

Ahead Of Schedule

Deaf Smith County Sheriff's deputies who work in the jail are pleased with the fact that jail renovation is moving "way ahead of schedule." Sgt. Shirley Wheeler said this morning the project is expected to be completed by late September or early October. The construction company is currently tearing down old interior walls and putting up new ones. "It's a little dirty, but nothing unbearable," Wheeler remarked.

Business community braces for packing plant closing

As the 490 employees of Swift Independent Packing Company put in their last week at the plant and consider what they will do after the facility closes Saturday, the county's business community is also bracing itself for the effects of the closing.

The Hereford branch of Red Wing Trucking of Dumas, located just across the road from Swifts, will maintain its fleet of eight cattle trucks and nine drivers here. The truck washing operation, however, will close along with the SIPCO plant. T.H. Sossmann, Red Wing's Hereford manager, said 11 persons were employed by the washing facility.

Sossmann said his trucks have already begun hauling loads of cattle to SIPCO's plant at Cactus, near Dumas. Since the Dumas plant will be purchasing more cattle from Deaf Smith feedlots once the plant here closes, Sossmann said his drivers will simply start hauling loads to Dumas every day.

"They'll get to know that road well," he commented. Sossmann said he expected 12 to 14 loads a day would go to Dumas. Red Wing's only business is hauling for SIPCO.

Even though increased production

Even though increased production at Dumas is not expected to make up for losses at local feedlots, owners contacted this morning were reluctant to think of the closing as a devastating blow.

"It will hurt us to a certain extent," said Ed Barrett of Barrett and Crofoot. "But we'll just start selling the cattle to someone else."

Prices the feedlots get for their cattle will be affected, though, because out-of-town buyers will have bigger freight charges and therefore be less reluctant to pay the same prices Swifts was paying.

"We sell a lot of heifers to them," said Jim Nicholson of Frio Feeders. "It will sure affect our heifer market, because we were getting about fifty cents a head more that they were saving on freight."

Bob Josseland, president of Texas Cattle Feeders Association, said feedlots will be affected, but his biggest concern is the overall effect of the closing of one more beef packing plant.

"We're seeing the consolidation of more and more plants, which may lead to less price competition. And of course my overriding concern is what they closing will do to the town of Hereford."

Josseland said he does not concur with the statement by SIPCO officials that a decline in available beef cattle can be expected in the future.

"I do not see a great increase, but neither do I expect to see less cattle on feed. I think that was just another excuse for closing down the plant."

Swifts' also blamed the closing on "continuing losses" and said the Hereford plant was less efficient than the Dumas facility, which is automated.

While the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has decided to continue in its efforts to get along with the nine-member Buffalo Lake Water District Board, at least one F&WS employee has decided to lay all his cards out on the table.

Rodney Krey, complex manager for the Buffalo Lake National Wildlife Refuge near Umbarger and another refuge at Muleshoe, said Wednesday he cannot agree to the board's demands that a smaller dam on the southwest end of the lake be removed if and when the main dam on the opposite end is repaired and the lake filled.

Rodeo queen to debut at Hall

Hereford is honored to have Miss Texas Rodeo, 20-year-old Carla Sterling of Beaumont, to make her first appearance under that title here this weekend for the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame festivities.

The rodeo queen was crowned late Sunday in Fort Worth, Sterling, sponsored in the contest by the Texas Prison Rodeo, competes in barrel racing in addition to her exhibition of horses in open and registered horse shows.

She will assist in the tenth annual induction of Hall honorees during a luncheon Saturday, set for 11:30 a.m., at the Hereford Country Club. Inductees for this year are featured on Page 1B of today's Brand.

For weekend festivities

Tickets to the luncheon are $12 and are available by reservation at the Hall of Fame or at the door.

Sterling also will be present at the Hall's open house Saturday from 3 until 5 p.m. There will be no admission to the Hall during those times. Margaret Formby, founder of the Hall, said the occasion would be good for local residents who have not seen the Hall to view it. New exhibits showing memorabilia of the past and new inductees will be up, in addition to an art exhibit from the Barr Gallery in Houston.

At 4 p.m. during the open house two former honorees, Rhonda Sedgwick and Fern Sawyer, will present a rodeo fashion show modeling the high styles they have worn in performances.

The sixth annual Rhinestone Roundup Benefit Ball will begin at 7:30 p.m. with live music by The Sundowners until midnight. The $25 ticket also includes a barbecue supper and an open bar.

During the ball, the annual Diamond Horseshoe Silent Auction will be conducted in two sections, at 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. At 10:30 p.m. a live auction will begin. All proceeds will go toward support of the Hall for the next year.

Wrapping up the ball will be a midnight drawing for door prizes for all those present.

The public is invited to all activities.

Joint budget negotiations bog down

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days into negotiations, House and Senate bargainers on the 1986 budget are bogged down over relatively minor differences and conference committee chairman Sen. Pete V. Domenici says it could spell big trouble ahead for producing a compromise.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we got to an impasse," said the New Mexico Republican. "But we're not there just yet."

Despite some early progress on Tuesday, in a full day of bargaining on Wednesday the House-Senate panel could agree on nothing.

On Wednesday:

—House conferees refused to go along with the Senate proposal for $123 million in fees on government-backed mortgages and loans over the next three years, a fee supporters said would amount to about $2 a month on the average $50,000 home mortgage. Senate negotiators refused to back away from the fee proposal, leaving the issue unresolved.

—House bargainers rejected the Senate's 10 percent reduction in funds for Congress and congressional agencies like the Library of Congress and the Congressional Budget Office.

—Senate conferees turned down a House proposal to reduce filling the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve in Louisiana and Texas from the current 159,000 barrels a day to 50,000 barrels, standing by a three-year moratorium on pumping any oil into the reserve. An effort to compromise and reduce the rate to 35,000 a day was also rejected.

"I don't know how we're going to get a real budget," Domenici told reporters after the unproductive day of negotiations.

He said efforts to reach agreement on fundamental differences between the budgets passed by the two houses would be "very, very difficult" in view of the inability to agree on less controversial issues "that don't affect defense or pensions."

Although both chambers have passed packages cutting spending next year by $56 billion, the Senate version would cancel next year's cost-of-living increase of Social Security recipients and eliminate 13 federal programs while allowing defense spending to rise with the rate of inflation.

The House budget protects the Social Security increase, kills only one program — revenue sharing — and freezes Pentagon spending authority at 1985 levels.

Also on Wednesday, President Reagan brushed aside suggestions from some members of Congress that a tax increase might be needed to help pare soaring deficits.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is praising House approval of $27 million in non-lethal aid to Nicaraguan rebels as a vote to help "safeguard our own national interests." But some Democrats claim it is a step toward war.

In a dramatic turnaround, the House approved the Contra aid Wednesday and refused to extend a ban on use of U.S. funds to support military actions against the leftist Sandinista government.

Calling the House action "historic" and a demonstration of "great intelligence," Reagan said "a clear bipartisan majority has shown that our nation stands with those who are determined to pursue a political solution and seek a democratic outcome of the crisis in Nicaragua."

"Both houses and both sides of the aisle have now demonstrated American resolve to safeguard our own national interests and to advance the rights of the people of Central America," the president said.

While House Republicans said the action actually improves chances for peace talks, one Democratic leader described it as "tantamount to a declaration of war" against Nicaragua.

The board voted five to one at Tuesday's regular monthly meeting to support the F&WS's application for an amended permit from the Texas Department of Water Resources (TDWR) which would allow the Stewart Dike to remain. The dike, named after a former employee at the refuge, was widened and repaired last summer to impound shallow water for migratory waterfowl and other wildlife.

The support, however, will be made on the condition that Stewart Dike be removed after the Umbarger Dam is repaired, that the F&WS modify its management plan to include greater public access to the refuge, and that a date to begin construction and repair of the dam and spillway be established by the wildlife service.

Those stipulations are expected to be announced by the board during a TDWR public hearing set for July 2 at the city commission chambers in Canyon. TDWR scheduled the hearing after the water district board announced last month it would fight the F&WS in its effort to obtain the amended permit.

"I asked them why, at a December 1984 meeting, they voted to support the dam, then changed their minds," Krey told the Brand. "We've been trying to work with them, but I was really disgusted with them last month when they said they were going to oppose the permit."

Most of the nine board members do not want the Stewart Dike to remain if the Umbarger Dam and spillway are repaired because they say it would slow the flow of water from Tierra Blanca Creek into the deeper end of the lake. Even though the board decided to support the existence of the dike for now with the stipulation it be removed later, some members would just as soon the permit not be granted and the dam removed now.

Krey makes no bones about wanting the dike to stay in place now and forever. "We intend to keep Stewart Dike as a permanent structure. If we have to take it out, we would be looking at downgrading the program. Wildlife and waterfowl are the reason we have fulltime employees and a residence here."

Because the water district board wants the lake to become recreation-based if it ever fills with water again, its goals have often conflicted with those of the Fish and Wildlife Service. Krey has told the board on several occasions that although the dam and spillway may need to be restored to assure the safety of downstream residents in the event of a flood, the F&WS has control of the area as a refuge and it would take an act of Congress to return it to a recreation-based area.

Despite those differences of opinion, F&WS has invited board

For Nicaraguan rebels

Reagan pulled off the victory by holding all but a few Republicans and winning over many conservative and Southern Democrats. The House approved the Republican plan for $27 million in food, medicine, clothing, transportation and other "humanitarian aid" on a 248-184 vote.

The House action followed last week's Senate approval of $38 million in non-lethal aid to the Contra rebels, but the two versions are attached to different bills and will require additional votes before the funds can be sent.

House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois said the turnaround on the House rejection of a $14 million aid plan in April began when Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega flew to Moscow seeking economic help after that vote.

"The phrase, 'fly now, pay later,' has taken on a deeper, richer meaning for President Daniel Ortega," Michel said.

Some supporters of the Contra aid also expressed anger over what they saw as the Nicaraguan government's failure to take positive steps toward peace following the April vote.

But Democratic leaders claimed Congress was overreacting to the Ortega trip and leading the country closer to war in Nicaragua.

"Funding the Contras is not an alternative to intervention, it is an avenue to intervention," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., House Intelligence Committee chairman. "It puts the congressional stamp of approval on the Contras and their goal of overthrowing the Sandinista government."

"The House action is tantamount to a declaration of war against the government of Nicaragua," said Bill Alexander, D-Ark., deputy majority whip.

In one vote that particularly stunned Democratic leaders, the House refused, 232-196, to extend the so-called Boland Amendment, a ban on direct or indirect U.S. aid for military action inside Nicaragua. That law, which expires Oct. 1, had been approved by the House four previous times.

City tax rebate up

State Comptroller Bob Bullock has sent checks totaling $58.1 million in local tax payments to the 1,003 cities that levy the one percent local sales tax.

Hereford's check for $35,738.63 is up from the $31,094.84 collected during the comparable period last year. Rebates to date total $293,700.39, an 11.92 percent increase over 1984.

Castro County's check was for $11,246.19 for the cities of Dimmitt, Hart and Nazareth, while Oldham County was sent $1,465.91 for the cities of Adrian and Vega.

Parmer County was sent $9,635 for sales tax collected in Bovina, Farwell and Friona.

June checks represent taxes collected on sales made in April and reported to the comptroller by May 20.

Goat thefts investigated

Goat thefts were reported again Wednesday to the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department. Natie Aguilar, 808 Irving, said two goats valued at $70 each were taken from the same pen north of Hereford from which goats were stolen earlier in the week.

Both victims believe they know who the culprit is and deputies are investigating their suspicions.

Four juveniles were taken into custody Wednesday by Hereford police after they were seen taking a money bag from an unattended car parked at a local restaurant. The money bag, containing an undisclosed amount of money, was recovered.

Police also talked to a woman who said her husband beat her up when she did not arrive home from Amarillo in time to suit him. There were also complaints from a local truck stop where an employee is being harassed, and from the city swimming pool where beer bottles were thrown over the fence into the pool.

