Conferees settle on 4.3 cent gas tax hike

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional Democratic leaders who have tentatively pared the gasoline-tax increase to 4.3 cents a gallon are trying to put the finishing touches on President Clinton's deficit-reduction bill. "I think we're going to make it," a top Clinton administration official predicted today.

Administration officials and House-Senate bargainers concluded Thursday that a boost of about 6 cents a gallon, which they had considered, could cost the votes of enough senators to bring the entire measure crashing down, said aides who spoke on condition of anonymity.

As a result, the total deficit reduction claimed in the compromise bill is expected to fall a bit below the $500 billion, five-year total Clinton and his Democratic allies have so often touted. But Democrats were expected to leave the figure above the $482 billion credited to the bipartisan 1990 budget agreement, the biggest such package in history.

"I think we're going to make it," Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen predicted today. "I think the forces are coming together, I believe we're going to be successful," Bentsen said on ABC.

"The probability is that the Senate gasoline tax will be where we end up, but not necessarily," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., told reporters, referring to the 4.3-cent boost the Senate initially approved last month.

Today's completion of the final bill would set the stage for a final congressional showdown over Clinton's legislative centerpiece for the year. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, predicted that Congress would ship the final product to Clinton next week over solid Republican opposition.

But Democratic strategists, speaking on condition of anonymity, conceded that with conservative Democrats seeking deep spending cuts and liberals pushing for more generous treatment of social programs, the bill's fate would not be clear for days.

"We're feeling much more confident we have the votes in both the Senate and the House...." White House Budget Director Leon Panetta said today. "I think we can make it work and I think we can pass it next week," he said on CBS.

Ross Perot, however, said Congress should not be too quick to act. "What's the hurry?" the Texas billionaire asked today.

Perot, appearing on NBC, said Congress and Clinton should take a few weeks and work out a bipartisan effort to reach a balanced budget. Perot said the best plan that "Clinton has been able to force through the House and Senate never balances the budget" and "This is bad for the country ... and it's bad politics."

The measure's final shape will be determined by leaders' judgments of what it will take to muscle the measure through Congress. Its initial versions squeaked through the House by six votes and in the Senate by Vice President Al Gore's tie-breaking tally leaving leaders little room for miscalculation.

Chief among the potential Senate Democratic defectors were Herb Kohl of Wisconsin and Montana's Max Baucus. Kohl said a higher gas levy would hit the middle class; Baucus wanted to protect Western motorists who often drive long distances.

The main burden of the package falls on wealthy and business taxpayers, on the U.S. defense budget and on Medicare, the health insurance program for the elderly and disabled.

A gasoline tax increase of 4.3 cents, the only item in the bill that would hit virtually all middle-class families, would cost the typical driver less than $50 a year, according to the Clinton administration and the conservative Heritage Foundation.

House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., and many liberals had preferred raising the 14 1-cent federal gasoline levy by 6 cents or 7 cents.

Now those initiatives are all but certain to fall well below the figures Clinton originally proposed, raising questions about whether liberals - especially in the House - might threaten to abandon the package.

"Hopefully, this will have no bearing on the things they care about," said one top Democratic House aide.

But earlier in the day, Rep. Kweisi Mfume, D-Md., chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, said that "99 percent of my members are holding fire on this" until they see what's in the final bill.

Most rich districts opt to give to state or contract with poor school districts

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - About two-thirds of the school districts that must share some wealth under a new law prefer to send funds to the state or contract to educate other districts' students, a new survey says.

Of the 99 property-rich school districts, 45 have decided to seek voter approval for sending a check to the state, according to the Texas Association of School Boards' poll released Thursday.

Another seven want their voters' OK to educate other districts' students, while 13 more are putting both options on the ballot.

That's a total of 65 of the districts. Just one school district - of 95 responding to the survey - reported a different choice: Tuloso-Midway Independent School District is moving some of its taxable property to Corpus Christi ISD's tax base, according to the school board association.

Twenty-nine districts haven't yet decided, the survey found, and four didn't respond.

Other wealth-sharing options allowed under the new law are merging tax bases with one or more poorer districts, which would require an election; or consolidating voluntarily, which would not. No school districts have reported choosing those options.

School districts could accept a plan that doesn't require an election if their first choice doesn't get voter approval.

The new law is meant to address a Texas Supreme Court order to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth. Schools rely on state aid, local taxes and some federal money.

ALSO, ON SATURDAY-- continuation of Jubilee of Arts, softball tourney, class reunions.

The measure is meant to ensure that none of Texas' 1,000-plus school districts has more than $280,000 in property wealth per student.

If the richest school districts don't choose an option, the state education commissioner will transfer some commercial property for them. If that still doesn't get districts below $280,000 in per-student wealth, they will be forced to consolidate.

The two most popular options are also the ones that could be most easily abandoned, which may be an important point for school officials who have seen several finance plans tossed out by state courts.

The current plan is under court challenge by property-rich and poor districts.

"It's easier to undo, and it's easier to stay as wealthy as you can" by choosing one of those options, said association spokeswoman Margaret LaMontagne. For example, it may be harder to find a piece of property to transfer that will bring a district's wealth down to right around $280,000.

