Hicks wants public to see pool condition

City Commissioner Dennis Hicks plans on being at the Dameron Park Pool on Saturday for the Town and County Jubilee and hopes other residents will come by to see the condition of the pool.

Hicks will participate in a Rotary Club fundraising dunking booth called "Dunk Your Favorite City Commissioner" at which elected officials will sit on a board above a water-filled tank and wait for someone to throw a ball at the target and dunk them.

Chances are 50 cents each and proceeds from the event will be used for a variety of Rotary Club projects.

But Hicks hopes residents will come by for other reasons.

"I basically want people to come and look at the pool and see if we need a new one," he said.

The city is currently looking into funding to build a new pool near the YMCA building on 15th Street.

Hicks said a trip through the front door and past the bathhouses should demonstrate the need for a new pool.

The dunking booth will be open immediately following the parade until 2 p.m.

At 2 p.m., the pool will open to the public at no cost until 6 p.m.

Brand garners three awards at West Texas Press meeting

The Hereford Brand was presented three awards in the West Texas Press Association's Better Newspaper Contest this past weekend. The newspaper earned third-place awards for advertising composition, features, and editorials.

The awards were presented Saturday night at the conclusion of the WTPA's 63rd annual summer convention, held in Ruidoso, N.M. The group is billed as the world's largest regional press association.

Steven Henry, Levelland publisher, was installed as WTPA president for 1993-94, succeeding Joe Thompson of Granbury. Speedy Nieman, a past WTPA president, accepted the awards for The Brand. Mauri Montgomery heads the newspaper's advertising department, while the feature and editorial entries were the work of Georgia Tyler and Nieman, respectively.

Plainview was the sweepstakes winner in the daily division, while Lamesa and Albany took top honors in the semi-weekly and weekly divisions.

Go ahead...

Assistant City Manager Mike Hatley is about ready to let one rip at City Commissioner Dennis Hicks, who, along with of commissioners, will be manning this dunking booth Saturday during Jubilee Junction. The "Dunk Your Favorite City Commissioner" booth, sponsored by the Rotary Club, will be set up in the Dameron Park pool. For 50 cents a throw, you can dunk your commissioner between the time the parade ends and 2 p.m., when the pool will open to regular swimmers. Proceeds will be used for a variety of Rotary Club projects, including the purchase of a projector at the library and funding of scholarships.

Weather forecasts better in Midwest

By GEORGE ESPER
AP Special Correspondent

ROCHEPORT, Mo. (AP) - After weeks of rain, the weather in the Midwest is brightening and some places are starting to dry out. But another crest of record proportions is muscling its way down the Missouri River.

The rising waters, swollen by earlier storms, have sent people scrambling to protect their communities - some of which could see their third flood crest in five weeks. The surge is expected to reach St. Louis on Tuesday.

In this rural community of 250, hundreds of people, including women, children and convicts, toiled Wednesday to build sandbag barriers. Volunteers worked around the clock, laboring under 1,500-watt lights at night.

"My right arm's getting where I don't want to hold anything more," said Jim Ross, a 70-year-old retired professor. "I'm going home and I am going to take a shower. Then I might have a little bourbon and water."

About a dozen houses and four businesses faced the most immediate peril.

In contrast, to the north, in Iowa, it appeared the worst had passed.

The Mississippi River level dropped another foot in Burlington, Iowa, on Wednesday. In Des Moines, along the banks of the shrinking Des Moines River, workers hauled away sandbags. Car washes and even swimming pools reopened.

"If we can keep the skies a little dry, it looks pretty good," said Denise Yale, a spokeswoman for the Army Corps of Engineers.

Forecasters said the weather may well oblige.

The sun came out Wednesday, and National Weather Service forecaster Vince Acquaviva said the flood region can expect a week of hot, dry weather. He said there could be brief - though potentially troublesome - thunderstorms, but no more of "this organized, one-storm-after-another like it used to be."

The break in the weather will help waterlogged farmland dry out and allow rivers to continue falling.

The flooding has been blamed for 43 deaths in eight states. Floodwaters have wiped out homes, farmland and businesses. Damage has been put at more than $10 billion.

After Kansas City withstood an onslaught Tuesday from the Missouri and Kansas rivers, attention focused downstream as the crest worked its way toward areas with already strained levees. The water is expected to rise 2 to 3 feet in places.

"We'll probably see a lot more levee damage," said Larry Crump, a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers.

Workers poured cement into holes at the base of St. Louis' flood wall to reinforce it. The 52-foot wall is high enough for the expected 48-foot crest, but fears about its strength were raised when the wall sprang a leak on Friday.

The surge moving down the Missouri struck Tuesday in Levasy, a farm community of 235 where a 30-foot section of levee broke. Water swamped houses, washed over farmland and left a sandbagged church looking like an island.

Jerry Friedrich, owner of Friedrich's Hardware Store, said that business had evaporated. In the last couple of days, he said, sales totaled only $6 a day. "It's just like driving a nail through the door," he said.

Downstream, residents gave up sandbagging in the farm communities of Lupus and Sandy Hook. People were evacuated and the National Guard was called in to take over security. In New Franklin, an urgent plea went out for volunteers.

Across the state at McBride, along the Mississippi, a gasoline tank broke loose from a flooded gas station and sprang a leak.

Perry County emergency response coordinator Jack Lakenan said the tank held about 10,000 gallons of gas. The wind was blowing the gasoline slick away from town.

Consumer spending up; economic growth rate is disappointing

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. economy grew at a disappointingly modest 1.6 percent annual rate in the April-June quarter despite a rebound in consumer spending, the government said today.

The growth in the gross domestic product - the sum of all goods and services produced within U.S. borders - was clearly better than the anemic 0.7 percent rate registered in the first three months of the year.

But it fell far short of the 2.3 percent rate predicted by private economists and the 2.5 percent to 3 percent rate forecast by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan.

Separately today, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time claims for jobless benefits shot up by 43,000 last week to 394,000, the highest level in 10 months.

Much of the jump was attributed to temporary factors, including the Midwestern floods and a shutdown of automobile production lines.

The discouraging performance came despite the fact that consumer spending rose at a healthy 3.8 percent annual rate in the second quarter, compared with a tiny 0.8 percent rate in the first, the Commerce Department said.

