

Signs Pointing To Low Inflation Era

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's still more a hint than a prediction, but economists see increasing signs that the nation may be entering a new era of low inflation.

After nearly two decades of steadily worsening inflation, economists say, the price spiral may be unwinding during the 1980s, released from some of the same forces that fueled double-digit inflation during the 1970s: oil, wages and the government.

"Underlying inflationary pressures are slowing substantially," said Donald Ratajczak, who issues inflation forecasts for Georgia State University's College of Business Administration. "Double-digits may no longer be a significant possibility in this decade."

The optimism expressed by Ratajczak and other economists does not simply reflect the swift decline in the inflation rate that has occurred in recent months. With the economy beset by a sharp recession and high unemployment, it is typical for price increases to slow substantially.

Going beyond that, the economists' encouragement comes from several seemingly fundamental changes in the nation's economic behavior, including reduced dependence on imported oil, wage concessions by some of the largest unions, increased price competition within large industries and a steadier anti-inflation policy carried out by the federal government.

These factors could lay the groundwork for a new low-inflation environment that will last even when the economy is growing strongly again and unemployment comes down.

In the same way expectations of high inflation fed on

Reagan, Demos Near Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — By the tiniest of steps, President Reagan and Democrats in the House of Representatives appear to be edging toward compromise on the administration's deficit-plagued 1983 budget plan.

But so far there is no evidence of specific concessions by either side, and officials say emphatically that an agreement is a long way off.

"There has been absolutely no change in the position of the president on the budget," White House spokesman David Gergen said Tuesday. Reagan has asked for a $75.6 billion spending plan that rejects big tax increases and continues the administration's Pentagon buildup.

But Gergen also said that Reagan authorized White House Chief of Staff James Baker to talk with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. "to assure the speaker that we wanted to listen to any proposals or ideas and that we would like to keep the lines of communications open."

O'Neill told reporters of the call, and said, "Politics has been the art of compromise all through the years."

Asked whether he believes Reagan wants to compromise on his budget this year, the Massachusetts Democrat said, "That remains to be seen."

Democratic aides were more hopeful. "It's a good sign that the White House wants to find a way out of the stalemate," said one official, asking not to be identified by name.

Bangladesh Army In 'Bloodless' Coup

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Bangladesh army seized control of that impoverished Asian nation early today, toppling the elected civilian government of President Abdus Sattar in a swift and apparently bloodless coup, the official Dacca radio announced.

Army chief Gen. H.M. Ershad imposed martial law and proclaimed himself chief martial law administrator and head of government, according to the broadcast monitored in Calcutta, India. It quoted him as saying he would appoint a president "of my own choice" and a council to advise him.

The proclamation of martial law accused Sattar's administration of failing to function effectively and charged that "wanton corruption at all levels" of government was causing unbearable suffering for the 90 million people of Bangladesh, the state-run radio reported.

The army also acted in order to restore a badly deteriorating law and order situation, it added.

Ershad, 52, dissolved the Parliament and suspended the government and its constitution, the radio said. All government offices and schools were closed and banking transactions halted.

There was no official word on the fate of ousted President

Camera Failure Halts Shuttle Arm Testing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Columbia's flight plan this time out calls for the astronauts to inspect the ship and its operations more thoroughly than ever. That's why it has been equipped with eight television cameras.

When two of those cameras failed on Tuesday, it crippled the use of the shuttle's mechanical arm, and forced cancellation of a key test. In effect, loss of the cameras blinded the view of astronauts Jack Lousma and Gordon Fullerton and prevented them from using the arm to move cargo in the 60-foot bay of the spacecraft.

"That camera deal is a real bummer," groused Lousma after a frustrating day of trying to troubleshoot the problem.

One camera is positioned in each of the four corners of the cargo bay, two are inside the crew cabin and two are on the Canadian-built mechanical arm — one at the elbow and one at the wrist.

The wrist camera is critical. It was to be the "remote eye" of the astronauts as they tried to grasp a desk-sized science package with the "hand" of the mechanical arm.

Flight director Neil Hutchinson said the science package, called the Induced Environment Contamination Monitor (IECM), was not even visible to the astronauts

Shuttle Crew Gets Extra Sleep

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts, exhausted and orbiting with a bundle of nagging minor problems — sailed into another day of troubleshooting today. Mission Control's goal: "Get the crew back on the straight and narrow" for the tasks ahead. Officials told Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton to sleep at least an extra hour this morning. "We won't call you; you call us," capsule communicator David Griggs told them Tuesday night.

"They didn't get a good sleep Monday night," explained flight surgeon Dr. Sam Poole. "They've had a very busy day; they've not eaten a lot. With a good night's sleep they'll be back on track." Poole reported Lousma had no difficulty Tuesday with the motion sickness that bothered him on launch day.

Flight director Neil Hutchinson altered the schedule, ordering up a lighter work day for the spacemen today, saying: "If you don't get the crew up to speed and feeling well, you don't get much work out of them."

Despite the crew's problems and a number of technical snags, Hutchinson described Columbia as a smooth-flying ship that should be able to complete its seven-day mission.

One task Fullerton may try today is to remotely latch Columbia's 50-foot robot arm on to a payload, and perhaps lift it, without the guiding eyes of a failed camera.

The astronauts had to hope today would be less troublesome than Tuesday, when discomforts and frustrations tumbled over one another. There were lost thermal tiles; three bad cameras; a balky cargo bay door; temperatures too warm; temperatures too cold; hurried meals.

Their biggest worry from a safety standpoint were the thermal tiles that are to protect Columbia from searing reentry heat when it returns to a landing next Monday on a remote gypsum runway at White Sands, N.M.

Shortly after rising Tuesday, the astronauts peered out their windows and spotted a few tiles missing on the bridge of the nose. A survey of the ship with a camera on the mechanical arm detected other gaps near the tail.

Specialists on the ground studied the television pictures, photos taken of the launch on Monday and other data. They counted 37 of the 30,000 tiles missing, none in a critical area. They concluded, said NASA's Tom Moser, that "we don't anticipate any problems."

Cabinet Rejects Begin's Offer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Cabinet rejected Prime Minister Menachem Begin's offer to quit after a tie vote in Parliament on a no-confidence motion, spurred by the military crackdown on Palestinian rioters in occupied Arab territory.

The 58-58 vote Tuesday in the 120-seat Knesset, Israel's Parliament, had brought the government to the verge of collapse because Begin had threatened to resign if he did not get a clear vote of confidence. Four Knesset members were absent.

"The Cabinet has just decided to reject the prime minister's proposal whereby he would have gone to the state president and tendered his resignation," Cabinet Secretary Aryeh Naor said.

Guatemalan Government Ousted

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Military officers who ousted Guatemala's right-wing president and installed a three-man junta say they acted because elections earlier this month were rigged to prolong an unpopular and corrupt regime.

Tanks and troops ringed the presidential palace in the Tuesday coup but no violence was reported. It was the first military takeover in 19 years in Guatemala, Central America's most populous nation racked by hundreds of political killings and a leftist rebellion.

Junta leader Efraim Rios Montt, a retired general who ran unsuccessfully for president eight years ago, told reporters he would dissolve congress and rule by decree with junta colleagues Gen. Horacio Maldonado and Col. Francisco Gordillo.

In a televised address later, Rios Montt promised reforms and asked leftist guerrillas to lay down their arms, saying "subversion should not continue."

Rios Montt said ousted President Gen. Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia fled the country by plane. It was not known where he sought sanctuary. Nor was there any word from Lucas Garcia's elect successor, Gen. Angel Anibal Guevara, who had been scheduled to take office July 1. The U.S. Embassy in Guatemala said it had received word that Guevara was safe.

Guevara, a close associate of Lucas Garcia, was elected March 7 amid widespread allegations that the voting was rigged.

Final Part of Series

Reform Key In Dealing With Juvenile Detention

(Editor's Note: This is the final of a three part series on juvenile crime and the juvenile justice system.)

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

Law enforcement officers and juvenile workers agree somewhat that laws in the juvenile system need to be changed.

Reform has been the key word since the beginnings of the juvenile court system during the mid-1800's. At first the popular theory was to separate the young criminals from society in order to teach values and habits which would help the child function better in normal society. The artificial environments failed due to extreme punishment and cruelty.

The ineffectiveness of the institutions wakened society into focusing on the offender as well as the offense.

Although Illinois passed the first juvenile court law in 1899, Massachusetts had in 1869 provided for visiting agents or officers for juvenile cases through its State Board of Charities. These agents investigated cases and made recommendations to the magistrate.

By 1870 developments started for separate hearings, dockets and records, so that child offenders would not have the stigma of a criminal.

By 1912 the public support of special juvenile laws faded, and in Illinois a bill was nearly passed which would have abolished the new system.

More reform trickled down and states began dropping the term "delinquent" from offenses which would not be crimes if committed by an adult. Crimes which were committed by a youth would also be a crime if done by an adult earned the child the label of a "juvenile delinquent."

Still, the real and ideal were not the same.

That difference is what frustrates youth workers. With the laws protective of the juvenile offender, some workers feel there is nothing provided for reform or punishment. With probation as the primary result of adjudication, some officers think not enough is being done.

The Texas Coalition of

Juvenile Justice, composed of juvenile justice workers and interested citizens, has proposed several changes which it believes will serve to go to the root of the juvenile crime problem.

One proposal is to establish community-based programs for prevention and diversion of crime and revise the Texas Family Code to comply with such services. The services would include alternative schooling for truant and emergency shelters for runaways. Its goal would be to take the truant and runaway out of the juvenile justice system.

Another proposal would be to monitor standards of the (See REFORM, Page 2)

MX Production Funds Blocked

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key Senate Armed Services subcommittee is proposing that Congress withhold production funds for the MX missile until the Reagan administration decides on a permanent system of deploying the multiwarhead nuclear weapon.

In a 9-0 vote Tuesday, the strategic and nuclear forces subcommittee rejected the administration's plan, which is to put the MX missiles in existing Minuteman silos until a permanent basing plan is approved.