Some have warned that the elections may not stand a very good chance, considering that voters in May overwhelmingly turned down a share-the-wealth school funding proposal.

But two small districts already have won voter approval to send money to the state. The proposal passed 385-8 in Canadian ISD, and 128-10 in Miami ISD.

The new law could yield some unusual pairings. For example, Dallas County's Highland Park district wants to spend $30.7 million to educate students in Humble ISD - 250 miles away in the Houston area.

Under a contract prepared for Texas Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno's review, Highland Park would send the money to Humble for 1993-94. Humble would then give $25.6 million to the state, and keep $5.1 million. The Houston Post reported Thursday.

Highland Park school board member Mike Boone said the one-year contract is a better option for his district than paying money directly to the state, which he said would cost $32 million.

The district saves $1.5 million by instead educating some students in Humble, he said.

Highland Park voters are scheduled to consider allowing the contractual relationship Aug. 28. The deal does not need Humble voters' approval.

Floods leave one bridge open from KC to St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - The flood of 1993 has virtually split the state of Missouri in two.

Surges on the swollen Missouri River, which cuts straight across the state's midsection, knocked out or closed all but one bridge for the more than 200 miles between Kansas City and St. Louis.

And the rising waters continued to spill into small rural towns. In some swamped communities, it was the third round of flooding in the last two months.

"The flooding will just continue," said Army Corps of Engineers spokesman George Hanley. "It's going to be worse. But what's worse? If you're already wet, what's another foot?"

The only bridge still open across the Missouri was the Interstate 70 crossing near Rocheport, a small town smack in the middle of the state. But even its westbound lanes were shut temporarily Thursday, backing up traffic for miles.

The closings have made for traveling nightmares. Commutes into this capital city, which lost the use of its twin bridge Thursday, grew from only a few miles to hundreds of miles because of detours.

On Thursday night, power to the Statehouse was shut off temporarily while workers moved electrical equipment 2 feet higher to keep it away from rising waters expected from this weekend's record river crest.

"The state Capitol building is kind of a symbol of the state and we can't let it be knocked out of power and admit defeat to the flood," Union Electric Co. spokesman Mike Cleary said.

In Hermann, a town of 2,700 known for its wineries and German heritage, residents braced for the crest expected on Sunday, evacuating about 100 people from 35 homes. Much of the town already is underwater from previous crests.

In nearby New Franklin, there was a close call for four people whose boat capsized Wednesday night. The four, who were videotaping flood-damaged property, had to cling to trees until morning, when they were rescued.

"We just went to turn around, and we're not sure what exact caused the boat to tip over, it happened so quick," Susan Spoor said. "I grabbed onto a tree and stayed on the tree until about 3 o'clock."

In St. Louis, where the crest is expected to arrive on Tuesday, workers poured concrete into the city's main floodwall to fortify it.

The flooding in nine Midwestern states has killed 43 people and caused more than $10 billion in damage, though hot, dry weather in the past few days is easing problems almost everywhere but Missouri.

President Clinton appeared via satellite Thursday night on a one-hour "Flood Aid" telethon carried by 275 TV stations to raise money for the Red Cross.

Referring to the $3 billion aid package approved by the House, he told viewers, "I hope that you, too, will contribute whatever you can afford to help these wonderful Americans put their lives together."

Earlier in Washington, Clinton kept a promise made this week to governors and asked the Senate to increase the flood aid to $4.3 billion.

In response to a question from a woman in Des Moines, Iowa, Clinton said checks would arrive in a couple of weeks.

"I can't control the weather," the president said, "but we're going to work hard to help you."

Coming in Sunday's Brand

Imagine if you will, Hereford. The town has beautiful trees, lush green grass and flourishing floral life. The town boasts a church built in the 1100s, as well as a house that was built about the time the Pilgrims came to America. The entire town, in fact, is steeped in many centuries of history. Well that isn't just a dream -- it's Hereford, England. Brand staff writer Georgia Tyler recently returned from a trip to England, which included a visit to Hustlin' Hereford's namesake. State rep's letter called 'shakedown'

Kubiak says he was trying to help credit union

AUSTIN (AP) - Government watchdog groups say it was inappropriate, but a Texas House member says he was trying to help his constituents by asking credit unions across the state to donate $100 each to a tiny credit union in his home county.

Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, chairs the House Appropriations subcommittee that oversees credit unions in Texas.

Earlier this month, he underscored that fact in a letter asking credit unions to contribute $100 each to build up the capital reserve fund of the 300-member Milam County Credit Union, which is owned primarily by blacks and Hispanics.

Texas has more than 800 credit unions.

"I believe very strongly in credit unions and chair the committee on Appropriations that oversees the credit unions in Texas," he wrote in the July 7 letter obtained by the Austin American-Statesman.

"Here in Rockdale, I organized the Milam County Credit Union, which is now approaching 300 members and is a minority-controlled credit union for all of Milam County.

"The credit union is doing great except for one area," Kubiak continued. "It is difficult to build up 'capital reserve' with small loans and I am asking your group to contribute at least $100 to the Milam County Credit Union capital reserve account. If each of you will do this, you will make this a very viable credit union for people who cannot operate through a bank."

Tom Smith, director of the Texas office of the watchdog group Public Citizen, called the letter inappropriate.