Baptists continue disagreement

DALLAS (AP) — Peace between clashing Southern Baptist factions remains uncertain today after a tempestuous convention tangle that brought complaints of injustice, irregular voting and arbitrary procedures.

Some moderates in the nation's largest Protestant denomination said that in the face of such tactics they were dubious about newly adopted peace measures.

The controversy arose Wednesday night over the selection of candidates to control the church's 20 national agencies.

Only a few hours before, the convention had approved a 22-member "peace committee" representing both fundamentalists and moderates to investigate the causes of the conflict within the denomination and to recommend solutions.

The dispute centered on a ruling that the convention could not change the presidentially appointed committee that names trustees governing denominational institutions. The slate was approved in a ballot vote marked with allegations of dishonesty after a clamorous wave of objections to it.

A wave of protesting shouts of "point of order," ignored by the fundamentalist-aligned president, the Rev. Charles Stanley, surged from floor microphones, their red lights blinking, when he put the official slate to a hand vote. When that was too divided to determine, written voting was ordered.

The slate was approved, but registrar Lee Porter announced he had received numerous reports that some people were passing out extra ballots.

"Maybe some were dishonest," he said. (See BAPTISTS, Page 2A)

Patrol formed to combat gang violence

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 10-man special patrol unit has been created to work parts of the city's north side where recent gang violence left one person dead and nine others injured, officials said.

The ten officers were picked to be on the squad because of their records and interest in helping teen-agers, authorities said. The special patrol will combat escalating violence among gangs in Fort Worth's north side.

A 22-year-old man was shot to death June 2 in a shooting spree that left nine others wounded, including two children.

Police said tensions among the city's 32 youth gangs had been mounting when the violence erupted June 2.

Two 16-year-old youths and a 20-year-old man have been arrested in connection with the shooting.

The special force will include plain-clothes and uniformed officers, said Doug Clarke, police spokesman. He said their hours will be based on police intelligence sources' best indication as to when extra help may be needed.

PUC proceeding on request

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite warnings to watch where it's going, the Public Utility Commission is proceeding on a request by two owners of the South Texas Nuclear Project to bless a $750 million settlement of a lawsuit over construction of the Bay City plant.

The PUC did indicate Wednesday, in scheduling another hearing for next Tuesday, that a final decision by Dec. 31 — as the owners asked — is out of the question.

Jim Boyle of the Office of Public Utility Counsel said Houston Lighting and Power Co. and Central Power and Light Co. merely wanted the PUC's blessing so any later blame for the settlement would be directed at the PUC.

The $750 million settlement offered by the Brown & Root construction firm, believed to be the largest out-of-court cash settlement in United States history, has been accepted by three of the four owners of the nuclear power plant — HL&P, CP&L and City Public Service of San Antonio.

A spokesman for Brown & Root said Wednesday, however, the settlement offer did not amount to a "confession" that the company had done anything wrong.

The fourth plant owner, the city of Austin, has made no decision on the offer and has been given a Sept. 15 deadline to take or leave the $120 million it would get in the deal.

Brown & Root, a subsidiary of Dallas-based Halliburton Co., was hired to design and build the nuclear plant by HL&P in 1973 but was fired in 1983 after allegations of mismanagement. The four partners sued Brown & Root and Halliburton for $6.6 billion under a state law that would permit them to recover three times that much if the companies are found liable.

207 child-molestation charges dropped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Parents said they are "dismayed and outraged" at the dismissal of most of 207 child-molestation charges against teachers at the McMartin Pre-School because prosecutors were unwilling to make more children testify in court.

Municipal Court Judge Aviva K. Bobb, who must decide whether a Superior Court trial is warranted, dismissed at least 145 counts Wednesday for lack of evidence. The action paralleled her dismissal Tuesday of 64 other charges.

The total dismissed exceeds the 207 counts in the indictment because in some cases several people are alleged to have been involved in a single act.

The dismissals turned on the prosecution's refusal to present 28 additional child witnesses unless the former McMartin pupils were allowed to testify out of sight of the seven defendants via closed-circuit television.

Parents convicted in faith-healing death

WARSAW, Ind. (AP) — A man whose faith-healing prayers failed to save his ailing daughter was convicted Wednesday on charges of reckless homicide and criminal recklessness in her death. His wife also was convicted of the latter charge.

But the jury acquitted Faith Assembly church members James H. Menne and his 45-year-old wife, Ione, of child neglect. Mrs. Menne also was acquitted of reckless homicide.

Menne, 38, and his wife had been charged in the death of their 15-year-old daughter, Pamela, who died Sept. 16 at the family's rural Warsaw home from untreated chronic kidney failure.

The Mennes, the third Faith Assembly couple convicted on charges filed in the death of children from treatable illnesses, showed no reaction as Superior Court Judge Robert Burner read the verdicts after more than seven hours of jury deliberations.

The Noble County-based Faith Assembly teaches members to shun conventional medical care and trust God to heal illness.

The couple held hands, but did not speak as the jury left the courtroom.

Duane Huffer, a defense attorney, said, "I think the testimony regarding Mr. Menne as the head of the household" resulted in the more serious conviction against him.

"I was the one who ministered to Pamela," Menne told the jury Tuesday. "I am the head of the household. The responsibility of my children rests with me."

Menne testified that he prayed over Pamela as she suffered the seizure that ended her life after three months of failing health, but never sought professional medical help.

Burner set sentencing for July 25.

The reckless homicide charge carries a maximum prison term of eight years and a $10,000 fine. The criminal recklessness charge, a misdemeanor, carries a maximum six-month sentence.

Waste taking toll on relief

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — A freak rainstorm, the searing tropical sun and bad handling at both ends of the aid pipeline have taken a significant toll of relief supplies sent to famine-stricken Ethiopia, aid officials say.

But the precise amount of wastage, they add, is virtually impossible to tabulate because of the multiplicity of relief groups — including more than 100 non-government organizations — involved in getting supplies to Ethiopia's estimated 10.8 million famine victims.

"If you describe it in percentage terms, it is extremely small," said Thomas F. Grannell, a project officer for the United Nations World Food Program. But Grannell, an Irishman, pointed out that Ethiopia has asked international donors for 1.5 million tons of food for 1985 to feed the victims of three years of drought.

Witness offers details on Camarena

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three reputed drug barons ordered the killing of U.S. special agent Enrique Camarena Salazar after he disclosed American officials considered them "dangerous narcotics traffickers," according to a statement provided by an eyewitness.

Francisco Fonseca, spokesman for the Attorney General's Office, confirmed on Wednesday details provided by the witness, Francisco Javier Tejada Jaramillo, who has been charged with murder in the case.

Tejada, 32, told authorities that the reputed drug traffickers — Rafael Caro Quintero, Miguel Felix Gallardo and Ernesto Fonseca — made the "unanimous" decision to order Camarena's death on Feb. 8, according to the spokesman.

The three are considered among the top four kingpins of the illegal drug trade in Mexico.

Camarena, an agent for the U.S.

Drug Enforcement Administration, was abducted on Feb. 7 in Guadalajara, a center of the illegal drug trade in Mexico. His badly beaten body was discovered, along with that of a Mexican pilot who worked with him, on March 5.

After his abduction, Camarena, his face covered and his hands tied, was taken to a house owned by Caro Quintero in Guadalajara where he was beaten by three of Felix Gallardo's associates, according to Tejada.

"He was in agony," said Francisco Fonseca.

The witness' account states that Ernesto Fonseca and another man, Samuel Ramirez Razo, entered the room where Camarena was being held and Ramirez asked how the DEA considered the three.

"Camarena responded that they were classified as dangerous drug traffickers in DEA files," said Francisco Fonseca.

Caro Quintero, Felix Gallardo and Ernesto Fonseca then allegedly decided to order Camarena's death, according to the account.

"I think that was the motive for the death," the Attorney General's Office spokesman said.

Tejada told authorities that Felix Gallardo's associates used material from a pillowcase and adhesive tape to cover Camarena's nose and mouth.

"I believe that in about three minutes Camarena died of asphyxiation," Tejada said in his statement to authorities.

Camarena was then put in the trunk of a car where Julio Alvarez, identified as one of Felix Gallardo's associates, struck him on the head with a tire iron, Tejada alleged.

In addition to murder, Tejada has been charged with criminal association, conspiracy and possession of illegal arms.

Caro Quintero and Ernesto Fonseca were arrested earlier and charged in April with Camarena's death and abduction.

Authorities are still looking for Felix Gallardo and three of his associates, Alvarez, Refugio Alvarez and Carlos Martinez, according to Francisco Fonseca.

Gallardo's whereabouts are unknown, said the spokesman.

In addition to Caro Quintero, Felix Gallardo and Ernesto Fonseca, authorities have identified Juan Ramon Matta-Ballesteros as the fourth reputed leader of the illegal drug trade here. He was arrested last month in Colombia.

Student will see liftoff

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Clay Casarez thought money would keep him from watching his scientific experiment soar into the heavens on the space shuttle Discovery.

But last-minute offers from sponsors to finance his return trip will allow the sophomore electrical engineering student to witness Monday's scheduled launch of the space shuttle.

The pending shuttle flight signifies the end of an elusive dream for Casarez, who has worked for years on a small dye laser that will be among 11 student projects flying into space if the Discovery takes off Monday.

"I always knew my project would eventually be carried on the shuttle, but until recently I wasn't exactly sure when," he told the El Paso Times.

A delegation of students, sponsors and project advisers led by project manager Suzie Azar will leave El Paso Friday morning to see Monday's launch of Discovery at Cape Canaveral.

The 11 student projects, designed by El Paso and Ysleta school district students, is the first Texas high school payload to fly on a space shuttle, the Times said.

Casarez, a sophomore at Texas Tech University, started his project as an eighth-grader.

But the student was disappointed Wednesday afternoon because he thought his closest glimpse of the launch site would be on a television screen.

The Hanks High School graduate said he could not afford a return trip after traveling to Florida in April to deliver the student experiments to National Aeronautics and Space Administration technicians.

Ms. Azar, who has nursed the student project since the late 1970s, said Casarez agreed to attend the launch after project sponsors offered Wednesday night to help finance the trip.

The student's laser will test the effects of the weightless environment of space on the accuracy and concentration of the laser's beam. Measuring 8 inches long, the project also will monitor performance and compile data that Casarez later will compare with data from ground experiments.

Casarez figures his project may help pinpoint the accuracy of dye lasers in measuring distances between two objects in space. Dye lasers, he said, someday may help future space missions with docking procedures and retrieving equipment.

The El Paso experiments were made possible when El Paso businessman Richard Azar made a down payment and reserved space on the flight in 1977.

FBI preparing killer profiles

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A task force investigating cases involving seven missing or murdered women is being assisted by a FBI team that specializes in preparing criminal profiles, police said.

"We won't get an answer overnight (on the profiles), but we're hoping it will be beneficial," Fort Worth Police Lt. Vernon Farris told The Dallas Morning News today.

Three FBI agents will try to provide detectives with leads by attempting to make psychological profiles of the murderer or murderers. The agents will work on preparing the profiles through Friday.

The profiles may help police determine if more than one woman was killed by the same person, The News said today.

Cases being studied by FBI agents include the disappearance of Angela Ewert, 21; the shooting death of Lisa Griffin, 20; the death of Catherine Davis, 23; the stabbing death of Sarah Ann Kashka, 15; the stabbing death of Ginger Hayden, 18; the death of Cindy Heller, 23; and the strangulation of Regina Grover, 21.

Information on each case was sent to FBI behavioral science specialists in January. The FBI also will gather information for its new computerized Violent Criminal Apprehension Program, which helps detect a pattern of serial murders nationally, police said.

The local task force was formed in January to investigate five missing or murdered women, who were last seen or found dead in southwest Fort Worth.

Farris, who became head of the task force Monday, said five other murder cases involving women have been added to the force's case list.

told the convention, but said he had no evidence to be sure. "I don't know. God help this convention to get back to meticulous honesty."

The upheaval came after the Rev. James Slatton of Richmond, Va., moved to replace a proposed committee on boards, picked by the president, with elected heads of state conventions and elected state women leaders.