If Congress upholds the panel's action, the administration would be unable to deploy the first 40 MX missiles in the Minuteman silos as now planned.

The subcommittee vote, behind closed doors, was disclosed by a congressional source who asked not to be identified.

The vote was to delete $1.7 billion in early production funds, "plus some R&D (research and development) money on the basing mode," the source said.

"The subcommittee voted that way because Minuteman basing does nothing to solve the problem of vulnerability" to Soviet attack, he said.

Use of the Minuteman silos, under the administration's schedule, would begin in 1986. A decision on a permanent basing plan is supposed to be made in 1984, with permanent deployment in 1989.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, revealed on Tuesday that a study committee last summer had decided the "most promising" method would be to deploy the MX aboard long-endurance aircraft.

Although Reagan did not accept the aircraft basing proposal last summer, he agreed with most of the study panel's other recommendations when he announced his new strategic defense plan last October, the panel's report showed.

Hearing on Gag
Order Request
Scheduled

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge will rule Thursday whether to issue a gag order in the case of a deputy constable accused of murdering a 17-year-old burglary suspect. Prosecutors asked State District Judge Richard Trevathan on Tuesday to prohibit attorneys and witnesses from discussing the case outside the courtroom.

Assistant District Attorney Terry Wilson said the request was made to prevent a change of venue in the trial of Billy Hampton McCreight, a Harris County deputy constable. McCreight, 44, is charged with murder and civil rights violations in the beating death of Steven Barnette, who died Saturday of a ruptured spleen caused by a blow to the stomach.

But McCreight's attorney, Mike Ramsey, claims two Harris County sheriff's deputies who had custody of the teen-ager have conspired to cover up the truth.

Ramsey said he believes Deputies William T. Gordon, 39, and William F. Whigham, 40, beat Barnette after arresting him at the scene of a burglary. Both deputies have been suspended with pay pending an investigation.

"It is hard to believe that two sheriff's officers would stand by and watch a deputy constable take a prisoner and beat the hell out of him," Ramsey said. "I don't believe it."

A Harris County grand jury will review the case April 5, and the U.S. attorney's office has asked the FBI to look into the matter.

FBI spokesman Johnny Joyce said, "Our findings will be discussed between us, the U.S. attorney's office and the Department of Justice." Barnette was arrested in nearby Channelview and then taken by the three officers to Carpenter's Bayou, where McCreight allegedly struck the teen-ager several times in the chest and abdomen and kicked him in the groin, investigators said.

Ramsey insisted his client is innocent and claims McCreight was only with Barnette about 30 minutes, while the deputies had custody of the youth for nearly four hours.

Ex-con Says He Beat Prisoner
In Shower

HOUSTON (AP) — An ex-convict says he served as a Texas Department of Corrections building tender and once helped other inmate supervisors beat a rank-and-file prisoner who was taking a shower.

Dale Holder, a 23-year-old parolee, testified Tuesday that he joined in the attack while serving time at the TDC's Coffield Unit for aggravated robbery.

Holder said he joined the attack "because we had been instructed to help out" other tenders involved in fights.

Holder's testimony came in the second week of a hearing in which a federal master named to oversee court-ordered prison reforms is trying to have the state held in contempt of court. The master says the state has ignored a rule against inmate supervisors.

The order banning inmates supervising other inmates was among sweeping changes decreed last April by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice, who also ordered the state to reduce overcrowding in its prison system, upgrade medical care, and take other steps.

Prison officials deny the allegation that they have failed to comply, and have filed a separate motion saying the special master and his staff are guilty of misconduct and should be fired.

Testimony on that motion asking for firings will come later in the hearing, which is expected to last several weeks. Earlier Tuesday, an inmate from the Eastham Unit told of a building tender who was allowed to have an aquarium in his cell, a privilege he said was denied general population inmates.

Three Indicted In
$300,000 Gold
Jewelry Heist

HOUSTON (AP) — An Air France employee and two other men have been indicted on charges accusing them of stealing more than $300,000 worth of gold jewelry from two Italian couriers at Houston Intercontinental Airport.

Gerald Thomas Vertucci, 43, of Houston; Victor A. Mendez, 32, of Deer Park, N.J.; and Anthony J. Romanello, 44, of Almont, N.Y., each were charged with four counts of theft in the Dec. 3 heist.

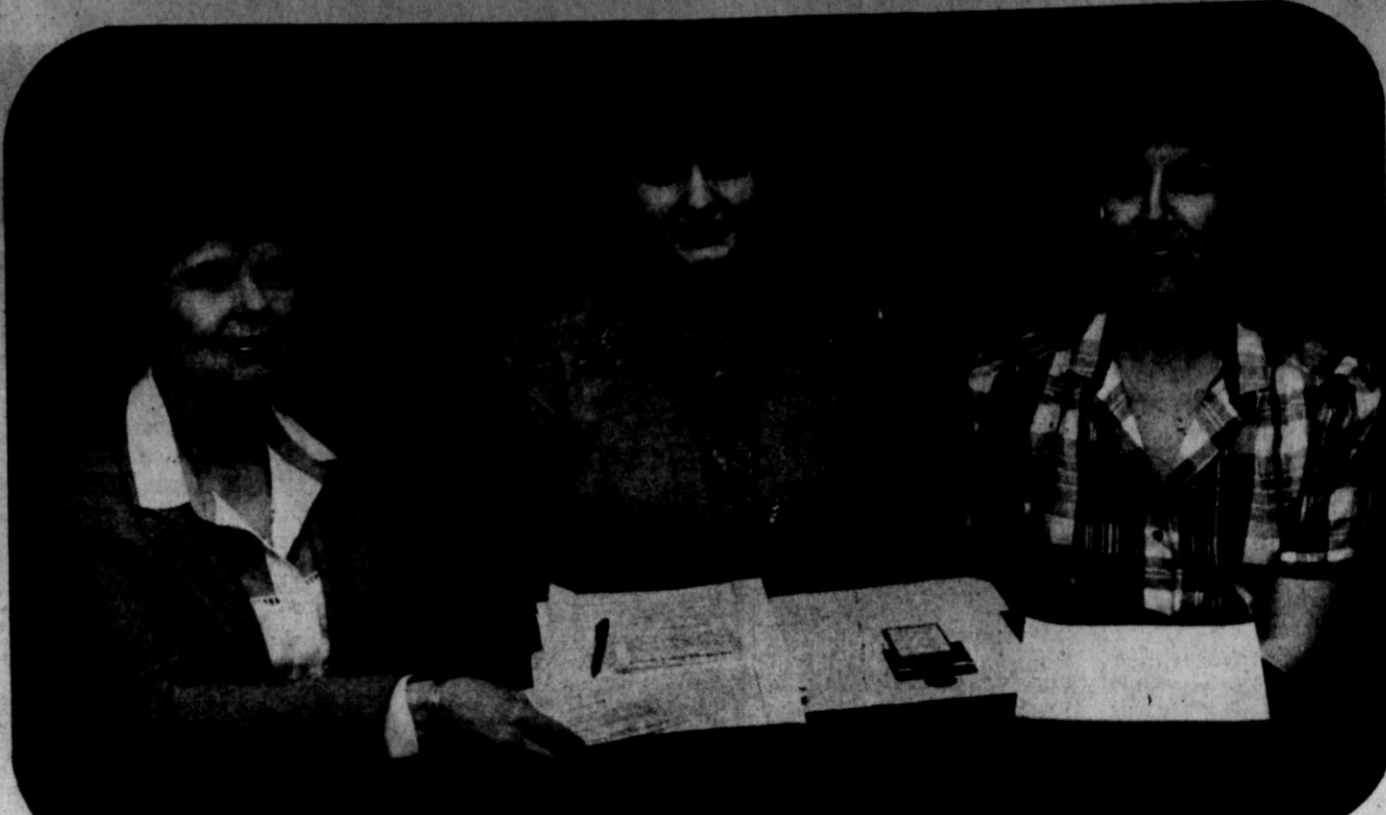

If convicted, the men would face maximum sentences of 30 years in prison and $30,000 fines. The three were held on bond of $50,000 each.

Vertucci, who was employed by Air France, told investigators he was carrying the gold jewelry — mostly 14- and 18-carat chains — from one airport terminal to another when an armed bandit forced him into a van and ordered him to drive to a motel.

He said a second robber, who was waiting in a car, then drove him to nearby Chambers County, took the jewelry and left him handcuffed to a utility pole in a secluded area.

Conducting Membership Drive

The Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, which sponsors activities such as the Miss Hereford and Little Miss Hereford Pageants, the annual pet show, and the monthly blood drive, is conducting a membership drive which will be underway until April 6. Committee members, from left, Billie Hopson, Carrell Ann Simmons, chairman, and Judy Williams are making plans to sell memberships, which are $10 for the year, on Saturday, April 3 at Sugarland Mall. The committee is holding a contest, for which all Women's Division members are eligible, with prizes going to those who sign up the most new members. First place (for a minimum of ten new members) will be $75; second place will be $50; and third place will be $25. Others on the membership committee are Irene McKinstler, Ruth Newsom, Patsy Patrick, Pat Fisher, Nancy Russell, and Dorothy Sargent. Anyone desiring further information about the Women's Division may call the Chamber office at 364-3333.

U.S., Soviet Meetings End Today

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Western alliance defense ministers end a two-day meeting here today in apparent accord on key policy issues aimed at curbing U.S. and Soviet nuclear firepower.

The meeting of 13 ministers, who consider nuclear questions twice a year, was due to close with a communique and a news conference featuring NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns and U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

A senior U.S. official reported "a high degree of agreement" among the ministers in Tuesday's secret sessions in a resort hotel at the foot of the Rocky Mountains.

The United States seems to have nailed down North Atlantic alliance backing for President Reagan's proposal to forgo deployment of 572 new U.S. medium-range missiles in Western Europe if the Soviets scrap about 650 similar weapons already in firing positions.

Weinberger also appears to have assured the United States of alliance support for rejection of Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev's latest attempt to block the U.S. deployment, which is scheduled to begin late next year.

A week before the ministers met, Brezhnev announced a unilateral freeze on deployment of medium-range missiles in the western Soviet Union.