"Chairmen of legislative committees exert tremendous influence over those institutions they regulate," he said. "And it is improper to use that influence to build an institution of which that chairman is a member. Imagine the intimidation if you were a credit union manager and opened up a letter from the chairman of the committee that controls the laws governing your operations."

Suzi Woodford, executive director for Common Cause of Texas, said, "I think this is probably something that Dan would have been better advised not to do."

Karen Hughes, a spokeswoman for the Texas Republican Party, called the letter "awful" and said Kubiak "is clearly abusing the power of his office."

"It's a major ethical violation that does not pass any standard of ethics in conduct that you would expect from a public official," Ms. Hughes said.

"For him to remind these credit unions that he oversees them and then in the next paragraph shake them down for a $100 contribution to his credit union, which he helped organize, it's a classic example of using his position to intimidate," she said.

Kubiak, who helped found the Milam County Credit Union and is a member, said he has no financial interest in the matter.

He said the letter was not intended as a shakedown, just an attempt to help his constituents.

Kubiak joked that the credit unions could not have felt too threatened by the letter since none contributed to the Milam County Credit Union.

He said he made the reference to his chairmanship to let the credit unions know he was someone who had expertise in credit union issues.

"It was to let them know that I wasn't a fly-by-night," he said. "I'm sure they get solicitations from all over the country. I wanted to let them know this was for the credit union and that I knew about credit unions."

The credit unions do not seem bothered by the letter.

"I haven't heard from any credit unions that have expressed concern about it," said Terry Young, spokesman for the Texas Credit Union League. "I don't know of any that have contributed. It has not been conveyed to me that any credit union feels obligated to make any contributions. We've seen the letter, and we don't feel there is any undue pressure."

Pentagon practice drives up costs

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The Pentagon is skirting its own rules by farming out defense contracts to other federal agencies - a practice that frequently avoids competitive bidding and drives up costs, department documents show.

The Pentagon routed at least $6.3 billion in defense work to other agencies in 1990 and 1991, according to an audit by the Pentagon's inspector general obtained by The Associated Press.

In one case, the Defense Department went through the Tennessee Valley Authority for $18 million in spending for a highly classified submarine-detection research, Pentagon auditors found. They determined that TVA lacked "adequate security clearances and procedures."

And the Air Force went through TVA for a truck, walkie-talkies with headsets and boom microphones, designing a machine-gun range and clearing trees and underbrush - at a cost of $1 million.

At another agency, the Pentagon incurred $11 million in unnecessary costs by having the Energy Department oversee $100 million in research projects on hazardous waste and computer systems, an audit found. The Pentagon should have issued the contracts itself, the audit concluded.

The audits do not allege any violation of federal law, although a Senate subcommittee plans to review them at a hearing today.

"We identified hundreds of cases" where the Defense Department could have handled work, but shipped it out to other parts of the government instead, Acting Pentagon Inspector General Derek Vander Schaaf said in remarks prepared for the hearing.

The federal Economy Act requires a determination that going to another agency is cheaper or more convenient than direct acquisition.

Killer of 'Good Samaritan' dies by lethal injection early Friday

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Condemned killer Danny Harris was put to death early today for the fatal bludgeoning of a motorist who had stopped to help Harris and his brother with their disabled car nearly 15 years ago.

Harris' brother, Curtis, climbed on the same gurney 30 days ago to receive the same punishment for beating 27-year-old Timothy Merka with a tire iron and then robbing him. The case was dubbed the "Good Samaritan killing."

It marked the first time in Texas since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982 that brothers received lethal injection. Two brothers in Virginia were executed in the mid 1980s.

At least two other sets of brothers are on the 367-member Texas death row.

Danny Harris, who requested a final meal of "God's saving grace, love, truth, peace, freedom," expressed love for his family and for his victim's family in his final statement.

"I plead with all of the teen-agers to stop the violence and to accept Jesus Christ and find victory," he said. Harris then began praying and the lethal drugs started flowing into his arms.

He was pronounced dead at 12:18

a.m. CDT, six minutes later.

The execution was carried out after the U.S. Supreme Court and state courts rejected requests from Harris' attorneys that it be blocked.

Harris, from Bryan, would have turned 33 on Saturday. He was 18 and his brother 17 when they were arrested for the Dec. 11, 1978 killing in rural Brazos County. Merka had stopped to help the Harris brothers and two others who were on the side of the road with a disabled car near Mumford.

Testimony showed Danny Harris held down Merka, who was pleading for his life, while Curtis beat the man with a tire iron. Court records also indicated Danny Harris devised the plan to kill Merka in order to steal the victim's pickup truck so he and his brother and two companions could return home to Bryan.

"To beat a good Samaritan to death ... it gives you a pretty good view of these people," Brazos County District Attorney Bill Turner, who has dealt with the Harris cases for more than a decade, said.

"If facing the death penalty caused him to reckon with his maker, so be it. I applaud him for that. But that doesn't make me think he's any less dangerous."

Both brothers were tried twice and convicted twice and had multiple execution dates.

"This closes a chapter. It's one of those things you think is never going to end," Turner said of the lengthy appeals. "I think it's had a real destructive effect on the community's perception of the criminal justice system."

