what they called liberal trends about the Bible in Southern Baptist institutions.

Fundamentalists have held the presidential office for six years, gaining expanded strength among trustees. The new term for Stanley indicated further gains in those governing spots.

Stanley, asked why he had ignored consultation with state officers as promised in his key committee appointments last year, said he had consulted them, and they made many suggestions. But he added:

"I had personal opinions of my own." He said only he had responsibility to make the appointments, and he felt it wise to follow his judgments. A survey of state officers found their suggestions largely ignored.

However, Stanley said there was a "greater spirit of cooperation" at the convention than in the past, and that participants are "more sensitive than ever" toward one another.

He said, "we should look for every way of respecting and accepting one another. I don't mean we have to agree. But we need to accept one another as persons."

"We still need to get over this hump of rejection and criticism," Stanley said.

Miami claims College World Series title

By TOM VINT Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The Miami Hurricanes, billed by Coach Ron Fraser as the "happiest team in America," were overjoyed with the results of their final game of 1985.

"This is a special team, unlike any other we've had," said Fraser after the Hurricanes downed Texas 10-6 in the NCAA College World Series Tuesday night. "We've had better talent, but this team had the chemistry and that's what made the difference. This team didn't know how to lose."

Miami made use of five Texas errors, including four in the first three innings, to jump to a 6-0 lead, and the sixth-ranked Hurricanes never looked back.

Greg Ellena, selected the tournament's most valuable player, had four of the Hurricanes' 14 hits as Miami ended a 64-16 season with its second national title. Miami won its first title in 1982.

"This one feels better than the first one," said Fraser. "I thought we did what we had to do tonight — go out there and score some runs. We didn't feel we could win a 2-1 game."

Miami did win a 2-1 game with two unearned runs against Texas Sunday night. The teams were rained out Monday.

The rest gave relief ace Rick Raether a needed breather to strengthen his tired arm. He went 3 1-3 innings Saturday in a 6-5 win aided by Ellena's two-run, game-winning homer over Mississippi State and pitched 3 1-3 in the 2-1 win over Texas to pick up his second series victory.

Kevin Sheary, Miami's starting pitcher and 7-4 on the season, picked up his third tournament win with 6 2-3 innings against the Longhorns.

Texas, ranked third and finishing 64-14, was runner-up for a second straight year. The Longhorns were beaten 3-1 in the title match with Fullerton State a year ago after winning the 1983 championship.

Miami became the fifth team to come out of the losers' bracket to win two straight games against the winners' bracket champ. The last team to accomplish that feat was Southern Cal against Arizona State in 1972.

Texas Tech youth sports camps set

Sports camps for youth interested in volleyball, basketball, baseball, golf, and soccer have been scheduled at Texas Tech University.

Girls in the fifth through eighth grades may participate in the Red Raider Girls' Basketball Camp on July 21-26. The camp, which has a registration fee of $175, will be instructed by Texas Tech head coach Marsha Sharp, Tech assistant coach Linden Weese, and Diana Lewis, a member of the Tech coaching staff.

The Red Raider Girls' Volleyball Camp is scheduled July 1-5 for junior high school and senior high school athletes. The camp will include game-like situations and will end with a tournament.

A separate camp section is included for volleyball coaches. A fee of $170 includes room, board and medical insurance.

Youth ages 10 and older may register for the Red Raider Baseball Camp, with sessions on July 14-18, and July 28 to Aug. 1. Individual and group instruction will be offered for all defensive positions, and for offensive skills, with emphasis on hitting.

Instructor for the baseball camps is Gary Ashby, Texas Tech baseball coach. A $190 registration fee includes room and board, and a $130 fee is available for commuting participants.

The Junior Golf Academy is set at the Texas Tech University Center at Junction on July 29 to Aug. 2. Junior high school and senior high school students may register for this camp.

Instruction will include one-on-one lessons, videotaping of student play, and subsequent critique sessions.

The registration fees are $159 for boarders and $99 for commuters.

Youth ages 6 to 19 may sign up for the Texas Soccer Academy, scheduled for July 29 to Aug. 2. Instructions will be based on age and ability.

Each youth will receive a written evaluation of performance, potential and recommended work emphasis. Instructional sessions from 9 a.m. to noon cost $75, and a 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. tactical session is available for an addition charge of $25.

Golf tournament set in Lubbock

A golf tournament, known as the "Tee Off Fore A Cure" tournament, has been scheduled on Monday, July 1 by the Leukemia Society of American, Panhandle-Plains Area Office of Lubbock.

The tournament will be played at Lakeridge Country Club, located at 8802 Vicksburg in Lubbock. The event begins at 1:30 p.m.

Donny Anderson, former Texas Tech running back, is honorary chairman of the tournament. The purpose of the tournament is to raise fund for leukemia research programs.

Entry fee is $75 per person for the 18-hole tournament to be played with "Florida Scramble" rules. There will be prizes, complimentary range balls, and a barbecue dinner after tournament play is over.

To register for the tournament, or for more information, call the Leukemia Society of America office in Lubbock at (806) 793-4499.

"The Leukemia Society of America is a national voluntary health agency dedicated solely to seeking the cause and eventual cure of leukemia and allied diseases," said Delaina McCall, area director.

"The society supports five major programs—research, financial assistance to patients, public and professional education, and community service," McCall adds.

Movie to be made on Akeem Olajuwon

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston Rocket Akeem Olajuwon sold the rights for a movie on his life and production plans are under way, the player's spokesman said.

Writer-producer Ronald M. Cohen, who created the ABC series, "Call to Glory," will direct the movie, Olajuwon's spokesman Milton Kahn said Tuesday.

"They're going to go to Africa to shoot it where he was born in Lagos, Nigeria," he said.

The movie will begin at age 16, when Olajuwon first read a story on Los Angeles Laker basketball player, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, and decided he, too, wanted to be a basketball player, Kahn said.

Cohen said he was finalizing the movie plans and would not disclose the studio company, name of the movie or who would be starring.

State Trapshooting Champion

Shawn Sciumbato of Hereford holds the cup he was awarded after winning the state handicap championship in the sub-junior division at the Texas State Trapshooting Tournament in Amarillo.

Hereford boy wins state trapshooting title

A 13-year-old Hereford boy won the handicap championship in the sub-junior division at the Texas State Trapshooting Tournament Sunday in Amarillo.

Shawn Sciumbato, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sciumbato, recorded a score of 94 out of a possible 100 in the regular competition to tie for first place with a boy from Wichita Falls.

In a shootoff for the division championship, Shawn hit 22 of 25 targets, one more than his opponent.