The senior U.S. official, briefing reporters under ground rules protecting his anonymity, said the NATO ministers feel Brezhnev "seeks to legitimize the current Soviet superiority" in such weapons, including 300 advanced triple-warhead SS-20 missiles. NATO has no similar weapons now.

At the same time, the NATO ministers will come away from this meeting with a U.S. commitment to move speedily toward opening negotiations with the Soviet Union on reducing strategic nuclear weapons, the long-range missiles and bombers that constitute the main nuclear punch of the superpowers.

The United States and the Soviet Union already have started talks in Geneva on how to reduce shorter-range nuclear missiles on both sides in Europe.

Spoke Hubcaps
Reported Stolen

Approximately $250 in spoke hubcaps were stolen from Stagner-Orsborn, 142 Miles, according to Hereford police.

Also reported was $400 damage to a vehicle windshield parked at Bluebonnet Laundry, 909 Union. The glass was apparently shattered by a BB gun.

A residential screen was torn off and a window pane broken at 422 Avenue. I. Replacement estimate was set at $125.

A woman moving reported that someone came into her new residence and opened two suitcases and scattered belongings in the garage.

each other to keep the wage-price spiral rising, newly emerging expectations that inflation is coming down could help achieve the reality of "dis-inflation."

"Certainly, there are some genuinely encouraging signs," said Alfred E. Kahn, former President Carter's chief inflation fighter. "Most heartening are the wage giveaways. They're getting more widespread," Kahn said, noting concessions the United Auto Workers union has granted the auto industry and those the Teamsters have granted trucking companies in return for increased job security.

Compromise

demonstrated their own impatience with Reagan's refusal to compromise.

The major sticking point is the projected federal deficit under Reagan's budget, which according to the latest administration estimate would be a record $96.4 billion in the fiscal year that starts Oct. 1.

Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker hinted strongly that Reagan should meet with O'Neill to see whether a compromise is possible. "The problem is what the speaker and the president can come to terms on," he said.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the tax-writing Finance Committee, said, "We'd like to have some signal from the White House that we're going to be able to do

The Labor Department reported Tuesday that consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 3 percent in February. Since December, inflation has averaged a 3.7 percent rate, the lowest in nearly six years.

No one expects inflation to stay that low for a sustained period and only a few economists endorse the Reagan administration's forecast of an inflation rate of less than 5 percent during the mid-1980s. A 6 percent to 7 percent inflation rate is a more common forecast. Inflation has been under 7 percent only twice during the past nine years. It was over 10 percent three times during that same span.

dent Sattar, 75, who earlier was reported in poor health. The United News of India said he had been placed under house arrest but this could not be independently confirmed.

Ershad moved to strengthen his position by naming the heads of the navy and air force, Rear Adm. Mehboob Ali Khan and Chief Air Marshal Sultan Mehmood, as his deputy martial law administrators. The country was divided into five zones, with a regional martial law commanders placed in charge of each.

The Bangladesh High Commission (embassy) in the Indian capital said it had no information on the reported events in Dacca, and diplomatic assessments of the situation there remained sketchy. Bangladesh radio gave no hint of any resistance to the takeover.

In Washington, a State Department said it was regret-business." And Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said the Budget Committee he heads will begin work on a budget next Monday, although he and other panel members predicted Reagan's plan won't be approved.

Republicans and Democrats alike are concerned that the deficits in Reagan's budget will keep interest rates high and choke off an economic recovery expected later this year. To reduce the deficit, many of them are proposing higher taxes and reductions in the president's defense budget, as well as cutting back on cost-of-living increases in Social Security.

from windows overlooking the payload bay. Lousma and Fullerton planned to guide the mechanical arm to the IECM, grasp a fitting and grapple the science package out of the payload bay. They could then hold the package outside the spaceship while it gathered samples of gasses and particles.

But without their remote television eyes they were helpless.

The problem developed when the astronauts tried to turn on the cameras. As power was applied, circuit breakers popped open, and two of the cameras shut down. It was like a fuse blowing in a house when a circuit is overloaded.

"Say, something funny is happening with this camera," reported Fullerton at one point. "The lights blinked on and off about three times. At the time it did its last blink, it's out. It popped itself out."

Mission Control studied the problem, but found no solution.

Edward Fendel, an engineer in charge of the cameras, said it appeared there was a short circuit in them, a problem that could not be easily fixed.

"We'll probably not be able to recover either camera for the mission," he said.

Space agency engineers tried to develop an alternate plan with tests on the ground. Astronaut Henry Hartsfield table that the constitutional process in Bangladesh had been overturned.

"During recent months, we have repeatedly stressed to Bangladeshi leaders the importance which we have attached to constitutional and democratic government and to economic development of Bangladesh," said State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman.

"We hope that there can be a return to constitutional government at the earliest opportunity."

The military's action in the lush, tropical country, perched atop the Bay of Bengal and bordered by India and Burma, was not totally unexpected.

Gen. Ershad said shortly after last November's election that the military must have a say in running a country as weak and impoverished as Bangladesh, one of the world's poorest with a per capita income of about $100.

used a ground-based simulator of the arm to see if it could safely pick up cargo from the payload bay without the cameras. He determined that by using the elbow camera and some precise settings on a computer guiding the arm, Lousma and Fullerton could move one cargo package that could be seen from the cabin windows.

Lousma and Fullerton, frustrated by the cameras, also offered solutions.

"It's our opinion we could safely grapple a PDP (plasma diagnostics package — an experiment visible from the cabin) just looking out the window with the help of binoculars, but not hurt anything," suggested Fullerton.

Eventually Mission Control agreed and Hutchinson said the attempt would be made today.

Failure of the cameras goes far beyond one frustrating day in space. NASA officials are anxious to demonstrate the ability of the mechanical arm to maneuver cargo. The arm will be vital when Columbia starts flying commercial cargo late this year. The arm was moved around on the second flight of Columbia, but it has never been used to grapple cargo in space. Officials believe it is essential that the arm prove its ability to handle cargo before paying customers start sending satellites into orbit aboard the shuttle.

Lodge Representatives Return From Assembly

Representatives of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228 recently returned from Corpus Christi where they attended Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. and Rebekah Assembly of Texas. Ursalee Jacobsen, Susie Curtsinger, and Wilma Wise of Friona Rebekah Lodge No. 308, attended. The 1982 officers were seated, with Ms. Curtsinger recognized as District Deputy president of District No. 5. At the installation of 1983 officers Monday evening, Mrs. Wise was installed as Inside Guardian, Mrs. Jacobsen as Lodge Deputy of the Hereford Lodge and Ms. Curtsinger took her seat with the state committees. Anna Conklin, who was unable to attend due to illness, is also on the committees. Mrs. Edna Schuster of Amarillo was installed as president of Rebekah Assembly of Texas. She will preside at Abilene in March, 1983. An interesting session of business and an enjoyable trip were experienced by members from Hereford and Friona.

Although Heather and Bert Bostic have no children, youth are a large part of their lives. She, a teacher of third grade at Northwest Elementary, is in her first year with the Hereford Independent School District after seven years of special education and kindergarten teaching in West Virginia. He is the director of music and youth at First United Methodist Church. In teaching, Mrs. Bostic says it is often difficult to work with each child individually on his own level. Yet her philosophy of education is to take the child where he is and help him as much as possible to attain other levels of understanding.

She is a graduate of St. Albans High in St. Albans, W.Va., and received her elementary education degree from West Virginia State College. She has also done graduate work at Marshall University in Huntington, W.Va.

She is a member of First United Methodist, the Classroom Teachers Association and Texas State Teachers Association.

VOCCT Members Return From Contest In Dallas

The Vocational Office Careers Clubs of Texas, chapter 100, recently returned from its northern regional contest, which was held in Dallas. The club is the leadership phase of the Office Duplication Practices class of Hereford High School.

Approximately 150 Texas high schools are included in the northern region of competition. The organization has grown so rapidly that it necessitated division of the state and this year was the first for regional contests. Those competitive areas receiving superior ratings in the north will vie with the winners of the southern region for state competition to be held April 16 and 17 in Austin.

The following members of the opening and closing ceremony team received superior ratings: president, Andres Ontiveros; vice-president, Diana Rincon; secretary, Brenda Valdez; treasurer, Anna Gonzales; reporter, David Morrison; parliamentarian, Ruth Alonzo; sergeant-at-arms, Albert Bonzales and advisor, Ernest Reyes.

Members of the club's business procedure team who advanced to the state finals were president, Don Cocanougher; secretary, Brenda Valdez, and members Diana Rincon, Anna Gonzales, Derran Goins and Andres Ontiveros.

The chapter scrapbook received a good rating and a white ribbon. Ruth Alonzo also received a white ribbon for her participation in job application and interview.

An excellent rating and red ribbon was presented to Joe Ramirez for his bulletin board entry and Derran Goins received a good rating and white ribbon for his spirit duplication project.

Gloria Zuniga and Joe Ramirez represented the chapter as voting delegates in selecting the state officers for the 1982-83 school year.

the abundant life

PERSONAL STABILITY

EASE, LUXURY, and the merry-go-round view of life cause much of the restlessness, insecurity and confusion which are so much in evidence today. The apparent inordinate desire for this life style contributes to "personal instability." The things being pursued are often the biggest contributors to the unstable condition that people wish to avoid. It may be that most of us have some of this difficulty.

WISE SELF-DISCIPLINE, which can be attained, is essential to our stability. "The correction or regulation of one's life for the sake of improvement" will do as much as any one thing, perhaps more, to stabilize a life structure. It is so much more helpful than self-indulgence, because indulging one's self is a big contributor to a crippling kind of instability.

THE VIEW that we can stabilize our lives by the increase of material things is deceptive. The need for such things is an accepted fact, but, beyond the point of filling our normal needs, an excess does not add to "personal stability." This is a recognizable conclusion, if we are honest in our observations.

STABILITY IN LIFE depends more upon what we are than it does upon what we have. It is more of character than it is of cash; more of thoughts than it is of treasures. Material success is desirable, but it does not bring stability into one's life. In fact, such success often creates difficulties which contribute to instability.