Harris became the 62nd inmate to be put to death in Texas and the eighth this year. Both totals are the highest in the nation.

Scrubs shine in Pokes' scrimmage

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - It was clearly Dallas Cowboys territory - on and off the field.
Third-string quarterback Jason Garrett threw two touchdown passes in a controlled scrimmage for a 12-0 victory over Houston Thursday night, making the Oilers' new defense look ragged.
The Cowboys were clear favorites for the 15,147 fans who filled Burger Field to capacity, waving banners and cheering every move their heroes made.
"I'm really please with the scrimmage considering we practiced the last three days against the (Los Angeles) Raiders," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.
With starting running back Emmitt Smith still a contract holdout, Derrick Lassic was impressive at the position, rushing for 54 yards on six carries.

"I'm happy with Lassic the way he ran the ball," Johnson said.
"Defensively, the one guy who stood out was Brock Marion. He's a playmaker and that's what he did out there tonight."
Marion, a seventh-round draft pick from Nevada-Reno, spoiled Houston's best drive of the scrimmage with an interception on a fourth-down pass by Bucky Richardson into the end zone.
Johnson even had the last laugh on Oilers defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan, a former rival when he coached the Philadelphia Eagles.
Ryan had bragged earlier in the week "that Jimmy couldn't beat me" and Johnson said, "Ryan was a pretty good coach and might win a playoff game some day."
Before the game, the coaches chatted for about 10 minutes, then shook hands.

But after the final gun sounded, Ryan sprinted off the field and returned immediately to the Oilers' training camp in San Antonio.
"It's pretty obvious that we needed this scrimmage," Houston coach Jack Pardee said. "It's obvious the things that we need to work on. There were some breakdowns on the offensive line."
Houston's first-round pick Brad Hopkins was on the sidelines after signing a four-year contract Wednesday. Starting right tackle David Williams remains a contract holdout.
Garrett had a more productive game than Hugh Millen, who was picked up from New England to be the Cowboys' primary backup. Millen has since become the preseason starter while Super Bowl MVP Troy Aikman recovers from back surgery.

"Hierarchy is etched in stone here and that's fine with me," Garrett said. "I know I'm just a day to day guy."
Jimmy Smith, hoping to be the Cowboys third down receiver to replace departed free agent Kelvin Martin, caught a 5-yard touchdown pass from Garrett.
Then Garrett came right back and found 11th-round pick Tim Daniel of Florida A&M on a 15-yard scoring pass.
Lassic's best run was a 27-yarder.
"It's an opportunity for me to come up big," Lassic said. "I thought I ran good. I'm healthy for the first time. I came into camp to win a backup role."
Quarterback Warren Moon was held out of action by the Oilers, who had only worked out for three days while Dallas has been in camp two weeks.

Woman traces lineage of Hereford HS mascot

The Hereford Brand last Sunday published a story relating the history of Hereford High School's mascot, Scat.
On Thursday, Donita Rule submitted a list she has compiled of the people who have filled the role of Scat since its debut in 1963.
That year, Jay Boynton and Audni Miller were Scat.
Rule said the yearbook has Boynton's photograph as Scat, but the supplement has Miller's.
Boynton was only one of three boys to hold the office. The others are Chad Fitzgerald in 1985 and Scat for the 1993-94 school year, Dominique Dominquez.

Fontes, Levy eager for season to start

By FRANK ELTMAN
Associated Press Writer
For Detroit's Wayne Fontes and Buffalo's Marv Levy, the 1993 NFL season couldn't have come sooner.
Detroit, one win shy of reaching the Super Bowl in 1991, stumbled to a 5-11 record last season and fifth place in the AFC Central Division. Buffalo made a third straight trip to the Super Bowl, only to get stomped 52-17 by Dallas.
Both teams get a chance to put 1992 disappointments aside when they open the NFL exhibition season tonight at 8:30 at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich.
"I'm excited about this game," said Fontes, entering his fifth full season as coach. "This is a good opportunity to see how far we've come."

Rodney Peete, tabbed the No. 1 quarterback in training camp, will start for the Lions. Running back Barry Sanders will join Peete in the backfield.
Levy, in his eighth year with the Bills, has said all four of his quarterbacks will see an equal amount of time against Detroit. The expected rotation is: Jim Kelly, Frank Reich, Gale Gilbert and Matt Rodgers.
Thurman Thomas, who recently signed a four-year, $13.5 million contract making him the highest-paid running back in the league, is not expected to see significant playing time.
Tonight's Buffalo-Detroit game is one of five exhibition contests this weekend. On Saturday, the Los Angeles Raiders play Green Bay in the Hall of Fame game in Canton, Ohio, while New Orleans plays Philadelphia in Tokyo. On Sunday, Pittsburgh plays San Francisco in Barcelona, Spain, and Minnesota visits Dallas.

Raiders
Rookie quarterback Billy Joe Hobert will be a featured performer in Los Angeles' game Saturday, but not at his accustomed position. Hobert, a third-round draft choice in April, will handle all of the Raiders' place-kicking against the Packers. Regular kicker Jeff Jaeger has a calf muscle injury.
Vikings
Minnesota running back Terry Allen, defensive end Robert Harris, cornerback Jayce Pearson and tight ends Luke Fisher and Troy Lenseigne will miss Sunday's exhibition opener in Dallas because of injuries.