Entrants in the sub-junior division shoot in the handicap position from the 19-yard line. The Texas State Trapshooting Tournament was held last week from Tuesday through Sunday at the Amarillo Gun Club. Trapshooters from throughout the nation competed in the Amateur Trapshooting Association event.

Shawn, who has participated in trapshooting for two years, was ranked 13th in the state in the sub-junior division at the Texas state 4-H trapshooting tournament last year in San Antonio.

Shawn and his brother Audy, who is now 11 years old, were ranked fifth as a team last year in the state 4-H trapshooting tournament.

A member of the Hereford Gun Club, Shawn is also a member of the Deaf Smith County 4-H Shooting Sports Club.

Shawn is a student at La Plata Junior High School and will be in eighth grade next school year. His school activities include football and band.

Phillies end team slump, clobber Mets 26-7

By DICK BRINSTER

AP Sports Writer

The much-maligned National League hitters, led by the much-maligned Philadelphia Phillies, proved for at least one night that runs are not that tough to come by.

With Philadelphia's Von Hayes equalling a major league mark with two first-inning homers in a record-setting 26-7 victory over the New York Mets, NL teams combined to score 74 runs in five games Tuesday night, an average of nearly 15 per game. The league had been scoring just 7.6.

Hayes, who had just two hits in his last 33 at-bats, started the game with a solo homer off Tom Gorman, then capped a nine-run outburst with a grand slam off Calvin Schiraldi — one of three bases-loaded homers hit in the NL.

"We've been kicked, stomped and buried this season, so many guys were hungry," said Hayes, who may have understated his case by calling the performance the best of his career.

Hayes walked into the Philadelphia Phillies clubhouse, looked at the lineup card and dropped his head in disappointment.

"I looked at the middle of the lineup and I wasn't there," said Hayes, who usually bats third or fourth. "Then I saw my name at the top of the lineup. I thought, 'they got to be kidding me.'"

"I never led off before (for the Phillies). Two days ago I was cleanup hitter. From cleanup to number one, it made me think."

But Manager John Felske wasn't kidding Tuesday night. He was giving left fielder Jeff Stone a night off and, not wanting to change anyone else, just moved Hayes to the top.

Hayes, mired in a paralyzing slump, hit two home runs and a single, scored four times, drove in six runs and joined an exclusive major league hitter's club.

In a nine-run first inning, Hayes led off with his fourth home run and capped the inning with his first career grand slam, becoming the 13th National Leaguer and one of only 21 players in major league history to hit two homers in one inning.

Ray Knight was the last player to do it, for Cincinnati on May 13, 1980, while Willie McCovey did it twice for San Francisco.

The Phillies, who have been in a season-long batting slump, had scored only 25 runs in nine games in June.

"We turned it loose tonight," said Felske of the 27-hit attack that raised the team's batting average nine points to .239.

Ironically, the Mets, who also have been slumping, pounded out 13 hits and scored seven runs. But they never were in the game, falling behind 16-0 after two innings.

The 26 runs were the most scored by one team in the NL since April 30, 1944, when the New York Giants beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 26-8, at the Polo Grounds. The NL record for most runs in a game by one team is 28, set by the St. Louis Cardinals in 1929 — against the Phillies.

Astros 11, Padres 0

A different bat was all Houston's Mark Bailey needed as the switch-hitter knocked out five straight hits, including a double and grand slam, to lead the Astros to an 11-0 rout over the San Diego Padres.

Bailey, on the advice of injured teammate Jose Cruz, changed bats two games ago and he's not likely to change after Tuesday's performance.

"I've been using Cruz's bat and I'm going to keep on using it until he says I can't anymore," Bailey said.

Bailey, who went 2-for-2 with four RBIs, led a Houston attack that battered three San Diego pitchers for 13 hits.

Pitcher Mike Scott upped his mark to 5-2 by pitching a four-hitter with his first complete game of the season and his third win in a row. Only three Padres reached as far as second base as Scott compiled five strike outs and two walks.

Bailey's blast, the first grand slam of his major league career and his fourth homer of the season, came on a 3-2 count in the sixth inning off reliever Craig Lefferts. Bailey upped his batting average to .265 after going five for five in his last two games.

A single by Kevin Bass, a walk to Jim Pankovits and a single by Terry Puhl loaded the bases to set up Bailey's grand slam. Lefferts then took the mound relieving Thurmond only to give up Bailey's towering blast over the left field wall.

Doran put the Astros ahead 1-0 in the first, hammering a Thurmond pitch over the left-field barrier for his fifth home run of the season.

The Astros added a run in the fifth after Bailey led off and took second on Craig Reynolds' infield hit. Reynolds went to second when Scott's fielder's choice to the pitcher forced Bailey at third. Doran then lined a single to right to score Reynolds.

Doran's third RBI of the game, a sacrifice fly in the eighth, touched off a five-run rally that capped the Astros' scoring. Houston also got run-scoring hits from Phil Garner and Kevin Bass and added a run on the third wild pitch of the inning by Greg Booker.

Cubs 5, Expos 3
Leon Durham's eighth-inning grand slam erased a 3-1 deficit as Chicago increased its NL East lead to 3½ games over New York and four over Montreal.

"I knew the bases were loaded when I came up, but it didn't really dawn on me it was a grand slam until I crossed the plate," said Durham, whose sixth homer of the year came off Gary Lucas.

Pirates 13, Cardinals 2
Veteran Rick Reuschel, who started the season in the minor leagues, pitched and batted the Pittsburgh Pirates out of a seven-game losing streak. Reuschel, 3-0 since his recall from Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League, scattered six hits over seven innings and drove in three runs with a pair of singles.

Reuschel, 3-0, hit a two-run single during a three-run Pittsburgh second inning against Neil Allen.

Giants 5, Braves 4

Bob Brenly had made up his mind that 18 innings was just about all he could take.

"If it wasn't in the dirt or over my head, I was going to swing at it," Brenly said of the Gene Garber pitch he hit into left field to score David Green from second base and end the longest game ever played in Atlanta's Fulton County Stadium.

The victory snapped a five-game losing streak for San Francisco, which had only two runs in 46 innings and went six before scoring three in the seventh Tuesday. The loss ended the Braves' longest winning streak of the year at three games.

Bob Horner, playing first base for the second straight game, hit two homers for Atlanta, his fifth, and sixth.

The Giants pounded out 17 hits.

Another big winter wheat crop likely, USDA reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite some losses from dry weather, disease and insects, the 1985 winter wheat crop is still shaping up as a whopper, according to the latest Agriculture Department estimates.