The economy was held back chiefly because cautious businesses added $25.3 billion fewer goods to their inventories than in the first quarter. But that could be a good sign for the future.

If consumers keep buying, businesses would soon find they need to fatten their inventories and that could ripple through the economy in the form of increased factory orders and - possibly - more jobs.

The economy also was held back by a decline in home building at a 9.5 percent rate. Home-building activity had surged at a 25.1 percent rate in the final three months of last year but then lapsed to a 1.4 percent growth rate during the first quarter, before turning negative in the latest period.

In addition to consumer spending, the other area of strength in the last quarter was purchases of machinery, computers and other capital equipment by businesses enjoying strong profits. It rose at 16.5 percent annual rate, the sixth consecutive quarter of gains.

Consumer spending reflected, in part, a 14.2 percent rate increase in the purchases of durable goods - big ticket items expected to last three or more years. That in turn came almost entirely from purchases of automobiles and parts.

Trade was a modest plus for the economy in the second quarter, after acting as a drag in the first quarter because of declining exports to Europe and Japan, which are in business slumps.

Government spending also rose, but only at a 0.2 percent rate. In the first quarter it had declined at a 7.1 percent rate because of defense cuts. In the second quarter, defense spending fell at a 1.5 percent rate, an improvement over the 25.9 percent drop in the first quarter.

A measure of inflation tied to the GDP rose at a 2.6 percent annual rate in the second quarter, after spiking up at a 4.3 percent rate in the first quarter.

The various changes added $19.6 billion to the GDP, bringing it to an annual rate of $5.02 trillion, adjusted for both inflation and seasonal variations.

The economy now has been growing for nine consecutive quarters after the three-quarter recession in 1990-91. However, the Commerce Department noted that the pace of expansion has been about half as fast as the average of past recoveries.

Analysts are hopeful that the economy will improve during the second half of this year, helped by low interest rates. But they believe the performance will still fall far short of spectacular.

"The U.S. recovery is a Midwestern type of recovery: solid with no real pizzazz, steak but no sizzle. It's meat and potatoes, not potatoes au gratin," said economist Samuel D. Kahan of Fuji Securities Inc. in Chicago.

Clinton says gas tax hike 'bearable burden' for U.S.

By MICHELLE MITTELSTADT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton says the 6-cent gasoline tax hike currently being contemplated by congressional negotiators is a "bearable burden" for Americans.

With gas prices on the decrease, a hike in the 14.1-cent federal gasoline levy is affordable, the president said Wednesday as he defended his economic program.

"First of all, gasoline is at its lowest real price, adjusted for inflation, in more than three decades," he told Texas reporters in a White House briefing. "I think any tax (lawmakers) put on it will be modest and will amount to no more than $50 a year for a family of four with an income of $50,000 a year."

The president and a parade of top administration officials briefed Texas reporters on their $500 billion deficit-reduction package, which is having difficulty getting through Congress because of its $250 billion in tax increases over five years.

Clinton acknowledged that the White House had not done a good job explaining the plan since it was unveiled last February - and that Republicans had been allowed to dominate the debate.

"If I've made any mistake in this, it is that this is the only issue in my lifetime where the people knew less about it as time went on," he said.

What hasn't been clearly explained, Clinton said, is that his package includes $250 billion in spending cuts, obtains 80 percent of its new tax revenues from the wealthiest 5 percent of Americans and cuts taxes for more than 90 percent of small businesses.

"Passage of this plan is critical for economic recovery," Vice President Al Gore said earlier.

The 40-minute session with the president in the ornate foyer of the residence capped a daylong series of briefings for the Texas media. Reporters from four other states have been invited to the White House for similar sessions.

Gore, Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen, Deputy Treasury Secretary Roger Altman, Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros and White House

Chief of Staff Mack McLarty also made pitches for the economic plan.

"I think you'd have a negative impact in the financial markets if this is not passed," Bentsen warned.

Texas' two GOP senators mounted their own offensive, calling a news conference to attack the Clinton plan. "As it stands, the Clinton tax plan will cost this country jobs, hurt small business and undercut the economic recovery," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

The administration contends its plan and continued low-interest rates will create 8.3 million new jobs over four years.

Clinton defended what has been perhaps the most controversial aspect of his plan in Texas - a tax on energy. While the much-hated BTU tax has been abandoned in favor of a gasoline tax, some Texas lawmakers continue to voice their opposition.

The president suggested that Texas' 21 House Democrats should find the plan more palatable now that the BTU tax has been eliminated. Fourteen of the Texas Democrats voted for the plan in May.

DSGH WorkSmart has new safety coordinator

Mike Watts has been named as the new safety coordinator for WorkSmart, Deaf Smith General Hospital's occupational/industrial medicine program.

Watts has served as safety coordinator for Transwestern Pipeline and also spent over a decade with Deaf Smith REC, working in a number of capacities which will add to his work with the hospital program.

Watts has instruction certification in many areas, including electrical, gas and home safety, building safety, evacuation, and fire extinguishers.

As fire chief, and is assistant civil defense coordinator for the city and county.

WorkSmart was developed about a year ago to work with area businesses, with the goal of reducing workers' comp costs.

WorkSmart was developed about a year ago to work with area businesses, with the goal of reducing workers' comp costs, lowering health care expenses, helping employees maintain good health.

"Making sure that working conditions are safe for employees and that employees are trained to work safely is an important aspect of the program," said Collier.

"I am hopeful we will all learn from today's decision," Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said in a statement released after the trial.

Morales later commended the district judge, local officials, law enforcement personnel, the NAACP and members of the grand jury for their cooperation in the investigation.

"While the grand jury found no criminal conduct among the arresting officers, their ruling can in no way be construed to support behavior that compromises the health or safety of prisoners in police custody."

Morales later commended the district judge, local officials, law enforcement personnel, the NAACP and members of the grand jury for their cooperation in the investigation.

Navarro County NAACP president Robert Sanders says the grand jury's decision was wrong.

"Locals can't seem to bring about justice in their own communities, but this was something we expected," Sanders said Wednesday.

Sanders said the NAACP has already appealed to the U.S. Justice Department in hopes that a federal grand jury will indict the officers.