Falcons
Atlanta expects to sign top draft pick Lincoln Kennedy, their last unsigned rookie. The offensive guard and ninth player chosen in the NFL draft agreed in principle Thursday to a three-year deal.
Giants
Starting fullback Jarrod Bunch is going to be sidelined about a week with a sprained medial collateral ligament in his right knee.
Redskins
Washington plans to give backup quarterback Cary Conklin his first serious look in Saturday's scrimmage with the New York Jets.

Walsh heads great HOF class

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - Bill Walsh, who used to speak to millions as an NFL analyst on television, is afraid he might become speechless when he is inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame on Saturday.
"I'm really concerned about whether I'm going to be able to talk," Walsh said this week. "I think I could be eloquent if given the chance, but I'm not sure I'll even be able to get a word out."
Even if he can't express himself, Walsh's record speaks volumes. The architect of the San Francisco 49ers' Super Bowl victories in 1982, 1985 and 1989, Walsh had a record of 102-63-1 in a decade as the team's head coach.
Joining him for induction Saturday will be Chicago Bears running back Walter Payton, San Diego Chargers quarterback Dan Fouts, Miami Dolphins offensive lineman Larry Little and Pittsburgh Steelers coach Chuck Noll.

In contrast to Walsh, Payton said his induction is almost anti-climactic.
"The reason I can't get excited about the Hall of Fame is that too many guys already put me there a long time ago," he said. "It was like somebody showed me my Christmas presents three months ahead of time."
Payton rushed for more yards than anyone ever to play in the NFL - 16,276. His 3,838 carries and 110 touchdowns also are records. He also won a Super Bowl ring in 1986 with the Bears.
Fouts never made it to a Super Bowl, but did turn the Chargers from woeful to one of the most exciting teams of the 1980s. In 15 seasons, he passed for 43,040 yards.

Little, at 190 pounds, was a good but not spectacular lineman in high school in Miami. He wasn't drafted, signing a free-agent contract with San Diego. He spent two years there before being traded to his hometown team.
Little flourished as a cornerstone of the Dolphins' running attack, which produced Super Bowl championships in 1972 and 1973.
"There's no doubt I had to prove myself, that I had to be five times better than the guys that were drafted," said Little, now the coach of the fledgling team at North Carolina Central.
Noll engineered the Steelers dynasty that won Super Bowls in 1975, 1976, 1979 and 1980.

Oilers sign first round selection

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - It's catchup time for Houston Oilers No. 1 draft pick Brad Hopkins of Illinois.
Hopkins agreed to terms of a four-year contract Wednesday night and planned to be in training camp in time to watch tonight's scrimmage against the Dallas Cowboys in Austin.
"I don't think holding out was detrimental, I'd have a hard row to hoe regardless, whether I missed a week or not," Hopkins said. "It's going to be hard work for me anyway."
Hopkins had been a holdout since rookies reported for two-a-day workouts last Thursday.
Terms of the contract were not announced.
"We worked extremely hard," agent Mark Bartelstein said. "We had to be extremely creative but we came up with some ideas to get it done."

Owner Bud Adams announced Sunday the club would take $10,000 from their offer to Hopkins for each day he did not report. Bartelstein said Adams' statement was not a factor in the settlement.
Oilers general manager Mike Holovac was delighted to finalize a deal with Hopkins, whom the team traded up to get.

"I love to get this fellow, we gave up third round pick for him and our left tackle from last year (Don Maggs) is gone, we got a good one," Holovac said.
Maggs signed a free agent contract with the Denver Broncos.

What was that you said?

What is the difference in sending a Valentine's Card or simply saying, "I love you"? The spoken word has little staying power. With Valentine's Day only coming once a year, a few words is not enough to last. The card, however, is something you can hold on to, refer back to, carry with you, read again and again, save in your scrapbook forever. The card is a lasting record and a part of your personal history. The same can be said when comparing radio to newspaper. Notice which one can be held, referred back to, carried on shopping trips, and found in libraries for generation after generation.

Newspaper vs. Radio

- Radio copy depends on word imagery and it is limited to 30 or 60 seconds, not enough time for complex issues.
- Average recall for a 1/2 page newspaper ad is 32%; for a 1/4 page ad, it's 31%. Radio ad recall is only 4%.
- Once a commercial is aired, it is gone. There is absolutely no tangible evidence it existed. For those listeners not tuned in at that specific time, the commercial is lost.
- Radio is an entertainment medium. People listen for musical enjoyment (passive experience).
- Newspapers are an information medium. People read to seek data and learn (active experience).
- Newspapers are the only medium that allow shoppers to compare values offered by competitive advertisers.
- 77% of all newspaper readers look at every page. No audience can actively listen to the radio 77% of the time (Audits and Survey, Inc.).
- 44% of newspaper readers look forward to ads, compared to 10% for radio (Audits and Survey, Inc.).