Based on June 1 indications, the crop is expected to produce about 1.89 billion bushels, down 8 percent from last year's bumper harvest and 4 percent less than indicated a month ago, the department's Crop Reporting Board said Monday.

Despite the reduction — caused by a cutback in acres and lower average yields — the 1985 winter wheat crop is expected to be the sixth largest on record and will help add to the U.S. grain surplus.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following summer. It makes up about three-fourths of the total U.S. wheat supply.

In a related "supply-and-demand" report, the department projected total wheat production this year at about 2.44 billion bushels, including winter and spring varieties. That was down from 2.53 billion bushels projected in May and well below the 1984 production of 2.6 billion bushels — the third largest on record.

But total wheat use, including exports, is down sharply and may total only 2.3 billion bushels in 1985-86, compared with 2.6 billion bushels last season. Thus, the report said, U.S. wheat inventories next year could rise to 1.55 billion bushels from 1.4 billion bushels on hand as of June 1, the beginning of the new wheat marketing year.

Translated to market prices, wheat at the farm may average in the range of $3.20 to $3.40 per bushel in 1985-86, unchanged from the outlook a month ago. In 1984-85, the farm price wheat averaged $3.38 per bushel, down from $3.53 in 1983-84.

Henry Neshem, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said the reduced winter wheat crop is "bad news for those producers hit by bad weather or disease" but that it will not have much effect on market prices.

Wheat prices have had little impact on bread prices in recent years. According to USDA analysts, there is less than a nickel's worth of wheat — based on farm prices — in a one-pound loaf of white bread.

In the Crop Reporting Board's report, the average winter wheat yield, based on indications as of June 1, was estimated at 39.1 bushels per harvested acre, down from 40 bushels in 1984 and 40.7 bushels forecast in May.

The Kansas wheat crop, normally the largest, was estimated at 452.4 million bushels, down from 464 million indicated in May but still above last year's output of 431.2 million bushels.

Nationally, farmers are expected to harvest about 48.4 million acres of winter wheat this year, down from 51.5 million in 1984.

No production estimates were included for spring wheat, corn and many other spring-planted crops. Those will be released by USDA later in the growing season.

Indicated production of winter wheat and average yields in 1985 by major producing states, based on June 1 prospects, included:

Arkansas, 21,660,000 bushels and an average yield of 38 bushels per acre; California, 48,750,000 and 75; Colorado, 120,900,000 and 39; Georgia, 24,000,000 and 30; Idaho, 58,500,000 and 65; Illinois, 37,600,000 and 47.

Indiana, 35,770,000 and 49; Kansas, 452,400,000 and 39; Kentucky, 12,920,000 and 38; Michigan, 42,900,000 and 55; Missouri, 54,800,000 and 40; Montana, 39,600,000 and 22; Nebraska, 94,300,000 and 41.

Incentives needed for conservation

LUBBOCK — Government assistance may be necessary to make soil conservation economically feasible for farmers, according to a Texas Tech University researcher.

Horn Professor Harold E. Dregne, of plant and soil science said that while awareness of the seriousness of soil erosion is good, incentives to practice soil conservation are absent.

"The 1982 U.S. National Resources Inventory concluded that about 44 percent of all U.S. cropland is eroding at rates greater than the permissible rate," Dregne said.

Several studies have indicated that farmers are correct in their contention that soil conservation is not always an economical short-term investment, but Dregne said the off-site damages caused by unchecked soil erosion may be large enough to make control economical at the public level.

Uncontrolled soil erosion can cause problems including silt and sediment deposits in streams and reservoirs; flooding triggered by reduced stream channel cross-sections; sand drifts covering highways and severe dust storms. While these damages are expensive, it may be difficult to assign responsibility to individual farmers, he said.

"The public may be forced to assume the costs of control or a kind of carrot-and-stick approach," Dregne said. "The carrot would be government assistance in erosion control and the stick would be penalties for off-site damages."

While soil erosion has been a pro-

Soviet grain harvest up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new analysis by the Agriculture Department says prospects still point to an improved grain harvest in the Soviet Union this year.

Based on current indications, total Soviet grain production could be around 195 million metric tons, up from a poor showing of 170 million tons in 1984, the department said Monday in its latest report. That would be the largest Soviet grain harvest since the 1978 record of 237.4 million tons.

The Soviet Union's grain imports from all foreign sources are expected to be 37 million tons, also unchanged from the previous forecast, the report said. Although that would be well below the record of 55 million tons in 1984-85, it would still rank as the third largest.

Officials said the 55 million tons of grain imports in 1984-85 represents an increase of two million tons from previous estimates, reflecting heavy Soviet purchases as the current marketing year draws to a close.

blem for thousands of years, Dregne said the latest round of accelerated erosion started in the early 20th century.

"Our latest erosion problems are associated with wind erosion in developed countries like the U.S. and a combination of wind and water erosion in the developing nations," he said.

Dregne said countries facing the greatest economic threat from erosion include Nepal, Ethiopia and Mexico. These country's over population problems are forcing cultivation of some marginal farm lands without proper management.

"Given the widespread occurrence of destructive soil erosion and the slow pace of corrective measures, decisions will need to be made on where to concentrate government efforts to control the erosion," he said.

Pacific nations growing outlet for America's agricultural abundance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The twelve countries of the Pacific rim have replaced Europe as the largest outlet for America's agricultural abundance, with modernizing tastes and economies whetting Eastern appetites for U.S. crops.

A new Agriculture Department report says the economies of most of the countries in the region are healthy, and most are seeing growth in personal incomes that will spur an already active international trade.

The report notes that while competition for the growing markets will increase, the United States is likely to snatch a good share of the new trade opportunities, particularly in the areas of high-value products like meat, fruits, and processed foods.

U.S. sales to the region grew to $12.6 billion in the year ending Sept. 30, 1985, far ahead of the $6.7 billion in farm goods sold to countries of the European Economic Community. Japan, the United States' single largest customer, accounted for nearly 16 percent of all U.S. farm exports.

While the United States has trade deficits with most of the Pacific rim countries — especially Japan — its farm exports to those countries generally top its imports. In fiscal 1984, American imports totaled $4.1 billion for a farm trade surplus of $8.5 billion.

Adding to the bright picture for the region are what the report called a strong urban bias to the development programs of Eastern governments and a disproportionate rise in incomes of urbanites whose tastes are becoming more Westernized.

For example U.S. Wheat Associates, an export promotion group, recently opened a baking school in Taiwan to make more wheat-based products available there. Rice consumption has dropped over the past two decades in Taiwan while wheat consumption has grown by 46 percent, the organization said.

American fast-food restaurants are making inroads in Taiwan as well, the group said in a statement separate from the USDA report.