"We feel they'll act on it pretty quickly because we have a situation where some people's lives are in danger because of someone's stupid

Mixed responses follow Corsicana grand jury action

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) - A Navarro County grand jury's decision not to indict officers involved in Craig Thomas' death was predictably met with conflicting responses.

The grand jury on Wednesday found that the Corsicana police officers who apprehended and hogtied Thomas, committed no crimes.

Thomas died in police custody June 5, sparking several days of unrest in Corsicana.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales commended everyone involved with the investigation. Navarro County National Association for the Advancement of Colored People president Robert Sanders condemned the investigation.

"I am hopeful we will all learn from today's decision," Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said in a statement released after the trial.

While the grand jury found no criminal conduct among the arresting officers, their ruling can in no way be construed to support behavior that compromises the health or safety of prisoners in police custody."

Morales later commended the district judge, local officials, law enforcement personnel, the NAACP and members of the grand jury for their cooperation in the investigation.

Navarro County NAACP president Robert Sanders says the grand jury's decision was wrong.

"Locals can't seem to bring about justice in their own communities, but this was something we expected," Sanders said Wednesday.

Sanders said the NAACP has already appealed to the U.S. Justice Department in hopes that a federal grand jury will indict the officers.

"We feel they'll act on it pretty quickly because we have a situation where some people's lives are in danger because of someone's stupid actions," Sanders said. An autopsy showed that Thomas, 29, of Wortham died of a combination of alcohol and drugs, injuries suffered during his arrest, plus the way he was restrained.

A second autopsy on the black man, done by a Washington, D.C., pathologist hired by the NAACP's Navarro County chapter, placed more emphasis on the restraint methods as a factor in the death.

The grand jury, which called 50 witnesses, made several recommendations.

Grand jurors said hogtying, a means of subduing suspects by tying their hands and feet behind their backs, should be banned by police across Texas. Hogtying has already been banned in Corsicana.

The grand jury also urged law enforcement in the state to monitor the weapons used by officers, including the equipment used to hogtie some one. Jurors also asked Corsicana police to be more active within the community.

Officers Todd Morris and Jeff Schafer, who are white, were fired in connection with Thomas' arrest. Another officer was suspended for three days without pay and a sergeant was given a letter of reprimand.

After the trial, Morris stated that there was never any doubt in his mind that he would not be indicted.

Morris' attorney, David Martin, said he doubted that people would dispute the grand jury's decision.

Morales agreed that the investigation was fair. He said his office interviewed nearly 100 people, subpoenaed 45 and offered more than 70 pieces of evidence during the investigation.

A hearing is scheduled next month to determine if the fired officers can be rehired.

Investigations planned into Winters explosion

WINTERS, Texas (AP) - Several investigations will look into an explosion near a gasoline station that rocked this West Texas town's business district, officials say.

Two minor injuries were reported following Wednesday's blast. It may have been ignited by a leaking natural gas line owned by Lone Star Gas Co., but inquiries beginning today should determine the cause.

Gas company spokesman Breck Harris said the leak was only 100- to 200-feet away from the explosion, but "whether it actually contributed, we don't know."

Lone Star officials will investigate the cause of the eruption, he said, adding that the Texas Railroad Commission also likely will look into it.

Winters Police Chief Carey Balentine said state fire marshals were expected to arrive this morning from Lubbock for another examination.

The leak was detected Wednesday afternoon by a Lone Star truck making a routine check of the area, Harris said.

A two-block area of homes and businesses were evacuated as the repairs began. Around 3 p.m., the blast blew the roof off the Gene Wheat Shell Distributorship and triggered a smoky fire.

"The roof came off in almost a whole section, but it turned it over and laid it down, leaning from the top of the building," White said. "Glass is all over the street. Windows were blown out in businesses down the street, too."

The only injuries were a bruised ankle and cut foot suffered by a woman and a head laceration suffered by a man, Balentine said.

Harris said a leak of undetermined origin had been reported from one of the company's 2-inch pliable plastic lines about 30 minutes earlier.

The fire was contained in under 30 minutes by firefighters from Winters and from Ballinger, about 15 miles to the south.

Winters, a town of about 3,000 people, is 45 miles southwest of Abilene.

Tips given for TV viewing

Statistics abound when it comes to TV viewing habits.

Whether or not ratings accurately reflect the public's tastes in programming, one thing is clear—there's a great deal of television-watching going on from coast to coast.

Before you pass the remote control, here are a couple of ways to take a look at your family's viewing habits:

—Make a chart with your kids listing the days of the week along the left side. Make headings for columns across the top such as number of programs watched, time spent watching, favorite and least favorite programs, etc. Fill in the chart daily. If you find you are logging too many couch-potato hours, do something about it. Start by eliminating your least favorite shows. Then, talk about activities you could do together instead of watching TV such as learning a new board game, cooking a new recipe, planning a party for friends, etc.

—Scaling down hours is a positive step and so is becoming an active viewer of the shows we choose to watch. For example, watch one of your kids' favorite sitcoms with them and turn the situations into opportunities for discussions. Today's TV shows deal with all kinds of social and family issues that are ripe for sharing opinions.

Some shows have ongoing themes that make great conversation starters and help kids develop critical thinking. For example, on "Family Matters," Steve Urkel always tries to get Laura to like him and she always rejects him. Ask your kids why they think Laura doesn't like Urkel. Have they ever felt rejected by friends? Would they want to be Urkel's friend? Invite your kids to ask more questions and share their opinions.

There's a lot going on in that little box in our homes. If you and your kids become active viewers and critical thinkers, TV can both entertain and provide a chance to share ideas.

God gave us memory that we might have roses in December.

Hints from Heloise

CLEAN BLOCKS
Dear Heloise: This exhausted kindergarten teacher just solved a big cleaning problem: washing all those plastic blocks, rubber puzzle pieces and waffle blocks that had collected mud and dirt for ages.

I put each assortment in a cotton pillowcase, stitched in the largest zig-zag stitch so nothing could spill, then tossed them in my washing machine.

They are air-drying on the carport now. Wow, was that easier! — Kathryn Crawford, Arkadelphia, Ark.