Newspapers are the way to reach today's consumers

McRae charges dugout in beanball war twist

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer
When the Kansas City-Texas beanball war heated up, Brian McRae charged the dugout, not the mound. It was a strange sight to behold Thursday at Kaufman Field in Kansas City when McRae responded to getting plunked in the rear end by a fastball thrown by Ken Patterson. Instead of doing the usual drop-the-bat, lower-the-head and attack-the-pitcher routine, McRae did a 180-degree turn and shot toward the Texas dugout in the eighth inning of the Royals' 9-4 victory. McRae wanted to go after Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy, who all but ignited the fight Wednesday night with something strongly resembling fighting words. "We've been hit more times than anybody in baseball," Kennedy said that night after Rafael Palmeiro was hit by a pitch. "We don't have to complain to the league office. We'll take care of it. We can take care of ourselves."

McRae was met by Kevin Brown, Willie Upshaw and Kenny Rogers. They put a bear hug on the Kansas City outfielder as both benches emptied. "I was going after Kennedy, but I couldn't get to him," said McRae.

who also was hit in the arm by a pitch in the fifth inning. Greg Gagne hit a grand slam, and six of the Royals' seven hits went for extra bases. Tom Gordon (2-0), making his second start of the season, went six innings and gave up three hits and four walks, striking out six. Loser Charlie Leibrandt (9-7) was making his first appearance in Kansas City since Sept. 22, 1989.

Mariners 4, Twins 3
At the Kingdome, Ken Griffey Jr. failed in his attempt to set a major league record for homering in consecutive games. Griffey, who entered the game with homers in eight straight games, went 2-for-4 with a double and single. "It was a lot of fun. I'm not disappointed. It was long, but I'm happy for what I did, what I achieved," Griffey said.

He popped out to second in his final at-bat in the seventh inning - a two-out, one-on situation in which the Twins could have intentionally walked him with first base open. "Everybody in Seattle wanted to see him hit," Minnesota manager Tom Kelly said. "It's major league baseball, his streak was good for the Mariners organization. There was a big crowd (45,607) here. We don't back off for anybody." The Mariners got the game-winning runs in the seventh as Rich Amaral and Jay Buhner-delivered RBI singles off Scott Erickson (6-12). Tim Leary (8-4) got the victory as Seattle reached .500 (51-51) for the 19th time this season.

Blue Jays 7, Tigers 4
At SkyDome, the Blue Jays scored the game-winning runs in their final at-bat for the fourth straight game. "If we can keep it close until the late innings, we have enough confidence to feel like we can win," said Roberto Alomar, whose bases-loaded triple in the eighth off

Tom Bolton (1-4) made a winner of Tony Castillo (3-0).
Red Sox 7, Brewers 4
At County Stadium, rookie Aaron Sele (5-0) won his fourth straight start and Mo Vaughn, Billy Hatcher and Ernest Riles homered. Sele tied Don Schwall for the best career start by a Red Sox pitcher. Milwaukee starter Ricky Bones (6-7) never had a lead to work with.
Athletics 2, Angels 1
At Anaheim Stadium, Bob Welch (8-7) and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter and Oakland spoiled the major league debut of right-hander Phil Leftwich (0-1). Troy Neel had an RBI single in the sixth and another A's run scored in the ninth on second baseman Torey Lovullo's fielding error. Dennis Eckersley got the final five outs for his 22nd save.

Astros' Harnisch shuts out hot Braves

By FRANK ELTMAN
Associated Press Writer
Call Pete Harnisch a one-man fire brigade. Atlanta, sparked by the acquisition of Fred McGriff, rolled into the Houston Astrodome on a sizzling pace, having scored 84 runs in winning eight of nine games. Harnisch extinguished any hopes the second-place Braves had of advancing on idle San Francisco, pitching a four-hit shutout to stop the Braves' six-game winning streak 2-0 Thursday night. The loss leaves Atlanta 7 1/2 games behind the Giants in the NL West. "It was a dandy. It was as good as it comes and we needed it. It took a great effort and he gave it to us," Astros manager Art Howe said. "I had a lot of confidence in my velocity. My arm felt good. I just really felt strong. I think that was the key," Harnisch said. "Lately, I've been trying to spot the ball too much. I was pressing and I was falling behind too often. I decided to take a different approach." The Astros right-hander retired 17 of the last 19 batters he faced. Only four Braves advanced as far as second base as Harnisch (10-7) pitched his third complete game, striking out nine and walking two. "That's the best control I've seen him have. He was outstanding. We just ran up against a tough pitcher who had his stuff. Control-wise, the whole works, that's the best I've seen him," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. Kent Mercker (2-1), making his first start since Sept. 28, 1991, allowed two runs on two hits - Houston finished with only three - in four innings. The Astros, winning for the sixth time in nine games, got a leadoff walk in the first from Craig Biggio. He took third on a double by Steve Finley before Jeff Bagwell drove in both runs. Houston did not have another hit until the eighth.

Expos 3, Pirates 2
Delino DeShields scored the tying run, then singled home the winner in the 11th for Montreal at Pittsburgh. Blas Minor (6-4) walked John Vander Wal and pinch-hitter Mike Lansing with two outs in the 11th. DeShields, who has eight hits in his last 16 at-bats, then lined a single to center to score Vander Wal as the Expos won for the fifth time in seven games.
Phillies 6, Cardinals 4
Pinch-hitter Darren Daulton drew an bases-loaded walk in the eighth inning, forcing in the go-ahead run as Philadelphia beat St. Louis to sweep the three-game series and build a seven-game lead in the NL East. David West (3-2) pitched two-thirds of an inning for the victory. Mitch Williams retired the visiting Cardinals in the ninth for his 28th save. St. Louis reliever Rob Murphy (1-5) took the loss.