"The best prospects for U.S. sales expansion appear to be in the high-value product sector since U.S. exporters would seem to have about reached their full potential in low-value exports" like unprocessed grains, said the report in USDA's Foreign Agriculture magazine.

"The opportunities for success in high-value sales will depend heavily on the ability of U.S. firms to understand respective Pacific rim cultures and to successfully introduce Western foods wherever possible," it said, noting that current best-sellers include oranges, lemons, grapefruit, cattle hides, deboned beef and chicken pieces.

The nations in the Pacific rim are Australia, China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, New Zealand, Taiwan and Thailand.

The first boardwalk in the world was completed at Atlantic City, New Jersey on June 26, 1862.

About half of beef in U.S. is now federally graded

COLLEGE STATION — Today about half of the beef produced in the United States is federally graded, according to Dr. Edward Uvacek Jr., economist-livestock marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

The need for official grade terminology for market news price was the major force behind the federal meat grading system that was inaugurated in 1917. Standards for beef have been amended eight times since then, Uvacek says, because producers insisted that certain grades were not readily attainable. In addition, a "dual grading" trial was held in 1962.

Federal grading standards require that meat be inspected under a federal or approved state inspection system before it can be graded, Uvacek adds. Since packers pay the cost for grading, they usually have graders examine only high quality carcasses.

The highest beef grade is U.S.D.A. Prime, but most of this is used only by expensive restaurants. In most cases, consumers only see the second grade of beef, U.S.D.A. Choice. In fact, almost 90 percent of the beef that is federally graded falls into that category. Some loss of confidence in federal grades has developed in recent years as demonstrated by the increased use of house brands by retailers. Some have their own grades or use packer rather than government grades.

A U.S.D.A. report on the impact of proposed changes in beef grades noted that not all consumers want exactly the same quality or grade of product. A Texas Agricultural Experiment Station report, recently released, emphasizes that same concept. Both of these studies suggest that a grading system that results in the majority of products being in one grade could weaken demand.

According to Uvacek, another factor affecting the confidence of federal beef grading is the subjective evaluation needed to apply standards. The U.S.D.A. grader physically looks at each carcass and classifies it into the official grades. Since human senses, primarily sight, are used to measure degrees of these standards, disagreements are not at all unusual.

Uvacek sees two possibilities for the future of beef grading. First, there could be a gradual but ultimate abandonment of the federal grades and a return to private labels. This would be the result of confidence deterioration or further changes in standards so that everything is graded Choice.

The second possibility that Uvacek sees is a broader use of, and increased reliance upon, federal beef grades. This might be the result of new technology that would make grading less subjective and help stem this loss of confidence.

Two-way radios help save lives

COLLEGE STATION — An emergency communication system on a farm or ranch could reduce the seriousness of an injury and even save a life.

Farming and ranching is one of the nation's most hazardous occupations, says a safety engineer, and accidents often occur in remote locations. Precious minutes and even hours often slip away between the time of a farm accident and medical attention because of inadequate communications.

"A system for keeping in touch with the home base of operation or for summoning help immediately in case of an accident can be a lifesaver," emphasizes Dr. Gary Nelson with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

He suggests the following ways in which farm and ranch families can keep in touch with each other and be able to get help if an emergency occurs:

—Install two-way radios on tractors, trucks and self-propelled equipment.

—Establish a means of field SOS communication, using hand-signals, flashing lights, flag, boat horn—anything to get attention and convey to others help is needed fast.

—Before going out to work, tell someone and approximate your time of return.

—Give special attention to monitoring the young, the elderly and those with special health problems.

—Teach all family members, even young children, how to get help. Keep emergency numbers handy at every phone. Be prepared to give directions to emergency medical personnel if the location is hard to find. Write out directions and place near the phone for use by employees. Practice giving directions with children.

—At least one person on every farm or ranch should be well-versed in first-aid, including cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

Rangers knock Angels out of division lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Parity is built into baseball, where the 162-game schedule is the great equalizer. On any given day, the game's downtrodden can beat the high-flying.

And so it was Tuesday night, when the American League West's cellar-dwelling Texas Rangers knocked the California Angels out of the division lead.

Texas' 6-4 victory nudged the Angels a half-game behind the Chicago White Sox.

Everything worked well this time for the Rangers.

Making his first start since Apr. 24, and after a horrendous stretch in the bullpen, Dave Rozema went five strong innings for the win with Greg Harris' relief help.

Texas pounded four solo homers, three by men in deep slumps.

And Bobby Valentine's club even survived a bizarre seventh-inning play in which Gary Pettis scored a contested run from first base on a 30-foot grounder.

The Rangers led 5-3 when Pettis pinch-ran for Bob Boone, who delivered his third single with one out.

When Craig Gerber topped a ball down the line that third baseman Buddy Bell fielded, Pettis ran all the way to third.

Both shortstop Curtis Wilkerson and catcher Don Slaught converged to cover third base. With Slaught leaving home plate unattended, Pettis got back up and ran home.

That's where the controversy began.

Valentine and his players argued that third base umpire Don Denkinger had raised his hands to call time before Pettis' sprint home.

"It was just a fluke play — but maybe we should put it in our playbook," said Harris.

Harris could afford to joke after averting an even scarier ninth-inning situation to notch his fourth save.

Following a lead-off walk to Rod Carew and Wilkerson's second error of the game, he struck out Doug DeCinces, Reggie Jackson and Brian Downing to close out his four-inning stint.

Rozema, 3-4, had fashioned a 9.39 ERA in 11 relief outings since his last start, but held the Angels to a pair of unearned runs through five innings.

Bothered by a tender shoulder, Rozema hadn't pitched at all since June 2.

He was given a 1-0 lead on a second-inning homer by Pete O'Brien. Urbano Lugo, 0-1, making his big league starting debut, also allowed Cliff Johnson's eighth homer in the fourth before departing with a blood blister on his pitching hand.

Larry Parrish hit his 11th homer off Doug Corbett in the sixth, and Od-dibe McDowell added his second off Stewart Cliburn in the seventh.

The New York Yankees got a terrific pitching performance from Ed Whitson and a dramatic, two-out home run from Dale Berra in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Then the bottom dropped out in the 11th because second baseman Willie Randolph dropped a throw.

"We didn't look too good in the field," Billy Martin said after Tuesday night's 4-1 loss to the Toronto Blue Jays in 11 innings. "We had a double play that we didn't get."

Martin referred to an error by Randolph, who dropped a throw from Berra after the third baseman fielded a grounder by Willie Upshaw with one out and runners on first and third in the 11th. Presumably, if Randolph had caught the ball, the Yankees would have turned a double play and killed the rally. As it was, it allowed the Blue Jays to score the tie-breaking run.