OUR SENSE OF VALUES is an important consideration in "personal stability." When we have "first things" in "first place", everything we think and do will strengthen the foundation of the life structure which supports our stability.

PATIENT ENDURANCE is not all of stability, but without it "personal stability" is impossible. "Be patient in little things. Learn to bear the every-day trials and annoyances of life quietly and calmly, and then, when unforeseen trouble or calamity comes, your strength will not forsake you." - Anon.

PERSONAL STABILITY is within our reach, and is one of the greatest and most rewarding individual accomplishments.

Severe Weather Film Shown To Lapidary Club

Lurline Cawthon presented a film about severe storms to members of the Deaf Smith County Lapidary Club when the group met Monday evening in the Energas Flame Room.

During the business meeting with club president Jack Nunley presiding, members discussed the Rock and Gem Show which is scheduled April 17-18 at Lubbock. Also during the meeting, various mineral and rock specimens were shown, named and discussed.

It was announced that the club will have a display at Deaf Smith County Library during the month of May. Jake King won the door prize which was furnished by the Julian Perrins.

The next meeting is planned for 7:30 p.m. April 26 in the Flame Room. Members are asked to bring rock specimens to be shown and discussed.

Host couples included the Sam Morgans, Roy Martins and Bub Newells. There were 33 members present and one guest, Tim Inman.

FAME

MOVING UP — Eighteen-year-old Tracy Bregman didn't sit and pout when she lost to Heather Locklear for the plum role of Sammy Jo on ABC's "Dynasty." Instead, the former star of "Days of Our Lives" went out and auditioned for several other major TV and film roles.

has finished working on Ideal Films' prison saga "The Concrete Jungle."

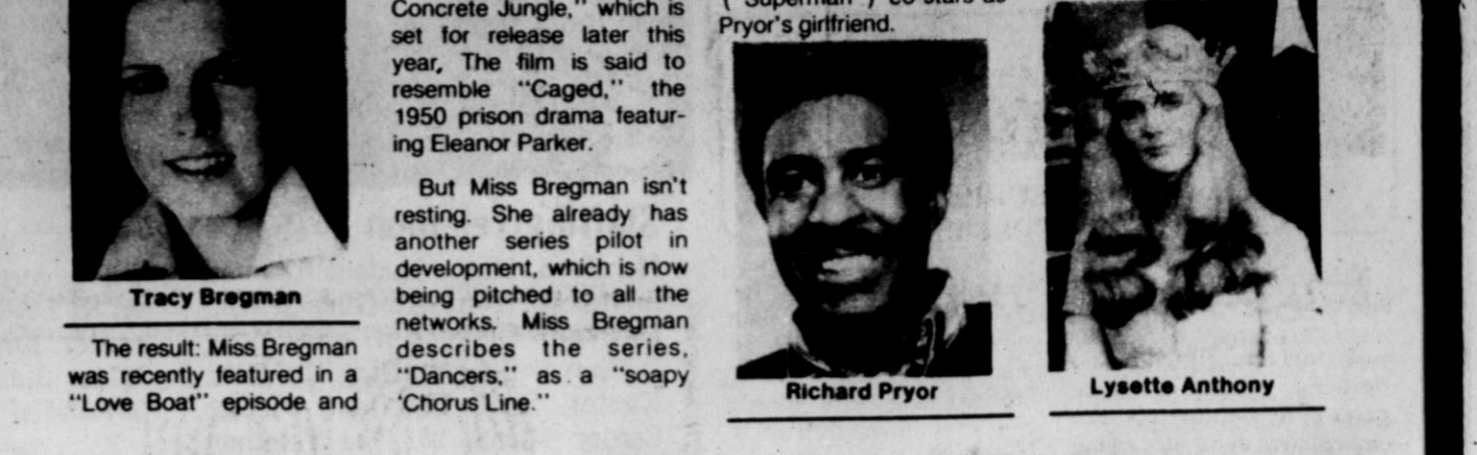

"Everything happens for a reason, so I wasn't disappointed when I lost out to Heather for "Dynasty." In fact, she's more suited for the role than I was," Miss Bregman says diplomatically.

Miss Bregman will also sing the title song to "The Concrete Jungle," which is set for release later this year. The film is said to resemble "Caged," the 1950 prison drama featuring Eleanor Parker.

But Miss Bregman isn't resting. She already has another series pilot in development, which is now being pitched to all the networks. Miss Bregman describes the series, "Dancers," as a "soapy 'Chorus Line.'"

HE'S BAD — Paramount Pictures is so optimistic about Richard Pryor's latest film, "Some Kind of Hero," that they are releasing the comedy-drama this month, several months ahead of schedule. The film is based on James Kirkwood's novel about a Vietnam prisoner of war who returns home to find his world has fallen apart. Margot Kidder ("Superman") co-stars as Pryor's girlfriend.

SCREEN EPIC — Columbia Pictures may have a winner in the works with "Krull," a sci-fi adventure set for release in 1983. The film stars Ken Marshall, who will be featured in NBC's forthcoming "Marco Polo" mini-series. His romantic interest will be played by Lysette Anthony, who recently made her American TV debut in CBS's "Ivanhoe."

SHANNON BURROWS and TROY COLEMAN

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Burrows, formerly of Hereford, are proud to announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Shannon Denise, to Troy Leo Coleman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Coleman of Farwell. The bride-elect attended Vega High School and received her diploma in 1981. She is presently employed by Texico Feedyard, Inc. The prospective bridegroom is a 1980 graduate of Farwell High School and is a travel agent for Air Midwest Airlines at Clovis Municipal Airport. Wedding vows will be exchanged April 24, 1982 at the home of the bride-elect's grandmother in Clovis, N.M. A small family ceremony and reception is planned.

District Meeting Discussed

Ten clubs were represented, and eight of these with perfect attendance, at the Extension Homemakers Council meeting Monday afternoon in the Heritage Room of the library. Visitors included Tony Vaughn, Maxine Rickman; and Sharon Edwards, from the Draper Extension Club, who read "If I had my Life to Live Over" for the opening exercise.

Cindy Norvell presided over the business session, during which Jewel Hargrave gave the treasurer's report and also asked clubs to contribute sweet breads and crackers for the coffee table at the district TEHA meeting in April. Louise Walker, county agent, reminded those present of the Health Fair on Tuesday, March 30 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The fair is open to the public and is free of charge. There will also be a workshop on care and selection of small appliances at the Community Center at 1:30 p.m. the same day, and a style show by 4-H members. The chairman called for reports from committees preparing for the district

Around The Town

Mrs. Ray Johnson of Summerfield has just returned from a two-month stay in Florida, where she visited her daughter and her husband, Col. and Mrs. L.T. Hanson of Winter Springs, Fla. They toured Cape Kennedy, Miami, Palm Springs, and Key West; enjoyed air boating on the Everglades and shelling on the islands of Sanibel and Captiva; and took a cruise to the Bahamas.

TEHA meeting in Hereford next month. Grace Covington outlined Westway's campaign plans for Terri Johnson, candidate for District Director, and received monetary support from the Council. Kate Bradley, county TEHA chairman, gave a report on reservations for the district meeting. Draper Club members served refreshments following the meeting.

Members then assisted Carol Odom and Clara Trowbridge, of the Wyche Club, in filling courtesy bags with items donated by local businesses for the visitors at the district meeting.

New Police Chief Now Must Win Assistants' Confidence

HOUSTON (AP) — Lee P. Brown, the Atlanta public safety commissioner who headed the investigation into the slayings of 28 black youths, easily won confirmation as Houston's first black police chief.

But the 44-year-old Brown still must get the support of assistant and deputy police chiefs who criticized the selection of Brown but now have the job of carrying out his policies.

The City Council confirmed Brown's appointment by an 11-3 vote Tuesday despite opposition from the 2,500-member Houston Police Officers' Association. About 200 people crowded into the council chambers cheered and applauded after Mayor Kathy Whitmire certified the vote, making Brown the eighth police chief in as many years and the first selected outside the Houston Police Department in 40 years.

Christine Hartung, one of the three dissenting council members, told Mrs. Whitmire she respected her choice but added, "I feel that with the morale (in the police department) the way it is, it would have helped to have found someone in the community."

Rush Registration Tomorrow

The Hereford Panhellenic Association will be hosting its annual Rush registration party on Thursday, March 25, at the home of Janice Carr, 348 Elm. All senior girls who plan to attend college and their mothers are invited to the party, which begins at 7 p.m. They will be given information concerning Rush at the college of their choice by members of the Panhellenic Association and college girls who are presently in sororities. Left to right are Karen Compton and Crystal Zinser, students at the University of Texas; Rhonda Nieman, local Panhellenic member; Linda Walterscheid, North Texas State University student; and Diane McNaney, West Texas State University student. Ann Landers Not Obligated To Respond

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife has a terminal illness. I am not sure of the propriety or the legality of complying with one of her requests — so I am asking you. "Betty" is 19 years my senior but no one would guess it. I started to get bald at 30. Betty always had a nice figure and her vitality made us seem the same age.

She has asked me not to include her age in the obituary — doesn't want the gossip-mongers to have a ball at her expense. She is extremely sensitive about it.

Can I omit her age from the obituary? How do I respond to people who ask, "How old was Betty?" Thanks for your help. — Birmingham

DEAR B.: Last things first. To those who ask, "How old was Betty?" Simply say, "I never thought about it," then change the subject. It's a rude question and you are under no obligation to respond.

According to Ralph Otwell, editor of the Chicago Sun-Times, "The style and content of obituaries differ according to the newspaper. Age is always of vital interest. Upon hearing of the death of a person, the first question is usually, 'How old was he-she?' Some papers might honor a request to omit the age, others might not. You never know until you ask."

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My 30-year-old husband started to snort cocaine about eight months ago. He claims it helps him relax. Now he has to have a fix before we go out with friends. He says it puts him at ease socially, and he has a better time. He also snorts at work to help him cope with stress.

I am aware that cocaine is expensive, and I resent his spending his money on that junk. His stock answer is, "You have everything you need, so leave me alone."