"The one chance this body has for peace is to adopt a committee that this whole body can trust," he said, noting that the presidential appointive authority has been the basis for the factional strife.

Stanley initially ruled the proposed substitution of the entire slate out of order, saying names could be substituted only individually.

Parliamentarian Wayne Allen of Memphis then took the podium to say the bylaws do not permit the convention to make substitutions for the official slate, either individually or altogether.

At that point, Stanley put the slate to a vote, ignoring the outburst of challenges to his action.

Slatton protested, "In any democratic body I've ever been in, once a slate of nominees is presented, other nominations can be made from the floor. It's also patent that in any democratic body, the cry of 'point-of-order' means you should stop and see if it's valid."

The Rev. Bill Sherman, a moderate leader of Nashville, Tenn., said the procedure "was not just" and reflected an "absence of integrity."

"Without justice, we're going to be hard pressed to be reconciled. Justice is a cardinal virtue of Christianity. I'm not being a poor loser, and I'm not leaving the ship, but I don't want this convention stolen," he said.

members back to the refuge headquarters for its monthly meetings. Krey had told board members last month that they would no longer be welcome there if they continued to oppose the permit, but soon afterward notified the board that he had changed his mind. Father, son twice snared in hijacking episode

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP) — An American father and son trying to leave Beirut were twice snared in a bizarre eye-for-an-eye hijack episode that ended when a suspected Palestinian hijacker surrendered in Cyprus.

Landrey Slade, 53, assistant president of the American University of Beirut, and his son, William, were on board a Jordanian airlines plane that was hijacked Tuesday in Beirut, and a Middle East Airlines jet that was commandeered Wednesday as it neared Cyprus.

They were attempting to leave Beirut for the graduation of Slade's older son, Lawrence, Jr., from Georgia Tech on Sunday.

William Slade, 18, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from his hotel room in Larnaca, Cyprus, after the second hijacking ended: "We are fine ... It wasn't bad, but it isn't something we want to talk about."

Asked where he and his father planned to travel next, he laughed and said: "You mean fly somewhere? I'm not sure yet."

But they departed Cyprus this morning on a British Airways flight to London.

"Please God, let it be true," was the only reaction from Slade's 82-year-old mother, Gladys, in Wayland, Mass., when news reports said her son and grandson had been freed after the second hijacking.

In Amman, Jordan, authorities took the suspected Palestinian hijacker of the Middle East Airlines jet into custody today.

That hijacking apparently was in retaliation for the Tuesday hijacking of a Jordanian jet by Shiite Moslems in Beirut, which ended Wednesday when the Shiites destroyed the plane with three explosions.

Spy defense may pivot on documents

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Defense strategy for accused spy Arthur J. Walker may rest on whether the government can prove that the documents he allegedly passed to his brother were ever delivered to the Soviet Union, his lawyers say.

U.S. Magistrate Gilbert R. Swink on Wednesday refused bond to Walker after an FBI agent testified the former Navy lieutenant commander took a job with a defense contractor after his brother suggested he could use the position to steal and sell classified documents.

Swink said he found overwhelming evidence to refer the charge against Walker to a federal grand jury. Walker's attorneys said he would plead innocent at an arraignment next Tuesday.

Walker, of Virginia Beach, is one of four men charged in an alleged spy ring that may have operated for 20 years. The ringleader allegedly was his brother, John A. Walker Jr., a retired Navy communications expert from Norfolk.

John Walker's son, Michael L. Walker, 22, and former Navy associate Jerry A. Whitworth, 45, of Davis, Calif., also have been charged.

FBI Special Agent Beverly Andress testified at Wednesday's hearing that Arthur Walker told FBI agents that in January 1980, John Walker said he had "friends" who were interested in buying classified documents and he suggested Arthur get a job where he could obtain them.

A month later, Arthur Walker, answering an advertisement in a newspaper, took a job as an engineer at VSE Corp., a Chesapeake defense contractor providing planning and technical services to the government, Andress said.

Walker told the FBI that in April 1982 he received $12,000 in exchange for giving his brother a CASREP, a classified document dealing with ship damage and repairs in the Navy from 1976 to 1980, the FBI agent said.

Walker said he and his brother photographed most of the report before returning it to VSE's vaults, according to Andress, who said the original documents have since been destroyed.

Samuel Meekins, one of Arthur Walker's court-appointed lawyers, said there was no proof of the document's content or that it had ever been passed to the Soviets.

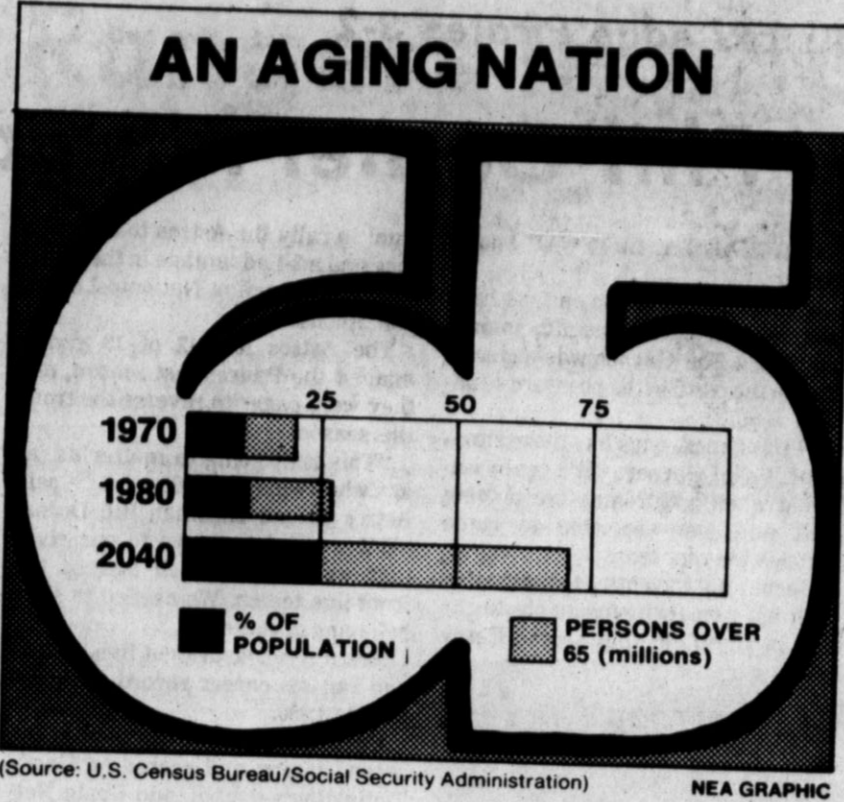

Carl Seiberlich, a former personnel manager for VSE, said that based on the material to which Arthur Walker had access, he probably would have been "a pretty low-level player" in any spy ring.

Walker held a "secret" clearance at VSE. The CASREP documents he allegedly gave John Walker carried a slightly lower "confidential" rating, Andress testified.

Arthur Walker retired from the Navy in 1973. His last assignment was as an instructor in anti-submarine warfare for the Atlantic Fleet Tactical School from 1968 to 1973.

Board offers principal money to resign

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) — A rural school board has offered a junior high school principal $25,000 for his resignation, but board members say the offer was not made because of his indictment in the love-triangle murder of the football coach.

School officials say they sought the resignation of Woodson Junior High School Principal Hurley Fontenot because he engaged in "grossly immoral conduct" by continuing to live with his ex-wife after their divorce and by other acts.

The Hull-Daisetta School Board voted Monday to buy out Fontenot, 48, who was indicted last month in the shooting death of coach Billy Mac Fleming, 36. Fontenot, who signed a new two-year contract with the board in February for a $33,960 annual salary, agreed to the buyout.

Prosecutors say the shooting in April was prompted by a love triangle between Fontenot, Fleming and Laura Nugent, a former school secretary who was the coach's fiancée. Fontenot, who is free on $50,000 bond, pleaded innocent and is scheduled for trial Aug. 19.

However, school officials say Fontenot's termination is not a result of the indictment.

Kenneth Voytek, superintendent of the school district, which encompasses two small towns in rural southeast Texas, demanded Fontenot's resignation without pay in a May 22 letter that accused the principal of living with his former wife, using school credit cards to pay for $14.40 of gasoline, and failure to prepare annual course schedules for students and teachers.

The letter also alleges the district had been unable to account for money collected for graduation gowns, cheerleader uniforms, school trips and activity funds.

Fontenot's brother and attorney, Walter Fontenot, said the principal resigned "because of everything that's going on."

Qualified teacher survey is asked

AUSTIN (AP) — Teachers assigned to instruct subjects outside their particular training area may be teaching as many as 500,000 students in Texas classrooms, according to the Texas Federation of Teachers.

"In short, the practice of assigning teachers out of their fields constitutes a deception to the public, an injustice to teachers and a disservice to students," John Cole, TFT president, told a news conference Wednesday.

Cole said the TFT was asking the State Board of Education to "tighten up its own rules" on the use of three emergency permits — the Temporary Classroom Assignment Permit, the Emergency Teaching Permit and the Special Assignment Permit. The permits are designed to be used to fill temporary shortages of qualified personnel.

"Many school districts abuse these permits by using them as a means to avoid the state's teacher certification rules," Cole said.

Cole said "nobody knows" but TFT estimates as many as 14,000 teachers last year taught in fields for which they lacked certification.

"Probably most of these unqualified teachers were assigned to math and science classes," Cole said. "There is where the big shortage is."

"TFT is very concerned that the new state certification rules, coupled with a projected teacher shortage, will tempt school districts to abuse these loopholes in the certification procedures," Cole said. "We believe that every classroom needs a competent, qualified teacher, and we believe the public has a right to know when a district has failed to provide such teachers."

He said the TFT wanted the State Board of Education to vigorously enforce its present rules on issuance of these permits. He said the state board should require all temporary assignment permits to be approved by the Texas Education Agency before a teacher is assigned.

LIQUEUR OF THE GODS

Called the liqueur of the gods by Victor Hugo more than 100 years ago, mere mortals still consider cognac a favorite after-dinner spirit. Like other brandies, cognac is made from wine. Its distinction is that it is made exclusively from white grapes in the chalky soil of the Cognac region of France. It goes through a double-distillation process and is then aged in oak barrels. This gives it its amber color and mellow taste. Which cognac is best is largely a matter of personal taste. The label, however, gives some clues. A cognac marked V. S. (very superior) is the youngest. V.S.O.P. (very superior or old pale) is middle-aged and runs about seven to ten years. Older cognacs are usually given a special name by the maker.

Astros edge Pirates 3-2

Phil Garner hits game-winning triple

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

With the winning run on first base and one out in the seventh inning, Houston's Phil Garner was eager to step to the plate in the pressure situation.

"I think most guys like those situations," said Garner. "It's really exciting when both teams are playing well and you are able to come through for your team."

Garner got the entire team excited with his game-winning triple to the gap in rightfield that scored Terry

Puhl to rally the Astros to a 3-2 victory and a 2-1 advantage in the series with the defending National League champions.

The Astros lost 12 of 18 games against the Padres last season, and they were eager to reverse the trend this season.

"This isn't going to matter as far as who wins the division," said Astros second baseman Bill Doran. "But we had to prove to ourselves that we can play well against the front-line teams. We needed to start believing in ourselves."

Nolan Ryan struck out five batters and ran his career record strikeout total to 3,966.

Kevin McReynolds doubled in the second inning and scored on Garry Templeton's double, and Graig Nettles homered over the rightfield fence in the ninth inning for San Diego's other run.

"I tried to establish my curve and changeup early in the game and go with the fastball later," Ryan said. "To be effective with your fastball, you've got to get them thinking about your curve."

After Garner's triple broke a 1-1 deadlock, Garner also scored on the play when Flannery's throw to third base was wild and skidded into the Padres dugout.

"I hit a slider in the gap," Garner said. "They were shading me toward the line, and I just pulled it over there."

San Diego Manager Dick Williams said he expects to battle the Astros right down to the wire for the division title.