In the American League's other games, Milwaukee beat Boston 5-3; Chicago turned back Seattle 7-1 and Oakland beat Kansas City 4-3. Two games were rained out — Baltimore at Detroit and Minnesota at Cleveland.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 3

Ted Simmons capped a three-run seventh inning with a tie-breaking, two-out double as Milwaukee beat Boston to snap the Red Sox's eight-game winning streak.

Danny Darwin, 6-4, scattered eight hits in eight innings while becoming only the second pitcher to beat the Red Sox in the last 13 games. He struck out eight and walked three.

White Sox 7, Mariners 1
Tim Lollar held Seattle to one run over 6 1-3 innings and Rudy Law drove in two runs with a triple to lead Chicago over the Mariners.

Lollar, 2-2, scattered five hits, walked four and struck out four in leading the White Sox to their fourth straight triumph. Dan Spillner finished the game with 2 2-3 innings of one-hit relief.

Law's triple capped a four-run second inning for the White Sox.

A's 4, Royals 3

Carney Lansford's two-out single in the bottom of the ninth off reliever Mike LaCoss scored the winning run for Oakland.

Kansas City starter Bud Black, 5-6, took the loss.

Reliever Jay Howell, 6-3, worked two innings to pick up his third victory in his last three games.

Entire family needs help

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My brother is 19 years old and dying of cancer. It's been really hard on the whole family but I seem to be getting the worst of it. All I hear is "Check on your brother" or "Do this for your brother." The only person they think about is him. Nobody else counts. I understand he is very sick and needs a lot of attention but my folks have gone overboard.

Recently one of my brothers left home because he couldn't cope with being ignored. My parents say he copped out and doesn't deserve to be let back in the house if he decides to return. He was my best pal. We used to talk about everything. Now that he is gone I feel so alone.

I just wish my brother would come back and my parents would realize that my dying brother isn't the only person in this family. At a time like this we need each other, not all this fighting. Do you see a way out?—FEELING LOW IN ARIZONA

DEAR ARIZONA: I can understand your feelings of anger and frustration but please realize that your parents are suffering through the most agonizing experience known to mankind—losing a child. There is no pain like it. I urge you to show this column to your mother and father. In addition to the heartache, they are experiencing feelings of helplessness, guilt and rage. The loss of one child must not alienate the others. This is the time to be close and supportive of one another. The entire family needs counseling at once.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been married to a very fine man for nearly five years. Lew travels for a nationally known company and is home weekends. I should tell you that we get along very well and I have never had any reason to believe he fooled around.

Several days ago Lew complained of not feeling well. I insisted that he see a doctor. A few days later (Lew was on the road) I received a call from the doctor asking me to come down for a blood test. I almost fainted when the doctor told me that Lew had a positive Wasserman.

It seems to me that I read in your column several years ago that a positive Wasserman does not necessarily mean that the person has syphilis, and that other diseases might produce a positive Wasserman. Am I right about this? Hurry and answer. I am—ON NEEDLES AND PINS IN EDMONTON, ALBERTA

DEAR NEEDLES: You have a good memory. I did indeed print such information several years ago. Here it is again: A positive Wasserman may be produced by Hansen's disease (leprosy), mumps, measles, and certain types of pneumonia.

If the doctor did not make this clear to you, he certainly should have.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband asked for a separation and I have proof that he is seeing another woman. She knows he is married but doesn't care. All she wants is a father for her two young children.

Should I confront her? I need to know how long the affair has been going on and how it got started. I am furious and need this outlet.—ANONYMOUS IN HARTFORD

DEAR HART: Stay away from the woman. Talk to your husband. He knows just as much about it as she does.

Texas state homemade ice cream contest is June 29 at Hopkins

SULPHUR SPRINGS—The Texas State Homemade Ice Cream Contest will be held here June 29 as a part of the Hopkins County Dairy Day.

Hopkins County, the leading dairy county in Texas, annually celebrates the contributions made to the local economy by the dairy industry.

A joint effort of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Hopkins County Chamber of Commerce, the contest includes seven classes. A champion will be selected from the vanilla, chocolate, fruit, nut, bisque, candy and mixed classes. An overall champion also will be named.

The contest is for both adults and youth. Prior entries in county contests are encouraged but are not mandatory.

Information concerning the ice cream contest can be obtained from the Hopkins County Chamber of Commerce or the county Extension office in Sulphur Springs.

Other events during the one-day celebration include cow milking, petting zoo, a butter making demonstration, a 10K fun run called the "Milk Run," antique milk equipment display, dairy product promotion, health exhibits and computer dairy program exhibits.

Activities begin at 9:30 a.m. in Heritage Park on Jackson Street. According to Dr. Max Sudweeks, Extension Service dairy specialist, all interested persons are invited to participate in the Texas State Homemade Ice Cream Contest and other activities during the day.

Agape Singles to meet

The Agape Singles group have announced their plans for the week.

Beginning with Thursday, a dutch treat luncheon is planned for noon at the Caison House.

Friday, the Agape Singles plan to attend the Reba McEntire concert at the Cowboy Country Club at 7 p.m. and a breakfast will follow. (Each person is responsible for getting their own ticket.)

The singles group will be meeting at Clovis Saturday at the YMCA. Everyone is to meet at the Hereford Community Center at 7 p.m. for the trip.

Monday, June 17, a business meeting will be held at 7:30 at the Community Center and all singles are welcome.

Vice president of Zig Ziglar to speak

Larry Lindsay, vice president in charge of Educational Development for the Zig Ziglar corporation, will be the guest speaker at the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship Saturday and in two churches on Sunday.

The Full Gospel meeting will be at 7:45 p.m. Saturday, following a meal served at the Calsion House meeting room at 7 p.m. There he will give his life testimony and speak on positive thinking for successful living.

At 10:30 a.m. at the Community Church, Lindsay will be speaking on positive attitudes and becoming a better father. He will speak again on these topics at 6 p.m. in the Hereford Church of the Nazarene.

Lindsay spent 21 years in public education as a teacher, coach, and administrator before joining the "I Can staff at the Zig Ziglar Corporation which is based in Dallas.

LARRY LINDSAY

In his position there he is responsible for editing and writing materials, conducting in-service training, and consulting with seminar teachers.

Mexico's trade surplus down from last year

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico posted a trade surplus of $3.2 billion in the first four months of the year, which was 39 percent less than registered in the same period a year ago, the government said.

In a new report, the Mexican Institute for Foreign Trade said that exports amounted to $7.6 billion in the January-April period, off 9.6 percent compared to year-ago levels.