We fight a lot over his snorting, and I hate to see our marriage go down the drain because of it. He won't get professional help because he doesn't think he needs it and insists cocaine is not addictive. Is he right or wrong? — Also A Victim

DEAR ALSO: No one can put an end to the drug habit of someone else. This is the original do-it-yourself project. While cocaine is not physically addictive, it is psychologically addictive (like pot) and adds up to the same thing.

People who get hooked on the feeling find it awfully hard to quit.

Anyone who thinks cocaine is harmless is kidding himself. Plastic surgeons on both coasts are getting rich rebuilding noses that have been eaten away from snorting.

Pistol Packing Stewardess Catches Arsonist

DALLAS (AP) — Her feet planted wide apart and her pistol gripped in both hands, Theresa Quinn pointed the gun at an arson suspect and told him not to move or she would shoot. She held him at gunpoint for 20 minutes until help arrived.

Ms. Quinn is not a police officer. She is a 29-year-old flight attendant for American Airlines. But she meant business. "I'd have shot him in the head if he came toward me, and in the legs if he'd tried to get away — but I was scared to death. I've never killed anything before," said Ms. Quinn.

She said she grabbed her pistol and went after the man when she saw him skulking behind her house as fires ripped through the neighborhood. Police arrested Lawrence Berg, 32, and charged him with seven counts of arson, accusing him of setting house six fires and trying to set a seventh.

Berg has been awaiting trial since he was indicted in Collin County last month on burglary and arson charges, said Dallas police officer Andrew White, who made the arrest.

Berg told police he had been unemployed since losing his job as a liquor store clerk two months ago. He remained in city jail after Municipal Court Judge Reginald Middleton set bond at $70,000 — $10,000 on each charge.

Ms. Quinn said she was standing on the deck of her swimming pool, watching firefighters battle a series of six house fires that erupted in the affluent, north Dallas neighborhood in less than an hour.

She said she became suspicious and went for her gun when she saw a man sneaking into a nearby garage.

"Out of the corner of my eye, I saw this man running up beside the fence and he was crouching real low like he was hiding from something," she said.

"I came around the corner and caught him literally with his pants down — he was urinating," she told laughing reporters. "I held it (the gun) to his head and told him to put his hands up. He wanted to finish what he was doing but I told him to keep his hands in the air... I told him I wanted him to keep his hands where I could see them."

"He said, 'What will you do if I start walking to my car?'" she continued. "I said, 'I'll shoot you.' He said, 'You might do that,' and I said, 'It'll cost you a bullet to find out.'"

101 Years Of West Texan History Packed Into One Room

SIERRA BLANCA, Texas (AP) — A door at the tiny offices of the Sierra Blanca Chamber of Commerce is labeled "The E.A. (Dogie) Wright Collection."

backward in time. Inside are memorabilia and photographs detailing the 101-year history of this town of 700 and the history of the surrounding countryside that is West Texas. But more than that, the room is the life and times of Wright, 80, former sheriff of Hudspeth County, retired border patrolman, Texas Ranger and "halfway historian."

at one time or the other," Wright said of the West Texas ranges. "I love this country. It's my home." Wright has called Sierra Blanca home since the early 1920s when he went there as a Border Patrol officer in the days when the border was still patrolled on horseback and shootouts weren't uncommon. But he is hesitant to talk about himself and his adventures, preferring to discuss the photographs and mementos he has collected over the years. The photos tell his story. There is a photo of Wright as a Texas Ranger in Presidio in 1921 and several of his father, a captain in the Rangers.

There are photos of Wright and his fellow Border Patrol officers lined up with their horses in 1924 and a later, similar photo in which the horses had been replaced by automobiles. There is a photo of Wright in the Arizona desert, where he served as an assistant Border Patrol chief for eight years before returning to Sierra Blanca. And there are photos of him as the Hudspeth County sheriff.

Federal Spending Fiscal Rose

NEW YORK (AP) — One year ago the President's Council of Economic Advisers estimated that federal spending in fiscal 1982 would fall to 21.8 percent of gross national product from 23 percent in 1981.

It rose instead. The new estimate for 1982 is 23.5 percent.

"The decline in the share of GNP devoted to federal spending is now expected to start next year," said Murray Weidenbaum, council chairman, in a speech on supply side economics in Atlanta last week.

While revenues less than anticipated contribute to the higher ratio, "spending increases are the primary culprit," said Weidenbaum. He might have added: Increases the administration vowed to eliminate.

With rare candor for an economic adviser to an administration pressured by criticism, Weidenbaum said that in the past year "we have seen experience both ratify some of our other prior knowledge and also raise doubts about some of our other preconceptions."

Weidenbaum even gave "primary credit for less inflation to the Federal Reserve and its monetary policy," which has steadfastly stuck to tight money as an offset to the big federal deficit.

He also showed his open-mindedness. At one point he said the "projected deficits should be a matter of considerable concern, but not national hysteria," and followed it with the suggestion that a constitutional amendment to limit federal spending might have value.

"To date," he admitted, "the federal government's ability to control its fiscal appetite is not especially awesome, and some new tools may well be required," he said in reference to the amendment.

After all this, however, Weidenbaum wondered aloud why inflationary expectations should persist when the consumer price index has fallen to a 4 to 6 percent range in recent months from 13 percent in 1980.

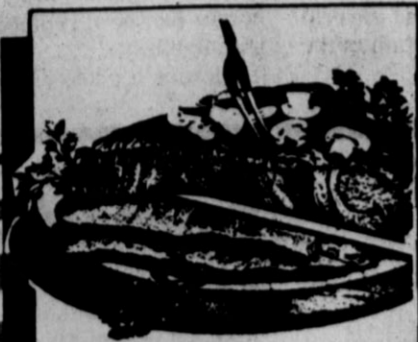

In his view, some of the problem is a legacy of the past, a fear that stop-go policies will be the style of the Reagan administration. There is uncertainty, he conceded, "concerning the credibility of new policies." But, he seemed to say, there shouldn't be.

The uncertainty about which he spoke is considered by many to be the main factor in today's interest rate premium. By past measures, interest rates now should be several points below what they are. They remain high, according to Reagan's critics, because business people fear he is making old mistakes, about the budget, for example.

High interest rates are seen as choking off private sector investments that the administration counts on to end the recession.

"The precise timing, speed, strength, and duration of ... recovery, it should be acknowledged, will be affected by how quickly interest rates decline from the current high levels," he said. "Progress on the budget deficits will play no small part in influencing those interest rate movements during the course of 1982," he said.

And with that statement, Weidenbaum, the adviser who seems to recognize the administration's weaknesses better than any other, appears to place himself side by side with administration critics.

Man Admits Conspiring To Smuggle Helicopters

DALLAS (AP) — A California employment agency director admits being part of a conspiracy to smuggle armed helicopters to the Middle East.

Carl Michael Kulungian, 34, of Los Angeles, pleaded guilty to a federal indictment that he violated the Neutrality Act by conspiring to smuggle fully armed Bell Cobra attack helicopters from Texas to Libya and Iraq.

Kulungian was arrested March 6, along with two other men, to conclude an undercover customs investigation. Arrested with Kulungian at an Amarillo motel were Spanish businessman Alfonso Lopez Quesare and Paul Marcucci of Italy.

A federal indictment said those three were part of a seven-man ring that violated the Neutrality Act by planning the operation.

Kulungian entered the plea Tuesday before U.S. District Judge Robert Porter during a bond hearing. Porter ordered that Marcucci continue to be held without bond.

The judge reduced Quesare's bond to $1 million, but said Quesare would not be allowed to leave the country without a court hearing. Members of Quesare's family, who said they came here from Spain for the legal proceedings, said they could not raise the money and Quesare remained in jail.

Porter said he would sentence Kulungian on April 14.

Two Los Angeles men, Thomas R. O'Connor and Max Field, were named in the indictment and were held in California on $500,000 bond each. Two Italians, identified as Serverio Nuccio and Daro Ronca, were indicted but remain at large.

"This is really an intriguing case but we can't reveal any more than is in the indictment," said U.S. Attorney Jim Rolfe, after the indictment was opened March 16.

TDWR Wants Public's Opinion

Texans made it clear at the polls last November that they wanted something else in the way of a plan for developing, updating and financing our water resources for the future. But what exactly do they want?

To find out, the Governor's Water Task Force and the Texas Department of Water Resources are actively inviting public participation in a major revision of the 1968 Texas Water Plan. The revised plan with recommendations and long-range water planning for Texas will be presented to the Governor and the Legislature convening in 1983.

Meanwhile TDWR is seeking public comment and response to a summary statement of eleven critical issues facing the State, each of which poses questions about choices and priorities that must be decided by Texas citizens. Copies of the issues statement are available all over the state. The High Plains Water District additionally has requested and mailed out over 250 copies of the statement to folks on the High Plains. Included in the mailout were copies for the County SCS and Extension Agent's offices. There are still some additional issue statements available on request from the Water District's Lubbock headquarters.

The purpose of getting these statements out is to allow people time to study and prepare responses, and to appear at one of the 13 public forums which are being conducted across the State. Lubbock's public forum is scheduled for April 1st, at the Texas Tech University campus Home Economics Auditorium on West Broadway in Lubbock, beginning at 7 p.m. It is very important for area residents to be there and to express their views.

The Department is also inviting people to submit written statements, or to call (512) 475-0223 with telephone statements. They are conducting one-on-one interviews around the state and are polling Texas citizens with a questionnaire survey to further learn their views.

Neither the issues nor the questions are simple. They include concerns impacting future statewide policies for water resource management, population and economic growth in the State, water laws, water quality, wastewater treatment projects, flood protection, water conservation, importation, research and development of new technology, and the State's role in financing future water development. The big question is "where is an estimated $50 billion dollars going to come from over the next 25 years to finance Texas' future water needs? Public comment is needed to help determine where that money will come from and how it will be spent."

Receives Award

Joe Montgomery of Abilene, left, president, Association of Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts, presents entertainer Mac Davis an award for outstanding public service for his voluntary efforts to promote the conservation of Texas' soil, water and related renewable natural resources.