"They are a good ball club, particularly in this park," he said. "They know how to play and win in this park. They have good speed, they are fundamentally sound, they don't try to kill the ball, and they are getting good starting pitching."

Padre first baseman Steve Garvey agreed with his manager.

"I expected to battle them for the division in March and I have no reason at this point to think differently," Garvey said. "It depends on the development of (catcher Mark) Bailey and (Jim) Pankovits and some of their younger hitters and pitchers."

"They make contact and keep the ball in play. They are scoring more runs than they expected to."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Montreal 2, Chicago 0; Atlanta 5, San Francisco 2; and New York 7, Philadelphia 3 in 11 innings. Los Angeles at Cincinnati and St. Louis at Pittsburgh were rained out.

Braves 5, Giants 2
When Atlanta's Dale Murphy goes hitless in eight at-bats, someone will pay the piper. In this case it was San Francisco's Altee Hammaker, who was touched for Murphy's 15th home run and a two-run double.

"It just felt good to make contact after struggling last night," Murphy said of his nightmare in an 18-inning loss to the Giants on Tuesday night. He struck out four times against four different pitchers. "Last night's the most discouraging night I ever had in my life, except for maybe Little League when I struck out five times."

Murphy homered in the first inning and his sixth-inning double chased Hammaker, 2-6, and made a winner of Rick Mahler, now 10-5.

Mets 7, Phillies 3
Normalcy returned to Philadelphia where the Phillies set team records for runs and hits in a 26-7 victory over New York on Tuesday night.

The Mets, led by Gary Carter, who had four hits including his eighth home run, totaled 18 hits against five Philadelphia pitchers. Carter, who had homered in the fourth inning, drove in Keith Hernandez to start a four-run rally in the 11th off loser Dave Rucker.

John Christensen's second homer, a two-run shot, capped the rally. "This picked up our spirits after the thrashing we took last night," Carter said.

"If there are five games we have to win all year, this was one of them," said Ron Darling, who pitched the first seven innings for the Mets.

The Phillies had a 3-1 lead, but Danny Heep's fifth homer, a two-run shot off Kent Tekulve, tied the game in the eighth.

The Phillies, who had 27 hits Tuesday, were limited to just three on Wednesday.

Expos 2, Cubs 0
In Montreal, Jeff Reardon saved his major-league-leading 18th game in 19 opportunities with one hitless inning.

David Palmer, 5-5, Tim Burke and Reardon combined on a five-hitter and Vance Law and Herm Wingham drove in the runs as the Expos ended the Cubs' six-game winning streak.

The loss went to Rick Sutcliffe, 6-5.

Speculation arises about Oriole manager change

BALTIMORE (AP) — Amid reports that he would be replaced, Joe Altobelli may have signed his last lineup card as manager of the Baltimore Orioles — just a year and a half after leading the team to the World Championship.

The Orioles were set to end 48 hours of speculation by firing Altobelli and naming former Orioles manager Earl Weaver as the eighth manager in the team's history, according to today's Baltimore Sun.

The newspaper, quoting unidentified sources close to the team, said that Orioles owner Edward Bennett Williams and General Manager Hank Peters were split between naming Weaver or coach Cal Ripken Sr. as Altobelli's replacement.

Altobelli, in Detroit Wednesday night for Baltimore's game against the Tigers, said he had not received any word that he would be fired.

"I don't know if I've been fired," he said before the game, which the Orioles lost 6-2. "I'm in uniform, ain't I? What the bleep am I doing working out? If I'd found out something else, I'd have packed my bag and been on a plane."

He said he had talked with Peters Wednesday and Peters told him, "You're the manager, hang tough," the Sun said.

Earlier Wednesday, WBAL radio in Baltimore said that "high-placed sources," who were not identified, had confirmed that Altobelli would be removed as manager.

Other sources, who also requested anonymity, told the Associated Press that Williams met with Weaver, who retired in 1982, at Williams' offices in Washington on Wednesday.

There was no answer at Weaver's Florida residence.

Telephone calls to Williams, a prominent Washington lawyer who earlier this week said he was planning some changes on the club, were not returned.

Williams wanted to fire Altobelli several times over the past year but Peters talked him out of it each time. However, Peters didn't try this time, in light of the Orioles' poor showing this year, the Sun said.

Baltimore remained in third place in the American League East after Wednesday's loss, eight games behind the Toronto Blue Jays, and had lost 16 of the last 27 contests after jumping in front of the division at the outset of the season with an 18-9 mark.

World Series champions in 1983, the Orioles slumped to fifth in the AL East last season, 19 games behind the division-winning Tigers.

Angels get past Rangers in pitchers' duel 3-2

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer
Mike Witt of the California Angels and Charlie Hough of the Texas Rangers, two right-handers who have frustrated each other's team in the past, went at it again Wednesday last meeting. It couldn't have been, night.

The duel wasn't as good as their since last Sept. 30 Witt pitched a perfect game while Hough allowed only one unearned run.

But the outcome was the same. as Witt and the Angels picked up a 3-2 win.

"Mike knew he didn't have an easy task," California Manager Gene Mauch. "He was up against a guy who is tough to beat."

While Hough, 5-6, went the route on a seven-hitter, Witt needed Donnie Moore's relief help to post his fourth win in 10 decisions.

But that doesn't mean the 6-foot-7 right-hander wasn't at his best against the Rangers, against whom he posted a 2-0 record with an 0.52 ERA last year.

"For six innings, he was just overpowering," Mauch said, referring to a stretch in which Witt retired 18 of 20, a streak interrupted only by two walks.

"I expect that of him every time. And maybe that's been his problem. Maybe people's expectations have been a little tough on him."

Lack of run support has been even tougher on Witt, who despite a 3-6 record took a 3.46 ERA into his 13th start. The Angels averaged 3.1 runs for his first 12 starts.

They didn't get any more against Hough, who posted an 0.92 ERA in 29 innings against California in 1984.

But Bob Boone's infield grounder, following a Mike Brown single and Brian Downing double in the second, drove in one run.

And the Angels cashed in some fifth-inning breaks. Boone and Bobby Grich walked with one out and moved up on Don Slaught's passed ball before both scored on a broken-bat single by Rod Carew.

For Carew, who came off the disabled list on Monday, the hit was his first since a stress fracture was discovered in his left foot on May 19. He added another single in the eighth to move within 42 of the 3,000 mark.

"I still can't push off the foot," said Carew. "So I'm trying to keep my weight back and use my hands as much as possible."

"We've been waiting for that for quite a while," Mauch said of the return of Carew's bat.

The Rangers, who jumped to a quick 1-0 lead in the first on Oddibe McDowell's single and steal of second and Buddy Bell's double, narrowed the margin in the eighth.

McDowell led off with a single and stole his second base to be in position to score on Cliff Johnson's double.

The hit was the first allowed by Witt since the second inning, but he was removed in favor of Moore.

Moore ended that threat by getting Gary Ward to fly to right and breezed through the ninth to pick up his 13th save.

White Sox 6, Mariners 3

Although he didn't hit a home run, Bruce Tanner's debut in the major leagues was somewhat like his father's.

"I was real nervous before the game, but I was surprised at how calm I felt out there," the son of Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner said after making a successful start Wednesday night in the Chicago White Sox' 6-3 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

When Chuck Tanner made his first major league appearance as a player for the Milwaukee Braves on April 12, 1955, he hit a home run in his first at-bat.

His 23-year-old son also was effective in winning his first major league game in his first start, allowing but seven hits in 6 2-3 innings. Tanner was charged with two of the Mariners' runs, while striking out three and walking two during his stint. He became the first White Sox pitcher to win his first major league start since Ross Baumgarten did it in 1978.

Royals 3, A's 2

Pat Sheridan tripled with one out in the 14th inning, his third hit of the game, and scored on a pinch-hit single by Jim Sundberg, lifting Kansas City over Oakland.

The Royals, after going scoreless for 10 innings, broke through in the 14th against reliever Steve McCatty, 2-3. The victory went to Mike Jones, 1-2, Kansas City's fourth pitcher of the game.

Tigers 6, Orioles 2

Dan Petry hurled a three-hitter for his American League-leading ninth victory and John Grubb's two-run single capped a three-run first inning as Detroit beat Baltimore for the Tigers' fourth straight victory.

Petry, 9-4, struck out four and walked two, retiring 24 of the last 25 batters and the final 19.

The Orioles, losing for the fifth straight time, played the game amidst rumors of the imminent firing of Manager Joe Altobelli.

Red Sox 7, Brewers 2

Glenn Hoffman drove in two runs in a four-run second inning, sparking Boston and Al Nipper over Milwaukee. Nipper, 3-5, allowed 10 hits, walked two and struck out five, struggling to complete his first game of the season.

The Red Sox handed Milwaukee starter Moose Haas, 5-3, his first defeat since April 20 with their ninth victory in the last 10 games.

Blue Jays 3, Yankees 2

Pinch-hitter Rance Mulliniks led off the 10th inning with a home run, powering Toronto over New York.

Mulliniks' homer, his third of the season, came off reliever Rich Bordi, 1-1, the fourth Yankee pitcher. The blow marked the second straight extra-inning victory for the Blue Jays over the Yankees and made a winner of reliever Jim Acker, 3-0, the third Toronto pitcher.

Attentive Third Baseman

Jill Robinson keeps her eyes on an opposing batter during a Kids Inc. girls' minor league game. The third baseman is a member of the Cardinals.

Brett is leading vote getter for A.L. all-stars

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven of the eight starters for the American League in the 1984 Baseball All-Star Game are leading in early balloting for this year's mid-summer classic.

According to results released Wednesday by the commissioner's office, Kansas City's George Brett is the leading vote-getter in his bid to start at third base for the sixth straight year. Brett has 321,037 votes for the 56th annual game, to be played July 16 at the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome in Minneapolis.

Leading at their positions are the following 1984 starters: catcher Lance Parrish of Detroit, 226,669; first baseman Rod Carew of California, 202,519; second baseman Lou Whitaker of Detroit, 223,332; shortstop Cal Ripken of Baltimore, 303,066; and outfielders Dave Winfield of New York, 222,177, and Reggie Jackson of California, 188,271.

The only new face is Minnesota outfielder Tom Brunansky, who has 167,454.

Balloting continues through July 6. The National League leaders earlier this week were first baseman Steve Garvey, third baseman Graig Nettles and outfielder Tony Gwynn of San Diego; catcher Gary Carter and outfielder Darryl Strawberry of New York; second baseman Ryne Sandberg of Chicago; shortstop Ozzie Smith of St. Louis; and outfielder Dale Murphy of Atlanta.

Junior rodeo set in Brownfield

A two-day junior rodeo for youth up to the age of 19 is scheduled June 28-29 at the Brownfield Rodeo Arena in Brownfield.

The rodeo is sanctioned by the High Plains Rodeo Association, and is sponsored by the Terry County Extension 4-H and Youth Committee.

Divisions in the rodeo will be 8 and under, 9 to 12, 13 to 15, and 16 to 19. Competition will start at 8 p.m. each day.

Entry deadline for the rodeo is June 18. Entry forms may be obtained by calling the Terry County Extension Office in Brownfield, (806) 637-4060, or after 5 p.m. by calling the High Plains Rodeo Association secretary, Janice Moore, in Clovis, N.M., (505) 985-2653.

Buckles will be awarded to the all-around winners in each division of the rodeo. Events in the divisions are as follows:

Eight and under, girls and boys: barrel racing, flag racing, and goat roping.

Nine to 12, boys: steer riding, calf touching, breakaway roping and steer stopping; girls: barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, and breakaway roping.

Thirteen to 15, and 16 to 19, boys: bareback bronc riding, bull riding, tiedown calf roping, ribbon roping, partner roping, and team roping; girls: barrel racing, pole bending, goat tying, ribbon roping, partner roping, breakaway roping, and team roping.

U.S. Open begins today at 'The Monster'

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — The forecast called for showers — great weather for golfers in the opening round of the U.S. Open.