Imports, it said, were $4.4 billion, a jump of 39.9 percent compared to the first four months of 1984.

Mexico has been trying to sell more of its goods abroad in an effort to boost its foreign revenues to help keep current on its $96 billion foreign debt.

Oil now is the nation's No. 1 source of foreign exchange. A fresh fall in oil prices, as many financial analysts foresee soon, would cut into the country's foreign revenues.

Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog, traveling in Europe with President Miguel de la Madrid, was quoted on Monday as saying, "A drop in the price of oil will make Mexico just that much poorer."

"For every drop of a dollar in the price of oil, we will lose $550 million a year," he said.

In the new trade report, the institute said oil shipments made up 88.8 percent of the total exports in the first four months of the year. In all, petroleum exports were $5.3 billion, about $392 million less than in the same period of 1984.

No natural gas shipments were made overseas in the January-April period, it said.

Non-petroleum exports were registered at $2.3 billion, 15.2 percent below the year-ago level.

In reporting on imports, the institute said the agricultural sector bought $635 million in foreign goods, 6.2 percent more than in the first four months of last year.

Imports by extractive industries, such as mining and energy-related firms, surged 58.3 percent to $76 million from January to April.

The manufacturing industries — led by metallic products, machinery and equipment, and chemicals — reported imports of $3.7 billion, up 47.3 percent from last year.

Computer software class offered

The Hereford Independent School District's Community Education Program will offer a class in computer software applications. There will be two sessions, one for adults that will meet from 7:00 until 9:00 pm and one for teens that will meet from 4:30 until 6:30 pm. The class will begin Monday, June 17th and meet daily through June 28th.

Participants can expect to become familiar with computer terminology while gaining some hands on time with the computer. The three basic business applications (data base, word processing & spreadsheet) for computer software will be covered. The fee will be $25.00 and registration will be limited to the first sixteen paid participants.

The class will meet in room 121 at the high school. Interested parties should use the east parking lot and enter the building by using the entrance near the cosmetology sign.

For additional information or to register, contact Kenneth Helms, 364-5112.

Breast-feeding seminar in Lubbock

Breast-feeding in the '80s will be discussed June 22 in a conference at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, Fourth Street and Indiana Avenue, Lubbock, Texas.

"Breast-feeding Interventions in the '80s" will be geared toward health professionals and childbirth educators. Participants will learn successful techniques in aiding breast-feeding mothers. The workshop also will review the anatomy and physiology of breast-feeding, benefits of colostrum, and the effective management of breast-feeding problems. The seminar will be from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Room 5A100 of the TTUHSC.

"Statistics show that 70 percent of women want to breast-feed before delivery, but then 50 percent of those women quit because of problems," said Carol Kurlbaum-Pashia, R.N., one of the conference speakers. "Our goal is to teach successful techniques that work so women won't quit. We want to increase the success rate."

"A lot of teaching techniques are not available in hospitals, and are often not enough or updated," she said. "Working women can adapt breast-feeding to their life style. Women don't have to stay at home to breast-feed," she emphasized.

Ms. Kurlbaum-pashia is a parent educator in hospital practice. She also is an American Society for Psychoprophylaxis Method of Obstetrics certified childbirth educator and innovator of childbirth education programs. She teaches breast-feeding techniques and other parenting skills to new parents and does counseling for breast-feeding problems.

Carol Pietz, M.S., R.N., L.D., also a conference speaker, is a registered dietitian in private practice specializing in breast-feeding education and counseling. She created "Breast-feeding Your Baby: An Education Program for Nursing Mothers", and she has written numerous articles on breast-feeding. The conference is sponsored by Ross Laboratories. Registration fee is $15.

Cosby Show, NBC top ratings again

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Once again Bill Cosby led the way as NBC scored another triumph in the Nielsen ratings for the week ending June 2 and ABC barely made it into the Top 20.

NBC, which languished in third place for nine years, has been consistently in first place in recent weeks. The network had a major victory the previous week and it won the May sweeps.

NBC won six places in the Top 10 and second-place CBS had four. Third-place ABC had no shows in the Top 10, and in fact barely made it into the Top 20. Its highest-ranked show was "Who's the Boss?," which tied for 20th with CBS' "60 Minutes."

CBS' coverage of the pro basketball championship finals won two places at the top of the ratings. Game four last Wednesday was in a three-way tie for sixth place. Game five on Friday was 18th. The Sunday wrapup game in which the Los Angeles Lakers won over the Boston Celtics four games to two was not in prime-time and was not rated.

NBC took the week with a network average of 13.9 in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey. CBS was second with 13.0 and ABC was third with 9.8. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 13.9 percent of the nation's TV homes were tuned to NBC.

Some of the audience for the week was taken away by the Billy Graham Crusade, according to ABC. It said ABC and CBS were affected 8-9 p.m. Tuesday, all three networks at 8-9 p.m. Wednesday and Friday, and CBS from 8-9 p.m. Saturday.

CBS was first again among the evening news shows with a rating of 10.7. NBC was second with 9.5 and ABC was a close third with 9.4.

Barnes to counsel at enrichment camp

Jeff Barnes, a recent graduate of MacMurray College, has been chosen one of 14 counselors for the Summer Enrichment Program on the MacMurray campus in Jacksonville.

Barnes, who earned a B.M. in music, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes of 344 Douglas, Hereford.

The program for gifted and talented young students is in its fifth year and, this summer, will enroll 630 boys and girls, ages 8-15, in an innovative and challenging curriculum. The 1985 sessions got underway June 2 and will continue through Aug. 17.

Counselors have primary responsibility in college residence halls and work closely with the gifted students in small-group settings. Each counselor also conducts specialized activity classes for the program participants.

U.S. sought release of Shcharansky before prisoner-swap deal made

By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States tried to gain the release of Anatoly Shcharansky and other Soviet dissidents before concluding a deal with East Germany that led to an exchange of prisoners between the two countries, according to U.S. officials.

A statement prepared by the American mission in Berlin, and released by the Justice Department here Tuesday, said U.S. officials "did raise the cases of persons such as" Shcharansky and Andrei Sakharov, the Nobel physicist who is in internal exile in Gorky.

"Our efforts to obtain release of dissidents in the Soviet Union and elsewhere are well known and continuing," the statement said. "... We were told that the Soviet Union would not consider their release."

"After it became clear that the Soviets would not change their position, we decided that obtaining the release of the 25 persons and family members was an important humanitarian step which justified the agreement," it said.