Grazing Wheat May Or May Not Profit

AMARILLO — Grazing irrigated wheat in 1982 until April, may or may not be profitable. Profitability of grazing depends on expected grain yield, wheat price, and the value of cattle gains. Owning cattle or leasing out the pasture also makes a big difference. If expected wheat yield is around 45 bushels per acre and wheat price is $4.05 a bushel, grazing should be terminated by April 10, if farmers own cattle.

Grazing wheat until April 10 will increase profit $16.00 per acre over removing the cattle on March 20. From March 20 to April 10, cattle gain with a 1.5 head per acre stocking rate is $28.00 per acre. Grazing wheat during that time reduces potential grain yield $12.00 per acre according to Dr. Wyatt Harman, Agricultural Economist for the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at Amarillo. The economist also pointed out that farmers leasing pastures that have a 45 bushel per acre yield potential would profit by taking cattle off by March 20, because lease money is not as much as the $12.00 per acre loss in potential yield.

The economist made his calculations on three years of research done at the Texas A&M Research Field at Etter from 1969 to 1972 by Cecil Regier, Research Associate in Charge, and the late Dr. John Shipley. Grazing prior to March 20 did not reduce yield unless an unusually warm spring speeded early growth and wheat started jointing. Grazing from March 20 to April 1 cut three year average wheat yields from 48.3 to 45.9 or 2.4 bushels per acre. Grazing April 1 to April 10 cut yields one more bushel per acre and grazing from April 10 to April 20 as wheat heads developed, cut yields 13.5 bushels per acre. Continuing grazing until April 30 dropped yields another 7.3 bushels per acre to 24.1 bushels per acre or about 50 percent of the yield possible without grazing after March

Harman said dollar losses in wheat yields have to be balanced with the profits from cattle gains. In the study at Etter, Shipley and Regier found that cattle gained 1.7 pounds per day from March 1 to March 20 and 1.8 pounds per day from March 20 until April 10. Then gains jumped to 2.8 pounds per day through May 1 because cattle were eating immature wheat heads and grain.

The economic analysis for 1982 conditions assumed that 400 pound cattle were purchased on November 1 and gain in pounds per day was 1.5 until March 1, 1.7 to March 20, 1.75 to April 1, 1.8 to April 10, and 2.5 to April 20. Cost of owning the cattle included a two percent shrink at sale, 5.8 cents a day care cost, and 15 cents a day interest charges per head. Selling price for feeder cattle was set at $65.00 a hundred.

Three wheat prices of $3.55, $4.05, and $5.00 per bushel were used. This is similar to the 1982 loan rate, target price or price for seed wheat. He also made comparisons with low, medium and high wheat yields of 25, 45, and 75 bushels per acre and stocking rates of 1 or 1.5 cattle per acre. With these variables, the most profitable dates were determined to take cattle off wheat pasture for farmers owning cattle or growers that lease wheat pasture.

In general, when expected wheat yields and prices increase or stocking rates decrease, grazing must be terminated earlier to make maximum profit. Owners of both cattle and pasture can realize more money from grazing and can graze longer than farmers who leased pasture last fall at $2.00 per month per hundred weight of cattle.

Assuming a stocking rate of 1.5 head per acre, 45 bushel per acre wheat and $4.05 per bushel price, farmers owning cattle can continue grazing until about mid-April. High yielding varieties will full irrigation that will produce 75 bushels per acre should not be grazed after April 10. Grazing can be extended to late April if yield expectations are 25 bushels per acre provided cattle gains can be maintained at 2.5 pounds per day.

Farmers expecting 25 bushels per acre and not owning cattle should stop leases by April 10. If higher yields are anticipated, pasture leasing should be stopped by March 20 for maximum profit.

Harman said 1982 prices offer opportunities to make profits from grazing cattle on irrigated wheat. Knowing when to take them off spells the difference between profits or loss. Additional information can be obtained from Dr. Wyatt Harman at the Texas A&M Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd., West, Amarillo, TX 79106.

County Wheat Producers To Meet

Deaf Smith County Wheat Producers will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Hereford State Bank meeting room, according to Frank Zinser Jr., county director.

Staffers from the statewide wheat producers association will be at the meeting to discuss international wheat markets and the year's outlook.

Bryant Receives Heroism Award

DALLAS — Kim Bryant, a 16-year-old Hopkins County farm girl who risked her life in saving her father from an attack by an angered bull last November, received the Rural Heroism Award Monday at the annual meeting of the Texas Safety Association.

Kim and her father, Lyle Bryant of Peerless near Sulphur Springs, had the unpleasant but routine task of driving their bull back home after it had strayed onto a neighbor's property. Heeding the instruction she had learned in younger years, Kim took along the whip she routinely used to work the cattle.

Midway through the pen, with Lyle Bryant only four feet from the bull, the animal turned and charged. Bryant was rammed against the fence, then tossed into the air twice, the second time landing on the bull's head. As her father rolled to the ground, with the bull continuing his attack, Kim began to lash at the bull with her whip.

At first, the bull disregarded Kim's attack and continued butting her father. Suddenly, Kim remembered some advice from her grandfather — if you ever want a cow's attention, he said, crack them across the bridge of the nose.

Dragging her father with one arm, and with the whip wrapped around her other hand, she struck a hard blow to the bull's nose with the whip handle. The animal paused, so she hit him several times. The stunned bull was motionless as she dragged her father safely from the pen, closing the gate behind her.

Livestock Scales Check Available

Farmers, ranchers and stockmen who need their livestock scales inspected should contact the Deaf Smith County Extension office, according to Justin McBride, agent.

McBride said the Texas Department of Agriculture has contacted his office to canvass the area for needed inspections. Those needing scales checked are to call McBride at 364-3573 before March 26.

The TDA is planning one trip for Panhandle inspections and must schedule stops.

ORO Hybrids, The Ace to Higher Yields

ORO G XTRA, the dominant yield winner in performance tests from South Texas to Kansas, could be your "Ace in the Hole" for top yields in your sorghum production. ORO G XTRA was developed for improved water efficiency and sunlight utilization. And, with ORO G XTRA's genetic makeup and Greenbug Resistance (Bio-type C), it is no wonder its yield performances have been so spectacular!

Getting high yields from sorghum takes the right amount of moisture, fertilizer, and good conditions, and the right seed. That's where ORO hybrids can help you. They're the plants that have a yield advantage in your area's conditions.

Also ORO hybrids are bred for excellent standability, maximum grain production, and extra resistance to disease. ORO hybrid sorghum, the ace that gives you a winning hand in the battle for higher yields.

Three Homers Pad Herd Win

A three-run homer by Mark Collier, a two-run four-bagger by Don Delozier, and a solo shot by Matt Collier propelled the Hereford Whitefaces to a 7-2 non-district baseball win over the Palo Duro Dons in Amarillo Tuesday.

The win was the eighth of the year for the Herd against two losses as sophomore Mickey Stengel picked up his second win on the mound against no defeats.

Mark Collier opened the scoring in the second inning, blasting a 1-1 pitch over the left-center field fence. The shot followed consecutive singles by Delozier and Mike Mason, and gave the Herd a 3-0 bulge.

The lead was extended further in the third frame when Delozier followed a Don error, which allowed Stengel to reach first base, with a homerun to left, making it 5-0 Hereford.

After adding a run in the fourth, Hereford got their seventh tally when Matt Collier hit the third round-tripper off of PD hurler Ken Ozee. The Dons came back with solo runs in the sixth and seventh, but it wasn't enough to overcome the HHS gap.

Stengel struck out seven Palo Duro batters in gaining the win, while allowing just five hits.

Mark Collier, a junior, had his best day at the plate for Hereford this season, adding a double in the seventh as the Whitefaces collected 11 hits in the contest.

The win was the second lopsided victory for the Herd in-a-row after an 8-2 win over Altus, Okla. in the Consolation bracket finals of the Pampa Tournament last Saturday.

Conflicting Trends Clash At Heritage

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Conflicting trends — one pointing to experienced players, one indicating youth — clash this week in the $300,000 Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic.

The history of this elite, invitational event, and the subtle demands of the Harbour Town Golf Links, strongly suggest that the $54,000 first prize will go to one of the game's established, experienced performers.

Of the 13 previous Heritage Classics, only one has been won by other than a fully-established player, one who has won one of the game's Big Four titles.

In contradiction, however, is another trend, the surge of the younger players, the challenge of the youngsters to pro golf's biggest names.

It was in great evidence last week when Brad Bryant, Scott Simpson and Vance Heafner all contended for the title before a late charge by Jerry Pate wrapped up the title in the Tournament Players Championship.

And, Bryant warned, it could be a sign of the times.

"It's remarkable that so many of us younger players played so well last week," he said. "It's an indication of things to come. There are so many good young players, and they are so good that it's going to become more and more difficult for one player to dominate the game."

That's held true this season, more so than in any recent year. The 1982 PGA Tour now is 11 weeks old. And it has produced 11 winners. There are no double winners.

Probably the closest are Pate and Tom Kite, each with a victory and two seconds.

And those two rank among the leading contenders in the 120-man field arrayed for Thursday's start over the deceptively-difficult Harbour Town links, stretching 6,804 yards through pine forests and along Caibogue Sound on this resort island. It's the creation of Pete Dye, the architect who designed the Players Club course that was the subject of such controversy last week.

Other leading performers include defending title-holder Bill Rogers, the current British Open champion, and such former Heritage winners as Tom Watson, Hale Irwin and Hubert Green.

The foreign field includes Gary Player of South Africa, Greg Norman of Australia and Isao Aoki of Japan.

Portions of the final two rounds will be televised nationally by CBS.

Williams May Enter NBA Draft

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Rob Williams says the "odds are better" that he will skip his senior year in college, and enter the National Basketball Association draft in May.

Williams, the No. 3 scorer in Houston history, led the Cougars into the Final Four, scoring 25 points in the 99-92 win over Boston College in the NCAA Midwest Regional championship.

The Cougars meet favored North Carolina in the NCAA semifinals Saturday in New Orleans.