Marlins 2, Mets 1
Charlie Hough pitched 7 1-3 strong innings and Henry Cotto singled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning to help Florida win at New York.

Celts' Lewis planned more tests

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) - When he died, Reggie Lewis was one week away from a medical test of his heart's ability to handle competitive basketball. He was two weeks away from meeting with Boston Celtics officials about providing a cardiologist and defibrillator, which shocks the heart into regular beats, at all of his games and practices. Then he might have been able to decide if he could continue his NBA career. But Lewis died Tuesday before he could keep those appointments. He was stricken while shooting baskets at Brandeis University in Waltham. "Reggie had not made his decision to return to basketball because his testing was not complete," his widow said in a statement Thursday. "Reggie did everything that he could to avoid this day ever coming." Details were revealed of his search for answers after he received conflicting opinions on what caused him to collapse during a playoff game April 29. Lewis, 27, consulted four heart specialists in Southern California for several days early last month. They found a heart abnormality, according to the statement read by Jerome Stanley, one of Lewis' agents. "The doctors concluded, although they believed that he could eventually return to controlled conditional competitive basketball, they did not think that he should do so until he had undergone a monitoring of his heart function while playing competitive basketball," Donna Harris Lewis said. Lewis planned to undergo that monitoring next week in Baltimore, his home town. He decided against doing that at the team's rookie-free agent camp from July 11 to 14 "because of the circus environment that it would have created," his widow said. The first diagnosis Lewis received after three days at New England Baptist Hospital was that he had a life-threatening heart ailment. He switched to Brigham and Women's Hospital for more tests. Outdoor World

with Mel Phillips

Someone from this region had to attend AFTMA, the world's largest fishing tackle trade show, in Las Vegas, Nev. We at Southwest Outdoors sacrificed four days checking out the newest and best ideas that will hit the fishing market during this next year.

By the way, the next AFTMA trade show will be held in July of 1994 at Dallas, and we are looking for a dedicated research assistant to help us cover the show. Interested? More details about how to attend this trade show will be discussed in future columns.

As expected, the biggest dogfight at this trade show was the unveiling of 14 brands of the new generation of braided fishing lines. Since the '60s, when most anglers stopped using braided Nylon/Dacron and started using monofilament, the major line makers have made incremental improvements in their lines: slightly smaller, stronger or different in color. Their changes were small because monofilament was and is a great fishing line.

Now an unexpected cross-over introduction of braided lines from the kite flyers threatens to cut into the monofilament market. Unlike monofilament, this generation of braided lines is incredibly tough without any line memory, has an extremely small diameter, and because it does not stretch, it is super-sensitive.

Most new braided line makers have selected a new polyethylene fiber called SPECTRA by Allied Signal Inc. as their key component.

Ironhead, by the Fenwick people, simply claims quicker hooksets, fewer breakoffs, one-third of the diameter of monofilament and that it is less visible to fish.

Spiderwire, by Safariland, is billed as the world's strongest, most durable, most responsive fishing line because of advanced technology from the military and aerospace industry.

Gudebrod, the industry leader in the surviving Nylon and Dacron braided fishing lines, introduced their version using SPECTRA fibers called SST. It stands for "Strong, Sensitive and Thin."

Strangely, industry giant DuPont, makers of one of my favorite lines, Stren, came to the AFTMA dogfight with a dog that only barked. Unique in the industry, their new braided line uses Kevlar. But they distributed samples that were only nine feet long. Hardly enough to provide a feel and certainly insufficient to provide a real field test at the lake.

Good news--We will give away free samples of these new braided lines on Saturday at the Moonlight Madness Big Bass Tournament at Baylor Lake. The entry fee at the lake is $60, and based on 100 entries, the winner makes $2,000. Big Bass of each hour makes an additional $100. Bring some coffee, a black light and some strong line, and we'll see you under a full moon at midnight.

Mel Phillips, winner of numerous awards for journalism and broadcasting, is an active member of the Texas Outdoor Writers Association. He is an avid hunter, tournament fisherman and host of a Wednesday evening outdoors show on KGNC TalkRadio 71.

LEWIS

Gilbert Mudge, a cardiologist who supervised his care there, diagnosed Lewis with a less harmless neurological condition and said he was optimistic Lewis could return to basketball under medical supervision.

The doctors in California felt that although the abnormality they found "could have caused the fainting incident, so could have the combination of factors enunciated by Dr. Mudge," Mrs. Lewis said.

She added that one of the tests Mudge administered duplicated the collapse. His opinion "was the best guess until we were able to duplicate the symptoms of fainting while under the stress of physical activity," she added.

"Until that time, Reggie would not, and did not, engage in any strenuous competitive basketball situations," his wife said.

"Reggie's death occurred while he was shooting baskets, not exerting energy in a competitive basketball situation," she added. "He had done the same level of activity, which did not violate any of the doctors' opinion of safe activity, several times recently in activities ranging from shooting baskets to playing with our son."