Send a money- or time-saving hint to Heloise, PO Box 795000, San Antonio TX 78279-5000 or fax it to 210-HELOISE. I can't answer your letter personally but will use the best hints received in my column.

Chargers lose Byrd; Giants sign Meggett to 2-year pact

By FRANK ELTMAN
Associated Press Writer
Gill Byrd won't get a chance to bedevil John Elway again this season. Byrd, the San Diego Chargers' career interceptions leader and Elway's main nemesis, underwent reconstructive surgery on his left knee Wednesday and is out for the season.

Byrd ranks third among active players with 42 career interceptions. Only Ronnie Lott (60) and Everson Walls (56) have more. His nine career interceptions - including three last season - against Elway are the most by any player.

Dr. Gary Losse repaired two ligaments and a tendon that Byrd tore when he apparently caught his cleats in the grass and fell during a non-contact, one-on-one drill Tuesday.

"It's a blow to get a guy with Gill's experience, leadership and consistency of play knocked out all of a sudden," general manager Bobby Beathard said. "Depending on how quickly the other guys develop, we certainly don't have anyone else with that experience or who has shown leadership at that position."

Elway and former Broncos coach Dan Reeves are featured on the cover of this week's Sports Illustrated, with a tear down the middle, representing their recent exchange of bars.

Elway said he would have retired or demanded a trade if Reeves had been retained as coach. Reeves, now coach of the New York Giants, responded that Elway needed to grow up.

"I'm mad about that," new Broncos coach Wade Phillips joked Wednesday. "I was supposed to be on the cover with John Elway. The only explanation I can think of is they're holding me for the swimsuit issue."

Packers
Wayne Simmons, Green Bay's top draft pick, was scheduled to undergo arthroscopic surgery to repair torn cartilage on his right knee today. He is expected to miss four to six weeks, coach Mike Holmgren said.

Giants
David Meggett, the New York Giants all-purpose running back and return man, signed a two-year contract believed to be for $2.7 million.

Oilers
Houston agreed to terms Wednesday night with first-round pick Brad Hopkins, and he was expected to report to training camp today. No figures were released, but the contract reportedly is for four years.

Vikings
Roy Barker, a second-year defensive end from North Carolina, appears headed toward winning a starting spot with Minnesota. Fellow second-year player Robert Harris had been battling Barker for the job, but Harris injured his heel on Monday and will likely miss two weeks.

Colts
Indianapolis coach Ted Marchibroda says he has a feeling of helplessness as he waits for a break in the stalemate between the team and Jeff George. The quarterback has kept silent about his absence, which is costing him $4,000 a day in fines.

Redskins
Center Matt Elliott injured a knee in Washington's intrasquad scrimmage Wednesday night and could be sidelined most of the season.

Bills
Bill Brooks appears the choice to take the starting wide receiver slot that opened when Buffalo released James Lofton. Brooks was lured away from Indianapolis in the off-season with a three-year, $3.5-million contract.

Bengals
Cincinnati Bengals quarterback David Klingler isn't worried that polished backup Jay Schroeder is going to take his job.

"If anything, having Jay there takes off the pressure," said Klingler, who has played in four NFL games.

Raiders-Cowboys
Los Angeles and Dallas ended three days of joint practices.

"Jimmy Johnson said to me, 'Let's hope we meet again in January,'" Raiders coach Art Shell said.

Cardinals-Broncos
Phoenix and Denver held two spirited, but fight-free, workouts that left both coaches raving.

"It was a great first day," Phoenix coach Joe Bugel said. "Nobody was carried off the field, and there were no fights."

"I was really pleased with the way both teams worked against each other," Broncos coach Wade Phillips said. "There weren't all those cheap shots or people griping about this or that."

Griffey socks homer in 8th straight game

By CHRIS SHERIDAN

AP Sports Writer
Ken Griffey Jr. knows how to tie a record with pizzazz. A run-of-the-mill homer would have sufficed Wednesday night as Griffey took aim at the major league record of hitting home runs in eight consecutive games. Instead, Griffey came up with something special in the seventh inning against Minnesota. The 23-year-old Seattle star blasted a high-arching 404-foot home run off the facing of the third deck in right field at the Kingdome to tie the mark set by Dale Long of the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1956 and equaled by Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees in 1987. "Was that pitch over his head or what?" Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "He didn't hit it short, either. He tomahawked it. He hit it long. I'm glad there was nobody on base."

The homer was the only run Seattle scored in a 5-1 defeat. What did the young superstar have to say about his feat? Nothing. Griffey, described as a "shy kid" by teammate Mike Felder, said he would talk to the press when the streak ends.

Luckily, the Kid's numbers speak for themselves. The record-tying home run was his 30th of the season, good for the major league lead.

Griffey can break the record against Minnesota's Scott Erickson tonight.

Unfortunately for Seattle, Griffey's personal achievements weren't enough to offset the five-hit pitching of Willie Banks and Larry Casian. Banks (7-7) allowed only three hits in seven innings, walking two and striking out five.

Seattle starter Randy Johnson (10-7), who has not won since June 30, notched his 1,000th career strikeout but suffered his third defeat in a row.

The Twins scored two unearned runs in the fourth, and Dave Winfield made it 3-0 in the sixth with his 17th homer of the season and his third in as many games.

Jeff Reboulet made it 4-0 with an RBI double in the seventh, and Kirby Puckett drove in a run in the ninth with an RBI double. It was the 330th double of Puckett's career, breaking Tony Oliva's club record.

Elsewhere in the AL, Toronto edged Baltimore 5-4 in 10 innings, New York outslugged Detroit 12-7, Chicago beat Cleveland 9-4, Texas thumped Kansas City 10-3, Boston defeated Milwaukee 8-4 and California downed Oakland 3-2.

Rangers 10, Royals 3

At Kaufman Stadium, Rafael Palmeiro hit two home runs - giving him three in two nights - and Ivan Rodriguez went 4-for-4 to give him eight consecutive hits.