Williams, a junior, said he believes his senior year would be anti-climactic after this season.

Third of NCAA Seats Bad

By The Associated Press

The semifinals and finals of the NCAA Basketball Tournament may make a unique sort of history — a "pay TV" attraction at the actual site of the event.

More than 61,000 tickets have been sold to both Saturday's semifinals and Monday night's championship game. Just how many spectators will be able to see what they have paid for is another story.

"What it amounts to is they are paying $16 to sit in the Superdome and cheer for their team and watch the game on television," says Bill Curl, public relations director for the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans. The best view from those distant seats, says Curl, is afforded on the Superdome's six giant TV screens.

About a third of the seats are bad ones, so bad that the NCAA went to great pains to inform buyers that some of them were as far as 375 feet from the court. Tickets for the worst 3,000 seats are stamped "Distant Vision."

Those paying $16 for the three games will have to peer over a set of rolling bleachers. The basketball court is situated along one side of the football field and a bank of seats from the other side rumbles across on rails to provide the basketball configuration.

"NCAA officials have made the greatest effort to educate ticket buyers in the history of the industry, sports or otherwise," says Cliff Wallace, general manager of the Superdome.

In fact, adds Dave Cawood, the NCAA's director of public relations, "It almost came to the point where we were asking, 'Are you real sure you want to buy these tickets?'"

Those who can see the court will watch North Carolina and Houston in the first half of Saturday's doubleheader, followed by Georgetown and Louisville. The winners meet Monday night for college basketball's national championship.

Although Georgetown has a sharpshooting guard in Eric "Sleepy" Floyd, Coach John Thompson says "defense is the thing that carried us right from the start (of the season). There is no excuse for an off-day on defense."

Both Georgetown and Louisville like to use a full-court pressure defense most of the way.

"We've played with it and against it every day," says Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "Hopefully, we'll be able to handle it. I'm sure they feel the same way. It will create some problems for us and create some problems for them. "Georgetown's overall talent and quickness is very similar to our own. It's a team very similar to our own, with the exception of the center spot, where they're a lot bigger (7-foot freshman Pat Ewing).

"They like to run and shoot the good shots off the transition. I think the game will be won by the team that plays the best defense. That's usually the way it works in tournament play."

Bradley's 'Sheriff' Aims At Handcuffing Edmonson

NEW YORK (AP) — If there is a key matchup in tonight's National Invitation Tournament championship game, it could be how well Bradley's David Thirskill defends the Big Ten's leading scorer, Purdue guard Keith Edmonson.

Bradley Coach Dick Versace calls Thirskill "The Sheriff," and the senior guard certainly laid down the law Monday night, holding Oklahoma's David Little to eight points as the Braves rolled to an 84-68 semifinal victory.

Thirskill, says Versace, "is the consummate defensive player in America today. He has absolutely the finest technique of any basketball player at the college level that I've ever seen."

In Edmonson, who is averaging 26.4 points in the NIT, Thirskill should have his hands full when the title goes on the line at 8 p.m. EST in Madison Square Garden. Edmonson and sophomore center Russell Cross, Purdue's one-two scoring combination, had 25 points apiece in a 61-60 semifinal victory over Georgia.

"If we can do a job on Cross and Edmonson, that would be a terrific defensive challenge," says Versace.

Both Cross and Edmonson are destined for the pros, says Versace, "and you never really stop pros. You just try to chop them down a bit."

Purdue Coach Gene Keady is puzzled about why Edmonson, a 6-foot-5 senior, hasn't received more national recognition.

"Maybe its because our style of play is team-oriented and we don't stress the star system," he says. "He (Edmonson) can get the points if he needs to, but I'm not sure why he doesn't have more of a star status."

Both coaches say they'll stick with their basic styles of play that they displayed in the semis, when Purdue used discipline and careful shot selection while Bradley put on a 23-5 burst in the second half to break its game open.

Likening Bradley to Georgia, another fast-breaking team, Keady said, "I don't think you're going to stop them. I think you're going to have to control the tempo more than anything."

"We don't have a lot of quickness. We're just going to try to play our game," Keady said, adding that if the Boilermakers try to run with Bradley, "they'll blow us out."

Versace characterizes Purdue as "awesome with their size and bulk," and says "if you get in a five-on-five game with them, then of course they have the edge."

Mavericks Nip Lakers, 118-116

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

The 10th time was a charm for the Dallas Mavericks.

After nine straight losses to the Los Angeles Lakers since the Dallas franchise was formed in 1980, the Mavericks needed a three-point bomb from Mark Aguirre to beat the Pacific Division leaders 118-116 Tuesday night.

A 24-footer from the corner with seven seconds left might seem like a low-percentage shot, but Dallas Coach Dick Motta said he wasn't sorry to see the DePaul rookie let it fly.

"That particular play has the three-point option and I told Mark not to be afraid to take it," said Motta, who saw his team end a four-game losing streak.

"It really wasn't my shot, but I was open, so I took it," said Aguirre, who scored 23 points. "When it went in, I looked at the clock and saw there were seven seconds left and thought to myself, 'The game's not over yet.'"

In other National Basketball Association games, Boston won its 16th straight with a 110-103 victory over Chicago, New York stopped Cleveland 120-97, Atlanta bombed Washington 107-87, San Antonio clipped San Diego 106-98, Houston edged Utah 117-115, Milwaukee defeated Portland 109-104 and Golden State stopped Phoenix 95-91.

Celtics 110, Bulls 103
Cedric Maxwell scored 29 points as Boston beat Chicago to move within one game of its team record for consecutive victories set in 1959-60.

"I felt before the game that I had to take charge," said Maxwell. "I scored only 17 points in my last two games and felt like I didn't really help the team a bit."

Larry Bird had 25 points for Boston, including 10 in the third quarter when the Celtics maintained a slim lead over the determined Bulls, who got 23 points from Ronnie Lester and 22 from Artis Gilmore.

The Celtics can tie the team record of 17 consecutive victories tonight against Cleveland in Boston.

Rockets 117, Jazz 115
Moses Malone scored 31 points and Tom Henderson had five in the last 20 seconds as Houston handed Utah its 15th straight loss despite 39 points by Darrell Griffith and 33 by Adrian Dantley.

Henderson had a basket and three free throws in the last 20 seconds to offset a three-point goal by Dantley and a basket by Griffith. The Jazz took a 15-point lead in the first half in its effort to break the NBA's longest losing streak this season.

Spurs 106, Clippers 98
George Gervin scored 14 of his 27 points in the third quarter as San Antonio overcame an 11-point halftime deficit by outscoring San Diego 34-14 in the period.

The Clippers, who lost their seventh straight, hit 65 percent of their field goals in the first half, but they hit only four of 19 in the third quarter.

Al Wood led San Diego with 22 points and Mike Mitchell had 24 for the Spurs.

The National Defense Mediation Board was formed on March 19, 1941, to deal with labor disputes.

Big Sports Schools Struggle to Balance Books

Part Two of a Series By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

In 1980, the average National Football League team spent $6 million, not counting player salaries, and made a profit. The University of Oklahoma will spend $2.5 million more than that this year and lose money.

This illustrates the problems of bigtime college sports program today. All bigtime sports schools have comparably sized budgets, and even the most stable programs are struggling to balance the books.

At Oklahoma, anyone other than a student or faculty member had to pay $12.50 for a single ticket to a single football game at Owen Field in 1981. This year, the price for that same ticket will be $15.

But don't for one moment think that on opening day Sept. 11 against West Virginia, any of the 76,000 or so seats will be empty because of the increase. Football is king in Sooner country and if the ticket price goes up again next year, the fans still will pay.

Yet the Oklahoma athletic budget, inflated by the growth of women's sports and interest on long-term debts for such things as construction, has some people at Norman worried.

The average NFL team had revenues of almost $13.5 million in 1980, the last year for which figures are available. Oklahoma's 1981-82 sports budget shows receipts of slightly more than $8.1 million. So, while the NFL teams had an average profit of more than $1.4 million that year, Oklahoma's current sports budget of $8.5 million has a deficit of about $350,000.

For this reason, the next six months represent a crisis period for the future of sports at OU. That is the opinion of Robert Smith, assistant athletic director and business manager at the university. The budget is his domain and the numbers trouble him.

"This is a crucial time for the program here," Smith said. "We are at a financial crossroads."

In the back of Smith's mind is the situation at Colorado, which, like Oklahoma, is a member of the Big Eight Conference. From a budget surplus of $200,000 to $300,000 annually, Colorado found itself with a deficit approaching $1 million. Some sports were eliminated completely and others cut back to club level to close the gap.

"That is the kind of nightmare that could happen here," Smith said. "I see parallels between our program and theirs prior to their downfall and, frankly, that scares me. With our debt service ($908,950 this year) and multiplicity of sports, our total size is such that one shockwave, one fault in the crust and the whole earth could open up and swallow us like it did them."

So important decisions must be made. Where do you cut? Which sports are dropped? How do you bridge that dollar-and-cents gap? OU is searching for those answers right now.

Wade Walker, the university's athletic director, knows full well that he is operating a big business.

"A lot of people don't like to put it in that vernacular, but that's what it is," he said. "Our budget is probably bigger than any other department here. Health sciences or engineering might be larger; I'm not sure."

The difference, however, is that academic departments receive money from the university; OU's athletic department is self-sustaining. None of its funds comes from the university or its students. Sooner teams turn income over to the university rather than drawing from it.

"We receive no state or federal funds or student fees," Walker said. "Our income is generated from gate receipts, television-radio revenue and private donations."

That money can be substantial. A regular-season national television football game last year typically carried a $400,000 fee from ABC. Oklahoma's share of that would be $200,000, which is turned over to the Big Eight and redistributed to the conference schools. Participating schools in each game get an extra slice of the pie.

Bowl games are worth more than that. And tournament bids in the other sports are important moneymakers. Every one of the 48 teams invited to play in the NCAA basketball hoedown earned a minimum of $121,000. Even after sharing that income in the conference, the payoff is impressive. That's for one game. Advance past the first round and the money increases to $364,000 for a regional final and finally to a top of $500,000 for making the Final Four.