The rain figured to take some of the bite out of "The Monster," the Oakland Hills Country Club, by putting some bite into the greens, slowing what the U.S. Golf Association had hoped would be Teflon-lick surfaces.

"I haven't seen too many courses where the greens are as difficult as they are here," said Seve Ballesteros of Spain, one of the leading contenders for the $103,000 top prize in this $650,000 tournament.

Rain, which also drenched the course earlier this week, figured to help Ballesteros and Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany, the other prominent European in the field.

"The weather is bad, but it's not as bad as we play in Europe. It's much, much worse there," said Ballesteros, a two-time Masters champion (1980, 1983) who won the USF&G Classic at New Orleans in March and then finished second to Langer in the Masters a month later at Augusta, Ga.

"I think this course suits my game," said Langer, who also won the Sea Pines Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C., the week after the Masters. "I think it suits anybody who hits the ball straight off the tee and hits good long irons to medium irons."

Fuzzy Zoeller, the defending champion, called the greens "very severe. The undulations are awesome, the worst I've ever seen. Hubert Green probably summed it up best. He said you could hit 13 of your best iron shots and you might make two birdies out of it."

There are 156 golfers — eight of them amateurs — competing on the 6,996-yard, par-70 Oakland Hills course labeled "The Monster" by Ben Hogan when he won the 1951 U.S. Open.

The low 60 scorers, and those tying for 60th, will make the 36-hole cut for the final two rounds, both to be televised by ABC. If two or more players are tied after Sunday's fourth round, an 18-hole playoff will be staged Monday.

Zoeller, who won an 18-hole playoff a year ago at Winged Foot in Mamaroneck, N.Y., is one of 12 U.S. Open champions entered. Among them is 1983 champ Larry Nelson, 1982 winner Tom Watson and 1981 champion David Graham, who also won the 1979 PGA Championship at Oakland Hills.

The multiple U.S. Open winners here are four-time champion Jack Nicklaus and two-timers Hale Irwin and Lee Trevino, the latter coming off a triumph last Sunday in Britain's Dunhill Masters.

Nicklaus hasn't won a tournament since taking the Memorial on his own Muirfield Village Golf Club in Dublin, Ohio, nearly 13 months ago.

Last weekend, with the U.S. Open approaching, Nicklaus decided to get in two days of practice over the demanding Oakland Hills course.

When he arrived, Nicklaus looked around and found no playing partners. He had the course all to himself, unencumbered by the other players who began play in the tournament today.

"Not another player showed up," he said. "That surprised me. It's the Open. You've got to learn the course, spend the time, find the things you'll have problems with, because you will have problems."

"That eliminates a lot of guys from winning. Ten years, 15 years ago, guys really pointed for the U.S. Open. Now there are 20 or 25 courses a year prepared like the Open. Guys feel they don't have to work, prepare for the U.S. Open like they used to."

Then he shrugged. "Maybe they don't," he said.

That approach simply would not do for Nicklaus, a four-time winner of this prestigious event, who has been struggling with his game lately, and has not won a tour event in over a year.

"Obviously, I have not played well

The top 10 batters in major league baseball history, according to batting average, are: Ty Cobb, .367; Rogers Hornsby, .358; Joe Jackson, .356; Pete Browning, .354; David Orr, .352; Dan Brouthers and Frank O'Doul, each .349; Ed Delahanty, .346; Tris Speaker and Willie Keeler, each .345.

for the last couple of months," he said. "I've worked hard. Hopefully, I'll see improvement. If not, I've got to work harder."

Oakland Hills, dubbed The Monster by no less an authority than Ben Hogan, last hosted the Open in 1961, when a 21-year-old amateur named Nicklaus finished fourth.

"I'm the only guy in the field who played here in '61," Nicklaus said. "That makes me feel old."

He is 45 now. The advancing years have altered his approach to the game somewhat.

"I work harder at it," he said.

If Nicklaus has changed since the last time he played an Open at Oakland Hills, the course has not — except for the elm tree that once occupied a prominent spot at No. 12.

Nicklaus was one shot behind Gene Littler with seven holes to play that year when a sudden wind gusty a key shot into the elm and helped huff and puff him out of contention.

"I learned young that you need patience to play this game," he said. "It helped some. I won the next year."

That was at Oakmont in Pittsburgh. There were wins at Baltusrol in 1967 and 1980, and at Pebble Beach in 1972.

He thought of the tour's young players, the ones who didn't practice the course last Friday and Saturday when he did.

"Maybe they don't have to take it as seriously. Maybe they don't realize the amount of preparation they need if they want to be there, Open after Open, PGA after PGA."

Now Nicklaus smiled.

"You'll probably find somebody come in Wednesday and win."

TDA may lay off 50 workers

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Department of Agriculture officials, seeking to cope with budget cuts made by the Legislature, say as many as 50 employees could be laid off this summer.

Pink slips are expected to be handed out as part of an agency reorganization that Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower plans to announce in early July, said Mike Moeller, a deputy commissioner.

The bulk of the proposed layoffs will be Austin-based administrative officials, whose salaries range from $30,000 to $40,000 a year, Moeller said.

"The best I can do is tell somewhere between 20 and 50" employees will be laid off, Moeller said.

"We are trying to get the whole thing together by the end of June, and if there are layoffs we will let them know by July 1," he said.

Statewide, the TDA employs 621 people, with 235 working in Austin.

Moeller said employees who are cut from the payroll will be able to stay with the agency until Aug. 31, the end of the budget year. The department will help laid off employees seek jobs in other state agencies and assist them with job counseling and preparing resumes.

The Legislature during its 1985 session trimmed the Agriculture Department's annual budget from $22.4 million in the current fiscal year to $20.1 million for 1986 and 1987.

The department was told to shift focus from administrative operations to such field activities as inspection of gasoline pumps and weights in grocery stores, and seed and pesticide regulations.

Although TDA officials first feared that 100 employees might be laid off, Moeller said many of those positions may be eliminated through attrition. He said the department is trying to determine the number of older employees whose jobs could go unfilled after retirement.

"Only as a last alternative are we looking at actual layoffs per se, and we are trying to hold that to a bare minimum," he said.

The department could save about $1 million annually by eliminating 50 jobs, Moeller said.

Big cows may not be most efficient

COLLEGE STATION — Big cows may not be the most efficient producers in a beef cattle herd.

Although big cows generally produce the heaviest calves, their maintenance costs may outweigh the benefits of the extra pounds of beef.

A demonstration at the Four G Ranch near Hempstead the past two years showed that cow maintenance costs need to be considered along with the age of cows in coming up with an efficient herd.

The demonstration was conducted by Dr. L.R. Sprott, beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, in cooperation with Bret Triplett, former manager of the Four G Ranch. The effort was a part of the Extension Service's Integrated Livestock Management Program.

Some 200 Santa Gertrudis cows ages two to 12 years were used in the study. Both cow weights and calf weaning weights were recorded and compared between cows of different age and weight groups.

The heaviest cows (1201 to 1700 pounds) weaned the heaviest calves at an average of 552 pounds.

Block names 8 panel members to oversee new export subsidy program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John Block has named eight members of an advisory panel to oversee the administration's new $2 billion export subsidy program.

The proposed panel includes five officials of commodity or general farm organizations, two from the grain export industry and a farmer.

The nominees are Varel Bailey of Iowa, president of the National Corn Growers Association; Harry Bell of South Carolina, president of the South Carolina Farm Bureau; Richard E. Bell of Arkansas, chairman of the trade policy committee of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives; and Don Butler of Arizona, president elect of the National Cattlemen's Association.

Also, T.L. Irmen of Ohio, first vice president of the National Grain and Feed Association; Myron R. Laserson of New York, president of the American Export Grain Association; Ervain Friehe of Nebraska, secretary-treasurer of U.S. Wheat Associates; and Fred Kerr, a Kansas state senator and farmer.

The panel is to oversee implementation of the program, known as "export PIK," for payment in kind, which offers to give away surplus government commodities as bonuses to exporters who arrange sales to certain targeted foreign markets.

The group is intended to allay fears that the program could become a giveaway that enriches large grain trading companies while not significantly helping financially ailing farmers or boosting sagging export sales.

Announcement of the first sale under the program was expected as soon as today, on the eve of Block's trip to Europe for farm trade talks with officials of the European Economic Community.

Sales under the program are intended to recapture markets lost to what the administration considers "unfair trading practices" of competitors, including heavy subsidies used by the EEC. Speculation has been that the first use of the program will be in Mediterranean countries, a primary market for EEC nations like France.

Ag financial woes boil down to law of supply and demand

COLLEGE STATION — Texas and the nation's agricultural woes boil down to the law of supply and demand—too large a supply of agricultural commodities and a lack of markets.

"Abundant crop supplies, sagging exports and a strong U.S. dollar abroad are all hurting agriculture in Texas and the nation," emphasizes Dr. Carl Anderson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Agriculture's present devastating financial crunch results mostly from policy actions outside the confines of agriculture," he adds. "These include monetary and fiscal policies that together make up U.S.

economic policy, trade subsidies of other countries, tariffs, trade barriers and other forces that influence interest rates, inflation or economic conditions at home and abroad."

Anderson expects influences outside of agriculture to continue near their present level in 1985. Consequently, little change is likely in the depressed condition of the farm economy.

"The livestock sector will fare somewhat better than crop producers this year," Anderson points out, "due to lower cattle numbers. However, large crop supplies will continue to dampen any sustained price recovery for major commodities."

Holstein cows produce on average more milk per cow than any other breed.

Midland museum pays homage to black gold

By CANDICE HUGHES Associated Press Writer

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Oil made this city of flat planes and sharp angles that juts out of a vast pancake landscape. And it made rich men out of wildcatters like the late George T. Abell.

Men like him abound in Midland, where it is said the poor are easy to spot because they wash their own Cadillacs.

Abell wasn't content to bask in his wealth. He wanted a monument to the black gold that made it possible and to the special breed of men that wrenched it out of the harsh West Texas earth.

"The oil business has been good to him and he wanted to pay it back," said petroleum historian Berte Haigh.

Abell's vision crystallized as a museum dedicated to oil, oilmen and the oil patch.

He got together a group of like-minded oilmen, chartered a non-profit corporation and started raising money. In 1975, their unabashed valentine to the oil business opened.

The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum now attracts about 50,000 visitors a year. They include everyone from school kids to roughnecks to visiting delegations from behind the Iron Curtain, said director Ed Rowland.

Unlike most museums, the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum is not devoted to acquiring valuable artifacts, he said.

"We collect very little," Rowland said. "We rely heavily on exhibits, slide shows, things like that."

The museum is dedicated wholeheartedly to educating visitors about oil, the petroleum industry and the 115,000-square-mile Permian Basin.

"Everybody thinks an area like this has no history, that it's just dry flat terrain," said Rowland, who worked his way through college roughnecking in the oilfields.

Visitors can see what the basin looked like 230 million years ago, when it was a warm, shallow sea teeming with the marine life which eventually metamorphized into oil.

They can view a simulated well blow-out.

"It's one of the few exhibits I've ever seen that's guaranteed to get the attention of eighth graders," Rowland said, as the soundtrack roared and the artificial flames flickered wildly.

The museum also tries to communicate a sense of how limited a resource petroleum is.

"We have a 20 to 40 year window to decide what to base our society on instead of petroleum," Rowland said, gesturing to the five-screen theater devoted to the future of the energy industry.

Although the museum puts a low priority on acquisitions, it owns a collection of antique drilling rigs that it claims is the world's largest.

Midland has weathered 60 years of boom and bust to become a glossy little city. It boasts skyscrapers and symphony music and restaurants that serve nouvelle cuisine under the watchful eye of a French maitre'd.

But out on Interstate 20, on the scrubby museum grounds, the old wooden derricks and the cable tool rigs that pounded their way through the porous, oil-soaked rock give silent, gritty testimony what made it possible.

Suggestions for new tax plan

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Quite frankly, I am surprised the news media hasn't called to ask me what I think of President Reagan's new tax plan.