Roger Pavlik (6-5) won for the first time in three starts, striking out a career-high eight. Hipolito Pichardo (5-7) took the loss.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 4

At SkyDome, the Blue Jays beat the Orioles in their final at-bat for the second time in a row and the 13th time since 1989. This time, Toronto was the beneficiary of an error from an unlikely source - two-time Gold Glove shortstop Cal Ripken. With the bases loaded and one out in the 10th, Tony Fernandez hit a grounder that Ripken bobbled. The miscue allowed Paul Molitor enough time to cross home plate with the winning run.

Tony Castillo (2-0) pitched the 10th for the victory, and Mark Williamson (5-2) took the loss.

Yankees 12, Tigers 7

At Tiger Stadium, the wind was blowing out and the baseballs were going in the same direction.

Pat Kelly, Don Mattingly and Paul O'Neill homered for New York, which had 18 hits. Travis Fryman hit for the cycle for Detroit.

Bob Wickman (9-3) got the win in relief of Australian Mark Hutton, who gave up five runs and seven hits over 3 2/3 innings in his second start. John Doherty (9-6) was tagged for eight runs and nine hits in 2 1/3 innings.

White Sox 9, Indians 4

At Comiskey Park, Robin Ventura hit a first-inning grand slam and Bo Jackson added a three-run shot off rookie Albie Lopez (2-1), allowing the White Sox to coast to their 14th victory in 19 games.

Rookie Jason Bere (5-3) gave up six hits, struck out six and walked two in seven innings for the win.

Red Sox 8, Brewers 4

At County Stadium, Scott Cooper and John Flaherty each drove in two runs in a sixth-inning rally that snapped Boston's two-game losing streak.

Harris (6-3) allowed just one hit, striking out five and walking one, in 3 2/3 innings of relief. Angel Miranda (0-2) was the loser.

Angels 3, Athletics 2

At Anaheim Stadium, Mark Langston (10-5) beat Oakland for the first time in six years, allowing six hits in seven innings.

Chili Davis doubled in two runs and Ron Tingley doubled in another. Todd Van Poppel (0-3) took the loss in his fifth major-league start.

After 27 losses, Young gets credit for Met victory

By The Associated Press

For Anthony Young and the New York Mets, their victory over Florida was just like winning the seventh game of the World Series.

Young's major league record 27-game losing streak came to an end Wednesday night when the Mets rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to beat the Marlins 5-4 at Shea Stadium.

The Mets and Young charged out of the dugout after Eddie Murray's game-winning hit, not knowing whom to congratulate first.

"That wasn't even a big monkey that was on my back," Young said. "It was a zoo. The guys treated it like I had won a World Series game for them."

Young's previous win was April 19, 1992, a span of 74 appearances. It looked like he would make it 28 losses in a row after the Marlins scored a run in the top of the ninth to take the lead.

But Ryan Thompson singled in the tying run for the Mets and Murray doubled in the game-winner off Bryan Harvey (1-3).

"He always had a professional manner, give him credit the way he's come out of the bullpen and I haven't exactly been giving him easy situations," manager Dallas Green said.

"I went to Ryan first, congratulating him on his speed and then I tried to get to Murray next for getting the hit, but Dallas intercepted and got to me before that," Young said.

Young (1-13) was mobbed by teammates and coaches and the crowd went wild when his nightmare finally ended.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Los Angeles 2, San Francisco 1; Atlanta 3, Colorado 2; Philadelphia 14, St. Louis 6; Chicago 8; San Diego 6; Pittsburgh 3, Montreal 2; and Houston 4, Cincinnati 2.

Dodgers 2, Giants 1

Tom Candiotti pitched five-hit ball for 8 1/3 innings and visiting Los Angeles continued its mastery over San Francisco. By taking two of the series' three games, LA improved its season record against the first-place Giants to 6-3.

Candiotti (6-5) walked four and struck out four before Jim Gott got the final two outs for his 18th save.

Bud Black (8-2) was the losing pitcher.

Braves 3, Rockies 2

Ron Gant's 24th homer snapped an eighth-inning tie against Steve Reed (5-4) as Atlanta beat Colorado at Mile High Stadium, the Braves' 10th win in as many games against the Rockies this season.

The victory, Atlanta's eighth in nine games and sixth straight overall, moved the Braves within seven games of San Francisco in the NL West.

Mark Wohlers (5-0) pitched two innings for the victory and Greg McMichael got the final three outs for his first major league save.

Phillies 14, Cardinals 6

Darren Daulton drove in six runs, including a grand slam, and Dave Hollins' two-run triple in the seventh inning put Philadelphia ahead as the Phillies rallied past St. Louis at Veterans Stadium.

The victory moved the Phillies six games ahead of the Cardinals in the NL East.

Astros 4, Reds 2

Craig Biggio and Luis Gonzalez drove in two runs each and Mark Portugal won his third straight game as Houston defeated Cincinnati at the Astrodome.

Portugal (9-4) allowed 12 hits, struck out seven and did not walk a batter before leaving with two outs in the seventh. Xavier Hernandez pitched the final 2 1/3 innings for his fifth save.

Cubs 8, Padres 6

Kevin Roberson's three-run homer highlighted a five-run sixth inning as Chicago defeated San Diego at Wrigley Field.

Pirates 3, Expos 2

Al Martin beat out an infield single off Jeff Shaw (1-7) with two outs and the bases loaded in the ninth inning to lift Pittsburgh over Montreal at Three Rivers Stadium.

It was the Pirates' 13th victory in their last at-bat and just their fourth win in 14 games since the All-Star break. Mark Petkovsek (2-0) was the winner.

Up-and-coming Lett known just for Super Bowl gaffe

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Leon Lett frets because people just won't let it go.

They want to remember him for his Super Bowl goof, not the fact that he is becoming one of the best young linemen in the NFL and very well may be the Dallas Cowboys' next Bob Lilly.

There was Leon, running free and easy in the Rose Bowl breeze on his way to a touchdown to cap a Super Bowl rout of the Buffalo Bills.

The capacity crowd was in full throat and 10 Bills watched. The 11th, wide receiver Don Beebe, gave chase.

"I'll never forget that play," Lett said. "I was running so free and easy. Nobody was near me."

"I can still hear the crowd. Running backs say they don't hear the crowd but I did. Then I decided to give them a show. I just kind of held the ball out to show them. Then that guy (Beebe) came along and knocked it away." The cheers turned to a gasp.