This formula has been adjusted twice in the past three years. Tom Jernstedt, assistant executive director in charge of championship events for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said that had the old formula been maintained this season, a Final Four team would have been paid $1 million.

The National Invitation Tournament, with 32 teams, generates less income because it doesn't have the advantage of a national network television contract. And money is the bottom line. Everywhere.

"I tell my football and basketball coaches after I hire them that I really don't care what their won-lost records are, as long as they sell peanuts and popcorn while getting those records," said Ted Bredehoft, athletic director at Wichita State.

Oklahoma's basketball team brought home NIT revenue this year, invited there after going 19-10 following a 9-18, no-tournament record in 1981. It was a major plus in a difficult budget year.

Still, though, football is No. 1 in Sooner country. It accounts for almost 33 percent of the budget expenditures and nearly 66 percent of the athletic department's income.

So when Oklahoma's sports program slices come, as Smith insists they must, don't expect any of the trimming to be done at the expense of the flourishing football program.

According to Walker, Oklahoma's sports budget is comparable to those maintained at schools such as Southern California, Michigan, Ohio State and Texas — high-visibility universities where sports and success are a top priority.

Sometimes, though, schools normally considered somewhat lower on the athletic ladder, get into the high stakes swing of things. Consider the $1.7 million package Jackie Sherrill received from Texas A&M to move there from Pittsburgh as football coach. The huge contract shook the coaching fraternity. But if Sherrill delivers victories, then the people in Texas will consider the money well spent.

Some college administrators view success in sports as a vital element to the overall health of their university. Dan Gibbens, a law professor who is the faculty representative for athletics at Oklahoma, understands that position.

"Does athletics impact on general fund-raising?" he said. "President (William Slater) Banowsky is an expert at private fund-raising. He believes excellence in athletics is contagious. We look for excellence throughout the university. That excellence helps him gain academic funding."

Sometimes, Gibbens said, the emphasis on athletics upsets other elements of the university community.

"Some faculty and students are dismayed at the amount of attention and money spent and all that goes into sports," he said.

But the fact is that a school with a championship football team is going to get noticed more widely in America today than a school with a championship chemistry department.

What's more, nobody is offering the chemistry professors $1.7 million to move from one school to another or $500,000 to reach the Final Four. So strictly from an economic standpoint, sports occupies a dominant role on many campuses.

Gibbens was one of the leaders of the College Football Association movement, a group of bigtime football schools which wanted to break away from dependence on the whims of smaller institutions. There was an effort at signing a separate television contract and it resulted in a juicier deal for the member schools.

"Its major effect was to generate more television revenue," Gibbens said. "The CFA served its purpose. Because of it, we got 50 percent more (in the TV contract) than what we could have anticipated under the original NCAA contract."

And at Oklahoma the extra money went right into an athletic department program.

Because at Oklahoma, sports is supreme. As George Cross, Banowsky's predecessor as Oklahoma president, once said: "We hope to build a university that the football team can be proud of."

Players Want Ticket Change

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — National Football League negotiator Jack Donlan went before his bosses, the club owners, armed with some new ammunition from the players' union.

In a closed-door session today, Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, was to address the owners on the state of negotiations with the NFL Players Association toward a new collective bargaining agreement to replace the one that expires July 15.

And with what he was to tell them — namely some comments made Tuesday by a couple of union members — it seemed certain the owners would only stiffen their resolve against union demands for a percentage of the league's gross profits.

Since the end of the 1981 season, a few teams have raised their ticket prices for 1982 games, this coming well before the owners approved on Monday a record $2 billion, five-year television contract.

On Tuesday in Albuquerque, N.M., where the union is meeting this week, association president Gene Upshaw said: "We don't want to gouge the fans. We want the fans to support us. They (the owners) should keep ticket prices where they are or roll them back. How can ticket prices be raised when they signed that huge TV contract?"

And Guy Benjamin, a reserve quarterback with the Super Bowl-champion San Francisco 49ers and their alternate player representative, said he would introduce a resolution at the union meeting calling for a change in club ticket policy.

"Ticket prices have gotten out of hand," Benjamin said. "This is something I've thought about personally a long time." He said that before he made it into the NFL in 1978, he attended only one pro game because his parents had divorced when he was 10 years old and his mother couldn't afford to take him more than once.

The union's slogan is "We are the game," and Benjamin said: "We wouldn't be the game without the fans. They deserve to benefit from the (television) revenue because without them there wouldn't be those kind of revenues."

Valenzuela Reports, But Not 'Happy'

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Fernando Valenzuela's first workout of spring training would officially end a bitter holdout by the 21-year-old left-hander and the Los Angeles Dodgers hope the rift is over for good.

"What's happened is in the past," said Dodgers vice president Al Campanis. "It's all over and now that's it's over, he's part of the family."

But Valenzuela did not appear to be in the best of moods when he checked in to the Dodgers camp Tuesday night. He refused to be picked up at the airport in West Palm Beach by Dodger officials, preferring to drive to training camp with a bodyguard. The club asked him to hold a news conference, but he declined, saying he was too tired and wanted to get to bed.

At the airport, however, he told a sports writer for the Palm Beach Post, "I am very anxious to get back with the Dodgers."

"I have been working out in Los Angeles, working and throwing every day, and I think my condition is very good. I think I am ready to pitch."

"I really don't care how much money I play for," said Valenzuela. "I just want to get out there and play baseball." He said his holdout was for the "principle of the thing."

Valenzuela said he decided to end his holdout because he felt a responsibility to his new wife, felt pressure from his friends and family and was anxious to get started at spring training.

CHILD SAFETY WARNING

TO OWNERS OF CREATIVE PLAYTHINGS INDOOR GYM HOUSE

LADDER ALLOWS HEAD ENTRAPMENT AND HAS CAUSED 3 STRANGULATION DEATHS OF CHILDREN UNDER 3 YEARS

DO THE FOLLOWING AT ONCE

IF YOU HAVE RECEIVED A REPLACEMENT LADDER SINCE FEBRUARY 1980, DISREGARD THIS NOTICE

- REMOVE AND DESTROY LADDER
- ALLOW NO FURTHER PLAY UNTIL REPLACEMENT LADDER IS INSTALLED
- FOR FREE REPLACEMENT LADDER OR INFORMATION: Write: Creative Playthings P.O. Box 306, Route 147 Herndon, PA 17830 Phone Toll-Free: 800-847-4359 800-522-3512 (New York State)

Creative Playthings is a unit of Gabriel Industries, a division of CBS Inc.

Creative Playthings Replacing Ladder

Creative Playthings is renewing its efforts to replace an estimated 137,000 to 239,000 Creative Playthings Indoor Gym House ladders following a recent strangulation death. The product was manufactured prior to 1980 by Creative Playthings, a unit of Gabriel Industries, a division of CBS Inc., New York, N.Y.

Consumers are urged to remove and destroy the ladder immediately. The replacement program is being conducted in cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission which advised the firm of the death of a two-year-old California boy on Feb. 9, 1982 in an accident associated with a Creative Playthings Indoor Gym House.

The firm first took corrective action on the product in February, 1980, after learning of an accidental death and an incident causing brain damage which later resulted in death to a child playing with the product. The firm then urged owners of the product to obtain a free replacement ladder because the original ladder posed a strangulation hazard. The Creative Playthings Indoor Gym House consists of a hollow, fiberboard-and-wood box 20 inches in height which supports a two-step wooden ladder on one side and a short slide on the opposite side. The top of the box or "platform" serves as a bridge between the ladder and the slide and is protected on two sides by wooden railings.

The space between the upper rug of the ladder and the platform was small enough for a child's head to be inserted and, become entrapped, creating a potential for strangulation. The replacement ladder again being offered by the firm was redesigned to reduce the likelihood of head entrapment. Creative Playthings urges owners to contact the firm immediately to request, free of charge, a new ladder with instructions for easy installation. Owners who have received a replacement ladder since February 1980 need take no action. To request the replacement ladder, call the firm's toll-free number 800-847-4359 (in New York 800-522-3512), or write to: Creative Playthings P.O. Box 306, Route 147 Herndon, PA 17830.

Owners who need information about the replacement program may call the firm's toll-free number or the CPSC's toll-free number at 800-638-8326; in Maryland, 800-492-8363; and in Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, 800-638-8333. Creative Playthings is undertaking additional efforts to advise owners to destroy the old ladder and replace it with the redesigned ladder. The firm will send letters and posters to pediatricians and day-care centers throughout the United States, advertise in magazines, provide a public service announcement to major networks, aim a news campaign to consumer affairs editors, and send advisory bulletins to organizations serving parents of young children.

Help for hot flashes

DEAR DR. LAMB - I have found that menopausal hot flashes are treated very casually. Many people consider this a laughable condition. Several years ago I had a mastectomy, radiation therapy and chemotherapy. The chemo stopped my menstrual periods. Because of breast cancer I was advised not to take estrogen. I tried Bellergal, which didn't help. I have severe and frequent flashes during the day and am awakened several times during the night. A restful night is a rarity. The embarrassment and discomfort of suddenly having a flushed face and perspiring body - making one's clothing seem to grow to the body plus giving one the feeling of being unclean - certainly are not amusing.

These hot flashes have contributed greatly to an unsatisfactory sex life and a deteriorating marriage. Do you find these complaints common from "change of life" women?

DEAR READER - They are certainly not rare. Some women sail through the menopause without problems, usually because they are producing enough estrogen from the adrenal gland to help prevent sudden changes in hormone levels. You do have some other problems that may be contributing to your hot flashes. Night sweats and flashes do occur in other conditions besides the menopause. You might talk to your doctor about trying some other newer methods to control hot flashes that would not pose the same risks estrogen might for you. Some doctors have reported success in some cases using progesterone, the other main hormone produced by the ovary. It is not related to cancer in any way. Others have had success with Inderal. It neutralizes the adrenaline effect that seems to be involved in causing hot flashes.

It is probably also a good idea to avoid coffee, tea and colas containing caffeine. Caffeine increases the adrenaline response.