An administration official who spoke only on condition of anonymity later confirmed the United States tried to obtain the release of Shcharansky, a prominent Jewish dissident, and other imprisoned dissidents. He said the U.S. goal for Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, was better treatment.

The official said the effort would be maintained. He suggested that Tuesday's exchange of 25 people for four who had been held on espionage charges was, in itself, a major accomplishment. "That was 6 for 1 and it shouldn't be minimized," the official said.

Sakharov, 64, has been confined to Gorky, some 240 miles east of Moscow, since 1980 and is reported in fragile health. His wife has a severe eye ailment.

Shcharansky, 35, was a leader of the human rights movement in the Soviet Union during the 1970s. He was sentenced to 13 years in prison in 1978 on charges of anti-Soviet activity and passing intelligence to foreign nations.

A U.S. official in Berlin who also spoke on condition of anonymity said negotiations for the spy swap had been going on for three years. He said the Soviet Union was informed of the talks but was not directly involved.

But the U.S. official interviewed here said the United States had tried at the outset to persuade the Soviets to release Shcharansky and other dissidents and improve conditions for the Sakharovs.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, asked whether this was a prelude to any future prisoner exchanges, said, "No, this is something that stands totally alone."

Some people have believed that a child can be cured of stuttering by drinking from a bell.

STATE CAPITAL

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The dynamics of Texas politics are changing fast in the wake of the recent legislative session, but the new leaders who are emerging from both parties may be challenged soon by shifts in the state's economy.

Several lawmakers earned gold stars for the business-like way they cut $1.2 billion from the state budget without raising taxes, but everyone, Democrat and Republican alike, is well aware that a major tax increase looms in the near future.

The Lone Star State's government has no projected surplus. None whatsoever. Thus, if oil prices drop any at all, the Legislature could have to come back into special session to raise taxes to fund basic government. By its Constitution, Texas cannot operate on a deficit.

And so the new heroes, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis, budget chairmen Sen. Grant Jones and Rep. Jim Rudd, may be basking in short-lived public gratitude.

The New Democrats

The budget-cutting feat was a real boost for Democrats, particularly conservatives, who disapproved the Republican line that Democrats cannot be trusted to manage tax dollars.

The conservatives even earned the gratitude of some liberals for increasing their party's respectability in the wake of the '84 defeats. Yet they could lose it all if the money crunch comes and they fail to repeat their blue-ribbon fiscal performance.

Granted, they had the help of the Republicans who serve in the Legislature. The budget cutting was a bipartisan effort that saw most lawmakers place the good of the state above the good of their political parties.

But since the leadership was composed of Democrats, one unlikely event has occurred: conservative and liberal Democrats have, for the most part, called a truce to their perpetual war.

White: Up Or Down?

One exception to that cozy little scenario is Gov. Mark White, who caught criticism from some fellow Democrats in the waning hours of the session. They said White didn't exercise enough leadership, but his supporters, pointing to the new indigent care package he rammed through in the three-day special session, say that he did.

A recent poll indicated that 46 percent of Texans think the governor did a good or excellent job, more than the 41 percent rating given to the Legislature. Only 16 percent frowned on him.

The New Republicans

The Republicans gained in stature, too, and show many signs of emerging from minority party status. Besides the clout they wielded in the Texas House under the leadership of Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, Ed Emmett, R-Houston, and Tom Craddick, R-Midland, they now have the beginnings of a healthy party fracas themselves.

It's most obvious in the jockeying for the GOP gubernatorial nomination. Former Democrat Kent Hance of Lubbock switched parties only to find himself challenged by U.S. Rep Tom Loeffler, also of West Texas, and a whole host of other potentials.

Some of the big names that loom out at you are former Gov. Bill Clements, former Democratic Speaker Bill Clayton, Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry, and Amarillo oilman T. Boone Pickens.

Clements Jumps Gramm

Now that Republicans stand to make a good run for the Governor's Mansion, some long-time party loyalists are not so keen at handing the nomination to new converts, former Democrats, and that's where the inner party squabbling lies.

Usually, Republicans keep their family bickering quietly to themselves, but some dissension came out last week, by no less a personage than Bill Clements himself.

Clements accused U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm of dividing and polarizing the GOP by endorsing Kent Hance for governor. Both are former Democrats, and the endorsement has come early, before the other GOP candidates have even announced for the race.

Gramm's Recruit

Gramm personally recruited Hance for the Republican Party, but Clements told an oil producer's group that Gramm showed bad judgment. "An endorsement by a senior person like myself or Gramm is divisive and causes polarization. The wounds and scars it would cause would not be helpful."

Crazy Daze

The Hereford Day Care Center on 16th street sponsored a "crazy days" contest which included running relays, a crazy days costume contest, and drawing crazy days pictures. The girl with the dress on turned out to be Kevin Cooper, who was first place winner of the crazy days costume contest. Second place was given to J.O. Walls, with third place going to the bunny seated at left, Terri Reiter, and fourth place went to Stephanie Walls.

One of two bodies identified as ex-husband

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — One of the two bodies that investigators say they found buried in the yard of a rural mobile home has been identified as the former husband of Betty Beets, the 48-year-old waitress charged in both deaths.

The decomposed body was identified Tuesday as that of Wayne Barker, who was reported missing in 1981 after an argument with Mrs. Beets, the Athens Daily Review said.

Mrs. Beets, 48, and her daughter, Shirley Stegner, 26, of Balch Springs, remained in the Henderson County jail Tuesday awaiting release on $1 million bond for two murder charges.

On Saturday night, two decomposed bodies were found buried in the yard of a mobile home owned by Mrs. Beets. The mobile home is in the Cherokee Shores subdivision near Payne Springs about 25 miles northwest of Athens.

The discovery of the bodies has neighbor Margie Stubbs reflecting on claims her granddaughter made about a year ago that bodies were buried in a nearby yard.

Mrs. Stubbs told The Dallas Morning News that her granddaughter, Rebecca Smith, married Mrs. Beets' son, Robert Branson. The two currently are separated, she said.

Around Thanksgiving last year, Miss Smith told her grandmother that Branson had said two bodies were buried in his mother's yard, Mrs. Stubbs said.

"My granddaughter has been known to stretch the truth, so I didn't put any stock in it. But it was all true this time," Mrs. Stubbs told The News.

Meanwhile, authorities are investigating to see if Mrs. Beets obtained a divorce from Barker on grounds of desertion before she married Jimmy Don Beets.

The other body found Saturday is believed to be that of Beets, a member of the Dallas Fire Department for 25 years. Beets was reported missing from Cedar Creek Lake in August 1983 after he had been fishing. His boat was later found floating on the lake.