Lett was credited for a 64-yard fumble return, longest in Super Bowl history. But he didn't score because the bouncing ball tumbled through the end zone for a touchback.

"If I ever get the ball again like that, I've learned a lesson," Lett

Cowboys sued over new seats

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys expanded Texas Stadium during the off-season so they can cram in more of the world champions' fans. In the process, they may have alienated some of their previous supporters.

Six Dallas Cowboys season-ticket holders plan to ask a state district judge to block the team from selling seats in a newly built row in the upper deck that puts the plaintiffs in the second row.

It will be called Row A and will be in front of Row 1.

Chaussee and five other longtime Row 1 option owners filed the suit earlier this month. They'll go before District Court Judge Frank Andrews on Aug. 20 to ask the team to stop selling Row 1 tickets and let Row A fans have them.

"I'm aware of the lawsuit, but because it is in litigation, I can't comment on it," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said Wednesday.

said. "You don't celebrate until you score."

Lett added, "I want to put all that behind me now. It's all anyone wants to talk about. I don't want to talk about it anymore."

Lett, a 6-foot-6, 292-pound tackle from tiny Emporia State who was a seventh-round draft pick in 1991, has an "all-Pro" tag all over him.

He has dominated the Cowboys camp scrimmages since Tony Casillas went out with an injury. In a recent scrimmage, he batted down three passes by quarterback Hugh Millen at the line of scrimmage.

"I'm learning and I have some good teachers," Lett said. "Charles Haley and Jim Jeffcoat have been working with me."

Coach Jimmy Johnson said, "Leon has been one of the best players in camp. He's gifted and athletic. He'll be an outstanding player in this league."

The Cowboys lucked out on Lett, who can dunk a basketball and thought he might try for an NBA career if he didn't make it in football.

"I might have been another

Charles Barkley," said Lett, smiling. "I can handle the ball. And I can dunk it. Don't have a bad jumper, either."

Lett averaged 20 points per game and almost as many rebounds on the team's basketball team managed by Michael Irvin. Lett played basketball at Emporia State.

"The Kansas City Chiefs and the Buffalo Bills looked at me," Lett said. "I thought Kansas City would draft me. I was just 90 minutes down the highway. But the Cowboys found me. I was kind of surprised they were the ones who drafted me."

The Cowboys seventh-round pick has been a find with unusual speed for a big man.

In May, Lett had a setback when he had surgery to repair a fractured right ankle.

"I feel like I'm just getting back into the groove," Lett said.

In a recent practice, Lett batted up a pass and Jimmie Jones scored with it.

"I saw how he kept running until he scored," Lett said. "That's the way I'm going to do it the next time."

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Hello, my name is Boots. I'm a cat. I'm 2 years old and have a very long tail that I used to swish back and forth in a flamboyant and elegant manner.

I was very healthy and had a lot of energy. I prided myself on my deep, loud purr. Then I got a disease called feline leukemia. Now I am very sick, and it's an effort just to breathe. My owner could have vaccinated me against this disease, but he didn't.

I don't know about vaccinations, but now my owner's heart is heavy with grief because I'm so ill. My doctor says if my medicine doesn't help me in 10 days, I will die. I want to live because I have a good life and this house is full of love.

No matter what happens to me, I would like to ask cat owners to please vaccinate their cats for feline leukemia. It doesn't cost much, and it will save a lot of grief.

Ann, I know you don't hear from cats very often, but I would be so grateful if you would let me use your column to help my furry friends.--Boots

DEAR BOOTS: I loved your paw-print signature.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Feline leukemia is a highly contagious disease among cats. I am ashamed to admit it, but I was too cheap to spend $25 to vaccinate my precious little Boots. Now he has it and all I can do is give him antibiotics and vitamins.

Boots used to purr louder than any other cat I've owned. Now he doesn't have the energy to make a sound. As I watch him waste away, my heart is breaking. He may not be alive by the time you get this letter.

Please, Ann, let Boots' life count for something. Inform your readers of this disease called feline leukemia--it can be prevented with the vaccination.--Little Rock, Ark.

DEAR READERS WHO HAVE CATS: I hope these letters struck a responsive chord. Even though I don't have a cat, I nearly wept. Please pay

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 38-year-old divorced mother of two. I divorced my abusive husband when I was pregnant with my daughter.

Two years ago, I fell in love with "Jerry." The problem is that he has been living with another woman for 16 years. "Jerry" says he cares a lot for this woman and feels responsible for her, but that he isn't in love with her.

This woman has been sickly for the past year, and Jerry swears he has had no intimate relations with her. I don't know if he's telling me the truth. He has made no attempt to change the situation, and whenever I bring up the subject, he says I'm just pushing him away.

Ann, we both work at very demanding jobs and hardly get to see each other as it is. I can't understand why, if he loves me, he isn't with me. I love Jerry and don't want to give up on having a life with him. I've tried dating other guys, but no one sparks my interest.

Am I wrong to go on hoping? Is there something more that I could do to make him realize what he's throwing away?--Almost Giving Up in Kentucky

DEAR KENTUCKY: You are bucking a 16-year relationship. The odds are stacked against you. My advice is tell Jerry goodbye. If he really loves you, he'll come around--but don't hold your breath, honey.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems," is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Control anger before it can control you

Anger is a normal, usually healthy human emotion. Out-of-control anger, however, can lead to problems at work, in relationships and with the quality of your life.

The healthiest way to express anger is as an assertive, not an aggressive person. You have to learn how to make clear what your needs are and how to get them met, without hurting others.

People who find they can't control their anger and that it's having a bad effect on their lives may want to get counseling from a psychologist or other licensed mental health professional.

WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL, NEWSPAPER SELLS IT BEST.

No matter what it is you're selling, newspaper can sell it best. You can show it. Describe it. Explain it. Compare it. Offer a coupon for it. And cover your entire marketplace with it. All in one day. And for a lot less than radio and TV.

And the unique thing about newspaper is that it adds credibility to your message. People believe it when they read it in the paper. Maybe that's why retailers use newspaper more than any other medium?

Newspaper. It delivers.

Judge rules on Abdul suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A federal judge threw out part of a lawsuit filed by a woman who claims she sang lead vocals on four of Paula Abdul's hits.