She said her husband's physicians had decided to let him compete again only if the Celtics provided a cardiologist and a defibrillator at all games and practices.

The Lewises were going to meet with team officials and make that request sometime around Aug. 10.

Meanwhile, the state medical examiner's office said results of studies of Lewis' heart and other organs might not be available for several weeks. It said such studies are routine. An autopsy was conducted Wednesday.

Services for Lewis will be Monday at Matthews Arena at Northeastern University, his alma mater in Boston.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PROVERBS---A WAY OF LIFE!

AMONG THE PEOPLE OF THE BIBLE, THE TEACHINGS FOUND IN THE BOOK OF PROVERBS WERE GIVEN SERIOUS ATTENTION! THE PURPOSE OF THIS BOOK WAS TO INSTRUCT THE PEOPLE IN THE PRACTICE OF WISDOM, THE SANE AND PRUDENT PURSUIT OF THEIR DAILY LIFE, THE ART OF LIVING WELL, AND THE VIRTUES BY WHICH THE GOAL OF HAPPINESS WAS TO BE WON! IT ALSO ADVISED AGAINST THE MANY PITFALLS THAT COULD COME TO A PERSON IN THEIR DAY-TO-DAY LIFE. THE IDEALS OF LIFE ARE ALSO TOUCHED UPON: HONESTY, INDUSTRY, CHASTITY, CONSIDERATION FOR OTHERS, HELPFULNESS, AND MANY OTHER VIRTUES, BUT AGAIN AND AGAIN THE BOOK SEEMS TO CALL TO OUR ATTENTION THE SEARCH FOR WISDOM AND KNOWLEDGE!

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) - Susan Ruttan, who played office manager Roxanne Melman on "L.A. Law" for the past seven years, said she was unceremoniously dumped from the NBC series.

In the July 31 issue of TV Guide, Ruttan said her character will disappear next season because "the powers that be felt that the character wasn't worth the money."

She says that nobody who worked on the show even said goodbye. "It hurt my feelings," Ruttan said.

Executive Producer William Finkelstein said he felt the network's money would be better spent getting new faces on the show.

Seeing ourselves as others see us would probably confirm our worst suspicious about them.

CARDBOARD TUBE
Dear Heloise: Keep a few tubes from toilet paper and paper towels. The short ones can hold appliance cords, doubled to fit. The longer ones will hold extension cords. This way you can store them in a utility (junk drawer) space for neat and easy access, and there are no more tangled cords. — Ruth Storms, Tulsa, Okla.

MUSTY-ODOR PROBLEM
Dear Heloise: The packets that come in coffee to keep it moisture-free are ideal to keep in dresser drawers or any other place you have a musty-odor problem. — Margaret Heath, Sheffield, Ala.

Here's An Idea That Can Strengthen Your Family

Tonight at the dinner table, read something out loud to your family. Tomorrow night, let another member read something. A news story. A Bible verse. A Robert Frost poem. A cereal box panel. History. Humor. Anything. Each night a different family member can read a selection. Imagine the wide range of subjects your family will read in 365 days. What a stimulating way to have your children develop good reading habits. We have 23 million illiterate adults in America. We wouldn't have one, if each of them had been served reading as part of their nightly diet. It's non-fattening, but enriching. And it doesn't cost a dime.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN: A while back, a reader wrote to me about a man who ran for office in Clark County, Nev., under the name "Almighty God." Another correspondent informed me that in Cowlitz County, Wash., a candidate for lieutenant governor, whose name was "Absolutely Nobody," had gotten 23 percent of the vote. I was told by the writer that Absolutely Nobody died before the election.

I have before me a letter from Sally Powers Moody, the mother of Absolutely Nobody, who tells me in no uncertain terms that her son is living (with AIDS) and that he ran third in a field of eight in the primary, receiving 7 percent of the vote. Mrs. Moody also let me know that her son, Absolutely Nobody, was a serious candidate who served as chairman of the Young Republicans of Oregon in 1981 but became disenchanted with the major parties and decided to run for lieutenant governor on his own ticket. Absolutely Nobody promised, if elected, to abolish the office, which he called "a do-nothing, ceremonial drag on the taxpayers." Now that's what I call an honest politician.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I wrote this letter to the editor of our local paper the day my 8-year-old son was in a bicycle accident. I believe this message needs a wider audience. Will you please print it in your column? I am--A Thankful MOther in La Crosse, Wis.

DEAR MOTHER: Your message is indeed a vital one, and I am delighted to print it for all mothers whose children have bicycles. Thanks for sending it on. Here it is:

Please Wear a Bike Helmet

Some people think you look like a geek when you wear a bike helmet. Today, my son looked like a geek, but that geeky bike helmet saved my son from serious injury and possibly saved his life.

Today, my son was hit by a car while riding his bike. He shattered the windshield of the car with his head. Glass was imbedded in the helmet. It would have been imbedded in his head had he not been wearing the helmet. The styrofoam inside the helmet is broken. His head could have been broken had he not been wearing the bike helmet.

Tomorrow, my son will be stiff and sore, but he will be home--alive and healthy. Tomorrow, we will buy a new bike helmet.

Gem of the Day: Dogs come when they're called. Cats take a message and get back to you when they are darned good and ready.