After all, I have been an official American Taxpayer for nearly a quarter century. It hasn't been easy, but I have tried to do my best.

I start getting nervous about my taxes each January. By the time April 15 rolls around, I'm having nightmares in which I dream I'm stranded on a desert island with nobody to talk to but Henry Block.

I'm really not certain what I think about President Reagan's tax plan, if you want to know the truth.

All those computerized charts and graphs he showed on television confused me, and whenever somebody from the government starts telling me how much money he's going to save me, I start thinking about the last time I went to a used car dealer and he was telling me the very same thing.

I wound up paying $600 for a 1982 Ford that rolled over on its back and died a week after I bought it. I went back to the dealer to ask that he return my money, but he had moved to a new location—in North Dakota.

I do, however, have some of my own ideas when it comes to taxes. Apparently, no one is going to contact me regarding these thoughts, so I decided I would use this forum to make my suggestions to the public.

Call this the Grizzard Addendum to the American Tax Plan:

SUGGESTION NO. 1: There ought to be a tax on sex. Actually this isn't an original idea, but it is one well worth considering. The first person to have this idea was a United States congressman who shall remain nameless.

"If you put a tax on sex," he concluded, "People would lie in order to pay more taxes so they could brag to their friends about what an active sex life they are having."

It's that kind of thinking that made this country great in the first place.

SUGGESTION NO. 2: After tax season is over, the government should give all the taxpayers a big party to show its appreciation for all the money we forked over.

It wouldn't have to be anything elaborate. Maybe a cheese ball and some munchies and punch. Plaques for all the guests wouldn't be necessary. A pat on our backs would suffice nicely.

SUGGESTION NO. 3: The IRS should not be allowed to audit anyone who has had a proctoscope examination within the last year, and I don't think it's necessary for me to explain why not.

SUGGESTION NO. 4: Each taxpayer should be given a complete accounting of where his or her tax money went. If the government is going to go around wasting my tax dollars by spending $1,600 for a toilet seat to go in one of those big bombers, I have a right to know about it.

SUGGESTION NO. 5: Nobody who makes less than $20,000 a year should have to pay taxes. They have enough trouble trying to keep a roof over their heads and food in their stomachs.

I suggest those people be allowed to send the government something in lieu of money, like homemade preserves, handmade quilts or fudge.

Or toilet seats, so they can have a part in keeping our nation strong, too.

Mission provides needy with food, clothes

By DIANA R. FUENTES Laredo Morning Times

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — Need clothes? Food?

Most people are familiar with the Salvation Army, the Red Cross and the various church charities. But there's one place in Laredo where you can get a helping hand that isn't as well known as the others: the Hands of Love mission.

Hands of Love, Inc. is a non-profit organization supported entirely by private donations and is run by Wanda and Henry Daugherty, non-denominational missionaries.

"The Lord said we are to help our neighbors, that whatsoever you do for the least of your brethren, you do it for me," Mrs. Daugherty explained. "We're just doing the Lord's work."

You don't have to be religious or join a church to get help from Hands of Love. Anyone with a need can come to the mission at 1720 Guadalupe. And they come — by the hundreds.

"This past winter, a lady who knows me and volunteers in a Laredo church told a man who needed a blanket to come see me," the lady known as Sister Wanda remembers.

"He was very cold, and young, too; he was 35 years old. He called me and came over. It was a Thursday night and he got his blanket, a brand new one. You know, that man died the next morning.

"You never know about something like that. He drank a lot, but we may have helped bring peace and warmth in his last hours," she said.

There are many stories of individual people in special situations helped by the Hands of Love, but more and more people are coming not for a sudden emergency, but because they are in constant need.

"We get calls from school nurses, telling us they need clothes for the children and they come to get bags and bags of clothes for them. We hear from local governmental agencies who tell us about a family that needs food and maybe clothes but won't qualify for welfare for a few days, we help them," Mrs. Daugherty said. "Business people who know of our work send poor people to us. We give them whatever they need, if we can.

"On Wednesdays and Sundays, we give out bags of groceries to families in need after the service, and many times during the week we're called on, so we help as many people as we can."

When there is more than can be given out to the 800 to 900 or so people who come to the mission every week, the Daughertys call up local charitable organizations, like the Salvation Army and local churches, to give them everything from grapefruit to bread.

There are many benefactors of Hands of Love, including local grocery stores, area merchants and church people in Minnesota who have known Mrs. Daugherty much of her life. There's the man in the Valley who sends up trucks loaded with cases of grapefruit, and the King's Aides who bring down clothes by the semi-trailer load.

Literally tons of clothes are sorted by volunteers who divide the huge piles into men's women's and children's clothes and then stack them by size.

"We launder all the baby clothes and the schoolkids' clothes and also clothes for the sick and women going to have babies," Mrs. Daugherty said. "And when we have the money we buy juices, baby oil and things babies need, food for the bags and blankets for the sick and the babies."

Therein lies the rub. Good used clothes or a case of grapefruit won't pay the rent or buy blankets or food or whatever the poor need that isn't donated. Money is also needed.

In that area, the Daughertys' dedication to their mission is often all-consuming. They frequently put their Social Security checks into the Hands of Love fund, trusting to God to get them through the month for their personal needs. Sometimes a benefactor will donate their rent for a few months at a time; sometimes they don't know exactly where their next meal is coming from. All they know is that the Lord will provide, they said.

"He that hath pity on the poor, the Lord will give unto him time and time again," Mrs. Daugherty said.

"He's never let us down and He never will."

There are a few regular donors, but there are many times when the Daughertys depend on their prayers to bring money and food for the people in need. And they have yet to be disappointed.

"We need help," Mrs. Daugherty said. "We've been in Laredo eight years and the crowds of people coming to the door are getting bigger. This type of work is expensive. It takes gas to get the food donated. You need something to get to the store in. You need lights and water. You have to buy the bags to put the groceries in, and so on. We're in the cheapest building we could find that's suitable and it still costs $950 a month.

"We appreciate all the help we're getting, but we need more."

Cowgirl, Western Heritage

1985 Hall of Fame Honorees

Vivian White Dillard . . . Cowgirl Honoree

Vivian White Dillard was in the rodeo arena for a decade before she won and knew the thrill of a championship.

At age 15, she started her career in Cleo Springs, Oklahoma, by performing an exhibition ride on a steer. In an exhibition east of her birthplace of Enid, Oklahoma, she rode a buffalo to the delight of the fans.

After eight years of trick riding on cattle breeds she expanded to saddle bronc riding exhibition. Soon she started competing for prizes.

In January of 1937, at Fort Worth, Texas, she won her first Ladies Saddle Bronc Riding Championship.

A year later she captured her first World Championship Ladies Saddle Bronc Riding title with its trophy, saddle, and cash prize at Madison Square Gardens in New York. Again, she earned that title in 1941.

Aside from the bronc riding title in 1938, her trick riding competition also netted her a championship in Cheyenne, Woming.

The Texas Girls Rodeo Associatin saw her as its champion saddle bronc rider in 1949.

The official titles and championships are nearly secondary to her most impressive feat. In all her years of saddle bronc riding, she was never bucked off a horse while competing in an arena. She always stayed mounted until the pickup men came.

She has passed on her deftness through training rodeo trick riders

MARTHA ARTHUR JOSEY

THENA MAE FARR

Martha Arthur Josey . . . Cowgirl Honoree

Perhaps it is the admonition of one of her favorite Bible verses (Luke 1:37) "In God nothing is ever impossible," that gives Martha Josey the drive it takes to be a champion barrel racer, an accomplished writer, an internationally known clinician, and a successful ranch-businesswoman.

For over 20 years she has been winning major titles in barrel racing. From 1964 through 1967, she was the Texas Barrel Racing Association Champion and in 1967, also garnered the southwestern Barrel Racing Championship plus was the Girls

Rodeo Association World Champion Reserve Cowgirl.

She joined the Womens Professional Rodeo Association in 1968, and won that organization's world championship in barrel racing in 1980, by setting a money record in the event with an annual win of $45,862. The same year she was the American Quarter Horse Association World Champion. In 1981, she was the Lone Star Barrel Racing Association Champion. In 1983, she was the North Texas Futurity Champ and in 1984, was the Champion of Champion Derby Winner.

Meanwhile, back at the ranch (literally), she published five books explaining the fundamentals of barrel racing from training the horse to how to win championships. In addition to the books she filmed and narrated two films on the sport.

Performances and publications weren't to be her only mode of transferring the winning spirit to other riders. In 1967, she opened the Josey World Champion Rodeo School and Josey Clinics. By 1970, her business expanded to include Josey Championship Equipment featuring

ANGIE DEBO

Angie Debo . . . Western Heritage

She came to the Oklahoma Territory in a covered wagon in 1899, got most of her early education in a one room school house, (no library but received one book from her parents at Christmas), rode a horse seven miles a day for a year to finish high school and became a teacher herself.

Angie Debo has richly lived and written about the past earning the nickname of "First Lady of Oklahoma History."

Still holding on to her rural roots Miss Debo received her bachelor's degree from the University of Oklahoma in 1918, and earned a master's degree from the University of Oklahoma in 1918, and earned a master's degree from the prestigious University of Chicago where she made quite a splash. To her shock she learned that history teaching was "shut, locked and barred against women." In her quest to teach history 29 schools said they would not take a woman under any circumstances; one said it would take a woman only if no man were available. She then channeled her talent into the field of writing, returning to Oklahoma University where she received her doctorate in 1933. Her niche was found. Her doctorate dissertation, The Rise and Fall of the Choctaw Republic, was awarded the John H. Dunning Prize of the American Historical Association as the most important book in the field of American history that year.

As the writer of many books and articles she has only one goal...to discover truth and publish it. Often that truth is ugly. "I've told more unpleasant truths about Oklahoma than anybody else who ever pecked out the name on a typewriter," the diminutive author once said.

One of her early works, And Still the Waters Run, tells the story of corruption in social, governmental and religious organizations during the liquidations of the Five Civilized Tribes of Oklahoma. This book is so accurate it is still used in court cases involving Indian land claims.

Another work, Geronimo: The Man, His Place, His Time, was published in 1976, during a time of great awareness of Indian concerns. It received the Wrangler Award of the Western Heritage Association.

Decades of intense note-taking on half sheets of paper caused a large

Thena Mae Farr . . . Cowgirl Honoree

Born on a ranch in Seymour, Texas, Thena Mae Farr was in the saddle by the time she was three years old. She naturally wanted to grow up and have a ranch of her own.

She started working on making that dream come true by becoming a sponsored rodeo rider before she was ten. By the time she was a teenager she had the reputation of being an all-around ranch girl with several horses and cattle in her personal care.

As her acclaim grew and as a high school student, she was chosen to represent Seymour in the annual Horse Show and Rodeo at Fort Worth for two years, 1940 and 1941. Her hometown appreciated the tall, blonde's beauty as much as her horsemanship and selected her as Miss Seymour from 1940 until 1944.

Barrel racing, cutting horse contests and bareback bronc riding were events that netted the young Miss Farr hats, spurs, boots, saddles, luggage, watches...and eventually fame in the rodeo circuit.

She attended college at Texas State University for Women, then busied herself with helping organize The Girls Rodeo Association in San Angelo, Texas.

She joined Nancy Binford in 1947, to assist in producing the first all girl rodeo which was held in Amarillo, Texas, under GRA sanction.

Her leadership earned her election

Wilma Standard Tate . . . Western Heritage

A cracked jaw, a cut head, a broken leg, a twice-broken ankle, a knee injury, six hip surgery's (four were total hips)...none could keep Wilma Standard Tate away from horses for more than a few days.

Starting the life of rodeo with a rented donkey for practice roping, Mrs. Tate eventually earned the title of "the Texas Tomboy," although she had left her native Lubbock, Texas, for California. It was in California she saw her first calf roping in 1937. Soon she was paying for a horse of her own by working in a cafe after school. The then Miss Standard learned the hard way. In only her second time out to practice, she suffered a jaw injury; it was cracked in four places in a too-fast dismount. In a month she was back in the saddle on the same horse whose hoof had broken her jaw.