U.S. District Judge A. Wallace Tashima said Monday that Yvette Marine shouldn't receive any more money for her work on the album "Forever Your Girl" but that she can sue for public recognition. A jury is hearing the case.

Marine was credited only with singing backup vocals on the album. She claims her voice was blended with Abdul's to enhance the pop star's singing.

Abdul has insisted she did all lead vocals on the album.

"Forever Your Girl" was released in 1988 and sold 7 million copies.

The Wizard of Id

By Brant Parker and Johnny Hart

Barney Google and Snuffy Smith

WHAT TO DO IF YOU THINK YOUR CHILD IS ON DRUGS.

Take a deep breath.

You're not a failure as a parent. You're not helpless. And you're not alone.

If you think you're a failure, consider this: There are many kids with neglectful parents who never use drugs. There are also children with seemingly model parents who do use drugs.

So the first thing to accept is that drugs, while indeed dangerous, are one more problem for youngsters to handle. And they'll do it better and faster if you're aware, involved, and don't stick your head in the sand.

THE AWARE PARENT IS THE GOOD PARENT.

Part of awareness and a major deterrent to experimentation is to talk to your kids about drugs.

But even with a lot of parental involvement, there are no guarantees. So it's important to know the symptoms of drug use and to take action if you see your youngster displaying them.

THE WARNING SIGNALS.

There are no symptoms that are absolutely reliable. But there are clues (see box).

Most of these symptoms tend to be gradual which is why parental awareness is so important.

But don't jump to conclusions.

Many of the warning signs for drug use are the same as those for depression or for the ups and downs of being a teenager. There's also the possibility it's a physical or emotional problem.

But whatever the problem, we're talking about a child who needs help. Right now.

The Telltale Signs

Chronic eye redness, sore throat or dry cough.

Chronic lying, especially about whereabouts.

Wholesale changes in friends.

Stealing.

Deteriorating relationships with family members.

Wild mood swings, hostility, or abusive behavior.

Chronic fatigue, withdrawal, carelessness about personal grooming.

Major changes in eating or sleeping patterns.

Loss of interest in favorite activities, hobbies, sports.

School problems - slipping grades, absenteeism.

First, you'll need an evaluation from a health professional skilled in diagnosing adolescents with alcohol or drug problems.

You may want to get involved with an intervention program to learn techniques that will help convince a drug user to accept help.

For the user, there are self-help, outpatient, day care, residency, and 24-hour hospitalization programs.

24-hour hospitalization programs.

The right program depends entirely on the circumstances and the degree of drug involvement. Here, you'll need professional help to make an informed choice.

Another point: If a program is to succeed, the family needs to be part of it. This can mean personal or family counseling. It may also involve participating in a support group where you learn about co-dependency and how not to play into the problems that might prompt further drug use.

If you don't know about drug programs in your area, call your family doctor, local hospital or county mental health society or school counselor for a referral. You can also call the national helpline - 800-662-HELP - for advice and a referral.

WHATEVER YOU DO, DON'T GIVE UP.

That child who upsets you so much is the same little boy or girl who, only yesterday, gave you such joy. They're in way over their heads, and they never needed you quite as much as they need you now.

No matter what they say.

For more information on how to talk with your kids about drugs, ask for a free copy of "A Parent's Guide to Prevention." Call 1-800-624-0100.

START WITHIN THE FAMILY.

Nothing beats the power of love and family support. That has to start with a frank discussion.

Don't make it an attack. And don't try to talk with your child if he or she seems under the influence.

Wait for a calm moment and then explain that you're worried about certain behavior (be specific) and give your child every opportunity to explain. That means really listening, not doing all the talking.

At the same time, it's important to speak frankly about the possibility of drugs. And it's particularly important to talk about your values and why you're dead set against drugs.

If your youngster seems evasive or if his or her explanations are not convincing, you may want to consult your doctor to rule out illness and to ask for advice.

You may also want to have your child visit a mental health professional to see if there are emotional problems.

FURTHER ACTION MAY BE NECESSARY

If your child seems non-responsive or belligerent, and you suspect drugs are involved, immediate action is vital.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: A man wrote you about being plagued with osteoarthritis. My husband has the same problem in his legs, not being able to get up from a chair—the pain is very bad. He uses a cane and walks very slowly because he is afraid of falling. He is a heavy man and is not able to do much exercise because he suffers from asthma. What is the difference between osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis? How do you know which you have? Would water therapy help, such as a swimming pool or Jacuzzi? What can I do to help him?

DEAR READER: Osteoarthritis, also called degenerative arthritis, results in degeneration of the cartilage cap over the ends of bones or at joints. Typically, this can involve the hip bone or the knee joint. It also involves the cartilage surfaces at the joints of vertebrae. It is often called degenerative arthritis. It is limited to joint problems.

Rheumatoid arthritis is really misnamed, because it is an inflammatory disease and may involve most of the body, including the lungs, which makes me wonder about your husband's asthma. It is likely to present with red and swollen joints. Morning stiffness and difficulty in getting up the first two hours in the morning in particular, are more typical of rheumatoid arthritis. However, you can't make a diagnosis on that history alone. It requires an examination and evaluation of X-rays to make the correct differentiation. Treatment of rheumatoid arthritis is often more difficult. Mild osteoarthritis is apt to respond to common analgesics.

I have discussed osteoarthritis in Special Report 80, Help for Osteoarthritis, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/80, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537.

I would need to know a lot more about your husband before making specific recommendations, but in general, hydrotherapy or swimming in warm water is a good way for people who have arthritis to exercise. Cold water might cause him to have an asthma attack. One of the most often neglected aspects of managing arthritis is physical therapy. Stretching contracted muscles properly often works wonders in relieving arthritic pain which is caused by muscle spasm. A good program helps to maintain flexibility and strength. Most arthritis clinics have a rehabilitation program that includes physiotherapy to help patients.

DEAR DR. LAMB: When I was 12, I tested positive for tuberculosis, and over a span of one year I took pills, and X-ray treatment to my chest. I am now 36 and for the first time am considering having a baby. I am concerned about whether the X-rays could have caused any damage to the cells that produce eggs in the ovaries and might result in birth defects. That, combined with my age, is making me think twice about whether I should have a child. Should I be concerned?