Border cities feel pinch of tourist scare

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) — Northern Mexicans — battered by a tourist scare that is keeping many Americans out of their country — would like to know just one thing: "Why?"

In a region where the words "mi casa es su casa," or "my house is your house," are offered from the heart, people are genuinely perplexed — and hurt — by what they call "exaggerated" reports of violence against travelers in Mexico. What Americans don't know, they say, is hurting Mexico.

Mexico's problems started in October when American diplomatic sources said the U.S. Embassy was considering calling for an advisory warning tourists of possible dangers in Mexico.

Although the embassy shelved the plan after Mexican officials promised more police security in troubled areas, the damage to Mexico's image already had been done.

The American Automobile Association began warning members to use caution when driving in Mexico after four travelers died during September, three of them murdered on highways.

Meanwhile, the cases of six missing Americans in Guadalupe and the kidnap-slaying of American drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar have fueled the already hot controversy.

Tourism Secretary Antonio Enrriquez Savignac reported recently that the number of visitors arriving by road to Mexico fell off by 17 percent in the first three months of this year, although travel by air remained steady.

He said foreign income generated through tourism — $2 billion in 1984 — was up by 11 percent so far this year.

Those promising figures, however, aren't encouraging northerners. Tourist guides and shop owners in Monterrey say the number of Americans they serve is off by as much as 70 percent.

"In the last three to four months tourism has decreased considerably," said Porfirio Sosa, owner of a Mexican popular art shop in Monterrey's tourist zone.

"Fortunately this store doesn't function by tourism alone or I would have closed down," Sosa said.

Based on stories Americans have read or heard in the United States, Sosa said, "I don't blame the tourists for not coming." But, he said, "I do believe they've been misinformed."

Higinio Cuesta, vice president of the Chihuahua Hotel-Motel Association, said his group met recently with hotel operators from El Paso, Texas, "to exchange opinions and erase the campaign of discredit against Mexico."

The Tijuana Chamber of Commerce reported that tourism in that northwestern border city is down about 20 percent compared with last year.

"Hotels, restaurants, shops — everyone is feeling it," Alfonso Bustamante, Tijuana Convention and Tourism Bureau president, told The Associated Press.

Oscar Salinas, executive director of the Monterrey-based International Good Neighbor Council, said the organization is inviting U.S. members to visit Mexico while the Mexican Hotel-Motel Association and its Texas counterpart have formed a committee "to discuss problems of both regions concerning tourism."

"We're doing everything we can to solve this problem because it's hurting Mexico a lot," Salinas said.

"You always have fear of what you don't know," he said.

Those interviewed said American lack of understanding about Mexico is the main factor keeping travelers from venturing south of the border.

They say many Americans picture Mexico as a dirty, backward country with a pistol-packing "bandito" behind every tree.

Those who travel to Mexico's major cities — like this northeastern industrial metropolis — find modern shopping malls, elegant restaurants, first-class hotels and friendly people.

In a June 2 article, The New York Times' London bureau chief R.W. Apple Jr., wrote of his first visit to Mexico, "We were unprepared ... for the cleanliness of the place."

"And we personally neither saw nor heard anything of the sort of incident that gave rise to reports earlier this year that the State Department might warn Americans to stay away from Mexico. Instead, I came home with memories of pleasant discoveries."

Government figures released in April said that, of the 18.2 million Americans who visited Mexico between 1980 and 1984, only 51 were involved in major mishaps. Of that number, 40 cases involved criminal acts, including 23 cases of murder.

Lee Johnson, spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Mexico City, said, "We do feel the number of crimes is fairly low. But we're more concerned with lack of investigation and prosecution. Mexican authorities have just been very slow in trying to solve these crimes at the local and state level. At the federal level we're getting all sorts of cooperation."

Paul Harvey
We bet our lives on flight crews, computers on commercial lines

All of us who fly high-performance airplanes are on a leash. We don't just strap that flying blowtorch onto our britches and take off whenever we want and fly wherever we please anymore.

We are bound by invisible radio communication, computer programmed to stay out of one another's way.

Early on during the United Airlines pilots' strike you heard complaints by non-striking United pilots that somebodies were jamming their broadcast frequencies with static; sometimes with broadcast obscenities.

President Henry Duffy of the pilots' union was as distressed by these reports as you were.

The Airline Pilots Association under no circumstances condones any interference with radio transmissions, and he promptly ordered all non-striking pilots to "cut it out!"

"The pilots' association has not, does not and will not encourage, endorse or condone" such misconduct.

Yet, the reports of jamming kept coming until the Federal Aviation Administration called it a series breach of safety and threatened legal action—"criminal sanctions" against the jammers.

Well, now, hold the phone. Our nation's Air Traffic Control (ATC) system is excellent; never better.

Nonetheless, traffic is such at major hubs that ATC may be broadcasting seven or eight clearances at the same time.

Clearance delivery frequencies are congested. Communications overlap. Every flight crew one very airline understands the problem and learns to live with it.

But during this strike we had some pilots flying left seat who have not been on the line in 22 years.

They'd been yanked from desk jobs into the cockpit though many or most have barely kept themselves flight proficient and they were being harassed. The fact is that all of us all the time have to accommodate a degree of interference.

This is not to say that nobody was maliciously jamming. That is possible and it could be some non-flier on the ground who did it.

And inevitably some few guys awaiting ground clearance behind United may flip the key and say "scab."

But the modern flight crew is aware that all communication is monitored, readily traceable. More than that, professionalism in the commercial cockpit is such that sabotage is inconceivable.

I would bet my life on it. Almost every day I do.

WHAT REJOICING THAT WILL BE!

O Lord, I will honor and praise your name, for you are my God; you do such wonderful things! You planned them long ago, and now you have accomplished them, just as you said! You turn mighty cities into heaps of ruins, the strongest forts are turned to rubble. Beautiful palaces in distant lands disappear and never will be rebuilt. Therefore strong nations will shake with fear before you; ruthless nations will obey and glorify your name.

But to the poor, O Lord, you are a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, a driving rain that melts down an earthen wall. As a hot, dry land is cooled by clouds, you will cool the pride of ruthless nations. Here on Mount Zion in Jerusalem, the Lord of Hosts will spread a wondrous feast for everyone around the world - a delicious feast of good food, with clear, well-aged wine and choice beef. At that time he will remove the cloud of gloom, the pall of death that hangs over the earth; he will swallow up death forever. The Lord God will wipe away all tears and take away forever all insults and mockery against his land and people. The Lord has spoken - he will surely do it!

In that day the people will proclaim, "This is our God in whom we trust, for whom we waited. Now at last he is here." What a day of rejoicing! (Isaiah 25:1-9)