By 1945, she became the Champion Girls Calf Roper and soon had her own All Girl Rodeo touring the western states, always hauling a sewing machine with her horse. Her tailoring talent often filled in the gaps between rodeo paydays, and many famous cowboys proudly sported her designs.

Roping wasn't her only arena talent. She dazzled audiences with her trick riding and her Roman riding act in which she was atop four horses that went through a series of three foot jumps. Also she trained

Doris Seibold . . . Western Heritage

Country-bred on the homesteaded T Rail Ranch near Patagonia, Arizona, Doris Seibold's father registered a brand for her when she was born. On the ranch that had four brands (family and three children's registered to Seibold Ranch) the horses were Doris' project. Registered quarter horses with a breeding program on mares descended from Blue Bunny gave Doris Seibold many blue ribbons as a breeder. It was from the cattle with her brand that the money came to allow Miss Seibold to attend Arizona State College, the University of Mexico and the University of Arizona for her bachelor's and master's degrees in English.

Though Miss Seibold was ranch-bred and ranch-raised and was a quarter horse breeder, she was as much at home in literary and academic circles as in the ranch and horse world. While pursuing a career in school teaching, she attended the University of Chicago, the University of Denver, and, by invitation, earned credit at an international conference on teaching and learning English held in York, England.

By writing her master's thesis on "Ranch Localisms" she was on her way to becoming a noted authority on the culture of the Southwest. While teaching in Patagonia she realized a need for her students to develop a pride in their local culture and regional history. Her zeal for that, coupled with energy and en-and showed cutting horses for six years.

In the early 1960's, she expanded her career into the training area and became the head of a summer camp for teens interested in horsemanship. Because of her years of riding and training horses and because she wanted to teach others the same feats, she began her own riding school in Perris, California. The year was 1974, and since then she has won world acclaim as an instructor of Western and English riding and as a coach of jumping, cutting, roping and the highly technical dressage method. The young people are carefully taught, and so are her horses. She uses a soft one-piece bit to start the training of young colts to coincide with her theory, "don't hurt 'em, show 'em." She shows the colts and can even get enough leverage to gain the respect of a spoiled horse. She also uses the bit when teaching children to ride; "they can't hurt the horse's mouth."

The wear and tear her body has endured during her career has not waned her love of horses whether she is teaching or judging shows. Perhaps her ability as a teacher has been enhanced by the many physical setbacks. Says one student: "All of our students admire your willingness to share so openly information on riding, training, grooming and nutrition. Many professionals are reluctant to share their trade secrets, but you generously offered tips and suggestions...I think that the two things which helped me most were the patients and confidence that you had that I could do these things." The student was blind. "I told her if she had the nerve to ride, I could teach her," said Mrs. Tate.

Her greatest attribute seems to be her inspiration to children and to young adults.

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center acknowledges Wilma Tate as a remarkable and extraordinary horsewoman. Early on she was bold and gallant in the arena; later she carefully taught the finer points of the show ring to America's youth. The Hall of Fame is proud to induct Wilma Standard Tate into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center as a 1985 Western Heritage Honoree.

knot to form on her hand. But the labors of her hands also, with a mix of her lyrical vocabulary, gave the Southwest a unique documentation of history.

Miss Debo has been a rural school teacher, principal of a village school, high school history teacher, college assistant professor of history, editor, museum curator of maps on library staffs. Besides being the author of 13 books and hundreds of papers and reviews, she has been a contributor to encyclopedias, magazines, newspapers, and television.

Along with the aforementioned recognitions she has been inducted into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame (1960), received Extraordinary Service Award from Navajo Community College, and the Henry G. Bennett Distinguished Service Award from Oklahoma State University.

Her portrait has been hung in the rotunda of the Oklahoma State Capitol in Oklahoma City. Dr. Debo's picture joined a small group of distinguished greats of Oklahomans...Indian Chief Sequoyah, Will Rogers, Robert S. Kerr, Jim Thorpe, and Carl Albert.

The Institute of Research in history in New York City is preparing a documentary on her life and works for showing on television later this year.

We are ever indebted to the world's historians. At the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center we continue to document our western history. The research by Angie Debo increases the prestige of our archives. We hold her high, this woman so dedicated to recording the history of a great western state, Oklahoma. Angie Debo, named a 1985 Western Heritage Honoree, is hereby inducted into the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center.

to the presidency of the Girls Rodeo Association in 1951. That year she still found time to enter all-girl rodeos in seven states.

Miss Farr is living her dream now. She ranches near Seymour and Dundee, Texas. She is one of five generations to attend the Seymour First United Methodist Church and has shown gratitude to her heritage through memorials to her parents with the church being the benefactor.

She is an affiliate of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, the National Cattle Raisers Association, The National Cutting Horse Association, the American Quarter Horse Association, and the Baylor County Farm Bureau.

Miss Farr is a member of the Seymour Remuda Club, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Seymour Chamber of Commerce.

Ranching is her life, with her love of children, food, reading and travel to spice her days.

The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center feels privileged to name Thena Mae Farr as a 1985 Cowgirl Honoree. Her vast acclaim as a rodeo competitor, and her leadership in the Girls Rodeo Association will forever be acknowledged. Also to be recognized are her genuine and active interests in her ranch, in her hometown, and in many endeavors pertaining to the American West.

For 40 years she has been a member of the American Quarter Horse Association and, since she has ranched since 1939, she is a 30-year veteran of the Black Angus Cattle Association. She is a lifetime member of the Cowboys Turtle Association and Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

She resides in Warner, Oklahoma, where she is always active in civic endeavors.

Because of her skills in the rodeo arena, the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center is pleased that Vivian White Dillard is a 1985 Cowgirl Honoree. thiasm for her high school classes, resulted in practically an all-school project of collecting folklore from the Santa Cruz County area. The project was published in the magazine, "Western Folklore."

More heritage was recorded in Anza-Who?'s He?, a book also student produced with Miss Seibold. Using original source material the book was written in English and Spanish and was compiled as a Bicentennial project. She received a National Award for Excellence for the book for its "contributions to Arizona's bi-cultural heritage in teaching history."

A third major activity under her leadership is, The Pimeria Alta Story, to be published in the fall of 1985, which is a collection of the multi-culture lore of the upper Pimas in Arizona. Surely more recognitions for Miss Seibold will be forthcoming after this publication.

She has written about horses and horsemen for the nation's leading livestock journals. Also she has written for the nation's most scholarly publications about the history of Santa Cruz County, Arizona.

Her success in instilling a sense of heritage in students and in enriching folklore through writing has earned her many honors. She has been Nogales (Arizona) Teacher of the Year and was voted by the senior class as "Teacher Who Helped Them The Most." She has served on the Arizona English Teachers Association Board and on the National Council of Teachers of English Board. She has been cited by the Arizona

Historical Society, by the state of Arizona and by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for her work with youth and patriotism.

We feel that time should stand still when women like Miss Seibold are recognized. Her dedication in recording western culture and history enriches the quality of the Hall of Fame's Western Americana Library, the mainstay of our heritage center. The National Cowgirl Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center is honored to induct Doris Seibold as a 1985 Western Heritage Honoree.

Ann Landers

See throat specialist

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband, whom I love dearly, is driving me stark raving mad. For years Bob has been making a low raspy noise in his throat. Sometimes it has a slow beat. Other times, when he's deep in concentration, it speeds up.

This is worse than Chinese torture. It is also embarrassing. People seated near us in a movie or concert must find it very annoying. I often wonder how his co-workers stand it.

We've been married for 15 years. Bob's habit began as an occasional throat-clearing but now it is almost constant. Strangely enough, he does not do it in his sleep. In my more enraged moments I have threatened to slit his throat if he doesn't stop. The threats haven't helped.

Several years ago I phoned a behavior-modification psychologist. He said if I couldn't get my husband to see him, that I should come in. I saw no sense in making an appointment for myself since I'm not the one with the problem.

Please tell me what to do about this guy. I am — GOING BONKERS IN CHICAGO.

DEAR BONK: Bob should see a throat specialist and learn if there is an organic problem. It might be something that can be easily corrected.

If the physician tells him the problem is psychological, he should see a therapist and get to the bottom of what is bugging him. To do less demonstrates a lack of consideration for others that borders on contempt.

If Bob refuses to go, I hope you will see a counselor. Granted, it is your husband's problem, but you are the one who is going bonkers. Perhaps you are unwittingly promoting the annoying habit or making him unwilling to drop it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Many years ago when I was growing up, most people didn't have cars. They used public transportation. I had been taught as a child to give up my seat to an older person who was standing. Later on, as a young adult, I adhered to this practice. Now the shoe is on the other foot. I am a woman in my 60s and still working, not because I want to, but because I must.

Most days I ride to work with a friend, but there are times when I take the bus. Usually I board too late to get a seat. The bus is an express and takes a shortcut to town which involves many curves. I often get quite dizzy since I must stand the entire way. The bus is generally full of young healthy-looking men and women, but not once has anyone offered me a seat.

I realize things have changed since I rode the bus in the '30s, but hopefully common courtesy has not disappeared completely. I live in Richmond, Va., and should you choose to print this, perhaps some kind commuter will rise and offer an older person a seat today.—A FELLOW TRAVELER

DEAR TRAVELER: Chivalry is not dead, but it is not in very good health. And there is a reason. The world is not as friendly a place as it used to be. Crime, drugs and a proliferation of handguns tend to make folks fearful of strangers. A seat on the bus is the least of it. People are murdered on the street and nobody stops to help. It's a sad commentary and I have no answers.

Pointers offered for freezing

COLLEGE STATION — Many people have discovered that freezing is a quick and simple way to save the surplus from their home gardens and help stretch the family food budget.

"When you have a freezer, there is no out-of-season period for fruits and vegetables," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Marilyn Haggard.

Home frozen foods can have a color, flavor, texture and nutritive values much like the fresh product, if you follow recommended practices for freezing foods, she points out.

Whether you're freezing produce for the first time or simply need to brush-up on old techniques and learn what's new, Haggard offers the following pointers:

Get your freezer ready. To maintain high quality frozen foods for any time, the temperature of the freezer must be 0 degrees F or below. Select high quality products to freeze. Freezing can only maintain the quality of the product. It will not improve it.

Use proper packaging materials designed especially for freezer use. Materials should be airtight, moisture and vapor-resistant, clean and durable, and not add flavor or odor to the food.

Suitable containers include standard freezing or canning jars, polyethylene freezing bags, rigid plastic containers designed especially for freezing, and heavily-waxed cardboard freezing containers. Heavy duty aluminum foil, freezer paper, or plastic freezer films with overwraps are sometimes used for corn-on-the-cob.

"For best results freezing garden produce, follow recommended practices," advises Haggard. If you have questions about those practices, you can get detailed information on freezing fruits and vegetables from your county Extension office, she adds.

Some people have believed that burying down a date palm would cause it to grow back better than ever.

Art exhibit urges viewers to touch it

Most exhibits bear stern warnings: "Do not touch." However, at the exhibit, "Soundings" at the Amarillo Art Center from June 29 through July 31, visitors will be encouraged not only to touch, but even to shake, toss, and strike the artworks.

A Mid-America Arts Alliance touring exhibit, "Soundings" is a collection of 31 fanciful metal sculptures by Nebraska artist Reinhold Marxhausen that can be manipulated to produce a symphony of beautiful and beguiling sounds. It is a unique hands-one xperience which will appeal equally to children and adults.

Marxhausen's sculptures range from a hand-sized "door knob," which emits other-worldly music when shaken, to four-foot-high gongs and percussion pieces.

The exhibit's creator, Reinhold Marxhausen, has devoted his career to discovering "the extraordinary in the ordinary" and sharing it with others. Marxhausen is a painter, sculptor, photographer, and art professor. The subject of several public television films and numerous magazine and newspaper articles, he is the creator of two of the giant mosaic murals in the Nebraska State Capitol's Great Hall, founder of the art department at Concordia College in Seward, Nebraska, and currently Artist-in-Residence at Bankers Life Nebraska in Lincoln.