DEAR READER: Probably not. I doubt very much that you received X-ray treatment for tuberculosis. That is not done. Rather you may have had many X-rays to evaluate the course of your lung disease. X-rays used for that purpose would not likely have caused changes in the cells that develop into ova.

And 36 is no longer considered old to get pregnant. True, there are a few more problems as women get older, but many women have had healthy babies when they were much older than you are. You could have genetic testing early in pregnancy if you wish.

Dr. Lamb welcomes letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

DEAR DR. LAMB: My 23-year-old daughter has been diagnosed with ulcerative colitis. She takes folic acid and Azulfidine. The medication gives her very little relief. She is always in pain, has a lot of bloating and bleeds a lot. The blood is mixed with mucus. Could she have colon trouble besides the ulcerative colitis?

Isn't there some kind of diet she should be on? Could it be allergies in the intestines? The doctor just put her on medication and didn't mention diet. He did tell her she would eventually face cancer. She is just beginning her life. Should that be hanging over her from now on?

DEAR READER: No one knows for certain what causes ulcerative colitis. It is an inflammatory disease, but no bacterial agent has ever been identified with it. It may occur as a relatively mild disease with a person having only frequent bowel movements. Many people with this mild form of the disease may never be diagnosed. As it becomes more severe, its characteristics are diarrhea and stools with bloody mucus. It can even become a fulminating disorder with hemorrhage and require an emergency removal of the colon.

Azulfidine is an anti-inflammatory agent and is very useful. In severe cases or acute exacerbations corticosteroids are very important and may induce a remission.

I have discussed the diet in ulcerative colitis in more detail in Special Report 122, Is it Ulcerative Colitis or Crohn's Disease?, which I'm sending you. Others who want this report can send $3 with a stamped (52 cents), self-addressed, No. 10 envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/122, P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Diet is an important part of management.

Patients with ulcerative colitis often have lactose intolerance. Milk and any products containing milk make the condition much worse in these individuals. Milk can be treated with Lactaid or other preparations that digest lactose to help prevent this.

Some nutritionists do believe that a food intolerance is a factor in causing the diarrhea. They report eliminating milk, wheat, eggs and tomatoes may help induce a remission. A low-residue diet is important. Beyond these measures is the need to maintain adequate nutrition in the face of diarrhea.

Yes, there is an increased risk of colon cancer which is discussed in the report I'm sending you.

DEAR DR. LAMB: You frequently recommend non-fat milk to people who don't get enough calcium. You say it is fortified with non-fat milk solids. That is no longer true and you should correct your advice.

I bought a gallon of non-fat milk and it tasted thin. I looked at the label and it did not list added milk solids. I know you mean well, but millions of people read your columns, so it is important that you investigate and inform people so they can supplement this milk with calcium.

DEAR READER: You should have read the label before you bought the milk. There is plain non-fat skim milk available, but you can buy any number of brands of 2 percent, 1 percent or skim milk with 2 percent non-fat milk solids added. I regularly use Borden's Lite-Line skim milk, fortified with non-fat milk solids. As soon as I finish this reply, I am going to have a glass of it.

If your store really doesn't stock any of these milks with non-fat solids added, you can surely find it elsewhere. I appreciate your concern, but the problem is not having looked for the right product. It is available.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have read your letters from readers with health questions. You can write to him at P.O. Box 5537, Riverton, NJ 08077-5537. Although Dr. Lamb cannot reply to all letters personally, he will respond to selected questions in future columns.

Facts about Gaucher Disease

Severe bone pain, spleen and liver problems and chronic fatigue these are just some of the symptoms of Gaucher disease, a serious genetic disorder affecting an estimated 20,000 Americans.

Gaucher disease is an inherited genetic disorder caused by the deficiency of a key enzyme, glucocerebrosidase. This deficiency causes a fatty substance to collect in scavenger cells in certain tissues in the body, such as the spleen, liver and bone marrow.

Although the disease most often becomes apparent in childhood or early adulthood, some people do not have symptoms until later in life. A simple blood test can determine if you have Gaucher disease; enzyme replacement therapy relieves many of the symptoms, reverses the disease process and dramatically improves patient quality of life.

The National Gaucher Foundation, a non-profit organization dedicated to the development of treatments and ultimately a cure for Gaucher disease, has information about the disease and the medical treatment centers that offer the enzyme replacement therapy for those patients who need it. The Foundation encourages people to call 1-800-GAUCHER if they have any of the symptoms of Gaucher disease or wish further information.

"Now that treatment is available, it is more important than ever to identify and accurately diagnose individuals with Gaucher disease and provide them with information," says Karen Cohen, executive director of the National Gaucher Foundation.

The Newspaper BIBLE LOOK WHO'S COMING

Now Paul and those with him left Paphos by ship for Turkey, landing at the port town of Perga. There John deserted them and returned to Jerusalem. But Barnabas and Paul went on to Antioch, a city in the province of Pisidia. On the Sabbath they went into the synagogue for the services. After the usual readings from the Books of Moses and from the Prophets, those in charge of the service sent them this message: "Brothers, if you have any word of instruction for us come and give it!"

So Paul stood, waved a greeting to them and began. "Men of Israel," he said, "and all others here who reverence God, [let me begin my remarks with a bit of history]. The God of this nation Israel chose our ancestors and honored them in Egypt by gloriously leading them out of their slavery. And He nursed them through 40 years of wandering around in the wilderness. Then He destroyed seven nations in Canaan, and gave Israel their land as an inheritance. Judges ruled for about 450 years, and were followed by Samuel the prophet.

"Then the people begged for a king, and God gave them Saul (son of Kish), a man of the tribe of Benjamin, who reigned for 40 years. But God removed him and replaced him with David as king, a man about whom God said, 'David (son of Jesse) is a man after My own heart, for he will obey Me.'"

"And it is one of King David's descendants, Jesus, who is God's promised Savior of Israel! But before He came, John the Baptist preached the need for everyone in Israel to turn from sin to God. As John was finishing his work he asked, 'Do you think I am the Messiah? No! But He is coming soon -- and in comparison with Him, I am utterly worthless.'"