Marxhausen uses his multiple talents as artist and teacher to show how beauty can be found everywhere—in the weathered siding of an old barn, even in the play of sunlight on a refrigerator door. The Art Center will present several workshops by Marxhausen from July 12-15 at the Art Center about how people can sharpen their eyes and ears to recognize the artistic experiences hidden in their daily lives. Please call the Art Center for further information.

Adult typing offered

The Hereford Independent School District's Community Education program is currently offering an evening class in basic and intermediate typing. The class is being taught by Virginia Phillips and will meet each Tuesday evening from 7:00 until 9:00 pm in room 120 at the high school. Interested parties may enroll any Tuesday evening during the class. The class is an individually paced program that is tailored to the person's unique needs. Ms. Phillips is an excellent instructor that has vast experience in teaching young and old alike. She has been teaching in the adult program of office occupations for seven years and finds it stimulating to work with the adults of our community. She also teaches at Stanton Junior High. For additional information or to register, contact Kenneth Helms, 364-5112.

Local Green Thumbers attend seminar

Green Thumb workers and host agency sponsors from a multi-county area met Monday, June 10, at the Senior Citizens Center in Hereford, Texas.

The training seminar featured Mary Daniels from Care Inn in Plainview who discussed living centers as an alternative to nursing homes; Peggy Oakes, R.N., American Cancer Society, whose subject dealt with cancer; and a safety program presented by Green Thumb staff.

Green Thumb, an older worker program, is funded by the Department of Labor through Title V of the Older Americans Act. Sponsored by Texas Farmers Union, Green Thumb provides part-time work opportunities for seniors in rural areas. Program operation began in 1970 and currently includes 111 counties employing over 1,000 older Texans who are placed with local non-profit organizations to provide needed community services.

Local Green Thumb workers and sponsors attending the seminar included Frank Garcia, Ruth Rodriguez, Jim Scott, Alice Gilleland, Leonardo Martinez, Oselia Destrada and Anna Wilson.

CBS and NBC begin next season's prime-time battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC and CBS, expected to continue next season their current fierce battle for prime time leadership, already have come out swinging, criticizing each other's audience and programs.

Last week, Harvey Shephard, CBS' senior vice president for programming, said NBC's new hit, "Highway to Heaven," "has a good following with older people in rural areas ... who had Johns (bathrooms) in the backyard."

On Wednesday, Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, addressing the same group of TV reporters, sniped back: "The 'Dukes of Hazzard' audience didn't even have Johns." (That CBS series was canceled last season after a lengthy run.)

And the beat goes on. CBS thinks NBC's audience is too young. NBC says CBS' viewers are too old. Much of this back and forth is good-natured fussin', but some of it also is hard-edged feudin'.

CBS has won the prime-time ratings race for six consecutive seasons and takes fierce pride in being the top-ranked network. NBC finished a strong second last season after a decade of last-place finishes and, as NBC Chairman Grant Tinker said Wednesday, "any red-blooded American would want to go for No. 1."

Last season, CBS finished first with an average prime-time rating of 16.9 percent of the nation's 84.9 million TV homes to NBC's 16.2 rating. ABC fell to third with a 15.4 rating and advertising agencies that forecast such things give the network virtually no chance to improve its position in 1985-86.

NBC was helped by the phenomenal performance of "The Cosby Show," which the network says has spurred the CBS clone,

"Charlie and Company," another comedy about a black family, starring Flip Wilson and Gladys Knight.

"Charlie and Company" was in development before "Cosby" became a hit," said Shephard.

Besides the matter of pride and prestige, the rivalry between NBC and CBS underscores conflicting attitudes about whose viewers are better consumers and thus more valuable to the advertisers whose commercials ultimately fuel the prime-time business.

The issue has been called the great "Demographic Debate."

NBC was the leader last season in kids and with men and women aged 18 to 49. CBS led in total households and viewers over 50.

"We go for a balanced audience," said Shephard, noting that NBC is strong in the first hour of prime time when kids control the sets but that CBS dominates later in the evening.

Shephard said that younger viewers don't have the discretionary income older viewers do, and Bud Grant, president of CBS Entertainment, said bluntly that "much of NBC's audience is not desired by most advertisers."

Many advertisers and NBC, of course, dispute that contention. "CBS never complained about demographics before," said Tartikoff.

Late life pregnancies require special care

If you are a woman in your 30s and having your first baby, you are among the growing number of women each year who have decided to have children at a later age.

Like most things in life, having children later in life involves tradeoffs. Age affects fertility and may slightly increase the chances of developing certain medical problems.

But good health and good pregnancy care can reduce most of these risks, says the Texas Medical Association.

A major concern for women over 30 is their ability to become pregnant. Biologically, a woman's peak reproductive years are her 20s, with a decline in fertility as she grows older. Some fertility problems are caused simply by the aging process, while others are linked to pelvic infections and other diseases that reduce fertility.

The decline in fertility, however, is not as rapid as some reports have suggested. For those couples who did wait and now have infertility problems, increasingly sophisticated tests and procedures may offer some solutions.

Another major concern in late pregnancies—whether or not the first—is that the chance of some birth defects increases with age. For example, the incidence of Down's Syndrome rises from about one baby in 1,000 at age 29 to about one in 100 at age 40.

Because of the increased risk of birth defects, physicians usually recommend a special test for pregnant women around 35 or older. Called amniocentesis, the test detects some but not all genetic problems and is performed around the 16th week of pregnancy.

Older pregnant women also appear to have a slightly higher chance of other medical problems such as high blood pressure, diabetes, premature labor, and miscarriage.

Rebekah Lodge meets

Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 met in regular session Tuesday evening with twenty-one members present.

Reports were made on sick members as Noble Grand Faye Brownlow presided. Twenty-one visits and fifteen cheer cards were reported.

Verna Sowell gave a poem and prayer from Past President Cecil Kemp's year book. Lodge Deputy Leona Sowell conducted a school of instructions from President Johnnie Hefner's program, "Fraternal Hand of Friendship" is the theme for Hefner's program this year.

Susie Curtsinger was the winner of the door prize, a beautiful reversed glass picture painted by Dorothy Lundry.

Anna Conklin served refreshments sent by Fern Durham who was unable to attend.

Others attending were Ben Conklin, Roberta Combs, Elmer Combs, Besie Lawrence, Guy Lawrence, Irene Merritt, Dorothy Lundry, Kee Ruland, Lydia Hopson, Thama Pearson, O.E. Durham, Helen Bishop, Gene Bishop, Nellie Beauford & Ada Hollabaugh.

Military Muster

First Lt. Wes E. Klett, son of R. Hollis and Charmayne Klett of 112 Rio Vista, was one of ten junior officers selected to form the initial group of Peacekeeper missile combat crew members.

The members were chosen based on their qualifications in the Minuteman Modernization Command Data Buffer Program, from among hundreds of other qualified officers in the Air Force's missile crew force.

Klett will remain with the 90th Strategic Missile Wing, Francis E. Warren Air Force Base, Wyo., to develop a training program for future Peacekeeper crewmembers.

He is a 1981 graduate of Texas A&M University, College Station.

Support hearings set

The Texas Commission on Child Support Enforcement, established by Governor Mark White to study the Texas child support system, will hold six public hearings in cities throughout the state between June 14 and August 2.

The commission is soliciting written and oral testimony regarding visitation and custody, appropriate support standards, the enforcement of interstate support obligations, and the availability and cost of services under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

The hearings will take place on the following dates:

June 14 in Austin at the John H. Winters Bldg., 701 West 51st St., in the first floor of the East Tower.
June 28 in Dallas at the Dallas

Public Library, 1515 Young St.

July 19 in Harlingen at the Town Hall, 118 East Tyler St.

July 26 in Houston at the Hilton Center of the University of Houston, 4800 Calhoun St.

August 2 in Amarillo at the Health and Science Center Auditorium of Texas Tech University, 1400 Wallace Blvd.

August 2 in El Paso in The 327th Family District Court of the City-County Bldg., 500 East San Antonio St.

Persons wishing to register as a witness or to submit written testimony should write Michael Kent, Child Support Division, Office of the Attorney General, P.O. Box 12548, Austin, Texas (78711), or call 1-800-252-3515 or 512-475-5051.

Clothing care costs can be cut easily

Building a wardrobe has become an expensive investment. With today's prices, many of us have become more selective in our clothing purchases, hoping that our efforts will be repaid with longer and better-wearing clothes. Shopping wisely is only half the battle. It is just as important to know the proper care and maintenance of your wardrobe to avoid a clothing care disaster.

Here are some of the most commonly asked questions concerning clothes—their wear and care:

If I spill something on my clothes in a restaurant, should I try to get the stain out right away or can I wait?

You can always scrape off loose surface matter, then use a cotton, linen, or paper napkin to blot up any liquid. If the stain is oily or greasy, dust it with an absorbent powder like cornstarch. If the stain is non-greasy, flush the area with water.

Should bleach be used in removing color from whites?

If the fabric is cotton, polycotton, nylon or durable press finish, the most effective method is to use the packets of color remover sold with dyes in the dimstore. Follow package directions for the stove-top method. Chlorine bleach is hard on fabrics and non-chlorine bleaches won't do the job.

Will fabric softeners leave a build-up on wash?

Unless you use fabric softeners regularly there shouldn't be any build-up. But for best results, use either fabric softeners made for the dryer or the type that goes in the washer on the rinse cycle. You might not need fabric softeners if the wash is soft, soap or detergent is rinsed out thoroughly and clothes from the dryer are removed before they get bone-dry.

Which is better, soap or detergent? Soap doesn't work as well as synthetic detergents in cold or hard water. Since about two-thirds of U.S. households are in hard-water areas, most people find detergents do a better job. However, if the water has been softened for washing, soap powder should give good results and it is easier on fabrics and dyes.

What about handwashing?

Here the emphasis is on a gentle cleaning agent. Regular laundry detergent is very alkaline—good for getting out dirt but hard on dyes and delicate fibers. Avoid using when washing delicate items. Soap powder is gentler. Specialty handwashing liquids contain varying amounts of non-chlorine bleach so use them with caution.

Is it worth having your clothes professionally stored?

You should consider professional storage if the local climate is hot (over 75 F.) or very humid (over 55 percent humidity).

I've always been skeptical of mail order shopping. Is it safe?

Mail order shopping can be fun and convenient but remember you are seeing a sample not handling it. Call the toll-free number listed with the advertisement for sizing, fabric and care to avoid surprises.

How can I keep my swimsuit in its original shape?

Nylon-spandex swimsuits should be rinsed in cool water and hung up to dry immediately after wearing. For added life, soak in warm water with a tablespoon of vinegar then wash as usual.

How can I cut down on drycleaning costs?

Be sure to air clothes out after wearing. Wools and silks should hang in a steamy bathroom for twenty minutes, then be aired before hanging in a closet. This gives the fibers a chance to pull back into their original shape.

HOW TO MAKE SURE YOUR PLANS SUCCEED

We can make our plans, but the final outcome is in God's hands. We can always "prove" that we are right, but is the Lord convinced? Commit your work to the Lord, then it will succeed. [Proverbs 16:1-3]
We should make plans - counting on God to direct us. God will help the king to judge the people fairly; there need be no mistakes. The Lord demands fairness in every business deal. He established this principle.
[Proverbs 16:9-11]

Get all the advice you can and be wise the rest of your life. Man proposes, but God disposes. Kindness makes a man attractive. And it is better to be poor than dishonest.
Reverence for God gives life, happiness, and protection from harm. Some men are so lazy they won't even feed themselves!
[Proverbs 19:20-24]

Don't go ahead with your plans without the advice of others; don't go to war until they agree. Don't tell your secrets to a gossip unless you want them broadcast to the world. God puts out the light of the man who curses his father or mother. A fortune can be made from cheating, but there is a curse that goes with it. Don't repay evil for evil. Wait for the Lord to handle the matter. The Lord loathes all cheating and dishonesty.
[Proverbs 20:18-23]
